Pentagon spending measure approved

By TIM AHERN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Senate early today finally approved a Pentagon spending bill after asking America's European allies to increase defense spending but refusing to threaten a major withdrawal of U.S. troops from the continent if they do not.

At 3:57 a.m., the Senate voted 82-6 approval of the measure authorizing the Pentagon to spend $291 billion in fiscal 1985. That is a 6.9 percent increase, adjusted for inflation, over the current approved spending.

The measure now goes to a House-Senate conference committee to iron out differences from the House version passed three weeks ago.

The bill gives the Pentagon almost all the weapons President Reagan wanted, except for nerve gas and the MX missile. Reagan was turned down on nerve gas and won only 21 MX weapons after seeking 40.

The Senate voted 55-41 late Wednesday to kill a move to pull out 90,000 American troops from Europe by the end of the decade if the 15 other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization don't improve NATO's non-nuclear military power.

Then the Republican-controlled Senate gave 94-3 approval to a proposal that would limit U.S. troop strength in Europe to the current total of 326,414, blocking planned Pentagon increases. It also calls for more NATO spending.

In other votes, the Senate: — Approved 77-22 a call that Reagan try to negotiate with the Soviets a comprehensive ban on all nuclear tests, one of four provisions added by the Senate to press Reagan on arms control issues.

After request to Europe

—Approved by voice vote creation of a "peace academy" to study conflict resolution.

The refusal to approve the troop withdrawals came after two days of heavy lobbying by President Reagan and other top U.S. officials, along with European leaders. They all argued that it was the wrong way to get NATO to spend more money.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chief advocate of the withdrawal, said later "the lobbying by the White House had a very large effect."

The voting capped six hours of debate in which all senators who spoke expressed frustration with NATO's refusal to meet earlier pledges to increase spending. But opponents said the Nunn plan was not the way to win hikes.

Sen. John Tower, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said, "We're not there just to defend the blue-eyed Europeans. We're there to defend our own national interests."

But Nunn argued that it was "pro-NATO, not anti-NATO" and was intended to improve the ability of the alliance to fight.

Nunn is angry that of the 16 NATO nations, only the United States and tiny Luxembourg have met a 6-year-old goal calling for each nation to increase annual defense spending by at least 3 percent.

NATO's poor conventional defenses mean U.S. commanders would have to rapidly resort to nuclear weapons to stem any large-scale conventional attack by the Soviets and their Warsaw Pact allies, Nunn said.

His proposal called for annual withdrawals of 30,000 troops from 1987-1989 unless NATO kept promises to increase its ammunition stocks and build bases for U.S. planes, or unless the top NATO commander certified that the alliance had improved its military strength in other ways.

NATO nations "are getting the message that a lot of us are fed up," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, but he added that threatening withdrawals is likely to be viewed in Europe as bullying tactics by the United States.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., agreed. "I share the frustrations. But will this have the intended effect?"

Lugar and others pointed out that NATO nations had stuck to their guns and deployed new U.S. nuclear weapons in face of strong opposition at home.

But it's not blackmail, Nunn declared. "The simple reality is that if we do not have allies who are willing to do their part, there is no need for the American taxpayers to spend billions and billions on a conventional defense that won't work."

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said, "The American taxpayer should not be asked to continue to bear an inordinate share of Europe's defense."

Thunderstorms hit Dixie, feed floods

By RON SIRAK Associated Press Writer

Rains in the Midwest today fed floodwaters which already have claimed two lives and damaged more than $430 million in crops, and volunteers in Idaho stood armpit deep in water to fortify an earthen dam that gave way.

The thunderstorms spread into part of Dixie, but in Texas, nature was at the other extreme with Corpus Christi joining the city of Alice in ordering water rationing.

Storms early today in Georgia followed a day in which the mercury climbed to a record 102 in Columbus and 101 in Savannah. Temperature records were set or tied Wednesday in four other southern cities, the National Weather Service said.

as spring gave way today to summer.

Two men drowned Wednesday in swirling floodwaters in Missouri. Orville L. Atchison, 73, died when his car was swept off a highway and into a creek just south of Kansas City, police said. James Goodpaster, 24, was killed when he was trapped by the current while swimming in a flooded field, authorities said.

Millions of acres of rich farmland remained under water today in Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, officials said. In Iowa, Graydon Anderson, head of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, called the flooding along the Missouri River "by far the worst I've ever seen."

Anderson said 2.3 million acres in the northwest section of the state — one-fourth of the cropland in the region — are flooded or washed out.

A "conservative" estimate puts crop damage at $350 million in Iowa alone, said state Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry.

A reported 7½ inches of rain fell Wednesday near Scranton, Iowa, the weather service said, and 2 inches of rain fell in just 45 minutes on Glidden.

Flooding has forced more than 1,000 families from their homes in Kansas and Missouri. Officials in Missouri say more than $80 million in crops have been lost to the rampaging rivers.

More than 2½ inches of rain fell on parts of Kansas on Wednesday. That was not welcome news to the 245 residents of Bean Lake, many of whom have slept in the backs of pickup trucks and campers waiting for the rivers to subside.

"It's beginning to get to them — the waiting, that is," said Lenora Eirls, who runs a grocery near Bean Lake.

In Mud Lake, Idaho, an earthen dike around a reservoir gave way Wednesday night, flooding an estimated two square miles of farmland before being plugged, officials said.

A 30-foot section of the dike around Mud Lake Reservoir about 40 miles northwest of Idaho Falls failed at about 6 p.m., the Jefferson County sheriff's office said. Some 200 volunteers managed to repair the break within a couple of hours, and officials said only two families had to be evacuated.

"Even if the rain were to stop today, it would take a while for the streams and rivers to subside," Bill Sammler of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today. But it did not appear the rain would stop today in the Midwest, Sammler said.

"It's raining there now and thunderstorms are likely to fire up across the mid and upper Mississippi valley again today," he said. "The big rivers aren't the real danger now — they're already over their banks," he said. "It's the flash flooding that causes the heartaches."

In the southeast, which has been baking under 100-degree heat, powerful thunderstorms dumped 2.55 inches of rain on Fayetteville, Ark., in a six-hour period ending early today, the weather service said. Thunderstorms were reported today from the lower Mississippi valley into Georgia and South Carolina.

State rests Duran case

The state rested its case Wednesday night after presenting five witnesses involved in the drug sales investigation of Victor Duran, 43 of Hereford.

Duran is being tried for felony delivery of marijuana. During the first full day of testimony, jurors heard tape recordings made by an undercover law enforcement officer who allegedly bought a pound of marijuana from Duran last December. The officer had hidden the recorder on his person during November and December visits to Duran's home.

The officer claimed to have purchased smaller amounts of marijuana from Duran before buying the pound for $900, but Duran is being tried only for the larger sale.

The evidence produced Wednesday was followed by testimony from Lieutenant Vernon Hope and Chief Don Brush of the Hereford Police Department. Roy Murphy of the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Amarillo testified that the substance was marijuana and that the bag actually contained 13.1 ounces.

The four-man, eight-woman jury was to hear testimony for the defense beginning at 9 a.m. today in 222nd District Court.

Smith's trial continued

Jerry Smith, a local attorney and former assistant district attorney, has had his trial continued by 154th District Judge Pat Boone Jr. of Littlefield.

Slated to begin Monday, the trial has been indefinitely postponed at the request of defense attorney Jim Brown, whose office is in Canyon. Brown said he has a trial in Hartley County this month while Smith, too, has another commitment in court next week.

On March 31, an extended Deaf Smith County Grand Jury returned three indictments against Smith at around 3 a.m. He was charged with aggravated perjury - a felony - and two Class A misdemeanor counts of official misconduct.

When announcing the indictments against Smith, grand jurors took no action against Roland Saul, district attorney who was also investigated.

Pair of vehicles damaged

Approximately $500 damage was done sometime Tuesday night to a pair of automobiles parked in the Warren Brothers Motor Company, 1410 Park Ave., police reported this morning.

The cars' vinyl tops were scratched by some sort of knife, police figured. Warren Brothers had another of its vehicles burglarized, as an AM-FM cassette stereo - worth about $150 - was ripped off.

Meanwhile, police arrested one man on several charges, including driving while intoxicated and shoplifting. They also investigated a quick-change artist report, an incident of harassment and a minor, non-injury motor vehicle accident.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says a lot of trouble in this world is produced by people who don't produce anything else.

A couple living just outside of town was quite irritated because their neighbors wouldn't repair the wire around their chicken coop, and the hens were always in their garden scratching up the seeds. All of a sudden a solution came. The husband asked his wife how she got the neighbors to patch the fence.

"It was really simple," she replied. "I just put six eggs out under our rose bush and made sure the neighbors saw me collecting them."

When you're fighting a deadline on a newspaper, time has a way of passing faster than you can believe. In the midst of getting a paper to press, we've often remarked to staff members, "My, time flies when you're having fun!"

We're not sure they always catch the significance of that statement. There is a touch of humor involved, but a whole lot of truth.

We love the newspaper business, wouldn't want to be doing anything else. We feel sorry for people who are working at jobs they don't like and with people they don't enjoy. If you think about it, choosing a job ranks right up there with selecting a mate.

In most discussions about work and career choices, you never hear one aspect of work discussed and it is, perhaps, the most important of all. Who do you spend more waking time with than anyone else? Your co-workers.

Marriages break up; children grow and leave home, but work is a constant and so are the people with whom you work. If we stay with a job, we are apt to see our colleagues in the office (plant, shop, etc.) five days a week, eight hours a day for 20 years.

If you enjoy your work and your co-workers, you are apt to share with them in their achievements and sympathize with them in their disappointments. Co-workers often talk a common language—one which others would not understand or appreciate. Who outside the newspaper field knows much about picas and agate lines, or how to flag in a picture or double-burn with a 10-percent screen?

Most workers experience a certain relaxation with the people with whom they work. At work, they tend to be much more themselves instead of putting up a front. There is a bit of chemistry that draws people closer together when they share a particularly rewarding experience. Fellow workers feel a "team spirit" when they produce a product or get a job done on schedule.

Those friends you make from 9 to 5 form a vital part of your life!

Victim sees five hurt by grenade

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — One of five people hurt in an explosion outside a Galveston apartment says he heard a shrieking noise and turned to see a grenade rolling on the ground, a police sergeant said.

Police Sgt. Leo Singleton said Wednesday the victim, whom he declined to identify, said the device glowed bright orange, then exploded.

Singleton speculated the attack, which occurred as the five drank beer outside an apartment southeast of downtown Galveston, must have arisen from a feud.

"For this type of violence to occur, it's got to be revenge," he said. Police searched the area for more than six hours and recovered fragments from the grenade. Singleton speculated the grenade had been filled with gunpowder, plugged up and armed with some type of detonating device.

LULAC leader warns candidates

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Though all of the presidential candidates apparently have snubbed this year's meeting of the nation's largest Hispanic organization, the group's leader says it will be the politicians and not Mexican-Americans who suffer at the polls in November.

Mario Obledo, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Wednesday there are enough Hispanics in the United States to make a difference in the presidential election and that by not showing up, the major contenders "have only hurt themselves."

As of today, when the 55th annual meeting of LULAC kicked off, none of the presidential candidates appeared to be coming to the convention.

And the no shows by President Reagan, former Vice President Walter Mondale, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado only will reinforce to Hispanics the "insensitivity" both Democrats and Republicans show toward Mexican-Americans and Hispanic issues, Obledo said.

Court rejects Laredo claim

AUSTIN (AP) — Breaking with court rulings in two other states, the 3rd Court of Appeals has rejected the city of Laredo's claim for a right to Rio Grande water without being subjected to state regulation.

In a ruling Wednesday that included review of two centuries of laws, the court decided that the city wasn't guaranteed unlimited water rights just because it was founded by colonial Spain.

The ruling ran counter to decisions of the California and New Mexico supreme courts, which ruled that American cities which are successors to cities created by Spain and Mexico have a paramount right to water from streams on which they were founded.

"No such municipal water right was expressly granted to Laredo at its founding," said Justice Bob Shannon.

Mondale again rejects call

As Walter F. Mondale interviews Democrats in search of a running mate, his struggle to attain party unity is being threatened by the Rev. Jesse Jackson's insistence that he be given more convention delegates.

Mondale was adamant Wednesday in his opposition to Jackson's demands that party rules be changed to award him more delegates to reflect his showing in the primaries.

"I've won by those rules and I'm standing by them," Mondale said from Minnesota, where he was to meet today with Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, the first of a parade of prospective vice presidential candidates.

But Jackson said "time is on our side," and hinted at the prospect of a convention battle.

Hispanics trying to kill controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Encouraged by a near victory, Hispanic leaders say they will keep working to kill immigration legislation that has passed both the House and Senate.

The bill's sponsors, however, predict they will prevail and send President Reagan a bill he will sign.

Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., said he was elated by the narrow 216-211 vote in the House on Wednesday. Liberal Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who shares Roybal's feeling the bill will lead to discrimination against Hispanics said: "The ball game's not over."

The bill still faces several hurdles — major differences must be ironed out in order to reconcile the House and Senate versions. Both chambers must vote again on final passage.

President favors major role

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — President Reagan, whose political career has been built on the bedrock of fighting big government, now is promoting a new federal agency to fight violent crime.

In a speech Wednesday to the nation's sheriffs gathered in Hartford for their annual conference, Reagan announced creation of a National Center for the Analysis of Violent Crime.

He said it would use "the latest computerized technology for detective work" to identify and track "repeat killers," murderers who kill again and again, usually preying on a particular group or community.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said after Reagan's speech the new center actually would concentrate on solving several kinds of crimes, including child abduction and molestation cases, sexually oriented homicides, rapes and arsons.

Teams to monitor cease-fire

United Nations officials said they are forming teams to monitor an Iran-Iraq agreement not to attack civilian areas, and the two warring countries accused each other of violating the accord by shelling major cities.

Iran on Wednesday also denied Iraqi claims that part of the Iranian-occupied Majnoon Islands had been recaptured.

U.N. spokesman Joe Sills said in New York that one monitoring team would be stationed in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, and the other would be located near Iran, entering that nation when it contends Iraq has violated the moratorium on civilian attacks.

Iran does not want observers based within its borders, Sills said.

Each of the teams will consist of three military observers and one civilian, Sills said.

Man shoots sick wife

DALLAS (AP) — Despondent because his wife was suffering from Alzheimer's disease and unable to bring herself to put her in a nursing home, an elderly man shot and killed his wife and then turned the gun on himself, police and family members said.

"My father just couldn't live without her and he couldn't put her in a home," said Solomon Suberi, 40, after Wednesday's bloodshed at the Retirement Inn in Dallas.

The bodies of 70-year-old David Suberi and Ahova Suberi, 73, were found Wednesday morning in their apartment.

A clerk at the home told authorities that Suberi called the front desk at 8:30 a.m. and said, "I have shot my wife. I need an ambulance."

Employees of the home told police they found the couple lying on their bed. She had been shot in the back of the head and he was shot in the mouth, they said. A .38-caliber pistol was in his hand.

Mrs. Suberi had been suffering for the past three years from the disease, a neurological disorder that causes irreversible mental deterioration and senility.

Family and friends of the couple said Suberi had provided round-the-clock care for his wife as her condition worsened. But recently, he had become ill and unable to keep up the vigilance, they said.

"He only talked about not being able to go on without her. He'd been very depressed," the younger Suberi said.

Rosa Pendley, who lives down the hall from the Suberi apartment at the Retirement Inn, said Suberi had "been waiting on her for three years, but the last two weeks he's been sick himself. He couldn't do it anymore."

Another resident, Marnie Homeyer, said, "She wasn't able to talk to anybody or walk by herself. If you can't take care of yourself here, you have to get a nurse."

Solaman Suberi said his father and mother had come to the United States from Jerusalem in the late 1930s. His father originally was from Yemen, he said.

"They had a little cafeteria in Los Angeles, at the University of Judaism, where they train rabbinical students," he said, adding that they had raised five children and moved to Dallas in 1982.

Marsh celebrates 10th anniversary of ranch

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The row of bruised and battered Cadillacs popping out of the ground near U.S. 66 west of Amarillo have left a decade of motorists gawking. And that's just what Stanley Marsh "3" wanted.

The eccentric Texas millionaire created what he calls a work of art back in 1974. Today he is throwing a giant beer bash to mark the 10th anniversary of his Cadillac Ranch creation.

Marsh, who uses "3" instead of III after his name, decided the anniversary would be a good excuse to get together with 400 or 500 of his closest friends.

The three artists from the Ant Farm, a West Coast artists group, who helped Marsh design the "artwork," will be there for the celebration. They are Chip Lord, Hudson Marquez and Doug Michels.

Marsh, who has made millions in natural gas and broadcasting enterprises, and his three companions planted the 10 Cadillacs — ranging from 1949 to 1963 models — back in 1974.

To a lot of highway motorists west of Amarillo, the Ranch is just another roadside attraction, in between the "10,000-Pound Prairie Dog" and Stuckey's. But to Marsh, it's a work of art.

"I have a theory of art. The most significant art is the art we never see. The art we dream about. When I saw the Mona Lisa, I was disappointed. See, I like art that comes as an abrupt surprise. Art that's not in a museum, that's not on a wall. I like being able to make my own mind up on what art is," he told the Dallas Morning News during a pre-party trek through his ranch.

The cars, planted in a row and tilting out of the earth, are barely standing the ravages of time. They are weatherbeaten and have been vandalized. Tires have been slashed, windows broken, and graffiti is layered upon graffiti. But Marsh, 46, believes the cars remain an attraction for that special, unsuspecting motorist.

"It's not for people who know about it. It's for the guy who is driving in from Tucumcari (N.M.), his kids are crying, the air conditioning isn't working, his wife is upset and then all of a sudden, there it is. The guy's gonna say, 'Honey, what are those cars doing over there?' Then those people can use their critical faculties to judge whether they like it or not."

"I hope they like it. I want people to like it. I want to be popular," he said.

But Marsh is probably just as famous for his pranks as for his Cadillacs.

Take his trip to east central Africa two weeks ago, for instance. When he was deep in the jungle gorilla watching, he suddenly donned a gorilla mask and took a few people by surprise.

Or last Monday, when he walked into his 12th-floor office in the Texas American Bank Building, adjusting a black leather sequined glove on his right hand.

"No, no, no ... this isn't for me," he said. "This is from my kids. They gave this to me. They think this punk rock stuff is funny."

Money like narcotic

Government money is much like a narcotic.

When government money was cut off for certain social programs the "withdrawal" was painful.

When there was less "money from Washington" you heard the outcries:

"Reagan ignores the poor..."

"Homeless will perish..."

"Cities will burn..."

None of which happened.

Now in city after city, citizens, corporations and foundations have mobilized their resources. Neighborhood volunteers are doing for themselves things government used to have to hire done.

In my home-base city of Chicago, 750 voluntary organizations are solving neighborhood problems more effectively than when they were leaning on allocations of tax money.

Philanthropic support is supplanting government support.

Neighbor says

Defendant hinted at killing

WACO, Texas (AP) — David Wayne Spence was deep in thought shortly after the July 13, 1982 murders of three teen-agers at Lake Waco and "never acted right again," a close friend has testified.

Dorothy Miles, a neighbor whom Spence called "Mom," testified Wednesday that he told her several weeks later, "I think I killed somebody."

Spence, 25, is charged with the slayings of two Waxahachie girls, Raylene Rice and Jill Montgomery, and a Waco teen-ager, Kenneth Franks. He is on trial only for the Montgomery slaying.

Ms. Miles testified that Spence seemed depressed when he visited her. He was "kind of deep in thought" and unlike the jolly, carefree person she had known since 1976, she said.

McLennan County District Attorney Vic Fezell told jurors Monday that the state will produce evidence to indicate that the victims were tortured, and said the female victims were bitten and sexually assaulted.

Ms. Miles testified that Spence returned to her home in the second week of August 1982.

"He said he was very, very down in the dumps and wouldn't talk very much," the witness testified. She said he said that he had done "something bad" and then added: "I think I killed somebody."

"And I said, 'Don't you know if you killed somebody or not?' And he said, 'Just drop it.'"

She said the conversation left her feeling "sick."

Another prosecution witness, Regina Rosenbaum, said she went to Spence's apartment with a friend in late July. Spence said he and some friends had met two "chicks" and that he later tied them up and raped them. However, he did not say where or when that happened, Ms. Rosenbaum said.

Earlier, Todd Childress testified he and three friends were partying the night the slayings occurred. He said the party lasted from 7 p.m. until 10 the next morning, and he spent most of the next day with Spence.

On Tuesday, Dr. Mary Gilliland, who performed an autopsy on Miss Montgomery, told the jury of eight women and four men that none of the 14 stab wounds to her chest or the slashing cut to her throat caused immediate death.

Ms. Gilliland, with the Dallas County medical examiner's office, said that the teen-ager probably lost consciousness minutes after the initial attack.

Spence was indicted November 1983 along with Muneer Mohammed Deeb, 25; Gilbert Melendez, 29; and Anthony Melendez, 25. The younger Melendez brother pleaded guilty last week to two counts of murder in the deaths of Miss Montgomery and Franks and was assessed two concurrent life prison terms in a plea-bargain arrangement.

He is expected to testify against Spence.

No — all these problems will not be resolved neatly and promptly and completely. Maintaining a country, a city, a neighborhood — or a homestead — requires ceaseless fence-mending, renovation and repair.

But Americans are re-learning to do for themselves.

Debate resumes on reform proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative supporters of an appointed State Board of Education hoped what Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby calls a "miraculous process" would turn up enough votes today to advance that proposal.

A committee of the full Senate on Wednesday rejected a measure that would replace the 27-member elected Board of Education with a temporary, 15-member appointed board. The vote was 18-14.

"It ain't over till it's over," said Gov. Mark White on his second trip to the Senate during the debate.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who voted for the appointed board, said, "There's several more stages in the process."

Asked how the Senate vote might be changed, Hobby smiled and said, "It's a miraculous process."

The Senate on Hobby's motion quit until today after four hours of debate on educational reform proposals, many of which bear the imprint of H. Ross Perot's Select Committee on Public Education — SCOPE.

House members were on notice today to expect a marathon session on two versions of a school reform bill, either one of which would cost taxpayers' more money.

"Let's put the confusion aside," said chairman Bill Haley of the House Public Education Committee.

"Either way it's going to cost money and you are going to have to raise taxes to pay for it. It's up to you to decide what you want to vote taxes for."

The Senate on Wednesday finished work on only one of four subcommittee reports, recessing at 5:30 p.m. with 35 amendments pending to a section that would lower teacher-pupil ratios in early grades and would restrict unexcused absences and student activities outside the classroom.

That same section would require the Board of Education to appoint the governing body of the University Interscholastic League, which has regulated extracurricular activities in public schools for over 70 years.

The subcommittee report OK'd by the 32-member Committee of the Whole Senate states that the state commissioner of education serves at the pleasure of the board but does not have to be confirmed by the Senate, both changes in the law.

Shortening the textbook adoption cycle from eight to six years would cost $20 million more a year.

The subcommittee proposal also would require each board of school trustees to publish an annual report that would include student scores on national tests, educational costs and dropout rates.

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Lifestyles Editor

Education plays an important role in the lives of Randy and Francie Farr, not only because they have two school age children, but because both are involved in the field as a vocation.

Randy has been an educator in Hereford the past 13 years and Francie has taught five years in the local school system.

Their daughter, Allison, is 8 years old and will be a third grader at Northwest School in the fall. David, age 6, will be in the first grade at Northwest.

The Farris have resided in Hereford since 1971, moving here from Lubbock. Francie, a native of Denver, Colo., was raised in Dallas, while her husband was born in Paducah and grew up in Friona.

He earned his degree in government and education at Texas Tech University. She also attended Tech, and then commuted to West Texas State University to finish her degree after the couple moved to Hereford. She has an elementary education degree with a specialization in geography.

Randy has taught social studies at La Plata Junior High School since coming here, and in the fall he plans to be a counselor at the school. He was honored as "teacher of the year" by the local chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution during American History Month a couple of years ago.

Francie is currently a second grade, Chapter I, teacher at Northwest Primary School, where she has been employed the past three years. Before her children were born she taught fourth grade and bilingual education at Shirley School.

Both are involved in the local teachers' associations, and Randy has served as an officer. Francie served a three-year term on the board of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford. She said that it was enjoyable and she feels that BB-BS is a very worthwhile organization.

The Farris are active at St. Thomas Episcopal Church. He takes care of the church yard and teaches an adult Sunday School class, and she is on the Altar Guild and attends the women's study group. Allison is an Acolyte.

The 8-year-old also takes piano lessons and is a member of Blue Birds. She and her brother both attended Camp Fire day camp earlier this month and enjoyed the outdoor activities.

Having two teachers in the family has its advantages. When school lets out for the summer, the Farris have time to get things done around the house, spend more time with the family, and catch up on activities which they haven't had time for during the school year.

"We love to travel in the summer," noted Francie. Last year they vacationed in Florida, stopping at Disneyworld and EPCOT Center. The whole family went to Hawaii in 1982. Randy has been to Europe twice, and Francie said she'd like to go sometime.

One summer before the children were born Randy attended a six-week course at Valley Forge, Pa., on a Freedom's Foundation scholarship, and Francie went sightseeing and antique shopping while he was in classes. The couple enjoyed visiting the historical sites, and also traveled to Washington, D.C., that summer.

"We saw a lot of things the average tourist wouldn't have been able to see, staying there that long," stated Francie.

This summer Randy is going to school. "We all like to go swimming, and we enjoy playing games," said Francie. "I love to read, do lots of needlepoint and collect demitasse cups. Randy and David collect stamps. We like to entertain, and I especially enjoy cooking for parties."

Rebekahs welcome president

Cecil Kemp, president of Rebekah Assembly of Texas, was the honored guest of Hereford Rebekah Lodge 228 at a salad supper and regular meeting on Tuesday evening.

Ms. Kemp and her personal secretary and traveling companion, Virige Soresby, are residents of Houston and said they were impressed with the scenery of West Texas.

A slide show and explanation of Rebekah regalia was presented, and the importance of projects of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs was pointed out including educational foundation, visual research foundation, children's home, home for the aged, and the world hunger program.

Members were urged to uphold Odd Fellowship, stating there is no place for anything but love in the organization - "Think and look for and expect only the best."

Works of Schyler Colfax, founder of the Rebekah degree, were reviewed and Ms. Kemp was presented a money corsage from lodges in District V.

Noble Grand Anna Conklin presided at the regular business session, at which time President Edna Schuster, representative to International Association of Rebekah Assemblies, was introduced.

Says home economist

Convenience not always costly

COLLEGE STATION -- Does it pay to scratch convenience foods from your shopping list and prepare them at home?

Not always, says home economist Bonnie L. Piernot. Studies by the U.S. Department of Agriculture reveal that 60 percent of 228 selected convenience products cost more per serving than the homemade version. But one-fourth cost less, and the rest cost about the same, says Piernot, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

The studies compared the cost of convenience foods to their homemade counterparts including the cost for fuel to cook them and preparation time, figured at minimum wage, she notes.

To save money, the average consumer will have to shop carefully for convenience foods, says Piernot. "Generally, the more ingredients involved and the more preparation necessary, the slimmer are the chances that one of these items will be cheaper than one prepared at home," she advises.

Some samplings of the comparative costs cited in the studies show the following:

-Among the vegetables, most canned and frozen bulk packaged items are lower in cost than their fresh counterparts. However, vegetables with added sauces and in cooking pouches increase dramatically in cost.

-Frozen french fried potatoes are less expensive than fresh homemade ones. Convenience au gratin potatoes, however, cost three times more than making them from scratch.

-Pancakes and waffles made from mixes requiring only water are better buys than those made from scratch. And the frozen, ready-for-the-toaster variety costs three to five times more than those made from a mix. -Frozen orange juice is a bargain at only a third the cost of the same size serving squeezed from the orange.

-Seventy percent of baked ready-to-eat products are more expensive than home baked ones. However, white enriched bread and devil's food cake mix are among the bargains.

-Most commercially prepared entrees with pork, beef and poultry are more expensive than home prepared. Frozen pizza and lasagna cost more than twice as much as the home-made version.

When comparing convenience foods versus homemade ones, remember that most home prepared entrees contain a higher proportion of meat, poultry, fish and cheese, says Piernot. The convenience counterpart usually has more starchy ingredients such as sauces, pasta, bread coating and topping.

While it's difficult to define quality, the product label is your best guide to what's in the convenience package, says the home economist. The ingredients are listed in order of quantity.

For example, if gravy is listed first, your money buys more gravy than meat. Labeling can also help in defining nutrients and ingredients, but if you're concerned with controlling fats, sugar and salt, you will not always be able to determine the amount from the label, cautions Piernot.

For consumers whose time is more important than cost or quality, she says, it can often pay to let the manufacturer handle most of the food preparation.

Earl Bell clears 19-foot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earl Bell, the first American pole vaulter to clear 19 feet outdoors, likes the attention he receives as a good old country boy. He doesn't think it would be the same if he were a city slicker.

Bell grew up and still lives in little Jonesboro, Ark., a city of about 30,000 in the northeast corner of the state. He enjoys the easy, laid-back life there, rather than that of a big city like Los Angeles, where he will be competing tonight in the pole vault final at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

"There is a big difference between an athlete living here and one living in Arkansas," said Bell. "In LA, people expect you to do well, and if you don't, they say, 'That bum really blew it.' In Arkansas, they hope you do well, but if you don't, they feel sorry for you."

When Bell set the American outdoor record in the pole vault June 9, clearing 19 feet, one-quarter inch in the USA-Mobil Championships at San Jose, Calif., breaking the mark of 18-11 held by Mike Tully, the Arkansas newspapers gave the story smashing play.

"It got the biggest headlines since (former President Richard) Nixon resigned," Bell recalled with a smile.

"Would Tully (who lives in the Los Angeles area) have gotten that kind of headline here?" he asked.

Although Bell has spent most of his life in Jonesboro,

PGA Tour

Peete gets into shape

ATLANTA (AP) — Calvin Peete says it's the stop on the PGA Tour that seems to whip his game into shape each year.

"For the last three or four years, this is where I normally start playing well, so I just hope that tradition continues," Peete said Wednesday.

Peete, forced to drop out of last week's U.S. Open because of dehydration, said he's ready to defend his championship in the $400,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic beginning today on the 7,018-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course.

"The Atlanta tournament normally gets me started for the summer," he said.

Peete posted a 10-under-par 206 total to win last year when the event was reduced to a 54-hole test because of inclement weather.

He also played well in the three previous Atlanta tournaments, finishing in a tie for 12th in 1982, a tie for third in 1981 and alone in fourth place in 1980.

Peete dropped out of last week's Open early in the first round because of the loss of fluid in his body.

"I was fine 30 minutes later after I got some fluids in me," he said. "I guess I got dehydrated the week before at Westchester in all that heat we had. That's the hottest I've been since the PGA in Tulsa a couple of years ago."

Peete said he was disappointed over withdrawing from the Open "because I had been off four weeks before Westchester and I felt fresh and ready to play."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to make end user common line charges associated with Centrex CO service equal to those to be billed to Private Branch Exchange service. The Commission has suspended the proposed tariff until October 1, 1984, or before, and assigned the matter to Docket No. 5686.

The equalization of end user common line charges for Centrex CO service is to be accomplished by a reduction in Centrex service charges. The net effect of the Centrex service charge adjustment and an interstate end user common line charge will be an increase in total billing.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. "I was surprised how quick the variety was ready to graze."

"In fact, some of my neighbors tried to rent my pasture when they saw how much better established it was than others all around us."

Pioneer® variety 2157 gets off to a fast start, quickly establishing the kind of healthy, vigorous growing stand so necessary for good pasture. Its upright growth habit helps provide maximum available grazing.

And because 2157 has proven to be such a good yielder, you can count on it to deliver top-quality wheat at season's end.

If pasture is part of your wheat program, new 2157 should be, too.

New Wheat Variety 2157

Superior Yield • Excellent Standability • Outstanding Grazing

"When I pulled my combine into the field, I knew for sure this wasn't an ordinary wheat crop."

"That 2157 was standing out there good and straight. And when I moved down the rows, I could hear the cylinders running full."

Farmers who've seen this impressive new high yielding variety like its standability and tolerance to dry growing periods and severe weather. It has excellent resistance to leaf rust, stem rust, fungal leaf blights, soil borne mosaic virus and the Hessian fly.

In side-by-side comparisons, Pioneer® brand 2157 wheat has consistently out-yielded other popular varieties. And it has shown consistently high test weights.

Down Boston Red Sox

Orioles continue winning streak, 4-1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Yogi Berra may have coined the phrase "It ain't over until it's over," but Joe Altobelli's Baltimore Orioles are making it come true.

The Orioles won their third game in a row, downing the Boston Red Sox 4-1 Wednesday night. And for the third game in a row they did it with some late-inning heroics.

Granted it wasn't as spectacular as Sunday's 6-2 victory over New York with Gary Roenicke's grand slam capping a five-run eighth-

Milwaukee nipped Toronto 5-4, Chicago shaded Seattle 5-4, Oakland trounced Kansas City 8-1 and Minnesota thumped Cleveland 8-2.

Boyd retired 16 batters in a row after walking Cal Ripken Jr. with two out in the first inning and was staked to a 1-0 lead in the fourth on Tony Armas' 17th homer. But he hit Wayne Gross on the arm with an 0-2 pitch to start the seventh and the Orioles took advantage of the mistake.

"I didn't want to hit Gross; I had two strikes on him," Boyd said. "He's supposed to fill the bases. Boyd struck out John Lowenstein and Ken Singleton, but Young sliced a high drive — "An ordinary fly ball in most places," Houk said — that scraped the wall for a double, scoring all three runners. Young scored on Lenn Sakata's single.

Tigers 9, Yankees 6
Howard Johnson hit a three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the 13th inning, Detroit's fourth home run. Alan Trammell, Lance Parrish and Chet Lemon also connected as the Tigers boosted their lead in the AL East to 7½ games over Toronto. Dave Winfield homered for the Yankees.

After Ray Fontenot pitched five hitless innings, Jose Rijo took over in the 13th and issued a leadoff single to Parrish. Lemon, who had two singles, a double and a home run, sacrificed and pinch-hitter John Grubb was intentionally walked. Lou Whitaker lined out before Johnson blasted his fifth home run of the season off the facing of the right-field upper deck.

Rangers 3, Angels 2
Larry Parrish belted a one-out homer off Geoff Zahn in the ninth inning, setting a club record by driving in a run for the 11th straight game. Parrish's 12th home run erased the club record of 10 consecutive games with at least one RBI originally set by Jeff Burroughs in 1974. The streak is two short of the AL record set by Taft Wright of the Chicago White Sox in 1941.

inning rally. And it certainly paled next to Tuesday night's 9-7 triumph over Boston, a game in which the Orioles trailed 7-1 after seven innings but scored four times in the eighth on Eddie Murray' grand slam and four more in the ninth.

This time, Baltimore did it with a four-run seventh, highlighted by Mike Young's three-run, two-out double, after Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd pitched six hitless innings.

"It was a ballgame he deserved to win," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "The kid pitched as good as you can pitch." Instead, the 4-1 setback was Boston's seventh in a row.

Sunday Concert Set

Highest Praise, a group of high school juniors, seniors and 1984 graduates sponsored by Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Mo., will present a choral concert at the First Christian Church Sunday evening. The public is invited to the 7:30 p.m. performance, which is free of charge.

Public invited to choral performance

First Christian Church, 401 W. Park Ave., will host a concert by Highest Praise at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge, however, a free-will offering will be taken.

Highest Praise is composed of high school juniors, seniors and 1984 graduates from 19 states. These enthusiastic musicians were selected in February from tape recorded auditions and are sponsored by the music department of Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Mo.

Tours A and B include 96 vocalists and 18 instrumentalists. Douglas Phelps, professor of music at Ozark, and Larry Bryant, composer and arranger, direct the select groups.

Following a week of intensive rehearsals, Bible studies and tour preparations, the two groups tour separately for ten days, visiting churches in seven states and presenting an exciting festival of praise labeled "Jesus!"

The program is to feature a variety of styles of Christian music, plus a special patriotic medley, "America...the Dream," which includes "American the Beautiful," "God of our Fathers" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Available at the concert will be a display with literature concerning OBC and the ministry of Highest Praise. George King and Marion Conover, faculty sponsors, will be prepared to discuss college plans with prospective students.

A nursery will be provided during the concert.

Ann Landers

Prison romance

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After years of a violent, miserable marriage (now over), I have fallen in love. The problem: The man is in prison. We have exchanged pictures but have never seen one another.

My family thinks I have lost my mind, but I really do love this man, Ann. He has admitted his crime and attributed it to alcohol.

At present he is involved in an alcohol-abuse program and I believe with all my heart that he will come out a very different person from the one he was when he went in.

His letters and phone calls have been the most wonderful part of my life. I have no desire to date other men and am willing to wait until he gets out, which will be soon.

Ann, is it possible to fall in love with a man you've never seen, or is my family right? Please advise.--Cupid's Special Delivery

DEAR S.D.: They say "distance lends enchantment" and in this case, the unavailability of your friend (as well as the forbidding circumstances) lends glamour as well as an added challenge to the romance.

I'd say the chances of finding your dream man through the mail (in prison yet) are slim. But it COULD happen, especially if he dries up. I wish you luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem that is breaking my heart. Our lovely bright daughter has told me that she is a lesbian. Not only does she want us to accept the fact, but she insists that we welcome her gay lover into the family as if it were a normal relationship.

When I told her it was impossible she announced that she can have nothing more to do with us.

Did we raise her wrong? Is it our fault that she is like this? I should tell you that this girl was very popular in school and had lots of dates. She didn't turn gay until after her divorce.

I don't care whether you print this letter or not. Just hurry your advice.--Heartsick in Amarillo

DEAR AM: No one knows for sure why people are gay. Those who believe it is hor-monal (inherent at birth) and those who believe it is environmental are evenly divided.

Unless you accept your daughter and her lifestyle (I say ACCEPT, not approve of), you will lose her forever. Please write to Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, P.O. Box 24565, Los Angeles, CA 90024, and enclose a long, self-addressed stamped envelope.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Avoiding angina attack

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 64, very healthy, virile and active. He retired recently. He was mowing the lawn last week and experienced pain in his chest, arm and back and was light-headed. He rested a bit, started to mow again and it happened again. This happened three times.

I took him to the emergency room, as our family doctor was away. After tests they found he had what they called an angina attack. Do you have any advice to give or further information? They gave him nitro.

DEAR READER — I'd like to know more details before deciding it was an angina attack. It's certainly true that angina pectoris — heart pain — can cause chest pain, with pain into the arm and less commonly into the back. But it's important to know what the characteristics of the pain are and its exact location. Many things besides heart attacks can cause chest pain.

You were wise to take him to see a doctor. Some would say you should have called an emergency medical service if one was available rather than trying to transport him yourself. That way you can provide immediate medical support if it becomes necessary.

That's not a small point. About half the deaths from heart attacks occur before the patient even gets to the hospital, so getting trained help as soon as possible is very important.

Many heart specialists believe the onset of angina for the first time means the patient has actually had a heart attack, meaning a myocardial infarction. At the least it does mean serious underlying disease of the coronary arteries.

Your husband should do the things we usually recommend for patients who have recovered from a heart attack. And those are the same things we also recommend to prevent a heart attack. I've discussed this in the Health Letter 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The two most important things a person with angina can do are to lose all extra body fat, I mean get skinny, and don't smoke. The diet and a sensible, gradual exercise program are also important.

Speaking of Sports

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

Hundreds of athletes will be kicking up a storm this Saturday in the Bull Barn.

The Texas Panhandle Karate Tae Kwon Do Open Championship is scheduled to get underway at about 10 a.m.

More than 150 competitors from west Texas and parts of New Mexico and Oklahoma are expected to show up for the event, according to local karate instructor Loopy Crox.

Any profits received from the tourney will be placed in the Hereford Olympic Fund, designed to help sponsor any Hereford athlete gain access to the 1988 Olympic Games regardless of sport, said Crox.

Since the tourney is an open one, entrants in the 40 divisions will range from 5 years old to adults. A master judge, two umpires and two referees will score each bout. Match consists of two 90-second rounds.

Each "controlled" punch to the opponents' face is awarded one point. A controlled foot to the face, as in a spinning kick, is worth two points. The most points allowed for a blow (three) will be given for a controlled "flying, spinning kick to the face," Crox said.

About 35 Hereford participants, trained under Crox, will be battling for Olympic-type gold, silver and bronze medals. They have been practicing for the tournament the past six weeks. "I think we can hold most of the championships," the local instructor said.

The first four finishers in each division may qualify the Amateur Athletic Union championship tournament this fall in Lubbock.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, the Sheriff's Department and a number of local businesses are helping sponsor the affair.

General admission cost is $1. Crox also said he is trying to get a speaker from Hereford's Veteran's of War organization and also have the local VFW initiate the national anthem as part of opening ceremonies.

The Hereford Riders Club is sponsoring two rodeos Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. as part of the Hereford Junior Rodeo Series.

More than 300 entrants from boys and girls ages 7 through 18 are expected to attend, including 125 Hereford youths.

Events include barrels, bull riding, among others and also a stick horse race for children under 7 years old.

The second part of the rodeo series is scheduled to take place July 20 and 21, also at Riders Club Arena.

Belt buckles, saddles and saddle pads are some of the prizes to be awarded to top finishers in the series.

There will also be a calf scramble free to kids 12 years old and under. Five dollars will be presented to the child who catches a calf, takes off a ribbon from its tail and gives it to the judge.

Roberto Duran quits boxing

PANAMA CITY (AP) — The Roberto Duran who was all but unbeatable in the lightweight division for much of the 1970s hasn't been around for some time. Now it looks like he won't go another round.

Duran, whose "Hands of Stone" carried him to successive boxing championships in the lightweight, welterweight and junior middleweight divisions, announced Wednesday at a newsconference at the Panama City airport he is retiring from the ring. The development came just five days after his 33rd birthday last Friday, the day of his last fight.

"I don't think about boxing anymore. I am thinking now about having fun, good clean fun," Duran said following a flight here from Miami.

When Thomas Hearns stopped Duran in the second round of their World Boxing Council super welterweight title bout in Las Vegas, Nev.

YOU AUTO KNOW

Don Henslee

Q I understand that there is a way to test the alternator output on my 1978 Buick without disconnecting wires or tearing the whole unit apart. What's the secret?
A The secret is in a small "D" shaped testing hole on the back of the alternators of all 1973 and later General Motors cars. Use the "secret" with caution, however. To test, connect your voltmeter to the BAT terminal and a ground, then insert the blade of a screwdriver no more than three-quarters of an inch into the "D" shaped testing hole, grounding the blade against the alternator housing. This will bypass the regulator, and voltage should begin to climb. This type of alternator is built with the regulator inside so even if you do get an increased voltage reading, the alternator may still have to be removed to replace the regulator. Be careful not to insert the screwdriver blade any more than three-quarters of an inch in order to avoid damage to the entire unit.

Andujar ups record to 11-6 with win

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

For a pitcher who doesn't get much hitting support from his teammates, St. Louis right-hander Joaquin Andujar isn't complaining. All he's doing is winning.

For two straight games, the Cardinals didn't give Andujar a single run to work with. And Wednesday night, that's the way it was until the ninth inning when David Green finally socked a two-out, two-run homer to power a 2-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

"Everybody knows we're going to score runs sooner or later," said Andujar, who improved his record to 11-6 with a four-hitter. "We don't have a great hitting team but we have good enough hitting. I don't worry about the hitting. I only think about throwing strikes and doing my job."

After a 6-16 record in 1983, Andujar has been doing his job rather well. He is tied with Charlie Lea of the Expos and Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers in the American League for the most victories in the majors. Andujar's four shutouts and nine complete games both top the National League.

In other NL action, it was Atlanta 6, San Francisco 5; Pittsburgh 5, Chicago 1; New York 7, Philadelphia 4; Cincinnati 4, Los Angeles 2, and San Diego 6, Houston 2.

Montreal reliever Jeff Reardon, 3-2, who entered the game in the ninth after starter David Palmer tossed a six-hitter for eight innings, retired the first two batters he faced. But Tom Herr singled and Green then belted the first pitch to him for the game-winning homer.

"Galen said it was my hardest fastball," said Reardon, referring to Galen Cisco, the Expos' pitching coach. "I must have supplied the power. I thought it was just a fly ball. When the ball left Green's bat I started walking to the dugout. The pitch was a foot outside. I can't believe he even got the bat on it."

Braves 6, Giants 5
Len Barker pitched seven strong innings and Atlanta scored five times in the sixth inning with the help of wildness by San Francisco pitchers to beat the Giants.

Francisco hit, a leadoff homer in the eighth by Johnnie LeMaster. He struck out 10 and walked four in his seven-plus innings of work.

Gene Garber and Terry Forster finished up, the latter recording his fifth save after giving up a run-scoring grounder to Steve Nicosia and RBI base hit to LeMaster in the ninth.

Rookie San Francisco right-hander Jeff Robinson, 3-8, did not allow the Braves a hit until one out in the sixth, when Rafael Ramirez singled sharply to the middle. Robinson then came unglued, leaving the game as the Braves scored five times with the help of a hit batsman, an error and three walks, two of which forced in runs.

Pirates 5, Cubs 1
Jose DeLeon held Chicago hitless for 5-2-3 innings before settling for a three-hitter as Pittsburgh, with the help of a key run-scoring double by Dale Berra, beat the Cubs.

DeLeon retired the first nine batters he faced until Bob Dernier drew a lead-off walk in the fourth inning.

Dernier promptly stole second and came home on fly balls by Ryne Sandberg and Gary Matthews to tie the score at 1-1.

Dernier then touched DeLeon, 4-4, for the Cubs' first hit, a two-out single in the sixth.

With the score tied 1-1, Tony Pena singled off loser Chuck Rainey, 5-6, to start the Pirates' fourth, then stole second. Berra followed with a two-out RBI double for the winning run.

Mets 7, Phillies 4
Darryl Strawberry hit a three-run homer and Mookie Wilson a two-run shot as New York beat Philadelphia to move within a half-game of the East-leading Phillies.

Ron Darling, 7-3, gained his first victory over the Phillies after three defeats with relief help from Doug Sisk, who gained his eighth save.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Whether it follows through or not, the Legislature has taken the first significant step of the special session to radically alter the Texas public education system.

House leaders indicated last week they are close to a workable compromise on the issue to abolish the 27-member elected State Board of Education.

The plan in the works would replace that large board with a smaller, temporary panel of between nine and 12 members appointed by the Governor.

After an initial term, that membership would become an elected body. The first term probably would be 4 years.

This version apparently has the support of House Speaker Gib Lewis and H. Ross Perot, the chairman of the select committee who fiercely advocates abolishing the elected state board.

Governor Mark White also supports the compromise, but his nemesis, Comptroller Bob Bullock was critical of the school finance part of the package as weighted against poorer school districts.

Bullock backs a school finance package which closes the funding gap between rich and poor school districts.

The compromise plan is expected to cost about $2.5 billion over the next three years.

Each teacher would get a pay raise of at least $170 a month.

Billboard Campaign

One issue of discussion away from the bargaining table is a series of billboards across the state intended to politically embarrass the governor, paid for by the Republican Party.

The billboards quote an '82 campaign pledge of Gov. White in which he promised not to raise taxes if elected.

State Republican Party chairman George Strake said the billboards are a political education project to remind voters of White's promise.

Legislators are in Austin now because White called them there to raise an unprecedented $4.8 billion in taxes, Strake said.

Party Conventions

Delegates from both parties held state conventions last week with Republicans meeting in Fort Worth and Democrats in Houston.

A newspaper poll of those delegates showed Democrats favored a call for a nuclear weapons freeze in their platform while the GOP rejected it. Democrats also wanted Congressional approval before the President could commit U.S. Combat troops in Central America, and Republicans rejected such approval.

The Democrats, by a wide margin, favored dismantling their presidential caucus system in favor of a direct primary. Such reform would take an act of the Legislature.

Jim Mattox

Texas Atty Gen. Jim Mattox drew attention last week after it was disclosed he hired the husband of a legislator who sits on the committee overseeing his budget.

Mattox hired Lane Denton, a former "Dirty 30" state representative from Waco, in December at $32,000 a year to help run the new child-support enforcement office. Denton's wife, Betty, who replaced him in the Legislature, was appointed to the House Appropriations Committee in November. Both she and Mattox denied any conflict of interest.

Speaker Lewis said he did not think Denton's votes on the committee would be slanted towards Mattox, but that he could consider transferring her to another committee assignment to avoid the appearance of conflict.

Park Plan Protested
Several legislators have objected to Gov. White's proposal to scrub a fund which helps cities develop parks and use the money for education.

The fund is replenished by the cigarette tax, which White wants diverted to public education.

However, at least 18 senators want the park fund intact to avoid hampering local park programs in the state.

Antitrust Suit

Mattox filed a $4.7 million antitrust suit last week against four saltwater disposal companies, a first in Texas history according to him.

It is the first lawsuit under Texas law to allege monopolization. This case charges the companies with monopolizing the saltwater disposal business in Burleson County and surrounding oil fields, and of price-fixing conspiracy.

In another action, Mattox ruled that judges cannot allow the bar association or any other entity to assign lawyers to indigent cases.

District judges may not delegate to another person or entity the discretionary powers to appoint an attorney in a particular case.

Mattox made the ruling after 10 El Paso judges signed a joint order providing that lawyers in the county be assigned no more than two domestic indigent cases per year.

The county bar association would have handled such assignment.

Compromise wins pair's support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of Walter F. Mondale and Sen. Gary Hart are sending a compromise Democratic platform draft to the full 184-member Platform Committee with their blessings, but the Rev. Jesse Jackson is calling for a "summit" between the three rivals to discuss the document.

Jackson, who didn't get nearly as many of his ideas into the platform draft as the other two, said the three candidates should spend "two or three days" together discussing party issues for the fall campaign.

So far, neither Hart nor Mondale has agreed to a three-way meeting, although supporters of both say the idea is intriguing.

A 15-member panel dominated by Mondale delegates completed three days of work on the platform draft Wednesday evening. Both Mondale and Hart supporters claimed the document can heal wounds opened during this year's primaries.

The full committee was to begin three days of work on the draft today. The finished document will be submitted to the Democratic National Convention next month.

Hart forces said they may fight before the full committee for several initiatives rejected by the drafting panel, such as his proposal for a new program for retraining unemployed workers and language opposing any use of U.S. forces to protect oil supplies in the Persian Gulf. But generally they said they were happy with the compromise draft.

The spirit of conciliation between the two camps appeared to all but eliminate the chance of a bitter convention floor battle between the

Venison steak a treat

DEAR POLLY — I recently was given some venison tenderloin, but I'm not sure how to prepare it. I've heard that it's easy to ruin good venison if you don't know how to cook it. Can you help? — JANICE

DEAR JANICE — Venison is a very lean meat and can become dry if overcooked or not prepared with care. The tenderloin is indeed a luxurious and delectable cut and its preparation is very simple. You do need to add fat of some kind to compensate for the leanness of the meat to avoid dryness. Here are two excellent methods, contributed by my deer-hunting neighbors. (I've tried both methods and they are absolutely delicious.) The trick is to cook venison only until rare or medium rare. It should still be quite pink. If cooked until medium or well done, the meat will be dry and tough. Cook it rare and you'll be rewarded with tender, juicy, delicately flavored meat that will delight your guests.

Broiling: Slice the tenderloin into steaks or slices approximately 3/4 to 1 inch thick. Season lightly if desired by rubbing with a little garlic. Place on a broiler pan and generously drizzle melted butter over the steaks. Broil until outside is brown and inside is still quite pink. (This should take no more than four to five minutes per side. Watch closely.) When steaks are turned to broil second side, drizzle more melted butter over them.

Sauteing: Slice tenderloin into steaks as described above. Dredge lightly in flour which you may season lightly with salt and pepper if desired. Melt a generous amount of butter in a saute pan and brown the steaks gently over medium heat. Again, brown on both sides only until meat is still pink inside (three or four minutes per side).

Enjoy! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My air conditioning filter measures 10 by 10 inches. I buy the 10-by-20-inch size at the same price, but cut it in half and get two filters for the price of one. — G.C.

DEAR POLLY — If you are sweeping and have no dustpan, try this. Take a sheet of newspaper, wet one edge and put the sheet on the floor. With your fingers, press the wet edge to the floor; it will stick. You can sweep everything onto the paper over the "glued-on" edge and not lose a bit. When you're ready to dispose of the sweepings, the paper peels right off the floor. — L.M.

DEAR POLLY — Next time you bake a cake, grease the pan and coat it with sugar instead of flour. The cake will come out of the pan easily and will wash clean quickly. — GERT

West receives certification

DALLAS — After completing a comprehensive 30-hour training program, Dixie West of Route 4, Hereford, has been certified as a consultant for BeautiControl Cosmetics, headquartered in Dallas.

Ms. West will be offering free counseling on skin care and cosmetic application in conjunction with free color analysis and counseling on color harmony in makeup and wardrobe selection. Her training qualifies her to perform color analysis to determine the colors a person looks best in, according to his or her natural coloration.

"Our company uses the seasonal approach to color analysis by categorizing each person as Winter, Summer, Spring or Autumn—according to skin pigmentation, hair and eye coloration," Ms. West explained. BeautiControl's makeup is color-coded so women can select specific colors that will harmonize best with their natural coloring and create a more attractive appearance. Once a person has been color analyzed, she will have a lifetime guide for purchasing makeup and clothing with complete color confidence.

Persons interested in free color analysis or becoming a certified BeautiControl consultant should contact Ms. West at 806-578-4382.

Africa is the second largest continent but has only ten percent of the world's population.
