Hereford's Danny Boyer was "revealed" as Doug Manning's mystery co-emcee at this morning's Crazy Days Fun breakfast sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Dressed in a tube top, miniskirt and wig, Boyer introduced himself as Becky Boyer, Danny's cousin. He stepped in to occupy the cohost spot traditionally held by Lynton Allred. Allred was represented by an impersonator, however: a rather ill-proportioned little man who turned out to be Trent Thomas.

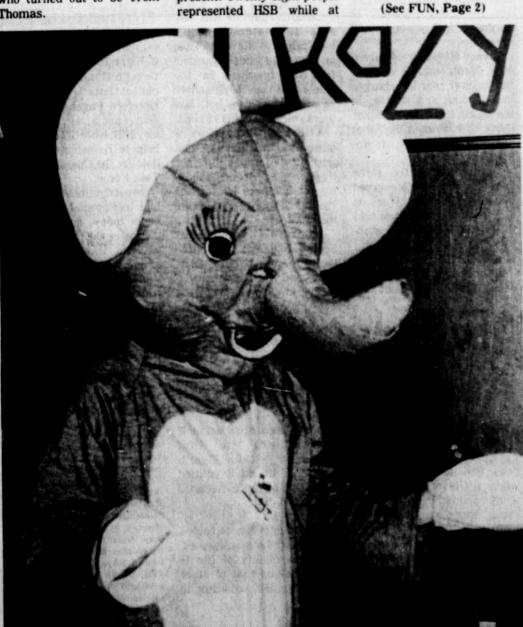

Chamber's fun Breakfast

The craziest costume prize went to Thomas and fellow Hereford State Bank employee Molly Keating, who was similarly dressed and labeled as Doug Manning. Runners-up were dressed as a Smurf (Carmella Brock) a Hershey's Chocolate Kiss (Sue Cosper) a Coors beer can (Scott Hamby) and Hagar the Magnificent (Charlie Bell).

The Bull Chip Award went to Hereford State Bank for having the most employees present. Twenty-eight people represented HSB while at least 20 employees of First National Bank were there.

About 200 people attended the 6:30 a.m. breakfast and witnessed the "Parade of the Crazies" by everyone who showed up in costume. AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark White says a legislative conference committee has put together the best piece of education reform in the United States, but teacher groups say they've been left out and kicked around.

White on Wednesday said the conference committee report headed to both houses for review is "the blueprint for building the best system of public education this country has ever seen.

There is no question in my mind, this is the finest educational reform bill in the history of the United States," the governor said.

The Texas State Teachers Association, represents 95,000 teachers. said it felt like a battered.

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association joined TSTA in complaining that the pay raise provisions are inadequate.

The plan sets a raise of $170 per month for all teachers. But two teacher groups complained many teachers will see no raise because they work in districts that use local money to pay above state minimums. Those districts would not be forced to hike pay, according to the TSTA and TCTA said.

"The bill is very likely to result in small or no raises for tens upon tens of thousands of teachers and other employees," said Ms. Brooks.

Under the conference committee proposal, the state minimum for starting teachers would go from the current $11,100 to $15,200. TSTA said the starting salary hike is adequate, but other raises are not.

The Texas Federation of Teachers backed the bill. President John Cole said, 'We tend to agree the bill is not perfect, but we note that it would add almost $3 billion in new money for education over the next three years."

House and Senate conferees are scheduled to take a formal vote today that will send the bill back to both chambers.

The accord was reached Wednesday when the conferees agreed on a finance plan that calls for $2.8 billion over three years. The state's current system of doling out state money to schools has been challenged in court by poor districts.

In the conference committee plan, state money would be taken from about 200 wealthier districts. About 900 of the state's 1,100 districts would get more money, according to Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston and a conference committee member.

Currently, wealthy districts spend as much as $1,700 per student more a year than do poor districts. The conference committee plan would cut the gap to about $500, Colbert said.

It will take a statewide tax hike - the first in 13 years to pay for the program. The House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday held a public hearing on a $4.86 billion three-year tax hike to pay for school and highway

Here are major provisions of the conference committee

- A 15-member State Board of Education, appointed by the governor until November 1988 when it reverts to an elected board.

- Students must pass all courses to participate in extracurricular activities. Honors courses are exempt.

- Pre-kindergarten in districts where there are 15 or more educationally deprived 4-year-olds. - High school seniors must

About vice presidency Austin pollster George

Even though San Antonio's first Hispanic mayor has publicly stated he has no ambitions to seek a higher office, campaign officials for Walter Mondale say the presidential hopeful will interview Henry Cisneros as a possible vice presidential running mate.

WASHINGTON (AP) -

Mondale aides told the Dallas Morning News that Cisneros had been invited to meet Mondale at his North Oaks, Minn., home sometime next week to discuss the vice presidency. An official announcement is expected today, they said.

Cisneros, who was in Austin Wednesday and was unavailable for comment, told reporters earlier this month that he is not interested in the vice presidency or in any other elected of-

"I realize that there's been a lot of speculation abut my future because of my recent political high profile," he said. "But I've got a full-time job as mayor. I am not looking for any national or state office coming my way out of the 1984 election.'

The 37-year-old Hispanic mayor, who was an early supporter of Mondale in the Democratic presidential race, said that if any offers were made "I won't accept

"And you hold me to these words later if anything tempting comes along." Former Democratic chairman, John C. White, said that interviewing Cisneros was good politics for Mondale.

'Cisneros is one of the brightest young politicians in the country and the fact that he happens to be Hispanic doesn't hurt," White told The Dallas Morning News.

Cisneros was elected the first Hispanic mayor of San Antonio in 1981 and was reelected in 1983. He said he intends to run for a third term.

Shipley, a close ally of Cisneros, would not confirm the interview with Mondale but said it would make sense for Mondale to seek Cisneros' advice.

"He's the most popular politician in Texas today and he was a Mondale supporter early on," Shipley told the News. "He hosted fundraisers in San Antonio as early as last year for Mondale, supported him in the precinct caucuses and campaigned for him in New York, Illinois and California. He's certainly one of the brightest members of the new generation of American politicians.

In addition to Cisneros, Mondale will interview Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York next week. The former vice president was to interview Philadelphia Mayor Wilson Goode in Washington

Bargain makes man plead guilty

WACO, Texas (AP) - Saying he was "positive" he was the man who tried to kill a former federal prosecutor six years ago, the conspiracy trial of James R. Kearns came to a surprise ending when he plea bargained with government attorneys to save his wife from possible prosecution.

Kearns, 45, was charged with accepting $100,000 to murder former federal prosecutor James Kerr, of San Antonio, who was known for his zealous prosecution of narcotics and organized crime cases.

Wednesday's court session before a jury of eight women and six men was scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. After a 45 minute meeting between attorneys in U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions' chambers, Kearns announced his decision to change his plea if the government would not prosecute his wife.

Administration balks at Cuba plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration has welcomed the release of 22 Americans field in Cuban jails; but is spurning Fidel Castro's offer for normalized relations until Cuba gives clear evidence it will stop trying to export its revolution.

A withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola and Ethiopia is the kind of evidence the administration is looking for, administration officials said Wednesday.

In obviously coordinated statements at the White House, the State Department and before Congress, administration spokesmen made clear that they don't share the assessment of Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson that release of the 22 American prisoners was "a good faith gesture" that deserves an American response.

Seven crewmen reported killed

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) - Seven crewmen were killed in an Iraqi missile attack on the Swiss-chartered oil tanker Tiburon, and the ship was still on fire in the Persian Gulf near Iran, shipping sources said today.

The casualty toll, if confirmed, would be the highest reported in a single raid since commercial ships began coming under attack in the gulf four months ago as an outgrowth of the Iran-Iraq war.

The shipping sources said the 260,000-ton Tiburon, hit by Iraqi warplanes Wednesday, was burning today near Iran's Kharg Island oil shipping terminal. They said an undetermined number of crewmen were injured.

The Tiburon, owned a Swiss-based company and registered in Liberia, was crippled by an Iraqi rocket close to the Iranian port of Bushehr, after it lifted a load of crude oil at Kharg, the sources said.

Of power line request

Judge recommends denial

AUSTIN (AP) - An administrative law judge for the Public Utility Commission says three utility companies have failed to prove that a high-voltage power line that would cross six counties is completely safe.

Angela Demerle, who heard testimony in the case, recommended Tuesday that the PUC deny the utilities' retransmission line from six miles north of Huntsville to the South Texas Nuclear Project near Bay City.

A final decision by the three-member PUC in the case has been set for Aug. 16. Central Power and Light

Co., Houston Lighting and Power Co. and Southwestern Electric Power Co. had requested permission to build the 155-mile line at an estimated cost of $141.2

The PUC said the proposed line, encompassing 341,445 acres, would be the first of its kind in Texas.

Part of the proposed line in Grimes and Waller counties touched off a letter-writing campaign by 1,700 people who opposed the project. Much of was generated by the Rt. Rev. Maurice Benitez of Houston, an Episcopal bishop who noted that the line would cross Camp Allen.

Camp Allen is a camp and conference center of the Episcopal Diocese of Texas. Testimony indicated that more than 12,000 people a year use the camp, including 1,200 to 1,500 children every

In hearings last year, Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said the issue had "raised real concerns, real anxieties and genuine fear" in his legislative district, "and I don't think the fear is without justification."

"If we err, let's err on the side of the safety of the residents," Caperton said.

Ms. Demerle determined that "unanswered health the opposition to the project questions" prompted her recommendation that the line be denied.

She said "the health concerns associated with this line are so questionable that the need for the line cannot outweigh the possible negative health implications associated with it.

"The conclusion arrived at by this examiner after study of the record is that the applicants are incorrect when they state that the preponderance of the evidence show no deleterious health effects from the line."

Of freed relatives

Families await arrival

By MAUD S. BEELMAN Associated Press Writer

Families of 22 Americans ordered freed from Cuban jails after negotiations between the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Fidel Castro eagerly awaited the return of their loved ones today, while others were shattered by the news that their relations were not coming home.

"I just knew that Jesse Jackson would bring those boys home," said Betty Wertz of North Miami, whose 29-year-old son, Robert Dana Johnson, has spent his last three birthdays in a prison about 30 miles from Havana.

"I don't even know what kinds of words to use," Mrs. Wertz said.

"I say God bless Jesse," Zina Mazura said Wednesday from her Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y., home. Her son Richard, 30, has been in a Cuban prison almost three years. "For me, it's like the end of a neverending nightmare."

As Jackson was leaving for Nicaragua, Managua, Wednesday night, he announced that Castro, the Cuban president, would also free 26 Cuban political prisoners, many of whom have relatives in the United States. No list was given for the political prisoners.

Most of the 22 Americans to be released were serving time on drug charges, and some may face arrest when they return to the United States.

In Stuart, Fla., Patricia Marker Hinton has lobbied for the release of her 62-yearold father, John Marker Sr., ever since he and three others were seized when his boat strayed into Cuban waters in

"Until I heard the words from Fidel's mouth, I didn't believe my daddy was ever coming back," Mrs. Hinton said. "I thought he would die over there."

Mrs. Hinton and her brother, John Marker Jr., like many other families, said they would fly to Washington to greet the plane tonight as it arrives from Havana.

"It's something we'd been working for very hard, praying for and hoping for," said Bill Snyder of Niota, Tenn., the father of 24-year-old Alan Snyder, one of three crewmen accompanying Marker on the trip from Jamaica to Vero Beach, Fla.

"There's no telling how many calls my wife's made to Washington," Snyder said via telephone Wednesday.

For other families, however, news of who would be released sent hopes dashing.

"I kind of had myself prepared for that," bareaa Kiefer of Allentown, Pa., said after she learned that her 20-year-old son, Mark, was not listed with those Castro promised to free. "I just kind of knew that his name wasn't going to be on the list."

The younger Kiefer and two others, Gregory Stimpson and John Wells, disappeared during a storm off Florida in February 1983. The Coast Guard found their deserted fishing boat, its hull smashed, about 10 miles off the Cuban coast. None of the three was listed among the released prisoners.

"Just because he's not on that list doesn't mean he's not in Cuba," said Mrs. Kiefer, adding that she and her husband would "regroup" and try again to free their son.

Stimpson's father, John Stimpson of Orlando, Fla., said he had given up hope that his son was alive.

"I honestly think now that he was lost at sea - that he never made land," Stimpson said Wednesday. "I just don't have any faith that he's still alive." News of who would be coming home also devastated C.P. and Carol Rustenberghe of Olean, N.Y., whose son, Pieter, 27, had been missing since a plane he was on disappeared in 1979.

The Rustenberghes said their son was co-pilot of a DC-3 that disappeared en route from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to Havana to pick up 20 Florida citrus growers in Cuba for a convention.

"The only word we could get then from Cuba, through diplomatic channels, was that the plane was missing," Rustenberghe said. "They said that it never arrived there."

But Rustenberghe said a person who returned from Cuba reported seeing the nameplates of the flight's two stewardesses in a Cuban jail and another person said he saw Rustenberghe's son in a field with a prison work detail.

"We'll just start all over again," said Mrs. Rustenberghe, "Because he's there, and we'll get him out ... that's all."

A Washington attorney, Joseph Blatchford, said he also received confirmation that Elbert Larry Cheatham, 44, of Williamsburg, Va., would be released. Cheatham's name was not on the list provided by Cuban of-

Because I have always been a sun-worshipper, my skin is badly wrinkled and I look older then my years. My ears protrude at right angles from my head and I've never been able to wear my hair the way I wanted.

I am seriously considering a face-life and an operation that will flatten my ears back. Am I crazy to go through this at my age? Also, about how much will it cost? Is it painful? Is it dangerous? Will my health insurance policy at work cover the surgical bills and hospitalization? Thanks for your guidance .-- Anonymous In

DEAR VALLEJO: First, don't expect plastic surgery to change your life. It may give you a heightened sense of well-being, but you will still be you.

The ear-pinning procedure and face-lift require major surgery which is not "dangerous," although any surgical procedure carries with it certain risks.

There is some discomfort, but a great deal depends on the individual's threshold of pain. Some people suffer a lot, others very little.

Face-lifts (excluding ear surgery) can run anywhere from $2,000 to $10,000 depending on the surgeon you select. Insurance companies consider this "beauty work" and will not pay for it.

If you are a sun-worshipper I must warn you that if after a face-lift, you continue to worship the sun, you will have thrown out your money. Within a year you will look exactly the same as you did before the surgery.

Outdoor workers may face highest cancer risk

COLLEGE STATION --Hours spent working in the sun on farms and ranches, in construction or other outdoor occupations can add up to skin cancer.

Since skin cancer appears to be caused by long-term exposure to the sun, people who work mostly outdoors could be considered at risk, says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension

The death rate from malignant melanoma, the most serious form of skin cancer, is increasing faster than any other cancer in the U.S. except lung cancer in women, she notes.

Malignant melanoma is common in light-skinned middle-aged or elderly people who have spent most of their lives in the sun. Most of their melanomas develop from moles they have had since childhood, she explains.

According to Heussner, most medical authorities recommend avoiding prolonged exposure to the sun between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., when the rays are strongest.

If you must work in the sun during these hours, wear a hat and a long-sleeve shirt. Also protect the back of the neck and the "V" formed by an open collar, advises the specialist.

A sunscreen containing para-aminobenzoic acid (PABA), benzophenone or titanium dioxide will be most effective in protecting exposed skin from harmful rays. Common sense precautions can reduce the risk of skin cancer, and early detection can result in successful treatment, she notes.

Consult a physician at the first sign of a new mole, or if old ones change in size, shape or color, Heussner cautions. The moles may not be cancerous, but if they are, immediate treatment can eliminate the melanoma.

Angels nip Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The California Angels only got three hits off Rangers starter Mike Mason, but that was enough.

The first, by Dick Schofield, broke up Mason's bid for a perfect game in the seventh. The second hit was a single by Doug DeCinces which scored Schofield to break up the shutout.

The third, a triple by Mike Brown on the top of the ninth, helped the Angels to a 2-1 victory over Texas.

California also picked up another hit off reliever Tom Henke, who was just called up from the club's AAA team in Oklahoma City.

Working in the shadow of Mason's spotless game through seven, California starter Mike Witt picked up the Angel win, striking out nine, giving up five hits and one run over eight and twothirds innings. Witt, 7-7, retired 16 Rangers in a row at one point in the game.

"I knew he (Mason) was throwing a no-hitter. I didn't know he was throwing a perfect game until the fourth. but I was thinking about it," said Witt.

fficials wonder about TV ruling

CHICAGO (AP) - College officials, given license by the Supreme Court to make their own deals in televising football games, are in heated debate about whether the ruling is a blessing or a catastrophe.

Where will the big television dollars go? Will the rich get richer? Will the poor get poorer? Will the major college football powers become weekly fixtures on television?

College football administrators began to face these questions and many more today at a meeting here of the 105 NCAA Division I-A schools, the top footballplaying institutions. The session is scheduled for two days, but it could stretch into Sunday before decisions are reached on what to do with the newly awarded freedom.

"What happens in Chicago this weekend could turn out to be history-making in college football," said Wayne Duke, Big Ten commissioner, following the Supreme Court's ruling Wednesday.

Regardless of what the major powers decide in Chicago, officials at many small schools believe the court's decision to strike down the NCAA's centralized controls of football telecasts spells disaster. The NCAA policy guaranteed a share of the television revenue and occasional television appearances for smaller schools.

"I think it's going to hurt college football because there are a lot of schools that depend on that revenue from the NCAA," said Lew Perkins, athletic director at Wichita State.

"Those schools that are attractive and in demand will be helped, and those schools that are not attractive and in demand may not be," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne.

The majority of the I-A schools and almost all lowerdivision institutions, fearful of unrestrained appearances by the major powers, have cheered on the NCAA in the three-year legal battle. But in a 7-2 vote in an antitrust suit brought by Oklahoma and Georgia, the high court struck down NCAA controls and voided NCAA contracts with ABC, CBS and ESPN totaling more than $150 million for the remaining two years of a four-year contract. Every school was freed to make whatever football deal it wants. The ruling does not mean a substantial loss for the NCAA, which derives most of its operating revenue from the basketball tourna-

The expected 300 delegates to the Chicago meeting will be trying to avoid the chaos that most believe would result from an absence of centralized television controls. The NCAA may offer a voluntary plan in competition with one by the College Football Association. And if a new bureauracy is set up to administer a new national plan, charge.

Phillies capture first

By DICK BRINSTER AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies, who had not faced New York's rookie strikeout artist Dwight Gooden in 11 previous meetings between the National League East leaders, seized the opportunity and shelled the 19-year-old Met sensation.

While the record will show that the Phillies beat the Mets 5-1 Wednesday night night to move into first place, they didn't come away unimpressed with Gooden.

"If he continues that way he's going to be a great one,' said Phillies' Manager Paul Owens. "He has a good fastball, breaking pitches and

"He's one of the hardest throwers I ever faced," said rookie outfielder Jeff Stone, a .471 hitter whose triple drove in the first run in Philadelphia's decisive fiverun third inning. "But he didn't get the fastball in enough on my triple."

Gooden, second in the league in strikeouts to Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, surrendeded six hits in the fifth to absorb his fifth loss in 11 decisions. He left for a pinch hitter in the sixth after striking out six batters to raise his total to 113.

"I didn't think I threw that badly," Gooden said. "Sometimes you have good stuff and guys hit you anyway. Sometimes you get by without anything. It's all part of the game."

The fifth-inning blitz made a winner of Marty Bystrom, 44, who has labored in virtual obscurity since posting a 5-0 record in the stretch drive for the 1980 world champion

Elsewhere, it was Chicago 8, Pittsburgh 7; San Francisco 14, Cincinnati 9; Atlanta 6, Houston 4; Montreal 4, St. Louis 2, and Los Angeles 5, San Diego 4.

Dodgers 5, Padres 4

Valenzuela struck out 11 batters to raise his total to 120, but barely won the game after pitching 8 2-3 shutout innings. Valenzuela, who gave up seven hits, retired 14 out of 16 hitters in one stretch to even his record at 8-8.

Steve Garvey singled to start the Padre uprising. Carmelo Martinez doubled for one run and Graig Nettles singled for another to finish Valenzuela. Reliever Tom Niedenfuer hit Champ Summers with a pitch and Bobby Brown followed with a tworun single before Niedenfuer got his 11th save by fanning Kevin McReynolds to end the game.

Cubs 8, Pirates 7

Chicago's Ryne Sandberg, who drove in three runs with his 10th homer and a single, led off the 11th inning with a double off Rod Scurry, 1-4, and scored the winning run when Scurry walked Jody Davis with the bases loaded.

A run-scoring double by Gary Matthews broke a 6-6 tie in the eighth inning, but the Pirates tied it in the ninth when Jim Morrison, who hit his first home run earlier, tripled home Tony Pena.

Davis hit his 13th homer for the Cubs and Lee Mazzilli hit his third for Pittsburgh.

Tim Stoddard, the fourth Cub pitcher, worked two scoreless innings to up his record to 5-1.

Chili Davis slammed a pinch-hit grand slam homer to cap a five-run fifth inning that reclaimed the lead for San Francisco, which earlier blew a 5-0 bulge.

Cincinnati bunched five hits in a six-run fifth, scoring four unearned runs following an error by center fielder Dan Gladden. Randy Lerch, 4-1, who got the final out of the inning, was the winner in relief of Mike Krukow.

The winning rally started on Al Oliver's leadoff double off loser Bob Owchinko, 3-4. Braves 6, Astros 4

Pascual Perez won for the eighth time in 10 decisions with ninth-inning help from Donnie Moore, who collected his sixth save. Atlanta took advantage of a two-run error by Houston right fielder Terry Puhl to build a 4-1 lead in the first.

Gerald Perry hit his third home run on the first pitch to open the third against Mike Scott, 4-5.

Perez allowed eight hits and retired 11 in a row during one stretch, but left when Mark Bailey walked and Enos Cabell singled with one out in the ninth. Moore retired Bill Doran and Craig Reynolds to end the game. Expos 4, Cardinals 2

Bill Gullickson, 4-5, pitched 8 1-3 innings and retired 14 straight batters in one stretch en route to his fourth victory in his last five decisions. Jeff Reardon, the third Montreal pitcher, got the last two outs to pick up his 11th save.

The Expos took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against St. Louis rookie Ralph Citarella,

Horses readied for competitions

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) -With a few deft moves, veteran horseman Polly Hollar tightens the drawstrap on his saddle before mounting his horse to return to the corral for another work session

Hollar is one of many horse trainers in Washington County, specializing strictly in readying horses for milliondollar competitions around the nation.

A multiple champion himself, Hollar uses his ranch just west of Brenham on U.S. Highway 290, as a training center for cutting horses.

Guiding his horse toward a group of cattle bunched at the far end of the large holding pen, he is doing his day's work.

A soft, guiding nudge with a knee, a barely audible word of encouragement from the rider and the horse separates a calf from the herd.

Instinct dictates that this calf return to the herd. Now it's up to the horse to keep this animal from rejoining its companions for as long as possible - without help from the rider.

Dust swirls time and again as sudden moves to the right, the left, some fancy backstepping and tight turns keep the calf away.

Finally exhaustion overcomes the animal's instinct to rejoin its herd. Lethargic, it wanders to another corner of the corral.

After a good half hour of this, Hollar guides the horse toward the gate, dismounts and hands the reins to a helper.

"Good workout. He's learning, but I still had to help out here and there by using the reins," he grumbles.

A novice would never have noticed, but the experienced eyes of judges at a cutting futurity pick up such "mistakes" the second they

A rider is not allowed to rein his horse during competition. In fact, the less reining and spurring a rider has to do, the better the horse will be rated, since judges look for natural ability in the animal.

"In such contests - really, in this business they are called futurities and stakes or superstakes - there are million dollar figures involved. You can't afford a mistake," Hollar said.

"Cutting is the biggest thing around and a lot of kids can become financially wealthy by winning, if they are good," the horseman explained.

Indeed, showing horses at high-priced contests is one of the biggest money-making ventures in Washington Coun-

Area horsemen questioned would not dare guess at the cash brought into the county through such contests, but agreed that training operations located in the county bring in "more than $1.2 million annually."

Extension Agent Bill Thane agrees.

"That's a real conservative estimate, but I'd say it is fair enough," Thane said.

Hollar explained that training a horse for competition is really the first link in a chain ultimately resulting in more profit for the horse's owner.

The chain involves breeding, training, showing at competition, winning at competition and breeding a

"You have a good mare and you breed it to a good stud for a steep fee. Then you hope for a return on your investment, a foal. As soon as it is old enough to train, you halter break the animal and begin to work with it," he explained.

"As a 2-year-old, the sifting process begins. The horse has to prove itself, and not every horse can become a cutting horse. Only five or six out of 15 or 20 actually make it," he

"At 3 years of age you get the animal ready for competition in December of the 3-year-old's year. At age 4 you enter futurities and sweepstakes," the horseman explained.

"The real value of the horse is realized after you are through winning. Since everybody loves a winner, you can now breed the horse (provided it is a stud) for a fee, getting the final returns of your initial investment," Hollar said.

"When I look at a prospective cutting horse I take a long look at his ancestors. Then I go by confirmation. The animal must be balanced, be built to move and built to win," he said.

"Then I try them, and you can tell by the way the horse responds to the breaking if it will make the grade," the horseman said.

Hollar explained the middle-class cutting horses sell for $10,000 to $15,000, despite a still struggling economy.

HEALTH Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Exercising too much

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm an 18-year-old man, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 110 pounds. I don't wish to be fat but I'd like to put on at least 30 pounds. I'd like to be around 135 to 140 pounds.

I'm a very athletic person and that probably explains why I'm not gaining weight because I exercise a lot. I lift weights every night. I don't overdo it but I would like to put on some muscle.

I'm not what you would call skinny but I'd like to have a nice-looking body and not look like a stick. Please send me the Health Letter 5-4. Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control.

DEAR READER - You may indeed be exercising too much to grow or develop large and strong muscles. When you develop muscles your body has to manufacture muscle protein. That's done by hooking together the right combination of amino acids. When your muscles are working they stop forming new muscle protein. All their energy is directed toward the work they must do. That's the main reason why a good weight-training program is usually limited to a workout three days a week, with a day of rest between each workout. During that rest your muscles are busy manufacturing new muscle protein.

You need to be sure you consume enough calories to meet the energy demands of your body. The calories can be from carbohydrates or fat. If you consume as much as 100 grams of quality protein a day and your exercise program is properly designed, you should be able to develop your muscle size and strength. I'm sending you the health letter you requested. It will give you more details that you need to follow. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551 Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Good muscle size helps to prevent obesity. The muscles use more energy even at cles use more energy even at rest than fat tissue. Once you've developed good mus-cles you can usually main-tain them by working out

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm 18 and have seen two doctors about trichomoniasis. It first started when I was 14. I noticed it before I started menstruation. I've been to two doctors since then but neither have done any good. They are certain that it's trichomoniasis, but I'm not so sure. They say there are signs of greenish-yellowish discharge, itching vulva and offensive odor.

But I don't itch and there's no real odor. I have a yel-lowish discharge and it was greenish for a while, but slowly disappeared.

I've just about given up.
All I want to know is how to get rid of it. I'm due for another examination soon and I know they will say the same thing.

DEAR READER - Trichomoniasis is one of the most common causes for a vaginal discharge. It's caused by a parasite, not a germ. It not only lives in the vagina but can infect the bladder and lower bowel.

It's not just a parasite in women either. That's the reason for many treatment failures. Men have trichomoniasis, too. When a woman is sexually active, to eliminate the problem both she and her partner must be treated. Otherwise as soon as she is cured she simply gets reinfected. By the way, it's easily diagnosed from the discharge so your doctors are probably correct.

Advertising Award

Brand advertising director Mauri Montgomery and O.G. Speedy Nieman, editor-publisher, display the first-place advertising award the Brand recently received from the Texas Press Association. The honor was for small dailies.

Week was a good one

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) - A few more weeks like the past seven days and Walter F. Mondale will have a right to feel optimistic about his chances of beating President Reagan in November.

It was a week loaded with political landmines, but Mondale negotiated with extraordinary skill and, as a result, appears assured he will have a united Democratic Party at the San Francisco nominating convention.

As he entered this dangerous period, the campaign was over but not over. Mondale had his delegate majority, but Sen. Gary Hart was insisting that he would carry his fight to the conven-

Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson were carrying their efforts into the party platform committee and the Coloradan was threatening additional battles in the rules and credentials committees over what he called Mondale's "tainted delegates."

> Kelley's Employment Agency

Full Service Agency 364-2023

It was sounding reminiscent of 1980 when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy refused to abandon his challenge to President Carter until he had exhausted every opportunity to overturn the president's delegate majority. Carter never forgave Kennedy for that and continues to blame him for Reagan's election victory.

So, it was a bit ironic that this year Kennedy emerged as a party peacemaker.

Kennedy talked to Hart and apparently played a key role in working out the agreement that cleared the way for Mondale and Hart to meet in New York on Tuesday.

That meeting's purpose appeared to be to erase the residue of hard feelings from their long primary battles and the often personal rhetoric they engendered. "The things that divide us are modest compared to the things that divide the two of us from President Reagan," Mondale said after their meeting. Both said they did not discuss the possibility of a Mondale-Hart ticket and Hart said he was continuing his candidacy.

Q. I've seen people check cylinder compression with a thumb instead of a pressure gauge. Is this safe?

A. Although it certainly isn't the most accurate way to check compression, using your thumb over a spark plug hole is safe for a quick compression check PROVIDING the engine is cold and the starter is cranked and the engine not permitted to start. To perform the check, remove one orm the check, remove one spark plug, place your thumb over the hole, and have someone crank the engine over, If compression is good, pressure in the cylinder will force your thumb off the hole. Again, this is not recommended for accuracy

For billion dollar package

Tax bill amending begins

AUSTIN (AP) - House tax bill-writers began changing a proposed $1.3 billion package of new and revised revenue raises today in hopes of getting it ready for debate Fri-

"Hopefully we will finish up the bill in one day," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee today. The committee completed a full day of public hearing on the controversial measure Wednesday with most of the long line of witnesses opposing the levies designed to pay for public school reform and highway improvements. Schlueter said late Wednesday he had at least 10 proposed amendments to change the measure from the way it was originally introduced.

vigorously opposed Gov. Mark White's suggestion of the saies tax hike. Schlueter, along with Speaker Gib Lewis, prefers doing away with some of the Marketers Association. Fellers said the bill includes several tax hikes applicable to motor vehicles including the fuel tax, motor vehicle sales tax, increases in vehicle registration fees and imposing the sales tax on repairs. "The bill will add approximately $1 billion to the cost of owning (motor) vehicles in the state of Texas," added Gene Fondren of the Texas Auto Dealers Association. 'We respectfully suggest that a billion dollars is too much to ask of any one industry." Austin bowling proprietor David Hurwitz said it wouldn't be fair to apply the sales tax to bowling and not to fees for playing golf or tennis at city-owned facilities, Hurwitz said. Bob Bennett, representing the Six Flags Over Texas and Astroworld amusement parks, also objected to the tax on amusements. He said it would jeopardize the state's

Putting up parsley

DEAR POLLY - I grow parsley on my kitchen window sill, but I don't use it very often. Can it be dried? What is the best way to preserve parsley? — JEANNE

DEAR JEANNE — Yes, parsley can be dried. However, it oses much of its color and flavor when air-dried. If you want to try it anyway, simply tie bunches of parsley with string and hang them in a cool, airy place until they are very dry. Keep the parsley away from heat and humidity while it's drying and store it in airtight covered containers in a cool, dry place after drying. You can also dry parsley and other herbs in a microwave oven, which preserves more flavor and more of the bright green color. Spread a single layer of parsley sprigs on a paper towel and place in the oven for one minute at low power. Check to see if the parsley is dry after this time; if not, microwave for another 30 seconds or so, continuing until the parsley is dry and crumbly. You can also freeze parsley. Just place the washed sprigs in a plastic freezer bag or freezer container and store in the freezer. Of course, it's not much good as a raw garnish this way, but it's useful for cooking. Another freezer trick for parsley and other herbs is to make frozen herb ice cubes. Fill an ice-cube tray with chopped parsley (or the herbs of your choice), cover with water and freeze. When you want to add the herb to a stew or soup, simply pop out a cube or two and drop it into the cooking pot!

Americans held in Cuba just tiny part of problem

The 22 Americans being released from prison cells in Cuba represent only a small percentage of the Americans arrested and jailed around the world each year.

Over the decades many of these American prisoners have complained of harsh treatment, poor food, un-sanitary living conditions and the culture shock caused by unfamiliar customs and language.

Often there is little U.S.

diplomats can do to ease the conditions under which Americans are held or to obtain their release.

But over the last few year prisoner exchange treaties with a short but expanding list of countries have given the State Department a new alternative.

These agreements permit the transfer of people convicted of criminal charges in certain countries to serve their sentences in U.S. prisons if the prisoner and both governments agree.

Citizens of these nations who are convicted and sentenced to prison terms in the United States have the same privilege.

"We have an interest throughout the world in the fate of Americans held in iails in various countries, particularly in substandard jails," said John Hughes, spokesman for the State Department, in discussing the promised release by Cuban President Fidel Castro of most of the U.S. citizens held by Cuba on criminal charges. The release was arranged by Democratic presidential candidate the Rev. Jesse Jackson during his visit to Cuba on Wednes-

"The (prisoner) transfer treaties have been a welcome thing for the families and friends of many persons in prison abroad and we think they have been a success," said one State Department official, speaking on condition he not be identified by name.

Such treaties are in effect between the United States° and six other nations: Mexico, Canada, Bolivia, Peru, Turkey, and Panama.

Similar treaties have been signed with France and members of the European Common Market and U.S. officials are said to be "looking for every opportunity" to reach additional transfer agreements with other nations.

Last year, 53 U.S. citizens were returned to the United States under these treaties, bringing the total returned to 756 since the first such agreement went into effect in 1979.

The overall scope of the problem is larger. Last year, a total 3,090 Americans were arrested on a wide variety of charges in 101 nations, according to the State Department. At year's end, 1,815 Americans were in custody in 92 countries.

One U.S. official, speaking privately, said that while a variety of alleged criminal offenses are involved, the largest category involves illicit drugs.

He said that about 34 percent of those Americans in prison abroad were jailed on drug-related charges.

American consular officials monitor arrests of Americans and keep track of their status as a standard part of their jobs.

"We visit prisoners regularly," said one official. 'We communicate complaints they may have to the appropriate authorities. We help with medical assistance if necessary. We assist with communications to family and friends in the United States or abroad. And we help with legal representation."

"But we cannot act as lawyers or provide legal advice and under normal circumstances we cannot act or intervene to spring an American citizen," he said.

Always, he said, prevention

"We advise American citizens to keep their noses clean when they are abroad and to be aware they have the responsibility to obey the sovereign law of the country they are in," he said.

"And they also have to be aware that the ability of the U.S. government to help them out of legal scrapes or problems is limited and that when Americans travel they don't take the U.S. Constitution with them."

"And they should also know," he said, "that there may be penalties for a particular crime or action that are harsher than those in the United States or where the act itself isn't even a crime under American law."

"So we advise them to use common sense."
