Mondale to pick woman as VP

Rep. Ferraro is selected

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - Walter F. Mondale, an establishment Democrat ready to break with tradition, was poised today to announce his choice of a woman - Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York - as his vice presidential running mate, campaign aides said.

The announcement was set for noon at the Minnesota state capitol, four days before the Democratic National Convention was convening in San Francisco.

"If selected, I will work very hard for the campaign," Mrs. Ferraro told reporters before a Wednesday night speech in San Francisco. She was positively buoyant, but gave no verbal hint of her selection, except to say, "I am glad there is no longer a sign 'White Males Only Need Apply.' It's our time folks."

Later she could not be found for comment, in fact she could not be found at all.

If the delegates confirm his choice, Ms. Ferraro would become the first woman vice presidential candidate on a major party ticket. She represents a blue collar district of Queens in New York.

A Ferraro partisan had suggested that Mondale seemed ready to take a gamble with his vice presidential choice, and a new poll hints at the potential new danger for him in his uphill race against President Reagan.

An ABC-Post poll of registered Democrats indicated the presence of a woman on the ticket could be a wash: 15 percent of those surveyed said they would be more likely to vote for Mondale, while 15 percent were less likely to.

Friday, Mondale was to take Ms. Ferraro on a sentimental journey to his hometown of Elmore, Minn., before traveling to Lake Tahoe, Calif., for the weekend. On Monday, Mondale was to fly to San Francisco where convention delegates were expected to nominate him for president on Wednesday.

By making his selection known before the convention, Mondale hoped to head off serious opposition to his own candidacy or his choice of a running mate.

The steam went out of Sen. Gary Hart's challenge to Mondale on Wednesday when Hart said he'd join a Mondale ticket if asked. He wasn't.

Until the last moment, Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco was a possible choice if a woman were the nominee. When she learned it would not be her - Mondale called those not selected - she said she'd be "delighted" if it were Ms. Ferraro.

Among others on a final list of possible running mates were Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, a black, Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio, Tex., a hispanic, and Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts. The choice of Ms. Ferraro, 48, was anything but obvious.

One prominent Mondale supporter, an aide who had been pushing the woman-for-vice president movement along for months, was asked if she was sure it would be Ms. Ferraro. Others aides had confirmed the choice, anonymously, but she pronounced herself only "99.9 percent sure," adding: "I'll believe it when I see her (Ms. Ferraro) standing up there next to Mondale, hands held high."

Nominee is choice of NOW, Tip O'Neill

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) - Geraldine Ferraro is the kind of woman politician that men feel comfortable with. She's pragmatic, tough, forthright. She's been through the mill. Life hasn't been easy.

As a girl, she wanted to be a doctor. But she knew that girls didn't become doctors. She settled for teaching school. "That's what women were supposed to do," she said.

Now she's about to become a vice presidential candidate. That's what no woman has ever done, in either major political party.

Ms. Ferraro brings some hard-nosed, old-fashioned assets to the ticket. She's a Roman Catholic and the daughter of Italian immigrants. That cannot hurt Walter Mondale in his attempt to win back for the Democratic party its old New Deal working class, ethnic base.

Ms. Ferraro represents a workaday district in the Queens, a borough of New York City. She was elected in 1978, when Rep. James Delaney, a conservative Democrat who usually got the Republican endorsement, too, retired. She won.

Her name surfaced last fall when the idea of a woman as a vice presidential candidate first came up. She said she was flattered and, she said, if lightning did strike, she'd probably say, "Oh, my God, I'm in the right place at the right time."

She was in San Francisco - sort of making her presence felt - when lightning struck. It is a violation of custom for anyone to campaign for the vice presidential spot. But Ms. Ferraro let it be known that she'd be around.

She was the favorite of the National Organization for Women, of some of her fellow congresswomen and of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. It could be that NOW's championing of her cause worked to her detriment. Walter Mondale could not afford the appearance of having anyone dictating his choice to him.

Ms. Ferraro, 48, was born in Newburgh, N.Y., and moved to the South Bronx with her mother and older brother after her father died when she was 8. The big family house was replaced by a small apartment near relatives. Her mother got a job sewing in New York City's garment district.

Ms. Ferraro got bored teaching second and fourth grades in public school, so she enrolled herself in Fordham Law School in Manhattan, going to classes at night while still teaching during the day.

She married her suitor, John Zaccaro, now a successful real estate developer, after she passed her bar exam.

She practiced law from home for 13 years while raising three children, Donna, 22, John Jr., 20, and Laura, 18.

Robin Hopper was named Wednesday as Sweetheart of the Hereford Lions Club, and she started to work immediately in helping publicize the upcoming carnival. Robin, 17, is a senior at Hereford High and

Mattox under fire for seeking 89 percent increase for office

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite lawmakers' cries that agency heads hold the line on spending, Attorney General Jim Mattox has submitted a budget that calls for an 89 percent increase in his operation over the next two years, the Austin American-Statesman reported today.

In a 300-page document sent to the Legislative Budget Board last week, Mattox asked for a $750,000 airplane and a 10 percent pay hike for his employees, the newspaper said.

Mattox asked for money to create a division, and, in most instances, to double or triple the size of his divisions.

"Any agency that comes to us asking for increases better have a good excuse," Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told the American-Statesman.

"In the case of the attorney general, it's going to be more difficult to justify trying to hire more personnel for prosecution when we gave him such a tremendous increase the last time."

Rudd and House Speaker Gib Lewis sent agency heads a letter in March urging them to prepare no-growth budgets for the 1986-87 biennium. The letter suggested "that you not include any considerations for inflation, salary changes, or growth."

Earlier this month, at a close of a special session where lawmakers passed a $4.6 billion tax bill, Gov. Mark White repeated his call for a "tightly drawn, bare bones" state budget.

Rudd said Mattox would have "real problems with the airplane" and that "with the tight money situation, we have a real problem with any new construction."

In March 1983, two months after Mattox took office, lawmakers gave him an emergency appropriation of nearly $1 million. They also increased his 1984-1985 budget 40 percent.

Armed with a two-year budget of $37.5 million, the agency more than doubled the staff of 480 inherited from Gov. Mark White, the former attorney general.

Police probe possible arson case

Hereford police made one arrest Wednesday night, after the suspect was found to have no driver's license or car insurance. It was at least the third time the person had been caught driving without a license, police said.

Police investigated a possible arson Wednesday morning, discovering that a teenager had extinguished the blaze in his bedroom. It appeared to have started when someone threw gasoline in the window, but police did not find a match anywhere nearby and do not have a suspect.

A woman in the 300 Block of Avenue A reported seeing a heavy set man in blue jeans trying to peer in her neighbor's window. She said it was not the first time she had spotted the window peeper.

Investigations of harrassment reports including one by a woman whose ex-husband was repeatedly driving by her house, and another of two men involved in an ongoing argument.

Two women were struck on Wednesday, one by her son and the other by an estranged son-in-law. The mother announced her intent to file charges on her son.

About $475 worth of diesel fuel was reportedly stolen from a local oil company, and a woman house watching for vacationing friends discovered a possible burglary.

Nothing appeared to be missing from the home. Deputies also worked a motorcycle accident involving a 12-year-old boy. The youth was not injured.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen answered one call on Wednesday, to extinguish a dumpster fire.

Vehicle registration to increase

If you vehicle registration expires this month, you can save money by purchasing the new tab before Aug. 1, Nell Miller, tax assessor-collector, reminded today.

She reported there will be a substantial increase in registration fees starting Aug. 1, especially for later model vehicles. The fees will be based on the model and year of vehicles, rather than weight, under the new schedule.

Rattler appears in toilet bowl

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - Mrs. Robert Fields was just starting to put rollers in her hair when her locks started curling all by themselves.

She happened to glance over at the toilet early Tuesday morning and saw a 20-foot diamondback rattler hissing away at her from the bowl.

Feeling plenty rattled herself, she first tried to flush the beat down. When that didn't work, she called for her husband.

"At first he didn't believe me," the 69-year-old San Angelo resident said. "He just told me to go back to bed."

But her husband woke up fast when he saw the reptile poking its head out of the toilet. After more unsuccessful attempts to send it back to the sewer, he then decided it was time to call for help.

Two police officers dispatched to the southeast San Angelo home first thought the report was a prank. But then they too saw the snake looming out of the bowl.

It ended up taking the two policemen, plus an animal control officer who arrived later, more than an hour to subdue the thing.

They tried flushing. "It raised its head about a foot every time the bowl was flushed," said officer Derry Minor, fire extinguishers, hoses, sticks and even stomps before managing to hack its head off.

Two students place at pageant

FORT WORTH (AP) - Two University of Texas at Arlington students have captured swimsuit and talent competition victories in preliminary judging of the 1984 Miss Texas Pageant.

The swimsuit winner Wednesday night was Tamara Hext, 21, a UTA senior and Miss Arlington. Jonna Fitzgerald, 20, Miss Duncanville, was the winner in the talent contest. A UTA junior, Miss Fitzgerald performed the classical work "Csardas" and the bluegrass tune "Orange Blossom Special" on her fiddle.

Swimsuit and talent winners will also be selected in preliminary rounds Thursday and Friday nights. Ten finalists will be chosen Saturday before the winner is crowned in front of a statewide television audience.

Miss Hext, a radio-television major, said her ambition is to be a national television news or special features program personality. Miss Fitzgerald, who is studying political science, said she is interested in becoming an entertainer.

Children forced to shoplift

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP) - Two children who slipped a note to a store clerk saying they would be beaten if they didn't steal something had been forced by their mother to shoplift merchandise worth thousands of dollars over several months, authorities said.

The children, a 16-year-old boy and his 12-year-old sister, were in temporary foster homes today after telling authorities about the shoplifting scheme they said was masterminded by their mother, officials said.

The mother, a 36-year-old rural Moorhead resident, remained at large, said Clay County Attorney Larry Mickelberg, who refused to identify the woman or her children. Mickelberg said his office planned to charge her today with possession of stolen property.

The children told officials their mother sent them into department stores in Moorhead and nearby Fargo, N.D., over a period of months with instructions to steal merchandise, Mickelberg said. She threatened to beat them if they returned empty-handed, he said.

"Most abusive parents beat their kids if they steal," said Mickelberg. "It's uncommon that she would beat them for not stealing. It's amazing."

Convicted killer put to death

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) - Convicted killer Ivon R. Stanley went calmly to his death in the electric chair today minutes after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to stop his execution for the robbery-killing of a man who was buried alive after pleading for his life.

As Stanley became the 21st person to be executed since the Supreme Court restored the death penalty in 1976, two convicted murderers in Florida, originally scheduled to die at sunrise today, were locked in isolation cells under a last-minute reprieve.

A hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. EDT today in Florida for Jimmy L. Smith, who killed a North Florida mother and daughter. He and David L. Washington, a triple-murderer from Miami, awaited the outcome of appeals that delayed their executions Wednesday.

The slightly built Stanley, 28, was convicted of the 1976 murder of Clifford Floyd, a Bainbridge insurance collector who was beaten with a shovel and hammer and buried alive.

Mayor gets cool reception

HOUSTON (AP) - Mayor Kathy Whitmire got a cool reception as she tried to explain to 600 disgruntled police officers why they were only getting a 3 percent pay raise.

Mrs. Whitmire spoke briefly Wednesday night to members of the Houston Police Patrolmen's Union after the 1,800-member organization reluctantly agreed to allow reporters into the meeting room.

Afterward, she agreed to answer questions from officers, but they had none. As the mayor left the meeting, a union member asked officers who approved of her administration's policies to applaud. The room was silent.

"Frankly that's what I expected," Mrs. Whitmire said. "I wanted to bring them a message, and they wanted to give me a message and I think that was accomplished."

HPPU President Bob Thomas called the mayor's remarks were "double talk" and "a lot of bull."

Cargo movement blocked

LONDON (AP) - Striking dockworkers voted to block the movement of cargo through nearly all British ports today and were backed by railway and seamen's unions, escalating the nationwide labor strife linked to the four-month-old coal miners' strike.

"If they (the dockworkers) come out for any length of time, the economic recovery will be throttled," Britain's National Chamber of Commerce said in a statement.

The dock strike began Tuesday as a spinoff from a strike by the National Union of Mineworkers. By Wednesday, it had closed 78 of the nation's 204 docks.

Dockworkers' delegates from the 1.5-million-member Transport and General Workers Union voted at a conference in London Wednesday to try to extend the stoppage to the remaining 126 docks today.

"It is our intention wholly to stop the movement of cargo through all ports where we have membership," John Connolly, the union's national docks officer, told reporters after the conference. The union represents 13,700 stevedores.

Talks between the union and the National Association of Port Employers broke down Tuesday night. No new talks were scheduled.

Hopper named Lion's Club sweetheart

Robin Hopper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hopper, was introduced as the new Hereford Lions Club Sweetheart by President B.J. Gilliland Wednesday.

Robin, 17-year-old HHS senior, was introduced at the club's regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Community Center. She succeeds Dana Cabbiness.

Gilliland made two contributions

Wednesday from the club's weekly fund-raising activity, giving checks to the High Plains Eye Bank and to the Lions Crippled Children's Camp.

The program for the day was presented by Bill Haehnel, science demonstrator for Southwestern Bell. Using video accompaniment, Haehnel told Lions that "the telephone is becoming a taxi to technology, and Bell's network is becoming a superhighway to the Information Age."

In this year's Southwestern Bell science demonstration, Haehnel, a 41-year veteran of the company, compares the electrical outlet to the telephone.

"Years ago, Farmer Brown used electricity just for light. But today, he uses electricity to milk his cows, refrigerate the milk and control the temperature in the barn," Haehnel says.

"Similarly, the telephone once carried only conversations. Today, the telephone and computers have married to provide an array of new services."

Haehnel says computers linked to the telephone system deliver electronic mail in less time than it takes to lick a stamp.

New technology also operates smoke and burglar alarms, lets you shop and bank at home and provides information ranging from legal brief summaries to stock market reports over phone lines.

"Soon the list could include paying bills, monitoring your credit card expenditure levels and voting," Haehnel says.

"All these services soon will be available because of new digital technologies Southwestern Bell is installing to handle computer transmissions," he says.

"As the telephone network becomes more and more digital, as it speaks and understands the language of computers, a broader range of Information Age products and services will be possible for your home and office."

Haehnel showed many applications in his presentation. Telemarketing, teleconferencing, data transmission, call forwarding, call waiting, speed calling, paging and mobile phone services - all are available today, according to Haehnel.

"Southwestern Bell finds itself on the threshold of becoming a stand-alone company with state-of-the-art local telephone equipment and connections already in place, linking your phone to any other phone in the United States," Haehnel says.

Lion Of Month

B.F. Cain, right, was named "Lion of the Month" for June during the Hereford Lions Club meeting Wednesday. Cain, longtime financial secretary, was cited by Boss Lion Ed Line for active participation in club projects. B.J. Gilliland assumed the president's post this month.

Following negotiations

Out-of-court settlement reached

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Oscar Wyatt Jr. says he has no enemy in Clinton Manges, especially now that their court feud is mostly settled.

The pair of Texas millionaires, emerging from a forest of suits and countersuits over the Gross National Bank, announced an out-of-court settlement Wednesday after nearly six hours of negotiations.

Judge Peter Michael Curry sealed details of the agreement, and attorneys for both sides refused to say whether financial arrangements were included in the deal.

Wyatt's lawyers said afterwards that Manges asked for a settlement to avoid testifying at the trial.

live up to an oral agreement in which he agreed to pay $1 million and transfer two loans to Manges. Wyatt denied there was such an oral agreement and was countersuing for attorney fees and damages.

The bank has since been sold to banker and car dealer Tom Benson. Manges claimed he never earned a nickel out of the transfer of his stock to Wyatt.

After the settlement was announced, Manges said that "I am very pleased with the settlement," and when asked if the two were friends again, Wyatt replied, "We were never enemies except in the press."

Wyatt's attorneys had tried to show Manges made several bad loans to individuals and businesses to whom he owed money - thereby using the bank to pay his own debts.

The allegations were the subject of a two-year federal grand jury investigation which ended with no indictments.

Bud Haun, president of the bank when Manges owned it, said he knew of no wrongdoing by Manges in connection with the Groos.

Attorney O'Neal Munn, a collection agent for the bank, testified that federal examiners planned to close the Groos when Manges transferred his stock to Wyatt. The examiners said the bank had 17 million in uncollectable debts.

Still unresolved in the charges and counter-charges of the South Texas millionaires is the case of Perry Horine, a Portland, Texas, developer Wyatt originally sued in 1978 to collect a $590,000 note he had inherited from Groos.

Wyatt then sued Horine, who claimed Manges had promised to pay his Groos note.

After that, countersuits between Manges and Wyatt were filed. Trial of the Horine phase of the complicated series of suits has not been set.

Confession untrue says stepfather

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - The stepfather of Deborah Sue Williamson, a teenager who was stabbed 17 times on her patio in 1975, says his stepdaughter did not die at the hands of convicted murderer Henry Lee Lucas.

Bob Lemons told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday that "the Lubbock Police Department is taking advantage of Lucas' willingness to confess to close the case."

Mrs. Williamson, 18, was found stabbed to death on the patio of her south Lubbock home on Aug. 26, 1975. And despite a lengthy investigation, Lubbock police had no clues in the case until Lucas confessed to the slaying May 17.

Lucas has claimed he and traveling companion Otis Toole killed more than 360 people during a decade-long killing spree. While the pair are suspects in more than 150 cases, Lucas has confessed to several murders law enforcement officers say he didn't commit.

Lucas was indicted for capital murder June 6 in the death of Mrs. Williamson, and the case has not come to trial.

Lemons insists "there is nothing in his (Lucas') statement the way it happened. The time has come that we need to stop this thing" before the case is closed.

In his written statement, Lucas said that, "Otis (Toole) and I got out of the car and went to the back of the house, I remember sliding the sliding glass door open and went into the house. Otis came in after I did. A girl came out of the back bedroom of the house. I chased her through the kitchen into the back bedroom, chased her through the house, I stabbed her. She was stabbed several times. I left part of her clothes on her. There was quite a bit of blood around her."

Lemons said Lucas and Toole could not have entered through the glass door. "The door was permanently closed and there was a large piece of furniture in front of it," he said.

criticized them. White didn't like it when the press revealed he had scrapped a good airplane in order to buy a $3.5 million jet for his personal use in flying around the state.

Neither did the governor like it when a reporter revealed that White has taken some $30,000 from the state film fund and used it to make a playroom in the governor's mansion for his sons so they wouldn't have to go outside in bad weather. More recently, the Fort Worth Star Telegram revealed that taxpayers are providing quite a bit of money for public relation experts so that Texas bureaucrats can present a more favorable image.

State agencies paid two Austin consulting firms, Bassett and Associates and Miller-Keys Associates, more than $80,000 to teach state officials how to deal with television reporters, give testimony and make speeches.

The list is long and the waste is significant. The public would never have learned about it were it not for an enterprising reporter who dug out the interesting facts from official records.

Politicians not only resent the press revealing such things, but they also resent the high cost of advertising, especially for television time, in making a statewide race. Apparently they decided one way to strike back is to tax advertising.

Note to Fred Stendt and other Crossword puzzle fans: The Crossword didn't fit on the comic page with our new 6-column format, but we agree that it is now too small. We are changing it back to a larger size and moving it to the second Classified page during the week. It may be located elsewhere on Sundays.

He also said Lucas could not have chased Mrs. Williamson through the house because there was no indication of a struggle or chase. Blood was not found inside the house, and a puzzle book, pen and car keys found outside near her body indicate she was leaving the residence when the attack took place.

Lemons claims Lucas never mentioned the outside of the house in his statement, even though the entire incident occurred in the carport and patio areas.

Shortly after Lucas began giving statements in murder cases last year, Lemons took several pictures of Mrs. Williamson to the Montague County Jail, where Lucas was being held.

"I don't believe Lucas had a thing to do with it. There's a killer free out there."

On Panhandle ethnicity

Historical Society publishes volume

CANYON — The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society has recently published a book on a little-known aspect of Panhandle history, according to Dianna Everett, director of publications.

"The book, which is titled "European Folk Islands in Northwest Texas," is basically an outgrowth of a traveling exhibit produced in 1982 by the Panhandle-Plains Museum and funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The exhibit featured history and culture of Germans, Poles, Czechs, Italians, Norwegians, and other European groups who settled in the Panhandle between 1890 and 1920, and it was on display in many of the ethnic communities in this part of the state," she said.

The new book summarizes and expands much of the information presented in the 1982 exhibit. It was edited by Dr. Bobby Weaver, archivist at the museum and also interim curator of ethnology. Weaver was director of the Folks Islands exhibit project, and he arranged for various historians to write articles on ethnic communities presented in the exhibit.

"Most Texans realize that there were Germans and Czechs who settled in the Texas hill country down around San Antonio," Weaver said. "What many people don't realize is that over 50 European folk settlements were established in northwest Texas, and each of these communities has an interesting history and sometimes still has something of an ethnic atmosphere," he added.

"We did a considerable amount of research while we were putting the exhibit together and gathering artifacts from people who lived in the ethnic communities," Weaver explained. "When we finished, we realized that there was no way for other people to research the subject—there were no books or articles at all on ethnicity in the Panhandle."

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society was interested in preserving all of the information we had collected, and they agreed to publish a special "folk islands" edition of the "Panhandle-Plains Historical Review." We included ten articles and covered the history of such communities as Nazareth, Rhea, Lipscomb, Darrouzett, Stanton, Old Glory, White Deer, and so forth."

From the smiles of the faces of B.J. Gililand and Randy Griffin it looks like this batch of chili won their approval. LIFTS TO SHOOT MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marques Johnson, the brilliant scoring ace of the Milwaukee Bucks, took up weightlifting and says it has helped his shooting, much to his astonishment.

"I used to think it would affect your shot adversely," Johnson said. "But I watched Sidney Moncrief doing it and without any ill effects. So I tried it. What I found out was that I had some of my best games after lifting weights. The trick is to go right out and play after you have pumped some iron."

After that he called them by name and class. Anderson became Kathy, senior. Meyers was Kathy, junior. Leyden was Kathy, sophomore. Tokarz was Kathy, freshman.

All-Star announcers irk writer

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Tuesday night's All-Star telecast demonstrated what has come to be ABC's biggest problem in covering baseball - it forgets that the game is what people want to watch, not ABC's all-too prominent personalities engaging in inside locker-room style banter.

Too many times Tuesday - as well as too many times in earlier telecasts this year, the ABC crew ignored what was transpiring on the field to engage in mindless, name dropping, the kind that is mildly amusing the first time; boring the second and aggravating after that.

"I wonder what 'Twin D' is doing," Howard Cosell wondered aloud in the eightth inning. Cut to Don Drysdale in the interview room, a sheepish grin on his face.

Cosell is the centerpiece of all this, but he's not the only offender. Al Michaels, the best play-by-play man in the business, got caught in the middle of consistent bantering about the relative merits of the weather at Candlestick Park and the weather at Michaels' home, 30 miles south.

"I swear, they're wearing tank tops there," Michaels repeated and repeated.

Still, Cosell remains the biggest intrusion. He is, to put it bluntly, a font of misinformation.

Early in the game, he asked Earl Weaver how "those young Mets pitchers" could have "ERA's over four" in the minors and be pitching so well in the majors.

Sorry, Howard, but only one of the prominent young Mets, Ron Darling, had an ERA over 4.00 in his last minor league seasons, it was 4.02 at Tidewater last year. Dwight Gooden had a 2.50, Walt Terrell a 3.12, Doug Sisk a 2.67.

Too much time is spent in irrelevant or just plain inaccurate observations by Cosell; too much time is spent in name-dropping, Cosell just has to let us know he ran into Warren Spahn at O'Hare Airport, too much time is spent by Weaver and Cosell beating up the low-paid wretches of the print press for allegedly taking remarks from Bill Caudill and others out of context.

With all this, ABC is wasting its assets.

Chet Forte's cameras were a major plus Tuesday night, not overintrusive, but capturing key plays from the best angles. ABC's technical work this year, in fact, has been the equal of Harry Coyle's crews at NBC.

Moreover, the team of Michaels, Jim Palmer and Weaver enhance a viewer's knowledge of what's happening without being patronizing, as Cosell so often is. The backup team during the regular season, Drysdale and Tim McCarver, are insightful ex-players with broadcasters' resonant voices.

Palmer in particular, deserves more exposure, during the All-Star Game, he was allowed only spot appearances, usually with Cosell interviewing him. He does, in fact, what Cosell has always prided himself on doing, telling it like it is.

Speaking of Sports

By STAN GODEK
Sports Editor

After Tuesday's Major League All-Star game, it is my opinion that Baltimore Oriole Manager Joe Altobelli is indeed a lousy manager. I was upset when I heard Altobelli would not be starting Yankee knuckleballer Phil Niekro. The 45-year-old righthander has 11 victories and a league-leading 1.84 earned run average.

But Niekro never even got up in the American League bullpen Tuesday night. If Reggie Jackson gets to start the All-Star game while having a mediocre year, I think it's only fair Niekro should at least get to play.

It's no wonder the defending world champs are 11½ out of first in the AL East under Altobelli's guidance.

Any raquetball players in the city might be interested in a tournament hosted by the West Texas State University Cheerleaders July 20 and 21.

Deadline for entries is 5 p.m. July 18. Competition in three divisions will take place at the raquetball courts in the Virgil Henson Activities Center.

Entry fees are $12 per person for one event and $6 for each additional event. Balls will be provided and trophies will be given for first-third places.

Proceeds go to the WTSU Cheerleaders. For additional information contact WTSU Activities Center.

Two teams tied in the weekly Golf Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Wednesday, so prizes will carry over to next week.

Ten 6-member teams participated in the event Wednesday evening. Shooting a 27 score were Paul Hubbard's team of Juan Fernandez, Jeff Shelton, Truman Hazelrigg, Mary Harman and Leland Shelton.

Ron Weishaar's squad also carded a 27. They included Jeff O'Rand, Gene Chapman, Dave Workman and Ray Salley.

On Aug. 9, 1925, a New York Yankee batter named Bobby Veach had an unusual distinction. He went in as a pinch-hitter for Babe Ruth.

Major League Baseball

Second half poses questions

By JIM DONAGHY AP Sports Writer

Can the Mets and Cubs stage a repeat of the 1969 pennant chase? Will the Tigers hold off the charging Blue Jays? How far can Rich Gossage's fastball take the Padres? And just where will those kids on the Twins finally finish?

The answers to these questions figure to dominate the sports pages as the 1984 baseball season starts its second half today.

For the first time in their history, the New York Mets — the youngest team in the majors — stood in first place at the All-Star break.

"The interesting thing about the Cubs and us," says Mets general manager Frank Cashen, whose team holds a one-half game lead over Chicago in the National League East, "is that they've gone the exact opposite path from us. We've relied heavily on our farm system, and they don't have one regular who came out of their system."

Two of the youngsters most responsible for the Mets' surge are 19-year-old Dwight Gooden, who leads the majors with 133 strikeouts, and right-hander Ron Darling, 10-3.

The Cubs may not have one regular from their system — but general manager Dallas Green traded for several from the Philadelphia Phillies.

All-Star second baseman Ryne Sandberg is hitting .335 with a league-leading 118 hits and center fielder Bob Dernier is hitting .316 with 30 stolen bases. Both are former Phillies.

In the NL West, the restructured San Diego Padres have emerged as front-runners over the Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta Braves, holding a five-game lead at this point. San Diego has never finished closer than eight games out of first in the West.

erts have provided the bullpen that seems to be the missing ingredient the Padres have been looking for in their pennant search.

Gossage has 15 saves and a 2.92 ERA with 40 strikeouts in 59 innings.

The Dodgers and Braves have been among the more disappointing teams this year, due to sub-par performances from key players and more than their share of crippling injuries. Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner broke his wrist and will probably be out for the season.

The Dodgers' pitching has been steady (3.37 team ERA) but injuries to key players like first baseman Mike Marshall and a porous defense have kept Tom Lasorda's crew a step back.

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers, who ran away from the East Division in the opening weeks of the season, may, in opposition to Satchel Paige's famous credo, be looking back.

The Tigers who started off with a 35-5 surge are 22-22 since and currently hold a seven-game lead over Toronto.

Q. There is one thing surer than death and taxes: I will wear out a set of tires long before the stated mileage rating. Any hints for keeping the chariot shod longer than six months at a time?

A. Buy a good tire gage and use it often. Americans are notorious underinflators, and the price of underinflation is paid in set-after-set of new tires. In warm weather, check the pressure once a month and once a week in cold weather (cold causes a natural drop in pressure). Check inflation when the tires are cold. And always inflate to the pressure shown in your owners manual or on the inflation sticker located on the glove compartment or driver's side door. Finally, change pressures as suggested by the manufacturer to coincide with the driving you'll be doing. Overinflation can ruin tires, too, so use that tire gage, and use it often.

The opening session of the annual meeting will feature Dr. Robert Leake of the Utah State Office of Education, whose presentation will center on the importance of prevention of cardiovascular disease and youth education.

At the delegate luncheon on Saturday, the Lyndon Baines Johnson Award for the highest ranked researcher will be presented to Dr. Benjamin Perryman from the Baylor College of Medicine, Houston.

Following the presentation of this award, Robert O'Rourke, M.D., of the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio will speak about the cardiovascular research conducted nationally through grants from the American Heart Association.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 27, a certified public accountant (male) and feel that I am doing an excellent job in this office. Every since it became known that my wife has filed for divorce I have been getting the heavy come-on from my immediate superior. She is 32, attractive, highly competent, but not my type.

I have tried to be tactful about letting her know I am not interested. But she's a persistent and cunning lady. My latest assignment requires that we travel together to several meetings.

Last night after a few drinks on the plane, she laid it on the line. I told her I was interested in another woman.

thinking that would cool it. I was wrong. She made it plain that if I didn't play ball I'd be transferred to another department. (Less responsibility and a cut in pay.) She is going on a vacation tomorrow and I have only 17 days to think it over.

A lawyer pal of mine says I should sue this woman for sexual harassment. I've never sued anyone in my life. Furthermore I'd feel like a heel. But I'm sure she will demote me if I don't knuckle under. Then I'd have to leave.

Please tell me what you know about sexual harassment.—Trapped In N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, a federal agency charged with enforcing Title VII, defined sexual harassment in 1980. The guidelines are as follows: "Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal and physical conduct of a sexual nature, constitute sexual harassment when 1) submission to such conduct is made a term or a condition of an individual's employment, 2) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions, and 3) such conduct interferes with work performance or otherwise creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive working environment."

Sexual harassment is difficult to prove because there are seldom witnesses. If you are, however, inclined to be gutsy and are willing to suffer through some trying times, go for it. You might strike a blow for the independent male and discourage other women from doing this number.

Cook-Off Contest

A break dancing contest will be one of the afternoon attractions at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame's third annual chili cook-off which begins at 9 a.m. Saturday. First, second and third place prizes are to be awarded in each of two age divisions: 7-12 and 13-17 years of age. There is no extra entry fee, just the $2 admission to the cook-off, and anyone is welcome to enter. Other activities scheduled at the Hall of Fame on Saturday are chili judging, showmanship, hairy leg contest, egg toss and cream pie auction. In photo above, Little Joe Enriquez demonstrates his break dancing abilities as local youths and a new club, Los Barrios Breakers, gathered over the weekend in Dameron Park.

This weekend

Antique show, sale slated

The Continental Shows, LTD Summer Antique Show and Sale has been scheduled from Friday through Sunday at the Amarillo Civic Center. It will consist of a myriad of antiques and collectibles valued in excess of three million dollars.

Antique dealers, collectors and enthusiasts from all over the nation will gather in Amarillo to display furniture, dolls, jewelry, China, art glass, silver, watches, clocks, Orientals, linens, quilts, prints, books, paper books, postcards, primitives, tools, tins, toys, cut glass, turquoise, coins, paperweights, pottery, paintings, Indian artifacts and a host of other collectibles too numerous to mention.

All items displayed are for sale and prices range from a few cents for some paper collectibles to several thousand dollars for certain gold watches or pieces of art glass.

Show hours will be from 1-9 p.m. Friday; 1-8 p.m. Saturday; and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. One $2.50 admission covers all days of the show and children under 14 are free if accompanied by an adult.

According to George A. Kuehler, producer of quality antique shows in the Southwest for 18 years, "The growth in attendance and sales in the Amarillo shows has been almost phenomenal over the last 10 years."

SUMMER JOBS
LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Summertime and the living's not easy for college students without summer jobs.

Denise D. Gingrich, director of the Career Development Center at Bucknell University here, recommends building a network of contacts within and outside the college.

Some colleges, such as Bucknell, are formalizing these ties and providing the students with a list of alumni and parents in the students' intended field.

Students wishing to continue working in such traditional summer jobs as being a lifeguard or waitress can do volunteer work for as little as an hour a week.

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — The odds against making a hole-in-one in golf are reportedly 33,616 to one.

Amateur golfer Scott Palmer of San Diego, Calif., laughs at those odds, according to Spalding Co., which manufactures the ball he uses.

Over a 10-month period, from June of 1983 to April of 1984, Palmer performed the incredible feat of shooting 23 holes-in-one and has affidavits from 65 different witnesses to prove it. It broke the old one-year record of 11 aces with something to spare.

For a little icing on the cake, Palmer reported that he used the same ball for 17 of his holes-in-one.

The Cambodian government of Pol Pot fell in 1979 to Vietnamese-backed rebels.

In 1953, President Harry Truman announced that the United States had developed a hydrogen bomb.
