

County seeks appeal of lawsuit loss

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County has filed an application to appeal an unfavorable class-action lawsuit ruling handed down last month by a federal district judge in Amarillo.

On Sept. 21, Judge Mary Lou Robinson ordered back pay be given all Hispanics who applied for jobs with one of four county departments in the last five years and were denied employment due to racial discrimination.

Claims for back pay, which Robinson ruled are to be filed before Dec. 1, pertain to applications with the sheriff's, social services, building and maintenance or county Precinct 3 departments.

In addition to the monetary penalties, the county was ordered to adopt a new application procedure which would ensure future hiring decisions are based more on objective rather than subjective reasoning.

Glen Nelson, county judge, said the application for appeal was filed last week in Amarillo's federal district court. The county is asking for a stay of remedial decree in addition to its request the case be heard by the Fifth Circuit of Appeals Court in New Orleans, La.

Immediate action on the application is being sought, Nelson explained, so the county might not have to begin complying with last month's ruling before the case is tried in appellate court.

Randall Marshall, spokesman for the plaintiffs' attorneys, said he was surprised by the application. The local Texas Rural Legal Aid lawyer claimed the county stands to lose many thousands of more dollars in its appeal attempt.

There are three likely results of a successful application for appeal, Marshall explained. One is the appellate court upholding Robinson's ruling, meaning additional attorneys' fees would be tacked on to whatever the settlement amounts to.

A second possibility is the New Orleans court might make the county's penalty more severe. Marshall said it is understood plaintiffs have the right in appellate court to try to extend Robinson's ruling to the entire county hiring structure rather than just the four departments now being considered.

An overturning of Robinson's ruling - the third possibility given by Marshall - would probably mean a new trial be ordered at the federal district court level. More than likely, Marshall thought, Robinson would once again be the judge.

In ordering the trial begin again, Marshall said, the appellate court would probably site a legal flaw in Robinson's original decision. It would ask her to re-hear the case and make her new ruling comply with the legal stipulation.

It is possible the appellate judge could find in favor of the county and demand no new trial, thereby clearing the county of any penalties and forcing TRLA to fork out the attorneys' fees. Marshall, however, said such a decision "is rare in the fifth circuit."

Neither Nelson nor Marshall offered guesses on when Robinson would rule on the application for appeal. Marshall, though, believed a successful application would mean the case being tied up in appellate court for about a year.

Regarding the application, Marshall commented, "It seems to me it's more of a political decision that they (county officials) are not going to give in." He said the appeal procedure will cost taxpayers of all races more money.

preferences in Texas. County Clerk David Ruland said CBS has discussed the possibility with him. He added he is expecting the network to send staff members to collect the county's voting tabulations on election night.

Lee C. Shapiro, manager of election operations for CBS News Elections based in New York City, said if the county is used it will not be because of any particular political attitudes prevalent in the county.

"The precincts are chosen at random, through statistics, as a piece of the puzzle that will represent Texas," she explained.

Shapiro said research is done on every precinct in the state, with results analyzed by a computer.

"A statistical random sampling is seen as the most accurate method," she pointed out.

The network prefers not to have a lot of publicity about the study, Shapiro said, because a voter might think differently about marking his ballot if he knows his decisions are being used as part of a voter evaluation.

"We take great care in our random sampling," Shapiro added. "We have spent two years preparing for this election. Our researchers go out to the precincts and do a lot of work."

According to Shapiro, each network uses a different sampling theory to make election night reports of how the voting is going. "The statistical random sample theory is the one we have chosen."

The results of the election in a specific precinct might not reflect how the entire county votes, Shapiro said, but according to the network's tabulations, it should be an indication of how the state votes. Past voting records of the precinct are among the pieces of information fed into the computer.

Deaf Smith will not be singled out when Texas results are announced Nov. 6, Shapiro said, but - if used - will be grouped with the other voting precincts monitored in the state.

Tommy refused to eat. His father, whose temper had grown short, yelled, "Twenty years from now you'll be telling some girl what a great cook your mother was. Now eat your dinner!"

From time to time, we comment about matters that are topics of conversation in the community. This time of year, the conversations usually center around the crops, weather and football. However, the past few weeks more people seem to be discussing (or cussing) the Texas Rural Legal Aid and Federal Judge Mary Lou Robinson.

The controversy results from the federal district court ruling that Deaf Smith County will have to come up with back pay for one claimant, and all other Hispanic claimants who can prove they applied for county jobs and were not hired due to being Hispanic.

Although the TRLA lawyer said there were 238 Hispanic applications in the past five years, the key wording appears to be that they prove they were not hired due to being Hispanic.

What some folks need to remember, including federal judges, is that we must still discriminate between individuals. That's how we find our best friends. We must still discriminate between two political candidates, to distinguish and discern the differences before we vote.

And, we still have to discriminate between two job applicants to discern all the factors which would affect their performance in the position to be filled.

We suspect that the county's biggest sin has not been discrimination against Hispanics, rather it may have been an inadequate job application process and a lack of record-keeping.

State party profits from visit

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Republican Party coffers are swelling by an additional $2 million today after some 2,000 people paid $1,000 apiece to dine with President Reagan and Vice President George Bush.

"We exceeded the goal of $2 million," said Jack M. Rains, chairman of 3-D International, a Houston architectural firm, and chairman of Tuesday night's Texas Victory Gala at Houston's Albert Thomas Convention Center. "Many will say that the fat cats are at it again. But let's put it in perspective. We succeeded because many people made a sacrifice and commitment to the President."

Reagan himself referred to the $1,000 admission. "There was a certain sacrifice at the box office for you to be here," he told the crowd.

Some 200 demonstrators gathered outside the convention hall in the hour before the President arrived and were about equally divided between pro- and anti-Reagan forces.

"Our individual voices won't be heard but our presence will be felt," said Mary Branson, 27, of Spring, an anti-Reagan demonstrator and president of the Northwest Houston chapter of the National Organization for Women.

She was shouting "Four more months!" while the President's backers cheered "Four more years!"

Dawn Natividad, 19, of Houston, said she would be cheering in favor of Reagan "even if he can't hear us." For their $1,000, those attending the affair ate a three-course meal that included filet mignon and chocolate pecan pie.

Meanwhile, just seven blocks away, about 2,000 Democrats paid $5 a head to attend a hot dog dinner staged to counter the Reagan appearance.

The Republican entourage included a 39-person head table, with Reagan seated between former GOP Gov. William Clements and Rains. The room was decked with blue ceiling-to-floor curtains and head table was flanked with white replicas of cactus plants adorned with blinking white lights.

Reagan was preceded into the hall by a parade of flag bearers. Olympic Gold Medal gymnast Mary Lou Retton, who trains in Houston, led the Pledge of Allegiance and country-western singer Lee Greenwood sang "God Bless the U.S.A." a song former Texas Gov. John Connally introduced as "becoming the theme song of the Reagan campaign."

Reagan, in a 20-minute speech that reviewed the accomplishments of his term, thanked Texans for "lending" him Houstonians George Bush and

"George is, in every sense of the word, an invaluable part of our administration," Reagan said.

United Way's progress told

Volunteers of the United Way of Deaf Smith County reported $40,749 in cash and pledge received during the first three weeks of the annual campaign drive, and that's 32 percent of the total needed to reach the goal.

At the report meeting this week, volunteers learned that many contacts have been made, but only 18 percent of the prospect list has been finalized. This means, according to campaign chairman B.J. Gilliland, that volunteers have a lot of pledges to pick up from people and firms already contacted.

The general division is the only one to have achieved more than 50 percent of its goal drive to date. There are eight divisions in the campaign organization. The divisions, and the dollar goals set for each, are agriculture, $3,900; general, $3,500; major, $63,500; metro, $18,500; Pacesetters, $8,500; professional, $11,500; special, $15,500; and Whiteface, $3,250.

The total is $128,150.

Wayne Amstutz, executive director, said volunteers would be actively making solicitations this week as the drive reaches the halfway mark. The campaign is scheduled to end Oct. 31.

The United Way funds 10 agencies, with this year's theme being "Caring More in '84."

Operation Good Shepherd's clothes closet will not be open Thursday or Friday, a spokesman for the organization reported.

The closet is to be in the process of moving to a new location at the corner of Avenue K and Highway 60. It is no longer to operate out of Wesley United Methodist Church.

The closet is to be open at its new site Oct. 11 and 12: Thursday and Friday of next week.

Mendoza sentenced 22 years

Juan Robert Mendoza, a 22-year-old Hereford resident, was sentenced to 20 years in the Texas Department of Corrections Tuesday after pleading guilty to drug charges in 22nd District Court.

Mendoza was among several Hereford residents indicted by the January term Deaf Smith County grand jury on charges of possession and delivery of controlled substances. He was accused of delivery of heroin and cocaine in February and March of 1983.

Waiving a jury trial, Mendoza accepted the sentence under terms of a plea bargain agreement with the district attorney's office. Mendoza also had his three-year-old probation revoked and was ordered to serve the four-year term handed down in his conviction of aggravated assault.

Governor still seeks new voters

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal government's opposition to state-encouraged voter registration efforts in Texas is an attempt at intimidation and won't be tolerated, Gov. Mark White says.

White, continuing his defiance of a federal warning that state employees shouldn't be used to register people to vote, spent about an hour Tuesday passing out voter registration cards at a Houston shopping mall.

"We're not going to stand for any intimidation," White said. "Every citizen has an equal opportunity to register."

And White said he would continue to push for voter registration at every opportunity.

"We caught them trying to pull a fast one, trying to bully state officials. It's nothing more than just a political trick that they apparently think they can palm off on the people of this state," the governor said.

Perot praises board chairman

AUSTIN (AP) — H. Ross Perot says Gov. Mark White found the right kind of person for chairman of the new State Board of Education — someone who probably had to be pressured into taking the post.

"His motives are perfect," Perot, chairman of the select committee that pushed for a new board, said of Fort Worth oilman Jon Brumley of Fort Worth. "He is not trying to get a public job. I'd bet you a steak that the governor had to twist his arm — maybe break it — to get him."

Brumley and his 14 colleagues on the new board were to be sworn in today in Austin. They planned a Thursday first meeting as they tackle the task of implementing the education reforms pushed through the Legislature this year.

The appointed board replaces the 27-member elected panel that guided Texas public schools for 35 years.

"Jon Brumley is one of the outstanding business leaders of this state and his abilities will be an asset in chairing the new board. I feel he has the critical knowledge and experience to take on the responsibility, along with the other members of the board, to implement school reform in Texas," White said in appointing Brumley on Tuesday.

Mother, daughter to testify

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A man who died after being set on fire while he slept constantly abused his family and even strangled their pets, leaving his wife and stepdaughter no recourse but to kill him, witnesses testified.

Cheryl Kay Oates and a daughter, Robin Renee Elliott, are charged in connection with the death of Nick Eugene Oates, who was doused with gasoline and set on fire while he slept on waterbed. Attorneys say the two could take the stand in their own defense today or Thursday.

Mrs. Oates was "definitely a battered wife" and a 14-year-old son was a "battered child," licensed professional counselor Glenn Hunsucker testified on Tuesday.

Hunsucker, the first defense witness, said Mrs. Oates and her six children probably "did not just pick up and leave" Oates because of a fear of being caught and abused more violently.

"They perceived they were trapped," Hunsucker said. "All the alternatives had been applied. There was nothing else they could do" except fight back with deadly force.

Congress has marathon session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress stampeded toward adjournment today after the Senate plowed under major civil rights and environmental legislation in an effort to pass an omnibus spending bill necessary to keep the government solvent after midnight.

Senators convened at 11 a.m. Tuesday and worked into this morning in an effort to complete action on the money bill so that congressional negotiators could begin hammering out a compromise with a version passed last week by the House.

The Senate had been bogged down since last week in bitter wrangling over civil rights legislation aimed at nullifying a Supreme Court limit on the application of federal anti-discrimination laws.

But the Senate voted 53-45 Tuesday night to table — in effect kill — the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1984.

It was a dramatic end to a five-day deadlock.

"Shame on this body, shame on this body," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a co-sponsor of the legislation, shouted at his colleagues in a hushed Senate chamber.

Ferraro points to 'sloppy errors'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Geraldine Ferraro says "sloppy errors" by an accountant were responsible for her incomplete financial disclosure statements, but a conservative legal group says she broke the law.

"These are wholesale violations of the Ethics in Government Act," Paul Kamenar, executive director of the Washington Legal Foundation, said Tuesday after Ms. Ferraro's amended congressional disclosure forms were made public.

"You simply can't lay these at the doorstep of an accountant," said Kamenar, whose complaints touched off an investigation by the House ethics committee of the financial statements the Democratic vice presidential nominee filed since coming to Congress in 1979.

He said the amended statements, which contained hundreds of thousands of dollars in income and in assets not previously reported to Congress, "confirmed our allegations.... She's revealing additional information that indicates to us her misreporting was worse than we thought."

Overall, the newly listed items carried a value of between $357,500 to $646,500.

Mozambique agrees to cease-fire

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Mozambique today agreed to a cease-fire with anti-Marxist guerrillas who have fought to topple the Mozambican government for a decade, South African President P.W. Botha announced.

Representatives of Mozambique's Marxist government and the rebel movement joined Botha at a news conference and confirmed they had accepted the cease-fire, worked out in three months of intensive negotiations.

None of the parties would say when the cease-fire takes effect, but the agreement appears to end one of southern Africa's longest and most debilitating civil conflicts.

Mozambique's economy is in ruins after nearly a decade of guerrilla attacks in the countryside on the heels of President Samora Machel's successful 10-year fight to end Portuguese colonial rule.

In March, Mozambique and neighboring South Africa signed a non-aggression treaty barring aid to opposition rebels in each country.

Candidates exchange charges, view debate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale says President Reagan's taking responsibility for the latest American deaths in Beirut isn't good enough and won't wash, while Reagan is defending his administration against what he calls "baseless charges" and both men begin in earnest preparations for their first debate.

The president and his challenger were clearing their campaign calendars to devote time to this Sunday's debate in Louisville, Ky., the first of two face-to-face sessions.

Reagan was also trying to voice support for his Labor Secretary, Raymond Donovan, indicted Monday by a New York grand jury. Reagan said Donovan was "innocent until proven guilty" and the victim of a "lynch atmosphere" that has plagued his administration.

"It's now a matter of law, and so I won't comment further," Reagan said.

Vice President George Bush was preparing to release long-awaited details of his income tax returns this evening. Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was dealing with her finances too, filing Tuesday an updated congressional financial disclosure statement showing hundreds of thousands of dollars not previously reported.

Campaigning Tuesday, Mondale and his running mate hit strongly at Reagan on the question of blame for the latest fatal bombing in Lebanon.

"He seems to be saying, 'I take responsibility, but nothing went wrong,'" Mondale said of Reagan. "I don't believe that will wash."

After nearly two full weeks of demands that someone take the blame for the bombing that killed two Americans at the U.S. Embassy annex, Reagan raised the subject with reporters after arriving in Brownsville, Texas.

In Nashville, Tenn., Ms. Ferraro called Reagan's remarks a meaningless gesture and said it was just as he did after the Oct. 23, 1983, bombing in Beirut that left 241 Marines dead. An April 18, 1983, embassy bombing there killed 16 other 16 Americans.

"We have now waited 13 days and we have the president accepting responsibility and saying no heads will roll. What does that mean?," she said.

In Little Rock, Ark., Mondale said, "I think he now has to really take responsibility and tell us what happened, what went wrong and what he's doing to prevent a recurrence."

The charges against Donovan, now on an unpaid leave of absence, prompted renewed questioning and charges by the Democrats about Reagan's appointees, an issue Mondale raised earlier this year as the "sleaze factor."

Asked about the issue, Reagan said, "If there is one, it's on the other side, with their baseless charges and accusations that have all been proven false."

Said Mondale, "I believe there is a tacky element in this administration."

Agriculture official to be in Dimmitt Friday

The third highest ranking U.S. Department of Agriculture official is to meet with farmers and businessmen in Dimmitt Friday during a tour of the South Plains area of Texas.

Frank Naylor, Undersecretary of Agriculture for Small Community and Rural Development, will be at the City Hall in Dimmitt at 9 a.m. Friday.

According to a news release from Larry Combest, Republican candidate for U.S. Congress, Naylor is making the visit "upon the request and urging" of Combest. The candidate will accompany Naylor on the tour which, also includes Friday stops in Lubbock and Levelland.

Naylor has held his present post since May of 1981. He supervises activities of the Farmers Home Administration, the Rural Electrification Administration, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and the Office of Rural Development Policy.

A native of Kansas and graduate of the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Naylor first joined the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1969 as deputy administrator of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

In 1972 he moved to the Veterans Administration as executive assistant to the administrator, and from 1973 to 1976 Naylor held administrative positions with the Farmers Home Administration.

Before accepting his present position, Naylor was senior vice president of the 11th Farm Credit District in Sacramento, Calif.

'Mosaic' of evidence

Prosecutors 'backed into' Donovan inquiry

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators "backed into" the fraud case against Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan while probing two gangland-style slayings allegedly linked to Donovan's former company, which also was indicted, authorities say.

Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said the murder investigations, coupled with information from federal probes into Donovan's business dealings, created a "mosaic" of evidence which led to the labor secretary's indictment.

Donovan, nine other people and two companies pleaded innocent Tuesday to 137 felony charges. The defendants are accused of inflating the value of work on a subway construction job in 1979 and overcharging the New York Transit Authority by $8 million.

The grand larceny charge carries a maximum penalty of seven years in prison. The other counts each carry maximum four-year sentences.

Donovan, 54, is believed to be the first Cabinet officer to be named in a criminal indictment. He took an unpaid leave of absence immediately after learning of the charges.

He reiterated his innocence Tuesday and asked state Supreme Court Judge Barry Salzman to expedite his case. Donovan was released without bail and a hearing was set for Nov. 12.

Donovan was executive vice president of Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J., when it won the $186 million subway job and hired Jopel Contracting and Trucking Corp. of the Bronx as a minority subcontractor.

Because the project was subsidized by the Urban Mass Transit Administration, federal rules required that 10 percent — approximately $18 million — had to go to a minority-owned business. One of Jopel's owners was a black state senator, Joseph Galiber, who also was charged in the indictment.

Merola said the Donovan investigation began with a probe into the death of Nathan Masselli, who was gunned down in the Bronx on Aug. 23, 1982.

His father, William Masselli, a convicted truck hijacker linked to the Genovese crime family, was indicted in the fraud case along with Donovan.

Prosecutors said Nathan Masselli was murdered to foil a federal investigation by special prosecutor Leon Silverman into Donovan's alleged mob ties. Two men were convicted last November in the Masselli slaying.

Meanwhile, Merola said, the investigation of the Masselli murder persuaded Bronx prosecutors to take a second look at the killing of reputed mobster Salvatore Frascione on Sept. 22, 1978.

The investigators discovered that Frascione — an alleged member of the Bonanno mob — had been slain following a gangland "sitdown" to decide which minority subcontractor Schiavone would hire, Merola said.

Frascone had opposed Jopel and was killed to smooth the way for the Bronx subcontractor, according to the district attorney.

"We investigated the first homicide, which led us to the second homicide, which backed us into Donovan," Merola said.

The thread tying the cases together was William Masselli, who is alleged to have been the real head of Jopel. He and Joseph Bugliarelli were indicted Tuesday for the Frascione slaying.

The two were charged with murder, although prosecutors said the actual triggerman was a bodyguard turned federal informant.

There was nothing linking Donovan to the two murders or indicating he personally filled out the false business forms that led to the grand jury indictment against Schiavone and its officials, Merola said.

"Jopel got an $18 million contract, but they did not receive $8 million of that," said Merola, who charged that Schiavone officials stole the missing money.

The two companies and 10 individuals each were charged with one count of grand larceny, 125 counts of falsifying business records and 11 counts of false government filings.

Merola charged that Donovan, as a "principal officer" of Schiavone, "was actively engaged" with the other defendants and "was a beneficiary. He certainly got the benefit of all of this skulduggery."

Donovan has insisted the Bronx case is a politically motivated reshaping of the Silverman investigation. Merola is a Democrat.

Paul Harvey Parasitic Diseases

Our country is being invaded by AIDS bugs from Haiti.

Leprosy is an increasing stateside menace.

And TV and foot-long intestinal worms.

For parasitic diseases Americans have no natural immunity.

Parasitic diseases now infect or affect 130 million Americans.

Parasitic diseases tend to circumvent the body's immune system, much as cancer does.

It is a problem so complex that not even governments can mobilize adequate countermeasures. For all their investment in time and money, the scientific frontier has appeared to be a dead-end—a scientific Vietnam.

But on at least one front there has been a breakthrough.

Encouraged, scientists are on the attack now.

Recently the National Institutes of Health and New York University announced progress toward development of a vaccine for malaria.

If it does in the field what it does in the lab, this vaccine could be in general use in five years.

Yet malaria is but one of hundreds of parasitic diseases.

Fortunately scientific research is all interrelated.

For example, what we have learned in our quest for an answer to cancer can now be used in efforts to prevent and treat parasitic diseases.

Presently, young researchers who don't know what "can't be done" are using our newest understanding of genetics and molecular biology to study how parasites survive and flourish in the bodies of their victims.

To exploit this new opportunity, the MacArthur Foundation is financing research in a consortium of 11 institutions worldwide—with three objectives:

Pushing back another scientific frontier.

Improving chemical intervention — the treatment of parasitic diseases.

And third, to seek and find a vaccine to prevent them.

The World Health Organization, recognizing the significance of this undertaking, is participating, contributing.

For all that medical science has been able to accomplish we are just barely beginning to understand how cells work.

And understanding, of course, necessarily precedes intervention.

Historically, parasitic diseases were "mostly somewhere else"; not any more.

As environmentalists have learned we can't clean up half a sky, we can no longer stop the bugs at the border.

This is the challenge in which the MacArthur Foundation is investing tens of millions of dollars and the efforts of many of the world's foremost research scientists.

The divisions of horticulture, design, juniors and educational compose the show.

The horticulture division has five classes which include showings of pot plants, flowers, needled evergreens and deciduous trees and landscape shrubs.

The design division also consists of five classes. These classes include arrangements of all fresh plant material with accessories permitted and arrangements from fresh and-or dry plant material. The junior division will consist of award-winning posters by Hereford students. The posters each carry the theme of "Ways to Save Water for the Future."

The division will include displays on corsage making, gardening studies and water and soil conservation.

Everyone is invited to come and enjoy the flower show. Club members will be on hand to explain how the designs were made and how the various horticulture specimens were cared for.

Ann Landers

Booklet tremendous help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Hurrah for your booklet, "Sex and the Teenager!" It accomplished what I had been trying unsuccessfully to do for 10 years. It opened up an uninhibited discussion on sexual concerns of eighth-graders and produced a fantastic breakthrough.

I'm a social worker in a suburban junior high school who meets with groups of students who wish to discuss personal problems. These groups begin in the sixth grade and go through the eighth grade. By the time the boys and girls (each in separate groups) are eighth-graders, their social immaturity has diminished considerably and many of the groups were anxious to talk about sex.

The students were shy and ill-at-ease when discussing sexual issues. No one wanted to speak. Everyone seemed uptight. The discussions floundered. Then one day I decided to read to them from your booklet, "Sex and the Teenager." In less than 10 minutes, the atmosphere changed completely.

Students were no longer embarrassed to ask "stupid" questions. They were fascinated with your questions at the beginning of the booklet because they were wondering about those same questions:

Can a girl get pregnant the first time? How to avoid getting pregnant. What to do if you are. Is VD serious? What are the symptoms? Where to go to get treatment. Will the doctor tell your folks? Should you rat on the guy or the girl who gave you VD? Does the girl who says "no" sit home a lot? What is homosexuality? Is it curable? How can you tell if you are homosexual? What about masturbation? Is it wrong? Will it hurt you? Are your parents too strict? How can you get them to trust you? How your school life may be affected by alcohol, pot and heavier drugs. Can a girl be made pregnant by an animal? If a girl has experimented with her brother when she was 5 or 6 is she still a virgin? Can a girl become pregnant during her period? If a boy has an erection while showering in the gym does it mean he is homosexual?

I was interested in observing that both the boys and the girls knew a great deal less than they were willing to let on. Many of them had had some sex education in school but it was apparent that the information they had did not include the answers to many questions that were on their minds. Your booklet opened them up almost immediately. It was wonderful the way everyone wanted to be in on the discussion and no one was self-conscious.

It is my opinion that "Sex and the Teenager" should be required reading for every teenager before graduation from the eighth grade. Thank you for this valuable contribution to the welfare of teenagers everywhere.--Ethel Mae Katz (suburb of Chicago)

DEAR ETHEL MAE KATZ: What a gratifying letter and how generous of you to have taken the time and trouble to write it.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 3, the 277th day of 1984. There are 89 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 3, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln declared the last Thursday in November Thanksgiving Day. (The holiday would be moved to the third Thursday of November in 1939 before Congress would move it to its present location on the calendar, the fourth Thursday of November.)

On this date: In 1226, St. Francis of Assisi, founder of the Franciscans, died. (He was canonized two years later. His feast day is October fourth.)

In 1941, Adolf Hitler delivered a speech in Berlin in which he said Russia had been "broken" and would "never rise again."

In 1967, folk singer Woody Guthrie died.

Ten years ago: Frank Robinson was named manager of the Cleveland Indians, becoming major league baseball's first black manager.

Five years ago: Pope John Paul wrapped up his visit to New York with a Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, a rally at Madison Square Garden, a ticker-tape parade down Broadway and a farewell address at Shea Stadium. The Pope then went on to Philadelphia, where he celebrated Mass in Logan Circle.

One year ago: The White House announced that President Reagan would postpone his planned visits to the Philippines, Indonesia and Thailand indefinitely.

Today's birthdays: Author Gore Vidal is 59. Actress Madlyn Rhue is 50. Rock-and-roll star Chubby Checker is 43. U.S. Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., is 41. All-star outfielder Dave Winfield is 33.

Planning A Business Expansion?

In the 1800's, if a person wanted to open a large retail store, he might need five or six thousand dollars for merchandise. If he was contemplating from three to eight new stores, he could figure on needing fifty thousand dollars.

While the amount of capital may be a little different today, the overall need for money is still there. And that's where we can help.

We're the bank with the pioneer spirit. We understand what it takes to get that business off the ground, and how to expand your existing one. We invite you to come in and let us get to know you - and your business. That way, we understand how to serve you better.

It's this kind of dedication to you and your business that makes us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Abundant Life

Bob Wear

WE CAN CHANGE, in the sense of improvement and growth, and this is one of our great blessings. It offers to us the possibility for a manner of living that is continuing to improve. Obviously, this possibility is of great meaning to us. In fact, it is the predominant element in the actuality of living life at its best.

WE HAVE great capacity for profitable change, as a continuing life experience. The changes must be made within the best available framework which will contain the carefully chosen basics upon which a worthwhile life can be established. We leave these basic principles as a tree leaves its root system, but remains attached thereto. In these justified changes, we leave the basics as the building, as it rises, leaves the foundation, but rests upon the foundation as an essential part of the building.

IN EACH LIFE there is a level of completion to be reached, but this does not mean that "change" ceases, perhaps we should say. It does not mean that "progress" ceases. The justified and profitable changes will move us from one level of fulfillment to another.

Actually, if we are honestly trying to make the best of life, we are always maturing, never "mature in the absolute." Of course, we do attain a state of being referred to as "mature"; but this does not close the door to the continuing betterment of the living experience.

HEREIN WE FIND the challenge and the adventure in living, the basis for continuing enthusiasm for living, the means by which we prevent life from becoming dreary and dull and a real burden. We can continue to improve, to move forward; if we will.

Evangelist to speak to Aglow Fellowship

Vantrice Burkes, evangelist, will speak to the Hereford Aglow Fellowship Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center.

Burkes' ministry started in 1976. She travels extensively speaking to Women's Fellowship Groups, A.A. and Al-Anon meetings, home fellowship groups and as a guest speaker in many churches. She has an active prison ministry.

Her ministry is unique and effective. Because of her personal experience with alcoholism, she applies love, compassion, and understanding to any problem.

She believes that God's miracles are all custom made to fit the particular need, and that Jesus is still in the business of healing broken health, relationships, marriages and finances.

The Aglow Fellowship invites everyone to come and hear Burkes speak.

For more information, contact Marleen at 364-7607 or 364-8814.

On the Ball

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Maybe they didn't perform as well Friday night as they have in the past, and even though they might not be recognized for their performance that particular game, the effort still was there.

"They" are players on the Hereford defense, and they have played well in other outings this season, despite Friday's 45-0 defeat at the hands of Amarillo. It is for their good play that fans need to recognize the defensive players, especially if those same people are going to criticize them.

But ask any defensive coach or coordinator, and all surely will agree that non-recognition of himself and the defense suits him just fine. At least that's what Hereford High School defensive coordinator Gary Wilhelm said.

"We're not looking for praise on defense," he said. "We just want to do our job."

Not intending to put words into Wilhelm's mouth, the coach doesn't want fans putting the players down, either.

When he said "we just want to do our jobs," Wilhelm was speaking for himself and the other Hereford defensive coaches—Don Long, linebackers coach; Mark Turner, tackles and noseguards coach; and Ron Young, defensive ends coach. Wilhelm said he and all the coaches focused a portion of each of Hereford's workouts on the defense.

"We try to hit every area of the defense," Wilhelm said. "And we concentrate on defense every day in workout. Our defensive coaches do a great job."

District 3-5A statistics indicated Hereford was fourth in total defense heading into the Amarillo game. The Herd was allowing 228.7 yards per game, according to the stats.

The Herd is ranked eighth as of today. But neither the fourth-place, nor eighth-place standing bothers Wilhelm. Neither would a first-place ranking mean a lot to him—at least not at this point.

"When you need to look at stats is about the seventh game of the season," he said. "What it all boils down to is not who has the better statistics, but the final score."

Right now, he explained, any team might have a bad outing and percentages would change a great deal from game to game with only a few games to consider.

Wilhelm calls all of the defensive formations for the Herd. The Whiteface defense operates basically from two setups—the "59" or the more commonly called 5-2, and "60" or 6-2. In the 59, the defense lines up with five linemen—two ends, two tackles and a noseguard—and two linebackers. In the 60, an extra noseguard is inserted and those players are in the gaps between the offensive center and guards. There also are two linebackers in the 60 formation.

Wilhelm said the defense also lined up in a "50 Eagle," primarily against teams that run to their strong side.

How do the coaches prepare the defensive unit? Not by checking the stats of another team, you can bet.

"We don't, as coaches, try to hype the players up or fire them up, either," Wilhelm said. "We try to provide the opportunity for the players to prepare themselves for the opponent. We want to keep our emotional level even with our pride."

He said the defenders needed to be aware of what a particular offense might throw at them, but that the coaches didn't only drill the defense on one area.

"I've learned that concentrating on one area can get you into trouble," Wilhelm said. "You can't go into practice Monday thinking a certain team is only going to throw or only going to run."

"We thought Palo Duro (the second game of the season) would throw more than they did, but they didn't have to."

Palo Duro had thrown for 149 yards in two games in 1984, but put only four tosses into the air against the Herd.

Hereford takes pride in having a good defense, Wilhelm said. In the three years prior to 1984, the Whitefaces allowed just over six points per outing in 35 games, 6.06 more specifically.

That figure probably will rise at the end of this season. But it's not due to lack of effort on the players' parts.

"Maybe it's because of tradition (that Hereford takes pride in its defense)," Wilhelm said. "Maybe it's because of the unity the guys feel."

Maybe. But it doesn't matter. All that matters, like Wilhelm said, is that the defense—and the offense—does its job week in and week out.

The Whiteface defense—or offense—isn't ready to give up yet, even though they may be ranked near the bottom of the district in stats. Don't be a fair-weather fan and give up on them.

Cubs romp Padres

Chicago homers stifle San Diego

By JOE MOOSHL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Dernier set the tone and Gary Matthews set the pace in a record-shattering display of power, but it was Keith Moreland's defensive gem that put a lock on the outcome.

The Chicago Cubs smashed five home runs, two by Matthews who drive in four runs on their way to a 13-0 romp Tuesday over San Diego in the opening game of their best-of-five National League Championship Series.

Dernier homered on losing pitcher Eric Show's second pitch which Matthews said "set the precedent for our club. Bobby hit a fastball, we're a fastball-hitting club and Show is a fastball pitcher. The quick run takes the pressure off and everyone tends to relax."

Matthews didn't relax too much. He also homered in the first inning to hand Rick Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead, and his three-run homer triggered a six-run fifth to put the issue beyond doubt.

Matthews put a leg up on the series' Most Valuable Player award which he won last year with the Philadelphia Phillies. But he told his teammates "Don't be afraid to dehydrate me."

It might not be easy, but others gave it a try. Sutcliffe allowed only two hits, struck out eight in the seven innings he pitched and he cracked a homer and a single.

Dernier also had a double and two walks and scored three times and Ron Cey also homered giving the Cubs an LCS record of five round trippers.

Other series records included Matthews homering in four straight games dating back to last season; the Cubs' 16 hits; the biggest shutout score and the biggest margin of victory.

Despite what seemed to be an outstanding performance, Sutcliffe said "I didn't have my best stuff and I lost my concentration."

"I struggled in the fourth inning," he said. "But Moreland's catch basically ended the game. It took the momentum out of their dugout and put it back into ours."

With one out in the fourth, Steve Garvey beat out a bunt single. Graig Nettles flied out, but Terry Kennedy and Kevin McReynolds both walked to fill the bases. Carmelo Martinez ripped a drive to right and Moreland speared the ball with a diving catch.

"There was no doubt I caught the ball," said Moreland when asked if he feared the substitute umpires, filling in for the regular umpires who are out on strike, might miss the call.

"I wasn't thinking about the umpires, I had just looked at the scoreboard and saw the score was 5-0 so I told myself 'Don't do anything crazy,' so I went out and did a crazy thing," Moreland explained.

"When I got to the dugout I realized what a dangerous thing I had done," Moreland said. "If that ball gets by me, it's three runs. I figured it was a hit and what I was trying to do was keep the man on second base from scoring. But the ball stayed up and stuck in my glove."

San Diego Manager Dick Williams kept a low tone, but said, "That was one loss. We didn't play too well. We were blown out, the long ball got us. I thought it would be a low-scoring game. It was, for us."

Game No. 2 was scheduled today with Steve Trout, 13-7, facing Mark Thurmond, 14-8, in a battle of left-handers.

Royals lose to Tigers, admit defeat in opener

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amateur umpires are no problem when the Detroit Tigers make the Kansas City Royals look like amateur players.

"We sure can't blame the umpires for what happened," said Frank White, one of only four Royals to get a base hit Tuesday night in the opening game of the best-of-five American League Championship Series.

The fact the Tigers whipped them 8-1 was not as galling to the Royals as how it happened. The Tigers, the Eastern Division champs who won 104 games in the regular season, jumped on their hosts with a combination of pitching, power, and, insist the Royals, plain old luck.

"We knew they were good. We didn't know they were lucky, too," said White. "That hardly seems fair. They didn't win 104 games by being slouchy. But it did seem like every ball we hit hard was hit straight at somebody. And except for the home runs, most of their hits were just barely out of reach."

Tiger starter Jack Morris left the game after the seventh inning with a blister on his pitching hand. Even though he did not have his best stuff, Morris allowed only two third-inning singles and retired 10 in a row before Jorge Orta tripled leading off the seventh.

By then, Alan Trammell's single, triple and home run had led the Tigers to a 5-0 lead off Kansas City's Bud Black and the issue was all but settled.

Larry Herndon and Lance Parrish also hit solo home runs for the Tigers, who have won eight straight games in Royals Stadium dating back to their final meeting in 1983.

Not This Time

Hereford noseguard David Parsons manages to grab the jersey of Amarillo tailback Timmy Smith before Smith can break into the open in Friday night's Amarillo-Hereford High School football game. Parsons is one of the leaders on the Herd defensive squad which looks to up its statistical standing this week against Coronado.

Despite loss Friday

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Even though the Hereford Whitefaces' defense gave up 45 points last week, and even though the offense failed to score any points, Herd football coach Jerry Taylor still found something about which to smile Tuesday — effort on the part of the players.

Being on the short end of the weight comparisons between Amarillo and Hereford players, the Whitefaces, at times, looked better than the score would indicate, he said.

TIGERS

Detroit. Black pointed to the first inning, when Lou Whitaker singled and Trammell tripled and both wound up scoring.

"I've got to keep those guys off base to keep their RBI guys from driving them in," he said. "I didn't do that. I made some mistakes. I got the ball out over the plate and they took advantage. I felt fine. I just threw bad pitches and they took advantage."

Everyone agreed the amateur umpires, rushed into action to replace the striking regulars, did a fine job. Behind the plate was Bill Deegan, a 10-year major league veteran who retired in 1980.

"The umpiring certainly did not have anything to do with the outcome of the game," said Royals Manager Dick Howser, whose playoff record fell to 0-7. "Bill Deegan had been a good umpire for 10 years, and he was a good umpire tonight."

"On the goal line," he said, "I thought our defense did very well. After the punt snap went over Stefan's (Hacker) head, it took 11 plays for Amarillo to score from about the 30-yard line."

Amarillo moved to paydirt, its second touchdown of the night, with the help of two fourth-down conversions.

The Hereford offense showed signs Friday of moving the ball itself, especially at the beginning of the ball game. On the game's first play from scrimmage, running back Vincent Brown took a pitch right for 10 yards. After a penalty of five yards, the Herd picked up another first down two plays later on Alan Dudding's 13-yard run and Mike Scott's two-yard keeper.

"I was pleased, and a little surprised, that we ran so effectively against Amarillo," Taylor said. "They were so big that I knew it would be tough. And if we just kept running at them, they would adjust to stop us."

In 11 possessions for the night, only two times did the Whitefaces fail to make at least one first down. And one of those times was because of a fumble.

But it seemed the Herd would just bog down at times.

"If we can just eliminate some of the mental blocks, we'll be all right," Taylor said. "That was part of our problem. I'm not taking anything away from Amarillo, though. They are a good football team."

Longhorns' Orr player-of-week

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Fred Akers of No. 1-ranked Texas says Terry Orr played the best game of his career in the Longhorns' 28-3 victory over Penn State but probably would be the first to say he can do even better.

For his performance, Orr was selected by The Associated Press as the Southwest Conference's offensive player of the week.

Tuesday

Spikers end first half play

Spikers for Hereford High School completed the first half of District 3-5A play Tuesday against Monterey in the HHS gym, bowing in both the junior varsity and varsity games.

"The girls just couldn't quite put it together," said Martha Emerson. "They (varsity team members) made a good comeback in the first game."

The good comeback of which Emerson was speaking was a 16-14 victory. The varsity had to come back from at least a 10-3 deficit to win. Monterey, however, won the match, 14-16, 15-6, 15-12.

In junior varsity competition, Monterey whipped Hereford 15-2, 15-12.

The Whitefaces finish the first half of district play at 2-6. This week's other action finds Hereford at Caprock Thursday night and Hereford at the Melrose, N.M., tournament this weekend.

Herd coach pleased with effort

Amarillo took advantage of one of those mental blocks and rushed for 385 yards for the night.

"They did make a lot of yards against us," Taylor said. "Part of it was because of the way they were blocking us, part of it was because we weren't gang tackling, we weren't doing our individual parts. On the long-run (a 72-yard TD jaunt by Thomas Huyck in the first quarter), they caught us at a bad time for the coverage we were in."

The Whitefaces need a boost from somewhere within the team for this Friday night's game against Coronado in Lubbock. From just where it may come is anybody's guess.

"We need a shot in the arm," Taylor said.

Holly projects 53% hike in sugar production

COLORADO SPRINGS, Co. — A projected 53 percent increase in sugar production for Holly Sugar Corporation was announced at the annual stockholders' meeting last week.

John Bushnell, president, said with a more normal weather pattern in all Holly's growing districts this year, the company expects to produce more than 10,000,000 hundredweight compared with just over 6,500,000 hundredweight in fiscal 1984.

"This 53 percent increase is being achieved without increasing storage of sugarbeets beyond a prudent level and will greatly reduce cost of production since fixed costs can be spread over a much larger production basis," said Bushnell.

Holly's greatest emphasis in recent years has been placed on conservation of energy through installation of capital improvements. With a reduction of 50 percent in fuel costs plus a 35 percent reduction in the amount of fuel used, Holly expects significant corporate-wide drop in overall fuel usage. As part of Holly's fuel saving program, the boilers at the Sidney, Montana, and Torrington, Wyoming, factories have recently been converted from natural gas and oil to coal.

The corporation's shift in marketing strategy from large industrial consumers to grocery products and small-to medium-size industrial and institutional sugar users has been most successful. Additionally, installation of packaging equipment at Holly' Torrington, Wyoming, factory for packaged brown and powdered sugar has enhanced Holly's marketing results. Bushnell also stated that sweeteners such as high fructose corn syrup (HFCS) and cyclamates are competitors of the newest artificial sweetener on the market, aspartame (called Nutrasweet or Equal), rather than direct competitors of sugar.

In addition, he said that, among other drawbacks, aspartame has a limited shelf life, cannot be used in cooking and, when heated, breaks down into methyl alcohol. Because of these restrictions, its use has been concentrated in low-calorie soft drinks, which is also the principal market for HFCS use. Other artificial sweeteners such as cyclamates are still under study by the Food and Drug Administration.

The sugar industry's campaign for renewal of sugar legislation when it comes before Congress in 1985 was also emphasized by Bushnell. He asked that stockholders, growers and consumers help the industry in its efforts for renewal of this important legislation by contacting their Congressional representatives.

At the directors' meeting immediately following the annual meeting of stockholders, Holly Sugar's board reelected all of the incumbent officers: Michael S. Buchsbaum, chairman of the board; John L. Bushnell, president and chief executive officer; J.E.A. Rich, vice chairman of the board and chief operating officer; Charles Azarow, vice chairman of the board - finance and marketing; John Evans, senior vice president, secretary and general counsel; Donald P. Berra, senior vice president - marketing; John R. Corsberg, vice president and general factory manager; Martin D. Gladem, controller; Roger W. Hill, senior vice president - agriculture; William O. Ludwig, senior vice president - finance and chief financial officer; Douglas C. Neefe, treasurer; Lloyd L. Neville, senior vice president - operations; John A. Richmond, vice president - technical services; and Gordon L. Shemilt, vice president - commodity operations.

Lean beef popular with some consumers

COLLEGE STATION — Some like it lean. That's the conclusion researchers at Texas A&M University drew from a nationwide study of consumer beef steak preference.

The majority of participants selected randomly from Houston, Kansas City, Philadelphia and the San Francisco Bay Area, rated USDA higher grade prime and choice steaks as most palatable.

But 25 percent of the consumers—mostly from Houston and the San Francisco area—also found USDA grade good loin steaks to be acceptable and indicated they would buy this grade of meat.

The study was sponsored by national cattlemen's associations, the USDA and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to determine what consumers want so that beef producers and retailers can do a better job in providing that product.

The USDA grades beef according to the degree of marbling—the flecks of fat within the lean. The more marbling, the higher the grade.

Consumer acceptance of leaner meat could result from a number of factors, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist Marilyn Haggard.

Those consumers looking for ways to cut calories and fat from their diets may be more willing to trade some of the taste and juiciness of higher grade steaks, she notes.

But cooking methods may have something to do with it, too. People who tend to use moist cooking methods, or prefer their meat on the rare side, will find leaner cuts more acceptable, explains the specialist.

Regional dishes and cooking styles may also account for the popularity for leaner beef, especially for the consumers in Houston and San Francisco, suggests Haggard.

"For example, fajitas are an enormously popular dish that uses lean beef," she says. "And a true fajita uses skirt steak, which is so lean that it was once considered vary unpalatable by most consumers."

Marinating steaks before cooking on an outdoor grill, or slow cooking barbecue are also popular cooking methods well-suited to leaner beef, and the warm-weather lifestyle, she adds.

Hance Gets Bulldog Award

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance recently accepted the Golden Bulldog Award citing his votes to keep federal spending down and reduce waste in government. Presenting the award was Lynette Lenard, representing Watchdogs of the Treasury, Inc. It marked the second time for Hance to earn the recognition.

FOOD AWARENESS By Ann Crowley R.D. Ph.D.

THIS SQUASH OR THAT SQUASH
QUESTION: Ann, I have heard of squash as summer squash and winter squash and I don't know the difference—except for zucchini in the summer. Do you have a list of the winter and summer squash that you can send me?
ANSWER: The differences between summer squash and winter squash is significant. The summer squash has a soft shell, and is almost entirely edible, including the skins and seeds. It is very perishable and must be stored in the refrigerator and used within a few days. The common types are yellow crookneck, yellow straightneck, zucchini, scallops, chayote and cocozelle.
Winter squash have a hard shell. They can be stored for a long period of time in a dry well ventilated room. They should not be stored in the refrigerator since chilling converts the starch into sugar. Common winter squash are acorn, banana, buttercup, butternut, hubbard and turban.

Tapes help find car ailments

By JILL HALEY Waco Tribune-Herald
WACO, Texas (AP) — The main tool John Monroe uses to help people avoid car breakdowns is not a wrench, but a cassette tape.
Monroe has recorded automotive sounds ranging from suspension squeaks to carbon deposit knocks to clue drivers in on the causes behind those seemingly inescapable car noises. One tape alone consists of 42 various sounds to teach people that a mechanical grind could be more serious than a growl.

Since Monroe opened Audio Diagnostics Inc. of Waco in February 1983, he has sold his narrated tapes in states from Florida to Alaska.

"If you name a state, we've sold tapes there," Monroe said. Most of his tapes have been sold in Kentucky and Tennessee, but he doesn't have the slightest idea why that particular section of the country has been most responsive.

Thus far, Monroe has managed to keep his cassette tape business lucrative and his marketing strategy simple. "We let people know they were available," he said. "The need has been around for a long time."

Monroe said he realized about three years ago that the tapes could be a successful commercial item upon learning that two-thirds of all car owners work on their cars to some extent.

"That's a big section of the country," he said. "That's more than listens to music."

Furthermore, Monroe discovered that many technical schools train student mechanics only to fix car problems, not prevent them by recognizing warning signals. Some of Monroe's best customers are technical schools throughout the country that have incorporated his cassette tape instruction into their curriculums. Texas State Technical Institute uses the tapes, he said.

Monroe said the concept of using taped sounds to detect car trouble had never been utilized for teaching until he introduced it.

"No one has ever before produced undesirable noises," he said. "We manipulate these sounds like car parts, only we don't need wrenches. The noises are meaningful and we learn from them."

The collection of cassettes Monroe sells to technical schools consists of exercise, review and test tapes. "The students pay attention more when they're being tested," Monroe said. The tapes, often sold in a set of 20, sell for $335. A set of nine tapes costs $135.

Monroe has labeled the 20-tape collection the "25-year-set" and the nine-tape assortment the "seven-year set." He equates the specified years with on-the-job experience.

"In order for a person to recognize all of these sounds, he needs to be on the job that long," he said.

The U.S. Army has been another consistent buyer of Monroe's tapes. They are used, he said, because the Army needs to turn recruits into dependable mechanics within a short period of time. He said the Army's purchases have lent greater credibility to his concept and thereby increased tape sales.

Despite Monroe's impressive customers, he has not forgotten the average driver. The $6.95 tape "Car Trouble Warning Noises" contains 42 warning sounds that pinpoint problem areas for the everyday driver of cars and trucks.

Time seems to be a major factor in detecting car trouble through sound, Monroe said. As people become more accustomed to listening for warning sounds, the noises will become easier to hear and recognize.

Monroe said automotive problems can be diagnosed from sound alone. "The methods we use for isolating noises are very advanced." Computers are used to isolate the automotive sounds.

Monroe will continue working on his tape concept as long as it presents a creative challenge.

"I'm a scientist," he said. "I like creating things."

The statement should not be underestimated; Monroe has spent his life going from one creative challenge to another. He has worked as an oil company consultant, an interpreter of Indonesian dialects for the Army, a spy in Southeast Asia and a high-tech scientific adviser for a major company. Longtime residents of Waco also may remember him as a geology professor at Baylor University from 1955 to 1960.

Manges, oil firm deadlocked over sale of Duval County ranchlands

By SHEILA ALLEE Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Inside the aging, cramped Duval County Courthouse in this dusty town is a sheaf of papers telling the tangled tale of Clinton Manges and his plans to sell off much of his massive Duval County ranch. The bundle of documents, filed in the district court clerk's office, are pressed in a folder labeled "American Resources, Inc. vs. Clinton Manges." They tell a complex story — one whose final chapter has not been written, but whose beginnings date back to 1925. That was the year a predecessor to Mobil Oil Company secured a lease on 64,000 acres of land that later would become part of Manges' fabled Duval County Ranch. The State of Texas had royalty rights on more than 14,000 acres of the land, with the proceeds going to public schools. Mobil did nominal drilling on the property and made, by some estimates, a nominal

$15 million a year off the land. In 1982, Manges teamed with the state's General Land Office and filed suit against Mobil seeking to take over the lease for oil and gas production. Claiming Mobil had failed to honor certain technicalities of the lease, Manges and the land office won and Mobil was forced to turn over the lease this January. The victory put the land office in the unprecedented position of having to produce its own oil and gas on the property — in essence being in the oil and gas business.

The land office appointed a trustee to handle production and promptly set to work trying to sell off the land, retaining royalty rights.

Since the state land was checkerboarded throughout the Duval County Ranch, the land office teamed with Manges, packaged 78,000 acres and put it on the market.

American Resources, Inc., a Dallas oil and gas production company, took the bait and in March offered $100 million up front for the property.

The sales agreement also called for ARI to pay an additional $235 million later and invest $63 million in drilling.

Closing on the deal was set for May 25, but it never came to pass.

ARI claims Manges and the state could not furnish clear title to the property.

Manges and his co-defendants — Man-Gas Transmission Co., the Duval County Ranch Co., and the land office — claim they had struck deals to clear up the title problems, but ARI couldn't come up with the money to buy the land when the time came.

The disagreement has resulted in two court cases. One is in district court in Dallas, where ARI has won a temporary injunction forbidding two Dallas banks from putting up $1 million in earnest money for the land.

The other case is in district court in San Diego, Texas, where ARI has filed suit seeking damages and a final sale.

The judge in the San Diego case ordered the sale to take place July 27, but ARI refused to close the deal because of what it claimed were continuing title problems.

"We've gone to the altar twice and the bridegroom hasn't shown up," said land office spokesman Mike Connolly. "We were at the courthouse two different times ready to sign. All they had to do was come up with a check."

ARI's chief concern about the 78,000-acre parcel is Seattle-First National Bank's lien on the land.

The bank's parent company, Seafirst Corp., has filed suit against Manges in a bid to collect $35 million in loans made to the South Texas oilman and rancher. Manges put up mineral interests in his ranch as collateral for the loans.

A San Antonio attorney representing Seafirst, Jim Ingram, said the bank had agreed to drop the suit if Manges paid off the loans with proceeds from the ARI land sale. But ARI was not satisfied with the deal.

"We are watching with interest to see what happens," Ingram said.

Even if the Seafirst issue is settled, ARI attorney Tom McElroy said his client still has problems with the title.

Pan-Western Inc., another oil company, has claimed it has an option to buy part of the land package. Such a claim could further cloud the title.

The land itself contains unknown resources, but ARI officials are convinced it bears untold riches.

ARI President Frank Nigrelle said there are about 150 producing wells on the property, most of them dug at shallow depths.

Seismic tests show the so-called "Deep Wilcox," a rich reservoir underneath the nearby Seven Sisters Field, also extends under the Duval County Ranch, Nigrelle said. The Seven Sisters Field, about two miles northeast of the ranchland, "is one of the most prolific fields in the United States." But the real plum, he said, is the Sligo formation, 6,000 feet below the Deep Wilcox.

"Mobil thinks there is a 26-mile reef four miles wide — a hell of a reservoir there," Nigrelle said, speculating the formation contains natural gas.

The prolonged dispute has drawn little public reaction from Manges or his attorney Gary Gurwitz.

"We're not trying to be secretive. Our policy is we don't discuss cases in the press," Gurwitz said in a telephone interview from his McAllen office.

Manges and ARI are in for another round at the settlement table.

Special Judge Harold Thomas has ordered the defendants to consummate the sale Oct. 30.

McElroy said the judge's ruling changes nothing and his clients and Clinton Manges could be facing the same song, second verse on Oct. 30.
