Gramm blasts rural legal aid

U.S. Senate candidate Phil Gramm drew rounds of applause for his depiction of rural legal services during a Friday afternoon press conference and reception at Hereford Community Center.

Hereford will have an opportunity to help elect one of its own citizens, Juston McBride, to the state legislature in the coming election. To help promote interest in McBride's campaign, supporters will host a rally for the candidate Tuesday night in the Bull Barn.

All interested voters are invited to attend the event, which begins at 7:30 p.m. There will be country music, a square dancing exhibition, and popcorn, cookies, punch and coffee for those attending.

Special guests invited to the rally include U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, Bill Clayton, former Speaker of the Texas House, and state reps Bob Simpson, Pete Laney, Foster Whaley and Buck Buchanan.

Fisher was the first to introduce the subject of Texas Rural Legal Aid. "He voted against rural legal services, and as we all know it is counter-productive in our area. Not only is our town being torn up and divided, but other towns around the nation as well."

Gramm told the gathering of around 50 that one of his chief reasons for seeking office is to rewrite the 1985 Farm Bill. "I think it's important that we realize the farm program is not working."

Gramm said he would work to see that legal services agencies do the work they are mandated to do.

"They are not given mandates by the law to engage in political activism," he said to the delight of the crowd. "If they want to go out and promote their causes...let them do it at their own expense."

Gramm's comments were even stronger from there. "If they're not going to carry out their mandate, they're not going to carry out any mandate. No agency of the federal government has abused its authority more than the rural legal services has done."

Gramm supported his reputation for fighting a nuclear waste dump in Texas by reading portions of a letter written by Secretary Hodel. The Wednesday remarks were addressed to Richard L. Ottinger, chairman of

Cases against Smith dropped

Staff Writer

The defense had filed a big stack of motions to be heard Friday morning dictment stand. in 222nd District Court, but all it tool was one to get the three cases against Hereford attorney Jerry Smith thrown out of court.

Judge Pat Boone Jr. of Littlefield, presiding over the cases by special assignment, agreed with the motion to quash indictment submitted in each of the cases by Jim Brown of Canyon and Sen. John Montford of Lubbock, attorneys for Smith.

Prosecuting attorney Travis Ware of Lubbock, also a special appointee, concurred with the defense on several important points.

"This matter disturbs me greatly, but in good faith I must say the indictment is faulty." Ware said just before Boone dismissed the third and final case pending against Smith.

Two of the grand jury indictments charged official misconduct, while the third accused Smith of aggravated perjury, a felony. An extended term Deaf Smith County grand jury, meeting into the wee hours of the morning, returned the indictments March 31.

The indictments were apparently drafted by State Assistant Attorney General Linda Walden, who became a source of controversy during her time of service to the jury. The attorney general's office had appointed Walden to assist the jury in the probe of Smith and Deaf Smith County Criminal Disrict Attorney Roland Saul.

There were no indictments returned against Saul.

The first charge considered-Smith was guilty of official misconduct because he allegedly represented Jim Bullard of Hereford in a Parmer County court proceeding-was dismissed because Boone agreed the grand jury had no jurisdiction in the

The alleged representation occurred at a time when Smith was serving as Saul's assistant district attorney, which the grand jury said was a violation of the Code of Criminal procedure.

Brown, who argued the motion to quash during the pre-trial hearing, also told the judge the indictment was vaguely worded.

"It is not specific enough that Jerry Smith can come in here prepared to defend it," he said. "That's about as basic as an indictment can be in being fundamentally defective."

Ware, who would have used the indictments as a basis to prosecute should the cases have gone to trial Oct. 22, admitted he did extensive research in an effort to make the in-

One killed, one hospitalized

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - A car jumped a curb and hit three girls walking home from a neighborhood store, killing one and sending another to a hospital, auuthorities said.

Mariam Mejia, 11, was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Jerry Jennison after the incident shortly before 8 p.m. Fri-Suzanna Moreno, 12, the dead girl's cousin, was undergoing emergency treatment Friday night at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital. The family requested the hospital to withhold information on the girl's condition.

A 31-year-old San Angelo man was arrested for involuntary manslaughter and remained in city jail Friday night, police Sgt. Clifford Long said.

According to eyewitnesses, a late model car turned the corner erratically and ran into the girls, who had attempted to flee from the oncoming vehicle.

After striking the girls, the car continued for half a block and jumped a curb, running through a fence and into a house.

Judge refuses dismissal motion

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Hudspeth County Sheriff Mike Armstrong has lost his bid to have drug charges against him dismissed, but has won a change of venue and will be tried in Pecos.

Armstrong's attorney, John Langford of El Paso, had sought to have a 10-count indictment against his client dismissed on grounds that the wrong grand jury indicted him. Langford said that since the indictment handed down last week by a federal grand jury in El Paso alleges drug offenses in Sierra Blanca, the Pecos division of the federal court's Western District should have issued the charges.

He said that by law, an indictment must originate from the division in which the alleged offenses occurred.

U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth, however, on Friday refused to grant the dismissal motion.

Hudspeth said it was clear the federal government had "bootstrapped" the case into the El Paso division of the court's Western District, but said dismissing the charges "is not a proper remedy. It would not be justified in this case."

Lawmakers tighten budget goals

AUSTIN (AP) - State agencies without budgets set by law will have to get through 1986-87 on 96.3 percent of their current budgets, according to the Legislative Budget Board.

The cut is needed to offset budget increases for programs - including education — that will get more money because of the budgetsetting laws and formulas.

Legislative leaders previously told state agency heads not to ask for more money than they now get. But Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Friday the limit has changed.

"The target we have to be shooting for is not 100 percent, but 96.3 percent," Hobby said at the meeting of the LBB, a House-Senate panel that will recommend a 1986-87 budget. The 1985 Legislature must work under Comptroller Bob Bullock's forecast of a shortfall of up to $1.7 billion.

The budget scalpel was at work again Friday, this time cutting on the request from the Texas Youth Commission, which wants 390 additional employees. The LBB said TYC should get no new workers.

Astronauts coming home

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Challenger's seven astronauts headed for home today, guiding the shuttle toward a landing at its home port in Florida after a 3.5 million-mile journey in which they surveyed the Earth, its atmosphere and its oceans.

Their target was a 15,000-foot runway, flanked by a canal where alligators lurk and wild pigs feed. The weather was predicted to be excellent for touchdown at 12:26 p.m.

An hour before landing, commander Robert Crippen and pilot Jon McBride were to fire Challenger's braking rockets over Australia to start a supersonic glide on a path over the Pacific, the heart of Canada, the U.S. Midwest and Southeast and just off the east coast of Florida into Cape Canaveral.

On that course, the space plane would fly over or near Duluth, Minn.; Milwaukee; Chicago; Indianapolis; Cincinnati; Lexington, Ky.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Atlanta; and Jacksonville, Fla.

Touchdown on Runway 33 would put the shuttle just three miles from the launch pad where the five men and two women began their Earth-survey mission eight days ago.

Actor shoots himself

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Actor Jon-Erik Hexum shot himself in the temple Friday with a blank from a pistol during filming of the "Cover Up" TV series, critically injuring himself, a studio official said. The shooting was described as an accident.

Hexum, 26, was reported in critical condition late Friday and in surgery at the Beverly Hills Medical Center, where he was taken following the 5:15 p.m. shooting, said a hospital receptionist who would not identify herself.

Earlier, hospital admitting representative Carolyn Alberson had said Hexum was in serious condition. The receptionist could not explain the change.

The shooting occurred during filming of a segment for the new CBS-TV series at Fox studios in the Century City section of Los Angeles, 20th Century Fox spokesman Vince Panettiere said.

Hexum "accidentally fired a gun loaded with blanks which wounded him in the right temple," Panettiere said.

No further details of the incident were immediately available, but no one else was injured, he said.

Workers recover third body

BRIGHTON, England (AP) - Rescue crews working by the light of powerful portable lamps recovered a third body from the wreckage of the Grand Hotel early today and searched for the body of a fourth person presumed dead in the IRA bombing.

British security authorities launched a massive hunt for the bombers, together with a top level inquiry on how they managed to evade the security net imposed on annual conference of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party. Mrs. Thatcher and all but one of her 22-member Cabinet escaped injury in the assassination attempt early Friday morning. Trade Minister Norman Tebbit and 33 others were injured in the attack. Among those killed was a member of Parliament - Sir Anthony Barry, 56, who was also a relative by marriage of Princess Diana, wife of the heir to the British throne, Prince Charles. All British ports and airports were under surveillance. Police reportedly think the bombers may be hiding in London, 40 miles to the north, or already may have escaped to Dublin, Ireland.

Congress finally calls it quits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress has quit for the year, but before the final gavel could fall, more than a dozen senators interrupted their plans to fly back to the nation's capital so they could vote to restore the government's borrowing authori-

The House and Senate adjourned Friday until next January after the Senate voted 37-30 to pass an emergency bill on federal authority to borrow money.

That bill had been rejected late the night before, 46 to 14, in a vote that caught Senate GOP leaders by surprise, with many members already gone for the long adjournment recess. Democrats stayed behind to deliver a solid bloc of votes against the debt-limit increase.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. summoned Republican colleagues back, and took another vote Friday afternoon, allowing the bill, which raises the nation's debt limit by $251 billion, to go to President Reagan.

"There will be no more votes today, there will be no more votes in this session, there will be no more votes in my career," Baker declared. The Tennessee Republican, retiring after 18 years, the last four of them as majority leader, won a standing ovation from colleagues as the 98th Congress came to a formal close.

The debt-limit bill was one that congressional leaders said had to be passed before Congress could quit for the year. Reagan was prepared to call Congress back into session next week if lawmakers recessed without passing the measure, GOP leaders

The controversy represented the latest in a string of stalemates on federal spending and borrowing that plagued the election-year Congress. Congress is regularly asked to raise the debt ceiling, but it is a vote few members relish, particularly in a time of such high federal deficits. Democrats, blaming current deficits on Reagan, said they opposed the measure to force Senate Republicans to take responsibility for the action.

Most returning members hastily made commercial plane reservations to get back to Washington to vote, but the Air Force sent three planes to bring back four Republican senators - John Tower of Texas, Thad Cochran of Mississippi, Jeremiah Denton of Alabama and Charles Percy of Illinois.

However, Percy, locked in a tight re-election battle, stayed in Chicago when it appeared that Baker had the support needed to pass the debt-limit extension without him.

As it quit for the year, the 98th Congress left behind a number of major controversial items, some of which are sure to crop up again in the new Congress which convenes Jan. 3. These included a major immigration law revision, civil rights legislation and a bill to repair many of the nation's deteriorating bridges and

Six suicides could be a coincidence

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP) -Psychologists and officials in a suburban Houston school district say the suicides of six teen-agers in their area in two months may be coin-

The counselors and school officials said at a news conference Friday they can find no clear connection among the deaths in an affluent area south of Houston.

"I'm not aware of a single trigger or straw or anything of that sort,' said Betsy Comstock, an associate professor of psychiatry at Baylor College of Medicine and a past president of the American Association of Suicidology.

Ms. Comstock is a member of task force investigating the deaths and counseling parents and students in the Clear Creek Independent School District.

She said the outbreak of suicides "to large extent may be a statitistical happening. We keep straining for causal connections which may not be there at all.

"I don't think anyone else is aware of a single influence. We don't know the answer to the question: Why now? Why has this happened in this community right now? I guess that's the bottom line," she said.

Officials of the district issued a statement at the news conference discounting talk of a suicide "pact of 22," which the release said a student started "as a lark."

The officials refused to identify the student or to give more details.

The statement conceded "a suicide pact was at one time in place among some student friends of the nonstudent suicides.'

But Rion Hart, another member of the suicide prevention team, appeared to contradict the statement.

"The one I'm familiar with was set up some time ago between kids who said, 'If one of us goes, we all go," Hart said. "But it had nothing to do with suicide. It had to do with, 'If for some reason, one of us had to go, has to die for some reason, the rest of us would go."

He said that pact was "completely and entirely unrelated to the situation that we're dealing with." The statement said that pact has the district's other high school. James W. Larrabee, deputy superintendent in the district, asked for his reaction to the rash of suicides, said he found it "almost offensive to ask me how I feel about it." He described it as a "very fragile situation."

According to the written statement released by the district, the suicides "caught the district by surprise," but officials "recognized the potential problem on Sunday," brought in four psychologists and within two days had a plan "to provide factual information and to quell the intensity of the mass emotionality.

Comptroller Bob Bullock and the Texas Research League that more taxes are on the way.

Texas taxpayers will pay an additional $2.7 billion over the next three years for public school reform and teacher salary increases and another $1.4 billion for highways. The comptroller has estimated the state will need another $1 billion in tax money to finance spending plans already approved by the legislature.

Some legislators see the income tax as an easy way to increase state coffers, feeling that the sales tax is about at the end of the rope. Oil and gas revenue is not keeping up with projections, and these "windfall" taxes cannot be counted on as in the past.

Violence of TV-movie mode abets aggression violence leads to aggressiveness, callousness toward women and a grim world view, and reinforces "macho" domination of the weak. researchers said at a National Council of Churches committee hearing.

But a network television official insisted studies often are skewed, based on scenes taken out of context, and don't generally show that television viewing increases violent conduct.

George Gerbner, dean of the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania, said "violence profile" studies show that people who watch a lot of television are more likely to feel they are living in a "mean world" than those who watch less.

'We have been immersed in a tide of violent representations that is historically unprecedented and shows no real sign of receding," Gerbner said.

TV portrayals of violence tend to "cultivate a pattern of inequality and domination," with the likeliest victims being women, the young and old, he said.

GOVERNMENT INTEREST

Until they are a year and a half old, series E and EE savings bonds are credited with interest on the first of each month. After one and a half years, the government credits interest only twice a year. The interest crediting dates are every six months from the issue date. Work ethic

There are signs in this nation of the reappearance of what is called the "American work ethic," and it may signal a halt to the march toward a welfare state.

One of the encouraging signs is the change in attitude of young people, who have abandoned the antiestablishment ideals of the 60s and are now concerned with holding down jobs and achieving financial securi-

This attitude has surfaced in the Presidential campaign, and it has surprised the political experts. College-age students, and those just out of college, are showing up at Reagan rallies and have been harrassing campaign appearances of Mondale and Ferraro.

Traditionally, young people are the liberals, the protestors, the ones who believe in more government instead of less. Now it seems a great many young people are looking at politics from the standpoint of the taxpayer instead of as a tax receiver.

They are no longer enthralled by promises of government money for all manners of social programs, because they realize they will be the ones paying the bills through the income tax system. They are learning that there is "no free lunch."

America has always been a nation of hard-working people, many of them first or second generation immigrants who delighted in a system that allowed them to keep most of what they produced. That American work ethic did not die, but there was a change in recent years. A generation of Americans, in the wake of the Vietnam war, distrusted all authority and decided it was not so smart to work hard.

A lot of this anti-materialism was fostered on college campuses by professors who never worked and by students whose parents had always showered them with material things and money, and they didn't have to work.

A recession and high unemployment helped change those attitudes. Today's young people seem to be more in tune with the thinking of their grandparents who went through "the great depression." People are finding that work is not all that bad. Leisure time is great, of course, but it serves only as a break from work.

People who quit working find that having time on their hands is sometimes more of a problem than a pleasure. Work is the way we take care of the world.

Hypocrisy, politics

We suppose hypocrisy and politics go together like ham and eggs, Mutt and Jeff, milk and honey, or liberal and Democrat.

We've watched the liberal press in the Northeast scream and froth at the mouth over their perceived "conspiracy of the fundamental Christian movement to take over the country."

We didn't hear any static out of the New York Times when the National Council of Churches was holding forth advocating every liberal position known to man on abortion, prayer, sex education, homosexuality, and the stand that "government knows best about moral issues. But ever since Rev. Jerry Falwell gave the opening prayer at the Republican convention in Dallas, the liberals of the country have been ravin' and rantin' about the danger of President Reagan aligning his presidency with the "fundamentalists."

A member of the board of the political-religious magazine Worldview wrote of the conservative Christian movement: "It's leaders are profoundly immature. They don't really understand the ethical and philosophical traditions of democracy or how to bring about change in a pluralistic society."

And Morton Kondracke of The New Republic complained about the "cults" supporting President Reagan. His magazine called the National Association of Religious Broadcasters "a gaggle of electronic Elmer Gantrys." Repeatedly, throughout news stories on the activities of conservative religious people, the point is made that they are somehow different from other religious people in politics. We really can't understand why Walter Mondale and the Democrats are so shocked that religious leaders have become involved in the presidential election process.

At one school, students are prohibited from joining hands in the simple lunchtime prayer their faith commands; at another, a judge orders that an X-rated movie be shown because to do otherwise would be censorship. At another school, a textbook details ways to commit sexual practices that many parents find objectionable. Some 50,000 children vanish every year, a high percentage of them into the dark underworld of child pornography, where they are bought and sold like cattle.

At any given moment, somewhere in the country, the life of an unborn child is terminated. And our Congress is seriously considering ERA which would legally send women into combat.

And our politicans on both sides of the aisle, wonder why the leaders of Protestants and Catholic alike, and their supporters are suddenly actively involved in the political process.

If the federal government insists upon entering into the arena of home and church and rendering decisions upon moral issues, then it is only logical that the Christians enter the arena of government.

To do otherwise is to lay down before the lions of the Romans.

DEBATES

While I was in college, I was on a debate :eam. My colleague and I were the comic relief at every contest we entered. We had great fun in the process.

We always attracted a gallery of followers who came to watch the show. We were great at entertaining, but we were terrible at debating. We never won. While we were having fun and playing to the crowd the opposition would eat our lunch.

We did pull off one great win. We beat the team from Baylor who had not been beaten all year. The Baylor debaters were the most arrogant couple of smart alecs I had ever seen. They approached their debate with us like they were humiliated to have to be in the same room with two people as dumb and uncultured as we were.

We beat them with ignorance. The question we were debating was an economic one and those two guys were capable of teaching Economics in a major university. The problem was that they could not trap us into an argument with them because we never did understand anything they said. We were the affirmative and they were the

Their plan was to get us off our platform to go debate their platform. We were more than anxious to oblige them, but could not figure out how to do so. It was the easiest debate I was ever in. I did not take a single note. All I could do was to get up and reiterate our platform. The judge decided we had not been trapped, so we won. He probably just did not like Baylor.

I have been watching the debates on TV this week. I now have a deeper feeling for those Baylor debators. They must have felt like the panel on the TV debates. No matter what is asked it is never answered. The questions are asked and the candidates rip off into one of their canned campaign speeches. The result is good questions and no answers.

That was also Baylor's problem. The media spends weeks trying to decide who won. I guess the winners are the ones who avoid the questions with the best skill, or the ones with the best make-up.

The one thing I would like to say is, "If you guys are going to debate like my college team did, at least get funny." We could decide who won by who told the best jokes. That would make the things worth wat-

At some Thanksgiving meal in a future year, you might end up doing more with you relatives than eating with them.

You might actually eat them.

Criminal insanity is not a requirement for this scenario. Rather, the kin you are to swallow are turkeys which have been injected with human growth-hormone genes.

Research is now being done by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to see whether the introduction of human DNA into a farm animal makes the beast grow larger. The experiment has already succeeded with mice, which were aggrandized twofold in the department's Beltsville, Md., research center.

Similar injections with cow and pig embryos have since been attempted, though researchers claim there has been no evidence the animals have grown larger than normal. There is speculation, however, the right mixture of genes to produce the desired result will soon be found.

Two "watchdog" organizations are requesting the experiments be ordered stopped. Efforts of the Foundation of Economic Trends and Humane Society of the United States include the recent filing of a suit against the Agriculture Department.

One reason for their opposition is a fear such dabbling with genes will accidentally create a new disease. Another objection was given by Jeremy Rifkin, head of FET, when he said the tests represent "a new and insidious form of cruelty toward animals by robbing them of their unique genetic makeup."

The genetic engineering critic added, "I am sure that the American people will be disturbed to learn that their tax dollars are being spent on research that is a clear violation of the moral and ethical principles we share as a people." Dr. Harold Hawk, chief of the research center, is one who does not share those principles. "My feeling is that if we could modify a species that will produce meat cheaper or faster for the benefit of the people," he said, "I see no reason not to do it."

Indeed, there seems to be no reason to not allow the scientific tests - in a controlled form - to continue. Attempts at cross-breeding livestock to produce bigger animals have long been common, Hawk pointed out. Also, confined experimentation would prevent the spread of any new harmful strain.

Finally, though initial jitters would likely occur when consuming an animal containing human genes, most people should come to understand they are not being cannabilistic. As Hawk pointed out, the growthhormone gene would not be human anymore; "it's just a chemical."

Going back to San Diego's fivegame National League playoff victory over Chicago, the bullpen had gone 22 innings without giving up a run. Booker gave up the run after with walking the bases full, and San Diego's third pitcher, Greg Harris, hit Kirk Gibson in the foot with a pitch.

The single-game record of 11 walks was set in 1956 by the New York Yankees and equalled by the Milwaukee Braves in 1957.

The 14 runners left on base by Detroit tied the record for a nineinning Series game set by the Chicago Cubs in 1910 and tied by Milwaukee in 1957 and Pittsburgh in 1971. The 24 runners teft on by the two clubs set a nine-inning record. The old mark was set by the Cubs and Philadelphia A's in 1910 and tied by Pittsburgh and Baltimore in 1971.

They were, in fairness, not the best of San Diego's relievers. Dave Dravecky, Andy Hawkins and Craig Lefferts had been used up, for the time being, as the Padres' starters failed utterly in each of their three World Series appearances.

San Diego's starters now are averaging only 3.6 innings' work per game in the Series. Mark Thurmond worked five innings as Detroit won Game One 3-2, and Ed Whitson lasted only two-thirds of an inning in San Diego's 5-2 victory in Game Two.

Wilcox, 17-8 during the season with a six-game winning streak that began in mid-August, gave up seven hits, walked two and struck out four before he was replaced by Bill Scher-

New Mexico's top-ranked high school football team, the Clovis Wildcats, may wish they never had crossed the Texas-New Mexico border Friday.

The Wildcats came to town riding a four-game winning streak and sporting a 4-0-1 record to meet the Hereford Whitefaces in a non-district matchup. Hereford's Whiteface Stadium proved to be no land of enchantment for Clovis, though, and the Herd drummed the 'Cats 31-7 before some 4,200 fans.

With the win, Hereford reaches the .500 mark for the first time this season at 3-3. The Whitefaces' District 3-5A standing remains unchanged at 2-2.

"It does feel good," Hereford coach Jerry Taylor said, and he wasn't talking about the pleasant 72-degree weather at kickoff. "I know I'm beginning to sound repetitive, but it was some kind of team effort tonight on the part of our players. We didn't let them (the Wildcats) get up after they got down."

And they got down quickly.

After returning the opening kickoff to only its own 10-yard line, Hereford began a march that wouldn't stop until 14 plays had been run and 5:31 had elapsed. To cap the drive, Hereford quarterback Mike Scott hit receiver Sammy Suarez on an eight-yard scoring toss as Suarez was slanting across the middle of the end zone.

Suarez made a dive for the ball and managed to pull it in for the score. Javier Mendiola tacked on one of his seven points - four extra-points and a field goal - to give Hereford a 7-0 Hereford's first drive," Clovis coach Eric Roanhaus said. "We're not a very good come-from-behind football team.

On this particular Friday night, not many squads would have been very good come-from-behind teams. The Herd defense, led by the play of linebacker Curtis Cotten and defensive end Augustine Castillo, limited Clovis to just 99 yards rushing and 80 passing. The Wildcats made nine first downs.

In Clovis' first possession, the 5-9, 160-pound Cotten made a crucial tackle when he stopped Clovis' running back Darren Kelley for a fiveyard loss on the option play. Castillo got his turn at heroics three plays later when, after a fumbled punt return by Hereford, Clovis was facing a second-and-seven only 22 yards away from paydirt. Following a hit on a Clovis back by Hereford noseguard David Parsons, Castillo recovered a loose ball at the 26 to kill the Wildcats' scoring threat. "We just all hung together," Castillo said. "We wanted it."

DETROIT (AP) — A guy like Willie Hernandez could give a

Hernandez, the relief ace of the Detroit Tigers, gave a textbook demonstration of how to negotiate your own contract Fri-day night while notching his first World Series save in the Detroit Tigers' 5-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Before the game, Hernandez held court on the sidelines, telling anyone who would listen that the Tigers had better be prepared to part with some big money if they want his services next year. Hernandez, who will become a free agent at the end of the season, is believed to be asking the notoriously frugal Tigers for about $1 million per year. "I don't know right now," Hernandez said, dangling the carrot.

And even then, he may not know about Hereford's father-and-sons running team because Chuck Danley and sons David. Todd and T.J., along with the boys' friends Garrett Davis and Dale Glover, don't compete only in Hereford. The sixsome, ranging in age from 5 to 40, take their running together seriously.

They have travelled to Groom, Muleshoe, Dimmitt, Clovis, Stratford and Amarillo to run this year, as well as entering contests in Hereford.

"We just enjoy fitness," Chuck said. "We get to meet a lot of neat people at these places (the running contests), too."

David, 15, and his father began running seriously just a little more than a year ago, Chuck said. Garrett, 13, Dale, 11, Todd, 10, and T.J., 5, all began about the same time, just

All six have won trophies at one time or another, Chuck said. However, he added, he considered the emphasis of their running to be on enjoyment. The boys may have a little different idea, though.

"In every race, if the boys have improved their times, I give them a $10 bill," Chuck said. "And so far, we all have improved our times in every race."

Best times currently stand at 46:20 for Chuck in the 10K, 54:10 for David in the 10K and 56:20 for Todd in the 10K. Chuck said Dale runs the 10K in approximately the same time as Todd. T.J. has run the two-mile race in approximately 19 minutes.

Entering the two-mile runs primarily, T.J. makes use of about 3,500 strides. His 11/2-foot-length step compares with his older brother's 31/2-foot stride.

T.J.'s most memorable moment in running was his first two-mile fun run in Groom when he was 4.

"I remember washing the blood off," he said.

"One thing that surprises people is the little boy running," Chuck said.

The boys didn't automatically slip into the running crew, either, according to Chuck. He said each of the boys had to run a specified distance before he bought "good running shoes" for them.

"We try to run once or twice between races every week," Chuck said. "I try to run between 15 and 20 miles a week, the boys less.

"Bill Bankston and Dean Fox have got us running and now it is something we can do together."

David added, "We have a meet just about every weekend until December.'

Those meets cost $8-$10 per person to enter, but they're worth the

After near-fatal heart attack

Coach promises to take it easy from now on

By SCOTT KIRK Abilene Reporter- one more year.

ROSCOE, Texas (AP) - Whatever happens during this football season, Roscoe Coach Troy Kennedy has promised himself one thing - the outcome of a football game won't be a life or death matter.

Last year, it very nearly was. On Nov. 18, 1983, in a Class A bi-district playoff game against Goldthwaite in Eastland, Kennedy had a heart attack. He's fortunate to be alive.

"I look back now and I see that I easily could have died," said Kennedy. "There happened to be a doctor on duty at the Eastland hospital who had two heart attacks and knew exactly what to do. If we had been at Loraine, I would have been dead before we could have gotten to Colorado City. But I had a lot of good hands working on me and two good eyes looking over me."

Kennedy is back on the job now, some 45 pounds lighter than he was that night in November. He has quit smoking cigarettes and drinking Dr Pepper. His diet has changed drastically.

"I cut down to 1200 calories," he said. "That's not much for a guy who was used to eating whatever he wanted. I had to cut out everything, I mean everything. I'd say 'How about...' 'No.' 'Well, maybe...' 'No.'

'What about...' 'No." Kennedy's doctor, Jack Bargainer, prescribed tough medicine, but Kennedy followed everything. He felt great, so good, in fact, that he asked if he could start smoking again.

"The doctor said, 'Sure, if you want to kill yourself," said Kennedy. "He didn't pull any punches and I appreciate that."

Although he hadn't received approval from his doctor to coach in 1984, he already had decided he would coach the Plowboys at least

"Somewhere along the line, we're taught about fair play," said Kennedy. "This isn't anything heroic on my part, but I thought I owed something to these kids and to the town of Roscoe for the way they stood by my family and me when I

During the spring, Kennedy was given the okay to go back to work. In fact, his heart attack was far less job-related than it was related to his

"My heart attack had nothing to do with a football game," he said. "Maybe 10 to 15 percent. The main thing was that I was 50 pounds overweight and I smoked like the communists were getting ready to come gather them (cigarettes) up. One of my arteries was 100 percent blocked. But it wasn't caused by a football game."

The heart attack is not something on which Kennedy dwells. He's talk-

Writer tells of hunting

An AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer GUNTER, Texas (AP) - There are more than 400,000 dove hunters in Texas and most of them pack away their shotguns after the first weekend of the season.

This leaves the fields almost vacant for the arrival of the big Kansas birds winging ahead of the season's first cold front. Veteran dove hunters know the first frosty front can herald the best wing shooting of the year.

Recently, I headed some 15 miles west of Gunter in Grayson County (about an hour due north of Dallas) after a cold snap that drove the mercury to a record-setting 43 degrees for early October. The norther slapped away summer and put a bite in the air.

I drove to an area that had produced negligible results during the simmering Sept. 1 weekend, when the dove season opened in 99-degree

At that time, the birds were scarce and small and spooky.

In fact, the hunters probably outnumbered the doves as vans, trucks, and campers crowded the roads in a search to find a place to hunt.

It was more of a social outing than a hunt. One dove proved it by safely negotiating a line of unattentive, beer-sipping hunters who offered 10 or so shots without causing a feather

On my recent trip, I never saw another hunter nor heard another shotgun. That was reason enough to make it a perfect hunting day along with the crisp, ideal fall weather.

Green Bay will visit Denver in the Monday night game.

Pittsburgh will face San Francisco with a passle of players on the sidelines with injuries.

Most prominent is quarterback David Woodley, who suffered a concussion, his second of the season, in the first quarter against Miami and sat out the rest of the game. He'll be replaced by Mark Malone.

Also missing will be tight end Bennie Cunningham, while rookie wide receiver Louis Lipps and veteran linebacker Jack Lambert are listed as questionable.

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh says he's most concerned about Pittsburgh's defense.

"They attack with their defense as well as with their offense," Walsh says. "Their tackling and vicious hitting is felt all over the field."

Chicago goes to St. Louis with a 4-2 record and a couple of burdens off its back. One is Walter Payton's assault on Jim Brown's career rushing record - he broke it last Sunday; the other is the elimination of the baseball Cubs, who had distracted Chicago fans from the Bears' fast

The Cards beat Dallas 31-20 last Sunday to even their record at 3-3 and set up a classic offense-defense confrontation this week. Chicago leads the NFC in defense, St. Louis leads it with an offense built around Neil Lomax, the conference's thirdranked quarterback and its offensive player of the week for his 354-yard, three touchdown performance against the Cowboys. The game in Washington pits the NFC East's two leaders against each other, but the Redskins have the momentum - they've won four straight after two opening losses to the 49ers and the Dolphins, no disgrace for anyone. Dallas, also 4-2, lost at home to St. Louis last week after winning three straight. That loss rekindled the Cowboys' quarterback controversy when Danny White was inserted in place of Gary Hogeboom with a minute left in the third quarter. Landry will start Hogeboom, who beat out White to start the season, but says he'll replace him if things go badly.

Have you had your health checked lately?

A variety of free services, including screenings, will be provided during the Health Fair scheduled from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center.

The purpose of the event, which is being sponsored by Deaf Smith County Family Living Committee and the County Agricultural Extension Service, is to acquaint as many residents as possible with the health services that are available in the area.

The Texas Department of Health will test for TB, diabetes, high or low blood pressure and will give TD immunizations for adults as well as conduct a health risk appraisal.

This appraisal consists of a questionnaire filled out by the individual concerning his past health record, a history of family health problems, etc. After it has been completed, it is sent to the state health office in Austin where a computer print out is made. It is then mailed back to the individual.

At that point the print out sheet may be taken to Tillie Miller, a nurse with the Texas Department of Health, for a free analysis. The information given will include what the biological age of that person is not his chronological age.

The Panhandle Health Care will do a free urinalysis to check for diabetes and blood pressures will be checked by representatives from the American Heart Association, Panhandle Health Care and Deaf Smith General Hospital.

South Plains Health Providers will do hematocrits to check for anemia and the hospital will have a pulmonary function testing machine available. Also, the American Cancer Society will have a representative present to talk of breast self-examination.

Betty Henson, executive director of the local Red Cross Chapter, will be present to explain to individuals how to administer first aid as well as showing proper CPR procedures.

The Coffee Memorial Blood Center will be present for interested persons wishing to donate blood and the hospital will also have on display one of its ambulances.

Goebel Hearing Aids and Coulter Drive

Hearing Aid Center will conduct hearing tests throughout the day.

Among the 32 health related agencies that will have educational booths set up that haven't been previously mentioned include Catholic Family Service, Inc., Department of Human Resources, Hereford Family Services Center, Deaf Smith County Extension Service, Home Economics and 4-H and Youth, Alzheimer's Disease, Amarillo Council on Alcoholism, Hereford Satellite Center, Deaf Smith County Library, Deaf Smith County Chemical People, Task Force, State Commission for the Blind.

Also, Arthritis Foundation, High Plains Epilepsy Association, Muscular Dystrophy Association, Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Head Injury Foundation, Golden Spread Ostomy Association, Inc., Diet Center of Hereford, Pro-Family ProLife Group, Deaf Smith General Hospital and Home Health Care Service, Panhandle Chapter National Multiple Sclerosis Society, March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center.

Louise Packard is overall chairman of the Health Fair and Family Living Committee. Fair committee chairman include Johnnie Messer, publicity; Doris Morgan registration; Gayle Carter, booth; and Jewell Hargrave and Nell Pope, evaluation.

For further information contact Louise Walker, county extension agent, at 364-3573.

An ambulance, furnished by Deaf Smith General Hospital, will be on display at the Community Center during the Health Fair so that the public may view it and other hospital equipment. Louise Packard (at

A blood pressure check will be provided during the day for the convenience of the public. Louise Walker, county extension agent, looks on as Peggy Oakes, R.N. with the Panhandle Health Care, takes her blood pressure. The Health Fair is a community service sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Family Living Committee and the County Agricultural Extension Service.

During the fair, 32 health related agencies will have educational booths displayed. One of the screenings provided will be a pulmonary function testing machine furnished by Deaf Smith General Hospital. Carolyn Andrews, R.N., at left, instructs how to use the machine to Nell Pope, seated, and Jewell Hargrave. Both women are members of the Family Living Committee.

One of the many services provided during the event will include hematocrits that will be taken by the South Plains Health Providers. This is a test to show if there is any evidence of anemia. Paula Gamez, nutritionist assistant at the Health Providers, at left, is shown taking a blood sample from Ida Valdez.

The doctors do not believe she will ever recover, nor do they have any idea how long she will live.

We will also be bringing up from the basement, the past issues of magazines such as Family Circle, Woman's Day, Decorating and crafts, and many others which feature crafts that can be made for Christmas.

"Origami For Christmas" by Chiyo Araki will be featured this week at the library. This is a book that brings together the delicate Japanese craft of folding paper, origami, and the most celebrated Western holiday, Christmas. You will learn how to make a lovely origami nativity scene, a wreath of auspicious cranes, a Santa Claus with his reindeer, mobiles, greeting cards, and much more.

This book is designed to appeal to children and adults, novices and experienced origami lovers. The tools can be found in any household, the techniques are easy to follow, and the results certainly seem to reflect an ideal harmony between this traditional handicraft of the East and the purity and simplicity of the true Christmas spirit.

Parents are urged to have lunch with their children at their respective schools this week in observance of national school lunch week which begins today. Reservations must be made in advance at the child's school and cost of the meal is $1.60. This year's theme is "School Lunch: America's No. 1 Energy Source." "Champions of Nutrition" is the sub-theme.

Also available this week is a Farm Journal craft book entitled "Soft Toys to stitch and stuff" by Jean Mandrell Benson. Soft toys capture the fancy of youngsters and grownups alike. Here you'll find patterns and directions for more than 40 soft toy critters. Some of the animals are more than 18" tall. A whole menagerie of simple circle critters can be made from one basic pattern depending upon how you join the circles and how you trim each toy.

Most patterns are full-size, and finished toys are illustrated with both color and black-and-white photographs. The author provides basic guides for tracing and enlarging patterns, cutting and stitching fur fabrics. She also gives directions for making inner supports of wire.

Other new books featured this week are several books from Better Homes and Gardens Craft Club. They are "Cherished Dolls to Make For Fun," "Christmas Crafts To Make Ahead," "Hearts to Stitch and Craft," "Forever Favorite Crochet," and "The Pleasures of Cross-Stitch."

Also the library has purchased lots of pattern books for crafts such as cross-stitch, candlewicking, quilling, chicken scratch, and many other crafts featuring gifts for Christmas. Each pamphlet will check out from the library for seven days; books will check out for two weeks; Magazines seven days. So before you purchase a new pattern for crocheting or crosstitch, check out your library for the pattern first.

Several Hereford agencies to participate in drive

The High Plains Food Bank is planning a Panhandle-wide canned food drive this week in hopes of gathering 60,000 pounds of food to feed hungry

The agencies in Hereford which will be able to retain any food they collect in the drive are Operation Good Shepherd, South Plains Health Providers, San Jose Church, Grace Gospel Church and Hereford Day

Although the food bank has a wide range of food donors from farmers to feedlots, the demand for canned food always exceeds supply.

Currently, plans call for a live telecast from Westgate Mall over KAMR-TV, Channel 4, on the final day of the food drive. Other activities will include a recognition luncheon for food donors and a children's 421 N. 25 Mile Ave.

The High Plains Food Bank is a private non-profit agency which receives and distributes approximately 60,000 pounds of food each month to 115 non-profit groups. A volunteer board of directors governs the food bank which provides food to both on-site feeding programs and emergency fod pantries in agencies throughout the 26 county Panhandle

The food bank receives no government funds and relies solely on gifts from individuals, churches and businesses for its support.

Brazil

Pedro Alvares Cabral, a Portuguese navigator, is generally credited as being the first European to reach Brazil, in 1500. The country was thinly settled by various Indian tribes, only a few of which have survived, mostly in the Amazon basin. In the following centuries, Portuguese colonists gradually pushed inland, bringing along large numbers of African slaves.

The fall meeting of King's Manor will be the program feature for the morning. Coffee will be served by a hostess committee.

> Reports from chairmen of the various phases of Auxiliary work will be heard in the business session, and plans for future activities will be announced, including the Auxiliary's part in the annual Kings Manor Founders Banquet.

Kings Manor Auxiliary is an organization with the aim of making life more pleasant for residents of the Manor complex, a retirement home sponsored by the United Methodist Church, Mrs. Walden

Like the residents, the Auxiliary members are not limited to United Methodists, but include women of the area who wish to improve the quality of life for the retirees living in the Manor proper, the cottages or the Westgate nursing unit.

Differences in diet explained COLLEGE STATION - Dieters us- meaning of other terms commonly ed to go to the grocery store and seen on food product labels depends stock up on raw carrots and cottage on whether the product makes cheese. But today's calorieconscious consumers can select from a bewildering number of products marketed specifically for them. All this choice is an advantage, but may also lead to inappropriate food selections, higher costs and even more calories for consumers who don't know what they're getting in a diet food, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten. Because products aimed at the calorie-conscious usually make nutritional claims on the label, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires that the food label meet certain regulations, says the nutritionist.

"A key FDA distinction is between 'low-calorie' foods and 'reducedcalorie' foods," says Sweeten.

A food product can be labeled "low-calorie," "Low in calories," or "a low calorie food," only if a serving has no more than 40 calories. Foods naturally low in calories, such as celery, may only be labeled a "low-calorie food," she explains.

"Reduced-calorie" foods contain at least one-third fewer calories than an equivalent serving of the food for which they substitute. The label must list the calorie content of a serving of the "reduced-calorie" food, and a serving of the food for which it substitutes, Sweeten says.

Also, "reduced-calorie" food must be similar in nutrition and all sensory properties such as taste, smell and texture, to the food for which it substitutes.

But reduced-calorie foods are not necessarily low in calories, she notes.

According to the nutrionist, the claims for weight control. These terms include:

-Light (lite) foods contain less of substances such as fat, sugar or alcohol (in the case of beer or wine), and they are usually lower in calories. When the term "light" represents a claim for weight control, these products must conform with regulations for low- or reducedcalorie foods.

-"Diet" or "dietetic" foods must comply with either the "low-calorie" or "reduced-calorie" food regulations or regulations for foods used for other dietary purposes, such as sodium reduction.

-Diabetic food product labels must state: "Diabetics: This product may be useful on your diet on the advice of a physician." If the food is not lowcalorie or reduced-calorie, the label must state that fact.

-Formulated meal replacements such as special diet milk-shake type drinks or frozen dinners, can be used in calorie control programs, but are not necessarily low in calories. For example, diet plan frozen meals may contain regular foods, but simply limit calories with smaller portions.

Also, many meal replacements control calorie intake simply because they are eaten in place of a full meal.

-"Sugar-free" or "sugarless" foods may be labeled "low-calorie" or "reduced calorie" if they meet the requirements for those foods. Sugar free foods may contain sugar alcohols such as sorbitol, xylitol or mannitol, that have the same calories as sugar. These foods must state that the product is not for weight control. Foods that have substantial natural sugar content, such as fruit in fruit juices, may contain a factual statement that the food is unsweetened or contains no added

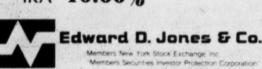

Buying special food products, isn't always the best way to reduce calories, says Sweeten. But if you do plan to include diet foods in your meals, compare them with the calorie counts for "regular" foods and read the labels carefully, recommends the nutritionist.

Mail protection not same

COLLEGE STATION - Thousands of Texans are getting a head start on Christmas by placing mail or phone orders for gifts now so they will get here in time for the holidays.

Most of these consumers will be satisfied with the merchandise they order, but some will be disappointed. And whether they can get any satisfaction for their complaints or not will depend on how they placed their orders, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Nancy L. Granovsky.

Many mail-order companies now offer toll-free telephone numbers for easy ordering. "Using the telephone may seem more convenient than ordering by mail," she says, "but it's also riskier, since phone orders are not covered by the Federal Trade Commission's mail-order rule."

The mail-order rule-which applies only to orders placed through the mail, or shipped through the mailrequires companies to ship your order within the time they promise, or within 30 days after they receive your order, Granovsky explains. So if you order gifts by mail in October, you can be reasonably sure they will arrive in time for Christmas.

If the company must delay shipment, the mail order laws require that you be notified and allowed to either give your consent, or cancel your order for a full refund, she adds.

When you order by phone, you aren't covered by this rule and you assume responsibility for merchandise that is not delivered or is delivered late, cautions the home economist. So television ads that say "allow four to six weeks for delivery" may not make good on their promise.

If you receive unsatisfactory merchandise, you can ask the company for a refund, just as customers who order over the phone can. But mail order customers can also look to the post office for assistance if the company does not satisfy their complaints, notes Granovsky.

Since not every complaint results in an investigation and not all investigations result in refunds, the best policy for consumers is to be careful, whether they order by phone or mail, she says.

Before placing any order, consider the company. An established, wellknown company is likely to be one that satisfies most of its consumers, suggests the home economist.

Read the description of the product very carefully. Words like "jumbo". "giant", or "miniature", have no legal definition, she emphasizes. Tha means the advertised "giant bath towels" you order could turn out to be no larger than a face cloth. Instead, look for descriptions that include specific measurements. Some comapnies offer a toll free number for customer assistance and ques-

Check the return policy of the company. The return policy should be stated somewhere on the order form. If a policy is not mentioned, the company may not have one, Granovsky

Be sure the return policy is specific, she warns. The promise of an "absolute refund" in the event of dissatisfaction means nothing. You might pay $50 for an item and return it for an "absolute refund" only to have the company reply "absolutely no," or send a return of $1 and say "this is absolutely all you get."

Look for the terms such as "fullrefund" or "refund all your money" when reading return policies.

Dr Pepper goes back to basics

DALLAS (AP) - After nearly 100 years of growth, the Dr Pepper Co. is retrenching as it celebrates its centennial this month.

The nation's third largest soft drink maker, recently taken private in a leveraged buyout, has sold its Canada Dry subsidiary and 11 of its 14 company-owned bottling plants.

The result, cigar-smoking chairman W.W. "Foots" Clements says, is a leaner, meaner competitor now interested only in selling more of its distinctive Dr Pepper products.

"The things we're doing are putting us back where we were in the earlier days of our history," said the spunky 70-year-old Clements.

"We have to be a more professional, more aggressive marketing company," he said. "We now have the ability to focus everything, including money, time and ingenuity, into one brand."

The retrenchment has resulted in some top-level executive firings and plans to sell the company's headquarters, which sits on one of the most valuable tracts in Dallas, in order to reduce the debt from the leveraged buyout.

And there's a new marketing strategy.

The company learned to sweeten its deal with bottlers and more effectively encourage bottlers who distribute a much larger brand, usually Coca-Cola or Pepsi, to push Dr Pepper, Clements said.

"Our people (customers) are not going to drink a cola. So Dr Pepper is an extension (of the bottlers' basic business), a leverage for these bottlers. That was a selling job that we just didn't do, but that's not a problem today," he said.

After a large drop in earnings in 1982, the company is recovering and sales have been good this year, Clements said.

Dr Pepper no longer releases its financial numbers since it became a private company. The $647.8 million buyout by top management and a private New York investment firm, Forstmann Little & Co., was approved by shareholders in February.

The introduction of Diet Coke cut into Dr Pepper's market share, Clements said, but Sugar Free Dr Pepper is "rebounding," and "we've had double-digit growth in regular Dr Pepper, something we haven't seen for quite some time."

As the country's oldest major soft drink (only Hires Root Beer is older), Dr Pepper is something of an enigma, an oddity of strong taste that has held a small but loyal following, primarily in the Southeast and Southwest, and grown slowly but consistently through its years.

The formula developed by beverage chemist Robert S. Lazenby in Waco, Texas, and first served in 1885 in Wade B. Morrison's Old Corner Drug Store has been kept basically the same over the years, with changes in production methods, Clements said.

Some new products are under wraps in Dr Pepper's laboratory, he said, but won't be marketed while the company concentrates its money on its existing offerings.

"I think you'll see some new things coming from them (Coke and Pepsi)," he said. "I see that not as a problem for us but as an opportunity, because we're concentrating on just one brand. We have not yet found the ceiling in any market, including Waco, Texas. It still grows."

Clements joined the company in 1935 in Alabama, moved up through the ranks, and is credited as being the driving force behind the company's successful effort to expand its domestic franchising to bottlers who held Coke or Pepsi rights. A U.S. District Court declared that Dr Pepper was not a cola, removing any anti-trust considerations.

Still, with less than 10 percent of the total market, Dr Pepper faces a fierce battle with giants Coke and Pepsi. It's a battle analysts say the Dallas company shouldn't even try to

"My advice to Dr Pepper would be to make a good product, compete effectively and recognize that you're regional and be satisfied with that. Live off the fat of the land - there's nothing wrong with that," said soft drink industry analyst Dave Goldman with Merrill Lynch in New

"They just don't have the money," said Salomon Brothers analyst Hugh Zurkuhlen in New York. "Nobody's got the money to compete with Coke and Pepsi. It's not just Michael Jackson or Julio Iglesias. The strength is the bottlers - you've got to have people to put it on the shelf."

Clements says Dr Pepper is cut-ting slightly into the market share's of the top two this year, but the company doesn't need to duel Coke and Pepsi to remain profitable. He sees a bright future for the industry as a whole.

"I think Dr Pepper will be here 100 years from now and I think it will be a very strong factor," Clements said. "I don't know that we'll ever be as big as Coke or Pepsi, but I think we'll be around and they'll be around too."

Brigade marathon: Running to cadence

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Don't ask Capt. Timothy Knigge about the loneliness of a long-distance runner: when he takes part in a marathon, his strides are mirrored, in cadence, by hundreds of others in formation.

Knigge, a member of the 212 Field Artillery Brigade at Fort Sill, is organizing the 130-member group's participation in the 9.3-mile Tulsa Run on Oct. 27.

Even if the other participants don't notice the uniforms - specially designed gold shirts and gold shorts with trim, along with running shoes - it will be hard to miss the group once the race begins. The group runs the entire race in formation and to a cadence. It begins en masse behind the rest of the pack.

"It takes us three or five minutes just to make it up to the starting line," Knigge says. "With 130 people in formation, they want to let a lot of people get around us early."

It also crosses the finish line at the same time, sacrificing, Knigge says, "individual glory for the spirit of cohesiveness and building up a good civilian-military relationship.

This is the seventh Tulsa Run for the 130-man group, recruited from among the five battalions that make up the 2,200-man artillery brigade.

Last year, the Fort Sill runners finished in 87 minutes - about twothirds of the way back in the 9,000-person pack - and hopes to shave off five minutes from that time this year.

Knigge, who has run in the Boston Marathon, says interest in marathon running is a logical extension of the physical training that's a part of all soldiers' regimen.

"I've been in the Army for six years," he says. "And I think running is on the increase.'

That's personal, marathon running in addition to the standard physical training requirement.

"Each unit has 45 minutes of physical training for 45 minutes three days a week. That includes warm ups, strenuous exercise and running two miles two days a week."

The runners from the 212 brigade run a minimum of four miles three days a week in formation. That's up to 14 miles per week - depending on the weather.

The group also practices running 6.5 miles to 10 miles three times before the race.

"Many of the members of the brigade develop a running habit after coming into the Army," he say in a telephone interview.

"Once you get into the Army, you're forced to run anyway,' Knigge says. "Then people pick it up a little more and turn into marathoners."

Running step by step with 130 others "does take training, though," he says.

"Most runners are used to setting their own pace. And running in formation usually gives you a slower pace. Plus, we've got some women running, and that gives a slower

"We run our own race from beginning to end," he says. "We maybe lose four people out of the 130 because they can't adopt to the pace" or because of dehydration.

"You should see it: we weave back and forth to the refreshment stands," he says. "Running in formation really is the same as marching, once you get used to it."

He admits that the lean, trim figure of a long-distance runner isn't the usual stereotype associated with an artillery soldier.

"But the Army has adopted tough new standards throughout the service about weight control," he says.

Knigge says, however, that the image still persists "because of our nature, not being in the field like infantrymen, we tend to add on a little

"But out of 130 runners, only two are really overweight. They won't be long, though, given the heat at the run. We've also picked up more runners in our program who wanted to lose some weight."

A talk with a 19-year-old staying at the center bears Kells out. A darkhaired boy with a wispy mustache talks about leaving the center for El Paso, where he claims he has a job with a movie crew. Kazeen saying goodbye after 18 years

WASHINGTON (AP) - After 18 ed calculations of his voting percenyears of quiet service, Abraham "Chick" Kazen has been booted out of office, defeated in the Democratic primary and voted down even in his home town of Laredo.

He had planned to retire in two

"I'm a big boy and I know the rules of the game," Kazen said in a recent interview just off the House floor. He spent 20 years in the state Legislature before coming to Congress in 1967.

Former Bexar County Judge Albert Bustamante will take over Kazen's district next year after a walk in the general election.

"I did the best I could. I think I was an effective congressman for my area," said Kazen, 64. "There comes a time when you have to move over."

Kazen refuses to say anything other than that he's "so darn pleased" to have had the opportunity to represent his district for as long as he did. He says Bustamante is a "nice guy."

But colleague Charlie Wilson, D-Lufkin, who has served with Kazen for 12 years, says he thinks Kazen felt "betrayed."

"I think he's a little bit bitter," Wilson said. "He feels a lot of people he helped through the years contributed to his opponent. He felt betrayed by a lot of people in his district."

Kazen never could be accused of being a showboat in Congress. Instead, he has doggedly guarded the interests of his military-heavy district through a seat on the House Armed Services Committee, and he has looked out for his Texas colleagues too.

Wilson compared Kazen to longtime El Paso congressman Richard White, who retired two years ago.

"They're both real detail, nutsand-bolts types of guys. If you go in with a problem, they'll wear it out until they solve it," Wilson said.

Kazen attributes his defeat partly to that single-mindedness. He came off the floor shaking his head over a small piece of paper bearing scribbl-

National Spelling Bee scheduled

AMARILLO - For the 37th year the Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas State University are again sponsoring the National Spelling Bee for students in public and parochial schools in this area.

Directors of the 46 counties of the Panhandle of Texas, parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas are being named to handle their respective events. Directors select the dates of their county bees and report their champions to the Amarillo newspaper.

Speedy Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, has been named as the new director for Deaf Smith County. He replaces Marie Griffin who chose not to be the director this Information relating to the county program may be obtained from the director. Other information concerning the 1985 Regional Bee, scheduled for April 27 on the campus of WTSU, will be available on request from Gene Parker, bee coordinator. Parker is director of placement for WTSU.

"We are looking forward to having these outstanding young people on the campus of WTSU next April. The university takes a great deal of pride in working with this educational program and placing great emphasis on learning," Parker said.

The deadline for directors to report their county champs to Jeane Bartlett, Spelling Bee Editor for the Amarillo newspaper, will be April 6. The winner of the 1985 regional bee will be sent to Washington, D.C. to take part in the National Spelling Bee, early in June, with all expenses paid, courtesy of the Amarillo Globe-News. This includes expenses for one parent.

Rules, established by the national sponsors, the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, state that any student who will not be older than 16 by June 1, or in a grade higher than the 8th by the end of the current school term. may participate.

A Junior Bee for younger students, grade six and under, will also be conducted in each county if directors so desire. The county junior winners do not spell in the Regional Bee, but are special guests of the sponsors and will be recognized and awarded trophies. The booklet, "Words of the Champions," containing more than 3,000 words and prepared by the national sponsors, is used in most school events and county contests. The booklet is available from the Amarillo Globe-News and is priced at only 40-cents each. Orders should be mailed to Spelling Bee Editor, Amarillo Globe-News, Box 2091, Amarillo, Texas 79166.

tage. He is ashamed, he said, that it fell to 40 percent at one point this

"Four years ago, I had a 100 percent attendance," he said sadly.

Yet Kazen made almost every roll call through the first three months of the year, with the primary coming up the first week of May. His colleagues in tough primary races were long gone, back in their districts campaigning.

"That was one of my downfalls," he said. "Everyone was telling me to Then Mexico devalued the peso, Kazen probably would have fallen victim anyway to a set of circumstances that seemed to conspire against him.

Though he is of Lebanese descent. Kazen speaks fluent Spanish. But he was running against a Hispanic in a largely Hispanic district.

Also, the district had been redrawn, eliminating rural areas where Kazen was well known for new, urban areas of Bexar County.

Hereford -People Helping People

In 1900, people were coming from all walks of life to Hereford - looking for a better way to live. These pioneers were looking for a small community that would survive the hard times. They wanted to raise their families in a safe environment and be able to retire with their spouses, secure in the knowledge that their children would have the same opportunities for success which they had.

When our bank was chartered, we made a commitment to Hereford and the surrounding community. We still hold that same strict policy. We've set out to become a part of Hereford and a part of the people in the Texas Panhandle. We believe that a strong community needs a strong bank. That's why people have counted on the First National Bank of Hereford for over 84 years. It's this kind of dedicated service that has made us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Doggett said he was surprised by the news.

"I wasn't expecting the money and was very pleased. It was a result of the good work done by Sen.

"They made the maximum contribution allowed by law to my campaign. It is four-and-a-half times as much money as any of the other Democrats received." he said.

The Doggett campaign has received a total of $901,000 from the Senatorial Campaign Committee, Doggett campaign aides said. Doggett said his campaign has raised $4 million so far, but he said Gramm has more money.

"I frankly think he won the debate hands down. He very capably outlined the Reagan administration's rational foreign policy and its sensitive and successful economic policies," Tower said.

GOP hoping for Congressional gains

DALLAS (AP) - The 1984 elections won't add any female or black faces to the all-male, overwhelmingly white Texas congressional delegation, and only one additional Hispanic will join the group.

But voters may add a few Republicans.

When the Nov. 6 election dust settles, Democrats still will dominate the delegation. But if GOP strategists are right, President Reagan's coattails will sweep a few Republicans into office.

The potential GOP gain in Texas, which now has 21 Democrats and six Republicans in Congress, amounts to only a handful of seats at most. But Texas is part of a larger battleground.

Republican officials say their party needs to win about 26 seats nationwide to give a coalition of Republicans and conservative "boll weevil" Democrats control of the Eighteen congressional races are contested in the state overall, and nine candidates have no opposition.

The Republican Congressional Campaign Committee has targeted a handful of key Texas races for the maximum contribution of $49,000, as well as logistical support.

Nationally known Republicans and conservatives have been vigorously stumping the state on behalf of GOP congressional hopefuls.

GOP strategists are counting on a

Reagan landslide to provide Texas victories that could help narrow the Democratic majority in Congress.

"Ronald Reagan is going to have such a margin in Texas, everybody is going to have a chance," Kansas Sen. Robert Dole said recently.

In race after race, the same pattern is seen. The Republican identifies himself with Reagan and tries to link his Democratic opponent - no matter how conservative - with Democratic presidential challenger Walter Mondale or House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill.

But the coattail effect is not a sure thing. Texas sometimes gives a handy majority to the Republican presidential candidate, while clinging to Democrats further down the ballot.

In 1980, for instance, Reagan trounced Jimmy Carter by more than 600,000 votes. But the GOP gained only one congressional seat in Texas.

Democratic officials naturally tend to disagree about the length and strength of the Reagan coattails. Many expect the gap between Reagan and Mondale to narrow and with it, the chances of a landslide sweeping Republicans into Congress.

The hottest congressional races include challenges to incumbent Democratic Reps. Tom Vandergriff of Arlington, Ron Coleman of El Paso, Jack Hightower of Vernon and Bill Patman of Ganado.

Spirited contests also are underway for the seats left open when Republican Phil Gramm and Democrat Kent Hance joined the scramble for the U.S. Senate seat John Tower is vacating.

Republican Dick Armey, a conservative economics professor from Denton, is running in District 26 against freshman Vandergriff, the former mayor of Arlington. In District 16 in El Paso, Coleman, another freshman, faces banker Jack Hammond.

Hightower, who has represented the Panhandle's District 13 for 10 years, is being challenged by Beau Bolter, a former Amarillo city com-

In the other contested races, Democrat incumbent Charlie Wilson takes on challenger Louis Dugas Jr. in District 2, Republican incumbent Steve Bartlett is challenged by Jim Westbrook for the District 3 seat and Democrat incumbent Ralph Hall faces Thomas Blow in District 4.

Incumbent Republican Bill Archer is challenged by Billy Willibey in District 7, Democrat Don Buford seeks to oust incumbent Jack Fields in District 8, incumbent Jack Brooks faces Republican Jim Mahan in District 9, and incumbent Democrat Mickey Leland battles Republican Glen Beaman and independent Jose Alvarado in District 18.

Republican incumbent Tom Loeffler is facing a challenge from Democrat Joe Sullivan in District 21, Democrat Doug Williams faces Tom DeLay in District 22, Rpublican Bob Burk is seeking to oust Democrat incumbent Martin Frost in District 24, incumbent Democrat Mike Andrews faces Jerry Patterson in District 25, and Democrat incumbent Solomon P. Ortiz faces challenger Richard

Gramm's humor early trademark

By SCOTT McCARTNEY Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - W.P. Gramm was the ace of Capt. Jack Farabee's high school English class at the Georgia Military Academy, and the class humorist as well. When the course got particularly tough, young W.P. would stand at the door and pass out "Gramm's Smartening

"He had a different, but fantastic sense of humor," said classmate Dave Goldman, now a Sumter, S.C., attorney. "I recollect that he was an above-average student. But I would say I have a more vivid recollection of his sense of humor." W.P., known now as U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, is hoping he can endear himself to Texas voters next month.

The College Station Republican is considered by many to be the frontrunner in the battle with Democrat Lloyd Doggett to fill retiring U.S. Sen. John Tower's seat.

"I don't think he's changed a hell of a lot. He's put on a little weight, but that's about it," said ABC News Washington correspondant Tim O'Brien, a hgih school friend who renewed his relationship with Gramm when the former Texas A&M conservative economist went to Congress. "He did not strike me as the politician type because he always spoke his mind so freely," O'Brien said. "He had no qualms about getting into violent arguments with friends.

"That's the kind of thing (critics) said amounts to grandstanding. But he made his point. It was effective," Jacks said.

Doggett not only puts in long hours, but "is one of the most productive people I know," Jacks said.

"Lloyd was always able in the Legislative sessions to keep some amount of law practice g9i..g," he said. "He would show up over here late at night or on weekends and would dictate things and go through his mail."

Like many Texas politicians, Doggett earned his stripes in University of Texas student government, serving as student body president in 1967-68 while enrolled in a graduate business program. He had received his bachelor's degree after only three years of study and finished at the top of his business schxoz class.

In 1979, Mauzy, Doggett and 10 other Senate colleagues hid for five days to make a quorum impossible and prevent a vote to establish a separate presidential primary. The separate primary would have allowed voters to vote for favorite son Republican John Connally for president and conservative Democrats in local primaries.

While others played cards and drank, Mauzy said, "Lloyd was sitting over there reading into his dictating machine, answering his mail and reading his briefing books."

Big voter registration clouds races

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A late, unexpectedly heavy registration of voters has created even more questions about the results of the November general election in Texas, but President Reagan continues to hold a substantial lead in the state, party leaders and political analysts say.

Farms stressed in West Texas contest

Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - In the West Texas race for an open seat in Congress, the similarities may be more striking than the differences.

"We're both former congressional aides." said Democrat Don Richards. "We both emphasize farm programs and balancing the budget."

"I don't think there are a great number of issues we have a lot of differences on," admits Republican Larry Combest. "It boils down to looking at experience and background."

Both men describe themselves as conservatives in tune with the district. Politically, the 19th district is essentially Republican. But it has had nothing but Democratic congressmen.

Most recent was Kent Hance, a "boll weevil" Democrat who cosponsored the president's tax cut. The conservative Hance seemed to have perfect pitch when it came to his constituents.

After he won re-election in 1982 said to have a seat in Congress for as Republican congressmen." long as he wanted it.

But Hance decided to parlay his new status as a national political figure into a bid for the U.S. Senate. He lost in a tight primary runoff with

Lloyd Doggett. Now the seat is as wide open as the high plains landscape that characterizes much of the district.

Richards, a 37-year-old Lubbock attorney, is not shy about emphasizing his association with the popular Hance. He was on Hance's staff from 1978 to 1983, serving as a press aide and then as a legislative assistant for military and foreign affairs. From 1981 to 1983, he worked in Hance's

Lubbock office. The 39-year-old Combest, owner of Lubbock wholesale electronics distributing firm, counters with his own endorsement from a politically popular former boss.

From 1971 to 1978, Combest was a legislative assistant to Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas. Combest said he specialized in agricultural issues, matters of extreme importance to the district. The Republican Party has committed substantial resources to Combest campaign, and has targeted the 19th district in 1984.

"With Hance out of the picture," the conservative weekly, Human Events said, "the 19th District has the opportunity to reaffirm its true with 82 percent of the vote, he was colors and elect conservative

So Gramm, 42, resigned, switched parties and won re-election last year as a Republican.

"I think we all remember him for the strength of his convictions, and in that regard, he's still the same," said O'Brien. "He doesn't hold back anything."

Supporters say Gramm, the grandson of a tenant farmer and circuitriding Baptist preacher whose widowed mother used $8,000 in life insurance money to send her son to military school, is a strong-willed champion of conservative causes. Reagan has described him as "courageous."

But some detractors consider Gramm a self-centered, egotistical, vincictive political opportunist who once sent former political opponent Chet Edwards a card that read: "I feel so sorry for your many problems, but you deserve them."

"My philosophy has always been, you can win at anything if you're willing to pay the price," Gramm says. "I'm ambitious, but I'm not ambitious to hold office. In a lot of ways, my ambition is bigger. I want to have impact."

Friends say William Philip Gramm's ambition developed at the Georgia Military Academy, which he entered after failing the third, seventh and ninth grades, the last two of which he made up in summer

Scattered rains welcomed, drought conditions persist

Scattered rains the past week brought some relief from dry conditions over parts of Texas, but drought conditions persisted in some locations, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The rains brought renewed hope to farmers and ranchers in some locations while others continued to look for relief from the drought, Carpenter said in his weekly report on the state's agriculture. The rains should boost small grain crops, but additional moisture will be needed for continued growth, he said.

Good rains fell over parts of West Central Texas (San Angelo area) as well as in some central and coastal sections. Up to 8 inches fell in Groesbeck in Limestone County, College Station had better than 2 inches. Austin and San Antonio recorded 1 to 2 inches, and parts of the Coastal Bend had 4 to 5 inches.

Scattered rains also dotted the plains and combined with cooler temperatures to slow cotton maturity, Carpenter said. In fact, some cotton in northern counties of the South Plains was damaged by frost a week ago which also hurt some late grain Cotton harvesting remained active the past week in Southwest Texas (Uvalde area) and in Northeast and West Central Texas. Harvesting is about to start in the Rolling Plains and Far West Texas.

Harvesting of corn and sugar beets continued in the Panhandle and South Plains although scattered rains caused some delays. Grain sorghum harvesting also is getting under way in those areas.

Pecan harvesting has started in southern counties, and pecans are in the shuck split stage in central and eastern counties. This year's crop will be short due to the season-long drought and the fact that a good crop was harvested last year, Carpenter

Auction markets are continuing to handle large volumes of cattle as producers are culling herds sharply due to the lacks't torage and stock water. Livestock numbers in many counties are down 40 to 50 percent of normal, and producers are having to feed animals on hand.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cool, damp conditions slowed corn and sugar beet harvesting and delayed cotton and grain sorghum maturity. Some late grain sorghum was damaged by freezing temperatures a week ago and will be harvested for hay. Early cotton is starting to open. Carrots and cabbage continue to be harvested in Deaf Smith County.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cool, wet conditions continue to hurt the cotton crop although early fields are opening rapidly. Some cotton in northern counties was damaged by frost a week ago. Harvesting of corn, sugar beets, cucumbers, bell peppers and carrots continues and grain sorghum harvesting has started.

ROLLING PLAINS: Scattered rains will help small grain plantings, but additional moisture will be needed in some counties to get the crops up and growing. Cotton farmers are NORTH CENTRAL: Harvesting of dryland peanuts has started; a short crop is expected due to the seasonlong drought. Farmers are planting wheat although rain will be needed to get the crop up in many counties. Early varieties of pecans are starting to fall. Cattle marketing and feeding continue.

NORTHEAST: Scattered rains have helped the planting of wheat and oats, but more moisture is needed to boost growth. Cotton and sweet potato harvesting continues. A little hay is still being made; yields are only half of normal. Cattle marketings remain heavy, with prices low.

FAR WEST: Cotton is maturing rapidly and harvesting will start soon. Pink bollworms are infesting top bolls on cotton plants. Ranges are improving rapidly due to recent scattered rains. The pecan crop continues to make good progress.

WEST CENTRAL: Good rains of 1-2 to 5 inches fell over most of the region and should boost ranges and small grain plantings. Cotton harvesting will resume with open weather; this year's crop is extremely short due to the season-long drought. The pecan outlook is below normal.

CENTRAL: Some peanut harvesting continues, with yields generally short. Pecan shucks are starting to split; a short crop is expected. Cattlemen are continuing to cull their herds and to feed animals on hand. Small grain plantings have increased with scattered showers.

EAST: A short corn crop has been harvested and a short peanut harvest is under way. Sweet potato harvesting continues. Hay making is generally complete, with yields about 40 percent of normal. Producers are planting winter pastures but need rain to get them up. Pecans are starting to fall.

UPPER COAST: Fall hay making is active aithough yields are below normal. Soybeans are maturing; a good harvest is expected. Recent rains have boosted pastures and fall gardens. Pecans are falling; the crop will be short.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Peanuts are in stress from lack of moisture as they move toward maturity; recent rains in some counties may help. The rains should also boost winter pastures although more moisture is needed for sustained growth. This COASTAL BEND: Scattered rains of 4 to 5 inches will give a boost to small grain plantings and help fall grazing, but some counties remain dry. San Patricio County has been declared a disaster area due to the drought. Cattle are suffering from drought stress despite heavy supplemental feeding; many continue to go to market. Pecans are falling; the crop will be short. SOUTH: Excess moisture in the Rio Grande Valley has slowed harvest operations, damaged some soybeans and vegetables, and led to heavy mosquito infestations. A few cucumbers are being harvested and hay production is light. Grazing conditions are improving in some locations although northern and western counties remain dry.

COLLEGE STATION - The vital role of America's forests in serving domestic and worldwide needs for wood and paper products-and in providing environmental and recreational benefits as well-is the theme of National Forest Products Week. Oct. 21-27.

The nationwide observance draws attention to the country's abundant forest industry and the need for responsible management of this renewable resource, according to Dr. Mike Walterscheidt, forestry specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Our nation's abundant forests are an extraordinary renewable natural resource that has served us in so many vital respects," Walterscheid said. "The forestry industry makes a valuable contribution to the nation's economic well-being and to providing homes for our people."

U.S. forests can be the most productive in the world if they are managed properly, the specialist claimed. They can serve the wood and paper needs of this country and much of the world.

"In addition to producing wood and paper products, forests produce enormous environmental benfeits such as watershed and wildlife protection and recreational opporutnities for Americans of alla ges who love the outdoors," Walterscheid

The forest products industry employs 1.8 million people and annually ships products valued at more than $120 billion, about 4 percent of the U.S. gross natoinal product.

Forest week set Oct. 21-27 Industry owns only 14 percent of the total commercial forestland-482 million acres-but provides more than 30 percent of the national harvest. Private, non-industrial landowners hold 58 percent-275 million acres-and supply 48 percent of the harvest. Government-owned (or public) lands account for 28 percent of the commercial forest and 22 percent of the harvest.

"The forest products industry sponsors the American Tree Farm System which encourages private landowners to manage their woodland for harest," Walterscheidt said. "More than 52,000 individual and corporate landowners participate in the program that currently includes about 86 million acresthe equivalent of all New England and the states of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Maryland."

Last year, one billion trees were planted in the 13 southern states alone as part of the industry's continuing reforestation effort, the forestry specialist noted. Industry leaders believe increased productivity on both public and privatelyowned forestlands would be in the public interest. It would help supply future dometic demand for wood and paper at reasonable costs to consumers and generate enough growth to help serve worldwide wood and paper markets, thereby helping the balance of trade.

"The renewability of the forest resource and the industry's commitment to good stewardship are the reasons that the nation's forests remain healthy and productive," Walterscheidt said.

Japanese fugu, also known as puffer, blowfish, swellfish, or globefish, is perhaps the world's most deadly fish. In the past 10 years the toxin, concentrated in the fish's liver, ovaries, and intestines, has claimed nearly 200 lives in Japan, says National Geographic. But the Japanese continue to eat the delicacy.

Women among hardest working farmers

By TOM BEESLEY Marlin Daily Democrat

WESTPHALIA, Texas (AP) -"Look up to God and keep going" is the lifelong motto of Lydia Lange, 76. She took over working more than 200 acres of row crops 23 years ago when her husband died.

"There was just no other way to get by," she said. "I was just a very poor widow woman."

Mrs. Lange hasn't slowed down any since, a fact readily reflected in her weathered face.

"If I stop and sit down, I know I won't live very long," she said.

She tells of a friend who decided to retire, relax and take it easy, something Mrs. Lange says she doesn't have time to do.

"This lady quit and now she can hardly get around," she said. "She asked me how I do it, and I said, 'I just look up to God and keep going.""

Mrs. Lange and her 45-year-old, partially paralyzed son live between Rosebud and Westphalia in a house surrounded by rows of maize.

It's a working farm, and she is a working woman. Her son helps with some of the work.

"He drives the big tractor with power steering," she said, but the spry and feisty Mrs. Lange is the

She is one of 63 women operating farms in Falls County, according to a recent U.S. Commerce department census. Some, like Mrs. Lange, are widows. Some work with their husbands.

"I do all the ramrodding and handle all the business," she said.

Mrs. Lange rents her house and acreage, but said the people from whom she rents have told her she could stay on the place as long as she

She and her family moved to the place in 1943. She was born and reared in Perry; her husband, Arthur Lange, grew up in Rosebud. She has four daughters and one son.

Outspoken Mrs. Lange is critical of government farm programs.

"They're not doing for the farmers what they should be doing. They should turn the farmers loose and let them farm," she said.

Farming, Mrs. Lange says, "keeps you constantly busy. You nearly pull all your hair out worrying."

Another female farmer, Helen G. Hoelscher, says, "I'm just not a rocking chair girl," whenever anyone asks her when she plans to retire from her farm.

The 73-year-old grandmother of Falls County Commissioner Tony Lynn Hoelscher and District Clerk Larry Hoelscher says she had "rather be out checking the cows than looking at soap operas."

Mrs. Hoelscher took over farming 360 acres near Westphalia when her husband, Tony, died 12 years ago.

"I took on exactly the same responsibilities he had: row cropping, feeding the cattle, running the place," she said.

Much of Mrs. Hoelscher's acreage is rented to three Westphalia brothers who do the row crop farming on the land. She keeps part of it to pasture her cattle, and Tony Lynn farms part of it for her.

Mrs. Hoelscher said her two sons wish she would lead a less active life. "They'd like me to sit down and take it easier," she said, "but I've worked hard all my life and I'd be happiest to keep doing that. 'Agriculture is interesting," she said. "The boys think I should give it up, but it just means too much to

Mrs. Hoelscher is active in the women's Altar Society at Church of the Visitation in Westphalia. She says the church has played a major role in her life.

Outside the church, she gestured to the nearby cemetery and said, "I guess I'll be over there with my husband, Tony."

Besides going to the farm every day, Mrs. Hoelscher keeps busy gardening, canning and baking. She works part time as a short order cook at the Cedars Cafe in Lott and helps out with dances at the Westphalia Parish Hall.

Doris Voltin of Barclay is another busy woman. Besides toiling with her husband, A.T. Voltin, on their land by Highway 53, she has a full slate of church and civic activities.

Mrs. Voltin can, and does, handle most of the chores around the farm. She has spent her share of time in a tractor seat, often hauls wheat and mile to town in a truck, plants wheat, fixes fences, keeps up the house, yard and garden, and is, according to her husband, the "best entomologist."

"He's made me the chief bug checker," she said.

Mrs. Voltin is a member of the Falls County Historical Commisssion, organist at the Church of the Visitation in Westphalia, on three church committees and is a trustee of the Westphalia Parish Hall.

She recently wrote and photographed a local history for the Barclay Beautification Committee and several years ago wrote, assembled and published the 306-page "History of Westphalia, Mrs. Voltin prefers the busy life of a tarm wife.

"Being out in the country, you're closer to nature, and you get to see so many things," she said. She pitches in to do the farming because, as she puts it, "It's just my husband and myself, so "ve got to." The Voltins have five children, but one of them are presently involved in aming

"They had to go to the fields and wer's when they were young. You can see how close they're staying to farming now," she said.

When they come home on weekends, they often get pressed into service around the farm, to make the weekend workload a little easier for their parents.

Despite her work on the farm, Mrs. Voltin doesn't want to be labeled just a farm wife.

"So many people see me out in the field on a tractor with my old bonnet and blue jeans on and they think that's the only me," she said.

"Farm wives aren't any different than any other profession. I want to look just like the other women. They don't need to know that I go out and work in the dirt and weeds," she said. "But I don't think that I could have a job that I'd enjoy more than what I'm doing, because I can be outdoors so much."

Lorine Buckholt of Westphalia has been farming with her husband, Walter, for 40 years. They don't work as much land as they used to, but they still retain enough acreage to put in a pretty full day of work.

"I don't plant or cultivate, but I'll do anything else," Mrs. Buckhold said. She shreds, chops and sprays the 140 acres of milo they work.

Dry weather has hurt the Buckholts, as it has hurt virtually every other farm family in Texas this year.

"The maize is doing all right, but my garden isn't doing too well this year," she said. "The cabbage isn't any good, it's too bitter." Until this year, the Buckholts raised their own broilers, but the cost of chicken feed made that impractical. "For just the two of us, you can buy chickens as cheap as you can raise them," Mrs. Buckholt said.

The couple has five children and six grandchildren. One of her grandsons wants to be a farmer, but Mrs. Buckhold frankly tells the youth he has a hard row to hoe.

If you don't figure the down time and service costs of an irrigation system before you buy, odds are you'll come up short in the long run.

That's why Bud Story recommends considering T-L. Unlike the stress-producing, start-stop movement of electric systems, T-L systems move continuously. Increasing gear life. And minimizing untimely—and costly—breakdowns. T-L hydrostatic drive features basic agricultural hydraulic components, so if you can hook up the hydraulics on your farm equipment, you can perform nearly all the service your T-L system will ever require. It's that simple. And that safe.

Bud experienced the difference between hydrostatic and electric drive, which is why he now operates 16 T-L systems, and

SMALL FARMS

(Source: U.S. Census Bureau)

EA GRAPHI

The number of small farms rose sharply from 1978 to 1983. One reason for the increase, says the Agriculture Department, is the trend toward small-scale, part-time farming by people who also hold other jobs.

Farmers likely to collect insurance

COLLEGE STATION – A number of Texas farmers will likely be collecting on their crop insurance this year due to drought-shortened violds.

Those crop insurance proceeds must be reported as income for the year they are received. However, farmers using the cash method of accounting may elect to postpone reporting crop insurance proceeds to the following year if they can show that they would have ordinarily reported the crop income the following year.

To make this election, attach a statement to your tax return, or amended return, for the year the damage took place, pointed out Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The statement must include your name and address and the following information:

-A statement that you are making an election under section 451(d) of the Internal Revenue Code and section 1.451-6 of the regulations.

-- The specific crop or crops destroyed or damaged.

-A statement that under your normal business pactice you would have included income derived from the destroyed or damaged crops in your gross income for a tax year following the tax year of the destruction or damage.

--Cause of the destruction or damage and the date it occurred.

--Total amount of insurance payments you received, itemized with respect to each specific crop, and the date each payment was received.

-Name of the insurance carrier or carriers from whom you received payments.

One election covers all crops from your farm, hayenga said. If you have more than one farming business, you must make a separate election for each one.

This election is binding unless the IRS district director consents to a change. To change your election, write to your district director giving your name, address, identification number, the year that you made the election, and your reasons for wanting to change it, Hayenga noted.

Despite shrinking yields

Bumper corn crop foreseen

By DON KENDALL AP Farm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some shrink in yields, farmers are on their way to harvesting a bumper corn crop this fall, according to the latest Agriculture Department forecast.

The huge crop will be a step toward easing livestock feeding costs in the coming year. Officials said a number of other key crops, including soybeans, cotton and wheat, also have rebounded from last year's production ebb.

Based on surveys made on Oct. 1, corn production is expected to total nearly 7.5 billion bushels, down less than 1 percent — 54 million bushels — from the September forecast, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Thursday.

Compared with the skimpy 1983 harvest, this year's corn crop is 80 percent larger, ranking fourth in USDA's all-time harvest list.

In 1983, as a result of drought and the government's acreage programs, U.S. corn production dropped to 4.17 billion bushels — less than half of the record 1982 harvest.

"A killing frost occurred over much of the Corn Belt on Sept. 24," the report said. "However, the crop was mature in most areas and little damage is expected."

The harvest in major corn states was 13 percent complete on Sept. 30, compared with a normal progress of 14 percent. A year ago, farmers had harvested 22 percent of their drought-riddled crop by the end of September.

Soybean production, estimated at 1.97 billion bushels, is up 21 percent from last year. However, that was down 3 percent from the September forecast of 2.03 billion bushels. The record was 2.27 billion bushels in 1979.

Also, the report showed an upward revision in the size of the 1983 soybean crop to almost 1.64 billion bushels from less than 1.57 billion bushels indicated in previous reports. That was a change of about 69 million bushels.

The wheat harvest, which has been completed this year, was estimated at 2.57 billion bushels, virtually unchanged from last month and 6 percent larger than the 1983 crop. It was the final wheat estimate of the year.

Wheat production rose to a record

Wheat production rose to a record of 2.81 billion bushels in 1982.

The cotton estimate was unchanged from last month at 13.3 million bales, up 71 percent from last year's small harvest. It would be the largest crop since 1981's 15.6 million bales.

Despite the slight deterioration in some areas, the corn harvest still is expected to be the fourth largest in U.S. history, exceeded by the record 1982 harvest of 8.24 billion bushels, the 1981 crop of 8.2 billion and the 1979 harvest of 7.94 billion bushels.

The U.S. supply of grain is expected to be large enough to help dampen livestock feed costs for American farmers in the coming year and to provide ample stockpiles for export demand.

In a related report, the department said total Soviet grain output this year is expected to be 170 million tons, down 5 million tons from the September estimate. By comparison, the U.S. corn harvest by itself is expected to be more than 190 million tons.

A metric ton of 2,205 pounds is the equivalent of 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

Farmers have about 71.1 million acres of corn for harvest as grain this year, compared with 51.4 million acres in 1983, the smallest U.S. corn acreage in more than a century.

While drought accounted for about half of last year's corn decline, the government's acreage program was also a major factor. In all, farmers idled 75.6 million acres of cropland, including 31.6 million corn acres, under the 1983 programs.

Corn and soybeans provide the main ingredients in feed used to produce the nation's beef, pork, poultry, eggs and milk. Larger production is expected to ease feed costs and encourage livestock production in the coming year, thus helping dampen further food price increases.

Food prices this year are expected to average about 4 percent higher than in 1983, when they gained 2.1 percent, the smallest annual gain in 16 years. The USDA has not issued a forecast for 1985.

Overall, the department's "all crops" production index as of Oct. 1 was reported unchanged from September at 110 percent of the base year of 1977. It sagged to a nine-year low of 87 percent in 1983 after rising to a record level of 118 percent in 1982

According to the latest production report, 1984 corn yields are expected to average 105.5 bushels per acre, compared with 81 last year. The September estimate put yields at 106.3 bushels per acre.

Soybean yields were indicated at 29.5 bushels per acre against 25.3 last year and the August estimate of 30.3 bushels.

The average wheat yield, unchanged from September, was estimated at 38.8 bushels per acre, compared with 39.4 in 1983.

Cotton yields were estimated at 620 pounds per acre, compared with 506 last year and 615 forecast in September.

Other crops included:

—Sorghum, 806.6 million bushels and 56.8 per acre, compared with 479.2 million and 48.7 last year.

-Rice, 141.2 million hundredweight and 5,014 pounds per acre, compared with 99.7 million and 4,598 pounds per acre last year.

-Peanuts, 4.3 billion pounds and a yield of 2,817 pounds per acre.

'Country,' 'Heart'

Pair of farm films reviewed

"COUNTRY" documents with character. When faced with the imdeep emotion a great American tragedy: the disintegration of the family farm. The villain is a heartless government that encourages farmers to borrow heavily, then forecloses on mortgages when crop prices fall.

The Ivys are hard-working, Godfearing people. At the beginning of the film we see the fierceness of their cause. Husband (Sam Shepard), wife (Jessica Lange), son (Levi L. Knebel) and grandfather (Wilford Brimley) are harvesting a bumper crop of corn when a tornado overtakes them, nearly killing the boy.

The near-tragedy portends another disaster. A federal bureaucrat arrives in the Midwest farm town with orders to tidy up the delinquent mortgages. The orders are carried out with cold efficiency, without regard to human wreckage.

Gil Ivy responds to the imminent foreclosure with incredulity, then despair. It is his wife who refuses to hand over the farm that has been in her family for generations.

"Country" was filmed on location amid reports of troubles: change of directors (Richard Pearce gets the final credit); temperament by Miss Lange who also co-produced; script rewrites by Shepard, a Pulitizer Prize-winning playwright (coproducer William D. Wittliff is solely credited).

The production turmoil is reflected in the final film. Individual scenes play effectively, and David M. Walsh's photography captures the prairie landscapes in dreamy tones. But after the first hour, the film Miss Large demonstrates once again with country" that she is a film actress of wide range and great skill. Her Jewell Ivy is a classic portrait of the sturdy, fair-minded American woman.

Shepard has the weather-worn face of a lifetime farmer, but his character weakens as Lange's gathers strength.

Rated PG, probably because of tornado excitement and family

"PLACES IN THE HEART" roams through Robert Benton's remembrance of growing up in Wacahachie, Texas, during the bitter Depression years.

As with the best of memoirs, the film bears the verisimilitude of true art. It is a movie filled with small marvels, a welcome addition to the prestige films of fall.

The placid world of Edna Spaulding (Sally Field) is shattered when her sheriff husband (Ray Baker) is shot to death, more or less accidentally, by a drunken black 50 acres of cotton.

'Places in the Heart" finds Sally Field in the same hard-scrabble surroundings as "Norma Rae." Once more she appears without makeup as a woman who refuses to submit to injustice and defeat.

But Miss Field is too fine an actress to repeat herself, and her Edna Spaulding is a magnificent, indelible portrait of the strong-willed pioneer American woman.

Benton, an Academy Award winner for "Kramer vs. Kramer," draws steady performances from all his actors, including the children, Yankton Hatten and Gennie James. Especially good are Danny Glover as the black handyman, John Malkovich as the blind boarder and Lindsay Crouse as the wronged wife.

In some respects, Benton functions more effectively as director than writer. The climax relies on the cliche of the Ku Klux Klan, and it is followed by a puzzling finale in which all the characters, black and white, living and dead, take communion in the town church.

The rating is PG, mostly because of adult themes.
