Nuclear waste dump matter political

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Political barbs are radiating back and forth between Washington and Texas about the Department of Energy's selection process for a high-level nuclear waste dump location.

Most of the disputes center around remarks made by Energy Secretary Donald Hodel and Rep. Phil Gramm, the state's Republican nominee for U.S. Senate. Each has claimed the dump will not be placed in Texas, which contains two of the nine sites being considered by the DOE.

Both of the Texas candidate locations are in the Panhandle. As yet, they have not been specified beyond a 300-square-mile area in northern Deaf Smith County and a 190-square-mile area in Swisher County.

The DOE last spring recommended the sites be reduced to nine square miles apiece. A period for public comment followed, with testimony being overwhelmingly against the proposed specified sites. The DOE has subsequently not yet acted on its recommendations.

Last month, Hodel remarked opposition by Texas citizens and Gramm meant the nuclear waste dump would not be placed in Texas. Gramm, meanwhile, has claimed to possess a letter from Hodel promising a repository will be put in the state.

Last Friday in Hereford, Gramm stated, "There will be no nuclear waste dump in Texas." He then gave the unqualified statement Washington state would receive the repository "because the (Washington) governor and the Congressmen want it there."

According to both the Amarillo Daily News and Lubbock Avalanche-Journal this morning, two Congressmen have written Hodel demanding to know why he said Gramm's opposition was a factor in the dump selection process.

"You have prejudiced sites for political purposes," penned Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., and Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y. Synar is chairman of the Environment, Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee. Ottinger chairs the Energy Conservation and Power subcommittee of the Energy and Commerce committee.

The press secretary for Lloyd Doggett, Gramm's opponent in the Senate race, said, "Hodel's statements are his opinions and an obvious attempt to get Gramm elected."

Some questioning Hodel's remarks

Bill Collier also disputed Gramm's claim there would definitely be no repository in Texas. "The fact is that Texas sites are still on the list," he said. "I challenge him to remove the sites from the list, so the people of the Panhandle won't have a nuclear cloud hanging over them when they go to the polls."

He also reportedly called Gramm "a latecomer to the fight to keep nuclear waste out of Texas."

Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary, reiterated what his boss said: "No nuclear waste will ever be dumped in Texas, period."

In addition to Synar and Ottinger, several other letters complaining about Hodel's remarks allegedly have been sent to the Energy Secretary. Among those claiming to have written are U.S. Rep. Kent Hance and Rep. Jack Hightower, both Texas Democrats.

Another message was crafted by People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER), a local group headed by Tonya Klueskens. Contacted by telephone this morning, she said POWER wrote last month to ascertain whether Texas was out of the running and, if so, the decision could be made official.

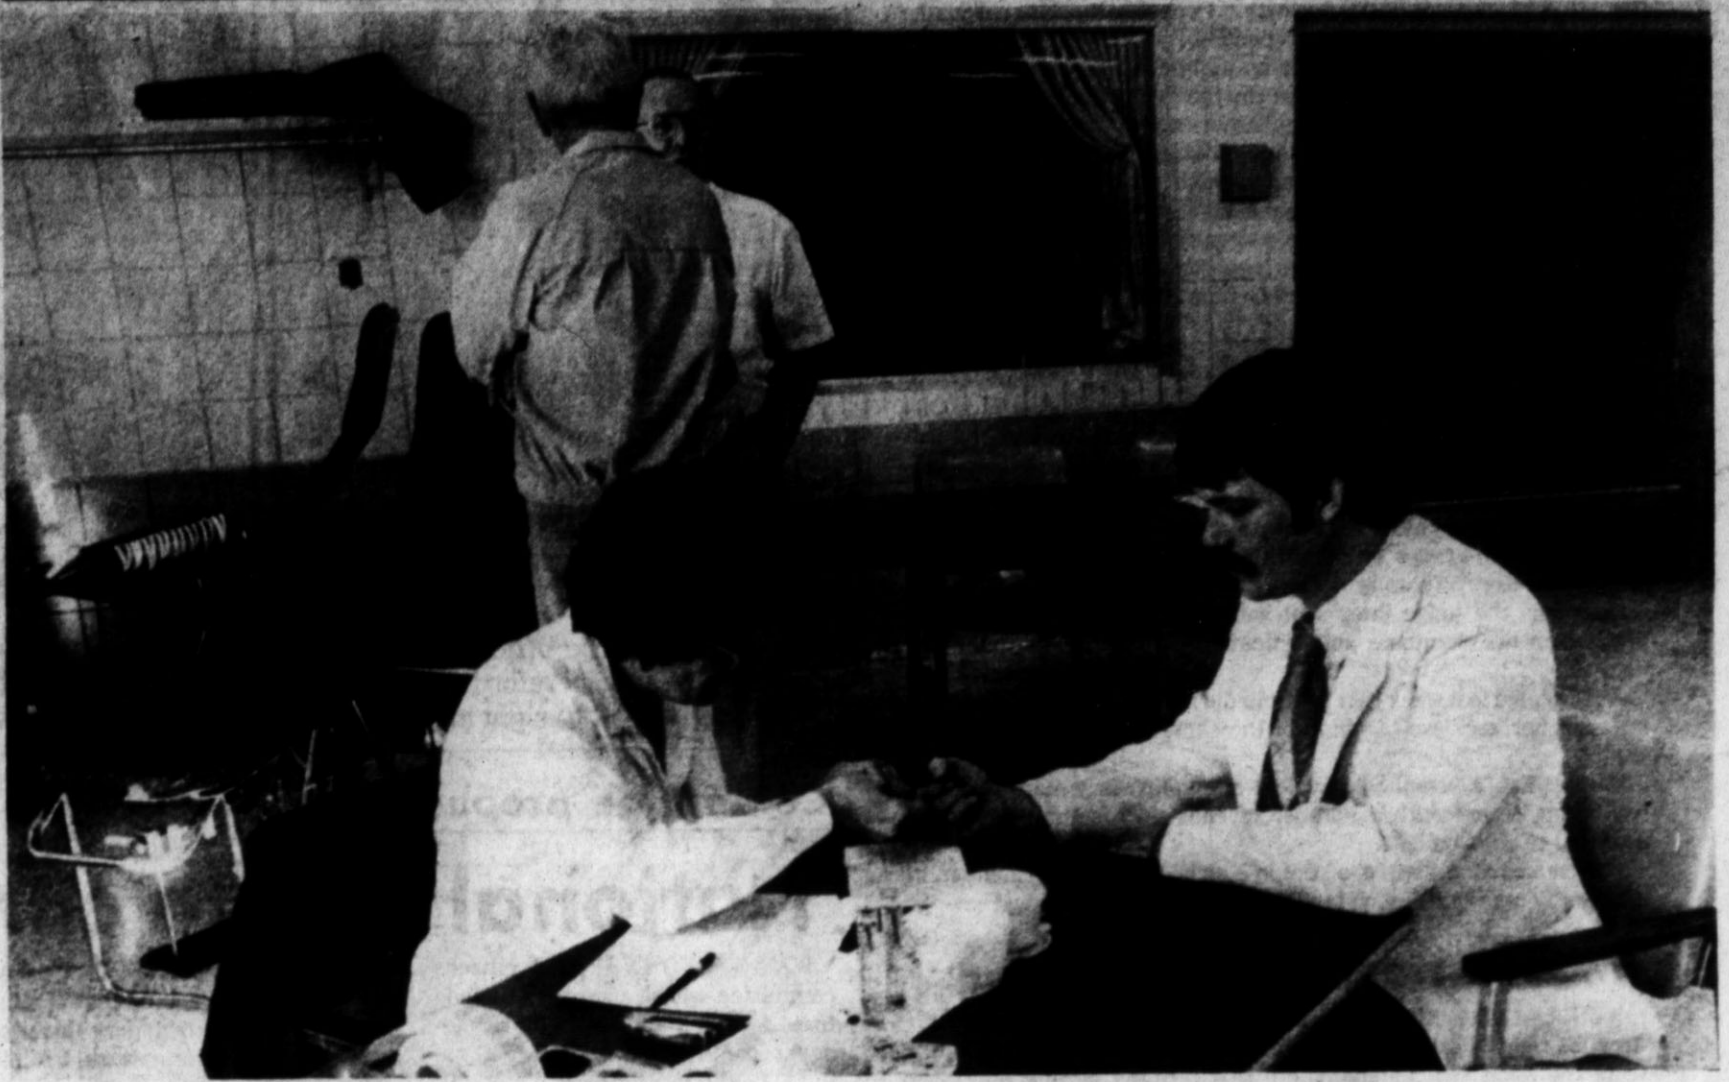

Klueskens said she could not comment on the ongoing political rhetoric, though she pointed out the DOE's process is still in effect "and will probably go on as planned."

Meanwhile, the Daily News reported a government-sponsored report claims a dump candidate site in southern Utah would be better able to handle a nuclear accident than would those in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. Remote location was the prime reason given for the finding.

The report was done by Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus, Ohio, for the DOE.

As outlined by the Energy Department, environmental assessments of each of the nine candidate sites are to be completed this fall. They are to be used to reduce the field to five by January and three later next spring.

A final selection is to be made in the early 1990s, with nuclear waste storage to begin at the chosen site in 1998.

Checking Blood Pressure

Even as the Health Fair opened its doors early Tuesday morning, there were many residents standing in line to have their blood pressures check-ed. To help speed things along, representatives from the American Heart Association, Panhandle Health Care and Deaf Smith General Hospital were present to assist the individual. The fair was coordinated through the Deaf Smith County Extension Office.

Mondale, Reagan preparing for debate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan and Walter F. Mondale are turning their attention to preparations for their final debate this weekend after the challenger accused Reagan of "Profound confusion" and with being "out of touch with reality" on defense and arms control.

The Democrats were raising the issue of Reagan's age, 73, too, an issue that until this week was considered taboo for the candidates themselves to mention.

Democrats mention age

Democratic vice presidential candidate, Geraldine Ferraro raised the issue of Reagan's age Tuesday, saying, "it is something to be considered" by voters.

Mondale has avoided direct mention of the age issue. But traveling with him Tuesday night, Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, suggested that Reagan's age was responsible for his occasionally halting performance during the first debate a week and a half ago.

Hart, who is spending 17 of the next 21 days campaigning for his one-time rival for the Democratic nomination, mocked the explanation given by Reagan's campaign manager, Sen. Paul Laxalt, that the president was "brutalized" by his staff's debate briefings.

"That's the new wimp factor," said Hart. "If his staff could brutalize him, think of what (Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei) Gromyko could do to him."

Campaigning among college and vocational students in Illinois on Tuesday, Reagan faced the age issue, a student asked if he'd be able to serve a second term.

"Well, the way I put it is: I'm not really this old," replied the oldest

'Stars' come to show support for McBride

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

It was a "Red, White and Blue Rally" with Democratic stars when the Juston McBride campaign committee hosted a party Tuesday night at the Bull Barn.

An estimated 190 people attended the political rally for McBride,

At Friday fund-raiser in Bull Barn

Democratic candidate for state representative of the 86th District. He is seeking the seat to be vacated by Rep. Bob Simpson of Amarillo.

The "stars" of the event included U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, State Sen. Bill

Sarpalius, and State Reps. Simpson, Pete Laney of Hale Center, Foster Whaley of Pampa, and Buck Buchanan of Dumas.

Each of the Demo office holders made brief statements to support or endorse McBride for the state post. McBride won the Demo primary election and is facing Republican John Smithee of Amarillo in the general election.

The rally also included musical entertainment by a Hereford Blue Grass band and a square dancing exhibition by the Merry Mixers of Hereford. Refreshments of popcorn, cookies, punch and coffee were served.

Besides endorsing McBride as "the type of person we need to represent us in Austin," Hance said McBride would be the more effective state representative. "It's a fact of life that a Democrat can be more effective for us in Austin, because the Republicans are in the minority."

Laney emphasized that McBride "is honest, has an ag background and has the time to give full effort to the job." He also added that "Rep. Whaley is the only ex-county agent we have in the Legislature, and we need another one!"

Sarpalius stressed the importance of Hereford citizens getting out the vote. He said most of the citizens in Deaf Smith County know McBride and are supporting him, "but it won't help if you don't vote and get your friends to vote." He pointed out that South Amarillo has a history of turning out the vote and voting Republican.

Earnest Langley served as master of ceremonies for the event and introduced McBride's steering committee and out-of-town guests.

McBride ended the rally by expressing his appreciation for the endorsements by the visiting officials, for the work of his steering committee and for interest shown by all those who attended.

Hance Gives Support

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, center, was among a group of Demo officials here Tuesday night to support and endorse Juston McBride, left, as candidate for State Representative, 86th District. A political rally for McBride was held in the Bull Barn with four state representatives and a state senator also speaking for the Hereford Candidate.

Police have several suspects

Hereford police made no arrests but have suspects in several of the incidents investigated Tuesday.

Juveniles are suspected in the break-in at Blue Water Garden Apartments. Lt. Ted Langgood said the youngsters will be turned over to the juvenile officer.

A theft by check at a local motel is under investigation, as is a case of threats by telephone. Another incident - a man threatening a woman - stemmed from a family dispute.

Meanwhile, a vehicle stolen at Littlefield was recovered at the local car lot where it had been abandoned.

Area school in good standing

Walcott Independent School District is in good standing with the State Board of Accreditation, school board members learned Tuesday night.

A letter from the accrediting body was read to board members during the regular monthly meeting at the school. The school district implemented several curriculum changes this year in its continued effort to retain a good accreditation rating.

Walcott School Board President Ernest Brown also said bills were paid at Monday's meeting, when it was decided to purchase a new school bus. The 23-passenger vehicle will cost an estimated $18,000 and should be delivered in March or April.

Halloween tokens offered

Tokens for free small soft drinks or 25 cents off any other menu item are being offered for the second straight year by an eatery wanting safe Halloween trick-or-treating.

The local Taco Villa outlet, located on W. Highway 60, is selling a bag of 20 tokens for $2.50. The offer has been supported for the last two years by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department.

Claude Pepper blasts Gramm

AUSTIN (AP) - Rep. Claude Pepper, campaigning for Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett, said Republican candidate Phil Gramm is no friend of Social Security recipients.

"I can honestly say that, in my opinion, no member of the Congress of the United States has done more to cut Social Security benefits than Phil Gramm," Pepper, chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging, said Tuesday.

Pepper also charged that Gramm is trying to hide from his record. "If the Devil made a statement that he likes Holy Water, I wouldn't be more surprised than when I saw Phil Gramm's statement that he supports Social Security," Pepper said. "Next to death-bed repentance is election-year repentance."

Pepper noted that Gramm was an author of President Reagan's federal spending cuts, adding that the bill "cut billions from Social Security benefits for the elderly of America."

Pepper also recalled that Gramm voted against a resolution by Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, which stated that the House urged necessary steps be taken to make certain that Social Security benefits wouldn't be cut for those currently receiving them.

"Only 13 member of Congress opposed that defense of Social Security," Pepper said. "And Phil Gramm was one of them."

Sentence might be delayed

FORT WORTH (AP) - The question of whether a 12-year-old girl faces probation or must pay a harsher penalty for the "reckless" shotgun slaying of her best friend remained unsettled early today.

State Juvenile Court Judge Scott Moore said previously he would disclose today his ruling on the fate of Patricia Dempsey, a soft-spoken seventh-grader convicted in the Sept. 8 shooting death of 11-year-old Kerry Thomas.

However, the judge later said he first wanted to see the lawyers in his chambers and indicated a final decision might be delayed.

A jury ruled last week that Patricia did not intentionally kill Kerry but said her reckless handling of the shotgun caused her friend's death.

The verdict, a juvenile equivalent of involuntary manslaughter, left Judge Moore with a number of choices in setting what amounted to punishment.

They included probation, a stint in a girls' home or confinement in a Texas Youth Commission facility. The latter was the most severe.

Mattox wants women in band

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General Jim Mattox swears he will not drop his fight to get girls in the Texas A&M band despite opposition from the A&M regents chairman, H.R. "Bum" Bright, and other prominent Aggies.

Mattox told a news conference Tuesday he would go to federal court in Houston, at a date to be set, and argue for approval of a settlement to the 5-year-old lawsuit claiming discrimination against Aggie coeds.

"Right not in this country, we have a woman running for vice president of the nation," Mattox said. "Two women astronauts have just returned from space...We have women who are high-ranking officials within our military."

"So I think any rational human being clearly can see the folly of any attempt at blocking the consent decree," Mattox said.

Bright and A&M regents vice chairman William McKenzie have written Mattox warning him not to make an agreed settlement of the lawsuit.

"Texas A&M University is categorically opposed to the proposed consent decree," Bright said.

"In my opinion, putting women in the A&M band would be akin to letting women play football on the university football team or play baseball on the university baseball team," McKenzie said.

Israeli aid being considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - Israel, struggling to cure its ailing economy, is pressing the Reagan administration for a substantial increase in aid - equivalent to about $1,000 for every Israeli - State Department and diplomatic officials said.

U.S. officials, who spoke on condition they would not be identified, said Tuesday that Israel may not receive all it wants for fiscal 1986 - about $4 billion - but it is likely to receive "a substantial increase."

Combined military and economic aid to Israel for 1985 is now put at $2.6 billion - $1.2 billion economic and $1.4 billion military - more than any other country receives.

One official said an increase of $1.4 billion for fiscal 1986 to a total of $4 billion "is in the ballpark of what Israel would like to see." He also didn't rule out that there might be some additional increase for fiscal 1985, which started on Oct. 1.

Israel's population is about four million, so $4 billion in aid would be equal to $1,000 for every Israeli.

B-52 crashes in Arizona

KAYENTA, Ariz. (AP) - An unarmed B-52 bomber on a training flight with seven people aboard crashed in remote Monument Valley, leaving one person dead and another missing in windblown snow that hampered rescue efforts, authorities said today.

"We don't even know if they made a forced landing or if they bailed out," said Maj. David MacNamee at Strategic Air Command headquarters in Omaha, Neb. "I would assume that they bailed out," he added.

A second B-52 trailing the jet picked up radio signals from survivors, MacNamee said. He said there were conflicting reports about whether the bomber had crashed into a mesa or a valley in the rugged Navajo Indian reservation headquarters.

"Survivors are up on higher ground," MacNamee said. "A ground convoy is on the way up. What we're doing right now is waiting for the helicopter to get there."

Soviets accused of violation

LONDON (AP) - The Soviet Union may be trying to hide intercontinental nuclear missiles among the medium-range SS-20 rockets it is stationing in Eastern bloc nations, according to Jane's Defense Weekly.

If the report in the highly-respected publication is correct, it would mean the Soviets are not complying with the strategic arms limitation treaty known as SALT I, which limits the number of nuclear weapons deployed by both the Soviet Union and the United States.

The treaty expired in October of 1977, but both sides agreed to honor it until a new treaty replaces it.

The magazine, quoting unidentified U.S. officials in Washington, said Tuesday that the experimental SS-25 intercontinental ballistic missiles, or ICBMs, were designed for mobile deployment.

Hospital's infant deaths jumped

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A study showing infant deaths at a San Antonio hospital jumped 178 percent in one year were revealed in opening testimony in the case against former nurse Genene Jones, who is accused of injury to a child.

The state health department asked the federal Centers for Disease Control to investigate suspicious deaths of children at Medical Center Hospital from 1979 to 1982.

That was during the time Ms. Jones, 33, worked as a vocational nurse in the pediatric intensive care unit at the hospital.

She is accused of injecting 1-month-old Rolando Santos with the blood-thinner heparin. She already is serving a 99-year sentence for murder in a child's death in Kerrville.

Greg Istre, state epidemiologist for Oklahoma, conducted the investigation for CDC. Results of the inquiry were sealed by court order until Tuesday, the opening day of the trial in which Istre was a prosecution witness.

Istre presented detailed charts of his findings, which showed infant deaths jumped 178 percent in 1981 over the previous year in the pediatric intensive care unit.

Istre told Judge Pat Priest, who is presiding at the non-jury trial, that he reviewed the charts of 82 infants who died during the so-called epidemic period between 1979 and 1982.

He said he compared those charts with the specific shifts on which they died and the nurses assigned to those shifts, as well as the number of deaths in the four other intensive care units at the hospital.

Deaths in other intensive care units at the hospital increased at rates ranging from 20 percent to 36 percent, he said.

Court-appointed defense attorney Royal Griffin vigorously objected to Istre's testimony, saying it was intended only for sensational publicity.

But Priest said he would listen to Istre's presentation.

Demo Officials At Rally

Justin McBride, candidate for state representative, 86th District, welcomed five Democratic office holders to a rally honoring the Hereford candidates Tuesday night. Left to right are State Rep. Bob Simpson, McBride, State Rep. Foster Whaley, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, and State Rep. Buck Buchanan. State Rep. Pete Laney also endorsed McBride.

Committee proposes plan

National health care studied

WASHINGTON (AP) - A citizens committee whose members include three former Cabinet secretaries today recommended adoption of national health insurance as a more efficient and fair method of providing health care to all Americans.

The National Citizens' Board of Inquiry into Health in America released a two-volume report that proposed, for the interim, expansion of Medicare coverage and health insurance for unemployed workers.

But the report entitled "Health Care USA; 1984" focused on making the case for a universal comprehensive national health care plan similar to those in Canada, Great Britain and other industrial nations.

The group, whose members included former Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and former Health, Education and Welfare secretaries Wilbur Cohen and Arthur S. Flemming, did not make specific proposals for financing national health insurance.

But it advanced the proposal as a general concept, arguing that health care could be provided more cheaply and efficiently under national health insurance.

The report noted that in Canada, which has national health insurance, the cost of medical care accounts for 8.5 percent of the gross national product while health costs account for more than 10 percent of the GNP in this country.

Even though medical care accounts for a big share of the nation's economic output, 33 million Americans have no health insurance protection, the report said.

Budget cuts during the Reagan administration reduced Medicaid spending by $5 billion and Medicare spending by $13 billion below what they otherwise would have been, according to the report.

"The citizens' board found a widespread pattern of deterioration in health care coverage and services, brought on in part by soaring costs and in part by plummeting federal and state benefits," the report said.

Paul Harvey

Re-read the opinions of Justice Brandeis relating to horrendous sweatshop working conditions of the '20s and '30s and you are at first horrified, then ashamed.

And then you realize that he is describing conditions which still exist today in our nation's last "sweatshop."

He is describing the trial-by-fire, tough-it-out, round-the-clock ordeal to which we subject most medical professionals.

At the birth of our son, his mother was days in limbo between this world and the next one.

At least once her heart stopped completely.

During the month of days and nights at the hospital I could not comprehend her doctor going off to his office to nap.

I understand now.

Recently I saw a study conducted by Rush Medical College revealing that "10 percent of practicing physicians are impaired."

Fatigue may render them susceptible to drugs and drink.

Fatigue, alone, may hamper their ability to perform professionally.

So I'm glad now that Dr. Bill Dieckmann disciplined himself to rest when he could.

But while physicians may discipline themselves, third-year med students, interns and residents have no control over assignments.

Every second or third night in most hospitals, those assignments require 24 hours on duty.

Any opportunity to rest is likely to be interrupted by all-night admissions and beepers that won't stop.

Even the marines have modified their formerly rigid basic training as counterproductive - yet we persist in preserving an outdated modus operandi for interns and residents.

And it is the patient we place at risk.

A reader recently wrote to Ann Landers, "I would hate to have my life depend on a person who had gone without sleep for two days and a night."

Dr. Gerald Flamm, clinical professor at Yale University School of Medicine, says, "Medical schools, internship and residency are dehumanizing."

"But," he says, "changing this is difficult because the forces opposed to change are so powerful."

However "difficult," a multi-dimensional study is presently under way at Rush Medical College to determine what changes are appropriate.

I will submit, anonymously if requested, any related experience you may have had which will help evaluate today's medical training - its benefits and its risks.

Businesses aid United Way

United Way officials here have long emphasized that the key to a successful campaign drive lies in more participation by employees of Hereford businesses.

That point was underlined Monday when B.J. Gilliland, campaign chairman, reported that employees of about 36 firms or companies have accounted for one-third of the current total.

The total of contribution and pledges was $57,456 Monday, or about 46 percent of the goal of $128,150. Of the current total, $19,943 has been pledged by employees of the following companies:

Anthony's, The Automotive, Champion Boxing, Case Power & Equipment, Continental Grain, Deaf Smith Electric Co-op, Energas, Fina Station, Hereford Butane, Hereford Cablevision, Hereford Independent School District, Hereford State Bank, Hereford Family Services.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

This is an open letter to Hereford Cablevision.

Each week many Hereford residents thumb through TV Guide and gaze longingly at program highlights for NOVA, Great Railway Journeys, The Brain, etc. We think how fortunate people are to receive a public television channel and enjoy these programs. Instead of being able to watch educational, thought-stimulating, worthwhile fare, our main choices remain nighttime soap operas, laugh track comedies, old movies, etc., - all filled with commercials.

Granted, there are several very good programs on the channels we receive, but we still miss out on some of the best on the air. PBS continues to win acclaim for its quality, realism, courage, and educational accomplishments.

For more than three years we have waited patiently for Hereford

Cablevision to find a way to bring us a PBS channel. There have been expressions of good intent and pledges to bring in a channel from somewhere, yet it appears we are no closer to receiving programs on channel 5 than we were three years ago.

You were once taken to task by city commissioners for not delivering an educational channel. This was followed by a flurry of activity and reassuring words, yet public television did not come to Hereford. On another occasion hundreds of us signed petitions that were supposed to help bring about a favorable decision by the FCC and provide for a channel to be brought in via microwave. Again, channel 5 remained relegated to program reminders and FM music.

It has been months since we heard anything official from you. It is time you told us where we stand. We believe you have sincerely tried and we greatly appreciate your efforts, but please tell us if we stand any kind of chance. Is there any real possibility that we will be able to receive channel 5 from Lubbock this year? Next year? Is there an FCC decision that is being blocked by political influence, lobbying or unethical pressure from a competing microwave company? If so, let us know.

There are those among us who are willing to write congressmen or do whatever is necessary to help move things along. We are apparently being taken for granted as a disgruntled minority who have finally given up. Such is not the case. We will not be completely happy connected to your cable service until it includes a PBS channel.

Sincerely yours,
Boyd Foster
Hereford, Tx.

Ann Landers

Everything checked out

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I always thought it was narrow-minded and mean of you to take such a strong stand against lonely-hearts advertisements. I changed my mind today when I read the Nashville Banner.

It seems a man named Henry Joneson of Tomahawk, Alberta (Canada), answered an ad in an agricultural publication. The woman who was looking for a companion was Ada Wittenmyer, age 37. Henry, the 50-year-old owner of a 900-acre ranch, was lonesome and thought Ada sounded "interesting." He didn't realize his letters and checks were going to a prison until District Attorney General Kenneth Atkins called and told him that Ada had just been convicted of poisoning her fourth husband. She already was serving a 25-year term for poisoning her third husband—a wealthy Oklahoma rancher she had met through another lonely-hearts ad. Atkins said that when he told him the news Mr. Joneson said, "Oh, Lord."

I hope you will print this letter in your column, Ann, as a warning to others who are lonely. And please accept my apologies for my previous attitude.—Nashville Reader

DEAR READER: Nothing I might have said could have had the impact of your report. I checked it out with Nashville and every detail was right on. Thanks for the backup.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I use your space to advise this great nation of predominantly English-speaking people on the use and misuse of two words? I refer to "flounder" and "founder."

A flounder is a fish. I am tired of reading about corporations that are floundering, families that are floundering and governments that are floundering. The correct word is FOUNDING. To founder means to give way, to fail, to collapse, to sink beneath the water.

The English language, when used properly, is beautiful. When abused it is an abomination. You can help by printing this letter in your widely read column.—Well Spoken In Jackson

DEAR WELL: According to the American Heritage Dictionary, Second College Edition, a flounder is a flat fish. To flounder means "to move clumsily, thrash about" and hence "to proceed in confusion." If John is FOUNDING in chemistry he had better drop the course; if he is FLOUNDERING, he may yet pull through.

"Founder" originally referred to a ship sinking; it is not used as well to mean "to fail utterly, to collapse."

I believe your crusade to abolish the use of the word "flounder," except on the menu of a fish-house, is doomed to founder, but thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter on the war between nursing mothers and restaurants whose sensibilities are so refined as to require women to nurse in the ladies' room?

It would be lovely if they would be considerate enough to provide a place to sit—other than the john. I have been in that situation a few times and it's enough to make your milk dry up.—Bakersfield Mom

DEAR BAKE: You've got my vote. Thanks for registering the beef. It's a good one.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Canada has an all-volunteer army which, since 1968, has been a single body composed of what had been a separate army, navy and air force.

Family budgeting made easier

COLLEGE STATION—Family budgeting might be easier if there were some simple guidelines for spending money.

Actually, it's very difficult to tell any family how much they should spend on food, clothing, shelter, transportation and other items, because all families are different, says family finance expert Nancy L. Granovsky.

But financial counselors at some of the non-profit consumer credit counseling services have developed a simple, easy to understand system called the 25 percent budget, says Granovsky, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

While using this set of budget guidelines may not be helpful to every family, it does provide a benchmark, especially for those who are not budgeting at all and may be experiencing some financial difficulty, she notes.

To make this budget work, you divide your monthly take home pay into four equal parts. Assign 25 percent for housing, 25 percent for food, 25 percent for monthly loan payments and 25 percent for everything else, explains Granovsky.

Allowing 25 percent for housing, including taxes and if possible, utilities, means you won't exceed one week's take home pay for housing costs.

Allow 25 percent for food, including groceries, children's lunches, and other meals away from home.

Allow 25 percent for monthly payments on everything you are buying on time, such as a car, furniture, television, appliances, home improvements or credit card charges.

The final 25 percent should cover everything else like savings, insurance, education, recreation, contributions, child care, personal expenses and emergencies.

The percentages in each budget category are flexible, she points out. For example, some families may spend 30-35 percent on housing. This means that each of the other parts on the budget will have to be reduced.

But no matter how you divide up your take-home income, says the home economist, your expenses will have to add up to 100 percent. If they don't, you'll have a personal case of deficit spending on your hands.

Women may judge

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As a preliminary to Marvellous Marvin Hagler's middleweight title defense against Mustafa Hamsho Friday night, the champion's co-managers Pat and Goody Petronelli will do battle against the New York State Athletic Commission.

"The champion doesn't want it," Goody Petronelli said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "We don't want it."

What Hagler and the Petronellis don't want are three women judges for the scheduled 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

John Branca, the chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said that it is possible Eva Shain and Carol Castellano of New York and Carol Polis of Philadelphia could judge the fight.

But he also said that maybe just one or two of the three, but at least one, would judge the bout, and that one or two could score another title bout on the card — the scheduled 15-round bout between Mike McCallum and Sean Mannion for the vacant WBA junior middleweight champion.

The judges and referees for the fight will be appointed at the rules meeting and the Petronellis and Al Certo, Hamsho's manager, will have input into the selection of fight officials at that time, Branca said.

The three women are certified WBA judges and the WBA has been consulted about their possible opponent, Branca said. Alberto Alomane of Panama, the WBA's international coordinator, will attend the rules meeting and will supervise the fight for his organization.

Hamsho is the WBA's top-ranked contender, and also is ranked No. 1 by the WBC. The WBC will have observers at the match, but its president, Joser Sulaiman of Mexico, has said it will not sanction the fight as a title match unless it is fought at the WBC limit of 12 rounds. The WBC could also withdraw title recognition from Hagler if he goes through with a fight scheduled for 15 rounds, which is the WBA limit, Sulaiman said.

The WBC is expected to take some action at its convention in Montreal which opened today and concludes Saturday, but no decision is expected to be announced before Saturday.

"The contract calls for a 15-round fight," said promoter Bob Arum.

As for the three women judges, Branca said, "I think they're very qualified. All of them have handled championship fights."

Hamsho's feelings about the matter, as presented in statement by Irving Rudd, Arum's publicist, was: "Whoever he (Branca) appoints, I will respect their judgement. I think Hagler is plain worried, and sex should have no place in the appointment of judges."

"We're not buying that," said Pat Petronelli. "This is a man's sport. It's a man's game. The top bouts should be judged by men."

SWC champ among leaders

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — Two former college conference champions are among four leaders after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golfers Association's qualifying tournament for the 1985 tour berths.

All four leaders, seeking their first entry on the LPGA tour, fired even par 72's on Sweetwater Country Club's 6,380-yard course, the home base for the LPGA.

Finishing with a one-stroke lead in the 112-member field were: Lynn Connelly of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.; Carol Slane, Auburn, Calif.; Nancy Ledbetter, San Antonio, Texas; and Nina Foust, Ransour, N.C.

Connelly, 23, a 1983 graduate of the University of Florida, was the 1981 Southeastern Conference champion. Ledbetter, 21, won the 1984 Southwest Conference title before graduating from the University of Texas.

Another stroke back with 73's were Lori West of Denver, a former LPGA touring pro, and Susan Sanders, Albuquerque, N.M., the 1984 New Mexico amateur champion.

The field in the 72-hole tournament will be cut to the low-70 scores and ties following today's round, with 28 positions available for the LPGA tour in 1985.

Mauch returns to manage California baseball team

By TIM LIOTTA
AP Sports Writer
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Once certain he had put managing a baseball team behind him forever, Gene Mauch found he couldn't fight the lure of an exciting pennant race.

"For two years, I was dead-certain I would never manage again," Mauch said. "When the pennant race heated up a few weeks ago, I felt a few things going in my stomach, and I liked it."

After watching the California Angels battle for the American League's Western Division championship down to the last week before losing out to the Kansas City Royals, Mauch on Tuesday accepted the position as the Angels' manager for the second time.

The change marks the club's 10th managerial change in the past 15 years.

Mauch replaces John McNamara, who turned down the Angels' offer to return in 1985 and is considered in line for the Boston Red Sox's managing job.

He managed California for two years and led them to the AL West title in 1982. But, after the Angels built a two games to none lead on Milwaukee in the league championship series only to lose the next three contests, he quit the post.

Mauch had served as California's director of player personnel since Sept. 17, 1983, and feels that he was never really away.

"I never really wanted to leave baseball; the reasons were very personal, I've never discussed them and I don't think I ever will," Mauch said. "I don't think I've really been gone. I've been hanging around. Even in 1983, I saw, or watched on TV, every Angel game."

"I don't know what requirements there are to be a major league manager, but you can't do it without enthusiasm. I'm as excited and enthusiastic as I've ever been in my life."

The first home run ever hit at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn was made by Casey Stengel, playing for the Dodgers against the Yankees in an exhibition game April 5, 1913.

Cowboy woes pile up

Offensive lineman breaks right leg

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Life's little problems keep piling up for Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

His National Football League team has lost two games in a row, and young Gary Hogeboom is having growing pains at quarterback.

Then came the capper. Jim Cooper, his best offensive lineman, took a tumble in a nightclub and broke his right leg and will be lost for the year.

"I don't think this team is jinxed but we aren't getting much help," Landry said. "What happened to Cooper is unreal."

Cooper slipped as his party was getting ready to leave the nightclub Monday night.

"It was a freak injury, just about like the one where we lost tackle Ralph Neely for the season in a motorcycle accident in 1971," Landry said.

Reminded the Cowboys went on to win the Super Bowl that year, Landry smiled and said: "Thanks."

"Jim is being operated on and it will put him out the rest of the year," Landry said. "It's a big blow to us because he was our most consistent performer in the offensive line. It's the worst news we've had."

Cooper slipped and dislocated his ankle and broke a bone in his right leg. He will be replaced at right tackle by Phil Pozderac.

"Jim had been playing very, very well," Landry said.

Landry announced on Tuesday that Hogeboom will remain his No. 1 quarterback.

There was speculation Landry might consider replacing Hogeboom with veteran Danny White after two straight losses, including Sunday's 34-14 whipping by the Washington Redskins.

"Gary is learning although he is making mistakes," said Landry. "He is so inexperienced he's going to have trouble." Hogeboom was removed in the fourth quarter in favor of White. Landry said he could do it again.

"I could bring him in based on what takes place," said Landry. "That wouldn't mean Gary is not in our future. He has an excellent arm and needs time to develop."

Landry said Hogeboom was having some problems getting away from the pass rush.

"He hasn't been in the pocket long enough to learn to slide around," said Landry. "I'm not sure he sees where the pressure is coming from yet. He's not a great runner like Joe Theismann (of Washington)."

The Sunday night game with New Orleans will start at 8:45 p.m. because of the Presidential debate.

"New Orleans is a tough, aggressive team," Landry said. "New Orleans is struggling like us and it will be a tough game."

"Anytime we get in a position like we were in against Clovis, we (Hereford High School coaches) want to play as many people as we can," Taylor said. "All the players deserve it. They work many hours in practice, and we want to give them some valuable game experience."

Friday's victory was the first win at home for Hereford in 1984 and also the first time the Whitefaces had put points on the scoreboard in Whiteface Stadium this season. Also, the Herd's 31 points in the game doubled the number of points the Whitefaces had scored in five games.

For their defensive performances, Taylor commended the play of tackles Lazaro Abalos and Adam Olivarez, end Albert Tijerina and linebacker Curtis Cotten. Taylor also was pleased with the play of Hacker, Patrick Phibbs and Rodney Torres in the secondary.

Sammy Suarez caught two touchdown passes and made "another good catch" at the Clovis 5-yard line, Taylor said.

"Sammy is a big play maker," Taylor said. "I thought he had very good concentration, especially on the two touchdown passes he caught."

Suarez made a diving catch in the end zone for Hereford's first TD and had to reach in front of the defender for the catch on Hereford's second score.

Taylor took advantage of the Whiteface lead and the opportunity to give some players experience by substituting frequently. When the game was over, all of Hereford's

Tigers manager

Anderson plans another Detroit win

By DAVID GOODMAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson wasn't satisfied with becoming the first skipper in major league history to win World Series championships in both leagues.

He wants an encore. "They will win again in 1985," Anderson told an estimated 60,000 cheering and waving baseball fans Tuesday during a downtown ticker-tape parade and rally honoring the Tigers.

"I don't think all of you realize what a great team you have," said Anderson, who won two championships with the National League Cincinnati Reds.

The downtown scene looked like the first snow of the winter season as confetti floated down from skyscrapers onto the noisy crowd along the route from Tiger Stadium to downtown Kennedy Square.

The crowd roared its approval as each car unloaded its occupants, reserving its loudest applause for pitching ace Jack Morris, outfielder Kirk Gibson and shortstop Alan Trammell, voted the series' Most Valuable Player.

Tigers owner and Domino's Pizza founder Tom Monaghan called the show of support "incredible, incredible."

"I don't think anyone went to work today — or to school," Monaghan said as he emerged from his convertible before mounting the stage to chat with Gov. James Blanchard and other waiting dignitaries.

"Bless you, boys," Blanchard said, repeating a team slogan as he presented Monaghan and former Tigers owner John Fetzer with a proclamation declaring "Detroit Tigers Week" in Michigan.

The peaceful noon rally contrasted with the violent celebration outside Tiger Stadium following the Tigers' victory over the San Diego Padres Sunday night, which left one man dead, sent at least 80 to hospital emergency rooms and led to 34 arrests.

"The scene today is a scene of the real Detroit," added Councilman Nicholas Hood.

Police Chief William Hart said the behavior of Tuesday's crowd was not that different from Sunday night's celebration.

"The majority of the crowd the other night was well-behaved," he said.

Hart estimated the crowd at 50,000, which did not include the 10,000 along the parade route.

"I can't remember the last time there was a ticker-tape parade," said Pat Louttit, 31, of suburban West Bloomfield Township, who came down with her husband, Doug, 31, and their 2-year-old son, Brett.

"It will probably be another 20 years before it happens again, so we brought the little one along."

"Paper, paper," Brett shouted, pointing up at the drifting confetti.

"He loves parades," Mrs. Louttit said.

"This is incredible," said Gibson, the hero of Sunday's World Series finale with two home runs and five RBI. "Detroit, the Detroit Tigers and Kirk Gibson — we've all come a long way together."

Gibson then re-enacted a nationaltelevized Tiger Stadium scene by thrusting clenched fists into the air as he did during one of his home-run trots.

Shortly after the parade, Gibson and teammate Dave Rozema escaped serious injury when Gibson's Jeep overturned on a downtown street after another car turned in front of it, police Sgt. Daniel Carr said.

"The two ballplayers and some citizens righted the Jeep and they went on their way," Carr said.

O'Meara, Watson set for battle

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Mark O'Meara and Denis Watson have an opportunity to take command in important seasonal races on the PGA Tour this week in the $400,000 Walt Disney Golf Classic.

The lead in both the Player of the Year race and leading money-winner could be at stake in the next-to-last official event of the season. The tournament, offering $72,000 to the winner, begins Thursday on three courses at Walt Disney World.

Tom Watson, who leads in money-winnings and is tied for the lead in the Player of the Year standings, is not competing.

With only this tournament and next week's Pensacola Open remaining on the schedule, here's how the races shape up:

Money-winnings — Tom Watson $476,260, Mark O'Meara $457,473, Andy Bean $418,995, Denis Watson $406,976, Play of the Year (points) — Tom Watson, 54, Denis Watson, 54, Tom Kite, 43, Mark O'Meara, 42.

In the money-winning race, a win here by Bean or Denis Watson would give them the lead, and a first or second place finish would give O'Meara the lead.

The Player of the Year race is much more complicated. In addition to 10 points for a tournament victory, the standings also are based on the player's position on the money-winner list (20 points for first, 18 for second, and so on down to 2 points for 10th) and the stroke average.

Cougar defender
SWC Player of Week

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston defensive end Simon Fletcher advises opponents to beware if teammate defensive end T.J. Turner comes to the line smiling.

"He's the kind of guy that smiles at you while he's cutting your throat," Fletcher said. "He's starting to tackle players in the backfield more than he did last year. He's taking a first quick step and getting into the backfield."

Turner smiled often last Saturday in leading a second half defensive effort that preserved a 9-7 Southwest Conference victory over the Texas A&M Aggies to give the Cougars their first 2-0 league start since 1979 when they advanced to the Cotton Bowl.

Turner had 10 tackles, one quarterback sack and one tackle for a loss in the game and was named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week for his effort.

Southern Methodist quarterback Don King, who rallied the sixth-ranked Mustangs to two touchdowns and a 24-20 victory over Baylor in the final four minutes, earned the AP's offensive honor.

"I feel the pressure should be on the defense," Turner said. "If the offense puts three points on the board, then it's our job to stop the other team."

Turner watched the Mustang comeback against Baylor on television last week and says the Cougars will be ready for a similar challenge.

Food guidelines protect consumers

COLLEGE STATION - Scooping your own corn meal or rice from barrels at the supermarket may be a nostalgic reminder of the old country store. But like most things, even buying bulk food is more complicated than it was in grandma's day.

Today you may have to struggle with a long-handled scooping device or plastic dispensing mechanism to get at your favorite bulk food. The apparatus is there for good reason - to protect your health and safety.

The growing popularity of selling everything from trial mix to dried fruit, coffee beans and popcorn in bulk led food retailers to seek guidance from the Food and Drug Administration for applying sanitation law in their operations, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist Marilyn Haggard.

"The objective in providing guidelines for bulk food sales is to control potential health problems such as the spread of communicable disease, outbreaks of food-borne illness and unintentional contamination of food," she says.

The FDA completed guidelines for handling bulk food in supermarkets earlier this year, and the effects are being seen in the grocery stores now, adds Haggard.

The rules require bulk food to be dispensed from containers with closefitting individual covers. Containers must be easily removable from the display unit for servicing, unless they can be cleaned in place without contaminating the food, explains the specialist.

The FDA ordinance also states that manual contact with the food by customers must be avoided either by mechanical dispensing devices such as gravity fed units, manual dispensers like tongs and scoops, or wrapping and sacking products, advises Haggard.

Also, just because you buy food from bulk dispensers doesn't mean you give up your right to product information, she says. The container should show either a counter card or manufacturer's label stating the name of the product and its ingredients in order of predominance.

To reduce the possibility of contamination, the rules suggest that retailers limit the depth of a bulk-food container to 18 inches and locate any containers with the opening at the top at least 30 inches from the floor, Haggard says. But retailers are not required to use these measurement standards as long as they avoid contamination of the food.

The FDA guidelines call for voluntary compliance by retailers and exempt wrapped candies, nuts in their shells and other protected items, she adds. So consumers will need to judge for themselves whether a bulk food operation seems sanitary, she says.

NO TWO PERSONS are exactly the same, and we talk often about individual differences. In all intelligent considerations of how to be constructive in human endeavors, individual differences must be taken into account. This, of course, is not to be excuses for departures from any of the well-established and time-tested standards of human behavior. This does not mean that "our distinctiveness" cannot be maintained.

ALL OF US have distinctive personality qualities which are important as a part of our being, and should not be altered. At the same time, we must develop and apply suitable "correctives", when they are justified, to social and cultural influences. We must do so, in order that we may be able to interact satisfactorily. We can do this, and continue to be the person we are uniquely qualified to be.

THE GREATEST WISDOM is required in this matter, because, if we go beyond what is justified, in repressing or suppressing the unique aspects of our personality we do ourselves a disservice. Whatever adjustments we do try to make must be constructive. Now and then, a major change may be indicated; but it is not to be made by repression. It can and should be done within the mental consciousness of approval, reward and a generous measure of wholesome self-acceptance.

OUR PERSONAL IMPROVEMENT and growth will move along very well, when we know what we are doing, why we are doing it, and are fully convinced that whatever change may be involved is justified and is what we honestly desire.

WE CAN CHOOSE the life style that gets better and better, even while we maintain the wholesome uniqueness, the distinctiveness of our personality and do so with a sense of victory and success.

Excessive fear of AIDS disrupting blood banks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The largest study ever of AIDS, a $23.9 million effort in six cities, is aimed at helping the U.S. blood bank system by reducing excessive fear of catching the deadly disease, officials say.

Researchers from Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York, Miami, Seattle and Detroit scheduled a meeting here today to make final preparations for the five-year study, funded by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

The project is intended to help "ensure that safe blood is provided for medical use" by evaluating new tests aimed at detecting donated blood that may infect people with the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, Dr. James W. Mosley, director of the study, said Tuesday.

"There has been a very great over-reaction" to the very low chance that any blood recipient might catch AIDS from blood or blood-product transfusions, Mosely said, noting that with about 3 million Americans receiving transfusions annually, "the population at risk is very large."

Growing numbers of surgery patients asking for blood donated only by their friends or relatives "has caused major disruptions in blood banking," the University of Southern California researcher said.

Such requests "pose enormous logistical problems for the blood-banking industry," which generally opposes earmarking donated blood for specific recipients, he said.

A USC news release called it "the largest single study thus far devoted to AIDS." Its main purpose is to evaluate tests designed to determine whether blood donors have been infected by human T-cell leukemia virus, HTLV-III.

Last April, researchers announced that HTLV-III may be the cause of AIDS, or, as Mosley put it, "the infectious agent that sets the stage for AIDS." Most AIDS patients have been infected with HTLV-III.

AIDS cripples the body's disease-fighting immune system, leaving its victims vulnerable to death from "opportunistic infections." Researchers believe sexual contact is a major mode of transmission, but say AIDS also can be spread through blood, dirty syringes or other intimate contact.

The Centers for Disease Control had recorded 6,251 U.S. cases of AIDS — including 2,950 deaths — as of Oct. 1. Seventy-three percent of all U.S. patients were homosexual or bisexual men, 17 percent were intravenous drug abusers, 4 percent were Haitians, 1 percent were hemophiliacs and 5 percent fell into other groups.

The government authorized several companies to develop a test for HTLV-III antibodies for use in screening blood donors and people at risk for AIDS. The first of the tests could be ready within four to six months, Mosley said.

Contract rejected by workers

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian auto workers rejected a late contract offer from General Motors on Tuesday night and union leader Bob White said it would take a miracle to avert a strike by GM's 36,000 Canadian workers Wednesday at noon.

Company and union officials said a strike in Canada would force layoffs at some U.S. plants within a few days.

White, the United Auto Workers union director for Canada, told reporters the GM proposal on wages and other economic issues — presented 20 hours before the strike deadline — was rejected unanimously by the union bargaining committee.

He described the offer as similar to the company's first offer put forward 10 days earlier and "totally unacceptable in many areas," but said the union would not break off talks.

Asked if a settlement could be reached in time to prevent a strike, White said, "It would take almost a miracle, but collective bargaining works in strange ways and we're not going to leave any stone unturned."

White reported that militant union members in Oshawa, Ontario, walked out ahead of schedule Monday night, closing down a car plant with several thousand workers.

He said those workers "jumped the gun, which has really hurt us in bargaining."

Rod Andrew, chief negotiator for General Motors Canada Ltd., presented the new economic proposal in a 30-minute meeting with the union at a Toronto hotel, but refused to comment on the offer or the progress of the talks.

Byron Blundell, a GM spokesman, said negotiations would continue "into the night and all night if necessary."

Film to be shown during Life meeting

Pro Family-pro Life, a non-denominational, educational group, will host a meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Community Center.

The meeting will include a film, "Miracle of Birth," and a panel of four speakers. The speakers are Mary Jo Monroe, an Amarillo counselor, Dr. Howard Johnson, who has a medical practice here, R.C. Hoelscher, a local attorney, and John Smithee, a candidate for state representative.

The meeting is suitable for sixth graders and older, and children are encouraged to come with their parents. The discussion will focus on the social, medical, legal and legislative aspects of abortion.

The meeting should not last more than one hour and the panel will be available for discussion afterward for anyone with further questions.

'Fool' parsley

DEAR POLLY — Can parsley that has been growing outside all summer be brought indoors? Will it grow during the winter? — SHERRY

DEAR SHERRY — Yes, but you must take some special measures to ensure that the parsley will grow. Here is the procedure recommended by Bob Thompson of "The Victory Garden":

You must fool the parsley into thinking it has gone through a winter so that it will be ready to start growing again when you bring it into the house. To do this, dig up the parsley three to four weeks before your area's expected last frost, pot it and bury the pot in the ground right where you dug up the plant. Leave the potted parsley in the ground for about eight weeks or until you've had at least a few light frosts. Then dig up the pot and bring it indoors. It should start sending out new growth. Without this treatment, the parsley tends to remain dormant throughout the winter months, even though it's been brought indoors. You'll have little growth and not much usable parsley. Bob also recommends this treatment for rosemary and chives.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Mixing drugs

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is a recovering alcoholic and has been taking Valium for six years. The doctor keeps giving him Valium even though the opinion seems to be that people should not take it except for a short period of time.

He also takes antihistamines every day plus Anacin and extra-strength Datriil. He complains of being tired all the time and I am sure that these drugs are having an adverse effect on him. Please comment on the problems of taking antihistamines as well as Valium and other medicines.

DEAR READER — I do not know how much Valium your husband is taking, but if it is a moderate amount, he probably has a physiological dependency on it by now. And even if he is taking a small amount but is past middle age, he may have an addiction. Older people do not break down Valium as quickly and may become dependent upon it much more easily than younger people.

Valium is a good medicine in helping people when they are getting off alcohol, but it should not become a new addiction. It is a tranquilizer and has an addictive effect when taken with alcohol or any depressant medicine. That includes antihistamines.

The antihistamines cause drowsiness and are brain depressants. It follows that antihistamines increase the depressive effects of sedatives, tranquilizers or alcohol.

Why don't you talk to your husband's doctor about your concern? I am not optimistic that your husband will be able to stop his drugs without his doctor's help. If he has a medical reason for taking so much medicine, you should know about it.

There are quite a few drugs that have similar actions, and when moderate amounts of them are taken together, they have the same effect as having taken a very large dose of each. The best-known bad combination is alcohol and sedatives such as phenobarbital. I have discussed these combinations in The Health Letter 12-2, Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 59-year-old male, 5 feet 10, and weigh 168. I'm in reasonably good health, but I do have diabetes and high blood pressure. My diabetes is well controlled by diet alone and my blood pressure is controlled at 130 over 80 with medicine. I play golf four times a week, walk and carry my own bag.

I started taking Metamucil every morning because I read it cuts down bad cholesterol. Is that true? My last test showed my cholesterol was 266 and triglycerides 184. I feel great, thanks to my careful diet and exercise. Also, does lecithin help to cut cholesterol? Will either of these affect my diabetes?

DEAR READER — There are studies that show Metamucil will help to lower cholesterol. This is true of many bulk agents, including raw apples. Bran doesn't seem to have this effect. Apparently, some fibers sequester cholesterol or bile salts in the intestine, preventing them from being absorbed back into the circulation. In this way, fiber lowers cholesterol. Stated another way, some fibers promote the elimination of cholesterol or related chemicals through the bowels.

Lecithin is digested and absorbed as fat and choline. The bulk will not harm your diabetes. Also, if you can lose any extra body fat, that would be a big help for both your diabetes and WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale suffers from tennis elbow and moderately high blood pressure — controlled by daily medication — but is otherwise in excellent health, according to his doctor for 20 years.

"I can only describe him as bouncy," Dr. Milton M. Hurwitz said. "He looks great and he feels good."

Since the first presidential debate Oct. 7, President Reagan's age and health have become an issue in the campaign, and the White House has released extensive information seeking to demonstrate that the president is a vigorous, capable and mentally alert 73-year-old man.

Similarly, Hurwitz said in an interview that there are no physical limitations on the 56-year-old Mondale's ability to serve in the White House.

Hurwitz said that since 1971, like millions of other Americans, Mondale has taken various combinations of drugs designed to keep his blood pressure in the normal range. The current combination consists of atenolol, dyazide and hydralazine.

Occasionally such drugs cause changes in mood in a patient, mainly depression, but Hurwitz said that is not happening with the former vice president.

Before the first presidential debate with Reagan, Hurwitz said, Mondale complained of feeling tired and a little edgy.

Tickets cost $2.75.

Canadian geese

Canadian geese migrate in a wedge or V-shape formation for two reasons. The eyes of the geese are on the side of their heads so they can see the other geese more easily while flying in a V formation. This formation also gives each bird room to flap their long wings, which span up to five feet.
