Ruckelshaus resigns from EPA post

By GUY DARST Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - William D. Ruckelshaus, who at first headed the Environmental Protection Agency and then returned when it was foundering, is abruptly leaving again, contending "the ship called EPA is righted and is now steering a steady course."

But some important Democratic members of Congress weren't so sure it is a friendly departure, citing the simultaneous departure of Ruckelshaus' top aide and the prospects of potential EPA budget cuts by the Reagan administration.

Ruckelshaus said Wednesday he was leaving to return to private life, but did not say what he would be doing. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he expected a successor to be announced "in the next few days.

Speculation on a replacement began almost immediately and three people were said to be in the top tier: Henry Diamond, a Washington lawyer and former aide to New York 'Ship' thought righted

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller; Ann McLaughlin, deputy secretary of Interior, and Lee Thomas, a career federal employee who is the assistant EPA administrator in charge of the "superfund" toxic waste dump cleanup program.

Two sources, speaking on condi- you." tion they not be identified, said Thomas was Ruckelshaus' candidate

Ruckelshaus had been back at the EPA since May 1983, when he was summoned by President Reagan to set about rebuilding morale and getting staffers back to work amid unprecedented turmoil over the controversial policies of his predecessor, Anne Burford.

In his letter of resignation, the government in 1973. Ruckelshaus said he was leaving with "both regret and a sense of ac-

Ruckelshaus said "the ship called EPA is righted and is now steering a steady course," with "first-rate presidential appointees" in place and momentum behind its programs.

A top agency official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said after learning of the decision, "This is not a Saturday night massacre," referring Ruckelshaus' first resignation from said Wednesday night, "He is not leaving with any sense of discontent or disillusionment. He really does feel good about it. He feels he's accomplished what he set out to do."

Others noted that Ruckelshaus had always stressed that he had no commitment to stay beyond the presidential elections.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee and a leader in the investigations that led to the resignation of Mrs. Burford, said "restored a Ruckelshaus remarkable level of public trust in the agency in a very short time."

Environmentalists generally said Ruckelshaus had done a good job, but as they have throughout his tenure, they maintained the White House prevented him from being fully effective.

"I think it's a bad sign for the environment in the second Reagan term," said Bill Turnage, president of the Wilderness Society. "We may get another Burford."

Anti-drug talks made locally

Texans' War on Drugs advocates parent support groups and desires to reverse the harmful affects of peer pressure which many children experience, according t Golightly. Arson case to be continued Continuance was granted Wednesday morning for a rare arson case filed last summer against Pete M. Casias, according to Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul. It is not yet known when the case will be rescheduled to be heard in district court, Saul said this morning. On July 8, Casias allegedly set fire to his 205 Lawton St. residence. The 28-year-old man was found unconscious and not breathing at around 7:45 p.m. His wife, who told county emergency personnel she was a registered nurse, reportedly revived Casias by performing cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

According to the police report, Casias was found to have a .204 percent blood alcohol count. Anna Casias said she and her husband had argued shortly before the fire began.

Jay Spain, Hereford fire marshal, today said it was the only instance he can remember when first-degree felony charges stemming from arson have been filed in the county.

Missing couple case unraveling

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Several months after reopening an investigation into the mysterious 1957 disappearance of an El Paso couple, a lawman says he has "a good idea" who may have killed

But chances are slim he can ever get a grand jury indictment, since he doesn't have a confession, and the bodies of W.D. "Pat" Patterson and his wife, Margaret, were never found, he said

Sheriff's detective Capt. Fred Bonilla emerged Wednesday from a meeting with Assistant District Attorney Bill Moody and said the case is "definitely not ready" to go to a grand jury

"We requested their assistance and asked that if we have trouble getting witnesses to talk that they subpoena them and bring them to grand jury," Bonilla told the El Paso Times.

Bonilla reopened the case in January after receiving new information about the March 6, 1957 disappearance of the Pattersons. Bonilla declined to say what the new information was.

Detective Lt. Garry Gabbert, who is helping in the investigation, said the information that prompted the reopening of the case came from a witness who "was not close to the Pattersons and is completely removed from the case."

Dipping revenues worry legislators

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative leaders in the House and Senate agree the $4.8 billion tax bill passed by the summer session will need some patching in the 1985 session along with some "fine tuning" on the school reform measure.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, dean of the Senate, and Rep. Hugo Berlanga, assistant presiding officer of the House, spoke Wednesday to the annual Legislative Forum sponsored by United Way of Texas. Another speaker was Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Board.

All warned that the 1985 Legislature will face new money problems because of the decline in state revenue, particularly oil and gas and

"It's a story of doom and gloom," Oliver said of financial problems facing the Legislature, which meets Jan. 8.

"I share the opinion that the cupboard is bare," said Brooks.

Regulations might have helped

HOUSTON (AP) - Proposals made after a drilling vessel capsized in 1982 could have saved lives more than a year later if only the Coast Guard had turned them into regulations, a federal agency's report suggests.

The report, issued earlier this month by the National Transportation Safety Board, said the Coast Guard should have set standards for licensing seamen in charge of drilling vessels and should have forced owners of such a ship to add lifeboats when the size of its crew increased from 64 to 81.

Such rules could have saved some of the 81 lives lost Oct. 25, 1983, when the Glomar Java Sea sank during a typhoon in the South China Sea, the report said.

Coast Guard officials, who are compiling their own report on the sinking, refused to comment on the NTSB report. The NTSB findings were based on hearings conducted jointly with the Coast Guard in Houston and in Hong Kong

Weinberger states defense policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in a policy statement that puts him at odds with Secretary of State George Shultz, says U.S. military force should be used only as a last resort and then only "with the clear intention of winning."

Weinberger, often described as one of the Reagan's administration most hawkish members because of his support for large Pentagon budget increases, laid out his views Wednesday in a speech to the National Press Club.

Weinberger's beliefs on the role of military force closely parallel lessons often cited by U.S. military leaders in the wake of the Viet-

Those lessons include using force only when it is backed by public support, only in instances where the U.S. national interests are clear, and then only to clearly win.

Rockies get snow, East rains

Dozens of Oregon elk hunters remained trapped today after a storm packing 80 mph winds and nearly two-foot snowfalls littered mountainsides with downed trees, sent a roof somersaulting into parked cars in Colorado and closed schools in Washington and Idaho.

Forecasters said another storm was gathering strength in the Pacific and could bring more snow to the Northwest as early as tonight.

Meanwhile, rain bathed much of the East where the mercury hit record highs in some areas, while freezing rain turned highways to ice in north-central Iowa.

An avalanche closed an isolated Idaho highway while winds gusted to 40 mph in Salt Lake City and threw snow into drifts 2 feet high in the western Salt Lake Valley on Wednesday. Since Tuesday, 12 to 21 inches have fallen in on Nevada's northern mountains.

Strong westerly winds whistled through Colorado on Wednesday night, and officials in Denver advised homeowners to tie down yard

Sepulveda wants Mexico prepared

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda says the country must prepare for the possibility that large numbers of Mexicans could return from the United States if an immigration control bill passes the U.S. Congress.

Sepulveda told the Mexican Senate on Tuesday that the government should act immediately in case such a migration takes place. Versions of the so-called Simpson-Mazzoli bill passed the U.S. Senate and House this year, but a conference committee could not reconcile the differences. It is expected that the bill will be taken up again in the congressional session next year. Sepulveda spoke about the issue at the end of a lengthy questionand-answer session that followed his statement to the Senate on Tuesday, during which he spoke of the growing risk of regional war in Central America.

Dole puts priority on balancing books orado chairman of the Republican Policy Committee.

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Robert Dole, elected majority leader in a free-for-all among five Senate Republicans, says he will put reducing the federal deficit before reforming tax laws if it comes to a choice between the two.

"If one has to come first, I hope it's deficit reduction," the 61-year-old Kansas lawmaker said after Wednesday's leadership election. "There may be a way to do a twotrack system where we can bring them along together.'

Dole, who replaces outgoing Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee, was elected by a tie-breaking 28-25 vote over the outgoing assistant leader, Ted Stevens of Alaska.

Three other candidates - James A. McClure of Idaho, Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico and Richard Lugar of Indiana - were eliminated before it came down to a face-off between Dole and Stevens.

McClure, unable to add to his core of support among bedrock conservatives, dropped out of the running first, garnering only eight votes among the 53 GOP senators and senators-elect.

Domenici was dropped from the running when he got only 10 votes on the second ballot. On the third, Dole and Stevens tied 20-20 and Lugar drew 13 votes, eliminating him from contention.

Sen. Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming was elected to succeed Stevens as assistant leader, or whip. Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island will take over from McClure as chairman of the Republican conference.

Asked what advice he would have for the president on the budget and taxes, Dole said, "As little as possible. Right now they are sending us options. I don't think we ought to be in a position of doing anything that might delay movement. If I were to say anything, it would be, 'Let's

Reagan holds meeting to discuss new budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Dole, R-Kansas, who has pressed the the federal budget in three years, met with Republican congressional leaders today for the first time since his re-election and discussed the.

Budget director David Stockman, asked before the session whether Reagan would approve a massive plan to trim, or even eliminate, a variety of domestic and defense programs, said, "We are almost there."

Also on the meeting's agenda was the newly released Treasury Department plan to overhaul the tax system. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, another of the briefers, told reporters he thought the president would support the plan "when he reads it and understands it." As for budget-cutting, the White House is considering putting all the domestic spending cuts into one sweeping bill and sending it to Capitol Hill in hopes it would be more difficult for opponents to reject as a package, according to a senior White House official who spoke only on the condition he not be identified. The White House also would be able to portray Democratic leaders as obstructionists on deficit reduction if they refused to allow a vote on one all-encompassing bill, the official said. Reagan, though, said "no decisions have been made. All these are things we have been talking about." One of those at the meeting was the new Senate Majority Leader Robert

Flanked by Dole, Reagan was asked whether they could work together. "Of course we can," he replied.

Later today, Reagan was to discuss further with aides the series of budget-reduction recommendations handed him Wednesday.

After that session, spokesman Larry Speakes said beforehand, Reagan expects to give Stockman his thinking on the proposals. The decisions will then be relayed to Cabinet officers.

The suggestions call for cutbacks in Medicare, Civil Service retirement benefits, and the possible elimination of the Export-Import Bank and urban development action grants for cities.

The goal of the proposed spending cuts is to reduce the deficit to somewhere between $165 billion and $170 billion in the 1986 fiscal year and to slightly more than $100 billion by

Authorities seek man indicted for hijacking

BLAND, Va. (AP) - Police with bloodhounds combed dense woods in sub-freezing temperatures today for a convicted double murderer who walked past a guard and "out the front door of the institution to freedom," officials said.

Federal officials said the escapee, Bryce Matthew Tuller, was also involved in the 1972 hijacking of an airliner to Cuba for which his father and brother are now serving prison

The plane, carrying 33 passengers and a crew of seven, was bound from San Antonio, Texas, to Syracuse, N.Y. It was hijacked when it stopped in Houston for refueling.

The search for Tuller, who escaped Wednesday night, was concentrated near Bland Correctional Center, said Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar.

Tuller, 31, was serving two life sentences for killing a bank manager and a policeman who walked in during a 1972 robbery attempt, Farrar said. The FBI says Tuller helped hijack a plane to Cuba four days after the holdup.

Tuller had taken a package to the basement of the prison administration building, Farrar said. "While the officer was weighing this package, somehow, and I can't tell you how now, the inmate was able to enter the package room and go up a flight of steps to the main floor of the administration building and out the front door of the institution to freedom. "I don't think they've completed questioning this officer that was on duty in the package room.'

Farrar said first reports indicated Tuller used a key or some other device to open the door to the package room. A door at the top of the stairs was left open, and the prison's front door usually is unlocked because workers frequently use it.

he said. Tuller and his father, former state Commerce Department executive Charles Andrew Tuller, were identified by the FBI as two of four men who hijacked a plane to Cuba in 1972.

An Eastern Airlines ticket agent was killed by gunfire and another man was wounded as the hijackers took control of the plane. A third Tuller, Jonathan, son of Charles Andrew Tuller, was identified as another of the hijackers.

Economic forecasting gauge dips last month

government's main economic forecasting gauge declined 0.7 percent last month, marking the first time since the recession year of 1981 that it had dropped in as many as three out of five months, the Commerce Department reported today.

Similar series of declines have sometimes preceded recessions - as in fact happened in 1981 - but Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige has noted that long strings of falling indicators have also sometimes been followed by a mere slowing rather than a halt in economic growth.

Baldrige called today's report on the Index of Leading Economic Indicators "disappointing," but he also said he expected improvement next month and declared, "We are not heading into another recession.

He added, in a statement distributed by aides, that "with a pickup in consumer spending, we should see a faster pace of economic activity next quarter. The best medicine now is concerted action on the budget deficit and lower interest rates."

Today's report, a compilation of 10 separate forward-pointing economic measures, showed seven indicators declining in October, led by a big jump in jobless Americans' firsttime claims for unemployment benefits - a possible indicator of rising overall unemployment figures before long.

First-time claims rose from a September average of 368,000 to 405,000 in October.

Keeping the index from falling even lower were higher prices for sensitive raw materials and increases for the money supply and the net formation of new businesses.

The report also revised earlier estimates, now saying that the leading indicators rose a slight 0.1 percent in August rather than declining by that amount and that they rose 0.6 percent rather than 0.4 percent in September. The index had declined 1 percent in June and 1.8 percent in Ju-

Since moving here from New Mexico in 1973, Bertha Dettmann has been nothing but active in the Hereford community.

Currently, she is president of the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club which she joined shortly after moving here.

"I belonged to a club in New Mexico and I knew I could make myself at home there," she explained. "When I went to a community service demonstration in the Flame Room I met a lady from the club and she took me to the meeting.'

Her favorite aspect of the club is the fellowship with the other members

"I just like people," she exclaimed.

She also said that there is always something a person can learn from the meetings. Not only does her club offer tips on homemaking, but speakers also present information on estate planning and health.

"The club has helped me to be able to continue my ability to speak in front of others like I did when I was teaching," she said. "And I'm grateful for that.'

Dettman has held every office in the club except vice-president. She has also been her club's nominee for Woman of the Year. As president, she is responsible for keeping the club going and acting as a gobetween for the extension office and an organization that wants the club to assist in different projects.

"I have to guide the club," she said, "and make sure that the group follows through.

In addition to her service to the Cultural Extension Club, Dettmann is a Red Cross volunteer. In this capacity she has helped with the chili supper and the numerous blood pressure clinics. She is a charter member of the Hospital Auxiliary in which she presently holds the office of secretary, and is involved with the King's Manor Auxiliary.

"The King's Manor Auxiliary furnishes a sunshine cart which brings things like soap, kleenex and cards to the various rooms," she explained. "We also furnish rides for people at either Westgate or King's Manor who can no longer drive.

"The group plans the birthday parties for Westgate and sets up for the Founder's Dinner," she concluded.

She also is corresponding secretary for the Lone Star Study Club and is a member of the First United Methodist Church. Within the church she is active in United Methodist Women and Nettie Slaton's circle.

When she is not working with one of her organizations, she loves to read novels and play bridge. At one time, she crocheted, knitted and made all types of crafts.

Dettmann enjoys travelling and has been to Canada and many places in the United States. Before her husband's death, they travelled frequently.

"We both always liked to go," she recalled.

She has been on every tour that the Senior Citizen's have sponsored including this year's World Fair and a trip to New Mexico and Colorado last fall to see the foliage.

Before giving her time almost exclusively to service, she taught school for 33 years. She taught and started the first business class in the high school in Wagon Mound, N.M.

"I always said that the one thing I would not do was teach," she laughed. "Once I started, though, I really enjoyed it.

"I told my students to never say you're not going to do anything because I'm the best example of being proven wrong."

Dettmann attended West Texas State University where she received her bachelor's degree in government and business with a teaching cer-

Missing couple case unraveling

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Several months after reopening an investigation into the mysterious 1957 disappearance of an El Paso couple, a lawman says he has "a good idea" who may have killed

But chances are slim he can ever get a grand jury indictment, since he doesn't have a confession, and the bodies of W.D. "Pat" Patterson and his wife, Margaret, were never found, he said.

Sheriff's detective Capt. Fred Bonilla emerged Wednesday from a meeting with Assistant District Attorney Bill Moody and said the case is "definitely not ready" to go to a grand jury

We requested their assistance and asked that if we have trouble getting witnesses to talk that they subpoena them and bring them to grand jury," Bonilla told the El Paso Times.

Bonilla reopened the case in January after receiving new information about the March 6, 1957 disappearance of the Pattersons. Bonilla declined to say what the new information was. Detective Lt. Garry Gabbert, who is helping in the investigation, said the information that prompted the reopening of the case came from a witness who "was not close to the Pattersons and is completely removed from the case."

Dipping revenues worry legislators

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative leaders in the House and Senate agree the $4.8 billion tax bill passed by the summer session will need some patching in the 1985 session along with some "fine tuning" on the school reform measure.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, dean of the Senate, and Rep. Hugo Berlanga, assistant presiding officer of the House, spoke Wednesday to the annual Legislative Forum sponsored by United Way of Texas. Another speaker was Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Board. All warned that the 1985 Legislature will face new money problems because of the decline in state revenue, particularly oil and gas and

"It's a story of doom and gloom," Oliver said of financial problems facing the Legislature, which meets Jan. 8.

"I share the opinion that the cupboard is bare," said Brooks.

Regulations might have helped

HOUSTON (AP) - Proposals made after a drilling vessel capsized in 1982 could have saved lives more than a year later if only the Coast Guard had turned them into regulations, a federal agency's report suggests.

The report, issued earlier this month by the National Transportation Safety Board, said the Coast Guard should have set standards for licensing seamen in charge of drilling vessels and should have forced owners of such a ship to add lifeboats when the size of its crew increased from 64 to 81.

Such rules could have saved some of the 81 lives lost Oct. 25, 1983, when the Glomar Java Sea sank during a typhoon in the South China Sea, the report said.

Coast Guard officials, who are compiling their own report on the sinking, refused to comment on the NTSB report. The NTSB findings were based on hearings conducted jointly with the Coast Guard in Houston and in Hong Kong.

Weinberger states defense policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in a policy statement that puts him at odds with Secretary of State George Shultz, says U.S. military force should be used only as a last resort and then only "with the clear intention of winning."

Weinberger, often described as one of the Reagan's administration most hawkish members because of his support for large Pentagon budget increases, laid out his views Wednesday in a speech to the National Press Club.

Weinberger's beliefs on the role of military force closely parallel lessons often cited by U.S. military leaders in the wake of the Viet-

Those lessons include using force only when it is backed by public support, only in instances where the U.S. national interests are clear, and then only to clearly win.

Weinberger and Shultz have often differed in the past two years and Weinberger spelled out his beliefs again Wednesday, although he did not name Shultz.

Rockies get snow, East rains

Dozens of Oregon elk hunters remained trapped today after a storm packing 80 mph winds and nearly two-foot snowfalls littered mountainsides with downed trees, sent a roof somersaulting into parked cars in Colorado and closed schools in Washington and Idaho. Forecasters said another storm was gathering strength in the Pacific and could bring more snow to the Northwest as early as Meanwhile, rain bathed much of the East where the mercury hit record highs in some areas, while freezing rain turned highways to ice in north-central Iowa.

An avalanche closed an isolated Idaho highway while winds gusted to 40 mph in Salt Lake City and threw snow into drifts 2 feet high in the western Salt Lake Valley on Wednesday. Since Tuesday, 12 to 21 inches have fallen in on Nevada's northern mountains.

Strong westerly winds whistled through Colorado on Wednesday night, and officials in Denver advised homeowners to tie down yard equipment.

Sepulveda wants Mexico prepared

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda says the country must prepare for the possibility that large numbers of Mexicans could return from the United States if an immigration control bill passes the U.S. Congress.

Sepulveda told the Mexican Senate on Tuesday that the government should act immediately in case such a migration takes place. Versions of the so-called Simpson-Mazzoli bill passed the U.S. Senate and House this year, but a conference committee could not reconcile the differences. It is expected that the bill will be taken up again in the congressional session next year. Sepulveda spoke about the issue at the end of a lengthy questionand-answer session that followed his statement to the Senate on Tuesday, during which he spoke of the growing risk of regional war in Central America. The text of the entire appearance later was distributed to the news

"It seems to me that in a realistic appraisal of what could take place in the future the Simpson-Mazzoli Bill, or some other equivalent bill, probably could be introduced and perhaps at some time which I could not determine might be approved by the American Congress and the American chief of state," Sepulveda

Dole puts priority on balancing books

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Robert Dole, elected majority leader in a free-for-all among five Senate Republicans, says he will put reducing the federal deficit before reforming tax laws if it comes to a choice between the two.

"If one has to come first, I hope it's deficit reduction," the 61-year-old Kansas lawmaker said after Wednesday's leadership election. "There may be a way to do a twotrack system where we can bring them along together.'

Dole, who replaces outgoing Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee, was elected by a tie-breaking 28-25 vote over the outgoing assistant leader, Ted Stevens of Alaska.

Three other candidates — James A. McClure of Idaho, Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico and Richard Lugar of Indiana - were eliminated before it came down to a face-off between Dole and Stevens.

McClure, unable to add to his core of support among bedrock conservatives, dropped out of the running first, garnering only eight votes among the 53 GOP senators and senators-elect.

Domenici was dropped from the running when he got only 10 votes on the second ballot. On the third, Dole and Stevens tied 20-20 and Lugar drew 13 votes, eliminating him from contention.

Sen. Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming was elected to succeed Stevens as assistant leader, or whip. Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island will take over from McClure as chairman of the Republican conference.

Sen. Thad Cochran of Mississippi was elected conference secretary and Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado chairman of the Republican Policy Committee.

In the closest election of the day, Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania defeated Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming by a 27-26 margin to head the National Republican Senatorial Committee, the GOP senators' political campaigning arm.

Dole said the Senate leadership would meet with President Reagan

Asked what advice he would have for the president on the budget and taxes, Dole said, "As little as possible. Right now they are sending us options. I don't think we ought to be in a position of doing anything that might delay movement. If I were to say anything, it would be, 'Let's Reagan called Dole "a man of wit and wisdom" at an elegant dinner Wednesday night in the Great Hall of the Library of Congress and told the new leader, "We look forward to working with you, Bob.'

The leadership election shuffled some committee chairmanships and settled others.

Dole has to give up his leadership of the Finance Committee. His place will be taken by Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, less of an administration loyalist than the Kansan has been. Sen. John Danforth of Missouri will succeed Packwood as chairman of the Commerce Committee.

But both Lugar and Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina said Lugar will now definitely be chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, succeeding Illinois Sen. Charles H. Percy, defeated in the Nov. 6 elec-

This had been a question mark because some conservatives wanted Helms to switch from the Agriculture chairmanship.

Reagan holds meeting to discuss new budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Dole, R-Kansas, who has pressed the the federal budget in three years, met with Republican congressional leaders today for the first time since his re-election and discussed the

Budget director David Stockman, asked before the session whether Reagan would approve a massive plan to trim, or even eliminate, a variety of domestic and defense programs, said, "We are almost there."

Also on the meeting's agenda was the newly released Treasury Department plan to overhaul the tax system. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, another of the briefers, told reporters he thought the president would support the plan "when he reads it and understands it." As for budget-cutting, the White House is considering putting all the domestic spending cuts into one sweeping bill and sending it to Capitol Hill in hopes it would be more difficult for opponents to reject as a package, according to a senior White House official who spoke only on the

condition he not be identified. The White House also would be able to portray Democratic leaders as obstructionists on deficit reduction if they refused to allow a vote on one all-encompassing bill, the official said.

Reagan, though, said "no decisions have been made. All these are things we have been talking about."

One of those at the meeting was the new Senate Majority Leader Robert

Flanked by Dole, Reagan was asked whether they could work together. "Of course we can," he replied.

Later today, Reagan was to discuss further with aides the series of budget-reduction recommendations handed him Wednesday.

After that session, spokesman Larry Speakes said beforehand, Reagan expects to give Stockman his thinking on the proposals. The decisions will then be relayed to Cabinet The suggestions call for cutbacks in Medicare, Civil Service retirement benefits, and the possible elimination of the Export-Import Bank and urban development action grants for cities.

The goal of the proposed spending cuts is to reduce the deficit to somewhere between $165 billion and $170 billion in the 1986 fiscal year and to slightly more than $100 billion by

The deficit for the 1985 fiscal year, which ends next Sept. 30, is projected at $206 billion, above the record $195.4 billion posted in 1983.

Stockman, in charge of the effort to put together a fiscal plan for 1986, on Wednesday gave the president a black, loose-leaf notebook outlining the budget-reduction suggestions drawn up by a high-level working

Authorities seek man indicted for hijacking

BLAND, Va. (AP) - Police with bloodhounds combed dense woods in sub-freezing temperatures today for a convicted double murderer who walked past a guard and "out the front door of the institution to freedom," officials said.

Federal officials said the escapee, Bryce Matthew Tuller, was also involved in the 1972 hijacking of an airliner to Cuba for which his father and brother are now serving prison The plane, carrying 33 passengers and a crew of seven, was bound from San Antonio, Texas, to Syracuse, N.Y. It was hijacked when it stopped in Houston for refueling. The search for Tuller, who escaped

Wednesday night, was concentrated near Bland Correctional Center, said Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar. Tuller, 31, was serving two life sentences for killing a bank manager and a policeman who walked in during a 1972 robbery attempt, Farrar said. The FBI says Tuller helped hijack a plane to Cuba four days after the holdup,

Tuller had taken a package to the basement of the prison administration building, Farrar said. "While the officer was weighing this package, somehow, and I can't tell you how now, the inmate was able to enter the package room and go up a flight of steps to the main floor of the administration building and out the front door of the institution to freedom. "I don't think they've completed questioning this officer that was on duty in the package room.'

Farrar said first reports indicated Tuller used a key or some other device to open the door to the package room. A door at the top of the stairs was left open, and the prison's front door usually is unlocked because workers frequently use it, Tuller and his father, former state Commerce Department executive Charles Andrew Tuller, were identified by the FBI as two of four men who hijacked a plane to Cuba in 1972.

An Eastern Airlines ticket agent was killed by gunfire and another man was wounded as the hijackers took control of the plane. A third Tuller, Jonathan, son of Charles Andrew Tuller, was identified as another of the hijackers.

Economic forecasting gauge dips last month

government's main economic average work week, in stock prices, forecasting gauge declined 0.7 percent last month, marking the first time since the recession year of 1981 that it had dropped in as many as three out of five months, the Commerce Department reported today.

Similar series of declines have sometimes preceded recessions - as in fact happened in 1981 - but Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige has noted that long strings of falling indicators have also sometimes been followed by a mere slowing rather than a halt in economic growth.

Baldrige called today's report on the Index of Leading Economic Indicators "disappointing," but he also said he expected improvement next month and declared, "We are not heading into another recession.

He added, in a statement distributed by aides, that "with a pickup in consumer spending, we should see a faster pace of economic activity next quarter. The best medicine now is concerted action on the budget deficit and lower interest rates."

Today's report, a compilation of 10 separate forward-pointing economic measures, showed seven indicators declining in October, led by a big jump in jobless Americans' firsttime claims for unemployment benefits - a possible indicator of rising overall unemployment figures before long. First-time claims rose from a September average of 368,000 to 405,000 in October.

Other negative indicators were the less favorable figures for the speed of business deliveries and the declines in contracts and orders for

Staff Writer Since moving here from New Mexico in 1973, Bertha Dettmann has been nothing but active in the Hereford community.

Currently, she is president of the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club which she joined shortly after moving here.

"I belonged to a club in New Mexico and I knew I could make myself at home there," she explained. "When I went to a community service demonstration in the Flame Room I met a lady from the club and she took me to the meeting."

Her favorite aspect of the club is the fellowship with the other members.

"I just like people," she exclaim-

She also said that there is always something a person can learn from the meetings. Not only does her club offer tips on homemaking, but speakers also present information on estate planning and health.

"The club has helped me to be able to continue my ability to speak in front of others like I did when I was teaching," she said. "And I'm grateful for that."

Dettman has held every office in the club except vice-president. She has also been her club's nominee for Woman of the Year. As president, she is responsible for keeping the club going and acting as a gobetween for the extension office and an organization that wants the club to assist in different projects.

"I have to guide the club," she said, "and make sure that the group follows through.'

In addition to her service to the Cultural Extension Club, Dettmann is a Red Cross volunteer. In this capacity she has helped with the chili supper and the numerous blood pressure clinics. She is a charter member of the Hospital Auxiliary in which she presently holds the office of secretary, and is involved with the King's Manor Auxiliary.

"The King's Manor Auxiliary furnishes a sunshine cart which brings things like soap, kleenex and cards to the various rooms," she explained. "We also furnish rides for people at either Westgate or King's Manor who can no longer drive.

The group plans the birt ties for Westgate and sets up for the Founder's Dinner," she concluded.

She also is corresponding secretary for the Lone Star Study Club and is a member of the First United Methodist Church. Within the church she is active in United Methodist Women and Nettie Slaton's circle.

When she is not working with one of her organizations, she loves to read novels and play bridge. At one time, she crocheted, knitted and made all types of crafts.

Dettmann enjoys travelling and has been to Canada and many places in the United States. Before her husband's death, they travelled fre-

"We both always liked to go," she

Before giving her time almost exclusively to service, she taught school for 33 years. She taught and started the first business class in the high school in Wagon Mound, N.M.

"I always said that the one thing I would not do was teach," she laughed. "Once I started, though, I really enjoyed it.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am female, 22, and in good health, or so I thought until recently. I took a free colon-cancer test and the results came back positive. Now I am in the process of taking the test over again so they can test the specimen more thoroughly.

Could this be due to something other than cancer? I know I have a mild case of hemorrhoids and I wonder if that could be what the test

DEAR READER - You have asked a question that is important for many people. Those tests for colon cancer are very important, because colon cancer is one of the top three causes for cancer deaths in both men and women. The tests help to find the cancer early, which makes it more likely that it can be cured.

But the test is a screening test: It identifies people who need further person has a positive test, it does not no reason to panic, but it is important to find out where the blood is coming from. If it is due to hemorrhoids and your colon is clear, you are OK as far

I am 22, not a virgin and didn't have this problem in the past. It has been several years since I last had sex, but I'm not shy, Do you have any ideas or suggestions? I hope you can provide assistance.

DEAR READER - You may be the victim of a lack of confidence. Just because a man has been sexually active before does not mean he can't lose his confidence. It is often called a "fear of failure." How do you overcome that? One way is: Don't force yourself to have sex. Instead, enjoy a close, intimate, loving situation, with the understanding that it is not going to lead to sex at that time. As you get used to loving and being loved, your confidence may be restored, and eventually, when you are ready, Nature will do the rest.

If that doesn't work, then you might consider seeing a doctor. Just because you are young doesn't mean you couldn't have a medical problem causing impotence. The fact that you have normal early responses does suggest that you have all the normal

Educate at home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have been extremely helpful over the years in helping to prevent mental retardation and brain damage from accidents, poisonings and failure to immurize children. Unfortunately, we are losing the battle because of another problem that is becoming epidemic throughout the countryteen pregnancy.

For the general population, the odds of having a retarded child are 1.5 out of 100 births. The odds that the baby of a young teenager will be permanently damaged are 40 out of every 100 births. This is due to several factors: use of drugs, alcohol and cigarettes during pregnancy, inadequate nutrition (too much junk food), lack of proper prenatal care and because a teenager's body generally is not ready for having babies (children having children).

Each year in this country 600,000 babies are born to girls between the ages of 10 and 18. In 1978, 9,000 babies were born to girls 11 years old or younger. Somehow, we must find a way to solve this problem or society will be paying the price, in both human suffering and financial commitment for generations to come. Please, Ann, get this information across to the public and tell them what to do about it .- Don Moss, Executive Director, Association For Retarded Citizens Of Illinois ideas at a very early age, thanks to the media, mainly TV. Powerful sexual stimulation overloads the adolescent's circuits and the results can be disastrous. Youngsters who become sexually active before they are physically and emotionally ready get off to a very poor start in life.

Children need information that will enable them to make wholesome, healthy decisions on how to deal with their natural, normal instincts. They also need to understand the consequences of irresponsible behavior.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a reply to "A Transplanted Laws Guylander." It is a darned good thing you left Long Island. With friends like you who needs enemies?

By DENNIS BALL Sports Editor

Hereford High School girls basketball coach Larry Sowers said that although the Whitefaces were capable of playing better than they did Tuesday night against Tascosa, he wasn't overly concerned.

The Herd shot only 37.3 percent from the field in a 45-37 win in the District 3-5A opener.

"The important thing is getting off on the right foot," Sowers said. "We are capable of playing better, but that doesn't bother me too much. Now if we had lost and played that poorly, I'd really be concerned."

Rebounding and defense helped compensate for the poor shooting effort by the Whitefaces. Darla Alford, a 5-8 senior, and Shelly Edwards, a 5-11 junior, each had seven rebounds for the evening. In addition, Alford grabbed four offensive boards and Edwards picked off three.

Several of those offensive rebounds directly resulted in points for Hereford. "Early in the game, I thought our rebounding helped us out a lot," Sowers said. "It was important to get those early scores. We still have some people who need to be stronger with their rebounding, though." Utilizing a half-court trap, the Whitefaces forced 14 Rebel turnovers. The Herd almost is forced to run a half-court trap instead of a fullcourt press because the team lacks quickness, Sowers said.

The Whitefaces missed too many easy shots early after forcing those turnovers, he added.

Neither team scored for almost two minutes into the ball game, the Whitefaces missing at least two

'Some of the time, we're just forcing the ball up there," Sowers said. "We missed some easy shots in the first half, but we also weren't taking very good ones. High school girls need to shoot between 40 and 50 percent to be competitive. At least they'll be scoring some points if they

Chris Evert Lloyd, tuning up for her expected showdown with Martina Navratilova, wasted little time today in disposing of West Germany's Myriam Schropp to advance to the quarterfinals of the $1.28 million Australian Open tennis tournament.

The 29-year-old American won her 999th career match 6-1, 6-0 in just 44 minutes.

Lloyd now faces 18-year-old French player Pascale Paradis, a 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 upset winner over 13thseeded Jo Durie of Britain.

In other women's play, fourthseeded Aussie Wendy Turnbull defeated Iva Budrova of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-1 to push her career earnings past $2 million, and West German Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, the fifth seed, beat compatriot Bettina Bunge 6-2, 6-4.

Defending men's champion Mats Wilander of Sweden, two-time former champion Johan Kriek of the United States and rising Australian player Pat Cash advanced to the third round.

The 20-year-old Wilander edged New Zealander David Mustard 1-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3 after overcoming a 5-2 deficit in the third set. The South African-born Kriek, the fourth seed, recorded a 6-4, 6-3, 7-6 victory over Brad Drewett of Australia. The fifthseeded Cash, 19, took American Andy Andrews 7-5, 7-6, 6-1.

Max Baer won the world heavy-weight boxing title by knocking out Primo Carnera in the 11th round on June 14, 1934, in New York.

Basketball break beneficial

Sports Editor

A 13-day break for the Hereford Whitefaces boys basketball team should give coach Mike Fields and his unit some time to work on weaknesses.

But the first-year varsity coach has to be somewhat pleased with his team's performance thus far.

The Whitefaces dropped their first game against two wins Tuesday night to Pampa in the HHS gym. But it wasn't without a fight, finally bowing 59-57. Hereford is not scheduled to play again until Dec. 7 and 8 in the Amarillo tournament.

"We've found out in these first few games that we can play with anybody if we play well," Fields said. "We've also found out that if we get behind, people won't be able to relax on us because we can come Hereford was down at halftime 34-31 and trailed by as many as 14 points in the third quarter. However, the Whitefaces had a chance to win the ball game in the last :06, trailing 58-57, but a 6-foot jump shot went get us ready for district (which opens Dec. 11 against Plainview), Fields added.

The Herd Tuesday still was without the services of post-player Lee Brockman, who injured his ankle in a scrimmage against Canyon. Fields said with the absence of the 210-pound senior, Pampa outmuscled the Whitefaces inside.

"He (Brockman) missed last night, and probably will be out for at least two more weeks," the coach said. "Other teams probably will try to do that (out-muscle the Herd inside), too, but with Brockman in there, it will be a little harder for

"Even though Pampa was taller, we should have taken the ball inside more. They played a zone defense on us, and we had to take a lot of outside shots. Their press (primarily a halfcourt trap) hurt some. And that's something we'll have to work on."

For the night, Hereford shot 35 percent from the field. Fields said anytime a team is forced to take 15and 18-foot jump shots, shooting percentages will be low.

One Hereford player who didn't let much, however, was 6-2 post-player Kevin Redus. The senior had his best night defensively, Fields said, grabbing 12 rebounds.

Also defensively, Hereford made use of a full-court zone press much of the game. However, when Pampa had built a sizeable advantage - due in part to 17 Hereford turnovers the Whitefaces sacrificied size and went to a man-to-man press.

"The game Tuesday says a lot about our kids," Fields said, "that they won't give up. We still have a lot of things to work on, but the guys have come a long way.

"Last year, Pampa beat us by 36 points. We only lost one senior off that team, too. Bobby Decker (coach of the 1983-84 team) stuck with the inexperienced team he had last year, and that sure makes what I'm doing a lot easier."

Redskins looking for first place

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - On paper, tonight's National Football League game between the Washington Redskins and the Minnesota Vikings looks like a mismatch.

By beating struggling Minnesota, the Redskins would be in first place in the NFC's Eastern Division, although not by much and perhaps not for long.

The Redskins, the New York Giants and the Dallas Cowboys began today in a three-way tie for first in the NFC East at 8-5. Despite a statistical and historical tilt his way, Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs isn't relaxed.

'We do have a lot at stake, but I've found it doesn't seem to matter," Gibbs said. "Whenever we get a chance to really do something, to put ourselves out in front, we don't do

Washington has gone to the Super Bowl the last two years, thanks to strong regular-season finishes.

"It's hard for me to even remember last year, I'm so embroiled in this year, but you hope there's some carry-over value," said Gibbs, whose teams won their last four games in 1982 and '83.

The last-place Vikings, 3-10, are suffering their worst season since 1962, having lost eight of their last

"We haven't done anything the last three weeks, so hopefully we'll play well," said Vikings quarterback Wade Wilson, who will play instead "There's an awful lot of pride on the line and it would be nice to ruin it for someone else,"

The Redskins' offense, which rang up an NFL-record 541 points last year, was healthy again in Sunday's 41-14 rout of Buffalo.

Joe Theismann has been rewriting chunks of the Redskins' record book, Art Monk leads the NFL in receptions, receiver Charlie Brown is healthy again and John Riggins has rushed for a dozen touchdowns and 1,052 yards.

The punchless Vikings, meanwhile, gained only 161 yards last week in a 34-3 loss to Chicago, their worst production of the year. Besides Kramer's shoulder problems, which will sideline him for the fifth time, Ted Brown and Sammy White won't

The Redskins' defense has held opponents to fewer than 200 yards the last two weeks and ranks third in the NFC. Washington also leads the NFL with 55 sacks, a club high.

The Vikings have the league's worst-ranked defense, are last in sacks with 20 and have allowed 121 points the last three losing weeks.

Ricky Bell dead at 29

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ricky Bell, a standout running back at the University of Southern California from 1974-76 who later played six years in the National Football League, died of a cardiac arrest, a spokeswoman at Southern Cal said. He was 29.

Bell had suffered from dermatomyositis, an inflammation of the skin and muscles, and a severe muscular disease of the heart called cardiomyopathy related to the dermatomyositis, according to his physician, Dr. Allan Metzger of Beverly Hills, who said the cardiac arrest was a result of the diseases.

SKIING

PUY ST. VINCENT, France (AP) - Thomas Buergler of Switzerland thwarted the challenge of a powerful group of Italian skiers and his own teammates to win the closing event of the four-day World Series of Ski competition, a men's giant slalom race.

Buergler, 24, was fourth after the first heat, but he skied the fastest second run to capture his first-ever international race. He finished ahead of Italy's Robert Erlacher and Pirmin Zurbriggen.

ST.MORITZ, Switzerland (AP) -Peter Mueller, the Olympic silver medalist in the downhill, led a 1-2-3 Swiss sweep of a Super-G ski race on the Corvatsch course.

Mueller was timed in 1:27.62 for the 2,900-meter race, with two Swiss B-team members, Stephan Roduit and Werner Marty trailing him.

Sowers said he views this tourney to do well, they will have to beat some good teams, he said.

Fourteen teams are entered in the three-day affair. After meeting Clovis, however, Hereford is not to play again until Saturday.

"There are some good teams in this tournament," Sowers said. "Littlefield always has a good team, and Plainview beat Palo Duro (Tuesday) by one point. We could play any of those teams on Saturday."

Lubbock joins Hereford, Plainview and Palo Duro to represent 3-5A in the tourney. Although most basketball-tournament directors try to avoid scheduling teams from the same district, Sowers doesn't seem to mind too much that four are entered. That fact will give the Hereford coach a chance to scout for league play.

"I don't like starting district play as early as we did (Tuesday),' Sowers continued, "but we didn't have a choice. You have to make critical judgements too early in the season about who you are going to play. And you can be out of it (the league race) by Christmas.

"With this tournament, at least we'll be able to get a break before starting district again (Dec. 11 against Plainview)."

If the Herd should compete against Plainview, Palo Duro or Lubbock, the games would not count on the Whitefaces' league record.

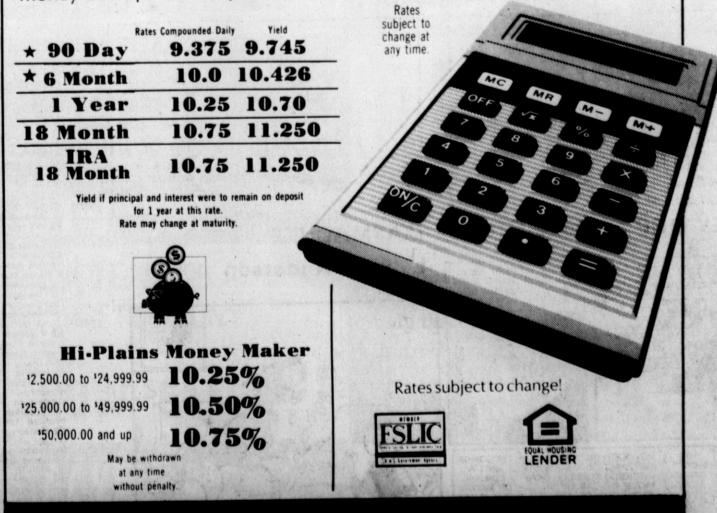

"We'd like to win the tournament, of course," Sowers said. "But the main thing we're playing it for is to get some games under our belt. It's not that important to bring home a

If the Whitefaces are defeated Thursday and again the first game Saturday, they will be eliminated from competition. If Hereford wins Saturday - regardless of the outcome Thursday - it is assured a third game later that day.

Vote sampling shows Republican inroads

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -President Reagan drew 27 percent of the Hispanic vote in Texas, indicating Republicans have a chance at making dramatic inroads among the minority group, officials of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project said Wednesday.

The project, which works to put minorities on the voter registration rolls, conducted exit polls in Hispanic precincts in Texas during the general election.

"Our study clearly points out that Reagan received 27 percent of the Hispanic vote," said project director Willie Velasquez. "Republicans do have a chance to make dramatic inroads into the Hispanic vote."

Dr. Robert Brischetto, research director for the project, said early election polls indicated Mexican-American voters were caught up in the Reagan landslide.

"President Reagan increased his support among Mexican-American voters, but not as much as did the population as a whole," Brischetto

"The Mexican-American vote in 1984 was not a determining factor in the outcome of the election since Anglo voting was too lopsided in Reagan's favor," Brischetto said. "Mexican-Americans gave three times as much support to Walter Mondale than they did to Ronald Reagan.'

The project's pollsters talked to 2,835 Texans, including 2,106 Hispanics, 610 Anglos and 119 blacks. The results carried a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points. Velasquez said President Reagan received more support from Hispanics than any Republican presidential candidate to date. His Hispanic support in Texas in 1980 was 19 percent, compared to 79 percent for other candidates. A high percentage - 71 percent of those Hispanics with incomes above $50,000 voted for Reagan, the percent for President Carter and 2

exit survey showed. Those Mexican-Americans who voted for Reagan, Velasquez said, cast their ballot because they supported the president, not as an anti-Walter Mondale vote.

Those who voted for Mondale "indicated they were motivated by anti-Reagan feelings rather than because they felt good about Mondale," Velasquez said.

Despite the poll results, Velasquez said Hispanics have not changed their minds on the issues.

We (Hispanics) are still influenced by what's happening in the rest of the country. And the rest of the country is enchanted with Reagan," he said.

The exit poll was able to pinpoint that higher income, more educated and younger Hispanics were more likely to vote for the President.

Velasquez also attributed Reagan's success with the minority on the Democratic Party's failure to target Texas voters.

"Two months into the election the Democrats wrote off Texas," Velasquez said. "Meanwhile the Republicans put forth sophisticated effort to woo the Hispanic voter in Texas.'

Velasquez said the voter registration project will continue to work to sign up voters "and turn out the vote in local elections."

The exit poll also showed Mexican-American participation in the election was up 22 percent over 1980. The project credited the jump to increased voter registration.

Velasquez also said the project plans to file 100 lawsuits to challenge school districts, junior college districts and cities governed by boards elected on an at-large basis throughout the southwest.

"And we expect to win them all,"

Officials outline merger plans

HOUSTON (AP) -Chevron Corp. will re-shuffle some 2,700 Houston employees once its merger with Gulf Oil Corp. is complete, but more that 800 Gulf workers in other Texas cities will be unaffected, company officials say.

Combining the two companies will give the merged firm a strong footing in the oil industry, Kenneth T. Derr, a Chevron vice president, said Wednesday.

In March, Gulf, which has several division offices in Houston, accepted Standard Oil of California's $13.3 billion merger offer - the largest corporate takeover in U.S. history. Socal was the parent company of Chevron.

Derr said company officials have been studying ways to merge the two firm's operations and more than 79,000 employees.

The merged company will operate under the Chevron

Starting in mid-1985, some 1,700 Gulf workers will be transferred from jobs in Houston to Chevron's San Francisco headquarters as a result of the merger, Derr said. About 1,000 others jobs will be eliminated because they already exist within

Most of the 2,700 employees who will be affected by the merger work in Gulf's accounting and computer-related operations, Derr said. Gulf offices unaffected in Texas include Midland, with 452 employees, and Odessa, with 276 workers, plus a Gulf production office in Kilgore, which employs 103 people, spokesman Mike Johnson severance pay, depending on their length of service, as well as some retirement beneifts and job placement assistance, Derr said.

When the job changes and relocations are complete in a year to 18 months Chevron expects to have some 3,000 employees in the Houston area, Derr said. The merged company will have about 10,000 employees in Texas when the two companies are consolidated, he said.

Gulf Vice President Louis Fernandez said few employees have left the company because of the takeover.

Chevron will have offices in Houston for five of its major divisions as a result of the merger, Derr said. Among them is its newly formed Southern Region, which will be the company's largest oil producing area, Derr said.

The merger also calls for Chevron to put an office in Houston that will oversee the company's marketing operations in Louisiana and southern Texas.

In addition, Houston will be the headquarters for Chevron's chemical division after it is merged with the larger chemical division operated in Houston by Gulf, Derr said.

Three of Gulf's technology departments will be incorporated into Chevron Geoscience Co. of Houston and Chevron will expand its Houston-based Eastern Supply Region to absorb Gulf's domestic supply division office, Derr said. Derr said both Gulf and Chevron have begun to emphasize oil exploration production within the United States and the merger comfered transfers will be offered pany will continue to do the

Denton man possesses antique barbed wire

DENTON, Texas (AP) -J.C. Payne has traveled almost every "little dirt road all over the country" searching for antique barbed wire, and now has a collection that includes samples of more than 600 different types of wire. He has balls of wire from Kansas, World War I wire from Germany and England. Nicaraguan wire and thick wire designed to keep buffalo off railroad tracks. There are strips of Australian wire, Canadian wire, military wire and decorative wire.

And, of course, there are thousands of pieces of barbed wire from every part of the United States. The 63-yearold Denton resident likes to have "hundreds" of pieces of wire on hand, and he cuts many of them in 18-inch strips, the length preferred by collectors.

"I just like it in quantities," Payne said. "I've hunted wire...from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from Old Mexico to Canada. I go down country roads looking and if I find wire on a fence I go ask the owner (if I can have some). A lot of this wire you see on these old fences is old." Many times, he said, the owners "will invite you in for a cup of coffee and go help you hunt (for wire). We've got friends all over the country. Collecting friends is the main thing." When Payne and his wife, Elsie Ruth Payne, visit the state of New York they often try to find relatives of the man who originally designed the different types of barbed "It's amazing and real interesting to run into the sons and grandsons of the people who patented the wire," he

There are about 1,000 different types of barbed wire,

Payne, who knows the history and name of each kind of wire he owns, doesn't display his collection in cases, but instead has organized it in his garage, yard and barn. "I can look at it out here. I mess with it every day."

He does take some pieces to barbed wire shows in Texas and Oklahoma. Most of the wire in Payne's garage has been cut into 18-inch lengths and is organized according to Jack Glover's "Bobbed Wire Bible." He has more than 380 types of wire laid out in his garage and has dozens of barbed wire rolls lined up in his back yard. There are "stacks and boxes" of wire and many old tools for handling barbed wire in his barn, he said. Payne, who has collected wire 17 years and also collects bricks and old bottles, said he began gathering barbed wire because it was "something different. I never collected anything before I started. I just like old stuff. I remember the time when I could have cared less about any of this.

"If I sell my wire, I use the money to go hunt some more. I haven't been hunting lately because I haven't been selling lately. I don't have as much as I used to."

Although Payne's wire from Nicaragua is worth about $200 a strand, most bring between 25 cents and $1, he said. "I just deal with more common wire."

Payne was reared near Pilot Point and has lived in his Cooper Creek home for 22 years. He said his grandfather settled in the Pilot Point area in the 1880s.

Senate leadership a bit more liberal

WASHINGTON (AP) Geography and personalities may have played as big a role as ideology in shaping the new leadership President Reagan faces in the Republicancontrolled Senate.

Some members of the new team are notably less conservative than those they replace.

Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island, for example, one of the more liberal GOP members, takes the place of Sen. James A. McClure of Idaho, one of its most conservative, as chairman of the Republican Conference.

But the new majority leader, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, is a generally middle-of-the-road Republican much like Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee, whom he replaces.

"We have been pretty close to the political center of gravity in the Senate, and I think we will stay that way," said Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado, new chairman of the GOP Policy Committee.

Dole took the same line, saying, "I don't think there is any shift."

And Sen. John Warner of Virginia said Wednesday's Senate GOP balloting "in no way can be interpreted, in my opinion, as a rejection of the strong conservative underpinnings of the Senate today."

Still, the results could have been more conservative than they were.

McClure, for instance, was the first candidate eliminated in the series of secret ballots that culminated in Dole's election as majority leader. Chafee turned back the conservative Sen. Jake Garn of Utah for the conference chairmanship.

Sen. Pete Wilson of California said the balloting was affected by "geography, philosophy and perhaps most of all, friendship."

'Geography played an important part,' said Wilson, one of 20 Republican senators from the West, the largest bloc from any region.

Committee chairmanships were also affected by the balloting, with mixed results.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, unsuccessful in his bid for majority leader, becomes chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Lugar is not as conservative as Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, whom the leaders of the "New Right" wanted for the job, but he is still pretty conservative.
