Block's speech to ranchers political

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block told cattle feeders Tuesday that the president would need their help in writing a new farm bill and getting the budget balanced.

Mostly, Black talked politics and touted the accomplishments of the Reagan administration. His speech was filed with such phrases as, "America is marching back," and, "There's no limit to what we can and will accomplish."

Block's remarks came during the closing session of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association's 17th annual convention held Sunday night through Tuesday at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo. The event was attended by more than 1,000 persons including feedyard owners, feeders, industry representatives and members of the Texas Cowbelles

Block prefaced his remarks by announcing that his trip to Texas was being financed by the Reagan-Bush re-election campaign fund.

"If I insert a little politics into my talk, don't be surprised," he told the crowd. "And I make no apologies for

Block delivered a scathing assessment of the Carter-Mondale administration, depicting a nation left with "soaring inflation, surging interest rates" and a grain embargo "that damaged our reputation worldwide."

During an earlier press conference, Block told reporters the United States "just cannot afford a Walter Mondale as president."

Reagan has brought government going up, we're still spending too much money, but it's progress.

The secretary also praised the president for lifting the grain embargo against the Soviet Union and "providing support for an aggressive export thrust.

Reagan's farm credit restructuring plan was also praised by Block, who described it as an interim measure designed to help farmers restructure their debt load and generate enough cash to stay in business.

"It's designed to pull farmers back from the edge of the brink," Block explained, although admitting some farmers "have already gone over the edge and just can't be saved."

Block said he felt justified in saying things are looking up for the beef industry. "Beef sells well during good times. We think times are good and going to get better."

Hereford's John Fuston, school board member and executive director of the Agriculture and Stabilization Conservation Service, was among local residents on hand for Block's speech. "I was disappointed in the speech from the standpoint that I wanted him to tell us something about the 1985 Farm Act," Fuston commented.

Bob Sims, owner of the Tri-State Cattle Feeders and a member of the TCFA board of directors, said he was not really surprised that Block's comments were mostly political.

"I hadn't really thought about spending down, Block said. "It's still what he might say before I went, but now that I think about it I would have been surprised if he had talked about anything else." Following the secretary's speech, the Beef Industry Council presented incoming TCFA president Bob Josserand of Hereford with a special Foreign trade is a big business to award in recognition of Josserand's

Bid dates established for hospital project

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

Architectural drawings for proposed renovation work at Deaf Smith General Hospital have been completed, with bids to be let Friday for the $200,000 project.

As decided Tuesday by DSGH district board members, offers must be turned in by 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 19. They are to be opened at that time and presented to the board during its regular monthly meeting the follow-

Among work to be done is revamping the entrance, remodeling several patient rooms and changing the emergency facility layout. A loan from Hereford State Bank is helping pay for the renovatons. Though the hospital is asking for general contractor as well as subcontractor bids, there is a chance DSGH officials could end up handling the general contractor capacities. Such a move could save the district $20,000 to $30,000, according to James Bullard, DSGH administrator.

Bullard, who said he felt general contracting work could be accomplished by his staff, agreed outside bids for the task should be accepted in case they prove less costly than anticipated.

Following unanimous approval of a resolution establishing the bid dates, board member John Gililland remarked he could not remember ever having approved the final renovation plans. In particular, he questioned the proposed canopy to be put over the hospital's entrance. Gililland dubbed it "The Jim Bullard Memorial Canopy.'

Bullard quickly responded it would be very simple for canopy plans to be dashed from the renovation work. "Why don't we just get rid of it today?" he asked. "I don't care about the canopy."

At the suggestion of Eddie Reinauer, also a board member, the canopy was left in the drawings. If bids showed it to be too exorbitant, he said, the canopy would not have to be built.

Negotiations on bids can be done until contracts are signed, Bullard explained.

Approval of the final architectural plans was done indirectly, explained Bullard and board president Frank Zinser Jr., through a series of board meetings during which cuts were made. Reductions were made steadily since an original report last year suggested nearly $1 million worth of work be done to the hospital.

The latest renovation project slicing was peformed during a special board gathering Aug. 23, when final details of the 1984-1985 budget were being developed. Approximately $72,000 was deducted from renovation plans at that meeting.

Architectural drawings for the project were done independently by Jack Nottingham. They were based on a study performed by his Dallas employer Harwood K. Smith & Partners, Inc. of Dallas.

Nottingham has been paid $10,000 for his work on the project, Bullard

Meanwhile, board members were told by Bullard September was the best financial month DSGH has had in about a year and a half. The average daily census of 36.5 was the highest of the completed budget year and boosted the 1983-1984 average to 29.4 patients per day.

For the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 2,916 patients were admitted to DSGH, an increase of 74 (2.6 percent) over the preceding year. Total patient days, however, dipped from 13,295 to 12,209 - more than an 8 percent difference.

Bullard initially attributed the discrepancy to a new Medicare system which has suggested lengths of stays for various treatments. Board member Dr. Gerald Payne disagreed, however, stating patients are still being sent home when they are ready to leave the hospital.

Regardless of the reason, Bullard said, the figures represent favorable trends for patients.

Thursday programs deal with drugs war Lions sponsoring 'Operation Kick-it'

"War on Drugs" program, the Hereford Lions Club will sponsor an "Operation Kick-it" presentation at six school assemblies here Thurs-

The Texas Department of Corrections has made the programs available through a Community Education Program throughout the state. Two inmates will be speaking in the school assembly programs here Thursday.

B.J. Gililland, local Lions' president, said parents would be welcome at the assemblies and he is urging several Lion members to attend. Gililland said the Lions are sponsoring a regional program to promote drug awareness, "so that our youth may have the opportunity to make responsible decisions for a drug-free tomorrow."

The program itinerary here Thursday: 8:20 a.m. - Stanton Junior High; 9:30-La Plata Junior High; 10:30-high school; 1 p.m.-Shirley Elementary; 1:45-Bluebonnet Elementary; and 2:30-West Central.

The TDC program format usually has two to five inmates on the panels, and panel members are chosen from the inmate population of the Ferguson Unit. This unit houses male first offenders between the ages of 17 and 21. Inmates chosen for the panels go through a six-week to two-month training and therapy session before they travel. They view and discuss films to better understand drug abuse. Community Educational Program (CEP) officials work with the prospective panelists on public speaking and have them write out their backgrounds and their thoughts on drugs.

What panelists say to their audience is strictly their own words. Inmates who participate in this program receive no special privileges in prison life or in parole consideration. When traveling, they spend their nights in city or county jails but they do get "freeworld" meals.

George Lively, CEP project administrator, says "we don't feel the program is the total answer to the current drug crisis, but we feel it is a preventive thrust in this area." He said young people listen to the young men because they know the inmates are currently serving sentences and

Drive tops its half-way mark

The United Way campaign total finally rose above the 50 percent mark last week but, with just two weeks remaining, volunteers are still optimistic about completing a successful drive.

The UW campaign total on pledges and contributions is now at $66,503, which represents 52 percent of the goal of $128,150.

"The reason for the optimism is that 70 percent of the prospect cards have not been returned," said B.J. Gililland, campaign chairman. "Many volunteers are waiting for their prospects to return their cards, while others have not make all their contacts as yet."

James Self, president, said he expects the volunteers to be "very busy" the next two weeks. He said more local companies have been requesting a showing of the United Way film in recent weeks. It shows

Envelopes show secret satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Several hundred collectors of spacecraft trivia have a sketch of a top-secret Navy satellite that appeared on a souvenir envelope selling for $1 at the Johnson Space Center gift shop for at least three years.

Space center officials said Tuesday that Project Whitecloud was declassified and canceled in 1977, a year after its launch from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

But the Denver-based project contractor, Martin Marietta, and a Navy spokesman in Washington said that only the name was declassified and the project remained top secret.

The controversy began with an article in this week's issue of Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine, which said the gift shop was selling souvenir postal covers of Project Whitecloud. The magazine characterized the project as "so secret they are not supposed to use the Project Whitecloud name over the telephone."

After the article appeared Monday, the estimated 25 to 35 copies of the envelope, known as a first-day cover, sold briskly, gift center clerks said.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials finally were able to get the last one at the shop late Monday.

El Paso's electric rates sliced

AUSTIN (AP) - For the second time this month, the Public Utility Commission has ordered an electric rate decrease - this time hitting El Paso Electric Company with a $16 million cut.

The company, which serves 158,000 customers in El Paso, Hudspeth and Culberson counties, wanted to raise rates by $36.3 million, including adding about $12 to average residential bills.

But Commissioner Peggy Rosson, who previously served on the El Paso city board that regulates utilities, won commission approval for her proposed cut. Her recommendation also calls for an audit of

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) - Storms blanketed sodden southern Louisiana today after the heaviest downpour in 20 years unleashed nearly 12 inches of rain in 24 hours, driving snakes into homes and causing widespread flooding that killed one person and forced thousands from their residences, authorities said.

"We're expecting heavy rains" throughout the day, Hugh Crowther, a forecaster at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today. "There will still be some showers and thundershowers for the next couple days."

Delcambre's nearly 2,000 residents were urged to leave town entirely, said Vermilion Parish Sheriff Ray LeMaira. About 50 people in New Iberia were moved to a National Guard armory after water and snakes invaded their homes.

"I was just thinking about getting my children out and nothing else," said Norma Curley, 42. "By the time we got out, the water was chest-deep and there were snakes all over the place."

President Reagan, after facing the worst heckling of his campaign, is defending a 24-year-old letter he wrote criticizing John F. Kennedy, while challenger Walter Mondale concedes the Carter-Mondale administration didn't do enough for the embattled steel industry and asks for another chance.

Reagan ignored the one-year anniversary Tuesday of the terrorist bombing that killed 241 American servicemen in Beirut, but he was remembering today another anniversary, the U.S. rescue-invasion of Grenada.

"One year ago, we liberated Grenada from Communist thugs that had taken that country over in a coup," Reagan said Tuesday in Seattle. "Do you know that my opponent called what we did a violation of international law that erodes our moral authority to criticize the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan?"

The president was flying back to Washington following a rally in Columbus, Ohio, ending a four-day campaign swing, and speaking to students who were brought home from Grenada by the military operation one year ago. Nineteen U.S. servicemen died in that operation.

Mondale, meanwhile, was campaigning again today in the Midwest, looking for farm votes in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Michigan. Mondale on Tuesday dusted off a 24-yearold letter penned by "Ronnie Reagan" to then-Vice President Richard Nixon in the summer of 1960 in which Reagan compared the campaign proposals of John F. Kennedy to "big brother" government of Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler. The letter was obtained from a National Archives branch in California.

The White House confirmed the letter was genuine, and Reagan said in Columbus: "Read it. You'll see there's nothing wrong with it."

For Mondale, the letter was a rejoinder to weeks of hearing the Old newsman discusses political issues

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

Drawing on an insight that results from more than 40 years as a member of the news media, Howard K. Smith touched on just about every conceivable political issue during his speech Monday to members of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

While he billed his talk as a plan that would get the United States back on solid economic ground, Smith also discussed defense, foreign affairs, big business, the Russians and Sunday night's Reagan-Mondale debate.

He even discussed what he calls "non-issues." such as voluntary school prayer.

"Everybody knows prayer in schools is a phony problem," he joked. "As long as there are math exams there will always be prayer in the schools."

Smith disclosed the results of research in which he discovered what issues the presidential can-

The veteran employee of two major television networks made no bones about his opinion of the way political races are being run. "I think too much special interest money is being poured into politics. It's making bribery legal. It's a conspiracy of all of us against one another."

Smith said he would like to see candidates use small amounts of money and a lot of their own energy. He also expressed disgust at candidates who keep money left after a race is over, when that money resulted from political contributions.

He said the debate included a lot of "nonsense," such as Reagan bringing up things about Iran that really did not apply to his administration.

> "Mondale made some equally ridiculous remarks about the Simpson-Mazzoli Act," Smith added. "I have my doubts about both Reagan and Mondale. I wish we had another choice. Why can't we find another Abraham Lincoln?"

The ideal president, Smith said, would be a cross between Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon. Johnson was good at domestic matters, he claimed, and Nixon was a genious at foreign affairs.

The longtime newsman revealed a common-sense approach to the fued between the Americans and the Russians.

"One thing we've learned is that we can't end a war with another

Since neither will allow the other to gain a significant superiority of arms, Smith suggested, the two countries should agree to cut nuclear arsenals down to size and persuade other countries not to go nuclear at

Questioned by someone in the audience about the "liberal news media," Smith responded that the news media has been liberal because the nation has been liberal.

"But that is changing," he claimed. "Bill Buckley was the only conservative journalist for a long time. There are a lot more now."

In conclusion, Smith told the gathering he only criticizes the United States "because I love America."

He said he has absolute confidence the country can handle its problems, and do so "without pain."

The telephone call came during the 30-minute talk show, but Gramm spoke with Doggett off the air.

Bill Collier, Doggett's press secretary, said the Democrat's campaign noted that "Gramm said he had not pulled down his negative ads...and that he is not going to pull down his negative ads and he is not going to meet Sen. Doggett in a factual discussion of the charges and countercharges that have been made in the last couple of weeks."

After the conversation, Gramm said Doggett's call was a "hot-dog kind of deal," and the Republican emphasized that he has no plans to meet Doggett again in a debate.

Gramm said Doggett turned down three proposals for debates in addition to one held last month in College Station and last week in Dallas.

Collier said that charge "is the Gramm he had ordered ads same old stuff. Lloyd's accepted a withdrawn that mentioned Gramm dozen (invitations for) debates in the last few weeks that Phil Gramm didn't."

> During their conversation, Gramm asked Doggett several times if his agreement to stop using Gramm's name was contingent on a third debate. Collier said the phone call was not a campaign stunt. "The whole purpose of Lloyd's phoning was to try to get Mr. Gramm's response," Collier said.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the letter from a rapist who said his "hobby" was the result of the domineering women who raised him: He hates women and rape is the way he gets even. My background was similar, but things turned out differently.

Mother ran our family. Daddy was a wimp. If anyone is at fault, it's him. Almost all my teachers, from nursery through high school, were women. The male teachers were all effeminate. In one school the only male employee was the janitor. I was disciplined and rewarded exclusively by women. I learned early where the power was and I wanted to be on the winning side. I'm a homosexual.

And now will you please answer my questions? Is it worse to rape a woman than to castrate a son? In a uisexual society, have parents forgotten how to make men and lovers out of their little boys? Is equality of sexes related to the in-

You advised the rapist to get counseling. That may solve his problem. It has done nothing for me. The big problem is what are we going to do about all the men who are growing up to hate women? And why do so many men want to be women these days?-In Search Of Answers In Columbia, S.C.

DEAR S.C.: Your assumption that more men hate women than viceversa is a wild guess. I happen to believe that more females have suffered at the hands of males than the other way around. Following your line of reasoning there should be more men-haters than women-authorities say the cause is genetic. Others claim it is psychological conditioning. Still others say it's a combination of both.

You say counseling didn't help. Too bad you didn't have a competent therapist. I suggest you try again. If you believe you chose homosexuality because women rule the world and you wanted to be on the winning side, your therapist did a very poor job.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are senior citizens. We have many friends and are very easy to get along with.

The problem is that our oldest and dearest friends (a couple) had a financial setback and borrowed a large sum of money with the understanding that they would pay us back in a month. The month has turned into a year and they still haven't paid us. We reminded them once a few months ago and they became very hostile. Now they don't talk to us.

What would you do in a case like this? We need the money desperately.-Stuck In Boston

DEAR STUCK: Do you have a signed note stating the terms of the repayment? If not, you can kiss the money goodbye.

In the future, if friends ask to borrow money they should be told, "We will sign a note at the bank for you. What do you have for collateral?" If they have no collateral, you are taking a big chance.

long as Sunday to name his No. 1 quarterback. "I haven't made plans because I want to see how Gary's hand is," said Landry. "I'm not sure what I will do." He added "I'll let you (the media) know before the kickoff. That would be carrying it a little too far." Hogeboom hurt his hand during linebacker Dennis Winston's 41-yard touchdown interception return in the third quarter. He said later it hurt so bad he couldn't grip the football.

"If I went to White it would not be a relfection on what I think Gary's future is," said Landry. "I'm still trying to build a team for the future."

However, Landry added: "I've said I would put Danny in if I thought he could win. Danny played well and earned everybody's respect but I'm still looking at my options."

Dallas compiled a 5-3 record in the first half of the season with Hogeboom as the starter. They are tied for the lead with the Redskins and the Cardinals in the National Conference Eastern Division.

Hogeboom has had three interceptions returned for touchdowns and has only thrown four scoring passes.

Asked the criteria for starting White, Landry said "I'm not sure what the criteria will be. I'll make a decsion on what I think can happen, on what I see."

Landry said Dallas was bucking long playoff odds.

"We're still a longshot for the playoffs," Landry said. "We've lost three games in our division and that's going to make it difficult to catch St. Louis and Washington."

Landry said White may have benefited from not being the starter when the season began.

"He seems very relaxed right now," Landry said. "He doesn't seem to be under any pressure."

The Cowboys had over 6,000 tickets remaining on sale for the game which dimmed hopes of a locally televised broadcast.

Prices, Profits and Jobs

This year most farmers have had good yields—better than we've had in the last few years. But prices are so low that many farmers still won't make a decent profit. Sometimes it seems like the family farmer can't win for losing. If the West Texas weather doesn't get us, low prices do.

The problems facing the future of family farming are complex. No one has all the answers, but I believe the job of your Congressman is to find the causes of these problems and work for their solution.

In this column, I'll discuss what I believe is a fundamental problem with our federal government, one that has hurt our family farmers. I'll also offer a proposal that I believe has great potential to solve this problem and help increase farm prices, profits and jobs.

Farm profits are dietated by prices, and a good way to increase prices is to increase demand. In the last decade foreign exports have contributed more and more to the demand for our products. Last year half a billion dollars in goods and services were exported from our region. One-eighth of our manufacturing jobs and one fourth of our farm jobs depend on our ability to export—at a profit.

Increasing foreign sales offers us our best chance to increase demand for our products; but, unfortunately, our country's international trade policy has been inconsistent, inefficient and sometimes counterproductive.

When it comes to our international trade policy, it seems like the right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing. Policies adopted for one group hurt other groups more. For example, grain exporters say that during the time we were negotiating an increase of $34 million in cotton textile imports from the Peoples Republic of China, we lost $550 million in grain exports to them.

And the disastrous grain embargo that was intended to hurt the Soviet Union hurt our farmers more. Trade embargoes also hurt our producers' dependability in the eyes of the world. First we're in the market, then we're not, then we are.

The problem is our international trade policy lacks consistency and continuity. Farmers can't predict it. Manufacturers can't predict it.

We've seen what can happen when the State Department dictates agricultural policy, but it's not just the State Department that's involved. Our international markets can be affected by any one of more than a dozen government agencies including the departments of State, Labor, Commerce, and Agriculture as well as the S.B.A., the International Monetary Fund and the Import Export Bank. We've even got export licenses that have to be approved by the C.I.A.

With all these agencies working on their own goals without looking at the big picture, it's no wonder that our trade policy is erratic and ineffective.

I believe these are strong reasons to develop a Department of International Trade, a cabinet level department that would bring all the agencies which now deal in international trade under one umbrella. Much research and study has already been done on this, and there are many benefits:

First, it would provide for a unified, consistent, long range international trade policy. We could then make long term trade agreements with other countries and put the world on notice that we're going to be there, that our policies, our producers and our supply can be depended on. This would greatly strengthen our position in the world market.

Second, it would make international trade an integral part of the farm bill making it possible to adopt farm programs and production levels that can be profitably supported by domestic and foreign demand.

Third, by combining existing agencies that deal with international trade under one umbrella we would reduce duplication of efforts and prevent the actions of one agency from undermining the actions of another. The right hand would know what the left hand is doing and both would be guided by the same unified

I spoke in support of the development of a Department of International Trade in a debate sponsored by the West Texas International Trade Forum. In that debate, my opponent said it was a good idea but he was against it because he thought it would be too costly.

But, as I said here and in that debate, creating this department would reduce costs. It would not add to the agencies already in existence, but would combine the efforts of those agencies. It would replace 25 federal agencies and eliminate job duplication in the many departments that deal with international trade. It will save money by taking people already on the payroll and making them more efficient and effective.

And a consistent, unified international trade policy would increase tax revenues, reduce trade deficits; and, most important, it would help provide new jobs and a brighter economic future for West Texans.

Hereford's Elida Acosta slams an overhand shot to Lubbock volleyball players while Yvette Cummings (8) and Cindy Pruitt (4) look on. The play was made during District 3-5A action Tuesday in the HHS gym. Hereford took the first game but lost the match 15-10, 8-15, 12-15. Season play concludes Saturday at Monterey.

Koufax in 1963, '65 and '66 and Gibson in 1968 and '70.

Sutcliffe, the third Cub pitcher to earn the award, told a news conference Tuesday that "I couldn't accept this without giving credit to the fans, the people of Chicago and the front office," Sutcliffe said at a news conference immediately after the award was announced. "Individual awards are nice to look at and hang on your wall, but that's about it," he said. "I'll never forget coming back out on to the field in Pittsburgh (after beating the Pirates to clinch the National League East title) and seeing a picture on the scoreboard of all the fans celebrating around Wrigley Field."

hicago two days before the trading deadline of June 15 as part of a six-player deal with the Cleveland Indians. He left behind a 4-5 record, but brought along a contract that paid him $900,000 plus incentives this season.

Cy Young Award winners traditionally have pocketed some extra dollars in following seasons.

But Sutcliffe, who became a free agent last week, said he was uncertain whether he would cash in on the award, adding, "That situation (contract talks with the Cubs) just hasn't been resolved."

He said he told his agent, Barry Axelrod, "that I needed some time to get my feet on the ground."

"I just haven't really sat down and thought about it," Sutcliffe said, adding he planned to meet with Cubs officials late this week or early next

The towering 28-year-old righthander posted 14 straight regularseason wins - including the game that clinched the National League East Division crown for Chicago, its first title in 39 years, and the opener of the league championship series.

The award made him the first Cy Young winner to have pitched in both leagues in the same season. He also became the fourth pitcher in baseball history to win 20 games while pitching in both leagues.

In a 1930 American League game, the Philadelphia Athletics twice made a triple steal against the Cleveland Indians to set a major-league record.

16th-ranked Gators to remain eligible for postseason play this season.

A confidential NCAA report received by university President Marshall Criser cited 59 rules infractions in former Coach Charley Pell's program and detailed sanctions that would prohibit Florida from appearing in bowl games and on live television for three years.

The Gators would also lose 10 scholarships in each of the next two academic years.

Copies of the report, which included a provision under which the final year of probation could be suspended, were released under the state's sunshine law, which has allowed the news media to gain access to thousands of pages of transcripts and documents pertaining to the probe. There was no immediate indication of whether Criser, who left town for a meeting in Birmingham, Ala., after speaking with the team Tuesday afternoon, will appeal. Alvin W. Alsobrook, vice president for university relations, read a statement from the president at a news conference, but did not field ques-

"The report will not be officially or unofficially commented upon by the university administration or by the University of Florida Athletic Association until responsible clarification has been sought and reasonable evaluation made," Criser's statement said.

Meanwhile, some of the players, indicated they hope an appeal is filed, giving the team a shot at playing in the Sugar Bowl if it can win its first SEC title ever. "I think if it were left up to the team, we would go," junior linebacker Patrick Miller said.

Panel studies Chinese-American crime

NEW YORK (AP) - Attorney distorter agreed, "crime cartels" General William French Smith says traditional organized crime is faltering in the United States, but that Chinese-American gangs are flourishing despite law enforcement

Smith, the first witness to testify before the President's Commission on Organized Crime, said Tuesday the government's "greatest success ever" may be the "beginning of the end" of such traditional crime organizations as the Mafia and La Cosa Nostra.

However, he said, and two hooded witnesses who testified from behind

Former firm forms new merchant bank

"If this firm progresses as we think it will, it can be one of the major financial institutions in the Southwest," said Mason, 51, who pulled together a group of private investors to form Mason Best Co.

He said the bank will gear itself to private business ventures and has the potential to become a significant economic force in the region.

"We have a good opportunity in this marketplace," Mason said Monday. "In America, merchant banking is assuming an increasingly prominent role."

Merchant banking, which originated in Europe centuries ago, has been gaining momentum among Wall Street investment banking

"Merchant banking allows the firm to frequently - more times than not - be a principal in the transaction rather than simply collecting a fee," Mason said.

Those type of banks specialize in providing funds to bankroll a variety of business ventures, usually private firms. The investments often include mergers and acquisitions.

The difference with commercial banks is that the funds provided by merchant banks usually don't take the form of traditional loans. Instead, they typically receive ownership interests in return for the financial assistance.

Also, merchant banks don't solicit deposits, relying instead on private investments for their operating

Land prices booming in many areas

NEW YORK (AP) - In Austin, Tex., the price of a lot suitable for condos jumped 10 times to $250,000 an acre in just three years, and apartment sites in Manhattan have risen eightfold in the past seven years.

Land prices, especially those suitable for housing, are booming in many areas of the country, fed not just by a housing recovery but by speculation, restrictive zoning, sewer and water limitations, and other factors.

The surge is most pronounced in Southern markets where, says Lomas & Nettleton, the large mortgage banker, the rising costs are forcing builders into greater densities and threatening buyers with affordability problems.

The Dallas-based company, which surveyed 28 markets, found that in just three years the prices of land had at least doubled in Austin, Dallas-Fort Worth, Norfolk, Orlando, Tampa-St. Petersburg and

Washington, D.C.

The rising cost of buildable land is not a new story, since land as a percentage of the typical singlefamily house has jumped from 11 in 1949 to about 25 in the 1980s.

The latest figures, however, suggest a speedup in the process that may cause serious problems for builders and buyers alike.

"One effect is to push homebuilding into higher densities," says Wayne D. Ferguson, executive vice president of Lomas & Nettleton Land Co. Increasingly, the survey shows, attached housing is replacing the conventional home.

The survey also suggests it is becoming more difficult, and in some areas impossible, to build houses for less than $75,000, since lot-plus-fee prices are running more than $20,000.

While much of the pressure comes from the limiting affect of topographical features, such as poor drainage, and from the inability of municipalities to build new sewer and water lines, speculation is ram-

The survey turned up one Austin piece of land that had undergone 15 transactions in two years, 10 of them so-called "flips" in which ownership changed so fast that deeds were never registered.

Lomas & Nettleton said that increases have leveled since midyear in most areas, and added that in some markets, notably the West Coast and Midwest, the increases merely brought prices back to 1979 levels. But for the most part, prices ascended to new levels.

In contrast, Atlanta and Phoenix, which also had strong housing markets in the past two years, showed little speculation and a much more stable cost pattern.

Ferguson explained that these cities have "no topographical and few environmental constraints on development in any direction," and that new lots can be produced in six months or less, "as fast as new

Day care workers under investigation

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Workers at three La Petite Academy day-care centers are under investigation by state officials for alleged sexual abuses of children who attend the centers, officials said.

of 15 children at the center in the past several months.

Some parents of children interviewed Monday and Tuesday told caseworkers that their children were photographed in different poses, some of them apparently nude, the Dallas Morning News reported to-

State officials refused to confirm or deny the reports that some of the children had been photographed.

A three-year-old girl told investigators that one of the women who worked at the center took a live frog after a fondling session and squeezed it until blood came from the frog's mouth, the girl's mother said.

"This is what will happen to you if you tell anyone," the girl's mother quoted her daughter as saying.

Regulars bid farewell to 30-year tradition

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) - A handful of "regulars" braved a heavy rain to commemorate the end of a 30-year tradition at Mac's Restaurant.

The unique little eatery, located in a small, near-paintless frame house at East Mulberry and Cedar streets, has long been a favorite of those who

Militia plan is illegal

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The state attorney general's office says an ex-Green Beret trying to form a private armed militia is in violation of state law:

"What we're sayng is that they're going to have trouble if they go through with this," Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox, told The Dallas Morning News Tuesday.

Robert Holloway, former commander of the disbanded 105th Texas State Guard Battalion who was relieved of his command in March, said the militia will be "capable of assuming any role, to include combat in defense of state or country."

Holloway, 36, an ex-Green Beret, said the National State Defense Force Association will be ready to be activated if the governor calls upon them for help during a war or other disaster.

State leaders told the newspaper that it was Holloway's refusal to return to the standard State Guard plain green uniforms - instead of continuing to use camouflage fatigues - that led to his removal this spring.

When the unit continued to train under Holloway, State Guard officials ordered it disbanded, saying the unit had become too independent of the state organization.

In September, Ret. Brig. Gen. Thomas N. Fuller, who was the State Guard's deputy commander, said the 105th was "just too gung-ho."

David Cottom, a spokesman for the Texas State Guard, said Holloway's new organization is no longer under the control of the state.

"This is totally a civilian venture," Cottom said. "Once he was dislodged, they're on their own.'

Ms. Christopher said she didn't know what action the state would take, saying only that "we're studying the matter."

Holloway's attorney, Steven Swander said, "Obviously, if this is illegal, they won't do it. These are conservative men who want to serve their country. If I may say it, they're

"I see no harm or illegality in going out and training in the country, with unloaded guns, on private property."

Holloway, who said members will be required to furnish their own firearms, said private militias have set respectable precedents in U.S. history.

"The (American) Revolution was fought by militia," he said. "The War of 1812 was fought by militia.

"I'm neutral politically," Holloway said. "We are not survivalists... We're not a pack of weirdos or crazies. It's just a method of keeping the guys together."

Some people believe that wearing catseye stones would bring color to appreciate the finer points of "home style."

Diners who didn't know another soul in the room could feel like part of a large family at Mac's, which was the main charm of the place, second only to the food.

Visitors were seated at one of three large tables while plates of fried chicken, sausage and sauerkraut, biscuits, potatoes, okra, cake and numerous other items were brought from the kitchen and started on their rounds of the table.

As at family dinner, jokes would be made if the bowls and plates stayed too long at one chair.

reputation for fine food and atmosphere that never diminished, even when the original "Mama Mac" retired to care for the tiny bar next to the restaurant.

Regulars knew to watch out for the floors, which slanted at hideous angles due to settling in the foundation of the old house, and warned newcomers about the hazards of walking in the dimly-lit dining room.

They didn't mind that it was cooled only by a fan nearly as old as the building in the summer, or heated mainly by the kitchen in the winter.

Some had come regularly for years, like Marvin and Nita Zhaicek, who were on hand to say goodbye.

The Zhaiceks, who own and operate a steakhouse in Liverpool, said they came to Mac's every single Friday. Often, they said, their cook came with them.

Why every Friday? "It's chicken and dumplings day," their heads and looked glum.

But Leona Cole Hernandez, who has operated the restaurant since Mac's departure three years ago, said she just couldn't face another winter in the building.

"I'll miss it real bad, I sure will," Mrs. Hernandez said. "I've enjoyed feeding these people."

Mrs. Hernadez said customers who learned of her plans to close the restaurant had tried to talk her out of

She hopes to open another restaurant in a better location sometime after the first of the year, Mrs. Hernandez said. In the meantime, she's going to rest.

"I ain't had much time off," she said, but she seemed pleased.

So, beneath a print of "The Last Supper" so warped by the leaking water it was barely in its frame, the faithful shared their own last meal, family style.

As the diners left, they each had the same request of Mrs. Hernandez: "Please, be sure and let us know

HEREFORD

But pest in the fall

Armadillos may be Texas' pet madillo fighting is a seasonal thing, much like kite flying in spring, except that kite fliers enjoy what they do and most armadillo fighters would prefer not to battle the little critters to protect their yards. "I feel sorry for people that get them," said Agnes Johnson of Mesquite. "Anybody who has real nice grass, it'd be a shame." Ms. Johnson says she doesn't have much lawn for armadillos to damage but "they just come dig up all by flower

And Ricky Sramek, Dallas County wildlife control specialist, says he gets calls about armadillos in late summer and early autumn every Sramek says it's because armadillos like to eat cutworms. And when the untamed countryside has been baked hard and dry by the relentless summer sun, armadillos come to dig up the cutworms in homeowners' soft, watered lawns. And dig they do. Experts say they can tunnel at speeds up to 12 feet per hour.

Virginia Miles lives in Kessler Park, only five minutes from downtown Dallas, and yet she, too, often suffers from apparent armadillos. Apparent because she hasn't actually seen them at work. But, she says, "I have some trenches in my yard. I stood out there and almost cried.

and 4 to 6 inches wide and 6 inches deep. Another one is in two sections, but it takes up about as much space."

Like many homeowners, Ms. Miles takes pride in her lawn. Works at it. "I've sat up nights watering it to keep it alive. "And then along comes an armadillo in the dead of night and...What's a person to do? Well, not much, actually,

Sramek says. "They're so dumb they are hard to trap. They may walk up to the back of the trap and smell the bait but not be smart enough to go around to the front of the trap."

So that doesn't work too

"If you live out in the country you can get them with your shotgun." Municipalities, however, have strict laws about discharging firearms, so that's out. "You can spotlight them and club them if you stay up that late." Armadillos are nocturnal, and they may not come around where you're guarding until the wee hours.

Said Ms. Johnson, "I'm 65 years old, and I don't feel like going out there all night and trying to hit them with a shovel.' Can this be? Shoot them;

club them; hit them with a shovel? Amazing. This is the same

DALLAS (AP) - Ar- One of them is 18 inches long of that is the loved and lauded official state mascot. He's proudly displayed on T-shirts and posters throughout Texas. He's come to mean something, symbolwise; like the Alamo means something: like Tom Landry means something. The armadillo stands for good times and rednecks and longnecks and country music and chili. elevate the armadillo to lore status. The creature is found frequently in folk art and handicrafts in Latin America. In Brazil, where there are 10 species of the creature, ranging in size from a tiny six inces up to a hefty 100 pounds, some natives believe the first humans came to earth when they fell through a big armadillo hole in the sky. Other tribes depict the armadillo as port the universe. According to backwoods legends in central Brazil, if a stroller happens to see a sixbanded armadillo with dirt on its back, a friend or relative will be dead when that person returns home. Some Brazilians believe a cure for rheumatism and arthritis can be made by combining rendered armadillo fat with sugar-cane rum.

one of four animals that sup-

If that's a bit difficult to believe, think how much trouble Brazilians might have understanding this: In 1968, Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalog offered beribboned armadillos for sale. The ad read: "Armadillo, anyone? Imagine him burrowing quietly under the Christmas tree or at your side for afternoon walks. Shipped live with United States Armadillo Breeders Association registration papers, membership card and bumper sticker."

Since then a state law was passed making it illegal to sell a live armadillo.

Some people, especially those with claw-damaged lawns, would find it hard to believe there is an armadillo market. What kind of pet would it make - sleeping all day, stupid and no fur to stroke like a cat or dog?

But that's not why they became Texas' official mascot. It's because the armadillo is as much a part of the state's history as anything that can be imagined. He came here not long before independence was won from Mexico. John James Audubon said so. He claims to have spotted an armadillo in the 1850s in the Rio Grande Valley.

By 1895, there were sufficient numbers of them for Charles Apelt, a German immigrant, to start his company in Comfort, Texas. He made baskets and lamps out of armadillo shells, selling as many as 40,000 ardmadillos in a single year, according to some reports.

There is nothing unusual about the armadillo's invasion of Texas. It has been moving ever northward for the past 10,000 years. It Texans weren't the first to reached the Yucatan Peninsula about 2,000 years ago. By the 16th century it had claimed all of Mexico. By the early part of this century it has migrated into Oklahoma and Louisiana and is now being seen in Kansas and Missouri.

In recent years it's been questioned whether it's smart to handle them without gloves, as many people do in the armadillo races conducted at some bars and chili cookoffs.

It's because medical researchers say armadillos carry and may transmit leprosy. Four men who contracted the disease had for several years caught, cleaned and eaten armadillos. Each of them had gotten cuts on his hands from handling armadillos. An open cut is an ideal way for the leprosy bacillus to spread, researchers say.

So, because there's a chance it isn't good to handle armadillos and because the average homeowner isn't likely to catch one anyway, it's best to simply leave them

Which would be well and good, says Agnes Johnson, if they would leave her alone. She's afraid some of them will get up under her mobile home:

Sramek says exclusion is the preferable solution. Keep the critters out of the yard in the first place and then you don't have to worry about how to get rid of them. A good fence will do it. Or spraying the yard with an insecticide will maybe get rid of the food supply.

Some armadillo fighters say a liberal scattering of mothballs repels armadillos, but Sramek doesn't recommend mothballs because they aren't on the Environmental Protection Agency list he

Another often-tried remedy is to put stakes in the ground with shiny aluminum pie plates strung between them. It's not clear why that is supposed to keep armadillos out. Anyway, by the time a person gets enough mothballs or pie plates scattered around the yard to prevent armadillo digging, it could be the cure would look worse than the problem.
