Discovery completes space journey

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - Space shuttle Discovery returned to Earth from its maiden voyage today, gliding to a picture-perfect dawn landing on a desert lakebed after a 2.5 millionnile flight that restored confidence in America's space transportation Discovery and its crew of five men and one woman were back home after a six-day mission marked by extraordinary success despite bouts with a stubborn chunk of ice and a final-hours oxygen leak. Theirs was the 12th flight of a space shuttle, the 10th to land here.

The third and newest shuttle was over the Indian ocean on its 97th orbit when Hartsfield and Coats triggered its big jets for 21/2 minutes to drop the spaceship out of orbit and into an hourlong dive through the atmosphere into this Mojave Desert air

The weather was excellent for landing, with visibility of 100 miles. Scattered lightning storms hit the mountains about 40 miles north of the base two hours before landing time, but the weather posed no threat to the shuttle, said NASA spokeswoman Nancy Lovato.

By 1 a.m. PDT, more than 3,000 spectators were camped at the east shore public viewing site near the dry lake bed where the shuttle landing strip is located, and more people "were coming in pretty steady," said Air Force Master Sgt. Gerry Ditchfield. Another 12,000 spectators were expected at NASA's viewing site for official guests, Ms. Lovato

Mission Control wakened the astronauts 90 minutes early today when it detected a leak in a set of tanks that supply oxygen for the cabin pressure and power-producing fuel cells. Hartsfield switched to a backup system and initiated a troubleshooting procedure that isolated the leak to a pressure control system. The system was shut off and the leak stopped. NASA officials emphasized the problem posed "no hazard" to the crew or the shuttle and that there was enough oxygen on board for

Reagan douses religious issue; Fritz 'fighting mad'

Associated Press Writer President Reagan, seeking to douse the issue he ignited in Dallas, says critics have "greatly distorted" while Democrat Walter Mondale is

The commissioners court on Aug. 27 rejected all bids submitted by construction compaines wanting to perform the costly renovation. The court wants the work done for no more than $1.55 million, which is what Gondeck originally told commissioners it would cost. The lowest bid so far has been for $1,827,000.

"We want to try to get it down to a workable figure without sacrificing the requirements of the Jail Standards Commission," Nelson explained. He expects Commissioners Bill Bradly, Bruce Coleman and Austin Rose to attend the Thursday meeeting.

Tax increase discussion tonight

A proposed tax increase is to be discussed tonight during a public hearing called by the Deaf Smith County Hospital district.

Citing increasing indigent care expenses and the need for renovation work and equipment purchases, the board is considering a 31 percent property tax increase.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m., in the board room of DSGH.

Prison guard fired

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - A Texas Department of Corrections guard was fired for allegedly lending a knife to a convict who apparently used the weapon to threaten and rape a female guard, a prison spokesman said.

Gustav Kirschstein, who was suspended about two weeks ago, was told this weekend he was fired, prison spokesman Phil Guthrie confirmed Tuesday.

Kirschstein, 56, was a guard at TDC's Ramsey II Unit near Rosharon, about 30 miles south of Houston, prison officials said.

Kirschtein allegedly gave a knife to convicted rapist Richard "Ricky" Sisto, 35, who took a female guard hostage in a pill dispensing room at the unit and raped her, prison officials said.

The guard was locking the pill room and had the key in the unlocked door when Sisto entered, broke the key and pulled the knife, John Blankenship of the Brazoria County Sheriff's Department said last Blankenship said investigators determined the woman was held against her will and was raped.

Sisto released the woman, who also is a registered nurse, and surrendered after talking with TDC Director Raymond Procunier. The inmate is being held in disciplinary custody, Guthrie said.

Prosecutor resigns after arrest

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas County prosecutors are conducting an investigation into the arrest of a high-ranking assistant district attorney for allegedly soliciting a prostitute, officials say.

Kenneth Dean Carden, 36, chief felony prosecutor, resigned after he was jailed Friday night for allegedly offering an undercover police officer posing as a prostitute $100 for a sex act, said police Sgt.

T.E. Williams of the Vice Control Division. Carden, a wheelchair-bound attorney, gained national attention as chief prosecutor in the initial trial of Lenell Geter, an E-Sytems engineer who was wrongly convicted of armed robbery in Green-

Carden did not deny Tuesday he offered the woman money but said he was working on an investigation of the murder of a pimp. He said he planned to tell the woman he was a prosecutor once she was with him and then elicit information from her in exchange for not pressing charges.

He was arrested at the scene. Police say they confiscated a loaded .45-caliber handgun and sex devices from his car. Police said he only had $2.20 with him and had the case file on the murder of the pimp

Although Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade accepted Carden's resignation, Carden could be reinstated depending on the investigation, Wade said.

Prolonging life is costly

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientific advances are prolonging human life, but the impact on society could be disastrous unless officials plan ahead to deal with the growing number of elderly people, a private research group says.

While novelist Thomas Mann once wrote that a man's death i more his survivor's affair than his own, the Population Reference Bureau concluded that "the postponement of an individual's death is becoming a federal affair, and one whose implications we cannot ig-

For example, the bureau said, if all the people who died prematurely from heart attacks in 1978 had lived out their full lives, it would have cost the federal government an extra $15 billion in benefits for the elderly.

In a report based on the work of seven researchers, the private population study group urged more research on postponing aging to improve life and health for the elderly, on accurately predicting increases in life expectancy and in developing programs that will more effectively deal with the needs of this growing segment of the population.

Medical science has extended life expectancy from 70.2 years in 1965 to 74.5 in 1983, and could raise it to 80 years by the year 2000, the report said.

School district won't appeal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - A school district that kicked a high school senior out of the National Honor Society after she became pregnant probably will not appeal a court order that she be reinstated, a lawyer for the district said.

U.S. District Judge J. Waldo Ackerman ruled Tuesday that Linda Wort, 20, was a victim of sex discrimination and was denied equal protection under the law. "I'm just so excited," said Mrs. Wort, who was dismissed from the honor group in February 1982. She filed the suit "to make sure it wouldn't happen again," she said.

George Lewis, the district's lawyer, said school officials probably will not challenge the decision.

Tories sweep Canada

TORONTO (AP) - Brian Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party swept to a historic landslide victory over Liberal Prime Minister John Turner, winning the most Parliament seats ever captured by one party in Canada.

The national election Tuesday was the Tories' first majority victory in 26 years. Mulroney's troops trounced the Liberals in all 10 Canadian provinces, ousting a party that had governed for all but nine months of the past 21 years, including 15 years under Pierre

The Conservatives captured 211 seats in the 282-seat Parliament. The Liberals won 40 and the socialist New Democrats 30. One independent was elected.

The Liberals were crushed even in French-speaking Quebec, where the Tories got just one seat in 1980. This time the Conservatives took 58 of the 75 seats.

Malroney, who as head of the winning party is almost certain to become the new prime minister, promised today that his Progressive Conservative government will improve conditions for ss and "get the economy of Canada moving again."

New laws recommended

AUSTIN (AP) - The state should consider some new laws to fight an increase in child abuse in Texas, including a surcharge on marriage licenses and forcing spouses to testify against each other, legislators are being told.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, testifying Tuesday before the joint legislative Committee on Child Abuse and Pornography, said the immunity granted one spouse from testifying against another is "a major obstacle to the successful prosecution of child abusers."

However, Mattox said, "I am confident that no one who supported spousal immunity when it was first included in our legal code years and years ago ever anticipated that it would become a way to protect child murderers or wife beaters."

Gerald Hill, an aide to Gov. Mark White, told the committee that the number of child abuse cases is grow-

"It's amazing, but it's true, that the number of child abuse cases reported between 1976 and 1982 have more than doubled," he said.

Hill said legislation to combat child abuse and neglect "is an important part of the administration's program" which will be proposed to the Legislature next year.

Hill and Laura Tynes of Waco, state president of the Texas PTA, both recommended that the Legislature consider establishing a children's trust fund.

Mrs. Tynes said such a fund could be created from a marriage license surcharge "with the very specific purpose of improving the lives of our children through the prevention of child abuse and neglect."

Mattox said tht under current state law, one spouse may testify against the other only in cases of assault or violence against any child of either spouse.

"Prosecutors find that many cases of child abuse involve nieces, nephews, foster children or other youngsters who are not the child of either spouse. Under current law, spouses cannot testify against each other in these cases even when they want to," Mattox said.

Mattox proposed eliminating a spouse's immunity from testimony in cases of assault or violence against any member of a household. Such a change, he said, "would parent." He also suggested the law be changed which currently limits a spouse to testifying only about acts which he or she witnessed.

"They cannot testify about conversations. Thus, a spouse who was absent and who returned to find a child injured or dead, and the mate admitted that he or she had done it, cannot testify to this," he said.

Also testifying was Mike Weaver of Austin, representing the group Citizens Against Pornography, who said the easy availability of pornographic materials has contributed to the increase in child abuse cases.

"Seven out of 10 pornographic magazines end up in the hands of a child," Weaver said. "The adult community is simply overlooking a problem that exists at the convenience store level."

Weaver said cable television now frequently includes channels which carry pornographic films into the home.

He said his group believes laws currently on the books to prohibit exposure of harmful materials to minors would cover such situations if authorities would enforce the laws.

"What we want is for legislation that already exists to be enforced."

After husband collapses

Woman without training lands plane

MIAMI (AP) - A woman whose "only thoughts" were to help her fatally stricken husband get to a hospital used radio instructions to safely land a light plane from a mile in the sky despite never having piloted before.

The Piper Cherokee with Elaine Yadwin, 61, at the controls thumped to the ground with the only damage a broken front landing gear more than an hour after her 66-year-old husband, Richard, slumped at the controls from an apparent heart attack.

The Coast Guard flew the couple to Palmetto Hospital, where Yadwin was pronounced dead on arrival, said hospital spokesman Ernie Domenech.

Another passenger, whose name was not released by authorities, at times had to hold back Yadwin's body while Mrs. Yadwin manipulated the controls. "The only thoughts that went through my mind were, 'I've got to help him, I've got to help him.' We had to come down. He needed help," said a teary-eyed Mrs. Yadwin after her ordeal Tuesday.

Minutes before noon, Mrs. Yadwin took over the Piper Cherokee when Yadwin lost consciousness during a flight over the Everglades, said Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta. Sixty-three minutes later, the ordeal was over. The Yadwins and their friend were en route to Fort Lauderdale from St.

Petersburg when Yadwin collapsed. 'We're having a big problem," Mrs. Yadwin told the Miami Air Route Traffic Control Center over the radio. "I think my husband just had a stroke. Steve Kalbaugh, 36, had just returned to the control center from lunch when he picked up Mrs. Yadwin's signal.

"Are you a pilot?" asked the con-

"I'm not a pilot ... I've never flown before," she said from 5,500 feet.

After getting her to read him instrument positions, he determined she was on autopilot and told her to stay there.

The next problem was to determine the fuel situation.

"The left fuel tank was on zero and the right fuel tank was on 10," the controller said Mrs. Yadwin told him. "That meant that basically she would be out of gas very soon in the left tank."

Kalbaugh said he then asked controllers Wayne Roshaven and James Zeiler, both pilots experienced with Piper Cherokees, to help.

"Zeiler instructed her on how to change the fuel tank. Apparently the left tank emptied and she changed over, just as it ran out of gas," Kalbaugh said.

The friend had to hold Yadwin's body back from the controls so Mrs. Yadwin could reach the fuel tank

The controllers instructed her to turn so as to stay over land, afraid that the sight of the open ocean would frighten her.

Other planes had picked up Mrs. Yadwin's frequency and offered assistance, the controllers said. But her aircraft kept disappearing in a pillow of clouds which made it difficult to pinpoint her.

Meanwhile, a close family friend, Ken Winter, was contacted and took off in his own plane to accompany and instruct Mrs. Yadwin.

Winter talked to her by radio and guided her to the Dade-Collier Jetport, chosen because of its wide runway and thin traffic.

"Just hang in there. We're going to help you, no problem," Winter said over his radio.

Under Winter's instructions, she banked toward the runway and descended. She hit the runway hard enough to break the front landing gear, then skidded off into a grass apron.

"When I told her to hit the brakes, she just pushed her foot down on everything until she found it," Winter said.

Blake suffers from a rare genetic birth defect called San Filipo Syndrome B in which an enzyme which helps filter impurities from the body is missing. The disorder affects only one in four million children.

The expense of taking the youngster to a Detroit, Mich., specialist the last 21/2 years and an expected trip to Baltimore, Md., this year for a special procedure prompted members of Xi Delta Upsilon chapter in Dumas to apply for the state sorority assistance.

The selection of the Williamsons for the sorority assistance marks the first change in the organization's project in several years. Previously the Baylor Kidney-Dialysis Center had received sorority support for six

The trust fund is expected to reach $14,000 by the end of the sorority year next summer.

A procedure to be performed on

Blake in Baltimore involves an amniotic transplant.

"The placenta from a mother and baby, delivered by Caesarian section, will be implanted in Blake's stomach," she explained, "as a way, hopefully, of feeding the enzyme into his system."

Life expectancy for a child with San Filipo Syndrome B is 10 to 14 years. With the enzyme lacking, the body's organs are required to work harder, resulting in enlargement of those body parts.

Mrs. Williamson says her son has both an enlarged heart and liver. He also is externely hyperactive.

McEnroe steathily moves in tourney

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer When they held the draw for the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, top-seeded John McEnroe's position was greeted with a gasp. His section seemed to be loaded with a host of ambitious Davids, seemingly capable of knocking off Goliath.

They have evolved, instead, into so much cannon fodder for the world's No. 1 player. An injury eliminated Kevin Curren, one of the Davids, and on Sunday McEnroe blew away Kevin Moir, a qualifier ranked No.

335 on the computer, who advanced to that match almost by accident.

On Tuesday, by virtue of his upset win over No. 11 Juan Aguilera of Spain, it was Robert Green's turn.

Clearly, Green had a better chance against McEnroe than Moir did. He is, after all, ranked considerably higher - No. 132. And he came in armed with a degree in Russian literature from Boston University.

Those weapons added up to a 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory for Johnny Mac, a perfectly respectable result for Green, who took more games from him than any other opponent in this tournament has managed.

Green harbored no outrageous ambitions as he prepared for his moment at center court in the U.S. Tennis Center. He is a realist.

"Waiting in the locker room to come out, you feel a little bit like Gary Gilmore," he said, recalling the convicted killer, who was executed by a Utah firing squad in 1977. "Y'know, just waiting for someone to come get you." McEnroe sounded The Executioner's Song in a hurry, sweeping the first two games without surrendering a point. There was no white flag from the other side of the net, though. Instead, Green staged an impressive recovery, breaking McEnroe in the third game and holding service in the fourth to tie the first set at 2-2.

Did Green have his slingshot working? Not quite. There were no more surprises in the set as McEnroe coasted and that was OK with Green, who had made his point ... or rather, points.

"All I wanted to do was hold serve as much as I could," Green said. "If I lost the first set one break or in a tie-breaker, fine. I just wanted to establish that I could hold serve against him."

That established, Green held service through the first four games of the second set.

Then it started to rain, almost as if the tennis gods were weeping for the underdog.

After a half hour's wait, play resumed and McEnroe reeled off 10 straight points. Green was not about to use the delay as an excuse, though. "I'd like to say I got a little bit cold or something, but I don't think that happened," he said. The rest of the match was routine, a lesson from the master's textbook.

Green was suitably impressed. before you think of it," he said.

"He almost anticipates the shot

DALLAS(AP)-The Dallas because of a separated right Cowboys believe they have found a new gung-ho spirit behind quarterback Gary Hogeboom.

The Cowboys overcame a 13-0 deficit to trim the Los Angeles Rams 20-13 Monday night in Hogeboom's regular season National Football League debut as a starter.

"I see a strong team unity building," said All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White. "If we stay together like this it's going to be a fun season."

The Cowboy defense intercepted Ram quarterback Vince Ferragamo four times while Hogeboom was recovering from a shaky start.

"It was better than catching a big fish," said White, who spent most of his time fishing during a contract dispute that ended a week before the Los Angeles game.

"There is just nothing that can beat the feeling of going into that locker room after winning a game like we did," said White.

The Cowboys paid a price. Wide receiver Tony Hill will be out

How would you feel if you were Danny White?

Kind of sick at the stomach maybe or like a player without a team? When Gary Hogeboom was inserted into the Dallas Cowboys starting lineup a week ago Tuesday, White had to be a little irritated. And when Hogeboom was just short of sensational Monday night in his first start, White probably felt both sick at the stomach and like a player without a team.

The Cowboys starting quarterback since 1979, White had held the record for most completions in a single game with 31. But Hogeboom completed 33 of 47 passes for 343 yards on national television to lead the Cowboys come-from-behind win Monday.

Everybody saw it. Hogeboom, with his rifle-like arm, for the time being is the new man sitting atop the totem pole.

Changing subjects somewhat, the Cowboys had somewhat of a struggle on their hands with the Rams, due primarily to the fact Tom-Landry made his decision on a starting quarterback so late. If Landry won't change his mind again, look for the 'Pokes to be tough. But back to the "former" quarterback controversy.

Many young aspiring quarterbacks may look to Danny White as a model. And that's not a bad choice at all. But we've got to realize he's only human and that the great Cowboy era isn't coming to an end because White may be ousted.

To show the human side of White, consider what he said about Monday night's game. An Associated Press story published in Tuesday's Brand said White had mixed emotions about that game.

"It was exciting to see how well the defense played," he said. "We have the potential to win the Super Bowl with a defense like that." Mixed emotions? Mixed between what? The emotions surely weren't mixed between offense and defense. White stayed away from commenting about the offense and Hogeboom's performance. He's human. Who wants to talk about how well your replacement's performance was? White still claims Hogeboom's playing time is only an experiment. Maybe it is. White should know because he's closer to the inside workings than we are.

It's been a successful experiment, however. At least it has been thus far. Maybe Hogeboom just had a hot night, but he deserves another chance.

In the same AP story in which he conveyed his emotions, White was quoted as saying he wouldn't make a final decision about his future until the "experiment" was over.

A five-year absence from the Super Bowl is a long one for the Cowboys, and fans won't tolerate it much longer. After Monday, believable to most of those fans is the fact Hogeboom can return the Cowboys to the NFL throne.

Gary Hogeboom looks like he's the man for Dallas. Whether he throws 33 completions or 33 interceptions next week against the Giants, Hogeboom is on his way to becoming the favorite in Big D.

Cubs extend lead in East

AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs have passed their first test of the final month.

Ron Cey homered for the second straight day and Scott Sanderson managed to scatter 13 hits as the Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-2 Tuesday night, extending their lead in the National League East to seven games over New York.

The Cubs did it by knocking out Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton, and the impressive victory may have knocked the Phillies out of the pennant chase.

"This is not the time to get cocky," warned Sanderson after Chicago had finished sweeping the two-game series at Veterans Stadium. "But if we had come in here and they won two in a row, it would have given them confidence to get the ball rolling for them."

Instead, Chicago ran its record in September to 4-0 and, coupled with the Mets' 12-2 defeat in St. Louis, helped the Cubs take their biggest lead of the season. Third-place Philadelphia is 101/2 games behind.

The victory came on the same day Chicago received permission from the baseball commissioner's office to start printing playoff tickets, and although it may be early to start counting such things, the Cubs magic number to eliminate the Mets is now

Immigration Reform—In the Wake of Simpson-Mazzoli

This week in Washington, Representatives will meet to decide the fate of the Simpson-Mazzoli Immigration Reform Bill. Their job is to find a way to draft a compromise version acceptable to both the House and the Senate. At this point it.

is doubtful they will succeed. Even if the Senate accepts most of the provisions of the House bill, there are many, including Kent Hance, who believe the House would not pass its own version again if it came up for another vote. It passed by only five votes last June.

The problem is that the House version of Simpson-Mazzoli would be unfair and too expensive to implement. At the root of the problem is a House leader lacking in political courage and leadership. At one point House Speaker Tip O'Neill said illegal immigration was a "regional problem" and he wished the bill would just disappear. There are those who feel the same way about Tip.

The House version would grant amnesty to illegal aliens who came into this country before 1982. This is not only unfair to those who have waited for years to enter legally, it would also cost over a billion dollars a year in services for the next four years.

The House version also fails to provide a good solution for proper identification which is necessary for a workable program. Senator Alan Simpson of Wyoming has a collection of forged identification cards that proves this point. One illegal alien obtained a forged driver's license and social security card, enrolled in college and got tuition aid, food stamps, Medicare, Medicaid and unemployment benefits. Many people oppose a national identification card for workers, but we already have one. All that is really needed is a counterfeit-proof social security

The House version has many sections that I object to, but there is one provision I sup-port. I agree with the need to provide a program for guest workers for agriculture. This is necessary to keep from causing hardship on our struggling agricultural economy.

Our immigration problem continues while Congress debates the solution. Professor Donald Huddle of Rice University estimates that for every 100 illegal aliens employed, 65 Americans are left unemployed. And, in 1982 alone Texas' taxpayers paid $85 million to educate the children of illegal aliens.

Loss of jobs and the costs of social services are the most obvious burdens of illegal immigration, but there is a more fundamental issue. A sovereign nation must have firm, controlled borders. We cannot continue to live at the mercy of social and economic conditions outside the control of the United States.

Larry Combest is a fourth generation West Texan. He has worked as a farmer, teacher, for the A.S.C.S. and for Senator John Tower in Washington. He is a candidate for House of Representatives, 19th District.

Small farms show surprising growth tion's small farms increased by more than 94,000 over four years as many Americans gravitated to more rural living, new government figures

Analysts have noted a movement of people from cities and suburbs to the small towns and countryside in recent years, but had not anticipated the extent of the growth in farms of less than 50 acres.

"I was rather certain they would increase, but I did not expect, I frankly admit, a 17 percent increase in four years' time," Agriculture Department population expert Bureau study.

That report, released Monday, showed farms of less than 50 acres increasing from nearly 543,000 in 1978 to 637,000 in 1982, the most recent figures available.

This does not mean an increase in family farms nor a turn away from the concentration of commercial farms among large business concerns, however, agriculture experts pointed out.

Beale pointed out that the fastgrowing farms, "with a few exceptions, are so small they usually are operated by people who earn most of their income from non-farm sources. They are as much a way of life as a business.

There are exceptions, of course, and Beale pointed out that such small operations can be a success raising tobacco, or chickens and some other products.

But in general, he said, that's not the case. "The majority of these places are run by people who are not engaging in farming as their principal occupation," he said.

"Some of these are people of urban background changing their lives, finding a good place in which to rear their children. Others are rural people, maybe blue collar employees, who know somthing about smallscale farming, who want to engage in it, who don't want to live in town," Beale said. In many cases both spouses commute to a job and work the farm on evenings and weekends.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A U.S. Postal Service advertisement in the July issue of Reader's Digest "could 'mislead the public" into illegally mailing mangoes from Hawaii to the U.S. mainland, says the Agriculture Department.

Mangoes, as well as other fruit, could spread insect pests, including the devastating Mediterranean fruit fly, officials said Tuesday.

The USDA has the responsibility of protecting crops and livestock from the intrusion of foreign pests and diseases. Certain food items that could harbor destructive insects, for example, are closely regulated.

Advised of the department's objection, a spokesman for the U.S. Postal Service said the advertisements would cease. There was only the one, but it was enough to trigger official USDA objections.

The advertisement in the Digest was headed, "How to Pick a Package Deal" and was illustrated with a postcard displaying the message: 'Hawaii great! Did you get the 200 mangoes?' Assistant Secretary of Agriculture C.W. McMillan, who oversees insect suppression for the department, said it is illegal to carry or mail mangoes or many other kinds of fruit into the U.S. mainland from Hawaii because wanted insects.

"We're concerned that the impression created in this advertisement could result in costly infestations of fruit flies or other harmful agricultural pests," McMillan said.

"Eradicating the Mediterranean fruit fly from California in the early 1980s cost American taxpayers more than $100 million. We believed this outbreak originated from infested fruit brought in or mailed from Hawaii."

Officials were at a loss to explain why it took until September to raise objections over an ad that appeared in the Digest's July issue.

Bonnie Aikman, a spokeswoman for the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said that a letter is in the works from Agriculture Secretary John R. Block to Postmaster General William F. Bolger to explain the mango situation fully.

But Jim Van Loozen, a spokesman for the Postal Service, said he was unaware of the mango flap until told about the USDA's complaint.

After checking it out, Van Loozen said that "obviously, this is just an oversight on our part" when the Digest ad was developed by a commercial advertising agency.

"My understanding is that it was only scheduled to run as a single ad in a series we're running to make customers more aware of the services and things that we offer," he said. "We made an error of oversight and we won't repeat it."

McMillan said USDA offers information to travelers who are unsure about which food, plant and animal products are banned and which are safe to send or carry into the United

Lubbock remembers Holly

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - For years, Charles Hardin "Buddy" Holly was remembered by many Lubbockites as simply another good old boy who danced to the beat of a different drummer back in the '50s, a theory which stunned both his fans and those laboring within the wide parameters of the contemporary music industry. For Buddy Holly was more, much more.

An innovator in the world of rock 'n' roll, his arrangements and compositions played an active role in the re-shaping of the genre. Bands ranging from The Beatles to The Rolling Stones have cited Holly as a moving influence, and entertainers too numerous to cite have expanded their profit margins by re-recording his songs.

Indeed, Don McLean went so far as to refer to the day Holly lost his life in the crash of a private plane as "the day the music died."

The number of what must be termed musical tourists spending their holidays flying from England or Germany or points even further away to visit not the Grand Canyon or Broadway or Universal Studios, but instead an isolated West Texas city called Lubbock - simply to see where a young man named Buddy Holly was born and raised - seems to mushroom each year. The president of the Buddy Holly Memorial Society even relocated to Lubbock. And no doubt all of these Holly fans continue to regard 1979 as the year Lubbock came of age, the first year a Buddy Holly Memorial Concert (featuring Waylon Jennings and The Crickets) was held and the year artist Grant Speed was commissioned to sculpt a lifesize bronze statue of Holly to be erected near the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The statue was unveiled the following year, with Roy Orbison and Bo

Diddley filling the Civic Center exhibition hall for another Holly Memorial Concert.

But this was not to be the end of the Holly celebration. Yes, there have been occasional problems in keeping the concert alive; one year found it taking place at a local nightclub, 1983 found Marshall Crenshaw performing before too many empty seats, and this year reported demands by Holly's widow kept the non-profit West Texas Music Association from keeping the concert tradition alive.

Nevertheless, the first week of September - including Holly's birthday on Sept. 7 - continues to be treated as Buddy Holly Week by the city. Last year found the city keeping its promise to transform the area around the Holly statue into a Walk Of Fame honoring musicians hailing from Lubbock and the West Texas area. Amidst the wild revelry of '50s Dance Contests and Buddy Holly

Look-Alike contests and fans heading for the Hilton Inn to catch sight of musical celebrities (some of whom arrived and some of whom did not) and '50s automobiles parading to the statue site, a formal ceremony was held by city officials.

Bronze plaques commemorating not only Holly, but Lubbock-born musician Mac Davis and Littlefieldborn country star Waylon Jennings. were installed in the brick sea surrounding the elevated statue's island. And at 4 p.m. Sept. 8, three more West Texas musical artists vocalists Jimmy Dean, of Plainview, and Ralna English, of Lubbock; and saxophonist Bobby Keys, of Slaton and Lubbock - will be inducted into the West Texas Hall Of Fame.

Keys definitely will be present for the ceremony. Dean has commitments elsewhere that day, but is sending a personal letter. Miss English's appearance remains ten-

Texas Tech University's Museum will open an exhibit featuring West Texas music on Sept. 1, with further attention being drawn to the display when The Maines Brothers Band and The Planets perform a free concert at the museum from 6 to 8 p.m. Sept.

Once again, dance fans from across Texas and eastern New Mexico will congregate in Lubbock for the finals of the '50s Dance Contest. However, the contest has grown in scope. Last year's winners won a trip to Disnyland. This year's winners earn a free trip to London, England, courtesy of American Airlines, Patrick Henry International (travel agency) of Dallas and the Kensington Hilton in Dallas.

The dance finals will take place at 9:30 p.m. Sept. 8 in the ballroom at Lubbock's Hilton Inn, with music supplied by Lubbock bands Showdown and The Nelsons and Houston rockabilly band Six Gun.

Smith to speak at meeting

Glenn Smith of Roswell, N.M. will be the guest speaker at the Cowboy Camp meeting scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. both Friday and Saturday at Westway Community Building.

Smith, president of International Western World Outreach Center, Inc., is an ex-rodeo professional and rancher.

Ministering the gospel with a western flavor, Smith was ordained to full-time ministry in the early 1970's and ministers primarily to those in the farming and livestock industry, although occassionally in churches throughout the country.

An international evangelistic ministry, Western World Outreach Center has pioneered many cowboy church services and camp meetings, including those at the National Finals Rodeo and the World Cup Rodeo in Australia.

wets and the drys are gearing up for another showdown over Oklahoma's anti-saloon laws, and opponents predict a pitched battle over the bottle in this Bible Belt state, the only one in the nation without any legal

"The opposition has nowhere else to go," he says."Their backs are against the wall."

The wets say that while Oklahoma laws prohibit liquor sales by the drink, what the state has is "liquor by the wink," and their campv3s what they see as the hypocrisy of state laws.

However, Donald Chaffin, director of a group known as Sooner Alcohol Narcotics Education, derides the pro-liquor campaign theme of "Let's Be Honest." "What they (wets) are really saying is let's make dishonesty honest," Chaffin says, adding "they're trying to legalize their crime.

Oklahomans are used to preachers denouncing "demon rum" from the pulpit in this Bible Belt state, where Prohibition wasn't repealed until 1959. They're also used to the private clubs where illegal liquor by the drink is sold.

They're even accustomed to voting on the state constitutional provision that prohibits the sale of liquor by the drink - unsuccessful challenges to the anti-saloon law came in 1972 and 1976. Liquor-by-the-drink proponents also lost a Supreme Court fight in 1980 when an initiative petition was ruled invalid.

What's different in the hoopla leading up to the runoff primary that will contain the constitutional challenge is the dollars expected to be spent on advertising for wet and Television and radio ads began last week in a campaign that is expected to cost $650,000.

In one anti-alcohol TV spot, an actor in a tree-shaded glade talks amiably about Oklahoma's bounty, and says "There's not one thing about liquor by the drink that would make Oklahoma a better place to live." In a pro-liquor ad, an announcer argues that state law encourages drinkers to quaff a whole bottle of spirits, rather than just one drink, and ends "Come on Oklahoma, let's stop the nonsense...by the drink, not the bottle. Sept. 18, vote yes for liquor by the drink. Honestly."

Wets, drys head for another showdown

Dry forces, led by fundamentalist preachers, have twice kept Oklahoma without liquor by the drink, even though liquor stores are legal.

But wet forces say this time could be different, thanks to an expected heavy voter turnout and language in the proposed constitutional change that would allow counties wishing to remain dry to do so.

Oklahoma's population has changed, they say, with the influx of thousands of people due to the oil boom and high unemployment in the East and Midwest.

Just after repeal in 1959, the Oklahoma Legislature was guided by public sentiment to enact laws that required no "open" saloons and only across-the-bar sales of beer with an alcohol content of less than 3.2 percent. Even in private clubs, the law stipulates that patrons must bring their own bottles, with no "house" bottles permitted.

Through the years, the law has been cordially ignored, and it is possible to get an illegal drink in most nightclubs and restaurants in the state.

Until recently, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board made periodic raids in so-called private clubs, confiscating liquor bottles and arresting club personnel. But adverse court rulings and a change in administration have led the commission to focus on more serious liquor law violations, public education and prevention of drunken driving, said Bob Lester, current ABC direc-

Supporters say voter turnout is a key to the outcome of the election, and feel that a large turnout will give the constitutional change a better chance of passing.

Lee Slater, state Election Board secretary, said he "would not be surprised if the turnout is 1 million voters."

That would easily surpass the 1982 record primary runoff turnout of 773,674, which produced a 125,000-vote victory by proponents of a pari-mutuel horse racing petition.

Chaffin disputes the theory that passage of the pro-gambling petition will help the new liquor plan. He says churchmen, as a group, are more opposed to drinking than gambling.

Dick McCartney, editor of the Baptist Messenger, official publication of the Baptist General Convention. agrees.

"They can see that in spite of the fact that a neighbor may go down and bet the grocery money on the horses, he hasn't run over anybody on the way," said McCartney, chairman of the Oklahoma Is OK Committee, which was organized to fight the state question.

He also says a heavy turnout won't necessarily help wets, noting that dry forces also have registered "a large number" of people who otherwise would not vote.

He said "a groundswell" is developing across the state by those opposed to the state question. "The last time we carried 71 of 77 counties. I don't see any reason to expect we can't do the same again."

The proposed change would allow liquor-by-the-drink sales in any county after a vote of the people. It would take signatures of 10 percent of the county's registered voters before an election could be called.

A key to the election, all agree, will be whether a heavy "no" vote in the rural areas will overcome an anticipated strong "yes" vote in Oklahoma City and Tulsa - the state's largest cities.

Head Jr. Tuesday said he would take a change of venue request under advisement in the case of Jack Elder, who is charged in a three count federal indictment of transporting illegal aliens.

Meanwhile, Head postponed jury selection in Elder's trial, which was scheduled to begin next Monday.

Elder, 40, is accused of transporting undocumented Salvadorans from the Casa Oscar Romero halfway house in San Benito, where he is director, to a bus station in Harlingen five miles away. If convicted, he faces up to 15 vears in prison and a $6,000

One witness testified Tuesday that a survey indicated it would be difficult for Elder to get a fair trial in the Southern District of Texas.

Defense witness Diane Wiley of the Minnesota-based National Jury Project told the federal judge that she and her staff had surveyed 100 Corpus Christi residents selected from a list of past, transport Salvadoran illegal iurors.

Ms. Wiley said survey results showed that 92 percent of those polled already had an opinion on Elder's guilt or innocence. Less than 65 percent of those surveyed said they felt they could be fair and 87 percent expressed negative attitudes toward the movement, she said.

Elder has been a leader in a nationwide sanctuary effort that offers assistance to Salvadoran immigrants fleeing violence in their homeland. He has also been an outspoken critic of U.S. policy in that region.

Last year he quit his teaching job in San Antonio and became director of Casa Oscar Romero, a churchsponsored refugee halfway house.

The telephone survey, with a 4 to 10 percent margin of error, cost $1,500 and was funded by the Rio Grande Valley Defense Fund, set up to pay Elder's court costs and legal

Ms. Wiley said survey questions were designed to determine juror attitudes in four areas: Opinions on illegal aliens, knowledge of and contact with the Border Patrol and the Immigration and Naturalization Service, awareness of and attitudes toward the sanctuary move-funded survey. He charged Ms. Wiley with wording the questions to prejudice those sampled. Under cross-examination, Ms. Wiley said she had not conducted a similar survey in any other community and did not know if attitudes and opinions would be any different.

The survey also measured juror awareness of another sanctuary trial earlier this year, that of church worker Stacey Lynn Merkt, a volunteer at the Casa Oscar Romero halfway house. Ms. Merkt, 29, was convicted of conspiring to aliens. Ms. Merkt, 29, was sentenced in June to two years probation. Hearings will be scheduled later this month on other motions in Elder's case.

Difference of opinion

Dear Ann Landers: Your assessment of children being permitted to sleep with a parent of the opposite sex is absolutely ridiculous. Your phrase "borderline incestuous"

People like you who are obsessed with sex and see something dirty around every corner cause all the problems. You should either clean up your mind or retire.

I am a 29-year-old divorcee with a one-bedroom apartment. My 3-yearold son and I sleep in a double bed. The closeness we share is so far above the realm of your obscene imagination that you could never understand it. Just sign me-No Hang-ups in Stamford, Conn.

Dear Stam: Thank you for your opinion. Here's another one.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was a small child I had nightmares. My divorced mother used to take me into her bed to comfort me. This went on until I was 12. I completely support your theory that children do not belong in the bed of a parent of the opposite sex and am living proof that you are right.

For years I carried the secret shame caused by my confused sexual feeling. It was impossible for me to relate in a normal way to the girls I dated in high school. The problem persisted well into my adulthood.

After several years of therapy I realize how sexually suppressed I was-and why. This year I finally was able to enjoy the freedom of a love affair.

I felt tremendous compassion for that son in Buzzard's Bay, Ms., whose mother said he frequently sleeps in her bed and that you are full of hooey.

For him, and countless others whose unresolved sexual guilt will haunt them well past puberty, I hope they can find the courage to face their deepest, darkest shame, realize that they are without blame, and free themselves from the overwhelming, shackling guilt.-Finally Victorious in L.A.

for scouting set at schools

School night

School night for scouting has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Bluebonnet, Northwest, Tierra Blanca and St. Anthony's Elementary Schools. Boys and parents are invited to come to their neighborhood school to join the scouts according to Roy McCoy, school night chairman for the Llano Estacado Council, Boy Scouts of America.

"Cub scouting and scouting are more educational than recreational programs," McCoy said, "and parents find that the fun and activities of scouting all have a basis of character development, citizenship training and mental and physical fitness."

McCoy explained that Tiger Cubs are seven and Cub Scouts are eight or they are in the third grade.
