EDC disbands, to give money back to entities

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN Editor-Publisher

The Economic Development Council of Hereford has ceased to exist, voting Monday to disband and to transfer remaining funds back to the city and county.

The EDC was formed to implement the strategic plan for economic and community development—a community-consensus building plan with the Economic Development Strategy Council (EDSC) as the steering committee.

LEGATE

The EDSC was formed by the Waste Deposit Impact Committee (WDIC), which received a $155,000 grant from the Department of Energy to study the impact of the nuclear waste dump study in the city and county and to form a strategic community development plan.

Funding for the EDC was planned as a city-county-school district effort, but the school district withdrew following legal questions.

With the city and county not being able to provide longrange commitments because of budget restraints, the EDC did not employ a professional director and was at a standstill at the start of 1990.

The EDC had planned to transfer its assets to a new city economic development corporation if voters approved a sales tax proposal in May.

Tom LeGate, an EDC director, said the council had a fund balance of almost $50,000 and issued checks to the city and county Monday night, retaining only $2,000 in a contingency fund for final debts.

LeGate said the council "thought that turning the money back to the taxing entities was the proper thing to do if we based it on our guidelines."

The council also approved letters of appreciation to Bud Eades, who served as a volunteer executive director for EDC, and to West Texas Rural Telephone for donation of some equipment.

The EDC was composed of John Perrin, chairman; LeGate, Troy Don Moore, Raymond Schlabs, Craig Smith, Rocky Lee, Don Graham and Mike Carr.

Congress quarrels over flag

WASHINGTON (AP) - Critics of a proposed constitutional amendment against burning the American flag claim it is being rushed through as ammunition for fall campaigns, but sponsors say it should move faster.

The comment came as part of an outpouring of Flag Day rhetoric in Congress that focused on the amendment to allow the federal government and the states to ban burning or otherwise defacing the American flag.

Beyond Washington, the flag marked its birthday by being raised, praised, frozen and burned as the debate over the national symbol rolled across America.

"Make Our Day - Try And Burn These Flags, Pinkos," read the sign in a Chicago parade. Elsewhere in the city, that's just what some of them did.

In Vermont, the state archivist suggested another amendment to protect the flag. Gregory Sanford said the very federal law that says how many stars and stripes must be on the flag should be amended to require that the flag be made out of fireproof material.

A California peace activist froze a flag in a cake tin and displayed it to reporters as he called for a freeze in nuclear weapons.

In Pittsburgh, the observance was traditional as Boy Scouts sang "America The Beautiful," raised a flag and rang a replica of the Liberty Bell.

A 5-4 Supreme Court decision Monday scrapped last year's statutory ban on flag burning, setting the stage for the drive to amend the Constitution.

Army changes mind: Beetle really is funny

WASHINGTON (AP) - For 40 years, the Army grumbled about Pvt. Beetle Bailey. He's a real misfit, they said. Lazy. No spit and polish. Drives the Sarge nuts.

And so it was that an incredulous Mort Walker, a cartoonist who once slogged through the mud at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., as an Army draftee in World War II, was ushered into the Pentagon on Thursday and given a hero's welcome.

Walker, who created the Beetle Bailey comic strip in 1950, could hardly believe it. For years, he had braved the Army's fire when Beetle and the gang - Zero, Sgt. Snorkel, Lt. Fuzz, Gen. Halftrack - did something foolish.

On Thursday, he blinked before TV lights in the Pentagon briefing room. Generals slapped him on the back, praised him to the skies and asked for his autograph.

"I can't believe I'm actually here," Walker said. "As hard as it is to find anything in the Pentagon, they finally found a sense of humor."

Walker gave Army officials a diorama based on his special Flag Day cartoon, which appeared Thursday in the more than 1,800 newspapers worldwide that carry the syndicated Beetle Bailey strip.

because the strip poked fun at officers, although the official explanation was that "Beetle Bailey had a low interest value."

All was forgiven Thursday. The citation said Walker's "ingenuity in portraying Army members in a humorous manner has contributed significantly to the morale of our soldiers as they provide for our national security."

Williams, Richards argue roles

AUSTIN (AP) - Among their many differences, the gubernatorial candidates are debating which background is better - being a government insider or an Austin outsider.

Democrat Ann Richards said Thursday it's time for Texas voters to elect a governor who can run government.

"Nobody's been governor who tried to manage state government... They've just tried to hold the lid on" during crisis after crisis, Ms. Richards told a convention of elementary school principals.

"We've played games all these years (by) electing someone who is not a part of government. And you've seen the results of that. They cannot make the system work," said Ms. Richards.

Her opponent, Republican Clayton Williams, told the same group that his career in business makes him the better choice.

Calling for some dramatic changes in public education, Williams said, "I am here today to say that as an outsider - and not part of the Austin establishment - a Williams administration will challenge the status quo."

In his brief speech, Williams suggested revamping public schools to allow students and parents the freedom to choose any state-accredited school they wish.

Saying it was time to abandon the "centralized bureaucracy" in public education and expanding local options, Williams insisted that the proposal - which parallels a Brookings Institution report - could increase competition among schools and said such pressure would bring improvements.

But Ms. Richards, a former public school teacher and two-term state treasurer, said Williams would be a rerun of Republican Gov. Bill Clements, who like Williams was in the oil business before being elected governor.

Ms. Richards criticized Clements for taking four special legislative sessions before agreeing to a sales tax increase to meet a court order to provide more money for poor school districts.

"Not only did our current governor fail to offer leadership, he obstructed progress every step of the way," she said.

Bush vows veto of family leave bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush will keep his pledge to veto legislation requiring employers to give workers up to three months' unpaid leave for family emergencies, his spokesman said today.

The Senate gave final approval to the family leave bill in a voice vote Thursday night after brief debate.

Passage, the culmination of a four-year effort by supporters, was a bit anticlimactic. Republican opponents conceded they could not defeat the House-passed bill and did not seek a recorded vote.

At the White House, Bush was asked this morning during a photo session whether he would veto the legislation as the White House had threatened.

Bush did not reply, but his press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, said, "Yes," when asked the same question as reporters filed out of the photo session with Paragay's President Andres Rodriguez.

The president contends that forcing employers to provide parental leave amounts to excessive government intervention in the workplace.

However, Bush says he supports the concept of voluntary parental leave.

Democrats, confident that the measure is popular with voters, immediately sought to turn up the political pressure on Bush to sign the bill.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, quoted from one of Bush's own 1988 campaign speeches, in which he seemed to support just such employee leave guarantees.

He quoted Bush as saying: "We also need to ensure that women don't have to worry about getting their jobs back after having a child or caring for a child after a serious illness."

"It's time to see if President Bush advocates the same policies as president as he did on the campaign trail when he sought the presidency in 1988," said Mitchell.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., the bill's sponsor, said in an interview that he would try to meet with Bush to urge he sign the measure. Dodd noted that the public veto threats were delivered by Bush's spokesmen and aides.

Jet collection

Craig Cothrin, seven-year-old son of Deanne and Larry Cothrin, has his collection of jets on display this month at Deaf Smith Country Library. He began collecting the items three years ago. Some of his miniatures were purchased at air shows, some were gifts, one was made by Craig and his father and one was used as a birthday cake decoration. Among his collection is an autographed book featuring pictures of pilots, World War II Japanese planes and past and present modern-day jets.

"Protect and Check" against Lyme Disease

If you learn how to "Protect and Check," you won't have to let the threat of Lyme Disease keep you or your family from enjoying the great outdoors.

Experts say that the incidence of Lyme Disease is growing rapidly. About 8,000 cases were reported last year from nearly every part of the country. But experts also agree that the number of reported cases is merely the top of the iceberg.

The good news is that preventative measures are easy to follow and early detection can help you avoid serious health problems.

Lyme Disease is transmitted by the bite of a tiny tick. Because these ticks can be anywhere—in the woods, at the shore, even your own backyard—the Lyme Borrelia Foundation says you should get in the habit of protecting yourself and your children before going out, as well as checking for the tiny tick after returning indoors.

This is a two-part process called "Protect and Check." Here's how to do it:

Protect against tick bites by wearing light-colored clothing. Wear long-sleeves and tuck pant legs into socks to reduce exposed skin areas. Be especially careful if you have to go into heavily wooded areas and tall grass.

Before going out give family members the extra protection of a repellent that's especially effective against ticks. Keep your tick repellent handy and get in the habit of using it whenever you're going outside for any length of time.

The Lyme Borrelia Foundation recommends that you spray a repellent on both clothing and exposed skin areas. A quick, simple spray of repellent can be an effective deterrent.

Step two in the process is to carefully check yourself, family members and pets when you return indoors. If you discover a tick, remain calm. Not all ticks carry the Lyme Disease bacteria.

Remove the tick with tweezers by grasping near the skin and pulling with a gentle, steady pressure. Do not twist or rotate the tick. Also, do not crush, burn or prick the tick because this can cause the release of the bacteria. Covering the tick with petroleum jelly will not help remove it.

After you remove the tick, place it in a closed container with a blade of grass for identification and testing by a doctor. Ticks are hard to kill, so if you must dispose of it, flush it down the toilet. Do not put the tick in the trash.

Be sure to disinfect the site of the tick bite and wash your hands and tweezers. Consult your physician and watch for a rash or flu-like symptoms within days or weeks.

By remembering to "Protect and Check," everyone can enjoy outdoor activities while guarding against Lyme Disease.

Don't get bugged by mosquitoes

Each year Americans must contend with around 10 trillion mosquitoes—41,000 for every man, woman and child. While scientists search for ways to reduce the population of these pesky critters, parents can help keep mosquitoes away from the house and yard and protect their children from being bitten.

Mosquito eggs need water to hatch, so eliminate obvious breeding areas:

-Get rid of old tires. If you have a tire swing, punch a few holes in the bottom for water to drain out.

-Dump out pails, pans and open containers after a rain.

-If you have a bird bath, change the water frequently.

-Fill in ditches and other areas where puddles form around the house.

You and your children are still going to encounter mosquitoes-on picnics or while swimming or hiking. That's why you should rely on a quality insect repellent.

Mosquitoes are still going to be among us, but we've come a long way since our pioneer forefathers smeared mud and bear fat on their bodies to keep the bugs away.

Pistons wrap up 2nd straight title

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Bill Laimbeer clutched the championship trophy like a crucial rebound. He refused to let go.

"It's mine," he shouted as he carried his prize through a champagne-soaked locker room. "It's mine."

Vinnie Johnson's voice boomed through the celebration after his title-clinching shooting spree soared over the heads of helpless Portland defenders.

"We ended the '80s," he roared. "We started the '90s."

In the last two minutes, Laimbeer got all the rebounds, Johnson made all his shots, and the Detroit Pistons sneered at a 90-83 deficit and stormed off with a 92-90 victory over the Trail Blazers.

That final flurry Thursday night gave the Pistons their second consecutive NBA title just when it looked like they would be returning to Auburn Hills, Mich., for a sixth game Sunday. Instead, they'll go home for a parade.

"We never talked about it all season," playoff most valuable player Isiah Thomas said, "but for the past four to five years we felt like we were one of the best teams in the history of basketball."

"We wanted to repeat as champions, but not so much to prove it to anybody else. We wanted to do it for ourselves."

The Pistons did it the hard way. They split the first two games at home, then faced three in Portland, where they had lost 20 consecutive games since 1974. They won all three.

They challenged the NBA's best rebounding team and won the battle of the boards in four of the five games.

They trailed the fourth game by one point with 31 seconds left but won 112-109.

They trailed Thursday night by seven and called timeout with 2:02 left.

"I thought we were going to win," Portland center Kevin Duckworth said.

With 1:50 left, Johnson hits a 12-foot jumper, gets fouled and sinks the shot, making the score 90-86.

Duckworth misses an 8-footer with 1:32 to go and Laimbeer gets the rebound.

With 1:20 remaining, Johnson makes a 10-footer. The lead is down to 90-88.

With 1:01 remaining, Duckworth misses again, this time a 3-foot hook. Laimbeer rebounds again, his 17th of the game.

Thomas caps his 29-point performance with an 18-foot jumper, tying the game with 36 seconds to play.

With 20 seconds remaining, Portland's Terry Porter makes a bad pass, giving Detroit the ball.

"All series long we have been leaving it open for Detroit," Portland's Buck Williams said.

Thomas dribbles the clock down, then feeds Johnson with about four seconds left. A head fake gets Jerome Kersey off his feet and Johnson connects for the last of his 16 points.

"It felt good when it left my hand," Johnson said, "but I can't say I knew it was going in."

"I was kind of down on myself in the first half," when he was scoreless and missed all three shots. "Bill (Laimbeer) kept me in the game. He said the second half was going to be my half and he told me I would hit the big shot down the stretch."

Porter took the inbounds pass, but his desperation 3-pointer missed at the buzzer.

Duckworth and Porter led the Blazers with 21 points each.

"Any team that can beat us three times in our own building is a great one," Blazers coach Rick Adelman said. "Isiah had a great series for them. He was making shots all over the court."

Thomas, who averaged 27.6 points for the series, had 20 in the first 15:18 and led Detroit to a 46-42 halftime lead. But with Porter scoring 10 points and Clyde Drexler eight, the Blazers went ahead 69-65 after three quarters.

The Pistons overcame adversity all series long.

The harshest was the death of Joe Dumars Jr., father of the Detroit guard. Ninety minutes before his son scored 33 points in Sunday's 121-106 rout in Game 3, he died in Louisiana of congestive heart failure after a long illness. Dumars and his wife had decided that if his father died before a game, he wouldn't be told until afterward.

He considered returning to Louisiana and possibly missing Tuesday night's game, then decided to stay after talking with his mother.

"I knew my papa would want me to stay," Dumars said. "I'm as happy as I could be at this moment."

Dumars made just 2 of 13 shots for eight points in the clincher, but Detroit's guards still outscored Portland's for the third consecutive game, 53-46. The margin for the series was 304-252.

Simpsons, Sluman lead Open with 66s as 39 break par in first round

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) - The ground got wet, the golfers got well, and nearly every Simpson but Bart shared the U.S. Open lead.

Tough old Medinah turned a gentle face to the rain Thursday as a record 39 golfers, or one-quarter of the field, broke par in the first round of the Open.

"Medinah was there to take advantage of today," said Curtis Strange, but it wasn't there for him, not even as he began his campaign for a third straight U.S. Open victory.

Strange shot 1-over-par 73 and was seven shots off the lead. Tim and Scott Simpson, who are no more related to each other than they are to the irreverent TV cartoon character Bart Simpson, were tied with Jeff Sluman for the lead at 6-under 66, a course record.

"I sure hope people don't think I really watch that show," Scott Simpson said, laughing. "I guess it's OK, though, as long as my kids don't watch it."

To which Bart would reply: "Don't have a cow, Dad."

The most subpar scores in any previous Open round was 24 on the second day in 1985 at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich. The record for the first round had been 21 last year at Oak Hill in Rochester, N.Y.

"Medinah was defenseless," Strange said.

A full night of rain was the culprit that disarmed Medinah. At 7,195 yards, it is the longest U.S. Open course ever, and in previous Opens in 1949 and '75 had not yielded a four-round score of par or better.

Hitting onto its greens usually is about like dropping a golf ball into a frying pan. On Thursday, Strange described it as more like throwing darts at a cork board.

Sluman and Tim Simpson had very similar bogey-free sides of 33-33. Scott Simpson, who won the Open in 1987, had 34-32.

All three bettered the course record of 67 set last year in the U.S. Senior Open by Chi Chi Rodriguez and Gary Player. And those scores came over a course that played at 6,800 yards, or about one hole shorter.

Tim Simpson birdied the 17th, a 168-yard par-3, to go 6-under when he hit a 7-iron to 25 feet from the hole and sank the putt. Sluman's telling birdie came on the 15th, a 384-yard par-4, when he knocked in a 4-footer.

Scott Simpson had just one bogey, on the first hole. On the back nine, he birdied the 9th, 10th, 14th and 15th holes. He sank a pair of 30-foot birdie putts on the front side and got to 6-under when he hit a wedge within six inches of the hole on No. 15.

Sluman and the Simpsons were one stroke ahead of Mike Donald and Steve Jones, each of whom shot 35-32. John Huston, who finished third in the Masters, and Mark Brooks were at 68. Huston shot 35-33 and Brooks 33-35. Billy Ray Brown, Hale Irwin, Bob Tway and Emlyn Aubrey were tied at 69.

Strange's triple onslaught started badly. He bogeyed the first and fourth holes, but got a stroke back with a birdie on the par-5 fifth hole, hitting a wedge to four feet from the hole. A three-putt bogey on No. 9 gave him a 2-over 38.

He salvaged the round with a 1-under 35 on the back that included a three-putt bogey on No. 16 and birdies on the par-4 11th and 18th holes.

Scott Hoch and PGA champion Payne Stewart were in a group at 70, and Jack Nicklaus, a four-time Open champion, and Bob Gilder finished in a cluster at 71. Also at 71 was Wayne Levi, winner of two of the last three tour events.

Both Hoch and Gilder opened with nines of 31, one stroke off the Open record. But Hoch finished with a 35 and Gilder with 40.

Americans earn some respect in 1-0 loss to Italy at World Cup

ROME (AP) - You don't always have to slay the master to prove you no longer are the student.

The United States team at the World Cup, a group of college all-stars making America's first appearance in 40 years among the elite of soccer, belongs. That didn't seem true after it was routed by Czechoslovakia in its first game.

It was more apparent Thursday, when the Americans stayed right with powerful Italy in a 1-0 defeat.

"We obviously felt badly about how we fared against Czechoslovakia and we had to set things right. I think we did that," Coach Bob Gansler said.

"We had a lot to prove to people in this game, and I think we did prove we belong here," goalie Tony Meola added. "We took a lot of heat after losing 5-1, but we showed just what this team is capable of."

The United States is capable of staying close to one of the World Cup favorites. Only once, in the 70th minute, did the Americans really come close to scoring, but they rarely had to retreat, either.

"We showed people we have grown up a bit," Gansler said. "We showed we are psychologically tougher than people have given us credit for."

"We took a giant step tonight."

It wasn't the biggest step taken Thursday. Cameroon's "Indomitable Lions" made that leap, right past Romania 2-1 and into the second round, the first team to advance. Italy was the second.

Cameroon pulled off the first big upset of what has been an upside-down tournament thus far when it stunned defending champion Argentina 1-0 in the opener. Now the African champions can think about doing further damage and keeping its spotless World Cup record intact - the Cameroonians are the only team never to have lost in the championships, with a 2-0-3 record. They had three ties in 1982, but did not advance on tiebreakers.

"I think it is extraordinary for me and my teammates, and also for the whole of Cameroon," said Roger Milla, who scored twice against the Romanians, who had a valid excuse for losing, if they wanted to use it. Back home in Bucharest, police and military units were involved in confrontations with dissidents that erupted in gunfire.

"The television was broadcasting reports and this had its impact on the players," Romanian coach Emerich Jenei said.

In Thursday's other game, Yugoslavia beat Colombia 1-0.

Italy was pleased to have advanced, but it also learned a lesson against the United States: never take anyone for granted.

"The Americans played a very solid game defensively," Italian coach Azeglio Vicini said. "The players who were out here tonight were not the same as the players against Czechoslovakia."

The Italians weren't nearly as sharp on this night as in their 1-0 victory over Austria last Saturday. But their goal came on a brilliant passing combination from Andrea Carnavale to Nicola Berti to Roberto Donadoni to Giuseppe Giannini after GianLuca Vialli let the ball roll by.

Donadoni jumped over defender Michael Windischmann and put a 15-yard, left-footed shot past Meola.

That almost wasn't enough. With 20 minutes to go, goalie Walter Zenga had make two diving saves, first on Bruce Murray off a free kick and then on Peter Vermes' rebound. Finally, defender Riccardo Ferri cleared the ball off the goal line.

"They said we were 50-1 underdogs for this game," U.S. midfielder Tab Ramos said. "The last 15 minutes, it didn't look that way."

The Americans also were inspired when Vialli missed a penalty kick, hitting the lower left post as Meola dived the other way.

Still, Italy held on. Just forcing the Italians to do so meant an immeasurable lift for the U.S. squad that seemed ready to flunk out of the World Cup.

"We've had so much adversity to deal with," said Meola, whose parents were born in Italy and who had been looking forward to this night for months. "We learned a lot from this and we proved a lot. We've gotten some great experience."

This World Cup has been nothing but a great experience for Cameroon.

"It is a win for the whole continent of Africa," said assistant coach Jean Manga.

Yugoslavia's Davor Jozic, a sweeper who doesn't often join the attack, got his second goal of the tournament to lift his team over Colombia. Jozic controlled a pass with his chest, dropped it to his foot and sent a hard shot just below the crossbar.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have four children, three boys and a girl. Through the years, we foolishly gave them everything they wanted. We took out loans and had charge accounts all over town.

Our daughter, who is 23, is engaged to be married in two years. We can't afford the kind of wedding she wants but I have agreed to give her $2,000 towards it. She says that's not enough.

I've needed so many things over the years and never bought them. Now we must make some repairs on our house or it will fall down. My mother is lending us the money interest-free, and I've budgeted to make small monthly payments. My daughter resents the fact that I would borrow for repairs and not for a fancier wedding.

She gives me $15 a week for room and board. I said this was OK so she could save more money for her wedding. She has a good job and makes more than $300 a week.

Her three brothers didn't turn out like this. I can't believe her attitude. She does absolutely nothing around the house and tells me, "You're home all day, that's your job." We fight all the time. I am on stomach medication because of "nerves" and am heading for God knows what. I've asked her to move out and she says if I force her to move we will never see her again.

I simply can't wait two years for this girl to get married. I'll never make it. Should I take out a loan so I can live in peace? Has anyone else ever gone through this? I realize now I should have brought her up differently, but I can't turn back the clock. Please advise me, Ann. --

Aggravated in Long Island

DEAR AGGRAVATED: If you think taking out another loan will solve your problem, think again. That spoiled brat will find some other way to stick it to you.

A young woman who makes more than $300 a week and lives at home should be paying at least $60 a week for room and board. (She should not, however, be expected to do any housework beyond taking care of her own room.) Tell her this is what you want and that you will save $20 a week out of the amount toward her wedding. This means an additional $2,080, which should make her happy.

Meanwhile, talk to your doctor, your clergyman or a trusted friend, if you can't afford counseling. You sound as if you're ready to crack up.

many elderly folks living in nursing homes, you must get a great many letters from frustrated relatives who find it a chore to visit because they don't know what to say. I have a suggestion:

Most older people can remember what they wore to a family wedding 60 years ago but they can't tell you what they had for breakfast. If you want to have a delightful time with Grandma, ask her to tell you about her childhood. How did they wash clothes? What did they eat? How did they cook? How did they bake? Who made their clothes? What was going to church like?

Get a recorder and tape the stories. They will make a fascinating family history for the grandchildren. My sisters and I are doing it and have a great time. When we visit Grandma now, the time flies. -- The XXs in Charleston, S.C.

DEAR XXS: Beautiful. Thanks for sharing.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

... HOWEVER, ON THE NIGHT OF HIS BIRTHDAY FEAST, HERODIAS' DAUGHTER DID SUCH A SPECTACULAR DANCE IN HIS HONOR THAT KING HEROD VOWED WITH AN OATH TO GIVE HER WHATEVER SHE ASKED AS A REWARD. AT THE INSTIGATION OF HERODIAS, THE DAUGHTER ASKED FOR JOHN THE BAPTIST'S HEAD! HEROD COULD NOT GO BACK ON HIS KINGLY VOW, SO....

JOHN THE BAPTIST WAS IMPRISONED BY KING HEROD FOR PREACHING THAT THE MARRIAGE OF HEROD TO HERODIAS— HIS BROTHER'S WIFE— WAS UNLAWFUL. HE WAS AFRAID TO KILL JOHN, A HOLY MAN AND PROPHET, BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MIGHT RISE AGAINST HIM...

... HE SENT A DECREE TO THE PRISON AND ORDERED JOHN'S BEHEADING. THE DECREE WAS CARRIED OUT AND THIS GOOD MAN'S HEAD WAS THEN PRESENTED TO HERODIAS' DAUGHTER!
