

Jail alteration bids formally rejected

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Bids on renovation work at Deaf Smith County Jail were formally rejected Monday by county commissioners, who want the project to cost no more than the $1.55 million originally planned.

The lowest combined bid, completed in June, was for $1,827,000. Commissioners previously thought they had raised enough for the proposed renovation work by having issued $1.5 million in certificates of obligation.

On July 18, county fathers trekked to San Antonio to meet with Ed Gondeck, president of the architectural firm in charge of the jail renovation project. The meeting prompted Commissioner Bill Bradley to comment, "I think Mr. Gondeck finally understands we're not going to spend more than we started out to."

Limit not to be exceeded

According to Commissioner Austin Rose, however, negotiations between Gondeck and Associates, Inc., and bidders resulted in only a $150,000 reduction.

During a telephone interview with Gondeck Monday, commissioners stressed they were not willing to exceed the $1.55 million cost. "We were told by your firm that a million and a half would do it," James Voyles said. Bruce Coleman claimed the company had "guaranteed" the project would not cost more than Gondeck had estimated.

According to Rose, Gondeck's first reaction on the telephone was for commissioners to somehow come up with the extra funds needed for the renovation work. His outlook changed, Voyles contended, when it became obvious commissioners were being "hard-nosed" about the stipulated monetary limit.

It was finally decided the firm would find ways to reduce costs, with new bids to be requested for the revised plans. Commissioners said they did not know when the changes would be completed. In the meantime, however, they are to fly back to San Antonio Thursday, Sept. 6 to meet with Gondeck and, possibly, representatives from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

The TCJS last year ordered Deaf Smith's jail be renovated or run the risk of being shut down or having its capacity decreased. A new outdoor recreation area and an extended holding facility were the most costly required changes.

Architectural fees charged by Gondeck and Associates is not to change even though they must now further revise their drawings. According to Vesta Mae Nunley, county treasurer, the firm is to receive $112,000-plus for their work.

Meanwhile Monday, commissioners approved an $11,875 payment to Brownlow Brothers Inc. for having

Farmers rake in many awards

By JIM STEIERT
Special Contributor

Hereford Young Farmers scored a virtual sweep of contest categories at the annual Area I Young Farmers of Texas convention in Plainview over the weekend.

The local chapter won two top awards while individual HYF members won four first place awards and a first runner-up title. By capturing first in six of the seven contest categories it entered, the Hereford chapter posted its best finish ever in the Area I competition.

Hereford captured the coveted Outstanding Area I Chapter award for the second straight year on the basis of chapter activities in education, community service and recreation. Points are awarded in the competition based on the merit of the various activities of YF chapters.

Ray Schlabs of Hereford was re-elected to a second term as Area I YF president during the business meeting at the convention Saturday afternoon. Schlabs was subsequently named as the winner of Outstanding Area Officer competition Saturday night.

Schlabs has served as president of HYF and has held the post of swine division superintendent of the annual junior livestock show here for a number of years. He operates a grain and vegetable farm near Milo Center.

The Hereford chapter captured its fourth Area I radio and television publicity award in five years, using extensive coverage of its activities by KPAN radio and Hereford Cablevision to garner the winning point total.

Area I convention Saturday

Dennis Schilling posted a first for a member of HYF by being named Outstanding Farm and Ranch Manager for Area I. Schilling operates a 320 acre farm for a brother at Summerfield and also serves as manager of High Plains Compost.

Now vice president of the HYF chapter, Schilling has served as a lamb division superintendent with the junior livestock show. He was lamb show chairman for three years.

Jim Steiert was named Outstanding Agribusinessman for Area I, marking the second straight year a member of HYF has captured that title. Steiert is associate editor with The Texas Farmer-Stockman magazine and a former farm and news editor of The Hereford Brand. He also does freelance writing for a number of hunting and fishing magazines.

Steiert has served as reporter for HYF since 1978. He has served as publicity chairman for the junior livestock show for six years and has also served as a swine division superintendent with the stock show.

Tommy Sparkman was named as the Outstanding Associate Member for Area I. Active members of Texas Young Farmers may not exceed 36 years of age. After age 36, individuals are classified as associate members.

Sparkman held numerous offices in HYF during his active membership and served extensively as a steer division superintendent in the local stock show. He was active in forming the livestock show booster club here and remains active in recruiting bidders for the stock show auction. He and his wife, Patsy, have served as financial secretaries for the livestock show for the past 10 years.

Charlie Stengel was named first runner-up in the Area I Star Young Farmer competition. Stengel was edged for the title by Randy Schumacher of Dimmitt Young Farmers in a close contest.

Stengel, a seven-year member of HYF, has served as a general superintendent of the junior livestock show for two years and has also worked as a lamb division superintendent. He farms 900 acres near the Westway community.

Hereford will vie for outstanding chapter and radio and TV honors on the state level while Schilling, Schlabs and Steiert are to compete for individual state honors during the annual YET state convention in Fort Worth next January.

Hereford also received an award Saturday as the YF chapter with the greatest number of members present.

Shuttle's rider to be instructor

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — One of America's two million elementary and secondary school teachers need only be "reasonably healthy" and have "the desire to do so" to qualify as the nation's first private citizen to soar into space.

President Reagan ended months of suspense Monday when he announced that the first "citizen passenger" to join a space shuttle mission would be a teacher. Journalists, novelists, artists and other professions had been vying for the honor.

The other groups will get their chances later, space officials said. But in late 1985 or early 1986 it will be a teacher who climbs aboard the shuttle and roars into space.

NASA was looking for able communicators for the citizens-in-space program so that they could relate their experience to others in ways that astronauts have not been able to do because of their technical orientation.

"A good teacher can have an impact on a person, not only in his or her formative years, but throughout life," NASA administrator James Beggs said in explaining why a teacher will be selected. "It will give an opportunity to our children to look up to someone who has flown in space."

The requirements to fly in space will not be stringent.

The shuttle has a "benign, shirt-sleeved environment" that "allows a reasonably healthy person to fly there with nothing more than rudimentary training and the desire to do so," Beggs said at a news conference in Washington monitored by reporters in Cape Canaveral.

The teacher selected will work for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at civil servant pay during eight weeks of pre-launch training and for a year after the flight when he or she will make appearances in the nation's school rooms.

But Beggs said the teacher-astronaut will be under no restrictions after completing the NASA work and "if there are profit opportunities for him, good luck, and God bless him."

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

How does Johnny Crawford react when he learns that Panhandle residents remember him as much for his stint as a professional rodeo cowboy as for his role in the "The Rifleman"?

That suits him just fine. Those years on the rodeo circuit were important to Crawford, he said, because he was living a childhood dream. Playing the son of Chuck Connors for five years was more than a role for Crawford; he loved cowboys and horses and everything that smacked of the Old West.

Crawford hit the rodeo trail as soon as he graduated from high school, concentrating mostly on calf and trick roping. The roping skills were learned from trick roper Gene McLaughlin. He believes he might have done better in competitive events had he not been quite so famous.

"The rodeo announcer would always have to introduce me as the kid from 'The Rifleman,'" he explained. "Sometimes that would make me more nervous."

Crawford's acting career has included everything from television movies and guest roles to films to theater, as well as recording seven albums and six Top 40 singles.

But for now, theater is what he does most and likes best. "I had wanted to do more theater for a long time, but my agent wouldn't go for it. Then I got an agent whose forte was theater. She was just the perfect person for me and what I wanted to do."

Performing on stage is "satisfying," according to Crawford. "Film is frustrating. You do it all so quickly and never feel like you had a chance to give it your best shot. Here, we go on stage night after night and have a chance to perfect our roles, to see them develop and change."

Crawford is co-starring with New York actress Viki Boyle in "The Owl and the Pussycat," a play that Boyle admitted is her favorite. The two are the lone occupants of the stage for more than two hours each evening at the Country Squire Dinner Theater in Amarillo. Both said they enjoy the challenge of such a demanding production.

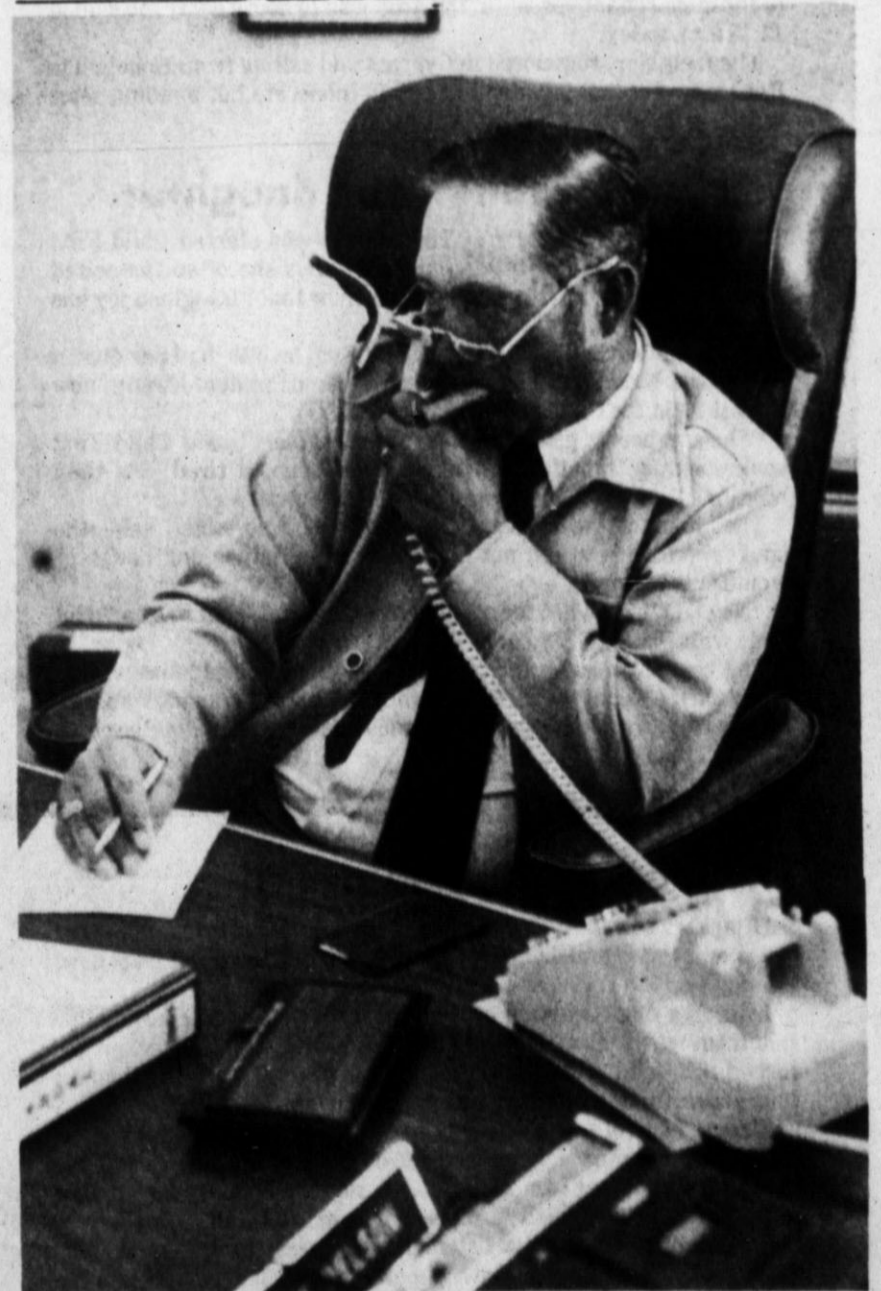

"I just adore this show," Viki said with a wide grin. "I've wanted to do it for a long time, but when I first saw it I weighed over 200 pounds and could never have gotten the role."

Boyle has slimmed down considerably since those days and now moves excitedly about the stage in a procession of gaudy mini-dresses. Her role is as a "lady of the evening" Crawford decides to reform in his portrayal of Felix Sherman.

Crawford said that with a hectic rehearsal week over with and the play shaping up, his time in Amarillo has become like a vacation to him.

"I needed to get away from home (California) and do some different things," he admitted. "During the day, I can travel around, play my guitar, think about the play."

As for the future, Crawford has in mind a long list of plays he would yet like to do. For now at least, the stage is where he feels most at home.

Stresses Spending Limit

Complete with cigar, Austin Rose of the Deaf Smith County Commission talks Monday afternoon with an architect concerning proposed renovation work at the county jail. No more than $1.55 million is to be spent on the project, Rose and other commissioners stressed.

Local Roundup

Policemen busy since Friday

Hereford police have been relatively busy since Friday, investigating more than 30 incidents and arresting more than 15 people.

Monday it was reported a picnic table and benches - worth a combined $300 - were stolen between Aug. 18 and 27 from Dameron Park. Another crime valued at $300 was the theft of stereos from and damage to dashboards of two vans parked at Warren Motor Company, 1410 E. Park Ave. Police said the thefts apparently happened sometime Friday night.

Pete Dominguez of 118 Moreman Ave., meanwhile, is the victim of a $350 theft. Sometime Friday night, several tools were taken from the back of his 1971 Ford pickup.

Among incidents occurring between Friday and this morning were nine harassments, five minor thefts and four domestic disturbances. There was also an attempted suicide, where a man shot the left side of his neck and head with a shotgun. He reportedly was recovering after being taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital Saturday morning.

Two arrests were made Monday, one a juvenile for burglary and the other an adult for driving while intoxicated. There were six other DWI arrests since Friday, while four were picked up for public intoxication. Four were booked on marijuana possession charges.

All soon-to-be sophomores are urged to attend an orientation seminar Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Other students new to HHS, along with any parents, may also show up. All youngsters are advised to bring their class schedules to the event.

Two inmates stabbed Monday

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two Texas prison inmates were stabbed to death in separate incidents Monday night, bringing to 12 the number of prisoners killed in a recent surge of violence within the nation's second largest prison system, authorities said.

A third inmate also was injured in an attack at another Texas Department of Corrections facility and was undergoing surgery at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston for multiple stab wounds, officials said.

Prison spokesman Charles Brown said the first fatal stabbing occurred about 8:30 p.m. at the Wynne Unit at Huntsville. The second was at 9:38 p.m. at the Clemens Unit in Brazoria County.

The third stabbing occurred about 11 minutes later at the Darrington Unit near Rosharon, said Brazoria County Sheriff's Sgt. Glyn Gibbs.

"The inmate was stabbed 12 times all over this body. He was taken to John Sealy and is undergoing surgery right now. He's critical," Gibbs said.

The identities of the victims were withheld until relatives could be notified, and sheriff's investigators in three counties involved in the investigations said they could provide few details.

Drought could kill wildlife

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The prolonged South Texas drought could lead to massive wildlife deaths this winter and damage a multi-million dollar hunting industry, a wildlife expert said.

Vegetation upon which animals feed has failed to grow in areas between San Antonio and the border hit by an 18-month drought, said Dr. Don Davis, a scientist with the Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute at Texas A&I University.

When wildlife suffers, so do landowners who make their living off the hunting industry, a $2 billion a year business in Texas.

Hunters spent $100 million in 1979 leasing land and buying hunting licenses, Davis said. Motels, meals, gasoline, gun sales and other purchases related to hunting accounted for the remainder, Davis said.

"There's big money in hunting. A lot of ranchers make more money now from deer and quail leases than they do from raising cattle," he said.

Parents can ease school jitters

HOUSTON (AP) — Most children starting school for the first time this year probably will experience some kind of "healthy anxiety," but parents can help make the adjustment to a new experience much easier, a Houston child psychiatrist said.

"School is something new. Most of us, all of us, are anxious in new situations," Martin Drell, training director for the child psychiatric division at Baylor College of Medicine, said Monday. "But if your kid feels good about himself, if he thinks he can conquer the world and is sure mommy and daddy are going to be there when he returns, the kid won't have any problems," he said.

Drell said a child who has never been separated from his parents in his four or five years of life — no stays with his grandparents, no babysitters, no overnight camp outings — may find the sudden change particularly difficult.

"For those kids, this is a big occasion," Drell said.

Boat with crew of 23 sinking

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A freighter carrying a crew of 23 people radioed it had a hole in its bow and was sinking 900 miles southwest of San Diego, with winds near hurricane force and the closest rescue vessel 10 hours away, the Coast Guard said today.

A long-range search aircraft was sent to the area in the Pacific west of Baja California after the 350-foot freighter, the Blue Falcon, sent a mayday around 10:45 p.m. Monday, Petty Officer Rick Woods said in Long Beach.

The plane was dispatched from its base in Sacramento, Calif., and was expected to reach the area in 3½ hours and monitor the ship's progress, Woods said.

The nearest Coast Guard cutter, the Venturous, was sent from Long Beach but would take two days to reach the scene. The closest of three merchant vessels in the area was 10 hours away, he said at 12:15 a.m. today.

The freighter, registered in Cyprus and sailing from Honolulu to Panama, was making about 5 mph in moderate but building seas, Woods said.

Activist finally sees daughter

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — The woman who started Child Find Inc. after she lost her little girl in 1974 says she often fantasized about a reunion with her daughter, and now that "imagined joy has been paled by reality."

Gloria Yerkovich, who started Child Find in 1980, had her dream come true Monday when she greeted her daughter Joanna, now almost 16, at the Ulster County courthouse.

"She's a pretty girl, taller than her mother," said Child Find spokeswoman Janette Demenkoff. "She seemed tired. She may have had to travel a long distance to meet her mother."

The meeting was kept as private as possible, said the spokeswoman, who did not know how long mother and daughter would stay together.

"No one knows what the arrangements will be. That has had a lot to do with Joanna," she said.

The reunion came after more than a month of negotiation between Ulster County District Attorney Michael Kavanaugh and attorneys for Mrs. Yerkovich and Joanna's father, Franklin Pierce.

Iranian jetliner hijacked

Hijackers seized control of an Iranian jetliner carrying more than 200 people today and diverted it to Iraq, where the official Iraqi news agency said the sky pirates freed their captives.

Iran, in a report carried by its official news agency, charged that two Iraqi warplanes intercepted the plane after it was hijacked and forced it to land in Iraq. Iraq, which has been at war with Iran for four years, made no immediate comment on the Iranian charge.

Airport control tower officials in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, said the unidentified hijackers seized control of the plane on a domestic flight over Iran. The officials said the Iran Air Airbus flew to Iraq after being denied permission to land in Kuwait.

An Israeli radio monitor listening to conversations from the aircraft cockpit said the pilot later reported the hijackers were "in the hands of the Iraqis." He said all the passengers had been freed but that the crew was refusing to leave the jetliner.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted an identified Iran Air spokesman in Tehran, the Iranian capital, as saying the jetliner landed at Shatrah airport in southern Iraq, and that all the passengers and crew members were safe.

By GILES HUDSON Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Negotiations to reach an out-of-court settlement in a 28-year-old desegregation lawsuit against Houston public schools broke down after lawyers for National Association for the Advancement of Colored People walked out.

Lowell Johnston, an attorney for the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund, said school officials were inflexible on two key demands.

The group wanted racial quotas changed to allow more black students to enroll in magnet schools and the transfer of about 100 white students to predominantly white school in southwest Houston be voided, Johnston said.

"We all negotiated very hard. It's a big disappointment that we were unable to resolve these two issues, because we don't think we were asking a lot," he said.

"It has unfairly limited access to blacks to spaces in schools where they would have gotten an integrated education," he said.

After trying for two days to reach a settlement, attorneys began preparing for a hearing today before U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor to determine whether the lawsuit should be dismissed.

The session, originally scheduled to begin Monday, was delayed to allow negotiations among lawyers for the Houston Independent School District, the NAACP and the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, school attorney Kelly Frels said.

Even after NAACP lawyers walked out of the closed-door session, district and MALDEF lawyers continued their negotiations.

Frels said there would be no announcement about the proposed settlement until after the court hearing and another school board meeting, set for noon today.

The suit was filed in 1956 by the parents who wanted their minority children to attend predominantly white schools closer to their homes.

School records show that of the district's 177,546 students, 19.9 percent are white; 42 percent are black, 34.6 percent are Hispanic and 3.5 percent are Asian.

Last week, the Rev. J. Don Boney urged black students to skip classes and attend the hearing. But school spokeswoman Geri Konigsberg said the success of the boycott was "negligible."

"As far as I can tell there weren't any great numbers of children boycotting classes," she said.

About 30 black demonstrators, including about a dozen students, stood outside the federal courthouse Monday morning chanting: "Save our children from an inferior education."

Harris County District Attorney Johnny Holmes said last week that Boney and other leaders of The Campaign to Save Children could be violating the State Education Code if they disrupted school activities.

Boney has alleged the district prefers to hire white teachers and provides inferior education to black students at inner-city schools by bringing in less-experienced teachers.

Six more ports join strike

Split widens in longshoreman dispute

LONDON (AP) — Longshoremen at a half dozen British ports joined a nationwide dock strike today, but workers at 11 other ports decided to stay on the job.

The votes indicated a growing split over the four-day-old strike called by union leaders to support striking coal miners.

The 700-man combined workforce at Immingham and nearby Grimsby on England's northeast coast, which voted to work over the weekend, walked out today without taking a vote. Immingham, Britain's third-largest foreign trade port, handled five ships on Monday.

Grimsby port manager John Hughes said he didn't know why the workers had changed their minds. "They have worked all weekend but have now, for some reason, decided to stop," he said.

Longshoremen at Southampton, home of the cruise liners Queen Elizabeth 2 and Canberra, also voted to join the strike along with dockworkers at the Welsh ports of Cardiff, Newport and Port Talbot. Southampton voted to exempt passenger ferries but not the ocean liners.

But workers at Ipswich, Britain's fourth-largest container port, voted solidly against the strike.

"The men felt it was not their strike," said Francis Peake, chairman of the Ipswich port shop stewards. "They are good trade unionists and are considering the jobs of others in the trade union movement, including lorry (truck) drivers, steel workers and thousands of others whose livelihood depends on the docks."

Longshoremen at Goole, Poole, Newcastle, South Shields, North Shields, Great Yarmouth, Wisbech, Boston, Guernsey and Jersey also rejected the strike call and voted to work.

At Tilbury, the main port near London, which has been closed since the strike was called last Friday, an estimated 600 of the 2,000-man workforce voted at an unofficial meeting to resume working.

sent at the convention. Melvin Kalka Jr. of Hereford was named as the recipient of the annual Sam Thomas Memorial Scholarship from the Area I Young Farmers during Saturday night's proceedings. The $500 scholarship is awarded to an outstanding agriculture student. Kalka is a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School and served as an officer of the Hereford High School FFA chapter.

Among HYF members attending Saturday's convention and banquet were Stan McCabe, Jerry Alexander, Schilling, Tom and Ray Schlabs, Kevin Urbanczyk, Gerald Marnell, Rick Hales, Stengel, Steiert and HYF Advisor Monty Adams.

Hundreds flee blazes raging across Montana

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Scores of fires raged out of control across dry, windswept prairies and forests today with no break in the hot gusty weather expected, charring 80,000 acres, destroying at least 30 houses and forcing hundreds of people to flee.

"The trouble is that there are so many fires all over the state that the resources are drying up fast," said Don Kendall of the Department of State Lands.

"Hand crews can't do it — it's going to take equipment. And more than that, it's going to take a break in the winds. The equipment can't keep up with it," Kendall said.

Unofficial tabulations indicated the blazes covered more than 80,000 acres since Saturday. The three largest fires, in central and eastern Montana, burned 30,000, 15,000, and 11,500 acres. Smaller blazes broke out across the state.

There were no reports of injuries, but 100 residents were homeless after an inferno raged through a subdivision near Roundup, destroying 30 homes in three hours. In Nelson, all 100 residents were evacuated Monday, and smaller numbers were forced from their homes elsewhere.

Officials were unsure what caused many of the fires, but believed some were sparked by lightning last week and fanned to life by recent winds.

The exact number of fires was not known. Several new fires were reported Monday afternoon, and hot, dry and windy weather was predicted to continue in the mountains and prairies into the weekend, with only scattered thundershowers likely.

To the east, in North Dakota, officials warned that dry heat threatened to spark prairie fires in 28 western and central counties.

Around the County

I am Jill Dutton. I'm 10 years old. I'm with the 4's 4-H club. I've entered the County Bake Show. I had to make special peach muffins and I learned that muffins had a lot of carbohydrates.

Carbohydrates are one of three main classes of nutrients essential to the body. The others are fats and proteins. Carbohydrates include all sugars and starches and also some other substances, such as cellulose and glycogen. They are the main source of energy.

There are two kinds of carbohydrates: simple and complex. Sugars are called simple carbohydrates. They are found naturally in foods like fruit, milk and some vegetables like beets and peas. Refined sugars from sugar cane and sugar beets are added to foods like candy, soda, cakes and ice cream.

Starches, which are one type of complex carbohydrates, are found in foods like bread, potatoes and rice.

Fiber, which is also a complex carbohydrate, is found in the walls of plant cells, which is the tough, structural parts of plants - like the stringy part of celery or the bran of wheat and other cereals.

My name is Camille Betzen. I am a member of 4's 4-H club in Deaf Smith County.

I recently competed in the 4-H Bake Show and I learned several things about nutrients in the foods we eat. One of the things we learned was about carbohydrates. Among the classes of carbohydrates is sugar or sucrose.

Sugar in Our Diet

What role does sugar play in our dietary habits? We don't know everything about the role of dietary sugar, but we do know quite a bit.

The most common sweetener is table sugar, or sucrose (cane and beet sugar). Some other caloric sweeteners are corn or glucose syrups, and sugars that are found naturally in foods - lactose in milk and fructose in fruit.

Americans today consume much sugar in soft drinks and candy. A large amount also comes from syrup, jam, jelly and pie. Sugar is also found in foods that don't taste sweet, such as catsup or salad dressing.

Sweet foods are a major cause of cavities. Between-meal sweets cause more problems in teeth than the same food eaten with meals.

If you are concerned about the level of sugar in your diet, here are some points to remember.

1. Check the ingredient label for sugars and sweeteners in products. Sugar is not the only word to look for on labels. Watch for words such as sweeteners, natural sugar and invert sugar. Remember that the ingredient of the largest amount is listed first, and the smallest last.

2. Substitute fruit juices or plain water for regular soft drinks, punches, fruit drinks and ades, which contain a considerable amount of sugar.

3. Go easy on candy, cakes, pies, pastries and cookies.

4. Fruits are often canned in heavy syrup, which is a high-sugar product. Buy fruit canned in its own juice, other fruit juice or light syrup.

5. Many cereals are pre-sweetened, so check the label before you buy. Buy unsweetened kinds so you can control the amount of sugar added.

6. Experiment with reducing the amount of sugar in your favorite recipes. Be prepared for products that may look and taste different.

Remember, though, that sugar plays an important role in our dietary habits and too much of it can be hazardous.

Ann Landers

Enjoy family gatherings anyway

Dear Ann Landers: My aging mother says I am selfish and ungrateful because I refuse to rush to her apartment at any time of the day or night when she phones to say she is "very sick."

My family (including my seven children) say I am narrow-minded and mean-spirited because I refuse to attend family gatherings where I am sure to run into my ex-husband and his second wife. I am not resentful or bitter because he has chosen to go in another direction with a younger woman, but the sight of him brings back too many memories of the many good times we had together. I see no reason to put myself through the pain.

I spent 25 years trying to please my parents and 20 years trying to please my husband. Now I have decided to please myself. Would you say I am a terrible person? I'd appreciate your comments.-A Resident Of New York

Dear New York Resident: Terrible? No. But a little foolish perhaps to absent yourself from all family gatherings because your former husband and his wife will be there.

How much better if you would go with your head held high and be gracious and pleasant, cordial to one and all. It would certainly be a victory for you-and I have a feeling you could use one.

Dear Ann: I certainly agree with the 55-year-old woman who was annoyed when her 60-year-old escort was asked by the dimwit in the box office if they wanted a senior citizen's discount.

In my opinion, "senior citizen" is the most degrading label ever given to a group. I am over 55, wear a Size 10 dress and have great-looking legs. When I retire from my position as an executive secretary, I shall not patronize any firm that degrades me by calling me a senior citizen.

I do not wish to carry a card that entitles me to discount rates in restaurants, on buses, etc. Those individuals who wish to apply for such a card and use it whenever they can have my blessings. But I feel that my wish NOT to have a card and avail myself of the discount should be respected also. Sign me-Teed Off In Omaha

Dear Teed: I respect your point of view-maybe because mine is very much the same. However, the extra savings offered to those over 65 is very important to a great many people. Those of us who don't need it and don't wish to accept it should not inadvertently put down the others.

Dear Ann: Stick to your guns. You were right the first time. Dogs CAN be trained to shut up when they are barking for no reason. It will not prevent them from barking when burglars are prowling around. They know the difference.

Nobody should have to put up with barking dogs. It is totally unnecessary. A firm command is all it takes. I know. For 50 years my dogs have stopped barking when I have ordered them to "BE QUIET." Never have I been burglarized.-Old Crow From Florida

Dear Crow: You are right-as many dog-mavens wrote to tell me. I should not have been intimidated by the readers who disagreed. I WAS right the first time. Thanks for getting me back on the track.

Hoping for fifth shot

Borg gears for tennis crown

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Four times he reached the finals of the U.S. Open, and four times he failed. Yet, the legacy of Sweden's Bjorn Borg is never more evident than in this year's tournament at the National Tennis Center.

Borg — the "Swedish Iceman" — compiled a record almost unparalleled in tennis history. He won six French Opens, the last four in a row, and five consecutive Wimbledon titles — the former coming on slow red clay courts and the latter on fast, slippery grass with only two weeks in between to adjust to the surfaces.

Yet, at America's premier tennis event, Borg met nothing but frustration, losing to Jimmy Connors in 1976 and 1978, and to John McEnroe in 1980 and 1981.

But, despite his failure at Flushing Meadow, his success has spawned a tennis boom throughout Sweden that could produce a U.S. Open champion soon.

The third leg of tennis' Grand Slam began today with 13 Swedes aiming for the men's and women's singles crowns.

McEnroe is top-seeded in the 128-player men's field, while Martina Navratilova is No. 1 among the women. But that hasn't stopped the Swedish invasion.

Mats Wilander, who eclipsed Borg's record in 1981 to become the youngest player in history to capture the French Open men's singles title, is seeded fourth here. And he comes here off a victory in the ATP Championships, where he stopped countryman Anders Jarryd in Sunday's final.

Jarryd is seeded 14th, while Henrik Sundstrom is No. 9 and Joakim Nystrom is 16th.

Also in the men's field are Stefan Edberg, who last year became the first player to capture the junior boys' title at all four Grand Slam events. Thomas Hogstedt and Stefan Simonsson, two other Swedish players ranked in the top 100 in the world on the Atari-ATP computer, made it into the main draw, as did qualifier Hans Simonsson, Stefan's brother.

Then there's Michael Pernfors, a native of Hollviksnas, Sweden, who was "wild-carded" into the main draw after winning the NCAA men's singles title. Pernfors just finished his junior year at the University of Georgia.

In the women's draw, there is Carina Karlsson, the surprise of this year's Wimbledon where she reached the quarterfinals before being ousted by Chris Evert Lloyd.

Two other Swedish women — Catrin Jexell and Caterina Lindqvist — went straight into the main draw, while Carin Anderholm made her way through the qualifying this past weekend.

Member-guest golf Saturday

The annual country club member-guest golf tournament is to begin Saturday and continue through Monday at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

According to an announcement from officials at the golf course, all golfers planning to play Saturday, Sunday or Monday—both players in the tourney and players not competing—should contact the golf course to arrange for tee times.

Warriors bow in semi-pro action

The Amarillo Rustlers smashed the Hereford Warriors Sunday in semi-pro football action at La Plata field by the score of 40-6.

Although the Hereford defense intercepted Amarillo quarterbacks five times, the offense couldn't muster much firepower. Jamie Bustamonte scored the only TD for the Warriors when he caught a pass from Felix Mungia. The play covered about 50 yards.

"We weren't up for the game," player-coach Matt Morgan said. "After playing them last time, we just couldn't get our intensity level up."

Earlier this season, the Rustlers defeated the Warriors 19-0.

Chuck Brown and Bustamonte were named offensive players of the game for Hereford. Donny Fangman and Louis Lopez led defensive honors.

"After the game, we hired a new coach, Bill Watts," Morgan said. "It will take a little pressure off me and I can just play and not worry about the other stuff (that is included in a coach-manager position)."

The Warriors will be in action again when they face Dimmitt Sept. 9 at La Plata field.

Miami unseats Auburn in college grid opener

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The University of Miami has issued another Hurricane warning to No. 1-ranked teams — be prepared to encounter some air turbulence if you have designs on the national championship.

In what was probably a bigger upset than their dramatic 31-30 victory over No. 1-ranked Nebraska in last season's Orange Bowl, the Hurricanes shrugged off their No. 10 preseason ranking and knocked off top-rated Auburn 20-18 Monday night in the second annual Kickoff Classic.

"They whupped us up front offensively and defensively," said Auburn Coach Pat Dye, whose Tigers were outgained 476 yards to 290. Bernie Kosar, who passed Nebraska dizzy in the Orange Bowl, completed 21 of 38 for 329 yards and touchdowns of 17 and eight yards to flanker Stanley Shakespeare. And although Auburn had a 166-131 advantage on the ground, All-American halfback Bo Jackson was outrushed 140 yards (on 21 carries) to 96 (on 20 rushes) by Alonzo Highsmith.

"They whupped us in every phase of the game except the kicking game," Dye added. But even though Auburn got field goals of 42, 36 and 45 yards from Robert McGinty and some solid punting from Lewis Colbert, it was a 25-yard field goal with 6:08 remaining by Miami's Greg Cox, who was booting them for St. Thomas Aquinas High School in Fort Lauderdale last year, that settled the issue. Cox also drilled a 45-yarder earlier in the final period.

"This is a great boost for us," said Highsmith. "The sports writers gave us no respect down in Miami. They said we couldn't do it, they said the schedule is too tough, they said Florida-this, Auburn-this, Michigan-this. Nobody ever mentioned the defending national champs. We're probably the only team in history that won a championship and was never put back on top (of the Associated Press poll)."

Sorry to disappoint you, Alonzo, but not many champions have been picked to repeat — including Auburn's 1957 kings, who were fifth in the first 1958 poll — since the AP began its preseason rankings in 1950. Miami's triumph should go down as one of the great coaching jobs in college football history. Jimmy Johnson, head man at Oklahoma State the last five years, was only hired June 5 to succeed Howard Schnellenberger, who choreographed the 1983 Hurricanes into one of sport's Cinderella teams and then jumped to the United States Football League.

"I'm as excited now as I've ever been in my life," Johnson said. "The men have worked so hard and they went out and laid it on the line. I'm proud of them. They were bound and determined to win it."

Couples tourney set

The Hereford Ladies Golf Association has set its Couples Tournament for Sept. 22-23 at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course, according to an announcement from officials at the golf course.

The first 50 paid teams are to be eligible for competition, with 25 teams already entered. Mike Horton, course pro at the Hereford course, said many out-of-town couples are expected to play.

Horton added that any teams which have entered but not paid need to do so soon.

Rush wins championship of men's city golf tournament

Thirty-three golfers, flighted by handicap in four flights, competed for the Hereford Men's City Championship Saturday and Sunday at John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Dana Rush and James Salinas turned in two-day gross totals of 148 to tie for first in the championship flight. However, Rush won on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff to take the crown.

For low net score, Ron Weishaai had a 136 over two days to win first and a $54 merchandise certificate.

Rush and Salinas won merchandise certificates of $73 and $53, respectively.

A score of 141 won the first flight. Tom Simons won a $90 merchandise certificate for his efforts. He beat John Stagner, who had a 153. Stagner won a certificate worth $60.

Shorty Roark and George Ochs were winners of the low net titles. Roark had a 127 and Ochs a 130. They won $90 and $60, respectively, in merchandise.

Second flight winner was Earl Stagner with a 160. He beat Dick Sims by six strokes to win $90 worth of merchandise. Sims won merchandise totaling $60.

Kirk Procter shot 137 with his handicap to win low net. Bill Davis had 140. They won certificates valued at $90 and $60, respectively.

Two golfers tied for third flight honors, also. Dave Workman and Jesse Hernandez each shot 177, but Workman won on the first sudden-death playoff hole. Workman won a $63 certificate, and Hernandez won one worth $42.

Another $63 certificate went to Terry Colston for low net winner. He had a 142. Jesse Grajalva was second with a 148. Grajalva won a $42 certificate.

Watermelon is Next

Hereford coach Jerry Taylor and Whiteface Booster Club President Dale Scott finish the introduction portion of Meet the Herd Saturday at Whiteface

Stadium. Persons in attendance then were invited to eat watermelon below the bleachers and get better acquainted with the coaches and players.

At Meet the Herd Saturday

Introductions, criticisms topic

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Fans of Hereford High School football met the players Saturday night in Whiteface Stadium at Meet the Herd, the annual gathering of Hereford and vicinity residents to meet the team and get a glimpse of the upcoming season.

Supporting groups of Hereford athletics also were introduced by Whiteface Booster Club President Dale Scott.

Jerry Taylor did more than introduce people and have his team show the crowd some offensive plays, however. The Hereford coach also took time to express to the crowd his feelings toward House Bill 72, the law which will make mandatory the passing of all courses by student athletes beginning in January, 1984.

"I want to thank all of you people who back the Herd," Taylor said. "You've been great fans, and you are an instrumental part of our football team."

Taylor introduced parents of the varsity team members.

Taylor said some players introduced with the junior varsity squads have a distinct possibility of being on the varsity team by the first game (Sept. 7 against San Angelo Central).

"Personally, I'm very proud of all these young men," Taylor said. "They're headed in the right direction."

Taylor added, though, that even though students may have priorities straight, illness or uncontrollable factors could be the deciding factors in students' eligibilities. He said there was no room for error in taking tests in 1984.

"For example," he began, "suppose a teacher lectures the class pretty hard the first two or three days or class and gives a pop test on Sept. 5. If a student happens to make 69, he can't play the first ballgame."

"And he's not just ineligible for that one week. He can't play for the rest of the season."

A grade of 60 no longer is passing under H.B. 72. Now a student must make grades of 70 to avoid failing.

"I'm all for the good things that come out of the bill," Taylor said. "If our education system is improved, that's what I want."

Dale Scott kicked off the program. He mentioned the formation of supporting groups for the team. He also expressed appreciation for such supporting groups as the band and twirlers, cheerleaders and the drill team.

Scott introduced the instructors or leaders of each group, also.

The Booster Club provided watermelon for guests at the conclusion of the program.

Crawford Grows Up

Many years ago, Johnny Crawford starred with Chuck Connors in "The Rifleman" (left). Now the former rodeo-circuit regular is appearing in "The Owl and the Pussycat" at Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner Theater.

Says former child star

Play depicts change as positive, helpful

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

So what kind of moral lessons are we to learn from a play that features a "fallen lady" who moves into a San Francisco apartment with a reclusive self-styled intellectual?

Plenty, if one pays close attention to the mostly hilarious, sometimes soul-wrenching conversations between child-star-grown-up Johnny Crawford and New York actress Viki Boyle. The two make up the sole cast of "The Owl and the Pussycat," which opened Aug. 22 and plays through September at the Country Squire Dinner Theater in Amarillo.

It is not by fate that the two find themselves together in the shabby apartment of bachelor Felix Sherman. Doris, who is known by a variety of last names that all begin with the letter "W," decides it is only fair Felix take her in after all the trouble he has caused. It was he, after all, who got her thrown out of her own room by reporting her "after-hours" activities to Doris' landlord.

The changes of heart experienced by the pair begin as early as Act I, which covers that first stormy night of co-residency. Felix, who has spent nearly 30 years convincing himself that "development of the mind" is all that's important and that logic should always rule, wakes up the next morning hating himself and afraid to admit to his physical attraction for Doris.

Doris, on the other hand, finds herself intrigued by the bookstore clerk and would-be writer who awakens in her a desire to free herself from a world where emotions rule.

The ensuing scenes carry the mismatched couple from one verbal battle to the next, with Felix concentrating on trying to change his new friend while never until the final moments of the play admitting to his own need for change.

"The Owl and the Pussycat" is a reminder that too much is often expected of love relationships, and not enough from friendship. And it tells us that while raising one's standards is almost always a change for the better, sometimes a lowering of one's expectations is often the best alteration of all.

EDUCATION
BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — In the next six years, some 27 million children in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades will not get a proper foundation in science and mathematics, according to Charles Kittrell, executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum.

Kittrell says it will take until 1990 to raise enough taxes, train a new generation of superior teachers, and design the proper materials necessary for modern instruction.

South of the Border

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The movie "Charrito" starring the comedian "Chespirito" is the top-grossing Mexican movie so far this year, taking in more than $405,000 at the box office. "Charrito" is the diminutive of "Charro," or cowboy. "Chespirito," whose real name is Roberto Gomez Bolanos, is a longtime favorite in Mexican movies and television shows. The second most popular movie was "Pedro Navaja," a tale of lowlife like a Latin "Mack the Knife," starring Andres Garcia. It took in more than $340,000 since its premiere in May. Finishing third on the list was "El Sinverguenza" - "The Shameless One" - starring "ranchero" singer Vicente Fernandez. Mexican movies generally play in theaters in lower class neighborhoods in the cities and in rural areas. The more prestigious theaters usually show American movies with Spanish subtitles.

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Mexico estimates it will catch a record 85,000 tons of tuna this year, according to Arturo Zepeda Vazquez, president of the Fishing Industry Chamber. He said improvements in the fishing industry were due to government actions last year which relieved fishing cooperatives of debt problems and allowed repairs of 66 fishing boats which were put back in service. Fishing catches are running 250 percent ahead of last year and Mexico is expected to sell 16,000 tons of tuna to the Common Market in Europe this year, he said. Most of the fishing by the Mexican fleet is carried out within the Mexican economic zone which stretches 200 miles from the coast. Extensive fishing also is done by boats in Micronesia near Guam and off the African nation of Senegal. An embargo on Mexican tuna exports to the United States remains in effect because of the dispute over Mexico's 200-mile claim. MEXICO CITY (AP) - The government oil monopoly PEMEX says it plans to bring the Chicontepec oil area - considered one of the richest in the western hemisphere - into production during the next four years. The area covers 7,000 square miles in northeastern Mexico, including parts of the states of Veracruz, Tamaulipas, Puebla and Hidalgo. PEMEX studies have shown the area contains 18 billion barrels of proven oil reserves and a potential for 106 billion barrels. If the estimates are correct, it could mean the area contains more oil than proven reserves for the entire nation, which are pegged at 7.25 billion barrels.

Much of the oil is located at depths of 9,000 feet or more and until recently it has not been economically feasible to try to tap the area. MEXICO CITY (AP) - Most of the movie theaters here were closed for the second consecutive Sunday because of a boycott by workers demanding a 20 percent pay hike. The labor dispute closed all 97 government-owned theatres in Mexico City and another 307 theatres throughout the nation. Union workers have vowed to not work on Sundays, a peak theater day, until their demands are met. The theaters are offering a 7.5 percent increase. Jose A. Barragan Gomez, personnel manager of the Theater Operators Company chain, said the government-owned enterprise is operating at a loss and cannot afford to meet the union demands. Meanwhile, a separate strike continues against distributors of U.S.-made movies, which are shown in most first-class theaters in Mexico.

Texas, metroplex expected to lead taxes

AUSTIN (AP) - It will be the large urban areas and Texas' oil and gas fields that pay most state taxes in 1984, Comptroller Bob Bullock says. Bullock predicted in a special report Monday that Central Texas, from Waco to San Antonio, and the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area will produce most of Texas' taxes during 1984. "The Central Corridor and the Metroplex are expected to pay increasing portions of state taxes because their diversified economies should have above average growth rates," Bullock said in a special report on the geography of Texas taxes. "Growth on the Gulf Coast and the (Texas-Mexico) border will lag behind the rest of the state because recovery from the petroleum and peso-related slump has been slow. This will slow their tax payments in comparison to the faster growing regions," the report said. Bullock said Texas collected $8.5 billion in state taxes in 1983, with the biggest chunk, $2.4 billion, or 28 percent, coming from the Gulf Coast area. "The Gulf Coast is Texas' most populous region and continues to be the state's economic powerhouse," Bullock said. "Almost 4.3 million people, a third of all Texans, live in the region, earning $55.4 billion, or 35 percent, of Texas' personal income."

In 1983, the Plains area, including the Panhandle down through Midland and Odessa, narrowly edged out the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex as the second largest regional tax payer. The Plains contributed $1.8 billion to state coffers compared to $1.5 billion from the Metroplex. "Strong oil and gas production in the Plains region accounted for the area's second place finish," Bullock said. "Almost $1.5 billion in oil and gas production taxes in 1983 came from the Plains region, over half of the state's total for these taxes." "Although the Metroplex has almost twice the population of the Plains, and more than twice the total income, it generates only about $52 million in petroleum production tax revenue," said Bullock. "But the Metroplex far exceeds the Plains region in all other tax categories." The Central Corridor, East Texas and Border regions ranked fourth, fifth and sixth in that order. The Central Corridor collected around $932 million, bolstered by revenue from a growing population and an expanding economy. East Texas, from Paris and Texarkana down through Lufkin, contributed $561 million in 1983 state tax revenue. The Border region, from El Paso to Brownsville, had $533 million. "Although the Border's population of 1.4 million is somewhat larger than the 1.1 million in East Texas, higher petroleum production and greater per capita income in East Texas added up to more tax revenue," Bullock said.

Company, paralyzed man reach settlement

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Pat Davis, paralyzed in a 1980 accident in a Pontiac Trans Am, will have a chance in life because of an out-of-court settlement his lawyers reached with General Motors Corp., his attorney says. GM agreed Monday to pay for rehabilitation, transportation and housing for Davis, who sued for $50 million after the accident left him wheelchair-bound. Davis had claimed the car, which sported a T-top, was unsafe and that GM used movie stars like Burt Reynolds to lure youngsters into buying the Trans Am. "He's going to be an independent person," said Davis' attorney Sandy McMath. "That's the main reason we got into this. He's going to have a chance at life." McMath and attorneys for GM refused to disclose the amount of the settlement, but testimony during the trial showed it would cost nearly $300,000 to provide rehabilitation for Davis. McMath said he had handled two similar lawsuits in Arkansas and had won out-of-court settlements in both. Monday's agreement halted testimony in the three-week trial. Testimony had shown the car was traveling 90 mph when it struck a utility pole Jan. 11, 1980. Davis was a passenger in the car. The driver, Harry Lauer, testified he was trying to mimic Burt Reynolds when the car crashed. Lauer, 22, has recovered from his injuries and is attending college. The settlement called for allegations of wrongful advertising to be dropped. "As to the remainder of the claims, General Motors denies and continues to deny any and all responsibility for the injuries and damage to Patrick Davis," GM attorney Thom Rumberger said in a joint statement released by the attorneys. "Nevertheless, in the best interest of all concerned, these other claims are to be compromised and settled," he said. Rumberger, of Orlando, Fla., termed the settlement "a fair resolution. I am pleased."

French divers already checked sunken cargo

OSTEND, Belgium (AP) - Belgium said today that French navy divers checked the steel containers holding the 225-ton radioactive cargo of the Mont Louis hours after the French freighter sank Saturday and found them intact. High-ranking Belgian and French government officials arranged to survey the North Sea wreck site today, and salvagers said it could take several weeks to retrieve the cargo from the ship, which is lying in 46 feet of water. "French divers have already gone down and checked the ship. There is no damage to the containers," said John Huylebroeck, an Environment Ministry spokesman. Huylebroeck said the French notified Belgian officials of the contents of the Mont Louis on Saturday, after the ship collided with a large Holland-to-England car ferry and sank 12 miles off the Belgian coast. The word delta describes a stretch of land, usually shaped like a rough triangle, built up by mud and sand at the mouth of a river.

Sorority brunch starts new year

Alpha Iota Mu kicked off its new year with a brunch at 10 a.m. Saturday at the E.B. Black House.

The social committee served the meal which consisted of sausage casserole, fruit salad, juice and coffee. A business meeting followed the brunch with committee chairmen reporting on plans for the upcoming year.

Events planned for the year included a shopping spree and lunch in Amarillo, a Halloween party and a Thanksgiving Dinner. Also scheduled are a Christmas party, a bowling party, a Valentine Ball, a skating and pizza party, and an ice cream social.

New officers for this year are Michelle Brisendine, president; Debbie Black, vice-president; Jackie Fangman, recording secretary; Nancy George, corresponding secretary; Janis White, treasurer; and Melinda White, extension officer.

Members present were Marge Bell, Debbie Foerster, Becky Fry, Cindy Garth, Debe Graves, Carol Kelly, Kay Williams and Charla Edwards, member advisor.

Mondale awaiting endorsement

DALLAS (AP) — Underdog Democrat Walter F. Mondale was picking up the endorsement today of fallen-away Republican John Anderson and then returning to Minnesota to try to quiet grumbling among black leaders, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Mondale campaign sources, who spoke on condition that they not be identified, said Anderson would endorse the Democratic presidential nominee at a rally at the University of Illinois.

Mondale was in the city that hosted the Republican National Convention Monday night and he disputed President Reagan's description of the relationship between politics and religion.

Speaking at a prayer breakfast in Dallas last Thursday, the president said "religion and politics are necessarily related."

Without referring directly to the president's speech, Mondale told a Democratic fund-raising dinner that "there is more intense religious belief and practice in America than in any society on earth, I believe. That's because in America our faith is personal and honorable and uncorrupted by political influence."

"May it always be that way."

Upon his return later today to Minnesota, Mondale planned to meet with a number of black leaders including Jackson and Mayors Andrew Young of Atlanta, Wilson Goode of Philadelphia and Richard Arrington of Birmingham, Ala.

Jackson has complained about not being included in policy decisions by the Mondale campaign. Young also has said the Mondale staff has been reluctant to listen to his advice.

Four years ago, Anderson, a former Republican congressman, ran for president as an independent and received more than 7 percent of the vote.

In several states, Anderson's total was far greater than the margin by which Ronald Reagan defeated Jimmy Carter. The Democrats felt most of the Anderson vote came from people who otherwise would have voted for Carter.

However, the number of states Anderson might have cost Carter would not have changed the outcome of the 1980 election in which Reagan carried all but six states and the District of Columbia.

In preparation for the 1984 campaign, Anderson formed the National Unity Party but then decided not to make another bid for the presidency.

If his party were to choose a presidential nominee it would be eligible to receive $7.8 million in federal funds, based on Anderson's showing four years ago.

HOUSE DESIGN
by Larry Farnsworth

COMFORTABLE LIVING

*TRI-LEVEL LIVEABILITY *FORMAL DINING AND FRIENDLY KITCHEN *MASTER BEDROOM DESIGNED FOR PRIVACY *BIG LOWER LEVEL FAMILY ROOM

The pleasant exterior of AC1542 a tri-level charmer says welcome right away to all who see its attractive exterior lines with their pleasing combination of brick and clapboard, attractive rooflines and sheltered entryway.

Inside, the separate entry directs traffic efficiently to the living room on your left or the well designed kitchen down the hallway at the back of the house, beyond the stairs leading to the bedrooms on the upper most level.

The living room is spacious and attractive with its raised hearth fireplace, and the formal dining room beyond is perfect for gracious dining with family and friends.

And just look at that marvelous kitchen, with its commodious L-shaped work area augmented by an additional wall of counters, cupboards and refrigerator space. There is room, too, for an informal dining area in front of the sliding glass doors which lead to the garden area at the rear of the house.

Model AC1542 is a home you will enjoy year after year. The hundreds of happy homeowners who have built from this plan will testify to its durable charm and practicality.
