Clovis boy's body found in car at house

CLOVIS (AP) - A 6-year-old boy, the object of a search by thousands of townspeople after his May 8 disappearance, has been found dead in the back of a station wagon parked outside his family's home, police said.

Police Chief Caleb Chandler told a news conference that the partially decomposed body of Matthew Roberts was found by passersby who smelled a strong odor from the car around 7:47 p.m. Wednesday. The body was found in a two-by-two-foot compartment in the back of the Chevrolet Impala station wagon, which had been loaned to the family by a friend, he said.

Chandler said it was "a compartment similar to a glove compartment in the back of the wagon." He declined comment when asked if the child might have crawled into the compartment on his own or whether the body showed any signs of violence.

He said that as far as he knows, the child was dressed in the same clothes he was wearing when he disappeared.

The cause and time of death were not immediately determined. Medical examiners from the state Office of the Medical Investigator were to arrive today, and an autopsy will be conducted, he said.

"There are still a lot of things we don't know. We are still investigating and at this point won't rule anything out. We just don't know," Chandler told an 11 p.m. news conference.

About 30 concerned citizens, some wearing "Find Matthew Roberts" T-shirts, attended the news conference along with reporters. Many of them were in tears.

Chandler said a news conference at 10 a.m. today hopefully would furnish more answers.

A state crime lab examination of the car should be complete this afternoon, he said.

Around the time the body was found, townspeople had been holding a forum on missing children in the junior high school auditorium.

Matthew's parents, Geoff and Debbie Roberts, were at the meeting along with a psychologist and other experts. A note was brought in notifying the family that the child's body had been found.

Outside, Mrs. Roberts collapsed. "Oh, no! Oh, my God!" she cried out, then fainted. Her husband, who was in tears, had to carry her from the scene.

"We're all saddened and depressed to learn the child is dead. That's not what we had been praying for," said Clovis Mayor James B. Moss.

Up to 10,000 townspeople had joined in the search for Matthew, and divers had searched a local lake twice. Clovis has a population of about 35,000. Reported sightings of the boy came in from Roswell, 100 miles southwest of here, and from nearby Texas.

"This search really brought the city together," Moss said. "They pulled together, they were focused. It's just awful that it ended that way."

The child disappeared May 8 after he was left with his 76-year-old grandmother, Evelyn Guaidabasso, while his mother drove to a local store. The child apparently tried to follow his mother and ran out of the house before his grandmother could stop him.

Mrs. Roberts said she had asked Matthew if he wanted to come with her, and he had replied: "No, I'm just going to stay here and play. Bring me a surprise."

Mrs. Guaidabasso, who lives with the family, said five minutes after Mrs. Roberts left, Matthew ran through the house, calling, "Mommy! Mommy!" She changed from her bathrobe into street clothes to catch him, she said, but he was already gone.

There were reports that the child had been seen at least three times within hours after he left his home. He was said to have been seen alone at a car wash across the street from the junior high school; at a baseball field; and running down an alley.

The Friends of Matthew Foundation last week conducted a nationwide mailing of information on the boy's disappearance. The information was sent to 28,000 police departments, hospitals and places that deal with young people.

House ready to vote on override

AUSTIN (AP) - House Speaker Gib Lewis says the Legislature may be on the verge of doing something it hasn't done in 11 years - override a gubernatorial veto.

The Texas Senate voted 23-8 Wednesday night to override Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the Legislature's $555 million school finance reform plan.

Lewis predicted that his chamber would follow suit.

"I feel very comfortable at this point that the House can probably override a veto," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

If two-thirds of the 150-member House vote to override Clements' veto, the school finance reform plan becomes law in spite of the governor's objections.

Lewis didn't say how soon the House would attempt an override. But the current special session - lawmakers' third on school finance - ends May 31.

The state also faces a June 1 court deadline for action. If no plan is adopted to provide more money to poor schools by then, a court-appointed special master will write a blueprint to follow the unanimous Texas Supreme Court ruling which declared the current finance system unconstitutional.

In voting to override Clements, senators followed partisan lines. All 23 Senate Democrats voted to override Clements' veto, while the eight Republican senators sided with the GOP governor.

In urging the override, Sen. Carl Parker said the bill wasn't perfect but was a compromise that would end a nearly three-month stalemate between the Democrat-controlled Legislature and Clements.

"I think it's a reasonable effort to address a consensus of this Legislature," said Parker, D-Port Arthur. "We're looking silly before the nation for not making provisions for future generations."

Clements immediately condemned the Senate vote, saying the bill would drive property taxes higher.

Turning the corner

A youngster shows a little surprise as she turns the corner while sliding sideways down a new spiral slide at Dameron Park in Hereford.

Loose genes lead to those tight jeans
Diet, exercise help, but study shows
if it's in the genes, you're really stuck

BOSTON (AP) - All in the name of science, 24 young men sat around a college dormitory for 3 1/2 months and watched TV, played cards and ate.

And ate. And ate. When it was over, they had provided some of the clearest evidence yet of one of nature's injustices: Some people can overeat without putting on much weight. But for others, every extra calorie goes straight to the waistline.

Moreover, the study suggested a reason why. And it strengthened the case that heredity plays a major role in whether people get fat.

It seems that some people's bodies store extra calories mostly as fat, while others tend to make new muscle. And because manufacturing lean tissue is not a very energy efficient process, the muscle makers put on less weight.

The men tested were 12 sets of identical twins. Six of every seven days for 100 days, each of them ate 1,000 more calories than their bodies need.

Some put on three times as much weight as others.

The twins are genetically identical, and this similarity was reflected in the way they added weight. If one twin put on a lot of weight, so did his brother. The study found three times more variation in weight gain among pairs than within pairs.

There were also similarities in the way twins deposited their fat, whether they tended to grow potbellies or big bottoms.

The study was conducted by Dr. Claude Bouchard at Laval University in Ste. Foy, Quebec. It was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine, along with another study on twins by Dr. Albert J. Stunkard and others at the University of Pennsylvania.

An editorial by Dr. Ethan A.H. Sims of the University of Vermont described the two reports as "landmark contributions." He said they show that "destiny, in the form of our genetic makeup, has a great deal to do with the shape of our middles."

Dr. Ethan A.H. Sims

added nine pounds and stored only 40 percent of the extra calories.

"It demonstrates for the first time that for a given amount of calories, you have differences in the body's response to the surplus of energy," said Bouchard. "The individual differences are amazing. They are huge."

He said almost 40 percent of the weight gain is explained by the individual's propensity to store calories in lean tissue or in fat.

"This is the single most important variable that has been presented in the literature to account for differences in weight gain," he said.

The Pennsylvania research examined 673 sets of identical and fraternal twins in Sweden. About half of the sets were raised together. The rest had been separated at birth.

The researchers found that genes could explain most of the difference in people's weights, although there was a slight sex difference. Genetic influences accounted for 70 percent of the differences in fatness among men and 66 percent in women.

Their childhood home environments had no effect at all on whether they grew up to be heavy or slim. Four years ago, the same group found that twins who had been put up for adoption grew to have the body builds of their biological parents, not the people who raised them.

Pioneer
is Saturday

Deaf Smith County's Pioneer of the Year will be recognized at the 67th Mid Plains Pioneer Celebration on Saturday at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

Events will begin Friday at the Hereford Senior Center with a pancake supper and reunions of the Hereford High School classes of 1935 and 1940.

The business meeting will begin at 11 a.m. with the welcome by Mayor Wes Fisher. Officers for the association will be elected, and 1989-90 President Alex Schroeter will recognize the homecoming classes, the oldest man and oldest woman present, and the person traveling the greatest distance to attend the event.

KPAN Radio will recognize the Pioneer of the Year.

A covered dish luncheon will be served by the Draper Extension Homemakers club and Deaf Smith County 4-H.

Summer Kindergarten
is scheduled

Kindergarten bilingual summer school will be held at the Stanton Learning Center Complex in two sessions, June 18 through July 13 and July 16 to August 10.

The classes, sponsored by the Hereford Independent School District, will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at noon each day. The classes include reading, language arts, and mathematics.

All kindergarten children identified with limited English proficiency who will be in K-5 or first grade during the 1990-1991 school year are eligible to participate. Recommendations by teachers or referrals by parents will be accepted for admission.

Registration is now in progress at each of the primary schools and will continue until the last week of May.

Questions about the program can be answered by a child's teacher, the building principal or Severo Reyna, the district's bilingual education coordinator.

Bush extends China benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush today granted China a one-year extension of its preferential trade status, brushing aside critics who favored a hard-line stance against the Beijing government a year after its crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators.

He called it a difficult decision but one that was consistent with the long-term interests of the United States and "the Chinese people."

In an opening statement before taking questions from reporters at the White House, Bush stressed that his decision was not meant to condone the policies of the government of China in suppressing the pro-Democracy movement there.

"I did not want to hurt the Chinese people," Bush said. "I concluded that it is in our best interests and the interest of the Chinese people to continue China's trade status. Not to do so would hurt the United States."

In answer to a question, he said, "I don't think this is a reward to Beijing."

Bush said other sanctions against the Chinese government would remain in place and called anew on Beijing to improve its human rights record.

But he said revoking China's preferential trade treatment would cause undue harm to the Chinese people, the economy of Hong Kong and cost American jobs as well, saying China buys about $10 billion in U.S. goods annually.

Bride-elect honored

Cheeseburgers great for summer

Summer comes and goes so fast -- you don't want to miss a moment of it. From Memorial Day through Labor Day there are plenty of reasons to celebrate.

Backyard barbecues are the perennial favorite way to enjoy summer. So set up the picnic table, fire up the grill and get ready to make the best of the season. According to the Barbecue Industry Association, burgers are the favorite food for outdoor grilling.

For most of us, a burger is not complete without cheese. From mild, meltable Mozzarella to aged Cheddar and tangy Blue, cheese is the ingredient that transforms the ordinary burger into something extraordinary.

The American Dairy Association test kitchens have created several delicious cheeseburgers to help you celebrate this summer. All are easy to prepare, and no recipes are required!

Memorial Day (May 28) "Memorable Burger" -- Place grilled burger on light rye roll; top with a slice of Muenster cheese and a grilled tomato slice. Garnish with grilled green onions.

Flag Day (June 14) "All-American Cheeseburger" -- Spread a sesame seed bun with yellow mustard; top with the grilled burger and sliced tomato, white American cheese and thinly sliced red onion rings.

Father's Day (June 17) "Dad's Delight" -- Lavish a pumpernickel roll with savory brown mustard; top with the grilled burger, a thick slice of aged sharp Cheddar, crumbled Blue cheese, grilled onions and catsup.

Independence Day (July 4) "Firecracker Burger" -- Season ground beef with garlic and crushed red pepper flakes to taste before grilling. Place the burger on a Kaiser roll; top with a slice of Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno pepper

Mahaffey honored at shower

Jill Mahaffey was honored with a bridal shower Saturday at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Gibson. The honoree and Lee Line plan to exchange wedding vows June 2 at University Baptist Church in Austin.

Welcoming guests with Miss Mahaffey were her mother, Clara Mahaffey; and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Ann Line. Terri Beth Dillard registered guests.

Mona Gale Gibson and Virginia Brook served refreshments of sausage pinwheels, banana nut sandwiches, shrimp puffs, fresh fruit plate, coffee and punch.

The table was decorated with an arrangement featuring garnet red carnations, shell pink roses, and lilies. Also, decorating the table were a crystal punch bowl and silver coffee server.

The shower honoree was presented a chrome Sunbeam mixer by hostesses: Grace Covington, Roberta Last, Janice Brownlow, Helen Lee, Tina Langehennig, Marie Stringer, Joan Womble, Norma Hendon, Jeanie Caison, Helen Eades, Frances Crume, Jean Ruther, Avis White, Theata Seiver, and Eleanor Gibson.

Like Boston, New Jersey had a "tea party" during the mounting friction between the colonies and Great Britain. At Greenwich, near Delaware Bay, young men in Indian costume burned a shipload of tea from England in 1774.

Portland ekes out another win, goes up 2-0

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - If NBA fans didn't appreciate Terry Porter before, they should now.

The Portland playmaker orchestrated one of the biggest comebacks in playoff history Wednesday night as the Trail Blazers beat Phoenix 108-107 to take a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

The six-year pro - from tiny Wisconsin-Stevens Point sank the two biggest shots of the game - a 3-pointer with 28.4 seconds to go and the game-winning 13-footer with 12.7 seconds to play.

"Terry Porter's been doing that for years," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "The only difference is he's never had national TV exposure to show it."

Porter is Portland's leading scorer in the playoffs and he relishes the chance to shoot in clutch situations.

"I've been shooting extremely well in the playoffs," he said. "Whenever I'm open, there's no hesitation."

Porter scored 23 of his 28 points in the second half after Portland fell behind by 18 at intermission.

It equalled the second-biggest comeback from a halftime deficit in NBA playoff history. The only one that was bigger occurred 42 years ago, when Baltimore trailed Philadelphia 41-20 at the half but rallied to win 66-63.

"It's a tough loss for us but it's not going to be the end of the world for this team," Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "I have a lot of confidence in this team and our team will bounce back."

Games 3 and 4 are set for Friday and Sunday in Phoenix, and Porter isn't sure how much Wednesday night's collapse will affect the Suns.

"I don't think it buries them without a doubt," he said.

Portland began the game with one of its worst quarters of the season. The Blazers shot just 26 percent from the field and scored 17 points, their lowest first-quarter output of the season.

The first half also featured two of the oddest incidents of the playoffs. Blazers team photographer Art Gee was ejected from the game by referee Jess Kersey for criticizing the officiating and the Blazers were called for a technical foul for having only four players on the court.

Phoenix led by 12 at the end of the period and boosted the margin to 22 before settling for a 59-41 halftime lead. Reserve Dan Majerle did the most damage for Phoenix, scoring 18 of his 22 points in the first two quarters.

The Suns still led 79-62 with 4 minutes left in the third quarter when Porter, Jerome Kersey and Clyde Drexler began to lead the rally.

A 7-1 Blazer run narrowed the margin to 79-67 with 3 minutes left in the period and a 12-2 Portland outburst sliced the lead to 93-90 on Drexler's baseline drive with 8:01 remaining.

Kersey scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, including six straight Portland points as the Blazers narrowed the Phoenix lead to 104-103 with 1:37 to play.

Kersey blocked Tom Chambers' shot with just over a minute to play. But after Kevin Duckworth missed, Kersey was called for a foul on the rebound and Chambers made a pair of free throws with 50.1 seconds to play to put the Suns ahead 106-103.

Porter's 3-pointer, his third of the second half, tied the score at 106-all with 28.4 seconds to go. The crowd, silent for most of the first half, was roaring.

Kevin Johnson made one of two free throws with 27.2 seconds to go. After a timeout, Portland got the ball to Porter, who drove toward the basket and sank a running jumper over the arms of Johnson for the game winner.

Kersey tied his career playoff high with 29 points. Drexler added 20. Chambers scored 28 and Kevin Johnson 22 for Phoenix.

NFL owners choose Atlanta as host for 1994 Super Bowl

IRVING (AP) - The NFL had Georgia and a loyal, longtime owner on its mind with the gift of a Super Bowl that will bring millions of dollars to the city of Atlanta in four years.

A presentation by Rankin Smith Sr., owner of the Atlanta Falcons, helped three-fourths of the owners decide on the fourth ballot to give Atlanta the 1994 Super Bowl.

Super Bowl XVIII will be played in the $210 million downtown "Georgia Dome."

Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson said "it was Rankin Smith who scored the touchdown. He's the one that got the ball over the goal. With him we were solid gold."

The two-day spring meeting was expected to conclude today.

The owners discussed labor relations, corporate ownership, lotteries, and relationships with colleges on Wednesday after the Atlanta announcement was made by commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

Jack Donlan, the management council executive director, said he and a panel of four club executives had come up with a revised financial package for the players that would double their benefits.

Donlan said "The owners have a lot of money and we would like to share some of it. It's a shame they can't. It makes no sense. We want to give some important benefits."

The NFLPA led by Gene Upshaw said it has decertified the union and will see the NFL owners in court.

"We need someone to dance with," Donlan said.

Tagliabue said "the players association is treating its own members as second class citizens. There is as strong feeling among the owners that with the TV money coming in it's time to do something. But the union is in hiding and doing a disservice to its members."

The Georgia Dome will seat 70,500 fans which will make it third biggest dome in the NFL. The Silver Dome in Pontiac seats about 80,000 while the Super Dome in New Orleans seats 72,000.

"The Super Bowl will identify Atlanta and Georgia around the world," said Gov. Joe Frank Harris. "It will also help us in a bid for the Olympics in 1996."

Mayor Jackson said "it will be great for jobs and revenue in Atlanta. It will make a great impact on the city in self esteem, image and the economy."

The Georgia Dome is scheduled to open for the 1992 football season and will be the home of the Atlanta Falcons. It is adjacent to the Georgia World Congress Center, the Omni Coliseum and the CNN Center.

Smith called the ballot by the owners "a real sweater...we feel we can get the job done to make it a fine Super Bowl. We're dedicated to making it a great Super Bowl."

Tagliabue admitted to some "concern" over whether the Georgia Dome would be ready.

"We are confident it will be ready but we do have an understanding that all of the necessary contracts have to be in place by Sept. 1," Tagliabue said. "Of course, the reason we chose Atlanta is obvious with the new stadium and the fact they were chosen for the first time."

Atlanta beat out South Florida (Joe Robbie Stadium), Tampa, and the Louisiana Super Dome. It took a three-fourths margin and Atlanta got 21 votes.

The 1991 Super Bowl is in Tampa, the 1992 Super Bowl is in Minnesota, and the 1993 Super Bowl in Phoenix.

Jones team takes win in Pizza Hut Scramble

The team of Robert Jones, Bobby Weaver, Ron Mathews and James Downs claimed Wednesday's Pizza Hut Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The group carded a score of 29 for the nine-hole event to top the 15-team field. Three foursomes finished tied for second place one stroke back at 30.

Members of the winning foursome each received $45 in gift certificates.

Pistons' success based on strong bench players

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Vinnie Johnson has come to symbolize the Detroit Pistons' deep bench strength for two reasons: hard work and luck.

Joe Dumars has been the headliner in the first two games of the Eastern Conference finals. But Johnson, the Microwave, has anchored a bench that is primarily responsible for the Pistons' 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series that resumes with afternoon games Saturday and Monday in Chicago.

The Pistons' bench, which outscored the Bulls' bench 148-102 during the regular season, has outscored the Chicago reserves 66-36 through the first two games. Johnson has led that assault with 28 points, nine rebounds, nine assists and a steal.

"It doesn't matter who is hot on this team," Detroit center Bill Laimbeer said. "We just get him the ball."

If the Bulls don't find a way to change that pattern, the Pistons soon will be on their way to the NBA Finals. Detroit is bidding to become the third team in league history to repeat as champion.

"Vinnie and Joe Dumars have played well the whole way," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "Our objective is to steal on in Chicago. I

Simpson looks to defend Atlanta title

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) - It's developed into the kind of golf season Scott Simpson didn't expect.

"This year has been kind of crazy," Simpson said. "Usually the strength of my game is consistency, but so far I've either played real well or missed the cut. It's been that kind of year."

The up-and-down season has included three Top Ten finishes, featuring a tie for second in the Bob Hope Classic and a tie for seventh in the Masters.

He also failed to make the cut four times in his 12 appearances this year, one in which he ranks 31st on the money list with $207,224.

Despite the inconsistency, Simpson says his game has "gotten even better than last year. I feel like I'm playing pretty good, but you never know."

Simpson begins defense of his championship in the Atlanta Classic today on the rolling hills of the 7,018-yard Atlanta Country Club course against a field that includes only two of the 10 leaders on the money list this year - Jodie Mudd and rookie Robert Gamez.

He looked upon last year's victory in a sudden-death playoff with Bob Tway as one that proved his 1987 U.S. Open title was no fluke.

"Winning the Open was a thrill and it made me more active after that," Simpson said. "It got me invited to some tournaments I wouldn't have been invited to otherwise."

"That's why winning (Atlanta) meant so much," he said. "I hadn't won since the Open. I played horribly in 1988. I didn't want to be known as one of those guys who wins a major and then their game leaves them."

Among the field of 156 are only three players with victories this year.

Mudd won The Players Championship, Gamez captured the Tucson Open and the Nestle Invitational and Tommy Armour III won the Phoenix Open.

Blast from the past propels Yanks

By The Associated Press

For one night at least, the New York Yankees were the Bronx Bombers again.

The supposedly punchless Yankees, who bear little resemblance to Murderers' Row and had only 22 home runs in their first 36 games, hammered out six Wednesday night, including Steve Balboni's first two of the season and a three-run shot by Deion Sanders, in a 12-0 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

"We needed to break out on offense and it was nice to finally score some runs," said Manager Bucky Dent, who homered the last time the Yankees hit six in a game on June 5, 1977.

For the record, he was joined by Thurman Munson, Carlos May, Graig Nettles, Reggie Jackson and George Zeber. This time, besides Balboni and Sanders, Mel Hall, Roberto Kelly and Jesse Barfield also connected.

In other American League games, it was Oakland 12, Milwaukee 5; California 5, Toronto 4; Detroit 5, Texas 1; Chicago 6, Baltimore 3; Kansas City 4, Boston 1; and Seattle 4, Cleveland 1.

Ironically, the Yankees didn't need any of their homers except Hall's 440-foot leadoff shot in the second inning. They got four-hit, 11-strikeout pitching from Tim Lincecum (3-4), who yielded singles in the second, third and fourth innings and retired 15 consecutive batters before the Twins got their final hit in the ninth. Loser Tim Drummond (0-1) and John Candelaria each gave up six runs.

Sanders, recalled from the minors on Monday, capped a four-run fourth inning with his first homer of the season.

"It gave us momentum," Sanders said. "I think the home runs will eventually come, but right now I'm just trying to get on base and steal some bases."

The fourth inning was enlivened by a bench-clearing incident after Drummond, apparently annoyed by Hall's minute-long slow-motion home run trot in the second, fired a pitch over his head and drew a warning from umpire Rocky Roe.

"If he wants to hit me in the leg, hit me in the leg," Hall said. "But he went at my head. If he's going to do that, he ain't going to leave the stadium. I've been running like that for eight years and I'm not speeding up for anybody. I'm not trying to show anybody up; that's just how I run around the bases."

Athletics 12, Brewers 5

Dave Henderson hit a pair of two-run homers and Rickey Henderson hit a three-run shot. Rickey Henderson doubled in the first inning and scored Oakland's first run on Jose Canseco's sacrifice fly. His seventh home run broke a 2-2 tie in the second inning against loser Bill Wegman (2-1).

Dave Henderson's first homer made it 7-2 in the third. He hit another two-run shot off Bill Krueger in the eighth. Oakland starter Mike Moore (4-3) overcame a slow start to snap a personal two-losing streak.

Angels 5, Blue Jays 4
Lance Parrish's two-out single capped a four-run ninth-inning rally as California handed Toronto its eighth loss in nine games.

Dave Stieb held the Angels to one run and three hits through seven innings before giving way to Duane Ward, who pitched a scoreless eighth.

Tigers 5, Rangers 1
Cecil Fielder hit his major-league-leading 17th home run, a two-run shot in the third inning, and Tracy Jones also homered.

Brian DuBois (2-2) yielded the Texas run and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings while striking out a career-high seven.

White Sox 6, Orioles 3
Dan Pasqua drove in four runs with a pair of homers.

Pasqua hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the seventh, giving him four for the season.

Winner Eric King (3-0) held the Orioles to two hits in six innings.

Royals 4, Red Sox 1

Steve Jeltz, who started the game batting .067, broke a tie with a seventh-inning single and Willie Wilson added a two-run single.

Bret Saberhagen (3-3) scattered seven hits for his second consecutive complete-game victory.

Mariners 4, Indians 1

Ken Griffey Jr. doubled home two runs in a three-run first inning and Alvin Davis homered in the eighth.

Erik Hanson (4-3) held Cleveland to five hits in eight innings while walking none and striking out nine. Mike Schooler pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

Astros run away from Pittsburgh for 7-3 win

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Houston Astros discovered what Tim Lincecum found out a long time ago - running results in runs.

The Astros set a team record with eight steals Wednesday night as they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 for their fourth victory in 17 games.

"We got things going," said Eric Yelding, who tied a club mark with four steals. "Playing on turf like we do, when we get on base, we've got to steal. That's our game."

In Montreal, Raines stole the 600th base of his career as the Expos defeated San Diego 4-0. He moved within 49 of Bert Campaneris for eighth place on the all-time modern list.

"I never thought I would do this when I broke in 10 years ago. But I think it might mean more if I get to 800," Raines said. "That would mean I've played a long time and stayed aggressive."

In other games, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-1 and Los Angeles rallied past Chicago 4-3.

Houston, in last place and in danger of getting run out of the National League West race, instead ran the East-leading Pirates out of the Astrodome.

The Astros stole their first four bases with Mike Lavalliere catching.

Houston swiped four more during a four-run eighth inning with Don Slaught behind the plate.

"I'm not very happy with that. We'll have to work on it when we get home," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said.

Alex Trevino's two-run, pinch-homer broke a 3-all tie in the eighth. He connected against Scott Ruskin (0-1) for his first home run of the season, and watched the ball sail into the left-field seats.

"I'm not a power hitter, but I felt like one so I thought I might as well enjoy it," Trevino said.

Ken Caminiti added a two-run single later in the eighth. Casey Candaele reached on an error by shortstop Jay Bell and stole two bases and Yelding walked and stole another, setting up Caminiti.

Juan Agosto (3-1) pitched 1 1-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

Expos 4, Padres 0
In Montreal, Oil Can Boyd shut out San Diego for the second time in two weeks and Tim Wallach homered for the third straight game.

Boyd (3-2) gave up five hits, walked none and struck out eight. He is tied for the major league lead in shutouts after pitching just six of them in six years with Boston.

Boyd, who has allowed two earned runs in 29 innings, singled with two outs to start a two-run fifth inning against former Red Sox teammate Bruce Hurst (3-5). Wallach hit a solo home run, his 10th of the season and fourth against the Padres, in the sixth.

Giants 6, Cardinals 1

In St. Louis, Bob Knepper pitched 6-2-3 strong innings as San Francisco stopped its four-game losing streak.

Knepper (3-2) allowed one run on seven hits. He began the game with a 6.05 ERA.

Gary Carter's RBI single put the Giants ahead 2-1 in the sixth against Greg Mathews (0-4). Knepper doubled home a run later in the inning and Brett Butler hit an RBI single.

Will Clark hit his eighth home run, including two in two games, in the Giants' first.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3

At Wrigley Field, Kal Daniels hit a three-run homer that capped a four-run rally in the eighth inning.

Mike Harkey took a three-hitter and 3-0 lead into the eighth, but one-out singles by Mickey Hatcher, Lenny Harris and Stan Javier scored a run. With two outs, lefty Paul Assenmacher (1-1) relieved and the left-handed Daniels hit his eighth home run.

Tim Belcher (4-3) allowed one earned run in seven innings. Don Aase escaped a first-and-third, no-out jam in the ninth for his third save.

PISTONS RELY ON BENCH

expect a very hard game on Saturday."

Johnson, an 11-year veteran, is averaging 11.5 points in the playoffs. Not bad for a 33-year-old guard who stands only 6-foot-2.

"Hard work and sometimes getting lucky bounces are the keys to my success, I guess," Johnson said. "The thing is, I'm not afraid to mix it up with the big boys. I'll take my chances."

There had been talk of Johnson, who has obviously lost a step or two, perhaps retiring. But Jack McCloskey, the Pistons' general manager, says the club wants him back.

"He wants to come back and we want him back," McCloskey said.

"Vinnie had a good year. He's a very mentally tough individual."

The Pistons are 24-3 in playoff games the last two seasons and the bench has been one of the biggest keys to that success. In dispatching the New York Knicks in five games in the second round, Pistons' reserves outscored the Knicks 165-105, outbounded them 69-49 and outshot them 50.7 percent to 38.4 percent.

"We've got to open it up," Chicago forward Scottie Pippen said. "We've got to play more solid. We've got an opportunity to beat this team in Chicago."

Ironically, the Bulls bench also played a key role in second-round play, outscoring Philadelphia's reserves 120-79 and outbounding the 76ers bench 56-29.

"We showed we, too, have good bench strength," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

But turning back the 76ers isn't the same as defeating a team that thinks it has a date with destiny.

"We feel good about our position and just want to win one in Chicago," said Detroit's Mark Aguirre. "We have to go in and play the same type of game we have in the past."

The action now shifts to noisy Chicago Stadium, where the Bulls have a little history going for them. The Bulls are 5-0 at home during the playoffs, and their only win against the Pistons this season was in Chicago.

Hereford resident only one to graduate from her school

Glenda Kendrick, 18-year-old daughter of Bobby and Elizabeth Kendrick of Hereford, has been named valedictorian of the senior class at Grace Christian School in Canyon. She will be the only student to receive her diploma at graduation ceremonies Friday because she is the only senior student enrolled at the school.

Kendrick, who was born in Amarillo, attended Hereford schools until the seventh grade and then transferred to the small private school in Canyon.

Kendrick's goal is to become a "life flight paramedic". As a member of Explorer Scout Post 911 in Hereford, she and six other young men and women have been studying the paramedical field with Scoutmaster Mike Foster.

Following a two-year paramedic course at Amarillo College beginning this fall, Kendrick plans to enroll in the four-year program of missionary training at Colorado Christian University in Denver. Then, she hopes to find employment in her career field in Colorado.

Kendrick is a member of the Bible Baptist Church in Hereford. Her favorite subject is sign language.

Burger King will offer the new dressings alongside the actor's original Newman's Own Oil & Vinegar at its 6,000 restaurants.

"This all-natural product will help 'shake up' awareness of our salad line," said Gary Langstaff, executive vice president of marketing for Burger King.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After 15 years of marriage, I've finally come to terms with my in-laws dropping in. I'm not saying that I don't think it's rude or that I don't mind. I have just come to the conclusion that I can't win this battle.

Here is the problem: My parents DO mind. They are from out of town and don't come to visit us very often. Whenever they are here, along come the in-laws, unexpected and uninvited. It's not as if we never see them. They live nearby, and we talk and visit almost every day. My parents know this. They are resentful and feel that my husband's folks are being inconsiderate and spiteful.

I recently decided to tell my in-laws (in a loving way) how my parents feel about having no time alone with us. I hoped they would understand. I was mistaken. The next time my parents came to visit, the in-laws dropped in twice and stayed and stayed. The tension was so thick, you could have cut it with a knife.

I now feel differently about my in-laws. What was once a good relationship is now a poor one. Unfortunately, the problem has also caused trouble in our marriage.

I should tell you, Ann, when we've refused to go along with his parents in the past on some minor issues, we've regretted it financially and emotionally. They rolled right over us, and we were sorry that we opened our mouths. Any advice? -- Hurting in Indiana

DEAR HURTING: It is high time that you and your husband took charge of your lives and cut loose from your controlling, overbearing in-laws. If you are beholden to them because they are helping you out financially, stop accepting their help, even if it means doing without things you've become used to.

The next time your parents plan to visit, you and your husband should tell the in-laws that they are coming, and the four of you will drop by their home for some iced tea at a specific time. (You can then leave whenever you please.) Let them know that the rest of the time is being set aside for your folks, because you don't see them very often.

If, after this little speech, the in-laws drop in on you anyway, tell them you cannot ask them in, because you have other plans, then turn them away at the door. This will be your Declaration of Independence.

It is imperative that your husband support you totally. If he says he can't, accept the fact that he is a wimp, and both of you need to enroll in an assertiveness training course at once.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so keyed-up that I know I will spell several words wrong, and my grammar won't be correct. Please fix it.

I just returned from a dinner party in honor of a relative where an overzealous mother chose the occasion to bring a carton of candy bars to sell for her child's school fund-raiser. She went from person to person hawking her wares and did quite well.

Was it OK for this woman to help her child in this way? -- Grand Rapids

DEAR GRAND: The behavior you described was inappropriate and personifies chutzpah at its worst. In addition to the tastelessness, it is not a good idea for parents to do fund-raising for their children. It deprives the youngsters of the experience as well as the pleasure of achieving something on their own.

Gem of the Day: Most teen-agers can do something that no adult has ever managed to master -- answer the phone in the middle of the first ring.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Peter Yarrow of Peter, Paul and Mary says the folk group's sing-along "Puff the Magic Dragon" has two meanings, and neither is about drugs as once rumored.

"It's ostensibly a song about the moment of loss of innocence. When that moment occurs, it is sad indeed," the singer told 300 Augsburg College graduates. "But it's about something else. It is about the loss of our ideals."

Texas agent causes flap in Alabama

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - A $5,000 fine paid by Texas lawyer Lance Luchnick for failing to register as a sports agent in Alabama should not be shared by a Montgomery YMCA linked to the governor's race, the chairman of the sports agents commission said.

State Sen. Gerald Dial, the commission chairman, said Tuesday the penalty paid by Luchnick should have gone into the state's General Fund.

Luchnick pleaded guilty Monday in Mobile to a misdemeanor charge of attempting to avoid registering under the Alabama Sports Agent Regulatory Act.

In a plea-bargain with Attorney General Don Siegelman, Luchnick agreed to pay $5,000 in fines that will be distributed to charities chosen by Siegelman.

Three charities in Mobile received $1,000 each. The Alabama Sports Hall of Fame in Birmingham received $1,000, and the Cleveland Avenue YMCA in Montgomery got $1,000.

It was the YMCA donation that upset Dial. Siegelman is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor in hopes of running against Republican Gov. Guy Hunt in the fall.

"That money should have gone into the General Fund in the state treasury," Dial said. "If he settles a $1 million drug case in a plea bargain for $500,000 and it goes to charity, and the attorney general selects the one, it's setting a very bad precedent in the future."

"I'm not sure how legal that is." Circuit Judge Braxton Kittrell accepted the plea-bargain during the brief hearing Monday as it was presented by Siegelman.

Bob Martin, a spokesman for the Administrative Office of the Courts in Montgomery, said state law does require fines be paid to the General Fund or a state agency. But he said a plea-bargain clouds the question.

"Whether plea-bargain supercedes may very well be. A judge may have authority. There have been some things done, like a judge can suspend the fine, or enact it and suspend it. I know we've got one judge in Limestone County, on DUI cases, part of the fine is to put an ad in the newspaper with a picture and apology."

Earlier this month, a $15,000 budget appropriation for the Cleveland Avenue YMCA was killed when Hunt vetoed the measure and the Legislature ended its session without acting on the Hunt veto. The Hunt veto put the YMCA in the gubernatorial campaign spotlight.

Hunt spokesman Terry Abbott said

Tuesday that Hunt has budgeted $8,500 in grant money for the Cleveland Avenue YMCA, but he declined comment on Siegelman's contribution resulting from the sports agent case.

Siegelman said Monday the YMCA and the other charities receiving the Luchnick money seemed like worthy causes. But he also admitted the "publicity" in the wake of the Hunt veto drew his attention to the YMCA.

"I don't see how he could do that with his office," Dial said. "We've opened a Pandora's Box." He said every judge looking for re-election could use fine money in a similar manner if they thought they could do it.

"I'm not anti-charity, and I'm not going to get involved in this governor's race," Dial said. He credited Siegelman for pursuing the case against Luchnick. "At least they got a plea-bargain conviction," he said.

Dial, who introduced the legislation that resulted in the sports agents commission, said there are 16 members on the commission.

The Luchnick case began earlier this year with his representation of former Alabama linebacker Keith McCants. During the days leading up to the NFL draft, Luchnick was indicted on a felony charge of failing to register under the state regulatory act.

"He didn't register. He had no defense," Assistant Attorney General Don Valeska said Monday.

However, Dial said Luchnick did attempt to register but his application was rejected. Dial said the rejection was "based on the information we had and information furnished by the attorney general."

Dial continued, "I sent a copy of his application and letters to all the commissioners saying in my estimation he should not be granted a permit or a license."

Dial said the commissioners communicated by letter on the Luchnick case.

"We've not met in several months. We're in the process of restructuring and turning this over to the secretary of state," he said.

He said the secretary of state will take over handling the applications from sports agents, but the commission will still be the final authority.

He said the Luchnick case began when he discovered the San Antonio lawyer was not a registered agent in the state when his name was linked to McCants, who was drafted by Tampa Bay.

Why they won't win Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The Indianapolis 500 treasures tradition as much as speed. With that in mind, here's a rundown of which drivers won't win Sunday's race.

It won't be Emerson Fittipaldi. Sure, the 43-year-old Brazilian is the defending champion who qualified for the pole position at a record 225.301 mph. Sure, he's driving for the fantastically successful Penske Racing team. Sure, he's got some of the best equipment.

But history is the great equalizer at Indianapolis. Only four drivers have posted consecutive victories here, none since Al Unser two decades ago. Back-to-back wins by foreign-born drivers are even more rare, with Jim Clark in 1965 and Graham Hill in 1966 the most recent.

No, it won't be Fittipaldi. How about Rick Mears?

The three-time winner, five-time pole-starter, 10-time front-row qualifier also drives for Penske and is the acknowledged master of the 2 1/2-mile oval. He's won more money at Indianapolis than any other driver in history and is ready to make up for last year's 23rd-place finish, a shocking aberration from his otherwise stellar career.

But look where he's sitting. Mears qualified at 224.215 mph for a starting position in the middle of the front row. That spot hasn't produced a winner since 1969 with Mario Andretti, and everyone knows of the Andretti jinx at Indianapolis.

Arie Luyendyk, the fastest Dutchman ever to race at Indianapolis, is the third front-row starter. He's been impressive all month. He qualified at 223.304 and has first-rate equipment. But he has never won an Indy-car race in 75 career starts, and you just don't get your first victory at Indianapolis. Plus, the same bias against two straight foreign-born winners works against Luyendyk.

That also eliminates Dominic Dobson, Tero Palmroth, Raul Boesel, Geoff Brabham, Didier Theys, Scott Goodyear, Teo Fabi, Roberto Guerrero and Jim Crawford, foreign-born all.

Only six rookies have won the race, none since 1966. That eliminates Goodyear, Eddie Cheever and Dean Hall.

There has never been a winner whose father also drove at Indianapolis. That eliminates Brabham, Michael Andretti, Al Unser Jr., Tony and Gary Bettenhausen, Pancho Carter and Bill Vukovich III.

There has never been a winner from farther back than 28th in the starting lineup. That eliminates Crawford, Al Unser, Vukovich, John Paul Jr. and Rocky Moran.

There has never been a winner from the ninth, 12th or 26th starting positions. That eliminates Danny Sullivan, Randy Lewis and Scott Brayton.

So who's left? Mario Andretti? Forget it. He's endured every kind of heartbreak at Indianapolis since his 1969 victory.

John Andretti? He wouldn't dare win his first 500 before Uncle Mario won his second.

Stan Fox? Who is Stan Fox? Kevin Cogan? He's driving Car No. 11. No car with that number has ever won the race. Ditto for Bobby Rahal in Car No. 18.

Tom Sneva? The 1983 Indy winner hasn't won a race at any track since 1984. Besides, he has crashed during the 500 more times (six) than any other driver in history.

By the process of elimination, then, the winner can only be A.J. Foyt, who will take the checkered flag for a record fifth time, pull into Victory Lane and announce that after 33 years at Indianapolis, and at the age of 55 years, 4 months, 11 days, it's time to retire.

Then again, Foyt being Foyt, he might not.

ATLANTA CLASSIC

Bypassing this event are the top five money winners - Greg Norman, Payne Stewart, Mark Calcavecchia, Paul Azinger and Fred Couples. Mudd ranks sixth on the list, Gamez seventh.

Curtis Strange, 35th on the money list because of only nine appearances this year, ranks as the pre-tournament favorite.

Strange is honing his game in preparation for the U.S. Open three weeks from now where he will try to win that prestigious title for the third year in a row. Only one player in history has won the Open three years in succession - Willie Anderson, from 1903-1905.

"I've never had anything consume me as much," Strange said of his

Open quest. "But right now, I'm trying to keep my mind off the Open while pointing my game toward it."

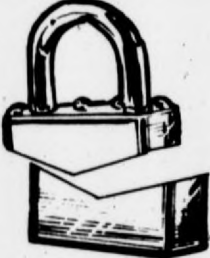

Portions of the final two rounds on Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally on CBS.
