

British Bombers Attack Pt. Stanley

Defenders Claim Two Shot Down

LONDON (AP) — British Vulcan bombers and Sea Harrier jets attacked the Argentine-held airfield at Stanley, capital of the Falkland Islands, early Saturday in two separate raids, and "all aircraft and personnel involved returned safely," the Defense Ministry said.

Spokesman Ian MacDonald denied Argentine reports that two Harriers were downed by ground fire.

The raid was the first confrontation between Argentine and British military in almost a week since Britain said its forces reclaimed South Georgia Island, a dependency of the Falklands. It came less than 24 hours after the United States dropped its neutral mediator's role and pledged support to Britain in the showdown, and both sides declared 200-mile war zones around the islands.

The British Defense

Ministry did not release many details of the strike, apparently aimed at cutting off the Argentine airlift of supplies to its 9,000-man occupation army.

The military command issued a terse communique saying that "at 4:40 a.m. (3:40 am EDT), May 1st, 1982, the United Kingdom of Great Britain attacked Puerto Argentino (Stanley) in the Malvinas (Falkland) Islands. The attack was carried out by Harrier aircraft based on aircraft carriers and was repelled by anti-aircraft artillery of the forces that defend our sovereignty."

Informed sources in London said Harrier vertical-takeoff fighters from British fleet carriers probably used

1,000-pound bombs and rockets to knock out the airfield, and fired their cannons to demolish any Argentine planes that were on the ground.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said intelligence reports indicated several Argentine Mirage III interceptors, twin-engined A-58 Pucara planes and troop-carrying helicopters were using the airfield.

Recent reports from Buenos Aires indicated the Argentines had moved in British-built Tigercat anti-aircraft missiles to defend the strip, but the Defense Ministry would not say whether the Harriers ran into any defense fire.

The attack was launched from Britain's powerful armada stationed off the disputed South Atlantic archipelago and was the first action since Britain imposed a 200-mile air and sea blockade around the Falklands early Friday. But a Royal Navy source in London said a full-scale invasion might not come for as long as a week.

"We're in no particular hurry and I think we can afford to play waiting game," said the source, who asked not to be named. "It will lower Argentine morale on the Falklands if we let them get cold, wet and miserable."

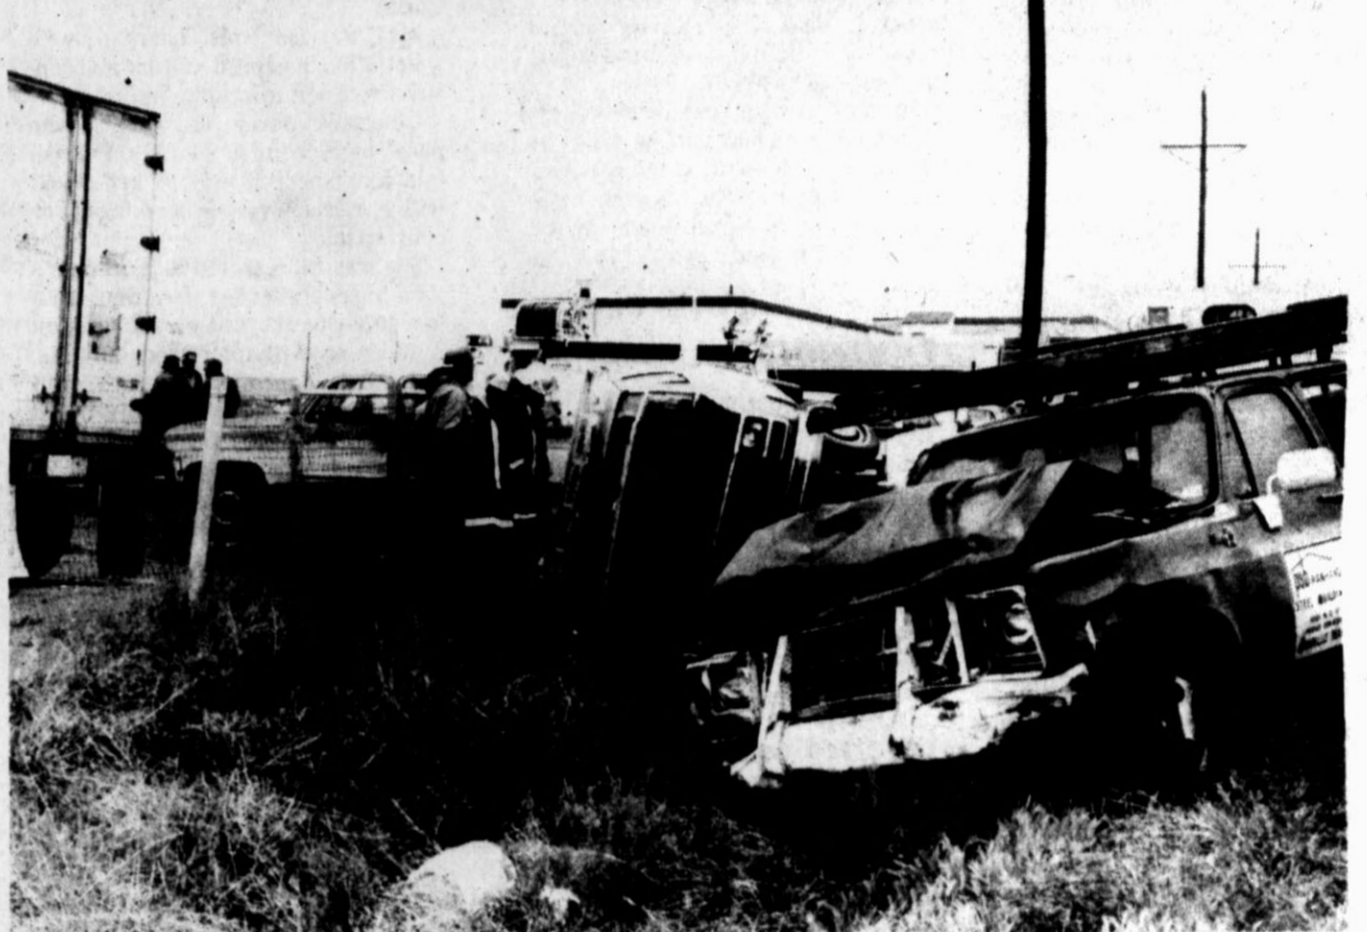

Argentina also imposed a 200-mile "war zone" around the islands, but a Defense Ministry spokesman told The Associated Press early today there were no reports of Argentine military action against British ships.

The attack was launched shortly before British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym was to fly to Washington for talks with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. on the 30-day-old Falklands crisis.

The U.S. pledge of support for Britain stung Argentina, which declared a "red alert" and vowed to "defend itself with all the means within its reach."

Haig's announcement of economic and military sanctions against Argentina reversed a position of neutrality adopted while he spent nearly a month trying to mediate a peaceful settlement to the crisis that began April 2 when Argentina invaded the Falklands.

The islands, 250 miles off the south coast of Argentina, had been a British colony for 149 years and are home to about 1,800 British-descended shepherds and 600,000 sheep.

Three men were treated at Deaf Smith General Hospital for minor injuries after two trucks collided on U.S. 60 near the Caviness Packing Company at 2:15 p.m. Friday. The truck in the foreground, driven by Jackie Wayne Williams of Canyon, was headed east on U.S. 60 when it hit the other truck, southbound from a service road, driven by Don

Taylor, 328 Center. The accident is still under investigation by the Texas Department of Public Safety. Treated were Taylor, and passengers of Williams' truck Michael Hutson of Canyon and Gaylon Sims of Amarillo. Ricky Williams of Amarillo was also a passenger. (Brand Photo)

Hijackers Release Hostages, Take Second Plane to Cuba

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Four leftist gunmen Saturday freed the last of their hostages from a hijacked Honduran airliner and took off on a second airliner headed for Cuba, army officials said.

Ten hostages including seven Americans, had earlier escaped the airliner — hijacked Wednesday and diverted to Tegucigalpa airport — by diving through an emergency door and smashed windows, Red Cross officials said.

Army officials said all the freed 15 hostages were in good condition.

The hijackers commandeered the Honduran Air Service plane on a domestic flight Wednesday. A Vatican official who boarded the plane several times during the negotiations said the gunmen had set explosive charges aboard and carried pistols. At various points during the siege, they threatened to blow up the plane and to kill an American executive with the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co.

The hijackers had demanded cash ransom and the release of people they called political prisoners. Honduras refused the demands, saying it had no prisoners.

The hijackers fired one shot at the fleeing hostages, but no one was hit, the Red Cross officials said.

NBC-TV news correspondent Brian Ross reportedly led the breakout and was cut on the forehead by broken glass, the officials said.

In addition to Ross, the other Americans who escaped were identified by the officials as Gregory Bascom, an executive of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co., U.S. Army Spec. 4 Frank Hubbard, from Fort Ord, Calif., and William Guttermuth, 60, a wood products executive from Albany, N.Y.

The plane's pilot and co-pilot also were reported among the escapees, as was an airline official.

The identities and nationalities of the other two escaped hostages were not immediately known.

Mischief Reported

Hereford police investigated three mischief reports on Avenue G Friday.

The first was reported to have occurred between 5 and 11 p.m. Thursday in the 100 block. Two broken windows, a door and door facing were damaged apparently to gain entry. The home was entered, however nothing reported missing.

A resident in the 500 block reported that someone threw several bricks and rocks in the yard.

About 4:30 a.m. Saturday a man in the 400 block of Avenue G reported a harassing phone call.

Officers arrested a juvenile who was caught trying to shoplift a $14 tee-shirt from Sports Stop around 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Two citations were issued.

An informed electorate is the cornerstone of Democracy. Textbooks always say so.

When voters elect a crook to office, you wonder how Democracy has survived.

The key word in the maxim is "informed." Far too many voters go to the polls without knowing some of the candidates, much less knowing anything about them.

Newspaper endorsements have long been used by voters. Some used the endorsement as a reason to vote for the candidate; others as a reason to vote against him. These days, voters seem to put a lot of faith in the way a candidate comes across on television.

Neither system has provided enough concrete information on the relative qualifications of candidates. There is another influence that sways voters and it is probably the most dangerous. It is called name identification.

Voters often look for something familiar or enticing about the names on a ballot. It's like picking a horse at the race tracks—you may get a winner, but more often you wind up with a bum.

A few years ago, a guy attempted to have his name legally changed to "None of the Above." He figured he'd be a sure winner at the polls. The judge wisely denied the request.

The federal government recently had a task force study the factors that contribute to long life spans. They found many things, including exercise, avoiding alcohol and tobacco, and having the right genes.

But the most important factor was work satisfaction. People who enjoy their work tend to live longer and happier lives.

The statistics show that entertainers lived longer than factory workers; top executives and top salespeople live longer than those in middle levels; and musical conductors lived longer of all.

The reason? People who love their work throw themselves into it with enthusiasm. They don't have time to get bored, or to worry about what everyone else is doing, or how they mind their particular store. And, they have learned how to handle stress by working to their limits every day, emphasizing their successes, and laughing and learning from their failures.

Reagan Opens World's Fair; Addresses Energy Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, temporarily turning his attention from the impasse over his 1983 budget, is spending the weekend out of town mixing relaxation with a speech on the nation's energy problems.

The president planned to join an estimated 100,000 tourists in Knoxville, Tenn., today for the opening of the World's Fair. Reagan will deliver his weekly Saturday radio address to the nation from the $20.8 million U.S. pavilion.

The topic of the day was energy — the theme of the fair.

In a speech opening the fair, Reagan planned to say that America should never again be held hostage by any nation or energy cartel, one White House official said.

The source, who asked anonymity, said the president would talk about the need to build up the nation's energy stockpile and state that government intervention in the marketplace cannot solve America's energy problems.

On Friday, the president stepped up his drumbeat of criticism aimed at the Democratic opposition to his budget. He said that when he met Wednesday with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., he found "no give whatsoever, even suggestion or hint of negotiating" in O'Neill's position.

Sweep of Aliens Sparks Charges

By The Associated Press

A five-day federal sweep for illegal aliens that netted at least 5,800 people has resulted in one death and sparked charges that undocumented workers are being made scapegoats for the country's economic troubles.

"Operation Jobs" was launched by the Reagan administration as a bid to remove illegal aliens in nine cities from jobs that could be held by unemployed Americans. But Hispanic leaders in Los Angeles charged it was "inhumane and ill-conceived," and an immigration official in Newark, N.J., said most of those arrested earned little more than the minimum wage.

The roundups netted 160 in Newark, 768 in Los Angeles, 500 in Denver, 460 in San Francisco, 1,310 in Chicago, 952 in Dallas, 1,037 in Houston, 559 in New York and 107 in Detroit, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials in those cities said.

In North Bergen, N.J., Nick Langella, general manager of Holiday Fair Inc., said the agents treated workers at his handbag factory "like animals."

James Pomeroy, acting director of the immigration service office in Newark, expressed surprise when told of Langella's description of Wednesday's operation at the factory.

Many of the New Jersey workers were earning near without any agreement.

"This is why the meeting ended with nothing accomplished," the president told visiting editors and broadcasters on Friday.

In response, Christopher Matthews, an aide to O'Neill, said: "The president's economic program is failing and he's looking for a scapegoat. It's sad to see a once-confident president so desperate for an alibi."

Treasury Secretary Donald

Reagan also boasted during the day that the White House had received an unprecedented outpouring of public support after his nationally televised speech Thursday night.

By mid-afternoon, the White House press office said the office to which public comments are relayed had received 4,745 telephone calls indicating favorable reactions to the president's

Houston Bus Guards To Be Armed

HOUSTON (AP) — The agency that runs Houston's bus service has armed its security guards and given them authority to make arrests starting today.

Tom Lambert, chief of the Metropolitan Transit Authority's 16-guard security force, said the officers have been training to work with guns for about two months but that the idea has been in the works for two years.

The mass transit police force is the first such group in Texas, officials here said.

"I'm comfortable going into the program with this group," Lambert said. He said all the guards are former police officers with an average of 7.4 years of experience.

The officers will cruise town in Metro cars, stopping buses and making spot checks, Lambert said.

He said officers will concentrate on problem routes.

Oilmen Irate About 15 Percent Income Tax

DENVER (AP) — An alternative 15 percent minimum federal income tax proposal has raised the ire of regional independent oilmen who don't want to pay taxes on "dry hole" oil and natural gas wells.

William H. Leach, president of the 1,700-member Independent Petroleum Association of the Mountain States, said Friday the tax could cause serious cutbacks in spending for oil and gas exploration.

The proposal states that an "alternative minimum tax" of 15 percent could be applied against certain oil company expenses, or "intangible drilling costs," said Leach, who also is president of Le Clair Westwood, Inc.

Those intangible costs, which include wages, fuel, repairs, hauling and supplies related to drilling, historically have been deducted from an oil company's tax base, Leach said.

The tax proposal would prevent an oil company that recorded a financial loss from avoiding the corporate income tax, which currently is 42 percent.

Leach said the tax proposal is one of several ideas for raising federal revenues by finding new ways to tax the energy industry.

In addition to hurting the industry's spending for exploration, he said, the tax would frighten away many potential oil investors. "They wouldn't put their money in (to oil deals) in the first place," he said.

Gunman Sentenced To Death By Injection

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A 19-year-old Albuquerque man has been sentenced to die by lethal injection for the murder of a young woman and has become the fifth New Mexican to be placed on death row.

Michael Guzman was sentenced Friday by District Judge Gerald Cole after the jury that convicted him recommended he be sentenced to death in the killing of Julie Ann Jackson, 19.

Miss Jackson was a University of New Mexico coed abducted from a street near the school's campus by Guzman April 5, 1981.

The seven-woman, five-man jury, faced with the choice of death or life imprisonment for Guzman, returned its verdict after about three hours of deliberation.

A death sentence is appealed automatically to the state Supreme Court.

Woman Charged With Plotting To Kill Divorce Lawyer

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston woman represented by Percy Foreman's law firm in several cases stemming from her 1978 divorce from an oil millionaire has been charged with trying to hire the killing of the noted defense attorney.

Susan Parrish, 39, was held without bond following her arrest during a conversation with an undercover police officer she had approached about the killing, said Harris County Assistant District Attorney Jim Larkin.

Ms. Parrish was charged with solicitation of capital murder and conspiracy to commit capital murder.

Detective Jerry Carpenter, who posed as a chemist, said Ms. Parrish told him she wanted "to get even" with Foreman over his handling of her court cases.

She was represented by Foreman's firm in several cases stemming from her 1978 divorce settlement with oil millionaire William Forney Sr. Ms. Parrish is appealing a 1980 assault conviction from an incident in which she allegedly tried to run over Forney with a Cadillac.

The charge said a woman gave the officer $2,000 to buy the two drugs, which he was to inject into Foreman during a robbery.

Police said the woman told the officer she wanted him to tranquilize Foreman with sodium pentothal, then kill him with potassium chloride.

Reagan called it "the heaviest phone-in" anytime in his presidency.

So far, the president's radio speeches have been delivered from a variety of locations: the White House, Camp David and a small villa overlooking the Caribbean Sea on Barbados. There are five more in the 10-week series.

Reagan and his wife planned to spend about two hours at the fair, with time out for a political fund-raising event in Knoxville, the east Tennessee city of 183,000

The exposition, eight years in the making, is the first World's Fair since 1975 and the first held in the southeastern United States.

Construction crews worked frantically Friday to finish the exhibits of 22 nations, four states and more than 50 corporations. The fair covers 72 acres between the city's downtown area and the 30,000-student University of Tennessee campus.

After visiting the fair, the Reagans planned to spend the night at the home of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., in the town of Huntsville, population 300. Huntsville, where the Reagans will attend church on Sunday, is 60 miles northwest of Knoxville.

Authorities Search For Secret Radio

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Martial law authorities sealed off Warsaw's sprawling Wola blue-collar neighborhood in an apparent search for the secret transmitter that broadcast a second clandestine message from the Solidarity labor union Friday night.

Witnesses said helicopters hovered over the Wola district as patrol cars and busloads of police arrived before the 9 p.m. broadcast to search vehicles. The blockade left thousands of commuters stranded at bus stops, they said.

The static-filled transmission was the second by Radio Solidarity since martial law was imposed Dec. 13 and the independent union was suspended.

The broadcast halted after five minutes as the male announcer was introducing the union's fugitive Warsaw leader, Zbigniew Bujak. Bujak did not speak but union sources said he was to have proposed methods of protest

Robert Hester, a spokesman for the immigration service, charged that Morales was an illegal alien. State Patrol Trooper William Millard said the victim had no alien registration card, passport or visa with him at the time of the accident.

Miguel Garcia, president of the Mexican American Latino Voter Registration Alliance in Los Angeles, said the raids were "not only inhumane and ill-conceived, but also had the effect of scapegoating our community for the nation's economic problems."

during today's May Day celebrations.

In a separate development, West Berlin officials said eight Poles who hijacked a Polish LOT airliner to the U.S. Tempelhof airfield, surrendered immediately and requested political asylum. They were arrested and scheduled to appear in court for a hearing today, local authorities said.

Twenty-eight passengers who also asked to remain in the West spent the night at a transit camp for refugees, but there was no official word on what was being done with the 16 people who opted to return home. One source, who asked not to be identified, said they were being taken to Schoenefeld Airport in East Berlin and would fly from there to Poland.

The hijacked plane left Tempelhof airfield in West Berlin early today carrying the same five crew members who were aboard when the aircraft was hijacked on a domestic flight from Wrocław to Warsaw. U.S. military authorities said the hijackers used tear gas to overpower six security guards, injuring two slightly, and fired two shots through the cockpit door.

In the Polish capital, Radio Solidarity promised another program Monday, and said that it would offer an information "service" every Sunday at 9 p.m., beginning May 9. The announcers, a man and a woman, said they would switch frequencies if "there is jamming."

Police, meanwhile, set up positions in the sprawling Victory Square.

Civiletti Says Cities Deserve Anti-Trust Immunities

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

DALLAS (AP) — The Supreme Court overlooked justice and ignored the role of today's cities when it ruled municipalities have no immunity from antitrust suits except that which the states specifically authorize, a former attorney general says.

Former Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said Friday cities deserve immunity and will be hindered in carrying out their responsibilities because an "explosion of municipal litigation" likely will result from the ruling.

City bankruptcies could result if the suits are successful and opposing lawyers fees and triple damages must be paid as provided by law, Civiletti warned a National League of Cities conference which ends today.

The 250 lawyers, mayors and other city officials at the two-day meeting were cautioned by most speakers to proceed carefully in light of the high court's Jan. 13 ruling. They were told almost any form of city governmental action — from assigning cable television franchises to zoning — might be challenged with antitrust suits, legitimate or not.

Not all assessments were as pessimistic as Civiletti's.

"It (the ruling) does raise problems ... but forecasts of doom are premature," said John Shenefield, who practices law in Washington and teaches at Georgetown University. "While caution is advisable, it is wrong for you to be greatly alarmed."

Shenefield, a former assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's antitrust division, predicted that the vast majority of antitrust suits filed against cities would fail.

In another session at the conference, David Stitt, county attorney for Fairfax County, Va., said that after a day of listening to experts he remained puzzled about how to deal with the court's ruling.

"The speaker said a few moments ago that the sky is not falling. Maybe it's not, but we're getting hit with large chunks of something," Stitt said.

The Supreme Court's ruling came in a suit filed against Boulder, Colo., by Community Communications Co. Inc. after the City Council voted to delay a request for the company to expand its cable television services. The council wanted a 90-day postponement so it could study what competing companies would offer.

In a 5-3 vote, the Supreme Court decided the city had no more immunity than a private company would. The case was returned to lower courts for a decision on whether the city was guilty of restraining trade.

"Occasionally, courts reach a decision by myopic attention to the technicalities of legal texts and miss seeing the broad dimensions and just of a case," Civiletti said, adding that the Supreme Court had demonstrated with the Boulder case that it was no exception.

He said the court ignored "the basic fact that cities have become the sovereign equivalent of states in this century. Since they perform the duties of a sovereign, cities are entitled to all the help and protection available under the law, chiefly exemption from the antitrust laws for basic municipal activities," he said.

Municipalities will be hurt even if the suits are unsuccessful, Civiletti said.

TSTA, CTA Meet For Ceremony And Dinner

Members of the local unit of the Texas State Teachers Association met with the Classroom Teachers Association for a joint installation ceremony and dinner Tuesday night in the Hereford High School Cafeteria.

Mrs. Salli Strain, member of the School Board, installed the following officers: TSTA president, Margaret Bell; president-elect, Rose Mary Shook; secretary, Carlynn DeLozier; vice-president, Bill Birdwell; and treasurer, Lois Matchett.

CTA officers installed were president, Teddi Poindexter; president-elect, Mel Holubec; secretary, Augusta McCauley; and treasurer, Tricia Sims.

President Carole McGilvary presided over the meeting of some 150 members and guests. Members of the school board were recognized.

President McGilvary announced that all requirements had been met for the forming of a new unit under the name of Hereford Educators Association, instead of the Deaf Smith County Unit. Since Hereford is the only active unit in the county and the second largest in District XVI, it was felt that this would be more representative of its members. The new charter should be issued soon.

A report of the recent 103rd annual TSTA Convention in Houston was given by Mrs. McGilvary, who attended with Aurora Dominguez, Rose Mary Shook, Bill Igal, and Randy Farr. They were part of the 1089 voting delegation that discussed several resolutions including the question of dues and whether to allow two year terms for the state president and vice-president. Both resolutions were defeated and the dues and terms of office will remain the same.

Dr. Harrell Holder, assisted by Larry Wartes, presented service pins to the following people. For ten years service: Aurora Beltran, cafeteria; Allen Brown, LaPlata; Doris Cagle, Northwest; Jane Egen, cafeteria; Alvena Hill, West Centra; Sharon Holmes, Stanton; Juanita Houle, cafeteria; Nola Jobe, Special Education; Joan Latham, Aikman; Anselmo Madrigal, transportation; Rex Manley, High School; Guadalupe Murillo, Tierra Blanca; Wanda Nall, Northwest; Deloris Phipps, Bluebonnet; Billie Jo Reiter, La Plata; Dewayne Robbins, transportation; Shirley Carrie, High School; Mary Stapp, West Central; and Vickie Valdez, Northwest.

Marie Gordon, Northwest; Bobbie Kitchens, Business Office; and Bill McCauley, Stanton received pins for 20 years service.

Resolutions for retiring employees were awarded to Charles Duvall, Northwest, for 33 years service, 28 of which were in Hereford; Dottie Darden from Aikman for 25 years, 14 years in Hereford, Marie Gordon from Northwest for a total of 26 years, 20 years in Hereford; Vida Hicks from Aikman, 46 years, all in Deaf Smith County or Hereford schools; and LaVada Shannon, Aikman, 44 years of service, 31 years in Hereford.

Nancy Priest, CTA President, presented the Administrator of the Year Award to Mr. Bill McCauley, principal of Stanton Jr. High School.

Francis Kirkland received the door prize, a gift certificate from K-Bob's Restaurant. After a few words from both retiring presidents, Carole McGilvary and Nancy Priest, the meeting was adjourned.

TSTA Officers

Local Texas State Teachers Association officers were installed at a dinner meeting with Classroom Teachers Association Tuesday. TSTA officers are, front from left, Rosemary Shook, presi-

Twenty-year Educators

Three employees of the Hereford Schools were granted 20-year pins at the TSTA-CTA dinner meeting Tuesday night. Honored were, Bobbie Kitchens, business office; Bill McCauley, Stanton Junior High Principal; and Marie Gordon, Northwest, (Brand Photo)

Removing rust stains

DEAR POLLY — I washed my daughter's pink bib overalls and left them too long before drying them. The hook or button apparently left rust stains on the pants. Is there any way of getting these stains out? — LUANN

DEAR LUANN — You might try sponging the stains with a little hydrogen peroxide, which can be fairly effective. Some rust stains can also be bleached out with lemon juice, which is particularly safe for delicate fabrics. In any case, test on an inside hem or seam allowance to make sure that the color of the overalls is not affected by the peroxide or lemon juice.

If the overalls are washable in hot water and are colorfast, another recommended treatment is to boil the garment in water with a couple of tablespoons of cream of tartar added. You may be able to prevent this problem in the future by coating the metal buckles or buttons with clear polyurethane or even clear nail polish. — POLLY

My roof was damaged by hail and I had it repaired. If it leaks after another storm will this additional damage be covered by my insurance? If you have already collected on one roof repair necessitated by a storm, you must prove through receipts, etc., that the roof was in fact repaired by a reputable repairman. This would qualify you for collecting from your insurance should another storm cause a leak. If your certification of repair is in order, the insurance company would look at the cost of repairs as necessitated by two separate catastrophes. However, in order for your insurance to pay for the damage caused by the second storm, the deductible must once again be met. It is important to notify your company as soon as possible after such damages are incurred.

Ann Landers Honesty, Ethics Rated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is going to be a long letter.

I hope you will print all of it. As a junior high school teacher, I am frequently asked questions about career choices. Students want to know which professions and types of employment are the most respected.

In an attempt to answer correctly I did some research. The best source was a recent Gallup Poll that reflected the opinion of approximately 1,500 people across the United States.

The question was phrased as follows: "How do you rate the honesty and ethical standards of people in these different fields—very high, high, average, low or very low?" The percentages categorized as "high" or "very high" and the professions and career choices are listed below:

- Clergymen 63
- Pharmacists 59
- Dentists 52
- Medical doctors 50
- Engineers 48
- College teachers 45
- Policemen 44
- Bankers 39
- TV reporters 36
- Newspaper reporters 30
- Funeral directors 30
- Lawyers 25
- Stockbrokers 21
- U.S. senators 21
- Business executives 19
- Building contractors 19

- U.S. representatives 15
- Local officeholders 14
- Realtors 14
- Labor union leaders 14
- State officeholders 12
- Insurance salesmen 11
- Advertising practitioners 9
- Car salesmen 6

What surprised you most about this survey, Ann? I'd like to know if your thinking lines up with mine.—Oakland, Calif., Reader

DEAR OAK: I was disappointed that the U.S. senators, U.S. representatives and state officeholders didn't come out with higher ratings.

It was a happy surprise to see pharmacists ranked second only to clergymen.

Hooray for the masters of ye ol' mortar and pestle!

That vote of no confidence for "advertising practitioners" doesn't square with the realities of the marketplace. I find it hard to believe that consumers have so little regard for "advertising practitioners." If this were true, they would not flock by the millions to buy the products that are best promoted.

It was a happy surprise to see pharmacists ranked second only to clergymen.

Chrysler Chairman Tiring

NEW YORK (AP) — It had been another long day for Lee Iacocca, the Chrysler Corp. chairman, one of many in the past three years, which earlier in the day he told congressmen had been "sheer hell."

He said it again after flying up from Washington for a brief pause in Chrysler's office here, "sheer hell, a drain on the stamina, everyone on my back, unions, bankers, government."

Had he known what was in store — begging Congress for loan guarantees, the recession, the layoffs, the personal stress — he said he might not have tried. "I hate even to think of it," he said.

If that is so, it doesn't show. Iacocca in person is spunky as he looks and sounds in ads. Same guy. "We've got the best cars," he snaps. No doubt in his mind. "We have the best warranty too."

Despite customer fears that Chrysler would fail, it has raised market share — the only one to do so — to 11 percent from 8 percent, and Iacocca sticks to an estimate of $150 million profit for the year, though much of it would come from sale of a tank division.

Idle Protest

Last week the nation was treated to mass idiocy labeled "Ground Zero." It was an attempt to tell the people of the horrible effects of a nuclear bomb burst.

Most people are quite well aware of the almost unimaginable devastation of atomic warfare. It has been played on the national TV for years.

We really do not know what it told the people of the United States. We do know that it told Soviet Russia that the United States does not have the guts to face up to a determined Russian expansion in any quarter of the globe.

It told the atheist rulers of Red Russia that the people of this country would rather lose their liberties than fight a nuclear war to preserve them.

It told our allies not to count on us when Russia puts the grab on them. And, shamefully enough, it told our forefathers that maybe they did die in vain.

It should have told a lot of us that it is later than we think.

One of our more fat-headed politicians made the momentous observation that the people of Russia did not want a nuclear war any more than we did. You're darn right they don't. Unfortunately, their druthers aren't worth a tinker's damn to the community bosses.

In the USA the will of the people is paramount, in Russia it doesn't mean a thing.

This has been a major fault that we have talked about before, subscribing our Democratic, Christian ideals to alien, atheistic, and Asian cultures.

Yes, nuclear war is unthinkable to any sane citizen of this country. It is not unthinkable to the select few rulers of foreign lands. For centuries these countries have slaughtered millions of people, and human life is considered on a level with animals.

While this country would quail at losing 50 million people in a nuclear war, Russia, China, India, or Southeast Asia would not bat an eye at killing 100 millions of their peoples.

Unless we want to lose 50 million Americans or lose our national freedom, we had better arm to the teeth and let the world know that we have the national will to defend our liberties under any circumstances.

Such exercises in fatuity as "Ground Zero" is not the way to do it.

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor,
After observing the action taken by some of the students in one of the schools in Amarillo I feel that that is a wonderful step.

If all, or a majority of, the schools in America, along with the churches and individuals who feel the same way, would support such a move, we will automatically have the support from God.

America is not likely to sue itself, but will leave that up to some foreign countries.

I honestly believe that doing away with prayer in schools and removing the word of God from schools and other places is the reason America is having so many problems today.

That, in my opinion, was the biggest mistake we could have ever made.

If we will get back to prayer and the word of God, then God himself will take care of inflation, the economy, and other problems we are having.

Sincerely,
Rev. Jim Scott

Dear Editor,
With the close of our 1982 YMCA Youth Basketball league, I thought it would be appropriate to talk about the important role volunteers play in such a program.

Through volunteers serving as coaches and referees, the values of the program are passed on to the boys and girls participating and the goals of the program are met.

Also, because of the hours the volunteers donate, the YMCA is able to make the program available to a larger number of youth in the community.

The YMCA Youth Basketball league ran for 9 weeks. During that period, volunteers donated over 1,500 hours of their time to the league.

On behalf of the YMCA Board of Directors and myself, I would like to sincerely thank the persons and groups listed below for what they have done for the YMCA Youth Basketball League this year.

The Penultimate Word

THE FAT IS IN YOUR HEAD

I thought I had found my kind of Doctor. He smokes and is at least 50 pounds overweight.

He examined me with great thoroughness—matter of fact, he was more thorough than I wanted. When it came time for his conference, the first thing he said was "you are 10 pounds overweight."

I have found out some things about weight. First, we will do anything to keep from admitting that we are overweight. I have a good friend named Jim. We call him Big Jim. Jim is at least as big around as he is tall, but then he is rather short. The first time I talked to Jim about his weight, he told me he gained it when he quit smoking. I said if that were true, the thing to do was to smoke.

Jim started back smoking that afternoon and told everyone that I told him to do so. Three packs a day did not cause him to lose a pound. Then Jim told me he had this gland problem. I told him he certainly did have a gland problem; an overworked salivary gland! Jim stopped being my friend.

The second thing I have learned about weight is we will do anything to lose weight, except quit eating. We will eat or drink any concoction put before us if it will take off the pounds while we still eat.

Some folks believe grapefruit juice will burn up calories. It ought to do so since it tastes so horrible, but it won't.

Some folks drink a new formula on the market which looks like Kool-Aid, and tastes like Elmer's glue. They lose weight like crazy until they discover the stuff can only be tolerated if you add some ice cream and make it into a milkshake.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Is Business Abandoning Reagan?

WASHINGTON—In recent days a number of polls and pundits in Washington have suggested that the business community has abandoned its support for President Reagan's economic program.

Let's set the record straight here and now. The business community has supported the four basic concepts of this administration's economic policy—cutting taxes, spending and regulations in conjunction with controlled growth of the money supply—years before Ronald Reagan and a conservative Congress were elected in 1980. Our support for those principles has not wavered.

At the same time, we are terribly concerned about budget deficits and high interest rates, although the relationship between the two is not as direct as Americans have been led to believe. The U.S. Chamber has shared with every member of Congress our analysis of where billions of dollars could be cut from federal spending—cuts that go beyond even what the President has proposed. And we are not inflexible when it comes to minor adjustments in the tax system.

While the several states were voting aye or nay I have had nothing to say either way. Because this broadcast crisscrosses state lines, I thought the process should be left to state lawmakers without some outsider seeking to superimpose his view. I have changed my mind and I asked this audience with the legislators of four states to explain why. I suspect many of you are as undecided as I have been. You know, from any adjustments" to last year's Economic Recovery Tax Act. Yet, they add up to at least $120 billion over the next three years. That's about a third of the total relief provided by last year's package. Some minor adjustment! No matter how fancy their advocates dress them up, these proposals would constitute a major tax increase on the American people and would seriously undercut saving, investment and incentives just when our battered economy needs that medicine the most.

It is apparent that some of the President's own staff are supporting some or all of these tax increase proposals. I sincerely hope they consider the effect such a move would have on the integrity of the administration. Ronald Reagan spent his entire political career advocating tax reduction because he recognized it was the only way to curb the growing power and appetite of government. In 1980 he beat a sitting president in a landslide and created a conservative House and Senate as well by campaigning on a daring tax-cutting platform. Tax reduction is the centerpiece of his presidency and his administration.

In his state of the union message in January the President said, "Raising taxes won't balance the budget. It will encourage more government spending and less private investment. Raising taxes will slow economic growth, reduce production and destroy future jobs... So I will not ask you to try to balance the budget on the backs of American taxpayers. I will seek no tax increases for 1982 and let there be no doubt, I have no intention of retreating from our basic program of tax relief in 1983 and 1984."

Ronald Reagan was not talking to himself when he spoke those words. A solid majority of business community and the American people believed him then. And they believe him now.

Women Miss Mark on ERA Issue

I like girls they way I remember them—dainty.

And I hear cynics say that I remember them as they never really were. Perhaps.

It is life or death day for ERA—minus two months—and counting.

While the several states were voting aye or nay I have had nothing to say either way.

Because this broadcast crisscrosses state lines, I thought the process should be left to state lawmakers without some outsider seeking to superimpose his view.

I have changed my mind and I asked this audience with the legislators of four states to explain why.

I suspect many of you are as undecided as I have been. You know, from any distance it seems inconceivable that women are not assured any protection or privilege that our country affords the rest of us.

It would seem that there could be no safer political stance than any expression of respect for mothers, wives and daughters.

Such goes against no tradition.

So the whole thing is silly—should never have come up.

The very idea that women should be treated less than equitably should never have come up.

But it has come up. And frankly, in this debate women have not done the best possible job of representing themselves.

The ones for whom the silent majority of women silently cheered—

Frequently came on putting, irritated and irritating, aggressive, abrasive.

You male lawmakers know what I mean. Some of you, pestered, may have reacted. The ERA tub-thumpers, because they despised the female stereotype, came on like men. It's understandable if they thought they had to.

But the men they needed to turn on—they turned off.

And women are not kind to women. Outside of the umbrella of self-sufficiency they have learned to defend their territorial claims, however—

If by manipulating men or slapping down other women. So the at-home or at-work

It's My Turn

Mark your calendars! One week from today noted composer Dr. Eugene Butler will be in Hereford as the Chamber Singers present their Spring Concert featuring several of Dr. Butler's works.

Included in the day's musical fare will be a brand new song, composed for the Chamber Singers by Dr. Butler, who was commissioned by the group to do the piece.

As a member of the group, I can speak for them when I say that we are thrilled with the new number, and are honored to be the first group to perform it.

The Chamber Singers have been working on Dr. Butler's songs for several weeks, and the lineup provides for a variety of movement, sounds, and expression. It will be a concert worth attending.

Okay, so I blew it yesterday. I really hate to admit it, but I goofed up when I cast my vote in the Democratic Primary Saturday. I just KNEW that I was still in voting precinct 5 and headed to the Community Center to vote at 7:30 a.m., feeling smug in my patriotism.

The nice lady working the desk greeted me with a smile and stamped my registration card accordingly. The only problem was that I am now in voting precinct 1 after the recent redistricting, and was supposed to cast my ballot at the Bull Barn.

Anyway, after being given a note to take with me that I had not yet voted I made my way out to the right place and accomplished my duty. Thankfully, there were only a couple of other people there, and I don't think they caught on. I hope so, since one of them works in the county clerk's office, and I see her quite often.

Carelessness is not usually one of my trademarks, but I filled the bill on that occasion. Hopefully not too many other voters had the same trouble.

After voting I was driving back to the office and spotted a local police unit's flashing lights. I had a camera with me, and hoped that the incident warranted a photograph for today's paper.

Unfortunately, the event was another unhappy one for The Brand. Not only was it just a routine traffic ticket case, it involved one of our reporters, who was stopped for not seeing a stoplight.

I guess I was the only one of us that morning to see red!

Bootleg Philosopher

New Plan Proposed For Paying Taxes

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek thinks he has found a way out of paying taxes, his letter this week implies.

Dear Editor:
According to an article I read in the paper the other day a Washington research group says "the average American worker will have to work two hours and 44 minutes of each workday to pay his part of this year's taxes."

What I want to know is can I keep a record each day of my time spent working and turn that into the IRS every April 15 instead of a check? If my report showed I'd worked more than two hours and 44 minutes a day could I get a refund?

Furthermore, can you count coffee breaks as work time? If so, there are millions of coffee drinkers in the country who, if they put their minds to it, could stretch their breaks out to cover their entire tax liability and be in line for a refund too.

Don't ever belittle the worth of coffee breaks. Remember, no household appliance that sputters with just after the warranty expires has never been built by a worker on his coffee break. Nor has it been, after playing out, ever half-way fixed by a repairman while he was on a coffee break.

And what's more important, most of the big problems Congress wrestles with and can't solve are solved easily dozens of times at almost any coffee break you happen to sit in on. Secretary of State Alexander Haig could save hundreds of thousands of dollars, thousands of hours of flying time and all that wear and tear on his airplanes and himself if, instead of shuttling around the globe he'd just drop in on a coffee break in Hereford or any other place except Washington.

In Washington, they don't solve problems at coffee breaks, they invent new ones.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Burning Chemicals Off Ocean; Citizens Unsure Of Safety

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Although tests on an earlier burn of PCBs are still incomplete, a chemical disposal company wants to expand the kind of toxic substances it can incinerate in the Gulf of Mexico.

The request by Chemical Waste Management Inc. to also burn DDT, Silverex and a mixture of 40 industrial compounds in the ocean has added to the fears of some officials and residents in Texas' Rio Grande Valley. They aren't sure there are enough environmental safeguards, and have asked for a meeting with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"They keep feeding us this line that it's safe and perfectly all right, which may be true. But they've never given us or anyone else a chance to investigate," said Ted Campagnolo, Cameron County assistant district attorney.

The waste disposal company, based in Oak Brook, Ill., burned almost 700,000 gallons of toxic PCBs in December aboard the incinerator ship Vulcanus 177 miles east of here in the Gulf.

The Dutch-registered Vulcanus is a converted freighter equipped with a German-built chemical incinerator. The ship loaded its PCB cargo from Chickashaw, Ala.

The EPA monitored the burn but has not finished analyzing test data. The permit required a 99.9 percent incineration rate and the EPA has maintained that any residue would be neutralized by the ocean's alkalinity.

"There's just a little more data to come in. But it's pretty well assured that environmentally, everything is OK," said Gerald Chapman, an EPA biologist and co-chairman of the interagency board that supervises ocean incineration.

Charles Leighton, spokesman for Chemical Waste Management, added: "This is still at the infancy stage of trying a different technology. But we feel with these substances at-sea incineration is equal or better than on land. And if it's 150 miles away from land in the middle of the Gulf, it's a hell of a lot environmentally safer to do it out there than somewhere else."

PCBs — polychlorinated biphenyls — were manufactured until 1977 for use as cooling agents for transformers. The chemicals were banned after scientists questioned their possible link to cancer.

The pesticide DDT was banned in 1972 after studies showed its residue accumulated in animal tissues up the food chain and adversely affected wildlife.

Silvex, a restricted use herbicide, was voluntarily removed from the market as a home-use product after studies showed it to be a possible carcinogen.

If test results are favorable, the PCB burnings will resume until 3.5 million gallons are destroyed.

The EPA has not yet ruled on the other substances but the agency's handling of the controversy has angered officials and residents.

A newspaper notice of the PCB incineration application was placed in Houston, 350 miles away from this border city. The public has 30 days to comment on such applications and request official hearings. The comment period ended long before Cameron County residents knew anything about it, Campagnolo said.

His boss, District Attorney Rey Cantu, asked to be notified of future permit applications in January, only to learn that the DDT permit for 264,000 gallons had been advertised in November in a Corpus Christi newspaper, 150 miles away.

Federal rules only require an advertisement in the state nearest the burn site, without specifying the closest city.

A February notice of the "soup mixture," as EPA officials refer to the 40 compounds, was placed in the Corpus Christi paper without local notification.

"We thought they were acting in bad faith because by Feb. 23 (the permit notice) they knew we wanted notice yet they didn't tell us," Campagnolo said.

The EPA said it will conduct a public meeting in Port Isabel before resuming the PCB burnings. However, the EPA is only obligated to take official notice of objections made at a public hearing requested during the 30-day comment period, not a public meeting, he added.

"What really scares us is that if something happens out there, if something spills or there is an accident, there's shrimping and commercial fishing that could be destroyed. The tourism trade could be hurt," Campagnolo said.

On April 13, Cantu wrote EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch that the Gulf incineration site was "unaccept-table." He listed six objections, including "the potential environmental hazards of transporting said waste in a semi-enclosed body of water such as the Gulf."

Sharp price fluctuations in recent months have focused attention on the world gold supply. The second largest producer, the Soviet Union, is reported to have been selling heavily in Western markets to raise hard currency to shore up its own troubled economy and to help bail out bankrupt Poland. Soviet production, based on intelligence estimates, has been on a steady upward trend in recent years while South Africa's has shown a slight decline. The combined output of other important producers, including the United States and Canada, has remained steady.

Farm Prices Show Some Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm prices showed some improvement in April, but they still have a long way to go before recovering enough to make much of a difference in the nation's agricultural economy.

The Agriculture Department's index of prices received by farmers increased 1.5 percent in April but still trailed year-ago levels by 5.6 percent, a monthly report said Friday.

Although farm commodity prices overall are still depressed in relation to farmers' costs, the April increase was a sign that the farm economy may be slowly improving.

But the news was tempered by another report which said U.S. farm exports during the first half of the fiscal year which began last Oct. 1 were down significantly from the same period of 1980-81, both in terms of value and quantity.

Shipments in the six-month period of October through March totaled $21.8 billion, down 10 percent from the same months of last year. The volume was about 85 million metric tons, a decline of 3 percent.

Officials said farm prices in March actually held steady and did not decline by 0.8 percent as the preliminary figures indicated a month ago.

Consequently, with the 1.5 percent gain in April, farm prices now have risen or held steady in each of the four months so far in 1982, the first gains in more than a year.

Higher prices for cattle, lettuce, hogs, corn and soybeans contributed most to the gain in the index from March, the report said. Lower prices for eggs, milk, sweet corn, apples and broilers partially offset the increases, however.

Prices that farmers pay to meet expenses held steady in April but still averaged 3.3 percent higher than a year ago, the report said.

The depressed price situation has been a major factor in a decline in net farm income the past two years and indications are that it will skid further in 1982. Department officials, however, say they do not intend to issue a 1982 farm income estimate before September.

Before Agriculture Secretary John R. Block and senior aides decided to hold up further income estimates, economists said 1982 farm income may range $13 billion to $18 billion, compared to about $19 billion in 1981, $22 billion in 1980, and $27.4 billion in 1979.

Earlier this week, Block told a meeting of farm editors that he continues to be optimistic that farm income prospects will improve gradually this year and cited recent strengthening of the livestock and grain markets.

The depressed price situation, however, has helped dampen retail food prices. Department economists expect food prices this year to gain about 6 percent, the smallest annual increase since they rose 3.1 percent in 1976. Last year's increase was 7.9 percent.

According to the preliminary price figures for April — which are based mostly on mid-month averages — prices of meat animals as a group rose 3.9 percent from March and averaged 6 percent more than a year ago.

The vegetable index rose 4.5 percent during the month and averaged 3.8 percent above year-earlier levels. The index for feed grains and hay was up 2.4 percent from March but still averaged 18 percent below April 1981.

Poultry and egg prices, on the average, dropped 5.1 percent from March but were down 3.4 percent from a year ago. The dairy index dropped 1.4 percent from March and was down by the same margin from a year earlier.

Farm prices in April averaged 135 percent of a 1977 base price average used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures, compared to a revised March reading of 133 percent.

The April parity ratio was 58 percent, up one point from 57 percent in March and for several months. A year ago it was 63 percent.

According to USDA records, the ratio for more than six months has been hovering at its lowest ebb since it averaged 54 percent in April 1933, one of the worst Depression years.

At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual price of corn in March, according to the preliminary figures, was $2.51 a bushel. That was 50 percent of the April parity price for corn of $5.02 a bushel.

The report also said:

—Cattle averaged $60.60 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared to $58.60 in March and $61 in April 1981. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

—Hogs averaged $50.70 per 100 pounds, compared to $48.60 in March and $39 a year ago.

—Corn, at $2.51 a bushel, compared to $2.46 in March and $3.24 a year ago.

—Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $3.68 a bushel, compared to $3.67 in March and $4.07 a year ago.

—Rice averaged $9.36 per 100 pounds, compared to $8.99 in March and $13.80 in April of last year.

—Soybeans were $6.11 a bushel against $5.99 in March and $7.60 a year ago.

—Upland cotton was 50.3 cents a pound on a national average, compared to 50.1 in March and 72.7 a year ago.

—Eggs were 63 cents a dozen, compared to 68.2 in March and 63.9 cents a year ago.

FARM NEWS

For Prairie Dogs Hole Treatment Suggested

The Deaf Smith County Prairie Dog Control Committee will be contacting area farmers to determine if additional work needs done to clear out the rodents.

The committee met last Tuesday and is urging a final drive to control the prairie of dogs during May 1-10.

Individual hole treatment is being recommended as the best way to clean up the remaining prairie dogs. It is recommended to knock the prairie dog mounds down with a tandem disk, land plane, grader blade or such. This will enable treating only the active holes and grass will come back much faster.

Charles Hoover, at

Southwest Feedyard has a large supply of the pills to be used on individual hole treatment. Most are using 2 pills per hole with a small amount of water to activate the pills and then cover the holes.

Committeemen are to coordinate work groups in each area for those who would like to work as a group. It is necessary that all do the job at one time to prevent movement from one farm to another.

This final clean up drive must be done or else all of our efforts will have been in vain. If you need additional assistance please call Jim Perrin or Charles Hoover.

Funding Found For Fire Ants

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown announced that with additional funding from Governor William P. Clements for the state's fire ant control program, the Texas Department of Agriculture should be able to increase supplies of pesticide substantially for participating counties.

Clements agreed to release $500,000 from his emergency funds for pesticide purchases. He also offered to allocate additional emergency funds in case of severe pest outbreaks this summer, this action allowing Brown to utilize $500,000 appropriated to his department for pest control contingencies.

"The U.S. Department of Agriculture notified us in March that its share in the Texas program would be $900,000. But as other Southern states entered the program, that amount was reduced to $814,000," Brown said.

If necessary, deliveries will continue through the summer to those which have requested participation in the program.

Tick Patrol May Carry Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee has approved legislation giving a small corps of mounted federal cattle inspectors along the Mexican border the right to carry guns.

"Of late there have been armed attacks on several of these inspectors," said Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, committee chairman. "They have been shot."

Commonly known as "tick inspectors," the 100 riders patrol the unfenced border along the Rio Grande River, primarily to round up potentially tick-infested cattle straying into Texas from Mexico so they can be quarantined.

But, de la Garza said Thursday, "The areas they patrol are often used by smugglers and other lawbreakers who will not hesitate to shoot at government inspectors. They have, in fact, turned into peace officers."

Tom Deats of Lorado, Texas, president of the union representing the tick inspectors, acknowledged earlier this year that because of the dangers the men face, many have begun carrying firearms even though they have no authority to do so.

Late last year, Congress gave the Agriculture Department's food stamp fraud investigators similar authority to carry guns.

Producers Favor Stern Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farm income picture is so bleak that hard-pressed producers would favor some kind of stern government action to help them from the financial mire, a congressional committee has been told.

A former president of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America said distressed farmers want a combination of controls on domestic production and imports of competing goods.

And another editor said farmers don't believe the economic problems being created by price depressing surpluses can be solved solely by increasing U.S. agricultural exports.

Farm income nationally is expected to be down in 1982 for the third year in a row, reflecting depressed market prices for crops and livestock in relation to growing expenses, high interest rates and the general economy.

"Most favor a mix of policies to boost demand as well as to cut back supply," Al Swegle of the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Gazette told the Joint Economic Committee.

H. Carlisle Besuden III of the Lexington (Ky.) Herald, who just stepped down as president of the association, told the Joint Economic Committee that farmers, at least in the Southeast, realize they need government-set standards and controls on production and sales.

But Besuden said that while most farmers agree with the principle of free world trade, it has to be controlled so import volumes don't undo domestic efforts to cope with surpluses or low farm prices.

"Nearly every farmer I have talked to has told me that within the past decade, every time he has something that is ready to sell and has to be sold, it seems record-breaking imports of that particular commodity have just entered this country, driving down prices," he said.

Besuden specifically cited this year's record wool imports from South America that drove domestic wool prices from 60 cents a pound to 30 cents.

He said farmers also want a ban on imports from any nation that has trade barriers to U.S. exports.

Swegle, commenting on the results of a survey his paper

Texas Crops Report

Coolness Slows Germination

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Farmers are continuing with spring planting over parts of Texas, but unseasonably cool weather is slowing crop germination and stunting early growth.

Soil temperature averages dropped several degrees during the past week, causing some slowdown in the progress of spring crops, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Agricultural Weather Service figures show these weekly soil temperature averages at the 4-inch depth: Longview, 67 degrees; Lavon Dam (near Dallas), 63; Waco, 57; San Angelo, 66; Stephenville, 65; Haskell, 66; Lubbock, 63; Bushland, 57; Pecos, 63; and Dell City, 60.

Corn planting is past the halfway point in the High Plains where cotton planting will start soon, noted Pfannstiel. Cotton planting remains active in Central and North Central Texas, with up to 80 percent of the crop planted in some areas.

Farmers in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas (San Angelo area) have set a uniform planting date of late May as part of a coordinated effort to control boll weevils.

Farmers are still planting grain sorghum in Northeast Texas, and planting is past the halfway mark in West Central Texas. Texas' wheat crop continues to deteriorate over the western half of the state due to lack of moisture although the irrigated crop in the High Plains generally looks good, said Pfannstiel.

Most of the wheat in eastern areas is headed and looks good. First cuttings of alfalfa are under way in the Trans-Pecos area, where blue aphids are a problem, and in the Rolling Plains. Alfalfa weevils are infesting the crop in the Panhandle.

Sugarcane harvesting is over in the Rio Grande Valley but some citrus harvesting continues. About 5 percent of the grapefruit and 30 percent of the late oranges remain to be picked, reported Pfannstiel. Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Irrigated wheat continues to make good progress but the dryland crop is deteriorating due to dry conditions. Corn planting remains active. Sugar beets, onions and potatoes are off to a good start. Alfalfa weevils remain a problem in alfalfa; some farmers are spraying. Ranges need rain. Graze-out wheat is about gone.

SOUTH PLAINS: Dryland wheat looks poor due to lack of moisture but the irrigated crop generally is good. Some corn planting continues. Some onions and sugar beets are being irrigated. Preplant irrigation for cotton continues. Ranges are generally short and graze-out wheat is about used up.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat prospects continue to deteriorate due to dry conditions. Ranges are also suffering from moisture stress. Farmers are planting sudan sorghum hybrids for grazing and hay. First cuttings of alfalfa continue in Wilbarger County. Farmers need rain to plant peanuts. Cotton will be planted in late May according to a uniform planting date in an effort to fight boll weevils.

SOUTHWEST: The area remains dry although there were some spotted rains last week. Peanut planting has resumed following a brief delay due to light rains. Wheat is maturing but the crop will be short unless rains come soon; disease problems continue in some wheat. Livestock conditions remain good although rain is needed to boost forage growth on ranges. Pecan trees have an excellent bloom set.

WEST CENTRAL: About half the wheat crop is headed, with prospects only fair due to dry conditions. Grain sorghum is past the halfway point. Cotton will be planted according to a uniform planting date in late May as part of a boll weevil control program. Livestock look fair to good but grazing generally is short. Sheep shearing continues.

FAR WEST: First cuttings of alfalfa have resumed following light rains the past week. Blue aphids are a problem in some alfalfa. Farmers continue to get cotton land ready for planting; a little cotton has been planted. Ranges are in poor shape so livestock feeding continues. Sheep shearing is about to start.

CENTRAL: Last week's rains should give a boost to young crops and pastures. However, cool weather has slowed crop growth and will slow cotton germination. Cotton planting is about 80 percent complete. Greenbugs and yellow sugarcane aphids have damaged some grain sorghum. Rust remains heavy in some wheat. The peach crop is short.

Appraisal Offered At Tech

LUBBOCK — A comprehensive course in rural appraising will be offered for the first time May 31 through June 4 at Texas Tech University.

"Basic Principles of Rural Appraising" will cover topics including principles for appraising real estate value and soils; market, cost and income approaches; and administrative, legal and ethical considerations of the appraisal process.

On-site registration and check-in will be 3-5 p.m. Sunday, May 30 in the Agriculture Building on the Texas Tech campus. Classes will meet 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tuition is $100 and includes all course materials.

For more information or to register, contact Joyce Abbott, Box 4280, Division of Continuing Education, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409, (806) 742-3797.

In cooperation with the Texas Tech Division of Continuing Education, the course is sponsored by the Texas Society of Farm Managers and Appraisers; Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University; Texas Real Estate Research Center; American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers, Texas Chapter; Department of Agricultural Economics, Texas Tech; and General Land Office of Texas.

Upon completion of the course, participants who pass a practical appraising exercise and written examination will be awarded Continuing Education Units (CEUs).

Shooters To Meet Monday

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Shooting Sports Club will meet at 7 p.m. at the indoor range for a business meeting and demonstration on archery.

Any members wanting to shoot in shotgun competition must sign up at the meeting and pay the $10 fee.

Ring Around Seed — More Life from the Land.

RA 450 hits 80.72 bu/a, all-time Texas high.

The Texas Soybean Association's 1981 yield winner, Mike Carthel of Lockney, says he'll "put Ring Around's soybeans up against anybody's." Carthel planted Ring Around Mitchell 450, the variety that offers growers a real advantage when it comes to shatter scores, standability and phytophthora resistance. And, in spite of dry weather on the High Plains and weakened underground irrigation, he came up a winner with 80.72 bu/a and a new high for the state.

BRED FOR SUCCESS

Yields like this are only part of the Ring Around soybean story. For example, Ring Around research is responsible for time-tested Mitchell soybeans and has also developed RA 480 especially for the High Plains of Texas. RA 480 gives good shatter resistance and can take the highest pH of any known soybean variety.

A GUARANTEED STAND

In addition to the latest research and the highest quality, Ring Around gives you one of the strongest guarantees ever. When you plant Ring Around brand soybeans, you're guaranteed a satisfactory stand—or we'll replace each and every bag for replanting during the 1982 planting season. While your seed might not make a stand for virtually any reason—frost, drought or other problems (anything, in fact, except chemical damage or intentional destruction)—the guarantee still stands. And that's true regardless of which high yielding Ring Around proprietary soybean variety you buy. No guarantee on public varieties, of course. Just remember—no stand, no problem. Ring Around guarantees it.

Researcher Turning Shinnery Oak Land Into Prime Country

LUBBOCK — There are some eight million acres in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma that Russ Pettit has his eye on.

A land baron Pettit is not. But a Texas Tech University scientist interested in reducing sand shinnery oak from ranchers' pastures, he is.

Taking 3,000 acres of sand shinnery oak-dominated land, Pettit has transformed a portion of Randy Beasley's Ranch, 20 miles northeast of Plains, Texas, into prime cattle country.

The rabbit in Pettit's hat is tebuthiuron pellet which the range and wildlife professor has been testing for several years.

"Other pelleted herbicides will kill sand shinnery oak, but they require a higher rate which consequently costs more," Pettit said.

Sand shinnery oak produces 600-1,000 pounds of growth per acre per year, he said. "When the oak is killed, the grass increase is almost identical to the oak that was there."

Prior to the application of tebuthiuron the grass yield on the Beasley Ranch was estimated at 150 pounds per acre.

"Sand shinnery oak forms a turf because of its rhizomes. Basically, it is successful because it is able to take in and store water during the winter while grass does not. In the spring, and especially in a dry spring, sand shinnery oak is the first plant to green up and the cattle eat it."

Tests have shown that toxic problems do not occur when sand shinnery oak is held to 20-30 percent of the livestock's total diet. When it is the major portion of the cattle's diet, it can cause ulcers in the stomach and intestines, destroying the digestive system.

"One application of the pellets will take care of sand shinnery oak for a long time, well, as long as I'm alive," Pettit said. "Some ranchers think tebuthiuron is too expensive as an initial outlay. But, if you average it over 20 years, the actual cost per acre per year is not too bad. Cattle weight gains should more than pay for the pellets."

The range and wildlife professor said 99 percent of the sand shinnery oak was wiped off the test areas of the Beasley Ranch—and, he expects, it will stay that way.

With the delicate ecosystem of West Texas, Pettit said management is important in the success of tebuthiuron treated rangelands.

In terms of range management, Pettit said ranchers may want to establish weeping lovegrass intermittently with the native forage to insure a year-round food supply, either as hay or for periodic grazing.

Presently, the researcher is testing three grazing systems on tebuthiuron treated land to see which is most beneficial to the new grasses—short duration grazing, four-pasture deferred rotation and continuous grazing.

"We hope to get the present figure of 45 acres per animal per year on pasture grasses down to 15 acres per animal per year," Pettit said. "This may not be a fantasy."

Tebuthiuron, he said of test results, appears to have no detrimental effects in small or big animals and does not have the lateral drift problems which many chemicals have.

Tebuthiuron can also be applied at any time during the Weller is scheduled to begin his Texas A&M assignment on August 1.

Weller is considered a foremost authority in both wetlands research and wildlife management through participation in scientific and professional societies, including the American Institute of Biological Science, American Fisheries Society, Ecological Society of America, Entomological Society of America, International Wild Waterfowl Association and the Wildlife Society, where he has served on the editorial board and on national committees.

He is a Fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Ornithologists' Union, and has presented numerous scientific papers at wetlands workshops and wildlife management seminars in many areas of the world.

Weller has served as professor and head of the Department of Entomology, Fisheries and Wildlife at the University of Minnesota for the past eight years.

His A.B., M.A. and the Ph.D. Degrees, all in Zoology, are from the University of Missouri. He has authored numerous publications relating to wetlands ecology, and has directed almost 40 graduate students majoring in various phases of wildlife management and wetlands ecology.

DSC 4-H'ers Win Judging

was also the high overall individual scorer with 527 out of 600 possible. The team, with alternate Jeff Shire, will compete at state contest on June 9. Cobb also placed fourth individually with 511.

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Clubs competed in three contests in senior and junior divisions, with the senior livestock team bringing home a first place trophy.

Led by top scorer Joni Hicks, who made 527 out of 600 points, the senior livestock judges placed first in beef and sheep to take the overall trophy. Teammate Casey Cobb placed fourth overall with a second place in sheep and in beef. Robbie Phillips placed third in swine.

Junior livestock judges Jeff Hicks, Chris Grotegut, Chris Urbanczyk and Rickie Vogel gained second place in the contest. Grotegut led the team with a second highest individual score of 373 out of 400. Hicks placed fourth individually with a score of 363 out of 400. Grotegut was fourth in sheep and in swine and Hicks was fifth in sheep and third in swine.

The senior horse judging team placed fifth overall with Kim Parson second in halter and Jeff Donaway tenth overall.

Juniors were fourth overall and second in halter. Jodi McElhany led as second in halter and tenth overall. Donna Hoagland was third in halter and Christina Fritz was third in performance.

Senior riflemen placed fourth overall. Melissa Brumley came in third in kneeling riflery and fifth overall. Jeff Shire was fourth in kneeling and sixth overall.

Junior shooters were seventh overall with Scott Robbins' seventh individual placing.

USDA Rejects Plains Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan for setting up a farmer-owned cotton reserve program similar to an existing one for grain has been rejected by the Agriculture Department.

The reserve had been proposed by a group of Texas High Plains cotton producers.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Thursday that an analysis of such a program indicated that:

— "A reserve program might lead to stringent acreage controls in the future.

— "Despite acreage reduction, excessive supplies could still overwhelm the market.

— "When the U.S. government acquired cotton supplies from programs in the 1960s, it ultimately had to sell cotton in direct competition with producers.

— "Although a reserve might increase cotton prices for a short time, it would also increase production,

Profit Improvement Lies In Marketing

COLLEGE STATION — Major challenges and opportunities for improving profits in the cattle industry still lie in the area of marketing, as they have during the past decade, contends a Texas A&M University economist.

Dr. John A. Hopkin, Stiles professor of agricultural finance and head of Texas A&M's Agricultural Economics Department, says that production related issues are quite important but that cattlemen who have done well during the past 10 years "have not necessarily been the most efficient producers, but rather those who 'sold right' or 'bought right,' or did both."

"These cattlemen have gained an advantage by understanding forces affecting the market of their products and collecting and evaluating information concerning those markets. They use the pricing tools of forward contracting and futures markets, and they are aware of their costs," Hopkin says.

He also emphasizes that they know when they can lock in a profit and are willing to do so rather than "be forever gambling on striking it big."

Hopkin says several options exist for cattlemen to improve their marketing.

Electronic marketing is now technically feasible and provides cattlemen the benefits of flexibility and the opportunity to reduce handling and transportation costs. The marketing system known as Cattlex, developed at Texas A&M, is about ready for commercial use, he says.

"Cattlemen can also organize into county or multi-county associations to sell their calves. When cattlemen band together to hold an annual calf sale, more buyers are attracted from wider areas to inspect and bid on calves which are sorted, classed and graded into relatively large uniform lots," Hopkin explains.

In organizing a sale of this type, producers become more aware of the marketing function and of what makes up quality, Hopkin adds.

Also, producers and buyers can take advantage of economies of size in buying and selling, and costs of assembling an adequate volume of calves for uniform classing can be reduced, he notes.

"This system should work well in areas like Central and East Texas where many smaller herds prevail," Hopkin says.

Addressing the issue of demand for beef, Hopkin says there are strong indications that some basic dimensions of demand for beef may be changing.

Hopkin says the new state check-off programs that are getting underway in many states may be the start of a system for funding a program of market research and promotion that can help reverse the seeming down trend in demand for beef.

Plan 'Sit-in' in Washington

Ex-Military Wives Seek Benefits

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ex-military wives will demonstrate in Washington this summer if Congress does not pass a bill giving them divorce benefits they want, says the founder of a national group of former military wives.

Vivian Filemyr of Austin said Friday she is "mad as hell" at Congress for failing to approve proposals to force divorced husbands to share their military retirement benefits with their ex-wives.

Ms. Filemyr said members of Action for Former Military Wives will conduct a "sit-in" in Washington in July if Congress does not pass such a bill, and the ex-wives will stay there until one is approved.

"They can put us in jail, there will be more coming and more coming," Ms. Filemyr told a news conference.

She said 13 bills for divorced military spouses have died in two previous congressional sessions, and her organization would be "satisfied at this time" with an emergency bill dealing only with retired pay.

The estimates the organization's membership at 100,000, although only 700 pay national dues of $10 a year.

The former wives want Congress to authorize military finance centers to mail court-ordered pay directly to ex-spouses in all 50 states after divorce.

"All we want Congress to do is to make the men be honorable," she said.

Ultimately, she said, ex-military wives want Congress to pass a bill that would allow state courts in all states to include military retirement when dividing assets from a marriage.

Their request follows a June 26, 1981, U.S. Supreme Court decision that military pension benefits could not be included in property settlements in divorces.

A Texas appeals court later ruled that that decision would not affect previous court orders granting benefits in Texas.

Former wives, however, often are unable to collect benefits under court orders, Ms. Filemyr said, because their ex-husbands "are thumbing their noses at the courts and thumbing their noses at their (former) wives."

She said her former husband, a retired lieutenant colonel, owes her more than $100,000 in retirement benefits under a 1972 divorce settlement, but she can't find him to collect. She said she lives on welfare and does not have the money to hire lawyers to locate him.

Ms. Filemyr estimated that more than 100,000 ex-military wives have court orders for retirement benefits but have been unable to collect.

She said her group would give Congress one year from the Supreme Court decision, or June 26, 1982, to enact the emergency bill or they begin their demonstration.

Thumbing Back

50 YEARS AGO

Preparations are going forward by the clubs and civic organizations of the city and county, getting ready to take part in the May Day Health Parade festivities to be staged in Hereford.

The threatening weather of the past few weeks that failed to bring the much needed moisture, apparently gave up trying Wednesday and precipitated a downpour of rain that brought rejoicing to the hearts of all Deaf Smith County residents.

25 YEARS AGO

A total of 119 pre-school children were examined Friday and Saturday by local doctors with the assistance of the health service, parent-teacher associations and high school girls.

Deaf Smith County received showers Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to up the year's total to almost five inches for the immediate Hereford area. A total of .92 of an inch of moisture was gauged in Hereford during the three days with .70 falling Sunday, .15 Monday and .07 Tuesday.

10 YEARS AGO

Hopes for a good dryland wheat crop this year are fading quickly as the area continues through a drought that county agricultural agent Justin McBride says is reaching the critical point.

Storm shelters again led the way in building permits during the month of April during which time the construction total for the year passed the $1 million mark.

1 YEAR AGO

Laetrile, the purported cancer treatment that doctors say has lead the thousands away from proven therapy, failed its first controlled human test and should be considered worthless, scientists say.

Parents whose youngsters are caught destroying property would be financially liable for up to $15,000 per act of vandalism under a bill advanced by the Texas House.

Cowboys 'Threw Darts' To Pick Players

AN AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys played some mind games with the rest of the National Football League this week.

The Cowboys annually march to their own drummer in evaluating collegiate football talent but never to such drastic extremes as the most recent draft.

"We threw some darts at the board this time," admitted Ermal Allen, special assistant to Coach Tom Landry.

The Cowboys admittedly cast aside their etched in stone "best athlete available" to gamble for need.

They need defensive backs and linebackers. Right now, if not sooner.

Rod Hill seemed like a good calculated risk. The Cowboys need a kick return man and someone to replace retired Charlie Waters.

Hill was overlooked by many teams because he missed three games with injury on a poor Kentucky State team last year.

But the more the Cowboys tested him the higher he rated in their eyes.

He is considered highly intelligent with a major in economics and a minor in computer science. The Cowboys figured he could learn the multiple Tom Landry defenses easily.

He is very fast. Most scouts timed him in 4.4 in the 40. The Cowboys say he ran a 4.6 for them but they are tough timers who tend to add .2 of a second to all hand-timed sprints. He also has amazing reflexes.

He is A-plus in attitude. Throughout his collegiate career he built his strength through a weight program of his own.

But why was Hill a dart board toss for the Cowboys?

They gave no idea whether he will tackle tough.

The Cowboys saw him in only one grainy film when he was playing free safety. The first step for a free safety is to backup. They don't know if he will hit like a cornerback must.

The second round dice roll by the Cowboys was for a linebacker, Jeff Rohrer of Yale.

With D.D. Lewis on the retirement rolls, the Cowboys need linebacking help bad.

Rohrer, of course, fits the Dallas requirement for intelligence. But that's not the main reason the Cowboys loved him. They watched film after film of him making aggressive charges from middle linebacker.

"I don't care where the guy is from... he will hit and at 6-foot-3 and 228- pounds we really liked his size," said Allen.

Another dartboard throw?

Probably, but don't forget Yale is where the Cowboys got Calvin Hill.

The Cowboys really don't feel that excited about the rest of their draft.

But Dallas feels it outsmarted the rest of the NFL with Hill and Rohrer.

A year from now you can give them an A or an F.

With Munchak And Luck

Biles Satisfied With '82 Draft

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Ed Biles is smiling again after a successful 1982 draft that raked in such talent as Penn State offensive guard Mike Munchak and brainy West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck.

Now Biles must hope that the 1982 Oiler schedule, among the toughest in the National Football League, doesn't wipe the smile off his face. In December alone, the Oilers played three 1981 playoff teams, the New York Giants, Dallas and Philadelphia, two of them on the road.

The Oilers conducted what Biles termed the team's best draft in recent years last week. Munchak, the first-round pick, and Luck, the second-round selection, plus nine other draftees and defensive back acquisition Luther Bradley, offer hope for the future.

But the Oilers need help now and some of the newcomers may be pushed to get ready for battle in 1982. Munchak is the most likely candidate. Certain circumstances also could force Luck into early duty.

Although not being pressured to start immediately, Munchak will have to fill a void in the offensive line, where Biles must start thinking of a replacement for Ed Fisher, 32. It is rare for an offensive lineman to start his rookie year, but Munchak, rated the top offensive guard in the draft, may become one of those rare gems by midseason.

The Oilers also drafted for need in the second round when they picked Luck, a highly intelligent player who has made only one B in his college academic career. The rest were As.

Gifford Nielsen will go to camp as the starter, but the former BYU star has never made it through a season uninjured and there will be concern until he completes a full schedule.

The other question, as usual, is veteran Ken Stabler, who created controversy last season with a mysterious retirement that lasted until training camp had ended.

Stabler has been just as mysterious this off-season, failing to show up at the Oiler training facilities for an off-season weight program-Biles termed necessary. He reportedly has been working out privately. There was speculation if the Oilers drafted either Ohio State's Art Schlichter or Brigham Young's Jim McMahon, Stabler would be dumped. With Luck in camp, however, the picture is not quite as clear.

Despite his talents in the classroom, Luck's analytical skills can go only so far on the field, especially in his rookie year. Luck has an entire new offensive system to learn and until he does, it's unlikely defensive linemen will be too impressed with his transcript or his knowledge of differential calculus.

Dobler Not Playing This Coming Season

DALLAS (AP) — Buffalo offensive guard Conrad Dobler called the Dallas Times Herald Friday to announce that he will not play this year for the National Football League team.

Dobler told sports writer Frank Luska in a call from Laramie, Wyoming, that a knee injury would not allow him to perform at 100 percent efficiency.

Calling from his home, Dobler asked Luska to phone local wire services and release the following statement:

"Due to the difficulty I am experiencing following a number of injuries, I have determined I will be unable to play football during the 1982 season.

"I hope to be able to resume my career at a later date. At this time, however, I am physically unable to play."

The 31-year-old Dobler is a 10-year veteran of the National Football League.

Streck Wins Second Tour Victory At Houston Open

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Don Streck answers to the nickname "Streaker," which is a play on his last name and also aptly describes how he plays professional golf — streaky.

Streck got on one of those scorching streaks last May when he fired a pair of solid 68s and finished with a course record 62 to win the rain-shortened Houston Open at Woodlands Country Club.

It was Streck's second tour victory. The first came in 1978 at San Antonio when he narrowly made the cut but fired an identical 62 in the final round for the title.

Streck, who will be at the Woodlands again this week defending his title in the $350,000 Houston Open, admits he's earned his nickname, but says he figures he could share it with every player on the tour. "If you think about it, there isn't anybody who plays golf that isn't streaky," Streck said. "It's a streaky sport, and to label somebody like, say Johnny Miller, or anybody as a streak player, hell, you can say that about any players."

Streck is happy to take his streaks when he can get them.

"That's been my nickname since I was 10 years old because of my name and it sort of fits because I have played like that," Streck said. "My game comes around, and my confidence gets going and I can shoot really low numbers. And that's what happened."

That's what happened a year ago.

"In the third round I got it going from the start and kept it going all day," Streck said.

"In the final round, I birdied the first and last holes and lot in between. I got up and down on two holes in a row where I was looking at bogie and saved par. They really helped the entire round."

"When I'm playing well, I'll drive it in the fairways and putt well," he said. "Then I'll get the irons going. Day in and day out I don't hit it like the great players but they don't hit it like I do when I've got it going. That's just the way I am, so I guess that's where they started calling me Streaker."

Streck is coming off a streak he would like to end. He suffered a mild case of mononucleosis earlier this year and missed the cut in five tournaments and didn't play in three others.

"I was sick for first 10 weeks of the tour" he said. "I tried to play but I just kept on getting sicker. If I had a 7:50 tee time, I'd get up at 7 o'clock because I was just that tired."

After missing the tour stop at Greensboro, Streck returned to play well in the Masters, and finished second in the MONY Tournament of Champions.

The Houston Open, with $63,000 going to the winner, will be played over the Woodlands' 7,071-yard, 36-35-71 West Course.

After 20 Hitless At-Bats

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It looked like the same old story when Gary Roenicke came off the Baltimore bench to pinch hit in the fourth inning and struck out for the 12th time in a streak of 20 hitless at-bats.

"I had never struck out so much before when I was getting my swings," Roenicke said. "I usually strike out on checked swings or looking at the ball."

Two innings later, though, Roenicke managed to swing his bat where the ball was and it sailed over the left field fence for a three-run homer that sealed the Orioles' 9-4 victory Friday night over the California Angels.

"That took a load off my feet, my body and my mind, especially," Roenicke said. "That was probably the most satisfying homer I've ever hit. The slump was bad because it came after I had my best spring training ever and got off to a good start. Then overnight it turned around."

Baltimore's 11-hit attack enabled Jim Palmer to post his first victory of the season and 249th of his career. That is 50 fewer than Gaylord Perry has after the 43-year-old right-hander notched No. 299 as the Seattle

Mariners pounded Rich Gossage and the New York Yankees 6-3.

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox trimmed the Texas Rangers 7-1, the Detroit Tigers downed the Chicago White Sox 6-4 in 11 innings, the Oakland A's blanked the Cleveland Indians 8-0, the Minnesota Twins beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4 and the Kansas City Royals nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 8-7.

Al Bumbry and Rick Dempsey drove in two runs apiece as the Orioles concluded the third worst April in the club's history with a 6-12 record. Roenicke's fourth homer of the season came off Luis Sanchez following an intentional walk to Eddie Murray.

Bumbry's two-run triple in the second inning chased California starter Mike Witt. It followed singles by John Lowenstein and Dan Ford, a sacrifice and an RBI grounder by Cal Ripken Jr.

After the Angels tied the score 3-3 on Don Baylor's two-run homer in the fourth, the Orioles scored three times in the bottom of the inning off Stan Bahnsen. Dempsey had a two-run double and later scored on the first of Rich Dauer's three singles.

Mariners 6, Yankees 3
Perry gave up two runs and

Los Angeles Within One Game Of Western Conference Finals

By The Associated Press

It's not that Phoenix is playing all that badly, says Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. It's just that the Lakers are playing so well.

"I think we're playing excellent basketball. I don't think they collapsed," Riley said Friday night after the Lakers, with their third straight triumph over the Suns, moved within a victory (they can get it Sunday) of the National Basketball Association's Western Conference finals against the winner of the San Antonio-Seattle series.

Los Angeles, Riley added, "hasn't played this well more than four or five times over a string of three games this season."

The Suns, blown out by 19 points in each of the first two games, made a game of it this time before succumbing 114-106 as Jamaal Wilkes, taking advantage of Phoenix's overloaded defense on Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, scored 26 points. Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 23 and Abdul-Jabbar 22.

"I think triple-teaming Kareem all night had something to do with it ... They do pay too much attention to Kareem, which is OK by me," said Wilkes.

San Antonio, trailing by 21 points late in the second period and 17 at the half, rallied to edge the Super-Sonics 99-97 and take a 2-1 lead going into Sunday's fourth game.

"We played worse than we've ever played all year in the first half," said George Gervin, who scored 16 of his 36 points in the third period. "The second half was a different story. My shots were starting to go in the third so I started looking for my jumpers."

The Eastern Conference semifinals resumed today with Philadelphia holding a 2-0 lead heading into Milwaukee and Washington and visiting Boston tied 1-1.

Even John MacLeod, the Phoenix coach, couldn't knock his Suns' play. "A lot of people say we expended a lot of energy to make it to the playoffs — that after winning two out of three we'd be sapped," he said of their mini-series victory over Denver. "But we just ran into a solid, solid ball club."

The Suns cut a 14-point deficit to 98-92 with 5:30 to go and 105-99 with 2:38 remaining before Wilkes reeled off six consecutive points to put the game out of reach. Alvan Adams had 23 points for the Suns.

San Antonio hasn't lost at home to Seattle in more than four years. The streak seemed over with the Sonics up 59-42 at halftime before the Spurs began chipping away. An 18-foot jumper by reserve guard Mike Bratz, his only basket of the game, with five seconds to play, was the game-winner.

He wasn't supposed to be part of the play mapped out by Coach Stan Albeck with 28 seconds to go and the score tied 97-97. But the Sonics converged on Gervin and knocked the ball free. Mark Olberding flipped it to Bratz, wide open on the baseline. He hit the game-winner with one second left on the shot clock. Gus Williams led Seattle with 25 points and Jack Sikma had 20.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Fourth-seeded Chris Lewis eliminated top-seeded Mark Edmondson 6-3, 6-2 and advanced to the finals of the $100,000 WCT Shipyard Classic.

Valenzuela Handed Second Straight Loss

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

No offense intended, Fernando, but the Montreal Expos can hit any pitcher in the National League, Al Oliver says.

The Expos handed Fernando Valenzuela, the Los Angeles Dodgers' 1981 Cy Young winner, his second straight loss Friday night, beating the Dodgers 4-2. Valenzuela, who was beaten 6-3 by San Francisco last Sunday, yielded four runs on seven hits in seven innings against Montreal.

Oliver, acquired from the Texas Rangers this spring, drove in three of Montreal's runs, helping the Expos snap a nine-game losing streak at Dodger Stadium.

"We feel we can hit anybody," Oliver said. "I feel Fernando is the pitcher everyone said he is. He had all his pitches, but tonight we were able to capitalize."

Around the rest of the league, Philadelphia defeated San Diego 3-1 in 10 innings, Atlanta blanked Chicago 1-0, Houston edged Pittsburgh 4-3, Cincinnati clobbered St. Louis 8-2 and San Francisco clipped the New York Mets 5-4.

Scott Sanderson, 3-1, gave up consecutive homers to Ron Cey and Pedro Guerrero in the fourth inning, then settled down to stop Los Angeles until two were out in the eighth. He had yielded just six hits when he was relieved by Jeff Reardon, who earned his fourth save.

"The addition of Oliver has made a definite improvement in this club," Sanderson said. "We are not the same team. We feel we can get hits off anyone."

Oliver drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and, after L.A. went ahead 2-1 on the consecutive homers, he belted a two-run double in the fifth. Oliver scored on a single by Gary Carter.

Sanderson got into trouble in the eighth, with two out, he hit Cey and walked Guerrero. Reardon relieved him and promptly walked Mike Scioscia to load the bases. The right-handed reliever got out of the jam, however, when pinch-hitter Rick Monday popped out.

Phillies 3, Padres 1
 Bo Diaz's two-run homer with one out in the 10th inning lifted Steve Carlton over the San Diego Padres. The Philadelphia lefthander checked the Padres on 10 hits, walking two and striking out eight in earning his second victory against five losses.

The only damage off Carlton came in the first inning when consecutive hits by Gene Richards, Juan Bonilla and Garry Templeton produced a 1-0 San Diego lead.

Gary Matthews tied the score 1-1 in the seventh inning with a solo homer. Then, in the 10th, Matthews singled and was forced at second on George Vukovich's attempted sacrifice. Diaz followed by clouting Juan Eichelberger's first pitch into the left field seats.

Braves 1, Cubs 0
 Rookie Steve Bedrosian, making only his second start of the season, and Gene Garber combined on a five-hitter as Atlanta shut out the Cubs for the second straight night.

Claudell Washington's sixth-inning homer provided the only run of the game. It was his second homer of the year and third hit of the game.

Bedrosian, 2-0, allowed just four hits in his seven-inning stint, and Garber allowed one hit as he earned his fourth save. The victory was the third straight for Atlanta.

Astros 4, Pirates 3
 Don Sutton worked eight strong innings, and Phil Garner, a former Pirate, celebrated his 33rd birthday with a three-run homer that helped Houston end a two-game losing streak.

Sutton limited Pittsburgh to three runs, one unearned, on five hits during his outing. He walked only one and struck out seven before he got ninth-inning relief help from Dave Smith, who got his second save.

Garner's homer off Rick Rhoden was his second of the year, and it gave the Astros a 4-0 lead in the fourth. Jason Thompson homered in Pittsburgh's three-run seventh inning.

Reds 8, Cards 2
 Frank Pastore scattered nine hits in his second complete game of the season, and Alex Trevino and Ron Oester drove in two runs apiece for Cincinnati.

Trevino ripped a two-run single in the fifth inning to give Cincinnati a 5-2 lead, and Oester smacked an RBI double in the sixth to start a three-run outburst that put the Reds up 8-2.

Pastore walked three and struck out four, yielding an RBI triple by David Green in the second and a run-scoring single by Steve Braun in the fifth.

Giants 5, Mets 4
 Pinch-hitter Reggie Smith slugged a three-run homer with none out in the ninth inning to give San Francisco a victory over ace New York reliever Neil Allen. With runners at first and second, Allen relieved Pete Falcone and promptly threw a wild pitch to Johnnie LeMaster that advanced the runners.

Giants Manager Frank Robinson called LeMaster back to the dugout, sending out Smith, who took two strikes before lofting Allen's 1-2 pitch into the right field seats.

The homer, Smith's 298th, offset career homer No. 300 by New York's Dave Kingman earlier in the game.

SOCIAL SECURITY UPDATE

SOURCE: Social Security Administration
 The Social Security bite out of American paychecks will be going up again in the years immediately ahead, but the exact amount is still to be determined. Figures for 1983 and 1984, including the tax rate, are estimates subject to change. The final figures for 1983, barring new legislation by Congress, will be fixed by the Social Security Administration in the third quarter of this year on the basis of present benefits authorizations.

Blind Man Says National Guidedog Law Needed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—A federal law governing where blind people can and cannot go with their guidedogs needs to be approved by Congress for all 50 states, the head of a guidedog rights organization says.

Keith Roark, 50, of Decatur, Ga., said all the various laws in the United States would fill a book 12 inches thick, so he would like to see one law apply throughout the nation.

Roark has founded an organization called National Organization Rights of Guidedogs, Proper Serving and Assisting the Blind, in an effort to educate the public about the rights of blind people and their dogs.

Roark, who lost his vision in Vietnam, came here Friday to pick up the remains of Lottie, the German Shepherd that served as his eyes for 10 years.

Lottie, 15 years old, died this week at the home of a local couple that adopted her in 1979. Lottie was nearly blind with cataracts and suffering from arthritis when Roark launched a nationwide search for someone to care for her, rather than have her killed. She was adopted by Mike and Denise Pirtle of San Antonio who cared for her until she was found dead at their home on Monday.

Sources Say Soviet Gear Going To Argentina

WASHINGTON (AP) — The forced landing of a Cuban plane in Brazil has yielded hard evidence that sophisticated Soviet electronic gear has been flown to Argentina from Cuba, congressional sources say.

This type of gear, the sources said Friday, was apparently sent to Argentina to help bolster the Argentine forces poised to confront Britain over the Falkland Islands.

The sources said Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. made the disclosure at a closed meeting Thursday on Capitol Hill with a small group of House members.

The State Department has denied the report.

Haig also told the congressmen, the sources said, that Cuba has informed the Argentine government on behalf of both Havana and Moscow that a broad range of other military equipment could be made available to Argentina via Cuba if the Argentines believe they need such support.

Another informed source said discovery of the Soviet-made electronic equipment had occurred on April 9 when an Ilyushin-62 plane carrying the Cuban ambassador to Argentina, Emilio Aragonés Navarro, was forced to land in Brazil after it entered Brazilian airspace without overflight permission.

According to this source, the Cuban aircraft — which was searched on the ground in Brasilia for five hours before being allowed to proceed — was found to contain advanced military "electronic sensors" earmarked for Argentina.

A State Department spokesman initially declined to comment on the report from congressional sources. Later Friday, the department's chief spokesman, Dean Fischer, telephoned The Associated Press to deny that U.S. intelligence had obtained evidence and to deny that Haig had communicated any such information to members of Congress.

"It's just not true," Fischer said.

There have been previous reports that the Kremlin was supplying Argentina with intelligence data — gathered by Soviet satellites, reconnaissance aircraft and electronic eavesdropping ships — on the movements of the British fleet as it steamed toward the Falklands.

When asked about these press accounts, President Reagan told reporters on April 14: "Well, that has been reported, and evidently is established, and I think I'd like to see them (the Soviets) butt out." A senior U.S. official said Friday that the Kremlin had offered intelligence help to Argentina. The official, who asked not to be identified, said he had been assured by Argentine officials that they had refused the help, but he added, "that might change in the period ahead."

Disclosure of the Cuban plane incident appeared to provide the first publicly known example of Soviet-Cuban cooperation with Argentina involving actual shipments of military hardware.

An entire program featuring original compositions by Mrs. Tom Burdett, left, was given on Feb. 8 as the Hereford Music Study Club celebrated the Parade of American Music and Texas Composers Day. Music Club members, including Mrs. Bill Bradley and Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Jr. above, participated in the program by playing or singing some of Mrs. Burdett's compositions.

The Hereford Music Study Club concluded their series of studies on Claude Debussy, which began in October, by featuring Dr. Stanley Potter, Professor of Music and Piano Performance at West Texas State University, and Mrs. Allen Cansler in a program of piano and vocal music by Debussy on March 8.

National Music Week Celebration Begins Today

First observed in 1924, National Music Week, in the words of founder Charles M. Tremaine, is celebrated as 'a voluntary expression of the public's interest in music.'

The purpose of the observance, which is being sponsored and promoted locally by the Hereford Music Study Club, is to focus the attention of the public on music as a deeply satisfying channel of personal expression and a dynamic means of communication, peace, and harmony between people and nations.

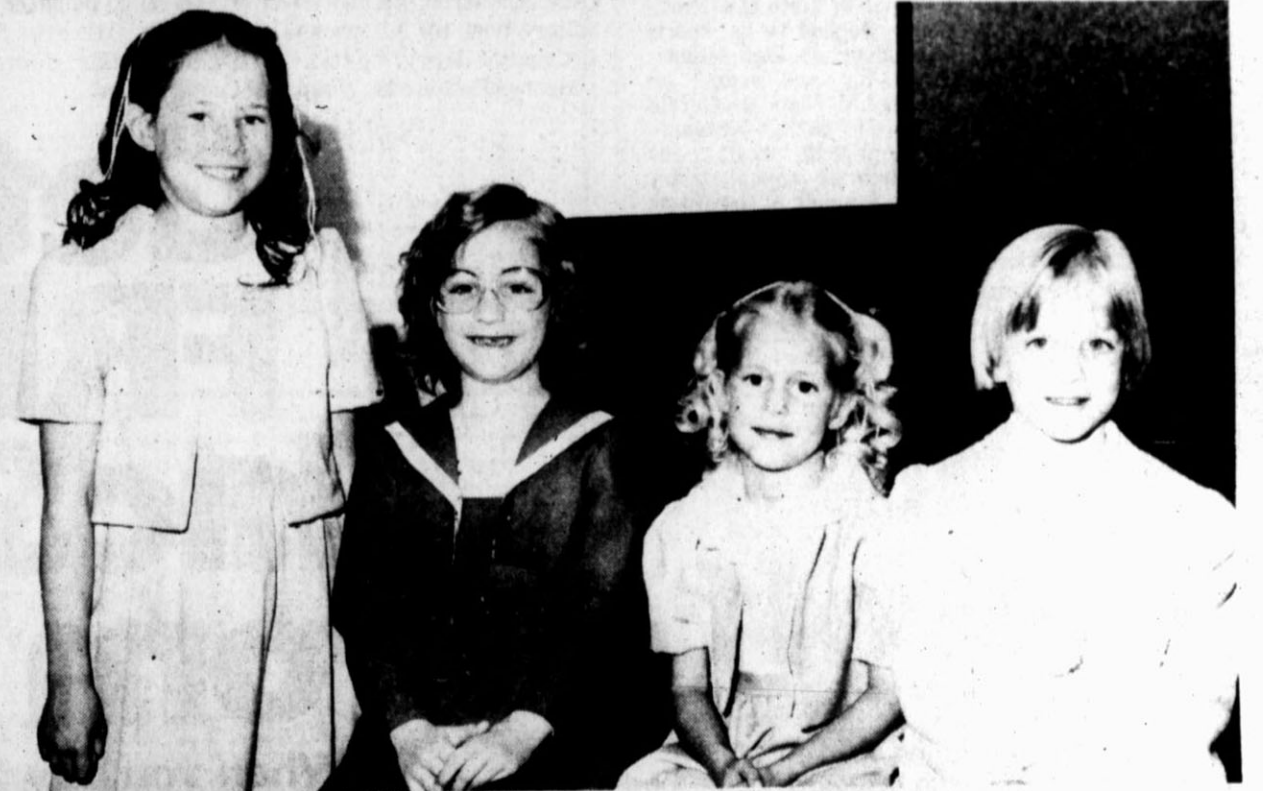

The Hereford Chamber Singers, under the direction of Bill Devers, will conclude the week with a special concert at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Hereford High School Auditorium. The Singers will host noted composer and musical director Eugene Butler in a clinic on Saturday and at the concert featuring a selection of his compositions, one piece composed especially for the occasion by Butler. Tickets are available from members of the Chamber Singers or at the door for $3 per person. The group is shown above as they performed for the Cowgirl Hall of Fame formal dedication.

Allen Cansler, recording secretary; Mrs. Wayne Thomas, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Tommy Betzen, treasurer; and Mrs. Sid Shaw, reporter-historian.

Also performing but not pictured were Stefan Hacker and Dana Cabbiness; and a woodwind quintet featuring Angela Hund, French horn; Pat Hund, oboe; Anabeth Friemal, clarinet; Cindy Goebel, flute; and Amy Griffin, bassoon.

Other student musicians who deserve to be recognized during National Music Week are members of the Hereford High School bands and orchestra, who are presently participating in the Rocky Mountain State Festival at Tempe, Ariz., as well as the high school choirs, and all the other students, teachers, and church choral directors who devote hours of practice, instruction, and promotion of music for the enjoyment of others as well as their own personal satisfaction.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

Water Safety Instructors are asked to meet Tuesday, May 11 at 6 p.m., at the Red Cross office. Debbie Black, water safety instructor trainer, will be going over the changes in the material including strokes.

Instructors are asked to wear their swimming suits and come prepared to swim. Linda Vermillion has very kindly agreed to let us use her pool for these very important training sessions. Instructors that are planning to teach this summer should plan to attend this class.

Advanced Lifesaving classes are scheduled to begin May 17 at 6 p.m. at the city pool. Students taking the class should be 15 years of age or older, good swimmers and be in sound physical health. Cost of the class will be $2.25 for the book and $3.25 for the pool fee. Registration will be at the first class period. Instructors for the class will be Elaine Taylor, Debbie Black and Barbara Schlabs.

The first water safety sesion will begin June 14, with classes scheduled for 9:30-10:30 a.m. and 10:30-11:30 a.m. with a special class in synchronized swimming and water stunts scheduled for 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

The Uniformed Volunteers will meet Thursday, May 13 at 12 noon, at the Red Cross office for a covered dish luncheon.

MARGRET HOFMANN

Refugee Coordinator Scheduled To Speak

Margret Hofmann, coordinator of the refugee project for the Texas Conference of Churches in Austin, has been invited to speak in Hereford by the Ministerial Alliance.

Anyone interested in learning more about the refugee resettlement project or refugee sponsorship is urged to attend an open meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Fellowship Hall of the First Christian Church. A nursery will be provided.

Born in Berlin, Germany, Ms. Hofmann endured personal tragedy and suffering during the war years before immigrating to the United States in 1946.

She attended Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich., and has worked as a tutor and translator of the German language, serving as Dr. Albert Schweitzer's interpreter during his visit to the United States.

She is a lecturer, an accomplished writer, and a civic worker. She served on the Austin City Council, and has been a member of the energy conservation committee and the Citizens Board of Natural Resources and Environmental Quality.

Boys' State Candidates To Be Presented

The American Legion Post and Auxiliary will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m., May 4, at the Hall. Last year's Boys' State participants will report on their activities in Austin and the 1982 candidates will be presented to the membership.

Regular Post and Auxiliary meetings will follow these reports.

Day Of Prayer Set Thursday

Thursday, May 6 has been designated by President Ronald Reagan as the National Day of Prayer, a day of fasting and prayer for the nation.

Church Women United will meet as a group at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in Kinsey Parlor of First Baptist Church for a time of prayer. They invite the Hereford Community to join them in observance of this special day.

Outstanding Members

Three women were voted outstanding members for the year at Beta Sigma Phi's annual Founder's Day celebration Thursday night. Those recognized in-

Beta Sigma Phi Chapters Celebrate Founder's Day

The annual Founder's Day celebration of Beta Sigma Phi was held Thursday evening at the Hereford Country Club. Members of the three local chapters were represented, and Hereford City Council members served as hostesses for the occasion. Beta Sigma Phi is an international sorority that is celebrating its 51st anniversary this year. Chapters from all over the world are participating in the event this week.

Each chapter voted on one woman who was an outstanding member for the year and presented each with an award. Honored were Mary Jean Gore, Alpha Alpha chapter; Nan Gauthreaux, Xi Epsilon Alpha; and Kay Williams, Alpha Iota Mu. Entertainment for the evening was presented by Jan Walser, Terri Laing, Susan Shaw, Tonya Gilliam, Donna Kendall, Ginger Wallace, and Vicki La France. The president of each chapter reported on her chapter's activities throughout the year, and a message from the international office was given. Main headquarters of Beta Sigma Phi are in Kansas City, Mo.

Louise's Latest Accessories Dress Up Fashions

BY LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent

Accessories are helping put the "fun" back into fashion - economically.

Fashion jewelry, belts, bags and shoes offer consumers a way to vary looks and appropriateness of dress easily and inexpensively in spite of the trend toward buying fewer, better quality clothes.

Consumers are "taking accessories up" on the offer, too, as accessory sales are on the upswing.

Current jewelry trends are bolder--including bangle bracelets, beaded necklaces and large earrings in hammered metals, natural stones or seashells, fans or nautical motifs. Headbands and combs remain popular, too.

Belts continue to feature large, bold buckles, knotted ropes and sashes.

Handbags and shoes in braided and woven leathers, snakeskin, quilted looks, straw and canvas are popular. New shoes are flatter with cone or scalloped heels, while the "new" in handbags means "molded" and "structured" designs are returning.

Use accessories to complete a current look, such as sporty and nautical, a feeling of South America or the South Seas, or the rustic and romantic looks.

Evaluate each accessory to determine if it highlights your best features and enhances other items you're wearing.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Junior Choir Plans Program

The First Baptist Church invites all interested persons to a special musical program tonight at 7 p.m. in the church auditorium.

The junior choir, made up of fourth through sixth grade students, will begin National Music Week with a play entitled "A Speciality" by Grace Hawthorne and John Barbe.

The choir is directed by Susan Shaw and accompanied by Trisha Sims. This presentation will be the culmination of the year's activities.

Recital Set This Afternoon

A group of student musicians will celebrate the beginning of National Music Week as they are presented in recital at 2:30 p.m. today. Parents and friends are invited to attend the recital and reception afterwards in Kinsey Parlor of the First Baptist Church.

Representatives from

Susan Shaw's studio will be singing and playing songs learned for the recent Federation Music Festival and other compositions studied during the year.

The following numbers will be featured: "Yellow Ribbons," "Calliope," and "Pink Clouds," played by Brooke Seiver; "Clown March," "Sidewalk Blues," and "Sonatina in G," played by Burt Noland; "Wooden Shoe Dance," "Indian Ceremonial," and "First Rock," Billy Seiver; "Little Dog Boogie," Burt and Billy.

Also "Boogie Brigade," "Cy and Cindy," and "The Princess and the Pirates," Krystal Sims; "My Favorite Things," "By the Bend of the River," "I Whistle a Happy Tune," and "The Old Woman," sung by Amy Coneway; "What Shall We Do?" played by Amy and Krystal.

And "Sugar Cookies" and "Indian Rain Dance," by Josh Coneway; "The Little Frog," "The Jolly Hunter," and "Twinkle Rock," Sean Smith; and "L'Arabesque," "Clouds," and "Hoe-Down in Dublin Town," played by Amy Coneway.

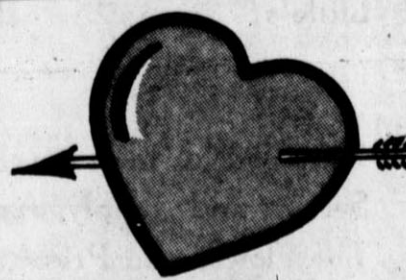

Amazon tributaries

Almost without exception the tributaries draining into the Amazon River are color-keyed. Streams from the north tend to flow black, darkened by the stain of rain-forest vegetation. Those from the south are filtered clear by the white sandy country and pick up the sky's deep blue. Streams from the west churn with the brown silt of the Andean highlands.

True Stories Inspire
Faith, Courage

By DIANNE PIERSON

New books this week at the Deaf Smith County Library will feature stories of faith, love and courage. On July 24, 1969, a carefree, athletic thirteen-year-old named Jama Kehoe plunged into a swimming pool. Minutes later, disbelieving friends pulled her out of the water to find her panic-stricken and paralyzed from the neck down.

The Kehoe family surrounded Jama with loving concern, fervent prayers, and bold faith in Jesus' power to heal. Thus began a journey—both physical and spiritual—that would stretch that faith to the limit in proving the faithfulness of the One they trusted resolutely.

"Then Came A Miracle" is Jama's own story of that journey. It is a story we all need to read. It's a story of faith, hope, and love that refused to let go of an eternal promise: "With God nothing shall be impossible." Jama Kehoe Bigger now teaches composition at Ball State University, where she earned B.A. and M.A. degrees in English.

"Circle of Hope" by Sharon Waller is the remarkable true story of one family that gathered around a dying child to save her from a medical death sentence. Jobi Halper was eight years old when she came home from school with an aching knee.

Three weeks later, a rare, lethal form of bone cancer was diagnosed, and Jobi's leg was amputated. The Halpers were told that the chances were 99 to 1 that the cancer would kill their child.

The Halpers did everything the doctors told them not to do. They researched new drugs and treatments, consulted countless doctors, and finally sent Jobi with her mother to an experimental cancer clinic in California. Today Jobi is a beautiful, healthy seventeen-year-old who skis, dances and hopes one day to be a doctor.

"Circle of Hope" tells the agonizing ordeal and ultimate victory over death by the Halpers and offers glowing proof that miracles do happen to those who seek them.

"Before And After Zachariah" by Fern Kupfer is a gripping, realistic look at how the birth of Zachariah wreaked havoc on the formerly contented lives of his parents and sister. Zach was seemingly normal at birth, but as months went by, Fern began to realize that something was terribly wrong.

After many tests, the Kupfers discovered Zach was severely brain-damaged and that his chances of developing normal skills were out of the question.

The story that follows is one of tremendous courage as the Kupfers first seek to face a reality that can only be seen as every parent's nightmare and then come to grips with the everyday trials of living.

Most courageous of all is the Kupfer's decision to have Zach cared for in a residential facility. Here Fern Kupfer strikes an angry blow against a society that claims that all children belong at home. Here we learn that there are alternatives and that they, too, are honorable. "Before and After Zachariah" is a beautiful, inspiring book, which we all should read.

Other new books include "Comeback" by Frank Bowe, "The Barforth Women" by Brenda Jagger and "Flight of the Falcon" by Wilbur Smith.

Land of Fire

Tierra del Fuego, meaning "Land of Fire," owes its name to Ferdinand Magellan. When the navigator discovered the archipelago at South America's southern tip in 1520, he named it after Indian signal fires that dotted its coasts.

PATRICIA GRIMSLEY
...to wed in June

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Grimsley of Soper, Okla., formerly of Hereford, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Patricia, to Wyatt Oakley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Oakley of Stratford.

The couple will exchange wedding vows June 12 at Temple Baptist Church, Hereford.

The bride-elect, a 1978 graduate of Hereford High School, received her degree in 1981 from West Texas State University. She is presently teaching reading in Odessa.

The prospective bridegroom attended WTSU and is currently employed by the Odessa Fire Department.

WHAT'S THE WORLD COMING TO?

Heaven and earth will disappear, but My words remain forever. But no one knows the date and hour when the end will be - not even the angels. No, nor even God's Son. Only the Father knows. (Matthew 24:35-36)

And God has commanded that the earth and heavens will be stored away for a great bonfire at the judgment day, when all ungodly men will perish. But don't forget this, dear friends, that a day or a thousand years from now is like tomorrow to the Lord. He isn't really being slow about His promised return, even though it sometimes seems that way. But He is waiting, for the good reason that He is not willing that any should perish, and He is giving more time for sinners to repent. The day of the Lord is surely coming, as unexpectedly as a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a terrible noise and the heavenly bodies will disappear in fire, and the earth and everything on it will be burned up. And so since everything around us is going to melt away, what holy, godly lives we should be living! You should look forward to that day and hurry it along - the day when God will set the heavens on fire, and the heavenly bodies will melt and disappear in flames. But we are looking forward to God's promise of new heavens and a new earth afterwards, where there will be only goodness. (2 Peter 3:7-13)

Then I saw a new earth (with no oceans!) and a new sky, for the present earth and sky had disappeared. (Rev. 21:1)

Planning Fellowship Day

Several members of Church Women United met this week to plan May Fellowship Day, which is celebrated annually on the first Friday in May. From left are Jeanne Galley, representative from First Assembly of God; Susie Marquis, ecumenical celebrations chairperson; Marge Mehlberg, who will give the interpretation of offering; and Carole Armor, who is responsible for the luncheon arrangements. Everyone in the community is invited to the covered dish luncheon, which begins at 12 noon at First United Methodist Church, and the program afterwards.

Arabs introduced the tent to Africa.

Church Women United To Meet Friday

Church Women United will celebrate May Fellowship Day on Friday at First United Methodist Church with a covered dish luncheon at 12 noon. Celebrated each year on the first Friday in May, the observance of May Fellowship Day emphasizes the strengthening power of Christian unity in the local community.

Everyone in the community is invited and a nursery will be provided.

In keeping with the thought of Christian unity in this community, Terry Caviness will explain the Good Shepherd Fund, which was initiated by the Ministerial Alliance in the fall of 1981, telling of the response received and of plans for the future.

A talk on "The Needs of the Elderly: Where Meals on Wheels is - Now," will be given by Marge Daniels. Leta Kaul and Shelley Burrelsmith are the song leaders.

This year's theme, "The Power of Words," urges the community to recognize the potential of words to be both helpful and harmful, and to resolve to use words to bring understanding and unity.

The text was written by Church Women United from the states of Oregon and Washington. The offering to be taken up is to be kept within the local unit of Church Women United.

4-H Parent Leaders To Meet Tuesday Night

The 4-H Parent Leaders will be holding their meeting on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the library.

On the agenda for the meeting is discussion of the budget for the coming summer activities and election of new officers for the 1982-83 4-H year.

All parents of 4-H'ers and those interested in enrolling their children are invited to attend.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Free Presentation Set Tomorrow Night

Mike Moon, Director of the Hereford Family Services Center, will give a presentation entitled "Understanding Stepfamily Relationships" tomorrow night from 7-8:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the library.

The public is invited to this free program, which is the first of two presentations scheduled this month by the Family Services Center in conjunction with National Mental Health Month, to be commemorated during the month of May.

Moon will focus on myths and misconceptions surrounding stepfamilies and discuss problems which must be dealt with in these situations and what family members can do to make necessary adjustments.

Approximately 80 percent of divorced parents remarry, says Moon, and about 40 percent of second marriages end in divorce within four years. Children are so often involved, that it is becoming more and more important to deal with stepfamily problems when they arise.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

"Psychology of the Soap Opera" sounds like something my kids would schedule their senior year around, but would need a lab fee to cover the cost of a new TV set.

There really is such a class being taught by a professor in New Jersey who, with 54 students, sits around and dissects the basic human motivations behind the soaps.

From what they've already observed, they are predicting that in another 10 years, there will be more sex in the afternoon and more nudity.

That's like saying to a pregnant woman you are going to be more pregnant next month than you are right now.

Besides, I don't for a minute believe a word of it. You all know my theory on nudity...if God had meant for us to walk around naked, He would never have invented the wicker chair.

Using that same principle, the soaps will never produce more nudity than the traffic can bare...bear!

It just isn't realistic. To begin with, three-fourths of the soaps take place in the dramatic confines of a hospital. There isn't one piece of equipment in a hospital that is not chilled before using...tables, instruments, handles, etc. Do you honestly think there is an actor or actress in this world who could keep that kind of pain a secret?

Secondly, one-third of the performers on soaps are 55 or over. With all due respect, the human body at this age, especially when bare, is not your basic religious experience.

People are becoming bored with the human anatomy. There aren't too many corners one can turn these days without a feeling he's been there before. Joggers wearing shorts with racing stripes that go all the way up to the armpits fill the streets. Body-builders basted in oil fill the magazines. Bathers wearing little pieces of crocheted string, scarcely big enough to set a glass on, fill the beaches. And if I never see another fanny with Calvin Klein branded on the backside, I could still go in peace.

I say to the soaps, "Give it a rest!" It's going to take at least another 10 years for me to get my curiosity back.

Corn crop

Though corn did not spread throughout Europe until the 16th century, it had long been the principal food crop in the Americas of the Mayas, Aztecs, Incas and other Indian tribes. Corn pollen taken from drill cores 200 feet below Mexico City has been dated at about 60,000 years old.

Ann Landers In Defense Of Jackrabbit 'Drives'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In your Washington Post column you implied that 55,000 rabbits had been cruelly clubbed to death in Idaho because farmers there had offered an 8-cent-a-head bounty.

Unfortunately, many of the protesters and publicizers of the jackrabbit drives in Idaho have had a knee-jerk reaction to the clubbing stories, with little insight into the larger issue at stake.

Contrary to the common perception, the jackrabbit is not a rabbit, but a hare. He belongs to the family of rodentia, along with mice and rats. They frequently carry lice and worms, as well as two diseases fatal to humans - Rocky Mountain spotted fever and tularemia. Unlike other rodents, hares are equipped with two sets of incisor teeth, making them capable of large-scale destruction of nearly every form of plant life-including orchards, vineyards, hay, grain and potato fields.

As crude and violent as the rabbit drives may seem, I have been told by Idaho farmers that this is the most humane and effective method of controlling the jackrabbit damage.

Alternatives to the drives have been proposed and discussed at great length, and I hope one day a less objectionable remedy will be found. Meanwhile, I think the Idaho farmers should not suffer a moral judgment because of their efforts to protect their crops and their livelihood. Sincerely-Sen. Steve Symms (R-Idaho)

DEAR SEN. Symms: I am printing your letter because it is informative and represents another point of view that deserves to be heard. The "drives" you mention, however, seem like an extremely cruel, almost sadistic way to deal with the problem. When 400 or more people-on foot, on horses and in snowmobiles-herd the hares into a funnel-shaped trap and beat them to death, one must surely wonder why gassing hasn't been considered. Will you look into this, please? Thank you for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our backgammon club has chosen up sides and a bitter argument is raging. Will you express your opinion? I am outraged that the Arkansas Supreme Court ruled that the parents in Mountain Home, Ark., are not entitled to the sum of money it would cost to raise and educate their unplanned child-born after the father underwent TWO vasectomies.

The couple had two children and did not want a third. The father knew his first vasectomy was not successful, so he went to another doctor and had a second one. That physician did not require the proper tests, and his wife subsequently became pregnant with a third child.

It seems to me the physician who goofed should be made to come up with the money it will cost to raise and educate that child. We all await your opinion.--Big Debate In Little Rock

DEAR DEBATE: Sorry, I

Teach Your Children How To Be Babysat

COLLEGE STATION - Do your children often resist staying with a babysitter? Parents can help by understanding why and taking definite steps to make resistance "not so necessary" in the child's mind, says Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist.

Taylor is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Many children resist babysitting because they resent the child-like treatment they're pretty sure they'll get - today's more sophisticated children want to participate in adult affairs, Taylor says.

Of course, some children - as thought for many years - are afraid their parents won't return home, but that's not usually the case any more, she says.

In helping children deal with these feelings, parents can take two definite steps: show children understanding and remind them that "rules of the house" still hold, Taylor says.

Give the child some responsibilities that focus on being a good host, which, in a way, he really is to his babysitter-let him prepare a snack for everyone, help a brother or sister get ready for bed, or read a story to the others and the babysitter, the specialist suggests.

Also, issue a written list of household rules-the do's and don'ts, so both sitter and children will know them, she adds.

Stay in touch with your babysitting arrangements as the years go by, too, Taylor advises. Some sitters respond differently to babies than to inquisitive five-year-olds, so you may want to change babysitters as children grow older.

Also, remember that different situations require different handling, she says. For example, overnight care sometimes calls for a different babysitter. Some babysitters are more afraid of this kind of arrangement than the children they're caring for, so find a babysitter who feels comfortable with the job.

Learn to recognize babysitting problems or concerns. Children who are newly resistant to babysitting are signaling you about concerns or problems, Taylor notes.

When children - some as young as five or six - resent being left with a sitter, the problem is probably their desire to "be grown up."

One "sure-fire" way to meet this desire is the ability to control one's sitter. Here are some behaviors that signal the problem of children trying to control a sitter:

- they may want to play parent or employee, telling the sitter what to do and what not to do
- they may want to do things expressly forbidden by their parents
- they may want to be pals or peers with the sitter, especially if the sitter is a pre-teen.

To achieve these "wants" a child might try acting extremely helpful, cooperative and affectionate, the specialist says. Parents must then decide what behavior they will or will not allow.

go along with the decision of the Arkansas Supreme Court. A malpractice suit, yes-but ordering the doctor who goofed to pay to raise and educate the child would, in my opinion, be excessive.

CONFIDENTIAL To Time Marches On and I Am Growing Weary: Tell him it's now or never. If he is waiting for the time when everything is "perfect," you both will be pushed down the wedding aisle in wheelchairs by a couple of attendants.

Soccer, called football everywhere except in the United States and Canada, is the world's leading sport. The International Football Association estimates there are more than 16 million players in at least 300,000 football clubs in 150 countries today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am printing your letter because it is informative and represents another point of view that deserves to be heard. The "drives" you mention, however, seem like an extremely cruel, almost sadistic way to deal with the problem. When 400 or more people-on foot, on horses and in snowmobiles-herd the hares into a funnel-shaped trap and beat them to death, one must surely wonder why gassing hasn't been considered. Will you look into this, please? Thank you for writing.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - After major surgery six months ago my heart doctor prescribed surgical white support hose for me and I got two pairs. I read on the package that anyone with high cholesterol deposits and hardening of the arteries should not wear them so I have not worn them since I got out of the hospital.

My varicose veins are very bad on my right leg, way up to my groin, but they do not hurt or bother me at all. I can walk or stand for hours and I do not have any aches or pains.

About 20 years ago another doctor told me unless the veins bother you, by all means do not wear support hose and get dependent on them.

I hate to approach my doctor on this since I am on Medi-Cal. He may get huffy and tell me to see someone else. So I really need your opinion.

DEAR READER - Do what your doctor says, not what you read on a package. He knows your case and is quite familiar with the effects of support hose.

Nelson's Heart Belongs To Music And Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Big G's was a big, rambling, country-western dance hall in Round Rock, just up the interstate from Austin. The crowds that came there to hear Willie Nelson back in the late '60s and early '70s would not have been called cultured.

An act that failed to please could worry about getting out of the parking lot safely.

Willie Nelson's hair is long now and he wears a beard. The level gaze hasn't changed. But Nelson's eyes soften when he thinks about those days.

He was in Dallas to be honored by the readers of Buddy magazine, a Dallas music publication named after Buddy Holly that sponsors the Texas Music Awards each year.

Sitting in his plush, custom-decorated band bus, Nelson recalled his first inking that the music he's been playing for 20 years might go over with a new generation of long-haired kids. It did, and their worlds later merged to create a phenomenon called "progressive country music."

"I had seen a few long-hairs sprinkled out in the audiences at places like Big G's, even though they weren't quite welcome at that time," he said. "There were still enough of them brave enough and tough enough to go and hang in there for a while and listen to the music."

In 1972, he accepted an invitation to play at Armadillo World Headquarters in Austin. The Armadillo was a cavernous former skating rink that normally hosted rock bands.

"There were people like Gram Parsons and the Burrito Brothers that were playing some country music, and it was getting a pretty good reception," he said. "I knew there was an audience, so I decided I'd like to try to gamble anyway. It would only take a night's work to go to the Armadillo and see what kind of reception we would get."

Nelson's singing career took off, although he had long been a successful and prolific songwriter. But it had always been some big-name artist who got the airplay with his songs — "Hello Walls," "Night Life," "The Party's Over" — though Nelson made a bundle from royalties.

"When a line comes to me, I seem to know whether I should remember it or forget it," Nelson said. "So far my percentage has been pretty good."

Not only was Nelson able to parlay his new persona as outlaw king of country into a lively recording mini-industry, he moved smoothly and naturally into movies.

His first was "Electric Horseman" with Robert Redford and Jane Fonda. He played Redford's manager and confidante and delivered an off-handed but X-rated line that is oft-remembered as one of the show-stoppingest in the history of film.

"I met Robert Redford in Nashville. He was looking for some help in an environmental program he was working on," Nelson said. "He asked me if I'd ever considered being in the movies. I said, 'Well, who hasn't at one time or another,' and he said, 'If anything comes up, I'll call you.'"

Nelson later had a supporting role in James Caan's "Thief" and then starred in the quasi-biographical "Honeysuckle Rose." Austin screenwriter Bill Wittliff wrote Honeysuckle Rose and Nelson's most recent film, "Barbarosa." Wittliff is working now on turning Nelson's song-story album "Red-Headed Stranger" into a script, Nelson said.

"It's a change of pace and I enjoy it," he said of the movie career. "It's not hard. The hardest part is to wait around until somebody comes and says, 'Okay, do your thing.' It would be hard if I took on a role that was not for me, where I had to do a lot of things that were not natural for me to do."

Larry King, the Texas patriot who wrote "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," wanted Willie to play the sheriff in Universal's film version of the Broadway play. But things didn't work out — some guy named Burt Reynolds got the part.

"We met with Larry King and with the producers and writers and we saw the play and had a party and a dinner afterwards and we talked about all the things we might do, and then we didn't do anything. But we had a good time in New York," Nelson said.

"I'm not exactly sure that was the part for me anyway. I'm not exactly the song and dance man and there's quite a bit of that in there. I'm not sure Burt is either, but we'll see."

Nelson seems prepared to take or leave a movie career. The music has been the constant in his life, and playing on the road his greatest love:

"On the road again. Like a band of gypsies we go down the highway."

"We're the best of friends, insisting that the world keep turning our way, and our way is "On the road again." The road has taken Nelson a long way from Abbott, near Waco, where he was born 48 years ago. Thanks to some fellow musicians and fans in Austin, he will be immortalized in his birthplace with a "Home of" sign.

"I think it's nice," he says. "But Waylon (Jennings) will probably drive by and take pot shots at it."

Nelson's wife, Connie, and their two children live in Colorado, but join him on the road as much as possible, Nelson said. Still, one of his favorite places to lay back is the country club he owns west of Austin along the Pedernales River where he has a recording studio and a golf course.

He may be recognized now when he jogs in Central Park in Manhattan, but there's no mistaking where his heart is.

"I can't stay away. I can't. I could be asleep on this bus and when we crossed that Texas line, I'd wake up."

Astronaut Declines Appearance

On Hope's 'Stars Over Texas'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The day after Sally K. Ride was named the first American woman astronaut assigned to a space mission, she made a right move — she declined to appear on Bob Hope's "Stars Over Texas" show.

The one-hour TV special, which airs Monday at 9 p.m. (CDT) on NBC, features Hope, Oscar-winning actor Jack Lemmon, "Flamingo Road" star Morgan Fairchild, and country music's Gatlin Brothers.

It was taped April 20 at the University of Texas' Performing Arts Center in conjunction with the Legends of Golf Tournament here and was a benefit for the March of Dimes.

Got all that? NASA mercifully declined to add to the confusion by not zapping Ride up from Houston to satisfy Hope's last-minute request that she appear for the taping.

But that didn't stop the 78-year-old comedian from peppering his monologue with less-than-liberated jokes about her:

"NASA says there won't be any hanky-panky — but who will know?"

"That's the dream of every woman on earth — to be weightless for six days."

"It'll be the first spaceship with a back-seat driver."

The last one at least elicited a couple of hisses from the audience.

"Miss Texas" — everyone just called her "Miss Texas" — was added instead, and cue-card writers were furiously scribbling patented Hope leer lines called in from writers in Los Angeles an hour before the taping.

The rest of Hope's 30-minute stand-up shtick, which was to be cut way down back on The Coast, consisted of, in descending order — Texas money jokes, golf jokes, students and booze jokes, students and drugs jokes, students and sex jokes and, of course, Aggie jokes.

None of the jokes are funny by themselves, but they tend to build on one another until the audience has the giggles. There's a feeling that Hope could speak Portuguese, but the delivery and timing would get the same response.

The audience was Hope's — an older crowd and the same people who will tune in a Hope special no matter how many critics revile it — and Hope cuts down on that sort of thing by not previewing his specials for the press.

CAT PEOPLE, An RKO-Universal release. Directed by Paul Schrader. Screenplay by Alan Ormsby. Starring Nastassia Kinski, Malcolm McDowell, John Heard. Rated 'R.' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO — FILM CRITIC

The only similarity between this film and the 1942 Jacques Tourneur version is the title. The most obvious difference is that what was forbidden in the '40s is explicit in the '80s.

In 1982's "Cat People," which is being advertised as "an erotic fantasy," an orphaned girl (Nastassia Kinski) comes to New Orleans to live with her brother (Malcolm McDowell).

It's obvious that McDowell is mentally unstable from the moment he appears on screen, but it takes Miss Kinski half the film to realize his peculiar problem.

This same problem will soon afflict Miss Kinski. After her first sexual encounter, she turns into a cat. But not a docile little house pet. This cat is a ferocious panther.

Director Paul Schrader ("Blue Collar," "American Gigolo") knows how to create atmosphere and use it to best advantage. The movie, which is set in New Orleans, is visually remarkable, using sets and locales to create an eerie, often surrealistic mood.

You may choose to see the film as myth or allegory for the "beast" in man, for his inherited animalistic sexual drives. Schrader, whose films delight in exploring offbeat relationships, would probably be happy with this interpretation.

But if you want a film with nudity, violence and kinky sex, here it is in one perverse, decidedly not-for-all-tastes movie.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, May 2, the 122nd day of 1982. There are 243 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 2, 1945, Berlin surrendered to Soviet forces in World War II.

On this date:
 In 1519, artist Leonardo da Vinci died.

In 1536, England's Queen Anne Boleyn was sent to the Tower of London where she was incarcerated until she was beheaded.

In 1813, Napoleon Bonaparte defeated the Prussian and Russian armies at Lutzen, Germany.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished trade unions in Germany.

Ten years ago: At least five miners were reported dead and 77 missing in an explosion and fire at the Sunshine silver mine in northern Idaho.

Five years ago: Militant Protestants in Northern Ireland called a general strike and additional British troops were flown in.

Jillian Stars As Mae West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ann Jillian captures Mae West's drive, humor and insinuating way of talking in ABC's Sunday special on the brassy, bawdy, mocking entertainer who delighted millions and shocked the blueses.

She plays the legendary Miss West from age 17 to 55, when her double entendres and frank sexuality carried her from vaudeville to the pinnacle of success on the Broadway stage and the movie screen. Miss West died in 1980 at age 87.

"She was way ahead of her time in male-female relationships and in women's liberation," said Miss Jillian, the platinum blonde singer-actress of ABC's "It's a Living" and the Broadway musical "Sugar Babies."

"I'd say more than anything she was for individual rights," Miss Jillian said. "She was shocked when she was censured by the movie censors for obscenity. To her, obscenity was war."

"Mae West," which ABC will telecast Sunday, also stars James Brolin as Jim Timony, her long-time lover and manager; Piper Laurie as her mother, Matilda West, largely responsible for her independence and attitude toward men; and Roddy McDowall as a female impersonator who helped her find her own original style.

Miss Jillian was interviewed during a break from the taping of her pilot for NBC "The Rainbow Girl." In it she plays a cue-card girl on a TV show in Chicago. Every once in a while the band leader, Caesar Romero, lets her sing on the show.

She wears a silver horseshoe around her neck, a present from her late manager and discoverer, Joyce Selznick, who died last year.

"I wore it in every scene of 'Mae West,'" she said. "I'd wear it under my dress or hide it in the folds of my skirt. I couldn't wear it where it would show because it's a very contemporary piece of jewelry. It's my good luck piece. It's a very sentimental piece."

Miss Selznick, who was then with ABC, brought her to Hollywood to star either as Marilyn Monroe or Mae West in a TV movie. Interestingly enough, Miss Jillian brings to mind another 1930s sex goddess, Jean Harlow.

Miss Jillian was born Ann Jura Nauseda in Massachusetts to parents who had fled the Soviet occupation of Lithuania. When she was 10, her parents moved to Los Angeles. She made her movie debut in Walt Disney's "Babes in Toyland."

The name Ann Jillian was created for her by Disney and director Jack Donahue. They took the Ann from her own name and Jill from Donahue's daughter.

A YOUTHQUAKE IS:

- *a Young Shaking or Trembling of the Earth
- *a New Kind of Milk Shake
- *a General Foods Hot Breakfast Cereal.
- *a Great City-Wide Revival happening Sunday, May 2-Wednesday, May 5

If you choose the last answer, you are absolutely correct. Youth-Quake '82 promises to be the greatest youth revival Hereford has ever had and you will want to be a part of it.

Youth-Quake is being sponsored by many of the youth departments of the various churches in Hereford. Living Water, a musical group from Levelland, will perform contemporary Christian music each night along with special music from our local youth talent. Eddie Trice, also from Levelland, will be the evangelist.

Rick Stanley, Elvis Presley's step-brother, will be with us on Tuesday night to share what the Lord Jesus Christ has done in his life. Stanley was involved drug addiction and alcoholism for many years before turning his life over to the Lord.

LIVING WATER

RICK STANLEY

Francois Truffaut's "The Last Metro" will air May 5 on Spotlight. The film, set during the Nazi occupation of France, focuses on a Parisian theater company. The efforts of the company's directors to manage the troupe and to maintain both personal and social responsibility under the stress of the occupation make up the bulk of the film's story.

Truffaut examines the character of the film crew as well as the people on the screen to demonstrate that his concern about the nature of art, society and the individual is not abstract, but immediate. He is not merely telling a story or examining how it was, but also showing how we are now.

Practical Experience
MARSHALL, Mich.—To provide college-level engineering students with experience in vehicle design and fabrication, the Western Michigan Section of the Society of Automotive Engineers has an annual Super Mileage Competition. Eighteen teams from U.S. and Canadian colleges and universities squeezed as much mileage per gallon as they possibly could.
A 2-horsepower engine, like those on lawn mowers, was used with 100-octane fuel. A 54-gallon drum of iso-octane fuel was donated by Phillips Chemical, the world's largest supplier of the reference fuel commonly used for motor testing.

The winning vehicle from the University of Saskatchewan weighed 82 pounds and was rated at 702 miles per gallon travelling at an average speed of 15 mph.

Early Resident Leaves Rich Pioneer Heritage

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
 The death of Mrs. Annie Steele Springer last Saturday marks the passing of another of the pioneers of this area. Having married Albert Springer at Childress in October 1916 she came with him to this area in November 1917, when his father G.F. Springer brought his family from the family home at Childress to settle here.

She and Albert drove a team of horses hitched to a wagon loaded with household goods and farm implements all the way from Childress. His brother-in-law, T.L. Sparkman, came also with a loaded wagon on the overland trip, camping along the way as was necessary.

They arrived at the destination, two or three miles east of the point which later became the location of Jumbo school, where G.F. Springer had bought two sections of land—mostly unbroken grassland.

They and the Sparkmans were to live and farm breaking out sod and taking care of some cattle. In 1924, the Albert Springers (with their first two children, George A. and Mary Lois) moved about seven miles further west to land which had been purchased from J.O. Lindsey, one of the early settlers and landholders of the area.

The Sparkmans followed to a farm adjacent the following year. The Springers were among the few who built an adobe house with soil taken from their own farm and molded into hand-made blocks and plastered with cement—it would be considered something of a "solar house" in simple form now.

It was comfortable for many years, and another son Charles was born while living there in 1936.

The Springers also pioneered in another important part of community life when they and the Earl Springers were first to put in the new irrigation system which was to become the backbone of the farming industry, about 1932.

Others followed quickly, when they saw that it was practical to make the dry area into a "land of plenty."

A new modern house, Mrs. Springers own plan and dream was built there in the late 40's. She stayed on awhile after he died in 1955, and then moved into south Hereford on Highway 385. She was busy for many years and worked regularly for Perry's and later the Christian Book store—enjoying most of all being with people. Only when her health failed and she had to live in the nursing home in Dimmitt, did she give up her busy and useful life.

A group from Frio Homemakers Club and guests made a trip Tuesday to Casa Del Sol, a solar home on Blanco Canyon and located ten miles north and two miles east of Crosbyton.

The house, owned by Mrs. Georgia Mae Ericson, was built about four years ago and is a model of use of active solar energy. Mrs. Ericson thinks her energy bill is about half the amount of a similar building without the solar system.

Much glass makes a sunny pleasant interior. It has a solar heated swimming pool with tables and chairs for large groups of persons to dine in the spacious area around the pool.

Mrs. Erickson prepares and serves her guests from the large centrally located open type kitchen. Four mesquite burning fireplaces add to the homes comfort and a large conference room is provided so that groups from college and business organizations may meet for seminars and such activities.

A strongly built centrally located room was built for storm protection. The house utilizes ideas and materials natural to the locale, as Mrs. Erickson is very conscious of preserving history of the area. She also works for the Crosby County Museum in Crosbyton helping gather material of the past history for future generations.

She is a native of the area, the granddaughter of the Hank Smiths, who were pioneers of that area and well known for their contributions to the community. Mrs. Ericson is a graduate of Texas Tech but spent many years in the East with her husband.

After his death, she returned to the area and began the work of trying to preserve her heritage. She plans for the house to become a part of the museum after her passing.

The local group also visited the Crosby County museum. Going from here were Mmes. Marguerite Cole, Beverly Paetzold, Ellen Warrick, Ella Caudle, Annie Vogler, Loleta Vinson, Jo Gregory, Annie Lee Dobbins, Sue Andrews, Carleta Harkins, Vada Axe, Darlene Richardson, Bonnie Baldwin, Nadine Warrick, Helen Barber, Virginia Yandell, Alline Tindal and Ruth and Frank Robbins.

Little rules to live by: The most comfortable chair in the house will be claimed by the cat.

Clean Air Week

Mayor Bartley Dowell is shown with Jewel Smith signing a proclamation designating this week as Clean Air Week. The Texas Air Control Board, the state agency with responsibility for reducing and controlling air pollution, and the American Lung Association of Texas are co-sponsoring Clean Air Week at the state level.

Less work for the cook... and it's delicious, to boot. That's roast goose, the bird that bastes itself during cooking, thanks to a thin layer of fat between the skin and the meat. The result, a moist, crisp flavorful gourmet treat.

Clean Air Week Is Proclaimed

Mayor Bartley Dowell joins Texas Gover William P. Clements in proclaiming May 2-8 Clean Air Week.

The purpose of Clean Air Week is to protect and conserve Texas' air resources.

The Texas Air Control Board (TACB), the state agency with responsibility for reducing and controlling air pollution, and the American Lung Association of Texas (ALAT) are cosponsoring Clean Air Week at the state level.

"For the second consecutive year, energy conservation is Texas' theme for Clean Air Week because of the relationship between energy production and air pollution," said Mrs. Jewel Smith, volunteer for the Lung Association and resident of Hereford.

TACB Executive Director Bill Stewart said, "The need for energy and for clean air need not be at odds. Conserving energy can help protect our precious air resources by limiting the amounts of air pollutants released when oil, gas, or coal is burned to produce energy. Even with the best control equipment available, we cannot completely eliminate the release of air contaminants from industries and from motor vehicles.

"We hope that Texans will use Clean Air Week to focus their attention on how energy use relates to environmental pollution and to think of ways to conserve energy. Helping reduce air pollution can be as simple as using mass transportation or car pools, adjusting thermostats, using less hot water, and turning off lights when leaving a room," he said.

Smith said, "The air we breathe affects our lives and our lungs. By joining together to conserve energy, this community can reduce air pollution."

Smith suggested several ways to help reduce air pollution:

- do not burn leaves and trash;
- keep automobiles properly tuned and keep pollution control devices maintained;
- use car pools and public transportation and walk rather than ride as much as possible. Remember, the more cars on the road, the more pollution.

If you know where you're coming from, your state has better highway signs than ours does.

An optimist is a driver who thinks he can move close enough to a big rig to read its bumper sticker and live to remember it if the trucker hits the brakes.
