Reagan rests, Mondale hits Midwest

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
President Reagan is pausing from the campaign as Walter F. Mondale appeals for votes in the industrial Midwest after telling the region's farmers "these last four years have been the worst in the history of the American family farm."

Twelve points down in one new poll with as many days to go, and even further down in another, Mondale was invoking the name of the patron saint of political underdogs, Harry S. Truman, at every stop Wednesday.

In emotional appeals, the Democratic presidential nominee said he expects to repeat Truman's surprise victory of 1948 on this Election Day, Nov. 6.

"I am asking you to trust me, to believe me," Mondale said.

Reagan was back in the White House today after returning on Wednesday from a four-day campaign trip to attend a ceremony commemorating today's first anniversary of the U.S.-led invasion of tiny Grenada.

Reagan heads back out on the campaign trail Friday when he will venture into New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

Mondale was starting the day in Milwaukee and appearing before audiences later in Cleveland; Toledo, Ohio; and Flint, Mich.

A new ABC News-Washington Post poll said Reagan is still leading Mondale by 12 percentage points, 54 percent to 42 percent, the same margin as last week before the second presidential debate.

A new Harris Survey showed Reagan leading 56 percent to 42 percent. Last week, the margin in the Harris Survey was 9 points.

"I'm announcing a new plan tonight," Mondale said. "I'm not going to comment on any polls between now and the election. The question is not polls, the question is ideas, the question is of the future and of who can best lead us forward."

Fritz says farms have had it bad

Mondale pollster Peter D. Hart said his polling results were similar to the ABC-Post numbers. He said what "amazes me is the remarkable consistency in Reagan's numbers over the last five months. Our challenge remains to convert some of those weak Reagan voters, and we have less time."

Mondale campaigned in farmland from before sunup to sundown Wednesday, saying the Reagan administration has brought the worst of times to agriculture.

"If rural America rises up and throws Mr. Reagan out and elects me, the message will be out: Don't mess with these farmers. They are dangerous. Don't mess with them," Mondale said.

He also tried hard to repair the damage he apparently has suffered from the 1980 grain embargo imposed by President Carter, whom Mondale served as vice president:

"I did everything I could to oppose it. The president made his choice. It was a mistake."

Vice President George Bush, meantime, was heading back out on a two-day trip to New York, Kentucky and Ohio after offering his explanation for the harsh heckling that has cropped up this week at the president's campaign stops.

"Left-wing kids ... an entire out-of-it group of people," Bush said of the hecklers, adding that the protesters "don't believe in strength for the United States."

Stuck in the Mud

Since Saturday, slightly more than one inch of rain has descended on Hereford, leaving travel on some unpaved roads somewhat treacherous. The above vehicle was able to get out of this predicament after a few minutes.

West named to Tech panel

Carla West, a 23-year-old Hereford native, has been named to the 10-member panel of "Ambassadors for Agriculture" at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

West is a senior agriculture economics major and former president of the Texas Tech 4-H Club. She participated in the 4-H program while growing up in Deaf Smith County and continued her membership after enrolling at Tech.

"A Woman's Place" is one of the topics West has available to present to anyone who requests a speaker from among the ambassadors. She also speaks on "Possibilitizing" and "A Leader to Follow."

West is the daughter of Bill and Dixie West and granddaughter of Eunie West, also of Hereford.

Recent forum to be broadcast

The video recording of a candidates forum held last week at Hereford Community Center is to be shown 10 times next week on Hereford Cablevision Channel 3.

The program is scheduled to air at 10 a.m. and again at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. The edited version of the forum is approximately two hours long.

The Oct. 18 event included debates between U.S. Representative hopefuls Larry Combest and Don Richards and state representative candidates Justin McBride and John Smith. Bill Allen and Troy Don Moore, competing for the Precinct 3 county commission post, also exchanged words.

Sponsor of the forum was the legislative affairs committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

County remains farming leader

Deaf Smith County continues to be a state leader in agriculture-related income, announced John Fuston, executive director of the local Agriculture Soil Conservation Service office.

According to "Texas Agricultural Facts," a newsletter published by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Deaf Smith County was the 1983 leader in livestock and livestock products sales. Cash receipts totaled $198.96 million.

The county again came in behind first-place Hidalgo County in total agriculture cash receipts for last year, posting $248.13 million. Hidalgo brought in $289.91 million while $166.51 was collected by third-place Gonzalez County.

Braniff Inc. forced to reduce its services

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff Inc. officials say huge losses are forcing them to impose drastic austerity measures that include eliminating service to 10 major cities and reducing the fleet from 30 to 10 planes.

"We really have no alternative at this point but to implement these changes," Chairman Jay Pritzker and vice chairman Patrick Foley told Braniff employees Wednesday night.

They also said Braniff president William D. Slattery has resigned to take the helm of a new airline, Air Via, based in San Jose, Calif.

All but two of Braniff's gates at its home base, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, are being turned over to rival American Airlines, officials said.

The gate transfer, which Braniff officials described as a "key element" in the plan to save the troubled airline, raises $20.5 million in cash for "ongoing operations," and frees

Fleet chopped, cities cut off the carrier from major financial obligations, officials said.

Foley and Pritzker made the announcements at a hastily-called meeting of Braniff employees, many of them veterans of the 1982 bankruptcy of Braniff's predecessor.

The meeting at Dallas Love Field was closed to news media and the public, but copies of an announcement and a joint letter from Pritzker and Foley were obtained by The Associated Press.

The executives said Braniff has lost more than $80 million since resuming service in March. They said the austerity measures are designed to head off additional losses of between $4 million and $7 a month.

"Obviously, that level of loss cannot be sustained indefinitely by anyone, no matter how committed," Foley and Pritzker said in the letter.

Effective Nov. 5, Braniff will suspend service to Austin, Texas; Detroit; Houston; Kansas City, Mo.; Miami; Newark, N.J.; New Orleans; Oklahoma City; Philadelphia; and San Antonio, Texas, said the statement, prepared for release to the general public on Thursday.

"We are hopeful our actions will enable Braniff to survive and succeed," the announcement said.

Braniff will reduce its winter schedule operating fleet from 30 to 10 airplanes and reduce the work force "consistent with the overall reduction in our operations," the statement said.

An agreement with American will let Braniff passengers who bought tickets on or before Wednesday fly on American without paying additional charges, officials said.

Pritzker and Foley described the measures as a "redeployment and consolidation plan to attain financial health."

Financial health has proved elusive for Braniff. Its predecessor, Braniff International, folded on May 12, 1982, under a $1 billion debt.

At that time, the airline grounded its fleet, laid off its 7,000 employees and filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

A $70 million bailout by the Hyatt Hotel chain enabled a resurrected Braniff to inaugurate service out of Gate 13 at Dallas-Fort Worth International in March as a premium carrier aiming at business travelers.

"We anticipated substantial losses this first year," Pritzker and Foley said. "However our total losses through October 15 are in excess of $80 million, far more than our original projections."

Garbage tells lot about American habits

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Americans claim to be eating more red meat than they actually are, Texas Cattle Feeders were told earlier this week by a University of Arizona anthropologist.

Dr. William Rathje, who spoke Tuesday at the closing session of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association annual convention, said he has made that deduction based on an 11-year study of household refuse. Rathje is the director of what he affectionately refers to as "Le Project du Garbage."

"All we're doing is trying to learn something new and different about ourselves by looking at our own garbage," Rathje explained. "Material remains tell us a lot about actual behavior."

Commenting on complaints by many nutritionists that Americans are eating a lot of red meat and in so doing digesting too much fat, Rathje said the U.S. Department of Agriculture and other agencies that measure food consumption are not taking into account that Americans often trim the fat from the meat they buy.

Anthropologist claims at convention

"We know they're not eating all the fat they purchase, because we find it in their garbage," Rathje said.

Studies have also revealed that Americans are over reporting the amount of red meat they actually eat by about 40 percent, Rathje pointed out. He said people are claiming to eat more steaks, roasts and chops than are actually sold, because those are "prestige items."

Working in Tuscon, Milwaukee, Marin County, Calif. and Mexico City, Rathje and his team of student volunteers have sorted through more than 1.5 million individual items since the project has been in existence.

Another area where Americans are not quite truthful about consumption is alcohol, Rathje told the crowd. While 85 percent of the nation's households claim they never drink any beer at home, evaluation of garbage through the years tells a different story.

In the cities used for the study, Rathje said, 50 percent of the households threw out seven or more empty beer cans per week.

Probably no surprise to anyone was Rathje's report on how much food Americans are throwing away every year.

"Food waste adds up to 15 percent of the solid food people buy," he said. "In Tuscon, 9,500 tons are discarded every year. Nationally, that's $11.7 billion wasted."

People wasted more beef in 1973 when it was in short supply, the project revealed. "We think it was because they bought strange cuts they didn't know how to prepare," Rathje guessed. "They also bought larger quantities at a time, and did not know how to store them properly."

Early research also showed that Americans were bringing home one "take-out meal" every two weeks, Rathje said. Now, they're letting restaurants cook three to five meals every week. Of take-out food thrown away uneaten, he told the cattle feeders, fried chicken establishments have the highest mortality rate.

Especially entertaining were discoveries made in Marin County, in the San Francisco area, which is the highest income county in the country, Rathje said.

"It's the only place we found where people waste valium," he laughed.

He also found more discarded copies of "The Enquirer" than any other publication and discovered that pets in Marin County are fed expensive canned foods while their owners ate more generic brands.

In sorting through garbage, the professor concluded, he has discovered vast evidence that what people say is not always what they actually do. He said garbage is also an indication that many of the country's resources could be used more efficiently.

Auto insurance decrease okayed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas motorists are going to get a $100 million present from the State Board of Insurance.

The three-member board Wednesday unanimously approved a 3.8 percent decrease in auto insurance premiums for passenger cars and light trucks, effective next Feb. 1.

The decision came after a four-hour non-stop hearing at which the insurance industry argued that it needed a 5.5 percent increase to remain profitable.

The board also voted 3-0 Wednesday to study closely a proposal that owners of automobiles built before 1985 be given a one-time $20 refund if they install a "collision avoidance light."

The lights, to be standard on all cars after 1986, are mounted at eye level on the rear trunk of the car. The light would blink when the car's brake is applied in an effort to avoid rear-end collisions.

Board members also agreed to consider appointing a study committee to look at possible insurance premium discounts for motorists using seat belts, child safety seats and passive restraints in cars. The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office has a similar study underway and is expected to report sometime in November.

Nurse might appeal decision

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The prosecution's heavy reliance on circumstantial evidence may form the basis of an appeal of former nurse Gene Jones' conviction on a child injury charge, her attorney says.

"There were lots of people around that could have done it," defense lawyer Royal Griffin told reporters after Ms. Jones was convicted and sentenced to 60 years in prison.

"There was no dripping needle," he said.

State district judge Pat Priest Wednesday, ruling in a non-jury trial, told Ms. Jones, "From the evidence before me, I find that this child received a massive dose of heparin during the 3 to 11 shift Jan. 9, 1982, and that Gene Jones did it."

The charge was filed in the overdose of 4-week-old Rolando Santos with the blood-thinner heparin. The incident occurred while he was hospitalized for pneumonia in the pediatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital.

The child has since recovered and been released.

Barefoot knocks execution style

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death row inmate Thomas Andy Barefoot says his scheduled execution Tuesday for the 1978 slaying of a Central Texas police officer will be "the most premeditated of all murders."

Barefoot, 39, has been ordered to die by poison injection before sunrise in the same room where three fellow prisoners have been executed since December 1982.

The former oilfield roughneck faces his fifth execution date since he was convicted in the Aug. 7, 1978, shooting death of Harker Heights police officer Carl Levin.

"Capital punishment is the most premeditated of all murders. No matter whose name you use to do this murder, that doesn't justify it," he said.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans last week denied a request by lawyers to block the execution.

The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles scheduled a meeting in Austin today on the case.

Warnings offered about Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says there is an "across the board threat" by terrorists against all Americans in Lebanon and that it may be part of a campaign to isolate Lebanon from the West.

President Reagan's national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, said Wednesday the increased threats were "up a piece from the ones we have had before." Apparently the threats are for actions "in the days ahead."

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said the threats are "new information" that has been uncovered in the past couple of weeks. He renewed a warning for U.S. citizens against traveling there.

The warning came as four Lebanese employees of The Associated Press office in Beirut disappeared while on their way to work Wednesday.

"There is new information concerning the threat across the board, including newspaper correspondents and newsmen," said Hughes.

Capote destroyed awaited book

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Truman Capote either never finished or destroyed his long-awaited book "Answered Prayers," but the flamboyant author left behind a "beautiful, beautiful story" that rivals his most-acclaimed work, his aunt says.

The 38-year-old unpublished manuscript is about Bud, a bachelor cousin who lived with his three spinster sisters in Monroeville, Ala., where Capote spent much of his youth, said Marie Rudisill. "I think it's more beautiful than 'A Christmas Memory,'" one of the late author's most-praised stories, she said.

Capote, who died last month at age 59 of liver disease complicated by drug intoxication, probably never wrote more than the four chapters of "Answered Prayers" that appeared in Esquire magazine in 1975, Mrs. Rudisill, 72, said Wednesday. She said he abandoned the expose of his jet-set friends because he didn't want to lose their companionship.

Bud, the subject of the 9,000-word unpublished manuscript, was the brother of Sook Faulk, who is deceased, but was the inspiration for "A Christmas Memory."

Explosives find mars state visit

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard says one of French President Francois Mitterrand's bodyguards planted explosives to test British security measures. One outraged British legislator called the incident "the most sick thing to happen for years."

Police with trained sniffer dogs found the "inert, unarmed" explosives Tuesday night at the French ambassador's residence shortly before a reception hosted by Mitterrand. He had arrived earlier Tuesday to begin a four-day state visit.

The discovery of the explosives came 12 days after the Irish Republican Army tried to kill Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and most of her Cabinet by blowing up their hotel during the annual conference of her Conservative Party at Brighton. The Oct. 12 blast at the Grand Hotel killed four people and injured 32.

The British Broadcasting Co. said discovery of the explosives has "marred what had been seen as a successful and statesmanlike visit" by the French leader.

There has been no comment about the incident from the French, but British legislators were quick to lodge criticism.

Truce non-existent in race for Senate

By The Associated Press

Any semblance of a truce between Phil Gramm and Lloyd Doggett has gone "whoof."

Gramm, a Republican congressman from College Station, and Doggett, a Democratic state senator from Austin, had nothing good to say about each other Wednesday as they campaigned around Texas in their battle to represent the state in the U.S. Senate.

Doggett said Gramm was "not a very trustworthy person" for suggesting a moratorium on negative campaigning and then withdrawing the offer.

Gramm said Doggett reached "an all-time low in Texas politics" by taping a telephone conversation between the two candidates Tuesday night, then releasing the tape.

Gramm said the taping — made without his knowledge — was unethical and a possible violation of State Bar of Texas guidelines. Doggett denied the contention and said the taping was necessary to verify Gramm's statements.

After learning that Doggett had taped their call, an angry Gramm said any hopes of a compatible relationship had ended.

"What kind of person would call a truce and then refuse to stick to his word?" Doggett asked at a Fort Worth fund-raiser Wednesday that was hosted by House Majority Leader Jim Wright, one of Gramm's political enemies.

Wright led the Democratic Party move that resulted in Gramm's being booted off the House Budget Committee in retaliation for the leading role that Gramm, then a Democrat, played in winning passage of President Reagan's economic program through Congress.

The action triggered Gramm's decision to switch parties, resign from Congress, then win a special election from his district as a Republican.

Wright urged those at a $10-a-plate dinner to support Doggett.

Wright called Doggett "a man who's not going to forget where he came from — a man who's not going to leave and join another political party."

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, campaigned in Wichita Falls Wednesday for U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon-Glenn, a leading conservative, said he found it laughable that Hightower has been criticized by Republicans as "a liberal who votes blindly with the party leadership in Congress."

Hightower is a member of the "Boll Weevil" faction of conservative Democrats that formed a coalition with Republicans to provide the winning edge for President Reagan's economic legislation.

Hightower incurred the wrath of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, with his last-minute vote with other Texas conservatives, including Gramm, for the Reagan tax cut legislation.

Republicans have targeted Hightower's 13th congressional district as one of their top priorities this year, and former President Gerald Ford planned to appear at a Wichita Falls luncheon today with Hightower's Republican opponent, Amarillo lawyer Beau Boulter.

In an interview with the Wichita Falls Record-News, former astronaut Glenn said, "You can say I laughed uproariously at the idea of Jack Hightower being a liberal. If Hightower is a liberal, then the other guy (Boulter) must be Attila the Hun."

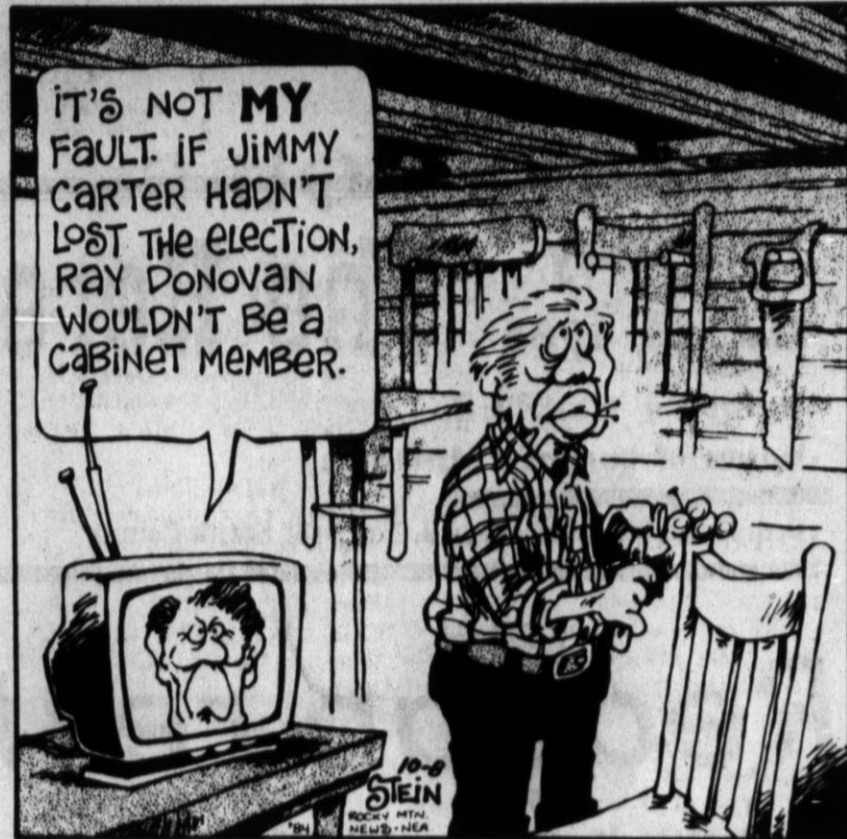

Gramm also was in Wichita Falls on Wednesday. At a news conference, Gramm said the U.S. Senate contest between him and Doggett "really boils down to one issue — who can be effective in representing the interests of ... the people of Texas."

He stressed his efforts in Congress the past six years, and particularly his work with the Republican administration. Gramm said as a congressman he "has stood up and fought and won on behalf of issues that are important to the people of Texas."

An aide to Gramm said it is "fundamentally nonsense" to suggest that Gramm violated federal election law by accepting contributions for the Republican primary after it was over.

Late primary campaign contributions are legal only if spent on primary campaign debts, and Gramm's report for the period ending June 30 showed no debt remained from the May primary.

"It sounds to me like taking $110,000 in illegal campaign money is a very serious charge that does warrant some further investigation," Doggett said.

'Top echelon' of crime family indicted by FBI

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents posed as crooked businessmen and bugged a pasta importer's offices to get indictments against the "entire top echelon" of one of the city's five major organized crime families, authorities said.

Meanwhile, hooded witnesses testifying anonymously told the President's Commission on Organized Crime on Wednesday that a new crime society, the Japanese Yakuza, is moving into the United States.

U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, who told the commission Tuesday that law enforcement efforts had traditional U.S. criminal organizations on the run, said Wednesday that organized crime had been "mortally wounded" by the indictments against the Colombo crime family.

It was one of the few times in law enforcement history "that the entire top echelon of a major organized crime family has been charged in a single federal indictment," Smith said in a news conference.

The 51-count federal racketeering indictment returned Wednesday named 11 men, including Colombo family boss Carmine Persico, underboss Gennaro Langella and adviser and former family head Thomas DiBella.

The Colombo family "controls no fewer than seven key union organizations" in New York and "strongly influences both the construction and restaurant industries in this city," Smith said.

The indictment alleges "extortion and payoffs, mob control of labor unions, embezzlement of union funds, trafficking in heroin and other drugs, multimillion-dollar thefts, illegal gambling, loansharking and bribery."

Meanwhile, in the second day of testimony before the commission, witnesses described the Yakuza as a network of groups whose members cover their bodies with tattoos as a sign of discipline and chop off fingers to atone for mistakes.

The 100,000-member network is moving into Hawaii, California, Nevada, Colorado and New York, said James Harmon, the commission's director. Yakuza crimes include gambling, murder, extortion and gun-and-drug-running, he said.

Government employee nabbed for kidnapping

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist authorities have arrested an employee of the Interior Ministry, which controls the nation's police and internal security, in connection with the abduction of a pro-Solidarity priest six days ago.

The official PAP news agency said Wednesday authorities had detained five people who were thought to be driving cars similar to the one used by abductors of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko. It said four of them were released after they explained where they had been.

It identified the man authorities were holding only as "Grzegorz P. from Warsaw, an Interior Ministry functionary."

The news agency also reported that two militiamen from the Baltic port of Gdansk were arrested for providing "information on Poland's security" to "underground structures."

The report did not indicate whether the underground was affiliated with Solidarity, the banned free trade union; whether the arrests were connected to the investigation into Popieluszko's kidnapping; or some other organization was involved.

Arrest of the Interior Ministry employee came as Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and Solidarity's underground leadership issued a statement condemning the activities of the Polish police.

"A state in which law and order is commonly broken, in which security forces serve only the interests of the authorities and are not submitted to any social control" may lead to "unpredictable results," the statement said.

"Victims of martial law, killed or repressed by alleged defenders of righteousness in strikes, peaceful manifestations in churches, are now joined by a priest kidnapped by 'unknown' perpetrators," it added.

The Solidarity statement said Communist authorities bear responsibility for the abduction of the Warsaw priest.

"This kidnapping is not an isolated event," it said. "The responsibility for the results of the existing situation will lie with the authorities."

There still was no word Wednesday on the whereabouts of the 37-year-old Popieluszko, one of the most outspoken priests in Poland who frequently defended the ideals of Solidarity in his sermons.

In a related development, Walesa and other senior Solidarity figures said they did not support calls for 10-minute work stoppages and strike preparations contained in leaflets circulating in Warsaw factories.

Stamford to speak

Richards breakfast slated

Congressman Charles Stenholm of Stamford will be the principal speaker at a "Breakfast for Don Richards" fund-raiser in Hereford Saturday at 8 a.m. in K-Bob's Restaurant.

Leaders of the Agriculture Committee for Don Richards are sponsoring the breakfast, and it will be a tri-county event with farmers and citizens of Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties encouraged to attend, according to breakfast chairman B.K. Buske of Friona.

Buske explained that the breakfast will be the main fund-raising event for the Richards campaign in the northern part of the 19th Congressional District. The committee is requesting contributions of $10 a plate to cover the expenses of the meal.

"We are pleased that Congressman Stenholm will be able to attend this breakfast for Richards," said Buske. "Stenholm is a member of the powerful House Ag Committee and chairman of the Conservative Democratic Forum, otherwise known as the Boll Weevils," said Buske.

Stenholm is scheduled to speak on the prospects for the 1985 farm bill, according to Buske. He said there is no more important issue to this area than legislation "which will have such a dramatic impact on the future of our farm economy."

Religion, Politics

In our country — in most countries religion and politics are inseparable, always have been.

Priests, pastors and rabbis involved themselves in the anti-war campaign of McGovern, the civil-rights position of Humphrey — nor were they the first.

A.D. Clovis, King of the Franks, victorious over Alamanni, accepted the Nicene Creed, invoked the God of the Christians.

And he had his armies marched to the river in battalions and baptized by platoons.

Three thousand pagans thus "came across" in one afternoon.

Two thousand years ago. Americans have equated "patriotism and God" since there was an America.

Politicians have sought to claim God's guidance since the first politician.

Nor is the present power struggle ours alone. Pope John Paul in Central America declares church over state authority when it comes to abortion, divorce, church schools.

In Washington, urging legalizing abortion, is the National Coalition of American Nuns.

In Britain, the Church of England has broken centuries of a political tradition, challenging that government on its handling of the coal miners' strike.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Robert Runcie, spiritual head of 64 million Anglicans, says, "It is impossible for the church not to be involved in politics."

Here at home, how can one imagine that religion and politics need not overlap when ballot-box issues include school prayer, abortion, tax relief for private schools?

More than any other factor presently pulling Americans apart on this issue is the more than ever intrusion into politics of religious conservatives who, under the leadership of Jerry Falwell, have become both powerful and overt.

This worries Norman Lear who fears "fundamentalists want to impose their religious views on others." History says it can happen. Any faction which becomes too powerful — including any church — demands conformity.

But conversely, any society without a living body of beliefs is vulnerable to moral, social and cultural decay.

It's the cartoonists who are best able to reduce such an issue to its right size:

The Copley cartoonist Steve Kelly pictures Walter Mondale, Jesse Jackson and Jimmy Carter standing side-by-side.

Carter is wearing a born-again lapel button.

Mondale is saying, "Republicans just don't respect the separation of church and state."

Jesse Jackson is saying, "Amen, brother Mondale."

Carter is saying, "Hallelujah!"

Now You're Cookin'

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

What club allows a woman to get out and meet with all of her friends as well as to learn something new at every meeting—something about citizenship, safety, cooking and sewing?

For Naomi Brisendine, the North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club allows her to do all of that and more.

"We learn something new every time," Mrs. Brisendine said. "I think I enjoy most, though, visiting with all of my friends."

Mrs. Brisendine's next-door neighbor had been in extension homemakers clubs for many years and encouraged Mrs. Brisendine to be involved, too. So, when her youngest son reached an age where she could find the time for a club, she joined. Presently, she had been in this club for 11 years.

Mrs. Brisendine is not simply a member of the club—she is actively involved. She is president of her club this year and has been president twice before.

"Nearly everybody in the club has an office," Mrs. Brisendine explained. "I think all of us have been officers at one time or another."

She has also been TEHA chairman, a position in which she brings state business back to the council. Each council is composed of the president and a delegate from each club within a county.

In addition, she has been to state meetings twice.

"At the state meetings," Mrs. Brisendine said, "we go to workshops on how to present a program to the club. Hereford has three delegates that go each year. This year there were about 800 people at the convention."

Mrs. Brisendine explained that homemaking clubs started during the depression to teach people how to can food. Today, the clubs still teach people the canning process but have expanded the programs to include other aspects of homemaking.

"Our programs come from the state," Mrs. Brisendine explained. "The club has a choice for a program twice a year and in our club Louise Walker (county extension agent) gives a program once a month."

The North Hereford Extension Homemakers meet twice a month as compared to the many clubs which meet only once a month. Extension clubs do not meet during the summer.

Mrs. Brisendine said that she felt the benefits of the club include getting out among people and helping young homemakers.

"It is really educational," Mrs. Brisendine said in explaining why the club is so helpful for young women. "It teaches basics like sewing and cooking."

Besides her involvement with the club, Mrs. Brisendine loves to read. "I like historical novels best, but I read just about anything," she said. "The longer the book, the better I like it."

She also enjoys working in the yard and crocheting. She and her husband attend First United Methodist Church.

The Brisendines have four children. Lynn, the oldest son, is the publisher for the newspaper in Brownfield. He and his wife have three children. Diann, who lives in California where her husband is stationed at Xandenberg Air Force Base, has two boys.

Mickey and his wife have three little girls, and Trent, their youngest son, lives in Amarillo.

Mrs. Brisendine also likes to cook, but says that she does not do as much cooking now as when the children were home. She does, however, have a variety of good-sounding recipes to share.

That unpleasant aroma of a skunk comes from an oily liquid the skunk uses as a defense against enemies. The oil, known as "mercaptan," is stored in the two scent glands under the animal's tail. The skunk does not like the smell either, and tries not to get the offensive liquid on its own fur.

Panel answers questions concerning abortion issues

Over two hundred residents attended the meeting sponsored by Pro Family-Pro Life in the Community Center Tuesday evening.

The organization, headed by Michelle Brisendine and Romilda Friemel, presented a film showing the development of a baby from conception to birth.

Following the film, the panel of speakers made brief speeches and then answered questions from the audience. The panel consisted of Dr. Howard Johnson, R.C. Hoelscher, Mary Jo Monroe, counselor with the Amarillo, Right to Life, and John Smithee, Republican candidate.

During the discussion, Dr. Johnson stated that abortions in Hereford were not performed on an arbitrary basis, and that all of the community's physicians respected life.

The panel continued throughout the evening to answer questions from the audience concerning the legislative, legal and medical aspects of abortion.

Seek professional help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever I hear or read of someone's symptoms I'm certain I have the same disease. Over the years I was sure I had a brain tumor, breast cancer, stomach cancer, heart trouble, Alzheimer's disease, hardening of the arteries, leukemia and just about every illness known to man.

When I start to imagine I am dying from some self-diagnosed illness I lose weight rapidly. A few months ago I dropped 30 pounds. My physician (who is sick of me) recommended a psychologist. He said my imaginary illnesses are the result of bottled rage.

I have developed a couple of phobias in the last few months and they are ruining my life. Please tell me what to do. I can't afford professional counseling and my husband is fed up with me and my foolishness.—Loony In Chicago

DEAR CHICAGO: People who have morbid anxieties about their health even though no organic illness is present are truly sick. They are hypochondriacs.

You say you can't afford a therapist. If you can keep running to your doctor with imaginary illnesses, you certainly should be able to see a psychiatrist who can help you find peace of mind and put an end to your living hell. Some insurance policies will pay a percentage of psychiatric services.

In addition to the therapy, I recommend Recovery, Inc. (Look in your telephone book.) Recovery, Inc. has helped thousands of people...and it's free.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is my second marriage, and a happy one. My husband's ex-wife is 36 years old, opinionated and spoiled. They had one son.

It is apparent that the boy is growing up to be opinionated like his mother, stubborn and nasty. If my child (a girl) got into half the things this boy did, I would straighten her out in a hurry.

It seems the boy is the only thing my husband and I fight about. He thinks I want to get the kid in trouble, which is not true. I admit I don't like being around him. He is sassy, ill-mannered and knows I can see right through him.

I don't see anything good coming out of this. Do you?—Trouble In The Bay Area

DEAR TROUBLE: Not as the situation stands. I assume the boy lives with his mother. Is it possible to suggest counseling for the child without starting World War III? The kid sounds like he needs to talk to a professional about his anxieties. Rest assured, he is no happier than you.

I have said it before and I'll say it again. Nine times out of ten when second marriages fail it is because of the children from a previous marriage. Invariably, the spouse sides with his (or her) kids and the marriage goes down the drain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading about some chewing gum that is supposed to help people stop smoking. Does it work?—Three-

Use meat soon

DEAR POLLY — How long can ground meat be kept in the refrigerator after bringing it home from the store? — MARY LOU — Ground meat should be used within 24 hours of purchase. Solid cuts of meat, such as steaks, chops and roasts, can be kept refrigerated for two to three days. Fresh chicken should be used within one to two days. Meat that has been frozen and thawed should be kept refrigerated no more than one to two days after thawing. Follow these guidelines and you'll always be assured of fresh, high-quality meat. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When I strip any floor that requires liquid wax, I put two coats on, let it dry thoroughly, then polish and buff with a floor polisher. The longer you buff, the harder the shine. Then, I can just damp mop and buff again weekly. My floors always look lovely with no wax buildup. They are shiny, but not slippery. — MRS. S.M.

DEAR POLLY — I always seem to poke a hole in or get a run in nylons that do not have reinforced toes, especially if I walk some distance. Today I thought of a great solution to this problem. I donned a pair of peds before putting on my nylons. A long walk caused no runs or holes. — MRS. E.D.

DEAR POLLY — For safety, I insert the tips of my sharp kitchen knives into corks before storing them in my utensil drawer. — KAREN

DEAR POLLY — I have found that I can save money when using teabags. You usually can get more than one cup from each bag, so I wrap the teabag in a sandwich bag after using it and put it in the freezer. Then when I want another cup of tea, I use the frozen bag. It's good as new. — V.M.

DEAR POLLY — Ever have marshmallows that were stuck together? Remove them from the bag, separate and put a tablespoon or so of powdered sugar into the bag. Return about half the marshmallows to the bag, hold the end shut and shake so the powdered sugar covers the marshmallows. Repeat for the other half. The marshmallows may now be kept for a while longer without sticking. — ESTHER

Rebekah Lodge to sponsor Walk

Under the direction of Ben Conlin, team captain, Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 conferred the Rebekah Degree on Jo Irlbeck Tuesday evening in a beautiful ceremony.

Lauretta Brookfield of Friona Rebekah Lodge No. 308 assisted the Hereford team. Irlbeck was welcomed as a new member.

A "Toy Walk" will be sponsored by the lodge at the Rotary Club Halloween Carnival on Oct. 31. If anyone has not bought a toy donation, please bring them to the next meeting.

Due to the time change on Sunday, meetings will open at 7:30 p.m. for the winter months.

Slesick speaks to Art Guild

The Hereford Art Guild met Tuesday morning for their annual membership coffee in the Banquet Room of the Community Center with Carmen Angel, Lottie Wertenberger and Shirley Browns serving as hostesses.

The meeting was opened by Carrie Mae Doak, president. Audrey Rusher, secretary, called the roll with each member responding with their reason for liking this season of the year.

Doak conducted a short business meeting after which the program chairman Leota Cook introduced Len Slesick, meteorologist for KGNC, Channel 7 in Amarillo.

Slesick is an impressionist artist and uses oil as his medium of expression. He has studied with, among other teachers, two well-known artists from this area, Ben Konis and Dard Fitz.

He gave the limited palette he uses and his reason for using certain colors. He said that earth colors if not handled without over working make a flat muddy area.

Slesick also recommended several books for reading and studying pleasure, including "The Natural Way to Draw" by Nicolaides, "Drawings on the Right Side of the Book" by Betty Edwards and "Animal Painting and Anatomy" by Frank Calderom.

After the program, the members and guests were invited to view the work of the Artists of the Month, Rusher and Eunice Petersen.

Those visiting were Margaret Young, Faye Wright, Ruby Stevenson, Margaret Moffet, Juanita Perrin, Lorene Newman, Georgia Andrews, Ethel Broxton, Grace Tinnin and Marguerite Newell. Twelve members were present.

Whitefaces still battling for survival

Herd, Bulldogs renew rivalry

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

When the Hereford Whitefaces and Plainview Bulldogs meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday, a rivalry that is just as close as it is heated will be renewed in Plainview's Bulldog Stadium.

The Whitefaces, currently 3-2 in District 3-5A competition, and Bulldogs, who recently clinched a tie for the league crown at 6-0 in loop play, have split the past 14 games at seven apiece. Plainview, however, holds the lifetime advantage in the series that dates back to 1966, 15-8.

Both Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor and Plainview football coach Greg Sherwood agree that this year's contest may be another close one.

"Hereford-Plainview is a healthy rivalry," Taylor said. "There is a lot of tradition on both sides, and it should be a well-played football game."

Sherwood said, "I think this will be a good game. Both teams have great fan support, and the stands probably will be split down the middle on which team has the most (at the game)."

For the Whitefaces, the situation is similar to the one Hereford was facing last week. With only three games remaining on the schedule, the Herd finds itself in a must-win situation if it is to have a realistic chance at post-season play. Hereford is tied for second place in league play with Palo Duro and Amarillo.

"We've got to win to stay in the playoff picture," Taylor said. "I guess there still would be possibilities at getting in the playoffs if we lost, if some things happened a certain way, but it's better to win than to count on that."

Taylor knows he and the Whitefaces have their work cut out for them, though. The Herd must crack the district's No. 1 defense to score, and must stop Bulldog running backs Ronnie Bradic and Scooter Billington to keep Plainview from scoring.

Bradic currently is averaging more than 100 yards per game from his tailback position in the Bulldogs' wing-T formation. Billington compliments Bradic by gaining nearly 75 yards a game.

"Plainview has been winning because of their defense, their play-action passes and the running of Ronnie Bradic," Taylor said. "He (Bradic) is an outstanding football player.

"How do we stop them? We gang tackle Bradic, and we'd better be gang tackling everybody."

The Bulldog defense has allowed only 42 points in seven games this season, including three shutouts. Plainview is giving up 165.4 yards per outing.

Two sophomores and a freshman are starting for the Bulldog defense. Willie Ansley, a 6-0, 161-pound defensive halfback, is the freshman on the unit.

"Knowing that we were going to have to play with three younger kids from the first of the season might be the reason we were picked so low," Sherwood said.

Plainview's was ranked as high as third in some preseason polls, but also as low as fifth. Sherwood said Ansley said had intercepted four passes this fall.

The two sophomores for Plainview's defense are linebackers Jimmy Poorman (6-0, 172) and Bobby Gibson (5-11, 187).

"I surely wouldn't say Plainview's defense is down any," Taylor said when asked if the last two ball games are an indication. "The most points scored on them by any one team has been 14, and that's been by two of the top teams in the district."

Two weeks ago, Plainview defeated Amarillo 20-14 and last week beat Coronado 25-14.

Sherwood said his Bulldogs might have a difficult time themselves scoring against the Herd defense. Bradic and Billington would find the going tougher against the likes of David Parsons, Lee Brockman, Augustine Castillo and company, he said.

"I don't think we can run right at them," he said. "But we feel like nobody will be able to run, run, run right at Hereford. They have a very strong defense."

"We're also going to have to stop (quarterback Mike) Scott and (receiver Sammy) Suarez to beat them. Hereford has always had a great quarterback, but Scott is the best one I've seen at Hereford."

Scott and Suarez have hooked up for 17 completions, 294 yards and five touchdowns in 1984. Overall, Scott is 43 of 96 with only five interceptions. His counterpart for the Bulldogs, Chad Engelhardt, has hit on 35 of 78 passes, also with five interceptions.

Will the Bulldogs be up for the game, knowing they can win the league crown outright? Or will they be relaxed?

"I don't think either one," Taylor said. "They'll just come out and do their business and play like they have all year."

Other 3-5A games this week find Monterey and Lubbock in an intracity battle today in Lubbock, Palo Duro hosting Lubbock Friday, and Amarillo playing Tascosa Saturday.

On the Ball

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Friday's Hereford-Plainview football game in Plainview is not just another ball game, Plainview is not just another team, and the Herd-Bulldog rivalry is not just another series.

The Whitefaces are fighting for their lives in District 3-5A competition. The Bulldogs, on the other hand, can wrap up sole possession of the District 3-5A title with a win. Who wants it the most? That's the question.

"We know Hereford has to win to have a chance of getting in the playoffs," Plainview football coach Greg Sherwood said. "They're going to be ready."

Let's say the Herd does beat Plainview. The win over Plainview doesn't guarantee the Whitefaces a playoff spot, however.

Entering this week's games, Hereford, Amarillo and Palo Duro all are tied for second with two district losses each. If either Amarillo or Palo Duro winds up the season before losing another game, no matter what Hereford does, Amarillo or Palo Duro will be in the runner-up playoff position from District 3-5A.

Both the Sandies and Dons defeated the Whitefaces and, as a result, would get the post-season berth over Hereford.

But no one is assuring the Sandies or Dons of finishing the season without an additional loss, either.

First of all, one of the teams definitely will not win the remainder of its games. Amarillo and Palo Duro square off Nov. 3 in a game that most likely will leave one of them with three league losses. They could tie, and that would be better anyway — at least from Hereford's standpoint. Palo Duro also must play Lubbock Friday and Coronado Nov. 9. Besides playing Palo Duro, Amarillo faces Tascosa Saturday and visits Lubbock Nov. 9.

"Things are beginning to get interesting," Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor said. "We've got to win tonight to have a realistic shot at the playoffs, though."

Watson target as season ends

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Tom Watson is the target for the men who are struggling for some of golf's most prestigious honors this week in the season-concluding $300,000 Pensacola Open.

But, while Denis Watson, Andy Bean and Mark O'Meara are involved in the last-gasp race for such honors as leading money-winner, the Vardon Trophy and Player of the Year, there's another, equally-intense struggle in progress.

He's No. 125 on the year's money-winning list. And, that's the cutoff position for touring pros to retain their full playing rights for next year. It's a simple formula: complete the year in the top 125 and your playing rights are assured. Finish below that position and it's a choice between dropping off the Tour or returning to the qualifying school.

The key figures in that race are Tommy Valentine (No. 123, with $39,850), Brett Upper (No. 124, $36,849), Bryant (No. 125, $36,805), Bill Sander (No. 128, $35,697) and Steve Liebler (No. 130, $35,172).

Potter has poor outing

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — The United States Wightman Cup prospects, already hit by the enforced absence of Kathy Jordan, the world's No. 5 player, were dimmed further following a lackluster performance by Barbara Potter in the $175,000

Pretty Polly Women's Tennis Classic.

Jordan withdrew Tuesday because of a stress fracture injury to a toe on her left foot, while Potter lost in the second round to France's Catherine Tanvier 6-3, 6-3.

AP takes West Virginia over Penn St.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer
Penn State's Nittany Lions hope to extend their NCAA record for non-losing seasons to 46 years Saturday when they visit West Virginia.

Over the years, West Virginia has helped Penn's success. The Mountaineers have not beaten the Nittany Lions since 1955.

Surprisingly, West Virginia is a 2-point favorite with its 6-1 record to Penn State's 5-2, the home field advantage and the Mountaineers' 21-20 victory over previously unbeaten Boston College last week.

"We've never played well against them since we've become a good team," says WVU Coach Don Nehlen. "When we were a bad team, we played well against them because they thought we were lousy."

"Now they know we're good and it's a different ballgame. We have to take Penn State's best shot."

One of college football's longest stretches of futility may come to an end: West Virginia 21-14.

Last week's prediction record was 44 right and 11 wrong for a percentage of .800; for the season, 281-97-9-.743. Against the spread, last week's score was 20-16-1-.556; on the year, 112-107-4-.511.

Angels to attempt resigning Lynn

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

The California Angels apparently will make a serious attempt to resign free-agent outfielder Fred Lynn, although his agent says "it's impossible at this point to predict where he will play in 1985."

Lynn, who hit 23 homers and drove in 79 runs this year, filed for free-agency Wednesday along with Angels pitcher Don Aase, reliever Tug McGraw of Philadelphia and outfielder-designated hitter Oscar Gamble of the New York Yankees.

Jerry Kapstein, Lynn's agent, said he had talked with several clubs about Lynn already. He said he also had talked with the Angels General Manager Mike Port on Wednesday and probably would talk him again on Thursday.

Lynn was platooned in the Angels outfield until August. He finished with a .270 average in 518 at-bats.

"There are places where Fred could go that he would be playing every day, based on my conversations with other clubs," Kapstein said.

Clubs have until Nov. 5 to re-sign free-agent players.

BALL

With Amarillo facing the two cellar dwellers of District 3-5A in addition to Palo Duro, the lesser of two evils for Hereford seems to be for Palo Duro to beat the Sandies. Lubbock is riding a two-game winning streak, however, with an upset of Monterey and a win over Tascoosa. The Westerners play host to Amarillo in their meeting.

"Stranger things have happened, I guess," Taylor said. "It's getting interesting, to say the least."

Hereford would not be out of the race with a loss to Plainview, but its chances would be dimmed considerably. If the Whitefaces only had an extra man.

Extra man?

There is a feeling a football player has when his parents, relatives, friends and acquaintances are in the stands cheering. There also is a feeling a football player has when only a few people are in the stands cheering. The latter feeling is called dejection.

Fans are the extra man on a squad. Maybe that's corny. Maybe it's superstition. But maybe it's not.

Plainview will have its extra man at the game Friday. It would be a shame, too, if Plainview played the game with an unfair advantage.

No, Hereford is not assured a playoff spot even with a win. But a loss almost assures a non-playoff spot.

Let's give Hereford an equal amount of players. See you at the game.

To start Sunday

Landry picks White

By CANDICE HUGHES Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Danny White says getting to start Sunday doesn't answer his questions about what kind of future he has with the Dallas Cowboys.

"This is kind of a Band-Aid and not really a cure," White said after hearing the news about his return to a starting role on the radio driving home from practice.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said Wednesday that White, replaced by Gary Hogeboom as Dallas' No. 1 quarterback at the beginning of the National Football League season, would start Sunday against the Indianapolis Colts.

Landry said he was impressed with White's performance against the New Orleans Saints last Sunday, when White came off the bench to rally Dallas to a 30-27 overtime victory.

"We thought after the game the other night that he deserved a chance to start," Landry said.

It was the third time in a row White has replaced Hogeboom, who injured a hand in the Saints game.

Earlier this week, Landry said he wanted to see how Hogeboom threw with a bruised hand before deciding whether to change starting quarterbacks.

After practice, Landry said Hogeboom will probably be able to play Sunday. He said his decision to start White hinged on the veteran's performance, not Hogeboom's injury.

"I said all along, since the start of the season, that we need both quarterbacks to win," Landry said.

Landry said Hogeboom was "disappointed" about not starting Sunday. He said he had not spoken with White.

"I guess I have mixed feelings," White told The Associated Press.

"I'm happy for the opportunity. But it's not a solution to the question that I've been trying to deal with."

That, he said, is what's going to happen on a permanent basis.

"That's really what I'm interested in. I don't know when he'll (Landry) make that decision or even if he'll make it before the end of the year," said White, who was backup to Roger Staubach until 1980.

"I'm interested in getting with a team that wants to pay the price to get to the Super Bowl. I certainly hope it's the Cowboys. But I'm not at a point in my career where I'm willing to sit on a bench or alternate," White said.

Also on Wednesday, starting middle linebacker Bob Breunig was listed as doubtful for Sunday.

Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd said Breunig began having back spasms when he bent over to tie his shoelaces.

Bobby Vinton sells romance

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After rehearsing one day with a local band for a TV show, singer Bobby Vinton turned to the musicians and said admiringly: "If I make the big time, I'll take you with me."

Unfortunately for the ambitious musicians, they were 22 years too late.

Vinton, known as the "Polish Prince," has been "big time" since 1962 when his song "Roses Are Red" captivated the nation and set off a string of love songs that sold romance.

Today, the 49-year-old performer is making it big as a country music singer.

He has a country-styled record out, "No Bed of Roses," complete with whining steel guitar. And while recently visiting Nashville, he taped an appearance on "Hee Haw," the syndicated TV show featuring country music and corn pone comedy.

"I started as a country singer," he said. "I patterned myself after Patsy Cline; I use her style and feel, and no male pop singer ever did that. I've never told anybody that."

The late Miss Cline was a top country star in the early 1960s with such hits as "Walkin' After Midnight," "Crazy" and "I Fall to Pieces."

"People who listened to 'Top 40' 10 or 15 years ago are listening to country today," said Vinton, who lives in Santa Monica, Calif. "Country caught up with me."

In 1964, Vinton recorded "Blue Velvet" in Nashville using top country musicians including Boots Randolph and Floyd Cramer. Actor-musician Kris Kristofferson, then a fledgling songwriter, worked for CBS Records and drove Vinton to and from the Nashville airport.

Besides "Roses Are Red" and "Blue Velvet," Vinton's other hits included "Mr. Lonely," "My Melody of Love," "Blue on Blue," "I Love How You Love Me," "There, I've Said It Again" and "Please Love Me Forever."

He has earned more than a dozen gold records and albums and says he's sold more than 50 million records — his biography puts the figure at 25 million.

Lady Bird Johnson stumps for national center

HOUSTON (AP) — Former First Lady Lady Bird Johnson says the National Wildflower Center she helped start was designed to encourage citizens to plant wildflowers "so they'll still be with us in our world to preserve this heritage that our ancestors enjoyed."

"This world is filling up with folks. All those fields I (used to) enjoy are grids of houses, shopping centers and lots and lots of highways," Mrs. Johnson said Wednesday at a fundraiser for the center.

The widow of Lyndon B. Johnson said the wildflower center, located northeast of Austin, will also serve as a clearing house and research center for the 25,000 varieties of wildflowers found in the United States.

"We're trying to compact all that information and make it available to all who care — like developers and park people," Mrs. Johnson said, adding that "research is at the very heart of this (center). It's the nuts and bolts of it."

Mrs. Johnson, who said the center has developed 30 test wildflower plots across the state, said the center's employees learned about wildflower planting patterns during September, when the grounds were hard and dry.

"In October, the rains came, and we praised the Lord and were happy, but then they (the rains) kept coming," Mrs. Johnson said.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Slow weight loss

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 67 and have lost 30 pounds. I need to lose more and to tighten or develop my abdominal muscles. But I have to be very careful because of low back pain that runs down my left leg. Will walking help?

My doctor has me on Zyliprim to help control my uric-acid level.

DEAR READER — Since your doctor has you on medicine to control your uric acid, you should be very careful about how you lose weight. Rapid weight loss can precipitate an attack of gout. Starvation and low-calorie fad diets can cause gout attacks. You need to lose weight slowly on a well-balanced diet.

Walking is a wonderful exercise for many people. It helps to use calories and eliminate or prevent obesity, and it has many other health benefits as well. But don't expect walking to do too much to strengthen your abdominal muscles: Its main contribution to girth control is to help people get rid of fat. If you don't lose the excess pounds of body fat, no exercise program will help you get your waistline back to normal.

Walking on level ground does not use the abdominal muscles. To strengthen the abdominal muscles, they must be worked, preferably against resistance.

That is why situps and leg lifts usually are recommended to help reduce the waistline. But you need to be careful about leg lifts, particularly if you already have back pain. (Incidentally, the exercises you use to strengthen your abdominal muscles will also help prevent back problems.)

You should have your doctor look at the exercise program I am recommending to you to be sure it is all right for you. It is discussed in The Health Letter 17-12, Winning the Battle of the Bulge, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine contracted Oriental sprue while traveling in the Far East and has not been able to find a cure. What causes this disease, and is there any known cure for it?

DEAR READER — You probably mean tropical sprue. The cause is not known, but there is evidence that it might be caused by an infection that interferes with absorption through the small intestine. The poor absorption of food may cause bulky stools, weight loss and deficiencies of iron, calcium and vitamin B-12.

The best treatment is usually antibiotics, such as tetracycline, plus folic acid and vitamin B-12 shots. The folic acid and B-12 shots are used because as the disease progresses, it causes changes similar to pernicious anemia.

Most patients recover soon after beginning the combined therapy, but treatment may take months. How long the treatment must be continued depends a lot on how the patient responds. It is common to have to continue to take increased amounts of folic acid even after there is an apparent remission of the disease.

Tropical sprue is not the same as nontropical sprue, which is caused by gluten intolerance — intolerance to most cereals, such as wheat, barley and oats.

A single colony of 500,000 weaver ants in tropical Africa, Asia, or Australia can maintain 150 nests in as many as 20 trees and patrol 1,600 square meters. It's one of the largest insect territories known, according to National Geographic.

Nueces County

Drought over but rationing continues

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Officials said recent heavy rains have helped end the drought for farmers and ranchers in Nueces County, but Corpus Christi residents will continue to have water rationed because little of the torrential downpour reached the watershed serving the city.

At least 90 percent of Nueces County agriculture land no longer suffers from drought, but the rains came too late to help parched corn, milo and cotton crops in 1984, said County Agricultural Agent Darwin Anderson.

He said milo and cotton yields were sharply reduced and half the corn harvest was lost to the drought. Pastures and hay were devastated and livestock produces were, in some cases, forced to sell their animals faster than they would have liked.

Anderson said the county had "pretty much reached an end to the drought" and was on the way to recovery.

Although farmers and ranchers felt relief from the rain, city residents will have to continue watching the amount of water they use, said Water Superintendent Paul Werner.

Heavy weekend rains in San Patricio County — which caused extensive flooding in Sinton and Odem — did not help fill Lake Corpus Christi or the Choke Canyon Reservoir north of town.

Lake Corpus Christi provides water for most Coastal Bend cities.

Lake levels have risen because of heavy rains about two weeks in the Nueces watershed, Werner said. But it is still too early to determine what impact the most recent rains will have on water customers.

The lake level Monday stood at 86.23 feet, about 52 percent full, he said. At capacity, the lake holds 272,000 acre feet of water, but at present contains about 143,000 acre feet.

The last time Lake Corpus

Christi's lake level was as high as this week was in April. At its lowest point, the lake dropped to 82.6 feet.

Meanwhile, dozens of families continued cleaning flooded out homes in Odem and San Patricio and awaited word on whether the San Patricio County would be declared a disaster area.

The American Red Cross has set up assistance centers Tuesday in Odem to help 751 flood-ravaged families with food, clothing and clean-up.

Mexican food dinner slated Saturday afternoon at FUMC

NOTICE
Energas Company hereby gives notice of its intent to implement new rates for domestic and commercial type customer classes residing in the unincorporated areas of its West Texas System. It is anticipated that the new rates will result in approximately a two tenths of one percent (.2%) increase in Energas Company's gross revenues, which increase is not a "major change" as defined in Section 43(b) of Article 1446c, V.A.T.C.S. A Statement of Intent to change said rates was filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas on or about September 21, 1984, and is available for inspection at the Company's Amarillo office, 301 S. Taylor Street. Further information may be obtained from the Railroad Commission of Texas, Gas Utilities Division, P.O. Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

The proposed increase will not become effective until or except to the extent that the same rates are approved for service within the municipalities on the West Texas System.

Knowledge of dump sites breeds opposition

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A widespread campaign to educate the public on nuclear waste disposal could backfire since the more people they know about dump sites the more opposition they feel, according to a study conducted by the state agency regulating disposal of low-level nuclear waste.

Texas A&M University's Public Policy Resource Lab surveyed by telephone 998 people living in 12 Texas counties under consideration as waste disposal sites.

Eighty percent of those polled opposed locating a dump in their county.

The survey was commissioned by the Texas Low-level Nuclear Waste Disposal Authority.

Results of the survey were analyzed and summarized by Dr. David B. Hill and Dr. James A. Dyer to help state officials determine public attitudes and decide which method of disposal would be most acceptable to Texans.

The margin of error varied from county to county because an unequal number of interviews were done each, but "when you're talking about 80 percent, margins of error aren't too important," Dyer said.

Respondents feared environmental contamination that could lead to cancer and other public health problems, according to the survey summary published by the Laredo Times.

The concerns expressed by those surveyed extended to every segment of the population, male and female, young and old, Anglo and Hispanic, high and low income groups, Dyer said.

He said a similar survey conducted statewide last summer showed attitudes consistent with those revealed in the 12-county study.

The study summary suggested that "given the depth of opinion on the issue, it is doubtful that any public information campaign can reverse the tide of opposition."

The survey found that those who think they know the most about radioactive waste are the most strongly opposed to locating a dump in their county.

The analysts noted "...the perception of being informed is not systematically related to the support for the site, but it is related to opposition.

White says

One-third of revenue acceptable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Mark White says a one-third share for Texas would be a "fair and equitable" solution to a continuing dispute over dividing offshore oil revenues with the federal government.

White previously had suggested that the state and the federal government split the revenues 50-50.

Over $5 billion in revenues from leases off the shores of seven coastal states is being held in escrow because of the dispute. Congress decided in 1978 to create a new class of offshore leases, with the revenues to be shared jointly. But Congress didn't specify how to divide the money.

On Dec. 5, 1872, a British ship encountered the Marie Celeste midway between the Azores and Cape Roca on the Portuguese coast. The ship was seaworthy, but totally abandoned and derelict. Her chronometer, papers and boat were missing, but there were no signs of a struggle. The fate of the crew remains an unsolved mystery.
