

Argentine Head Quits; POWs to Sail

By The Associated Press
Gen. Leopoldo F. Galtieri, ousted as army commander because of the Falklands defeat, said he will quit today as Argentina's president.
Interior Minister Alfredo Saint Jean takes over as interim president, but expectations are he will be succeeded either by the foreign minister or the air force chief.
"The generals ... want me to resign, which I am willing to do today to maintain the unity of the army and the armed forces," Galtieri told reporters at 4 a.m. before retiring for his final night in the Pink House, the presidential palace in Buenos Aires.

Galtieri's ouster Thursday as army commander cost him his seat on the three-man ruling-junta of army, navy and air force chiefs. His departure from the presidency was considered certain from that time.
Meanwhile, Britain said it was given a guarantee of safe passage for British ships to return Argentine prisoners from the Falkland Islands directly to Argentina, and a spokesman for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the ships were expected to sail later in the day.

However the spokesman said no assurance had yet been received that Argentina considered hostilities in the Falklands at an end. Lacking that assurance, a number of higher-ranking prisoners would remain British prisoners, he said.

There was no indication which port would be the destination for the Canberra, carrying some 4,000 Argentine prisoners, most of them young conscripts, and the Norland, with another 1,000 aboard. Officials said the ships would have to make other runs to complete the repatriation of more than 10,000 prisoners taken when the Argentine garrison on the Falklands surrendered Monday.
Four thousand Argentine prisoners waiting to leave the freezing Falklands on the British ship Canberra clapped and cheered when they heard of Galtieri's ouster, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported today.
Gen. Cristino Nicolaides, 57 a hardliner who heads the Buenos Aires-based 1st Army Corps, succeeds Galtieri as commander of the army and its representative on the junta, despite what military sources said was only partial backing for him among influential officers.
Interior Minister Alfredo Saint Jean, an army general, will succeed Galtieri as interim president under the Argentine constitution's rule of succession.
Military sources stressed, however, that Saint Jean's presidency would be brief because of his close links with Galtieri. The independent Argentine news agency DYN said Galtieri and Saint Jean were the only officers among the ruling military who wouldn't admit the undeclared Falklands war was over.

Sources close to the government told The Associated Press the leading candidates for president were Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez and air force chief, Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo.
Lami Dozo, the most liberal of the junta members, is highly respected because of the heavy damage his pilots inflicted on British ships during the fighting.

Costa Mendez also is enjoying increased prestige for developing a compromise plan to repatriate captured Argentine troops via neighboring Uruguay, circumventing Galtieri's refusal to guarantee British ships safe passage to Argentina.

The Argentine Foreign Ministry announced a few hours after Galtieri's ouster Thursday that it had asked to launch a joint repatriation effort today with Britain and the International Red Cross.
A British Foreign Office spokesman said his government was "considering" Argentina's request to dispatch the hospital ships Bahia Paraiso and Almirante Irizar and the naval auxiliary ship Cambo San Antonio to fetch home stranded troops.

The British domestic news agency Press Association said that if Argentine authorities do not formally surrender in the Falklands, hundreds of captured Argentine officers may be shipped to Britain and held in prisoner of war camps.

Foreign Trade Surplus Up; Defaults Increase

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer
The United States has recorded its best foreign-trade surplus since last spring, and layoffs in the automobile industry are down — all good signs for an economy trying to fight its way out of recession.
But, on the dark side, another report Thursday said more American companies collapsed last week than in any week since the Depression.
The Commerce Department reported a $1.2 billion surplus in the government's broadest measure of foreign trade in the first three months of the year.
Government officials said the surplus, which contrasted with a $927 million deficit in the final 1981 quarter, was due largely to the recession, which held down imports of foreign goods. They conceded the improvement was not a result of any resurgence in foreign trade competitiveness.

The foreign trade report, however, seemed to support Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige's recent prediction the overall balance of payments will show its third straight yearly surplus in 1982.
Meanwhile, domestic car-makers said indefinite layoffs edged downward this week to 223,355, while temporary layoffs dropped to 6,200 as workers at three Chrysler Corp. plants returned to work.
Business failures in the week ended June 11 soared 70.5 percent to 532 from 312 in the comparable week last year, Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

said. The previous record was 530 for the week ended May 6.
Last week's 532 failures was the highest since the weekly average of 612 recorded in 1932, Dun & Bradstreet said.
In other developments:
—The Cleveland Press printed its last edition Thursday, making it the sixth major afternoon newspaper to fold in the last year. Publisher Joseph Cole said the 103-year-old paper, the first daily founded by E.W. Scripps, had to close because of insufficient advertising revenue. It employed 900 people.
—The dollar, boosted by continued high interest rates, established new peaks in relation to several major foreign currencies.

Gatlin Texan of Year

Grammy Award winning singer-songwriter Larry Gatlin has been named "Texan of the Year" by the Texas Press Association and will be present at the group's annual summer convention in San Antonio later this month to accept his award.
Gatlin is only the thirteenth Texas native to be given the award, a unique plaque designed and painted by noted Austin artist Randolph Moerke. The presentation will be made by TPA President O.G. (Speedy) Nieman of Hereford at a luncheon Saturday, June 26, at The Inn at Turtle Creek.
Born in 1948 in Seminole, Texas, Larry is the oldest of the three Gatlin Brothers and the son of an oil driller. By the age of seven, he was already accompanying younger brothers, Steve and Rudy, in songs at family and church events. Larry even began writing his own religious lyrics to pop songs as a youngster.

The Gatlin Brothers continued to sing together throughout their school years, winning numerous talent contests and eventually performing on a weekly television show in Abilene for two years.
By going off to the University of Houston on a football scholarship, Larry was, for the first time, separated from his brothers. After graduating with a degree in English, Gatlin began studying toward a law degree until his love for music interceded.
He toured with a gospel group, the Imperials, who once worked for Elvis Presley. On the tour, Gatlin met singer Dottie West in Las Vegas; and upon his return to Houston, he sent her a tape of eight of his original songs.

Dottie recorded several of the tunes and sent plane fare for Larry to travel to Nashville and continue with his song-writing.
"If it weren't for Dottie

Larry Gatlin

West, I'd probably be a lawyer in Houston right now," he confesses.
Gatlin's original songs have, over the years since then, been recorded by such performers as Presley, Kris Kristofferson, Johnny Cash, Tom Jones, Tammy Wynette, Ray Price, Roy Orbison and the Oak Ridge Boys.
Having established himself as songwriter, Larry helped pave the way for his brothers to join him. "The truth is, we never really got back together because we were never really gone," Larry explains. "They were still in college, and I was the oldest one. Somebody had to take the lead, so I did."
In recent years, the Gatlins have earned numerous industry honors, including a Grammy for "Broken Lady"

Chamber Board Discusses Projects

BY O.G. NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher
Committee reports and discussion of upcoming projects highlighted a regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board of directors Thursday.
Vice President Bob Sims presided at the meeting in the absence of Bill Johnson. Sims also lead a discussion on the chamber's involvement in industrial development.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, made reports on the sports committee, the Fun Breakfast, Crazy Days activities, and an agricultural survey. Carolyn Canon, president of the Women's Division, reported on several projects planned by the ladies.

Hereford will host the Junior AAU Track and Field Meet June 26, reported Carr. The meet has been held in Borger for the past few years. It is expected to draw more than 600 young athletes, coaches and parents.
The Fun Breakfast is scheduled June 24 and will serve as a "kickoff" for Crazy Days activities being sponsored by the retail trade committee. Besides the usual Fun Breakfast activities, a contest will be held for the craziest-dressed persons at the breakfast.

Merchants will be offering bargains and fun during the Crazy Days sales promotion next week. The Hereford Brand and KPAN Radio will be publicizing the event.
Carr reported that the ag committee, chaired by John Perrin and Lynton Allred, has been conducting a farm survey to get input from farmers on solutions to their problems. Some 600 survey forms were mailed, and about 100 have been returned to date.

Results of the survey will be made public, and the information will be mailed to congressmen.
Mrs. Canon reported the Women's Division will introduce the Miss Hereford candidates at the Fun Breakfast next week. They will also be presented at the organization's quarterly meeting, set July 13 at the country club.
The division is also planning

Two deacons were having a social drink at a bar when they saw their preacher go by. One of them became very upset. "I surely hope he didn't see us," he said.
"What difference does it make?" his friend replied. "God knows we're in here."
"I know," said the first deacon, "but God won't tell my wife."

Many residents of Deaf Smith County may have noticed a fleet of strange looking trucks in town for the past few months. Several seismic crews have been operating out of Hereford, indicating the increase in oil and gas exploration.

Geo-Search Seismic Surveys, Inc. of Lubbock is one of the companies which has moved a crew into Hereford. A public relations man with the firm points out that such a crew provides a direct benefit to the local economy.

Consider what a 30-man crew expends in a month. Roughly, they spend approximately $750 per day for motel facilities, $450 a day for food, $600 a day for fuel, and about $100 a day for miscellaneous items such as hats, gloves, toiletries, etc.
If you include repairs to vehicles, parts and labor, permit fees to county land owners, and office supplies, another $2,800 per day is added to the total. That adds up to $4,700 a day or about $141,000 per month.

This spurs an interest in leasing activity, which in turn spurs a potential interest in drilling for oil. Now, if oil should be found, the economic benefits start mushrooming all around!

The next time you see one of those trucks, you know it means increases revenues in the county and, hopefully, it could be just the "tip of the iceberg."

Hance Blames Block

Farm Crisis Act Axed

WASHINGTON (Special) - U.S. Rep. Kent Hance Thursday accused Agriculture Secretary John Block of "robbing the family farmer of a chance to ease the depression conditions driving many over the brink of bankruptcy."
Hance leveled his charge

after the House Agriculture Committee, with strong urging from the Reagan administration, rejected the Farm Crisis Act of 1982 sponsored by Hance and Tom Daschle, D-South Dakota.
After four days of hearings and debate, the bill was put to a vote Thursday in the committee and failed to receive a majority. The final vote, 21-21, followed party lines, with 20 Democrats and one Republican voting for the bill and 18 Republicans and three Democrats voting against the measure. One member of the 43-member Agriculture Committee did not vote.

The Farm Crisis Act would have called for a White House Conference on Agriculture, a nationwide referendum in July on whether farmers would set aside 15 percent of their crop land for conservation purposes, establishment of an export credit revolving fund, government-guaranteed loans for on-farm storage facilities, the release of $600 million in Economic Emergency Loan Program funds and the Secretary of Agriculture expediting the bartering of U.S. agricultural commodities for strategic materials.

Rain, Hail Batter Area

A late-afternoon deluge dropped .49 of an inch of rain on the city of Hereford Thursday as a storm moved through the area dropping hail in some sections. The city airport reported rainfall of one inch, and a spokesman there said that hail covered the ground for awhile.

A mile-and-a-half north of the airport half an inch of rain fell, while Eldon Owens near Dawn reported 1.3 inches.

Meanwhile, the western section of the county apparently missed out on the moisture, pleasing wheat farmers in the area, who faced an interruption in the harvest.
Bruce Coleman near Bootleg Corner reported only a shower in that area.

Downpour

The city was deluged for a brief period Thursday afternoon as .49 of an inch of rain fell. Many low lying areas were swamped, and drivers had to make their way cautiously through the heavy rain and across flooded intersections. (Brand Photo).

Israelis Tighten Hold; Advance to 'Green Line'

By The Associated Press
Tightening their stranglehold on the bunkers of Yasser Arafat's besieged Palestinian guerrillas, Israeli troops moved into Christian east Beirut today and advanced to the "Green Line" frontier with predominantly Moslem west Beirut.
The Israeli infantrymen pushed closer to the guerrilla trenches in the west one day after Arafat challenged the Israelis to attack, vowing he would turn the Lebanese capital into their graveyard.

since this nation's 1975-76 civil war, guided their Israeli allies to the demarcation line, witnesses said.
The troops drove through the streets of east Beirut in armored personnel carriers and parked near checkpoints where civilian traffic moved unimpeded to and from west Beirut.
Black-bereted Lebanese army commandos checked identities under the watchful eye of the Israelis.
Most of the traffic was from west to east, as families sought to flee from a feared Israeli drive to crush the nerve center of the Palestine Liberation Organization in west Beirut.
The forward Israeli positions were within sight of Syrian army checkpoints on the west side of the green line, but there was no show of hostility between them. An Israeli-Syrian cease-fire has been in force for the past week.

In other parts of the shrinking Palestinian base, guerrillas were raising earth barricades across main avenues and planting minefields with the help of pneumatic drills.
There was no comment on today's advance from the military command in Tel Aviv.
Israel Radio said, meanwhile, that the Israeli government has decided to reject an urgent request by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to pressure the Christian Phalangists to lay down their arms.
Haig's proposal apparently

Brothel Garage Sale Takes Last Jab

By KATHY BAKER Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Yard sales are not unusual in this modest north San Antonio neighborhood, and a trickle of noon-time browsers picked up the usual items — old books and knick-knacks.
But no one gave serious consideration to the round bed with the price tag that said, "THE Original — $300." Sitting atop it was a sign that suggested, "Please Remove Your Clothes."
For 15 years, those who visited Theresa Brown's house did just that, and the garments they left behind hang on a clothes rack, testimony that a few customers left without even their pants.
On October 2, 1980, San Antonio's best-known brothel was closed down in a raid by FBI and vice squad officers.
The raid would not have

Clements' Choice of Mrs. Sondock For Court Irks Democratic Chairman

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican Gov. Bill Clements' choice of a Houston Democrat as the Texas Supreme Court's first full-time female judge has upset the chairman of the Texas Democratic Party.
Clements said he picked Mrs. Sondock, who he did not know, because he was told she is "beautifully qualified" for the job.
Slagle said Clements wants to "create a political climate of his choosing for us to operate in." The SDEC meets in Brownsville Saturday to pick a nominee. Kilgarlin is the favorite.
"We in the Democratic Party are not surprised by Gov. Clements' sudden sensitivity to women since he is running for re-election and is currently behind in the polls," said Slagle.
"Such sensitivity more often expressed in a less political context might have stood him in good stead with Texas voters. But I believe that they will see this act for what it is — a cynical gesture by a losing political candidate," he said.

In 'Candyman' Case

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor says she would review videotaped interviews before deciding whether to seek additional charges against a man accused of molesting one of 31 children he took on a candy-selling tour of West Texas.
Assistant District Attorney Carol Pennock said she will review statements and videotaped interviews today with 26 of the children.
Meanwhile, Bilal Muhammad Ali remained in the El Paso County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.
The 40-year-old San Antonio resident is charged with indecency with a child for allegedly fondling a 12-year-old girl who was one of his traveling candy sellers. Most

Fighting Jewess Image Fading During Israel's Lebanon Invasion

By MARCUS ELIASON Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's invasion of Lebanon is a frustrating reminder to Israeli women that the fighting Jewish female is a legend whose time has passed.
A large portion of Israel's male population has moved north into Lebanon, leaving behind many women who feel they should be doing more for the war effort.
"In a time of crisis, it often seems, the men have it easier," wrote Joanna Yehiel in Thursday's Jerusalem Post. "At least they know what they're doing and what it's worth."
"But for the other half of Israel's population — the female part — a time of crisis is often a time when their basic 'second sex' aspect is truly underlined."

Mrs. Yehiel's complaint reflected a basic and ironic condition of Israeli society. Middle East war, which fashioned the image of the Jewish woman combatant, tends to underline the second-class status of Israeli women.
In a country that had Golda Meir for prime minister, women's rights still have a long way to go. In some respects they have regressed. The present cabinet has no female ministers. The number of women in parliament has dropped with every election since 1973 and now stands at nine out of 120.
"Every military conflict here has the effect of reinforcing stereotypes of male superiority," says Dr.

Nitza Shapiro-Libai, the prime minister's adviser on the status of women.
"The army is seen as a masculine thing and this has a negative impact on the women, who are supposed to stay home and await the homecoming heroes," she said in an interview.
Israel's founders hoped that by drafting women into the army they would make them equals of men. But the reverse has happened. Many women spend their two years in uniform typing and making coffee, Hirsh Goodman, a veteran military reporter for the Jerusalem Post, says he has yet to visit an army officer and not be served coffee by a female soldier. One woman who went to court to fight the coffee-making chore lost her case.
Women have not fought in war since 1948, when they were vital for the out-numbered, untrained Israeli army fighting seven Arab states for Israeli independence.
The number of men and women in the Israeli army is secret but the London-based International Institute for Strategic Studies places the current combined figures at about 160,000.

In 1950, the army decided to stop using women in combat. Maj. Irit Atzmon, who runs the army's foreign media relations office in Tel Aviv, says the risk of women being captured and sexually assaulted is too great.
Mrs. Shapiro-Libai disagrees, saying, "The risk of male prisoners being tortured is just as high, and there have been cases of male prisoners being sexually abused as well."
She believes women should be allowed to fill any post they are capable of handling, and says there are more women in important positions in NATO than in the Israeli army.

Women are welcome to help send food packages and clean underwear to the troops at the front. But Mrs. Shapiro-Libai says that is just another reinforcement of the stereotype. "Women have been pushed farther and farther back from the front lines as the years have passed," she said.

Protests Expected Saturday At Juneteenth Celebration

MEXIA, Texas (AP) — Thousands of people will converge on a lakeside park Saturday — some to celebrate the 117th anniversary of the day Texas slaves learned they were free and some to protest last year's drowning of three black teen-agers, officials say.
Organizers of the Juneteenth celebration expect 40,000 people at the event instead of the usual 5,000 because of attention drawn to last year's incident when the three teen-agers drowned while in the custody of sheriff's deputies.
But Limestone County Sheriff Dennis Walker said he plans no increase in security.
Walker said deputies this year would set up a command post within 200 yards of the celebration in Booker T. Washington Park so that if anyone is arrested, they will not have to be taken across Lake Mexia.
The officers who were in the boat when it capsized — former deputy Kenny Elliott, reserve deputy Kenneth Archie and adult probation officer David Drummond — were acquitted April 17 on charges of negligent homicide in the drownings.
Two of the officers on the boat swam to shore and the third was rescued.
The drowning victims were Steven Lawrence Booker, 19, of Dallas and Mexia residents Carl Baker, 19 and Anthony Freeman, 18.

"Oh, that was for the lawyers who smoked pot," says Ms. Brown. "The girls would put it on as a joke. We had a set of rules that said no drugs."
Ms. Brown is somewhat bitter that she was advised to plead nolo contendere to the felony promotion of prostitution charge in 1980. Both her lawyers were on her trick list, she says.
She received a five-year probation sentence, but is appealing the case.
"There never is a victim. That's why I'm appealing," she said. "I don't care if I do get some time. I just want to make the point that the first and 14th amendments are being violated. I am working to see prostitution decriminalized."
Ms. Brown is militant about her cause, but saddened that the ensuing publicity over the raid spilled the secret she'd kept from her parents for 15 years.
"My father was very upset," she said, sitting in her home next door to the house where she ran her former business. "Communications have really broken down now."
She "worked" for five years herself, Ms. Brown said, before becoming Madame of her own establishment. "The girls" came to her from all over the state, she said, looking for a clean, safe place to entertain their "dates."
"The girls" never numbered more than three and they would work at Theresa's for only a week at a time.
"I had a three-month waiting list in here," Ms. Brown said. "Now all these girls are out on the streets instead of being in a house where they weren't being abused, they weren't getting cheated out of their money."
"I don't know why it is, but it took me three months to go next door" (after the raid), she said. "There's a lot of memories there — of the girls and the tricks and the good times we had."
She said she would "never" go back to her former career and is not sure how she will support herself now.
"After all the years I put in," she said, "I'm not even gonna get social security."
