Gov. Clements pushes his own education plan

AUSTIN (AP) - After two months of special sessions on court-ordered school finance reform, Gov. Bill Clements has sent lawmakers a no-new-taxes measure that he would sign into law.

"This bill will allow Texas schools to rank among the nation's finest," Clements said Wednesday, the first day of the third special session on school finance.

The Republican governor's effort comes after a rancorous struggle with the Democratic-controlled Legislature over his vow to veto any tax increase for school finance reform.

"It's a matter of personal pride and abstinence, in my opinion, that is standing in the way of a decent education bill for this state," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

There's little consensus but new impetus for obeying the Texas Supreme Court's order to make more money available to property-poor school districts: If lawmakers and Clements don't write a plan by June 1, a state judge is appointing a court master who will.

In the House, Rep. James Hury said he likely will introduce a tax bill this week, and it probably will be the same half-cent sales tax increase for schools that Clements vetoed Tuesday, the last day of the last special session.

But Hury, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said he would prefer that lawmakers first pass an equitable school finance measure, without new revenue.

He said he thinks that would force so much state money to flow from property-rich to property-poor school districts that even the governor would then support new state taxes. The school finance system relies on a combination of state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Hury, D-Galveston, said he also would be willing to talk about other money-raising options.

"He didn't like a half-penny. Maybe if we include some fees, maybe if we cut a little bit more, maybe if we reduce it to a quarter (cent) ... If there is something that's more palatable to them, we'd love to hear it," Hury said.

Clements' reform plan is being sponsored by Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, and Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas.

Clements said his plan is modeled after the one $555 million bill approved by lawmakers last session, but its price tag is lower. The legislative plan died when Clements vetoed the tax increase to fund it.

Clements' plan would cost about $250 million next school year. He outlined $267 million of options to pay for it, including cuts from other state budget areas and an increase in the fee for obtaining driving records.

If lawmakers want a more expensive plan, the governor said, he could support raising another $123 million by temporarily reducing the state's contribution to the Teacher Retirement System. He said there is enough money in the system that retired teacher benefits could be increased at the same time.

The Legislature in the last session was able to approve only $114 million in budget cuts for education, although Clements had presented a similar list then. Some lawmakers questioned whether the cuts proposed by the governor could be made.

Last session's legislative reform plan was filed again in the Senate and, with some changes, in the House.

Early vote heavy in county

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Many Deaf Smith County voters took advantage of the early voting period, which ended Tuesday, for the city, school and hospital board elections on Saturday.

County Clerk David Ruland reported that 742 persons had cast absentee ballots in the hospital board race, 692 persons voted early in the school board election and 662 voted absentee in the city election. Ruland said that if projections hold up from the early voting period before the March primary, there could be from 2,300 to 2,500 total votes cast in the election. That is almost 10 times more votes than were cast in the city election in 1989.

The March primary was the first time the "no excuses" absentee voting plan was in effect, and the early votes were 25 percent to 28 percent of the total votes cast.

Voters throughout the county are eligible to vote in the hospital board race, which has 10 persons challenging for 4 seats on the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors.

Those candidates, in the order they drew for the ballot, include John Perrin, Janic Granada, Donita Rule, Craig Smith, Stan Fry Jr., Valerie Fellhauer, Nancy Hill, Bert Parker, Diane Hoelscher and Boyd Foster. Smith is the only incumbent.

Long-time board members Margie Ford and Frank Zinser Jr., are not seeking re-election. There is an additional seat available in this year's election because the board is being expanded to seven members.

All voters in the Hereford Independent School District are eligible to vote for two at-large trustees. Incumbents Dennis Newton and John Fuston are running unopposed for the at-large seats. Sylvia Flores, trustee for Place

2, is also unopposed.

Hereford city voters have to decide between four candidates for two at-large posts on the city commission and a half-cent sales tax to fund economic development.

Ron Weishaar and former commissioner Emory Brownlow are challenging incumbents Paul Hamilton and Terry Langehennig for the two at-large posts. Place 2 Commissioner Irene Cantu and Place 4 Commissioner R. W. "Bud" Eades are unopposed.

At the bottom of the city ballot is Proposition No. 1, the sales tax issue. If approved, the sales tax in the city would be increased to eight percent. The new one-half percent would be used to fund economic development in Hereford.

Only goods that currently have sales tax on them would have the additional half-percent tax. A five-member board would be appointed by the city commission. The city commission, by law, is the only entity that can appoint the board. The board is answerable to the electorate through the city commission.

Several entities, including the city commission, Hereford school board, the Hereford Board of Realtors and the board of directors of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce have adopted resolutions supporting the proposition.

The sales tax funds could be used to recruit new industry and offer incentives, and could help establish a revolving loan fund or other aid and support to existing businesses here that want to expand. The five-member board would set final guidelines for using the funds, which have many stringent restrictions placed on them through state law.

SPS will offer credit

Southwestern Public Service Company has filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to credit $20.7 million to its Texas retail customers for savings in fuel costs.

Affected customers include residential commercial and industrial users.

A residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month would receive a one-time credit of $22.51. The proposed credit includes interest at an annual rate of 11.7 percent.

SPS expects to get swift approval on the filing, said Gerald Diller, SPS's group manager of rates and regulations.

"We hope to be able to apply the credit to July bills," Diller said. The credit would cover fuel expenses from April 1989 through March 1990.

Panhandle Division Manager Doyle Moore said continued savings in fuel expenses will help the area economy.

"SPS expends significant effort to keep its fuel expenses down," Moore said. "Since the cost of fuel makes up about half of an electric bill, that's very important to the customer. By continuing to be a low-cost producer of power, SPS is sending the message that this part of the country is a great place for relocating and expanding businesses."

With the change in absentee voting rules, a lot of folks have already voted in the city, school and hospital elections. If you're not one of those who voted early, however, please remember to vote Saturday at the Community Center.

There are some important races to be decided for positions on the city commission and the hospital board, and the city ballot also includes the much-discussed proposition on a half-cent city sales tax for economic development.

Your vote is an individual as your fingerprint--only you can cast your vote!

You can always tell when it's spring in West Texas--it's windy. Ken Brodnax, writing in the Odessa American, says native West Texans know the difference between wind and WIND. West Texans have developed resiliency because of typical spring weather.

"West Texans have a folksy way of talking about such things. It's part of the local charm. As a service station attendant said about the wind storm, 'Had to put rocks in my pocket just to stay on the ground.'"

Here are some other figures of speech to describe the wind:

--A fruitless mulberry tree was seen clinging to a nearby oak to keep from being uprooted.

--Hundreds of rose bushes had their thorns blown off.

--A politician making a speech was eating his words before the audience even heard them.

--A little old lady on an exercise bike passed a truck on I-40.

--Lubbock is now located on the outskirts of San Antonio.

--The two remaining governor candidates issued denials they had been making speeches in the area. Now, that's WIND!

DSGH will hold open house

Deaf Smith General Hospital will be celebrating Texas Hospitals Week with an open house Sunday from 2-4 p.m. Most departments will be open, and representatives will be on hand to answer questions and explain the functions of each department.

The open house is open to the public.

In the first of a three-part series, we'll give a quick overview of some of the departments at the hospital. All are important for the hospital to function well.

MEDICAL RECORDS

If you've ever had anything done at Deaf Smith General Hospital, there is a record of it in the medical records department.

"We're responsible for keeping records for all patients seen at the hospital," said Debbie Foerster, who heads the department. "If you've been here we've got a record on you."

The very involved charts are kept for three years before they are microfilmed. The department doesn't just do filing. Foerster explained that they must code each diagnosis because many insurance companies are now paying set amounts according to the diagnosis code.

Medical records workers must also abstract information from the records for statistical needs for other departments and many state and federal agencies. They must also keep up with X-rays, operations, consultations, electrocardiogram readings and other observations. Some of the information (cancer cases are one example) must be reported to the Texas Department of Health.

Medical records also must do "utilization reviews" to make sure diagnosis and treatment is within the standards established by the Health Care Finance Administration for Medicare and TDH for Medicaid.

Medical records personnel also help with discharge planning. "Patients who may need help upon discharge are referred to different programs and resources in the community," Foerster said.

Many of the referrals are handled by Richard Sierra. He is at the hospital every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Sierra helps certify some patients for Medicaid help if they are otherwise unable to pay their bills, and with help from many other community services and organizations.

RADIOLOGY

The radiology department at DSGH has been busy with new equipment to help the community's health. The department has had a CT scanner since last November and its own mammography unit since October 1988.

Claudia Smith explained that the three full-time and one part-time technicians use a variety of devices and methods to meet patient and doctors needs. Conventional X-rays are used for some orthopedic examinations and for some illnesses.

Ultrasound is used to help monitor fetuses, but can also be used to check various organs and the abdominal area. Nuclear medicine uses isotopes to produce images that can't be seen through conventional X-rays.

"A lot of people don't realize they can just come in and have a mammography done almost any time," Smith said. "You do not need a referral from a doctor. It's recommended that women over 40 have a mammogram every one to two years, and women over 60 have one a year."

The cost is $65, which includes the interpretation by a radiologist. The results are sent to the patient's regular physician so they can keep up with the results. Persons wanting a mammogram can make an appointment by calling the hospital.

OBSTETRICS

There are about 400 babies delivered each year at DSGH, keeping Donna Kemp and the rest of the staff busy.

"That's about 30 to 40 a month," she said. The staff doesn't just help deliver and care for newborns--they help with fetal monitoring, diagnostic tests, care for premature labor and working with some high-risk mothers and babies.

"We're able to handle almost anything," Kemp said. "We have a very well-trained staff. We can handle anything anyone throws at us." Other high-risk problems, the infants are stabilized before taken to the neonatal unit at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. "We are very able and capable in handling those situations," Kemp said.

The group is also working in the community to eliminate the high number of "walk-ins," mothers who have not been seeing a doctor on a regular basis during their pregnancy.

"We have from two to seven walk-ins a month," Kemp said. "We usually have more during the summer, and we want to work with the community to keep those down. Those are high-risk situations and present problems, but we can handle it."

Montford tries to tighten state's ethics rule

AUSTIN (AP) - With lawmakers back at the Capitol for their fifth special session, State Sen. John Montford says he plans to begin work on a plan to tighten ethics rules for those in state government. Legislative leaders, after months of news stories about lobbyists' gifts to lawmakers, had ordered committees to prepare legislation to tighten ethics rules.

But no bill was offered to either of the 30-day special sessions held since Feb. 27.

Montford, chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee, said he intends to begin work on a plan that would close loopholes in bribery laws and place new limits on personal campaign loans - two provisions missing from earlier proposals.

"I think everything needs to be discussed, and I think we need to get ahead and address it," the Lubbock Democrat said.

"We're going to have such colossal fiscal problems (in 1991), it would be a mistake to wait until then. We need to end all the suspicion, go ahead and make the changes we know need to be done," Montford said.

The House State Affairs Committee last month outlined a plan to impose new restrictions on lobbyists and require more public disclosure of their gift-giving to lawmakers.

But after weeks of closed-door negotiations, several of the tougher provisions had been modified or abandoned, and some legislators said that the proposal was too lenient.

Floods kill three more; continue in Texas

By ANDREA WEISGERBER
Associated Press Writer

A vast area of Texas braced for more flooding as flash-flood producing severe thunderstorms roared across the state packing 60 mph winds, tornadoes, baseball-size hail and drenching rainfall.

Two men and a woman were killed Wednesday in Fort Worth when their cars were swept away by high water over roadways, bringing the death toll for storms in Texas this spring to nine.

The area where flooding was either under way or possible today ranged from San Antonio northeastward to Texarkana and eastward into the Houston area and northward to Wichita Falls.

The rainfall was expected to continue today in much of the area. Forecasters warned of possible flash flooding in the Houston area later today as heavy thunderstorms that moved through the Hill Country during the night were moving rapidly eastward.

Seven people suffered minor injuries today when a tornado touched down in Paris in northeast Texas, said Dick Boots of the Paris emergency office. He said two businesses were damaged, a tractor-trailer was overturned and more than a dozen homes sustained damage from uprooted trees.

The injuries were minor, he said. About 16 homes suffered damage, but Boots said a helicopter survey of the area today would give officials a better idea of the extent of the damage.

He described the damage as "minor" compared to the 1982 Paris tornado that left 11 dead and damaged or destroyed more than 1,000 homes, causing an estimated $15 million in damage.

Fire crews evacuated 155 people from a nursing home in Haltom City north of Fort Worth Wednesday night when waters from the Big Fossil and Little Fossil creeks overflowed their banks and came within inches of entering the hospital.

The 143 patients at the Haltom Convalescent Center and 15 surgical patients from the nearby Twin Oaks

Medical Center were spending the night at a Baptist church nearby.

The patients "become disoriented in foreign surroundings but their staff is with them and people from the church are helping," Haltom City Fire Chief Kerry King said early today. "Everyone seems pretty calm."

The evacuations began at about 10 p.m. Wednesday, he said.

Police in Cleburne were assisting people in evacuations along East Buffalo Creek in the Johnson County town. High water caused authorities to block off U.S. 67 at Cleburne, officials said.

Baseball-size hail pelted nearby Rio Vista during the night, but reports from the area were sketchy.

Some people were just beginning to recover from flooding last week when the thunderstorms, which began Tuesday night in North and Central Texas, continued through the area Wednesday and early today.

"This whole part of the state is in pretty bad flood condition," said Jerry Leatherwood, power plant operator at Texoma Lake on the Texas-Oklahoma border. The lake overflowed its emergency spillway late Wednesday night.

The west fork of the Trinity River that flows through Fort Worth and Dallas rose as lakes that feed the river overflowed.

"All the lakes are over their banks," said James Scarberry of the Fort Worth Fire Department. "In most parts of the Trinity, it's above flood level."

A fire department helicopter crew in Fort Worth rescued a woman whose pickup truck was swept downstream as she tried to drive across a water-covered road late Wednesday.

Hundreds of people remained out of their homes throughout the Trinity River basin, and residents in the south Dallas neighborhood of Rochester Park were told to evacuate. About a dozen had reported to shelters early today after emergency workers knocked on doors to warn of rising water.

Dallas officials said U.S. 175, known locally as the C.F. Hawn Freeway and a major route for commuters from southeast Dallas into the downtown area, was closed because of high water.

The heaviest rainfall moved out of the Dallas-Fort Worth area before dawn today, spreading the flood-producing rain into counties east and northeast of Dallas.

Officials in Red River, Rains and Hunt counties reported widespread flooding of roads and highways.

A total of 30 families were out of their homes Wednesday night in Grand Prairie, including families who left when the flooding first started Wednesday morning. A mobile home park was evacuated Wednesday night, said James Robertson of the Grand Prairie Emergency Operations Center.

Johnson Creek was holding steady in Grand Prairie early today, Robertson said.

Further west, George Teague of the Parker County Emergency Management office said some people who had just returned to their homes after flooding on the Brazos River last week were told to leave again Wednesday after severe storms pushed the Brazos over its banks again.

"I know it rained two inches in 30 minutes," Teague said Wednesday night. "We're afraid it's going to get up like it did last week. The river's risen about 10 feet since last night, which is two feet above bank level."

Numerous roads were reported covered with water, and Route 287 near Wichita Falls was closed, police said.

In Abilene, where almost 4 inches of rain fell by Wednesday afternoon, police were evacuating homes near Dyess Air Force Base and some in southeast Abilene.

The force of the water was enough to push the parked cars of a train off its tracks in a flooded area of Arlington near Fort Worth, police said Wednesday night. There were no injuries.

In Collin County north of Dallas, some mobile homes in the community of Ambrose were evacuated, and a small tornado damaged a shed at Wylie. A tornado also damaged some roofs in outlying areas in Denison, but there were no reports of injuries.

In the Texas Hill Country, 4-5 inches of rain fell overnight around the headwaters of the South Llano River, prompting officials to express fear that flooding would result.

House authorizes five-year super collider plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supporters of the superconducting super collider say the time is right to begin looking for foreign support in light of a House vote authorizing the $7.4 billion collider but putting a $5 billion cap on federal spending for it.

"This turns us loose to begin working on rounding up foreign participation," Rep. Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, said of the House authorization Wednesday.

The bill, approved 309-109 and sent to the Senate Wednesday, gives the Department of Energy specific authority to build the particle accelerator. Since the department already could undertake the project under other general authority to support scientific research, the specific authority is important mostly as a sign of political support.

The collider is to be built about 30 miles south of Dallas near Waxahachie.

Under the bill approved Wednesday, costs above $5 billion would be left to Texas, which has pledged $1 billion, and other sources, including foreign investors. The $5 billion federal limit was amended several times to assure its strength.

But the reaction of Texas congressmen to the bill's passage was moderated when the House removed a provision that called for the U.S. government to return Texas' $1 billion investment if the Department of Energy canceled the project before October 1995.

The bill allows the Department of Energy to build the particle accelerator on 17,000 acres near Waxahachie, south of Dallas.

Actual spending for the collider would have to be approved later as part of Congress' annual appropriations process.

The collider, scheduled to be complete in 1998, is expected to provide 4,500 jobs during construction and 2,500 permanently.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Would you be interested in hearing about a recent conversation I had with a 16-year-old pregnant teen? I am a nurse in an inner-city high school and noticed a young girl who appeared to be getting unusually large. I decided to talk to her about it. This is what transpired:

Nurse: I have an idea that you might be pregnant. Is this possible?

Teen: Yes.

Nurse: Do your parents know?

Teen: No.

Nurse: What are your plans?

Teen: Plans? What plans?

Nurse: Well, are you seeing a doctor?

Teen: No.

Nurse: What are you going to do with the baby?

Teen: Oh, I don't know. Keep it, I guess.

Nurse: I am very concerned about you still playing basketball. You could get hurt and damage the baby.

Teen (in an angry tone of voice): I don't want to quit basketball. I don't see why I have to quit playing just because I am pregnant.

We had a discussion about the importance of prenatal care, the girl's parents needing to know about the baby so they could help and the importance of finishing school. It seemed incomprehensible that a 16-year-old could be so totally unaware of what she is facing.

Several weeks after our conversation, the girl delivered a full-term child.

Those of us who work with teens are aware that there is a great deal of sexual activity at this age. We also realize that when there is an unwanted pregnancy, the denial can be enormous. This young girl was a perfect example. Her fear of being pregnant was so strong that she simply willed it out of her thinking.

I hope all school nurses (and teachers) will keep this in mind and be on the alert for similar cases. These young girls need counseling. It is essential that they get prenatal care for the baby's sake as well as their own. Thanks for helping me pass the word. - School Nurse in Kansas.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is I who should thank you for the opportunity. Your letter will certainly open a lot of eyes. There will be those who will say, "It's not possible." But I'm certain that this nurse's account is for real.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How

come girls and women can wear blue jeans, plaid flannel shirts, boots, sweat shirts and leather jackets, and nobody raises an eyebrow? But when a man wears lace panties, nylons or a black flimsy nightgown he is considered abnormal?

This seems unfair to me, and I'd like an explanation. -- San Francisco

DEAR SAN FRAN: Marlene Dietrich made slacks fashionable for women in the 1940s.

During World War II, when Rosie the Riveter went to work in the defense plant, she wore trousers, because they were more practical and safer than a skirt. Men's shirts, boots and pants proved to be more comfortable than dresses and heels.

Men who wear women's underwear and lace nighties do it to get turned on.

LONDON (AP) - Former Beatle George Harrison, who reportedly has been haunted by fear of an assassin since John Lennon was slain, has received threatening letters at his home, police said.

Harrison, 47, received the letters at his mansion in Friar Park outside London, where he lives with his wife, Olivia, 42, and their 12-year-old son, Dhani.

Lennon, another ex-Beatle, was slain outside his New York apartment by a gunman in 1980.

The Daily Mirror said Harrison had received five anonymous, handwritten letters in recent weeks threatening him with death.

The paper said Harrison is constantly accompanied by a bodyguard.

DIAPER-PAIL SOLUTION

Q: I read about a diaper-pail solution in your column in the past and didn't save it. Now that I have decided to use cloth diapers on my expected child, the mixture is very much needed. — Amy Burkhardt, Dayton, Ohio

A: The diaper pail pre-soak solution is made by partially filling a diaper pail with a mild sudsy solution and adding 1 tablespoon of bleach for every gallon of water. Rinse and unfold soiled diapers before placing them in the solution.

Wash the contents (preferably 18 diapers per wash load) by dumping the solution and diapers into the washing machine and setting on the spin cycle. After the spin cycle removes the solution, launder as usual. — Heloise

Musburger returning to air with ABC

NEW YORK (AP) - Brent Musburger has arrived at ABC. Now the question is whether Al Michaels will depart.

Musburger and ABC announced a multimillion-dollar, multiyear deal on Wednesday. He will broadcast college football and basketball and there immediately was speculation that Musburger's arrival would hasten Michaels' exit.

"We've got Al under contract and we expect Al to do Monday night football this year and be involved in the 25th anniversary Super Bowl," ABC Sports president Dennis Swanson said.

"I consider him a friend. And I'm hopeful that he'll be at ABC for as long as I am," Musburger said.

Nonetheless, speculation continued in the television industry about a possible Michaels move to CBS. Michaels, who met with CBS last month, has filed an arbitration grievance against ABC because it suspended him for using his daughter as a runner during a skating broadcast.

Michaels, the play-by-play announcer for Monday night football, did not return a telephone message left on his answering machine in Los Angeles.

Musburger and his brother-agent, Todd, both said he was not interested in becoming ABC's lead NFL announcer.

"It has not been discussed - between Dennis and I - anything about Monday night," Brent Musburger said.

Musburger was abruptly dismissed by CBS on April 1 after a decade as the network's top sports broadcaster.

"Five years ago, I came within an eyelash of going to work for them," Musburger said. "I'm thrilled to get another opportunity. I got fired on April 1 and I came back on May Day. That's long enough for me."

Puerto Rican colt has Barrera feeling Frisky at Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Laz Barrera already is a Hall of Fame trainer in the United States, Cuba and Mexico. Puerto Rico likely comes next - either the Hall of Fame or the governor's mansion.

"If I had Mister Frisky's name, I'd go to Puerto Rico and run for office," he said. "I'd be Lazaro Frisky."

OK, Mister Barrera.

The 65-year-old Barrera will saddle Mister Frisky for Saturday's Kentucky Derby as a favorite of both bettors and adoring Puerto Ricans. That's because Mister Frisky won the first 13 of his 16 victories in Puerto Rico, and that's why he's unbelievably well as unbeaten.

Since Barrera brought Mister Frisky to California in January, he's won three stakes races, including the Santa Anita Derby. Three of the last four Kentucky Derby winners have prepped in the Santa Anita Derby, including Sunday Silence last year.

"I'm through defending Mister Frisky," jockey Gary Stevens said. "If people don't believe him now, that's their fault."

And just when was Stevens convinced that Mister Frisky was for real?

"After the first time I worked him. In the first 50 yards, he told me everything," said Stevens, who rode 1988 Derby winner Winning Colors.

As many as 17 3-year-olds were expected to be entered today for the 116th running of the Derby. All starters will carry 126 pounds.

On Wednesday, stewards determined that the three horses trained by D. Wayne Lukas - Land Rush, Real Cash and Power Lunch - would run as a betting entry.

Mister Frisky will go off no worse than the second choice. Summer Squall, trained by Neil Howard and ridden by Pat Day, was the other top choice.

Summer Squall, criticized here for looking drawn and underweight, put Swanson said Musburger would announce college football games with former Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil and college basketball games with an analyst to be decided later.

He also will broadcast one of ABC's NFL wild card playoff games, next the Super Bowl pregame show next winter and broadcast the World League of American Football.

Musburger's first appearance will be on a prime time special on June 25. His first sporting event will be the Hambletonian on Aug. 4, followed by the Little League World Series three weeks later.

The 50-year-old Musburger had been host of "The NFL Today" since 1975. He also broadcast college football games and anchored CBS coverage of the Masters golf tournament, the NBA finals, the Pan American Games and U.S. Open tennis highlights shows. He was let go by CBS on the eve of the NCAA championship game, his final appearance on the network.

When Musburger began broadcasting in Chicago in the late 1960's, Swanson was on the air opposite him. They also broadcast against each other in Los Angeles before Swanson got off the air and joined management.

After Musburger was let go by CBS, he accused CBS Sports president Neal Pilson and executive producer Ted Shaker of trying to force him out. Musburger also said they had spread rumors that he was hard to work with.

"It was the one thing that hurt because the one thing I'm not is hard to work with on the field," Musburger said. "It's all past. I can't worry about yesterday. The proof will be what the people at ABC say about me in a couple of years."

Swanson said Musburger would announce college football games with former Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil and college basketball games with an analyst to be decided later.

Calcavecchia looking for right clubs at Byron Nelson

IRVING (AP) - Mark Calcavecchia had a problem today. To Ping or not to Ping?

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Calcavecchia said before the scheduled first round today of the $1 million Byron Nelson Classic.

"And I don't even know how I'm going to make up my mind," said Calcavecchia, who brought two sets of irons to the PGA Tour event and was unsure which to use.

"At the start of the year," he said, "I switched from the Pings to a set of Tommy Armour's and I won the first tournament I played in (an unofficial event)," he said.

"So I stuck with 'em." And he went on a tear. In the early part of the season, he collected four runner-up finishes, including three in a row, and vaulted to the top of the Tour's money-winning list with more than $551,000.

"But the last couple of weeks, I've just been hitting it terrible, the worst I've hit the ball in a long time.

"I know it's not the clubs. But I just thought I'd try something different, see if that would help."

So he brought the old set to the TPC at Las Colinas and planned to give them a try in the Tuesday shoot-out and the Wednesday pro-am.

But Calcavecchia, the current British Open champion and one of the favorites every time he plays, was eliminated on the first hole of the shoot-out.

And Wednesday's pro-am was washed out by heavy rain. The course was partially flooded and closed to play.

"I didn't get a practice round, but that doesn't matter that much," Calcavecchia said. "I've played here enough I know the course."

"But I wanted to have a round to decide which clubs to use. I didn't get it, and I don't know what to do," he said.

Proposition 1 asks for your trust in:

1. An appointed, five - member corporation which will use $300,000 of your taxes every year.
2. A program which has no guidelines for the community's direction of growth.
3. The prerogative to keep target industries and negotiations secret.

When that much public money is involved, it becomes more than a matter of trust -- it is business. Would a bank be willing to loan out $300,000 every year simply on the basis of trust? Before we lend our tax dollars, local voters should be as discriminating as any good loan officer.

It is only good business sense to expect accountability when public money is involved.

Randolph has Bucs seeing doubles

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

After missing five games with a severe case of the flu, it was a weakened Willie Randolph who returned to the Los Angeles Dodgers' lineup.

But that proved no comfort to the Pittsburgh Pirates, who watched the second baseman tie a Dodgers club record with three doubles among his four hits as Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 6-2 Wednesday night.

"I really felt lousy out there, but I got the bat on the ball and found some holes," Randolph said.

Meanwhile, a rejuvenated Fernando Valenzuela was pitching his second straight complete game.

"I feel better today, but I still feel weak," Randolph said. "I lost five pounds, which is a lot for me. I'm a little fellow."

That could never be said of the stocky Valenzuela, for whom complete games were once a frequent occurrence. But his career had been in jeopardy following a shoulder injury in 1988.

He hadn't pitched consecutive complete games since September 1987. He pitched only three last season.

"That's why I'm stronger this year," Valenzuela said. "The injury is in the past. I felt good at the end of last year, but I'm stronger now."

His job was made easier because the Pirates committed four errors.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was New York 5, Cincinnati 0; Philadelphia 14, Houston 4; Atlanta 8, Montreal 1; Chicago 9, San Francisco 6 and San Diego 4, St. Louis 3.

Randolph doubled in the first, fourth and sixth innings and scored three runs. Kal Daniels had three hits for the Dodgers.

Valenzuela (2-2) allowed eight hits, struck out four and walked three in beating John Smiley (2-3). Valenzuela was coming off a four-hit, 5-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Mets 5, Reds 0

Unbeaten Frank Viola matched a career high with 11 strikeouts in a six-hitter as New York ended a four-game losing streak and spoiled

Cincinnati manager Lou Piniella's return.

Piniella spent 11 seasons playing for the New York Yankees and was a manager and general manager for the club before taking over this season as skipper of the Reds.

Mike Marshall, who had three hits, and Howard Johnson hit solo home runs for the Mets off Tom Browning (2-2).

Phillies 14, Astros 4

The Phillies had their biggest inning in four years while pounding out a season-high 20 hits. Tommy Herr had four hits and matched a career high with five RBIs.

The Phillies, who broke a 4-4 tie against Jim Clancy (1-1) in the fifth inning, sent 13 men to the plate in an eight-run sixth, their biggest inning since scoring eight against Cincinnati on July 6, 1986.

That made it easy for Dennis Cook (4-0), who pitched seven innings, allowed six hits, walked one and struck out two.

Braves 8, Expos 1

Andres Thomas hit the first grand slam of his career and equaled his career high with five RBIs, and Marty Clary pitched seven strong innings.

Thomas' homer, his first of the season, highlighted a five-run third inning against Montreal's Zane Smith.

Clary (1-1) allowed a run in the fourth when Wallace Johnson scored on Mike Aldrete's groundout.

Cubs 9, Giants 6

Andre Dawson extended his hitting streak to 11 games with three hits and three RBIs.

Rookie Mike Harkey (3-1) pitched 5 1-3 innings.

Matt Williams hit two homers for the Giants and Kevin Mitchell and pinch-hitter Gary Carter also connected. The Cubs went ahead to stay with four runs in the third, rapping six consecutive two-out hits off Scott Garrelts (0-3).

Padres 4, Cardinals 3

Jack Clark and Bip Roberts homered in the sixth inning and Bruce Hurst earned his first victory as San Diego broke a five-game losing streak.

Hurst (1-3) allowed seven hits in seven innings, struck out eight and walked one. The Cardinals took a 2-0 lead with two-out runs in the third and fourth innings as Jose DeLeon (2-1) held the Padres to just three singles over the first five.

Blyleven blanks Baltimore

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles came along just as Bert Blyleven felt the need to take out his frustrations on somebody.

"The key was being more aggressive," Blyleven said after winning for the first time this season and moving into fourth place on the career strikeout list. "It got me ahead in counts, so I didn't have to come in with punches, and my location was a lot better."

Blyleven struck out eight, including Mickey Tettleton in the fourth inning for the 3,575th of his career, one more than Don Sutton, as the California Angels defeated Baltimore 3-0 Wednesday night. Blyleven (1-2) finished the game at 3,578, behind only Nolan Ryan, Steve Carlton and Tom Seaver.

"He threw the ball extremely well," Angels catcher Lance Parrish said. "He was very determined. This was a big game for him, sort of put up or shut up, and he made some big pitches."

In other games, it was Seattle 9, Boston 2; Cleveland 3, Toronto 0; Minnesota 8, Detroit 2; Oakland 2, the New York Yankees 0, and Texas 6, Chicago 3. Milwaukee at Kansas City was rained out.

Blyleven had problems the first month of the season.

"The first couple of outings I was disappointed the way I was throwing," the 39-year-old right-hander said. "I came in and celebrated after the first inning tonight, because it was the first time I've gotten through the first without giving up a run."

It didn't hurt that he was pitching against the Orioles, who have hit .189 in the last nine games.

The Orioles loaded the bases with one out in the third, but couldn't get the ball out of the infield and stranded three. Mark Eichhorn pitched the last two innings for his fifth save.

Devon White broke a scoreless tie by leading off the sixth with his second homer, against Jeff Ballard (0-4).

White scored again in the eighth, reaching second on two errors by third baseman Craig Worthington. He went to third on Wally Joyner's sacrifice bunt and scored on a sacrifice fly by Chili Davis. Dante Bichette followed with a double and scored on a single by Max Venable.

Twins 8, Tigers 2

David West pitched a three-hitter and Gary Gaitt hit two three-run homers.

West (2-3), notching his first major league complete game, gave up a solo homer to Tracy Jones in the Detroit first and an RBI grounder by Tony Phillips in the fifth inning.

Jack Morris (2-3) gave up eight hits and seven runs in seven innings.

Athletics 2, Yankees 0

Dave Henderson homered and Scott Sanderson pitched seven impressive innings.

Sanderson (3-1) gave up five singles, struck out five and walked one. Todd Burns relieved in the eighth and Rick Honeycutt got the last two outs for his second save.

Knicks avoid Celtic sweep; Suns take 2-1 lead over Jazz

NEW YORK (AP)—The Boston Celtics played like a team with little to lose, so they lost.

Leading 2-0 after a record-setting offensive performance in Game 2 of their first-round NBA playoff series against New York, Boston was out-rebounded 21-5 at the offensive end and committed 21 turnovers to six for the Knicks Wednesday night.

Although the Celtics outshot New York 51.4 percent to 39.6 percent, offensive rebounding and turnovers were the most telling stats in the Knicks' 102-99 victory in Game 3 of the best-of-5 series.

"We gave them too many second chances and we turned the ball over too much," Celtics forward Kevin McHale said. "This wasn't the type of game you're proud of."

The Knicks were playing for pride, maybe as much as they were playing for victory.

"We wanted to be able to look ourselves in the mirror in the morning," Coach Stu Jackson said.

Kenny Walker, in the game because starter Charles Oakley had fouled out, summed up the Knicks' feelings after hitting a 15-footer with 7.6 seconds left, giving New York a 102-99 lead that forced the Celtics to go for a 3-pointer in the final seconds. "We were discouraged, embarrassed and frustrated coming out of Boston," Walker said. "Our manhood was on the line in this game."

Patrick Ewing scored 33 points and led New York's 53-43 rebounding advantage with 19. Oakley had 14 points and 13 rebounds, including six offensive.

Larry Bird, who missed a potential tying 3-pointer in the final seconds, finished with 31 points. Dennis Johnson scored 18 and McHale 17 for the Celtics.

In the only other playoff game Wednesday night, Phoenix beat Utah 120-105 for a 2-1 lead in that series.

Tonight's games have Chicago at Milwaukee, Philadelphia at Cleveland and the Los Angeles Lakers at Houston. In all three games, the visitor has a 2-1 lead.

Detroit, Portland and San Antonio swept their first-round series against Indiana, Dallas and Denver.

Boston, which scored an NBA-record 157 points on 67 percent shooting in Game 2 on Saturday, took 27 fewer shots than the Knicks in Game 3.

"We didn't shoot well from the field or from the free throw line, but we took a lot more shots because we got a lot more offensive rebounds," Jackson said. "That 21-5 difference will make the Celtics mad and they will come back hard on the boards on Friday."

Suns 120, Jazz 105

Phoenix, the only team to win on the road in the first two games of the playoffs, beat Utah for the 10th consecutive time at Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum as Kevin Johnson scored 16 of his 29 points in the third period.

The Suns, who can clinch the Western Conference series with a victory in Game 4 Friday night, trailed 69-60 early in the second half before Johnson got hot.

Johnson, who missed almost all of Game 1 with the intestinal virus and sat out Tuesday's practice to receive more intravenous treatment, scored nine points in less than five minutes for a 77-77 tie with 3:21 left.

Dan Majerle's layup with 2:45 remaining and his two free throws 22 seconds later put Phoenix ahead 81-77 before Johnson's layup and three-point play made it 90-81 entering the fourth period.

"We don't want to go back to Utah. That's for sure," said Johnson, who also had 12 assists.

Thurl Bailey led the Jazz with 30 points, Karl Malone had 26 and John Stockton 22.

Tom Chambers, who has made only 13 field goals in 40 attempts in the series, sank five in a six-minute span to give the Suns a 107-97 lead with 2:38 to play. He finished with 23 points, 13 in the fourth quarter.

Reports show failures, foibles of bomb builders

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Energy Department for the first time is allowing a keyhole glimpse at the daily goings-on in the secretive world of its nuclear bomb builders.

It's not a pretty sight. The view is incomplete, but among the things you can see are drug use, thievery, fires, computer tampering, equipment failures and almost daily contamination of workers by plutonium or other lethal or toxic nuclear weapons materials.

And that's just the unclassified stuff. The failings are catalogued in a six-inch stack of internal reports made public by the Energy Department on Monday, six weeks after a department contractor made their existence known by mistakenly sending copies of one report to governors' offices.

The release of the papers, called daily operations reports and written for Energy Secretary James D. Watkins, marks a significant, if limited, crack in the wall of secrecy behind which the nuclear arms makers have operated for nearly a half-century.

The weapons plants are owned by the Energy Department but operated by private contractors.

The reports, covering the period of Aug. 24, 1989, to present, describe problems ranging in seriousness from safety lapses at the Savannah River nuclear reactors, to concern about "media noise" over environmental problems at the Rocky Flats arms plant near Denver, to an offsite fight between Savannah River electricians in South Carolina.

Much of the information, presented in a shorthand form with little or no explanation, had not previously been made public.

Watkins told a group of weapons plant critics on Monday that the reports showed conditions at the plants were "awful, just awful" last summer but are now improving.

Among the more serious failures: -A backup system for pumping water to cool one of the Savannah River nuclear reactors may have been unusable for the past five years because of missing wiring. Engineers discovered the wiring was missing last December.

-Significant uranium releases at the Hanford weapons plant in Washington state were not reported for several months. The reason: the releases occurred after the Energy Department standard for radiation protection was inadvertently canceled in January 1989, but before it was reinstated in July 1989.

-A faulty circuit breaker started two fires in a powerhouse at Savannah River last August, forcing two nuclear materials processing operations to be shut down for several days. No one was reported injured; damage was estimated at $50,000.

-Security guards at several weapons plants were dismissed or resigned after being arrested for theft of government-owned guns and other property. A guard at the Nevada Test Site, where warheads are detonated in underground tests, resigned in February after he was arrested for holding stolen property, including two rifles, one shotgun and five handguns he carried in his personal vehicle.

-In April, a security guard at Savannah River was accused of sleeping on duty after a supervisor at one of the reactor buildings walked into his locked and darkened office to find the guard "getting up from the floor." A later report said not enough evidence was found to make the charge stick.

-Illegal drug use was reported throughout the weapons complex. In one nine-day period in November, nine cases of illegal drug use were reported at five plants or laboratories. In September an operator of one of the Savannah River nuclear reactors was suspended after testing positive for unspecified drug use.

Many of the reports to Watkins simply kept him advised of the status of such administrative problems as negotiations with contractors, suppliers and unions, or visits to plants by members of Congress, the news media or independent investigators.

Others described incidents that, viewed in isolation, may have been minor but taken together form a pattern of procedural violations that could lead to serious accidents in one of the most potentially hazardous working environments on Earth.

For example: -An unspecified violation of safety limits for nuclear materials at Rocky Flats was not reported to plant managers until four days after it was discovered.

Baker proposes cuts in nuclear weapons

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Secretary of State James A. Baker III, meeting today with NATO allies on security in a changing Europe, proposed deep cuts in short-range U.S. nuclear arms on the continent.

Baker briefed fellow NATO foreign ministers on a plan to reduce or eliminate nuclear artillery shells from Europe and suspend deployment of a new short-range Lance missile to replace 700 aging Lances, a source said.

Officials said President Bush was scheduled to address the issue at a news conference in Washington later in the day.

In recent weeks, NATO officials have questioned the need to upgrade short-range missiles at the start of 1992, as agreed at a NATO summit last spring, in view of the sharply reduced military threat from the East.

Also to be shelved are some 900 non-nuclear Lance II missiles. All the short-range weapons were to have been trained on East Germany, which is moving toward a swift merger with West Germany, a key NATO member.

German unification and its impact on security in Europe was to be the focus of today's NATO meeting, with members expected to reiterate calls for a reunified Germany's membership in the alliance.

Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek said on arrival that the issue of German unification was "far more important today" than quick action on upgrading the 700 aging nuclear Lance missiles in Europe.

The meeting in Brussels comes two days before the beginning of talks in Bonn, West Germany, bringing together the foreign ministers of the World War II Allies - the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union - and those of West and East Germany to discuss the future of a united Germany.

After his talks at the NATO headquarters, Baker was due to head to the European Community head office for a meeting with the community's 12 foreign ministers.

The meeting at NATO comes after some countries - notably Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Canada - expressed concern over being shut out of the German unification process although it affects them directly.

"It is very good Baker comes here now as the 'two-plus-four' (talks) open two days later," said a Dutch official at NATO. "This is wholly in line with our wishes and those of other allies."

Other sources, who also asked not to be named, said countries outside the "two-plus-four" process see today's meeting as a way of maintaining NATO's role in building a new security order in Europe.

The NATO ministers were expected to restate their wish to see a united Germany as member of the alliance.

The Soviet Union, which has 380,000 troops in East Germany, opposes such an arrangement. It wants a neutral Germany or a Germany straddling the two military blocs.

Also on the agenda of today's meeting were talks in Vienna on reductions in conventional forces and arms in Europe.

'Cure' found for night-shift blues

BOSTON (AP) - Bleary-eyed workers of the night, take heart: Scientists have found a way to help you get a decent day's sleep.

A simple combination of bright light at night and total darkness during the day can help night-shift workers quickly adapt to their upside-down hours, researchers found.

The approach appears to be the first quick, practical cure for the night-shift blues, the on-the-job sleepiness and daytime insomnia that plague many of the nation's 7 million night workers.

The principal developer, Dr. Charles A. Czeisler of Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital, said more testing needs to be done before employers start installing new lights.

But if the approach matches its early promise, it should readjust people's biological rhythms in just two nights so they stay awake when their bodies ordinarily want to sleep.

"They certainly have made a breakthrough in understanding the effect of light in humans," said Dr. Mary Carskadon of Brown University. "Their evidence is very powerful. There needs to be more trials in the field to determine the efficacy in a broader sense, but I think that what they've done really gives us a guidepost to pursuing this research."

The technique works this way: People moving to the night shift reported to work - in this case, a hospital lab - at midnight and spent the next eight hours sitting at a desk. While they worked, a bank of lights 4 feet away shined with 16 cool-white 40-watt bulbs.

Then they drove home, pulled down blackout shades in their bedrooms and stayed in total darkness from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

After just two days, the time on their internal clocks shifted dramatically so they felt fresh and awake when they ordinarily would have been asleep.

Consumer Groups Storm Local Grocery Stores!
Stores point finger at newspaper
 Today saw one of the largest consumer responses of the week to offers made by local grocery stores for discounted prices. Across the city, shoppers were redeeming coupons cut from the local paper in record numbers.
 "We know any offer we make will be highlighted most by the newspaper," commented a grocery store spokesman. "Our goal is simply to inform the consumers that these discounts are available. We are confident they will respond if they see it in the paper." His statement was backed by recent Consumer Data Service reports that indicated grocery store ads triple volume on discounted items and double volume on regularly priced items. It also revealed grocery ads are read by well over 70% of newspaper readers.
 Grocery store representatives unanimously agreed that newspaper advertising was the only way to get immediate consumer response. One grocer remarked, "Most people read the paper, and a bunch of those readers clip our coupons. It's that simple." His comments reflect the well-known Manufacturer's Coupon Center report which stated that over 80% of all families use coupons.
 "When consumers want more for their money, they always go to the grocer," a grocery official said. When pressed by reporters for the best offer he could make to the consumers he replied, "Look in the paper, it's all right there. Green leaf lettuce, two heads for 79¢... with a coupon of course."

VOTE FOR MAY 5

Vote for

- Jobs • Growth
- Economic Development

Why vote for Proposition 1?

It is a unique opportunity for the citizens of the City of Hereford to provide needed funds for economic development of our city through a 1/2 of 1% sales tax. Using current city sales tax revenues as a guide, the 1/2-cent economic development sales tax will raise about $300,000 each year to be used for the growth of our city.

How could the funds be used?

The use of the funds is prescribed by state law. They include:

- *Revolving loan fund for small businesses.
- *Venture capital to start up businesses.
- *Incentives for job creation.
- *Operation of a small business incubator.
- *Capital improvements for specific new or existing businesses.
- *Construction and improvements for industrial, manufacturing, transportation and distribution facilities.
- *Funds for building construction.
- *Improving or constructing utilities(water, sewer, roads, etc.)to a new or existing business location.
- *Purchasing building and land for lease to a manufacturer or other industry.

How would the funds be spent?

The funds raised would be controlled by a five-member board appointed by the Hereford City Commission. The board would set up bylaws and guidelines which would be public knowledge. Only 10% of the funds raised could be used to promote the city. The remaining 90%, by law, has to be spent for economic development projects.

Have any other cities implemented the 1/2-cent economic development sales tax?

Yes, since the Act was made available to cities, Amarillo, Abilene, Brownfield, Edingburg, North Lake, Pharr, Hidalgo City and Mission have voted for the proposition.

It will be on the ballot in more than 30 cities on May 5, including Perryton, Pampa and Borger.

A number of communities in the Panhandle have expressed concern about a declining population and are seeking ways to stimulate growth. The chart below shows 22 of the 30 Panhandle counties have lost population since 1980. We need to help reverse that trend, and Proposition 1 provides a good opportunity.

Why doesn't the Chamber or Industrial Foundation finance economic development for the city?

They do. Both the chamber industrial development committee and the industrial foundation have sought and met with prospects, made loan guarantees and leased a building. But neither has the available funds to actively recruit new industry to the area, or the staff to solicit prospects. Capital requirements for most development projects are greater than the industrial foundation can fund.

The Chamber's budget comes from membership dues, and some businesses—including some who oppose Proposition 1-- do not choose to participate or support the chamber. The budget barely takes care of salaries, utilities, rent, telephone and office supplies to coordinate the efforts of hundreds of volunteer workers in dozens of Chamber activities.

If Proposition 1 passes, when will we receive the first funds?

According to the State Comptroller's office, the first 1/2% sales tax will be collected beginning Oct. 1, 1990. The first payments will be made in January of 1991.

Can the 1/2-cent economic development sales tax be removed?

Yes. If 10% of the voters petition the City Commission to remove the tax, then the proposition is placed on the next ballot. If the majority of the voters approve the proposition, then the tax is removed.

What are the alternatives to Proposition 1?

Opponents have not advanced any specific plan, except to let existing businesses put up all the funds for economic development. Some of the businesses who allowed their names to be listed as against the Proposition also offered to contribute to the committee for the plan. Some have pointed to Plainview as being successful with its industrial foundation, but it receives property-tax funds from the city and county. The sales tax is a fair tax, and economic development is everybody's business! Considering how much of spendable income is used to purchase taxable goods and services, here's an estimate one city came up with to show the effect of the 1/2-cent tax:

0.005 Economic Development Tax Cost to an Average Family
Income	Month	Year
$20,000	$2.08	$25.00
$50,000	$4.50	$55.00

In a community survey of Hereford, a majority of citizens said they'd be willing to give one day's pay a year to help in economic development.
You can do it by approving Proposition 1!

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to know if it is better to exercise before you eat or after. If after, how soon after — or morning, afternoon or night. Or does it make any difference when? Is it better every other day or every day?

stimulate your appetite, exercise lightly before eating. Otherwise, if you have no medical problems that would interfere, you probably do better to exercise moderately after eating, rather than sleeping it off. Which way doesn't seem to really influence gaining or losing body fat — although some claim that exercise after eating increases the body's ability to lose calories.

LINDA MINCHEW

KAY CRISMON Staff Writer

Imagine sitting upon a rock on the side of a mountain with a stream flowing quietly beside it. The tranquility of the surrounding scenery presents the newness of day. This may be seen and felt in Linda Minchew's painting that hangs in her living room.

She has been oil painting for 15 years and gives most of her paintings as gifts to friends. Some of her paintings have been on display at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office. She had been a member of the Fine Arts Association for 10 years.

Linda and her husband, Charles, travel to special places to camp out. Being an artist gives Linda an edge in bringing home the memories. She is looking forward to a trip to Kerrville for a family reunion and another chance to camp out.

Adding to her collection of talents are sewing, cake decorating and flower arranging. She has taken cake decorating classes from Betty Henson. She enjoys flower arranging and designed floral creations for her children's weddings. She has sewn for the public and now enjoys sewing for her daughters-in-law. She is a charter member and president of the Pilot Club of Hereford. She attended the Texas District Convention of Pilot International as a delegate along with Vesta Mae Nunley and Peggie Fox. "It's been a busy year and well worth it!" she said. "When 40 members can show up at 7 a.m. for a meeting, that's an accomplishment in itself," she said.

She has lived in Hereford for 21 years moving here from Dimmitt. She graduated from Dimmitt High School and is next to the oldest of six children. She and her husband raised two sons and a niece. After 13 years of being at home, she began working for Bill Allen and has been with the firm for 18 years. She is a member of the Central Church of Christ and teaches Sunday school classes.

She loves to cookout because that is when Charles does the cooking. Now that her children are grown, married and away from home, she doesn't cook as much, but she does enjoy cooking for friends and relatives. She is sharing some of her recipes and says that Hawaiian Chicken Stakki Uppi is ideal for large get-togethers.

Study club installs officers

"The Builders", by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, was the theme used for the installation of officers at the La Afflatus Estudio Club meeting recently.

Lynn Gowdy installed the newly elected officers by linking each officer to a worker to build a strong foundation for the club.

Those installed were Emily Suggs, president; Lydia Hopson, vice president; Virginia Beasley, secretary-treasurer; Pet Ott, reporter; and Mary Williams, parliamentarian.

Suggs assumed her chair and appointed the following members to committees: yearbook, Aileen Montgomery, Louise Kinsey, Lydia Hopson, and Della Stagner; social, Alberta Higgins, Pet Ott, Opal Elliston, and Marie Harris; finance, Virginia Beasley and Mary Williamson; and courtesy, Etoile Manning, Bea Hutson and Lola Jewell.

Guests were Cappy Cory and Gowdy. Members will meet Sept. 4 for a morning coffee hosted by the yearbook committee.

An English highway boasts the smallest underpass in the world—a tunnel one foot wide which was constructed to permit badgers to get to the other side of the road.

ACCIDENTS CAUSE MANY DEATHS

NEW YORK (AP) - Accidents account for about 96,000 deaths each year in the United States.

For the total U.S. population, accidental fatalities are exceeded only by those from major cardiovascular diseases and cancer. Among children and young adults, however, accidents are the leading cause of death, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance's "Statistical Bulletin."

The mortality rate in 1988 for all accidents, at home, at work, in public places or in a motor vehicle, was 39.1

per 100,000 population, up 1 percent from the 1987 rate. However, 1988 was the seventh straight year in which the National Safety Council reported total accidental deaths of fewer than 100,000.

Gerber speaks to women

Mrs. Jerry Gerber from St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger spoke to members of the St. Anthony's Women's Organization meeting Tuesday.

Gerber discussed the DCCW and its structure in the Catholic church. She then showed a film of Sister Thea Bowman who spoke at the DCCW National Convention. Sister Bowman was one of the busiest speakers on the Catholic circuit in the United States. She talked about worship and prayer and the importance of women in the Catholic church.

The business meeting was opened by President Charlotte Paetzold and the minutes were read by Gwen Betzen.

Annette Albracht reported on the church committee saying that Jo Ann Jesko had taken over the care of the lilies. Also, Emily Kriehauser was in charge of the flowers. The women were commended for their services.

Joyce Schlabs reported on the social committee announcing that St. Anthony's Day will be held June 13.

Reporting for the ways and means committee was Pattie Urbanczyk. It was decided by the women that a calf fry and hamburger cookout will be held in June in conjunction with the K.C. members. She also reported that SAWO will be giving away a "Great Escape" weekend at the Harvey Hotel. The winner will be announced June 13.

Karla Vasek told members that the Westgate party is planned at 2:30 p.m. May 10. Anyone interested in assisting with the party is invited.

The women were invited to a reception in honor of Domingo Castillo's ordination.

Paetzold reminded the group of the May Fellowship Day observance to be held in the Antonian Room Friday. The event will begin with a covered dish luncheon at 11:45 a.m. followed by a worship service. A nursery will be provided for the observance which is being sponsored by members of Church Women United.

It was announced that on Sunday, May 6, there will be an outdoor service at Caprock Canyon State Park beginning at 4 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring their own meal (no paper goods). The service is being held in connection with the observance of Soil and Conservation Week.

Following the business meeting, refreshments were served by hostesses, Annette Albracht, Mary Lou Homer, Jane Mathews and Michelle Brisendine.

The organization will meet for a salad luncheon at noon June 5.

The residents of Alaska move from one home to another more often than residents of any other state.

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) - Sylvia Sidney, recuperating at home from double pneumonia, still plans to attend a New York ceremony that will honor her with a lifetime achievement award.

The 79-year-old actress, who was released from Danbury Hospital on Monday, is scheduled to appear at Radio City Music Hall on Saturday for NBC's "Night of 100 Stars," where she will be honored along with Katherine Hepburn, Helen Hayes, Liv Ullman, Sidney Lumet and Joseph L. Mankiewicz.

Mary Varner vocalized "The Rose" and "Wind Beneath My Wings", accompanied by the bride's aunt, Karen Haley.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore the bridegroom's mother's wedding dress. The formal length gown of candlelight organza and lace was fashioned with a lace empire bodice with long petal point sleeves and the scalloped Sabrina neckline was accented with pearls. The A-line skirt was fashioned with three narrow bands of lace encircling the hemline. The Watteau chapel length train was edged with lace and attached with a small bow.

The bride's veil, made of candlelight tulle, featured a scalloped pearl band with lace flowers and pearls on each side which were accented by strands of ribbon. The veil was designed by the bridegroom's mother, Wanice Jones.
