Lake board scraps April election plan

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

The long wait for operating funds is apparently not as close to an end as members of the Buffalo Lake Water District Board had hoped.

Eight of the nine board members traveled to Umparger Tuesday night with plans to discuss the 1986 budget-one they hoped to fund with proceeds from a tax election in April.

Instead, the board learned that according to the Secretary of State's office the election can not go off as planned.

Walter Wolfram, an Amarillo attorney who has befriended the board on legal matters in the past, said he has learned that the tax issue can only be put to vote during countywide elections. Elections in Potter, Randall and Deaf Smith counties next month, mostly for city officials and school board members, are not countywide.

Wolfram said he talked with Potter and Randall county clerks, who told him their counties would not be willing to bear the expense of Buffalo Lake's tax election.

Going over their heads, Wolfram learned from the election division of the Secretary of State's office that the three counties could not be made to pay the estimated $30,000 to $60,000 needed to make balloting available on a countywide basis.

He said the board might consider appealing the Secretary of State's position to the Department of Justice, but such litigation would probably create animosity among the respective county governments and mostly likely cause the tax issue to fail.

Wolfram said the board's apparent inability to ask for tax monies creates another problem—that of holding elections for new board members. Without money to help pay for its own board elections, Wolfram said, the district cannot hold an election at the state's expense again until 1987.

He assured the board that it can remain legally constituted until then, and that current members could continue to serve unless they chose to resign.

Wolfram said that as he interprets the law, the board can ask for the tax appropriation in November when countywide elections should take place, or perhaps prior to that on the second Saturday in August.

If approved by the voters, assessments would be for the 1986 tax year with money becoming available at the end of 1986 and early in 1987. The board has been operating without funds since it was created as a permanent governing body in November of 1983.

Because the matter of calling for an election was not on the agenda of Tuesday night's special meeting, board members were unable to officially scrap their plans for the annual election.

18 students entered in spelling bee

The annual Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee kicks off its two-day run Thursday afternoon when 18 young contestants vie for the Junior Bee title, with the winner going on to Friday's Senior Bee to determine the county champion.

The Hereford Brand, new sponsor of the county bee, will send the Deaf Smith champion to the Regional Bee April 27 at Mary Moody Northern Concert Hall on the campus of West Texas State University. The Amarillo Globe-News and WTSU are sponsors of the regional event.

The County Bee starts at 1:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Flame Room of the Energas building. Parents and interested persons are invited to attend.

Friday's Senior Bee is scheduled to have only five contestants—two each from Stanton and La Plata junior highs and the junior winner from Thursday. Walcott did not select senior winners.

Matt Coplen, La Plata 8th grader, will return to defend his county championship, and he will be seeking his fourth straight county title. He also placed third in the Regional Bee the past two years and was 13th as a fifth-grader.

Others who have qualified for the Senior Bee include Angela Banner of La Plata and Heather Hamilton and Vincent Garcia of Stanton. Alternates are Jason Bradshaw of Stanton and Dulari Parikh and Angela Brumley of La Plata.

The finalists for the Junior Bee Thursday include four from each intermediate public school and St. Anthony's, and two from Walcott. They are: Bluebonnet—Donna Grotegut, Carrie Butler, Jennifer Hicks, Heather Morgan; Shirley—Michael Muse, Celia Rodriguez, Zach Walker, Javier Gutierrez; West Central—Zack Farr, Tammy Holmes, Annabel Liscano, Jayme Moore; St. Anthony's—Nikki Lindeman, Lee Reinauer, Camille Betzen, Gail Walterscheid; Walcott—Trisha Teel, Rebecca Soloman.

Thanks to the interest of four local financial institutions, the winner and runner-up in each bee will receive more than a trophy or certificate. Each of the four institutions have contributed $50 in savings accounts and the awards will be distributed as follows: $75 to the county champ and $50 to the runnerup; $50 to the junior champ and $25 to the runnerup.

The Hereford Brand assumed sponsorship of the county bee this year, with O.G. Nieman as director. "We believe the spelling bee is a highly respected educational activity which is designed to help students improve their spelling, increase their vocabulary and develop correct English usage. We are pleased to work with county school officials in conducting this program," said Nieman.

Each school in the county with 4th through eighth grades were invited to determine school champions and send the finalists to the junior and senior county bees. In order to participate, students must not have passed beyond the eighth grade at the time of their school finals and must not reach their 16th birthday on or before June 2, 1985, which is the date of the National Bee in Washington, D.C.

Expenses for the regional champion and one escort to the National Bee will be provided by the Amarillo Globe-News. Each county champion, including a Junior champion, will receive a Bee trophy. A plaque will be awarded the 1985 Regional Bee winner.

Suicide warning signs topic of free workshop

Suicide, the second leading cause of death among young people, is to be discussed during a free workshop Thursday at the Deaf Smith County Library.

Mrs. Esther Quine, director of the Suicide Prevention Center of the Amarillo Mental Health Mental Retardation Regional Center, will present the program entitled "Suicide: The Warning Signs." The session is sponsored by the Hereford Family Services Center and the Deaf Smith County Chemical People Task Force.

Quine will present a 25-minute film, followed by a discussion of the clues and warning signs exhibited by a person contemplating suicide. She will talk about the pressures that young people face and what family members, friends and teachers can do to help.

Quine is a current board member of the American Association of Suicidology.

Child care services will not be provided during the program, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. and should last about an hour.

For more information call the Hereford Family Services Center at 364-6111.

Marshall joins race

Margaret J. Marshall, an instructor at West Texas State University, has filed for the District 1 seat on the Hereford school board.

Marshall teaches developmental reading and freshman composition for non-native speakers of English at WTSU. She is also responsible for a methods and materials course in the college's education department.

She received her bachelor's degree in communication and English education from the University of Northern Colorado. She has her master's degree in secondary English education with an emphasis in reading from the University of Colorado.

Marshall has eight years of teaching experience in Colorado and overseas. She was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Kenya.

She is married to Randy Marshall, an attorney with Texas Rural Legal Aid, and the couple has two children.

"With a background in education, I am ready to deal with the complicated issues and state requirements put before the board," Marshall says. "As a current classroom teacher I can relate to the concerns of teachers and help find workable solutions to the overwhelming job of paperwork, individualizing instruction and meeting students' needs."

Veto likely on credit package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite criticism that it is playing politics with the plight of the nation's farmers, Congress is sending President Reagan a farm credit rescue package that appears headed for the first veto of 1985.

The bill, passed 255-168 Tuesday on a largely party-line vote, was being delivered today to the White House, where administration officials have labeled it a "budget buster" and more than what is needed to address the credit problems of farmers.

Reagan was expected to veto the measure, even though it includes authorization for non-food relief for drought-stricken Africa. Leaders of the GOP-controlled Senate have said they have votes to sustain a veto, which takes a two-thirds vote in both Houses to overturn.

But Democrats, who see the credit issue as a political boon for themselves, planned their own symbolic "bill signing" today, followed by a march up Pennsylvania Avenue to a park across the street from the White House for a rally.

"We have a long tradition, whenever any part of our great American family faces an emergency, the rest of us rally around," House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said as the House debated the measure Tuesday. "This bill is the only lifeboat in sight."

But Republicans said the Senate Democrats had done a "sloppy job" of drafting the legislation, leaving loopholes that would allow even wealthy farmers to borrow money from the government at subsidized rates.

"We seem more concerned about harvesting votes than harvesting crops," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill.

Rep. Edward Madigan of Illinois, the top Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, was more blunt: "It's very, very clear ... that you are more interested in the veto, the public relations aspect of this, you're more interested in embarrassing the president of the United States than you are in helping farmers and ranchers."

The credit provisions are aimed at easing credit for farmers whose unmanageable debt loads are preven-

Tanker crash kills 27

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — A tanker truck carrying thousands of gallons of liquid petroleum gas collided head-on with a bus today, killing 27 people and injuring at least 30 more, the Red Cross said.

Irene Macias, a Red Cross spokeswoman, said 24 people were killed instantly and three more died en route to hospitals. The accident took place at about 6 a.m. near the town of Tequila, 35 miles west of Guadalajara, Mexico's second-largest city.

Jorge Alberto Nevares Velasco, a Jalisco state district attorney's investigator on the scene, said 10 of the victims were hospitalized in critical condition.

Nevares said in a telephone interview hours after the accident the truck was still leaking gas and people in the immediate area had been evacuated. It was not clear how many people were affected.

"Gas is leaking from the tanker and it is dangerous. Traffic on the highway was interrupted and everyone cleared out," he said.

He said the truck, loaded with "thousands of gallons of liquid gas" was on its way from Tequila to Guadalajara, and the bus was bound from Guadalajara to the beach resort of Puerto Vallarta, on the Pacific coast.

Nevares said he did not know if all the bus passengers were Mexican or if there were foreigners among the victims. "We don't know yet. We're trying to identify them — both the dead and the wounded," he said.

"From what we can gather, the tanker crashed, then sideswiped the bus, and the tank part of the vehicle came loose and crashed on top of one side of the bus, breaking it in two," Nevares said. "But the tanker did not explode. Just leaked, and any

The current farm crisis, highlighted by delegations from farm states marching on Washington, seems to hinge upon the availability of credit for farmers but the long-range problem still rests on the pricing of farm products.

The Reagan administration wants to move agriculture more toward a free market, gradually doing away with farm subsidies. Under the administration plan, up to 10,000 Texas farms could go out of business, according to Ronald Knutson, a state farm economist.

This nation has had some sort of farm subsidy plan since the 1930s when the first Agricultural Adjustment Act was passed in an attempt to salvage bankrupt farmers and give them at least a subsistence level of income in order to continue producing food.

The farm subsidy—or the food consumer subsidy as some farmers call it—has been around ever since in some form. The problem faced by farmers is different from most other producers. The farmer produces a crop and then asks buyers what they will give. Because of governmental influences and other factors, the market for crops varies widely—and sometimes disregards the production costs of the farmer.

DOE to meet with city, tax district

Three Department of Energy (DOE) officials expected to arrive in Hereford tonight are to meet Thursday with at least two local governing bodies.

Jeff Neff, program manager for the Salt Repository Project office in Columbus, will be accompanied by Linda McClain, project manager, and Beth Darrough, project manager for socio-economics.

The three will meet at 11 a.m. Thursday with the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District to discuss the effect it would have on the county's tax base if a site north of Hereford is chosen as the nation's first underground repository for radioactive nuclear waste.

A 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting is scheduled between the DOE representatives and the Hereford City Commission, to discuss the socio-economic impact that would be created by workers moving to the area during site characterization.

Unemployment at 8.7 percent

Preliminary figures show unemployment was at 8.7 percent in Deaf Smith County for the month of January.

The Texas Employment Commission reports that of a civilian labor force of 8,079, a total of 7,373 were employed during the first month of 1985.

In neighboring Castro and Parmer counties, also served by the Hereford office of TEC, unemployment was at 7.7 and 6.2 percent, respectively.

Theft estimate at over $600

Over $600 in goods was taken from a vehicle while it was parked in the 200 block of Irving, according to police reports. The major item stolen was a diamond ring. Also taken were an equalizer, a cassette case and 21 cassettes.

At Garrison Seed, police investigated a burglary in which office equipment was stolen.

Police also checked reports of a rear windshield broken in a car parked at Hereford High School, a family disturbance, and a juvenile shoplifting case. Police also tended to a runaway case in which the youth later returned.

Case has major development

DALLAS (AP) — Sandra Ryno's decision to testify against her exboss was a major turning point in the case against him, prosecutors say, but it was an extremely tough choice to make, she said through her attorney.

The former LTV Corp. receptionist's decision helped net guilty pleas from former company chairman Paul Thayer in an insider stock trading scheme, The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday.

Thayer, also the Pentagon's No. 2 official until he resigned early last year, admitted Monday he lied to the SEC when he denied profiting from the stock manipulation scheme, which took place before he joined the Reagan administration in 1983.

Thayer, 65, and a friend, Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris, 45, pleaded guilty to federal charges of obstructing justice by giving false information to the Securities Exchange Commission.

Defense resumes Thursday

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says he will clear up all questions about his pre-trial phone call to a key prosecution witness when he takes the stand in his commercial bribery trial.

Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer Wiley Caldwell, subject of an alleged threat from Mattox, Tuesday said Mattox phoned him six weeks before the trial opened and discussed what could be done to avoid it.

Caldwell tape recorded the calls, and the tapes were played for the jury.

"I know that there are a number of the allegations in the indictment that they cannot prove without your testimony," Mattox told Caldwell. "I really do need some help with it."

Caldwell, a partner in the powerful Fulbright & Jaworski law firm, is Mattox's chief accuser on the felony charge.

Comptroller given authority

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has approved a bill that would require the comptroller to reject license or permit applications controlled by his office if a taxpayer is delinquent in payments to the state.

Senators on Tuesday also voted to increase fees for beauty shops and to require state agency financial reports that would include what the agencies have done to save money.

The Senate in a 31-0 vote approved Sen. Ed Howard's bill to require the comptroller to refuse to issue or renew a permit or license to a person who does not have a proper permit or who is delinquent in paying any tax collected by the comptroller.

Howard's bill, which goes to the House, also authorizes the comptroller to revoke or suspend any permit or license issued to a person who fails to comply with any provision of the Tax Code or Bingo Enabling Act.

USFL to use more replays

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Football League is expanding its use of television replays to decide controversial plays. The decisions of game officials have been upheld all six times replays have been used.

The USFL announced Tuesday that instead of using replay appeals only on ABC's Sunday telecast, it will use it on all games televised by ABC and ESPN.

That will amount to three or four of the seven games played each weekend.

The appeal is limited to calls involving pass completions, fumbles, or a ball carrier's progress at the goal line.

The replay will be used with Baltimore at Memphis Saturday night, Los Angeles at New Jersey Sunday, and Jacksonville at Arizona Monday night.

Former choirboy executed

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Former choirboy Johnny Paul Witt was executed today in Florida's electric chair for killing an 11-year-old boy he and another man then sexually abused and mutilated.

Witt, 42, convicted for the fatal assault on the son of a University of South Florida professor, died shortly after 7 a.m. He was the 12th man put to death in the state's electric chair since capital punishment was reinstated by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 and the 39th inmate executed in the nation since then.

Department of Corrections spokesman Vernon Bradford said Witt requested no final meal but that he was given an omelet, rolls and coffee before being taken from his holding cell to the nearby oak electric chair. "He kind of nibbled at" the omelet, Bradford said.

Late Tuesday, the U.S. Supreme Court voted 5-3 to reject an emergency appeal aimed at temporarily sparing Witt's life.

Divorce dropping sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in 20 years, fewer Americans are getting divorced, with the number of dissolved marriages dropping 43,000 between 1981 and 1982, according to a new population study.

After setting a record with 1,213,000 divorces in 1981, only 1,170,000 married couples called it quits in 1982, the most recent year for which detailed information is available, according to the study by the National Center for Health Statistics.

"This was the first decline in the number of divorces in 20 years," said the study by Barbara Wilson of the center, which collects birth, marriage, death, divorce and health information for the Department of Health and Human Services.

And, the report added, "the divorce rate also dropped sharply, from 5.3 per 1,000 population in 1981 to 5.0 in 1982. This drop of 6 percent was more precipitous than any annual decline since those recorded following the steep, but temporary, surge in marriages and divorces in the aftermath of World War II."

While the government statisticians collect the numbers, they hesitate to speculate on reasons for the changes.

Peso to devaluate

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government has announced it is devaluing the peso at a higher daily rate to increase the competitiveness of Mexican exports.

Under the new devaluation schedule, to go into effect today, the peso, made up of 100 centavos, will be reduced in value at a rate of 21 centavos a day. That replaces a daily slide of 17 centavos.

The official rate of exchange Tuesday was 219.9 pesos to the dollar. At that rate the peso is worth less than half a U.S. cent.

A statement from Banco de Mexico, the central bank, said the daily slide represents an annual devaluation rate of 37.7 percent. The old slide represented an annual devaluation of 28.8 percent.

On Dec. 6, the government increased the daily slide from 13 centavos to 17 centavos, saying it was necessary to promote tourism, make Mexican goods more competitive abroad and slow the flow of dollars from the country.

AUSTIN (AP) — House members raced to the microphone when a young lawmaker tried to push a vote on a measure on which some legislators would prefer to never cast a vote — school prayer.

The scurrying began after Rep. Robert Earley, D-Portland, drew little attention in winning House approval to allow the measure to go to the floor without going to committee.

Earley's resolution calls on Congress to convene a constitutional convention to consider an amendment giving the states the right to decide on public school prayer. The U.S. Supreme Court has banned open prayer in public school.

The resolution said federal courts have "inhibited and abridged the right of religious freedom by invalidating numerous school prayer practices."

"The decision needs to be made by the states, not the courts," said Earley.

During a portion of routine House proceedings when members traditionally pay little attention, Earley won approval for suspension of the rules requiring committee review of legislation.

But House members' ears perked up when Earley mentioned school prayer. Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen, complained that the "very controversial" measure had not gone to committee.

He later told reporters that it would be senseless to force a quick House vote on a resolution that probably has little meaning — except possibly to some political futures. Congress usually pays little attention to what the Texas Legislature says. Voters, however, tend to remember how their representatives voted on school prayer, said Hinojosa.

"It allows the members to get themselves cut up and it doesn't serve any useful purpose," said Hinojosa.

The McAllen lawmaker said he supports the Supreme Court decision on school prayer.

"With the diversity of religions in this country we can't pass this kind of amendment," he said.

Rep. Smith Gilley, D-Greenville, said the Earley move was an attempt to "slip" something past the House.

"It smacks of an effort to subvert the committee process. These types of resolutions are usually done for pure demagoguery," he said.

Earley said he spoke to Speaker Gib Lewis before bringing the resolution to the floor. Lewis said he gave Earley permission to make the effort, but said he would send the measure to committee if there appeared to be any "controversy."

Lewis said he told House members to "listen up" before he asked for the vote on allowing the resolution to come to the floor without committee review.

After Gilley and Hinojosa objected, the speaker sent the bill to the House State Affairs Committee.

"Personally, I feel there is a need for voluntary school prayer," said Earley, a Catholic who said his resolution was not pushed by any organized pro-school prayer group.

ting them from getting new loans for spring planting: $100 million in interest subsidies; $1.85 billion in new loan guarantees and about $7 billion in immediate advances on crop loans normally not received until harvest time.

That language was tacked onto a bill authorizing $175 million this year for non-food African famine relief, including money to buy seed and fertilizer, to aid refugees and for emergency health care.

Congressional economists say the measure's actual cost to the government over the next five years will be about $429 million, after loans are repaid. The administration believes the cost will be higher, around $1 billion to $2 billion, because of anticipated defaults on guaranteed loans and other factors.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas said he hoped the veto would come quickly so that farmers and their bankers would quit looking to the government for more help and instead take advantage of a credit aid program already in place, but which has less attractive terms.

"Within the next few days we are going to lay to rest this so-called farm credit crisis," Dole told a meeting of the U.S. Feed Grains Council. "Obviously some farmers are not going to make it, and that's unfortunate. But I don't know what the answer is. ... I don't think there are any." The administration contends its own credit-relief program, first announced during last fall's presidential campaign and modified at least twice since then to try to entice bank participation, is adequate to meet spring-planting credit needs.

That program provides at least $650 million in loan guarantees to banks that agree to write off at least 10 percent of a farmer's loan principal, or an equivalent amount in interest, in return for federal backing of 90 percent of the balance.

anticipated voting. The board will meet again March 19, at which time they're expected to officially cancel plans for an April 6 election and discuss holding one in November.

In other business, the board heard from Ernie Houdashell, a district representative for U.S. Congressman Beau Boulter. Since touring the lake earlier this year, Boulter has been corresponding regularly with the Department of Interior regarding the future of the area.

Now under the department's control as a national wildlife refuge, the lake is dry and is expected to remain so until the Umberger Dam is repaired. Although funds have not been appropriated, the Bureau of Reclamation has recommended to the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife that the dam be repaired to provide flood control for homes and businesses downstream on the Tierra Blanca Creek.

Boulter said although he would like to see the lake shift from federal to state control, he does not anticipate that happening. In a letter to Houdashell distributed to board members, Boulter indicated he would consider asking the Interior Department to let the Buffalo Lake Water Board operate the recreational portion of the lake.

Board Secretary Charlie Johnson concluded official business at Tuesday's meeting by announcing that the Fish and Wildlife Service has filed an amendment to its permit for a smaller dam on the west end of the lake.

Several board members had maintained that Fish and Wildlife should have amended the permit before the dam was repaired and made larger last summer. Known as Stewart Dam, the structure currently impounds water for waterfowl wintering at the refuge.

Other producers figure up their costs, add a margin of profit and then set the price. Government administrations for the past 30 years have maintained a cheap food policy, setting farm regulations with the subsidy payments as a hammer. The government tells the farmer not to produce, or to plant from fence row to fence row—depending on the domestic as well as the foreign situation.

Can the American farmer live without government subsidy? The unfortunate thing is that the nation may never find out except at the expense of thousands of family farms. If farming moves into the hands of a relatively few, the results could be scary with food prices rising to an unbelievable mark!

Burma could offer the world an agricultural revolution of its own, according to National Geographic. As many as 30,000 rice varieties may exist in the country's northern areas. Many plant geneticists believe them to be among a handful of dwindling zones in the world that preserve the genetic history of commercial food crops.

Museum to host Roundup Day

CANYON, Tx - On Saturday, March 16, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum will host a Quilt Roundup Day. Its purpose, according to Curator of Textiles JoAnne Arasim, is to give area residents an opportunity to have their antique quilts examined by an expert, and in the process to educate the public about quilts and their care. A $100 prize will be awarded to the oldest, best preserved, and most beautiful quilt brought in on that day.

"Anyone who has a quilt made in Texas before 1936 or brought to Texas before 1936 can participate. Ms. Bresenhan will look over the quilts 'while you wait,' and no one will be asked to leave a quilt here," explained Arasim.

Other criteria for evaluating the quilts will be workmanship, complexity of pattern, design factors such as fabric and colors, and condition of quilt. While cloth pieces and appliques are eligible. Bresenhan is a director of the Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association and co-founder of the South-Southwest Quilt Association.

The Museum's Quilt Roundup is one of more than a dozen Quilt Days being held in Texas from 1983 through 1985 by the Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association in order to discover the fine old quilts that exist in Texas. A nonprofit organization founded in 1980, the TSQA is recognized by the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission as an official Sesquicentennial Organization. Its purpose is to call public attention to the unique artistic and cultural contributions made to Texas history by the women quilt artists of the past and present.

Quilt Roundup Day in Canyon is jointly sponsored by the TSQA, the High Plains Quilters' Guild, and Jan's Quilt Shop, of Amarillo. The $100 prize is furnished by Jan's Quilt Shop.

Other Sesquicentennial activities sponsored by the Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association include the establishment of a Texas Quilt Archives and a traveling exhibition of the 50 best antique Texas quilts. Quilts brought to Quilt day are eligible for inclusion in these projects.

Discouraged because fewer than half of the parking offenders bothered to pay their tickets, Japanese police began to use a ticket on a metal loop that locks on car doors or side mirrors. Since the system was instituted, most motorists tagged have come to the police stations to pay their fines and have the tickets removed.

'Helping Smokers Quit' program offered by ACS

The American Cancer Society announces that it will be offering a free "Helping Smokers Quit" program to provide smokers with the support and assistance they need.

This program will last four sessions and will be held on March 11, 14, 18, 21 from 12 noon to 1 p.m. and 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. It will be held at St. Mary's Hospital in the respiratory therapy room.

This program is free and fun and is led by medical professionals and trained volunteers who are ex-smokers themselves.

No pins or needles or electric shock are used. Just the shock of seeing how great you will look and feel after you quit smoking.

The program consists of movies, rap sessions, exercises, motivators and answers to questions about smoking. You'll learn why you smoke, how you can quit and how to stay quit.

To register and for more information call the American Cancer Society at 794-5808.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Hiatal hernia

DEAR DR LAMB — I have a hiatal hernia, ulcers and trouble with my esophagus. Can you send me a diet or tell me what changes to make so I can enjoy life? I'm 71 and would appreciate any help you can give me.
DEAR READER — About 50 percent of people over 40 do have a hiatal hernia, in which a part of the stomach slides through an enlarged hole in the diaphragm. There is some disagreement about when the diagnosis should be made, since small hernias produced by pressure above the abdomen may not cause any trouble. In fact, many people with a hiatal hernia never know they have one until an X-ray is taken.
Heartburn is the main symptom. It is not caused by the hernia, but by the leakage of the stomach's acid contents into the lower esophagus. That can cause an ulcer in the lower esophagus, just as acid stomach contents can cause an ulcer in the duodenum, outside the stomach.
Eating frequent small meals helps to prevent leakage into the esophagus. It is important to let your stomach have enough time to empty before you lie down. When the valve mechanism at the top of the stomach doesn't work correctly, the stomach is like a bottle without a cap. When you lie down and the stomach is on its side, its contents leak out.
I have outlined the main things one can do to prevent the leakage that causes heartburn in The Health Letter, Special Report 18, Hiatal Hernia and Heartburn, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
There is no special diet for those with a hiatal hernia, except to eat small meals, avoid fats that delay stomach-emptying before you go to bed and avoid coffee, tea, colas and alcohol. In addition, don't smoke.
Many of the things one can do to relieve heartburn are the same things one can do to relieve an ulcer. Medicines that prevent excess stomach acid or neutralize it are helpful for both conditions.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 79 and still have a good set of teeth. I seldom go to a dentist, but each time I do, the dentist urges me to have my teeth cleaned, due to plaque. I would have this done, but, like most dentists, he treats my mouth and lips as if they were made of rubber.
I read that common baking soda can be used to clean the teeth. I tried this recently and was amazed at the good results it had in cleaning out the plaque. I intend to use baking soda frequently, in addition to ordinary toothpaste.
Do you recommend using baking soda for this purpose? I see no reason why it should be harmful, since it is used in baking.
DEAR READER — Congratulations on having good teeth. I suspect that part of the reason is that you brush regularly and well. However, even though baking soda and other items have been recommended to keep the teeth clean, you can still develop plaque where you cannot reach with a brush. You may not know the plaque is there, since the dentist must examine you carefully to find it. Regardless of what dental-hygiene procedures you use, you should see your dentist regularly and let him remove plaque from the areas you can't clean adequately.
I agree that some members of the dental profession seem to have little respect for the patient's lips. Before you go to see your dentist, lubricate your lips well with Vaseline.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have been trying to have a second child for seven years. My gynecologist said that my husband is OK. However, he found that one of my fallopian tubes is blocked. Since the other one is open, the doctor said I could conceive. He also said I don't need to take fertility pills. Do I need vitamins to build up my fertility?
DEAR READER — I'm glad that you and your husband have been examined. That is the right way to approach a fertility problem.
Yes, you can certainly get pregnant as long as one tube is open and you have normal ovulation and other normal factors.
I wish the problem could be solved easily, such as by taking vitamins. It is important for both males and females to be in good health, which includes good nutrition. Otherwise, you can't expect any help from additional vitamins or minerals.
What is wrong when a fertile couple who have already had one child cannot have another child? There can be many factors. You both may need to undergo further testing. One of the most complicated problems occurs when a woman becomes immune to her husband's sperm. Sperm cells are foreign bodies, and a woman may develop antibodies to her mate's sperm cells. In this case, even if he produces enough normal sperm cells, her antibodies may destroy them, preventing fertility.
A man may develop antibodies to his own sperm cells. The body's ability to recognize "self" vs. "non-self" substances occurs in the early years of life. Since sperm cells do not exist then, the male's own body may identify sperm cells as "non-self" and may develop anti-sperm antibodies.
Read The Health Letter 17-2, Female Reproductive Function, which I am sending you, for more detailed information on reproduction. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
In some males, the sperm cells tend to clump, decreasing their motility and ability to cause pregnancy.

Ann Landers

Proposal sought by students

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago I read in the Baltimore Sun that the students at Brown University voted for a proposal that the college stock suicide pills for students in case of a nuclear war. The vote was 1,044 in favor of the pills and 687 against. Brown has 5,200 undergraduates.

The suicide question was placed on the ballot after a junior and a senior gathered the needed 700 signatures from students. Brown officials made it clear that they never would agree to stockpile suicide pills, regardless of the way the students voted.

Dr. Sumner Hoffman, director of the university medical services, said many parents called and asked him what kind of nutty school Brown is to have people talking about cyanide pills. At first he dismissed the referendum as a preposterous idea, but on reflection changed his mind. "I realized this was a serious endeavor to raise consciousness and had touched a chord on campus," he said.

Although the mass suicide proposal generated intense interest, many students said the atmosphere at Brown remains apathetic. A senior from Pittsburgh, when asked what was uppermost in students' minds, replied, "Money."

Do you believe this, Ann? Have campuses changed that much?—MOTHER OF TWO BROWN GRADS

DEAR MOTHER: Yes, they have. On all the campuses I have visited in recent years I noted a hard core of students who are deeply concerned about the possibility of nuclear war. But I also sense a great deal more political conservatism with a heavy focus on financial security and upward mobility. Another change—more women want part of the action.

The idealists will always be with us, but there has been a big swing to the right among college students. Competition for room at the top has become stiffer. Within 10 years we may have a serious surplus of doctors, lawyers and M.B.A.s.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have five children, all overachievers who have studied hard and done well. Two are medical doctors, and one is a banker. The other two married extremely well, have young children and plenty of help in the house.

My husband is 65. I am 62. We are broke from paying off debts for their weddings and their education. (It is no small thing to put five children through college and medical school these days.)

We rarely hear from our children. When we do, they tell us about the fancy trips they are taking and the nice things they are buying.

Last week, my husband asked our eldest son for some financial help. He was told, "File bankruptcy, and move into a small apartment!"

Ann, personal feelings are no longer a factor; it is a matter of survival. I am worried about my husband. Soon he will have no salary and will be working on commission. Is there any law that says our children must help out? If we have to get a lawyer, we will, but obviously we can't afford to pay for one if there is no point to it.—POVERTY STRICKEN IN MONTREAL, QUEBEC

DEAR M.Q.: "Sharper than a ser-pent's tooth."—Laws vary from province to province. I hope you will see your clergyman before you see a lawyer.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious—lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Hand salute

Before the 19th century, British soldiers saluted by tipping their hats. Hand raising as a formal greeting originated among cave dwellers to prove they carried no weapons. In feudal times, an armored knight raised his right arm to lift his helmet visor and to show his friendship by keeping his hand away from weapons. The gesture developed into the military salute.

Friends of the Library memberships available

The Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library are sponsoring their annual membership drive this month.

Friends of the Library provide financial assistance to the library and help to make it one of the finest libraries in the Panhandle, according to Dianne Pierson, county librarian. The group sponsors the Family Film which is shown the third Thursday of each month, supplies decals for t-shirts during the Summer Reading Club and purchases equipment for the library.

The new projects slated for 1985-86 are to purchase Books-On-Tape to circulate among library patrons and to pledge support to the Texas Panhandle Citizen for Libraries so that the libraries in the West Texas Panhandle may have representation in Austin.

Friends of the Library have two fund-raisers each year, the book sale in October and the membership drive in March. Membership is divided into the following classifications: $2 per year for individual memberships, $5 per year for organizational memberships, $10 per year for business memberships and $5 per year for family memberships.

Contributions of $15 or more entitle the donor to membership. Life memberships are granted to those contributing $100 or more.

Membership is open to any interested citizen in Hereford. To pay the dues, go to the library, 211 East 4th St., or mail in the dues. For additional information, contact Dianne Pierson at 364-1206.

Polly Fisher
Fresh fish

DEAR POLLY — We like to buy fresh fish from a local fish market. I always buy and cook the fish on the same day, but sometimes this is difficult. Can the fish be kept overnight in the refrigerator and cooked the next day? — DENISE

DEAR DENISE — If the fish is truly fresh when you buy it, you should be able to store it in the refrigerator for up to two days. There will be some loss in quality. As you know, the fresher fish is, the better it tastes, but the fish will still be good and safe to eat. Wrap it in clear plastic wrap and store it in the coldest part of your refrigerator; in many newer models, that would be the meat storage tray (check your instruction booklet). If you think the fish is not absolutely fresh, but has already been stored for two to three days, you should eat it immediately.

Live shellfish can be stored for a day, as well. Put them in a plastic bag with several small air holes in the top. If you brought them home from the market in water, store them in salt water (fresh water will kill shellfish). Your fish dealer can give you further advice about storing live shellfish. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I had beavers working on my young trees. To protect the trees from the beavers, I wrapped one tree with an ace bandage I had. The others I wrapped with nylon stockings I had cut lengthwise. So far this has worked beautifully. — MRS. E.J.

DEAR POLLY — Wipe or spray the rubber gaskets around your car doors and trunk door with a coat of vegetable oil. This will prevent the doors from freezing shut and will also help prolong the life of the rubber gaskets. It's especially good to do before having your car washed in the winter. — MRS. O.H.

At Baylor University

Probe revealing new insights

DALLAS (AP) — A Waco bank headed by a Baylor University booster reportedly gave low-payment car loans to two Dallas high school basketball stars after they signed with the school in 1983 and 1984. And those loans, granted to Michael Williams and DeWayne Brown, had significantly smaller payments during the school year than in the summer, the Dallas Times Herald reported Tuesday.

National Collegiate Athletic Association rules prohibit a school's staff member or representative of its athletic interests from arranging loans for prospective student-athletes prior to completion of their senior year in high school, said David Berst, the NCAA's director of enforcement.

The cars were purchased from Dallas auto dealerships with loans from Westview National Bank of Waco less than a month after Williams and Brown signed national letters of intent to play at Baylor, in April 1983 and April 1984, the Times Herald said.

The bank officer who handled both loans, William Martin, told the newspaper he was instructed to work with the players' families by bank president Smith Thomasson, a Baylor alumnus and friend of basketball Coach Jim Haller.

Haller resigned Feb. 22 after admitting to school officials that he gave a reserve center, John Wheeler of Dallas, a university check for $172 to make three monthly car payments.

Haller told the Times Herald he did not remember whether or not he directed Williams and Brown to the Waco bank, now known as the United Bank of Waco.

Thomasson said his bank tries to help "all Baylor students, not just athletes, with their financial needs."

"I'm a Baylor University graduate. I want to help Baylor. We'll get a loan to a basketball player and a loan to a tuba player from Tupelo, Mississippi," Thomasson said.

Owners' financial problems

Players want it written

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Negotiators for the Major League Players Association have asked for a formal letter from management detailing what baseball owners claim are the game's serious financial problems.

In the first of a series of meetings which will take the two sides through spring training sites in Florida, Arizona and California, management repeated its concern for the game's financial well-being. The theme was first sounded a week ago when the owners called upon the union for help in dealing with what they view as an economic crisis.

"What we indicated today in mulling over last week is there is no question the players are skeptical," said Don Fehr, acting executive director of the union. "There is a lot of history there and some difficulty understanding what they are talking about."

The players asked the owners to outline their problems in letter form and Lee MacPhail, president of the Player Relations Committee, said management would try to have the document ready for the next bargaining session in Orlando next Tuesday.

"We would like in writing what it is they want us to understand and consider and what they want to demonstrate," Fehr said. "I'm trying to get an understanding of what they're talking about. So far it's a very general statement of financial problems. Hopefully, they will provide a statement as specifically as they can."

MacPhail said the players were asking "What we felt the problem was and what caused it. They want a written statement of the exact description, its causes and what we can do about it. We will try to provide the information by the end of the week."

"It was a meaningful meeting, a first step in the process. I think both sides are trying to find the proper way to go. If both go together, it could be an historic step."

MacPhail said he understood the players' position on the issue.

"They can't just take our word," he said. "There's some degree of scepticism among the players."

Frank Tanana of the Texas Rangers, Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos and Jerry Reuss of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

On management's side of the table were MacPhail, league presidents Bobby Brown of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National and club owners John McMullen of Houston, Edward Bennett Williams of Baltimore, Bud Selig of Milwaukee and Peter O'Malley of Los Angeles, who form the PRC executive board.

OU coach gets involved with crowd enthusiasm

By The Associated Press
In the end, even Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs starting cheering.

With three minutes left to play and No. 4 Oklahoma comfortably ahead of Oklahoma State in their Big Eight Conference tournament game Tuesday night, Tubbs took All-American Wayman Tisdale out of the lineup.

And as Tisdale, who had scored 30 points and grabbed 19 rebounds, left the court, the home crowd responded with a resounding chant of "One More Year" — a reference to the 6-foot-9 junior's impending decision on whether to return to Oklahoma next season or turn professional.

Tubbs, who was celebrating his 50th birthday, joined in the festivities.

"That was a great idea," Tubbs said. "That's the first time I've ever been yelling along with the crowd."

Oklahoma won the opening-round game 116-91, and even though he wasn't cheering, Oklahoma State Coach Paul Hansen was impressed.

"The Sooners were just awesome tonight," Hansen said. "We played as hard as we could, but they were in the groove, and just made a shambles of the game."

Two other Top Twenty teams were in action Tuesday night — No. 10

Kansas tripped Nebraska 74-69 in another Big Eight playoff game while No. 15 Tulsa downed West Texas State, also by 74-69, in a Missouri Valley Conference tournament game.

Oklahoma, 26-5, advanced to a second-round game Friday night in Kansas City against the winner of tonight's Missouri-Kansas State game.

The Sooners, the nation's top-scoring team, won their 33rd straight game at home by using a devastating 20-4 burst in the first half to take a 58-36 lead.

NBA roundup

Sampson, Natt match up

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

On paper, a Houston-Denver game should be a mismatch, with the Rockets sending 7-foot-4 power forward Ralph Sampson against 6-6 power forward Calvin Natt.

On the court, however, it doesn't work out that way, or at least it didn't in Tuesday night's National Basketball Association game, which saw Natt outscore Sampson 37-30 in Denver's 133-131 double overtime victory. Both All-Stars had 15 rebounds.

"Calvin Natt is just a horse," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "You try to tell him he's too small for those guys and he just doesn't believe it."

Denver scored eight straight points in the second overtime to lead 131-124, but the Rockets responded with seven in a row to tie the score before reserve guard Mike Evans hit the game-winning jumper with 44 seconds left.

Alex English led Denver with 39 points, while Rodney McCray had 25 for Houston. Evans had 20 points along with Houston's Akeem Olujuwon, who also equalled his own NBA season high for rebounds with 25.

It was Denver's sixth straight victory and 19th in its last 23 games. Denver now leads the Midwest Division by 4½ games over the Rockets.

In other NBA games, it was Boston 110, New York 102; Kansas City 134, New Jersey 113; Milwaukee 102, Seattle 87; Dallas 108, Indiana 102; Chicago 104, Washington 99, and Portland 100, Atlanta 91.

Celtics 110, Knicks 102
Kevin McHale continued his phenomenal shooting by hitting 15 of 21 shots and scoring 42 points for Boston against New York.

McHale, who set a Celtics record with 56 points against Detroit on Sunday, had 11 points during a 17-4 streak that wiped out a 47-45 Knicks lead and gave Boston the lead for good.

Bernard King had 38 points to lead the Knicks, who, because of injuries and illness, played without front-court players Pat Cummings and James Bailey the whole game and forward Louis Orr for more than half. Six New York players 6-7 or taller are now sidelined.

Larry Bird had 20 points, 19 rebounds and 10 assists for Boston, giving him seven triple-doubles this season, but his string of nine straight 30-point games ended.

Bucks 102, Sonics 87
Milwaukee swamped Seattle in the first half behind the sharp shooting of Kevin Grevey and coasted to victory.

The Bucks outscored the Sonics 32-13 during a stretch from late in the first quarter to late in the second to lead 59-33. Seattle chipped away at the deficit in the second half, but got no closer than 10 points.

Terry Cummings led all scorers with 23 points for Milwaukee, while Grevey hit 5-of-6 shots for the game and scored 14 of his 15 points in the first half.

Bulls 104, Bullets 99
Chicago got 37 points from rookie Michael Jordan and erased an 18-point deficit to defeat Washington.

The Bulls, down 38-20 in the second quarter and 64-49 at halftime, closed the deficit to 79-72 after three periods, then outscored the Bullets 32-20 in the final 12 minutes to win the game. Washington, which was led by Gus Williams with 18 points, managed to connect on just 11 of 46 field-goal attempts in the second half.

Kings 134, Nets 113
LaSalle Thompson scored a season-high 26 points and added 13 rebounds and Eddie Johnson added 25 points as Kansas City cooled off New Jersey.

The Kings, 21-40, broke the Nets' four-game winning streak while winning their second game in a row for only the second time this season.

Mavericks 108, Pacers 102
Rolando Blackman scored seven of his 27 points in the final 50 seconds and Mark Aguirre added 25 points to lead Dallas over Indiana.

The Pacers, who got 22 points from Clark Kellogg, scored eight straight points to pull within 101-100 in the final minute. But Blackman had three baskets and a free throw the rest of the way.

Blazers 100, Hawks 91
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 28 points, including a three-point play with 2:10 left in the game that put Portland ahead to stay against Atlanta at New Orleans.

The Hawks were led by Dominique Wilkins with 25 points.

Track meet scheduled

Whiteface Stadium will be the site of Saturday's Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational girls track meet, and Hereford High School will be among 32 teams unloading members at the gates for the day's competition.

Schools from Hereford, Canyon, Clovis, Dumas, are Lubbock are just a few of the teams set to make an appearance Saturday morning to compete in four divisions. (For complete roster of teams and schedule of events, see list at the bottom of this article.)

Herd baseball game changed

Hereford High School's varsity baseball team has a busy week ahead, playing four games in three days.

On Saturday, a double header is to take place in Canyon. However, that game has had a slight change. The game has been moved to the Whiteface Diamond instead of Canyon.

Game time still is set for 1 p.m. Also, the junior varsity had a game scheduled in Canyon on Thursday. That contest, too, has been moved to Hereford. The game is to begin at 4 p.m. Thursday.

The varsity Whitefaces are to play Thursday in Pampa. The single game begins at 4:30 p.m.

And on Friday, Levelland comes to town for a 4 p.m. game against the varsity team.

Basketball meeting announced at Y

An organizational meeting to form a men's 5-on-5 basketball league has been set for 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, 500 15th St.

According to general director, Weldon Knabe, anyone interested in entering a team is encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Varsity teams will comprise one division in the meet. The eighth graders make up another division, as do seventh graders. The ninth graders will combine with junior varsities for yet another division.

Field events are to begin at 9 a.m. and schedules for each division varies. Preliminaries in the running events begin at 9:15 a.m. with the 400-meter relay.

The seventh-grade division will compete first in each running contest to be followed by the eighth-grade,

J.V.-ninth, and the varsity division, respectively.

The top seven times in each division qualify for the finals, to be held in the afternoon. The J.V.-ninth-grade division is to run a final 3,200 meters at the conclusion of the preliminaries, however.

Other finals begin at 1:30 p.m. and are to conclude with the 1,600-meter relay around 4:45 p.m.

The boys track team is to run in Panhandle Saturday. Last week, the Whitefaces were in Lubbock.

Tumbling Champs

Forty-eight Hereford tumblers worked together in February to bring home first place from the Amarillo Tournament, in cooperation with Nards Gymnastics, held at Austin Junior High. The locals took home 17 first-place trophies, including the team trophy pictured above. For individual places, see story on this page.

Hereford tumblers take honor

Young gymnasts from Hereford, both male and female, recently won the Amarillo Tournament in Nards gymnastics.

Locals battled a team from Borger all day on Feb. 16 for the team title, but managed to wrestle the crown away with 17 first places. The meet was held at Amarillo's Austin Junior High School.

Boys winning first places for Hereford were: Pecos Alford, Michael Kriegshauser and Johnathan Keenan. Second places went to D.J. Warrick, Justin McWethy and David Russell.

Also in the boys event, Charlie Milner and Mike Blum won third places.

The girls were divided into age groups for their tumbling competition. In the 5-and-under age category, Amber Jackson was the only Hereford entrant to win a first place. However, Amanda Jackson and Amanda Kriegshauser won second places, and Christian Carnahan took a third place.

Allison Nunley won a fourth place.

Other Hereford female first-place winners were: Maisi Fowler and Mel Dauster in the 6- and 7-year-old group; Gena Willard, Jamie Simpson, Chasity Rickman, Kara Sandoval, Heather Kleuskens and Jill Rieuer in the 8- and 9-year-old division; and Chelli Cummings, Mendi Milner, Donann Cummings, Michelle Riggan and Lee Reinauer in the 10-and-over bunch.

Girls in the older three divisions who won second places were: Stephanie Bixler and Janine Russell (6- and 7-year-olds); Pam Price, Tena Willard, Tessa White, Donna Barclay, Katie Young, Jill Robinson and Brandy Dunn (8- and 9-year-olds); and Lauri McDonald and Cayla Sides (10 and over).

Larissa Kleuskens and Christi Wallace won third places for 6- and 7-year olds, and Amy Hall, Lori Wilburn and Jodi Wallace took thirds in the 8- and 9-year-old category.

Melissa Cloud won third in 10-and-over group.

Fourth-place winners were Crystal Kelly (6 and 7), Tonya Pierson (8 and 9) and Mica Harland (10 and over).

figures for Oklahoma, with Darryl Kennedy getting 20 points.

"Sure, this was a good birthday present," Tubbs said.

Then again, almost anything would have been improvement over the last time Oklahoma played on Tubbs' birthday. That was two years ago, when Tubbs was in a hospital bed after being hit by a car.

Kansas, seeded second in the Big Eight tournament behind Oklahoma, waited until the end to overtake visiting Nebraska.

The Jayhawks did not take the lead until Milt Newton made a foul shot with 5:52 to play to make it 62-61. With Kansas leading 70-69, Ron Kellogg made a 15-foot shot with 59 seconds left to increase the lead to three points. Kellogg had a slam-dunk at the buzzer and finished with a game-high 20 points.

Kansas, 25-7, advanced to a second-round meeting Friday night against the winner of tonight's Colorado-Iowa State game.

Tulsa, playing at home, got 14 points apiece from Steve Harris and Herbert Johnson in holding off plucky West Texas State.

Tulsa led by 12 points in the second half before West Texas State pulled within 70-66 with 44 seconds left to play. But turnovers and missed foul shots prevented the 11-17 Buffaloes from catching up.

The victory moved Tulsa, 22-6, into a second-round game Thursday against Bradley, which beat Creighton 69-59.

In other Missouri Valley Conference tournament games, Indiana State defeated Illinois State 66-61 and Wichita State got past Southern Illinois 69-66.

Farm bank closings creating ghost towns

MOUNT AYR, Iowa (AP) — The R&R Cafe on Highway 2 stands vacant, a sun-bleached "For Sale" sign in a window. Tractors sit in the Roe's Implements lot west of town, but the business closed months ago. The FDIC now owns the equipment.

State officials declared the Tingley State Savings Bank insolvent last August, adding it to the corpses on Highway 2. Its furniture was carted off, its signs stripped from the building. Only the billboard flashing time and temperature remains.

The failures of Tingley State, which had assets of less than $20 million, and other small banks are creating economic wastelands in rural America, forcing farmers from their land and closing Main Street stores.

The nation's farm banks are failing at a rate unseen since the Depression. Twenty-five of the record 79 banks that closed last year were farm banks, institutions with more than 25 percent of their loans in agriculture.

Although the bank failures represent only a fraction of the nation's 4,300 farm banks, the situation is worsening. Tingley State was one of three banks to close in Iowa last year; three banks have failed already this year. Eight farm banks have failed nationally.

"A bank failure just upends a community," said Iowa Banking Commissioner Tom Huston, whose department lists 141 of the state's 530 banks as having excessive debt-to-capital ratios. "More and more farmers and businessmen go broke — what you see happening slowly is the collapse of an economy."

The townspeople and farmers of Mount Ayer, an oasis in the rolling hills of corn and soybean fields near the Missouri border, know the problem firsthand.

"If we don't get something done soon we're not going to have a community left in six weeks," said Don Small, owner of the Small Corral restaurant and bar on a corner of the town square.

The crisis affecting communities like Mount Ayer began in the 1970s, a time of relative prosperity in farm country. With a world hungry for food, government officials encouraged farmers to plant "fencepost to fencepost" to meet demand.

"We were in the middle of one of the most rapid increases in exports that the United States had seen," said Robert Young, a University of Missouri economist. "Farm policy was written as if inflation was built in."

Farmers went on a credit spree, borrowing for new land and equipment. With high inflation a seeming fact of life, it made sense to buy now and pay later to stay ahead of soaring land prices.

Eventually, the bubble burst.

Farmers were jarred by President Carter's grain embargo on the Soviet Union in 1980. Worldwide recession forced Third World countries to cut back on food imports. European and South American farmers increased output, underselling American competitors handicapped by an expensive U.S. dollar.

Exports fell. In the 1979-80 season, the United States shipped 2.4 billion bushels of corn overseas. Last year corn exports were 1.8 billion bushels. The difference represents the corn grown on 6 million acres.

Then land values plummeted.

A recent survey by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City found land prices in six Plains states had fallen an average 30 percent from their peak four years ago. In Iowa and Nebraska, land and farm equipment sell for half their 1981 value.

The sudden devaluation shrunk the assets of banks throughout the grain-growing belt.

At the same time land values were falling, interest rates were soaring. Farmers were hard pressed to meet their loan payments. According to Federal Reserve figures, the farm sector carried a debt 3.5 times its income in the 1970s. Today farm debt is nine to 10 times farm income.

Neil Harl, an Iowa State University professor, has estimated that $140 billion of the total $215 billion in farm loans could go into default. If that happened, it would eclipse the $100-billion international debt plaguing Brazil.

When the farmers fail to make their payments, their banks fail.

The banks' depositors are protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which usually finds another bank to honor the bank's liabilities. But many of the community's borrowers — the farmers and merchants — find themselves cut from their financial lifeline.

Various surveys predict 8 percent to 15 percent of the nation's farmers won't get vital spring crop loans.

Wheat growers denounce textile import restraints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Wheat Growers has bitterly denounced the Reagan administration's decision to impose further restraints on textile and apparel imports as "totally inconsistent with the trade policy it preaches to wheat farmers."

Henry Neshem, association president, said Tuesday that the administration's policy on textile imports has meant a $1 billion loss in foreign wheat sales over the last two seasons.

"When this administration looks overseas, it doesn't see customers for our agricultural products," Neshem said in a statement issued here. "What it sees is customers for its Treasury notes, bills and bonds. It's apparent the Reagan administration would rather borrow overseas than sell overseas."

Neshem, a wheat farmer from Berthold, N.D., protested a March 1 announcement by the U.S. Customs Service of tighter restraints on what constitutes the "country of origin" for textile products.

The agency said the final regulations differed only slightly from interim regulations that went into effect last Sept. 7, and that the new rules will go into effect in early April. Under the old rules a garment was considered to have originated in the country where it was sewn together, not the country where the cloth was cut. The new rules define the country of origin as one where the garment is cut.

The regulation is expected to end the practice whereby a country that had exhausted its shipping quotas to the United States would simply send the half-finished products to another country with unfilled quotas.

Grain farmers, particularly wheat growers, have denounced the import curbs as a sell-out to powerful textile interests and labor unions who want to protect domestic production at the expense of offending some big foreign customers of American farmers.

China, for example, retaliated the last two years by cutting back on imports of U.S. wheat, according to the association's view.

The latest rules on imports of textiles and apparel "will inflict long-term damage on U.S. wheat trade with China," Neshem said.

"In effect, the Reagan administration is telling the world's second-largest wheat market to keep its products out of the United States," he said. "This is no way to do business. It's only going to transfer income from wheat farmers to protect the domestic textile industry."

Texas ag economy may gain few points

COLLEGE STATION — Both Texas' and the nation's farm economy is expected to show little improvement in 1985.

Farm cash receipts are expected to gain 1 to 5 percent, says Dr. Forrest Stegelin, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Livestock receipts could be up as much as 4 percent while crop receipts could increase from 5 to 8 percent. Large increases are expected in cotton, but fruit and vegetable receipts may decline.

Among factors influencing the farm economy outlook are worldwide weather which affects yields and output, worldwide economies and currencies, capital costs and availability to agriculture, government policies and producer responses and marketing decisions.

Prices paid for cash expenses are anticipated to remain steady in 1985, with an overall rise of about 5 percent, says Stegelin. Depreciation expenses should be flat relative to 1984, and household expenses are expected to rise slightly.

Production items originating on the farm are expected to increase up to 4 percent as a prices-paid index, whereas the prices-paid index for production items from non-farm sources should jump 5 to 7 percent, mainly due to high interest expenses.

"Looking at income indicators, the farm economy outlook is not good," says Stegelin. "Gross cash income will be stable in 1985 compared to 1984, reflecting a decline in cash government payments. Net cash income will continue to drop, and net farm income is expected to drop drastically from rising expenses, reduced government payments and a smaller increase in farm inventories."

Agribusiness should see increased sales of production inputs like agricultural chemicals, fertilizer and seeds, but farmers and ranchers will face steady to raised prices for many production inputs and services, Stegelin points out. Supply and demand should be balanced for all agricultural inputs, with supplies moderating the input price increases.

Stegelins' projections for some 1985 farm level input prices (compared to those in 1984) are as follows: fertilizers will rise from 2 to 10 percent; labor costs will increase 4 to 11 percent; energy costs will be an extra 3 to 6 percent; self-propelled machinery costs will be 5 to 12 percent more; and tractor costs will fluctuate around current levels as well as interest rates.

"1985 will be characterized as a year when increases in farm input costs will virtually offset any increases in market receipts," believes Stegelin.

FmHA hires extras for loan processing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration has added more than 2,000 extra people to help the agency process loans to farmers in time for spring planting, says the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Monday that FmHA has been authorized to hire 1,300 temporary employees to help and that county offices have contracted with more than 400 farm management and farm credit specialists to lend a hand.

In addition, some 150 field workers in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and the Extension Service have been assigned to help FmHA with the work load. Non-profit organizations have volunteered about 60 people, and state governments have assigned about 130.

"Our staff is working around the clock in some areas to review the loans of more than 104,000 FmHA borrowers seeking to restructure their debts," Block said.

More than 41,000 borrowers already have been helped through reamortizations, reschedulings and deferrals since last September when the administration announced its new credit package, he said. An additional 6,000 borrowers have had a portion of their loans set aside with no interferences for five years.

Butter production down 6 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Butter production dropped 6 percent from January 1984 to an estimated 118 million pounds, says the Agriculture Department.

The output of American-type cheese was down 3 percent from a year earlier to 223 million pounds, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Monday. Non-fat dry milk production was 88.4 million pounds, a decline of 21 percent from January 1984.

Sugar and subsidies

KAHULUI, Hawaii (NEA) — Like steel in Pennsylvania, autos in Michigan, oil in Texas and cotton in Mississippi, sugar here in Hawaii provided the foundation for a thriving statewide economy in earlier times of boom and bounty.

In each case, however, economic vicissitudes have produced a contraction of those industries in recent years. It's unpleasant but not wholly unexpected in a free market where risks can lead to either success or failure.

Sugar production remains one of Hawaii's dominant industries, but the industry has lost a substantial share of its market to corn-based substitutes, notably high-fructose corn syrup, and to artificial sweeteners such as saccharin and aspartame.

In contrast to that legitimate competition, sugar also is being assaulted by critics relying upon specious arguments to strip the crop of protection offered by a relatively modest federal price-support program.

Included in that category are industries determined to drive down the price of sugar because they use large quantities of sweeteners. Notable among them are the country's soft drink and candy producers as well as a Washington-based consumer organization.

Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, a reputable public interest group that ought to know better, has joined in a nationwide campaign that misleads consumers into believing that sugar producers receive a "subsidy" of more than $3 billion annually authorized by federal farm legislation.

To reach that conclusion, Public Voice and the major purchasers of sugar assume that all sugar consumed in this country (about 8.5 million tons annually) could be purchased at the international "spot market" price, which has dipped as low as 4 cents per pound in recent months.

But 80 percent to 90 percent of all the world's sugar is bought and sold under the provisions of long-term contracts and trade agreements, whose purchase prices currently range from 20 to 25 cents per pound.

The only sugar available on the spot market is a homeless product for which there are no readily available buyers. Much of that sugar has been "dumped" by the European Economic Community whose sugar growers receive government subsidies of as much as 30 cents per pound — an extravagant amount that exceeds their production costs.

Because the spot market is highly sensitive to short-term fluctuations in supply and demand, the price obviously would not remain depressed under pressure from buyers. As recently as the autumn of 1980, the price on that highly volatile market peaked at more than 40 cents per pound.

The omnibus farm bill, which was enacted in 1981 and must be renewed this year, does include a price-support program for sugar, but it is far less expensive than the assistance provided to other crops.

The sugar program involves no subsidies, direct payments or production controls. It does allow producers to use unsold sugar as collateral for government loans, at 18 cents per pound, if the market price falls below their production costs.

That program provides a measure of economic stability for sugar cane growers not only in Hawaii but also in the three other producing states — Florida, Louisiana and Texas. In addition, it benefits sugar beet growers in California, Idaho, Minnesota, North Dakota and almost a dozen other states.

President Reagan's recent budget proposal, which envisions reductions in all agricultural support programs, calls for a gradual decrease in the sugar loan rate during the next five years until it reach 10 cents per pound in 1990.

The sugar growers obviously aren't enthusiastic about that plan, but at least it's part of a program of shared sacrifice rather than an attempt to single out an industry for punitive action on the basis of distorted arguments.

cigarette and soda machine service people, and many, many others.

By state, Texas ranks third with its estimated 1.4 million jobs in the food and fiber sector, Stegelin pointed out. California and New York lead the list with 2.5 million and 1.6 million, respectively.

In terms of percentages, Texas is 22nd with a fifth of its labor force dependent on the food and fiber system. Nebraska, North Carolina and North Dakota lead the nation, each with almost a third of its labor force employed in food and fiber occupations.

With a growing agricultural industry and an expanding population, more Texas businesses are entering the food and fiber system, Stegelin said. Consequently, the percentage and number of Texans employed in the food and fiber sector should rise dramatically in the next five years.

Bureaucrats nervous as farmers march in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — When hundreds of grumpy farmers march on the Agriculture Department, they might not get what they demand in the way of farm programs, but they sure make the bureaucrats nervous.

District of Columbia police estimated about 700 took part in the "March for Parity" held Monday by the American Agriculture Movement Inc., which led from the Jefferson Memorial to the Agriculture Department and then to the White House.

Others, including USDA security agents, estimated that more than 900 farmers rallied on the Mall opposite the department's administration building, ignoring a light drizzle while they planted 250 small white crosses to represent the number of farms they believe are going bankrupt each day.

The march was quiet, not like the raucous tractorcades that AAM engineered in 1978 and 1979, when thousands of irate farmers also demonstrated to demand a rewriting of government programs to ensure better returns for producers.

Memories of farmers forcing their way into USDA's administration building, literally taking over some offices during the 1978 and 1979 marches, caused security to be beefed up this time.

As it turned out, Monday's show of force by law enforcement and security people was not needed.

John Ochs, an aide to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, said the extra precautions were the idea of others — the department's own Office of Inspector General, which handles internal security, and other federal law enforcement agencies.

"The secretary had said he didn't want to see a lot of security," Ochs said. "But he had no control over it, really."

Block had met earlier on Monday with the AAM's national officers and state executives. Nothing was settled, Ochs said, but the session was "very cordial" and enabled the farmers to personally outline their position to Block.

As the AAM marchers approached the Mall area in front of the department's administration building where Block has his office, employees gathered at windows to watch as more than 50 uniformed and plainclothes officers stood by.

Mounted officers, wearing hard hats, formed a cavalry picket line across the USDA's executive parking lot, barring the way in case the farmers moved to enter the building. One senior department official later was reported to have complained that one of the horses had desecrated his personal parking space.

In a few minutes, the farmers were gone, headed for the White House in the gray afternoon mist. Only the crosses remained to mark where they had been.

TSCRA meets this month

The 108th annual gathering of cattlemen for Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association's Convention, trade show and Heritage sale will be held in Fort Worth at the Tarrant County Convention Center March 17-20, says John M. "Jack" Shelton III, president from Amarillo.

More than 2,000 cattlemen from throughout the Southwestern United States are expected to attend.

Former Interior Secretary William P. Clark, a longtime advisor to President Ronald Reagan, will headline a slate of nationally-known speakers. Clark, who recently resigned to return to his California ranch, will deliver the keynote address at the convention's kickoff luncheon Monday, March 18.

Other major speakers include Jo Ann Smith, the first woman president of the National Cattlemen's Association; Wayne Jordan, senior vice president of Texas American Bank-Fort Worth; John Huston, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board; H. Joachim Maitre of Boston University's Center for International Relations; Alan R. "Bud" Middaugh, president of the U.S. Meat Export Federation; Dr. Cas Maree, head of the Department of Livestock Science at the University of Pretoria, South Africa; Gibson "Gib" Lewis, Texas Speaker of the House; and Betty Huggins, president of the Texas CowBelles.

Shelton and Don C. King, TSCRA secretary-general manager, will give their annual reports.

The convention will open Sunday, March 17, with a 175-exhibit trade show featuring the latest agricultural products and services from throughout the U.S. Several prominent Western artists and craftsmen will exhibit their works during the trade show's 10th annual, three-day run. A welcome cocktail party for all convention registrants will be held in the trade show Sunday evening.

The Texas CowBelles, a TSCRA auxiliary active in beef promotion and legislative affairs, and the Livestock Marketing Association of Texas, which represents the state's auction markets, will hold their meetings in conjunction with TSCRA.

The sixth annual Cattle Raisers Heritage Sale, featuring at auction 24 American Quarter horses, 13 registered bulls of various beef breeds, 15 pieces of Western art and two special consignments, will be held Monday night following a reception and preview in the convention center. Nationally-known livestock auctioneer Ruben Reyes of San Antonio will oversee the bidding.

Hay shortage will alter grazing rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in areas hit hard by bad weather and who are experiencing "a critical lack of hay" will be allowed to use land taken out of crop production under the Agriculture Department's 1985 acreage programs.

The haying and grazing privileges will be permitted in areas where normal hay production and pasture development have been "substantially reduced" by severe weather, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Tuesday.

State officials of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will determine which counties are eligible to participate in the special haying and grazing program.

Farmers in the eligible counties then will have to apply to local ASCS offices for permission.

Normally, land taken out of the production of designated crops such as wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice, must be idled as a "conservation reserve" in order for farmers to qualify for government price supports on the remainder of their cropland.

In some past years, there has been pressure from farm interests to allow haying and grazing on the idled land. However, Gene Hemphill, an aide to Block, said he was not aware of any great pressure this year and that the decision was simply to help farmers who have been hurt by weather.

Some people have believed that geraniums could drive away snakes.

Exhibition this weekend

FORT WORTH — John Deere, Ford, Case, Massey-Ferguson, Sperry New Holland, and Kubota are among the major manufacturers already signed up to exhibit at the 14th Southwest Farm and Ranch Exposition and Championship Truck and Tractor Pulls, March 8, 9 and 10, in the Convention Center.

There will be more than 150 total exhibits of farm and ranch equipment and supplies on hand for comparison.

Norton nominated for USDA position

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he will nominate John R. Norton III, of Phoenix, Ariz., to be the No. 2 official in the Agriculture Department.

Norton's appointment, subject to Senate approval, was announced Tuesday at the White House. It had been expected since December.

Norton, 55, is currently president and chief executive officer of the J.R. Norton Co., which he founded in 1955. He has farming interests in Arizona, California, Nevada and New Mexico. Crops include cotton, wheat and vegetables.

Food, fiber system employs 22 percent

COLLEGE STATION — Although only a small percent of Americans — about 3 percent — are actually involved in farming, a multitude are part of the nation's food and fiber system.

More than 22 percent of the U.S. work force is employed in the food and fiber system, according to Dr. Forrest Stegelin, agribusiness economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

That means nearly 23 million people are employed in processing, manufacturing, exporting, retailing, preparing and serving farm-based products, Stegelin said.

The food and fiber system provides a diversity of jobs and income for farmers and ranchers, florists, restaurant cooks and table waiters, truckers, grocers and stockers, brewers, fabric manufacturers and shoemakers, garment sales people,

Set for March 29-30, the Regional Science Fair is being jointly sponsored by Wayland and the Plainview daily Herald, in addition to being underwritten through a grant from The Hearst Foundation.

A total of 12 special awards will be featured attraction of this year's fair, according to Dr. Philip C. Almes, associate professor of mathematics at Wayland and chairman of the fair awards committee.

They include such prizes as a cash award from Kodak for the best project in the fair which utilizes photography; a series of awards from NASA (the National Aeronautics and Space Administration) for projects which are space-oriented; medallions from the U.S. Army for top projects in general science and engineering; a briefcase from the U.S. Navy for a leading project in general science; and a special award from the American Meteorological Society for a project involving weather. "We are particularly proud of the special awards we have been able to assemble for this year's fair and feel they offer an added incentive to every youngster who will be participating," said Almes.

In addition to the special awards, first, second, and third place recognition will be presented to winners in Biological Science and Physical Science in each of three categories: elementary, junior high and high school.

A trophy will also be presented to the top school in each of those three levels, according to Almes.

Every student participating in the Regional Fair will receive a ribbon, and the award level of the ribbon will depend upon the quality of the project.

Ten flowering trees free from foundation

Ten flowering trees will be given to people who join the National Arbor Day Foundation during March.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to encourage tree planting throughout America.

The Foundation will give two White Dogwood, two American Redbud, two European Mountainash, two Washington Hawthorn, and two Flowering Crab trees to members joining during March. The six-to-twelve inch trees will be shipped at the right time for planting this spring, between March 1 and May 31, postage paid with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected because they will give a colorful flowering of pink, white, and red blossoms throughout the spring, according to John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director. The trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting and conservation. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to members contributing $10 during March.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to FLOWERING TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by March 31.

In a year's time, 30 tons of barnacles can attach themselves to the bottom of an ocean-going ship.

Consequences of inhalant abuse

One of the growing health concerns in Texas, particularly among the youth, is the problem of inhalant abuse—the intentional inhalation of chemical fumes to obtain a "high." Commissioner of Health Dr. Robert Bernstein, has announced that results of testimony compiled by the Governor's Task Force on Inhalant Abuse show the problem, once considered predominant in lower-income families, has spread into all levels of Texas society.

Bernstein said that glue and aerosol paints are only the better known among a long list of chemical products abused by children and teen-agers. Liquid typewriter correction fluid, liquid outliner-type marking pens, gasoline, paint thinners, and lacquers contain vapors sought by abusers who often do not realize the hazards of the chemicals. Brain damage or death can be the result. A Houston 14-year-old recently died from inhaling liquid correction fluid. Several more teen-agers in West Texas died from inhaling propane gas.

Bernstein said the public—parents in particular—need to know of the dangers youngsters face in misusing the easily obtainable chemicals.

"Youngsters sometimes fail to grasp what permanent damage to themselves means, much less understand the risk of death from using products they see in use all around them. Parents often become accustomed to leaving chemical products accessible to the whole family, without thought of potential dangers, until it is too late," he said.

"If we can educate our youth, our teachers, and parents about the dangerous health effects of inhalant abuse, perhaps we can prevent some child from becoming permanently afflicted with brain damage or unwittingly taking his own life. Since so many of these products which can be abused are readily available to youngsters, public awareness and education seem to be our best means of prevention," Bernstein said.

Public awareness strategies will be among the topics for discussion at the Second Annual Conference on Inhalant Abuse to be held in San Antonio, April 24-26. Bernstein said anyone wishing to attend the conference should contact Dan Sowards, Chief of Hazardous Products Branch, Product Safety Program, (512)458-7519.

How much salt in snack foods?

COLLEGE STATION — If you like to munch on chips or other salty snacks, you may want to know exactly how much sodium you're getting.

Some manufacturers list sodium amounts in milligrams per serving on food labels, but they are not required to do so, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mark K. Sweeten.

However, a recent study of 15 popular national brand snack foods, reported in the Journal of Food Science, provides some information on their sodium content, she says.

Researchers determined the average amount of salt in 100 grams—or about 3½ ounces—of the snack. A typical single serving size bag of chips contains one to two ounces.

Of the products tested, pretzel twists had the most sodium with 2370 milligrams per serving. But saltines with 1794 milligrams, puff balls with 1190 milligrams and some corn-based snacks with 1014 milligrams are also high in sodium, she notes.

By comparison, Sweeten says that 1100 to 3300 milligrams of sodium is the recommended amount for daily intake.

"Even one serving of these snacks, assuming you can eat just one, provides a substantial amount of the day's allotment for sodium," says the nutritionist.

"Obviously, the salt content of different brands can vary, and the quantity of salt you eat depends on how much and how often you eat these snacks," Sweeten maintains.

She also explains that the researchers found a wide range of sodium levels within some of the individual products they tested, and snacks made by regional and local companies were not tested at all.

Salt, or more correctly sodium

(salt is 40 percent sodium), is important to the body, says the nutritionist. However, excessive salt in the diet has been linked with hypertension, or high blood pressure. High blood pressure, in turn, may lead to heart or kidney disease or stroke.

The sodium content for the national brand snack foods tested is as follows:

Corn chips	741
Taco Tortilla Chips	868
Toasted Corn	1307
Salted peanuts	595
Corn-flavored snacks	1014
Pretzel twists	2370
Nacho chips	546
Puff balls	1190
Tortilla Chips	468
Sunflower seeds	721
Saltines	1794
Nacho cheese chips	292
Salty rye crackers	819
Wheat crackers	566
Granola snack bar	273

A Feeling Of Oneness

Life was extremely rough on the early settlers' families. Grandma, grandpa, mom, dad, brothers and sisters all lived together in some very tight quarters.

There was little leisure time with each family member having to carry his or her full load of chores. Yet, family life was comfortable — and prosperous.

Democrats, Republicans publicly agonize flaws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consistency is widely regarded as a virtue and maybe that explains why Democrats just won't give up talking about raising taxes and conservative ideologues are so determined to purge moderate senators from the GOP ranks in 1986.

Hardly a week goes by that Democrats aren't heard agonizing over what went wrong in 1984, not to mention 1980, 1972 and 1968. Many conservatives spend almost as much time debating what went wrong in 1980 when one of their own, Ronald Reagan, was elected president.

There certainly is widespread agreement among Democrats that one thing that went very wrong in 1984 was Walter F. Mondale's promise to raise taxes.

Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York is among the Democrats who have described the tax statement as a "disaster."

But even after a devastating defeat at the polls, Mondale won't back off. In a recent interview when Mondale was asked about the criticism from within his party, he sounded more like a philosopher than a politician. "If the verdict in America is that on something as profound as telling the truth on (an issue) as deep and fateful as this can't be done, it's a different body politic than I believe is the case," he said. "And frankly I don't think the verdict some are giving is correct."

Last weekend, 135 House Democrats who hope to run many more races gathered at a West Virginia resort to confront some "stark awakenings" and debate how to improve the party's standing with the voters.

They concluded they must confront the budget deficits and come up with their own plan for reducing them. House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said he would ask House Democrats to suggest some of the "hard choices" that must be made to deal with the budget red ink, including new taxes.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca was among the speakers at the Democrats' weekend retreat and he asked them, "Where's the purity of your ideology? Whatever you say about the Republicans, they are ideologically pure to their cause."

He'd get an argument on that claim from Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, who thinks the Republicans are anything but ideologically pure, even with a conservative like Reagan in the White House.

His view was seconded by former Interior Secretary James Watt. Both men spoke Beer shipments declined in 1984 for the first time in almost 30 years. Some top brewers really felt it. Only Anheuser-Busch had a respectable gain, while Miller's rise was minimal.

Bald cleaner celebrates 25th birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — His real name is Veritably Clean, but everyone calls him Mister, and 25 years after he made his television debut polls indicate that the bald, earringed detergent trademark is more recognizable than the vice president.

Mr. Clean doffed his white sailor scrubs and donned a tuxedo Tuesday night to celebrate his anniversary surrounded by soap opera stars and servers dressed as 1960s housewives at Private Eyes, a video nightclub. Clean — he actually was just Mister until a 1962 "Give Mr. Clean a First Name" promotion — also earned a spot in TV history Tuesday as Procter & Gamble donated his household cleaner commercials and a number of soap opera tapes and scripts to the UCLA Film and Television Archives.

As scenes from commercials and soap operas flashed on TV screens at the nightclub, actress Marion Ross — best known for her work in the TV series "Happy Days" but whose TV debut came in a Mr. Clean commercial — narrated a "This is Your Life" for the trademark introduced in late 1959.

The animated character played a lot of roles over the years, including a "Grimefighter," a "dirt boxer" and even a "mean" Clean with a beard.

"Mr. Clean is a legend," said John McKee, who handles the account for the advertising agency Tatham, Laird and Kudner. "Well, let's put that into perspective — he's no Clark Gable, but..."

P&G brand manager Brad Irwin, munching hors d'oeuvres from an aluminum tray he said was "supposed to be like a TV dinner," agreed. "There's something about Mr. Clean," said Irwin, who came up with the birthday party idea. "He has a personality. In fact, in the early days they used to refer to the product as 'him.'"

According to a recent Procter & Gamble poll of shoppers, 83 percent of those asked could identify and describe Mr. Clean. In a People magazine poll, only 56 percent recognized Vice President George Bush, the Cincinnati-based company said. It did not provide details of either survey.

Company officials prepared for the party by researching archives and interviewing executives involved in Mr. Clean's birth, said spokeswoman Carol Boyd. "There was the question of whether or not he talked... People said he had never talked."

Mr. Clean was usually a silent, cartoon character. The one time he talked, in a 1965 commercial, he was played by an actor.

A New York City actor hired to play the part Tuesday didn't say much.

Asked his name, the stocky, bald man with powdered eyebrows and a gold earring said, "I can't tell you. I'm not allowed. Really."

In a weaker moment, he confided, "Look for a movie coming out March 21. You can't miss me."

Rare leopards to mate

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — A special honeymoon suite has been built for a couple whose names are Fierce and Rudy in hopes they will produce some offspring.

But the twosome aren't average honeymooners — they are Clouded Leopards, which are species of endangered cats.

Officials at the Ellen Trout Zoo in Lufkin borrowed Rudy, the male, from a New Orleans zoo and Fierce from a San Antonio zoo. All three facilities hope the cats will produce a healthy litter.

"The captive population of Clouded Leopards is so small that there is no breeding program among American zoos," said Gordon Henley, director of the Lufkin zoo. "To have a breeding program you need 200 animals or so."

Clouded Leopards, which are natives of the Southeast Asian jungles, are on the endangered species list. The International Species Inventory Systems lists only 70 of the animals in zoos.

"There aren't that many Clouded Leopards so you don't have a great genetic pool," Henley said.

BELIEVE IT, SPEAK IT, IT'S YOURS!

Dear brothers, the longing of my heart and my prayer is that the Jewish people might be saved. I know what enthusiasm you have for the honor of God, but it is misdirected zeal. For you don't understand that Christ has died to make you right with God. Instead you are trying to make yourselves good enough to gain God's favor by keeping the Jewish laws and customs, but that is not God's way of salvation. You don't understand that Christ gives to those who trust in Him everything you are trying to get by keeping His laws. He ends all that.

For Moses wrote that if a person could be perfectly good and hold out against temptation all his life and never sin once, only then could he be pardoned and saved. But the salvation that comes through faith says, "You don't need to search the heavens to find Christ and bring Him down to help you," and "you don't need to go among the dead to bring Christ back to life again," for salvation that comes from trusting Christ—which is what we preach—is already within easy reach of each of us; in fact, it is as near as our own hearts and mouths.

For if you tell others with your own mouth that Jesus Christ is your Lord, and believe in your own heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved.

For it is by believing in his heart that a man becomes right with God; and with his mouth he tells others of his faith, confirming his salvation. For the Scriptures tell us that no one who believes in Christ will ever be disappointed. Jew and Gentile are the same in this respect: they all have the same Lord who generously gives His riches to all those who ask Him for them.
