Twisters, storms rip area, more in forecast

By JAY JORDEN

Associated Press Writer

Weather forecasters braced for more bad weather today after severe storms spawned tornadoes and dumped 13 inches of rain in Burleson County and 9 inches in Mathis overnight.

No injuries were reported in the storms.

The National Weather Service said a truck stop 10 miles west of Shamrock in the Panhandle was damaged when a twister touched down just before midnight. The extent of the damage was not immediately known, a Shamrock police dispatcher said. There were no injuries.

The same storm then moved north into Wheeler County, where a funnel cloud was spotted at about 1 a.m. A Wheeler County sheriff's dispatcher said there were no injuries and no damage immediately reported.

Storms moved into Hereford shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday. Accompanied by lightning, the storms dumped only .15 of an inch of rain, according to the official report from KPAN.

In East Texas, inmates were evacuated from the Burleson County jail and motorists were stranded by highway closings when 13.04 inches of rain fell in 10 hours near Caldwell.

People "can't get in or out of Caldwell," a Department of Public Safety dispatcher said late Tuesday.

"There were maybe two or three families that had left their homes to go to emergency centers that were open," said Gloria Prazak, a Caldwell police dispatcher. "The water has receded some but we have been advised that more bad weather is on the way."

Electricity was turned off in the jail and its two inmates were taken to the Brazos County jail after futile attempts to sweep out rising water with brooms.

Texas 21, Texas 36 and five farm roads were closed.

A Red Cross spokesman said all local motels were full and that 15 stranded motorists were staying in a shelter at the First Baptist Church Family Life Center. Several families were forced from their homes and found refuge with neighbors or relatives, the spokesman said.

It started raining in Mathis near Corpus Christi at about 1 p.m. Tuesday, dumping 6 inches of rain in the area in the first hour. By 3 p.m., another 2 1/2 inches of rain had fallen, putting some roads under up to 5 feet of water.

"It was a small but intense cluster of thundershows just kind of wobbling around the Mathis area," said Fred Roush, chief meteorologist for the Corpus Christi office of the National Weather Service.

Twisters were spotted north of Briscoe, where 1-inch hail was also reported, and southwest of Higgins about 10 p.m. Tuesday. But no dwellings were threatened, said Carol Wilson, a Hemphill County sheriff's dispatcher.

A tornado moved across open fields about 5 miles south of McLean, where marble- and golf-ball-size hail fell, and several other funnel clouds were reported later.

"It came down twice and then went back up" into clouds, J.D. Barnard, a Gray County sheriff's dispatcher, said of the first McLean twister.

Baseball-size hail fell northeast of Shamrock and north of Interstate 40, near the Texas-Oklahoma border.

About 1,600 homes in the Lindale area in northern Smith County in East Texas lost electricity for about half an hour during electrical storms Tuesday afternoon.

Unstable weather patterns this week resulted from warm, moist air moving from the Gulf of Mexico on northerly winds to collide with a cool, dry system from the mountainous southwest.

Not afraid to get their hands dirty...

Kids clean it up

By CINDY POTTEROFF

Staff Writer

If you think Hereford is cleaner today, it's because kids in Hereford are making things happen. On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., eight junior high students gathered hundreds of pounds of recyclable materials at Whiteface Stadium.

In addition to gathering recyclables, the students made posters so people would know about the event.

The event, connected with Earth Week, was aimed at raising awareness of what each person can do to help care for the earth. The student volunteers, who responded to a school announcement, were invited to help organize the recycling event by substitute teacher Nicole Henry and Assistant Principal Marylin Leisure.

As people brought items to be recycled, the students, along with Henry, Ken Gearin and Tonya Kleuskens, sorted items. Although they got hot and tired and sunburned, the kids worked through the afternoon.

"There were bugs in a lot of the stuff," said Yvette Pena.

But the kids didn't let the icky part of the job stop them.

"We wore gloves because the stuff was dirty," Mike Medina explained.

Over 50 people brought paper, plastic, glass, and metals to be recycled, and several people made multiple trips. Several appliances were brought, including a stove, a toaster, and a coffee maker.

One man even brought a whole truck load of recyclables.

"This guy, he'd been at the original Earth Day (in 1970), out in California," said Laura Tijerina. "He kept telling us that what we're doing here is small potatoes compared to what's going on out in California. Out there, they have big bins for different colored glass and stuff."

More glass was brought than any other material. The glass was sorted according to color.

Newspapers were donated to St. Anthony's School, which also picks up "waste" paper from the Hereford Brand and North Plains Printing each week to be recycled. Cloth was taken to the American Red Cross. Glass, appliances, metals, and plastics were taken to Hereford Iron and Metal. Cardboard was picked up by Amarillo Waste Management, which made a donation to the group. Most other materials were taken to recycling markets in Amarillo and Lubbock.

"More people should do it (recycle)," said Jennifer Dunaway.

Various events associated with Earth Week awareness continue throughout this week in Hereford schools, including planting trees.

During last week at Hereford High School, the student council conducted several activities to promote Earth Day awareness. Public service announcements were broadcast each day during the morning announcements, and the council wrote a letter to the universe, similar to the letters broadcast Sunday from Mount Everest.

The student council also placed several boxes around the school urging teachers to recycle paper. The paper was donated to the HHS recycling effort on Saturday.

The student council also obtained "Car Smart," a video tape from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and are urging driver's education teachers to show the tape to their students. The council also planted a four-foot Scotch pine tree at the school. The tree was donated by John Stribling.

The next public meeting of the Hereford Recycling Coalition will be May 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center. All persons interested in recycling efforts are urged to attend.

US renews Syria charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is ruling out any immediate warming of relations with Syria despite a courtesy call by President Bush and an official pat on the back for assisting in the liberation of U.S. hostage Robert Polhill.

"While Syria has taken certain positive steps since 1986 to combat terrorism, including its role in the release of Mr. Polhill, we continue to be very concerned about the presence in Syria and Syria-controlled areas of terrorist groups," State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Tuesday.

The groups include Ahmed Jabril's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine - General Command, suspected in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 in December 1988 in which 270 people were killed; the Japanese Red Army and the Abu Nidal organization, Ms. Tutwiler said. The first has its headquarters in Damascus.

the other two are in the Bekaa Valley of Lebanon.

"Syria's current relations with these groups is an impediment to better U.S.-Syrian relations," the spokeswoman said.

President Bush telephoned President Hafez Assad on Monday to express appreciation for Syria's participation in the release of Polhill on Sunday after 39 months in captivity.

Evidently, that personal gesture was the extent of any U.S. move toward Damascus.

House opens 'escape hatch'

AUSTIN (AP) - The House was to take up a bill today aimed at keeping schools open even if lawmakers can't meet a May 1 court deadline for reforming the public education finance system.

The Texas Supreme Court, in finding unconstitutional disparities in funding available to property-rich and property-poor school districts, has said state aid to schools should stop May 1 unless the finance system is overhauled.

But Gov. Bill Clements and legislative leaders have been deadlocked over Clements' pledge to veto any new taxes for reform, leading Reps. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, and Harvey Hilderbrand, R-Uvalde, to write the bill to dodge the deadline.

Under the measure, schools would get their nearly $500 million state payment for May at the end of this month, rather than May 25 as scheduled.

That would keep schools from having to borrow - and pay interest on - money to meet their expenses if state aid is stopped, said Lt. Gov. Bill

Hobby. Others have said some poor school districts also might have trouble borrowing funds.

Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, back the payment-acceleration bill.

"We've had enough smoke and mirrors and gimmicks and tricks," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

A House-Senate conference committee adopted a bill Tuesday to pump $555 million more into public education next school year. The bill relies on $443 million that would be generated by raising the state sales tax from 6 cents to 6.5 cents on the dollar.

The Senate on Thursday is to consider the tax measure, which already has passed the House. It also will consider House legislation to free an additional $114.4 million for education by cutting other areas of the state budget.

Grant wins VICA state championship

Tim Grant of Hereford won first place in extemporaneous speaking at the state ICT/VICA meet at Houston last weekend.

Grant will participate in the national competition on June 24-30 in Tulsa, Okla. It is believed that Grant is the first-ever state winner from HHS in the state ICT-VICA competition, which tests student skills in many areas.

Other Hereford students also won honors at the state meet. Jerilyn Baker placed third in technical information, Michael Kester was second in notebook, and Timmy Weaver won third place in woodworking with his grandfather's clock.

Zack Walker, a junior at HHS, won a spot in the National Forensic League contest in San Jose, Calif., in June after placing at the NFL regional meet last weekend at Abilene.

It was a successful yet busy weekend for Walker and other Hereford High School students, who had the University Interscholastic League meet last weekend in San Angelo as well.

Walker was one of three HHS students who won berths in the state UIL meet after placing at San Angelo's Region 1-4A meet.

Walker won first place in persuasive speaking at the UIL meet; Carrie Skelton was first in accounting; and Jeri Ann Parker was third in Lincoln-Douglas debate to earn a spot at the state UIL meet. Camille Betzen will be an alternate to state after placing fourth in informative speaking.

At the NFL tournament, which has students from all classifications competing in one group, Jonathan Haney was named as an alternate to the national meet in humor-interpretation, and Parker is an alternate in oratory.

In the student congress at the NFL meet, Betzen was the presiding officer of the house of representatives for one session, and Haney was the presiding officer of the novice house of representatives and was named the outstanding member of that house.

Grant wins state

Tim Grant holds his huge state champion's trophy he won in the extemporaneous speaking contest at the state ICT/VICA contest last weekend at Houston. Grant will participate in the national contest June 24-30 in Tulsa, Okla.

Richards denies bringing up old Williams indiscretion

AUSTIN (AP) - Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Ann Richards says she wants to talk issues, not private lives, in her race against Republican Clayton Williams.

Williams admitted patronizing prostitutes in his youth, Ms. Richards on Tuesday declared questions about such private matters irrelevant to the campaign.

Meanwhile, Williams' press secretary, Bill Kenyon, accused the Richards campaign of helping spread rumors linking Williams to the use of prostitutes. Her aides denied the charge.

Ms. Richards won the Democratic nomination after a mudslinging runoff against Attorney General Jim Mattox, who alleged that she had used illegal drugs as recently as 10 years ago.

Ms. Richards refused to answer yes or no when asked about illegal drug use, saying that as a recovering alcoholic she feared such a discussion might keep others from seeking treatment. She in turn accused Mattox and former Gov. Mark White of profiting from public service.

Opposition groups are appealing to the special interests of senior citizens, "poverty level" residents, and rural residents, calling the sales tax for economic development an unfair burden to these groups.

I would ask these same interest groups, particularly if they own interviewed Tuesday, Ms. Richards chastised news reporting on the private lives of politicians.

Williams told a Houston Post reporter that he frequented prostitutes in Mexico as a youth and later as a student at Texas A&M University. On Monday, he told reporters that was all in the past and he wanted to concentrate on issues in the campaign.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Surely we're not so afraid of the word "tax" that we'll count ourselves out before we ever get in the contest for developing business prospects.

As taxes go, the cost to an individual could be considered immaterial: 50 cents added to $100 worth of taxable purchases. And, such necessities as groceries, housing, autos, gasoline, prescriptions and doctor's visits are exempt.

Opposition groups are appealing to the special interests of senior citizens, "poverty level" residents, and rural residents, calling the sales tax for economic development an unfair burden to these groups.

I would ask these same interest groups, particularly if they own property in the city, county or school district, to consider the alternative of steadily increasing property taxes, if we don't do our best to bring new industry to Hereford and provide enhancements to existing businesses in or out of the city city limits, as is permitted by this new tax option.

Proposition 1 will enable us to be competitive in the area of economic development, and help existing businesses expand, which is considered to be a key element in community growth.

Voting it down could be disastrous - much more costly than the sales tax would cost any of us.

Sincerely,

Buddy Peeler

Prices of repossessed properties may be cut

WASHINGTON (AP) - Savings and loan bailout officials disagree over whether to offer price discounts to speed the sale of repossessed real estate.

Comptroller of the Currency Robert Clarke, who regulates nationally chartered banks, warned of the consequences that discounts could have for struggling S&Ls and banks operating in fragile real estate markets.

However, L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., pointed to the potential escalation of taxpayer costs if property sales are delayed.

The board of the Resolution Trust Corp. on Tuesday postponed action on the issue for two weeks after the two officials voiced their disagreements.

It had been set to consider a plan that would have allowed the agency to sell properties as much as 20 percent to 30 percent below their appraised value.

The policy under consideration would permit the RTC to sell property for 85 percent of appraised value after it had gone unsold for six months, or four months in the case of single-family homes. It would allow an additional 5 percent cut after three more months.

The plan also would allow the agency to sell properties at well-advertised auctions for as little as 70 percent of appraised value or, in the case of properties appraised at less than $100,000, for the highest bid regardless of the appraisal.

The proposal drew praise from analysts who complain real estate sales so far have been too slow.

First Abilene Bankshares declared dividend

A 10 percent stock dividend was declared by the board of directors of First Abilene Bankshares, Inc., during the company's annual meeting at Abilene Civic Center Tuesday. The board also approved a 30-cents per share cash dividend for the quarter ending June 30, 1990.

Shareholders elected 17 directors for the company, including one new director, Craig Smith, who is chairman and president of Hereford State Bank.

Announcement of the board's action was made by Kenneth T. Murphy, chairman and chief executive officer. The stock dividend will consist of approximately 200,000 shares, net of fractional shares for which cash will be paid to stockholders. Stock certificates representing the dividend will be issued May 15.

The quarterly cash dividend represents an increase of 2 cents per share over previous quarters and will be payable to shareholders of record on June 15, 1990. The combined effect of the two dividends will increase the quarterly cash dividend to the company's shareholders by 17.9 percent.

The Abilene-based holding company is the parent company of First National Bank of Abilene, Hereford State Bank, First National Bank of Sweetwater, and Eastland National Bank.

Hospital visitation discussed

Shirley Brown and Lavorn Worley presented a program on "Hospital Visitation" when members of the Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the Hereford Community Center.

Brown noted that making hospital visits short helps because the patient should be considered at all times and terminally ill patients should be treated the same as any one else.

"A patient should not undermine anything a doctor has ordered," Lavorn said. She stressed that it is vital to obey hospital rules during visiting hours and that children under 14 years of age are allowed to visit a patient only when given special permission.

Carol Odom conducted the business meeting. Members volunteered to assist with the serving at Dorothy Lundy's 50th wedding anniversary on June 10 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Reports were given on the district meeting held recently in Hereford. The next meeting will be in the Community Center with Clara Trowbridge serving as hostess.

Members attending were Virgie Duncan, Argen Draper, Brenda Rusher, Mary Stubblefield, Pet Ott, Marcie Ginn, Louise Axe, Camilia Jones, Louise Packard, Ethel Logan, Trowbridge, Lundy, Worley and Brown.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Sammy Davis Jr., recuperating at home from chemotherapy, got a boost from the birth of his second grandchild and words of encouragement from Frank Sinatra.

"He told Sammy he wishes he was on the road with him again," said Susan Reynolds, spokeswoman for the two entertainers. Asked how Davis was doing, she said only, "He's resting."

Sinatra and his wife, Barbara, visited Davis on Monday.

Davis' grandchild Sam Michael Garner was born Friday. Davis' daughter, Tracy Garner, delivered the 7-pound, 1-ounce boy at a Los Angeles hospital, Ms. Reynolds said.

The Statue of Liberty was originally to be set up at the Suez Canal.

Backus returns, sparks Herd win

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

Russell Backus made a successful, if somewhat rocky, return from a broken leg Tuesday to help the Hereford Whitefaces to a 12-11 win over the Borger Bulldogs at Whiteface Field.

The senior righthander pitched a complete game and had the game-winning hit in the bottom of the seventh as the Herd broke a seven-game losing streak.

"It felt pretty good," Backus (2-3) said of the leg. "It didn't hurt except when I had to run. I don't think it affected my pitching at all."

Backus allowed five earned runs on 12 hits while walking only three and striking out 10.

Damon Tucker, the third Borger pitcher, was hung with the loss. Tucker allowed only one run, the game winner, on two hits while striking out two in an inning-and-a-third.

Backus was helped along by teammates Matt Bromlow, Brett Confer and Jim Andrews, who combined for seven of the Herd's 12 hits, seven runs and five RBI. Bromlow and Confer each had a two-run homer as the Herd racked up six extra base hits.

Borger jumped out to a quick lead when Scott Hunter sent Backus' first pitch in a month off the left field fence for a double. Jeff Isom drove hunter in with a single before Backus settled down to retire the side.

The Herd knocked Borger starter Eric Huddleston off the mound in the second, scoring seven runs before the second out was recorded.

Freshman Tab Hathaway started the inning with a bloop double to left and scored on Cody Page's single. Chad Brunmett reached on an error to set up Bromlow's homer to left.

Backus started things up again by reaching on an error and courtesy runner Louis Mungia scored on George Jowell's single. Andrews then tripled in courtesy runner Jason Walterscheid and scored on Huddleston's wild pitch.

Armando Escobar came on in relief for Borger, giving up a single to Confer before getting the next two batters to end the inning.

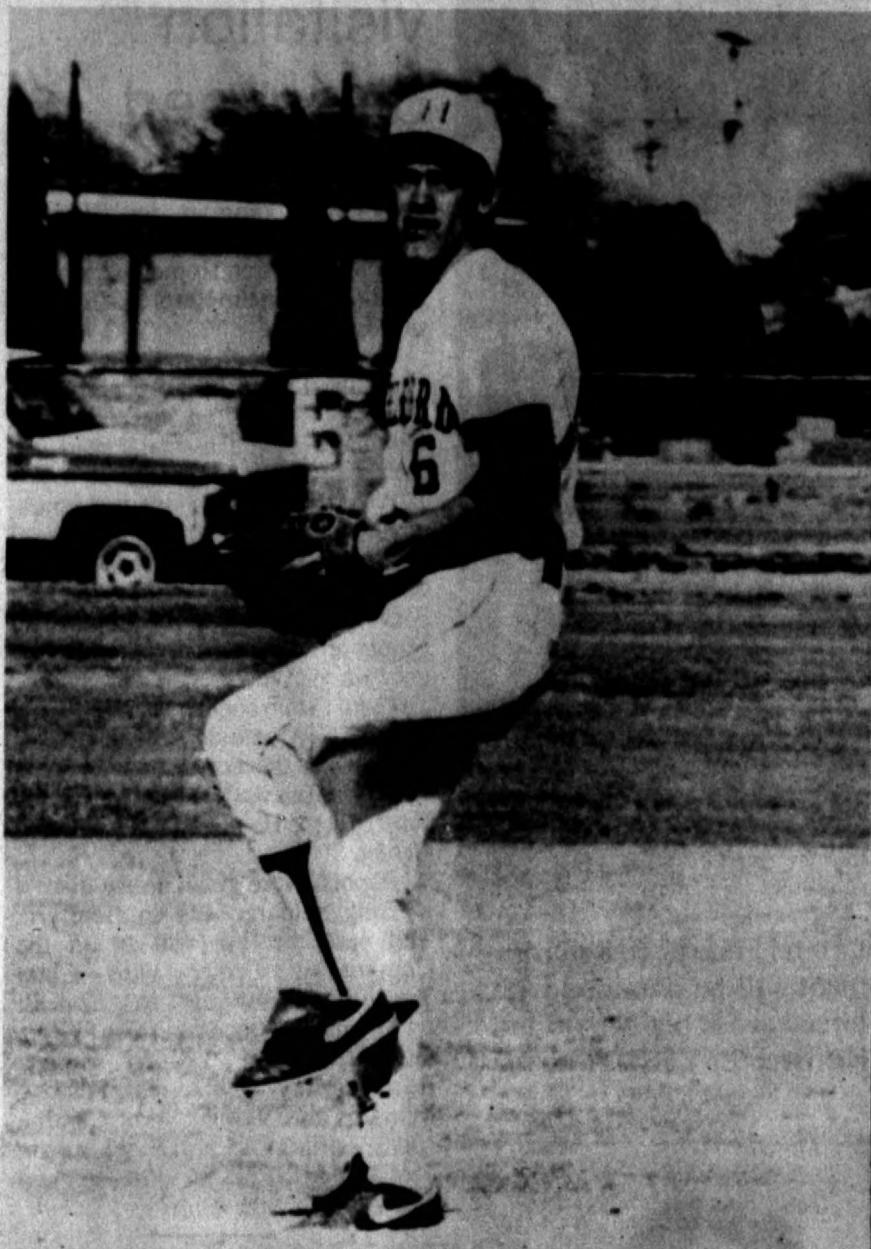

The Bulldogs answered the Herd's outburst with a nine-run blitz in the next at bat.

Backus got Tommy Miller swinging, but the strikeout turned into a double when Jowell dropped the ball and then threw it into right field. The Bulldogs then came up with five straight hits, including two doubles, a triple and a home run, before Backus struck out Wes Marshall for the first out.

Borger added three consecutive singles from Kelly Baker, Matt Hill and Miller before Backus could get the final two outs.

The Herd regained the lead at 11-10 with a single run in the third and two in the fourth. Bromlow bounced a ground-rule double over the fence in left center and came around on Backus' single in the third.

The Herd got the tying and go-ahead runs in one shot in the fourth (please see HERD, Page 5)

Look who's back

Russell Backus of the Hereford Whitefaces goes into his windup Tuesday in his first game since breaking his left leg March 23. Backus pitched a complete game and had the game-winning hit as the Herd took a 12-11 win over the Borger Bulldogs.

Allison third at region

Kristie Allison of Hereford bounced back from a defeat last week in the semifinals of the Region I-4A tournament in San Angelo to win the third-place match and earn the alternate's spot to the Class 4A state tournament.

The District 1-4A girls' singles champion dropped a 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 decision to Ewa Jackubowska of Pflugerville in the semifinals before topping Stacey Fox of Justin Northwest 7-5, 6-1. Fox owned a win over Hereford's Brenna Reinauer in the quarterfinal round of the tourney.

This was the second appearance at regional for Allison, who finished fourth in the 1989 tournament.

Matt Bromlow of the Hereford Whitefaces trots around the bases after hitting a home run in Tuesday's 12-11 win over Borger while Bulldog second baseman Scott Hunter tries to figure out just how far the shot went. Bromlow had a big day for the Herd, going three-for-three at the plate and scoring four times, including the game-tying and game-winning runs.

when Andrews was hit by a pitch and Confer followed with his home run.

Borger manufactured a run in the fifth to tie the game as Miller singled, stole second, took third on Hunter's fly ball to center and scored when Hathaway booted Ison's grounder.

Backus allowed only a base on balls over the final two innings while the Herd tried to put the game away in the sixth. Confer drew a one-out walk, prompting a pitching change, and moved to second on Hathaway's sacrifice bunt, but Tucker struck out Jim Anima to end the threat.

Tucker retired the first two men in the seventh, but Bromlow beat out a slow roller to third to keep the Herd alive. Backus then delivered his double, scoring Bromlow from first.

The win gives the Herd a 3-9 mark in District 1-4A and 4-16 overall. Borger fell to 3-9-1 in league play and 5-11-1 on the year.

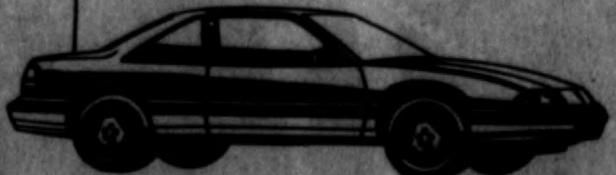

The Herd will play its third straight home game at 1 p.m. Saturday when Levelland visits Whiteface Field. The Herd's home finale will be at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday against Frenship.

FNB's 90-year history parallels area's growth

Bank one of oldest businesses in Hereford; to celebrate 90th birthday in October

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

Six years before Hereford was incorporated as a fledgling frontier Texas town, financial foundations were being built for the First National Bank of Hereford.

Now holding the distinct titles as being one of the three oldest business firms of Deaf Smith County and one of the leading banks of the Texas Panhandle, the First National Bank of Hereford will celebrate its 90th birthday during special anniversary festivities next October.

Bank President Don R. Graham said the financial center is now making plans for a fall celebration on the official anniversary date of Oct. 23—the day of the Comptroller of Currency issued the bank's charter 90 years ago and listed capital assets at $25,000.

"It really makes one appreciate those who have come and gone before when you realize this institution has been right here in the heart of Hereford for the past 90 years," said Graham, as he paused for a moment during an afternoon run of finance work. "In addition to having had some excellent leadership during the past century, this bank has also maintained a strong financial base through the years."

"And it was this strong financial base that has carried it through the tough times that somehow always come along with the good times."

In addition to the bank, the debut of the 20th Century was also the launching time for the A.O. Thompson Abstract Co. and The Hereford Brand...the three oldest businesses in Hereford.

Though the bank's capitalization of $25,000 was no small sum in 1900, it would be as a coin in the fountain when compared to the $92,739,655.92 reported as total assets at the end of 1989. Loans and discounts at that time were rounded off at just under $39 million.

In describing the growth of the First National bank through the past 90 years, Graham pointed to the people of Hereford and the vast agribusiness hub of Deaf Smith County as being the yardstick of the bank's prosperity:

"The First National's history has paralleled the growth of the area," said Graham. "The Hereford area has always been basically an agricultural economy, with emphasis on cattle, wheat, grain and in more recent years also on sugar beets and vegetable production."

And then there's the wide range of businesses and industries that are hinged to the agribusiness economy...car dealers, implement firms, factories and the retail outlets."

Graham said the First National Bank is currently placing much emphasis on servicing the smaller business and individual loans for folks from all walks of life—from suburban households of the city to the country cowboys of the cattle feeding industry.

Though the First National Bank has long been known for its leadership in high finance, Graham said his staff is making a concerted effort to attract the small borrower, both in retail business and on an individual basis:

"We want the people of Hereford to know that our bank is here to serve all of the people that we possibly can. You understand that we can't be all things at all times but we're going to be doing our very best to service the entire community of Hereford."

Graham is no novice in the banking business. He has served the financial industry 38 consecutive years in the Texas Panhandle region, coming to Hereford in 1987 as the ninth president of the First National Bank in its 90-year history. For the past 25 years, Graham has been connected directly to the lending/management end of the banking business.

"You can name about any job in the banking business, and I've been there," said Graham in recalling a banking track-record that began at the age of 18. And his successful run in finance is now reflected in expertise management of a staff of 40 at the First National Bank in downtown Hereford.

Though hardships in agribusiness of 1980s took its toll on Hereford, just as every other agricultural town of Texas, Graham pointed to a number of new businesses and retail stores that have opened in downtown Hereford during the past couple of years.

"Sure, I want to see every building filled with a prosperous business in downtown Hereford because Main Street Hereford is sort of symbolic of Main Street America," Graham added. "But we're equally concerned in seeing the outlying shopping centers filled with shoppers and the industries running full shifts...a bank is generally the reflection of the town—if it is active and prosperous, then you generally see a town that is active and prosperous."

In showing the difference between consumer or installment loans and commercial lending, Graham pointed out that commercial loans at the First National is categorized in a lending range of commercial real estate, farm real estate, cattle loans, crop production loans, business loans and many types of retail merchant loans. The First National now has about $38 million in commercial loans, with about $25 million of this amount in related to cattle production and cattle feeding.

"We also have a lot of crop production loans that relate directly to the farmers," said Graham.

Graham gave much credit of the bank's success to its leaders in years past, recalling how a number of First National officers were directly responsible in helping develop the giant irrigated grain industry of the 1950s, the promotion of vegetable production, the building of the sugar beet industry of Texas and New Mexico and the building of the cattle feeding boom during the 1960s and 1970s.

In addition to many forms of savings program, such as CDs and IRAs, the First National also has a staff of loan officers who are trained for in all fields of lending, offering free consultation on about anything in the book when it comes to banking, investments or loans. The bank also offers a wide range of checking systems for the day-to-day depositors and a risk-management program for both, the beginners in the business or the oldtimers who are seasoned in "unknowns" of the business world.

Fronting along the entire east side of the 300 block of Main Street, the First National Bank lobby greets its customers with the exquisite decor of fine furnishings, reflecting a flare of warmth from natural wood trims and a row of teller windows for comfortable transactions. And there's no frowns in this town—employees greet customers with a friendly welcome and frequently goodies such as popcorn and balloons are handed out to the little tykes and the young at heart.

Along with the expansive teller services available to the public in the bank's main lobby, drive-in tellers are strategically located adjacent to the bank which encompasses the entire city block immediately west of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse square. The present bank was built new in 1958 then remodeled to its present exterior design 1985. The bank also has a wide offering of safety deposit boxes available to the public and is a member of the Federal Depository Insurance Corp. (FDIC) which carries full coverage of deposits up to $100,000.

With Graham as president, other current officers include John C. Sherrod, vice president; Jonny E. Cloud, senior vice president; Douglas R. Josserand, vice president; Steven D. Wright, vice president; Rita J. Bell, cashier; R. Scott Bentley, assistant vice president; Wade O. Easley, assistant vice president; Sue Cosper, Assistant Cashier; and Joe Y. Garcia, retail lending officer.

The board of directors include Chairman John Cluck, Vice Chairman, Carl Ellis, Chairman Emeritus James W. Witherspoon, Lynton Allred, Billy J. Cleavinger, R.W. "Bud" Eades, Don R. Graham, Ernest Langley, Donald J. Meyer, John S. Perrin, and Jim Perrin.

Having been named to the board in 1935, Witherspoon, a life-long Hereford attorney, has served on the board continuously for the past 55 years, setting an all-time tenure record as board member for the bank. It is believed that Witherspoon's banking directorship is also a record for the State of Texas, if not the nation. George Muse was president when Witherspoon joined the board in 1935, a time of the Great Depression when "deposits couldn't have totaled much more than a million dollars..."

But the bank survived this national calamity as result of a solid financial foundation that began 35 years earlier along a set of prairie ruts which someone had called Dewey Avenue.

Teddy Roosevelt had just become an international hero as result of a charge up San Juan Hill by a band of Long Island polo players who went down in history as the Rough Riders...a group of horse soldiers trained in the rough country near Las Vegas, N.M. While Teddy and his Rough Riders were training for battle just a short distance to the west, Deaf Smith County residents were staking out a new Texas Panhandle town called Bluewater. But Texas already had a "Bluewater" so they changed it Hereford, named after some cattle grazing on the banks of the Tierra Blanca Creek. Thus, names came as easily as ruts in those frontier times of Texas when only a couple of trails crossed this vast sea of grass.

Bounded on the west by the iron bars of the XIT Domain and corralled on the east by the T-Anchor Ranch headquartered near present townsite of Canyon, the Strip, as it became known to settlers, was carved from a wilderness of grass. And right in the middle of this sprawling land rose a town called Hereford. And right in the middle of this town rose a building they called the bank...the very beginning of the First National.

On the afternoon of Sept. 29, 1900, a group of 12 pioneers gathered in the courthouse of Hereford to organize a bank. The town was only two years old and the main thoroughfare was a set of wagon ruts called Dewey Avenue. Initially platted in 1876 in Austin, Deaf Smith County had remained attached to Oldham County until 1890 when a band of mad settlers rode northward to Old Tascosa with a partition and brought Deaf Smith County into a lang of its own...thus, the settling in Hereford on the fall afternoon in 1900.

Some of these men were merchants, others were farmers and stockmen, but all firmly believed that "Hereford was going to make a right good little town."

Minutes of that first meeting are recorded in a frayed minute book with imitation leather cover and a red binding. The book is now kept under lock and key within the high fire-proof vault of the First National Bank, one of the bank's prized possessions.

The 12 organizers chose the name, Hereford National Bank, and took immediate steps to meet state and federal requirements in securing their charter. The bank was created with a capital stock of $25,000. Land for the location at 248 Main (Third and Main) was purchased from the old Western Union Land Company which did much toward early settlement of this area after the Santa Fe tracks were snaked across the prairies of Texas.

The men attending the organizational meeting included John E. Ferguson, F.J. Clinkenbeard, F.M. Avis, E. Carter, F.B. Fuller, W.S. Higgins, T.M. Palmer, L.B. Tannahill, Ira Aten, R.J. Kibbe, A.J. Lipscomb, and C.R. Moreman.

During the same meeting on that September day, John E. Ferguson was named in the bank's first president, F.J. Clinkenbeard, cashier. Three weeks later, on Oct. 23, 1900, a charter was issued for the Hereford National Bank of Hereford.

In a meeting on May 15, 1901,

Don Graham, president of First National Bank

the directors met and approved $5,000 insurance against "daylight holdups and night robberies." That same summer the board voted an 8 percent dividend to stockholders and $500 in surplus...the bank's first recorded profit.

On Jan. 9, 1906, the board voted to change the name of the bank to the "First National Bank" of Hereford. No reason for the change was ever found recorded in the minutes, but the name became official on Feb. 17, 1906. Those voting in this meeting were W.H. Fuqua, C.W. Dodson, L. Gough, R.J. Kibbe, John E. Ferguson and W.S. Higgins. By this time, Dewey Avenue had been changed to Main Street.

As a point of interest, salaries set by the board in a meeting of Jan. 3, 1903, fixed the president salary at $125 a month, cashier $100 per month and the going salaries for bookkeepers set at $60 per month.

Those who have served as bank presidents during the past 90 years include John E. Ferguson, 1900-1905; J.L. Fuqua, 1905-1910; W.S. Higgins, 1910-1918; George L. Muse, 1918-1942; E.B. Hedrick, 1942-1956; Virgil P. Patterson, 1956-1959; Henry Sears, 1959-January, 1970; James H. Sears, Jr., January 1970-1988, and Don R. Graham, 1987 to the present.

For a period of time in the 1950s, majority stock was owned by a group of Amarillo investors headed by Virgil E. Patterson. In a meeting on May 9, 1959, the Amarillo group sold majority stock of the bank to Henry Sears, a Hereford businessman who had been successful in the grain handling business. In a special board meeting on that same Saturday afternoon in May 1959, Sears was elected as the seventh president of the bank, a position he held until January 1970.

Other members of the board voting on that Saturday afternoon included James W. Witherspoon, Mark Woodall, C.C. Aker, V.O. Hennen, Ernest Langley, Taft McGee, Palmer Norton, J.A. Pitman, John D. Pitman, Owen Seamands, Bill R. Waldrep, and Dr. R.R. Wills.

The latest change in ownership came in 1988 when First Perryton Bancorp., Inc., became majority stockholder of the bank.

Though ownership has shifted from time to time through the past 90 years, Graham pointed out that the bank has consistently maintained a strong local leadership in both, the board of directors and the officers of the bank. And strong leadership is the greatest assets of financial institutions since the entire industry is hinged on service.

As result of foresight of early-day leaders, the First National Bank was leading the pack in financing expansion of the Panhandle wheat industry as a shortage of food threatened the entire world during World War I. The roller-coaster time of the 1920s built a few empires while other crumpled, but the First National Bank of Hereford retained a conservative grip on its strong financial base and when the Great Depression and duststorms blackened Texas skies, the First National Bank remained as a financial pillar in the middle of national collapse.

Hereford was a multi-bank city for the first 30 years of time, but when the dust cleared in the 1930s, the First National Bank stood alone as the financial center of Deaf Smith County, one of the largest counties in the entire United States.

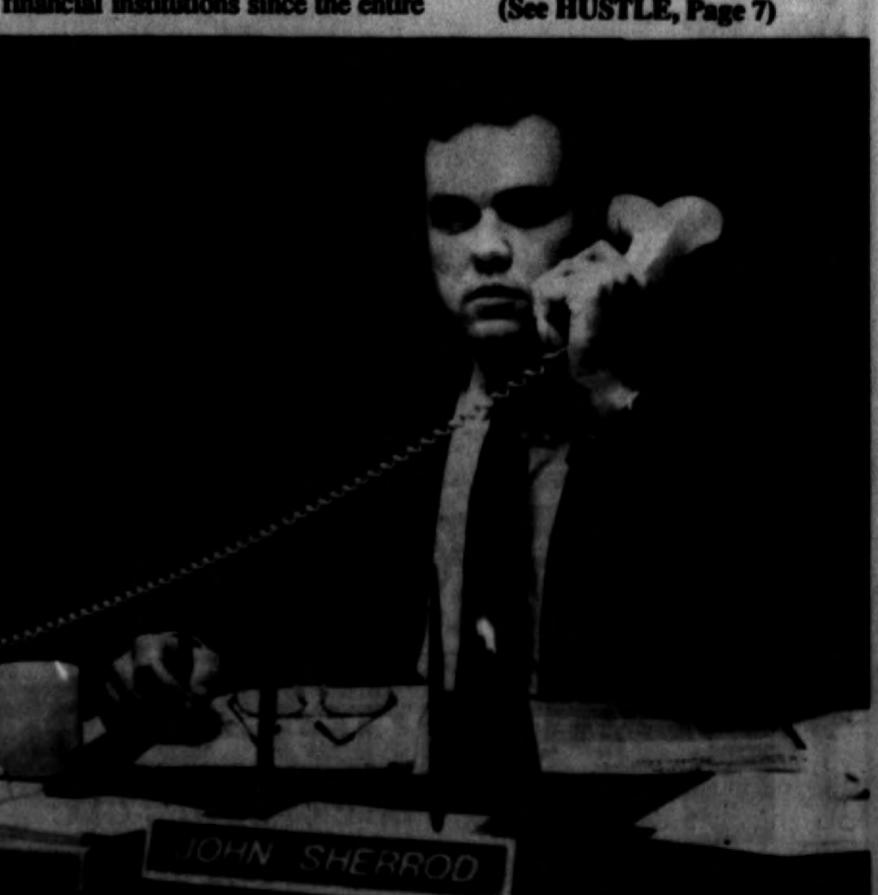

Another war came and another food shortage came and once again, the First National Bank was back in the turnrows gambling on another new crop and another new set of customers—vegetable farmers and potato growers from Idaho.

There were no guarantees, just as in the massive wheat developments of 1917-18, but there was a lot of promise from men and machines of the turnrows. Stacks of newspaper articles recorded how the white-collared executives of the First National Bank of Hereford joined their denim partners at a common table to develop Deaf Smith County into the "Salad Bowl of the Panhandle."

The 1950s saw one of the greatest revolutions in the history of Southwest agriculture—hybrid grain sorghum, hybrid corn and later, hybrid wheat. Where farmers once produced "bumper" yields of 40 to 60 bushels from the old Crook Neck maize days, new farmers on the Panhandle horizons were funneling out more than 200 bushels per acre from the colorful grain fields. This bonanza brought in additional factories to service the ballooning grain handling business, backstopping some two dozen vegetable packing sheds already operating in the immediate Hereford area.

Though the turnrow farmers carried the burden of proof, the Hereford banking system remained as the backbone of this big business in agriculture that caught the attention of the national food and fiber industries. And right in the middle of it all was the First National Bank...big bucks matching the works and ideas of big men.

The decade of the 1960s went down on record as being the greatest boom period in the history of Hereford. And as Graham phrased it earlier, "The First National Bank paralleled the growth of the country." And so it did.

The population of Hereford doubled in size from 1960 to 1970, with the growth of the First National running a similar pattern on the bottomline of finance. With Henry Sears at the helm, the First National Bank of Hereford developed the first financing system for large-scale cattle feeding in Texas...a true pioneer in the Texas commercial cattle feeding industry.

Other cattle feeding states, such as California, Arizona, Colorado and the Midwest, had extensive financing for cattle feeding, but the Texas move was a different ball of wax. Proper land acquisition, efficiency in feedstuff and expertise in management were three big problems. Thus, officers and board of the First National Bank burned midnight oil in those first years of the Panhandle cattle feeding boom to bring about an orderly system of turnkey financing for feedlots...and a foundation for the Cattle Feeding Capital of the world.

The first 30,000-head feedlot ever built in Texas was financed by a group of Hereford businessmen, cattlemen and farmers, with much of the planning and financing developed in the board room of the First National Bank of Hereford.

They named it The Hereford Feed Yard which was opened for business in the early months of 1961.

In simplifying the economic impact of the Hereford cattle feeding industry, Henry Sears once summarized the billion-dollar business in a nutshell: "We were shipping our cattle and grain to Arizona and California and in turn, they were shipping our cattle and grain back to Texas in the form of steaks and roasts. Now, we're processing our own cattle and grain into finished beef and the world is coming to us."

The 1960s also saw the development of the billion-dollar Texas sugar beet industry which became centered at Hereford.

In addition to developing a 45,000-acre cash crop, the Texas sugar beet industry centered its processing operations at Hereford where once again, officers and board members of the First National Bank took on heavy financial responsibilities in bringing this new industry to Texas.

Though many persons contributed extensively to the birth of sugar beet processing in Hereford, records show that the two undisputed leaders in this sweet business for Texas were Henry Sears and Jim Witherspoon-Sears having a keen mind for the bottomline and Witherspoon slashing political redtape to bring another cash flow to Hereford.

Though Graham touched now and then on the 90-year track-record of the bank, he related mostly to current events and the future of Deaf Smith County, showing where steady expansion of established businesses is just as important as bringing in new business.

"In relating to the strong capital base of First National Bank, Graham emphasized the point that this factor meant stockholders held much confidence in their own business: "The stability of the bank is reflected in the fact that the owners of this bank left their earnings in the bank, thus building the large capital base."

Born and reared in Childress, Graham moved to Amarillo at an early age when he joined the American National Bank, an institution that later became known as the Texas-American Bank Holding System. The son of Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Graham of Childress, Graham graduated from Childress High School in 1952 and enrolled at Amarillo College before joining American National.

Graham's wife, Pat, born in Paducah but was reared in Amarillo.

She was the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Frank Hyatt. They have two children, Greg, an employee of the First National Bank of Amarillo, and a daughter, Lisa of Lubbock.

The love for banking reflects in Graham's stature in the Hereford community where he and his wife are active in many segments of county and city affairs—supporters of the Hereford Stock Shows, Hereford Senior Citizens Center, United Way, YMCA and many other community-related projects and organizations.

In reflecting on the community status of the First National Bank, Graham looked past the bank officers and the board of directors and pointed directly to the people of Deaf Smith County:

"It's the people out there who make this bank what it is today. Without the people out there, we would be nothing."

"I know we do a lot of institutional promotion and advertising but I wish there was the time and the way that I could walk out there personally and shake hands with everyone of our customers."

Try resolving a problem before deciding to quit your job

Dear Commissioner Nabers, I am wondering under what circumstances a person can draw unemployment benefits. I am 67 years old and have a very stressful job. I think I have been overworked for about the last seven years. My boss is a young man who does not care for me and he continually criticizes the way I handle phone calls. I think he is trying to get me to quit by making my life miserable. Would I qualify for benefits if I were to quit my job?

N.M.
Houston, Tx.

Dear N.M., The law provides that a person who voluntarily quits his job without good work connected cause cannot draw unemployment benefits. I cannot say whether you would or would not receive benefits, but it would be up to you to prove that you had good cause to quit, and, from what you tell me in your letter, I think you are going to have to be more specific.

The Commission has defined "good cause" to quit as being some work related reason that would compel someone who was truly interested in remaining employed to nevertheless leave the job. In other words, it has to be more than simple dissatisfaction or unhappiness with one's job.

Have you spoken with your boss about your concerns? This is one thing every employee who is contemplating quitting should do. If you have not given your employer an opportunity to remedy a given situation prior to quitting, your chances of being awarded benefits are less.

Dear Commissioner Nabers, My sister and I are partners in our first business, a small gift shop. We recently received a letter from the TEC telling us we might be liable for some type of taxes and that to avoid penalties we should notify the TEC promptly. Yet, when I called TEC, I was told I did not need to worry about it. Can you tell me what is going on?

M.T.
Seguin, Tx.

Dear M.T., The letter you are speaking of is a TEC form letter which is triggered by a person's obtaining a federal I.D. number. Not all people who obtain a federal I.D. number are employers or even in business, but TEC sends this letter to new federal I.D. holders just in case they are liable or could become liable as employers under the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act.

Most people do not stop to realize that the TEC has no way of immediately knowing that a new business has employees and therefore should be paying unemployment tax on those employees. It is the responsibility of the business to know if and when it becomes an employer under our law and to notify the TEC of that fact.

VOTE FOR PROPOSITION 1

WHAT: Proposition 1 on the Hereford Election ballot will increase the city's sales and usage tax by one-half percent with the revenue generated to be used for economic development.

WHEN: City election, May 5th. (Absentee voting April 16-May 1)

WHERE: Hereford Community Center, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

WHY: Economic development is very competitive today, even among smaller communities, and Hereford must make every effort to compete for new jobs by expansion of existing businesses and the attraction of new industry. Without the new funds, we will lag behind towns of comparable size who have the funds and will be actively pursuing new jobs in their communities.

Deriving the funds from a retail sales tax is more equitable as both residents and non-residents are contributing and this does not add to the property tax burden. All goods and services exempt from sales tax will continue to be exempt, so you will not be paying a tax on items like groceries, housing, automobiles, prescriptions, gasoline or food. And, a one-half percent sales tax amounts to just five cents on a $10 purchase.

HOW: Hereford City Commission, elected and responsible to the voters, shall oversee the use of the economic development funds. The city will be required to appoint a five-member board of directors to manage the economic development corporation.

Specifically, the tax can be used for: a revolving loan fund for small business, existing and new; venture capital fund for business start-ups; incentives for the creation of new jobs; issue bonds to pay the cost of a project; acquire, construct and maintain projects within or outside the city; pay for infrastructure when it is directly related to an economic development project.

The city, if it desires, can contract with other organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce to provide economic development services. There is a limitation of 10 percent of the funds that can be used for promotion.

It is estimated the City of Hereford would generate approximately $300,000 per year with the one-half percent tax. This is not too much money for an aggressive effort for Hereford to compete in the economic development arena.

SUMMARY:

Simply put, Proposition 1 will create jobs, directly and indirectly, by stimulating business development and expansion. This is your opportunity to make Hereford move forward. VOTE 'FOR' PROPOSITION ONE!

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - Pump-it-up Arnold Schwarzenegger is mellowing out.

The 42-year-old muscle man who won Mr. Universe five times, was named Mr. Olympia seven times and starred in a series of his movies that grossed more than $1 billion says he is no longer "as hungry, not driving as hard."

He drinks coffee, smokes cigarette, is down to a trim 215 pounds and professes to be a devoted daddy, treasuring the early morning wake-up screams of his 2-month-old daughter, Katherine, according to the May issue of GQ magazine.

SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP) - Richard Nixon is moving on down to a three-bedroom townhouse.

The former president put a for-sale sign on his seven-bedroom home in this northern New Jersey community and plans to move into a three-bedroom, four-story townhouse in nearby Park Ridge, spokesman John Taylor said Tuesday.

"The Nixons have decided that they would prefer to spend their energy on activities other than maintaining a large house on four acres," Taylor said.

Taylor said he did not know the purchase price of the new home or the asking price for the 15-room contemporary house in Saddle River. The Nixons bought it in 1981 for $1.25 million and made $300,000 in improvements, he said.

Bridal shower held

Welcoming guests with Miss Nasi were her mother, Mrs. John Nasi of Gallup, N.M.; and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Dale Scott.

Mrs. J.J. Bookout served refreshments of sausage balls, cheese sausage on rye toast, fruit plate, cinnamon rolls, and cookies to guests.

A crystal green and pink flower arrangement was the focal point of the refreshment table covered with a beige cloth encircled with striped accents of flowers and bows on each corner. A silver punch and coffee service also accented the table.

Hostesses for the event were Margaret Lomenick, Muriel Streun, Lola Smalls, Carolyn Baxter, Christine Evans, Jenna Simons, Olga Harris, Dorothy Bell, Shirley Murray, Betty Lady, Jane Coplen, Joan Bookout, Gerry Taylor, Betty Quillen, Donna Brockman, Virginia Skaggs, and Lucy Rogers.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

Much of the joy, the strength, and general satisfaction available to us in the living experience can be preserved and maintained, to the extent that we understand and accept the principle of 'mutual assistance'. This does not mean that we are free to impose upon each other, but it does mean that we do know and accept the facts of life.

Interdependence is present, as a working element, in all human accomplishments; even when we are not fully aware of its presence. In fact, the reality of mutual assistance is easily seen, and pretending that it does not exist does not change its reality. Our perspective of life, and our real life experience will be better; if we frequently take notice of the numerous ways in which we are dependent upon one another.

"God has made no one absolute. The rich depend upon the poor, as well as the poor upon the rich. The world is but a magnificent building; all stones gradually cemented together. No one subsists by himself alone." - Feltham.

The good life which we desire is not attainable without 'mutual assistance'. There may be some who think that they are completely independent, but they are not. If they analyzed the complexity of their life situation, they would find that they, in many ways, were actually dependent upon others. The more we are conscious of this situation, the more meaningful our lives will be. We are enriched by being properly grateful for the help we receive, and by being generous and pleasant in the help we give. "Those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves." - Barrie.

Much of the mutual assistance involved in living is in the material and physical aspects of living, but this is not all. Much is done, and more can be done, in building up one another and in encouraging each other.

Human accomplishments and general well-being are increased and enhanced by the continual workings of mutual assistance.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I consider our marriage one of the best. We are in our late 50s, like to play golf, take several vacations during the year and enjoy our family and friends. Our home is lovely, we both hold down good jobs, and we are truly contented. What we don't have is sex.

We decided 12 years ago that sex was not important to us and agreed to take it off our agenda. We love each other very much and feel that our lives are rich and full. But there has been so much glamorization and exploitation of sex these days that we would be embarrassed if our friends became aware that it is not a part of our lives.

I'm sure they would consider us "odd," if not abnormal.

My question is, are we peculiar because we choose not to have sex? Are there other married couples who also enjoy a full life without it? People tell you everything, Ann. We hope you will print this letter and ask your readers this question. I'm sure their responses would be enlightening. For obvious reasons I cannot sign my name. Just call me -- Content in Montreal.

DEAR MONTREAL: While I'm sure you and your husband are certainly in the minority, I would not call you abnormal. What goes on behind closed bedroom doors is nobody's business.

I would like to hear from my readers about this. My guess is that at least one out of five couples over 60 has joined you "club" and four out of five couples over 70. How about it, out there?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please use your column to help educate people about electrical appliances, especially when used around water.

Recently, a young boy near Indianapolis was electrocuted when a hair dryer that was plugged into a wall socket fell into his bath water. The grieving mother said she could not understand how the child could have been electrocuted because the switch on the dryer was turned off.

Please, Ann, explain to your readers that when an appliance is plugged into a socket, the wire can still conduct enough electricity from the plug to kill a person. When the switch is on "off," it merely prevents electricity from passing to the heating element. When the appliance is immersed in water, a conductor of electricity, the switch is short-circuited, and electricity flows through the water.

The message: Disconnect all appliances from the socket when not in use. This goes for kitchen appliances as well as those in the bathroom.

If an appliance accidentally falls into water, leave it alone until you can turn off the electricity at the circuit breaker or fuse panel. —J.L.J. (an Indianapolis electrician)

DEAR J.L.J.: Thank you for information that can save lives. After I read your letter, I disconnected the radio in my bathroom. Ditto my electric toothbrush. I urge my readers to do the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter from the woman who went to a dermatologist to have some wrinkles on her face filled with collagen. While she was there, she took off her shoe and asked the doctor to look at a skin problem between her toes. He wrote out a prescription and sent her a bill for $50.

You thought he wasn't a "nice guy." I say if she has $253 for her face, she can afford $50 for her feet. — Somerset, Pa.

DEAR PA: You're entitled to your opinion, but I'm still unconvinced.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.05.)

SAY "NO" TO MORE TAXES VOTE NO TO PROPOSITION 1

ON MONDAY FEBRUARY 19TH, your city commissioners voted to call an election for May 5th for us Tax Payers to decide whether a half-cent (1/2) sales tax should be added to our already high taxes of 7 1/2%. This tax raise is to be used ONLY for funding the "Economic Development"

This group has already spent thousands of dollars with no results—but they want us to give $300,000, and more for them to spend as they have in the past. Let's be realistic—quit trying to compete with Amarillo and Plainview. Let our chamber industrial committee get back to work and get some results.

If the state imposes a 1/2% sales tax for education and this 1/2% for the "Fund" is voted in - we will be paying 8 1/2% in sales taxes!!

You, as a registered voter must get out and vote against this tax raise on May 5th. If you don't vote then this group will probably push the tax raise on us.

Texas scores 5 in 9th to top Chisox

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

With Dave Stewart, Roger Clemens, Jimmy Key and Chris Bosio keeping their perfect records intact, it was a great night for some of the American League's showcase pitchers.

And then there was Bob Thigpen, ace of the Chicago bullpen, saver of 34 games last season. With him on the mound and the White Sox leading 4-1 with two outs to go Tuesday night, what chance did the Texas Rangers have?

Not much, but they made the most of it. Trailing 4-0, they capitalized on an error by Chicago shortstop Ozzie Guillen for one run. Ruben Sierra hit a two-run homer to make it 4-3 and then, after Harold Baines walked, up stepped Pete Incaviglia.

He knew what to expect, got his pitch and hit a two-run homer to give the Rangers a stunning 5-4 victory on the strength of a five-run ninth.

"Sometimes in the past I'd bring things like past at-bats to the plate," Incaviglia said. "But I keep telling myself that somewhere down the line I can do something to help us win."

"Bobby comes right at you," Incaviglia said. "He made a mistake and I hit it out."

It was also a bad day for the Ironically, Stewart was 0-11 for his career in April prior to joining the Athletics. Stewart allowed six hits in seven innings, struck out five and walked four in helping Oakland to a 6-0 road record.

McGwire, who had the third five-RBI game of his career, hit a two-run homer off Dave Johnson (2-1) in the first. McGwire hit his fifth of the season off reliever Brian Holton with two on in the seventh.

Red Sox 4, Angels 2

Clemens got a break because Boston scored three unearned runs after an error by losing pitcher Mark Langston of California.

Clemens, collecting his 99th career victory, allowed four hits, struck out eight and walked one in 8 1/3 innings. He retired 14 straight Angels between the fourth and ninth innings. Jeff Reardon, the third Boston pitcher, got the final out for his first save.

Blue Jays 4, Indians 3

Key allowed four hits over five innings, struck out three and walked none for Toronto, which won for the fourth time in five games because Kelly Gruber hit his major-league-leading fifth and sixth homers and drove in all four runs.

Gruber reached Greg Swindell (1-3) for a three-run homer before there were any outs in the first. Gruber made it 4-1 with a solo homer in the fifth for his 16th RBI. That gave him the American League lead.

Brewers 7, Royals 3

Bosio was staked to a 3-0 first-inning lead when Dave Parker hit a three-run homer as Milwaukee beat Kansas City in a game featuring a bench-clearing incident.

Bosio gave up three runs and seven hits in seven innings, striking out five Baltimore Orioles, who ran into Oakland's Dave Stewart (4-0). He won his 18th straight April decision as Oakland whipped Baltimore 7-1.

Clemens (4-0) pitched Boston to a 4-2 victory over California, Key (3-0) paced Toronto over Cleveland 4-3 and Bosio (2-0) improved his first-month career record to 12-2 as Milwaukee beat Kansas City 7-3.

Elsewhere, it was Minnesota 16, Detroit 4 and New York 6, Seattle 2.

Donn Pali started the ninth with the White Sox holding a 4-0 lead. He allowed a one-out double to Rafael Palmeiro, who scored when Guillen erred on Julio Franco's grounder.

In came Thigpen, who allowed Sierra's fourth homer, a shot over the right field fence at Arlington Stadium. Two batters later, the game became a sad piece of White Sox history when Incaviglia's third Homer cleared the fence in left.

Athletics 7, Orioles 1

Stewart, who last lost an April game in 1987, had an easy time because Mark McGwire hit two home runs and drove in five runs as Oakland beat Baltimore to remain unbeaten on the road.

and walking two as the Brewers won for the fifth time in six games.

Twins 16, Tigers 4

Minnesota established season highs in several offensive categories, with Gene Larkin and Kent Hrbek driving in three runs each against pitching-poor Detroit.

Larkin doubled twice, singled twice and scored twice as the Twins, who won for the fifth time in seven games, had season highs in hits (19), walks (12) and runs. They had seven doubles to tie a team record.

Yankees 6, Mariners 2

Dave LaPoint won his first game since June 6 and slump-ridden Jesse Barfield hit a three-run homer as New York scored five times in the first inning, beating Seattle to end a five-game losing streak.

LaPoint (1-1), trying to come back from shoulder surgery last August, allowed six hits in 6 2/3 innings, walked two and struck out two.

Unlucky 13 strikes again in NL play

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

For two straight games, 13 was indeed an unlucky number for the defending National League division champions.

Triskaidekaphobia, however, is no problem for the San Diego Padres.

On Monday night, the Padres took care of NL West champion San Francisco 13-3 on 17 hits. The Chicago Cubs, the East champs, made the trip to Jack Murphy Stadium on Tuesday night. The Padres pounded them 13-3, stroking 19 hits this time.

Are the Padres trying to say something?

"Not really," said Padres manager Jack McKeon, who's club is 8-6. "After winning five in a row, we lost four out of six, now we've won two straight again."

Garry Templeton, Benito Santiago and Tony Gwynn each had three hits for the Padres against the Cubs, and starter Dennis Rasmussen added two hits and two RBIs.

"We miss the consistency we need. Just steady hitting, that's the key," McKeon added. "At 8-6, we're not sending too much of a message to anybody. We've got to get a little bit better than 8-6. I think everybody realizes there's a lot of good clubs in this league. And we're just one of them."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Los Angeles 3, St. Louis 0; Pittsburgh 4, San Francisco 1; Philadelphia 6, Cincinnati 3; Montreal 5, Houston 3 and New York 2, Atlanta 1.

The Padres broke a 2-2 tie with four runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth, batting around in both innings.

San Diego chased Greg Maddux (2-1) in the fourth by putting together four hits, three for extra bases. In the inning, the big hits were an RBI single by Templeton, a run-scoring triple by Roberto Alomar and an RBI double by Bip Roberts.

Joe Carter, who drove in seven runs against the Giants on Monday, went 2-for-5 with an RBI as every Padre starter except Jack Clark had a hit.

"He's a good pitcher," Alomar said of Maddux, "but he wasn't so tough tonight. I've seen him better."

The Cubs, who have lost five straight, have been better, too. They made four errors allowing three unearned runs, balked home a run and walked five.

Dodgers 3, Cardinals 0

Mike Morgan, who fell out of the Los Angeles rotation after the All-Star break, pitched a three-hitter to beat St. Louis and improved to 3-0.

Morgan struck out six, walked none and reeled the last 16 en route to his first NL shutout. It was his first shutout since Sept. 8, 1987, when he pitched Seattle past Cleveland.

St. Louis left-hander Joe Magrane fell to 0-3.

Pirates 4, Giants 1

Doug Drabek pitched seven shutout innings and hit his first major-league homer to snap a scoreless tie as Pittsburgh dropped San Francisco to 0-6 at Candlestick Park.

The Giants have not won at home since last October, including two World Series losses to Oakland. San Francisco led the NL with a 53-28 home record in 1989.

Bill Landrum gave up a home run to Ernest Riles with two outs in the ninth for the Giants' run.

Sid Bream singled to start the seventh and, two outs later, Drabek, a .132 lifetime hitter, homered off starter Scott Garrels (0-1).

Phillies 6, Reds 3

John Kruk had three hits, including a two-run homer and an RBI double, as Philadelphia beat visiting Cincinnati for its fourth straight victory to match last season's best run.

It was the Reds' second straight defeat after opening the season with nine consecutive victories.

Ken Howell (2-1) pitched six innings and allowed six hits, Jeff Parrett worked 2 2-3 innings and Roger McDowell got the last out for his fifth save.

Expos 5, Astros 3

Tim Wallach had a two-run homer and an RBI single as Montreal beat Houston in the Astrodome for its sixth victory in seven games. The Expos stole five bases and have 31 in 14 games.

Kevin Gross (1-1) pitched six innings, allowing one run and five hits. Drew Hall, newly acquired John Costello and Tim Burke finished. Burke pitched two innings for his fourth save.

Mike Scott (0-2) pitched five innings and allowed four runs and five hits in his fourth start of the season.

Mets 2, Braves 1

New York won its third straight game when Kevin McReynolds' hard slide at second allowed Mike Marshall to barely beat the double-play relay, enabling the winning run to score in the ninth inning against Atlanta. The Braves have lost eight of nine.

The Cubs, who have lost five straight, have been better, too. They made four errors allowing three unearned runs, balked home a run and walked five.

Dodgers 3, Cardinals 0

Mike Morgan, who fell out of the Los Angeles rotation after the All-Star break, pitched a three-hitter to beat St. Louis and improved to 3-0.

Morgan struck out six, walked none and reeled the last 16 en route to his first NL shutout. It was his first shutout since Sept. 8, 1987, when he pitched Seattle past Cleveland.

Annual benefit scheduled

The Annual Diocese of Amarillo School-A-Thon will be Friday, May 4, in Southwest Park at 4800 S. Bell, said Sister Mary John Lindner DC, diocesan superintendent of schools.

Events of the day will begin with an opening Mass at 11 a.m. followed by a picnic at noon and opening School-A-Thon ceremonies at 12:45 p.m.

"The School-A-Thon is an activity where those who believe in Catholic school education can make a public demonstration of support and can raise money for the school of their choice," Sister Mary John said.

Elementary school participants in the annual activity obtain pledges of money for laps traveled from sponsors and then run, jog, or walk a prescribed route. Middle and secondary school participants also take part in various activities.

To be eligible, a person must be either a student or a donor who has pledged $10 or more.

Awards will be presented to winners.

COST, Texas (AP) - Hundreds of people flocked to the 3,200-acre ranch of pitcher Nolan Ryan to watch him sell off his beefmasters.

The Texas Rangers hurler signed autographs and posed for snapshots with fans Sunday as about 500 head of his cattle were sold.

When he isn't pitching, Ryan is a rancher, but he decided to sell a purebred herd because he can't devote the time it requires.
