Goetz pleads innocent to attempted murder

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz pleaded innocent today to charges stemming from his shooting of four youths on a subway train, and his lawyer was granted a delay in the trial that Goetz hopes "will end the controversy."

Goetz's court appearance came one day after he was indicted on four counts of attempted murder by the second grand jury to investigate the Dec. 22 shootings.

The first grand jury indicted Goetz, 37, only for felony weapons possession charges. He did not testify before either panel.

During the arraignment, Judge Stephen Crane kept Goetz's bail at $5,000, rejecting a prosecutor's request that it be raised to $20,000.

"I concede the defendant has faithfully appeared in court whenever required. I don't believe Mr. Goetz poses a substantial risk of flight," Crane said.

Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples said higher bail was warranted because the new charges are "substantially more serious."

Barry Slotnick, Goetz's lawyer, said his client "has nowhere to go, judge. You're looking at, unfortunately, the best-known face in the country."

The shooting prompted a worldwide debate on vigilantism and self-defense.

Goetz said he shot the youths in self-defense after one of them "demanded" $5. One of the teenagers said he told the second grand jury he was merely trying to handle Goetz.

In addition to attempted murder, the second grand jury charged Goetz with four counts of fourth-degree assault, one count of first-degree reckless endangerment and one count of second-degree criminal possession of a weapon.

"It's probably all for the best. Everything now should come out in the open, with time, and that will end the controversy," Goetz said.

Crane consolidated the charges in Wednesday's indictment with the gun charges handed up by the first grand jury in January.

Slotnick was granted 45 days to prepare a motion to throw out the indictment, which he contends was "brought improvidentially by the district attorney for partisan reasons."

"The chief judge has said a grand jury will indict a ham sandwich if the district attorney wants it to," Slotnick said Wednesday. "Bernie Goetz today turned out to be a ham sandwich."

Goetz faced up to seven years in prison on the felony gun possession indictment handed up by the first grand jury.

Key Club Presentation

Hereford High School Key Club presented a 25-inch remote control television to the Senior Citizens Center recently. The television, placed in the sitting room of the new center, was purchased with proceeds from fund-raising projects of the club. The set was presented to Homer Garrison, president of Hereford Senior Citizens, by

Geneva talks focus on touchy issue today

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators today open talks on medium-range missiles — the issue that led the Soviets to walk out of the arms talks 15 months ago.

The talks are part of the three-tiered superpower arms reduction negotiations that also cover long-range missiles and outer space and other defensive weapons.

The talks revive the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks that were halted in December 1983 when the Soviets walked out to protest NATO's deployment of the first of 572 U.S.-built Pershings and cruise medium-range missiles.

NATO said the missiles were needed to counter Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at Europe.

On Wednesday, the Soviet delegation issued a formal statement saying they were discussing with the United States methods of keeping outer space free of all weapons — not President Reagan's Star Wars defense plan.

The Soviets were denying a newspaper article published earlier in the day that quoted a U.S.

spokesman as saying Tuesday's arms control meeting between the two superpowers "discussed possible anti-missile systems in space."

"This report is not based on facts," the Soviet statement said. "What was discussed was not possible anti-missile systems in space but the question of the need for strict compliance with the agreement reached on Jan. 7-8 in Geneva concerning the elaboration of effective measures to prevent an arms race in space."

The Soviets were referring to the meeting between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, that led to the current arms talks in Geneva.

Reagan claims the Star Wars idea is purely defensive and aimed at the elimination of all nuclear weapons.

The Soviet Union has called Star Wars a U.S. attempt to gain a nuclear first-strike capability.

A U.S. spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity, acknowledged the newspaper report did "not reflect what the spokesman of the U.S. delegation to these arms talks actually said."

Program would 'turn bull loose'

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, appealing for support for his embattled budget plan, told Wall Street leaders today that congressional approval of his economic program would "turn the bull loose," unleashing the full power of the economy.

Reagan, the first sitting president ever to visit the 193-year-old New York Stock Exchange, rang the bell opening the day's trading precisely on time at 3 second before 10 a.m. EST.

The packed trading floor burst into shouts of "Ronnie, Ronnie, Ronnie" as the president appeared at a marble rostrum above and, later, when he rang the bell.

Reagan noted the thunderous ovations and told his audience as he ended his brief speech:

"What you've done for me is better than a hot tip."

In his address to some 1,700 members of the exchange on the floor beforehand, Reagan put in a plug for his budget and spending cuts while lauding the U.S. economic boom that has marked his term in office.

"With tax reform and budget control, our economy will be free to expand to its full potential, driving the bears back into permanent hibernation," Reagan said. "That's our economic program for the next four years — we're going to turn the bull loose."

In Wall Street jargon, a "bull" market is upbeat, while a "bear" market is in decline.

The president noted that Senate Republicans are trying to put together a package of spending reductions "and they are going to need all our support and encouragement in the coming weeks." Reagan did not mention, however, that the Republican-led Senate Budget Committee recently rejected his budget plan.

The budget panel has suggested cutting Reagan's defense spending request while freezing Social Security's cost-of-living clause and granting only some of the domestic spending cuts the administration has requested.

Last week, Reagan and senior Republicans agreed to appoint representatives to try to agree on a single plan for presentation to the full Senate.

Reagan, in a throwback to his campaign speeches, said, "In the last five years, we've moved from malaise to hope, confidence and opportunity."

Reagan said his administration has been able to achieve "healthy results" in the economy by cutting tax rates, ridding government of regulation and limiting spending. But he said that in order to increase export markets and spur productivity, it would be necessary to cut tax rates again.

"And that's exactly what we intend to do," Reagan said.

Reagan told the stockbrokers that "the American economy is like a race horse that's begun to gallop in front of the field" but that economic growth among America's trading partners has lagged.

"The solution is for our trading partners to throw off the dead weight of government, cut their own tax rates, spending and over-regulation and join us in opening up their markets to foreign competition — so that they can catch up with us in our race to the future."

Alcohol insurance endorsed

AUSTIN (AP) — Two top state officials say they support mandatory alcoholism treatment insurance because of their own personal clashes with alcohol.

"I am an alcoholic, a recovering alcoholic," Comptroller Bob Bullock told a joint meeting Wednesday of the Senate Health and Human Resources and the House Human Services committees.

"I am an alcoholic," Treasurer Ann Richards said, "I speak out in hopes that other people will seek out the same treatment for themselves."

Both were applauded by many in the Senate chamber as they left the witness stand.

The two appeared to support three Senate and House measures that would make it mandatory that health insurance coverage include alcohol and drug dependence treatment for both individuals and group policies. The coverage is now at employers' option.

Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, author of the Senate version, said his measure would be held in committee for further study and possible amendments.

"Alcoholism is a disease and incurable," Bullock said. "This bill will not cost money, it will save money. Insurance is already paying for the injuries and the illness now. I hope you bring Texas in line with 21 other states."

Bullock said between 1976 and 1981 he was in a hospital about 25 times. "Blue Cross paid about $700 a month on the average in my case," he said.

"The optional plan won't work," said Ms. Richards. "Too many times the boss will just fire an employee if he finds they need treatment ... This legislation is absolutely necessary."

Will Davis, Austin attorney and former State Board of Education member, opposed the proposal as a spokesman for 125 legal reserve life insurance companies in Texas.

Demos almost concede defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, all but conceding defeat, said today he expects President Reagan to win in the last of four congressional votes crucial to the MX missile.

With the vote just over an hour away, O'Neill said he continues to "hope against hope" that the $1.5 billion appropriation would be defeated. But he conceded that two Democrats who voted against the MX on Tuesday would not be on hand today.

"So we lose two votes," O'Neill said. He did not name the two Democrats or give their reasons for not attending the fourth and final congressional MX vote.

The speaker said that while he had some hope of convincing three Republicans to vote against the appropriation, "I would have to assume the White House has those three pretty well in line," he said.

Sixty-one Democrats voted with the 219-213 majority in the initial House test on MX and O'Neill indicated he has little chance of turning any of them around.

Using an MX analogy, O'Neill joked that those votes "have been hardened in the silo."

He was asked directly if he saw any prospects for a reversal.

"I always hate to declare against myself," he replied. "I hope against hope."

But he added that, "I don't anticipate any changes."

On Wednesday, O'Neill said he was making "an all-out effort" to orchestrate an upset to stop the release of the money to build a second installment of 21 of the intercontinental nuclear weapons.

But House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said Reagan clearly has the support he needs in the narrowly divided House to slip the MX money past its final legislative roadblock.

Reagan was expected to continue lobbying by telephone even though he was scheduled to be in New York City at the time of the vote.

"There is a chance, but it's a hard chance," for the House to reverse itself, said Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause and a leading anti-MX lobbyist.

The House voted 219 to 213 Tuesday night to authorize the MX spending, a step some House members contended is sufficient to show American resolve and to maintain the weapon as a bargaining chip at U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva.

They urged the House to bar actual appropriations for the weapon.

But Wright said, "I don't know any reason to believe that the vote would be substantially different system he said is too expensive and neither an effective deterrent to a Soviet attack

Local Roundup

Four burglaries may be solved

Hereford police believe they have solved three church and one residential burglary with Wednesday's arrest of a juvenile. The four burglaries the juvenile is thought to be involved in occurred during the past three months.

King's Manor barbeque July 13

The King's Manor Founder's Association met recently, selecting July 13 as the date for the annual barbeque.

According to Board President Bartley Dowell, the event is the association's major fundraising activity. Proceeds provide nursing home care for those unable to pay. Last year's barbeque brought in $43,000 in ticket sales and other donations.

Combest meetings set

Rep. Larry Combest will be conducting community meetings in three towns of his district Saturday. At 9 a.m. he will be in the cafeteria of Estacado Jr. High in Plainview, at 11 a.m. he will meet in the Abernathy Community Center in Abernathy and at 3 p.m. he will be at Smylie Wilson Jr. High in Lubbock.

Parents sponsor dance

Parents of seniors at Hereford High are sponsoring a dance Friday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The Hereford High senior parents will meet at 7 p.m. today in the old Stairway to Fashion building in the mall for a general meeting.

Court ruling supported by police chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling limiting police authority to shoot unarmed, fleeing suspects is attracting support from many law enforcement officials who say they already abide by the new guidelines.

The ruling is "just and proper," said Robert Angrisani, spokesman for the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Gaithersburg, Md.

Association members approved the guidelines two years ago "and now the Supreme Court has agreed with us," he said.

The court ruled, 6-3, Wednesday that police may not shoot unarmed, fleeing criminal suspects who pose no apparent threat to the officers or the public. The court said a Tennessee law that allowed unrestrained use of deadly force violated the constitutional rights of suspects.

Nearly half the states in the nation have laws similar to Tennessee. But in many of those states, local police departments for years have banned shooting of fleeing suspects who are not considered dangerous.

Support for the court's ruling was not unanimous.

Tennessee State Rep. Joe Kent, a Memphis police lieutenant, said, "It's a black day for your police officers and it's a blacker day for your law-abiding citizens."

But Assistant City Attorney Charles V. Holmes of Memphis said the local police department had been abiding by the new strictures prior to the ruling. The city's previously revised deadly force policy "is consistent with today's ruling," he said.

The decision stems from a 1974 incident in Memphis in which police shot and killed Edward Garner, 15, as the boy was fleeing from a house burglary.

Wednesday's ruling means the city of Memphis may be forced to pay damages to the boy's father.

City Commission Candidate Questions

1. Do you plan to take a position on the proposed nuclear repository site as have commissioners in Deaf Smith and Oldham County entities?

2. What are some specific areas in which you would like to see the city improve?

3. Are there any areas of city management that you would like to see changed?

4. How would you be active in helping bring industry to Hereford?

5. Why would you be an asset to the city commission?

6. Why are you running for city commission?

7. How many city commission meetings have you attended in the past year?

8. In what civic activities are you involved?

1. No, not until I am fully convinced, by examining facts, that a position is warranted either for or against any part of the proposed project. I grant that some very serious concerns have been voiced to D.O.E. but the proposed site characterization is basically the beginning of the technical assessment of the proposed project and it will give much more information than in the draft now available. I think that our energies would be better spent at this time to evaluate the impact of these proposed studies and insure that the City of Hereford and its taxpayers are properly compensated for additional services required during the study period.

2. a. Encourage, by all means possible including ordinances, the clean up and fix up of all areas of our city especially along U.S. Hwy. 60 and U.S. Hwy. 385.

b. Cooperate fully with the Chamber of Commerce and potential new businesses to foster the atmosphere that will attract new industries, jobs and commerce to Hereford.

c. Eliminate any duplication in governmental entities by combination or joint administration.

3. None that I am familiar with, however, if I can see or be shown that a change will be cost effective or more efficient and still provide the service necessary, I would be in favor of it.

4. a. Being available when business representatives come to visit or ask questions.

b. If necessary, to travel to see business prospects to point out to them the advantage of locating in Hereford.

c. Support the Chamber of Commerce in its efforts to expand industrial development.

d. Continue to see that our city is run efficiently so as to provide an advantageous tax rate and an advantageous quality of life for industrial prospects as well as our current taxpayers.

5. a. Experience in business.
b. Ability to make my own independent judgment on an issue and then vote my conviction.

c. No special interest or obligations to any group or cause.

6. Out of a service of civic responsibility or civic pride with the goal of making Hereford better through my efforts.

7. 18, since August 20, 1984, after being appointed to serve the unexpired term of Melvin Jayroe in Place 1.

8. Chamber of Commerce Director Hereford Industrial Board, past president & current vice-president.

1. Yes.

2. Hereford is perfect - what do you mean? No, really I would like to see the commission work closer with the Chamber of Commerce.

3. Not at this time.

4. As a representative of the city I would like to work very closely with the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

5. I feel I would be an asset to the city commission because I see Hereford every day from a different viewpoint than those who work in offices. In the service business I am on the streets and in direct contact with the people every day.

6. I want to do all that's possible for me to keep and make Hereford a great place to be.

7. Three.

8. Kiwanis.

1. I am opposed to the nuclear repository in Deaf Smith County. It is not an issue of safety, but one of confidence. We have been inundated with information on the dump, correct and incorrect. This town is divided. But worse than that, the people and companies who buy our agricultural products are unsure. Like any business, if we lose our customers, we lose everything.

2. Two problems stand out. First, Highway 60 is an eyesore. Lets use our civic pride and energy to clean it up, not taxpayer dollars. Second, TRLA is wrecking this area. Lets insist that this office be cleaned out and staffed with people who aren't costing farm workers their jobs, businesses their labor forces, and Hereford new business. The lost onion acreage alone in the Hereford area has cost our economy $4 million and hundreds of poor their jobs. If anyone deserves to be unemployed, it is the local TRLA staff.

3. Hereford is getting a new manager, replacing one who has served us well. That is a lot of change right there. Let's work with these two men in the job transition.

4. Sometimes one has to lead by example. My company, American Packaging Corp. is proof that a new business can come to town and prosper. This in spite of an agricultural economy with big problems. We have to sell Hereford and its advantages. But until Legal Services cleans up its local subsidiary, it won't be easy.

5. I was not raised in Hereford, but it is my home. I can offer a fresher, newer perspective to the commission, not only as a young family man, but also as a young businessman working to improve both. Age has wisdom and experience to offer; youth has enthusiasm and a different view. Hereford needs both on the city commission.

6. My family, my home and my business are here. Unless Hereford prospers, I don't think we will either. With as much at stake, who doesn't feel an obligation to get that much more involved? Many people have good reasons not to run. I don't fault them or criticize. I couldn't think of any reason not to run.

7. I have attended two meetings in the past year.

8. I am a board member of the Hereford Whiteface Kiwanis Breakfast Club and am involved in its projects. I am also active in several regional agricultural organizations. My wife Carol is president of the Hereford Newcomers Club. I assist her in its functions.

1. I am certain that virtually no one favors the location of a nuclear repository in our community. I, as many, would much prefer to give consideration to an auto assembly plant in order to diversify and hopefully improve our economy. It will be my position to continue to educate myself and to study the possible impact on our community should the D.O.E. decide to locate in Deaf Smith County.

2. Improving our city is a continual process for which we all have responsibility. Of particular interest to me is the improvement of our main street buildings. We have had continuous renovations in this area for the past several years and I would encourage this process to continue. Hopefully, these improvements will help attract industry which will increase our tax base and will lead to further improvements to Hereford.

3. Hereford has been very fortunate to have superior city management during the time period which I have lived here. I have no specific complaints or criticism and would only hope to maintain this excellence.

4. I feel that an aggressive attitude toward industrial recruitment will compliment our heavy agricultural involvement in this locale. I would encourage the city and the Chamber of Commerce to develop a more concerted effort toward industrial development. This might be achieved through installing a member of the commission on the Chamber's Industrial Development Committee.

5. A degree in administrative management from Texas Tech, in addition to owning and operating two retail businesses in Hereford, should give me the needed experience to be an asset to the commission. I have worked as an accountant in a public accounting firm for the past 2½ years and have gained experience in the financial planning and management field. Lastly, I have been a resident of Hereford for 17 years and know many of the concerns of our community.

6. Hereford has provided me with excellent surroundings to raise my children and to make our living. My reason for running for city commission is to have the opportunity to give my time and abilities to replenish those things which have been afforded me during my past 17 years.

7. I have attended two city commission meetings in the past year.

8. I am a member of the noon Kiwanis Club and am currently serving on the Board of Directors.

1. For the record, the Oldham County Commissioners have not taken a pro or con stand on the nuclear waste issue. My position is the same as it has always been and that is one of neutrality. This the same position that the City Commission has taken. There are mixed feelings in our city on this issue and I think we should be fair to all constituents. I would encourage all citizens to learn all they can regarding this issue and feel that the city should continue to monitor the ongoing research. If I'm going to take a stand, pro or con, I would like to have factual reasons and be able to make informed decisions. I feel that this is a rational and sensible approach to the issue.

2. Any city could stand improvement and ours is no different. We have already initiated the work to be done on North 25 Mile Ave. for storm sewers, street paving and curbs and gutters. Construction of a new fire station is planned. In the not too distant future, we should look into the widening of East Park Ave. In the very near future, we will have to float a bond issue to drill new wells for additional water. There are some sections of our city that do need some cleaning up and beautifying but most of this will have to be done by citizens taking pride in our community. Three service clubs have already taken on projects of beautifying some of our triangular parks which is very commendable. I hope this will encourage more citizens to do the same.

3. We have had high level management in our city for many years and we have insured the continuation of this quality management in the future by the recent hiring of a city manager who is qualified and well experienced. I can think of no major changes that should be made. Financially, our city is in excellent shape and our city services are some of the best and most reasonable in the State.

4. During my tenure as Mayor, both the city manager and I, along with the commission, have worked very closely with the Chamber of Commerce. Generally, the Chamber is the first to be contacted by interested new industry. I stand ready, at any time, to follow up contacts by visiting interested prospects and by helping to organize local business leaders to do the same. We have already co-operated in helping to bring Valley View Energy to our community by selling some city property to make it possible. I will continue to do what I can to encourage related new industry to come to Hereford.

5. I have served for 3 years on the City Planning and Zoning Commission, 4 years as City Commissioner and 2 years as Mayor. During this time, I served for 6 years on the Deaf Smith County Juvenile Board and 3 out of those 6 years have been as Chairman. I have been part owner and manager of a local business for many years. I think my experience speaks for itself.

6. When I first ran for the Commission and later for Mayor, I believed I had something to contribute because of my business experience and desire. I certainly have more experience now and have the same desire. I found that it takes about a year to get your feet on the ground and learn enough about city business to be effective. I also think that because a new city manager is coming on board, we should maintain continuity in the Mayor's Office to help him get acclimated.

7. All but one when I had to be out of town on business.

8. I am not a member of any civic club however I have talked at most of the local clubs during my tenure as Mayor. I am a member of the Chamber of Commerce and also a member of the First United Methodist Church. I found as Mayor that most of my available time is spent taking care of the duties of the office.

Letter to the Editor

Dear editor,

Saints of God we are in a spiritual battle. "For we are not wrestling against flesh and blood, but against powers, against master spirits who are the rulers of this present darkness, against the spirit forces of wickedness in the heavenly sphere." Ephesians 6:12 (Amplified Bible). Intercede for the administrators, principals, school board, teachers, students that eyes will be opened, deaf ears opened, hearts changed that the powers of darkness will be broken over this school system and people's lives.

THE BATTLE IS THE LORD'S not ours. Our battle is spiritual—not fleshly—it must be fought in the spirit and God will get the glory and the victory—not man.

Saints of God proclaim a fast—assemble yourselves together—seek God's way—not man's.

"If MY people who bear My name humble themselves, and pray and seek my presence and turn from their wicked ways I myself will hear from Heaven and forgive their sins and restore their land." 2 Chronicles 7:14 (JB)

Church, listen to what the Spirit is saying.

An Intercessor,
May Jo Hamman

RULING

Cleante Garner, whose 1975 lawsuit charged police with violating the boy's rights.

The policeman who shot young Garner in the back of the head said the boy, who appeared to be unarmed, would have escaped if the officer did not fire.

The Supreme Court decision upheld a 1983 federal appeals court ruling that said Tennessee's law on deadly force was unconstitutional.

The high court rejected arguments by Tennessee law enforcement officials that police will be hampered unnecessarily if they are forced to make split-second decisions on when it is permissible to shoot an escaping suspect.

States still may authorize police to shoot to kill armed suspects or those suspected of crimes involving "serious physical harm."

In other decisions Wednesday, the court:

—Ruled by a 4-4 vote that Scarsdale, N.Y., must permit the placing of a Nativity scene in a village park as long as non-religious displays are allowed there.

Such tie votes, which occurred because of the absence of Justice Lewis Powell, uphold the lower court rulings, but do not set any nationwide precedent because it is possible in some future case the same issue will be decided by all nine justices.

—Made it easier for local governments nationwide to fend off lawsuits that charge them with violating federal antitrust laws.

The ruling is likely to protect numerous communities that run sewer systems, cable television, hospitals and mass transit systems as monopolies.

School Board Candidate Questions

1. Have you made up your mind that some of the HISD administrators need to be terminated?
2. Are there any changes in policy that you would suggest to the administration?
3. What is your opinion of the controversial mastery learning?
4. What do you think is the role of the teachers and parents concerning implementation of certain teaching methods within a district?
5. A recent survey showed that a majority of teachers in this district were "frustrated" due to poor morale, lack of communication and inconsistency in methodology. As a board member, how do you intend to resolve that?
6. If elected, how do you plan to be aware of your constituency's desires?
7. How would you be an asset to the school board?
8. How many school board meetings have you attended in the past year?

1. and 2. I would like to answer questions 1. and 2. together. I have not definitely made up my mind that some or any of the present HISD administrators need to be terminated. I have, however, made up my mind that certain policy changes need to be implemented.

If the recent survey taken by members of the school board and the local concerned citizens group means anything and if we believe (which I do) that we have competent and professional teachers in our school system, then several changes in policies need to be changed now or as soon as possible.

Some of these changes would be as follows:

1. Elimination of the Mastery Learning Concept to be replaced with sequential teaching, post-testing, and reteaching, if necessary, of the essential elements now mandated by the State.

2. Elimination of the Raven test to determine placement of K-5-1 to be replaced with a language test coupled with a developmental reading readiness test.

3. Major policy changes in our educational program will be the board's decision only after superintendent, administrators, principals, teachers, and parents have voiced input concerning the needed changes in question.

3. On a scale of 0-10, I would place the Mastery Learning concept at 0. Not only has Mastery Learning created a burdensome load of paper work on the teachers, it has stifled the teachers' ability to teach and to teach with his or her own individuality. It also has dampened the morale of teachers and students.

With Mastery Learning the concept of individuality is almost, if not completely, eliminated. I believe what built this great nation of ours was the individual mind having the power and ability to think, reason, and then to decide.

4,5 and 6. I would like to answer questions 4, 5 and 6 together. The recent survey that showed 70 percent of the teachers frustrated and dissatisfied and having low morale can be corrected by having good and open communications between teachers, principals, parents, administrators, and the school board.

We need all of these working together in good harmony. You will never please everyone all the time, but from obtaining input from those mentioned above, the school board would have the ability to assess a major policy change and to see what the sentiment is toward that policy before it is implemented. Naturally, some policies cannot be changed regardless of public and teacher sentiment, but the policies that the local school district has the option to decide could receive input.

7. From my experience in business and serving on other boards, I believe I could contribute to the school board and be effective. Not only have I worked with people on other boards and know what it takes to communicate and cooperate with them to accomplish the end result, but with my experience in business I would be helpful in the financial aspect of the school board business.

8. In response to your last question, I attended at least 4 or 5 school board meetings during the past year.

Impulse gave victim energy

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A woman says she acted on impulse and didn't have time to be scared when she chased an intruder out of her apartment, vaulted a fence and clung to the windshield wipers of his car as he tried to speed away.

"He told me, 'All right, baby, we're going for a ride,'" Gwen Kemp said Wednesday of her wild tour on the hood of the man's car. "I said, 'Let's go.'"

Ms. Kemp, 31, said a lot of other things, too, during the course of the chase, but she declined to be specific, explaining, "You can't print it."

She credited her stamina to having quit smoking and begun jogging

1. No, but administrators should be evaluated individually with criteria that includes their effectiveness as leaders in the school community and their support of school policies. Administrators, like teachers, must be encouraged to express their opinions during the formation of policy without fear of losing their jobs. Once the board has reached a decision, however, administrators have an essential role in supporting that decision and implementing new policy. Those administrators who are unable or unwilling to adapt to changes in policy should be given training to enable them to function effectively. If training does not produce results, termination may be necessary.

2. There are several things I would like to see done as a board member. Board meetings should be conducted in a manner which considers educational quality as the number one priority for the HISD; decisions must be made with that goal in mind. Meetings should include more interaction with parents and teachers who attend. The board must have access to all data available and have regular briefings from the administration and faculty. More emphasis needs to be placed on reaching out to bring more parents into the educational process and including all of the community in the decision making process.

3. Mastery learning attempts to create excellent education for all children by instructing them at their individual level. It provides teachers with a framework to insure that basic skills are covered systematically without leaving some students behind and others waiting. Properly implemented, mastery learning would provide consistency from class to class and grade to grade. The controversy seems to center around miscommunication, lack of training, false labels and personalities; these are problems of implementation, not faults of the program. I am convinced that this system can give us quality education and accountability if it is given a chance to succeed.

4. An elected school board should be open to hearing all concerns before making decisions. However, once a decision is reached, teachers must support new policy in order for it to work. Naysayers must not be allowed to subvert the decisions of elected representatives by refusing to follow, or purposely undermining, policy. Parents' voices should be heard, but committees cannot take over the responsibilities of elected board members. Board members can be removed if they fail to respond to their constituents, but who will remove parent committees that respond only to themselves when they attempt to control without elected authority?

5. We did not have to conduct a survey to know that there are problems within the school system. Since the recent survey was poorly written, methodologically unsound and provided inconclusive information, it does not provide the basis for a resolution of those problems. The first step is to improve communication and stop complaining about things which have happened in the past and cannot be changed. Strong leadership from the board, instructing the administration to follow through on policy decisions and clarification of expectations will help everyone to understand their roles and feel more comfortable in performing their jobs.

6. There is a real need for on-going frameworks that allow parents and teachers to have input into board decisions. There is also a need for better communication between parents and the school system. While campaigning I have had the opportunity to meet with many people to discuss educational concerns, and I would continue to visit regularly with teachers, administrators and the parents in my district. Serving as a facilitator of better communication between the parents and the school, as well as between the elements of the school, is one of the tasks I look

(See MARSHALL, Next Column)

1. I have not made up my mind either for or against any administrator. That was not my purpose for running for school board member.

2. I do not believe that I am familiar enough with HISD policy or policies at the present time to make any decisions or suggest changes other than more teacher input.

3. Mastery learning is a good teaching method and can work if teachers are better prepared and are given proper training. Students involved should be taught at their level and these can be done using this method. There are problems involved but I feel that these problems can be worked out.

4. Teachers and parents need to be made aware of programs before they are implemented. Teachers and parents need to work together to make programs work for our students.

5. As a member of the school board, I feel more teacher input, before decisions that concern them are made, will be helpful. Having meetings together with teachers and school principals before decisions are made and also with central office administrators.

6. I plan to keep on visiting with all the people of my district and also all of the people who are involved in working with our students.

7. I feel that I am a fair and honest person and I will be able to make sound decisions. I will spend the time necessary to find out about the issues facing our school system and the programs which students of HISD are involved in.

forward to as a board member.

7. My background makes me uniquely qualified to serve as a school board member. I have Bachelor's and Master's Degrees in Education with eight years teaching experience, several in teaching English to non-native speakers of English (ESL). Currently, I teach developmental reading, composition and a graduate course in ESL methodology at West Texas State University. I have published educational articles and presented a paper at the Texas state conference for ESL teachers. One of my two children is in kindergarten at Northwest. I am concerned with educational quality and have the knowledge and expertise in education which the board needs.

8. In the last year, I have attended two board meetings. In addition, I have spent numerous hours throughout the year talking to students, parents, teachers, board members and administrators about the problems facing HISD and discussing possible solutions to those problems. Because my job is in education, I come in contact daily with educational journals and other writings which keep me well informed about educational issues. Since I am currently teaching and developing programs, I understand both the joys and frustrations of classroom teachers.

Pipes have been sold unfairly

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Commerce Department says foreign steel is being sold in America at unfair prices but there is disagreement over whether the ruling will affect the drilling-pipe market enough to help steelworkers in Lone Star, Texas, the Texarkana Gazette reported today.

In Washington Wednesday, the Commerce Department ruled that steel pipe and tube products imported from Spain and Argentina for oil drilling projects have been sold in the United States at unfairly low prices.

The U.S. International Trade Commission must now decide whether to impose anti-dumping duties. The commission will examine whether the imports are substantially injuring the United States market.

1. As a candidate for an office, it would be presumptuous of me to campaign on anyone's termination whether it be an administrator, a teacher, an aide or a secretary. You have my pledge that I will approach all HISD personnel problems fairly and openmindedly. I will work to find facts and I will act upon those factors responsibly and without preconception.

2. As a former teacher in the system, I am well aware of past struggles in changing any policy — whether it be the drill team, semester tests, exemptions, or implementation of education for the handicapped. Policies are difficult to formulate, more difficult to implement and predictably, everyone cannot be pleased. As a board member, I will work diligently to understand the reasons for and the history of any district policy in effect. Through that understanding, I will work for change, modification or innovation as needed.

3. In the past few weeks, I have consistently studied the complex concepts of mastery learning. Many people find mastery learning to be "difficult." On the other hand, many others find mastery learning "working beautifully." The dilemma resulting from these opposing views makes Hereford one of the crowd statewide in problems of implementations. Specific areas of concern include testing, paperwork, accountability and autonomy in the classroom. In the resolution of the problems of implementation, our ultimate goal must be the education of our children.

4. Communication and mutual respect is necessary for success and must be cultivated at every level of education. Teachers should continue to work through the educational hierarchy provided them professionally. Parents should not only feel free to be a part of their children's education, but they should work hard to inform themselves of all aspects of the educational process. In short, parents and schools must work together. When people are determined to make something a success — it will succeed.

5. There are problems across the state resulting from the implementation of H.B. 72. These problems can be solved through open communication from the board to administration, to teachers, to parents and to the public. The board must be strong in its resolve to formulate consistent policy which complies with the law and brings about consistency in methodology and insist on its implementation.

6. I will actively support parental involvement at every school and participate as a parent; I will support consistent public relations for the schools and listen to the concerns of parents and other taxpayers. Using good judgement and common sense, I will make every effort to represent all of the taxpayers of the district.

7. My background as a teacher and my administrative training including school law and foundations in instructional leadership, will enable me to ask the questions necessary to assure sound policy is being formulated for all. As a parent with three children in the system, I am able to relate to parents and understand problems from a parent's point-of-view. Having served on boards and committees extensively, I understand how to work with others productively.

8. Since becoming interested in a candidacy for the school board I have attended four meetings and have researched all board minutes from the past two years in an effort to trace the implementation of H.B. 72. As an administrative intern for the system, I have attended board meetings regularly. I served on the high school communication committee where I had input to the school board agenda. I have given curriculum reports to the board, my students have presented programs to the board, and my research on out of school suspension was presented to the board.

1. I think it is obvious to almost everyone in this community that we have a multitude of problems that must be addressed and alleviated as quickly as possible if we are to have a coordinated, unified effort in our education system. I would hope that these problems could be eliminated by a cooperative effort from everyone now involved in our school system. I have said before, and I will reiterate that I want this school system to have a unified, well organized, cooperative effort to provide the very best environment in which our children can learn and achieve, and in which our teachers enjoy teaching and are proud to be a part of. Whatever it takes to bring this about, I would so move, and I would so vote.

2. Yes, listen to the teachers and principals, and listen to the voice of the people who own this school district. Make every possible effort to communicate openly and honestly with everyone involved in this system. Do not ignore problems that exist, face them quickly and professionally solve them to the greatest benefit of the system.

3. The mastery learning doctrine in its pure form is a mind control, manipulative system in which students are programmed to respond to pre-determined questions with pre-determined answers. This of course takes all individuality out of the learning process and precludes the student from reasoning out the correct answer to a question based on knowledge and experience. This will not prepare the students to deal effectively with problems and meet the challenges of life. I am against any form of this doctrine in Hereford, and would be against it in any school district in America.

4. Teachers must first be fully instructed and informed of all ramifications of any teaching method they are using. Parents must be informed in every way possible of the methods being used and the benefits of those methods to the students. Strong communication yields understanding and cooperation.

5. Provide the leadership necessary to bring about the coordination of efforts between everyone involved in the system. Again, good communications is the key here. Everyone must be fully informed and aware of the methodology being used, how that methodology is to be applied and the benefits and shortcomings thereof.

6. There are several possible ways to acquire the views of constituents in our school district. One way is to place an article in our newspaper informing constituents of important issues before the board and ask for input. This could be done jointly by all board members, listing their addresses and phone numbers. Another way which I think is very effective is to send post cards to constituents, informing of the important issues and asking for response. I have acquired the names, addresses and phone numbers of all constituents in Place 3, and I plan to communicate with them regularly, and I will carry their voice to the board room.

7. By providing the strong leadership necessary to coordinate the efforts of all employees of the system. By working with teachers, parents and administrators to bring about the strong, effective school system we all want and are paying for with tax dollars.

8. Six.

Lapidary members hold celebration

Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club members surprised Thama Pearson, president, with a birthday cake when they met Monday evening at the Energas Flame Room. During the business meeting with Pearson presiding, it was announced that rock shows will be held in Amarillo and Lubbock and the club discussed the possibility of entering a display case of lapidary work in the shows.

Also, a topic of discussion was held concerning the purchase of matching vests for members.

Garth Thomas talked of the camping facilities at Buffalo Lake and Wildlife Refuge and suggested that the group might want to schedule a picnic. He also spoke of the Texas Sesquicentennial and the future activities that will be held in connection with the celebration.

Bobby Robertson won the door prize which was made by Bert Brown. Ralph Packard exhibited some of his rock specimens that he collected on a recent trip to Arizona.

Hosts for the evening included Mona Gee, Carrie Mae Doak, Henry Wedel and Betty and Dale Henson. There were 33 members present.

The next meeting was scheduled at 7:30 p.m. April 27 in the Flame Room.

Art guild gathers

The Hereford Art Guild met at the Community Center Tuesday with members answering roll call with "My favorite room in the house."

Carrie Mae Doak, president, presided during the meeting. The artist of the month, Jean Reinauer, Annie DeLozier and Vernia Elliott, displayed several of their oil paintings. Reinauer reported on her tour of the Jamaican islands. Members then planned an afternoon trip to the Discovery Center in Amarillo for later in the spring.

Members began the gold leafing project under the supervision of Doak. The picture was drawn and painted on an 8x10-inch glass. The picture will be completed at the April session.

Audrey Rusher, hostess, served refreshments to 11 members and two guests.

The next meeting will be April 23 at the art room of the Community Center at 2 p.m.

Woodrow Wilson's picture was on the U.S. Treasury's $100.00 bill.

Health
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Weight lifting

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article that stated that weight lifting destroyed rather than constructed muscle mass in the older person. It said that the older person does not replace the muscle tissue used in strenuous exercise, and that weight lifting therefore produces less muscle rather than more.

I'm 62 and in better physical health than when I was in my 40s, since I have gotten into a running and diet program. That reduced my weight from 196 to 160. My endurance has increased as you have said it would (beyond anything I thought possible nine months ago) and I would like to build up my strength, too. Would it cause any problems if I began a weight-training program, working into it gradually as I worked into running?

DEAR READER — Most people who have experience with strength training and muscle building probably would disagree strongly with the article you quoted. We all lift weight, even if it is just our body weight. Compare your leg muscles now with the way they were before you started your running program. Most runners develop better thigh and calf muscles, although they are not huge, since the maximum weight they have to lift is your body weight.

If you overdo weight training, you can defeat your purpose of developing muscles. That is true for everything, not just older individuals. However, for other reasons, people over 40 should indeed follow a careful training program. This can be done while also developing muscle size and strength. One does not have to strain to the maximum to develop strong muscles. One also does have to exhaust the muscles, and should not be successful. I see no reason why healthy older people cannot do moderate strength training to develop and maintain muscles, and muscles will increase in size despite your age.

I'm sending you my most recent discussion of this, The Health Letter, Special Report 19, Strength Training: How and Why. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 64-year-old male in good health, but I have bilateral inguinal hernias. The doctor felt there was little danger that I might have any strangulation. He recommended, though, that I have surgery within a year or so, since my health is good and healing would be better than if I needed surgery at age 75 or 80. Do you agree with this?

The only information I have on hernias is from the late '70s, and perhaps surgery may be slightly different today.

DEAR READER — Things have not really changed. An inguinal hernia is a defect in the abdominal wall where the cord to the testicle passes into the scrotum. The muscles in the area may be torn, or the actual ring and canal through which the cord passes may be enlarged and weakened. The problem cannot be corrected except through surgery that repairs the abnormal or torn structures.

Unless there is a complication, there is no need to rush into surgery. However, if surgery is to be done — and it usually is warranted — there is no reason to delay unless the patient is ill. It is true that you will probably recover quickly if it is done now.

Local man living new life through fellowship

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

It all started in 1980 when Richard Schlabs attended his first meeting of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship. That's when Schlabs said his new life began.

Two weeks after attending the meeting, he accepted Christ as his savior. Two years after that, he became president and has held that office for the last three years.

Founded in 1952 by Demos Shakarian to reach men for Jesus, FGBMF currently has 2,800 chapters in 84 nations. The group organized in Hereford in 1973.

"Our purpose is to reach people who probably wouldn't go to a church," Schlabs said. "We tell people what Jesus has done in our lives and encourage the members to become active in their own church."

The group meets for breakfast, lunch and dinner every month. Evening meetings, the third Saturday of each month, usually include an outside speaker. The breakfast and lunch meetings are worked around the evening meetings and include local speakers.

In addition to these meetings, FGBMF also hosts regional conventions with five to six speakers. Membership is not a requirement to attend the local meetings which have an attendance of anywhere from 50 to 350.

"Our attendance varies with the speaker," Schlabs explained. "We invite both men and women except at the breakfast meeting which is only for men."

As president, Schlabs said he had to learn everything from scratch. Even with this hardship, however, he has been blessed by visiting with speakers he normally would never have met.

"I was scared to death to be in front of people," he said of his role as president. "My wife helps me a lot with the arrangements. There's always a good wife behind every chapter president."

FGBMF has expanded into prison outreaches and airlifts to foreign countries. According to Schlabs, through leadership training seminars the organization is teaching businessmen such business concepts as management of time, money and people.

In addition to spending a considerable amount of his time with FGBMF, Schlabs has been a member of the Lions Club for two years and attends Community Church where he teaches a financial course.

"It's good to be a community servant," Schlabs commented, "but the family must come first."

Schlabs' family, to whom he gives priority, consists of his wife, Laura, and their 15-month-old son, Patrick. He and Laura met through a bible study which he still leads every Thursday evening in their home.

With such a busy schedule, Schlabs seemingly would have no time for anything else. Yet, he began his own business in 1980 — Schlabs and Hysinger Commodity Services.

Growing up in Hereford, he farmed when he got out of school. In 1977, he started to trade the markets, making quite a bit of money, he said. He soon began going to seminars in Dallas and Chicago where he received most of his training.

"We're middlemen in futures contracts," Schlabs explained. "We try to help the farmer lock in a price ahead of time."

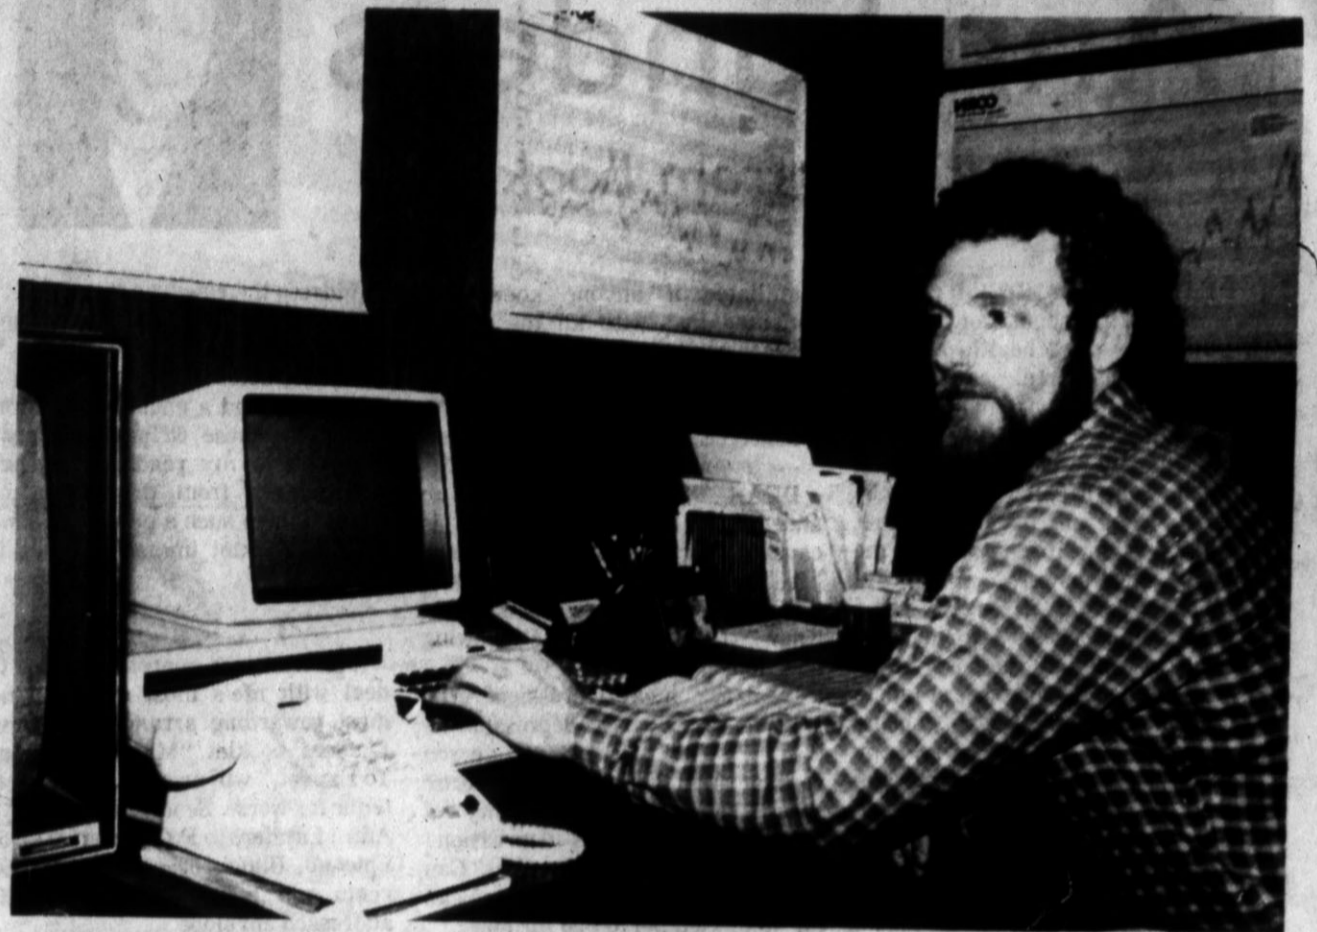

Using charts to predict where the markets usually stop, Schlabs described his business as extremely stressful.

"There's a lot of stress in managing other people's money. If I weren't a Christian, it would be hard for me to deal with the stress."

Schlabs said that becoming a Christian has not really affected the way he treats customers. But it has definitely altered the priorities in his life.

"My father always taught me to treat people fair and nice, and I always did and still do," he said. "But at one time my life was the business. Now Jesus comes first, then my family and then the business."

"My desire is still to help the people, but I want to represent Jesus, too."

RICHARD SCHLABS

Polly's Pointers

Polly Fisher
Dry peppers

DEAR POLLY — I have some nice, round, hot cherry peppers. I'd like some advice on how to dry them so I can crush or grind them after they are dried. I tried different ways to get them dry, but most of them get mold inside and rot.

Also, how should one keep chestnuts? I have a tree that provides quite a few chestnuts. Are there any baking recipes in which to use them? — EMMA

DEAR EMMA — First, your cherry peppers. Most peppers can be successfully air dried. Just thread a string through them and hang them in a dry, airy place until they are completely dry. The problem with cherry peppers is that their round thickness does not let them dry quickly enough to prevent molding inside. Simply cut the peppers in half before stringing them and drying them.

Peppers also can be dried very successfully in a food dehydrator. You could also try drying them in your oven set at the lowest possible temperature (about 140 degrees), but I don't find oven-drying as satisfactory as air-drying or using a regular dehydrator; many oven thermostats are unreliable and the food too often scorches and darkens as it dries.

As for chestnuts: You may freeze the nuts in their shells until you're ready to use them. Chestnuts are delicious shelled, then boiled or steamed and mashed with a little butter, salt and pepper and served as a vegetable. Check your cookbooks or those in the library for recipes for chestnut desserts such as chestnut mousse, sweetened riced chestnuts and others. You also can roast the unshelled chestnuts on an open fire or in the oven (cut an "X" in each shell first for easy shelling) for a delicious nutritious snack. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — What can I use to whiten undergarments that can't be washed in hot bleach water? I've tried dry bleaches, but they don't work. — E.E.R.

DEAR E.E.R. — You can make a very simple, but effective, pre-soak for delicate fabrics with ordinary cream of tartar. Dissolve two tablespoons cream of tartar in one gallon very hot water, then let the mixture cool to lukewarm. Soak delicate fabrics, synthetic knits, baby clothes and clean diapers in this mixture to gently remove minor stains and restore whiteness.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Homemade Soaps and Cleaners," which has this formula as well as a heavy-duty laundry pre-soak using chlorine bleach and automatic dishwasher detergent, a recipe for homemade laundry soap and household cleaners of all types. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Freeze homemade soup in ice cube trays. When frozen, store in plastic bags in the freezer. This will take up much less space than large containers.

To clean an electric can opener, run a paper towel through the cutter to clean the blades.

Dental floss is very good for trussing turkeys, chickens, etc. It will not burn and is very strong.

Brush a little oil on a grater before grating cheese. The grater will wash easily. — A FRIEND

DEAR POLLY — Add a pinch of sugar to tomatoes when cooking them. It enhances their flavor and reduces the natural acidity.

To keep red cabbage from turning purple, add a tablespoon of vinegar when cooking it.

Slice tomatoes vertically for firmer slices.

For the whitest rice, add a few drops of lemon juice to the cooking water. — MRS. N.K.

Ann Landers

Seek help from booklet

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have everything that should add up to a happy life - good health, a loving husband, wonderful children, a beautiful home, no financial problems, a wide circle of acquaintances and a few close friends. To all who know me my life appears to be perfect, but I am miserable about one-third of the time. Don't ask me why. I cannot answer.

For no reason I will wake up some mornings and feel as if I would like to stay in bed and pull the covers over my head. I don't want to see or talk to anyone. But I know I must get up and face the world, so I put on a happy face and force myself to keep my appointments. This could mean going to the beauty salon, taking a child to the dentist, attending a committee meeting, playing cards with the girls, meeting a friend for lunch, visiting my mother-in-law, doing my stint as a volunteer worker in a children's hospital, having five couples in for dinner or going to the theater with my husband.

I marvel at my ability to do all these things without giving the slightest clue that I want to curl up and die. I hate myself for being unable to enjoy a life that most 45-year-old women would give their right eye for.

This has been going on for about three years and it seems to be getting worse. The blue spells occur more frequently and they last longer.

A while back I tried to explain all this to my husband. He told me there was no reason for me to be unhappy and I should "snap out of it." Telling a depressed person to "snap out of it" is like telling a paraplegic to get up and walk. But I don't blame him for being unsympathetic. People who haven't experienced it have no idea what it is like to battle a black mood.

Several months ago you printed a poem called "Richard Corey." It was about a man who was admired and envied by everyone in town. They thought his life was perfect. Then one day he went home and put a bullet through his head. I saw myself in that poem and it frightened me.

I have read your advice to others to "seek counseling," but I cannot bring myself to do it. I would be humiliated if anyone knew. I'm ashamed that with all the advantages I have, I am unable to enjoy life. Please, Ann Landers, tell me what to do.-NO NAME, NO CITY, NO STATE

DEAR FRIEND: You need to understand the condition that is causing you pain and ruining your life. The help you seek is in a booklet called "Depression: What We Know." It will answer the following questions:

What is clinical depression? Who gets depressed? Can depression be treated? Will the depressed person recover? Will the depression return? How likely is the possibility of suicide? What causes depression? Does depression run in families? Can depression be prevented? Where can the depressed person go for help?

Address the envelope this way:
Depression Consumer Information Center,
Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

You will find a goldmine of information in those 65 pages. I urge everyone in my reading audience who suffers from depression, or wants to help such a person, to send for this booklet immediately. It is free.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage - What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Working Outside The Home

Melinda Henson, vice-president of the local chapter of Young Homemakers of Texas, is pictured at her desk at Newton Trucking, Inc. where she is employed as secretary/bookkeeper. As times change, women more frequently work outside of the home. Even though her day starts early taking care of her two children, Henson finds time to be active in the Young Homemakers Club, to sew, to participate in family activities and to be a Red Cross volunteer. This week has been declared National Young Homemakers Week.

Rebekah Lodge members receive convention awards

Kee Ruland opened the regular meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 Tuesday evening with the Light of Faith altar program.

Ruland read an excerpt from Helen Keller's book emphasizing the importance of observing the things seen. She said that people miss the beauty of many things that they see every day.

Noble Grand Faye Brownlow presided as sick members were reported. Thirty-eight visits to the sick and 14 cheer cards were reported. The commission from Johnnie Hefner, president, was read to Leona Sowell, lodge deputy.

Susie Curtsinger reported on the proceedings of Grand Lodge and Rebekah Assembly of Texas at Abilene March 15-19. The attendance of near 1000 helped to make a rewarding meeting.

A gold star certificate was awarded to the lodge for no suspension of members. With the loss of 395 Rebekahs by death, the actual loss of membership was only 132 for the past year.

Those attending from Hereford were Sowell, C.D. and Levita Fitzgerald, Ben and Anna Conklin and Gene and Helen Bishop.

The degree of Chivalry, the highest award available to a member of Rebekah Lodge, was given to Levita Fitzgerald. The degree is received through recommendations from the local lodge based on accomplishments in the areas that Rebekahs stand for: Friendship, Love and Truth.

Ada Hollabaugh was chosen "Mother of the Year" and presented a corsage. Past recipient Nellie Beauford received a gift.

Leona Sowell was hostess to Brownlow, Ruland, Curtsinger, Hollabaugh, Beauford, Anna Conklin, Karrol Rettman, Edna Mathes, Glessie Shelton, Fern Durham, Peggy Lemons, Roberta Combs, Elmer Combs, Ben Conklin and Wallace Shelton.

Band to play for money

Hereford High School band members will stage a "concert-a-thon" Saturday at Sugarland Mall, to raise money for a road trip.

It was recently decided that the band is eligible to participate in the Cavalcade of Music Festival May 10 and 11 in Colorado Springs, but $14,000 must be raised to cover expenses.

Band and orchestra members will play for a total of six hours Saturday at the mall, accepting pledges for every hour they make music.

The band will spend the time rehearsing contest music and practicing for the sight-reading contest.

Interested donors should contact a band member or go to the mall between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. on the day of the concert-a-thon.

Two concert bands and the HHS orchestra will compete for ratings with schools from throughout the nation during the two-day festival.

Investment tips given to members

Members of Valeda Study Club met in the home of Frances Crume Monday with president Margaret Zinser presiding. Roll call was answered with members giving "a bad investment of the past."

Members agreed to contribute $5 for membership as "Friends of the Library."

Members will be called concerning definite plans of the program of our next meeting April 8.

A very informative program on investments was brought by Ike Stevens, a limited partner in Edward D. Jones & Company. Stevens told us that we as investors will fit into one of two categories, that of being a loaner or an owner. As a loaner the investor would have the certainty of an amount of money for a short term. The owner would have more risks but would stand to gain more from his investments over the long term.

He briefly went into advantages of mutual funds, real estate and stocks, stating that time is of value to the investor. Stevens told how he works with the individual in helping him plan his investments in a way he can live comfortably with his decisions.

Refreshments were served to Marcella Brady, Juanita Brown, Frances Crume, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lassiter, Jean Ruther, Norma Walden, Margaret Zinser, Suzane Stevens and Ruth Fish.

No pass, no play

Showdown on rule set

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A crucial vote on the controversial no pass, no play eligibility rule for high school athletes and others has been scheduled for Monday morning.

The Senate Education Committee, which is trying to "fine tune" last summer's school reform bill, argued over the rule Wednesday but no decision was reached.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, committee chairman, said the Monday date would allow time for preparation of amendments that several members said they would present.

"That's appropriate for this April Fool's Day," Parker remarked.

Parker also warned that "if this bill gets loaded down with a retreat from excellence in education, it is not going to pass."

The argument began when the committee was offered a subcommittee report recommending a bill by Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Canyon, to revise the no pass, no play eligibility rule approved by the State Board of Education.

Currently a student is disqualified from playing or practicing athletics or other extracurricular activities for at least six weeks if he fails to make a grade of at least 70 in any course.

Sarpalius' bill, approved by the subcommittee Tuesday, would require students only to maintain passing grades in the 21 courses required for graduation, not electives. The required courses include English, mathematics, science, social studies and history.

"We say as long as you pass required courses you are eligible to take part in extracurricular activities," Sarpalus said. "If you fail one you can't play again until you make up the grade. It may take one week, or three or even six weeks."

"Actually what you are doing is

When Redmen meet Hoyas

St. John's coach expects battle

By ANNE S. CROWLEY Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — It doesn't matter whether Georgetown and St. John's tangle in an exhibition game or with the national championship on the line, Redmen Coach Lou Carnesecca knows the Hoyas won't let down.

Carnesecca's third-ranked team and the No. 1 Hoyas square off in Rupp Arena Saturday in the NCAA semifinals. It will be the fourth meeting this season between the Big East rivals.

"They play every game the same," Carnesecca said during a telephone news conference involving the coaches of the Final Four teams. "They come at you. Whether it's an exhibition or the Final Four ... it doesn't make any difference to them."

Carnesecca and Georgetown Coach John Thompson said the previous three games between the two teams, two of which were won by the Hoyas, didn't count.

"I think people get too caught up in numbers," Thompson said. "As far as I'm concerned, we will play one time — that's here. What we've done in the past doesn't matter."

"I'm sure they're familiar to us and we're familiar to them. Numbers aren't something we think about, other than the number one."

Carnesecca agreed, noting, "I don't usually agree with John, but I have to echo that statement."

St. John's, featuring Olympic star and All-America swingman Chris Mullin, grabbed the No. 1 ranking away from the Hoyas in January by upsetting Georgetown 66-65. But Georgetown, now 34-2, came back with an 85-69 victory and then pasted the Redmen 92-80 in the final of the Big East conference tournament.

What can the 31-3 Redmen do differently?

"Try to stay alive," said Carnesecca, making his first Final Four appearance in 17 years of coaching. "There's very little you can do against Georgetown that's different. They make you do things differently. It will depend very much how we play..."

"We can't afford to play a good game. We have to have a very good game."

The other semifinal Saturday pits fifth-ranked Memphis State against Villanova, the surprise champion from the Southeast Region and the third Final Four entry from the Big East.

Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino indicated his Wildcats, 23-10, probably would try to slow things down to counter Memphis State's big men, 7-footer William Bedford and 6-10 All-America Keith Lee.

"If they dance slow, we'll dance slow," replied State's Dana Kirk, whose team is 31-3. "If they dance fast, we'll dance fast."

For the Tigers, Kirk said, the key will be to keep Lee and Bedford out of foul trouble.

"Keith has been in foul trouble our last 11 ballgames," the coach said. "He's in something of a shooting slump because he's a little apprehensive about being in foul trouble. That's one way of stopping Keith."

It's also a way to stop Patrick Ew-

Indiana, UCLA notch wins

Centers propel teams in NIT Wednesday

By KEN RAPPOPORT

NEW YORK (AP) — Uwe Blab and Brad Wright were the two tallest basketball players on the court in the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament, and each clearly was the most visible in more ways than one.

The centers for Indiana and UCLA, respectively, each was instrumental in helping his team win Wednesday night as Indiana defeated Tennessee 74-67 and UCLA stopped Louisville 75-66.

Blab scored 24 points and grabbed 10 rebounds and Wright had 23 points and 12 rebounds, along with four blocked shots as the tradition-rich Bruins and Hoosiers headed for a summit meeting in the NIT championship game Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

"Blab and (Steve) Alford sustained their attack," Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe said, "and we didn't play great basketball in the last five minutes."

The 7-foot-2 Blab, the "Mr. Inside" of the Indiana attack, and Alford, "Mr. Outside," teamed up for 47 points and generally controlled things in the late going when Tennessee made its patented run.

Earlier in this tournament, the NIT's "Comeback Kids" wiped out a five-point deficit in the last 19 seconds to beat Southwestern Louisiana and otherwise have made a habit of thrilling comebacks.

Wednesday night, the Volunteers just ran out of gas, thanks to the omnipresent Blab inside.

The Hoosiers had a 13-point lead in the first half and 10 at intermission before the Vols rallied behind Tony White, who scored 22 points overall. It wasn't until the last two minutes when Blab hit two key foul shots and blocked a Tennessee shot and Alford hit some crucial free throws that the game was in hand for Indiana.

"We have a tendency to let up with a lead — that happened tonight," Blab said. "But we were lucky to turn it back on."

Except for Blab and Alford, Indiana Coach Bobby Knight was not at all happy with his team's play.

"Alford and Blab are the whole offense," he said. "If they're off, we're in trouble."

He also said he "wanted to see the ball flying around the perimeter a little more. We're not doing that well yet."

UCLA was in the same boat against Louisville, losing a nine-point lead and then having to scrap at the end to beat the Cardinals for the Bruins' 11th victory in the last 12 games.

Wright contributed six of his points during an 11-2 run that triggered the Bruins into a 67-58 lead with 1:06 remaining in the game.

Then Nigel Miguel, who was second in scoring for the Bruins with 20 points, nailed it down four free throws in the final 24 seconds.

"I thought the difference in the game was Brad Wright," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "He shot the ball well, got good shots and intimidated people."

For UCLA Coach Walt Hazzard, the victory was a vindication of sorts for a poor showing last December in the Garden, when his Bruins were routed by St. John's.

"December was a Death March for us," Hazzard said. "I said after that, we'd be either dead or good. I guess we're good. When we were here to play St. John's, we were boys. Now, we're men."

The loss dropped Louisville's record to 19-17, leaving them its last chance in the Third Place Game Friday night against Tennessee to salvage a 20-victory season.

Boys track here

Seven schools from Classes 4A and 5A are to compete Saturday for the Division I team trophy in the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational boys track meet, to be held at Whiteface Stadium.

Five more schools will be competing for the Division II title, and the junior varieties of both divisions will comprise still another group, Division III.

The meet will conclude the C of C Super Sports Weekend, which began with a girls track meet March 9.

Hereford High School will be the host school in Division I, and will be joined by other high school teams from Borger, Caprock, Estacado, Monterey, Plainview and Tascosa. Making up Division II are Dimmitt, Friona, Littlefield, Nazareth and Tulla.

Field events began at 9 a.m., with preliminaries set for 9:30 a.m. Finals are to be run at 2:30 p.m.

Other sports on tap Hereford High School's baseball team, coming off its first district win Tuesday against Caprock, is scheduled to host Plainview at 4:30 p.m. Friday at the HHS diamond.

The Whitefaces will be attempting to up their District 3-5A mark to .500 with a victory. On Saturday, Hereford plays at Tascosa at 1 p.m. in another loop contest.

Currently, the Herd sports a league record of 1-2 and overall slate of 4-4.

The HHS girls track squad is to run in Amarillo Saturday.

Last weekend, the Whitefaces captured the team crown in the Canyon Reef Relays in Snyder.

NCAA women

Lady opponent causes concern

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Marianne Stanley of Old Dominion says among the "exciting matchups" at the NCAA Women's Final Four in basketball, Eun Jung Lee of Northeast Louisiana would be a good match "against all of Old Dominion."

"When you've got a point guard (Lee) that makes lob passes from halfcourt ... and when you've got some big kids that can catch those kinds of passes, it's tough," says Stanley.

"E.J. just does some great, great things," Stanley said of the 5-foot-6 junior guard from Seoul, Korea, who averages 18 points a game. "I told my kids, don't be surprised if she drops kids one into the basket."

Fifth-ranked Old Dominion, 29-3, opens the tournament Friday night against No. 2 Northeast Louisiana, 30-1, which has a 15-game winning streak.

Western Kentucky, which upset No. 1 Texas 92-90 in the Mid-east regional semifinals at Bowling Green, Ky., plays Georgia in the second game Friday night.

Coach Paul Sanderford of Western Kentucky, 28-5, was asked at a Wednesday news conference with the other coaches if his No. 14 Lady Toppers were in a "no-lose situation."

"I feel like we're the underdog. I kind of like being the underdog. The pressure's on Andy," Sanderford said of Georgia Coach Andy Landers, whose Lady Bulldogs, 28-4, are ranked No. 8.

Sanderford said his team might have a "problem with the intimidation factor," because this will be its first appearance in the Final Four. "If we can get by the first half and stay close, we've got a chance," he said.

"What do you mean 'intimidated by'?" said Landers. "You've already beat us once."

Western Kentucky, playing at home, edged Georgia 72-67 in overtime Dec. 12.

Landers referred to "Cinderella Sanderford," and said Western Kentucky will "play about seven or eight different defenses and three or four different offenses, eight or nine different players. What you don't expect is what you'll get from Western Kentucky."

Coach Linda Harper of Northeast Louisiana said her team's victory over Louisiana Tech in regionals was the "Super Bowl" for Lady Indian fans, "so now we've got to turn around and get ourselves mentally prepared for the game Friday night."

The Cleveland Browns set a National Football League record by scoring at least one touchdown in 166 consecutive games from 1957 to 1969.

"We do not match up with Old Dominion in size — we'll be the squatty bodies looking up at them — but we've done that during the year, so we'll try to do another good job," said Harper.

Stanley responded, "I don't know that anybody can outsize Chana Perry and Lisa Ingram (of Northeast Louisiana)." Perry is 6-foot-4, Ingram is 6-3, and between them they average nearly 40 points a game.

Stanley recalled that Old Dominion had opened its season at home in Norfolk, Va., by defeating Texas, and she said, "We talked about wouldn't it be fun and exciting and interesting if we could start the season with Texas and finish the season in Texas."

Sanderford was teased Wednesday about being booed in Austin, the home of the Texas Lady Longhorns, and he said, "If we play them 10 times, they win nine but we won the one that got us here."

"I'm not very popular with the fans in Austin, and I know that my team's probably not very popular with the fans in Austin, but I'm extremely popular with the coaches — especially the three sitting up here — because none of them wanted to play Texas."

PARISH REMEMBERS
 BOSTON (AP) — Although Robert Parish and his Boston Celtic teammates defeated Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the Los Angeles Lakers for the 1983-84 NBA title, Parish still remembers his first encounter with Kareem.
 "It was a very long evening," Parish said. "I was a rookie with Golden State and I had to take on Abdul-Jabbar. All he did against me was to score 38 points, drag down 22 rebounds, and make 10 assists. Needless to say, the Lakers won the game."

Ways with Wine

by David Hutchins

SOAVE

Perhaps the best known white wine of Italy, and certainly one of the best known in the world, is Soave. It is pleasant and dry and comes from the Veneto region in the northeastern part of the country. Soave sometimes displays the same greenish-straw glint evident in Chablis. In fact, the two wines are often compared. The wine has an almost almond-like flavor and is usually quite dry. It should never be laid down for bottle-aging and is best served well-chilled. Soave may not stand up well in direct comparisons to the best white wines of France and Germany. It has, however, a lighthearted charm that is a perfect accompaniment to a seafood dinner.

As you begin to plan your Easter dinner, the STORE would like to remind you that a bottle of wine will add a touch of conviviality to your gathering. We have a fine selection of white as well as red wines. Feel free to ask us any questions you have as to how and when to serve the different wines, etc. Everyone is very knowledgeable here at 400 N. 25 Mile and anxious to share their love of wines with you. Call us at 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Happy Easter to you and yours! For a superb white wine, try Puligny Montrachet.

Wartes, Cornelius are named to head coaching positions

Two former Hereford men — Mike Wartes and Alan Cornelius—were named Wednesday to the top coaching positions at Boswell and Denver City high schools.

Wartes resigned at Denver City and accepted the job as athletic director and head football coach at Boswell High School, a Class 4A school in the Eagle Mountain-Saginaw Independent School District northwest of Fort Worth.

Cornelius, an assistant under Wartes at Denver City, was elevated to the head job at the Class 3A school. Both were standout athletes at Hereford High. Wartes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wartes, and Cornelius is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cornelius, both of Hereford.

Wartes has been in the coaching profession 10 years—spending three years as an assistant at Borger and three years as head coach at Muleshoe before taking the top job at Denver City. Cornelius was with Wartes at Muleshoe and moved with him to Denver City.

The Mustangs at Denver City were 25-16-1 during the past seasons and won a district championship in 1983. The Mustangs were 9-2-0 in 1982, losing in the bi-district round of the playoffs to Post, and 7-4-0 in 1983, losing in bi-district to Childress.

Denver City was 3-6-1 last season, the first losing season under Wartes, and finished fifth in District 3-3A with a 3-4 record. At Boswell High School, Wartes will replace Fred West, who guided the Pioneers to a 3-6-1 season in 1984. Boswell is in District 3-4A. Wartes won the job over 80 candidates.

Wartes was a standout quarterback at Hereford High, where he graduated in 1971. He went on to play college football at West Texas State University. Wartes' contract had already been extended for another year at Denver City before he decided to accept the Boswell job.

Cornelius was also a standout Whiteface athlete and is a Hereford native. He graduated from high school here in 1973 and attended Sul-

Ross University. He gained coaching experience at a junior college in Kansas before joining Wartes in Muleshoe.

"I'm real excited about the situation," Cornelius said Wednesday night after being named to the post. "We have a good coaching staff here and I think most of them will be staying. It's an awful good situation to get for your first head job."

Denver City did not open up the post to outside applications, according to Supt. Joe E. Robinson. The superintendent said "Coach Wartes did a fine job and we're sorry to see him go, but we're equally confident with Coach Cornelius and his abilities."

Two other former Hereford men are on the coaching staff at Denver City. Gary Goodin is the junior high coordinator and Mike Mayberry is the basketball coach. Both were star athletes at Hereford High. Goodin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Goodin of Hereford.

saying a student taking three required courses and three electives, can fail three of his courses," responded Sen. Kent Caperton, D-College Station.

"You are setting lower standards than you should," said Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville. "You could flunk 23 course at six-week intervals and still participate in athletics. That sends out a terrible message to students of this state."

"My bill provides an incentive to make up their grades," Sarpalius argued.

"I think the State Board of Education needs greater flexibility in setting the grading period," said Caperton. "Why not make it three weeks suspension?"

Parker said he, joined by Caperton, would offer amendments Monday for the three-week period, plus other changes that would recognize efforts of students who take advanced courses where it is harder to make top grades.

"I have talked with the governor and I feel he would not quibble with three weeks, as long as we maintain the no-pass, no-play standard," Parker said later.

Racquetball clinics currently are offered at Hereford and Vicinity YMCA beginning last Thursday at 7 p.m.

Classes are conducted by Dan Odell from 7-9 p.m. The clinics concern basic skills and techniques as well as rules and strategies.

Participants must be at least of junior high school age.

Fee is $5 for Y members and $10 for non-Y members, and must be received the Wednesday before the clinic.

for four years," Carnesecca said of Wennington. "(Ewing) is one of the greatest. The last time there was a guy like that, you're talking about (Wilt) Chamberlain, (Bill) Russell or (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar, in a different sense.

"Patrick is one of the great pivots men to come out of collegiate basketball. It's a credit to my kid to play against him."

However, Carnesecca and Thompson agreed that team play, not individual matchups, will be the key.

Thompson, asked if his team would try a box-and-one defense to stop Mullin's offensive threat, would only laugh.

"I plan on playing myself if it would help me to win."

Committee considers changes

By TRUDY TYNAN Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The men who write the rules for college basketball are considering putting in a 45 second shot clock, cutting off the bottom of the backboard and various plans to end the parade to the foul line at the end of games.

The shot clock is the surest bet, according to Dr. Edward Steitz, athletic director at Springfield College, who has been the NCAA's national editor and interpreter for basketball rules since 1966.

"The 45-second clock has gotten very strong support from the 19 conferences that experimented with it this season and in our annual poll. It looks like its time has come," Steitz said before leaving for the Rules Committee's meetings in Lexington, Ky., this week.

He said 62 percent of the 700 college coaches and 87 percent of the 660 college referees who answered his annual poll favored using a 45-second clock. Statistics on shots taken and made show that it has had little effect on the flow of the game, except to prevent an outright stall.

If adopted, the shot clock would be put into effect for all NCAA games at all levels, including the championship tournament, he said.

Besides the clock, Steitz said the "primary consideration" of the Rules Committee is finding a way to prevent the team that's behind from fouling in hopes of getting another possession in the closing minutes of the game.

A proposal to change the college rule to give the team fouled the option of either taking the free throws or getting the ball out of bounds received the backing of 44 percent of the coaches and 45 percent of the referees polled, he said.

"Personally, I don't think it is enough," he said.

"We've got to make the penalty so severe coaches won't consider ordering their players to commit a foul," he added.

Another proposed change that may be less noticeable to fans than to team doctors is a plan to cut the bottom six to eight inches off the rectangular backboards.

The change, which has also attracted the interest of the professional leagues, is aimed at protecting today's high-leaping players from smashing their heads or hands on the lower part of the rectangular backboard.

Bat Masterson, the legendary gun-fighter, also worked as a referee in boxing and as a sports editor in New York.

Purdue's first football team in 1887 was coached by Albert Berg, a deaf mute.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to introduce a new service offering called ESSX-400 and to limit all rate plans for Centrex services to existing customers.

Rate plans for all Centrex services, as provided in this tariff, are applicable only to customers with service as of the effective date of this tariff. Centrex customers will be able to expand existing systems and enhancements will continue to be provided. The net effect of this tariff would be no change in total billing for Centrex customers.

The Commission has assigned this matter to Docket 6146. A prehearing to discuss the proposed change is scheduled at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, April 17, 1985, in the Commission offices at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard in Austin, Texas.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia a los usuarios que ha registrado una tarifa ante la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, con el fin de introducir un nuevo servicio denominado ESSX-400 y de limitar todo plan tarifario para servicios Centrex a los usuarios actuales.

Los planes tarifarios para todos los servicios Centrex, según dispone dicha tarifa, corresponden solamente para los usuarios que tengan servicio a partir de la fecha de vigencia de dicha tarifa. Los usuarios de Centrex podrán expandir sus sistemas actuales, y se seguirán proporcionando mejoras. El efecto real de esta tarifa no constituiría ningún cambio en la facturación total de los usuarios de Centrex.

La Comisión ha registrado este asunto bajo el Docket 6146. A fin de discutir el cambio propuesto, se realizará una preaudiencia el miércoles 17 de abril de 1985, a las 9:30 de la mañana, en las oficinas de la Comisión, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, en Austin, Texas.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

Extension Council discusses future meetings, conventions

Extension Homemakers Council met Monday in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library. Eight clubs were represented, and six of the clubs had 100 percent attendance. All elected officers were present.

Louise Walker, county extension agent, gave her report on the Adult Sitters Clinic. Seventeen were enrolled and each one received 1.2 continuing education credits from Amarillo College for the two-day sessions. Plans are underway for another such clinic next year.

Thirty-seven individuals attended the "Solar Energy Awareness" program on March 19. Walker then announced upcoming meetings.

On April 1 and 15, a home gardening short course will be given at the Community Center by Dr. Robert Berry and Carl Patrick of the extension service at the first meeting. The second meeting, April 15, will be led by Rolan Roberts, a vegetable specialist from the extension service.

Mary Blinderman of SPS will present a program, "Cooking Light-Eating Light," on April 23 at the Reddy Room at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Mary Stark of Energas will present a spring program in the Flame Room April 30 at 2 and 7 p.m.

On April 22, the council will meet for a luncheon to hear the reports of the delegates to the district meeting in Canyon.

Susan Raney, county extension agent, reported that there are over 18 demonstrations this year which is over a 100 percent increase from last year. New methods of record book preparation were given last weekend at a record book training. 4-H leaders will be receiving training early in April.

Raney asked for volunteers to help judge the crafts division at the County Fashion Show which is set for June 1. A Fashion Image improvement seminar will be held April 20 in the Heritage room of the library from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The seminar, designed for youth ages 8-19, is open to the public.

On April 25 at 2 p.m., Raney will present a "Fiber in the Diet" program to the senior citizens at the new center.

Following the council meeting, Mary Carter, TEHA chairman, conducted the election of delegates to the district meeting in Canyon April 18. Those elected as delegates are Mary Carter, Gayle Carter and Jewell Hargrave. Alternates will be Brenda Campbell, Esther Thuet and Tonie Vaughn.

Reservations for the meeting must be made by Monday with Carol Odom. The reservations close April 4 in Canyon.

Police report

Students tried to terrorize troublemakers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A coterie of high school students calling itself the "Legion of Doom" may be behind a campaign of violence designed to thwart school troublemakers, authorities say.

The Paschal High School group includes top students and athletes who say they're discouraged with the inability of school administration and police to control the criminal element, Fort Worth detective Ken Henry said.

He says the students — who have been linked to bombings, shootings, arson, vandalism and criminal mischief and assaults — may have been inspired by publicity about subway vigilante groups in New York.

They were questioned Wednesday by authorities and the case may go to the grand jury next week, police spokesman Doug Clarke said.

"Our current thinking is that because of the large number of offenses and length of time they've covered, we're going to present it to the grand jury and let them decide," Clarke said. "The core group is seven and there are possibly as many as 10. The majority of offenses are felonies."

Henry described the group as honor students, some with perfect 4.0 grade-point averages — "kids with good intentions who went outside the law."

Leukemia society awards grants

The Leukemia Society of America has awarded 110 new research grants in annual commitments totalling over $2.2 million, according to Lee Roy Jordan, chairman of the Dallas/Fort Worth chapter.

The new grants to support scientific investigations into finding the causes and eventual cures for leukemia and related diseases include 15 five-year Scholar awards, each totalling $135,000; 40 two-year Special Fellow grants for $41,000; and 55 two-year Fellow grants, each for $34,000. A total of 280 applications from investigators working at institutions around the world were submitted for the consideration of the Society's Grant Review Subcommittee.

The Society-sponsored investigators will be working in the areas of genetics, immunology, virology, chemotherapy and related biomedical science fields.

Since its establishment in 1949, the Leukemia Society of America has allocated over $32 million to research.

Defending yourself depends on circumstances, law

By ROBERT BARR Associated Press Writer

A "Lone Ranger" in Los Angeles broke up a robbery and killed an armed thug. A plumber in Chicago, confronted by youths with a knife and a gun, drew his own gun. A New Yorker shot four people on a subway train.

Each claims he acted in self-defense. It doesn't always hold up.

If you started the fight, if you're where you have no right to be, if you could back away, or if you could protect yourself with less than deadly force — then your right to shoot someone else may depend on what state you live in.

Ultimately, it may depend on the sympathies of a jury.

In general, according to Frederic and Joan Baum in their book "Law of Self-Defense," a person claiming to act in self-defense:

— Must not have started the fight or continued it after the attacker was ready to give up.

— Must honestly believe that he or she is in imminent danger of death, serious injury or some serious crime such as rape or arson, and must honestly believe that nothing less than deadly force is sufficient.

— Must have a reasonable basis for that belief.

In some states, you must retreat as far as you safely can before firing.

In short, it can get very complicated. The Baums, however, also note this observation in a Supreme Court opinion by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Detached reflection cannot be demanded in the presence of an uplifted knife."

Juries in New York state are often instructed to consider what they would have done if they had been the defendant.

In the case of Bernhard Goetz, New York's "subway gunman" who was indicted Wednesday on four counts of attempted murder, a crucial question is whether he reasonably believed four youths were about to attack him.

Three other men who claimed self-defense gained national attention at about the same time as the Goetz case, but quickly dropped from the headlines.

— Cornell Smith, 69, of Los Angeles, was sitting in his truck at Tam's hamburger stand on Dec. 9 when he saw two men robbing a customer. Smith grabbed his pistol and yelled, "Don't do it," said LAPD Detective Tony Sanchez. "One of the men turned and it looked like he was going to shoot, so Smith shot him."

Smith disappeared "like the Lone Ranger," police said, but he surrendered several days later. He was not charged.

"He was stopping a robbery," said Deputy District Attorney Robert Lord.

In California that justified using deadly force, Lord said, because robbery is "an inherently dangerous felony."

— Harold Brown, 68, was toting his groceries on a Chicago street on Jan. 17 when he was confronted by two youths. One showed him a knife, the other put a gun in his ear. Brown pulled his own gun and fatally wounded 18-year-old Detrick Wallace.

"I didn't have any choice," Brown said after turning himself in three days after the incident. The police agreed.

— Thomas Korshak, 81, and his wife were confronted by a robber in an elevator in Beverly Hills on New Year's Eve. The robber kept his hand in a jacket pocket, as if he had a gun. Korshak pulled a .38-caliber revolver and shot the man three times. The robber did not have a gun, but that made no difference. Korshak was only charged with a misdemeanor for carrying a loaded firearm in public and was placed on probation.

A New Jersey case illustrates that shooting back is only a temporary right.

Manuel Marin was charged with two felony counts of aggravated assault for shooting at two burglars on Dec. 8, 1981. He found the burglars in his kitchen, and they ran as Marin fired one shot. Marin moved to a window and fired two more rounds as the screaming burglars ran for their car.

"I can appreciate the public's reaction: 'My home is my castle and I can do what I want,'" county Prosecutor Kenneth Pagliughi said in defending the grand jury indictment.

Authorities said, however, that Marin had no right to fire the last two shots, when the burglars represented no further threat to him or his home.

Marin was placed in a special program for first offenders, in which he admitted no guilt and did not go to trial.

The limits of self-defense became an issue in Nebraska in 1969, with the enactment of a sweeping law which permitted residents to use any degree of force to protect themselves, their family and their property. Critics called it the "shoot your neighbor" law.

In January 1971, the Nebraska Supreme Court invalidated the law, saying it surrendered the state's power of punishment to anyone who happened to have a weapon.

"The right to kill another exists only in extremity, where no other practicable means to avoid the threatened harm is apparent to the person resorting to it," the court ruled. "If there is no real or apparent necessity for the killing, the defense fails."

In the case which brought the decision, a prostitute had claimed she shot a man to defend herself from rape.

Loss of farmers, children could lead to social tragedy

LUBBOCK — The impact of current farm economic problems has been well documented, but little attention has been directed at a less tangible loss of human capital.

A Texas Tech University agricultural economist believes the loss of farmers and the potential loss of their children to farming may be a social tragedy.

"Some people think if farmers lose their farms, that maybe there were too many farmers anyway and that when the economy gets better those farmers will go back to farming," Gary Condra, visiting professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics, said. "But that's not true. The farmers who are losing their farms today will never return to the farm because there have been too many years of suffering and pain watching that farm being taken away by policies and decisions beyond their control."

Condra believes that children who once would have returned to the farm after school are not doing so today.

"I think there are lots of farmers who are telling their children to go into another field all together or at least to go into some form of ag-related industry and not farming," Condra said.

Condra pointed to figures for medium size commercial farms from the 1978 and 1982 Censuses of Agriculture showing a decrease in farmers under the age of 25 and from ages 35 to 64.

The censuses show an 18.4 percent increase in farmers over age 65.

"Our farmers are getting older and we aren't replacing them with younger men and women," he said. The censuses show an 8.2 percent increase in the number of farmers between the ages 25 and 34, but Condra said he believes that later numbers will show a decrease in that age group also.

"These are the farmers who returned to the farm in the boom period of the 1970s and now find themselves most heavily in debt," he said.

Farmers over age 65 tend to have the least debt and the most equity in their farms because they have reached a point where more of their land is paid for and their living expenses are not as great as farmers with children still living at home.

Condra said the farmers between the ages of 35 and 64 are men and women who may not be trained for other kinds of work. That factor can produce problems when they try to enter the urban work force, he said.

"These are the farmers that provide the main competition factor in agriculture. They produce 38 percent of all the food and fiber in the U.S.," he said.

Condra compared the aging of the farmer to the aging of farm equipment. He said the average age of farm equipment today is older than it has ever been in the past.

"It's obvious to most people that as equipment gets older, repair costs go up, breakdowns are more frequent and production can go down. As our farmers get older the same thing is happening. Basically we are wearing out the human part of our farm machine," he said.

Ranchers may pay higher fees for land

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fees charged ranchers for running cattle on public lands could increase two to three times on average, and go up sixfold in some areas, under different systems for calculating the levies, according to a government report.

In a report to Congress, the Interior and Agriculture departments made no recommendations for adopting a new system. But the two agencies are required to do so by year's end.

Conservationists have long argued that current fees are far below market value and encourage damage to the land by overgrazing. The various participants in the 88-year-old fight over grazing fees already are staking out their familiar positions.

Ron Michieli of the National Cattlemen's Association wants to keep the current formula, which ties the fee to both the costs of production and the price of beef on the hoof.

"If beef prices go up, you'll see a considerable increase in the (current) fee...and cattlemen will willingly pay it," he said Monday.

Users of public land, he said, face extra costs not borne by those who rent private land, such as costs associated with destruction of fences and watering facilities by hunters and recreational vehicles.

If fees are sharply increased, "The economic position of producers will be in serious jeopardy," and "We are set on the (current) formula."

Richard Rice, an economist with the Wilderness Society and a proponent of higher fees, thinks some ranchers might well go out of business, "the users of marginal land that shouldn't be there anyway."

Rice said a system of auctioning permits "would be great," but "I don't think a bidding system is practical."

The current fee is $1.35 per

"animal unit month", for cattle, a cow and her calf using the range for a month. The fee was $1.93 its first year, 1979, and peaked at $2.41 in 1980.

Here are the bases for the five proposals:

-Market values, as shown by surveys of private transactions in six different regions: This would yield $4.82 to $8.81 for yearling cattle. The lowest 1983 fee under this formula, $4.63, would have brought the government $80.4 million instead of the $24.3 million brought in under the actual $1.40 charged in 1983.

-Cattle prices alone, in such a way that the government would get 20 percent of the average price of a calf in the previous five years: This would make the 1985 fee average $4.77. Some states base their fees for state land on a percentage of prices.

-An update of the current formula: This would use the appraisal values, but tie them to beef prices and costs. The fee would range from $4.40 to $8.04 this year.

-Costs of production: This would be similar, but would subtract what cattle ranchers say are extra costs for using public lands from the appraisal value used in the proposed update of the current formula. The fee would range from $2.89 to $6.50 this year.

-Auctions of permits: NO estimate of the fee was given.

Wool production still declining

By DON KENDALL, Ap Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - An annual report by the Agriculture Department shows that U.S. wool production in 1984 declined for the second year in a row to the lowest level since government record began in 1909. The department's Crop Reporting Board said Monday that last year's production of shorn wool dropped 10 percent to 92.9 million pounds from 102.9 million in 1983, the previous low mark.

During 1984, the number of sheep and lambs shorn totaled 12 million head, a decline of 7 percent from 1983. Those also were the fewest shorn since USDA began keeping wool records in 1909. The previous low mark was 12.7 million head in 1978.

The average weight of a single fleece was 7.74 pounds, down 0.26 of a pound from 1983, the report said.

Wool prices average 79.5 cents per pound last year, up from an average of 61.2 cents in 1983. That pushed the total value of 1984 shorn wool to $73.9 million, up from $63 million the previous year.

According to USDA records, wool production declined generally for many years, hitting a low of 103 million pounds in 1978. But improved markets helped boost output each year through 1981, when it rose to 109.8 million pounds.

Wool production dropped to 106.1 million pounds in 1982, the start of the current slide.

A further drop in wool production is shaping up this year. In a report issued on Jan. 29, the USDA said the nation's inventory of sheep and lambs as of Jan. 1 totaled 10.4 million head, down 9 percent from a year earlier. That was the smallest U.S. flock of sheep lambs since those records began more than a century ago.

The Jan. 1 count showed a decline in breeding stock, which provides most of the wool shorn each year. For example, the number of breeding ewes year old and older were down 8 percent from a year earlier.

In 1867, when USDA began counting sheep, the U.S. flock totaled about 46.3 million head. The industry peaked at 56.2 million head in 1942, when the nation was demanding more meat and wool to help with the war effort. As recently as 1960, there were more than 33 million sheep and lambs.

But the trend has been down since the early 1960s, except for the several recent years when markets improved and boosted inventories.

The decline has been due to a number of reasons, including wide variations in the wool market, predators in the West that take a toll of flocks, and shifts to other livestock enterprises.

Farm Briefs

LUBBOCK — Gary D. Condra, visiting professor in the Texas Tech University Department of Agricultural Economics, has been elected president of the Texas Chapter of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers and state director of the Texas Society of Professional Land Managers and Appraisers.

Condra has been a member of both organizations since 1973. He teaches farm and ranch appraisal, resource economics and land economics. He has a special research interest in costs associated with wind erosion.

Condra earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Tech and a doctoral degree from Texas A&M University.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has named nine members and eight alternates to the 18-member American Egg Board for two-year terms which will expire on Dec. 31, 1986.

The board administers a national research and promotion program financed by an assessment of five cents one each 30 dozen eggs marketed by all non-exempt commercial egg producers.

Congress authorized the program in the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act of 1974. The department's Agricultural Marketing Service reviews the program's budget, plans and projects to assure it is in line with the law and public interest.

CHICAGO — Thomas A. Riley has been named general sales manager of the Swift Independent Packing Company sales and distribution network in a realignment of sales and marketing functions at the Chicago-based meat packer.

In the newly created position, he will report to William J. Zautcke, recently named senior vice president, sales and marketing development to oversee the realignment.

Maine is the only state in the union that borders on only one other state: New Hampshire.

Tractor hobby considered good to keep family pulling together

By PAUL ROWAN Fort Worth Star-Telegram
SAGINAW, Texas (AP) - Last July 4, Tracy Troxell hit a streak of good luck. A 300-pound man fell on his father's leg and broke it. It isn't that Tracy Troxell enjoys the misfortunes of his father, Earl Troxell. It's just that what he really likes is racing a souped-up, polished chrome, powerful-pulling tractor, and the accident put him in the driver's seat. Until Earl Troxell busted a leg, Tracy Troxell shared the driving with his father. The younger Troxell said his dad and another tractor-puller got together that fateful day. "They were wrestling around," he said. "He weighed about 300 pounds. He tripped and fell on him and broke his ankle all to pieces. "I've got to drive since then. I drove before that, but not full time. We had to switch out. We'll start switching back out, now that he can start driving again."

know about that. She said no one tells her exactly what the hobby costs, but "what I know makes me stay awake at night. "It's a novelty, just an expensive novelty," Joan Troxell said. "It is very expensive. "You just have to give up things, like money and groceries." But the hobby has benefits, she said. She knows where her son and daughter, Tarina, are on pulling weekends. "There are a lot of worse places to be on the weekend than a tractor pull," she said. "She (Tarina) just loves it" - especially as a place to meet the opposite sex, said Joan Troxell. "We have a little problem with that. "He (Tracy) wants to be a professional tractor puller. We keep telling him we're poor people."

started driving last May in Longview and has taken top money at one pull, in De Leon. "I believe it was $250 and a box of peanuts," he said. "I don't hardly ever get out of Texas. Texas is getting better prize money this year ... a whole lot better than it used to be." The Troxells became interested in tractor pulls when Tracy was about 10 years old. "We started going in '76 or '77. This is the pull we always watched, right at the Tarrant County Convention Center. "I believe my dad and uncle started in '81. We didn't know anything about this stuff. We just bought a tractor up in Oklahoma. We won at Fort Worth, my dad."

causes some comment, he said. "You go down the road, and that's all those truck drivers say: 'I bet you could plow a field with that,' or 'What a garden tractor.'" The Troxell tractor is entered in the 7,200-pound class. Weights are added - or subtracted - to make each tractor in the class conform. Moving the weights is one of the hardest jobs in tractor pulling, Troxell said. During competition, pullers may modify their machines - for instance, by changing the rear end to get a better gear ratio. Troxell said he and his father do that type of job, but Janke does the major engine work. Getting ready for competition requires a checklist. "I usually change oil, check filters, run the valves, get all my alcohol (fuel) and weights together," Troxell said. "It's fun, a lot of fun - just one big, expensive hobby. You need a good sponsor, and that's something we ain't got."

Tracy Troxell said it's not impossible to be a professional puller. The Troxells are in the trailer manufacturing business. "I wish this was my business," he said. "There are a few of them that are doing it. Sold their farms and went to doing this. "This old tractor pulling, it's getting bigger and bigger every year." Still, he admitted the money isn't too good. He

Gladewater couple marks 50 years at same gas station

By MIKE ELSWICK Longview Journal
GLADEWATER, Texas (AP) - When Herbert and Nona Money opened their service station on U.S. 80 in Gladewater 50 years ago, they purchased their gas from a wholesaler in 5- and 10-gallon milk cans. In those early years of business, they sold gas for as little as 10-cents a gallon. But one of the biggest changes the couple has noted in the five decades since opening their white frame station has been in the attitude of customers. "We used to be expected to sweep out the floor boards, raise the hood and check everything," said Money. "Now if we start to raise the hood they just fuss at you so we don't even bother unless we're asked to." Although Money is 72 and has been pumping gas and servicing customers on U.S. 80 for half a century he said he has no plans to retire. "When I die, that's when I'll retire," Money said. "I don't plan to retire any time soon, I'm going to try it a few more years." In all the years of operation Money's station has been a strictly family operation. Money, his wife, and for several years until they grew up and left home, their two children. "It's always been just me and my wife. We've never hired help," Money said. "If we can't take care of all the business, we just let them drive off." But for those customers who do get waited on, and that in actuality is most of them, he said, they still get old-fashioned, courteous service. "We operate one of the few stations around that aren't self service," he said. He has no plans to change that aspect of the business either. After all, Money said, that is what helps make it all worthwhile. "I like to talk to people, most of them are my friends," Money said. "I'd retire before I'd go to self-service." Even before getting into the service station business Money had become familiar with the area within view of the station. In his younger days he chopped cotton in a field across the highway from his station. As he entered adulthood Money joined the hub of activity in the East Texas Oil Fields working as a roustabout. "We used to work from daylight to dark for $4 a day," he said. "That was good money back in those days." But it was an injury that forced him out of the oil field work and into the service station business. Money said he and a brother originally went into the business together, but his brother got out after two or three months. The business has been good to the couple overall, they said. "Business goes up and down," Money said. While he used to keep the station open seven days a week for 18 hours a day he has cutback in recent years. Now the station is open only six days a week from about 6:30 a.m. until closing late in the afternoon, usually about 5:30 or 6 p.m. Back before Interstate 20 went in a few miles south of Gladewater and a loop was built around town the Money's said they had a lot of truck traffic. But, in spite of the change in the makeup of their customers over the years business has been basically healthy. Gladewater is growing east in the direction of their station and traffic is still plenty heavy, they said. But they have also had some good longtime customers. Money said several customers and their families have been with them for many of their 50 years in business.

Judge's decision allowing abortion

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A district judge's decision clearing the way for a 19-year-old woman to have an abortion — despite her estranged husband's objection — proved a two-edged sword on the controversial issue, a priest says.

Sherrill Smith, director of pro-life activities for the archdiocese of San Antonio, said he was not surprised at Judge Peter Michael Curry's decision Wednesday.

After a three-hour hearing, Curry dissolved a restraining order and refused to bar Kim Hayes from having an abortion.

Her estranged husband Keith Hayes, 28, had won a restraining order last week halting the termination of the pregnancy until Wednesday's hearing.

"The law is on the other side — the woman has a right to an abortion and the husband has no standing," Smith said.

But the priest said he was encouraged by the hearing because "we got a lot exposed."

Smith was referring to testimony from pediatrician Dr. Ricardo Riojas, who described in some detail the abortion process and said the unborn child suffers pain in the procedure.

Mrs. Hayes had not had an abortion by late Wednesday, her attorney Ramiro Estrada Jr. said. Estrada said he thought the procedure likely would be performed today.

Curry, in making his ruling, said, "I don't want to be put in the role of murderer of a child. But I'm a believer in the constitution of the United States."

"Accordingly, I can't see how I have the right to prevent this lady from having an abortion. I don't see how Mr. Hayes has that choice," he said.

Mrs. Hayes testified she married Hayes last October and they separated in January. She discovered she was pregnant in late February.

"His morals may not be the same as mine but that doesn't give him the right to dictate to me what I'm going to do," she said.

Mrs. Hayes admitted she had tried to have an abortion Tuesday, but the procedure was halted twice because doctors were given copies of the restraining order.

Hayes testified he did not "believe in killing an innocent baby. It's my child as well as hers. I helped create it."

"The baby should not be killed because she wants to get even. I tried to reason with her that the killing of our baby was plain outright murder," Hayes said.

Under cross examination, Hayes admitted he had been convicted of rape in 1979. He said the case involved an ex-wife he was living with at the time.

Court records show he is still on probation for the crime.

Hayes' attorney Dave Rogers said allowing the abortion would be a violation of Texas' family code, which outlaws family violence.

Rogers said the court did not have to go so far as the constitutional issue of whether the woman has the right to terminate her pregnancy without the consent of the father.

American Civil Liberties Union attorney Gerry Goldstein, who represented Mrs. Hayes, said the Supreme Court had tossed out a Missouri law requiring the husband's consent.

"The balance is in the wife's favor," he said.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

WICHITA FALLS, Texas — Michael Victor Briock is one of those people you don't easily forget.

After all, how many people have the word "Love" tattooed on each eyelid? And how often have you seen a tattoo of a half-man, half-goat on someone's back?

Yet despite these easily recognizable marks, Briock has avoided law enforcement officers in two states who want him on warrants charging him with theft and forgery.

Briock, 44, came to the attention of Wichita Falls police detectives in May, 1984.

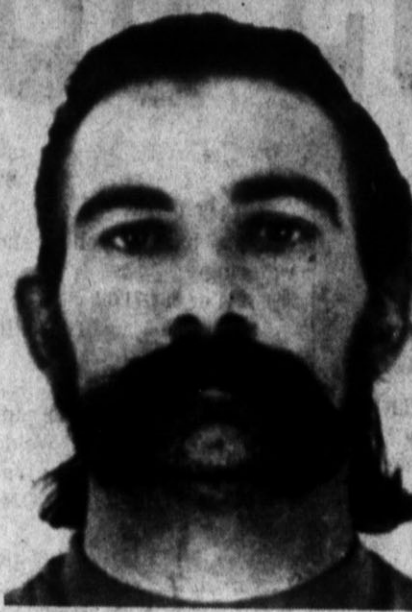

According to police reports, Briock had assumed the name of Vernon Rippy and was working at a business in Wichita Falls. He is charged with stealing several checks from the business, making them out in the name Vernon Rippy, forging the business owner's name and then cashing them. Detectives discovered that the real Vernon Rippy was not involved in the forgery.

Briock has been charged with Theft over $750 and Forgery by the Wichita Falls Police Department. He is also wanted in Stanton, Mercer County, North Dakota for Larceny.

Briock is a white male, 5-8, 170 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. He usually wears a moustache and beard. He has at least 30 tattoos over his body.

Detectives say he might be driving a 1973 silver Lincoln Continental with Texas license plates XRU-638. The car is listed as stolen.

Detective Jim Bernethy of the Wichita Falls Police Department says Briock "has contacts all over the country."

"He also is known to date and marry topless dancers and works in a tree trimming and lawn business," Detective Bernethy said.

Investigators believe Briock might frequent the San Antonio area.

This week Briock has made the Texas Most Wanted list. A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to his capture.

Anyone with information about Briock is asked to call Texas Crime Stoppers toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program.

In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative effort between Texas Crime Stoppers and the Department of Public Safety.

Bullock wants to 'count the hogs'

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock, after having a biscuit-and-gravy breakfast with a University of Texas lobbyist, gave UT officials a giant piggy bank for the "bowl of gravy" in local fees he says they collect.

"I didn't want to take everything out of the trough, Gerald. I just wanted to be able to count the hogs," Bullock told UT lobbyist Gerald Hill on Wednesday.

"I'm glad I lost my voice," Hill responded faintly, saying his voice gave out after lengthy testimony before a legislative hearing.

The jesting breakfast was organized by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and drew state senators and state officials. Hill, ladle in hand, dished out grits to accompany the biscuits and gravy.

Last week, Bullock said state universities collect $3.4 billion in various "local fees" which the schools spend as they wish.

The money — from sports events, laboratory fees, library fines, dormitory rent and other sources — nearly equals the $3.8 billion the Legislature appropriated for higher education. Bullock said lawmakers apparently aren't getting a full accounting of it.

"These schools have their noses in a $3 billion bowl of gravy which is in their local bank accounts and which the Legislature never sees," he charged.

At Wednesday's breakfast, Bullock was kidded about his criticism and joked in return about the reaction of university officials statewide.

Plate in hand, state Treasurer Ann Richards said, "Hey Bullock, do I have to put my nose in it?"

Bullock quipped that the breakfast was "the first of 48 we intend to have — one for each college."

Then to Hill, he said, "The ladle you gave me, I'm most appreciative for. I don't know of anybody who's got a bigger one than the University of Texas."

He presented Hill with two piggy banks: a tiny one with the inscription "For Tax Dollars Only" and a much larger one inscribed, "To Gerald and the Good Old Boys at the System — This is 'Wavy Gravy' for your fund money."

Noting a clinking sound inside the two-foot-long pig, Hill said, "I think it's full of slugs."

The sleeping pill industry will go broke if they ever bottle whatever it is that causes parishioners to doze off when the collection plate is passed.
