

Tornadoes Kill 10 Texans; Paris Smashed

Welcome Back

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce held a reception Friday afternoon for Dick Haxel (center) and his wife Margaret (at his right) to welcome the couple back to Hereford. Haxel has taken over the former Sue Ann manufacturing plant and it is now known as Haxel Manufacturing, Inc. The Hax-

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Wailing sirens gave only momentary warning of the swirling menace that knifed through this northeast Texas city, killing eight people, injuring more than 200 and blowing away lifetimes full of dreams.

The Texas twister dropped out of a boiling black sky late Friday afternoon and ripped a swath 200 to 1,200 yards wide and three miles long through the heart of this city's mostly residential northside.

The tornado was one of several that struck Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas Friday. A Dodd City woman died of injuries she suffered when a twister hit that town and a Blossom man died from a heart attack that authorities attributed to a tornado, raising the Texas death toll to 10.

Paris residents emerged at daybreak to begin the tedious process of digging out their possessions from debris that used to be their homes.

Robert Lansford, disaster relief coordinator for Texas Gov. Bill Clements, was en route to the area by plane this morning to survey damage.

Jon Ford, a spokesman for Clements, said the governor would not fly to the area today because Paris "needs experts."

"Everything that can be done for the people of Paris will be done as quickly as possible," he added.

An apartment complex housing 2,000 people was splintered by the force of the Paris tornado that also destroyed more than 100 homes, mobile homes and businesses.

National Guard troops and police from two states patrolled the debris-littered streets guarding against looters while teams of volunteers and paramedics combed the rubble in a search for addition dead or injured.

The tornado — or possibly others spawned by the killer storm — hit Dodd City, Reno, Blossom, Bagwell, Clarksville and DeKalb, towns that stretch from 40 miles west to 30 miles east of Paris along U.S. highway 82.

"It was a dark cloud boiling over from the north," said Margaret Seiterman, who had to be dug out from under the collapsed wall of the Lakeway Baptist Church.

"I ran to get in the drainage ditch next to my house, but I was afraid my house would blow over me. Then I ran over against the wall of the church, but the storm sucked the wall of the church right on over me. I really don't know

History Book Sales Deadline May 1

A sales deadline for the Deaf Smith County history book, "The Land and Its People," has been set for May 1, the project committee chairman Troyce Hanna has announced.

Orders for the book, which will be the most complete history ever compiled of the county and its people, must be placed before material goes to the publisher, Ms. Hanna said, since only the number of books ordered will be printed.

Many inquiries have been received about the final date for ordering books, Mrs. Hanna said, but the time could not be fixed until it was certain when stories would be ready for the publisher.

All the material is now in the project office and processing by the committee is to be finished by the end of this month. The book will contain general history of the county since its formation in 1876, a history of each community, of business firms, organizations and more than 1,200 families, as well as tributes to pioneers and outstanding residents.

With the deadline announced, a telephone committee will begin this week to contact as many county residents as possible and remind them that books should be ordered now. Volunteers who will work on this committee will meet at 10 a.m. Monday at the E.B. Black Historical House, for coffee and an orientation session conducted by representatives of the publishing firm. Other than those already listed on this committee, anyone who is interested in helping is invited to the session.

Orders for the book may be mailed to Project County History, P.O. Drawer 2297, or brought to the project office in the E.B. Black House, which is open from 1 to 5 p.m. weekdays. Price of the book is $36.75 including tax, and if the book is to be mailed $2.75 is added for postage and handling.

High Winds Buffet Area

"It was nasty" fighting a hay fire Friday, according to Fire Marshall Jay Spain.

Winds with gusts up to 82 mph made the battle at Southwest Feed Yards nearly impossible. The western winds fed the blaze and carried smoke almost parallel to the ground. The smoke and blowing dust in the rural area decreased visibility to about a fourth of a mile.

The firemen hosed down the hay for over three hours.

In town, one mobile home, at 102 Alamon Calle, lost half of its roof thanks to the wind. Despite the tires on top, the roof's top layer was yanked off and pink insulation was strewn on several neighboring streets. Utility companies were dispatched to cut off service to avoid fire damage.

Shingles whipped off many homes could be seen all around residential areas. Newly budded branches were popped off by the gust and scattered in streets.

Wind was strong enough to sail small pieces of wood across U.S. 60.

using masking tape on western windows to prevent dust from sneaking through cracks.

A pickup camper's windows were blown out, according to a police report.

A bottom layer of awnings at Target Gas on U.S. was blown away, also.

Near Dimmitt, Castro County deputies and state troopers were blocking traffic from a quarter-mile area where blowing dirt had caused several accidents.

An officer re-routing traffic about 4 miles from the scene said "they're just hitting each other down there because they can't see."

Traffic later Friday was limited to one lane.

Local Bond Indebtedness Low

The city of Hereford, Deaf Smith County and the Hereford Independent School District are faring well in the bond indebtedness department, owing totally just over $1 million.

The county owes the least amount with a balance of $70,000 which will be paid off in July of 1983. Vesta Mae Nunley, county treasurer, said the general obligation bond was issued in 1966 for the paving of U.S. 60 between Hereford and Canyon.

The city's $150,000 debt, however, will be paid at the end of the fiscal year in May. Hereford has a revenue bond indebtedness of $1,750,000, which after 1984 will be limited to the water and sewer bond issued in 1980.

Out of 10 Texas towns of about the same size Borger and La Marque are the only ones free from general obligation. Kerrville is the nearest out of debt besides Hereford, facing a balance of $1,285,000. Nederland has the highest debt in the group with $9,375,000 to pay.

The HISD owes the most with $925,000 to pay in two payments during the next two school terms.

The last bond issue passed was in 1973 for $1,319,000. The money built West Central Elementary, the high school library, a media center and classrooms at Shirley Elementary, two athletic offices and two science rooms at Stanton Junior High.

Larry Wartes, assistant superintendent, said it was hard to compare school districts, but doubted that 10 percent of the districts are debt free.

Economic Recovery 'Lackluster'

NEW YORK (AP) — Three months into the year, the economy is still declining and many economists say any recovery this year will be lackluster.

Business failures are up 52 percent, auto production is at a 30-year low, and unemployment has matched the highest level of the past four decades, according to reports this past week.

"People really are beginning to write off 1982," said Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources Inc. Eckstein, however, is forecasting at least some recovery after the next round of tax cuts takes hold in July.

His comments came after the Commerce Department reported its Index of Leading Indicators, a barometer of future economic activity, fell 0.3 percent in February after dropping 1.2 percent in January. It was the 10th straight monthly decline.

In the seven previous recessions since the end of World War II, recovery began an average of 3.1 months following an upturn in the leading indicator index, according to Edward Yardeni, chief economist at the investment firm of E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. Yardeni says there is a good chance the March indicators will be down again.

The unemployment rate rose to 9 percent in March. That was equal to the May 1975 level that was the highest

Reagan Opts For 'Secrecy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is broadening the government's power to keep information secret by invoking national security, breaking a 30-year trend toward restricting use of the secrecy stamp.

Reagan signed the order Friday in a move that drew support from conservatives but sharp criticism from liberals and civil libertarians.

"The new executive order appears to have been designed primarily for the convenience of bureaucrats who want to hide their actions from the public," said Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee on information.

English added that the order's overall message was to "classify, classify, classify."

Reagan's order replaces one signed by President Carter in 1978 that added new restrictions on use of the secrecy stamp and insisted that secrecy be specifically balanced against the public's right to know.

Primarily, the Reagan order:

— Allows classification of documents even if possible damage to national security is not "identifiable."

— Deletes Carter's mandate that officials must "determine whether the public interest in disclosure outweighs the damage to national security that might reasonably be expected from disclosure."

— Drops Carter's requirement that classified documents be reviewed after six years and 20 years with an eye toward releasing them unless continued classification is required to protect national security.

— Creates a new area of classification: "the vulnerabilities or capabilities of systems, installations, projects or plans that relate to the national security." Critics claim that provision amounts to a "blank check" for the government to keep documents secret.

Dusty Roads

Patches of U.S. 385 near Dimmitt resembled a brown snowstorm Friday as winds with gusts over 80 mph blew topsoil eastward. State troopers and Castro County deputies kept the traffic controlled with roadblocks on both sides of the worst areas and limited passage to one lane. A five-vehicle pile-up was reported around noon due to the dust, however no injuries were reported. A state trooper at one roadblock said the drivers were "just hitting each other because they can't see." (Brand Photo by Jeri Curtis)

Blew Its Top

High steady winds with gusts up to 82 mph yanked the roof from a mobile home at 102 Alamo Calle Friday morning. A fence around the yard had partially blown down and pink insulation flew around the neighborhood. Utility companies were dispatched to the scene to turn off service to prevent fire. Three Killed In Crash Caused By Wind Gust MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) - An air ambulance helicopter practicing maneuvers apparently was caught by a gust of wind and hurled to the ground, authorities said. Three men aboard the craft were killed.

The helicopter was hovering about 50 feet above a runway when it started to make a right bank and plummeted to the ground Friday afternoon, authorities said.

The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the accident.

Dallas County medical examiners identified the victims as Billy Walker, 40, of Dallas; Richard See, of Grand Prairie, and Tom Brown, of Denison, both in their 30s.

All three were employed by Lone Star Helicopter, which provides pilots for the air ambulance service CareFlite.

See and Brown died after being transferred by a second CareFlite helicopter to Methodist Central Hospital in Dallas, said hospital spokeswoman Sandra Mikush.

Officials at Collin Memorial Hospital, where they first were taken, said they suffered head and back injuries.

The helicopter was being tested as a replacement for one that crashed behind a hospital in Mesquite last year, authorities said. Passengers on that helicopter received minor injuries.

Ms. Mikush said CareFlite, a non-profit company, has two medically equipped helicopters, one based in Dallas and one in Fort Worth.

Montemayor Convicted On Drug Operations

HOUSTON (AP) - Matias Montemayor, the alleged "leader brother" of a major South Texas narcotics operation stretching from Mexico to Chicago, has been found guilty on eight drug smuggling charges.

A federal jury convicted Montemayor on Friday after deliberating six hours. Federal agents claimed Montemayor boasted he had tucked away $40 million in cash from drug smuggling operations.

Montemayor, 36, will be sentenced May 21.

However, the federal jury acquitted co-defendant Alfonso Arredondo Jr., 31, of McAllen, on one count to distribute drugs and deadlocked another similar charge.

Last month, Meynardo Montemayor, 33, of Laredo, and brother Manuel, 47, of McAllen, each were sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $25,000 on related drug charges.

Two other brothers, Benito and Reyes, are fugitives.

Gunman Kills Israeli Diplomat Leaving Parisian Home

PARIS (AP) - A gunman killed an Israeli diplomat today as he and his 17-year-old son walked out of their home in a fashionable Paris neighborhood, police and Israeli Embassy officials said.

The diplomat was identified as Yacov Barsimantov.

French police sources said Barsimantov, 43, was shot several times in the head by a young woman as his son looked on. They said the attack, at 12:50 p.m. (5:50 a.m. EST), apparently took place in the hallway of their apartment building at 17 Avenue Ferdinand Buisson.

The embassy said the diplomat, second secretary in charge of political affairs, died about two hours later from multiple gunshot wounds.

Police said there had been no arrests.

The shooting came three days after unidentified attackers sprayed the front of the officers of the Israeli military attache in Paris with machine-gun fire.

who dug me out," she said.

Ted Gibson, chief deputy for the Lamar County sheriff's office, said radio stations were broadcasting a warning when the twister was two miles west of Paris and ambulances and firetrucks sounded their sirens as part of the city's emergency preparedness plan.

Authorities were hampered in their assessment of damages because the storm knocked out electricity and wiped out normal communications systems.

"We have houses unroofed, houses blown down and cars overturned," said police Sgt. Joe Julian. "We are in terrible trouble so far."

Robert Bledsoe, however, needed no official assessment to understand his loss.

Bledsoe sobbed hysterically as he stood before his demolished home, saying over and over again, "Tornado, tornado, tornado, tornado..."

Delena Burrow wandered in a daze around all that remained of her leveled home — the foundation.

"I'm always being so picky about taking care of things," she said. "What good does it do?"

"If I could just find my wedding band," she said, holding a handful of beads salvaged from the debris. "It could have been worse. I could have been here."

Ted Cunningham, assistant administrator at McCuiston Regional Medical Center, said 75 of the 100 patients seen there were treated and released. St. Joseph Hospital administrator Sister Mary

Eustace refused to release any information on the number or conditions of patients treated there, but a hospital spokesman said 100 patients would be "a good ball park figure."

Some of the more seriously injured were transferred to hospitals as far away as Dallas.

Paris Police Chief Charles Whitley said the number of injured — including those who did not need medical attention — was over 200.

Two of the dead were sisters who fled from their apartment complex to seek safety at the First Christian Church. They died when the tornado slammed into the church and a third sister was injured, according to Justice of the Peace Frank Finley.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said the dead in Paris included Judy Harrington, 24; her unidentified infant son; Helen Stevens McQueen, Ora Spangler and Jo Anne Landers, no ages available; Mollie Pomeroy, 75; Dorothy Dean, 41; Vera Cross, 82.

The Dodd City twister killed Josie Gilbreath, 80, and critically injured her husband, Jessie, 86, authorities said. One person was injured in DeKalb.

HHS Students Go To Port Aransas

Fourteen Hereford High biology students spent their spring break at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute at Port Aransas studying ocean life and animals of a different climate.

At the marine lab, the students were able to examine specimens which they had captured on the shore in a tidal net. They collected squid, puffer fish, flounder, trumpet fish, toad fish, catfish and sting rays.

On Tuesday, the group examined the life from a boat, gathering plankton, shrimp and crabs.

At the Aransas Wildlife Refuge, the class studied tree-frogs, lizards, snakes, turtles, alligators, herons, egrets and the endangered whooping crane.

Transferees Required To Register

Students from other districts planning to attend the Hereford Independent Schools during the 1982-83 school year are required to officially register for transfers at the HISD administration building before May 1.

Any questions concerning transfers or the state deadline may be directed to the superintendent's office.

Four Arrested

Four persons were arrested for driving while intoxicated Friday night and 10 traffic citations were issued.

HISD Special Meeting Set Monday

The Hereford Independent School District will swear in new members and reorganize Monday night in a special meeting at 7 p.m. in the administration building.

The ceremonies will be after the board canvasses and certifies the election results.

Recovery

since the Labor Department began keeping monthly statistics in 1948. Just under 9.9 million people were without jobs last month, about 400,000 more than at the start of the year.

The number of people who have been dropped from the government's jobless count because they have stopped looking for work rose by 140,000 in the first quarter to 1.3 million, the highest level since such figures were first compiled in 1967.

Automakers produced 1.07 million cars in the first quarter, the lowest since production of 978,800 in the first three months of 1952.

Dun & Bradstreet Corp. reported 5,257 business failures in the first 2 months of the year against 3,460 in the same period a year ago.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

The departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development reported sales of new single-family homes fell 11.8 percent in February to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 336,000. That was only slightly above September's 335,000, which was the lowest level of home sales since the government began keeping figures in 1963.

The Commerce Department said spending on new construction fell 1 percent in February, the 13th straight monthly decline.

Commerce said factory orders for new manufactured goods rose 0.9 percent in February, the first gain since November. But nearly all the growth was concentrated in orders for military hardware.

The U.S. Gold Commission, in a report to Congress, formally rejected any return to a national gold standard. It did recommend, however, that the government mint a gold coin.

Reagan 'Sensitive' To Rising Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) President Reagan's aides say he is "sensitive" to the hardships suffered by millions of jobless Americans, but the latest unemployment figures are prompting criticism of the president's economic policies.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Friday that the unemployment rate rose to 9 percent in March, matching the post-World War II high reached during a severe recession in May 1975. Some 9.9 million Americans were out of work last month.

Swearing In Set Monday

The Hereford City Commission will swear in its newly elected officials and name a Mayor Pro-tem during its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in City Hall.

The commissioners will also appoint a city health officer.

Bids are to be opened on a cathodic protection system for city water tanks and on a greens mower for the municipal golf course.

The agenda includes a resolution extending time for a rate study of Southwestern Public Service.

The commission will consider a zoning change request making part of Block 18, Welsh Addition from "A-residential" to "E-central business zone," request oral objections to new building construction in Bluebonnet addition, and study matters pertaining to a plat of South Jackson Acres.

Wildlife Students

Fourteen students and five sponsors from Hereford High spent spring break at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Port Aransas. The group explored marine life in the Gulf of Mexico and land animals at the Aransas Wildlife refuge.

Women's Division Quarterly Meeting Scheduled Tuesday

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce will hold their quarterly meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 6 in the Community Center. A buffet including fondues, meat and cheese trays, and desserts of cheesecake and strudel will be catered by The Deli for $5 per person.

JoAn Dwyer and Sylvia Childress, from the Rape Crisis Center in Amarillo, will present the program, including a film and a question and answer session.

The Women's Division annual membership drive is still underway, with prizes to be offered as follows: first (10 or more memberships), $75; second $50; and third, $25. Carrell Ann Simmons will announce the winners on Tuesday evening.

Guests are welcome to the quarterly meeting. All reservations must be made by calling the Chamber office (364-3333) before 5 p.m. on Monday, April 5.

Patterson Speaks For Wyche HE Club Meeting

Members of the Wyche Home Extension Club met Thursday in the Reddy Room with Carol Odom presiding. Argen Draper introduced her guest, Helen Sisk Patterson, an early pioneer of Hereford who returned to Hereford after living in Wilmington, Ohio.

Mrs. Patterson came here with her family when she was 11 years old and graduated from WTSTC. She has taught school in the Hereford area, Dallas and Wichita, Kan., where she taught from 1923 until her marriage in 1936, when the couple moved to Wilmington.

She talked about early families in Hereford, including the Wyche family, who the community of Wyche was named for.

Clara Trowbridge gave a program on home appliance care and maintenance, stressing proper installation and warranties.

The District Convention and luncheon scheduled April 20 at the Bull Barn were discussed. Registration will be from 9-10 a.m. at a price of $1.50 and $5 for lunch.

Roll call was answered by members stating the number of electrical appliances in their home. Those present in addition to the ones named above were Wynema Wheeler, Louise Packard, Elizabeth Hellman, Hattie Sassaman, Louise Axe, Pet Ott, Novella Hewitt, Virginia Duncan, Beverly Brooke, Camelia Jones, Ethel Logan, and Gwen London.

The next meeting will be April 15 at the Community Center, with Ms. Hellman serving as hostess.

Revival Services Concluded

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
Revival services concluded at Frio Baptist Church Sunday evening. Sonny Rios, music evangelist, left Friday night to participate in revival services this week in Rustin, La. Jim Bullard of Hereford was guest musical leader for the weekend. The Rev. Walter Goodnight of Shallowater was guest preacher for the meeting.

The Rev. Gene Tone, pastor of Frio Baptist Church, will be conducting preaching services at Veribest Baptist Church, a community near San Angelo, beginning Saturday and through Wednesday.

Mrs. Jim Brooks returned last week from several days visiting relatives in the area of Comanche, Okla. She went with her daughter, Mrs. Deward Taylor, and Mr. Taylor, of Friona, to attend funeral services for Mrs. Ike Hays, a sister of her husband, Jim Brooks. The Taylors daughter, Robin Broyles of Amarillo also went with them. Also going for the funeral were the Dees Taylors. Ernest Brooks of Comanche, brother of Jim Brooks, returned for a visit here.

Rocky Andrews of Carthage, Mo. has been here picking up seed to take back to Missouri. He was accompanied home by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Andrews, for a visit with his family, including his wife, Vivian, three old year, Jamie and two week old daughter, Allison. Also, they visited the Glenn Andrews family there. Rains have prevailed in Missouri and they hope for enough dry weather to get the spring work done.

Banner Receives Photography Awards

Wins Display Awards

Jim Banner, a former Hereford resident who is now employed at Blunck Studios in Clinton, Okla., recently attended the Southwest Photographers Convention in Ft. Worth. He received display awards on all four of the prints he entered, thus allowing him to hang his prints at the convention exhibition. His top print was entitled "Cotton Balls" (top right) and received a score of "79."

Jim Banner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Banner of Hereford, recently attended the Southwest Photographers Convention in Fort Worth, where he participated in professional seminars and received display awards on all four of the prints he entered.

Only a small percentage of the approximately 300 prints entered were awarded this distinction, which allowed the photographer to display prints at the convention exhibition. Banner's top print was entitled "Cotton Balls." It received a score of "79."

A former Hereford resident and graduate of Hereford High School, Banner has been employed at Blunck Studios in Clinton, Okla. for the past three years. He attended the Winona Professional School of Photography in Winona, Ind.

Banner will enter the four prints at the Oklahoma State Photography Convention at Oklahoma City in April, and plans to take them to Nationals at Chicago in May.

Mental Patient Jailed In Stabbing Death Of Girl

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) - Gina Reichenbach's family tolerated harrassment by a former mental patient for more than a year because they feared retaliation.

Today, Arcadio Torres is jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond, accused in the stabbing death of the teen-age student and the assault of her best friend.

About 50 other students were on a Taylor High School athletic field Tuesday when Miss Reichenbach was stabbed to death while practicing discus throwing.

Another student, Deborah Kay Bowden, was cut on the arm before some of the other students could subdue Torres, police said.

Earlier Tuesday, the 27-year-old man was fired from his custodial job at a Taylor elementary school adjacent to the field after police told school officials "he had harassed some kids," said Jack Rambo, business manager for the Taylor Independent School District.

S.G. Bengtson, police chief in this Central Texas town, said Torres had given him a signed statement about the slaying.

District Attorney Ed Walsh said he will ask the judge to order Torres to be examined by a psychiatrist. "We expect some kind of insanity defense," he said.

Williamson County Judge C.L. Chance said he twice committed Torres to the Austin State Hospital - in July 1980 and July 1981. Doctors told him Torres suffered from "acute psychosis," Chance said, adding he was not notified when the man was released from the state hospital.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Leroy Reichenbach, said the family had lived in almost constant fear of Torres since 1980.

Family members complained that he followed them, made obscene gestures and remarks and drove his car toward theirs as if he were going to hit it.

"They would call and report an incident, but they never would come in here and file a charge," Bengtson said. "We can only do so much. We're not allowed to pull someone off the street."

But Mrs. Reichenbach said the family no longer blames the police.

"We know they did all they could," she said after her daughter's funeral Thursday. "Leroy and I were talking last night that we've got to get the criminal justice system to work, but I don't know what you can do."

She said she and her husband declined to press charges because they believed Torres would have been released on bond in a few days and return - possibly mad enough to do harm to family members.

In parts of England it was once believed that seeing a hen and rooster through a keyhole on St. Valentine's day foretold one's marriage within the year.

Positive Side

Much of the national media reports on President Reagan's budget cuts are negative. After diligently searching all area newspapers, we've finally found three little stories that, in a small way, show the positive side of the picture.

We admit that such stories are scarce as food stamps at a Republican rally, since the national media, special interest lobbyists, college students and professors, and Washington workers in general seem hell-bent on portraying the nation as one a one-way slide to disaster — all because of six months of curtailing the growth of federal spending.

Oddly enough, two of the stories come from clergymen and one comes from a college professor.

"Reagan's cutbacks in federally funded social programs have been widely protested by many religious organizations. But some are beginning to admit that Reagan's actions also have forced the church sector to take more seriously that which is a part of its responsibility."

This word came from Albert Vorspan, vice president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. He said, "President Reagan may have done us a favor shocking us into the sober realization that we can no longer simply adopt resolutions to have the federal government practice what we preach."

And Rev. Billy Graham stated that "poverty could be eliminated if each American church helped ten poor families. Networks of voluntary locally based church food banks and other emergency projects emerging across the country would be the beginning of a major shift of responsibility from government welfare to private volunteerism."

And black clergy in Los Angeles, of all places, are calling President Reagan's cutbacks in aid-to-poor programs "potentially beneficial."

According to The Gathering, an issue-oriented association of black clergy in Los Angeles, Reagan's cutbacks could be the best thing "ever to happen to the black communities."

Said Bishop H. Houston, president of the ministers group, "There has been too much dependence on welfare and aid. The government cuts are forcing us to do what we need to do for ourselves in creating jobs and helping ourselves."

Finally, an Associated Press story out of New York, reveals the bright side of the story about the elderly.

"What a remarkable illusion, said Bruce Jacobs, as he spoke about the image in this country of the elderly as poor, neglected, and victimized.

"Rarely," he said, "do you see such a disparity between the image promoted by the media, politicians, and the elderly themselves, and the reality, which Jacobs measures as an assistant professor.

He finds that less than 5 percent of the elderly live in institutions, close to 75 percent live in their own homes, 80 percent have paid off their mortgages, and most of the others have small percentages on their loans, often at very low interest rates.

"Don't equate aging with poverty," advises Jacobs, who teaches political science at the University of Rochester. "Social security is the most effective anti-poverty program we have."

Jacobs concedes that without benefits many of the elderly indeed would be impoverished, but as a group, he says, they aren't hurting. "Not to say that they're wealthy," he adds.

The number officially counted as poor, says Jacobs, is down from 33 percent of all elderly in 1959 to about 6 percent currently.

So, despite the six o'clock television portrayals, there is a bright side to the national picture.

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:

Allow me to publicly thank the Deaf Smith County DA's office for the return of many of the things stolen from me there last December. In spite of the lingering questions I still have with this case, which I have privately put to the DA's office, investigator Terry Colston has thus far done a good job; along with the Hereford PD and the county sheriff's office.

I would have preferred the theft suspect be prosecuted, but ahalf beef, they say is better than a hind quarter. The recovery of (most of) one's stolen property is about, under the circumstances, the best to be expected.

If I have learned anything from this unfortunate ordeal, it must include: If you're gonna hitchhike, don't accept rides from strangers.

A big Hereford "Howdy" and handshakes to all of those who were so helpful - loud enough so even Deaf Smith himself can hear it. Your Panhandle is no broader than your hospitality.

The Penultimate Word

YOU CAN'T LEGISLATE STUPIDITY

All of my life I have heard it said you can't legislate morals. What needs to be said is that you can't legislate stupidity. Ralph Nadar has given it a heck of a try, but it can't be done.

If we are not smart enough to use seat belts in cars then all the buzzers in the world will not help. Everytime I start my car and that buzzer yells so loud I can't hear if the motor is running, I want to choke old Ralph. I will give him the benefit of the doubt and say he is trying to save me from my own stupidity, but it just ain't working.

If I am dumb enough to leave my keys in the car, let me learn my lesson the hard way. I will not learn it by having a buzzer blasting away while I get out of the car. Worse yet, what is the purpose of the little handle that must be pushed down before the key can be removed? I sat in a rented Ford in Houston for an hour one night trying to figure out how to get the key out of the thing. When I had lost all of my religion and most of my dignity I finally hit the switch by mistake and the key came out.

This switch was on the left-hand side of the steering column while the key was on the right. All I can figure out this is for is to save us from one armed drivers since it would be impossible for a person to operate the key without two good arms.

I know we need to protect children from getting into drugs by accident. I am not at all sure the child-proof caps are the answer. Some of the caps can only be opened by children. Watch an arthritic try to open a bottle of arthritis strength bufferin sometime and then tell me Ralph has come up with a winner.

I am sure some good has been done but I am tired of folks trying to save me from myself. It will not be long before there will be a law that all toilet seats must have seat belts. Then, of course, there will have to be buzzers to warn us to fasten the things. Then I guess there will be some sort of locking device to keep the thing from working until the belts are in place. What next?

All efforts to legislate morals have been total flops. Preachers have given it their best shot over the years and have created a monster every time. We passed prohibition and created the mafia. We passed blue laws and created the silly counters in stores where some items cannot be sold on Sunday. Now we are going to legislate us out of our stupidity? Lots of luck!

I wish we weren't so dumb. I wish we had good judgment. But not having good judgment is one of my inalienable rights and no one is going to take it away from me. I like being stupid at times. I like making my own choice about seat belts. I will make that choice whether there is a buzzer or not. Man, tell me the issues and explain my options then take your buzzers and switches and buzz off....

Warm fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Workable Budget Strategy

WASHINGTON — Sooner or later, it will dawn on members of Congress that the only workable strategy for reducing projected budget deficits is to seriously attack the spending side of the equation. In anxious and hopeful anticipation of this awakening, I would like to propose an action which would in a single stroke reduce the projected deficit for fiscal 1983 by $20-25 billion:

Congress should freeze for one year the automatic cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) contained in more than 70 federal programs, including Social Security, veterans pensions and federal civilian and military retirement pensions.

I recognize that any proposal to change these programs is by nature the hottest of political potatoes, and subject to extremist demagoguery about throwing the nation's retirees out into the streets. So before the politicians beat up on the idea, let's take a dispassionate look at the facts:

- The rapid growth of COLAs has been a major cause of runaway federal spending. From 1978 to 1981, these increases in benefits cost the American taxpayer $69 billion. Over the next two years, they will cost $47 billion.

- Most federal COLAs compensate fully for increases in the Consumer Price Index (CPI), a measurement that has long been recognized as an overstatement of inflation. By contrast, less than five percent of private pensions have automatic COLAs at all. And, the average yield of cost of living wage hikes granted in collective bargaining agreements is about 60 percent of the CPI. This amounts to inequity for those who are still working in the private sector.

- In every year since 1970, Social Security benefit increases have gone up faster than wage increases. Since 1978, benefits for Social Security and other programs have increased nearly twice as fast as after-tax wages. In some cases, federal civilian and military COLAs have led to pensions for recent retirees that are actually higher than the incomes of the workers now holding those jobs.

- The average after-tax per capita income of persons 65 and older was $4,450 in 1978, while that for the entire population was just $3,412. This doesn't include non-cash income such as Medicare and Medicaid benefits, nutritional and energy assistance programs, and housing services of which large portions go to the elderly. Nor does it take into account the fact that 80 percent of the aged own their own homes, with 70 percent of those having paid-up mortgages.

- A one-year COLA freeze would do more than help workers catch up with the increases of retirees. Robert A. Myers, former Chief Actuary of the Social Security Administration, believes it would also solve the short-run financial problems of the Social Security system for up to 10 years.

The evidence is overwhelming that a one-shot freeze of the cost of living adjustments in Social Security and other programs is a reasonable measure that would not cause undue suffering among retirees. No one is suggesting that any benefits be cut — only that we skip an increase just once. This would enable us not only to significantly cut the budget and score further victories in our battle against inflation and high interest rates. It would restore financial viability to Social Security and restore some fairness to a situation in which those who still work have been getting far smaller increases than those who no longer work.

At a time when thousands of workers are forgoing additional benefits and pay increases in order to keep their jobs, and when millions of Americans don't have jobs, is it really too much to ask the beneficiaries of federal programs for this one small sacrifice?

From the campaign trail

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Democrats are predicting that unemployment will be their No. 1 campaign issue this fall.

Polls by Peter Hart for the Democratic Party and the AFL-CIO have found not only that unemployment is a leading cause of concern to voters but, more important, that many blame Reaganomics for the high jobless rate.

Democratic planners think that unemployment will provide them with a highly visible issue for the mid-term campaigns.

So, this fall you will most likely see — over and over again — a film clip from President Reagan's first State of the Union address. In that February 1981 speech, the president criticized the departed Carter administration for having left 7.8 million Americans unemployed. If unemployment reaches 10 million by summer, which is now considered likely, this clip will become a very prominent feature of many Democratic campaigns.

Several recent polls of Democrats have found that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is far ahead in the race for his party's 1984 presidential nomination. In mid-February, the Gallup organization asked Democrats to choose between Kennedy and former Vice President Walter Mondale. Fifty-four percent chose Kennedy, 31 percent chose Mondale and the remaining 15 percent were undecided.

It's My Turn

While the folks in east Texas, especially in Paris where a killer tornado caused death and mass destruction, were made aware of the terrible power of Mother Nature Friday we on the high plains here in Hereford got quite a glimpse ourselves.

Strong winds which buffeted the area Monday and Tuesday were nothing compared to the gale which hit Friday. We took a drive across town during the afternoon Friday, and evidence of the effects of the blustery winds were apparent through torn and missing shingles on homes, broken fences, and so on.

The winds contributed to a multi-vehicle accident south of town, while a trailer home had its roof extensively damaged as well. We saw several houses with shingles blown off or lifted from the roof, and many fences had been weakened or had sections blown down.

While less than a deadly tornado, like the one which tore through Hereford 11 years ago, the strong winds couldn't help but remind us how "mortal" we are. Thankfully it wasn't a tornado, but it was still a sobering experience.

The Hereford High School Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter is undertaking a basketball marathon today from 1-8 p.m. at the high school gym. The event will help a local family which has been hit by tragedy.

Proceeds will go to help the financial burden placed upon the family of Diane Perkins, who is suffering from Leukemia.

We know the Perkins', especially Diane's husband Jim. A finer, more gentle Christian man would be hard to find.

The FCA kids are securing sponsors for the game, and the event is open to the public with a donation the "admission price."

If you find yourself with nothing to do this afternoon or evening, go by and watch the game for awhile. You'll be extending a helping hand as well as witnessing another of those selfless acts of service which the people in Hereford are well known for.

Bootleg Philosopher

Statesmanship

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek thinks he has discovered a way to get more statesmanship in Congress.

Dear editor:

As I understand it, Congress is supposed to set a budget, whatever purpose that serves, although I think it's sort of like the national debt ceiling which can be revised whenever it's handy, either up or down, the latter being something that's never been tried.

Anyway, Congress is having soul-searching trouble because this is an election year. To set a budget that reduces the deficit requires a Congressman to vote for either a cut in his favorite spending program or a raise in taxes. And voting for a raise in taxes in an election year is considered as unwholesome for reelection purposes as eating a meal of turkey and dressing at half-time would be for a football team's chances of winn the game.

One Congressman however has discovered a way out of this dilemma.

He got up on his feet the other day and told his fellow Congressmen that he had voted a few months ago in favor of cutting taxes despite the fact it meant a bigger deficit because "I considered it in my best political interest." In other words, he confessed he'd put staying in office ahead of what he thought was best for the nation. Out of habit, he was following the standard rule that says "the first duty of a Congressman is to get reelected."

Now, he said, he regretted it and he doesn't care what his fellow party members think, he's going to speak his mind regardless and vote his convictions.

He added also that he won't seek reelection because he has developed a severe back problem that'd prevent him from serving.

It's clear, the way to get more statesmanship in Washington is to get more Congressmen with back trouble.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Thumbing Back

50 YEARS AGO

A weather report by special telegraph service from the United States Weather Observatory to the Brand this morning warns of probable frost in Hereford and Deaf Smith County tomorrow morning, and asks that proper notification be given.

The theft of automobiles and their loose parts has been prevalent around Hereford during the past week, three district cases being reported. A car in front of the H. Williamson home in north Hereford was taken Saturday night and it is said to have been entirely stripped of its accessible working parts.

25 YEARS AGO

Hoping to prevent an outbreak of sleeping sickness in Hereford this summer, city officials Monday night approved plans for an effort to rid the community of insects. Use of a new type high-velocity spraying machine and appreciation of chemicals at frequent intervals to all mosquito breeding areas within the city and adjacent areas will be the principal weapons used in the campaign, City Manager Dudley Bayne told the city commissioners.

10 YEARS AGO

With memories of the April 1971 tornado still fresh in their minds, Hereford residents began making preparations for the forthcoming tornado season as evidenced by a used number of storm cellars being constructed.

Some eight building permits were issued during March for the construction of storm cellars as residents prepare for the dangerous season that began this month. It was a year ago this month that a tornado swept through the south and eastern portions of the city and caused more than $1 million in damages.

1 YEAR AGO

President Reagan's fever continued this morning, his doctor said, but the President was described as feeling "quite a bit better."

Medic Alert Week Begins Today

TURLOCK, Calif. — "Medic Alert is the 'designated hitter' of emergency medicine," said Lorne Greene, National Chairman of Medic Alert, when he announced that Medic Alert Week, the organization's annual membership drive would be held April 4-10.

The universally recognized emblem, worn by some 1.2 million Americans, "provides the physician and other medical personnel with that 'extra edge' in a medical emergency, especially if the victim is unable to speak or communicate," Greene added.

"People who have special medical problems, like a diabetic who needs insulin daily, are taking an unnecessary and potentially dangerous risk if they avoid wearing emergency medical identification," he stressed.

Examples of other medical problems that should be known to physicians in case of a medical emergency include medication allergies such as penicillin, hypertension, heart problem or epilepsy. These are some of the more than two hundred various reasons that people join Medic Alert.

"The key link to our service is the emblem," Greene continued. It is worn on the wrist or as a necklace and lists the member's special problem, an identification number plus the phone number for the emergency medical information center.

The center, which can be called collect twenty-four hours a day, is staffed by experienced and highly-trained personnel who can locate the member's data within seconds. It is displayed on a video terminal then provided to emergency personnel.

Information contained in each member's file is also duplicated annually in the form of a wallet card. In the case of a diabetic, this could be the type and dosage of insulin. Other information can include blood type, specific allergies, physician's name and phone, or name of a relative, for example.

According to Greene, "virtually any type of information is stored in our member's file that they wish to have there. One member lists twenty-six allergies in her file," he said.

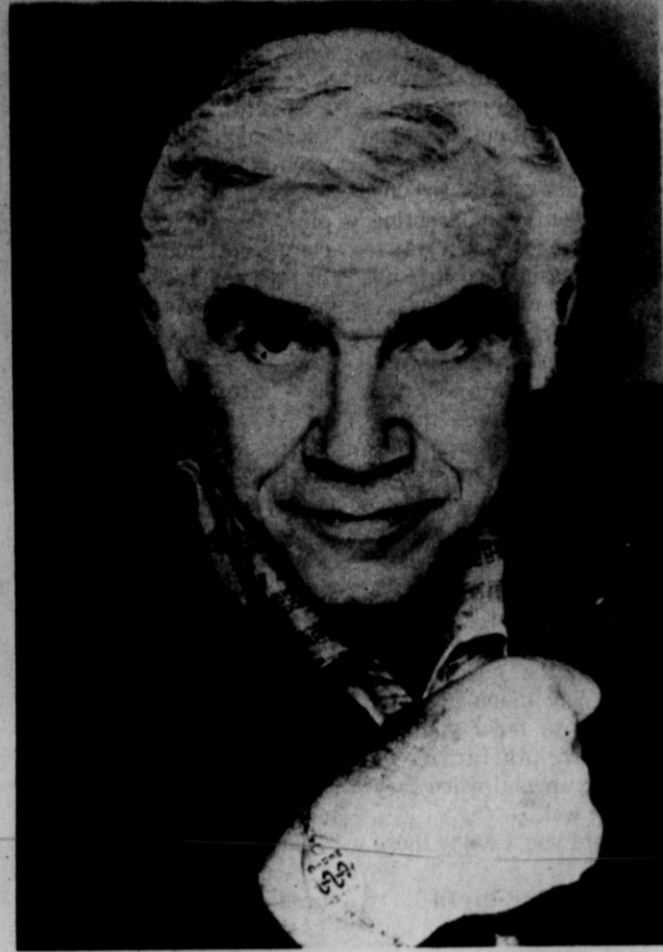

This year marks the twenty-sixth year that Medic Alert, a non-profit, charitable and tax-exempt organization, has provided emergency medical identification.

"The beauty of it is the simplicity and lack of any special equipment, other than the telephone," Greene added.

"Our principal objective during Medic Alert Week is to inform the public about our service, particularly those forty million Americans who have special medical situations — which could become problems — if they are unknown in an emergency," concluded Greene.

For information about Medic Alert, write Turlock, Calif. 95381 or call toll-free 800-344-3226 or in California, Alaska and Hawaii 209-668-3333.

Regional offices are located in New York City, Chicago, Orlando and Salt Lake City.

Medic Alert Chairman

Noted actor Lorne Greene is serving as this year's National Chairman of Medic Alert, a non-profit organization devoted to providing quick and accurate emergency medical identification for people with special medical problems such as diabetes or heart problems. Medic Alert Week begins today and continues until Saturday.

First game

Students at the International YMCA training school in Springfield, Mass., played the first official basketball game — on Jan. 10, 1892. It was invented by Dr. James Naismith to provide indoor exercise between the football and the baseball seasons. Naismith used a peach basket in the gym. Players had to use ladders to retrieve the ball after successful shots.

Originally, a magazine was a storehouse — not a periodical. "The Gentleman's Magazine," in 1731, was the first publication to use the word in its new meaning, stating it intended to "store up" a collection of subjects, "as in a magazine."

Trip Explained To Study Club Members

Mrs. Austin Rose presented a program to members of Bay View Study Club when the group met Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Earnest Langley.

Mrs. Rose spoke on the fall trip to China taken by the H.L. Benefields. Their 23 day excursion first took them to Hong Kong where they were met by their tour guide and were briefed on the trip's agenda.

After seeing points of interest in Hong Kong, they visited Peking, the capitol of China, and then toured the famous zoo. They noted that 3750 miles of the Great Wall of China has been restored from the original 31,000 mile wall.

One of the highlights of the trip was a visit to a silk factory to see the silk tapestry being made. They also visited a commune.

Mrs. Rose was attired in a Chinese garment detailed with embroidery while she presented her program. Following the talk, a question and answer session was held and articles of jewelry, cloisonne and other things were displayed.

Mrs. J.R. Allison presided at the business meeting.

Coping With Parental Stress

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Hard work, responsibility and demands for time and attention are a part of parenting. This is the part of parenting that causes stress to mount and makes us feel caught and sometimes overwhelmed by demands constantly made upon us.

Sometimes pressures are self-imposed because we try to run such a tight ship that neither we nor our children can relax.
When you feel uptight with your children, ask yourself: Do I expect too much — must they always stay clean, keep their room spic and span, stay quiet, or meet my demands immediately? Can they do it their way sometimes? Does it really matter or must it always be my way? Do they always have to act like adults? Why can't I let them be children? Have I talked to anyone about my feelings? Have I talked to the children about theirs? Relieve Stress

It is important for parents to sometimes make changes in order to cope with the daily demands of being a parent. Here are some ways to help you relieve tension:

Talk to friends or spouse about your frustrations. Tell your children what makes you angry and what behavior the child needs to change to reduce your anger. Leave the room for a short time when you are losing control.
You can deal more effectively with children and situations when you have time to collect your thoughts and calm down. If you are a new parent, have a relative, friend, or paid help come in for the first few weeks. Take some time for yourself when children are sleeping. Relax and forget what you should be doing.

Stress and strain are not conducive to good parenting. All of us need to find a way to relieve pressure, so it is not taken out on our children.
Enjoy Being A Parent
When things are going well, parenting can be a satisfactory experience. It's important that you share your positive feelings with your children, too. Let them know that you feel good about the way the day is going. Tell them when their behavior is making you happy.

Make sure they know you appreciate the good things they do. Say thank you and remember to treat yourself and your children to something special when they are doing well.
I thought you'd enjoy these recipes:
Orange Nut Bread
1½ cups corn flakes
2 cups all-purpose flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
1-3 cup regular margarine or butter, softened
1-3 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tsp. orange peel
1 cup orange juice
½ cup nuts, finely chopped
½ cup seedless raisins
Measure cornflakes and crush to ¾ cup. Stir in flour, baking powder, soda, and salt. Set aside.
Measure margarine and sugar into large mixing bowl. Beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs and orange peel. Beat well. Stir in orange juice with dry ingredients, mixing only until combined. Stir in nuts and raisins.

Spread in well-greased 9x5x3 inch loaf pan. Bake in oven at 350 degrees F. about 50 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool about 10 minutes before removing from pan. Cool completely before slicing. Makes one loaf.
Stuffed Mexican Meat Loaf
This recipe was the first place winner in the 1982 Arkansas Beef Cookoff.
2 pounds ground chuck
1-3 cup green pepper, chopped
1-3 cup onion, finely chopped
1½ slices white bread, torn into crumbs
1 egg, beaten slightly
1 can (8-oz.) tomato sauce
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons taco seasoning
½ cup sour cream
2 cups Cheddar cheese, shredded
2 slices Cheddar cheese for garnish
Avocado slices and cherry tomatoes for garnish
Mix the first seven ingredients thoroughly. Mix the sour cream and shredded cheese together. Place half the meat mixture in a 1½ quart loaf baking dish and flatten top. Make a deep well the length of the loaf, and place the cheese mixture in the middle. Put the remaining meat mixture on top of the cheese. Seal well.
Bake at 375 degrees F. for 1½ - 1¾ hours. During the last 5 to 7 minutes of baking time, place thin triangle-shaped cheese slices on top of the loaf and continue to bake until melted.

Place on a serving platter and garnish around the meat loaf with avocado slices with a cherry tomato in the circle of each avocado slice. Serves 8 to 10.
This recipe was shared by the agent I trained under 17 years ago, Mrs. Margaret Alexander. She is now a District Extension Agent in Arkansas.
Ham Loaf
1½ pounds ham, ground
1 pound pork loin, ground
2 eggs
1 tsp. black pepper
½ cup milk
1 cup cracker crumbs
Whole Cloves
Pineapple chunks (optional)
Mix together all ingredients except cloves and pineapple chunks and shape into loaf. Place in a loaf pan or casserole. Score and dot with whole cloves (and pineapple chunks if desired). Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1½ hours. Baste with sauce (below) and cook for additional 30 minutes.
Sauce
1½ cups brown sugar
1 Tablespoon prepared mustard
½ cup water
½ cup vinegar
Mix ingredients and boil for 10 minutes.
Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Campaign Funds Tell Tale

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has spent at least $275,000 on media and public opinion research this year in his campaign for reelection, but the big-ticket item so far for Clements' only Republican opponent was repairing the transmission in his 1967 Lincoln convertible.

That was one of the ironies apparent in campaign finance reports that continued to trickle into the Secretary of State's office Friday. The reports are required to be postmarked April 1, and most came in that day.

Clements' report, filed April 1, showed him to be the money-raising champ, with a $4 million campaign chest. He has spent $2.3 million.

His only competition for the Republican nomination, San Antonio ex-insurance salesman Lowell "Duke" Embs, says he has raised $1,050, including a $13.26 contribution from the Republican State Executive Committee labeled a "gift." He has spent $4,493.

Embs' hand-written report showed he paid AAMCO of San Antonio $586 to "fix transmission." He also spent over $1,000 on clothing at two Austin stores and got himself a new pair of Lucchese boots in Houston for $191. A $350 expenditure to an Austin liquor store was labeled "beer and booze for rallies."

Attorney General Mark White is the big-money candidate among Democratic gubernatorial contenders, with $1.2 million raised. Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple shows $593,510 raised, while Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong is trailing with $349,706 in contributions.

But Armstrong is way ahead of Democrat David L. Young of Austin, who has raised no money and spent $2,433. Apparently in lieu of a campaign staff, he got a $94 telephone answering device. Land Commissioner candidate Garry Mauro leads his two Democratic primary opponents in campaign contributions, but Pete Snelson has apparently outspent Mauro on advertising three to one, according to their reports, both filed Friday.

Mauro has raised $301,976 — $8,333 in loans — and spent $262,713, $34,000 of that on advertising as of the end of March.

Snelson, state senator from Midland, has raised $263,513 — $130,000 in loans — and spent $260,289, $110,000 on advertising. The biggest chunk went toward running television spots in Austin.

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale trails the other two Democrats with only $21,499 raised. He has spent $9,639.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown and Democratic primary challenger Jim Hightower, former editor of the Texas Observer, are virtually even on campaign money raised, but Hightower is vastly outspending Brown.

Brown reports $135,094 raised, $54,985 spent. Hightower's report shows $136,563 has come into his campaign. He has spent $126,596 of it.

As of Friday afternoon, state treasurer candidate Ann Richards' report was not yet on file. She is seeking to wrest the Democratic nomination from incumbent Warren G. Harding.

Harding, who was recently indicted in Austin on two felony counts of official misconduct, reported $6,660 raised and $52,500 spent. He has spent $17,000 on legal fees.

State Sen. Mike Richards of Houston, Republican treasurer candidate, reported $58,075 raised — from 16 contributors who gave no less than $1,000 at a time — and $41,695 spent.

Max Sherman of Amarillo is outspending fellow Democrat and comptroller candidate Raymond Frank of Austin, but both are behind incumbent Democrat Bob Bullock.

Bullock has raised $300,311 and spent $284,467. Sherman reported $244,692 raised and $204,386 spent. Frank reports $20,526 in contributions and $22,436 in expenditures.

In the 1800's Sam Carter became a major general of the U.S. Army and a rear admiral in the U.S. Navy.

Getting Ready

Susan Reinart beat the April 16 deadline by asking Mike Carr for an application this week for the Little Miss Hereford Beauty Pageant. Her sister, Cari, and Hayly Lockmiller were also at the Chamber office checking on the contest. Girls from age four through ninth grade will be entering the pageant in four divisions. The pageant will be at 7 p.m., April 24, in the Hereford High auditorium. Tickets to the event are $2 and are available at First National Bank, Hereford State Bank, Helen's, Grandma's Corner Too, and the Chamber of-

The Newspaper BIBLE

SEEK THIS: AND NEVER BE SORRY!

Listen to my pleading, Lord! Be merciful and send the help I need. My heart has heard you say, "Come and talk with me, O my people." And my heart responds, "Lord, I am coming." Oh, do not hide yourself when I am trying to find you. Do not angrily reject your servant. You have been my help in all my trials before; don't leave me now. Don't forsake me, O God of my salvation. For if my father and mother should abandon me, you would welcome and comfort me. (Psalm 27:7-10)

Seek the Lord while you can find him. Call upon him now while he is near. Let men cast off their wicked deeds; let them banish from their minds the very thought of doing wrong! Let them turn to the Lord that he may have mercy upon them, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon! This plan of mine is not what you would work out, neither are my thoughts the same as yours! For just as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than yours, and my thoughts than yours. (Isaiah 55:6-9)

Listen to me, Asa! ... The Lord will stay with you as long as you stay with him! Whenever you look for him, you will find him. But if you forsake him, he will forsake you." (2 Chron. 15:2)

"Solomon, my son, get to know the God of your fathers. Worship and serve him with a clean heart and willing mind, for the Lord sees every heart and understands and knows every thought. If you seek him, you will find him; but if you forsake him, he will permanently throw you aside... Be strong and do as he commands." (1 Chron. 28:9-10)

'Other' Watson Predicts Win; Puzzling Headlines

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Denis Watson had a prediction.

"A lot of people are going to see headlines 'Watson leading,' and they're going to say, 'I didn't know he was playing,'" Watson said.

The other Watson, Tom

Watson, isn't playing in this $300,000 event, the Greater Greensboro Open.

The three-time British Open champion and four-time American Player of the Year, was busily preparing to defend his Masters title in Augusta, Ga., next week.

Denis Watson, meanwhile, still is attempting to join that elite, invitational little gathering.

"It's the goal of every player to play in the Masters," said Denis, a South African, and for the last two seasons a full-time regular on the American PGA Tour.

The only way he can make it is with a victory here. And he's got the lead at the halfway point.

His no-bogey, 7-under-par 65 in Friday's second round gave him a 137 total for two trips over the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course and a 1-stroke lead on Danny Edwards.

Edwards, a former champion here, surrendered the lead when he took 2 to get out of a greenside bunker on the 18th hole and made double bogey-6. It finished off a round of par 72 in the mild, overcast weather, and left him at 138, 6 under par.

The group at 139, only 2 shots back, included former Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller, Hal Sutton, D.A. Weibring, Keith Fergus, Bobby Wadkins, Doug Black and Jim Thorpe.

Fergus, who shared the first-round lead with Edwards, went to a 73. Weibring, a third-place finisher last week in the Heritage, closed up with a 68. Bobby Wadkins shot 67, Zoeller and Thorpe 68, Sutton 69 and Black 70.

Bill Rogers, the 1981 British Open champ and Player of the Year, was at 143 after a 74. Lee Trevino and Larry Nelson, the current PGA champ, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Each was at 147, 1 stroke over the cutoff. Trevino had a second-round 72, Nelson 75.

Watson, 26, said he left his native Zimbabwe "to see if I was good enough to play the tour." After two years of military service, he played in South Africa, then spent two seasons "pecking around the European tour. I didn't win anything, but I learned a lot," he said.

Then he came to the United States "because that's the right place to learn. That's where all the knowledge is, on the American tour."

And, he said, he's learned his lessons. "My game has shown incredible improvement," said Watson, who won a respectable $49,153 in his rookie season and had his best performance a month ago in a playoff loss to Tom Kite for the title in the Bay Hill Classic, a performance that revealed him to the public as "the other Watson."

"Not bad, being compared with him," smiled Denis. "He's won a few."

Holme Futurity Trials Highlight Racing Today At Randall Park

Trials for the Holme County Futurity will be held today at the Randall Park race track located near Umbarger. The futurity will be held a week later, April 11 with a purse of $32,149.91 up for grabs, including $10,000 furnished by the stallion's owners and $2,000 by the track.

The trials will be held at 12:20 p.m., and will be only part of the biggest day of racing the track has ever had according to Track Manager and Racing Secretary Jewell Mendenhall. Ms. Mendenhall reports that 20 races, the maximum allowed the track, will be run with 130 horses involved in the day's fare.

Randall Park, owned by Robert Mendenhall of Canyon, will reportedly offer $500,000 in purses, and attract some of the best quarterhorses in the nation this season.

The track was built about 10 years ago by a group of area people who hoped that pari-mutual betting would be legalized in Texas.

Formerly known as Rimrock Downs, the track is sanctioned by the American Quarter Horse Association. Ms. Mendenhall says the racing bill at the track usually attracts entries from Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Colorado. She concedes that it is basically a training track even though some of the purses are big enough to bring in horses from across the country.

"You'll see some of the same horses running here that you'll see at Ruidosa and Raton," she said.

Two more big races are scheduled for next fall. They are the Bar Adams Futurity and the Bar Adams Derby in September. The futurity will be for 2-year-olds, with the derby for 3-year-olds. Estimated purse for the futurity is $38,000 and for the derby is $28,000.

Ms. Mendenhall said races in the summer usually begin at 1 p.m., but that they will begin at 11 p.m. today due to the large number of races. Races will be held the first and second Sundays of May, July and August. The first Sunday in June will be the only race date for that month.

Ms. Mendenhall said average attendance at the track is 750 with an average of 80 head of horses run each day. A usual race day includes 15 events on a standard track, which is a one-mile oval with 550-yard straightaways.

The track is equipped with a 10-horse starting gate and automatic cameras provide for settling photo-finish races. For spectators there is an enclosed area, an outside seating area, and concession stands.

Near the track is a roping arena where ropings are held twice a month. The Mendenhalls also operate a Hall of Fame Stallion Station with six stallions presently in service there. Pride of the station is Bar Adams, son of Three Bars.

Mendenhall says that Three Bars was, in his day, one of the great quarterhorse sires, and they are expecting great things of Bar Adams as well. He said that more than 100 mares are booked to the stallions.

One consolation about going bald is that you can drive the barber crazy asking for your hair to be styled.

Make your kid happy and get even with the neighborhood at the same time. Give him a set of drums.

Girls T-Ball, Registration Set Today

Registration for girls interested in playing T-Ball and minor league softball will be held from 2-3 p.m. today at the Kids, Inc. ballpark located at 15th and Ave. H.

A coach will be at the park during that time to sign up prospective players. The T-Ball league is for girls ages 7-8, while girls 9-10 will play in the minor league.

4-H Shooting Sports Club To Meet

Sponsor Henry Reid has announced that the Deaf Smith County 4-H Shooting Sports organization will meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Community Center. Reid said the purpose of the meeting is "to begin the shotgun portion of the club, and to get the 22 rifle shooters in the club up to date on shooting for district."

Stacy Leads Shore Tourney

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Hollis Stacy has parlayed a new outlook and a deft putting touch into a 3-stroke lead midway through the richest women's golf tournament.

"My attitude is much more positive," Stacy said Friday after her sizzling 7-under-par 65 put her in front of Pat Bradley heading into today's third round of the $310,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational.

"I find myself wanting to play more and play better. I think it's a continuation thing; I'm playing well, so I want to keep playing."

"When we finished 18," Stacy said, "I wanted to go out and play some more."

Her second round, which put her at 6-under-par 138 for the 72-hole tournament, provided good reason for the enthusiasm.

Hitting her irons well and putting with almost uncanny accuracy on the final nine holes, she carded a tournament record-tying 31 on the back nine.

During that charge on the back nine, she needed just nine putts — including ones from 40, 25, 18 (twice) and 15 feet.

"I'm hitting the ball extremely well," said Stacy, who began the second round 2 strokes behind co-leaders Kyle O'Brien and Lori Garbacz. "Thursday I hit just seven greens, so I was scrambling. But this time, I hit 14 greens."

Scores were markedly lower Friday, as the round was played in warm, sunny weather. Thursday, chilly rain and winds made the 6,255-yard, par-72 Mission Hills Country Club course much more difficult.

Bradley shot a second-round 69 after an opening 72. Sandra Haynie, the veteran player who has won just once in the past five years, was 4 shots behind Stacy with a 69 for a 142 total. Sally Little, 76-67, and Beth Daniel, 72-71, were another shot back at 143.

Garbacz and O'Brien both dropped back in the pack, Garbacz with a 74 and O'Brien with a 76.

The 28-year-old Stacy, who has won two Ladies Professional Golf Association events this year and four of the last 10 in which she's competed, faced an unusual "hazard" on the final hole Friday.

When she and Barbara Barrow, playing in a twosome, reached the 18th green, a swarm of bees swooped low over the golfers and the gallery before disappearing as quickly as it had appeared.

"I've never seen anything like it," Stacy said. "I tried to tell the people in the stands to watch out. I saw Myra Van Hoose, who's allergic to bee stings, running for the tent."

California Picked In AL West

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Billy Martin and Reggie Jackson are in the same division again, Martin as manager of the Oakland A's and Jackson in the outfield for the California Angels. That should mean plenty of excitement and fireworks in the American League West.

"The 1981 season was both a good one and bad one for the A's," said Martin. "Good in the sense that we won the Western Division championship, bad due to the unfortunate player strike. We came so close, but our play-off loss to the Yankees showed me that we still must work harder."

Martin thinks his outfield of Jickey Henderson, Dwayne Murphy and Jony Armas is the best in baseball. Mike Heath and Jeff Newman provide solid catching and Cliff Johnson will be the main designated hitter.

The starting pitching is sound with Steve McCatty, Mike Norris, Matt Keough and Rick Langford. The weak spots are the bullpen, which could be stronger with Dave Beard and Jeff Jones, and the infield, where Martin has no stars and must platoon at most positions. Second baseman Davey Lopes, acquired from Los Angeles, should provide some stolen bases and leadership. The latter is more important.

According to Manager Gene

Mauch, California boasts a potential all-star at each infield and outfield spot. The list include Rod Carew at first, Bobby Grich at second, Rick Burleson at short, Doug DeCinces at yrd, with Don Baylor, Fred Lynn and Jackson in the outfield.

The catching is adequate but the pitching, like last year, is questionable, at best. Starter Ken Forsch and reliever Don Aase are the best and Mauch is hoping for vast improvement from Mike Witt, Bruce Kison, Andy Hassler and Geoff Zahn. Keep an eye on rookie lefty Angel Moreno.

"If every one of our people play to their potential, I don't think there's anyone who can handle us," Mauch says.

Texas Rangers Manager Don Zimmer says he doesn't do any predicting, "but I believe we are going to be a pennant contender." His hopes rest on DH Al Oliver, third baseman Buddy Bell and catcher Jim Sundberg, a six-time Gold Glove winner. Key newcomers include pitcher Frank Tanana, first baseman Lamar Johnson and second baseman Doug Flynn, who made Bump Wills expendable. Rookie center fielder George Wright could start if Mickey Rivers' knees continue to act up.

The addition of Tanana enabled Zimmer to switch Danny Darwin to the bullpen. Other sure starters are Rick Honeycutt, Doc Medich and Charlie Hough.

Chicago's Tony LaRussa seems to have replaced Boston's Ralph Houk as baseball's most optimistic manager. "All winter, I have been predicting White Sox fans can make their plans to attend the American League Championship Series at Comiskey Park this fall - and I mean that," LaRussa says.

Trades brought left fielder Steve Kemp and first baseman Tom Paciorek to join DH Greg Luzinski, outfielders Ron LeFlore and Harold Baines, catcher

Carlton Fisk, third baseman Jim Morrison, shortstop Bill Almon and second baseman Tony Bernazard. Britt Burns, Steve Trout and Richard Dotson are impressive young pitchers, but the bullpen is shaky.

Manager Dick Howser is starting his first full season in Kansas City, but the Royals have the same old look. Howser's main problem is finding starting pitchers behind Larry Gura and Dennis Leonard. In an effort to do so, the Royals picked up veteran left-hander Vida Blue from San Francisco. Dan Quisenberry is the bullpen ace.

Elsewhere, the Royals have a solid nucleus in outfielders Willie Wilson, Amos Otis and Jerry Martin (the key newcomer) and an infield of George Brett, U.L. Washington, Frank White and Willie Aikens from third to first, plus DH Hal McRae. John Wathan is the No. 1 catcher.

Unlike the Royals, the Seattle Mariners will field plenty of new faces. Jim Essian provides solid catching and Todd Cruz has been handed the shortstop position. If Jim Maler can handle first base, Bruce Bochte will move to

Manager Rene Lachemann is searching for starting pitchers to go with Floyd Bannister and Jim Beattie. The Mariners are high on teenage sensation Edwin Nunez. The bullpen stars lefty Shane Rawley.

The Minnesota Twins, with one of baseball's youngest teams, move from suburban Metropolitan Stadium to the Hubert Humphrey Metrodome in downtown Minneapolis. Manager Billy Gardner says the change means a transition to a speed-and-defense style.

Injuries stymied the Twins in 1981 and Gardner is looking for comebacks by catcher Butch Wynegar, shortstop Roy Smalley, center fielder Mickey Hatcher and third baseman John Castino, although Castino won't be available until midseason.

There are promising rookies galore in first baseman Kent Hrbek, shortstop Lenny Faedo, third baseman Gary Gaetti, catcher Tim Laudner and pitcher Brad Havens. Gardner thinks he has strong pitching in Havens, Pete Redfern, Al 42 and still kickin', Mom!

Prediction: California, Oakland, Kansas City, Chicago, Texas, Minnesota, Seattle.

Wetlich Promises Disciplined 'Horns'

AUSTIN (AP) - Bob Wetlich, 37, promises to bring discipline to the University of Texas basketball program as the new head coach.

"I very much believe in discipline," said fired Coach Abe Lemons' replacement. "I believe in good people, good athletes and good workers."

"I believe you should win with character, not characters."

Wetlich, who helped turn around the program at the University of Mississippi, was named to replace Lemons Friday.

Wetlich, was an assistant coach under Indiana's Bobby Knight for seven years at West Point and Indiana. He had been coach at Ole Miss for six years.

Texas Athletic Director Deloss Dodds made Wetlich his choice after Kansas State's Jack Hartman and Tennessee's Don DeVoe turned him down.

duration. Asked about following Lemons, Wetlich replied "You always have to follow someone."

He was quizzed about his emotional outburst against the referees after the Rebels were knocked out of the Southeast Conference Tournament.

"I was a bit loquacious in regard to the content of my statement," said Wetlich. "I don't have any regrets in what I was trying to say. We all wish we could go back and try to change some things."

Wetlich has an 82-87 career record.

He said the Longhorns will stress man-to-man defense spiced with an occasional zone.

Offensively, he said Texas will emphasize shot selection. Ole Miss led the SEC in field goal percentage and defense the last two years.

The 1980 Ole Miss team was the first to ever play in a national tournament (the NIT). Last year Ole Miss was 18-12.

Ponies Stretch Lead

The Coronado Mustangs widened the gap between themselves and the rest of District 4-5A as the Ponies shot a combined 341 in the loop's fourth golf round at Meadowbrook Golf Course in Lubbock Friday. CHS leads the league race with a 1,315 total, giving them a 25-stroke advantage over second-place Plainview, which shot 365 Friday.

Monterey, which had a 363 Friday, is third with a 1,344 total, just ahead of the Hereford Whitefaces, who shot 365, and have a 1,353 total. Lubbock High is tied for seventh place with a 1,441 after a 365 Friday.

Hereford's David Dudding stands in third place in the individual medalist race after a 91 Friday. Coronado's Gilbert Moreno (81-310) leads the pack, while MHS' Brad Simnacher (86-319) is second. Dudding has a 325 aggregate.

In addition to Dudding's 91 Friday HHS coach James Salias got an 88 out of Frankie Garcia, while Bob Foster had a 95 and Brett Barrick had a 96. JV players' scores were Paul Jorde, 91; Greg Goebel, 90; Steve Fairweather and Alan Fairweather, 99s.

The loop linksters have rounds remaining at Plainview and Hereford the next two Fridays.

Mounted Troops Still Charging

MERCEDES, Texas (AP) — As a bugler sounds "Charge," the blue-shirted mounted troops of the U.S. Cavalry gallop off behind their waving standard in a trail of dust.

The scene is not from an insurance company's television commercial or a western movie.

It is acted out several times a month by regular troops of the Army's only mounted cavalry platoon.

These 16 men stationed at Fort Hood in Central Texas have given up driving tanks and other modern assignments to don 1880s-style uniforms, sabers, Colt .45-caliber pistols and 1873-model Springfield carbine rifles.

"All these guys live in two worlds," said platoon commander Lt. John Touchton of North Wildwood, N.J. "They have to be soldiers of the 1880s Indian Wars period, plus they still must maintain their training for the Army in the 1980s."

Touchton and his speciality unit travel the country performing 20-minute shows of close-order drills, fancy shooting and saber wielding.

They appeared recently at the Rio Grande Valley Livestock Show here after joining a group of civilians on a 70-mile trail ride from Port Isabel.

A soldier must be permanently assigned to the 1st Cavalry at Fort Hood, have a clean military record and have his commander's permission before taking a riding test to join the platoon.

The horseback duty generally lasts one year. After that, members usually rejoin their old units.

Platoon members must pass skill tests during their year's service to show they have not forgotten their modern training.

When not on the road seven to eight months a year, the unit pulls duty at ceremonies, weddings and "hauling Santa Claus around" at Fort Hood.

Although they wear the full western uniforms only during shows, the men stand out from other soldiers at Fort Hood with their riding boots, black cowboy hats and black belts.

"You definitely get some stares," Touchton said. "People sometimes just look at me on post and don't even salute."

The unique uniforms and travel make the assignment more a hobby than a job, said several Army cowboys.

"It's a terrific feeling. We're the only ones at Fort Hood dressed like that," said Spec. 4 Clifford Riggs of San Diego, Calif. "I once had a colonel come up to me and say, 'You're out of uniform.'"

The platoon gets kidded about being "goatropers and cowboys."

"The truth of it is that the people saying that wish they could be in it," said Pvt. Gary Park of Buffalo, N.Y. "They treat you like a person here, not a soldier. They treat you with respect."

The men range in age from 18 to 38. Members have come from all 50 states. Many but not all grew up riding horses or working on ranches.

A private organization of former members and supporters, the 1st Cavalry Association, supplies the horses and much of the equipment. It costs $3,000 to outfit one man and his horse, estimated Sgt. Ray Turner of Lampasas.

The sabers are authentic, dating to between 1861 to 1864. Many of the rifles also were originally issued in the 19th Century and later found among collections or donated by individuals.

Some of the saddles date from between 1900 to 1930 but the wood is weakening and reproductions are replacing them.

Saddle bags and leather gear are made at the Texas prison in Huntsville according to original specifications.

Horses must be 15 hands tall and dark with a minimum of white markings.

The men usually wear a five-button wool shirt over riding britches — the daily uniform of the Old West troopers. A five-button dress coat is issued for formal occasions.

Gloves, bandanas and saddle blankets complete the picture. Two men also ride a mule-drawn 1851 Studebaker wagon.

In the last year, the unit has had an 80 percent turnover. The new recruits say they are too busy learning the routine to have history lessons on their unit's past. The platoon has given up to 15 riding tests a day at Fort Hood to soldiers anxious to join.

The group rode in President Reagan's inaugural parade, the 1981 Cotton Bowl parade. It also went on a special trek to Valley Forge, Pa., for the 1976 bicentennial.

Spectators usually seem surprised to see soldiers on horseback.

"A lot of people ask us if we're that insurance company," said Pvt. Lance Hallman of Fort Worth. "We tell them those were the Hollywood boys."

The Army had an estimated 3,500 horses in 1935 before it phased out the mounted cavalry at the start of World War II. The 1st Cavalry was headquartered at Fort Bliss, outside El Paso, when it shipped out to the Pacific in 1941.

In 1971, the 1st Cavalry returned from Vietnam to Fort Hood and the horse platoon was organized.

During their travels, the modern cavalry troops have met many soldiers from earlier regiments, including one who said he rode in 1915 with Gen. John "Blackjack" Pershing against Pancho Villa, Touchton said.

Sgt. Barbara McArthur, one of four truckdrivers, is the only female soldier assigned to the unit. She does not ride in the shows but is in charge of the convoy of two horse trailers, an equipment trailer, flatbed trailer for the mule wagon, back-up truck, a pickup and several sedans.

"The guys were a little leery of me at first," said the Kiel, Wis., native. "I was a little leery too because I didn't know what to expect. I had never heard of the horse platoon until a truck driving position opened."

It takes up to three hours to get ready for each show by polishing the gear and grooming the horses.

The group charges into the arena with hoots and hollers as Touchton reads a program over a loudspeaker.

A tape recorder has replaced a live bugler.

After several precision riding drills, the men shoot out balloons while at a gallop in a marksmanship display with both pistols and rifles.

Others charge a series of sandbag targets with sabers. Without stopping their mounts, two riders simultaneously "rescue" two downed colleagues on foot.

When it's all over, many present-day troopers are thankful they can get in a car and ride to the next show.

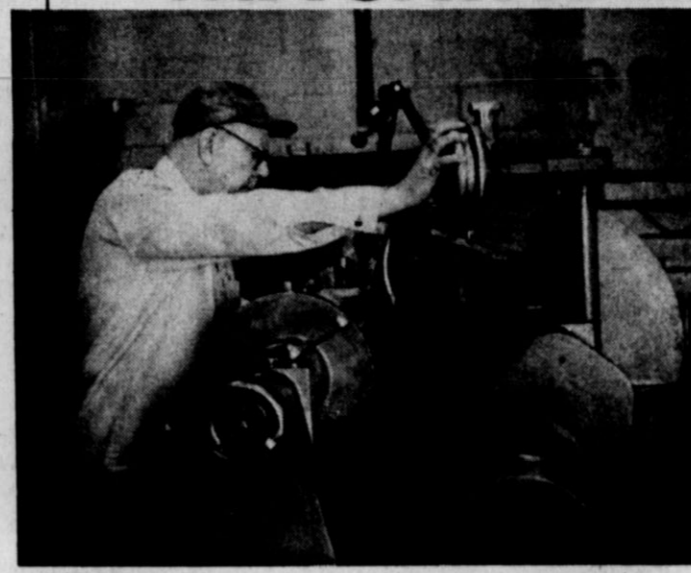

"I wonder how it was to ride across the desert," muses Hallman. "I don't see how them old boys could take it."

Pope Paul VI toured the Holy Land in 1964. He was the first pope to visit the region where Christ was born, and the first to leave Italy in over 150 years.

Drive Chairman

Charlotte Clark, chairman of the house-to-house drive scheduled Monday, April 19, looks over materials to be distributed. The Deaf Smith chapter of the American Cancer Society has set a campaign goal of $16,000. Volunteers are asking for generous community support in order to reach this goal.

Service and Rehabilitation

Peggy Oakes, RN at Deaf Smith General Hospital, is the Cancer Society chairman for service and rehabilitation. Services include volunteer transportation for local patients to treatment centers; equipment for loan such as wheelchairs, walkers, and crutches; and gift items like baby powder and dressings. Rehabilitation includes, among other things, the Reach to Recovery program for mastectomy patients, conducted locally by Katie Kendall, and the ostomy visitation program; as well as post laryngectomy speech lessons, which are available in Amarillo. For more information about any of these services contact Ms. Oakes at the hospital or at 364-2422.

Executive Board

service and rehabilitation chairman; Eloise McDougal, public information chairman; Kee Ruland, education chairman; Irene McKinster, memorials chairman; and Dr. A.T. Mims, president.

Public Education

Kee Ruland, public education chairman for the American Cancer Society, is shown manning the Cancer Society Booth at the Health Fair held last Tuesday. Educational programs are available to clubs, schools, and other organizations and anyone interested in scheduling a program of this type may contact Mrs. Ruland at 364-0857. Publicizing the seven warning signals of cancer and promotion of annual checkups as a preventive measure are two of the main thrusts of public education.

Crusade Volunteers

advisor; Peggy Oakes, RN, service and rehabilitation chairman; and Kee Ruland, public education chairman.

Disease Challenges Cancer Patient To Probe Values

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

Finding out that you have cancer can be quite a blow. After the initial shock and the trauma of surgery, there is a process of learning to cope with changes in lifestyle, and maybe more important than that, values must be sorted out which either strengthen one's faith or result in a sense of hopelessness and apathy.

In the case of Audelia Bustamante, a cancer patient who is known by all her friends as Sister Audie and who resides with seven other Sisters in St. Anthony's Convent, the process of sorting out values began when she found herself more limited in what she could do.

"In this society, you are valued according to what you produce and the work that you do," she says. "When I found myself limited, I began to ask the question, 'Who am I?'"

"Through the help of friends, many prayers, and a verse of scripture in II Corinthians 4:7 which tells me, 'But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us,'" says Sister Audie, "I discovered that no matter how invalid I am or may become, there is still something I can give to someone else."

And giving help and understanding to others is just what Sister Audie intends to do. She has joined the local chapter of the American Cancer Society, and is especially interested in being with people who are just beginning with their illness. "I think what has happened to me helps me to relate to other cancer patients," explains Sister Audie, who has undergone surgery five separate times for cancer of the soft tissue (liposacroma) on her right leg. Her first surgery took place in November of 1980 and her most recent operation was this past January.

"I like to attend a dialogue group on Thursday nights in Amarillo when I have a chance," she says, adding that "The group is made up of people who know what it is to go through it (cancer) and some are still going through it." Sister Audie is still in remission herself, hoping that she will not have to have any more surgery."

Sister Audie has taken courses in Amarillo called "I Can Cope," the purpose of which is to educate about cancer. The courses are for both patients and families, and they try to help those involved to work things out together.

Education is very important, according to Sister Audie. "One of my major disadvantages was that I was not educated in any area of cancer when I was first told of my illness," she remembers. "Now I know."

"People almost always equate cancer with death," she adds. "I was guilty of that too, but learned differently. I can share that with people."

Sister Audie is really just beginning her involvement in structured programs of helping other cancer patients cope with their illness. "I was surprised to find out how many people in this town alone need help," she comments.

"I consider myself very blessed," she adds. "People of my religious community were always there, whereas some people have no one to turn to."

This past week Sister Audie attended a training session in Amarillo for an organization called Can-Sur-Mount. The program involves cancer patients visiting other cancer patients to share experiences, fears, encouragement and advise from someone who's "been there."

"We would like to start a group like this in Hereford if we can get enough involvement here," says Sister Audie.

During the weekend she is attending a Supportive Care Workshop sponsored by the Don & Sybil Harrington Institute in Amarillo. This workshop is geared towards nurses, doctors, ministers, and anyone else who is working in a professional area. The idea is to treat all areas of the person, she says, including emotional, social and spiritual, as well as physical.

Sister Audie mentions that the workshop is also beneficial to workers in the Hospice program, in which there is a live-in house for advanced cancer patients, with nurses always available, and doctors and ministers easily accessible. For these terminal patients, the main objective is to make them as comfortable as possible.

Another program which is available to cancer patients is Home Care Nurses. These professionals are able to provide in-depth adjustment training and advice after the patient has gone home. They go into the patient's home and work with him or her as needed.

Sister Audie first entered an Amarillo hospital in November of 1980, after having moved to Hereford in August of that year. She had been noticing a lump on her right leg for some time, which was growing very slowly, becoming more obvious all the time.

She had been treated for arthritis in Long Beach, Calif., where she had resided for the previous two years. After a Sister friend from the Convent recommended Dr. Edward F. Thomas, a bone and joint specialist in Amarillo, Sister Audie underwent a biopsy, which affirmed the cancer, and then had surgery to remove some tissue.

Dr. Thomas had referred Sister Audie to an oncologist, Dr. Edwin D. Savlov, who performed this surgery and four other operations, the last one taking place this past January. Two large tumors and the large muscle in her lower right leg were removed, causing a dropped foot, which necessitates the wearing of a brace.

"There was a lot of pain, especially at night, for about a month before the surgery," says Sister Audie. Following surgery, she had a series of X-ray radiation treatments and chemotherapy treatments, which were not painful in themselves because of the heavy medication which was administered simultaneously, but had side effects such as loss of hair for the duration of the treatments.

Chemotherapy was stopped after ten treatments. The main thing about that period, remembered Sister Audie, was how draining the experience was. "I was tired all the time and not hungry at all," she says.

Sister Audie went in for X-rays, blood tests, etc, once a week at first, and now goes back every six weeks.

Dr. Savlov, who did the surgery and took care of Sister Audie during her hospital stays, "really impressed me because he looked at me as a person with varied interests," says Sister Audie. "What I liked about him was that he didn't talk about my sickness, but after asking 'How are you?' he talked about other things. I really enjoyed getting my mind on other subjects and he was sensitive to that."

Sister Audie's first reaction after finding out about the cancer was "so be it. There was nothing I could do about it so I accepted the situation. Prayers from friends at St. Anthony's and St. Joseph's helped to pull me through it," she says, "and gave me the strength to continue accepting whatever happened. I suppose it took that to really make me realize the power of prayer."

Although Sister Audie did not have an initial reaction of anger and resentment, as many patients do, her feelings of anger came in a milder sense later on during times of recovery when she couldn't get up and do things for herself that she had always done. Before she gained her strength back, she had to be dependent on others.

"I've always been a very independent and active person," says Sister Audie. "Even though my Sisters were very generous in help-

Wilcox, Sadler Marry Saturday

Miss Meredith Adrienne Wilcox and Daniel Patrick Sadler exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in a candlelight service at Christ the King Church in Tulsa, Okla. Officiating at the service was Father Joe Brooks of the church and Father Rick Brewer of Trinity Episcopal Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilcox of 205 Ranger and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Sadler of Perry, Okla.

The church was decorated with candles, baskets of Boston fern, English ivy and white daisies. The candles were lit by Brett Sadler of Amarillo, the bridegroom's nephew.

Miss Julie Wilcox of Houston served her sister as maid of honor and the bridegroom's father, J.D. Sadler, was best man. Mrs. Margaret Ann Gilmore of Norman, Okla. was matron of honor for her sister and Mark Sadler was groomsmen for his brother.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of imported silk eyelet over bridal satin. The Victorian style gown, with basque bodice buttoned down the back and gathered peplum pointed at the center, front and backover a full satin skirt.

The sleeves were long and fitted, pointed over the hands and buttoned to the elbow with tiny satin buttons. The bodice had a jeweled neckline with applied flowers of silk and these were accented with seed pearls. The skirt was rounded into a fan-shaped-train.

She wore a crown of gypsophila and stephanotis in her hair and carried cascading bridal bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis with English ivy and gypsophila.

Bridal attendants wore teal-length peacock blue silk dresses. They were fashioned with rounded necklines edged with a small ruffle of the same fabric as were the small puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of white daisies trimmed with English ivy and gypsophila.

The organist played the theme from Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet" and selections from Bach.

Ushers were Lenny Sadler of Amarillo, Tony Sadler of Perry, Mike Sadler of Pearl, Miss. and John Dolezal of Broken Arrow.

The reception was held in the Harwelden mansion. There was background music of piano and harp played by friends of the couple. Mary Breen of Tulsa registered the guests on an entry table covered with a hand crocheted cloth, hurricane lamps with large blue tapers surrounded with daisies and greenery.

The banquet table in the dining room was decorated with an antique crocheted cloth, with a peacock blue satin runner, silver candelabra, an antique silver basket filled with daisies, and ivy centered the table.

A cluster of gardenias topped the four-tiered cake which was ornamented with white sugar daisies and lattis work. More of the flowers and ivy circled the base of the cake and the silver punch bowl.

In the solarium, the banquet size table was covered with an antique crocheted cloth and had a peacock blue satin runner. A large silver bowl filled with daisies and greenery centered the table. White tapers were placed around the table where cheeses and fruit were served. Wine was served from an antique silver carafes.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Keith Kitchens of Shallowater, Mrs. Bill Carrothers of Hereford and Mrs. DeDe Blackman of Tulsa.

Mr. and Mrs. Sadler left on a wedding trip to Cancun and various points of interest in Mexico.

The bride was a Hereford High School graduate and also received her Bachelor of Science degree in nursing from the University of Texas School of Nursing in Galveston. She is an adolescent psychiatric nurse at Children's Medical Center.

Sadler is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and is a senior copywriter and art director at Davis and Matos Advertising Agency in Tulsa.

ing me and always seemed to be there when I needed them, it was hard to let someone else be in charge of things I'd always done myself."

"It was a struggle for them, too, seeing me suffer and not being able to ease the pain," she adds. "I began to realize that they were suffering too, in a different way, and I felt a responsibility to help them cope with the situation also."

"Your faith is tested during times like that," she emphasizes. And yet, with her attitude of acceptance and desire to help others cope in similar situations, Sister Audie has shown that she has endured the testing and feels a commitment and responsibility to go on, being grateful for the blessings she does enjoy.

Her lifestyle is less active, teaching part-time and substitute teaching, rather than running and jumping with a Kindergarten class, which was her main emphasis after earning a degree in Elementary Education. But with a positive outlook, Sister Audie has discovered new endeavors which might have been overlooked before, and her desire to help others who are struggling with cancer should serve to enrich her own life as well as those she is helping.

"I think nurses and doctors who've never gone through this experience themselves can only help you to a certain degree, even though they are very good and take care of the physical aspect," she says. "Someone who has been through a similar experience can relate to you on another level, and can understand what you're going through."

Holy Week Services Commence

By EDNA REINART
 Holy Week services at St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church commenced today, Palm Sunday - the commemoration of the Lord's entrance into Jerusalem.

Parishioners will gather in the school auditorium at 11 a.m. for the blessing of the palms and then will process to the Church for the liturgy of the day in word and in sacrifice. It is a joyous, public demonstration of our loyalty to Christ our King. The Passion of our Lord Jesus Christ according to St. Mark will be read during the liturgy of the word.

On Wednesday, April 7, a Communal Penance Service for Catholics will be held at 7:30 p.m. This is an opportunity for individual reception of the sacrament of reconciliation. Several priests will be available at this time, so please come.

Thursday, April 8 is the Feast of the Institution of the Eucharist. A Mass will be offered at 8:30 a.m. for the convenience of the elderly. The principal liturgy of the day will be offered at 8 p.m., after which there will be exposition of the Blessed Sacrament until mid-night.

Holy Thursday solemnly inaugurates "the triduum during which the Lord died, was buried and rose again" (St. Augustine). To these days Jesus referred when he prophesied: "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up again" (John 2:14).

Good Friday, April 9th, Stations of the Cross will be conducted at 4:30 p.m. preceding the liturgy of the day, which will include the reading of Christ's passion and death according to St. John. Veneration of the Cross and Holy Communion will conclude the services of the day.

There is no real presence of our Lord in the Church on Good Friday. Until the Easter Vigil Christians experience something of the great void felt by the apostles after the death of the Lord.

Holy Saturday, April 10th: The Easter Vigil - wherein we commemorate Christ's victory over sin and death - will be celebrated at 7 p.m. The liturgy is arranged in four parts: The service of Light; the Liturgy of the Word; the Renewal of Baptismal promises; and the Eucharist.

The service of light, the first part of the Easter Vigil, centers around fire or light, the visible token of Christ who proclaimed himself the Light of the World.

The Liturgy of the Word consists of seven readings from the Old Testament and two from the New.

As the day of resurrection approaches all present stand with lighted candles following the blessing of water to renew their baptismal profession of faith.

The Easter Vigil comes to its climax with the celebration of the Eucharist. No other mass throughout the year is so significant as this Easter Mass. For it is the solemn anniversary celebration of Christ's "pasch", his passage from death to resurrection.

Easter Sunday, the Feast of Resurrection, the masses are at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. The tests of this Mass show how the Lord's resurrection is a fact with a meaning for us here and now; as members of the risen Christ, we have access to a new life, the very life of God.

"This is the day the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad."

Olivo, Barrientos Are Married Saturday

Miss Noemi C. Olivo and Concepcion Barrientos exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon at the Spanish Assembly of God with the Rev. Flores officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Olivo of 427 Ave. C and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Julio Barrientos. Two seven-branch candlebra and silk flower arrangements flanked the church's main altar and pews were marked with white bows.

The bride's sister, Blanco Olivo, served as maid of honor and Manuel Hernandez, the bride's uncle, was best man.

Bridesmaids and their escorts included Estella Guilar and Victor Soliz, Sandra Almazan and Charles Ruiz, Amanda Almazan and Robert Amos, Adriana Valdez and Rudy Guzman, Lucy Amar and Isaac Gamboa, Patricia Saucedo and Irvey Balderez and Esmeralda Meza and Tommy Valdez.

Bridal couples were Messrs. and Mmes. Joe Garcia, Francisco Saucedo, Juan Hernandez, Don Olivo, Michael Padilla, Joe Saucedo, Juan Macias, Marcos Alaniz, David Hernandez, Frank Perez, Isodoro Olivo, Isidro Jimenez, and Rosilie Salinas and Mike Salinas.

Sharon Saucedo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Saucedo, was flower girl and Johnny Torres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benito Torres, was ring bearer.

The bride's brother, Martin Olivo Jr., and Ray Gonzales served as candlelighters.

Principal wedding selections, theme from "Ice Castle" and "He Has Chosen You For Me" were vocalized by Cindy Landin and Debbie Scroggins, who also played the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of silk organza over bridal taffeta. The bodice was covered with Alencon corded lace and matching lace was used for the trimming on the Queen Anne neckline.

The full length sleeves were detailed at the wrists with Alencon lace and were trimmed at the sleeves' edge with organza ruffles.

The gown's skirt, which was bordered with Alencon lace with an organza ruffle at the gown's edge, formed a chapel length train.

The floor-length bridal veil of French illusion which was bordered with a nine-inch re-embroidered Chantilly lace, was attached to an orange blossom and crystal crown. The blusher veil was also decorated with matching two-inch Chantilly lace.

She carried a bouquet made of orange blossoms and crystal flowers trimmed with satin ribbons. As a good luck piece, she wore a diamond necklace which was given to her by her parents.

Attendants were attired in rainbow colored gowns and elbow length gloves and hats decorated with ribbons that matched their dresses. They carried long stem carnations.

Brenda Flores invited guests to the reception held at Wesley Methodist Church.

Mary Ann Garcia and Rosilie Salinas served cake, and punch was poured by Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Munoz.

The bride's three-tiered cake, which was placed over a water fountain, was surrounded by six heart-shaped miniature cakes decorated with baby's breath and other rainbow colored flowers made of gum paste and buttercream.

The groom's German chocolate hexagon shaped cake was formed in the shape of grape clusters. Grapes were arranged around the cake which was made by Mrs. George Cervantez.

The couple will make their home at 607 Irland Street in Hereford.

The bride will graduate from Hereford High School in May and the bridegroom is employed at Hereford Bi-Products.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Vasquez and Mr. and Mrs. Claudio Jemenez Sr. of Eagle Pass; Mmes. and Mmes. Frutoso Conterez, David Hernandez and Adolfo Hernandez, all of Uvalde; Mr. and Mrs. Isodoro Olivo and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perez of San Antonio; and Don Olivo of Del Rio.

The prospective bridegroom is a 1977 graduate of Hereford High and is currently employed at West Texas Rural Telephone Co-op.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

Special thanks to all of the people who helped and contributed to the Chili Supper. Elaine Taylor was honored as Volunteer of the Year and Louis Orthman won the quilt. The Uniformed Volunteers will meet Thursday at 12 noon at the Red Cross office. The Board of Directors will meet April 20 at 12 noon at the Red Cross office.

Volunteers working with the Physical Therapy program at Westgate and any other interested persons are invited to attend a program to be given by John Cox, Physical Therapist at the Hospital. John will be presenting a talk on range of motion exercises and body mechanics Wednesday, April 23 at 3:30 p.m. at Westgate.

The American Red Cross is a network of 3,053 local chapters providing a variety of courses in safety and health plus community services such as blood pressure clinics, first aid stations and nutrition information. They assist members of the armed forces, veterans and their families, give disaster aid and many other services.

The chapter offer immediate emergency assistance—food, shelter, clothing and medical care—in the event of local or national disaster.

The Red Cross cooperates with government and other voluntary agencies to alleviate the suffering of disaster victims and to develop disaster preparedness programs. The possibility of earthquakes, nuclear accidents or hazardous waste spills increases the need for disaster preparedness.

President Reagan visited a Red Cross shelter in Ft. Wayne, Ind. recently and called it a great example of volunteerism at work.

The Red Cross is continuing emergency assistance to residents who have been forced from their homes and also to relief workers in the area of northern Indiana, northwestern Ohio, and southeast Michigan due to continued flooding.

Additional Red Cross personnel have been assigned to the affected areas to assist with the relief operations.

Dentists Detect Cancer
Dentists can recognize abnormal tissue changes and detect oral cancer at an early and curable stage, says the American Cancer Society.

Natural Protection
The black population, because of heavy skin pigmentation, has negligible risk of skin cancer, says the American Cancer Society.

Quitters are Gaining
Some 54 million Americans continue to smoke more than 630 billion cigarettes each year, but the American Cancer Society reports that there are now 53.3 million ex-smokers, up from 31.5 million 3 years ago.

Early Warnings
Today there are 2 million Americans cured of cancer which was diagnosed early enough for treatment. The American Cancer Society urges everyone to learn the warning signs of cancer.

It's common knowledge that a bathing suit makes for lousy camouflage, even if you're trying to hide just a few extra pounds. And losing those extra pounds can be tough. But it shouldn't involve starvation, drugs or strenuous exercise. Because losing weight can be completely natural.

Hereford Diet Center is in the weight loss business. We've helped thousands of people lose thousands of pounds. Our program is a doctor approved, nutritionally sound diet. No starvation. No drugs. The program is backed by individual counselors who determine the special reasons you are overweight. Daily counseling is prescribed for members to help them stay on the diet, along with nutritional behavior classes.

And after you've lost the weight, we have a free program to make sure it stays off. When you get serious, get with the program. Call us.

MRS. CHARLES MCGOFFIN
...nee Kelley Anne Daniels

Vows Exchanged In Recent Ceremony

Kelley Anne Daniels and Charles Roy McGoffin were married recently at the home of her aunt, Ethel Smith of Amarillo, with the Rev. Frank Hardy of Lubbock officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bill Craig of Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. McGoffin of Amarillo.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Denise Bailey of Canyon and best man was Robert Payne of Amarillo.

Given in marriage by her brother, Joe Don Daniels of Hereford, the bride wore a graceful floor-length ivory gown trimmed in wide lace with attached trailing capelet dipping to a V-shaped back.

She wore a lavalier which had been worn by her grandmother, aunt and her mother at their weddings.

Carrying out the blue and ivory theme, silk flowers and the wedding cake were used to decorate the main table.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home where wedding cake, punch and champagne were served.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

Cancer in Men
Although the 5-year survival rate for all cases of testicular cancer is 68%, its most common form — seminoma — has a survival rate approaching 100% in cases detected and treated early, according to the American Cancer Society.

Thousands Could be Saved
About 139,000 people with cancer will probably die in 1982 who might have been saved by earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment, reports the American Cancer Society.

Texas Congressional Leaders Kick Off March Of Dimes 'WalkAmerica'

Senator Lloyd Bentsen has been named the Texas Senatorial Honorary WalkAmerica Chairman, and Congressman Jim Collins has been named the Texas Congressional Honorary WalkAmerica Chairman for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Both Senator Bentsen and Congressman Collins, along with Texas Representatives, E. de la Garza, Kent Hance, James Wright, Jack Hightower, Marvin Leath, Martin Frost, and Tom Loeffler, were participants in the first Congressional WalkAmerica which took place on March 31, at noon, on the Capitol grounds.

The Congressional WalkAmerica was a symbolic kick-off for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation's nationwide fund-raising event, WalkAmerica '82.

These Texas congressional leaders were among one hundred and forty-five senators and representatives from 45 states who were assembled to show their support for the prevention of birth defects, and urge their constituents to join WalkAmericas organized by March of Dimes local chapters for the April 24-25 weekend.

On WalkAmerica weekend, March of Dimes chapters will sponsor 30-kilometer community walks where walkers raise funds through pledges for the distances that they cover. The funds support March of Dimes research, medical service, and education programs to fight America's major child health problem ... birth defects.

The Congressional Walkers were joined by six youthful television celebrities, Morgan Brittany, Dean Butler, Claudia Lonow, Andrea McArdle, Ted McGinley, and Adam Rich, who will be visiting 19 other cities to promote WalkAmerica.

Scholarships Offered

WTSU -- Twelve $200 scholarships are being offered by the West Texas State University Department of Speech and Theatre for the 1982-83 academic year.

These scholarships are for students who will attend WTSU in 1982-83 and major in speech communication, radio-television, speech and hearing therapy or theatre.

A student must have at least a 2.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and a record of participation in speech or theatre activities at the school the student is attending.

Scholarship applications may be obtained from Dr. Ray Ewing from the Department of Speech and Theatre and should be returned no later than Thursday, April 15.

Scholarship winners will be notified by Saturday, May 1.

Funds for these scholarships are made available by the Friends of Fine Arts at WTSU.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Do you know how many people have never had a room of their own?

Most of us start life in a crib in our parents' bedroom, and later are paired off with brothers and sisters in another room.

At camp, we're arranged like iced-tea spoons in a drawer, and at college, stacked together with a roomful of strangers. If we serve in the army, we couch as a group.

Marriage once again throws us together with a roommate with whom we must share closets, cabinets and the very blanket we sleep under.

Most of us have never even had the luxury of being in the hospital alone — only semi-private.

In the '60s, when young people were into "communal living," I could only assume they were all "only children" looking for a cheap crowd thrill. Who in their right mind would want to drag through life like a loaf of sliced bread?

I had a friend who was one of seven children. As one of a crowd, she led a special kind of life. Her mother always called her by six names before she got it right. Since her mother sewed to save money, she always wore dresses that matched a shower curtain. She never got a car window in her lifetime.

She fantasized about a "room of her own." Heaven to her was a quiet little corner with a ceiling of blue sky and a carpet of white clouds. The door locked from the inside only, and you couldn't even open it with a skewer from the outside. The bed was never made and you could polish your toenails in the middle of it without someone "telling." You had so many hangers you didn't have to "double up" and your clothes were never jammed to the dark end of the closet.

Your hairbrush never had anyone else's hair in it and the stereo played only music you liked. You could put 2,000 thumbtacks in the walls if you wanted to — even gross posters and weird album covers. You could spread out all your stuff on the bureau end-to-end and stay up and read all night if you wanted to. Your window took commands only from you.

The room was absolutely soundproof. You could whisper and giggle until you fainted and no one would hear you. There were no keyholes for "spies."

Heaven...a room where you could be alone with your secrets and your dreams and for a little while escape the real world thrust upon you from the other side of the door.

Former Hereford Resident Weds

Miss Julie Hallows and Rex Myers, both of Salt Lake City, Utah, were married Thursday morning at Salt Lake LDS Temple with Benjamin Bowring officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Kay Hallows of Route 1 and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Van J. Myers of Salt Lake City.

The bride's sister, Linda Daniels, was matron of honor and the bridegroom's brother, Kevin Myers, served as best man.

Wyla Gene Seal and Jullyn Myers, both sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids and the room's cousin, Norval Myers, was groomsmen.

Kimberly Seal, daughter of Wyla Gene Seal, was flower girl.

Given in marriage by her brother Lane Hallows, the bride wore formal gown designed with an empire waistline and Queen Ann neckline. The bodice of the dress was trimmed with Chantilly and cotton Venice lace. The circular skirt of knit crepe fell into a chapel-length train.

The one-tier bridal illusion veil was edged in matching lace. She also wore a pearl necklace with matching earrings.

She carried a bouquet consisting of silk wine colored lilies and dusty rose lilies sprinkled with white stephanotis.

Bridal attendants wore dusty rose gowns.

The bridegroom's sister-in-law, Sidney Myers, invited guests to register at the reception held at the Lion House, an home originally occupied by the Brigham Youngs.

The structure, which was built in 1855-56, reveals the beauty of the Victorian period evident in the Banquet, Gable and Buffet rooms that accommodate large groups for receptions.

The three-tiered white cake, decorated with fresh flowers cascading down the sides, was served by Scott Mower and Kip Myers.

After a wedding trip to points of interest in the West, the couple will make their home after April 10 in Salt Lake City.

The bride, who is a 1977 Hereford High School graduate of Hillcrest High School, attended the University of Utah and served an LDS mission to British Columbia. He is self-employed.

A reception will honor the couple Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garth Thomas, located on west Park Ave. All friends and family members are extended an invitation.

Couple To Observe Golden Anniversary

Friends and relatives are invited to the 50th wedding anniversary reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Owen J. Stagner today from 3-5 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church.

The former Lille Clark of Darrrouzett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Clark, and her husband were married in the First Baptist Church at Beaver, Okla.

Stagner retired in 1972 after being a rural mail carrier for 41 years.

The couple have two children and four grandchildren. Their daughter, Donna Parrott of Knoxville, Tenn., is an elementary school principal and her husband Bob is a campus minister at the University of Tennessee.

Their son, Wayne Stagner of Farmington, N. M., is manager of marketing for Heath Corporation. His wife, the former Elaine Waldrop, is the niece of Mrs. Fritz Christman of Hereford.

New Book Involves Intrigue

By DIANNE PIERSON Librarian

"The Parsifal Mosaic," by Robert Ludlum, currently No. 1 on the New York Times Bestseller List, will head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. Robert Ludlum is the author of "The Bourne Identity" and "The Matarese Circle."

On a dark night along a deserted beach on Spain's Coasta Brava, a blond woman races across the sand, the sounds of the crashing surf and gunfire intermingling.

She is hit repeatedly, and sprawls on the edge of the coastal road, while high above, crouched in shadows, her lover watches the terrible violence below. He satisfies himself that the woman is dead, and disappears into the night.

Who is the woman? Why was she killed and, above all, why does Michael Havelock, a veteran field agent for a clandestine branch of the U.S. Department, who deeply loves her, witness the killing with resignation and even relief?

Why, especially, since three months later he sees the same woman rushing across a crowded platform in Rome's central train station?

Ludlum weaves a riveting tale of espionage and intrigue at the highest and lowest levels of international deception. "The Parsifal Mosaic" is without a doubt the fastest-paced, most complex and deeply satisfying novel Robert Ludlum has yet produced.

"The Dean's December" by Saul Bellow also heads the list of new books available this week. It is a tale of two cities, Chicago, Ill. and Bucharest, Rumania, a tale of East and West. It is also the story of a double crisis in the life of Albert Corde.

Corde, the Dean, is not a real academic but a newspaperman who returned to his hometown to be Professor of Journalism and, eventually, Dean of Students.

The action of this extraordinarily vivid book is rapid. Its language is tough, unsparring, penetrating, but brilliant and rich in feeling. Not only a tale of two cities, two worlds, "The Dean's December" is also a tale of love and death, and a stunning addition to our most distinguished novelist's body of work.

Other new books available this week include Diana Nyad's "Basic Training For Women," "Run Your Own Store" by Irving Burstiner, Ph.D. and "Wilton's Cake Decorating 1981-1982."

Library Events: Thursday Morning story hour 10 a.m. There will be a special EASTER PUPPET SHOW for all the children this week!! It will be entitled "The Bunny Who Slept Through Easter."

Cowgirl Hall Of Fame Dedication, Rhinestone Roundup Set April 17

Cowgirl Hall of Fame committee members are combining the official dedication of the Pitman home as the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center with the third annual Rhinestone Roundup on Saturday, April 17. The dedication will begin at 1:30 p.m., with open house following. The Rhinestone Roundup is set for 8 p.m. All festivities will be at the Hall's new location, 515 Ave. B. Dr. Lauro Cavazos, president of Texas Tech University and the Health Sciences Center in Lubbock, will give the dedicatory address. The Hereford Chamber Singers will perform, and also the Hereford High School band. Open house will be hosted by the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce. Invitations are being mailed out for the Rhinestone Roundup so that committee members will know how many to expect for the buffet, dance, and silent auction planned that evening. Anyone wishing to receive an invitation should call the Hall of Fame at 364-5252. Cost is $25 per person and those wishing to attend must R.S.V.P. by April 15. Six women will be named 1982 Western Heritage honorees during the Rhinestone Roundup. Honorary cowboy and cowgirl co-hosts for the evening will include Julian and Frances Berry, Dennis and Carolyn Canon, Jack and Jeanette Case, Brent and Kay

Lynn Caviness, Clint and Margaret Formby, Dickie and Glenda Gerles. Also Jack and Marie Griffin, Chip and Cathy Guseman, James and Poppy Head, Bill and Kathy Johnson, Jo Ellen Jorde, Bud and Georgia Sparks, Charles and Vera Threewit, and Jim and Elizabeth Witherspoon. A sampling of the items which will be featured at the Diamond Horseshoe Auction are works of art by Charles Lyles, Travis McPherson, Jean Lyles, R. Russell Brown, Sonja Paetzold, and Andy Wilks; an evening at The Deli for ten; dinner at the Hereford Country Club for six; a pictorial history of the U.S. Capitol given by U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen; a weekend for four at Lake Tawakani, east of Dallas, offered by Bill and Cora Gentry; and a Texas flag which has been flown over the State Capitol in Austin given by State Senator and Mrs. Bill Sarpaluis.

Invitation Committee

Members of the Cowgirl Hall of Fame invitation committee have been busy sending out invitations for the third annual Rhinestone Roundup, scheduled for Saturday, April 17 at the Hall's new location, 515 Ave. B. The Roundup begins at 8 p.m. and will feature a silent auction, buffet and dance, as well as naming of the 1982 Western Heritage honorees. Persons wishing to attend must call the Hall of Fame at 364-5252 for an invitation and R.S.V.P. card. From left are committee members Roberta Caviness, Margaret Golden, Jeanette Case, Pete Hodges, and Joan Coupe. Other who are not pictured include Karen Payne, Pat Lawson, Kitty Gault, Penny Jessup, and Gladys Cavness.

Would Like More Personal Treatment

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Virginia Quandary" hit a raw nerve. They wanted to know if it was proper to ask their soon-to-be-daughter-in-law to call them Mother and Dad. I hope they take your advice and do so at once. My parents taught me at an early age to respect my elders. I was never permitted to call any adults by his or her first name unless that person invited me to do so. I, too, am engaged to be married. I have known my future in-laws for nearly four years. I still call them Mr. and Mrs. Many times I have wondered why they never asked me to call them by their first names - or better yet, Mom and Dad. I can only assume they don't want me to get that familiar.

I hope all future in-laws will take this letter seriously. You can be sure the soon-to-be-spouse of your daughter or son would love to call you Mom and Dad, but they must be invited to do so. --One Who Is Waiting

DEAR ONE: I disagree. Not all soon-to-be-spouses want to call their in-laws Mom and Dad. I, for one, could never have called my beloved mother-in-law Mother. That name was reserved for my own mother. I did call my mother-in-law Gustie, however, from the moment we met, because she asked me to. Her warmth and open-heartedness would have made anything more formal seem ridiculous.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My best friend received an engagement ring from a young man she has been dating for three years. The diamond is so small you need a magnifying glass to see it. When Harriet showed me her ring, I had to be honest. I told her if he couldn't afford a diamond big enough to see, he should not have given her any engagement ring and put the money into a lovely wedding band.

Now Harriet is very cool to me. I don't think I owe her an apology, but I would like to know what to say to get things on the track. -- Not So Terra Firma in White Plains

DEAR NOT SO: You have said enough already. Your comments on Harriet's ring were unkind and uncalled for. Hope time heals the wound. I can't think of any way to clean up that one.

Dangerous Ingredients

Besides tar and nicotine, cigarette smoke contains poisonous gases such as hydrogen cyanide, volatile aromatic hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide. The American Cancer Society cites these as possible critical factors in coronary heart disease and fetal growth retardation.

Surprise Luncheon Held For Members

In observance of April Fool's Day, L'Allegria Study Club members celebrated with a surprise luncheon party. The group met at the Community Center parking lot and then were escorted to Milo Center for a luncheon in the newly built and decorated home of Jody Skiles.

Trays of food, which were prepared by Keith Ann Gearn and Chris Shaddell of the Deli, were enjoyed by those present. A brief business meeting was conducted by president, Carmen Flood. A thank you card was read from the American Cancer Society for the recent donations from club members.

Members were also reminded of the annual plant sale to be held April 24 in Sugarland Mall. A special acknowledgment of appreciation was made to Carlie Burdett for the outstanding program she presented earlier in March. The program consisted of several pieces of music she had composed.

Also, on the program was Rosie Griffin, who gave a dramatic reading to music composed by Mrs. Burdett. Joyce Allred, soloist, was also complimented for singing two gospel songs written by Mrs. Burdett.

Cigarette Watchdog
The American Cancer Society has urged Congress to appoint the Food and Drug Administration as cigarette watchdog, and to require manufacturers to disclose the chemical composition of their products.

Environmental Dangers
Environmental causes of cancer include cigarette smoking, says the American Cancer Society. About 20% of all cancers are directly related to tobacco use, either alone or in conjunction with excessive consumption of alcohol.

Reagan's Latest Farm Campaign Hits Some Blocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest government figures indicate the Reagan administration's campaign to boost U.S. farm exports has run into some formidable economic stumbling blocks. During the first five months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, the actual volume as well as the dollar value of commodity exports declined, the Agriculture Department said Thursday. Exports are a mainstay of the administration's market-

The five-month figures showed the quantity of commodity exports was down 2 percent from the same period in 1980-81 and the value down 8 percent.

No new projections for the entire fiscal year were announced. But the department said six weeks ago that after increasing for 12 consecutive years, exports in 1981-82 probably will decline in value to about $42.5 billion, down 3 percent from $43.8 billion the previous year.

At that time, analysts said export volumes are expected to increase about 4 percent this year to 169.2 million metric tons from 162.3 million in 1980-81.

The new report, issued by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, said the "major portion of the decrease thus far" has been in corn exports. During the five-month period, corn shipments were down 26 percent in volume and 40 percent in value from a year earlier.

Corn exports recently have been reduced sharply to Japan, Brazil and Mexico, the report said.

Wheat export quantities were up 11 percent and soybeans up 34 percent. Cotton shipments were up 12 percent and tobacco up 9 percent.

Shipments of oilseeds and oilseed products to the Common Market countries during October-February were up 45 percent in volume from the previous year's reduced level.

Wheat exports increased mainly because of sales to India and the Soviet Union, the report said.

Tobacco shipments were up from a year earlier mainly due to "substantial increases" in orders from Japan, West Germany, Taiwan, Spain and Thailand.

The report said the overall decline in farm exports was related to improved grain production in the importing and competitor countries, lower prices and "generally sluggish economic conditions exacerbated by high interest rates and the strength of the U.S. dollar."

Last year's record U.S. crop production put downward pressure on prices, resulting in much of the value decline in the export total.

"More recently, the collapse of the Polish economy and difficulty in financing trade with other Eastern bloc countries have seriously affected U.S. feed grain exports to these countries," the report said.

Forage Study Set April 8

THROCKMORTON -- Several years of research on mineral supplementation of normally low quality winter range forage will be reported here April 8 at the field day of the Texas Experimental Ranch.

Also to be featured in the morning program will be reports and exhibits of research on a short duration grazing system, control of pricklypear cactus, and response of livestock and vegetation to grazing management.

The program begins at 8:30 a.m. and concludes with a barbecue lunch at noon, said Dr. Earl C. Gilmore, resident director of research with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) at Vernon. Tours begin at 9:30 a.m. The experimental ranch is on U.S. Hwy. 183 and 283 between Throckmorton and Seymour. It is 11 sections on the Throckmorton Ranch of the Swen R. Swenson Cattle Co.

For the past two years, the ranch has conducted research with potassium supplements for one of two herds on heavily stocked, continuously grazed land, and one of three herds in the deferred rotation system, explained Dr. Bruce Johnson, TAES assistant professor of animal nutrition at the ranch. Tests also were started last fall to investigate the effects of phosphorous supplementation.

Another feature of the tours will be a visit to the cell-designed short duration grazing system (SDG) at the ranch. The Texas Experimental Ranch began research on a 14-pasture, one-herd SDG system in March 1982, Heitschmidt said.

Since its inception in 1957, the Texas Experimental Ranch has conducted research on livestock responses to rates of stocking, type of grazing system and level of winter supplementation of feed; long-term vegetation response to grazing treatments; effects of stocking and grazing systems on rate of water infiltration and sediment, production and calf growth and development.

The Texas Experimental Ranch is a cooperative venture of ranchers, businessmen and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, part of the Texas A&M University System. Pasture and livestock are provided by the Swenson Land and Cattle Co., TAES provides personnel and funds for research, and citizens formed the Texas Experimental Ranch Committee to raise private funds for construction of facilities. The committee also serves as a lay advisory board.

Spring Planting Making Progress

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas farmers are continuing with planting operations in southern, central, coastal and eastern areas.

Spring planting has been making good progress although several days of cool, wet weather the past week caused some slowdown, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Corn and grain sorghum planting is under way in north central and eastern areas but is generally complete in southern, central and coastal areas.

Cotton planting is about complete in the Rio Grande Valley and 80 percent of the acreage has been planted in the Coastal Bend. Planting is active in South Central Texas and along the Upper Coast and is about to start in the Central Texas Blacklands.

Rice planting also continues in coastal areas, noted Pfannstiel.

Farmers in western areas and the plains are continuing with land preparation, preplant irrigations, and the application of fertilizer and herbicides (chemical weed killers). Planting of onions, potatoes and sugar beets continues in some counties.

Texas' wheat crop continues to make good progress, said Pfannstiel, although some areas still need rain. Farmers in the High Plains are irrigating wheat because topsoil moisture is short. Most cattle that have been grazing wheat have been moved off fields to allow a grain crop although some producers plan to graze out wheat fields due to poor grain prices.

Harvesting activities remain active in the Rio Grande Valley. About 31,000 acres of sugarcane have been harvested to date, and citrus harvesting continues, with 19 percent of the grapefruit, 2 percent of the early oranges and 60 percent of the late oranges still to be picked.

Harvesting of lettuce, carrots, cabbage, onions and greens continues in the

Grazing conditions are continuing to improve over Texas, said Pfannstiel, and that should give a boost to livestock after a fairly harsh winter. However, ranchers in some western areas are still feeding livestock due to poor grazing caused by dry conditions.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Wheat continues to look good but needs rain; some farmers are irrigating. Cattle are being moved off wheat to allow a grain crop. Those on grazing-out wheat are making excellent gains. Some onions, potatoes and sugar beets are still being planted. Land preparation continues for spring crops.

SOUTH PLAINS: Land preparation for spring planting continues in full swing, including preplant irrigation. Most onions, potatoes and sugar beets have been planted. Wheat continues to make good progress, with some irrigation. Livestock and range conditions continue to improve with warmer weather.

ROLLING PLAINS: Small grains are making excellent growth due to recent rains. Some small grains will be grazed out due to low grain prices. Cropland preparation continues and vegetables are being planted. Cattle are in fair to good condition; some sheep shearing has started.

NORTH CENTRAL: Corn is up to excellent stands and farmers are planting grain sorghum. Wheat is in the jointing stage and looks good. Oats are also making good growth. Fruit trees are blooming and pecan buds are about ready to break. Livestock conditions continue to improve as more green grazing becomes available.

Research Board Supports Proposed Science Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Agricultural Research and Extension Users Advisory Board has announced its general support of the administration's proposed budget for food and agricultural sciences.

The board said Monday in a report sent to the White House and Congress that the Agriculture Department "should mainly emphasize and support basic programs not funded by other federal agencies, by states or by private concerns."

But it added that the federal government "must also conduct research where it is the primary beneficiary, particularly when it is the responsible steward of a public resource, such as forests and rangelands."

The board said it is appropriate that state and private funds be spent for food and bigger research where the benefits flow primarily to state and private sectors.

"However, the national agricultural system should have the capability to respond to urgent national needs and to stimulate innovations in technology that can lead to productivity growth," the report said.

Congress established the board as independent group to develop recommendations on needs and budget priorities for research and extension in the food and agricultural sciences.

The board's members represent a wide array of interests, including producers, suppliers, processors and transporters of agricultural commodities, forest and aquaculture products.

The 50-star U.S. flag was raised officially for the first time on July 4, 1960.

SEVENTY-FIVE COUNTIES have requested participation in the imported ant program as of the March 1 deadline. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced. The infestation of imported fire ants is much more widespread than in the past, with 170 counties officially recognized as infested.

Wheat Board President Named To Ag Committee

Texas Wheat Producers Board and Producers Association Executive Vice President, Bill Nelson, of Amarillo, has received word from the White House of his appointment to the joint USTR-USDA Agricultural Policy Advisory Committee. Office of Presidential Personnel, Deputy Director, J. Michael Farrell, indicated that the appointment was at the personal joint requests of U.S. Trade Representative, William E. Brock III and Secretary of Agriculture, John R. Block.

This committee is part of an advisory committee program which was established in the Trade Act of 1974 to ensure that a formal mechanism existed between government officials and the private sector regarding international trade negotiations. Nelson has attended Colorado State and Oklahoma State Universities and holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in Agricultural Economics and Marketing. His quest for expanded new markets for Texas and U.S. wheat and feed grains has taken him to virtually every state that produces, markets or utilizes these crops and into over sixty countries on five continents.

Government Cancels Contract Requirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has decided not to require written contracts between shippers and haulers for interstate movement of agricultural commodities otherwise exempt from federal regulation. Officials said Monday the Agriculture Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission decided not to require such contracts after studying the issue for more than a year. Congress required the study in the Motor Carrier Act of 1980.

EGGPLANT RINGS

Mrs. Lois M. McCann, Victoria

- 2 lb. ground top round
- 3 T. vegetable oil
- 1/2 C. finely chopped onion
- 1/2 C. finely chopped green pepper
- 1 T. finely chopped chili pepper
- 1 tsp. minced garlic
- 2 T. flour
- 3 med. finely chopped tomatoes
- 1/4 C. water
- 1 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- Salt to taste
- 3 finely chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
- 1 T. finely chopped capers
- 2 T. vinegar
- 2-3 lg. eggplants
- 4 beaten eggs
- Sifted dry bread crumbs
- Vegetable oil

Place 3 tablespoons vegetable oil and ground round in a skillet over medium heat. Break up meat with fork. Add onion, green pepper, chili pepper and garlic. Cook 5 minutes while stirring. Add 2 tablespoons flour and stir another 3-4 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, water, salt and pepper. Remove from heat and add olives, capers and vinegar, mixing well. Cut eggplants crosswise in 1-inch thick slices. Peel each slice. Scoop out pulp to make a well, leaving 3/8-inch border around each ring and about 1/8-inch at bottom. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Fill each slice with eggplant meat mixture, packing mixture down and smoothing it until it is even with the edges. Dip in egg and coat with bread crumbs. Heat 4-5 inches of vegetable oil in skillet to 375 degrees F. Fry approximately 5 minutes, turning to brown sides evenly. Arrange rings overlapping on hot platter. Garnish with tomato slices and avocado halves. Serves 6-8. Approximately $2 per serving.

Amarillo Stock Show Succumbs To Tri-State

In a meeting held this week, the Executive Committee of the Amarillo Tri State Fair decided to discontinue sponsorship of the Amarillo Stock Show, effective immediately, in order to devote more time and effort toward an expanded Tri State Fair in 1983. The 1983 fair will be extended to cover eight days, rather than six days, and more emphasis is to be placed on junior animals, say fair officials.

New departments for juniors to be added to the fair will include a steer show, a beef heifer show and a livestock judging contest. Shows for lambs, barrows, capons and rabbits will be continued and expanded for junior exhibitors. As in the past, juniors eligible for the fair will be those originating from thirty-five counties of the High Plains Area.

Complete Coverage of Texas' Leading Area in Cattle and Agriculture.

Beef Promotion Starts April 12

AUSTIN—Texas cattlemen are contributing more than $1 million to a $7 million national advertising campaign in an attempt to increase beef sales. The campaign by the Beef Industry Council (BIC) of the National Livestock and Meat Board is more than seven times larger than the industry's previous efforts.

The promotion, "Nothing Satisfies Like Beef," will begin April 12 with radio and television commercials, advertising in national consumer magazines, billboards and posters.

In Texas it is being financed by a voluntary 25-cent-per-head check-off fee. Texas, with the largest number of cattle in the country, is contributing more than any other state.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown applauded the beef industry for uniting to promote their product. "It is high time that we get the message out that beef is good for you," said Brown. "Cattle costs have outstripped prices for two years. Promoting beef aggressively may help to turn these figures around."

Part of the funds are going into research and education, "which can provide practical, long-term solutions," the commissioner added.

The Texas Department of Agriculture will cooperate with the Beef Industry Council in distributing posters, recipes and other information to retail outlets around the state.

Retail promotion is an important part of the campaign. Last fall beef sales increased 5-24 percent during a trial promotion in stores in six cities. Stores that did not participate experienced no change.

Television beef commercials will appear during prime time programs, soap operas, talk shows and the news. Twenty-two top consumer markets will also receive a heavy scheduling of spot TV ads. Emphasis will be placed on moderate to heavy beef users, who represent two-thirds of all consumers and 85 percent of all beef eaters. Commercials will be shown during spring, summer, winter and fall.

BIC will try to reach "light users," the third of the population that consumes 15 percent of the beef, through research and educational information.

Certain Crop Loans May Be Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers who have federal price support loans on certain 1980 and 1981 grain crops can them for an additional year, says the Agriculture Department.

Undersecretary Seeley Lodwick said Thursday the option "is being offered because prices for these commodities are currently low."

The extension applies to all 1980-crop loans on barley, corn, oats, grain sorghum and wheat, and all 1981-crop loans on barley, oats, rye and wheat.

Farmers can get loans on crops, which are used as collateral. Normally, when market prices are higher than the loan rates, farmers repay the loans plus interest and then are eligible to sell or otherwise dispose of their commodities as they choose.

If the loans are not repaid, the department cancels the debt and assumes ownership of the commodities.

Producers who choose to extend their loans will be charged an interest rate of 12.25 percent through Dec. 31. The rate will be subject to change Jan. 1 to reflect the cost of borrowing money from the Treasury.

Farmers who want to extend their loans should contact their local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Lodwick said.

Ring Around Seed

More Life from the Land.

RA 450 hits 80.72 bu/a, all-time Texas high.

The Texas Soybean Association's 1981 yield winner, Mike Carthel of Lockney, says he'll "put Ring Around's soybeans up against anybody's." Carthel planted Ring Around Mitchell 450, the variety that offers growers a real advantage when it comes to shatter scores, standability and phytophthora resistance. And, in spite of dry weather on the High Plains and weakened underground irrigation, he came up a winner with 80.72 bu/a and a new high for the state.

BRED FOR SUCCESS

Yields like this are only part of the Ring Around soybean story. For example, Ring Around research is responsible for time-tested Mitchell soybeans and has also developed RA 480 especially for the High Plains of Texas. RA 480 gives good shatter resistance and can take the highest pH of any known soybean variety.

A GUARANTEED STAND

In addition to the latest research and the highest quality, Ring Around gives you one of the strongest guarantees ever. When you plant Ring Around brand soybeans, you're guaranteed a satisfactory stand—or we'll replace each and every bag for replanting during the 1982 planting season. While your seed might not make a stand for virtually any reason—frost, drought or other problems (anything, in fact, except chemical damage or intentional destruction)—the guarantee still stands. And that's true regardless of which high yielding Ring Around proprietary soybean variety you buy. No guarantee on public varieties, of course. Just remember—no stand, no problem. Ring Around guarantees it.

Compared To Opponents, Armstrong Is Pauper

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Perhaps the best measure of 1982 Texas politics is that Bob Armstrong, rancher-lawyer-pilot-land commissioner, is the poor boy in the Democratic gubernatorial primary field.

"Somebody said, 'You ought to have a singing group like (former Gov.) Pappy Lee O'Daniel did. Except you could call your group Bob Armstrong and the Light Crust No-Dough Boys,'" Armstrong said during a campaign swing.

Armstrong is not a no-dough boy. His father was a Ford dealer when Ford dealers made money. His three children go to expensive private schools, including Amherst in Massachusetts and Hockaday in Dallas.

But compared to his Democratic opponents are expected to spend, Armstrong is a pauper. Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple is heir to timber and publishing fortunes. Attorney General Mark White has been able to tap big-money sources.

That leaves Armstrong with a campaign of people, faces and names. Armstrong, an affable 49-year-old, told a San Angelo supporter, "This is what I do for a living and I enjoy it."

His airborne campaign toured West and North Texas this past week. The candidate sometimes took the controls of the four-seat, single-engine Cessna campaign plane, a 1968 aircraft with a new paint job. It's owned by Armstrong and several friends, the "Pot Bellied Pilots, Inc."

Armstrong supporters along the way were enthusiastic, if not legion. The drill was similar in each town, a supporter picked up Armstrong and fed him names of people who would be at the local event.

Armstrong played the rancher role at the Mexican lunch in Lubbock. "I know what it's like to borrow to feed. I just made the decision to feed through the winter and wait for prices to go up," said Armstrong, who has a ranch in Liberty Hill in Central Texas.

The code word for Armstrong — it was heard at several stops — is "good Democrat," meaning he was willing to go down with the George McGovern and Jimmy Carter presidential ships. Armstrong headed those efforts in Texas.

Neva Hall, a white-haired, 82-year-old stenographer, said she likes Armstrong because he reminds her of Harry Truman.

It's an image Armstrong has cultivated. He spent $200,000 on TV ads showing him quoting Truman about elections not being for sale.

Armstrong said the ads have been effective. Now it may be a question of whether Armstrong can get enough money to run enough ads before May 1.

"There's no truth to the rumor that Harry Truman is now leading the governor's race in Texas," Armstrong said at West Texas Democrats' headquarters here, across the street from Snidely Whiplash's Pawn Shop.

Armstrong believes the old-fashioned whirlwind tours should be more valuable than television time. He just wants voters to remember the Armstrong name. "I hope they'll vote for Jack Armstrong or Neil Armstrong or Anne Armstrong," said Bob Armstrong, plugging a chaw of Levi Garrett into his mouth.

"Liberals support me, moderates support me, conservatives support me. Willie Nelson supports me," he said. Nelson sent $25,000, the largest single contribution, in lieu of a Houston benefit concert that could not be arranged.

As the Lubbock stop ended, the "poor" candidate tucked campaign donation checks into his wallet.

"There's three of them. We're leaving Lubbock with a little airplane money," he said.

The Austin native said he, Temple and White have similar ideas on many issues. Their ideas, basically, are traditionally Democratic. Education is a top campaign priority with all three. The No. 1 priority is to get rid of Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

Armstrong says he has done a better job as land commissioner than White has done as attorney general or Temple has done as a state representative or railroad commissioner.

For three terms, Armstrong has run the land office, which manages state-owned lands and mineral leases on the land. The money raised is dedicated to public schools. The total has jumped from $65 million a year to $778 million a year during Armstrong's 11 years.

There were no huge crowds in Lubbock, but Armstrong seemed pleased, especially because the television cameras turned out for the news conference. Each TV news crew that shows up is worth $1,500 worth of TV ads, said Armstrong.

Excitement about the governor's race has been slow in coming, said Armstrong.

"It's been very flat up until now. I felt like I was walking through molasses," he said.

At the Lubbock airport, Armstrong acts like a kid at a car show, leaning to look into several small planes. Each one is the plane he "would really" like to have, until he looks into the next one.

Earlier, in Amarillo, the Armstrong for Governor campaign was delayed so the candidate could watch the Space Shuttle landing on television.

Armstrong piloted his plane to San Angelo. Local lawyer Sam Sparks picked him up at a hotel. Already on board the lushly carpeted van are Dain Whitworth and former U.S. Rep. Bob Gammage, two candidates for the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin.

Sparks said the first stop would be Al Celaya for County Clerk headquarters, where about 12 Mexican-Americans are meeting. Sparks said the group is leaning toward Temple, but a few handshakes couldn't hurt. It was a quietly tense meeting, with one of the local Mexican-Americans complaining about a "great gap between the Hispanics and the Anglos" in politics.

No promises were made and no support offered. Pete Chapa, chairman of the group, thanked Armstrong for coming by to see how the group operates. Armstrong, who really did not see how they operate, thanked them.

Why the tension? Back in the van, Armstrong says, "It's west," adding that racial tension has left scars in West Texas.

More than 200 people showed up for a rally. The chili, rumored to be the worst on the circuit, is gone by the time Armstrong shows up.

"It always used to be chicken and barbecue. This year it's chili. That's the major change in Texas politics," he said.

The county clerk's race was the hottest one in town. Incumbent Marie Russell reminded the crowd, "We keep records on you from the day you're born until the day you die."

Armstrong, the only gubernatorial candidate present, spoke last. He said Public Utility Commission members should be elected rather than appointed. He asked Democrats to compare his record with those of White and Temple.

He dragged out the "No-Dough Boys" line and ended to polite applause.

At the back of the hall, cup of beer in hand, Armstrong did what he does best, talk to voters one-on-one. He spilled out one-liners, most of them stolen, but all well-delivered:

"Bill Clements is so rich that when he checks into a hotel room he hires a guy to read the Gideon Bible to him."

"Bill Clements says poor people should get off their asses and inherit some money."

Back in the hall, Texas Supreme Court candidate Bill Kilgarlin and Texas Court of Criminal Appeals candidate Andy Shuval are rummaging around the empty tables, retrieving their discarded campaign propaganda.

Armstrong's chats with voters included repetitions of the question most hated by politicians. "Do you remember me?" said a little old lady, who Armstrong obviously did not remember.

In Wichita Falls the next day a seven-car motorcade greeted the Armstrong plane. "This is our first motorcade," he told local supporter Dick Spomer, who chauffeurs Armstrong to Midwestern State University for the start of "campus day."

"You are looking at a full-blown political candidate in action," Armstrong told a sporadically interested political science class at Midwestern.

Earlier, Armstrong said he was "suspicious" of the campus appearances.

"They don't get excited. They're putting in time," he said of students in general. In Denton, at North Texas State University later in the day, the class was a bit more attentive. The questions include one about illegal aliens. Armstrong offered no solution.

"I have a standing offer of $500 for an answer to the illegal alien problem," he said. There was a big crowd in the student union, where posters notified students of the Armstrong appearance. The lobbies were filled with excited students, all there for International Student Week, Handicapped Student Week and Alcohol Awareness Week.

A dozen people, including two reporters, show up for Armstrong. No television.

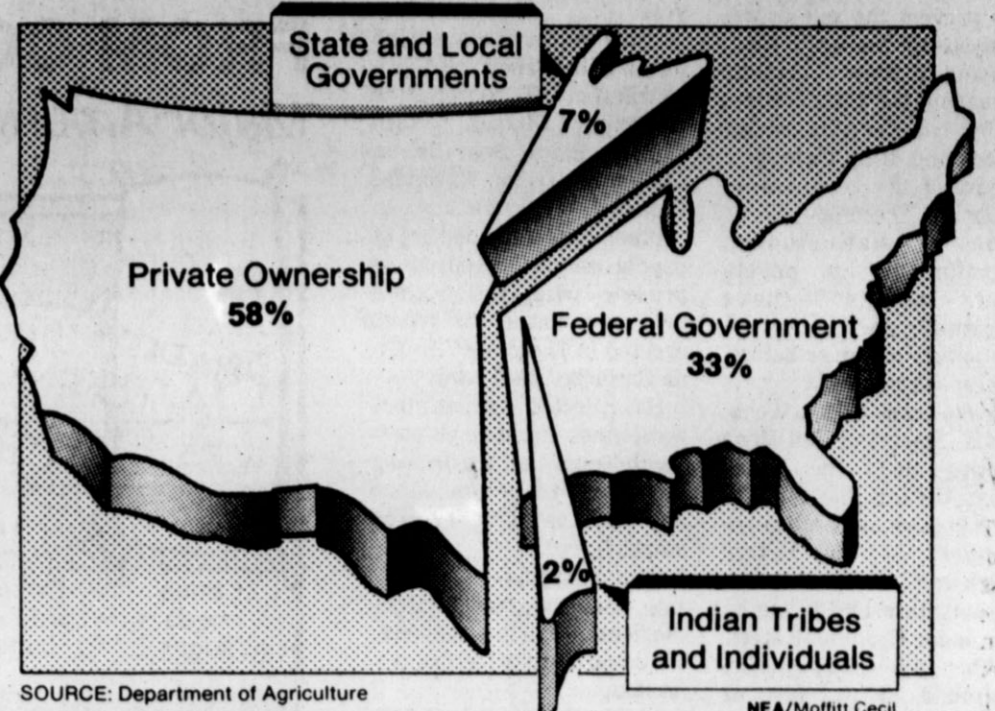

NTSU staff member Clovis Morrison, an old Armstrong friend, chats with the candidate, and then tells someone else, "I don't know how much chance he has, but he would be a super governor."

After a quick flight to the Grayson County Airport, Armstrong fields more questions about money and why he doesn't have more of it. A local reporter asks about running against Clements, "who has more money than God." Armstrong goes into his Harry Truman act and says, "It's been a long time since we had a governor who wasn't a millionaire."

Armstrong, the rich man who is the poor candidate, the airplane-owner and pilot who checks the dipstick on his own plane, says: "I don't have anything against millionaires. I'd like to be one."

Indians Keep Tradition Of 'Visionary' Ceremony

MIRANDO CITY, Texas (AP) — As they have done since before the Spanish conquistadors arrived on the North American continent, Indians gather each year near the present Texas-Mexico border for an ancient religious rite featuring hallucinogenic peyote.

Although federal and state laws prevent the sale or use of peyote by the white man, Indians from tribes throughout the United States legally eat the tiny cactus buttons and drink their juice as part of the centuries-old "visionary" ceremony.

The hallucinogen mescaline in the peyote allows Indians to have "dreams" and commune with nature as never before, tribal spokesmen say.

Peyote grows wild in Webb, Zapala, Starr and Jim Hogg counties along the Texas border, but it is illegal for anyone to use it unless they are members of the Native American Church, according to a landmark 1968 ruling by State Judge E. James Kazen.

"Where peyote grows is holy ground to us, just as Jerusalem is holy to the Christians," Mrs. Allen Dale, wife of a church official said in hailing Kazen's ruling.

About 250 Navajos, Apaches, Cheyenne, Kickapoo, Sioux and members of other tribes were here — in this old, mostly abandoned 1920s oil boom town — recently to carry on the religious ceremonies that have been passed down from generation to generation.

neighboring Oilton, located in a remote area of Southwest Texas, for annual peyote rites.

They also gather extra peyote to take back with them to their tribes in Oklahoma, Arizona, California, North Dakota, Minnesota and other states for use as a "medicine" the rest of the year.

"This peyote is a medicine for all tribes. They use it as a sacrament of the Native American Church," said Eugene Black Bear Jr., a Cheyenne from Watonga, Okla.

Black Bear defended use of peyote as he prepared to preside over the night's ceremony inside the tepee, erected in 77-year-old Amanda Cardenas' back yard.

He rejected rumors that sometimes circulate through South Texas that the Indians got "high" on peyote, dance and leap, or that they ever smoke it.

"Smoking peyote is a fancy tale. Sometimes we use it for medicine. It kills sickness. We come down to harvest it," he said.

At the other tepee in Oilton, about 20 middle-age Apaches milled outside a huge tepee, suspiciously eying a visitor. But they did not want to talk with the outsider and they did not want to be photographed.

"Sorry, pardner. You have your customs and we have ours. We'd rather not have any publicity. I hope you understand. It's a religious thing with us," one of the Apaches said after several others politely declined to discuss the peyote rite.

"They keep it to themselves what goes in that tepee," said Ernesto Salinas, 56, a storeowner who recalls Indians gathering peyote in Oilton since he was a youth. "You know as much as I do and I've been seeing it since 1936."

"I for one say there is nothing in peyote. It's just a cactus. It's one of the hallucinatory cactuses."

Salinas said. "I've eaten and drank it. There's nothing to it. It's a sacrament just like bread and wine in the Catholic ceremony."

"It's just the mystery of it and peyote grows in a very small sector. There is some across the river (Rio Grande) from Zapata County, but the Indians won't go for that peyote for some reason. It just doesn't fulfill their sacramental rites."

Kazen was made an honorary Indian and invited to an all-night ceremony after he handed down a landmark ruling in a test case that declared the Texas peyote law unconstitutional as applied to Indians.

Kazen, who since has moved from Laredo to Austin, was given the Indian name Mah-gsi-ska, which means White Eagle Feather, and was honored by several Indians who spoke at the peyote rite.

"The evidence in this case has shown that peyotism is a recognized bona fide religion practiced by the members of the Native American Church, and that peyote is an essential ingredient of the religious ceremony; it is the sole means by which the members of the church are able to experience their religion, and without peyote, the court finds from the evidence, the members of the religion cannot practice their faith," Kazen wrote in the April 1968 decision.

"I was very much impressed with the honesty and sincerity of these people," Kazen said. "They prayed for mankind and thanked God for the blessings they have received. Members of the church partook of peyote during the ceremony, and I noticed there were no ill effects to their physical or mental faculties."

"I tasted the peyote and found it to be bitter and very unpalatable."

In the early 1970s, peyote became fashionable for use in city drug cults and dozens of "hippies" were arrested along the border, primarily for trespassing onto area ranches in search of the hallucinogen. They, however, reportedly smoked the substance or injected it into their systems, sometimes in concert with other drugs.

A Drug Enforcement Administration official in San Antonio said recently, though, that the small spineless cactus plants, of the species Lophophora Williamsii, have become less plentiful, less popular and that arrests of white men for possessing it are now rare.

In declaring Texas' peyote law unconstitutional as applied to Indians, Kazen also noted that California, Arizona and Colorado courts had upheld the rights of Indians to use the hallucinogen as a sacrament.

Black Bear said the Indians will continue to use peyote in the same ceremony that legend says the Comanches originated on annual pilgrimages from Mexico centuries ago.

"They pray for peace and for rain. They don't want to change," said the 77-year-old Mrs. Cardenas, who has a few of the cactus buttons growing in a circular flower bed in front of her house. Indians have tossed few pennies and other coins on the bed of peyote for "good luck."

"Since I was still young, the Indians came and my father sold peyote to them. They have come here all my life and for centuries before that."

Today In History

Today is Sunday, April 4, the 94th day of 1982. There are 271 days left in the year.

On April 4, 1968, civil rights leader the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., was slain in Memphis, Tenn.

In 1581, England's Queen Elizabeth I knighted Sir Frances Drake.

In 1912, the Chinese Republic was proclaimed in Tibet.

In 1949, NATO was formed by the United States, Canada and several European countries for mutual assistance against aggression in the North Atlantic.

And in 1969, doctors in Houston implanted the first complete artificial heart in a 47-year-old man, who died four days later.

Hot Ash Frustrates Rescuers

PICHUCALCO, Mexico (AP) — Hot ash is frustrating rescuers' efforts to reach an estimated 10,000 villagers stranded on the slopes of the erupting El Chichonal volcano, the army said Friday.

Army spokesmen said an additional 2,000 soldiers were expected to arrive in the area Friday bringing food and medicine, doubling the number aiding victims of the eruption. El Chichonal continued to spew hot ash Friday.

Some villagers who fled the area after the major eruption on Monday and a lesser one on Wednesday began to return to the area. But one geologist said he believed the volcanic activity would continue for at least three weeks and that there may be another major eruption.

Fifteen deaths were reported, and Mario Morillo, commander of the military zone for the area, said the toll may rise after rescuers reach several villages on El Chichonal.

Deep, hot ash, along with rocks and sand coughed up by the volcano has made it impossible to get vehicles over the rugged mountain paths that are the village's only land links to this town 18 miles above the base of the volcano. Even under normal conditions the trip takes up to 10 hours, local authorities said.

Planes and helicopters have dropped food and medicines over the mountain, but have had to maintain enough altitude to keep them away from the cloud of ash that could clog engines, army spokesmen said.

Chiapas State Gov. Juan Sabines Gutierrez estimated the number stranded since the first eruption at 10,000.

The geologist, Federico Mooser, said Thursday he believed the two eruptions were only the beginning of activity in the volcano, which rises about 4,314 feet above sea level. Its main crater is about 1 3/4 miles across.

An inch-thick layer of volcanic ash covered most of Tabasco state, whose area spans 10,000 square miles.

Tabasco Gov. Leandro Rovirosa Wade said he considers the current crop season will be "a total loss" because farmers will not be able to cultivate the land. Agricultural officials said nearly one-fourth of the region's 1.7 million head of cattle, which provide 65 percent of Mexico's meat, are in danger because pastures and water supplies have been contaminated by ash.

The region also grows 83 percent of Mexico's cocoa beans and 30 percent of its bananas.

Two-Year Mansion Renovation Complete

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With fanfare and ceremony, Gov. Bill Clements and wife Rita have reopened the newly-renovated Governor's Mansion, after a more than two-year project to restore it to its former "simple elegance."

The project cost $3.6 million — $1 million in state funds for structural repairs and the rest in private donations for interior decorating and furnishings.

Before ceremonially unlocking the front door Thursday, Clements said he felt only "dismay" when he and Mrs. Clements moved into the 126-year-old, deteriorating home in 1979. Former resident Dolph Briscoe warned them about falling plaster when they moved in, Clements said.

The Clements' stayed in the mansion only seven months, moving into an apartment to make way for the renovation project.

Mrs. Clements said $3.1 million in money and gifts was raised by Friends of the Governor's Mansion, $500,000 of which will be put into an endowment to preserve the home.

The idea behind the project, Mrs. Clements said, was to "restore the home to the simple elegance that characterized the period in which it was built" — the mid-1800s.

Architects Burson, Hendricks and Walls of Dallas won the contract for structural renovation of the mansion. Jed Mace and Tom Sellman of Dallas donated their time as interior designers, Mrs. Clements said.

A nationwide search turned up enough American Empire and Duncan Phyfe pieces to almost completely furnish the house with authentic American antiques.

After a news conference on the front steps, reporters were taken on tours of the mansion. Public tours begin April 14.

After she and the governor posed for photos in the entry hall, Mrs. Clements led the way through the two-story, white brick house which sits on a large corner lot between the Capitol and the Travis County courthouse.

The redecoration features specially-commissioned rugs — including one with seals of the six flags of Texas and Texas wildflowers in its design — and all the drapery and upholstery fabrics were designed for the mansion, Mrs. Clements said.

In the entry hall is a large oil painting, "The Fall of the Alamo," signed in 1908 by artist Robert Onderdonk. It has been appraised at $450,000 was donated by two Houston families.

Two massive bookcases in the library are reproductions, Mrs. Clements said, because "we looked all over and couldn't find any." They were copied from pieces in the Dodge House in Oklahoma, she said.

The red-and-blue state dining room's 14-seat table is English, Mrs. Clements said, but added that decorators are still looking for an American table to replace it with.

One whole side of the downstairs is taken up with twin formal parlors decorated in yellow and green. At one end is an inlaid American Empire pianoforte dated 1830.

Among them is James S. Hogg's hymn book and Hardin Runnels' pistol.

Upstairs, the two "official" bedrooms are unfinished, with two mattressless four-posters in the room that used to be the Sam Houston bedroom, which has one of the most unusual pieces in the home — a hammered sheet-metal floor clock that belonged to Gov. Pease.

The bedroom now named for Sam Houston is in the front of the upstairs and features a split bathroom, because the existing facility couldn't be expanded without destroying a historic fireplace, Mrs. Clements said. A shower was installed in what had been a closet.

After viewing the ceremonial rooms, reporters got an unexpected tour of the Clements' private living quarters on the second floor.

Although furnished with reproductions of 19th-century furniture, the private quarters are strikingly modern and bright compared with the rest of the house.

At the news conference before the tour, Clements was asked why no one had seriously renovated the home before. He suggested that when governors served only two-year terms, they did not have the incentive to push for the lengthy project.

Clements insisted he would have plenty of time to reap the benefits of the renovation even though several candidates have lined up for his job this election year.

"We'll be here this year and then four more," he said.

'Bomber Bats' Never Saw Battle

HONDO, Texas (AP) — World War II incendiary-bomb bats — intended to be unleashed over Tokyo and other key Japanese cities to roost in the eaves of buildings until their tiny time bombs went off — were "recruited" and trained for combat in Texas Hill Country caves just west of San Antonio.

Four caves along the Balcones Fault contributed their share of bats to the top-secret Navy operation called Project X-Ray.

Heavily armed Marines detailed from Corpus Christi cordoned off Devil's Sinkhole near Rocksprings, Bracken Cave near present-day Natural Bridge Caverns, Frio Cave in Uvalde County and Ney Cave in northern Medina County during 1943 and 1944.

Those four caves were chosen because together they house the largest known concentrations of bats in the world, said an account of Project X-Ray in a 1948 publication of the National Speleological Society.

The largest colony of all is in Ney Cave, in remote and rugged ranch country — home of an estimated 10 million to 70 million Mexican freetail bats. It houses many more bats than the legendary Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico.

"Everybody's heard of Carlsbad Caverns," said Hunter Schuehle, whose family owns Ney Cave. "But I bet there's not a hundred who have heard of this place."

The cave's anonymity hides a fascinating history. Nothing remains of the secret military camp around the cave's yawning entrance, halfway up a limestone mountain.

At the height of the batching phase of the operation, giant screens prefabricated at Hondo Army Airfield were trucked to the cave and spread in front of its 30-foot gaping mouth. Closed, they could capture a million bats in a single night.

Bats caught at the four Texas caves for the project were transported to a remote California site to be fitted with tiny delayed-fuse incendiary devices. There, they accidentally fulfilled their suicide mission by burning, among other things, an airplane hangar and a colonel's automobile.

The $2 million project was canceled abruptly in October 1944 before any bats could be loosed over Japan.

Though certainly the most bizarre, bat-bombs were not the only offbeat contributions to warfare from Ney Cave.

Schuehle pointed out some pyramid-shaped concrete structures in the bed of Verde Creek, about a mile from the cave.

Those are not from World War II, he said, but from a war a century older.

"Those are rats where the Confederates cleaned guano (bat manure) they mined for gunpowder in the Civil War," Schuehle said. Hard-pressed Confederate engineers had to turn to local sources for ammunition production, and some of them turned to Ney Cave.

In the cave mouth, a rickety wooden framework remains from an old pulley-and-bucket mining system that recalls a third war effort — this one during World War I.

The National Speleological Society bulletin recounts a wartime fertilizer drive that saw Ney Cave and others in Texas contribute up to 65 boxcar-loads of nitrogen-rich guano a day to patriotic farmers.

The cave's relative inaccessibility, closely guarded by the owners of the surrounding ranchland and far from any main roads, has kept it unchanged from its appearance in the 1940s — or the 1860s for that matter.

Inside the cave, Schuehle played a flashlight beam around the honey-combed limestone ceilings to reveal a scattering of furry bodies clinging in repose.

In the late afternoon warmth, a number of bats were beginning to swirl in circular patterns high in the house-size anteroom of the cave, preparing for their daily dusk-to-dawn foray.

The bulk of the bat colony has not returned from its winter migration to South America, Schuehle said.

When the bats are here in full strength they stream out of the 20-foot wide cave mouth in a black torrent, wingtip-to-wingtip, for more than 15 minutes to forage for insects as far as the Gulf Coast before returning to roost, Schuehle said.

Even in the off-season the cave echoed with the eerie, vibrating screech of thousands of roosting bats.

On the floor, ankle-deep black guano trembled with life as a voracious species of beetle burrowed in and out in search of a fallen baby bat or some rodent which may have blundered too far into the depths of the cave.

And the smell — the acrid, nose-blistering scent of 30 percent ammonia in close quarters — required considerable getting used-to and ensured a short intrusion into the bat colony's world.

Schuehle said his father, Hondo businessman Jake Schuehle, contracted with a firm to mine the guano for fertilizer well into the 1960s. But the project was dropped, and today no one has disturbed the bat colony for a decade.

The Neys, kin to Schuehle on his paternal grandmother's side, settled the land surrounding the cave in pre-Civil War days.

Though all the surrounding land sold in later years, the family holds a deed to the cave itself "and all the apertures thereto."

Some caverns end in solid rock walls, some in water too deep to wade. Some, like the entrance room, are deep in the foul-smelling guano. Others have clean rock floors with water running through as clear as that in the Verde Creek below, Schuehle said.

And in the entranceway, that eerie screech of millions of descendants of the veterans of three wars.

Mason-Dixon Line

The Mason-Dixon Line, traditionally dividing the North and South, was in no way connected with the Civil War. The line was drawn much earlier to end a colonial land dispute between the Calvert's of Maryland and the Penns. Plotted in a 1750 compromise in the English Court of Chancery, the line was fixed by two surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, between 1763 and 1767.

Photographer Does Things The Old Way

CHICAGO (AP) — In a world going miniature, modern and fast, Jack Deardorff excels in the camera business with the big, the timeworn and the painstaking.

"It's a different world than you're used to living in," Deardorff says. "We not only don't do anything new. We do things the old way, using the old craftsmanship."

L.F. Deardorff & Sons, Inc., the business his grandfather started in 1893, has become a legend in the photographic industry because of the cameras it makes and the way it makes them.

Japan even comes to Deardorff for equipment. His Japanese dealer came in recently and bought $38,900 worth of cameras to take back with him, Deardorff says.

Unlike the compact, automatic cameras rolling off assembly lines elsewhere, everything made at the company's eighth-floor Peoria Street factory is done by hand. Machinists trim mahogany and hone nickel-plated brass to tolerances within .005 of an inch — about the thickness of two human hairs, Deardorff says.

The smallest Deardorff camera uses film that is four inches by five inches. The largest under production uses film 11 inches by 15 inches. Prices start at $2,315, without lenses, which Deardorff says in most cases cost another $10,000.

The company's staff of 19 produces only 400 cameras a year — each guaranteed for 30 years.

"There's no room on a thing like this for a piece of plastic," Deardorff says. "You can't hold a guarantee with a piece of plastic."

For the past 50 years, L.F. Deardorff & Sons has produced large format equipment that has remained highly sought after for specialized applications, often for one-of-a-kind uses.

Africa's Cape of Good Hope was settled by the Dutch, beginning in the 17th century.

Sam Waterston as Professor Quentin E. Deverill is the target of a madman intent upon using one of his inventions to destroy innocent people, on "Q.E.D.," airing on CBS, Tuesday, April 6.

Moreno Trying Skills At TV Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Energy met Rita Moreno and fell in love. Or vice versa. Either way, the 50-year-old fiery actress, singer and dancer is trying something she's never done before — a television series.

And she's done just about everything else in show business and has an Oscar, a Tony, a Grammy and two Emmys to show for it.

Miss Moreno stars in the television version of the movie "9 to 5."

"It's sure nice to do a series," Miss Moreno says. "It's lovely to know what you're going to do next week. I imagine some people would tear their hair over that, but not when you've spent your whole life never knowing what you're going to do next."

Valerie Curtin and Rachel Dennison star with Miss

Moreno in "9 to 5," which premiered on ABC Thursday. They are secretaries who have to fight a daily battle for respect, decent wages and a chance to move into management. Jeffrey Tambor plays their lecherous, tyrannical boss, and Jean Marsh ("Upstairs, Downstairs") plays his devoted assistant.

In the four-episode spring series, Miss Moreno portrays Violet Newstead, a widow with two children, who in 12 years with the company has gotten a lot of promises but little in the way of promotion. At the end of the film version, she was promoted to vice president. But in the series she's back to section chief.

"The thing that attracted me to the show, which I've been begging to do for years, is that it affords me an opportunity to represent the middle-aged woman on television," Miss Moreno said. "That you don't see enough of at all."

Miss Moreno won her Academy Award in 1961 for her role as Anita in "West Side Story." She won her first Emmy in 1977 for an appearance on "The Muppets," and her second in 1978 for her role as Rita Kapkovich on "The Rockford Files."

The Tony was awarded to Miss Moreno in 1975 for her comic Googie Gomez — "she can't do anything right, but she does it with such panache" — in "The Ritz." The Grammy came for her 1972 musical contributions to "The Electric Company Album."

Miss Moreno recently completed work on the CBS movie "Jillian: Portrait of a Showgirl." And she has a night club act that she performs at the Sands in Atlantic City.

"I think that's why I'm still around," she said. "I can go in so many different directions. If something isn't working out I can do something else."

A native of Puerto Rico, Miss Moreno moved to New York when she was five. By the time she was 17 she had appeared on Broadway and was signed to a motion picture contract. She now is married to a retired physician, Dr. Leonard Gordon, and they have a 15-year-old daughter, Fernanda.

The U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., was founded in 1876.

Martin And Lewis Week Set April 5-9

The zany antics of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis will be in abundance during a week-long film festival, featuring five of their outstanding movies, Monday-Friday, April 5-9 at 9:05 AM (ET) on SuperStation WTBS, Hereford Cablevision Channel 5.

The schedule is as follows: Monday: "My Friend Irma." Martin and Lewis made their film debut in this 1949 comedy, based on the radio series. Marie Wilson is in the title role as a daffy blonde, while comic Don DeFore also co-stars.

Tuesday: "Scared Stiff." Martin and Lewis bring their high jinks to a haunted island in this 1953 remake of Bob Hope's "The Ghost Breakers." Carmen Miranda and Dorothy Malone co-star in this film.

Wednesday: "That's My Boy." In a 1951 film from the heyday of Martin and Lewis comedies, Lewis plays the klutzy son of an ex-football star and his coach, of course, is Martin.

Friday: "Living It Up." Believing he has been exposed to radiation, Lewis is brought to New York City as a publicity stunt by reporter Janet Leigh. Martin is Lewis' doctor in this 1954 remake of the comedy classic "Nothing Sacred."

The trouble with being a middle-of-the-roader is that the parties on the right and left are going to run you over.

STEVE AND SUMMER TRY TO HELP LOOBY MISCUMIP WHEN MUGGERS ACCOST HER ON THE BEACH! THEN, THE FOLLOWING DAY...

HEY, CANYONS, WHY ARE YOU SO NICE TO ME? IF YOU FEEL SORRY FOR ME, I'LL SLUG YOU!

LOOBY, YOU'RE A FIGHTER! WE LIKE A SLUGGER!

THAT'S MORE LIKE IT! WILL YOU HAVE DINNER WITH US TONIGHT?

SORRY, I'VE GOT SOME HOT SHOTS AROUND COMING TO MY JOINT... SEE YA ... I'VE GOT TO GO DOWN TO THE HOUSE!

LATER, I MUST HAVE READ LOOBY WRONG! I THOUGHT SHE WAS A LONER! SO DID I! HEY, STEVE, TIME TO GO DOWN TO DINNER!

LOOBY'S SUITE... LISTEN TO THE MOB! HI, CARE IF I DON'T DO THIS? I'VE MET ST. CAROLINE AT STAMFORD'S. I'VE MET ST. CAROLINE AT STAMFORD'S. I'VE MET ST. CAROLINE AT STAMFORD'S.

LET'S GO TO THE PUB IN CHICAGO FOR COCKTAILS! I'VE GOT TO GO TO THE PUB IN CHICAGO FOR COCKTAILS! I'VE GOT TO GO TO THE PUB IN CHICAGO FOR COCKTAILS!

SOUNDS LIKE SHE'S GOT A HIGH BASH GOING! GOOD! LET'S GO DOWN AND EAT!

ALETA UNDERSTANDS NOTHING. A FEVER HAS TAKEN HOLD. SHE KNOWS ONLY THE GREENS. SHE HAS SEEN IT FAR AWAY JUSTINIAN AND WANDERS AWKWARDLY AMONG BREEDERS WHO'NT NEED ALETA'S BOY AFTER ALL.

AND THE CHILD? THE EMPEROR IS IMPATIENT. 'I CARE NOT ABOUT ANSWERS' CHILD. DO WITH IT AS YOU WISH.' PRAM RECOILS. HE TAKES THE CHILD AWAY AND WANDERS AWKWARDLY AMONG THE BAZAARS.

A KINDLY PRESANT WOMAN COOS AND CLINGS OVER THE BOY. 'YOUNGEST?' SHE ASKS. 'NO?' PRAM REPLIES. 'YOUNG.' NEXT WEEK: Theta's Choice

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Shoulders are narrower. 2. Switch is missing. 3. Phone cord is different. 4. Lamp base is different. 5. Bow is missing. 6. Frame is different.

Test your wits with this vintage verse-riddle. Hint: Roman numerals are required to solve it.

A hundred and one by fifty divide, Next, let a cipher be duly applied; And if the result you should rightly divine, You'll find that the whole makes but one out of nine.

P.S. The answer is one of the famed Nine Muses of Greek mythology.

The answer is CLIO.

DRY RUN! How does our clever friend cross the street without getting his feet wet? Connect dots to find out!

Junior Whirl!

by Hal Kaufman

- FINE REMARK! A car owner ticketed for illegal parking lamented his plight by paraphrasing a line from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet": "PARK! NGISS UCHST REETS ORROW." Rearrange cap-letter spacing for sense.
- Fat Sati! A baseball team played 135 games, winning 27 more games than it lost. How many games did it lose? Answer in 30 seconds?
- Name Game! Find the first name of a girl and boy in each sentence: 1. We test every day. 2. He screams and yells. 3. The camel is sassy.
- Riddle-Me-This! Which snake bothers a golfer? The putt viper. Why did the dairyman build a new barn? For a roof over his herd. How do Chinese chests communicate? With wok-i-talkies.
