Shuttle Robot Arm Test Goes Well

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Astronaut C. Gordon Fullerton successfully exercised the grip of Columbia's 50-foot robot arm today, lifting a package of scientific instruments from the ship's cargo bay as the shuttle hummed along on the fourth day of its week-long mission.

The grab-and-lift was the first test of the robot's capacity to do the job it was built for: depositing and retrieving satellites in space.

The ship was in the midst of a prolonged thermal test when Fullerton donned binoculars to maneuver the arm into position to grab a 353-pound payload with Canadarm's wire-snare

The procedure was anything but routine. Sharp eyes and a firm grip on the controls had to substitute for guidance from a failed video monitor. After capturing his target, the pilot, working by remote control from a post at the rear of Columbia's cockpit, flexed the spindly arm's metallic muscles and gingerly lifted the 353-pound payload from its berth, moving it around the cavernous bay, careful not to hit other experiments stored there.

"The PDP has been unberthed. It has been taken up, it's been lowered down and we're ready to reberth it again," said Fullerton. This initial test with the arm took only six minutes and it was ex-(See TEST, Page 2)

By JONATHAN IMMANUEL Associated Press Writer

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) - Israel dismissed the top two Palestinian mayors in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan today, and Arab protesters in the occupied territories reacted with a grenade ambush, killing one Israeli soldier and wounding three others.

The military command said Sgt. Pinhas Grossmark, 30, was killed and three soldiers were wounded in the grenade attack on an army vehicle in the occupied Gaza Strip. Grossmark was the first Israeli to die in a week of violence that has resulted in the deaths of five Arabs and the wounding of 21 in the occupied territories.

Arabs. The ambushers fled. An Arab mob also attacked an Israeli car in the village of Adna near Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem, the military said. One of the Israelis was injured by a thrown stone, and the car was set afire after the Israelis fled, the military said.

The Israeli military command said Bassam Shakaa of Nablus and Kerim Khalaf of Ramallah, cities north of Jerusalem, were sacked because of their "repeated attempts to disrupt public order." It accused them of taking their orders from the Liberation Palestine Organization.

Nelson, who endured grimly a week of feverish preparation and hours of interviews, watched on television Wednesday as two astronauts operated his bug box aboard the orbiting Columbia space shuttle. He saw his insects flutter and fly and float in weightlessness and realized, at last, he said, "We did indeed see a good result.'

Only then, after days of solemn-faced public appearances, did Nelson grin. And like a true scientist, he was eager to get to a lab and study the results.

"I'm extremely curious to review the film in detail," he

Nelson's experiment, the first of 10 high school projects selected to fly aboard the shuttle, is a clear-sided box containing two chambers. In one chamber are 24 adult velvetbean moths and 12 housefly pupae. The second chamber contains 14 honeybees and 24 velvetbean moth pupae. The idea was to find out how the insects would react to flying in the

with the same number and type of insects in a high fidelity model of Columbia's cabin at the Johnson Space Center. After watching the insects fly in space, the youth thumped and tapped the duplicate box while a photographer took movies. In this way, he hoped to be able to compare the flight patterns of the bugs in the weightlessness of space with those on the ground.

Astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton spent about a half-hour with the insect box and Lousma described what he saw.

"The bees just float around without flapping their wings," said Lousma. "That's like Gordo (Fullerton) - you don't see him flap his wings."

Lousma jarred the insect box once and the container was instantly filled with a cloud of flying bugs. Watching on television, Nelson pointed and then made notes. The houseflies in space were uniformly distributed throughout their chamber, but in the grounded box the flies tended to collect at the top. Nelson said he had no ex-(See INSECTS, Page 2)

Jim Wilson and Jim Doche, principals of Wilson-Doche Architects and Planners who are in charge of the design of the Ronald McDonald House, unveiled the floor plan and rendering of the House during a recent meeting of the board of directors for the project.

The Ronald McDonald House will be situated on two acres of land between the Discovery Center and the Garden Center at the Amarillo Medical Center. The land will be leased by the City of Amarillo to the Children's Oncology Services of the Texas Panhandle, the non-profit organization which heads the project.

"The House will be as close to residential as possible, to make it feel like a great big house," Wilson said.

The entrance to the home will be on Streit Street, with a terrace and children's playground located at the back of the home facing the lake. Two large wings and one central living area will make up the basic structure of the home. US Envoy Visited Cuba For Talks

On Salvadoran War

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. sent an envoy to Havana this month to try to persuade Cuban President Fidel 'Castro to stop supporting the guerrillas in El Salvador, according to CU.S. government sources.

The government officials, asking not to be identified, late Wednesday confirmed reports by CBS News and the French newspaper Le Monde that 'Haig dispatched Gen. Vernon Walters, an ambassador at large, on the mission. Le Monde said Walters, a former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, met with Castro for four hours.

In another development, The New York Times today quoted unidentified officials of the Reagan administration as saying they would approve of "negotiations" between a new Salvadoran government and the leftists as long as it was made clear that no sharing of power with the guerrillas would be imposed on the Salvadoran regime.

Power could be shared by the insurgents only through the election process, the Times quoted the officials as saying. An election is scheduled in El Salvador on Sunday, but leftist leaders have called it a "farce" and refused to participate.

The U.S. officials said that the new willingness to use the term "negotiations" was in response to diplomatic pressures, including pressure from Mexico, and to domestic opposition to U.S. policy, the newspaper said.

The officials said that the United States previously has encouraged dialogue between the U.S.-backed junta and the leftist opposition.

China Silent On Brezhnev's Call

For Border Talks

PEKING (AP) - China remained silent today on the Soviet Union's latest and highest-level bid for improved relations.

The new Soviet attempt to end the Moscow-Peking feud was delivered Wednesday by Soviet President Leonoid I. Brezhnev.

The Chinese foreign ministry had no immediate comment when asked by reporters about Brezhnev's call for new talks on the Sino-Soviet border dispute. A ministry spokesman said Brezhnev's statement has not yet been read

It was the Soviet Union's third call to renew talks on its border with China. The last such talks were held in June, 1978. In two diplomatic notes, the last on Feb. 3, the Soviets have proposed to reopen the talks.

Speaking in Tashkent on Wednesday, Brezhnev said the Soviet Union is ready to discuss the 4,500-mile border at any time. China says there are disputed areas on the frontier and has called for disengagement of troops in those areas before talks can begin. Soviet officials say there are no disputed areas, but that they are willing to talk.

In a thinly-veiled reference to Sino-U.S. problems over Taiwan, the Soviet leader also said his nation continues to recognize China's sovereignty over Taiwan. China has hinted it may have to downgrade relations with the United States if America continues long-term arms sales to Taiwan, which China considers a renegade province.

'9 to 5' Limited In Future And Content

NEW YORK (AP) -Television, the great humbler, has drawn the lofty Jane Fonda into its web of mediocrity. Her film, "9 To 5," comes to ABC tonight as a limited TV series. And it's limited both in future and content. At least Miss Fonda has managed to avoid being disgraced on the air. Although she starred in the movie with Dolly Parton and Lily Tomlin, Miss Fonda is only executive producer for the TV show. Miss Fonda; known for her political activism, compassionate causes and thematic movies like "The China Syndrome," said the impact of the miniseries "Roots" convinced her that TV was the most effective medium for raising issues. "9 To 5" is her first foray into mumbo-jumbo land, and the lessons she learns may help her next time.

Although she considers the sitcom "9 To 5" "issueoriented," the subjects raised in the first two episodes are mental Muzak. The movie was a fluffy piece of nonsense that turned a plausible situation into a mish-mash of banality. The TV show takes a more dignified tact, but vapidity isn't the essence of good situation comedy either.

Capitalizing on the dominant influence of women watching prime time, ABC has taken three female secretaries and permitted them to give their unprincipled, lamebrain boss a comeuppance each week. It brings to mind how the hyperactive Gale Storm would outwit her father and Mr. Honeywell in 'My Little Margie."

This was Miss Tomlin's role in the movie. If this were a better world, Violet would be at the office controls. But, instead, she and her two office compatriots, played by Valerie Curtin and Rachel Dennison, are forced to scramble under the thumb of boss Franklin Hart (Jeffrey

The Deaf Smith County Women's Forum will meet for a 12 noon covered dish luncheon at the Community Center on Monday, March 29. All women in the Hereford vicinity are invited to attend.

Hostesses for the event are members of the Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club, Young Homemakers, Summerfield Study Club, Young Mother Study Club, and the VFW Auxiliary.

Joan Coupe of the Hereford Travel Center will present the program, and new officers will be elected during the business meeting. Leatrice Clark is currently the president of the organization and Brucie Carter is program chairman.

Presently consisting of nine clubs and a number of individual members, the forum was organized in 1929 as the Deaf Smith County Federation. Its purpose is to allow women from various clubs to get acquainted with one another and share ideas. Its annual project is to purchase an item for the Hereford

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor.

During the past few months, a group of people have been working together to find out if something can be done to improve the care at Rest Lawn Memorial Cemetery. Many of you have heard about this and have expressed your concern and support to our endeavor.

At this time, we have had some suggestions and ideas made available to us. We have scheduled an open meeting for all property owners and interested citizens to attend and express their views.

The meeting will be held at the Community Center on Thursday, April 1, at 7:30

We urge you to attend this meeting and express your attractive homemaker.

Living in smalltowns is nothing new for Kay. She is the former Kay Coffman, a 1964 graduate of Hereford High School. She attended West Texas State University and Richland College in Dallas. Before moving back to Hereford, Kay was the office manager for a tennis construction company in Richardson.

Her mother is Helen Coff-Hereford Independent School District for over 24 years. Frank, originally from Waco, received a degree in music education on all levels from Southwest Texas State. He served four years in the U.S. Air Force where he was stationed in Japan.

While serving as captain in the Air Traffic Control during the Vietnam War, he received the Air Force Commendation

Before moving to Hereford, he was affiliated with a fast food restaurant chain for four years and upon returning from Japan he owned Hart Industries, a sand blasting company out of Garland.

Although having lived in Hereford only a few months, the Tindells have already begun restoring their spacious two-story home which at one time was located on Park Ave.

"It's an older home that requires much attention but we have a lot of fun planning future endeavors," says Kay.

Frank has built a kitchen island complete with drawers and stained glass and has also stripped several layers of paint from the bannister revealing beautiful natural wood. The couple is also planning to restore all of the original wood throughout the

Besides redecorating their unique home, Frank and Kay make and sell simulated stained glass. All of the art work, which is done by Kay, is made on a single plate glass using acrylics and oil base stain. The framing and cutting are done by her husband.

They not only make the stained glass pictures in frames but also create clocks, mirrors and room dividers. Although they sell some of their art work out of their home, they have also had their works displayed at various local bazaars and supply Christian gift shops with their goods. Locally their art can be seen at the Christian Book Store. They also send their finished products to various Love Shops

"Everyone in the family gets to be involved in making our stained glass," states Kay. "The boys help with the staining and sanding of the frames and also assist in selling the glass at art shows."

The couple hopes to open a retail outlet for a wide selection of Christian gifts here in the near future. They will feature scripture plaques, silk flower arrangements, custom calligraphy, picture framing and hope to carry a line of other Christian items.

Various hobbies interest the homemaker such as tole painting, calligraphy, silk flower arranging, making plaques, gardening and reupholstering.

Besides being kept very busy at home, Kay and her husband are members of Temple Baptist Church where they are both involved with the adult choir. Frank also assists in the youth choir.

Kay is a member of the Baptist Young Women's organization and teaches vacation Bible school. As a couple, they will be assisting with a new singles ministry at the church and currently conduct Bible study in their home. The couple's children in-

Local Resident Celebrates Birthday

By LINDA CAUDLE

Family News Editor C.R. Walser, whose family history has been traced to George Washington and Robert E. Lee, and who has been a Deaf Smith County resident since 1917, will be celebrating his 94th birthday this week.

His family is hosting a birthday celebration on Sunday afternoon in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church. Friends are invited to come by and visit between 2:30 and 4 p.m. Walser's great-great-grandfather, Martin Walser, married Frances Lee, who was the great aunt of Robert E. Lee, in North Carolina. Their son, David, married Elizabeth Darden in Wilks County, Ga.

Elizabeth wrote in the family Bible that she was a niece of George Washington, first president of the United States of America. This couple, along with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Darden, established what is now the University of Alabama.

Their son, George Washington Walser, had a son, Samuel, who is the father of Charles Richard (C.R.) Walser. C.R. was born on March 26, 1888 in Montague County, Texas and moved to Hardeman County in 1903. He married Sarah Della Lance on Dec. 20, 1908 there.

Their two eldest children, Guy Walser and Leatrus Clark, were born in Hardeman County. D.C. Walser was born in Donley County, and Hollis Walser was born in Gray County. The family moved to Summerfield in 1917, where Walser was a farmer and raised cattle. All of his children grew up at Summerfield and attended the old Summerfield School through their elementary years. Walser was a member of the school board there for many years, serving two separate

He also instigated and promoted the first rebuilding project for Summerfield Baptist Church when the original building was torn down.

Besides helping with volunteer work and construction, he sold subscriptions to help fund the rebuilding. In three hours one day in Hereford, he raised $400 in donations from local merchants. Walser was involved in various farm projects and organizations during these years. He and his brother, Samuel, were two of the first mechanical farmers in this area. They purchased the first mechanical combine to be sold in Deaf Smith County, being the second owners of the equipment.

Being one of the early day Sudan grass growers, Walser grew mostly maize and wheat, but later on he also grew potatoes, sugar beets, and cotton.

Walser and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1958, four years after they moved into town. She died in January of 1974. He continued to buy and sell cattle until about 1975 and rented out the land for approximately three more years, selling his farm in

Guy, who is still farming, lives in Summerfield. Leatrus worked with her family in their business, Clark's Spring Crest Custom Draperies, until they sold it just recently. D.C. buys and sells hogs in Amarillo, and Hollis was chief electrical inspector for the city of Amarillo before retiring here in Hereford.

Walser has 18 grandchildren, 39 greatgrandchildren, and 17 greatgreat-grandchildren. He had seven brothers and four sisters of whom a brother, Claude Walser of Quanah, and a sister, Mae Barker of Sudan, Texas, are now living and plan to attend the reception and a family dinner which is scheduled just prior to the reception.

Recruiting Problems Bane of College Coaches

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

To build a winning sports program at a university or college requires top athletes. To attract top athletes requires successful recruiting.

To recruit successfully means competing with other

It was that competition that finally drove Darrell Royal out of intercollegiate sports. Royal spent 35 years of his life in football dressing rooms, either as a player or a coach. He retired in 1977, leaving the dual jobs of coach and athletic director at the University of Texas to the university president for sports programs.

"I don't miss being athletic director at all," Royal said. "I never cared for administrative work. I do miss some aspects of coaching."

How about the recruiting aspect?

"I never minded recruiting if everyone had an equal chance and it wasn't overdone," he said. "I deplored repeated visits and going in after someone else went in, calling again because someone else did, matching work with work. The backbiting and fudging of the rules."

Repeated visits? Royal was reminded that NCAA regulations limit to three the number of times a member school may call on a potential student-athlete. The ex-coach just smiled.

"I'm not sure that rule is adhered to now or ever has been," he said.

Wichita State posted a 23-6 record in basketball this season. But the Wheatshockers had to stay home when it came time for the Postseason tournament. The NCAA had placed the school on probation for three years for a variety of violations.

"There were 107 allegations and 42 violations," said Athletic Director Ted Bredehoft, who has committed the numbers to memory. "Three or four ... involved coaches picking up incoming freshmen athletes at the airport and taking them to their

In the NCAA scheme of things, student-athletes may not be afforded any special privileges which an institution does not offer to all students

"It was done innocently," Bredehoft said.

Wichita State intends to continue the airport pickup for athletes, but hereafter it will not be a violation. Bredehoft has seen to that.

We are primarily a commuting school with most of our students coming from home each day," he said. "So we are going to send postcards to all incoming freshmen offering them transportation from the air-

It's unlikely that the school will have many takers beyond the athletes recruited from other cities. That will satisfy the NCAA rules. But it will be too late to help the current team.

Royal: I Deplored Repeated Visits

When the NCAA put the UCLA basketball program on probation last December for violations including special benefits for athletes and improper recruiting inducements, it cited two unidentified Bruin boosters and ordered the school to disassociate itself from them. Various published reports said one of the two was Sam Gilbert, 69, a wealthy Southern California contracthree-visit limit.

Former Bruin star Lucius Allen was quoted by the Los Angeles Times as saying: "UCLA wouldn't have won any national championships without athletes. And without Sam Gilbert, they wouldn't have had the athletes."

Gilbert said he never intentionally broke any rules.

Wichita State, burned by the basketball probation, came up with an unusual solution. In a newsletter distributed to supporters of its sports program, the university included a section labeled "NCAA No-No's," a guide to fans which will keep them on the right side of the folks in Shawnee Mission, Kan., where the governing body of college sports is headquartered.

Presented are a number of situations and questions about how they may be handled. One is a chance meeting between a fan and a prospect at a concession stand, with the fan insisting on buying the potential recruit a soft drink.

'May the fan buy the prospect a soft drink?" the newsletter asks. Then it answers the question in capital letters. "NO."

Wichita State, by the way, holds the dubious distinction of being the most penalized school in the history of the NCAA: six times.

The three-visit rule probably is violated more than any other. The NCAA added a "bump" clause which accounts for coaches who happen to meet potential recruits accidentally, since coaches and prospects sometimes have legitimate reasons for being in the same place at the same time. The coaches have solved that visitation problem. 'Strategically place yourself," Royal said, "and you'll be bumped into." And that will be OK with the NCAA. Because there have always

Wichita State now has the booklets available in its athletic department. Again, that won't benefit this year's team, but the Shockers are looking ahead. Almost as soon as the latest NCAA probation hit, the athletic department began circulating flyers. They said: "Final Four in Eighty Four." The NCAA has published a Three rules lead the others with more than 20 violations each. They are: Improper transportation or entertainment of prospective studentathlete or family (Remember the soft drink the friendly fan wants to buy is a no-no); Improper recruiting inducements to prospective student-athletes (including cash payments, use of automobiles, free clothing, housing and promises of such benefits); and extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes including cash payments, special bank loans, use of automobiles, meals and clothing).

entrant and eligibility in a drawing for two pairs of running shoes. Categories are, for women, ages 9-19, ages 29-20 and over 30. Men may enter in 1-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and over 50 age brackets.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three placing runners in each category and to the overall top runner.

In the runnerup position -10-20 violations - are rules covering Improper financial aid, academic standards, ethical conduct, recruiting contacts (only three visits to the student-athlete's home and only one expense-paid visit to the campus), tryouts and something called "questionable practices." Included in the last category is failure to certify - or falsifying the certification - that a school meets NCAA eligibility stan-

Other standards involving violations such as out-ofseason practice, individual eligibility, schedule and coaching staff limitations and cooperation with enforcement procedures were less frequently broached but still made the list with at least one example on file.

Clemson wCAA was conducting a probe of possible recruiting violations. In 1975, the university's football program was reprimanded and the basketball program was placed on probation.

Dr. Bill Lee Atchley, the university president, said the administration has advised its athletic program's representatives that rulebendig cannot be tolerated.

"I don't know how you actually go about getting people to understand the rules, because the rule book is so complicated it takes someone with a lawyer's degree to interpret everythpng." Dr. Atchlev said.

Oklahoma has someone with a lawyer's degree doing that job. He's Dan Gibbens, the faculty athletics representative.

"It's popular to say there are too many rules," Gibbens said. "But it's not the number that's the trouble, it's what kinds of activities the rules cover. The rules you need are recruiting, eligibility, financial aid and institutional control. Do we need rules governing the number of coaches and number of contacts? Maybe not. When you make a en rule, nit begets additional Darrell Royal said he had supported the adoption of more and more rules early in his career. The late Abe Martin cured him of that habit.

"He put his hand on my shoulder one time and said Every time you get a new rule passed, all you're doing is handcuffing the honest coaches. They'll abide by your rules. The others won't pay any attention. They never have and they never

Bradley Crushes Purdue, Versace Heading to Greece

By JIM O'CONNELL Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Dick Versace made it to New York, won't go to New Orleans and is headed for Athens, Greece.

The coach of the National Invitation Tournament champion Bradley Braves spent the last two weeks convincing his team to keep the objective of making it to New York for the tournament semifinals in the forefront of its thinking. It worked as Bradley captured its fourth NIT championship Wednesday night with a 67-58 win over Purdue.

Once the game was over and Versace was facing a battery of microphones, the point of his team being snubbed by the NCAA selection committe came up.

"I put it to bed a long time ago," Versace said of the overlooking of his 26-10 team, the Missouri Valley Conference regular-season champions, by the commit-tee, headed by Big East Commissioner Dave Gavitt. "You people wouldn't let it die. The NIT is a great tournament. I

The other tournament going on is down to four teams and it culminates this weekend in New Orleans. Versace was asked if he planned to attend.

"The only way I would go to New Orleans is if I was one of the four. I played in the Superdome before but playing in this arena with the greatest basketball tradition in the world is just as exciting to me," Versace said referring to Madison Square Garden, home of the NIT.

What's next for Versace now that his team ended the season on a winning note?

Hoyas Haven't Reached 'Peak'

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

According to center Pat Ewing, the Georgetown Hoyas haven't reached their pinnacle yet. If they do peak this weekend, the NCAA basketball title probably will go home to Washington with

'We are capable of playing better," said Georgetown's 7-foot freshman sensation, who has led the Hoyas to the Final Four in New Orleans. "I've developed somewhat but I need to learn to do other things, like how to get other people open more.'

The sixth-ranked Hoyas have gotten enough people open for good shots to win the West Regional. Their coach, John Thompson, said they are playing as well as they have at any time this season.

The Hoyas have a semifinal showdown with 20th-ranked Louisville Saturday. The Cardinals won the Mideast Regional

In the other semifinal, it will be top-ranked North Carolina, winner of the East, against unranked Houston, which took the Midwest.

Georgetown, 29-6, and Louisville, 23-9, both are blessed with deep benches. That fact was not overlooked by Thompson:

"I know they have depth and they use it," said Thompson. "They get four new faces a 10-point lead in the first half on the floor in a hurry and de- and maintain that throughout pend a lot on their pressure defense. hope it never dies."

Crum, who guided the Cardinals to the national title in 1980 and has taken his team to the Final Four four times, wasn't too worried about matchups. He intends to do the same things that got

"You can't change styles and different things," said Crum. "You've got to figure out what's best for your personnel and go with them. And, by the end of the year, you'll be playing better than if you tried to work three different styles and systems. It just doesn't work."

Louisville to New Orleans.

Dean Smith, the coach of 30-2 North Carolina, would like to find the right formula to win his first national title. This is his seventh trip to the Final Four and second in a

"I hope we haven't played our best game yet," said Smith, echoing the thoughts of Georgetown's Ewing about his club. If Smith is right and North Carolina's best is still to come, then the Tar Heels with an awesome starting five - should walk away with the championship.

The task of stopping No. 1 falls to surprising Houston, which emerged from the upset-filled Midwest.

"One guy called me this morning and said the way to beat North Carolina is to take the game," said Cougars Coach Guy Lewis. "That was pretty good. He didn't tell me

ROTC Fun Run Slated in Portales

The 4th Annual ROTC Fun Run will be held Saturday, April 24 in Portales, N.M. at Eastern New Mexico University. The run will include a 3,000 meter race and a 10,000 meter race. For the longer race a team competition is also set up with six-person teams vying for first and second place trophies and individual medals.

Cost of registration for the runs is $5 per runner. Registration will begin at 8 a.m., lasting until 8:30 a.m. for those who do not preregister. The races will begin at 9 a.m.

Trophies will be presented to the top three prishers in each age group in the races. Divisions include 17 and under, 18-29, 30-39, 40 and over for men in the 3K race, and 12 and under, 13-17, 18-29 and 30 and older for the women.

In the 10K race divisions are the same for men with 17 and under, 18-29, and 30 and older divisions for women.

The top two teams in the 10K race will receive gold and silver medals. Teams must consist of six runners with the winner determined by total-ing the times of all six members. Team members are also eligible for individual awards. After the race drawings for Well, for one there is the matter of two airline tickets to anywhere in the world supplied to the winning coach of the tournament by a major

"I'm going to go to Athens, Greece, for a week, live in a cave and send all of you a bottle of wine," Versace said when asked where he was headed.

He wouldn't have a trip ahead of him at all if it weren't for the balanced scoring attack of Bradley, a team that basically relied on three players for scoring during the regular season.

Barney Mines and Willie Scott, not two of the big three, each scored 17 points and Mitchell Anderson and David Thirdkill, who are among the high-scoring trio, added 16 and 15, respectively. Anderson, who scored 25 points in a semifinal victory over Oklahoma, won the tournament most valuable player award.

The balanced scoring combined with some tenacious defense by Thirdkill that held Big Ten scoring champion Keith Edmonson to 11 points, 10.5 below his average, helped Bradley survive the fouling out of its starting and backup centers.

Donald Reese, the Braves' third-leading scorer, and his backup, Kerry Cook, both fouled out trying to stop the Boilermakers' sophomore center, Russell Cross, who finished with 16 points.

The Boilermakers had managed to get within one point at 43-42 on a jumper by Mike Scearce, who tied Cross for scoring honors with 16. After rebounding a missed shot, Purdue had a chance for its first lead since an early 8-6 Scearce, advantage. however, was called for an offensive foul and Thirdkill's three-point play started an 11-2 run that gave Bradley a 54-44 lead.

Brett's Average A Lofty .512

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

George Brett has stopped flirting with a .400 batting average. For the time being, he has upped the figure by some 100 points.

Brett rapped out four hits Wednesday, including two in Kansas City's eight-run seventh inning that powered the Royals to a 13-3 exhibition triumph ovr theChicago White Sox. The outburst boosted Brett's spring average to a lofty .512.

Another hot batter is Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion, who stretched his hitting streak to 12 games with a double, triple and a pair of runs batted in as the Reds pounded out eight extra-base hits and bombed the Boston Red Sox

Elsewhere, Fernando Valenzuela, who reported to the Los Angeles Dodgers' camp Tuesday night, pitched 10 minutes of batting practice after a news conference in which he reiterated he would not sign the 1982 contract the Dodgers renewed for $350,000.

Valenzuela, the National League Cy Young Award winner and Rookie of the Year in 1981, had been asking $850,000. He made $42,500 last

Mark Wagner's single and two-run double highlighted an eight-run fifth inning for Texas as the Rangers walloped the New York Yankees 14-6. Doug Gwosdz, Sixto Lezcano and Broderick Perkins combined to drive in seven runs as the San Diego Padres routed the Chicago Cubs 11-0. The New York Mets had 15 hits and beat the Toronto Blue Jays 9-3.

Omar Moreno's three-run double helped the Pittsburgh Pirates defeat the Minnesota Twins 8-2.

Rookies Chili Davis and Joe Pettini drove in two runs apiece and both had three hits to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 6-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Steve Rogers scattered six hits in six innings and Rodney Scott slapped a two-run double to help the Montreal Expos defeat the Atlanta Braves 6-2 in a game called because of rain after 712 innings.

Wayne Gross' three-run homer off Bruce Kison in the first inning paced the Oakland A's to a 5-2 victory over the California Angels.

Gary Matthews drove in three runs and Bob Dernier and Mike Schmidt each doubled and singled as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 in a game shortened to seven innings because of rain.

Darrell Porter's two-run triple capped a three-run third inning and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Detroit Tigers 5-1. Porter started a two-run ninth with a single. St. Louis starter Dave LaPoint scattered two hits in five innings.

Joe Charboneau hit a pair of RBI doubles to lead a Cleveland offense that pounded out five doubles and three triples as the Indians extended their winning streak to seven games with a 5-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) -Jack Donlan says he believes all the strike talk coming out of the players' union - but says it's not going to change owners. And the NFL's chief negotiator also thinks it's time the league stopped taking care of the union's business, namely asking its members for dues.

any minds among the National Football League

Donlan told a news conference Wednesday he believes the players when they talk about striking. "If they want to pull a strike, they can pull a strike," he said. "But I don't think they've gotten the message yet that just because they have a strike, even a successful strike - if success means pulling them out that doesn't mean they get what they want. There is no correlation."

He said if the owners are unalterably opposed to a concept, a strike won't change their minds. "If what they (the union leaders) are telling the players is 'If we have a strike then we'll get what we want,' it's wrong," Donlan

He said he has already proposed that the union's agency-shop be done away with in the next contract. In an agency shop, players don't have to belong to the union, but they must still pay dues.

Before Donlan's news conference, Ed Garvey, Donlan's counterpart with the NFL Players Association, said in Ibuquerque, N.M., "There will be an agency shop. We're not going to spend a lot of time arguing over that. They

(the owners) know it ... Membership in the union has nothing to do with the collective bargaining agreement."

Change Owners' Minds

Garvey also has criticized the owners for their failure to sit down across from him at the bargaining table. "I think sometimes Ed

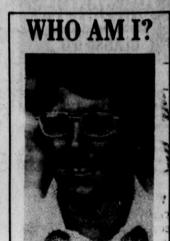

Garvey specifically likes to equate himself with the commissioner (Pete Rozelle) or other people," said Donlan. "But in traditional, conventional labor negotiations, you don't see chairmen of the board, you don't see presidents. You see people who have some skills in labor negotiations."

Donlan said the owners acknowledge ohat the players are entitled to better salaries and more benefits. "That was the first line in our response (to the union's contract demands). The second line is we don't think they're entitled to control or to become a partner." The players are demanding a fixed percentage of gross revenues.

"When you have a percentage of anything, if you're going to represent your people fairly, you're obligated to see if you can increase the pot so the money they're going to get will be larger," said Donlan. "If they had a percentage of the gross, do you think they'd be passing a resolution saying, 'Don't up the ticket prices?' Or do you think it would be just the other way around?

"If the owners had said, 'We're willing to give you more money and better benefits,' why does it have to be a percentage of the gross? Why is that the only way it can happen? We're not imaginative enough or innovative enough to do it and another way?" He also noted that the percentage idea was not discussed in the four the years preceding the 1977 signing of the current contract and that "this concept is alieng to American business."

Cowboy hat care

DEAR POLLY — My son just brought home a new white cowboy hat. The hat is felt and was very expensive. How can we keep it clean? — JEANNE

DEAR JEANNE — Whenever the hat becomes slightly soiled, you can dry clean it at home this way. Sprinkle it with a mixture of equal parts flour, cornmeal and salt. Then brush vigorously with a soft brush. The flour will absorb any grease and the cornmeal and salt act as gentle abrasives to dislodge dust and dirt. Periodically, you'll want to take the hat to a professional cleaner for a thorough cleaning and to have it re-blocked. — POLLY from a reader who wanted ideas for using leftover cooked oatmeal. Since then, your ideas and recipes have been pouring in by the bagful. We've already passed some of these along. Here are a few more suggestions:

MRS. D.B. from South Dakota mixes leftover oatmeal with a little brown sugar and cinnamon, adds cut-up canned peaches, heats the mixture and serves it with milk as a

D.E. from Idaho mixes the oatmeal with an egg, then fries small cakes of the mixture in a little shortening as one would pancakes. She serves these with pancake syrup

When MRS. P.L. from Kansas was a little girl, her mother fried leftover oatmeal and served it with gravy in place of SAL who lives in Pennsylvania suggests mixing warm or room temperature prepared oatmeal into bread dough. She says it gives the bread a more moist and "homey" texture.

Types of hypoglycemia DEAR DR. LAMB — I was diagnosed as having hypoglycemia about a year ago. During a glucose tolerance test my blood sugar was 40 and I had shakiness and weakness I was put on and weakness. I was put on the diet I am enclosing, mostly avoiding carbohy-drates and particularly any-thing that contains sugar. I eat protein. I'm a female, 5 feet 9 and weigh 124. Before dieting I weighed 145 pounds. Have I lost too much? I have fast heartbeats, especially when I'm under stress. I take Atarax and it goes away. But when they checked my blood sugar it was 28. After getting to the doctor, it would be around 80 but that is after eating something.

These spells leave me very weak. I get real panicky when this happens.
Should I stay on this diet?
My doctor says potatoes have too much starch that turns to sugar. But I am afraid I might go into a

DEAR READER - Your letter is one of the few of many I receive about hypoglycemia (low blood glucose) that sounds like you have a solid basis for the diagnosis. You have symptoms at the time you have a demonstrated low blood glucose level. The other important question is, do you have these when you are fasting? Fasting hypoglycemia is a different problem from that which occurs after eating as a rebound reaction called reactive hypoglycemia. If you have fasting hypogiscemia you probably have an underlying medical problem that also needs treatment.

The diet you are using is fine for reactive hypoglycemia. If you have fasting hypoglycemia you may need something more. I do notice that it allows coffee, tea and colas. I don't think you should use any of these at all and I think you should not smoke. All of these make reactive hypoglycemia worse. And I think you might need to eat more and eat more frequently. Frequent meals may help control your symptoms.

Ask your doctor if you can eat some apples. They do not increase the blood glucose level and do not cause a reactive response. He may agree to that and it may ease your craving for something that tastes sweet.
