New Exhibit

E.C. Padilla, Santa Fe roadmaster, inspects an exhibit of a manpowered railroad vehicle which the Hereford crewmen set up at the Deaf Smith County Museum today. The vehicle, circa late 1800s, was placed on an authentic piece of rail as part of an exhibit in the Hacker-Lomas Barn which will have its official public opening May 26. The opening will be in conjunction with the Deaf Smith County Historical Society's annual meeting and membership drive.

Two brothers nabbed for Garcia shooting

Thanks to tip to lawmen

The brothers believed responsible for the Thursday shooting death of Henry Garcia were nabbed at 10:15 this morning outside the office of an Amarillo attorney.

Hereford police officers Sammy Sanchez and Israel Silva arrested Ben Garcia, 21, and Anthony Garcia, 19, based on a tip that the pair would be seeking legal counsel today. The officers had set up surveillance outside the office.

Both men had been named on murder warrants and had been sought by police since the shooting early Thursday morning.

Based on the eyewitness report of the victim's wife, Ben is believed to be the one who fired the fatal shots while Anthony is thought to be the driver of the car from which the shots were fired.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul said Anthony can be charged with murder because of his alleged role in "aiding and abetting" his brother.

Henry Garcia died from a single gunshot wound to the head early Thursday morning after he was shot while driving his pickup on a Hereford street. His wife, Odella, was seated beside him but was not hurt.

Police officers said a friend was with the pair when they were seen a few minutes earlier, and the couple had just taken the friend home when the shooting took place.

Henry Garcia lost control of his pickup after being shot, and it knocked down an electrical utility pole before crossing the street and coming to rest in front of a local business. More than 300 Southwestern Public Service Company customers were without electrical power for nearly four hours after the pole was struck.

Garcia was believed to have been searching for his brother, Domingo Garcia, who had been injured that night in a street fight. Hereford police talked to him about fifteen minutes before the shooting and he told the officer he needed to get to work. That would have been round 3 a.m.

An autopsy was performed by pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann of Amarillo.

Services are set for Saturday afternoon under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors. An obituary appears on Page 2 of today's Brand.

Hail damages set at $2 million for property

Hailstones which blasted parts of Deaf Smith County on Tuesday night damaged at least $2 million in property and devastated crops in 50 sections of land west of Hereford, according to a conservative estimate made by the Soil Conservation Service and the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Some acreage of sugar beets, corn, vegetables, and cotton will be replantable, but John Fuston of the ASCS office here said 80 to 100 percent of the wheat in a 10,000 acre area is lost. Estimates for the loss are set at approximately $2.5 million.

Corn fields had the next highest loss with about 3,000 acres suffering about a $60,000 loss, but Fuston indicated those acres were replantable.

Beet loss estimates were set at about $15,000 on 1,000 acres, but those too were replantable.

Losses were unknown on vegetable and cotton crops which would be replanted.

Homeowners who suffered damage from Tuesday's hailstorm and do not have homeowners insurance policies may be eligible for assistance from the American Red Cross.

According to Betty Henson, director of the Deaf Smith County Chapter, federal and local disaster assistance funds are available for providing materials for roof repairs.

The Red Cross Disaster Assistance Center will be open Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the American Legion Building in Veterans Park.

Workers will be taking applications from homeowners who bring present proof of ownership, such as a tax statement, and personal identification such as a driver's license.

Henson said there will also be a home inspection, and applicants will be issued purchase vouchers based on their needs.

Persons on fixed incomes who have large insurance company deductibles may also be eligible for Red Cross aid, Henson said.

A training session was to be held at 2:00 this afternoon at the local Red Cross office. Volunteers are needed to staff the Saturday and Sunday application process, Henson said.

Volunteers are asked to call the office at 365-3761.

Budget narrowly clears Senate, 50-49

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Senate early today approved, 50-49, a Republican package of $295 billion in spending cuts that would cancel next year's Social Security benefit increases and pare President Reagan's defense buildup — with an ailing GOP member rushed to the Capitol by ambulance to provide the winning margin.

The three-year deficit reduction package next goes to the Democratic House of Representatives, where its fate was uncertain. House Democratic leaders have generally voiced opposition to any provision limiting Social Security benefits.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., who underwent surgery for a ruptured appendix the day before, was brought to the Capitol from nearby Bethesda Naval Hospital to vote for the package on the suspenseful, post-midnight roll call.

Wilson, wearing a bathrobe, was wheeled into the center aisle of the Senate.

"What is the question?" he asked, then voted "aye" to a standing ovation by members of both parties.

Wilson's vote brought the roll call to 49-49 in the Republican-controlled Senate. Vice President George Bush then voted to break the tie.

After the vote, Reagan, in a phone call from Lisbon, Portugal, congratulated Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., on successfully steering the compromise 1986 budget through the Senate.

"I think a $300 billion package is worth staying up all night for," said Dole, who invited reporters into his office to hear his end of the call. The final vote came after a nonstop 18-hour Senate session.

"We know you're a little disappointed on the defense (spending levels), but I think there could be some adjustments later on if there's a need," Dole said.

A House-Senate conference committee will eventually have to reconcile differences between versions of the budget passed by the two chambers.

The budget document is only a spending outline, a set of targets for congressional committees to meet. It does not go to the president for his signature or veto. Separate legislation must be passed later to make the targets binding and to release funds for federal programs.

After the vote endorsing the Republican package, Democrats made final efforts to amend the plan to block the Social Security restrictions, to restore full Medicare funding and to establish a 15 percent minimum corporate income tax. They failed on 51-47, 54-44 and 61-37 roll calls, respectively.

Then, the Senate took a final voice vote on the overall package, sending it to the House.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said the House Budget Committee will begin working on its version of the budget next week.

Dole said the plan would chop nearly $56 billion from the nation's $200 billion-plus deficit in 1986, and would meet the goal he and other GOP leaders set four months ago when they vowed to develop a plan to cut the federal deficit to less than $100 billion by 1988 — without raising taxes.

Only one Democrat, Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska, voted for the package. He said additional money put into the package for farm programs enticed him to cross party lines.

Bigamy conviction nets 4 years

A Hereford man was sentenced Thursday to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections, after pleading guilty to a third degree felony bigamy charge.

Michael Wayne Richardson, 25, appeared in 222nd District Court before Judge David Wesley Gully under terms of a plea bargain agreement with the district attorney's office.

Richardson has been indicted by a Deaf Smith County grand jury on March 22. The indictment alleged Richardson was still legally married to Teresia Renee Hunt Richardson when he married Donna Lynn Scott on Aug. 31, 1984.

In other action Thursday in district court, Jacinto Montes Orasco, 45, pleaded guilty to aggravated perjury and driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense. He was sentenced to four years in prison for each offense, to be served concurrently. He was also fined $500.

Orasco was found guilty of lying on an application for probation, by failing to list a conviction for driving while under the influence of alcohol. He received a three-year prison term for that offense after being convicted March 28, 1977 in Lincoln County, Nebraska.

Juan Antonio Carbajal, 28, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He was placed on three years deferred adjudication probation.

Mishaps, it seems, usually come in pairs. This morning, someone got our photo chemicals switched and we developed five rolls of film in the wrong solution. The result-five rolls of film and wasted time for photographers and subjects, and no pictures except those that can be shot again!

Some letter writers send copies of their "letters to the editor" all across the country. We received a unique letter the other day—one which we think would be of interest to our readers.

"Fellow Citizens: President Kennedy said, 'Ask not what the country can do for you, but what you can do for the country.' I accept that challenge.

"My yearly social security amounts to more than I ever paid in. This fact makes me a free-loader on welfare. I don't like the feeling. I am willing to take any cut in my monthly check of $279 that Congress may have the courage to enact.

"I believe the benefits of a balanced budget are worth any cost or sacrifice. I believe President Reagan's promise not to cut S.S. was mistaken. I am appealing to my fellow Americans to take our President off the hook by letting their legislators know how many handouts, subsidies and fringe benefits you are willing to give up.

"Let's face it, fellow senior citizens on social security welfare, you and I are largely responsible for allowing vote-buying politicians to get us in such a mess. Let's admit our mistakes and send a different message to Washington."

We're sure Washington won't get many letters like this one sent by Frank Meinen of Chippewa Falls, Wis., and most senior citizens can't afford to offer to give up part of their social security checks.

Bankers predict little prime rate change

HOUSTON (AP)— The inflation rate will be less than 6 percent by the end of 1985, and the prime rate charged by major bank will remain unchanged or drop, a survey of 200 Houston-area bank directors shows.

Half of the bankers polled also believe the price of oil will drop by $2 to $4 to $24-to-$26 per barrel by the end of the year, the survey showed.

The survey was done by the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. and released Thursday at a meeting of the American Institute of Banking, the educational arm of the American Bankers Association.

During the keynote address Thursday night, Texas Gov. Mark White said the state's economic future is strong.

White said state would have a balanced budget without increased taxes, better educational opportunities for children, plenty of water and adequate transportation

Squabbles, dirty water, car theft, busy police

Hereford police made an arrest for assault and resisting arrest Thursday after breaking up a family squabble. The man's wife was taken to the Domestic Violence Center in Amarillo as a result of the incident.

Police also handled two juvenile problems and several theft reports.

Criminal mischief was reported in the 300 Block of Roosevelt, where more than $800 worth of damage was done to the interior of the home. Police have a suspect, the same person arrested Thursday on a public intoxication charge.

A complaint was signed by a person tired of his neighbor's dirty laundry water being expelled onto his yard, police said.

A 1975 Chrysler Cordoba belonging to Kirk Minchew was driven away while he was painting a house, Minchew reported. He said the keys were in the car and he heard the culprit start it up and drive off as he was working.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen answered a false alarm at 7:41 p.m. Thursday, then were called on the real thing at around 8:30 p.m.

A wood frame house being used for storage was totally involved in flames when firemen arrived, according to Fire Marshal Jay Spain. The 922 South Sampson house belonging to Oralla Jackson was heavily damaged, he said.

Bodies found in nature park

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Arlington Police today examined a woman's blood-stained automobile in an attempt to find the person or persons who killed the woman and a male companion by slashing their throats in an Arlington park.

The automobile was found Thursday night, about a mile north of Veterans Park, where earlier in the day the body of the man was found by a man walking his dog and the woman's body was found several hours later by youth who was exploring the park.

The victims were identified as Jeffrey Penisten, 21, of Grand Prairie, and Stephanie Jennings, 18, of Arlington. The two had been dating for about a month, Jim Willett, a police spokesman said.

Both bodies were partially nude, officers said. Willett said police believe the couple had gone to the park, known locally as a lover's lane, for a stroll, when they were approached. Willett said the man's wallet and the woman's purse were missing, and no weapon has been recovered.

Numerous blood stains were found on the dashboard and steering wheel of the woman's car, Willett said.

Senator wants public support

AUSTIN (AP) — An ex-cop in charge of a subcommittee reviewing a bill to ban drinking while driving is looking for a "cop-out" to kill the measure, a senator charged Thursday.

Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Canyon, said there are more than enough House votes to approve the Senate-passed ban on drinking while driving.

But the measure is now locked up in a three-member subcommittee of the House Liquor Regulation Committee. Victoria Rep. Kenneth Armbrister, a former Victoria policeman and chairman of the subcommittee, "is looking for any excuse possible to be against the bill," Sarpalus said.

"To sit back and just let the bill die and try to think up some kind of excuse is nothing but a cop-out," he said at a news conference.

Armbrister has said he sees potential enforcement problems with Sarpalus' measure, which bans drivers from drinking alcoholic beverages behind the wheel. Armbrister was unavailable for comment after the Sarpalus news conference.

The subcommittee met in Arlington Tuesday to review that city's local open container ban. Sarpalus said that hearing was merely a "step to delay the legislation."

Elderly abuse widespread

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abuse of the elderly, a problem that remains largely hidden, is increasing nationally and may affect about 4 percent of the aged population, according to a House subcommittee.

"It represents a shocking and still largely hidden problem affecting over a million of our nation's most helpless and vulnerable citizens," Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging's subcommittee on health and long-term care, said today in releasing a panel study.

"Physical violence, including negligence, and financial abuse appear to remain the most common forms of abuse, followed by the abrogation of basic constitutional rights and psychological abuse," the subcommittee's report said.

"The average citizen would find it hard to imagine just how widespread and frequent this problem is — how it cuts across all classes of society, how it occurs in large cities and in small towns," Pepper said in prepared remarks accompanying the study.

Migrant worker believed found

WEISER, Idaho (AP) — A body discovered in the Snake River near Weiser late Wednesday was tentatively identified by Oregon State Police as that of a 27-year-old migrant farm worker from Houston.

The remains authorities said they believe are those of Ignacio Hernandez were found by Washington County, Idaho, sheriff's deputies in the Snake River southwest of Weiser.

Oregon State Police said Hernandez was reported drowned April 8 while swimming with several friends near a railroad bridge over the Snake River at Ontario, Ore., about 15 miles south of where the body was found.

U.S. and Mexicans meet today

MEXICO CITY (AP) — After a period that has seen some of the greatest strains in U.S.-Mexican relations in recent years, congressmen from the United States and Mexico start their annual meeting today to discuss issues affecting both countries.

Among the items on the agenda for discussion at the 25th annual meeting are relations between the two countries, drug trafficking, migrant workers, border issues, economic affairs and such international issues as the situation in Central America.

The three-day meeting alternates between the United States and Mexico each year. This year's conference will be held in Queretaro, a colonial city that has grown into an industrial center 138 miles northwest of Mexico City.

The government newspaper El Nacional on Thursday quoted U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, as saying that a climate of terror does not exist along the U.S.-Mexican border.

He also was quoted as saying that any defamation campaigns against Mexico underway in the United States aren't the work of President Reagan or the government but rather are caused by unfavorable public opinion of Mexico spurred by the American press.

The kidnap-murder of U.S. special narcotics agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Guadalajara in February caused an upheaval in relations between the two countries.

BUDGET

New York and Paula Hawkins of Florida — voted against the package.

The Senate plan would freeze cost-of-living benefits for Social Security recipients and for government and military pensioners at 1985 levels, cancelling an anticipated 4 percent increase next January. Reagan had originally opposed such a freeze.

And it would allow military spending to increase only with inflation in 1986, compared with a 3 percent increase in an earlier compromise and the 6 percent increase Reagan originally wanted. Still, defense spending could rise by $20 billion next year.

The plan included subsidies for Amtrak rail passenger service, which Reagan sought to eliminate, but would reduce the federal support by 12 percent in fiscal 1986, 25 percent in 1987 and 40 percent in 1988.

Other programs it would keep alive, although at reduced levels, include the Jobs Corps, the Small Business Administration and mass transit grants.

In an effort to win the support of farm-belt senators, Republican leaders and the administration agreed to restore $3.5 billion in proposed cuts to agricultural programs over the next three years and proposed a new export subsidy program.

The Senate did vote to terminate some of the programs Reagan sought to eliminate — including the Appalachian Regional Commission, urban development action grants, general revenue sharing and Export-Import Bank loans.

Pope faces fueding Church during Netherlands tour

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Saturday starts a five-day trip to the Netherlands, where his conservative policies have run into a wall of opposition from some of the world's most liberal Catholics.

In advance of the papal visit, posters containing death-threats and calls for riots have appeared in Amsterdam. The "Call-up for Anti-Papist Rioting" urged rioters to "get" the pope, describing him as a fascist.

"Progressive" Dutch Catholics — and their priests — question the church's bans on artificial birth control, marriage for priests and the ability of laymen to say Mass, as well as the position of women in the church and papal infallibility on doctrinal matters.

The split between "progressives" and "traditionalists" polarizes the approximately 5.6 million Dutch Roman Catholics, about 40 percent of the population.

The Vatican has acknowledged the problems facing the pope during his trip, which also includes stops in Luxembourg and Belgium.

"Today the Dutch church is in a state of crisis," the Vatican newspaper said in a front-page commentary on Wednesday. "There is talk of a difficult trip."

Monsignor Harrie Verhoeven, director of the Pontifical Missionary Aid Works in the Netherlands, said: "The problems facing the church in general are seen even more sharply in the Netherlands. I think he will offer the Dutch encouragement to practice the fundamentals of the faith."

He added that the pope's plans to speak in Dutch "will have a positive effect" on his attempts to reconcile the Dutch church.

The "progressive" positions, sparked in large part by the modernizing trends of the Second Vatican Council of the 1960s, have given rise to the terms "experimental" or "do-it-yourself" Catholicism, to signify individual decision-making rather than Vatican direction.

John Paul's appointment in 1983 of Archbishop Adrianus Simonis, a hard-line conservative, to succeed Dutch primate Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, a moderate, was sharply criticized by the liberals of the church. They charged that the church needed another moderate to control the feuding factions.

The pope will raise Simonis to the rank of cardinal later this month.

The Polish-born pontiff also named three new conservative bishops in 1983, despite an outcry from liberal Dutch Catholics that the move was "authoritarian" and accusations that "the v voices of the faithful are no longer heard" in choosing local church leaders.

The Vatican had a long-running dispute with the Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx, the Belgian Dominican whose works are popular in the Netherlands. Schillebeeckx once argued that lay people could say Mass in limited circumstances.

Welfare board votes to buy equipment

The Child Welfare board of Deaf Smith County has voted to join six other counties for a $7,000 purchase of five sets of video equipment which will be used to tape victims of child abuse and for recruiting and training of adoptive and foster parents.

Deaf Smith would join seven other counties in the project with its share of the cost being approximately $1,000.

According to Danny Jackson, Protective Service Supervisor from Amarillo, said the equipment would be useful to this county since it and Moore County have more sexual abuse than any of the seven counties he serves. With the equipment, a child's testimony can be admissible in court without the child having to appear.

In other action at the board's Wednesday meeting, Ron Cook said he planned to contact the Hereford school administration concerning showing films in the primary grades. The "Penelope" series has already been approved by the principals.

A motion was made for Mysedia Smith to be placed on the Child Welfare board and the budget for next year was approved.

William E. Gibson, senior vice president and chief economist for RepublicBank Corp., predicted the state's economy will grow "in line with the national economy, maybe a little faster."

Despite some problems in energy-related industries, Gibson said, the growing population and defense spending will spur economic growth.

Bank directors, however, seemed uncertain about the direction of Texas banking, the survey showed.

"Many of the results point to a level of uncertainty about what products should be offered, about the real estate market in general and about whether branch banking for Texas banks should be allowed," said Stan Martain of Peat, Marwick.

More than 65 percent of the bank directors said they receive adequate regulatory supervision, while about 12 percent think the supervision is less than adequate.

The poll also showed that 56 percent believe commercial banks and bank holding companies should be able to sell insurance. Forty-five percent said banks should be able to offer real estate brokerage services, and 51 percent said they should be able to offer mutual funds directly to customers.

Bank directors, however, were divided over issue of branch banking in Texas.

Fifty-six percent said they support branch banking on a statewide basis, the survey showed.

Proud of Phoenix

I was so proud of Phoenix, Arizonans early this month!

They were offered $400 million for a piece of their sky and they said no.

Some of us who try to sojourn in Arizona without intruding have watched the population of the Phoenix-Scottsdale metropolis with trepidation.

Once-lazy Camelback Road, widened to accommodate rush-hour traffic, has become noisier, busier and lined with condos and business buildings where citrus was.

On a windless day the Valley of the Sun is layered with a brown cloud of exhaust-pipe regurgitation.

The bulldozers of developers gouge ugly scars on the steep slopes of local landmark mountains even unto their summits.

And then last year out of the east came a developer named J. Fife Symington III, announcing plans to build an enormous skyscraper at the already busy intersection of Camelback and 24th Street.

He sought zoning for a $400 million hotel, office and residential skyscraper — eight buildings — some as high as 20 stories!

This time local media, local people and local politicians said "no!"

So Mr. Symington sent forth into the community agents promising thousands of jobs if homefolks would sign his petitions.

With a six-month media blitz he spent hundreds of thousands of dollars seeking to convince Phoenixians that more and bigger is better.

Hours before the city council vote, the developer announced that his Esplanade would include a magnificent Ritz-Carlton hotel. That bid had to be tempting to a city that loves lovely hotels.

The campaign culminated in a five-hour telecast debate ventilating the pro and con for all to hear.

And when it was over the mayor and the city council voted — and voted unanimously — "no!"

This time Phoenix said enough is enough.

They told the developer that he can if he wants build that at intersection up to the six-story height of other area architecture — but no more.

The beautiful, fragile Sonoran desert cities will not hold back the dawn, but one city has ceased, at least for now, to profane it.

Pickling salt

DEAR POLLY — What is the difference between pickling salt and table salt? May table salt be used in making pickles? — JENNIFER DEAR JENNIFER — Table salt may be used to make pickles, but it is not recommended. Chemicals in table salt to prevent caking can cause the pickling liquid to turn cloudy. For crystal-clear pickling liquid (and for canning vegetables, too), you'll want to use pickling or canning salt that has no anti-caking additives — or anything else except pure salt. Pickling salt is usually available wherever home-canning supplies are sold.

DR. GOTT

Be cautious about the sun

DEAR DR GOTT — I've read that exposure to the sun is bad for the skin and can cause cancer or aging lines. Recently, I read that women especially need more calcium after a certain age to prevent osteoporosis. Getting vitamin D from the sun is recommended to help us use the calcium we take in. I'm confused.

DEAR READER — In general, commercially available milk is fortified with vitamin D. So are calcium-containing pills for dietary supplement.

The sun does effectively activate vitamin D in the body, but the amount of sunshine necessary for this reaction is quite small. If, during an ordinary week, you are exposed to some sun on your hands and face, this will be sufficient even if you are not a milk-drinker. You do not have to be a sun-worshipper to prevent vitamin-D deficiency.

If you have reached menopause, however, you will need more calcium in your diet. The current recommendation is 1,500-2,000 milligrams a day. Should you decide to increase your calcium intake, take some vitamin D as well, in the form of fortified low-fat milk or calcium pills with vitamin D.

Since sunshine can be harmful to skin, use it recreationally, not therapeutically.

DEAR DR GOTT — Would stress in pregnancy affect the unborn child?
DEAR READER — Certain chemical stresses during pregnancy can profoundly affect the unborn child. These include alcohol, cigarette smoking, many medicines, narcotics, hydrocarbons and poor nutrition.

If, by your question, you mean psychological stress, the picture is not so clear. Life-threatening stresses, such as bereavement and war, appear to produce consequences in some pregnancies. By and large, however, fetuses are pretty hardy, and mothers seem to be affected more deeply than do their babies. I would advise any expectant mother to avoid stress to the extent she can. Getting help in coping with stress is preferable to passively putting up with it, and may reduce many of its results for both woman and baby and may ameliorate many of its results.

DEAR POLLY — When baking a pie, try this Pointer to prevent the crust from browning too much: Cut the center out of an aluminum pie plate and put the resulting ring over the top of the pie while it's baking. ## Local Church News

First United Methodist Church

All four of the children's choirs in First United Methodist Church will have a part in the morning service Sunday, Mothers Day, and the Carol Bell Choir composed of fifth and sixth graders will ring.

This will be the last appearance of these choirs before the summer vacation. Members and the adults working with them were honored at an Awards Day program last Sunday morning.

They are directed by John Avery, minister of music. Accompanists are Donna Ruland and Tina Langehenig.

Kay Lynn Caviness and Peggy Cooper are choir mothers for the Cherub Choir, made up of pre-school children; Donna Warrick and Rene Leavitt for the Angelic Choir, first and second grades; Pat Walsh for the Sunshine Choir, third and fourth grades, and Sandra Thomas for the Carol Choir.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Morning worship services at the church will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday. Bruce Kochsmeier, who, subject to the approval of the congregation, will be the new minister and will deliver the sermon. A reception from 9:30 to 10:30 will be held for the Kochsmeiers prior to the service. All members of the congregation are urged to attend.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Brad Belford, son of the Rev. and Mrs. George Belford of Kingsland, former Hereford residents, will graduate during ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the church.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

All church members are urged to bring sandwiches, chips and other goodies and stay for the fellowship and Slave Sale following the evening worship service Sunday.

All young people planning to attend Summer Activities need to come prepared to dress as slaves for the sale.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Junior Choir Camp, for children who have just completed third through sixth grades and have an interest in music, singing and musical instruments, is scheduled June 17-21. The camp will meet each day from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Polk Street Methodist Family Center.

Camp registration for the week is $20 plus $5 for transportation from the church and back. Registration deadline is June 3.

Guest Speaker

The Hereford Community Concert Association held their annual campaign workers dinner Tuesday evening at the Community Center. Mary Lloyd of New York, representative for the national concert association, spoke to members and will be available to talk with individuals interested in joining the association. She will be at campaign headquarters located at the Chamber of Commerce office until 1 p.m. Saturday. Further information may also be obtained by calling Ann Meyer or Helen Rose.

Ann Landers

There may be numerous exceptions

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a female who has gone through it, I have always felt that breaking up was a lot harder on women than men, regardless of who initiated the split. But I had never seen any studies on this subject until yesterday. The research was done by a Wellesley College researcher, Dr. Robin Akert. She reported her findings at a meeting of the American Psychological Association.

The survey, based on 171 men and 173 women, revealed that women suffer more depression, loneliness and anger after the break-up. They also tend to eat too much or too little, endure stomachaches, headaches and insomnia.

It was learned that 49 percent of the women who terminated relationships suffered physical ills afterward, compared with 26 percent of males who broke up the affair.

Among those who got dumped, 88 percent of the rejected women and 76 percent of the discarded men became ill with some ailment or another.

The study showed that women like to spend more time talking about the split. They are also more eager to remain on friendly terms.

This suggests, according to Akert, that women want to keep the relationship alive (if only the memory) while men prefer to forget it and move on.

What do you think of THIS survey, Ann Landers?—K. IN MASS.

DEAR K.: It sounds reasonable to me. I would point out, however, that there may be a great many exceptions on both sides.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is in response to the woman in Shamokin who complained about doctors who have no compassion. She was very upset because the physician who took care of her close relative didn't attend the funeral.

I believe it is totally unrealistic to expect a doctor to attend the funerals of his patients. If every doctor did that, there would not be enough doctors on duty to take care of the sick. I don't wish to seem hard-hearted, but I believe physicians are obligated to give their patients the best possible care, and to expect anything beyond that is unreasonable.

My father was a physician. No one will ever convince me that he never became emotionally involved with his patients. I remember the evening he came home with red-rimmed eyes, didn't want any supper and asked mother to cancel their theater plans. He had just lost a beautiful blue-eyed patient to cancer. She was only 10 years old. My father was heartsick and it showed.

I'm sure you will receive hundreds of letters in defense of physicians. I hope you will print mine.—A DAUGHTER WHO KNOWS—LOUISVILLE, KY.

DEAR LOUISVILLE: Despite the fact that doctor-bashing is in vogue these days, I did receive a large number of letters defending them. Here's your letter and my thanks for writing.

DEAR READERS: I keep promising no more arguments in this space about earrings, but this poem from Ottumwa, Iowa, was irresistible:

The right ear is the wrong ear.
Both ears—and it's a girl.

Consumers asked to make informal home inspections

Consumers are being asked by government and industry safety experts to make informal home inspections to eliminate common electrical hazards which cause some 192,000 house fires each year.

Noting that May has been designated Electrical Safety Awareness Month, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said property losses each year from house fires of electrical origin now exceed $1.1 billion. These fires claim 1,000 lives and injure 10,700 consumers each year; electrocutions kill another 500 persons in and around the house each year.

CPSC said the major sources of electrical house fires were ranges and ovens, household wiring, clothes dryers and washers, electric cords and plugs, central and fixed heating equipment, and electric lamps and fixtures. Electrical fire deaths most often involved wiring, electric cords and portable space heaters while electrocutions most often were associated with household wiring, electric power tools, ladders and antennas.

The government's ongoing electrical safety program seeks to eliminate common electrical hazards in the house, particularly those which can be easily corrected by consumers.

The focal point of the campaign is an electrical safety checklist developed by CPSC and industry. The free booklet tells consumers how to conduct a room-by-room inspection of the house and how to correct the hazards.

Consumers may obtain a free copy of the checklist in English or Spanish by writing Electrical Safety, Washington, D.C. 20207, or by calling CPSC's toll-free hotline at 1-800-451-2772. CPSC also has a slow-play disc of the checklist for blind consumers.

Appeals court considers case

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel has heard a plea to reverse the conviction of Stacey Lynn Merkt, a halfway house worker facing a six-month prison sentence for transporting illegal aliens into the United States.

There was no indication when a ruling would be issued by the three-judge panel, which heard arguments from Ms. Merkt's lawyers on Thursday.

Ms. Merkt, a 30-year-old volunteer at the church-supported Casa Oscar Romero in San Benito, near Harlingen, has said that she considers helping illegal aliens into this country to be her religious obligation.

She was recently sentenced to six months in prison, plus a separate 90-day sentence for breaking probation on a similar conviction nine months earlier.

In a friend-of-the-court brief, the National Council of Churches and five other church organizations said Ms. Merkt was only following her religious beliefs, and the case set up "a confrontation between secular authority and religious obligation."

"Stacey Merkt, in assisting these Salvadoran refugees, was living her religious principles," the brief said.

Dennis Riordan, a San Francisco lawyer for Ms. Merkt, spent most of his argument on a claim that she "had a sincere belief" that the two aliens had a legal right to wade the Rio Grande River and enter the U.S., and therefore she had no intent to commit a crime.

Her intent, he said, was to assist them in filing for political asylum.

"There is no crime unless she transported them for the specific purpose of bringing them in illegally," he added.

Riordan said Ms. Merkt did not take the two San Salvador citizens to the Immigration and Naturalization Service center in Harlingen, though she passed by it, because she wanted to take them to the INS center in San Antonio, where the director was considered much more sympathetic.

There are 159 members in the United Nations.

Did You Suffer Losses Due To Hail Damage?

Please follow these simple guidelines to protect yourself!

- (1) In addition to local appraisers, special adjusters have been flown in to help facilitate appraisal on hail auto damage. Contact your local agent first to see whether these representatives can handle your claim!
- (2) Begin now to make temporary repairs on your home to prevent further damage incurred from broken windows and leaks.
- (3) DO NOT rush into a roof replacement until you have settled with your insurance company.
- (4) Beware of roofers offering you a special deal to do the job right now! Above all else, make sure you are getting what you pay for. Don't compound a bad situation by falling prey to unscrupulous profiteers!

Vermont woman hopes to break ground with suit

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Jeanne Allyn claims she was sexually abused by her father from the time she was a baby until she was 12. Twenty years later, she is ready to step into a courtroom and right the alleged wrong.

However, there is one large obstacle in her way: the laws that say she waited too long.

Like the victims in other crimes, sexual abuse victims are barred from bringing suit against the alleged offenders if the statute of limitations has expired. In the United States, victims of incest must take legal action within a few years after they turn 18.

However, many don't come to grips with their incest experiences until they are years beyond the age of majority. By then, they have no legal recourse.

The Plainfield woman wants to change that. In a $600,000 lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Buffalo, N.Y., she charges her father, Franklin Smith of Clarence Center, N.Y., with sexual abuse, and she challenges the statute of limitations in incest cases.

"This had to be done," she said in a recent interview. "Women are writing to me and thanking me for doing this, thanking me for my courage," said Ms. Allyn, who has dropped the name Smith.

Her father's attorney, Spencer Lerch of Lockport, N.Y., said he's prepared to file a response to the suit, denying the incest charges and asking the court to dismiss the case because the statute of limitations has expired.

Once the response is filed in court, the stage will be set for Ms. Allyn and her lawyer, Alan Rosenfeld, to launch their challenge of the laws during a hearing on the dismissal request.

If a judge waives the time limit and allows the case to go to trial, that will be half the battle for Ms. Allyn, who said she believes she is entitled to damages for years of personal anguish, including several suicide attempts, because of the alleged incest.

For Rosenfeld and the lawyers and therapists of incest victims, a denial of Smith's dismissal request will be a major legal victory.

"What it boils down to is there are millions of victims who are being dealt with differently than anyone else in the legal system who can go to court and sue someone when they've been abused and hurt," said Rosenfeld. "They're being denied access to court and I can't think of a reason why unless we want to say we're on the side of the abusers."

Other civil suits have been filed in incest cases, but most have been settled out of court and none has resulted in a ruling against the statute of limitations, according to Judith Musick, director of the Institute for the Study of Sexual Assault, a San Francisco research organization.

A legal pointer is an attorney given to dramatic gestures in the courtroom.

Eaton named defensive player of year in NBA

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Not much was expected of Mark Eaton, who scored just 53 points in his 30-game college career at UCLA, when the Utah Jazz picked him in the fourth round of the National Basketball Association draft three years ago.

But Utah took a chance that the 7-foot-4 Eaton might develop into a worthwhile backup center. As it turned out, he developed into much more than that.

After setting a record with 456 blocked shots and grabbing a league-leading 720 defensive rebounds this season, Eaton was named NBA defensive player of the year on Thursday. He received 32 votes from the 78-member panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

"Unlike scoring, defense is somewhat of a constant, something you can do every night," Eaton said. "I really felt when I came into the league that I could affect the game ... but I told people I just wanted to be a good backup center."

"He was starting to break through a year ago," Utah Coach Frank Layden said. "You could tell he was going to be a very good player."

"I have to be the first to admit, though, I didn't think Mark would become as good a player as he has. I think Mark's three or four times the player he was last year," Layden said.

Announcement of the award came two days after the Denver Nuggets eliminated the Jazz from the NBA playoffs.

Eaton injured his knee in the last game of Utah's five-game series with the Houston Rockets and he missed the best-of-seven series against the Nuggets, who eliminated Utah in five games.

"There's no doubt ... we would have had a better chance of beating them" with a healthy Eaton, Layden said Thursday.

In leading the NBA in blocked shots for the second straight year, Eaton broke Elmore Smith's 11-year-old record of 393 and also ranked fifth in the NBA in rebounding with an average of 11.3 a game.

Others receiving votes included two-time winner Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee, who was second with 13 votes, followed by Paul Pressey of Milwaukee with 10, Michael Cooper of the Los Angeles Lakers had nine, Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia had five, Dennis Johnson of Boston had three and T.R. Dunn of Denver, Micheal Ray Richardson of New Jersey and Danny Vranes of Seattle each had two.

First game set Saturday

Lakers, Nuggets prepare for series

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have raced through two rounds of the National Basketball Association playoffs, and Coach Pat Riley expects little change in the Western Conference final series against Denver.

"It's going to be a shootout, a high-scoring series," said Riley, whose club plays host to the Nuggets in the opening game of the best-of-seven series Saturday afternoon.

The winner of the Western Conference affair will move to the NBA's Championship Series against the Eastern Conference winner.

The Philadelphia 76ers earned a berth in the Eastern finals by sweeping the Milwaukee Bucks in four games. The defending NBA champion Boston Celtics, within a game of joining the 76ers, take a 3-2 edge into tonight's game against the Detroit Pistons at Detroit.

Los Angeles averaged over 130 points a game in sweeping the Phoenix Suns in three games and beating the Portland Trail Blazers in five to gain the Western Conference finals. But Denver, the regular-season scoring leader, showed some zip of its own by averaging almost 123 points in besting the San Antonio Spurs and Utah Jazz.

"Sure, we'll be the underdogs against L.A.," said Denver guard Mike Evans. "But we'll try to weather their storm. As far as tempo is concerned, that series is going to be as fast as a series can be."

"With Denver, you always know that (Calvin) Natt and (Alex) English will get their 20 points. What happens is that their other guys can sneak up on you and hurt you," said Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who scored 34 points and collected 19 assists in a 139-120 victory on Tuesday that eliminated the Portland Trail Blazers from the playoffs.

"I think Denver has a great bunch of athletes who are able to run with any team," Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said. "They match up real well with us. They've got good athletes and like to run, the same game we play."

Riley, however, isn't worried about his team coming up short.

"Maybe the fifth game (against Portland) was a blessing in disguise because we didn't have a week off" before meeting Denver, said Riley. "You can benefit from rest, but you can have too much of it, too."

The second game of the series will be played Tuesday night at the Forum, with the next two games May 17 and May 19 at Denver.

'Boom Boom' Mancini retires from boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini, who held the World Boxing Association lightweight title for two years and made millions of dollars in a 5½-year pro career, says he is retiring from boxing.

"I don't want to train anymore," Mancini, 24, told the New York Daily News. "I don't want to get banged around at this stage of the game. I have used boxing. Don't worry, I'm not going to let boxing use me."

Mancini, who won the lightweight title on May 8, 1982 with a first-round knockout of Arturo Frias, was a favorite of boxing fans who liked his straight-ahead, aggressive style. He recently was the subject of a television movie, "Ray Mancini, the Heart of a Champion."

He held the championship until he was knocked out by Livingstone Bramble last June 1, a bout that caused him to be hospitalized because of the punishment he took. He also took hundreds of punches in losing, by decision, a rematch to Bramble on Feb. 25.

Mancini won 29 of 32 pro fights, 23 by knockout. His only other defeat was against then World Boxing Council lightweight champion Alexis Arguello on Oct. 3, 1981.

One of his defenses ended in tragedy. Korean fighter Duk Koo Kim lapsed into a coma after being knocked out by Mancini in the 14th round on Nov. 13, 1982, and the challenger died several days later.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager Community Relations

Information Age booms in Texas

You've heard how during the Industrial Age people had a tendency to settle near major waterways and railroad hubs. Well, these days, it seems people are moving to the areas with the most efficient, up-to-date telecommunications systems. We've reached a period of time known as the Information Age.

How does the Information Age affect us as Texans and our working environment? We feel the economy of Texas will be greatly influenced by this revolution in telecommunications technology, possibly much in the same way as it was by the construction of roads and highways. At the core of this revolution in telecommunications, are businesses in Texas that are knowledge-intensive or what's known as high-tech industries.

These industries include businesses such as finance, research, education, medicine, electronic development and other business services. Many of you may have worked for or now work in one of these growing fields. These knowledge-intensive industries require a sophisticated telecommunications network. Just looking at the high-tech industries located in Texas gives you an indication of the telecommunications needs our customers demand.

An investment partnership

As you can probably imagine, keeping service at high levels and meeting customer needs, requires substantial investment. That's why Southwestern Bell Telephone is investing more than $1 billion in Texas this year, the eighth consecutive year our company has invested more than $1 billion in the state.

We want you to know that Southwestern Bell Telephone is committed to Texas and plays an important role in the overall economy of the state. For example, as of the end of 1984, we operated in 450 cities and towns statewide and served more than 80 percent of the state's telephone customers.

At the same time, we had a work force of 34,248, and we paid approximately $680 million in taxes.

Positioning company for the future

The primary reason we make such an investment in Texas is because of customers like yourself who want and expect quality telephone service in Texas.

And as technology changes our environment and lifestyles, it will be even more important to maintain the traditional quality of service. As customers of tomorrow, you will expect things like shopping without leaving home, electronic mail, banking by telephone and a host of other services — some which are not even invented yet.

We at Southwestern Bell Telephone want to be in a position to provide those services. By continuing the investment and community partnership with Texas, the future will be here before you know it.

'It was exciting, it was fun'

Rick Sutcliffe is apostle of Cubmania

By Murray Olderman

CHICAGO (NEA) — Cubmania, the fervor surrounding Chicago's National League baseball team, has profoundly affected Richard Lee Sutcliffe.

He first became aware of it last summer on the afternoon of June 24 when he was scheduled to make his first home start as a newly arrived Cub.

"They announced my name as the pitcher," recalls Sutcliffe, "and people went crazy. I never had that reaction before."

He remembers saying to Chicago pitching coach Billy Connors: "I don't know how to take this. It makes me nervous."

It made Sutcliffe so nervous he went out and pitched a five-hit shut-out, one of the 16 victories (against one loss) he contributed to the Cubs in 1984. And his pitching helped to lead Chicago to the NL East championship, the first title of any kind for the Cubs since 1945.

His 16-1 record and the Cy Young Award as the National League's top pitcher (he was 4-5 with Cleveland last season before the June trade) catapulted Sutcliffe to a new contract. It will pay the tall (6-foot-7) right-hander $1.8 million annually for the next five years.

Rick is not exactly apologetic about the money — "I did not award myself that salary. I don't have to justify it" — but he is modest about the success that induced it.

"I had a lot of help," he insists. "I'm not trying to sound overly modest. I obviously pitched better than I've ever pitched before. But they scored six runs a ball game for me (111 runs in 20 Cubs outings, to be exact). It doesn't mean you're going to win — but you're never going to lose. The manager's not going to leave you in."

Now the Cubmania fan mail keeps pouring into Sutcliffe's cubicle in the team's dressing room, a box-full daily. This dumfounds the 28-year-old pitching ace whose career had virtually come to a halt four years ago.

"It doesn't have a lot to do with Rick Sutcliffe," he claims, applying the third person to himself as he waves toward the overlow pile of letters. "It comes from the fact that I'm with the Cubs. A lot of people are pulling for the Cubs. Rick Sutcliffe has played baseball for 12 years."

The implication is clear. The fabulous 1984 season was the product of perfect timing. In June, he was traded from a team (Cleveland) that was 25 games out of first place to a team (the Cubs) that had a four-game lead.

"That can motivate a person," Sutcliffe says. "It was fun being in a pennant race basically for the first time."

True, the Los Angeles Dodgers — with whom he broke into the majors in 1979 as a 17-game winner and National League rookie of the year — were world champions in 1981. But by then Sutcliffe had been relegated to the bullpen as a little-used middle reliever; he pitched a total of 47 innings. He wasn't even included on the post-season roster (and he tore up the manager's office in a fit of fury).

Sutcliffe's career was revived the next year when he was traded to Cleveland, which is like playing summer stock right after a Broadway hit show.

At first, though, the Indians, too, kept him in relief.

"While I was in the bullpen," he says, "I came up with a slider. The Dodgers don't believe in the slider. I'd never pitched relief, and I had a big curve ball. Working once every two weeks in long relief, I couldn't get it over. But after two days with the Indians, throwing the slider on the side, they put me in a game. Five outings later, I had two saves and two wins. I got a start and went from there."

"After I got back into the rotation, I went back to the big curve ball, threw it to get ahead of people, then the slider and the fast ball to get them out. It gave me another dimension. Now the slider's my big out

Jim Thorpe was discovered by the legendary Glenn "Pop" Warner, who was coaching at Carlisle Institute, a government trade school for Indians. In a 1907 game against the University of Pennsylvania, Carlisle's top running back was injured. Thorpe was sent in as a replacement and ran consecutive touchdown runs of 65 and 85 yards. Thorpe played for Carlisle off and on until 1912.

Man aims to improve fish population in West Texas

LUBBOCK—Fishing for many West Texas anglers can be frustrating when they catch a lot of fish, but none of them large enough to keep for the frying pan.

A Texas Tech University professor of wildlife management, Brian R. Murphy, notes that the fishermen's problems is poor quality fish populations in many West Texas lakes and ponds.

"Many of the lakes and stock tanks in our area are dominated by crappie and other sunfish. Because there are so many crappie, they have forced out the bass populations and have even stunted their own growth rates," Murphy said.

Murphy has conducted experiments on a 35-acre private lake near Matador to determine if introducing a hybrid striped bass will help control the crappie population.

He notes that the traditional management technique, drawing down lakes before chemical reclamation and restocking, to control unwanted fish species is not practical in West Texas.

Arid conditions, he adds, can mean a long time before enough rain fills lakes and ponds that have been drained.

Murphy also said that without drawdown techniques, the average cost of using the chemical rotenone and then restocking can be prohibitive for the private individual wishing to upgrade his tank for the fishing enjoyment of family and friends.

He said his technique appears to be much less expensive than traditional methods. The cost of using rotenone and restocking usually is about $8,000, but that the cost for his work on the lake near Matador was only about $2,500.

In 1982, shallow water areas of the lake were sprayed with rotenone where most of the small crappie feed. Five to eight-inch advanced fingerlings were introduced to control the unwanted fish and to replenish the bass population.

Murphy said results showed the crappie population was significantly reduced by 1984, and that the remaining fish had increased in average length.

Before the experiment was started, the crappie averaged only about seven inches at four years of age in 1982, because of overcrowding. The spring 1984 surveys of the lake showed a 128 percent increase in length.

"You can catch all the crappie you want, but if they're only three to five inches long, they're just not big enough to eat. The average four-year-old crappie should be 11-12 inches and if the conditions are too crowded, they just won't grow like they should," he said.

Murphy believes he may have found an inexpensive and successful way to maintain proper balances in West Texas lakes and ponds.

Driver to attempt comeback in Indy 500

By STEVE HERMAN AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In auto racing, there's a big difference between fearless driving and reckless driving. No one knows that better than Derek Daly, who is easing himself back into top-flight competition after months of recuperating from serious injuries.

"At no time going around the track are you fearful," says Daly, who spent six weeks in the hospital and several months in rehabilitation following a last September's crash in a race at Michigan International Speedway. "I don't think any driver is afraid. If he was, he wouldn't be driving."

"But I do know my last race ended in a crash. I know physically and mentally I will need a couple days to get myself attuned to driving again."

Daly's first practice for the May 26 Indianapolis 500 amounted to a few shakedown laps on Wednesday. On Thursday, he said his biggest concern was getting enough time on the track to be ready for Saturday's first round of qualifying. "I feel good now," he said. "I lost 23 pounds in the hospital, and that took a lot of my strength and stamina. But I'm back up to 168 pounds now, which is what I weighed last season, and I've had extensive training with a home gym. I still have problems with my feet and have yet to drive a car any length of time."

The 32-year-old Irishman with a background in Formula One racing suffered severe injuries to both feet and legs in the Michigan crash. He lost half of one toe, broke his left leg in four places, cracked a hip joint and broke his pelvis.

After a week in an Ann Arbor, Mich., hospital, he was transferred to Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, where he was treated by the same doctor who attended Rick Mears. The two-time Indy 500 winner was a victim of foot and leg injuries in a crash last September in Canada.

Daly has appeared in two Indy 500s, finishing 19th in 1983 and 27th last year.

Cardinals take advantage of 10th-inning errors

By DICK BRINSTER

AP Sports Writer
The St. Louis Cardinals won ugly, thanks to two 10th-inning errors by Los Angeles first baseman Greg Brock. But after losing on three unearned runs the previous night and blowing a two-run lead in the ninth, the taste of victory was hardly sour.

"Last night, we made the errors," said Willie McGee who scored the winning run in the Cardinals' 5-4 victory Thursday night. "They made the errors tonight. That's baseball."

McGee led off the 10th with a single and went to third when Brock lost a pickoff throw by from loser Ken Howell, 2-2. One out and an intentional walk later, pinch-hitter Steve Braun hit a double-play grounder to short, but Brock dropped the throw to first, enabling McGee to score.

"That's our game, running, that's how we win," McGee said. "You throw so many times over to first, it's hard not to make a mistake. I definitely planned to steal on that pitch."

"I didn't see the error but I had my mind made up to go to third."

The Dodgers had tied the game with a two outs in the ninth inning on a single by Pedro Guerrero off winner Neil Allen, 1-2, the third Cardinal pitcher.

Both National League afternoon games ended 1-0, with San Diego blanking Pittsburgh and San Francisco edging Chicago in 12 innings.

There were no games in the American League.

Padres 1, Pirates 0
Tim Flannery got up a little early, thanks to his 11-day-old son Daniel, and capped a long day with a seventh-inning single to drive in the game's only run for NL West pacesetter Padres.

"We got up at six o'clock and had a talk, and I told him I was going to hit one for him," Flannery said.

That he did, stroking a two-out hit off the glove of Pittsburgh second baseman Johnny Ray to score Carmelo Martinez from second base. Martinez walked to start the inning off loser Mike Blelecki and advanced when winning pitcher Mark Thurmond sacrificed for the second out.

Thurmond, 1-2, tossed a three-hitter for his second career shutout, striking out three and walking none.

The victory was San Diego's third straight. Pittsburgh has lost four in a row.

Giants 1, Cubs 0
San Francisco's Manny Trillo didn't like what he saw, but after being ejected the previous night for protesting a called third strike, knew when to keep his mouth shut. And it paid off later when his two-out hit lifted the Giants over Chicago.

"I was going to swing if the pitch was anywhere close," said Trillo, whose single on an 0-2 pitch from loser Warren Brusstar gave the Giants their fourth victory in five games and dropped the Cubs to second place in the NL East. They trail the New York Mets by a half-game.

"I thought the last pitch was a ball, but I didn't say anything to the umpire (Doug Harvey)," Trillo said of his eighth-inning strikeout.

He had been ejected from Wednesday night's 1-0 loss to the Cubs after arguing with Eric Gregg.

Palmer stays busy with PGA Senior Tour

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Arnold Palmer had his post-50 years all planned out until the PGA came up with the Senior Tour.

Now he's working harder than ever to keep the old equipment in shape.

"Back about 15 years ago I started planning what I wanted to be doing when I was 55," said Palmer, who'll tee off today in the first round of the inaugural Dominion Senior tournament at Dominion Country Club.

"I bought a couple of automobile dealerships, a couple of golf courses," he said. "I started building golf courses, and there's my golf course design company. I figured with all those things I'd keep busy."

The Senior Tour for pro golfers past their 50th birthday has been a happy complication for one of golf's most popular legends.

What started in 1980 as a four-tournament tour, has expanded to a 26-tournament, $6.5 million circuit.

"That's just about doubled my schedule," Palmer said.

Palmer, as always, will be among the gallery favorites in the 54-hour tournament over the par 72, 6,667-yard Dominion course.

The obstacle course Palmer completed just getting to San Antonio was enough to tire younger men.

"I flew to Palm Springs and visited the PGA West course, flew to Denver and visited two courses, then the next day I made six speeches of at least 10 minutes duration each and then I flew into San Antonio Tuesday night," Palmer said.

Palmer and the rest of the 52-player field will be chasing Australian Peter Thomson, who will be trying to become the first player to win three straight PGA Senior Tour tournament events.

Thomson has back to back victories in the Carta Blanca-Johnny Mathis Classic in Los Angeles and last week's MONY Senior Tournament of Champions. Thomson also has won four of the last five tournaments he's entered on the Senior circuit.

Thomson had birdies on Nos. 15 and 16 to capture the MONY tournament for a three-stroke victory over Don January and Dan Sikes.

The victory boosted Thomson to the top of the Senior Tour money leaders with $110,700 and January dropped to second at $92,700.

Thomson shot a four-under par 68 in Thursday's pro am and will carry the favorite's role into Friday's first round in which the pros will play with amateurs but their scores will count toward Sunday's $30,000 first prize.

Palmer said even he had been surprised by the Senior Tour's success.

"I felt that the tour would be successful, that it was a good opportunity to have some tournaments that would interest the public," he said. "But the immediate success of the tour was a little surprising because it happened so fast. Now, you almost have to stand in line to play."

In addition to Thomson and January, four other top 10 money winners are entered in the Dominion tournament including No. 5 Billy Casper, $53,333; No. 7 Orville Moody, $42,790; No. 8, Palmer, $29,250 and No. 10 Jim Ferree, $26,813.

Analysis of baseball drug attacking given

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
In Pittsburgh, the lid rattles impatiently on the grand jury investigation into drug trafficking, like the cover on a pot sitting over a high flame. Indictments are expected soon. It does not promise to be pretty.

And in New York, major league baseball nervously awaits the outcome.

Convinced, perhaps, that the best defense is a good offense, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth has decided to seize the initiative, announcing a bold, frontal attack on drugs by ordering mandatory testing for all personnel in the game — all that is, except the major league players.

This is not exactly a high-risk move for the commissioner. You can expect Gussie Busch and Gene Autry to come up clean.

Opposing drugs and cleansing baseball of them will be every bit as popular with the public as returning banned heroes like Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle to the fold. Ueberroth, it has been learned, also supports Mother's Day and apple pie.

Now we will find out which statisticians and secretaries are doing funny stuff in their leisure time and just what the owners are puffing on when they convene meetings in those smoke-filled rooms.

But if it's a third baseman or outfielder that you're curious about, well, says Ueberroth, that's not his department. He will be happy, however, to give you Don Fehr's phone number.

Fehr is the acting executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association and he was foolish enough to think he had negotiated a workable drug arrangement with management a year ago.

That program does not include mandatory testing because Fehr and the players have this nagging problem with the constitutional rights of individuals. "Our position," Fehr said, "is you don't invade individual privacy. You assume innocence. You prove guilt."

Testing, by the way, is included in that joint drug agreement and has been used on a voluntary, case-by-case basis for players treated under its provisions. The key here is voluntary vs. mandatory.

It is not as though the agreement is a rigid document, written in a vacuum, etched in stone. Fehr is willing to listen to reasons for changing it. "The agreement is not static," he said. "It is under constant review."

The union had previously agreed to examine the mandatory testing idea if, in the opinion of the drug agreement's joint review committee, the objectives of the program were not being attained.

Ueberroth simply plunged ahead, unilaterally, and left Fehr to explain why the players wouldn't happily follow the groundskeepers and ticket-takers on the merry march to the testing laboratory.

The knee-jerk response is obvious. If everybody else in baseball is going to be tested for drugs, then why not the players? Refusing is sort of like a witness taking the Fifth Amendment — perfectly legitimate, but somewhat suspicious.

Could that have been what the commissioner had in mind when he issued his order?

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The surprising Texas Legislature last week departed its humdrum style and set off on a course of adventure, advancing horse and dog race gambling, alimony, and the Texas Water Plan.

The House of Representatives partially butchered a sacred cow with an overwhelming vote to repeal the Texas blue laws.

Amid the legislative activities, two senators scuffled during a filibuster. A House member went on trial for influence peddling, and rumors circulated that former Democratic congressman Kent Hance would jump political parties to run against Gov. Mark White.

All this from a Legislature some have called boring. Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee approved a $6 increase in the Texas driver's license fee and to tax long distance phone calls within Texas, a measure that would bring more than $42 million to state coffers depleted by the dwindling price of domestic oil.

Parimutuel Gambling

The parimutuel gambling issue, pronounced dead a few weeks ago by the House leadership, was revived by a Senate committee which also approved greyhound racing for Texas.

The Senate version returns the compromises forged in '83 and omitted this session, leading to a stunning defeat in the House earlier this spring.

The bill calls for a November referendum on betting on horse and dog races, with county option elections required later. The state's share, almost $30 million over the next two years, will fund welfare, local parks, agriculture and water assistance.

New Alimony

The full Senate voted to bring limited alimony payments to Texas, the only state not allowing such divorce payments.

The proposed law adds a new twist, alimony payments collected by men. Other provisions hold payments at $1500 a month and only in marriages which had lasted 10 years or more and where a hardship is proved.

Except in special cases, the court would presume that alimony could not be ordered for more than three years.

Blue Law Repeal

Finally, after years of trying, advocates of the Texas blue law repeal won a stunning victory in the House, a 102-40 decision to scrap the ban on selling certain merchandise on consecutive weekend days.

If the House version passes the Senate, the ban would continue only for car dealers.

Proponents argued that today's two-paycheck families needed Sunday shopping time as an alternative.

Filibuster, Scuffle

The Gulf shrimping industry won a Senate victory over bay shrimpers, despite a 20-hour filibuster by opponents that collapsed only just before dawn.

The bill tightening regulation of bay shrimpers will probably be known more for the tempers provoked by the filibuster around midnight.

When one of the filibustering senators, Carl Parker of Port Arthur, responded patronizingly to an interruption by Hugh Farmer of Fort Worth, Farmer reacted with a remark alluding to the cocaine and pornography indictments Parker is facing back home in Jefferson County.

Parker invited Farmer to the back hall where the scuffle occurred, reportedly throwing Farmer against the wall and knocking off his glasses. Another senator intervened, and they returned to the chamber, where Farmer apologized on the floor and to Parker personally.

Bribery Trial Set

The incident highlights the legal problems of the Port Arthur delegation, where both the state senator and representative face trial on unrelated charges.

Last week a jury was seated in the bribery trial of State Rep. Frank Collazo, who is accused of asking for a partnership in two area businesses in exchange for his promise to influence state boards.

The charge alleges Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two businesses owned by former Beaumont legislator Chester Slay, in exchange for influencing the Texas Water Quality Board and the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Slay, in losing a water pollution lawsuit last year, said during that trial that Collazo had put pressure on the state boards to pursue the violations against Slay.

Texas Water Plan

The conference committee reported out its compromise bill on the Texas Water Plan, following assurances that Stacy Dam will be built in West Texas.

The added water from Stacy Dam is an incentive to West Texas legislators to approve coastal water protection.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN When the battle over oil and gas rights began a few years ago in the Panhandle Field, everyone knew the outcome would be important to the people of District 31. Only now is everyone beginning to realize just how important.

A fight that seemed destined to be determined only through years of civil litigation now involves a federal and state regulatory agency, the Legislature and at least one state official.

At issue is the field's natural gas and who owns it. At stake is tax revenue that supports both the state and Panhandle-area towns.

Large petrochemical companies years ago were granted rights to almost all natural gas in the Panhandle Field, one of the nation's largest oil and gas reservoirs. The oil rights belong to small, independent producers.

The independents have limited gas rights because their leases include permission to produce "casinghead" gas which is a by-product of oil. Controversy has arisen because the large energy companies are asked by what they consider a liberal interpretation of the term "casinghead gas" by the independents.

Most large producers contend the independents are taking unfair advantage of their right to produce casinghead gas and drill large numbers of oil wells per acre. They also say the independents are dipping into purely gas reservoirs and producing a little non-casinghead gas on the side, a practice the large companies believe could drive up the price of gas.

Casinghead gas unquestionably is lucrative for the independents. The gas can be chilled - sometimes to temperatures of 20 below zero - and turned into "white oil." The price for white oil is higher than that for normal crude, so the economic advantages are obvious.

The independents maintain they are doing nothing wrong. They say they are taking only the natural gas to which they legally are entitled. The large companies challenged that contention in court and won a decision against Harlow Corp., one of the Panhandle Field independents. The verdict was vacated late last year after Harlow Corp. declared bankruptcy.

Since then, both the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Texas Railroad Commission have become involved. Each is being asked to determine whether the independents legally are taking casinghead gas or whether they're robbing the big energy companies.

A federal administrative law judge has ruled in the big companies' favor, but only FERC's decision will be final.

Also involved now are the Legislature and State Comptroller Bob Bullock. Bullock last week warned that a FERC decision against the independents would make most Panhandle Field natural gas "interstate gas." The result would be a $100 million per year loss in state severance taxes and countless losses in local taxes.

Those local taxes help small communities maintain a high standard of living, and a loss of that lifetime would be disastrous. In fact, the threat of such a loss has led us to join with Sen. H. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, in introducing a bill that hopefully will resolve some of the white oil controversy.

Our bill would change the definition of casinghead gas, which currently is described in law as "any gas or vapor indigenous to an oil stratum and produced from the stratum with oil." The new definition will be "all gas produced from a common reservoir as determined by the (Railroad) commission, from a well classified by the commission as an oil well."

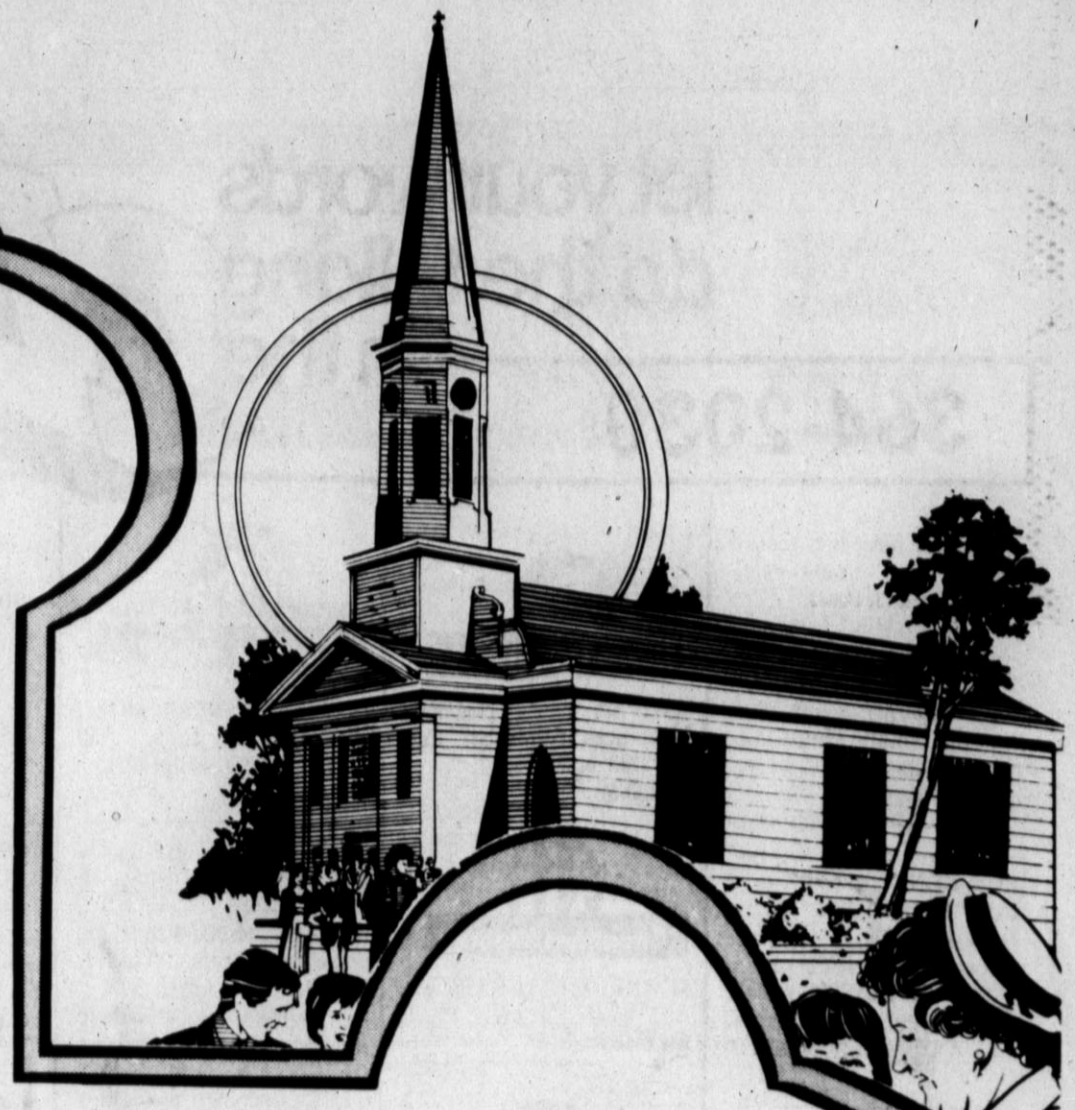

The new wording hopefully will keep small independents that legally are producing white oil from being harassed. It will not give anyone a blank check to illegally drill into reservoirs that contain only natural gas.

We realize the white oil controversy is a very touchy one and we welcome your comments on the issue. Please write us at P.O. Box 12068 Austin, TX. 78711
