County issuing more cards

By GEORGIA TYLER
 Staff Writer

Another 71 voters will get new registration certificates that show they are living in Commissioner Precinct 2 of Deaf Smith County, instead of Precinct 1. County Clerk David Ruland said Thursday that a map used by his staff to determine precinct changes was not marked properly, leaving out several blocks. The area that was left out of the initial mailing of new voter cards is bounded by U.S. 60 East from Lawton to Avenue K, west on Park Avenue to Fifth Street, south on Jowell to Fourth and south on Lawton to Highway 60. Ruland discovered the error after new cards were printed for 254 voters whose assignment was changed from Precinct 1 to Precinct 2. Additionally, 213 voters in the Buena Vista area of Hereford were moved into Precinct 1, from Precinct 2. The changes in precinct boundaries are part of the compromise reached by Deaf Smith County and plaintiff in a lawsuit challenging the March primary election in Precinct 1.

The settlement and boundary lines are the basis for a federal court order issued a week ago. New certificates, dated July 16, 1992, are being mailed to all registered voters affected by changes in the precinct lines. The cards will not be forwarded by the postoffice, Ruland said, if the addressee has moved. Residents who receive the new cards should destroy those that were mailed in January. A new primary election will be held for Precinct 1 commissioner, in compliance with the federal order. The election will be held on Sept. 19 with a runoff, if needed, on Oct. 3.

In the March primary, John Stribling, incumbent, defeated Tony Castillo by a narrow margin. That election was challenged in the lawsuit on the claim that precinct boundaries had not been precleared by the U.S. Justice Department. A federal three-judge panel ordered the election conducted using lines agreed on in the settlement in the suit, Trini Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County.

Authorities still search for trusty Authorities are searching for a 17-year-old man who walked away from the Deaf Smith County Jail on Monday afternoon. Antonio Ortiz, of Hereford, had been working as a trusty on a county road crew. Officials said Ortiz had been picked up along with other inmates Monday morning and was returned Monday afternoon. Ortiz asked to speak to someone inside the courthouse and was taken inside. He left a few minutes later with an officer who didn't realize Ortiz was an inmate. Ortiz was not wearing a jail uniform, officials said. Ortiz was sentenced to three months in jail for resisting arrest.

New lotto will start in autumn Republicans dispel 'Dump Dan' rumors

AUSTIN (AP) - With tickets for its third instant win game now on sale, Texas Lottery officials say computerized "lotto" games should begin between Labor Day and Thanksgiving. Lottery chief Nora Linares said Wednesday that final decisions haven't been made on when to start lotto or whether it would offer daily games as well as weekly big-money prizes.

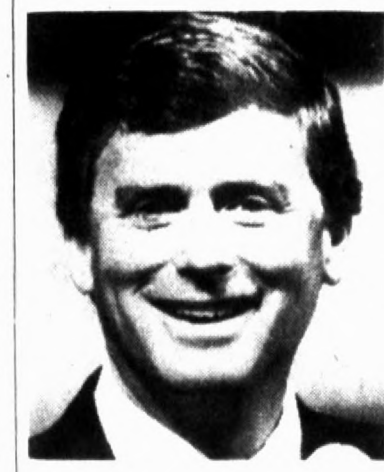

Many state lotteries offer multimillion-dollar weekly lotto jackpots to players who match six numbers at random, with smaller daily prizes for matching three or four numbers. "We're going to definitely start (lotto) before Thanksgiving," Ms. Linares said. "Every other lottery has a daily game. It's pretty prominent in the lottery industry. So yes, we're going to look at all of those. But whether or not a daily game is for Texas, we'll have to find out," she said.

Lotto officials said that as of Wednesday, 4.1 million $1 tickets had been sold since the game began on May 29. In addition, the number of sales outlets is rising from 15,921 at the start to 17,781 after Aug. 1. A total of 600 million tickets for the first two games - Lone Star Millions and Texas Match-Up - were printed for distribution. To date, about $167 million in prizes have been awarded from those, officials said. The 200 million tickets for the latest "Texas Two-Step" instant game will offer more - but generally smaller - prizes than the previous scratch cards, Ms. Linares said.

Also, none of the Two-Step cards will qualify for the lottery's weekly $1 million drawings. "The odds of winning in Texas Two-Step are 1 in 5.8, better than either of our first two games," she said. Of the 34.57 million winning Two-Step tickets, only 10,008 offer prizes of more than $20. None offer the $10,000 prizes of the first two games. According to the lottery, 2,502 Two-Step tickets carry the top prize of $1,000, while 7,506 offer $500 awards. The game offers 20 million $2 prizes and 6.8 million $1 prizes.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President Dan Quayle used a television talk show to deny speculation he was being dropped from the GOP ticket, and some top Republicans suggested he's been wrongly blamed for problems that rest with President Bush. "The problem with this administration... is not Dan Quayle. It's a lack of definition of what the administration is about, what it is for and what it is will do for the next four years," said William Bennett, Bush's former drug policy director. "People are not angry at Dan Quayle. They're angry at George Bush. ... He has zero credibility," added Richard Viguerie, a GOP consultant popular among the party's conservative wing.

Bennett and Viguerie were among those who came to Quayle's defense as rumors swirled that a Bush campaign shakeup would dump Quayle. Possible replacements included Housing Secretary Jack Kemp, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell.

"I am making a difference. And I will make a difference. And I look forward to the campaign because... I am convinced I can help (Bush) get re-elected."
 --Dan Quayle on Larry King Live

Bush on Wednesday dismissed the talk as "crazy rumors" and said Quayle's place on the ticket was "very certain." Quayle went on CNN's "Larry King Live" program Wednesday night to insist he had Bush's "full confidence." "I am making a difference. And I will make a difference. And I look forward to the campaign because ...

I'm convinced I can help him (Bush) get re-elected," Quayle told King. "I'm totally dedicated to the president. He knows that. Believe me if I thought I was hurting the ticket I'd be gone," he added. GOP pollster Neil Newhouse said the Quayle rumors had surfaced mostly because "people are searching for what action the president can take that would re-establish him as a strong leader." "A lot of his opportunities have passed him by," Newhouse said. "But replacing Dan Quayle simply is not the spark needed to rejuvenate it."

Newhouse echoed the comments of several top Republicans who suggested Quayle's recent speeches on family values and his support for removing regulations cumbersome to businesses had done more to attract conservatives than anything Bush had done in recent months.

Despite his propensity for embarrassing gaffes like misspelling the word potato, "Quayle is beginning to build a constituency" among conservatives, Viguerie said. Bennett said Quayle had become Bush's "real contact man" with conservatives but that much of his significance is lost because the news media so ardently focuses only on his gaffes.

But not all Republicans shared that viewpoint. Consultant Ann Stone said Quayle's gaffes made him a liability that Bush couldn't afford with his already sagging popularity.

"If Quayle truly wants to see the president re-elected, it may be the thing for him to do, to go to the president and offer to step down because I don't think you're going to get George Bush to ask him," she said.

But Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., said the campaign's biggest problem was that Bush has yet to convince the country that he not only has the proposals to institute change but that he can achieve them in a second term.

Polls show Bush now trailing Democrat Bill Clinton by as much as 29 percentage points, fueling speculation that Secretary of State James A. Baker III, a no-nonsense manager and longtime Bush confidante, would take a leave to run Bush's faltering campaign.

Questioned on the King show, Quayle said, "Baker has been with the president in every election he has ever had so it wouldn't surprise anybody if he comes back."

Bill & Al finish excellent adventure

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Adoring crowds welcomed the Democratic Party's all-South ticket home after the candidates finished a cozy bus tour through small-town America that Bill Clinton said reminded him of an old-fashioned Arkansas campaign. He went back to modern-style politics today: An airplane was to take him to Houston for fund-raisers and a speech on crime. After a late-night return to Arkansas from that appearance, Clinton was scheduled to fly to the West Coast over the weekend. Clinton and running mate Al Gore took the bus caravan from the Democratic National Convention in New York through the factories, farms and small towns of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois, finishing Wednesday at St. Louis. Meeting and greeting the voters reminded Clinton of Arkansas politics, which is a contact sport. "It was as close as you can get in a presidential campaign to an Arkansas campaign," the five-term governor said at a homecoming rally Wednesday evening in Little Rock. "It was just like campaigning at home." Clinton talked cheerfully about coming into Sandoval, Ill., and said he was amazed that the whole town turned out. "It was like a courthouse rally" in Arkansas, he said. Clinton said he hoped to campaign by bus again, but added: "It's hard to find the buses, believe it or not."

Clinton said the bus campaign was like a "courthouse rally" but said buses are hard to find. That may keep him from a similar project in the future.

Perot workers scale back efforts

DALLAS (AP) - The phones are being taken out and the signs are coming down as volunteers box up their dreams and shut down many of Ross Perot's campaign offices. While die-hards are still trying to get a political movement flying - a devoted core in Arizona planned a weekend Perot rally - volunteers across the country spent Wednesday tearing down much of the foundation of the Dallas billionaire's independent campaign. "We'll be working out of homes," vowed Las Cruces, N.M., office manager Vicki Evangelista as she emptied a donated office reclaimed by the owner after Perot dropped out. Steve Fridrich has already moved what's left of the Perot Tennessee operation into his real estate office, where one volunteer will try to hold on. Charlie Hellebusch, a hospital consultant and Perot's Kentucky state coordinator, is out looking for smaller quarters. "They don't know quite where we are because we don't know where we're going," he said of his Kentucky volunteers. Rented computers have been returned in Richmond, Va., where volunteers plan to meet today to dissolve Virginians for Perot. Only three people staffed the mostly silent phones in Little Rock, Ark. North Dakota is down to only one phone line, "but there's people out there who want to keep the movement alive," a tired-sounding Jim Kisse said. In Oklahoma City, contributions are being taken to cover rent. "Some way, somehow, we'll at least have a phone," said Jamie Hurst. In Louisiana, Perot offices in New Orleans, Kenner, Lake Charles, Monroe and Shreveport closed by Tuesday, leaving just the Baton Rouge office open indefinitely. "The mood's certainly changed," said Bill Arata, treasurer at Perot headquarters in Baton Rouge. Michigan simply locked the door and called it quits for Perot. "I terminated personally the Perot Campaign Committee and most of the offices are closing," said Judy Werner, the chairwoman of the Perot campaign in Michigan. She had played host for the candidate at a rally just six days before he suddenly announced last Thursday that he would not run for president.

Still, supporters in several states said Perot has paid their rent through the end of the month and they hope to work with him to influence the November election. At least one office would remain open in most states, they pledged. "We are not closing down. We are not phasing out. It is just the opposite," said Debbie Collings, Perot's Arizona spokeswoman. In Bentonville, Ark., they passed a hat and collected $300 in 10 minutes to keep their movement going.

AUSTIN - A new judge has been assigned to the controversial state legislative redistricting case. U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin, whose conduct in connection with the suit had come under fire, voluntarily withdrew Wednesday from the three-judge panel.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is using a diverse array of skills to drum up support in the Senate for the controversial superconducting super collider.

The Texas Democrat called on his lengthy friendship with Sen. Robert Byrd to persuade the powerful West Virginian, who sits next to Bentsen in the Senate, to back the $8.25 billion project.

In the case of retiring California Sen. Alan Cranston, Bentsen tried a different tack.

"I told Cranston: 'I want a going-away present from you,'" Bentsen said Wednesday. "You voted against the super collider. I want you to vote for it this time."

Bentsen said Cranston "seemed a bit surprised at the request."

"The next night, he walked up to me (on the Senate floor) and said: 'Here it is, wrapped up, with a ribbon around it, it's my present, a vote.'"

If Bentsen is intensively lobbying his fellow senators it's because the future of the giant atom smasher rests in their hands. In a stunning development last month the House voted to halt federal funding for the super collider, which is being built south of Dallas.

That decision left supporters reeling and forced Bentsen and others to redouble their efforts in the Senate.

Bentsen also is using more traditional methods to ensure support for the project, telephoning his colleagues and buttonholing them when he sees them.

Byrd's support is key, and was greeted Wednesday with pleasure by super collider supporters - who noted that as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee he would be a formidable foe.

Opposition by Byrd "would really give us extremely serious problems," said Bentsen, who as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee wields considerable power of his own.

"That's a real good piece of work on Sen. Bentsen's part," said Rep. Joe Barton, whose district spans part of the super collider.

Asked what prompted Byrd's support, Bentsen replied: "I would hope a long friendship helped along the way."

Earlier this year, Byrd had termed the super collider and the planned space station "exotic luxuries." He questioned whether the big-ticket science projects were affordable at a time when federal spending needs to be reined in.

Word that Byrd and Cranston will vote for the atom smasher wasn't the only good news for collider supporters this week.

A Senate appropriations subcommittee Tuesday earmarked $550 million of its $22 billion allocation for the project.

"We're moving away from the Endangered Species Act," said Barton, R-Ennis.

Bentsen, Barton and others noted that the battle to save the super collider is far from over. They have predicted a tough fight on the Senate floor and possibly an even tougher battle when House and Senate conferees meet to reconcile funding differences.

Rep. Martin Frost, whose district also includes part of the collider, also was cautiously optimistic. Frost, D-Dallas, said he was hopeful that House members who voted to kill the project will reconsider if the project survives the Senate.

One looming roadblock is Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who is expected to again offer up an amendment on the Senate floor to put a halt to the federal government's $5.5 billion share of the super collider. Texas is contributing $1 billion and foreign contributors are expected to make up the difference, though so far few countries have signed on.

Females raising campaign funds at impressive clip

WASHINGTON (AP) - Illinois Democrat Carol Moseley Braun raised an impressive $1.6 million since March for her U.S. Senate campaign and a number of other female candidates weren't far behind, election records show.

Braun, the Cook County recorder of deeds who upset two-term incumbent Sen. Alan Dixon in the March 17 primary, had $522,697 at the end of the March filing period, according to Federal Election Commission documents.

Three months later, Braun's war chest totaled $2,126,448 in individual and political action committee contributions.

Close behind was former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who raised $1.4 million over the same period for a total $4,467,516 in her bid for California Republican Sen. John Seymour's seat.

Pennsylvania activist Lynn Yeakel, who captured the Democratic nomination in April and the right to oppose Republican Sen. Arlen Specter, has raised $1.1 million since March for a campaign fund of $1,444,959.

"It lays to rest once and for all the belief that women can't raise money," said Jane Danowitz, executive director of the bipartisan Women's Campaign Fund.

This election year is widely viewed as the Year of the Woman in politics as a record number of female candidates set their sights on U.S. Senate and House seats.

Seven women, six of them Democrats, already have won Senate primaries nationwide and 58 women have won House primaries. Braun, Yeakel and Feinstein are considered solid contenders in toss-up races.

Both the House and Senate are expected to have a record number of women when the 103rd Congress convenes next year. Women now hold 28 House seats and two Senate seats.

The reason for the number of female candidates is the same rationale given for fund-raising success: the Senate Judiciary Committee's treatment of Anita Hill and her charges of sexual harassment against Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas.

Braun's opponent, attorney and former Bush administration official Rich Williamson, has more than doubled his campaign fund since March, from $495,470 to $1,014,967, but still trails the Democratic candidate.

Seymour, who was appointed by California Gov. Pete Wilson to fill the remainder of Wilson's Senate term, had $3,719,425 on hand at the end of March and increased that amount to $4,218,195 by the end of June.

Specter, the two-term incumbent who's grilling of Hill persuaded Yeakel to enter the race, has outdistanced his opponent in fund raising, increasing his fund from $3,194,951 to $4,602,297.

Rep. Barbara Boxer, the Democratic nominee for the seat held by California Sen. Alan Cranston, raised just over $44,000 but has a war chest of $4,082,280.

Her opponent, Bruce Herschensohn, a television commentator and a 1986 Senate candidate, has increased his fund from $2,005,878 to $3,510,558.

In Iowa, state Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones won the Democratic nomination but faces an uphill fight against Republican incumbent Sen. Charles Grassley.

Lloyd-Jones has doubled her fund-raising account, but still only has $50,873 to Grassley's $1,242,330.

Government ordered to give back property

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - A widow whose home was besieged by crack dealers and users evicted her drug-selling children, called police repeatedly, posted a "No Trespassing" sign and bolted the door.

But the pushers did not leave, and the federal government said Gussie Mae Gantt did not try hard enough. It seized her house and took some of her belongings, even though no charges were filed against her or anyone in her home.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Myron Thompson ordered the government to give back her home and pay all her legal bills. The woman has been living in an apartment with her daughter.

"I'm going to move back in my house," Mrs. Gantt, a 69-year-old housekeeper and mother of 10, said Wednesday. "I've got to wait until they take the padlocks off."

At the center of the case is a federal law - coming under increasing criticism from civil libertarians - that lets prosecutors seize peoples' property without charges if authorities suspect it has links to drug dealing.

"It's repressive power," said Maurice Bell, Mrs. Gantt's lawyer. "Our country is not like that."

In his ruling, the judge wrote that he was "convinced that Gantt wanted the drug activity in front of her home stopped." He said she "took all reasonable steps that a person of her abilities could be expected to take."

Prosecutors said they have not decided whether to appeal.

"Anybody that owns property can do more than that to keep crack dealers from selling drugs in their yard," U.S. Attorney Jim Wilson said.

The government has cited Mrs. Gantt's refusal to sign a trespassing warrant against drug dealers who sometimes ran into her home for cover.

Mrs. Gantt's problems started in January 1991, when her husband died. After that, the curving street in front of her small frame house became a popular spot for crack dealers. The pushers included some of Mrs. Gantt's children and grandchildren.

"You couldn't sleep for worrying about getting shot through your window," said a neighbor who spoke on condition of anonymity. "A lot of the neighbors were scared when they heard she is getting (the house) back."

Mrs. Gantt said she tried to get rid of the dealers, including the ones related to her. "I told some of them to get out when I found out they were in drugs," she said.

She and some of her relatives called police, and so did her neighbors. The judge said police received more than 100 complaints about the drug dealing between January 1991 and this spring.

Mrs. Gantt posted a "No Trespassing" sign in her yard and kept her front door locked to keep out pushers scurrying for cover as police cruised by, the judge said.

Police set up a surveillance camera across from Mrs. Gantt's house and, after six months of videotaping, staged a raid of the house and surrounding area in April that led to 18 arrests. Seventeen people have either pleaded guilty or been convicted.

Wilson said he intends to keep using the seizure law. "We are putting people on notice," he said.

Licenses allowed Iraq sales

WASHINGTON (AP) - In early 1988, the Commerce Department approved two licenses that allowed the U.S. subsidiary of Germany's Leybold AG to sell metalworking equipment to Iraq.

There was a key condition to both licenses: The machine tool and the electron beam welder were to be used only for general military purposes, such as engine repair, and not in any nuclear activities.

Four years and a Gulf War later, United Nations inspectors in Iraq discovered evidence that convinced them the welder had been used in Saddam Hussein's nuclear weapons program.

The Leybold case illustrates how the Commerce Department's mission to promote exports can conflict with its obligation in certain cases to control them.

Life!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Odd Man Out in N.Y.C." who was concerned because he is 30 years old and still a virgin. I am a female who believes that a man who remains a virgin until he marries or finds the right woman is quite a prize.

My husband was a virgin when we married, but over a period of time and with a good bit of patience on my part, our sex life went from clumsy to wonderful. The sex act itself is not terribly important once you find the right person it's the tender hugs and kisses for no reason that are truly delicious.

If a woman really loves a man, she'll stick with him even though the sex is not so terrific. I cannot imagine good sex between people whose lives do not touch anywhere except in the bedroom. In fact, I remember reading in your column that when it comes to getting turned on sexually, the most vital part of the human anatomy is the brain.--Lucky in Manteca, Calif.

DEAR LUCKY: It sounds to me as if your husband is "Lucky", too. How nice that you two found each other. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to commend "Odd Man Out in N.Y.C." who is still a virgin. He sounds like a very special person to me.

My husband and I were both virgins when we married. His lack of experience didn't bother me because I had nothing to compare him with. I'm sure the same was true of him. I have great respect for this man because he had high standards and was able to wait until marriage for sex.

I hope the man who wrote to you finds a woman who has the same high standards. It will be the best wedding gift they can give each other.--Happily Wed in Dixie

DEAR DIXIE: Can it be that virginity is coming back in style? The present load of mail certainly looks like it! I don't want to diminish the rosy glow, but since AIDS has reared its ugly head, there has been a lot less promiscuity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You recently printed a letter from a woman whose daughter had been ignoring her for years. As a result of something in your column, the daughter finally decided to make amends. She sent her mother a plant. The mother was ecstatic. Ann, I can't believe you failed to get the significance of the plant she sent. It was a large narcissus.

I hope the reunion was wonderful, but I'm afraid the daughter was sending her mother quite another message. Of course, if the mother truly has a narcissus complex, she wouldn't get it.

You can't imagine what it's like to have a mother who is narcissistic. People like that are totally self-centered, domineering and controlling. When adult children become assertive, the narcissistic mother feels as frustrated as a person who keeps reaching for a peach and gets an onion instead.

Often the only way an adult child can get peace of mind is to move out of the life of the domineering person and put a lot of miles between them. Perhaps this is what that daughter did.

Anyway, I hope you are right about the reunion and that I am reading more into this situation than is warranted. But a NARCISSUS plant? Get me outta here!--Been There in Junction, Texas

DEAR JUNCTION: I phoned my flower maven, Solly Hammer at Ronsley Florists, and he had never heard any of those unflattering things in connection with the narcissus plant. In fact, he said, "I think that plant is getting a bum rap." I'm inclined to go along with Solly.

The Hereford all-stars will be hosting a tournament here Saturday-Thursday. The team is made up of (kneeling, left to right) John Marty Galan, Dustin Hill, Joseph Artho, Eric Ambold, Caleb Moreno, Coach Charlie Garza, (middle row) James Cano, Brant

Hereford will host Babe Ruth tourney

Hereford will be hosting the West Texas State 13-year-old Babe Ruth Tournament, which starts Saturday and goes through next week.

The tournament will include six teams: Hereford, Pampa, Graham, Andrews, Plainview and Tri-City, which includes players from Denver City, Seagraves and Seminole.

The games will be played at the Kid Inc. Complex, with two games each night Saturday-Tuesday, one game Wednesday and the championship game at 6 p.m. Thursday. The tournament follows a double-elimination format, so two games may be necessary Thursday.

The tourney starts with Andrews meeting Tri-City at 6 p.m. Saturday. At 8, Hereford takes on Graham. After those games, the game times for each team will depend on who wins what. The bracket will be posted at the field.

Hereford's team is made up of all-stars from the Hereford 13-year-old Babe Ruth League. Hereford's 14-15-year-old all-stars, which advanced with a double-header sweep of Canyon here July 16, will be playing in a similar tournament in Andrews. Their first game is at 6 p.m. Saturday.

28 takes scramble

The foursome of Jim Loerwald, Larry Brackett, George Attridge and Rose Marie Robinson combined on a 28-three strokes better than anyone else--to win the Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

David Kaesheimer, David Workman, Bill Brown and Leo Hollowell made up the second-place team, which shot 31. In third with a 32 were Kevin Kelso, D.R. Bone, Bartley Dowell and John Yocum.

Carolina Game

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Only once in the history of the Rose Bowl Game has the classic been played anywhere but Pasadena, Calif. The 1942 game, less than one month after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, was transferred to Duke University, close to the East Coast.

The Duke Blue Devils played host to Oregon State University. The West Coast team downed Duke, 20-16.

Thirty-nine members of the two squads were present for a 50th anniversary celebration last fall.

Maryland's fight shocks team

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys coaches and players couldn't believe their eyes. Russell Maryland in a fight? No way.

Public relations director Rich Dalrymple, who was with Russell at the University of Miami, was stunned.

"Russ, can't be, don't ever remember him in one before," Dalrymple said.

But it was true. There stood mild-mannered Maryland slugging it out with Los Angeles Raiders guard Steve Wisniewski. Then they rolled around on the ground trying to punish each other.

"He (Wisniewski) gave me some cheap shots and I wasn't going to take it," Maryland said. "It's the first fight I've been involved in since 1987 when I was a redshirt at Miami. That was a long time ago."

Maryland has served notice he's not going to take any guff off anybody. He's not a rookie anymore. He's paid his dues.

"It's not my nature to duke it out with somebody but nobody can hold me or hit me in the back and get away with it," said Maryland who has learned the rough-and-rugged ways of the NFL after winning the Outland Trophy with the Hurricanes.

Maryland, the top pick in the 1991 NFL draft, crashed the Cowboys starting lineup in the 10th game last year and became the second most effective pass rusher on the team.

On Thanksgiving Day against Pittsburgh he had two sacks. Then in a victory at Philadelphia to clinch a postseason berth, Maryland had a team-high seven tackles.

Maryland had five tackles in a first round playoff victory over the Chicago Bears. He also had a sack, two quarterback pressures and batted down a pass.

It was the kind of performance coach Jimmy Johnson had expected from Maryland, who played for him at Miami.

"I've never worried about Russell Maryland," Johnson said. "Nobody works harder. We knew what we were getting when we made him the first player in the NFL draft."

Maryland earned all-rookie honors from numerous publications, although he only played less than half of the season as a starter.

"I got some honors but I still didn't get any major endorsements," Maryland said. "No big sponsor has come my way yet. I'm no Michael Jordan. But I at least showed all the doubters I can play."

It wasn't a bad year for somebody who was being called a bust by some critics.

"There was a lot of pressure on me" Maryland said. "I could hear the talk. It was unfair. I don't like being prejudged like that. It was pretty tough trying to prove I belonged."

"I knew everybody expected me to be a franchise player like Troy Aikman. I may not be a franchise player but I think I'll be a pretty good one."

Maryland said he had to be patient last year.

"The season tested my patience by all that was going on," Maryland said. "It was a crazy, crazy year."

Maryland has bought a house in Dallas and settled down for a long NFL career with the Cowboys.

"I can remember doing yards for other people," he said. "Now, I pay to have my yard done. My neighbors must think I'm terrible because I don't ever have time to work in it."

Cubs get injunction against realignment

CHICAGO (AP) - A federal judge today blocked National League realignment, saying commissioner Fay Vincent had exceeded his power in overriding the Chicago Cubs' veto. U.S. District Judge Suzanne B. Conlon granted the Cubs' request for a preliminary injunction that stops Vincent from ordering the team to the NL West next season along with the St. Louis Cardinals. Under Vincent's order, the Atlanta Braves and the Cincinnati Reds would move to the NL East.

"The commissioner exceeded his authority in ordering a transfer of the Chicago Cubs to the Western Division," Conlon wrote in her order. The decision was a surprising blow to the commissioner's office, whose power previously has been upheld in nearly all court challenges. The judge scheduled a hearing for next Thursday for lawyers to discuss whether she should issue a final ruling.

The commissioner's office was expected to ask the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to lift the preliminary injunction. If the injunction remains in place, the divisions would remain as they are pending a final decision.

"I would hope that the commissioner wouldn't argue with the umpire on this one," said David Hiller, a lawyer for the Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs.

On July 6, Vincent ordered realignment using his powers to act "in the best interests of baseball." The Cubs, arguing they would suffer irreparable harm, sued the following day and asked for the preliminary injunction.

The suit took on some urgency because the NL is required to submit a draft of its 1993 schedule to the Major League Baseball Players Association by Aug. 1.

The Cubs say the change would break up traditional rivalries with the New York Mets, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Expos and Pittsburgh Pirates. The Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs and superstation WGN, has also expressed concerns that an increase in West Coast games with later starting times would decrease ratings and revenues.

14-15-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars

Tanner Murphey, Gabriel Guerrero, Armando Zambrano, Ronald Torres, Wade McPherson, Sonny Perez, (back row) Richard Hicks, Raymond Alaniz, Gregg Kalka, Chris Castro and Coach Joe Bob Brown.

Braves take 1st place from Reds

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
Associated Press Writer

Dust off the tomahawks and stretch out those vocal chords. The Braves are back in first place - and chopping and chanting can't be far behind.

Atlanta won its 11th straight game and John Smoltz extended his scoreless inning streak to 27 as the Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 Wednesday.

"This is a big win because we go back home in first place and there's going to be a crazy Atlanta crowd waiting for us the first game," Smoltz said after working 8 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits and striking out five.

Combined with Cincinnati's 3-0 loss to Chicago, the Braves moved into first place for the first time since April 10. The Reds dropped out of the NL West lead for the first time since June 1.

Kent Mercker got the final two outs for his fourth save and extended his scoreless inning streak to 21 2-3 over 19 games.

Sid Bream drove in both runs with a home run in the second and a sacrifice fly in the seventh off Omar Olivares (6-5).

Greg Swindell (9-3): Kal Daniels drove in the other run with a pinch-hit double.

Pirates 10, Astros 7 (13 innings)
In Houston, Orlando Merced singled home Barry Bonds with the winning run.

The NL East-leading Pirates broke a three-game losing streak. Stan Belinda (4-2) picked up the win with two innings of one-hit relief. Willie Blair (2-5) was the loser.

The Pirates amassed 18 hits; the Astros had 14.

Phillies 4, Padres 0
In Philadelphia, Curt Schilling pitched his third shutout of the season and Darren Daulton hit a two-run homer.

Schilling (8-6) allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked none in his fourth complete game.

Andy Benes (7-9) worked seven innings, giving up six hits. He has lost four of his last five decisions. John Kruk went 2 for 4 to raise his National League-leading average to .353.

Giants 4, Expos 1
In Montreal, Bill Swift scattered seven hits over 6 2-3 innings and Matt Williams hit a two-run homer.

Swift (8-2), who started the season 6-0, won for only the second time in his last nine starts. Chris Nabholz (6-7) took the loss.

Mets 7, Dodgers 5
In New York, David Cone won his sixth consecutive decision and Bobby Bonilla homered.

Cone (11-4) allowed five runs and eight hits in six-plus innings, struck out 10 and walked five.

Orel Hershiser (7-9) lost his third straight start.

Red Sox' 3 errors cost game

By The Associated Press

Yuk! Yuk! Yuk!

Boston manager Butch Hobson didn't exactly use those words to describe the play of his Red Sox. But you know he was thinking about it.

"I apologize to the people in Boston, the fans who listened to it on the radio and had to watch it on television, if they continued to watch," Hobson said Wednesday night after the error-plagued Red Sox fell to the Kansas City Royals 6-4.

"They probably turned it off and tried to find the Three Stooges somewhere."

The fans didn't have to touch the dial. Mo already was on the field. Only curly and Larry were missing.

"When we win, I'll give the players all the credit. When we lose, I'll take the blame," Hobson said after the Red Sox committed three errors for the second straight night. "But I ain't taking the blame for this."

In other games, Minnesota nipped Cleveland 2-1, Milwaukee defeated Texas 4-1, Chicago edged Baltimore 7-5, Oakland rallied to defeat the Yankees 8-5, Detroit defeated Seattle 3-2 and California beat Toronto 5-4.

The Royals used a strange rally to send the Red Sox to their 32nd loss in 47 games on the road this season. Wally Joyner's leadoff double was the only ball that left the infield during a five-run fifth that turned Frank Viola's 3-0 lead into a 5-3 Kansas City advantage.

Viola (8-6) took a one-hitter into the inning. But with one out and Joyner on second, Gary Thurman walked and Curtis Wilkerson and David Howard hit almost identical balls to deep short, where Luis Rivera stopped them but couldn't make a play.

Joyner scored on Howard's hit and Brian McRae was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to force in a second run. Gregg Jefferies' infield out tied the score at 3. George Brett followed with a hard grounder to Wade Boggs at third, and Howard and McRae scored when Boggs' throw pulled Boston first baseman Mo Vaughn off the bag.

Boggs, who has won six AL batting titles but entered the game hitting 71 points below his lifetime average of .341, wore a pair of eyeglasses for the first time. The move paid off in the Red Sox fifth when he singled home Billy Hatcher.

"That was the best breaking ball I threw all night," Gordon said. "And he hit it. Evidently, the glasses help his vision."

Brewers 4, Rangers 1
Julio Navarro tossed a two-hitter for Milwaukee's 50th win of the season. The Brewers haven't reached 50 wins this early since 1983, when they did it in 91 games. They've played 93 this season.

Navarro (10-6) didn't allow allow Texas a hit in the final 6 1-3 innings. Kevin Brown (14-6) pitched his seventh complete game.

Cubs 3, Reds 0
In Cincinnati, the Reds were shut out for the second straight night. The Cubs' Greg Maddux had scouts from other teams drooling, tossing a six-hitter for his fifth complete game of the season.

Since rejecting a 5-year, $28-million contract last week, Maddux has been shopped around the league. The potential free agent did nothing to diminish his value, lowering his ERA to 2.20, second-best among NL starters.

Only Yugoslavia won't be at Olympics

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - Nobody's boycotting, yet these Summer Games are not quite whole. No anthem will play and no flag will fly for war-torn Yugoslavia, which bowed to pressure from the United Nations and agreed to compete only in individual events, and not as a team.

Although many of the nation's 118 athletes won't be able to participate, International Olympic Committee president Juan Antonio Samaranch said half a team was better than none.

"I am happy. Very happy? No. Happy," he said Wednesday. "I think 65 percent of the team will be in Barcelona."

Those who do go will make Olympic history since this will be the first time since 1972 that athletes from all major countries are present at the Games.

"It's a victory," Samaranch said. "Now we will say we will have universal Games."

The agreement requires the formal approval today of the IOC.

Among the victims of the U.N. plan: the men's water polo team, which is the defending gold-medal winner.

The sanctions earlier eliminated the once-powerful men's basketball team, which was already gutted by the secession of Croatia. Los Angeles Lakers star Vlade Divac missed out on the Barcelona Games.

When the Games begin Saturday, it will mark the first time since 1972 when politics didn't leave at least one country's athletes sitting at home.

In 1976, the African nations pulled out, a move Jimmy Carter duplicated four years later with the American team. The Soviets and their allies did the same in 1984; the Cubans never

The South Africans are here for the first time in 32 years - they had been banned because of the nation's apartheid policy - but they're not very happy. The team divided along racial lines over adding two athletes to the team; they opted to participate without their national flag or anthem.

"The majority of the people do not have loyalty to the national anthem ... or the flag," explained team spokesman Mluleki George, speaking of the country's black majority.

One athlete who is definitely showing up, American long jumper Mike Powell, is coming to the Catalan region convinced a 30-foot jump can be had. In his last warm-up this week, he jumped 29 feet, 6 inches - a wind-aided world best that won't count.

"This is the best place in the world for jumping. I did the longest jump in history and I feel I can go farther in Barcelona," Powell said before leaving Italy for Spain.

His major competition will come from Carl Lewis, who announced a full recovery from the viral infection which helped keep him off the Olympic sprint teams.

"I'm feeling stronger ... I will be 100 percent at Barcelona," promised Lewis, one of 36 athletes at the Games trying to repeat as gold medalists in the same event.

Included are two seeking to make Olympic history, shot putter Udo Beyer of Germany and hammer-throwing Yuri Sedykh of the Unified Team. Both won the gold in 1976, and a victory by either or both in Barcelona would make for the first gold medal winner or winners in the same event 16 years apart.

The American basketball Dream Team played its toughest game yet - a 5-on-5 scrimmage which ended with Michael Jordan's team beating Magic Johnson & Co., 40-36.

Jordan, speaking after the closed session, acknowledged fans from around the world might never see a game that good in Barcelona.

"All of us would love to see us challenged one time," the Chicago Bulls guard said. "I don't think you'll see this team play to its potential unless it's challenged."

"A lot of us in the regular season can raise our games when a game is close, but we may not ever see that happen. There may not ever be a game except in the first half."

Rodman considers retirement

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit Pistons forward Dennis Rodman says he's not interested in basketball anymore and might leave the NBA next month to spend more time running his Texas company.

"I want to be a normal person," Rodman said in today's Detroit News. "I just want to go out and do something on my own."

"I've been thinking the last two years what can I do to have more of a challenge."

He said he'd like to devote more time to his Rodman Excavation Co. in Frisco, Texas, about 25 miles northwest of Dallas.

A message left at the team's offices early today was not immediately returned.

A month ago, Rodman said he wouldn't report to training camp in October unless Chuck Daly was reinstated as head coach. Daly, now coaching the U.S. Olympic team, will coach the New Jersey Nets this season.

Rodman admits he's upset by personnel changes over the past three years that sent Vinnie Johnson, James Edwards and Rick Mahorn to other teams.

Granger's return throws off Aggies' QB situation

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Jeff Granger's return to the Texas A&M football team has dramatically changed the outlook this fall for several other players who had hoped to win the starting quarterback job.

Granger, a left-handed pitcher, was cut from Team USA on July 10, clearing the way for his return to football last week. Four other quarterbacks had battled in spring training for the No. 1 spot.

But Granger's decision last week may have had the greatest impact on a recruit, Corey Pullig of Deer Park.

Pullig, a 6-foot-3-inch, 205-pound high school star at Deer Park, picked A&M over Notre Dame after Granger announced in January that he was giving up football to concentrate on baseball and the 1992 Olympics.

"It was a shocker for him," offensive coordinator Bob Toledo told the Bryan-College Station Eagle on Wednesday. "Now he realizes what has happened and realizes that it might be the best thing for him. If Pullig redshirts, he'll have a chance to be more competitive next year than if those guys (redshirts Tommy Preston or Matt Miller) had started this year."

Last year, Granger was backup completing 22 of 48 passes for 395 yards with five touchdowns and two interceptions in nine games. Senior Kent Petty is the only other returnee with much experience, having completed 5 of 12 passes for 105 yards and a touchdown in three seasons.

Without Granger in spring drills, Petty was left to vie with three others. When spring practices ended, none of the four had greatly distinguished himself from the others. Miller was listed first on the depth chart followed by Preston.

Hints from Heloise

Help for New Moms

Dear Heloise: My daughter is expecting her first child. What can I do to help get ready for the new arrival?

Any hints on new babies, new mothers or new grandmothers would help a lot. Thank you! — Grannie, Artesia, N.M.

One of the most important tips for a new mom and baby is to give them peace and quiet. Both will be adjusting to a new routine and will appreciate all the help you can offer.

If your daughter has an answering machine (if not, borrow one from a friend), record a special announcement with the new baby's name, date of birth and a few other stats, ending with "Mom and baby are resting now, and will return your call later," and then have the answering machine answer on the first ring. This will save them from phone interruptions.

Also, hang a sign on the front door knob asking any visitors not to ring the door bell, especially during nap time.

Here are a couple of bottle-feeding tips that will come in handy.

Keep a roll of masking tape and a permanent ink marker in a kitchen drawer, and when a can of formula is opened, write the date on a piece of masking tape and stick it on the opened can. Formula should not be used past 48 hours after opening, and this will help you keep track (this does not apply to powder formula).

To rid plastic bottles of any sour smell, boil them once a week in a baking-soda-and-water solution for a few minutes or fill each bottle with warm water and add a teaspoon of baking soda. Shake and let stand overnight, then wash and sterilize.

I hope these tips come in handy for your daughter. — Heloise

LETTER OF WARNING

Dear Heloise: My children and I take several medications daily. I used to carry one or two pills of each medication in a small bottle in my purse. Please tell your readers not to do this!

I thought it was a great idea until one day while we were out shopping I needed to give my 5-year-old one of his asthma pills. A short time later he became very tired and groggy. Obviously, some of the residue of one of my pills or one of my other son's medication had gotten on his asthma pill.

Now when I get a prescription filled, I request a second, smaller bottle (with label) from the pharmacist. I have more bottles to carry around, but I also have peace of mind now. — Janet Weisbrodt, Waggaman, La.

This can also be done for school-age children who need to take a prescription medication to the school nurse.

This is also good to know if medication needs to be carried in a purse or travel bag.

Check with your pharmacist. — Heloise

NYLONS

Dear Heloise: My daughter and I use the same brand of nylons which come without size/color tags in the waistband.

So that we don't mix them up (we wear the same color, but different sizes), I put a dot of fingernail polish in the back of my waistbands. If they get a hole or run but are still usable with slacks, I put on a second dot.

This makes identification easy and saves me precious time when getting dressed. — Linda Boone, Eagle River, Alaska

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Social Security called 'crucial' for children

Social Security is "a crucial component in the (government's) effort to aid children," said Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King in a recent address to the National Academy of Social Insurance.

Many, if not most, Americans think of Social Security as the program that helps provide financial security to people when they reach retirement age. But Social Security is more than a retirement program. Millions of children also receive help from Social Security -- poor children with disabilities, children who have a retired or disabled parent, and children who have lost a working parent. The Social Security and Supplemental Security income (SSI) programs provide over $1 billion in monthly benefits to more than 3 million children. About 1.8 million of these children receive Social Security benefits because a parent has died.

Commissioner King emphasized that "because of the number of people working today in the United States, 98 of every 100 children could get benefits if a working parent should pass away."

And Social Security protection can be a greater value than many commercial life insurance policies. The protection offered to families with children is equal to a life insurance policy of $85,000. And it could be worth as much as $390,000 for young families with two or more children.

Social Security also pays benefits to over 1 million children whose parents receive disability and more than 400,000 children whose parents are retired. "All in all, we have a very effective safety net that protects, to a great degree, America's children from the vulnerabilities that affect their parents, be it death, disability, or retirement," she said.

Additionally, Social Security administers the SSI program for people who are aged, blind, or disabled and have little or no income or resources. "Children who are for needy families and who have a disability may be eligible for SSI benefits," Commissioner King said, and "eligibility for SSI leads to eligibility for their government programs."

Urbanczyk presents EH program

"Let's Go to the Fair" was the title of a program presented by Loretta Urbanczyk last week to the 4-Corners Extension Club.

Mrs. Urbanczyk detailed the procedures used to can fresh garden vegetables and fruits for the Tri-State Fair competition in September. The meeting was held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Members attending were Joyce Schlabs, Brenda Paschel, Jaime Brorman, Emily Knight, Patti Urbanczyk and Rhonda Urbanczyk. Elizabeth Baca and the speaker were guests.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Could you tell me why you get brown spots on your hands and arms? I am a 55-year-old woman, and I hate the look. What can I do about it?

DEAR READER: They are an accumulation of melanin, the brown pigment that is produced by your skin to give it color. They are often called "liver spots." The medical term is "lentiginos." They resemble a large freckle. They are usually not dangerous in the sense of being skin cancer although some of the larger lentiginos can be malignant. They enlarge by spreading outward, but do not spread to other areas of the body.

They are usually caused from solar radiation. That is why they are so common on the hands; they can occur on the face less often. If you protect yourself from the sun, you will protect yourself from developing these.

Much less often they may develop after a hemorrhage into the skin from a minor injury.

They can be removed by liquid nitrogen, which freezes the surface area and they peel off, leaving normal skin, which may then be lighter in pigment than the rest of your skin.

There are also preparations that you can use such as Esoterica Medicated Fade Cream, Melanex and Eldoquin to help fade pigmented spots. I have discussed skin spots in my new Special Report 129, About Your Skin, and am sending you a free copy. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/129, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Liquid nitrogen can also be used to remove many other skin lesions such as the common actinic keratosis which are precancerous lesions.

It is not a good idea to guess what a spot, sore or lump on the skin really is. It is better to have your doctor look at it and advise you on the basis of what it really is what you need to have done. You don't want to miss an early skin cancer.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have been diagnosed with postpolio syndrome, a progressive neurological disorder. Can you tell me anything about this relatively new syndrome? How fast does it progress? It is in my legs and arms. I was told to walk only when absolutely necessary and have been declared permanently disabled.

DEAR READER: This condition develops about 30 years or more after an initial illness with polio. That is why it has just been recognized in recent times, after the polio epidemics before the polio vaccine was developed. It is usually characterized by progressive muscle weakness. It need not involve the muscles affected by the initial attack of polio. Weakness and fatigue are characteristic. Painful joints may also be present. There are several theories about what causes it. It is not a new attack of polio or a reactivation of a long-dormant virus. It is most likely caused from the progressive loss of nerve cells in the spinal cord that is common with increasing age. In normal people, the loss of cells is not noticed because there are plenty of cells left to do the job. But if a lot of cells were damaged previously by polio, then it does make a difference.

Most authorities today believe it is important to rest and not to over-exercise, but normal living should not be avoided. Less strenuous exercises such as swimming or water exercises may be useful. It is important to maintain mobility of joints with stretching exercises. The usual medicines prescribed for pain may help relieve painful symptoms. The course is so variable that it is not possible to predict the course of symptoms.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Chapel restoration gets boost at WTSU

With the help of an Amarillo church, West Texas State University took a quantum leap toward replacing the 42-year-old cedar shake roof on J.A. Hill Chapel. The church, which requested anonymity, presented a $4,000 contribution to the University and a challenge to approximately 600 area churches.

Congregations from Dalhart to Childress have responded to the call, pushing the total to $14,984.88, approximately $3,500 short of re-roofing estimate.

Although type are the most recent area congregations are not the first to come to the rescue of Hill Chapel. The campaign was begun in the fall of 1991 by WTSU students and was spearheaded by members of the WTSU Herdsmen, Buffalo Belles and Alpha Tau Omega. Gifts to date range from $5 to $5,000 and have been received from corporations, families, friends, students and former students, many of whom were married in the Gothic-style, stone building.

Fundraising activities have included T-shirt sales and a benefit concert featuring "Undivided," a contemporary Christian music duo, and "First Impressions," a gospel music group.

West Texas State University was the first public institution of higher learning in Texas to erect a chapel on campus. Original funding, such like the present strategy, was secured through a public campaign for private contributions. Friends of the University responded, and the names of 611 donor were placed in the building's cornerstone in June 1950.

To contribute to the re-roofing campaign, contact Betty Howell, WTSU director of development, at 806-656-2066 or write WTSU Box 909, Canyon, Texas 79016.

What was that you said?

What is the difference in sending a Valentine's Card or simply saying, "I love you"? The spoken word has little staying power. With Valentine's Day only coming once a year, a few words is not enough to last. The card, however, is something you can hold on to, refer back to, carry with you, read again and again, save in your scrapbook forever. The card is a lasting record and a part of your personal history. The same can be said when comparing radio to newspaper. Notice which one can be held, referred back to, carried on shopping trips, and found in libraries for generation after generation.

Newspaper vs. Radio

- Radio copy depends on word imagery and it is limited to 30 or 60 seconds, not enough time for complex issues.
- Average recall for a 1/2 page newspaper ad is 32%; for a 1/4 page ad, it's 31%. Radio ad recall is only 4%.
- Once a commercial is aired, it is gone. There is absolutely no tangible evidence it existed. For those listeners not tuned in at that specific time, the commercial is lost.
- Radio is an entertainment medium. People listen for musical enjoyment (passive experience).
- Newspapers are an information medium. People read to seek data and learn (active experience).
- Newspapers are the only medium that allow shoppers to compare values offered by competitive advertisers.
- 77% of all newspaper readers look at every page. No audience can actively listen to the radio 77% of the time (Audits and Survey, Inc.).
- 44% of newspaper readers look forward to ads, compared to 10% for radio (Audits and Survey, Inc.).

Newspapers are the way to reach today's consumers
