

Hereford Family of Year Honored, Challenged

By LINDA CAUDLE

"We feel really honored, and challenged to continue to build on the foundation we've begun as a family," comment

Neal and Ann Lueb, whose family was selected as Family of the Year Sunday afternoon. This award, which was sponsored by the Hereford

Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was presented to the Luebs in recognition of their family solidarity, contributions to the community, and high moral and religious standards. The Luebs have four children, Jason, nine; Jeremy, seven; Justin, six; and Julie, two years old. The three older ones attend school at St. Anthony's, where Jason is in the fourth grade, Jeremy is in the first grade, and Justin attends kindergarten half a day.

Neal and Ann are involved in St. Anthony's Parent-Teacher Organization, which sponsors a paper drive once a month, and will be holding a carnival March 28. The Luebs will be in charge of the fourth grade booth at the carnival this year. Neal is also vice-president of the St. Anthony's School Board.

The Luebs are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, and are involved in various related activities. Ann is a member of the St. Anthony's Womens Organization, which plans many of the social activities of the church, takes care of the flowers for the altar, and operates a gift shop. Neal belongs to the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic fraternal organization which has given to the Deaf Fund, chauffeured Meals on Wheels, sat with sick people, and helped clean up and rebuild when there is a fire or other tragedy.

"One of the most rewarding things we do," says Ann, "is to teach Pre-Cana, a marriage preparation class which meets several times a month on Sunday afternoon at the church." They have been teaching this class for engaged couples for about 2½ years with two other couples, their emphasis being communication and budgeting.

Neal, a native of Hereford, is employed at Jake Diel Construction Machinery, where he rebuilds equipment and machinery. Neal has spent all of his life in Hereford, except during his service in the army and the time he spent at the Spartan School of Aeronautics in Tulsa, Okla. He was working for American Helicopter when he married Ann, and has been with Jake Diel for seven years. Ann was born in Groom, and lived there until she started college at West Texas State University. While finishing her degree in Elementary Education, Ann did her student teaching at the old Central School here in Hereford (now the Senior Citizens Center). Upon graduation, she taught in Central for one year, then at Tierra Blanca for 1½ years, and then at Central again for three more years. When Justin was born, Ann quit teaching, and before too long she began keeping children in her home during

European Allies Blunting Impact of Libyan Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — The European allies are resisting quiet appeals from the Reagan administration to join in a ban on oil imports from Libya, blunting the impact of the U.S. move against the radical Arab country, officials say.

The American embargo also appears to contradict President Reagan's judgment last fall that a boycott would have to be worldwide to work.

But the president and his key advisers decided to cut off Libyan imports, and block sales of American oil and gas technology, because of mounting irritation with Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan leader who was branded public enemy No. 1 early in the administration.

Outlining the U.S. case against the flamboyant Islamic revolutionary, a senior U.S. official accused the Libyan regime on Wednesday of an "outrageous plan" to assassinate American diplomats and their families in Sudan.

The official said the plot was uncovered last November before two stereo speakers packed with plastic explosives could be flown from an unidentified neighboring country to Khartoum, where they were to be placed in the American social club. He said hundreds of Americans could have been killed or maimed if the "particularly horrible mission" had succeeded.

The boycott decision was taken by the National Security Council Feb. 26, but the formal announcement was deferred for two weeks to allow talks with the West Europeans and oil company executives.

In those consultations, officials said, the allies declined to go along with the ban. Pressure tactics were not used, but the administration decided not to embargo other goods, such as trucks and bulldozers, that Libya could buy elsewhere.

However, the boycott blocks sales of American computers and other technology that could be used by Libya in a military connection, and imposes restrictions on strategic materials, said the officials, who asked not to be identified. Khadafy is in Vienna, Austria, on an official visit. Members of his delegation refused comment on the U.S. boycott, but the Libyan leader scheduled a news conference for today.

Support Shown for Briefings On El Salvador

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's presentation of evidence to support its assertion that the insurgency in El Salvador is being directed from other countries has won a ringing endorsement from a bipartisan group of former high-level officials.

"It is important for the American people to realize their government is telling the truth," said William P. Rogers, secretary of state under President Nixon.

Rogers was among 24 former senior government officials who received a private intelligence briefing Wednesday from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and CIA Director William Casey.

Robert Strauss, a senior member of the administration of President Carter, said the briefing was "a rather impressive bit of evidence indicating in a persuasive way the outside involvement" in El Salvador.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser to Carter, said the information "was disturbing."

However, the administration apparently didn't completely satisfy all the former officials that the Salvadoran insurgency is under Nicaraguan and Cuban control. Rogers, for one, said he didn't want to "take a position" on that.

The briefing was part of a public relations offensive by the Reagan administration to generate broader public and congressional support for its Central American policies, including its backing of the Salvadoran government in its war against leftist guerrillas.

Haig told a Senate subcommittee separately Wednesday that U.S. military aid is essential for the Salvadoran government's struggle to beat back the leftists.

Williams Ready For Resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harrison A. Williams Jr., fighting what even his backers say is a losing battle against expulsion from the Senate, has tentatively decided to resign, knowledgeable congressional sources say.

One source said the 62-year-old New Jersey Democrat, who has waged a 7-month campaign against a recommendation that he be expelled because of his convictions in the Abscam case, has told at least one congressman he intends to resign.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said there is still a slight possibility Williams might change his mind before the Senate votes on the expulsion resolution which, if approved, could make him the first senator to be expelled since the Civil War.

Williams was described as being distraught over his situation and that has accounted for his hesitation about his intentions, sources said.

Publicly, the 23-year veteran of the Senate said Wednesday that he would continue to fight expulsion.

"Right now, I'm not thinking about resignation," Williams said on the fifth day of Senate hearings on his case. An aide added that Williams has "no intention of resigning."

It could not be determined whether Williams would resign before the Senate votes on a proposal that he be censured, a lesser penalty that has been urged by those who argue that he was the victim of FBI and prosecutorial abuse.

The Senate had been expected to vote on censure Wednesday, but the vote was postponed and could come today.

Even the sponsor of the censure vote, Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said it would fail. And Cranston said that if Williams does not resign, it will be impossible for him to avoid expelishment.

Bell spokesman Jack Tarpley said no helicopters had been stolen from the facility, and the scheme was the first he had heard of in the Panhandle city. He said no employees were suspected in the smuggling plan.

Baseball Kicks Off Super Sports Weekend

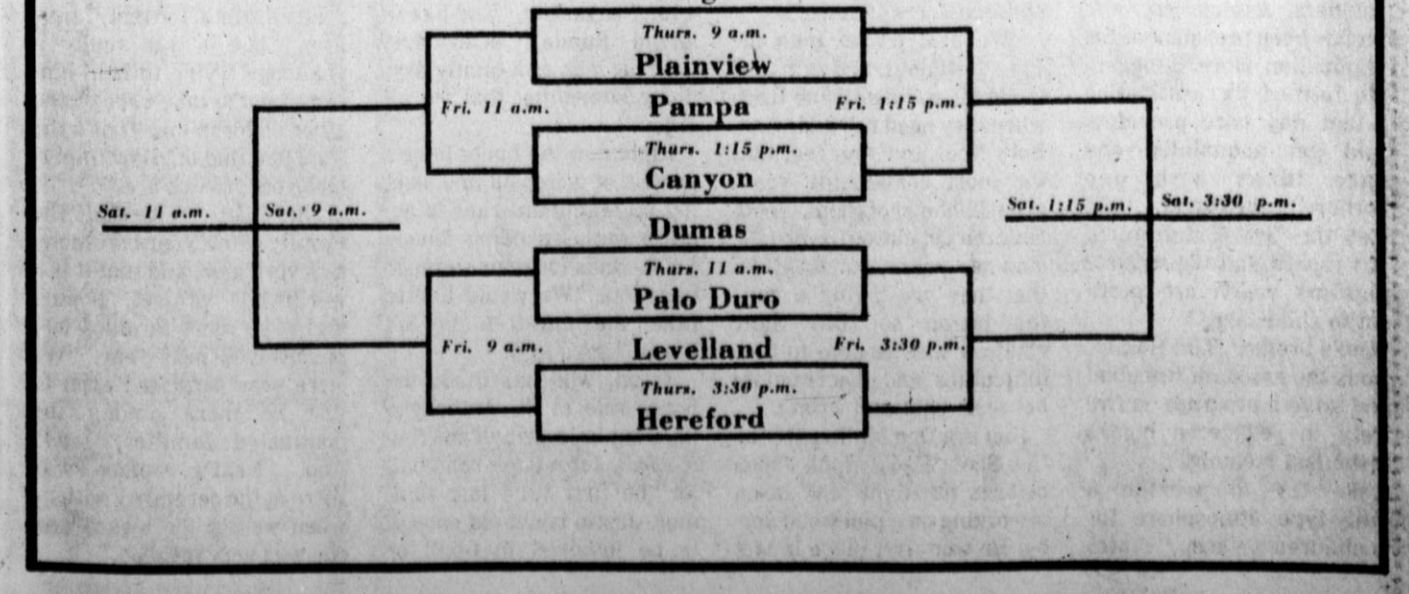

An eight-team baseball tournament began activities in the annual Super Sports Weekend this morning, with a boys' track meet set for Friday, and the girls' meet slated for Saturday.

The Hereford Whitefaces, 3-1 on the season, are hosting seven area squads in the baseball tournament, which had to be cancelled last year due to bad weather. The Herd hopes to see a lot of sunshine the next three days for the consolation event, however.

In addition to the Herd, teams in the baseball tournament include Borger, Palo Duro, Pampa, Canyon, Dumas, Plainview and Levelland.

Borger and Plainview began the affair in a battle of Bulldogs at 9 a.m. this morning, followed by the Dumas-Palo Duro matchup at 11. Pampa and Canyon met at 1:15, while the host Herd played Levelland at 3:30.

Cable Beaten At Ranch, Spokesman Says

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Millionaire Rex Cable was expected to remain hospitalized for five days after his nose and two ribs were broken and his lung was punctured in a beating at his ranch, a spokesman says.

The 68-year-old Cable, who was convicted Jan. 28 of financing a huge drug-smuggling operation, was attacked Tuesday evening when he asked an unidentified man to stop taking photographs of him, Cable spokesman Eddie Barker said.

"He really whacked him pretty good," Barker said Wednesday. "He's awfully sore, as you can imagine."

Cable was admitted to Westgate Medical Center, where a hospital spokeswoman said Cable was listed in stable condition. Barker described Cable's condition as good.

Barker said Cable's assailant struck him with three "karate-type kicks."

Cable said he did not recognize the man, but described him as about 6 feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, having dark, shoulder-length hair, and driving a dark color, late model, foreign economy car, Barker said.

Cable first saw the man taking pictures at his ranch late Monday afternoon, but the man left when Cable approached, Barker said.

Federal Judge Awards 'Rich Kids' Cash To McLennan County

WACO, Texas (AP) — A small fortune dug up five years ago by two teen-agers who went on a storybook spending spree before being caught has been awarded to McLennan County.

The youths, James D. Bridges and Percy A. Garcia, had $483,604 stashed in the trunk of a new 1977 Thunderbird when they were stopped for a traffic violation in Waco on Jan. 31, 1977. They said they dug up the money on a south Texas ranch.

By the time U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon finally awarded the money to the county Wednesday, after a five-year legal battle, the money had been deposited in two Waco banks and grown to more than $700,000, officials said.

McLennan County commissioners were talking about using the windfall award for a tax cut, but attorneys for the two boys said they would appeal Shannon's ruling.

Bridges was 15 and Garcia was 16 when they told police they dug up the cash, in $20, $50 and $100 bills, from a hiding place on the ranch of Bridges' father near Alice.

They used the money to pay a bellboy $3,000 to buy a new Thunderbird for $8,000 in cash and drive it off a Dallas showroom floor, gave $100 gifts to winos and $20 tips to waiters, stayed at a luxury Dallas hotel and went on shopping sprees to buy cameras, clothes and stereo equipment, the boys told police.

District Attorney Felipe Reyna said the county was awarded the money based on a 1981 jury decision that the teen-agers had stolen it.

Bridges' father, James Hiroms, a welder and racehorse owner, went to jail in February 1977 rather than testify about the origin of the money, which police alleged could have been related to drug smuggling. Hiroms was released a few days later and never filed a claim on the cash.

Bentsen Says Democrats Won't Support Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — An irritated Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says President Reagan is going about it the wrong way if he is trying to win Democratic support for his economic program this year.

He and other Democrats worked to give the president what he wanted last year, and bipartisan cooperation is needed if budget difficulties are to be resolved and the American economy gotten back on its track, the Texas Democrat said Wednesday.

The president's recent, highly publicized attacks of Democrats are likely to convince them the president wants a political battle instead of cooperation, Bentsen told budget director David Stockman.

Bentsen noted that the president was quoted Tuesday as saying past Democratic policies had called for "planned deficits" and "deliberate inflation."

"It is not true, and that kind of talk is not helpful," Bentsen said.

Student Loans Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lori Froeling, a University of Iowa senior, assumed that "the biggest hurdle" in her academic career "would be to get accepted to law school."

But now that the prestigious University of Chicago Law School has admitted the 23-year-old Keokuk, Iowa, native, she says she is facing an even bigger obstacle: how to pay the $7,100-a-year tuition.

When Bob Harrington graduates from Tufts University Dental School in Boston, he will carry a debt of $60,000 into his new career. The monthly payments of $1,000 on student loans will consume half the $25,000 that the average dentist makes starting out in practice.

Carla Walters, 25, a third-year medical student at Howard University and a single mother of 8-year-old twin girls, expects to be $50,000 in debt by the time she graduates next year.

She fears the rapidly escalating costs of medical school, coupled with deep student aid cuts sought by the Reagan administration, will "knock completely out... this myth called the American dream."

President Reagan's proposals to bar graduate students from the Guaranteed Student Loan program and to slash $1.5 billion from other student aid, loans and job subsidies now costing $3.3 billion have brought howls of protest from hundreds of Americans campuses. The cuts face stiff resistance from both Republicans and Democrats in Congress.

Alice M. Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, told a House panel Wednesday that overall federal aid to college students would be nearly sliced in half by 1984 under cuts Reagan has already pushed through Congress or is seeking. The aid peaked in 1981 at $14.7 billion and would drop to $7.7 billion two years from now, she said.

With the average tuition at private medical schools nearing $10,000, future physicians routinely take on debts the size of a home mortgage.

Students such as Harrington and Ms. Walters already on the verge of their careers may have gotten off easy.

John C. Carl, a medical student at George Washington University, which is raising its tuition to a record $19,000 annually in the fall, says, "I don't want to downplay in any respect the $60,000 or the $35,000 debt, but we're talking about increasing this tenfold."

Carl said that a student who borrows $4,000 from a Health Education Assistance Loan program, a federal program that lends money at market rates, would pay back $25,260 over 15 years if the interest rate is 18.5 percent.

A student who borrows $20,000 a year for four years "is going to have to face paying back $450,000 to $500,000," said Carl, who took this year off from his studies to lobby for the American Medical Student Association.

Some 3.5 million students borrowed $7.7 billion through the Guaranteed Student Loan program in 1981 at a cost to the federal treasury of $2.7 billion.

Some 600,000 to 700,000 of those borrowers were graduate students. They pay no interest until after leaving school and then pay only 7 percent to 9 percent, with the government absorbing the rest of the loan's cost.

Reagan wants to shift graduate students into a 14 percent loan program that charges interest from the first day of the loan.

Harrington, 28, the Tufts dental student, told the group Reagan's cutbacks "will be the final nail in the coffin for middle- and lower-middle-income people who want to go to professional school."

A Braniff vice president, Sam Coats, confirmed that the airline lost money in January through the clearinghouse, but said "rumors" that American was responsible did not originate with Braniff.

Braniff and American, both headquartered in Dallas, have many overlapping routes. Braniff, which lost $160.1 million last year, has tried to gain business by slashing fares, a tactic American has criticized bitterly as dangerous for the industry.

American Airlines president Robert Crandall termed the allegations of questionable tactics an "absolute, total lie."

Support

The administration had planned to unveil information Friday to support its contention that Nicaragua and Cuba are directing the Salvadoran insurgency. However, sources said the information might not be released until early next week.

A growing number of members of Congress of both parties are pressing for evidence on outside involvement in El Salvador as a condition for continuing congressional support for administration policies.

Part of the administration's strategy is to portray the guerrilla war as part of a larger Soviet and Cuban-directed drive to destabilize Central America, using Nicaragua as a base.

Several major U.S. news organizations, including The Washington Post, said they have confirmed that there is a CIA-directed plan to destabilize the government of Nicaragua using a $19 million special fund and a 500-member paramilitary force of Latin Americans.

President Reagan and Haig declined comment on the reports, neither confirming nor denying them. Nicaraguan government officials have previously charged that the CIA is plotting against their government and said Nicaragua's military buildup is intended to defend against such threats.

The New York Times said in today's editions that according to its sources, which it identified only as senior administration officials, the Reagan administration rejected a proposal to provide direct financial aid and support of a paramilitary force in Central America.

Instead, the Times said Reagan approved the less risky course of having the CIA manage an operation to secretly finance individuals and private organizations in Nicaragua who it is believed could help bolster moderate economic and political elements in the Central American nation.

Haig said the U.S. intelligence agencies have "overwhelming and irrefutable evidence" that the Salvadoran guerrilla operations are controlled from Nicaragua and Cuba.

He told a Senate subcommittee again on Wednesday: "The facts are, the essential command and control are made from Nicaragua."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said the ruling element in Nicaragua, the Sandinistas, "have not closed the door to reconciliation with the U.S."

"But we are now perilously close to forcing the Sandinistas to conclude that they have no choice but to turn to Cuba and the Soviets for massive assistance," he said.

All the former officials who talked to reporters said they found the information on outside involvement in El Salvador conclusive, but agreed the information was too sensitive to be made public.

Meanwhile, Nicaragua protested Wednesday against American overflights of its territory during which photographs of military installations were made. Those photos were displayed to reporters at a CIA briefing Tuesday.

Wentz declined to say who made the allegations, saying only that there have been

Williams

Democrats for Williams' expulsion for his conviction on bribery and conspiracy charges.

Among those who said they would vote for expulsion was New Jersey's junior senator, Democrat Bill Bradley, who had refused for months to take a position on Williams' expulsion.

Although Bradley said he was troubled by what has been called "an abuse of power" by the FBI in the Abscam case, he said he watched the tapes the government made of Williams' meetings with a phony Arab sheik.

Prosecutors contended that Williams agreed at those meetings to use his influence to help a mining venture in which he had a hidden interest and which was to be financed by a $100 million loan from an undercover FBI agent posing as a sheik.

Williams has been sentenced to three years in prison and fined $50,000 for his Abscam convictions.

Family

The day. The Luebs have a "registered family home" which means that they have been certified by the Texas Department of Resources to keep children in their home. She is presently keeping five children in addition to her own.

In June, Ann and several other ladies who keep children in their homes formed the Hereford Child Care Providers Association, and Ann has been president of the organization since it began.

"We formed the association so that day care providers could get acquainted and share ideas with one another," she says. "We meet the first Saturday of each month and try to have programs which are pertinent to child care."

Ann's brother, Tim Homer, who is the assistant fire chief here, gave a program on fire safety in registered homes at the last meeting.

"We try to provide a family-type atmosphere for the children we keep," states

Ann. "Neal comes home for lunch, and we always pray at meals. I think people appreciate that."

The Luebs also pray with their children at night, feeling that it is important to bring their children up in a Christian home. "We are careful about what our kids watch on T.V.," they comment, "and feel that it is important to watch what the children are watching."

"We also try to take the time to sit down and talk with the kids, and discipline them when they need it," adds Ann. Both Neal and Ann feel that the most challenging years are still ahead of them, as the children get closer toward the teen-age years, but they feel that they are laying a good foundation so that their children will be able to face difficulties and discriminate between right and wrong.

Ann is a Den Mother for the Cub Scout Pack which Jason belongs to. Right now Jason is working on a pinewood derby. He won first place in last year's race. "This is a father-son project," says Ann, "but Neal is encouraging Jason to do much of the work himself this year. Neal is very patient in teaching the kids the right way to use tools."

Neal goes out with the three boys to practice shooting, and to fly model airplanes when the weather is nice. "We try to work with the kids in whatever they're involved with," says Ann, "and like to spend Sunday afternoons with the kids as a family day, doing something that we all enjoy."

Right now the Luebs have a project of going out and picking up aluminum cans to acquire some spending money for the kids for their summer vacation. "We would like to take the children to Six Flags," says Ann.

Jason, who has made the honor role at St. Anthony's, likes to play baseball and flag football. Jeremy played t-ball for the first time last summer. Justin is not old enough to be involved in t-ball or baseball, but is anxious to get started in a year or two.

"Julie is very different from the boys," says Ann. "She is full of energy and very independent, and gets lots of attention with three older brothers."

In September, Jeremy had major kidney surgery and missed a month of school. "It was correctable, and we were really grateful for that," says Ann, "but it was really a challenge trying to help him keep up and take care of the other children too. That's the time you find out how important your friends are."

The Luebs feel that the Family of the Year ceremony was very nice, and that it is a worthwhile project, hoping that even more families will be involved next year. "We were very surprised even to just be there among the nominated families," says Ann. "Neal's mother was there at the ceremony with us when we got the award and she was very pleased."

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Our aerobics instructor told us the other morning that the highest suicide rate in the country was among dentists.

She explained this was because of people's basic fear and general rejection of them as people. Despite the fact these public servants are here to help mankind, they are shunned and associated only with pain.

She added the second highest suicide rate was among aerobics instructors. The reasons were the same.

It makes me feel rotten that neither group understands how the human mind functions. They have to realize they're dealing with people who are basically weak, cowardly and unappreciative ... especially when they're bleeding or have a cramp in their legs. Sometimes, recipients of their services don't even pretend they're having a good time.

A lot of it comes down to communication. Aerobics instructors get off to a bad start just by covering the walls with mirrors. They shouldn't do that. It makes the aerobees surly and they say things they're sorry for.

Then, they have you touch your knee to your chin. Right off, we question why we're doing that. We don't get a lot of requests for it. And just when you think your entire body is on fire, the instructor will say, "I don't see anyone smiling," and "You're not breathing."

When the student hears this, she becomes quite despondent and the instructor feels this and feels responsible for it.

Dentists are no better. Seeing that tray full of sharp instruments and the hanging drills at eye level takes away the party atmosphere. Most patients are so terrified that even a simple crack like, "How have you been?" is construed as probing.

Sometimes they're not realistic. When they ask, "Does this hurt?" when they tap your filling with a metal hammer, what do they think you're going to say? "No"? Grow up!

It's a fact that cavities and cellulite will always be with us. We know it isn't personal, but there are just some things you can't be grateful for.

Incidentally, know what the third highest suicide rate is in the country? It's a tie between dental patients and aerobics students.

The first automatic pop-up electric toaster was marketed in June 1926. It received one slice of toast at a time.

"Art alone supplies an enjoyment which requires no appreciable effort, which costs no sacrifice and which we need not repay with repentance." Schiller

Priscilla Barnes storms 'Three's Company'

Priscilla Barnes

"Thank goodness people don't make me out to be another dumb blonde," says Priscilla Barnes, who has successfully replaced Suzanne Somers as the lead female character on "Three's Company." "Because in this town, exterior beauty is a shallow investment. In fact, I think it's great that I'm getting older. I don't always want to be nubile.

"The response to me has been terrific and I'm having lots of fun," adds the 27-year-old actress, who was chosen from hundreds of applicants to play happy-go-lucky nurse Terri Alden, girlfriend of Jack Tripper (John Ritter).

"Originally the producers thought I looked too sophisticated, like a privately educated woman from eastern Connecticut," Miss Barnes says. "I was called back twice to read for the part. The material in the script just wasn't written for a dumb blonde type either, so they finally picked me."

The next step was to convince the network execs that she was right for the role. "I walked into this room with all these high-priced executives looking me over. All of a sudden one of them smiled and said 'We've found Scarlett (O'Hara). Break out the champagne.'"

Although the network was concerned that the departure of Miss Somers would result in a loss of viewers, the ratings have been even higher.

Her success has afforded Miss Barnes a Beverly Hills estate that she shares with her equally animated but protective boyfriend-manager Joel Schur.

"Without him," she says, "I wouldn't know how to handle my money."

She has also found that her fans are extremely protective. Once when she and Schur had stopped at a local fast-food restaurant of dubious reputation, she was recognized by the counter girl, who told her "I really like your show, but please don't eat here."

"Stardom hasn't done anything to my personal life, but it has saved me from food poisoning."

DAS BOOT A Bavaria-Atelier Production, released through Columbia Pictures. Written and Directed by Wolfgang Petersen. Starring Jurgen Prochnow, Herbert Grönemeyer, Erwin Leder. (no rating) ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO — FILM CRITIC

The German film "Das Boot" ("The Boat") portrays the men aboard a U-boat during the early days of World War II, in a personal way, without gloss or sensationalism.

These men were mostly under 30 years old. As with most young men going off in the early days of a war, they were brash, tough and hopeful. Although the U-boats were the terror of the North Atlantic for the first few years of the war, they were soon hunted down by sonar and the ceaseless assault of depth charges. Of the 40,000 men who went to sea in U-boats, only 10,000 returned alive.

"Das Boot" was the most expensive and most successful German film ever made. Sets depicting the base from which the U-boats are launched, and the several authentically staged battle scenes attest to the film's hefty production budget.

Writer-director Wolfgang Petersen presents a simple voyage of one of these boats, and graphically shows the claustrophobic horror the crew had to endure - rotten food, no shower facilities and cramped bunks in which men took sleep shifts.

Petersen keeps the 2 1/2-hour film moving at a brisk pace. He avoids moralizing or philosophizing. He simply presents the events as realistically as possible, letting the powerful story tell itself.

Like Sam Fuller's "The Big Red One," "Das Boot" takes a place as one of the best films about men in war produced in any country.

Taste Verdict: Merit.

Former higher tar smokers applaud MERIT
as "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

Can a low tar cigarette provide the taste incentive to switch smokers from higher tar brands?

Research proves MERIT can.

Taste Debate Ends.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Landslide.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Ann Landers Partnership Should Be Relinquished

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know if you are a bridge player, but I think you will be an intelligent answer whether you play the game or not.

Friday night my husband Phil and I were playing bridge with my cousin and her husband. They are both tournament-caliber and give us a run for our money. We play for fairly steep stakes.

Phil has a habit of becoming too confident and overbidding his hand. I've told him a hundred times to cool it, but it doesn't seem to soak in. Last night he bid six hearts. I couldn't believe it. All I said was, "Either you have lost your minds or I need new glasses." The look he gave me nearly peeled the paint off the walls, then he snapped, "Why don't you just play your own hand and keep your trap shut?"

We fell two tricks short, which was exactly what I had figured. Phil was so mad I thought he would pop an artery.

After my cousin and her husband left, Phil said in that controlled voice I know so well, "If you hadn't opened your yap we would have made that damned bid. You and I have played our last bridge game as partners."

It seems to me that I'm the one who should be angry, not Phil. Your opinion, please. — Dicked In Philadelphia

DEAR DECKED: It's not important who said what to whom. I see 52 good reasons you and your husband should never play cards together. Throw in the deck, Toots.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Twice in the last few weeks I have read the phrase "hard of hearing" in your column. Surely you must be aware that the appropriate designation in recent years is "hearing impairment." Other than that, we love your column. — In Vallejo, Calif.

DEAR VALLEJO: I hear you loud and clear. Thanks for the correction.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 58-year-old woman who has been a widow for five years. I have been keeping steady company with a man who is 66. Roy has never married. He lives with his sister and an uncle who is nearly 80. They share a house left to them by Roy's mother, who had quite a lot of money.

I want to get married. Roy says he's marry me in a minute but he promised his mother he would look after his sister. (She is 72 and in good health.) Meanwhile, I have passed up several chances to go with interesting men because Roy says he wants me all to himself or not at all.

I'm afraid if I press Roy too hard on marriage he will stop seeing me. He has a temper and I have seen him lose it. I need your head to go to work on my problem and help me decide what to do. — Waco, Tex.

DEAR WACO: If you sit around waiting for Roy's sister to die, you have oatmeal where your brains belong. He could marry you and still look after his sister.

I have heard his story before. (Usually it's the mother, not a sister.)

Accept opportunities to get to know other men. If Roy doesn't like it, he can marry you and eliminate the problem.

CONFIDENTIAL to Embarrassed by the Fool: Why should you be? Me made himself look ridiculous, not you. And please don't be so critical of fools. If it weren't for them, the rest of us wouldn't look so good.

Work Progresses On County History Book

Work is progressing on schedule for the Deaf Smith County history which is being compiled by Project County History, according to Troyce Hanna, project chairman.

"We are getting inquiries every day from people who have ordered books and are concerned that they have not yet received them, but it will be later this year before the books are off the press," Mrs. Hanna explains.

She said many people expect to have their copies now, because a 1982 publication date was planned for the book. Actually this project was started as a long-time venture and the project committee decided from the first that it wanted a book of the best quality, with as complete a history as possible, rather than something put together hurriedly to meet an early deadline, she added.

A flexible schedule was set up and the work is keeping to it. More than a dozen writers and at least as many other researchers are contributing to the book, as well as about 10 volunteers who comprise the office staff.

"Our aim is to make the book as interesting and exciting as the history it relates," Mrs. Hanna said.

"In fact, the staff members sometimes find it hard to keep on with their routine work because of the temptation to read every word of the stories we are getting."

Much of the material is now ready for the publisher and all of it is expected to be by May 1. After it is in the publisher's hands, several months will be required to finish the book.

However, orders for books should be in the office before material goes to the publisher, as only the books ordered will be published. Prospective buyers are reminded that an order is not counted until payment is received, so those who want books should mail payment to Project County History, Post Office Drawer 2297, or bring it to the project office in the E.B. Black House, which is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Model T car was introduced by Henry Ford in October, 1908. Its cost: $850. By the next year, the Ford Company was making 19,000 cars.

Death Row Prisoner Not Allowed Appeal Waive

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — There's a man on Texas' death row who says he's ready to die — he's just waiting for society to decide if it really wants capital punishment.

"If they are going to use the death penalty, they've got a guilty person right here. They've got everything they need. Come and do it — how much plainer can I say it?" Roger Leroy DeGarmo recently told an Associated Press reporter during an interview at death row.

DeGarmo, a drifter from a broken home in Napa, Calif., said he warned kidnapping victim Kimberly Ann Strickler, 20, that she would have to die because she made too much noise.

About 15 minutes after issuing the impromptu death sentence, DeGarmo opened the trunk of Miss Strickler's car, where he had placed her for safekeeping, and carried out the punishment with a Smith & Wesson .357 Magnum pistol aimed at the back of her head.

"I just whipped up the trunk and said, 'Now I done told you (to be quiet), but you wouldn't listen to me.' Then I just — blam! — and shut the trunk," DeGarmo admits.

Now, after spending nearly two years on Texas' Death Row, DeGarmo, 27, who shocked people at his trial when he threatened to kill jurors unless they sentenced him to death, says he is ready to be executed for his crime and will do whatever it takes to expedite it.

He made similar statements after his 1980 trial in Richmond, Texas, but retracted them just two weeks later, telling reporters "It was all a big show."

This time, DeGarmo, a nervous talker who rambles on nonstop at a rapid pace, said he has had time to think it over and he insisted he is serious — he said he is tormented by confinement and wants to die.

"When I killed this girl it was an instant thing. It happened and that was it. There is nothing I can do about it," he said.

Another person who desperately wants to see DeGarmo executed — although for a different reason — is the mother of the victim, Shirley Strickler Parish, 48.

"They say capital punishment doesn't work, but they won't give it a chance," said Mrs. Parish, a nurse at Houston's Methodist Hospital. "To me justice is a mockery. You choose 12 people, you present the evidence and you leave it up to them. They make a decision — and then you don't abide by it."

DeGarmo, who said he had written his lawyer and the judge in his case telling them he did not want an appeal, said the worst part about capital punishment is not the dread of execution day, but the endless, lonely hours locked inside a 9-by-5-foot "cage."

That, he said, is why he wants to die. He got so bored last year that he slashed his left wrist and was sent to the prison infirmary for stitches.

"It's seeing things you can do and then not being able to experience them that's more suffering than instant death. Instant death would be peace," said DeGarmo, running his finger over a clover leaf tattooed on his right hand.

Texas law calls for automatic appeals of death sentences, but DeGarmo said his lawyer would not allow the condemned man even to ask for permission to waive that provision.

"I wrote a one-page brief that says I do not want an appeal — I have no objection to the state's case — but my lawyer said — he couldn't ethically file that for me because he doesn't believe in it," DeGarmo said. "He wants to write a 50-page 30,000-error thing and try to get me loose."

His court-appointed attorney, Kenneth Hartfield, said, "The law does not permit a defendant to waive his appeal in a capital case. I've got to do it whether he likes it or not."

DeGarmo says because of what he did, he knows he will never be set free.

The single shot from his revolver killed the blue-eyed blonde a few minutes after she had bought strawberries, bananas and potatoes for a supper she was going to fix for her fiancée that night, Jan. 8, 1979.

"They were going to celebrate her getting a new job," said a Houston blood bank, said her mother.

While Miss Strickler was shopping in the supermarket, DeGarmo and his female partner were out on the parking lot trying to steal a car they could use in a robbery. Along came Miss Strickler.

"They asked her for a lift back to their apartment," Mrs. Parish said. "She said, 'Sure. Get in.' She was extremely extroverted and friendly. She picked up hitchhikers all the time. I tried to tell her don't do it, but she didn't understand."

DeGarmo then pulled a gun on Miss Strickler, forced her to drive to an underground parking garage, placed her in the trunk of her car and tied her up. As he drove southwest looking for a place to rob, Miss Strickler managed to get untied and caused a commotion, apparently hoping to attract help.

"At that time she was not so much afraid as she was angry," theorized Mrs. Parish.

DeGarmo said, "She was banging on the trunk with the fire extinguisher and pulling out the (tail) light bulbs, and I tried to tell her to shut up but she wouldn't listen. We went out into the country (Fort Bend County) to tie the girl up better, but we got stuck in the mud."

DeGarmo hailed a man in a pickup truck who agreed to help them, but when the truck driver heard the noises from the trunk, "that's when my fall partner (accomplice) pulled a gun on him," DeGarmo said.

"Then I told (Miss Strickler), 'You done a no-no. You done got somebody else involved with me, and he could have pulled his gun and killed me, so you just might as well consider yourself gone,'" DeGarmo said. But he did not shoot her then. He slammed the trunk and forced the truck driver into the pickup while his partner drove Miss Strickler's car, and they stopped the two vehicles a mile or so down the road.

"We got out and my partner was screaming 'Kill the bitch! Kill the bitch!'" DeGarmo said. "So it makes no difference to me whether she lives or dies. I'm mad because she had made noise 15 minutes earlier, and I want to shut my fall partner up."

The body was left in the trunk and the car was found later that day abandoned in a parking lot in nearby Stafford, Texas.

"If I was using my brain — if I was going to kill one person, I should have killed everybody in the vicinity (including his partner) and that would have solved everything," DeGarmo said. "But I didn't, because I thought my fall partner was more loyal to me than she was."

In fact, it was the testimony of Helen Mejia, 24, the woman prosecutors identified as DeGarmo's partner, plus that of the truck driver, John C. Moers, that led to DeGarmo's conviction.

After the shooting, Moers managed to escape by leaping out of his pickup at a highway intersection in Houston. He told police everything he could remember, but it took investigators several months to break the case.

Mrs. Parish and the victim's father, Wayne

Strickler, a salesman, put up a $10,000 reward, and finally an anonymous telephone tip led detectives to Ms. Mejia.

In the meantime, DeGarmo had stood trial for robbery in another case and was serving a two-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections under an alias known only to Ms. Mejia.

"I was two weeks from getting a discharge, and she told them who I was," DeGarmo said. "I expected it. I had taken the (robbery) rap for her, and she never sent me any money or anything."

Ms. Mejia remains free on bond, living in Florida with her mother while awaiting trial on a murder charge for her part in the case.

Mrs. Parish still works at Methodist Hospital. She got married last fall after being divorced from Strickler for 18 years. But she said the murder of her only daughter planted feelings of anger and hostility in her that she still has to cope with.

"I probably don't have the goodness in me that I once had. I think I've lost the ability to be totally happy," she said.

"I had supper with her the Friday night before she was killed, and I thank God for that. When she left, she said, 'Mom, I really do love you,' and we hugged and I can still feel her blond hair in my face," Mrs. Parish said.

She said she felt so much anguish after her daughter's funeral that for months she was compelled to chase down blondes she saw who resembled her daughter so she could look at their faces and be sure they weren't Kimberly.

"I had a hysterical desire to see her," she said. "It was so hard for me to accept the fact of her death. You hurt so bad, and nobody can help that hurt."

DeGarmo remains locked in his tiny death row cell where he has acquired the nickname "animal." He says the experience has not yet turned him toward religion, although he concedes he believes in an "energy source" in each person that may live in the hereafter.

He fidgets, reads science fiction, writes letters to his brother in Idaho, listens to the radio or watches television. He no longer makes picture frames out of matchsticks — they took his tools away.

He waits to die, hoping someone soon will put an end to the long hours he spends with himself. The odds are he has a long wait. His automatic appeal has not even begun yet, since Hartfield said the transcripts of his trial have not yet been completed.

"If I had it to do over, if I'd had a calmer mind, I would have shot to the side, just one inch to the side," missing Kim Strickler's head, DeGarmo said. "That would have done the same thing. It would have shut the chick (his screaming partner) up and wouldn't have caused any trouble at all."

"But I had no regard for life.

"Is there any way you can help me get this thing started or going or something? I don't want to sit in this place down here. I'm going crazy. I'm getting mentally frustrated. "I'm not innocent," he added. "I made a mistake. I killed a person, okay? They put 12 people through the agonizing mental pressure of saying they would put a man to death. They went through a whole trial, spent a lot of money, finally got the verdict they were after — and now they won't do it."

Stream of Appeals Saves Death Row

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Doyle Skillern was scheduled to die today, but his attorney wasn't worried.

"I was kind of hoping the judge had forgotten about old Doyle," defense lawyer Shannon Salyer said recently, "but he didn't, so I better get busy."

"Getting busy" means filing yet another in what seems to be an endless stream of appeals that has prevented the execution of any of Texas' 167 death row inmates — including some who've been on death row for more than seven years.

Salyer said he was sure he could get another routine delay in Skillern's case.

Skillern was convicted of capital murder in the 1975 killing of a South Texas undercover narcotics officer. He has been tried twice and convicted twice.

After the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the death penalty in 1972, Texas passed a new capital punishment law that was upheld in 1976. But there have been no executions in the state since 1964.

Some legislators criticize an appeals process that seems to thwart the law by allowing convicted capital murderers to "hide out" in the legal system, their executions repeatedly delayed.

Skillern won a new trial on an appeal on a procedural point — that the judge let the jury separate during breaks without written approval from the defense.

The new trial resulted in another conviction. Now Skillern's attorneys will file a writ of habeas corpus, challenging his death sentence on the grounds that he didn't pull the trigger and his accomplice, the shooter, got life in prison, Salyer said.

U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger has suggested limits on the number of appeals that can be filed, and a Texas appeals court judge agrees that defendants should get "one shot at the apple."

Meanwhile, opponents of the death penalty fend off executions through creative use of the legal system and hope they can hold out until the U.S. Supreme Court changes its collective mind and eliminates capital punishment.

"Normally, you can figure probably four or five years before you exhaust all of the remedies," said Houston defense attorney Will Gray, who currently represents two dozen death row inmates. "First you have the direct appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals. Then you can go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court if it's affirmed in Austin."

"If you're turned down there, you can come back to the state district court and file a writ of habeas corpus, go back to the Court of Criminal Appeals and from there to the federal district court — and to the 5th Circuit (Court of Appeals), if necessary, and back to the Supreme Court."

"And, of course, you can go through the those steps more than once if any of the courts change their rulings in the meantime, or make other remedies available that weren't available when the case was first presented."

"There are quite a few things you can do," Gray said, "but ultimately a bunch of them are going to be executed."

But Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Truman Roberts said that a condemned convict who seeks a stay of execution from the federal courts is virtually guaranteed of getting it.

"I don't know whether anybody will ever be executed under the present death penalty law," he said.

Roberts said a convicted capital murderer can appeal through the state system on legal technicalities — improper jury selection or unlawfully obtained confessions, for example.

If one technicality doesn't work, a defendant can start the whole process again on another technicality. Then, if that type of appeal doesn't work, he can take a different course, appealing to the federal courts on constitutional grounds.

Federal courts "almost without fail" will grant the stay, Roberts said.

Gray said the federal judges are simply being fair and that state appeals court judges affirm death sentences for political reasons.

"They're afraid the public will think 'this judge is soft on crime,'" Gray said. "That's why they try to let the federal courts handle the thing instead of doing it themselves, because the federal judges don't have to be re-elected."

Roberts, meanwhile — who says he has frequently dissented when his colleagues upheld death sentences — sees the federal judiciary simply as an over-cautious bottleneck in the system.

"I sometimes doubt whether the prosecutors should even go in and try a capital case under the present situation," Roberts said. "It seems to me that it's very naive to think that anyone is going to be put to death."

But Gray said, "I think they're gonna start executing some this year or next year. There's quite a few of them that have just about exhausted all of the remedies available."

Inmates and lawyers alike complain about the snail's pace of the appeals process. Roberts defended his court, where he has personally heard over 21,000 cases in 10 years on the court.

"In a death penalty case, a record will be that high," Roberts said, holding his hand about four feet from the floor. "You don't read a record like that in five minutes."

"I agree that the court, especially in the past, has taken entirely too long to get opinions out. But the reason it does that is a tremendous backlog," the judge said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has grown in the past several years from five judges to nine, but, Roberts said, "That doesn't mean we do twice as much work. Nine people can't decide something as rapidly as five people can."

Class A Bluejays Looking For Record Eighth State Title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The state schoolboy basketball tournament - marked by the absence of Houston and Dallas teams - opened today with Snook in Class A shooting for a record eighth title.

The Bluejays, who are tied with Bona with seven state championships, have won four titles in a row, three by one point.

Midland Greenwood, a 1981 semifinalist, and Petty West

Lamar were matched in the tournament opener in Class A. Snook and Grafrod played the second game.

The three-day basketball tournament has a new look with only four of the 20 teams, including Snook, Greenwood and defending champion Beaumont Hebert in 4A, returning from last year.

In the big school division - 5A - North Mesquite, Galveston Ball and San Antonio Churchill are making their first tournament appearances.

The other semifinalist, Pampa, has won four titles - in 1953-54 and 1958-59 - and was a runnerup to Port Arthur in 1957.

Snook captured its seventh title last year by defeating Greenwood and Henrietta Midway. The Bluejays are making their 15th tournament appearance this year, which is a Class A record.

Stephen F. Austin High School of Austin holds the tournament record at 19.

The other team in the tournament from last year is 4A Waxahachie, which won its only championship in seven previous trips to the tournament in 1958.

Semifinals are scheduled for Thursday and Friday at the Erwin Center. The five championship games are set for Saturday, with the 5A finale at 7:15 p.m.

In First Game Since Injury

Bird Hits 21 for Celtics

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

For a few minutes, the Boston Celtics looked like they were better off without Larry Bird and his fractured cheekbone.

Make that very few minutes.

The Celtics won all five games they played while Bird recovered from a broken cheekbone that he got when he was hit by Harvey Catchings' elbow Feb. 28.

Bird made his first post-injury appearance Wednesday night against the Indiana Pacers. He played six minutes before halftime, missing all four field goal attempts and scoring just one point.

But the illusion didn't last long. In the second half, Bird hit 10 of his 11 shots, collected seven of his eight rebounds and three assists. He finished with 21 points in 22 minutes as the Celtics easily beat the Pacers 121-100.

It was the ninth straight National Basketball Association victory for Boston, all of them without all-star guard Nate "Tiny" Archibald, who suffered a wrist injury Feb. 17.

"As well as the team has done without Tiny and Larry, we're that much better with them," said Boston guard M.L. Carr.

In other NBA games, Chicago beat Milwaukee 101-96, Philadelphia routed Golden State 134-114, Dallas edged Portland 104-102, Denver defeated Detroit 124-113 and New Jersey stopped Phoenix 113-105.

Carr said Bird "began to rush things a little bit because he wanted to do well. It didn't take him long to realize you have to sit back and let it flow."

"It's tough coming back after five games, but I got back in the flow and my teammates were looking for me," Bird said. "If you're going to play scared, there is no sense in being out there."

Bird said he "missed being out of the lineup, but maybe it was a blessing to the rest of the team" because reserves got more playing time.

Gerald Henderson, a backup guard who is playing more while Archibald is out, had nine points to key a 17-6 surge that turned a 19-18 Boston edge into a 36-24 lead after one quarter.

Indiana never got closer than eight points thereafter, with Boston's edge ranging to as many as 21 points.

Robert Parish tied Bird for game scoring honors with 21 points. Parish added 14 rebounds, while Maxwell added 20 points.

Clerton Johnson led Indiana with a season-high 20 points.

Balls 101, Bucks 98 Chicago handed Milwaukee its fourth straight loss, the Bucks' worst losing streak in three seasons.

Ricky Sobers scored 13 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter for the Bulls as Milwaukee tried to stop Chicago center Artis Gilmore, who finished with 23 points after victimizing the Bucks for 10 points on five dunks in the first period.

Bucks center Bob Lanier did not play until the final quarter because of an injured thumb. Sidney Moncrief led Milwaukee with 24 points.

76ers 134, Warriors 114 Philadelphia won its fourth straight game by outscoring Golden State 41-22 in the third period.

Starting guards Maurice Cheeks and Lionel Hollins scored 10 points apiece to lead the surge that carried the 76ers from a 61-59 halftime lead to a 102-81 edge after three quarters.

Cheeks finished with 18 points. Mavericks 104, Blazers 102 Rookie Rolando Blackman scored 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Dallas rallied from a 16-point deficit in the first half to beat Portland.

The Mavericks took the lead for the first time since the game's opening minute on a basket by Blackman that made it 90-89 with 5:31 left. The Trail Blazers stayed close the rest of the way, but a shot by Billy Ray Bates bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

Dallas rookie Jay Vincent and Bates shared game scoring honors with 23 points apiece.

Nuggets 124, Pistons 113 Dan Issel scored 35 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 30 to lead Denver past Detroit.

The Nuggets led the entire second half after scoring the last eight points of the second quarter for a 66-57 halftime lead. The Pistons cut the deficit to two points in the fourth period, but they hit only one field goal in the next five minutes to fall behind 117-103.

Rookies Kelly Tripucka and Isaiah Thomas both scored 25 points and fellow guard Darwin Cook keyed two third-quarter rallies for New Jersey against Phoenix.

Cook's driving layup gave the Nets a 68-67 lead and ignited a 13-2 spurt that put New Jersey ahead 79-69.

Walter Davis scored the next five points for Phoenix, but a 10-2 run, including a 74-foot basket by Cook at the buzzer, gave the Nets an 89-76 lead at the end of the period.

Davis led all scorers with 28 points.

Young, Foolish Robert Morris Dreaming of NCAA Victory

By BOB GREENE, AP Sports Writer

Call it an ego trip or whatever. Robert Morris is ready.

"Going into this season, we said we'd be happy if we won 11 games," said Robert Morris College basketball Coach Matt Furjanic. "Then we wanted more...then we wanted the conference (ECAC-Metro South) championship."

"Then we wanted the tournament. We won that. Then we got into the NAAs. Now we want to beat Indiana."

That's the University of Indiana of the Big Ten Conference - the defending national champions. Six years ago, Robert Morris was a junior college and last year the Pittsburgh school had a 9-18 record.

Tonight, Robert Morris, 17-12, plays Indiana, 18-9, at Nashville, Tenn., in a Mid-East Regional opening-round game of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship tournament. The winner advances to a Saturday meeting in Nashville against 17th-ranked Alabama-Birmingham, 23-5.

"We may be young and foolish, but we want to win,"

Furjanic said. "We play with heart, with intensity, and we play together."

"We play eight to nine people per game. One of the big reasons we're in the tournament is because everyone has contributed at one time or another."

In tonight's second game at Nashville, Kentucky, 22-7, plays Middle Tennessee, 21-7. Elsewhere: In the East Regional at Charlotte, N.C., Ohio State, 21-9, plays James Madison, 24-5, and 18th-ranked Wake Forest, 18-11, meets Old Dominion, 18-11.

In the Midwest Regional at Tulsa, Okla., it's Marquette, 21-7, vs. Evansville, 23-5, and Houston, 21-7, vs. Alcorn State, 22-7.

In the West Regional at Logan, Utah, it's 14th-ranked West Virginia, 26-3, vs. North Carolina A&T, 19-8, and Wyoming, 22-6, vs. Southern Cal, 19-8.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said his team isn't taking Robert Morris lightly.

"It will be a tough basketball game," Knight said. "As long as I've watched games in the NCAA (tournament), I don't think I've ever seen any easy games."

Knight said his Hoosiers will not be looking ahead to a possible matchup against Alabama-Birmingham.

"If you can't get kids up for any game in the NCAA regionals, then you shouldn't be in the tournament," Knight said. "They've (Robert Morris) been consistent through the last part of the season - on the road and in clutch situations."

"We won't be awed, but then I think the first two to three minutes of the game will be very important," Furjanic said. "They'll have a big crowd here and we'll have a young team on the floor. But if we can stop them from building some momentum, then we'll be able to stay with them."

Other candidates who came under consideration by the Veterans Committee were manager Walter Alston, shortstops Phil Rizzuto and Glenn Wright, umpire Al Barlick and outfielder Bob Meusel.

Commissioner, Shortstop Named to Hall of Fame

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - It had been 31 years since he left baseball and A.B. "Happy" Chandler thought the game was through with him forever.

But baseball reached into its past and awarded the former commissioner its highest honor Wednesday, electing him to the Hall of Fame along with Travis Jackson, a brilliant shortstop for 15 years with the New York Giants.

Chandler, 83, and Jackson, 80, were named to the Cooperstown, N.Y. shrine by the Veterans Committee and they will be ushered into the Hall of Fame Aug. 2 alongside sluggers Hank Aaron and Frank Robinson, who were elected in January by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Ironically, it was through the efforts of Chandler, that black players like Aaron and Robinson were allowed to play in the majors. He was instrumental in the shattering of baseball's color line, encouraging Brooklyn Dodger owner Branch Rickey to sign Jackie Robinson.

"If I denied a player his opportunity just because of the color of his skin," Chandler told Rickey, "my Maker would never forgive me."

He went against a 15-1 vote of the owners to support Rickey's stand and that was one of a number of factors that led to his eventual ouster from the commissioner's job in July, 1951, just six years after he had succeeded the legendary Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in the post.

For many years, Chandler was ignored by the baseball establishment under his successors, Ford Frick and Gen. William Eckert. It was only when Bowie Kuhn became commissioner in 1969 that Chandler, who served twice as governor of Kentucky and also represented his state in the U.S. Senate. He was invited to a number of functions by Kuhn.

Still, Chandler thought he wouldn't reach the Hall of Fame. "I had reason to believe they were going to pass me by because 31 years had passed since I left the commissioner's office," he said.

But Rep. Larry Hopkins,

R-Ky., spearheaded a campaign supporting Chandler and got help from Commissioner Kuhn, Gabe Paul, president of the Cleveland Indians, and Joe Cronin, former president of the American league. Paul and Cronin both serve on the Veterans Committee.

Jackson was a slick-fielding shortstop from 1922-1936 with the New York Giants. He compiled a career batting average of .291 and hit over .300 six times. Jackson could do everything," said Cronin, himself a Hall of Fame shortstop. "He had a great arm. I think he captained John McGraw's winning teams."

Other candidates who came under consideration by the Veterans Committee were manager Walter Alston, shortstops Phil Rizzuto and Glenn Wright, umpire Al Barlick and outfielder Bob Meusel.

Illinois Sets Records Defeating Long Island

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Long Island University was touted as the scoring juggernaut of this year's National Invitation Tournament. It was Illinois, however, that did most of the scoreboard lighting.

Seven Illinois players, led by Perry Range with 28 points, scored in double figures as the Illini set school and NIT records with a 126-78 rout of LIU in first-round NIT action Wednesday night.

Illinois, 18-10, led 65-29 at halftime and went ahead by as many as 51 points in the second half en route to breaking Marshall's NIT record of 119 points set in 1967.

"There's an old saying that if you live by the sword, you die by the sword," said LIU Coach Paul Lizzo, whose team led the nation with an 87-point scoring average this season.

"It was a fun game to play because everyone got to shoot," said Illinois guard Craig Tucker, who scored 16 points. "It wasn't one of those slowdown Big Ten games."

In other first-round NIT games, Purdue beat Western Kentucky 72-65, Texas A&M edged Lamar 60-58, Dayton nipped Connecticut 76-75 in overtime and Washington edged Brigham Young 66-63.

In the second round, Illinois will meet Dayton, Texas A&M will face Washington and Purdue will play the winner of tonight's Iona-Rutgers game. Other games tonight have Temple at Georgia, American University at Bradley and Murray State at Nevada-Las Vegas. The first three rounds of the 32-team tournament are played at local sites, with the semifinals and final at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Keith Edmonson scored 29 points as Purdue held off a second-half rally to beat Western Kentucky. The Boilermakers, 15-13 for the season, were third-place finishers in the NIT last year, runners-up in 1979 and champions in 1974.

Purdue led 35-24 at halftime, but Western Kentucky's 6-foot-10 center, Craig McCormick, scored all 16 of his points in the second half to key a rally that brought the Hilltoppers within four points with eight minutes to go.

Claude Riley scored 20 points, pulled down 13 rebounds and converted a three-point play with 35 seconds left to give Texas A&M a four-point lead, and the Aggies held on to beat Lamar. Texas A&M, 19-10, finished third in the Southwest Conference. Sean McNally's basket with 48 seconds left in overtime gave Dayton its victory over Connecticut, which got off three shots in the final seconds but couldn't score.

Roosevelt Chapman of the Flyers led all scorers with 21 points, including two technical foul shots in the final minute of regulation time. Alvin Vaughn scored 15 of his game-high 23 points and Steve Burks 12 of his 16 in the second half as Washington overcame a 40-28 halftime deficit to beat Brigham Young.

Cincinnati Experiment Incorporates Pirates

By The Associated Press
The Cincinnati Reds were beginning a grand experiment. Yet it was the Pittsburgh Pirates who looked like they were trying something strange. That something strange was the game of baseball, which the Pirates struggled at all day Wednesday in dropping a 4-1 exhibition decision to Cincinnati. The Reds scored all their runs in the seventh inning thanks to shoddy fielding and pitching by the Pirates.

and Joel Youngblood drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly.
Detroit rookie Mike Laga's homer in the 11th inning lifted the Tigers, who got three RBI from Laga and Rick Leach. Al Cowens also homered for the Tigers, while Gary Ward homered and Bobby Mitchell dropped four hits for the Twins.
Mike Tyson's bases-loaded triple scored the decisive runs in Oakland's victory over one of the Cubs' split squads.

Seattle had a 14-hit attack paced by Reggie Walton with two triples and a single. Walton scored three runs and drove in three, and five Mariners pitchers combined to hold the NCAA champs to four hits.
Greg Luzinski's broken-bat single with the bases loaded capped a three-run second inning for the White Sox.
Mark Brouhard led the Brewers' 17-hit attack with a pair of homers and Ned Yost added a three-run shot.

Elsewhere in exhibition play, it was Los Angeles 3, Boston 2 in 12 innings; Toronto 7, Philadelphia 2; Atlanta 7, Montreal 5; the New York Mets 4, Eckerd College 3 in 10 innings; the Chicago White Sox 5, Kansas City 2; Detroit 9, Minnesota 8 in 11 innings; San Diego 1, California 0 in 10 innings; Milwaukee 15, San Francisco 5; a Chicago Cubs split squad 9, Oakland 6; Cleveland 5, the other portion of the Cubs 1; Seattle 12, Arizona State 0; the University of Miami 7, Baltimore 6, and the New York Yankees 3, Texas 1.
Pedro Guerrero, one of the Dodgers' World Series heroes last year, had four hits and scored the winning run on Candy Maldonado's bases-loaded single in the 12th.

Softball Meeting Friday

The Hereford & Vicinity YMCA will conduct an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. Friday for the Y's Men's Church Softball League. The meeting will be held at the YMCA office at Sugarland Mall.
YMCA director Weldon Knabe said that starting dates, league fees, league structure, tournaments, and league rules will be discussed. Churches interested in playing in the league should have a representative at the meeting.
Those wishing more information may contact Knabe at 364-6990 or by stopping by the YMCA office at the mall.

The Toronto Blue Jays used four Phillies errors and two walks to post five of their runs.
The unbeaten Atlanta Braves made it five in a row as Jerry Royster and Claudell Washington had two-run doubles off Expos ace Steve Rogers, who allowed five runs in four innings.
It took the Mets 10 innings to subdue Eckerd College. Mookie Wilson had two triples and scored both times on singles by Wally Backman

Lemons 'Too Crusty' for Longhorns, Controversial Coach Gets the Ax

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Abe Lemons, who often masqueraded as the clown coach of college basketball, has performed for the last time with the Texas Longhorns.
Lemons, 59, was fired Wednesday following a disappointing season, but Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds and others in the athletic department said that was not the "specific" reason for the firing.

"It's a simple statement of fact that we need new leadership. We need to set a course for the future and continue to progress — nothing more or less than that," Dodds told a news conference.
Dodds said the final two years of Lemons' $52,106-a-year contract would be honored and that Texas would search nationwide for a new coach.
"When a person hires you, he's got a right to fire you," said Lemons.
He said Dodds told him on Tuesday, "I've got bad news for you — you're fired." I looked around the room and thought someone else was in there. But it was just me."
Lemons came to Texas six years ago "to see if I can make it in the big time," after coaching at Oklahoma City University and Pan American in Edinburg, Texas.
His teams won Southwest Conference championships in 1978 and 1979, and his 1978 squad became the only Longhorn team to win the National Invitational Tournament. That year he was named co-coach of the year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.
His career total of 474 victories makes him the seventh winningest active coach in college basketball.
Lemons has a reputation of getting good performances out of mediocre players, but this year he could not stop the Longhorn slide that started when 6-foot-9 forward Mike Wacker, the team's second leading scorer and rebounder, was lost for the season with a knee injury on Jan. 26.
Texas was 14-0 and ranked No. 5 in the nation but lost that game to Baylor and won only two of its last 13 games.
"Basketball's just a game," he said, "and I had a hard time figuring out how to be mad at the (Texas A&M) Aggies or how to be mad at Houston."

He visited with several players, including 6-10 junior center LaSalle Thompson — who was all-SWC and the nation's leading rebounder this season — in his office before opening the door to reporters, some of whom had waited three hours.
Puffing on a cigar, Lemons quipped, "What's the damn big deal? I didn't have this many when I got hired."
Asked why he thought he got fired, he said, "I think I'm a little too crusty for them."
Lemons was asked the secret to coaching longevity, and he said, "Keep your head down and your mouth shut." He was asked if he could do that, and he replied, "No."
His assistant, Barry Dowd, former coach at Texas-Arlington, said he would apply for the head coaching job, and Lemons said he did not see how the athletic department could "possibly bypass" Dowd.
"Dowd and I are different. If they like a nice guy, they've got one (in Dowd)."
A reporter said former Marquette Coach Al McGuire, now a sports television commentator, had called the Texas coaching job the best in the country, and Lemons responded, "Al McGuire doesn't know anything about it. If you see somebody with a pretty girl, you might think, 'Gee, wouldn't it be nice to be married to her.' But she might be a shrew."
Asked if he could look back fondly on his years at Texas, Lemons put his hand to his forehead like a soothsayer, and said, "I see myself thinking fondly of some things, not so fondly of others."
A close follower of the Texas basketball program said despite Lemons' comical remarks, "He's torn up. He's putting on a face."
"It's embarrassing, to say the least," said Lemons.

Nicklaus Frustrated; At Inverrary Classic

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus has had a chance to win five golf tournaments this year.
He's won none.
And it's frustrating, deeply frustrating to the legendary figure who holds most of the records worth having in the game he has dominated for some two decades.

A very patient man, he's becoming just a bit tired of answering questions about his near-misses.
"I'd like to put that behind me," Nicklaus said before teeing off today in the first round of the $400,000 Honda-Inverrary Classic. "The only way to do that is win."
And, despite the fact that he hasn't added to his total of 68 American tour triumphs in 19 months, he is — as usual — the man to beat in the chase for a $72,000 first prize this week.
"I've played well all year," said Nicklaus, whose last victory was in the 1980 PGA championship, his 17th major professional title.
"If I were finishing 35th every week, or missing the cut, people wouldn't be asking why I'm not winning," said Nicklaus, who lost a playoff for the title in the Bay Hill Classic on Monday. He also was second by a shot in San Diego and third in two other starts.

"I must be doing something right to be finishing that high every week," he said. "I'm just not doing enough right."
He hopes to correct that situation this week on one of his most productive courses, the 7,129 yard Inverrary Golf and Country Club layout. In 10 previous starts here, he's won three times, was second twice and has finished sixth or better eight times.
"I just haven't quite put it all together at the same time," he said. "Maybe this week."
Among his principal rivals are two men who won in their last starts, Tom Kite and Tom Watson. Watson, the current Masters champion, has been off the circuit since winning in Los Angeles two weeks ago. Kite, the defending champion here, chipped in to beat Nicklaus in a playoff only last Monday.
The 144-man field also includes U.S. Open title-holder David Graham, 1981 Player of the Year Bill Rogers, PGA champ Larry Nelson, Ray Floyd, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Andy Bean and Hale Irwin. The Strong foreign contingent is led by Gary Player of South Africa, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Nick Faldo of England and Isao Aoki of Japan.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC.

HEALTH Unremitting pressures tire
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 27-year-old mother of a school age child and two very active pre-schoolers. I am concerned about my constant tiredness, especially in the morning. I cannot seem to climb out of bed, with a lot of effort, until 10:30 or 11 a.m. I could take a three-hour afternoon nap if the children would also nap. By 9:30 p.m. I finally sit down with my husband and I find he falls asleep and I can stay up to midnight.

Could this be caused by lack of certain vitamins? Or do I have a typical night-owl metabolism? Other mothers of young children seem to have the same complaint.

I do need an explanation as I hate late rising, especially on weekends when my husband kindly takes over so "poor Mommy can sleep."

DEAR READER - The reason so many young mothers have this complaint is because raising small children isn't easy. You need more physical and mental rest than you are getting, particularly mental rest. When the children are up and active you are constantly on "red alert" and that takes its psychic toll. Fatigue really is nature's way of telling you something is wrong. Usually it is psychic fatigue (80 percent of the cases). You should have a medical checkup to be sure you have no medical problems.

The sleep cycle is to a large extent a habit pattern that people form. One likely reason you can't sleep until midnight is that you have not relaxed yet. At 9:30 p.m. the day may be nearly over but the psychic stress of looking after everybody in the family has just ended (hopefully) and it takes time for the body and mind to relax.

Fatigue and loss of sleep often are related to depression too. Mothers get depressed sometimes because of the unremitting pressures and no early end in sight of the life style they are forced into. Try to form an early to bed habit no matter what. See if you can restructure things to slow down and relax earlier.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a large white spot on the back of my hands and a smaller one near my cheek. These started out as quite small spots and have gradually enlarged. Since my complexion is dark they are quite noticeable. A skin specialist took a biopsy from my hand and said I have vitiligo. He said it would not be harmful and not to worry about it. But I do worry about the appearance and am concerned that I will develop more white spots. Is there any treatment for this problem?

DEAR READER - Talk to your dermatologist again. Vitiligo is a skin disorder caused by loss of normal skin pigment. Often there is no known cause but it may develop in response to a skin disease, even in association with diabetes or even in areas of recent injury. It is not harmful. Sometimes it is difficult to restore normal pigmentation. Light sensitizing (photosensitizing) medicines such as Oxoralen and Trisoralen in conjunction with sun light or ultraviolet light are used with some success by some dermatologists. Treatment usually takes a long time if successful.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 22-year-old female and I sincerely hope you can help me. I just got back from Mexico. Unfortunately, I got Montezuma's revenge. When I told my mother this she went crazy and told me it's V.D. I tried to explain that it's diarrhea. She will not believe this. I told her we would call a hospital and have them explain the terminology but the person we spoke to didn't know what the term meant. Please clear up this situation with my mother and me, and calm her down.

DEAR READER - The term is quite common in parts of the United States but since you live in Canada perhaps it is not used there. You may recall that former

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Fisher

Take care in fireproofing

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - Would you please tell me how to fireproof drapes and curtains? There are many families around here that would like to know. - MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S. - Your local paint store - or perhaps a hardware store - can supply you with a powdered flame retardant that is mixed with water to treat fabrics. Be sure to follow directions explicitly and be very careful; these chemicals are poisonous and are not recommended for use on clothing. You should also remember that this home treatment can be used only on natural fibers like cotton, wool or linen. Plastics and synthetics cannot be fireproofed at home. Therefore, if your drapes are fiberglass, nylon, polyester or any other synthetic, - and they most likely are - the chemicals will not work. Manufacturers can build flame retardants into these fibers, but unfortunately, very few home furnishings are made from such flame-retardant fabrics. I'd like to urge all manufacturers of home furnishings to begin using safe, effective flame-retardant fabrics in their products. And please make sure all such products are correctly labeled with clear warnings of any cautionary measures required in their use. - POLLY

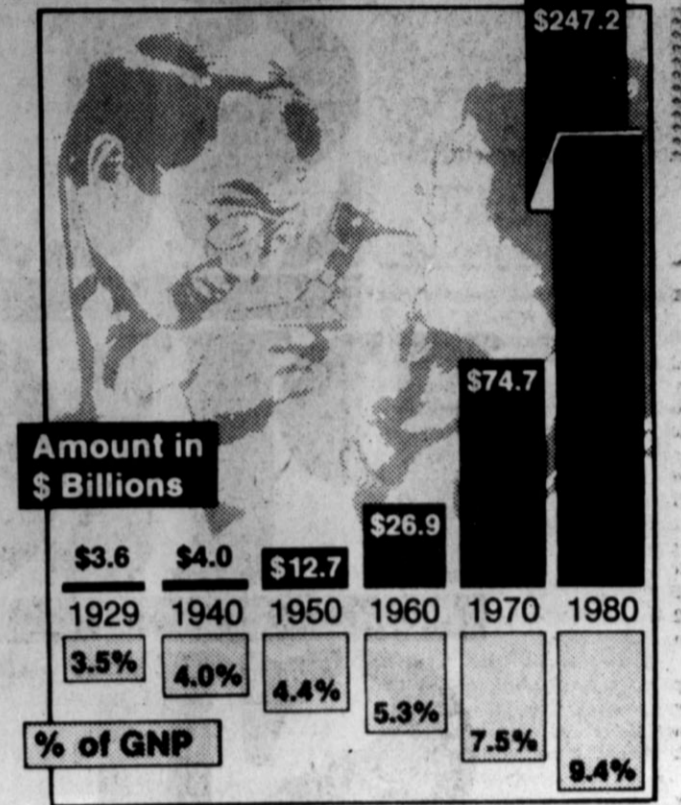

DEAR POLLY - My suggestion is for boys who wake up with their hair a mess of cowlicks and rooster tails. When my boys were teen-agers, they would put a really wet warm washcloth on their heads and voila! Their hair would lay flat and be easy to control. It did look funny to have three teenagers getting ready for school with washcloths on their heads, but the results were fantastic. - FAY

DEAR POLLY - Thought I'd pass on the easiest way ever to crack black walnuts and get out the largest pieces. Soak the nuts (outer hulls removed) in water for an hour or two, drain and put into the freezer immediately. Let the nuts freeze overnight. In the morning, they'll be ready to crack. - MRS. E.L.L.

DEAR POLLY - To crack black walnuts, hold the nut on end and hit the stem end with a hammer. All the kernels will come out in about five pieces. If any pieces stick in the shells, crack those pieces again, on end as you did the first time. - RITA

A BIGGER SHARE FOR HEALTH CARE

Rising National Expenditures Related to Gross National Product

The cost of national health care - which includes all public and private expenditures - continues to climb rapidly. In addition to the sharp jump in terms of inflated dollars, it is also claiming a steadily larger share of the gross national product. In terms of GNP, health expenditures almost tripled in a half century.
