Holly Sugar sends truckloads to Africa

Sugar is hardly the first item one would think to send to starving people.

But the American Red Cross is delighted with Holly Sugar's total 250-ton donation of refined beet sugar to be sent to Mauritania, on the west coast of Africa.

It will save lives.

Friday afternoon, 100,000 pounds of white sugar left the Hereford plant on three trucks bound for the Port of New Orleans to board a ship to Africa.

Red Cross volunteers, United Way workers and the Chamber of Commerce Hustlers attended the loading. The sugar will be used in three different Red Cross programs which will help the one million hungry people in Mauritania.

Texas New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers president Bill Cleavinger said that sugar is extremely valuable in treatment of severe infantile diarrhea which kills about 5 million children a year in underdeveloped countries.

Sugar is a key ingredient in rehydration treatment, which previously required expensive intravenous therapy and was only available in urban medical center, according to John Bushnell, Holly's president.

One medical physicist at the University of California, Dr. Thomas H. Jukes, said the oral rehydration program could save up to 13,000 lives a day.

The Red Cross program teaches native women to measure the sugar-saline solution with their hands. In the hollow formed by the forefinger of a clinched fist and goes the sugar. The salt goes in the dimple at the crook of the wrist. Both granules are mixed in a liter of water and fed to the children.

The donated sugar also will be used in the intensive feeding centers, where patients with extensive weight loss are treated three times a day with a sugar solution. Sugar also is distributed with milk powder and soy bean meal, providing an important source of calories.

Sugar Donation

Holly Sugar workers Friday loaded three trucks with 100,000 lbs. of donated sugar for the American Red Cross to use in treating starvation in Mauritania, Africa. At right, the local Red Cross and Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers representatives had an informal ceremony to send off the donation. The Holly corporation is donating 250 tons of sugar.

Palo Verde nuke plant on line

WINTERSBURG, Ariz. (AP) — The first nuclear chain reaction was achieved early Saturday morning at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station west of Phoenix, a spokesman for the plant operators said.

The chain reaction, which had been held up by a malfunctioning hydrogen analyzer, finally was achieved at 1:45 a.m. Saturday, said Brad Parker, spokesman for the Arizona Nuclear Power Project.

"I think we got real close to where we wanted to be," Parker said Saturday morning. "The indication I got was that everything went real smooth."

After the chain reaction was achieved Saturday morning, Parker said the plant 50 miles west of Phoenix began producing electricity at less than 1 percent of its 1,270-megawatt capacity. The reactor gradually will be brought up to 5 percent of capacity and then increased over a period of months, with the goal of full power by the end of this year.

The $9.3 billion Palo Verde plant will be the nation's largest after its third reactor comes on line, scheduled for 1987. It is owned by a consortium of utilities in Arizona, California, New Mexico and Texas.

Safety Council predicts holiday traffic toll

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council predicts a death toll of between 380 and 480 on the nation's highways during the Memorial Day weekend.

In 1984, 375 people died in traffic accidents during the first major weekend of the warm weather season. The highest recorded toll for the three-day Memorial Day holiday came in 1968, when 629 people were killed on the nation's roadways.

This year's count began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight local time Monday. Council spokesman Sean S. Clancy said Friday that 340 people could be expected to die during that period on a non-holiday weekend.

Fred Ranck, manager of the council's Highway Traffic Safety Department, said increased traffic congestion over the holiday weekend also means an increase in the possibility of a person's becoming involved in an accident.

Clancy said reduced gas prices may "make it easier for people to travel ... may be a contributing influence" to increasing the traffic flow. Good weather would be likely to bring out more travelers, he said.

The council's estimates, which have been made available since the 1950s, are based on driving trends and travel forecasts.

The Chicago-based council is a non-profit, non-governmental public-service organization.

Derailment, explosion rocks Eastland, many evacuate

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — About 1,500 residents, almost one-third of the town's population, were forced from their homes when a train carrying hazardous chemicals derailed here and burst into flames after being struck by a tank truck.

A tanker car on the train carrying liquid propylene gas exploded only seconds after the empty water-hauling truck ran into one of four engines pulling the 99-car Missouri Pacific train on Friday.

The blast shot a bright red ball of flames into the sky over Eastland and shook buildings and homes miles from the accident. One pilot flying at 3,000 feet near the area said his plane was rocked by the blast.

Eastland is on Interstate 20, about 100 miles west of Fort Worth.

"I ain't seen nothing like that since Vietnam," said Jimmy Tibbs, an employee of an oil company across from the intersection of Highway 69 and the Missouri Pacific train tracks where the accident occurred.

"We heard the (explosion). ... When we opened the door, boy all you could see was this big dagdummed ball of fire. It looked like it was coming straight for the building," Tibbs told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Two abandoned houses and a barn, all 150 yards from the train tracks, were destroyed by the flames.

The truck driver, Gaylon E. Nelms of Eastland, was listed in critical condition at Hedrick Medical Center in Abilene Friday night. A total of 16 people were treated at Eastland Memorial Hospital for injuries. Five were admitted.

"It's a miracle that he is alive. It's a miracle that nobody was killed," Eastland firefighter Robert Webb, who along with firefighter Phillip Arther, pulled Nelms from the truck.

"When we got there, his back was on fire. He was hunched over in the seat. I tried to put out the fire on his back," Webb said.

Most of the injuries resulted from the heat of the explosion.

At least 25 cars of the train were derailed by a combination of the blast and the impact of the collision. Among those were cars carrying hydrochloric acid, hydrofluoric acid, sulphuric acid and propylene.

Officials of the town of almost 5,000, fearing further explosions and possible leakage of the dangerous materials, evacuated an area about two miles east of Highway 69 to Interstate 20 and a mile in all other directions.

"Our concern was with the safety of those people," Police Chief Lyndall Underwood said. "We didn't know what was leaking and what was burning."

Friday night, however, Western Emergency Services, a Keller firm specializing in dealing with hazardous materials, determined that the only burning car was the one carrying propylene. A small hole was detected in another of the cars containing propylene, but authorities did not believe it presented any threats.

A.W. Rees, general manager of the railroad company in Dallas, said a hydrofluoride leak was contained

Senior ceremonies this week

Hereford High School seniors will wrap up high school careers this week with baccalaureate and commencement exercises. Baccalaureate is at 8 p.m. today at Whiteface Stadium. Bill Devers will give the address after an invocation by Henry Amar. Richard Collins will give the benediction. The high school choir is scheduled to sing also.

Commencement is at 8 p.m. Thursday at Whiteface Stadium.

Historical Society meets today

The Deaf Smith County Historical Society will meet today at 2 p.m. at Deaf Smith County Museum for their annual meeting.

The public is invited to attend and to view the Hacker-Lomas Barn, a new addition to the museum.

For those interested in joining the society, memberships may be purchased at that time.

County court meets Tuesday

Deaf Smith County Commissioners will meet on Tuesday this week rather than Monday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

A work session on the 1985-86 budget is among items on the agenda for the 10 a.m. meeting in the commissioners courtroom of the courthouse.

Also planned are a discussion with Jay Spain about rural fire department compensation and a revenue sharing report from Vesta Mae Nunley.

Bud Praetold will also appear before commissioners to discuss road conditions in County Commissioner Precinct 1.

Weather

WEATHER OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy with 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, highs in the 90s and lows near 60.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you can swallow a pill while drinking from a water fountain, you deserve to get well.

Two men were seated on a crowded bus, and one noticed that the other had his eyes closed. "What's the matter pal?" he asked. "You sick?" "No, I'm all right. It's just that I hate to see women standing."

Some 239 Hereford High seniors will end their high school careers at commencement exercises Friday. Here, in the pages of The Brand, we've recorded a lot of the achievements of this graduating class. That's because Hereford youngsters are generally the kind of people who do good works.

While high school graduation is more of a beginning than an ending, there is always a touch of sadness on the part of seniors who finally realize that this is the end of a long, and usually pleasant, association with a group of young men and women who have forged a bond of friendship. But life moves on, and so do high school seniors.

The HHS Class of 1985 is filled with young men and women who have demonstrated that they are capable of meeting challenges. They are prepared to face any future with confidence and we wish them well.

Special tribute to the graduates is included in two special sections of The Brand today. It is made possible by merchants and business institutions of the community, and the souvenir pages serve to offer congratulations and wish them well!

It may not be a record, but it's a good sign! We're referring to a good news event Friday that was covered by the Amarillo television stations.

We've been critical of the Amarillo tv people in the past because it seemed they only reported scandals and bad news out of Hereford. But they were here Friday to report on the shipment of sugar to Africa from Holly Sugar and the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association.

One of the things we seem to take for granted in Hereford is our fine museum and the folks who make it one of the best county museums around. The Deaf Smith County Historical Society will be dedicating the "Lomas & Hacker Wagon Yard" about 2:30 p.m. Sunday, and all interested citizens are invited to attend. The museum, the Black House, and now the wagon yard provide a recorded history of our land and people—let's not take them for granted!

Crime watch program set for county

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office is planning a neighborhood crime watch program, similar to that of the city's, but especially designed for rural areas.

Deputy Mary Johnson said an orientation seminar would be held June 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center. She said that although the session is basically for rural residents, city residents are invited also.

John Bradshaw, a former U.S. Secret Service Agent, will conduct the program that evening. Bradshaw is the coordinator of the 25-county Texas Panhandle region's crime prevention programs. He works through a grant program at Amarillo College.

For further information, contact Mary Johnson or Fidel Reyna at the sheriff's office, 364-9311.

Resignation comes as a surprise

DALLAS (AP) — The resignation of Texas Instruments President J. Fred Bucy came as a surprise even to company officials, a spokesman said.

Bucy, 56, who had been touted as a possible successor to 62-year-old Chairman Mark Shepherd, resigned Friday to "pursue other interests," company spokesman Norman Neureiter said.

TI's directors elected Jerry R. Junkins, 47, to replace Bucy as president and chief executive officer.

Industry observers have speculated in the past that despite his title of chief executive officer, Bucy did not run the company as much as Shepherd, and that some friction may have developed between the two.

But Neureiter said Bucy may have just tired of the strains of his job.

"Here we are going right into another semiconductor industry recession. It's an industry with ups and downs, and it's certainly a difficult time for everyone in this industry," he said.

Bucy would be sailing on his boat for the next few weeks, Neureiter said.

"We were all surprised," he said.

In a statement, TI said Bucy had elected to take advantage of the company's early retirement program. Bucy assumed the chief executive's title about a year ago.

White signs tax, hunger bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite his claims that the legislative session would be a nontaxing one, Gov. Mark White signed into law a bill that will tax intrastate long distance calls and enhanced phone services.

White signed the measure at a morning bill-signing conference on Friday saying the new law would "preserve state revenues."

"This bill will do much to bring state law into the 20th century by recognizing the great advances that have been made in the telecommunications industry," White said.

The legislation signed by White does away with a 1907 law that requires communications companies to pay taxes on gross receipts. Those costs are passed on to consumers.

New long distance telephone companies have been exempt from paying the tax because they are not considered "telephone companies."

The exemption has resulted in several lawsuits including a suit filed by AT&T which has paid the tax under protest.

But under the new law, a sales tax will be imposed on users for intrastate telecommunications services. Basic telephone service will remain taxed under the gross receipts system.

The new taxing system will cause a rise in monthly phone service costs for customers who subscribe to a long-distance communication service or have special phone services such as call forwarding.

Grand Jury to investigate senator

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — State Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, already the object of two grand jury investigations, will again be the object of grand jury scrutiny.

Denying he is pursuing a personal vendetta against Parker, Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath said Friday he decided to proceed with another probe because of complaints from the public and from law enforcement agencies when the second set of felony indictments against Parker were thrown out last week.

McGrath said Attorney General Jim Mattox has offered to send one of his top investigators to help him out this time around.

"There's been accusations made that I have a personal vendetta against Parker and I just wanted another agency here to make sure everything goes smoothly," McGrath said. "I don't hold any vendetta against him."

State District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland on May 16 dismissed charges against Parker and two other men after finding "there were unauthorized persons in the grand jury room."

Parker, along with Daniel Jacob Lee and David Earl Johnson were indicted March 22 on charges of engaging in organized criminal activity and conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Five babies fight lung ailment

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — The five surviving Frustaci septuplets appear to be winning their fight for life after the death of their tiny brother Peanut, say doctors who hope to see improvement in their condition within three days.

"I don't anticipate any dying immediately," Dr. Carrie Worcester said Friday of Samuel and Patricia Frustaci's remaining three boys and two girls. "I hope none of these babies die. ... I don't think it's going to be a baby a day."

The unnamed survivors, designated babies A through E, remained in critical but stable condition at Children's Hospital of Orange County. Peanut, so called because he weighed only a pound, died Friday of heart and lung failure.

Ms. Worcester, director of newborn intensive care, said Baby B, a boy, and D, a girl, were the sickest. Baby A, a girl, and E, a boy, were the healthiest, and "C (a boy) somewhere in between."

"I'm hoping over the next 72 hours we'll see some major improvement," she said.

On Friday, four of the surviving infants weighed 1 pound, 12 ounces, and baby A weighed 1 pound, 10½ ounces.

Police search for ex-lover

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — State police investigators will spend the holiday weekend desperately trying to find Alexandra Isles, Claus von Bulow's former lover whose desire to avoid testifying against the socialite again could strike a fatal blow to the state's case.

Prosecutors, who are nearly set to rest their case, were granted the three-day Memorial Day weekend to find the elusive Mrs. Isles and convince her to take the stand.

The ruling Friday by Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande came after she refused a defense request to declare a mistrial.

But the mistrial motion likely will be considered again Tuesday if the prosecution rests its case without having put the former soap opera actress on the stand.

Assistant Attorney General Henry Gemma said Rhode Island State Police Sgt. John F. Reize and Detective Sgt. Joseph Mirana are spearheading the search, but Gemma declined to say where they were.

Prince Alexander von Auersperg and Princess Annie-Laurie "Ala" Kneissl, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's children from her first marriage to an Austrian, were also trying to find their stepfather's ex-lover, Gemma added.

Texas House beats deadline

AUSTIN (AP) — An all-day House scramble to complete work on bills needed to avoid a special legislative session apparently has succeeded.

The House stayed in session until midnight Friday to beat a deadline that could have killed needed measures, including bills that would keep several major state agencies in business.

Legislative rules made Friday the final day for the House to consider any measures that have not yet been to the floor. The session ends Monday.

Late Friday night, the House amended a bill in order to get $110 million in revenue from insurance companies. That money is needed to balance the 1986-87 budget.

During the marathon Friday session the House killed one minor state agency and approved a measure needed to balance the budget. The toughest fight was a four-hour debate that ended with an 85-56 preliminary vote to revamp the state water regulation system.

A final vote on that measure, probably today, will send that bill back to the Senate with minor amendments. If the Legislature does not approve the bill, the Texas Water Commission and Texas Water Development Board would go out of business Sept. 1.

Failure to approve the bill probably would force a special session.

"I'd rather come back in a special session" than approve the proposed water regulation restructuring, said Rep. Jerry Clark, D-Buna.

Clark, Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, and Tom Craddock, R-Midland, fought to save the current water regulation set-up. The new system, as approved in the gsenate, would include many changes, including putting the Texas Water Commission in charge of setting water rates.

The Public Utility Commission has set those rates since 1976.

Geistweidt came within three votes of approval for an amendment that would have maintained the current water regulation scheme.

House members also gave tentative approval to a Senate bill that would keep the Texas Air Control Board in operation beyond Sept. 1.

The Prosecutor Council, an agency set up to aid and sometimes discipline prosecutors, did not fare as well. Rep. Jim Parker, D-Comanche, killed it by pointing out that one line in the bill was not properly underlined.

"This was an agency that really did nothing unique," said Parker.

Also Friday, the House voted to bar cities from enacting gun-control laws. The 106-38 vote sent the Senate-approved measure to a final House vote, probably Saturday.

"This bill is repulsive," said Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, a handgun control proponent.

"Nobody seems to want to deal with this problem except to make it worse," Ragsdale said. "We ought to be regulating this instead of trying to encourage this frontier mentality that pervades this great state."

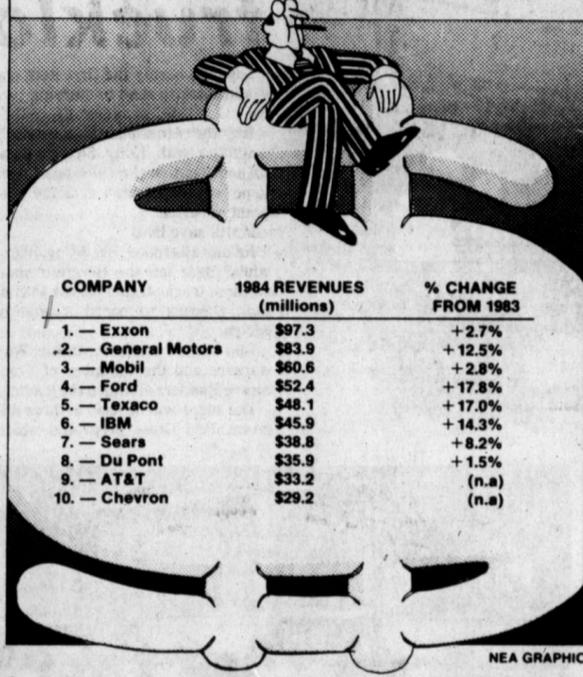

Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, House sponsor of the anti-gun control measure, said cities should be prohibited from regulating guns because such local rules could result in a confusing patchwork of differing restrictions.

"If we are going to pass some gun-control measure it should be at the state level," Leonard said.

Also gaining tentative House approval was a Senate bill raising primary election filing fees. The fee for U.S. Senate races would go from $2,000 to $4,000. Statewide office candidates would pay $3,000, instead of the current $1,500.

Babies bring joy, many extra bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — As most parents know, raising a child is a costly business — and when you have six at once, the financial outlook can be staggering.

And those figures don't include two major expenses — the current hospital charges for the babies and college, if that lies in their future.

The Agriculture Department calculations, updated just last month in the publication Family Economics Review, estimate the cost of raising a child to age 18 at $96,484 in an urban area in the western section of the country.

That's the third most costly situation faced by parents.

The most expensive area to raise a child is a western rural area, with an estimated $100,821 in spending, the department said, followed by rural families in the Northeast with an estimate of $98,352.

Rural children in the North Central states are least costly, but still can be expected to set their parents back a whopping $80,966 by age 18, the department estimated.

Those figures are for families with and workers were working to plug the pencil-thin crack in the car.

Although the chances of any further explosions or of a chemical leak from one of the other tank cars was considered remote, authorities kept the area evacuated Friday night.

"We don't want to leave the remotest possibility of anything happening," Tim Hogan, director of public relations for the train company, told the Star-Telegram.

Three employees of the railroad were working about 300 feet from the site of the blast. M.B. Hernandez, 57, one of the workers, said that he heard the 18-wheeler plow into the train from the south.

"I started running and could feel the heat. The more I ran the hotter it got," he said. He was treated at the hospital. His foreman, Ed Stewart, suffered the harshest injuries among the three railroad employees and was admitted for treatment.

Tibbs said that as he ran from his business, he saw one man lying in the mud and screaming.

"He started yelling, 'I'm on fire,' but I couldn't see any fire. The skin was peeling off his arm," Tibbs said. The man apparently had been burned by the heat of the explosion, said Tom Patterson, owner of Patterson Ambulance Co. of Eastland.

Officials with Western Emergency Services decided to let the car burn itself out rather than attempt to extinguish it. Earlier in the afternoon, the company had considered putting out the fire with a combination of foam and a dry powder but decided not to because the fire was too intense.

Once the fire burns itself out, which should be by Saturday morning, officials will go in and begin removing the cars containing the hazardous materials, said Denny Day, hazardous materials expert with Western Emergency Services.

Day said water is not used on such fires because of the chance of environmental problems if water runs off carrying chemicals from the accident.

Evacuated residents stayed Friday night with friends or in a makeshift shelter at an area church camp. The Red Cross was providing bedding and food for the evacuees.

"We don't know when they will be able to return home, hopefully (Saturday)," Underwood said.

The evacuated area includes all of the downtown area and most of the business district. "It's like Sunday in Eastland, nothing is open," Webb said.

Seventeen prisoners in the county jail were evacuated to city hall and later moved to adjacent Callahan County Jail by school bus. The prisoners, apparently enjoying their notoriety, were paraded out of City Hall two by two, many of them making faces and gestures at news photographers.

To prevent acid from seeping into Leon Creek that feeds the city's reservoir, officials brought in bulldozers to build dams on both sides of the creek.

Pat Hammack of the Environmental Protection Agency said he had examined the creek and there appeared to be no problems.

Friday's collision apparently occurred when the truck struck the second of four locomotives pulling the train that was traveling from El Paso to Fort Worth. The impact ruptured the fuel tank of the locomotive, causing an explosion that derailed the third and fourth engine and other cars, Rees said.

The collision was the second in four years at that sight involving an 18-wheeler and a train. In 1981, the driver of a truck was killed when he slammed into a passing train.

The intersection is marked with blinking railroad lights, and those lights were working Friday.

"It's just a bad intersection," Webb said.

El Paso politician wrestling cancer, fully intending to win the battle

By GARY SCHARRER El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Puffing on another cigarette in his hospital room, Woodrow Bean Sr. contemplated the long string of ups and downs in his storied political career and his newest, non-partisan bout with a different kind of opponent: lung cancer.

"I've lost a lot of battles, but I've never lost the war. I'm going to beat this son'-a-bitch. It's mostly upstairs," Bean said, jabbing a finger to his temple.

The patriarch of El Paso's Democratic Party has been in and out of Providence Hospital for six weeks, since doctors told him about the cancer that is tearing up his lungs. Now, Bean figures it's time to fight back.

"When you get the bad news, you make whatever earthly and legal arrangements you have to make and then concentrate on building yourself back up again," Bean, 67, said. "Every once in a while you get down a little, especially when all of a sudden everybody else is telling you everything to do. I have always been the kind, right or wrong, I did it."

This week, Bean summoned enough strength to shave and bath himself.

"That was very uplifting to my spirits. You know that you're not dead until you're dead," Bean said.

Bean's once booming, fog horn voice now is little stronger than a loud whisper, causing him to lament that he's never lost his voice before: "I can't hear myself talk. That's the worst thing that has happened to me."

"Too much company," he said of the voice loss. But Bean won't let anyone observe the "no visitors" sign the hospital staff hung on his door.

Bean's buddy, lawyer Malcolm McGregor, stops by every day to bring The New York Times. Other politicians and friends make regular visits. Old friends from his days in the Marines and the Texas Legislature call with well-wishes. Texas Gov. Mark White sent flowers.

"I have such a wide array of friends that you wouldn't believe it. I've even had a couple bankers come to see me," Bean says, laughing. In the past, the progressive, unabashed liberal never counted bankers and other establishment figures among his political fans.

Bean left the hospital recently, and now plans to regain his strength, return to his law practice and keep nourishing his 45-year-long passion for politics. He has reduced his former three-packs-a-day smoking habit to about 15 cigarettes a day. And he vowed to quit "tomorrow."

One thing the usually candid politician won't concede is that he has run his last race.

Bean already has waged 15 political contests since 1940, when at age 22 he won his first of three terms in the Legislature. His last race was in 1982, when he ran unsuccessfully for the state Supreme Court. Besides serving in the Legislature, Bean has been elected El Paso county judge, Democratic party chairman and to the state Board of Education. Close defeats twice kept Bean from serving in the U.S. House of Representatives and as mayor of El Paso. Other losses include contests for state Senate and the Texas Railroad Commission.

Bean won't rule out another political race "because I have never said that, and I never will ... I would like a last hurrah," he said, laughing.

Because of the solid foundation in his past, the cancer doesn't cause any trepidation as Bean gazes into the future, he said. Bean spent 11 years in a Masonic orphanage, where he "learned compassion, honesty and idealism and my basic belief in God ... That never leaves you," he said. "If you don't believe in God, you don't get anywhere, and when he wants to act, he will and it will be for the best."

Even as a barefoot orphan "when I didn't know what was happening, the good Lord always pulled me out," Bean said. "That's the reason why I have never worried."

After his first year in the Legislature, the Bean had charmed his way on to the powerful Appropriations Committee, where he helped allocate millions and millions of dollars in state funds, even though he had "no more than 15 cents" in his own pocket.

How did the young Bean manage to get such an important assignment?

"Politics ... and don't let anyone kid you," Bean said. "That's why it's so fascinating." For Bean, politics means knowing how to compromise and trade, how to collect favors from friends.

His "biggest coup" came in the early 1970s after President Nixon froze funds for new public housing projects, Bean said.

Realizing that Texan Anne Armstrong was a special assistant in the Republican administration, Bean recalled that he had promoted a race horsing bill in 1941 on behalf of Mrs. Armstrong's family. She remembered Bean's support and granted a White House visit that resulted in El Paso getting about $50 million in public housing funds, Bean said.

As county judge in the late 1950s, Bean leaned on his friend, Senate Majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson, to get funds to build the Bridge of the Americas after normal negotiations got snagged. And Bean went to an old Marine buddy on the state highway commission for money to build Trans Mountain Road.

"It's longevity in politics (that produces results). It's what you build up over a long period of time," Bean said. "And you have to have enthusiasm. You have to love people."

"Thinking about politics is what keeps my spirits up," Bean said.

His advice for aspiring politicians is: "Never get mad at anyone. You never get even. You never get revengeful. You kill (opponents) with kindness and they will respond. And do good things for all of the people, that's what politics is all about."

Although accomplishments sometimes meant pushing when it came to shove, Bean figures he never cheated anyone or sought revenge.

"The only one I ever screwed was myself," he said. Bean was the favorite to win an at-large congressional seat in 1962 until several days before the election when it was disclosed that he had neglected to pay federal income taxes between 1953 and 1960. Bean still wonders what happened.

"I'm too intelligent and too well educated to have made that mistake," he said. And had he spent less time in bars, "there's no telling where I could've gone," he said.

"Booze in a politician is the worst thing in the world. That's when people try to take advantage of you. That's when you get into trouble. That's when you lose your credibility with the public," Bean said.

"In politics, you can't be a womanizer, which I have never been," he said. "You can't be a boozier, and at times I did too much. And you got to pay your taxes."

Bean's long and controversial career creates the stuff that legends feed on, although his wife, Theresa, quashes any notion that Bean himself is a living legend, he said.

"We were in San Antonio a couple years ago and Mayor Henry Cisneros told me, 'I've always wanted to meet you. You've always been a legend.'"

"My wife quickly told him, 'Mr. Mayor, he's a legend only in his own mind. Don't let him fool you,'" Bean recalled.

"People like to bull... about me. Malcolm McGregor can spend five hours telling Woody Bean stories. He makes 'em up," Bean said. "I'm just a good source for a story. That's all. If somebody wants to hear something outlandish, they'll just connect me to a story."

Anyone reaching "the end of the road has to ask, 'What'n the hell have I done with my life?'" Bean said. Whether you have helped people means more than whether you made a lot of money, he said.

And Bean conveys contentment as he talks about Thomason General Hospital, built to serve the less affluent while he was county judge, and when he talks about public housing projects. Those apartments gave "poor people a decent place to live without being chewed on by rats," he said.

Contending that he has already lived five separate lives, Bean envisions one more round.

"People think because you have cancer, you are going to die. That's a bunch of bull...," he said. "It hasn't preyed on my mind at all ... I've never been out long."

Radiation therapy is causing Bean to lose his white locks. But he plans to get "a Kojack haircut and go about my business," he said.

And that means getting ready for next spring's Democratic primary.

Spies now telling how they delivered secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A father and son charged with espionage are both telling federal agents how they delivered Navy secrets to the Soviet Union, government sources say.

Retired Navy communications specialist John Anthony Walker Jr., 47, now confined in the Baltimore city jail, has been telling FBI agents and Justice Department prosecutors how he spied for the Soviets since 1966, said a government source who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

It could not be learned whether Walker was telling all he knew, but it appeared he was seeking to avoid prosecution. And there was no indication whether the government would agree to make any concessions in return.

A Pentagon source said Walker's 22-year-old son, Michael, a seaman on the nuclear aircraft carrier Nimitz, has been cooperating with agents of the Naval Investigative Service.

"He has been talking to our people," said the source, who also spoke on the condition of anonymity. "He, for sure, did some talking Thursday. Now, of course, we don't know if he's telling us everything."

On Friday, the younger Walker was flown from the Nimitz, docked in Israel, to Rota, Spain. He was to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base near here today.

Asked if the elder Walker was cooperating, one of his public defender attorneys, Fred Bennett, said only, "If Walker is indicted, the plea will be not guilty at his arraignment."

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said, "We know of no information of any such cooperation."

PLAY IT SAFE AROUND ELECTRICITY

REMEMBER THESE SAFETY TIPS

- Watch for power lines when climbing in trees.
- Do not climb electrical poles, towers or structures.
- Do not trim trees near power lines.
- Do not set ladders or scaffolds near power lines.
- Do not shoot at insulators on poles, towers or structures.
- Never climb on or go inside a substation fence. Call SPS to help you retrieve anything thrown into the substation or caught in its fence.
- Avoid using electrical tools like lawn mowers or hedge clippers when grass and leaves are wet.
- Be careful when digging. Call SPS to find out if there are any buried electrical lines in the area.
- Electrical cords should not be spliced or taped. Repair by shortening them or replace them entirely.
- Beware of exposed wires.
- Don't touch portable appliances (coffee makers, radios, hair dryers, etc.) with wet hands or while standing or sitting in water.
- Don't post signs on utility poles. A lineman hitting a nail with his cleat could slip and fall. Also, nails can snag protective gloves and destroy their insulation value.

Salute to County Historical Society

A little more than 18 years ago, Deaf Smith County officially held dedication ceremonies for its new Historical Museum.

An editorial in The Brand reported two big surprises for its sponsors: "First, a tremendous interest in the project as indicated through the crowds which thronged the place all afternoon; second, the fine quality and organization reflected in the presentation of contents within the new museum."

Many of our citizens may take the museum for granted, but there is no doubt that a tremendous interest is still maintained and the fine quality has expanded into the Black House and, now, to the "Lomas & Hacker Wagon Yard".

The new building housing the farm and ranch collection will be dedicated Sunday afternoon, shortly after 2 p.m., and citizens are urged to attend this important historical event. The Deaf Smith County Museum has quite a reputation around the state, and there are many citizens who probably have not taken advantage of viewing this historical record of the land and its people.

The museum registration book recorded more than 5,000 visitors this past year. The Black House has hosted more than 90 meetings the past year, and the gazebo there has been the site of 10 weddings.

If you haven't visited the museum proper or the Black House, we believe it is a "must" for every citizen. And, the dedication of the "wagon yard" building provides a great opportunity for a visit.

If you are a history buff, or just interested in seeing our historical records preserved in Deaf Smith County, we would also encourage you to join the Historical Society. Dues are only $5 a year and it makes you part of a great endeavor!

Former Brand writer pays tribute to moms

By LYNN BRISENDINE
Brownfield News

Once upon a time in a land not far from here lived a little boy.

He lived in a home filled with love. He had a mother and father and a sister and a brother at the time.

For the most part things went fine until the little boy began to lose his baby teeth and gain the set he would use as an adult. When they came in, the teeth were a terrible sight. The boy faced taunts of others until he became ashamed even to go to school much less any other place.

His home, his family and the sanctuary they offered from the continuous insults and laughs became even more important to the little boy. Perhaps even more than most other children felt for their homes and families.

At that time the father worked hard and received a salary which took care of the basic needs of the family. But there was little left for other projects. The mother was taking care of the family which, at the time, consisted of three kids and as was customary, for that time, she stayed at home.

A year or so passed and the boy was growing more shy and more dependent on the shelter the home provided. He complained little due to embarrassment but his mother knew he was hurting and she developed a plan.

A trip to the orthodontist provided the information. The boy's case was severe and would take corrective surgery and years of braces, and retainers, plus a large sum of money at first with more due as the procedure continued.

The boy's mother signed the papers, made arrangements to borrow the money and began taking in ironing.

She was an expert and it did not take long for the word to spread. She spent long hours standing in front of the ironing board plus she continued to support her family in every way.

The mother quickly earned a reputation in the town and more than once the little boy heard grownups comment about the hardest working lady in town. One man who really did not know the woman made the passing remark, "You not only could eat off of any floor in that woman's house but you could even eat off of the lawns surrounding the place."

As a result of the hard work, the money was raised, the doctors paid, and though the little boy did not grow up to be very good looking, he did lose the terrible buck teeth. She not only made sure of that but she made him aware of the fact that he shared with her an inner strength used to fend off the abuse of others, and a belief in one's self.

She did that 30 years ago for a little boy and she does that today for a grown man.

This is a hoky story to be sure, but it needed to be told, especially today.

Her name is Naomi Brisendine of Hereford and I am that little boy.

This is a personal tribute to tell her I love her.

She is really no different than all of the other little boys' and little girls' mothers. You see, they are special and they all sacrifice and they all deserve our respect and love not just on this day but everyday.

Today though is special and I wish everyone's mother Happy Mother's Day.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsgrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek is baffled by the cost of some things he's read about.

Dear editor:

Under the new tax plan now being discussed in Congress (a new tax plan is like a new used car, it runs for the new owner about like it did for the old one) rules are set out for what big-shot business men can deduct per person for business meals.

For breakfast, $10. For lunch, $15. For dinner, $25.

Now you might think $10 is sort of high for breakfast, but do you know how much trouble and expense you have to go to find a cafe with the ability to charge $10 for two 5-cent fried eggs, two slices of bacon, coffee, and a couple of pieces of toast? It's like the Pentagon hunting for $400 screwdrivers. Very few hardware stores stock that variety.

As for the other two meals, $15 and $25, for a total cost of $50 to feed yourself for one day, I don't see how anybody could be that hungry.

Of course there are lots of things beyond my grasp. For example, at some barber shops in New York, to get your hair cut, washed and blow-dried costs $55. If you don't want to be bothered with the nuisance of parking, you can rent a limousine for $34 an hour, but you've got to use it for 8 hours, which come to $272. A good head of hair is worth more in New York than it is in Hereford.

Inflation however has not hit all areas. A Rolls-Royce convertible which cost $156,000 last year can still be bought for $156,000 this year. I think this includes air-conditioning, which you'll need when you've got the top up.

The report I was reading also said you can buy a man's watch for $8,850, up 11 percent from last year. This may seem a little high but you've got to remember you don't have to wind it. Time is important to a man paying $10 for two fried eggs.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Memorial Day is a time for us to remember those who have died in war. As the first three-day holiday of the year, it is also the time for law enforcement and safety officials to make their first predictions of how many people will die on our highways over a long weekend.

We generally attribute these projected accidental highway deaths to the large number of people who will be traveling during the holiday; however, the reason most of these people will die is because they will fail to use their seat belts. Automobile collisions don't cause death and injury. People colliding with the interiors of their vehicles and other objects are the cause.

We should never forget those members of the armed forces who died fighting for their lives and this country. The price they paid was high. The price paid for the failure to wear seat belts is also very high. Don't let yourself or your family members be added to the highway death toll. Remember to use your seat belts this weekend and always.

Sincerely,
Charles Wirth
TAISO Chairman

The Penultimate Word

THE PROBLEM WITH HUMAN HANDS

I have learned nearly everything I know while riding on airplanes. I debated whether to send my kids to college or spend the same amount of money on airplane trips. I decided on college because I did not think they could survive on peanuts and two sips of coke. They might have been better educated had I chosen the airplane idea.

I learn from my seat mates. Well, I don't always learn but I at least gain experience. Last trip I sat next to a scientist who was going to California to give a lecture on Nuclear Genetics. The only thing she said that I understood was, "Good Morning."

I sat next to a guy who designs automated assembly lines for industry. He was returning home from working on a new assembly line for IBM typewriters. He was full of his work and I enjoyed listening to his story. He explained the use of robotics and sensors that will be used in this assembly line. The result will be a typewriter assembled untouched by human hands. The line will produce a new typewriter every 7 seconds.

I was fascinated by the technology and did not notice the cold chill running up my back. We parted in Dallas and I had the rest of the flight home to think and experience the cold chill.

I find it amazing that a typewriter could be assembled with no human hands. It is mind boggling that sensors could be designed that could mesh small gears together and know whether or not a mesh happened.

I find it even more amazing that there is a need for a new typewriter every 7 seconds. That's a heap of typewriters.

The cold chill comes when I wonder what will happen to all of the human hands now used in manufacturing typewriters. Life is a strange deal—every time we solve one problem we create three new ones. At least we aren't bored.

Warm Fuzzies,

Selective indignation of S. Africa

The "scapegoat concept" went out when the New Testament came in.

No longer can we dump another's blood on the altar or nail somebody else to a cross to atone for our sins; from now on each of us pays for his own.

From what you are hearing, seeing and reading you would surely conclude that the government of South Africa is the world's worst. It's not.

This springtime's demonstrators on some campuses in the United States protest and parade under banners demanding: "No more trade and aid for South Africa."

If the young petitioners had done their homework they'd know that South Africa gets no foreign aid from the United States and that United States investments there — compared to total foreign investments in South Africa — are negligible.

South Africa's black neighbors have no reluctance about trading with South Africa. Indeed, neighboring Mozambique — though a Marxist state — has concluded a non-aggression pact with Pretoria.

Our selective indignation is nowhere more apparent than in our con-damnation of South Africa while ignoring — and even foreign-aiding — other nations with much worse records for repressing, discriminating, murdering opponents, jailing critics and expelling unpopular minorities.

Ritual abuse of South Africa is conspicuously hypocritical if one dares to recognize that social and economic improvement for blacks has been greater over the past three years in South Africa — than in Chicago.

Selective indignation.

The first whites settled in South Africa at the same time the first whites settled on American soil.

South Africa has since required blacks to live on "reservations" much as we have moved American Indians onto reservations — only in South Africa the blacks got fertile land with favorable climate.

The nation of South Africa is in need of further reforms; what nation isn't?

But there are tyrannies in Africa so much worse that refugees continue to flock from black neighbor nations into South Africa where living standards and job opportunities are infinitely better than at home.

For South Africa is the most vigorous, the most productive and most progressive country on that continent.

Silent scream

Last Sunday evening I watched The Silent Screen on TV and I don't think I'll ever forget it. The Silent Screen is an ultrasound recording of an actual abortion on a 10 week old unborn child.

Ultrasound is a technique that operates on the same principle as the sonar used to detect submarines. Sound waves are beamed into amniotic fluid and are reflected back when they make contact with the baby's body. These reflected sound waves are then converted into a visual image on a television screen.

What is so shocking about this film is not the gore, there isn't any. You can't see blood on ultrasound. What is seen is something much more horrifying, the abortion from the point of view of the victim, a 10 week old unborn child.

During the first five minutes of the film you see the child at play, sucking his thumb, moving about in the amniotic fluid. In watching the sonogram you see that at the VERY moment the suction tip of the abortionist touches the membrane of the amniotic sac the child JUMPS away as though it senses something aggressive is happening. The unborn child then begins moving to the top of the uterus and you can see its mouth open in a SILENT SCREAM. After that you can see the heart rate speeding up and the child's arms and legs moving rapidly. It's obvious that the child senses the danger and can feel pain.

Finally you see the force of the suction tearing away first one arm, then the other, as the unborn writhes in pain. You see the spinal column slipping down the suction tube and only the head is left with a piece of spine on it. And then you can see the abortionist searching for the head.

I was stunned and nauseated. The doctor who performed the abortion quit the abortion facility after seeing the film, and said he "never wanted to see the film again." Even the ultrasound technician was reluctant to come back and see the film again to do the editing.

Our country is involved in an epidemic of infanticide. In 1963 there were an estimated 100,000 "illegal" abortions. In 1973 there were an estimated 750,000 "legal" abortions at various abortion clinics across the nation. In 1984 the number rose to nearly 1.5 million.

Write your elected officials and urge them to view the film. It's overwhelming to say the least.

The videotape is available from American Portrait Films, 1695 W. Crescent Avenue, Suite 500, Anaheim, CA 92801. It is narrated by Dr. Bernard Nathanson, former abortionist.

(The editorial, by Gary Moore, was reprinted from the Central Church of Christ of Hereford bulletin.)

PHILLIS DUNCAN

For HHS senior

Job helped 'major' decision

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Opportunity knocked loudly for Phillis Duncan, a Hereford High School senior.

As with most seniors, career decisions are frequently difficult to make. Duncan was more fortunate as she was influenced by the Vocational Office Education program offered at high school.

"I had signed up for a full academic schedule and wasn't going to work this year when Mrs. Larry Wartes asked if I was interested in a job," Duncan explained. "At first I said no because my two sisters were commuting to West Texas State University and I thought there would be a transportation problem."

"Then I changed my mind and Mrs. Wartes sent me on an interview at John Leslie's office."

Leslie, a local attorney, called two days later and told Duncan she had the job.

Duncan's new position includes typing, filing, and basic accounting skills she learned in V.O.E. However, this particular job also includes typing divorce decrees, adoptions, and paperwork for some of the major cases.

After working in the legal world awhile, it was here that Duncan decided on her major.

"I really lucked into the job," Duncan stated. "I never dreamed of going into law, I was going to become a teacher!" "The more I worked, the more interesting the law became."

When asked about her plans after graduation, Duncan replied, "I plan to go to W.T. for two years for the basics and hopefully I can transfer to University of Texas in Arlington or McMurry in Abilene."

There Duncan plans to study paralegal and legal secretarial skills. "If I don't like the paralegal position, I'll have the legal secretarial skills to fall back on," Duncan commented.

A paralegal does the research for a case, gathers the information and evidence, and prepares the overall case before it goes to trial. The attorney then represents the paralegal's case in court.

"It is the paralegals' paperwork that makes the case," conceded Duncan.

With her major decided, Duncan is prepared to graduate. "It's been a fun three years at Hereford High School and I've learned alot," replied Duncan.

What about plans for the summer? "I'm looking forward to working here at the office full-time," she added.

Senate passes school bill, proposes quick tuition hike

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has done an about-face and approved a bill that would tend to keep students together as they move up through the public education system.

On Thursday, despite a plea by Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, that splitting up peer groups leads to crime, drug and alcohol abuse and even suicide, the Senate refused to debate the bill.

On Friday, however, senators passed the measure 19-8, and returned it to the House with an amendment.

Howard's bill states that each district shall try to assign all students in an elementary school to a single junior high and all students in a junior high to a single high school.

"If fewer than 30 percent of the students advancing are assigned to any single school, a student who is not assigned to the school which has the largest percentage may transfer," the bill says.

An amendment was added authorizing districts to deny transfers to preserve mandatory and voluntary desegregation programs.

The Senate also approved what Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, called a "rent-a-cop" bill, which would allow the Department of Public Safety to appoint up to 250 railroad peace officers.

Bill sponsor John Montford, D-Lubbock, said it was not the intent of his bill "to open the door" to the extent that other industries could also get their own peace officers certified by the state.

He said the railroad industry had "peculiar problems" because it is "highly mobile by nature."

The bill was returned to the House with an amendment, 26-4.

Another House bill amended and approved by the Senate 31-0 would allow all counties to be reimbursed for certain expenses arising out of the prosecution of inmates who commit crimes while in prison.

Yet another House bill returned by the Senate with amendments would raise from $75 to $150 the fee the Board of Law Examiners may charge for administering the bar exam.

Each bar examiner would receive $20,000, up $5,000 from current compensation. An amendment to hold it at $15,000 was defeated 19-11.

A measure that would abolish tax credits in two years for out-of-state producers of gasohol, a mixture of gasoline and alcohol, also was returned to the House with an amendment.

Senators approved a bill that would make the bill tripling college tuition effective immediately, instead of Sept. 1. The bill was sent to the House, 21-5.

Sen. Grant Jones said the measure was needed because budget writers had discovered some state schools, particularly medical schools, start their fall semesters before Sept. 1 and the new increased tuition rates could not be charged.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, protested that the increased rates would become effective as soon as the measure was signed by the governor and might catch some students attending summer school.

"I guess that's right," said Jones, D-Abilene.

A House-approved bill that had been treated as a non-controversial measure turned into a contested bill Friday with an amendment by Sen. John Sharp, D-Victoria.

The original bill sets forth standards for the Legislature to consider when deciding if a new state agency should be set up to regulate a particular occupation or profession.

Sharp, who has been critical of the Lower Colorado River Authority, attached a provision that all river authorities must be reviewed periodically to see if the Legislature should continue their existence. A 21-7 vote sent the bill back to the House.

The Senate passed, 24-4, a House-approved bill requiring gasoline pumps to carry special labels if the motor fuel dispensed contains alcohol. Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, said motor vehicle manuals warn that fuel mixtures containing more than 10 percent alcohol can harm a car's fuel system. That bill also goes back to the House for approval of an amendment.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The Texas Legislature, over halfway through the current session, is still struggling to cut another $900 million from the state budget, and the going is getting rougher.

What one group of lawmakers take out, another group tries to put back in.

Last week, Houston State Rep. Paul Colbert got the House Appropriations Committee to abolish branch state universities at Galveston and Odessa, but legislators from those areas went into action and the cuts will not likely survive.

Two plans to raise tuition for state universities—one already passed by the House and the other advocated by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in the Senate—drew a veto hint from the governor concerning funds for scholarships.

In short, the two budget committees are finding political pressure whenever they attempt to cut a specific budget area, and they are burning the midnight oil to finish their task by Easter deadline.

Other Cuts

The Office of State-Federal Relations, the state's lobbyist in Washington, D.C., received a 20 percent budget cut, or about half a million dollars, a week after lawmakers forced the resignation of agency head Sarah Weddington for taking too much time off and too many trips.

Weddington's chief critic on the budget panel, State Rep. Bill Ceverha of Dallas, lost his bid to cut two-thirds of the funding.

The panel also voted to cut aid for students in private colleges by $6 million.

Senate Action

The Senate last week approved bills requiring motorists to wear seatbelts and easing farmers of the sole burden of notifying neighbors of pesticide use.

Tentatively, the Senate advanced a proposal to order judges running for election to report specific contributions from persons with cases pending on their dockets.

The seatbelt bill would provide a $25 to $50 fine for persons riding in the front seat of cars and pickups without wearing a seatbelt.

Changes in the pesticide regulations under Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower would add his agency or other agencies to notify nearby residents of impending pesticide use.

A&M Chair Quits

The Republican chairman of the Texas A&M Board of Regents resigned last week after regents voted in a new chairman.

H. R. "Bum" Bright, the multimillionaire owner of the Dallas Cowboys football team, accused Gov. Mark White of controlling the votes like puppets "on a string" and said he decided to leave after White pressured him for political support in '86.

Bright, who was appointed by White's nemesis and Republican predecessor Bill Clements, tells a story of not going along with the deal and having to sacrifice the gavel.

The new chairman, Dave Eller of Houston, is a former neighbor of the governor and has served on the board for two years. Other regents said Bright was probably being politically overdramatic to embarrass White.

Senator Quits, Too

Houston State Sen. Lindon Williams resigned his seat last week to take a justice of the peace appointment which will make him an estimated $100,000 a year.

Williams called for an early special election, and one rumored candidate is a former aide who is being courted to run as a Republican.

On that subject, speculation is that a handful of Democrats will convert to the GOP in unison once the Legislature adjourns in May.

Leading citizens concerned

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Some leading Puerto Ricans are concerned that people here have become too dependent on aid from the United States and that only harm can come of it.

At least two of them — a political scientist and an economist — maintain that social assistance from Washington has resulted in a loss of incentive and that the U.S. Commonwealth is becoming a tropical ghetto of crime, unemployment and reliance on the federal dole.

An economic slump has hit Puerto Ricans who had lived through the "Operation Bootstrap" boom era that brought them dramatically improved living standards.

Despite a high unemployment rate, few Puerto Ricans today will take menial, low-paying jobs. Much of the labor in the sugar cane fields or other such areas is done by illegal aliens from the nearby Dominican Republic.

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon says Washington has been historically generous with aid to its Caribbean cousin, but that more attention must be paid to helping the island become "self-sustaining."

Political scientist Jorge Heine has written that "the Puerto Rican miracle has turned into Welfare Island U.S.A." Economist Jaime Santiago Melandez has said Washington could be faced with a "South Bronx of the Caribbean."

U.S. interests are significant: U.S. corporations have $15 billion invested here; the 3.2 million people are U.S. citizens and free to move to the mainland if the situation worsens, and the Pentagon considers the big U.S. Navy base on the eastern tip crucial to defenses in the Caribbean and Central America.

Colonized by Spain and ceded to the United States in the 1898 Spanish-American War, it was neglected for years until politicians led by the late Gov. Luis Munoz Marin worked with Washington to develop U.S. Commonwealth status, which gave Puerto Rico more self-government and to undertake Operation Bootstrap in 1947.

Offered federal and local tax exemptions, U.S. corporations moved in by the thousands and a sleepy sugar-and-coffee economy with few natural resources boomed. The gross domestic product grew from $755 million in 1950 to nearly $14 billion in 1984, annual per capita income from $296 to $4,000, and average life expectancy from 45 to 74 years, one of the highest figures in the world.

But the recent U.S. recession resulted in closure of dozens of factories here, and some U.S. multinational corporations simply moved to foreign nations with lower costs of production.

Unemployment swelled to 25 percent in early 1983 and has hovered above 20 percent since. More than 60 percent of the people receive some sort of federal assistance, and U.S. funds to the island totaled $4.6 billion in 1984.

Officials here claim Washington in recent years has paid little attention to its impact on Puerto Rico:

—The Caribbean Basin Initiative gave most of the rest of the region the same duty-free entry into the U.S. market as Puerto Rico. But the nations aren't bound by U.S. minimum wage and environmental laws as this island is.

—The Congress in 1982 and now the U.S. Treasury Department proposed phasing out Section 936 of the tax code, which gives exemptions to U.S. mainland businesses here. The resulting uncertainty chilled potential new investment.

The Treasury Department calculated that the U.S. corporations here save $22,000 per employee in federal taxes, while paying an average wage of $14,000 to Puerto Rican employees.

Although Puerto Rico's $4,000 per capita income is high by Latin American standards, it is only half of Mississippi's, the poorest U.S. state. Yet the cost of living in San Juan is higher than most mainland cities.

The U.S. corporations here, many involved in electronics and pharmaceuticals, produce little for local consumption. Puerto Rico imports $6 billion worth of goods a year from the U.S. mainland. Island governments in recent years have tried to increase agricultural output, which accounts for only 4 percent of the domestic product. Such local staples as rice and beans virtually all come from the mainland.

The dependence on Washington has complicated the political debate on Puerto Rico's status — remaining as it is, becoming a U.S. state or going independent.

The pro-statehood Carlos Romero Barcelo was defeated last year after two terms as governor.

Richest Texas community not where you think

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

WESTOVER HILLS, Texas (AP) — OK, trivia buffs, the richest community in Texas per capita is: (a) Dallas' Highland Park, (b) Houston's River Oaks, (c) San Antonio's Alamo Heights, (d) Austin's Lakeway, (e) the Big Bend's Terlingua, or, (f) none of the above.

According to the government's latest census figures, 1981-1982, the mecca of Texas affluence is not among the state's familiar pockets of opulence, but is instead Westover Hills in Tarrant County.

A tiny slice of wooded hills and valleys west of downtown Fort Worth, Westover Hills, population 700, is the home of several members of the ultra-rich Bass family and a slew of other prosperous and prominent Texans.

There are no duplexes or high rise apartments in either "new" or "old" Westover Hills but roughly three square miles of magnificent homes and manicured grounds and a private police force to keep things quiet and secure.

Scenic Roaring Springs Road separates the old from the new and while Old Westover has more tradition, New Westover has Shady Oaks Country Club and Ben Hogan as a neighbor.

Society columnist Cissy Stewart says land is so scarce in Westover that a Dallas builder once constructed a $2 million house there on speculation, with no buyer lined up.

"How about that," she laughed. "Isn't that crazy?" Perhaps not.

Your neighbor might be a past or present owner of the Texas Rangers baseball club, the widow of a newspaper publisher, an oil millionaire, a banker, a real estate entrepreneur or maybe even an heir to the vast Charles Tandy-Anne Windfohr Tandy estate.

The U.S. Bureau of the Census says the estimated 1981 per capita income of Western Hills was $60,210, which made it the runaway winner in the big bucks sweepstakes.

Alamo Heights residents in Bexar County struggled along on $16,665 per capita, Highland Park made do with $29,001 and Lakeway in Travis County bit the bullet with $26,169. Terlingua is a ghost town with only a phantom income.

River Oaks may be Houston's most prestigious address but it is not a governmental unit as such and therefore not among the census listings. But sister communities in Harris County trailed only Westover Hills in affluence.

Harris County, with a 1982 population of 2,674,074, laid claim to Hunters Creek Village, $39,913; Piney Point Village, $38,871; Bunker Hill Village, $33,605; and Pearland, $31,506.

No other Texas townships exceeded the $30,000 mark.

The most affluent county in the state was sparsely populated, energy rich Loving County in far West Texas. The census bureau said the Loving population dropped from 91 to 70 between 1980 and 1982 but per capita income increased from $21,673 to $23,596.

Midland County counted a substantial number of oil and gas millionaires among its 100,000 residents in 1982 and ranked second with $12,904 per capita.

Since the oil industry slide began in 1981, and realizing the margin for error was already great, it's a safe assumption that some of the census figures would not be valid today.

And there are those who argue also that the wealth of the billionaire Bass family distorts the financial image of Westover Hills.

"There's some big-time bucks out there but the Bases have made it (the per capita income figure) swing that way," said a Fort Worth oil company executive familiar with the Westover Hills populace.

Perry Bass and two of his four sons live there, and they've contributed mightily to the Westover wealth. But their neighbors have hardly been slouches.

They've included the late Kay Kimbell (Kimbell Museum), Amon Carter Jr. (Fort Worth Star-Telegram), Charles Tandy (Tandy Corp.) and Anne Burnett Windfohr Tandy (6666s Ranch, oil).

"We're talking major mergers there," quipped the oil executive of the Tandy-Windfohr marriage that united two great Texas fortunes.

Although both died in recent years, their Westover Hills home remains a showplace of the Southwest. Designed by renowned architect I.M. Pei, the home was featured anonymously this year in Connoisseur magazine.

The Tandy heir, Anne Tandy's granddaughter, Anne Sowell, is a Westover resident.

Former Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett lives in Westover as does current club owner Eddie Chiles.

Among the other prominent residents are Bill McKay (car dealer), Kelly Young (oil), Hayden Cutler (real estate), Jenkins Garrett (construction), Bayard Friedman

Anti-social drinkers wreck more often than other drunks

DALLAS (AP) — Alcoholics with a history of antisocial behavior, especially frequent fighting, may run a higher risk of traffic accidents while drunk than do other alcoholics, a new study suggests.

Interviews with 262 detoxified alcoholics, 57 of whom had been in an injury-producing "accident while drunk, showed that "just being antisocial appeared to increase your risk" of being in a reported accident, said Dr. William R. Yates, a resident in psychiatry at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

Thirty-one percent of interviewees with what psychiatrists call "antisocial personality disorder" had been in an accident, compared to 19 percent of the other interviewees, said Yates, who reported the study Thursday at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in Dallas.

Symptoms of antisocial personality disorder include frequent fighting, stealing and having sexual experiences before age 15, and frequent job absenteeism, financial irresponsibility and repeated violations of law as an adult.

Frequent fighting as a child and during intoxication as an adult was significantly related to likelihood of accidents, Yates said. That agrees with other studies that suggest aggressiveness may carry over into driving behavior, he said.

The alcoholics were interviewed after treatment at an inpatient program of the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Knoxville, Iowa. Nearly all were men, their average age about 43.

The age that they began drinking heavily also was related to whether they'd been in an accident, Yates said. The average age was about 20 for the accident group and 26 for the non-accident group. Other research shows that the ages of 20 to 25 are especially dangerous for drivers who drink, Yates said.

The study also found that the more severe the alcoholism, the higher the chance of having been in an accident while intoxicated.

Yates said the research was aimed at suggesting criteria for identifying high-risk alcoholic drivers before they have accidents. The real test of such criteria will be to see if they can predict later accidents in a group of alcoholics, he said.

If such predictors of accident risk can be found, a crackdown on high-risk alcoholics might help reduce the number of highway deaths from drunk driving, he said.

Drinking was considered heavy if it was done daily for a month or led to intoxication three to four times a month.

(banking), Dewey Wagner (oil), Elton Hyder (real estate investments), Joe Pace (supermarkets), William Colley (groceries) and A.M. Pate Jr. (Texas Refinery Corp.).

Westover people don't talk about their neighbors but outsiders love the story of the oil millionaire and former resident who tired of his mansion and "spent a mint" remodeling. Still unhappy, he tore the whole house down and began again from scratch.

With his new house in progress, his marriage turned sour. He wound up selling his unfinished home, which the new owner altered dramatically.

"That's the way they do things out there," said columnist Stewart. "They buy a house, tear it down and build their own house."

One homeowner discovered he could not add a wine cellar because the limestone terrain precluded excavation. So he converted his ground floor into a wine room and built a new level on his house.

Another story concerns a second wealthy oilman who added so many rooms to his home that it finally covered the entire lot. Feeling cramped, he offered his neighbors on either side a million dollars apiece for their houses.

Both turned him down.

Because of possible mechanical failures

Indy 500 has 'no such thing as favorite'

By STEVE HERMAN

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There's no such thing as a favorite in the Indianapolis 500, where someone else's mistake can send the most experienced driver into the wall, where the fastest car in the lineup can be sidelined by a mechanical failure of a $2 part, where the only lap that counts is the last one.

Just ask Mario Andretti. A series of frustrating mishaps in recent years has reinforced Andretti's belief that it takes more than a good car and a lot of driving skill to win the world's most important race.

"It's just fate that deals you a hand. You've got to deal with it," said Andretti, a victim of crashes triggered by other drivers in each of the past three years and the loser in a five-month appeal of the race finish the year before that.

"It'll be a bit of a white-knuckler for us at the beginning," the 1969 winner said of Sunday's start, which he will begin from the inside of the second row, directly behind record-setting pole winner Pancho Carter.

"I wish there was nobody here, so I could win," mused Andretti, dismissing Las Vegas oddsmakers who have established him as the betting favorite in the race. "At the start, the adrenalin flows. You hope everybody keeps his head. Mistakes get made because of that. Not everybody has full control of their emotions."

The 33-car field averaged 208.138 mph, making it the fastest lineup in the history of automobile racing. The potential for carnage on the race track is possibly greater than ever, but Andretti refuses to change to a more cautious driving style.

"You go for what you have to go for," he said. "I'm not looking for a convenient spot" away from traffic on the track.

Andretti recalled 1982, when he was eliminated in one of two crashes along the main straightaway even before the green flag had dropped to start the race. In 1983, he lasted 79 laps before driver Johnny Parsons triggered an accident that sent Andretti's car into the first-turn wall.

Last year, Andretti made it through 153 of the 200 laps before his car struck Josele Garza's racer at the pit entrance and broke a nose cone and right front wing.

But the greatest disappointment for Andretti probably was the 1981 race, when he finished second to Bobby Unser. The morning after the race, the U.S. Auto Club penalized Unser one lap for illegally passing a line of cars during a caution period, giving Andretti the victory. Unser appealed the decision to a special USAC panel, which reinstated Unser's victory five months later.

"If I win, sure, I'll forget everything," said Andretti, who has had only one other top-10 finish at Indy since 1972.

Carter set a four-lap qualification record at 212.583 mph in a Buick-powered March.

Junior high golfers close out 1985 season

Junior high school golf teams from Hereford closed out the 1985 season Friday in nine-hole rounds at Hunsley Hills Golf Course in Canyon.

The Hereford teams played three rounds against teams from Canyon and Valley View junior high schools.

The girls' team from Hereford had the top five individuals for the season in taking the team title. Canyon and Valley View did not have complete teams at all rounds, and as a result there are no season team totals.

In boys' golf, the Hereford "A" team placed second for the season, and the Hereford "B" team finished in fourth place.

Scores for the Hereford girls' golfers Friday were: Brenda Martinez, 45; Amy Coneway, 50; Paula Moore and Kathy Neil, both 50; and Naomi Grigalva, 62.

Canyon's low individual score Friday was a 51, and Valley View's low individual score was a 63.

For the three nine-hole rounds, Coneway placed first with a total of 144. Martinez was second with a season score of 149, Moore was third at 156, Neil fourth at 168, and Grigalva fifth at 180.

The best season score by any girl from the other schools was a 188 by a Canyon golfer.

In the boys' nine-hole round Friday, the Hereford "B" team placed third with a score of 185, and the Hereford "A" team was fourth with a score of 188.

Valley View's "A" team won the round with a 173, Canyon was second with a 175, and Valley View's "B" team finished fifth with a 213.

Jason Bullard of the Hereford "A" team and Jason Scott of the Hereford "B" team each led their teams with scores of 42.

Other Hereford "A" team scores were a 48 by both Kelby Hager and Dustin Hubbard, and a 50 by Jay Chapman.

Todd Schroeder shot a 44 for the Hereford "B" team, Scott Simons shot a 46, Billy Burnam a 53, and Michael Berend a 56.

Season standings for teams are: Valley View "A," 515; Hereford "A," 533; Canyon, 534; Hereford "B," 564; and Valley View "B," 631.

A Canyon golfer placed first for the season with a 121 total, and a Canyon golfer and a Valley View "A" golfer tied for second with scores of 122.

Hereford "A" team golfers with the best season scores were Jason Bullard with a score of 128, and Kelby Hager with a total of 129.

The best totals for the Hereford "B" team were a 140 by Jason Scott and a 141 by Scott Simons.

Softball tourney entry deadline is Wednesday

Wednesday is the entry deadline for a class C and class D men's softball tournament that will be held June 1 and 2 in Hereford.

The tournament, in which U.S.S.S.A. class C rules will be used, will be played at the Kids Inc. Complex.

The entry fee is $90 per team.

Entry fees should be mailed to Jackie Mercer, 455 Paloma Ln., Hereford, TX, 79045.

Awards in the tournament will be team trophies for the first, second, third and fourth place teams, individual trophies for members of the first and second place teams, an MVP award for a player on offense, and an MVP award for a player on defense.

For more information on the tournament, call Barry Jones at 364-2555 in the daytime or 364-1542 in the evening, or call Jackie Mercer at 364-5962 after 4 p.m.

Kids Inc. standings

BOYS' T-BALL LEAGUE

Astros defeat Mets, 6-2

Ryan turns in 200th complete game

By JOE MOOSHIL AP Sports Writer
It wasn't at all surprising that Nolan Ryan became the first pitcher this season to hurl a complete game against the Chicago Cubs.

The fireballing righthander did it when he was a 21-year-old with the New York Mets and he did it again at the ripe age of 38 on Friday, hurling the Houston Astros to a 6-2 victory.

Ryan, 4-2, turned in his 200th complete game on a yield of seven hits and he struck out seven to raise his all-time Major League leading total to 3,942.

It also gave him a lifetime record of 12-3 against the Cubs with his 235th career victory.

"I don't pay attention to numbers," said Ryan and when someone told him of his 200th complete game, he added "That's not on my reading list."

Ryan did concede that he has had great success against the Cubs but said "I can't say I enjoy pitching to them. I know when I was with the Mets I used to draw them a lot."

Ryan also conceded he was at an advantage in the late innings when the shadows crossed the batter's box because of the 3 p.m. start.

"I have to believe that in the last two or three innings it was tough for the batters to see," said Ryan. "Throwing from a bright background to a dark area makes it that much tougher."

The victory gave the Astros a 22-18 record, one of their batter starts in recent years.

"We're in the race," said Ryan of the National League West. "We're off to a good start and don't have to play catch-up for a change."

Also off to a good start for the Astros is leadoff batter and second baseman Bill Doran.

Doran reached base five times on three hits, a walk and an error. He scored three runs and drove in another.

"That was my best day this season as far as getting on base is concerned," said Doran. "That's what I'm supposed to do, get on base and have the other guys drive me in."

Doran, who boosted his average to .290 and leads the club in runs scored with 25, said "I didn't pick up a bat this winter and didn't create any bad habits which I had to break in spring training."

"I've had lots of luck and been getting the breaks," he said. "I get a cheap hit here and a broken bat single there. Last year it was the other way around."

"It's a good feeling to get on base and it's important to get a lead against the Cubs because that keeps Lee Smith out of the game," said Doran.

Doran got things rolling early for the Astros. He doubled in the first inning and scored on a single by Denny Walling and he also singled in a run in a two-run third. He singled and scored in the seventh and reached on an error and scored the first run in a two-run ninth.

Ryan didn't allow a hit until the fourth inning when Thad Bosley doubled in a run. Chicago's other run scored on Ryne Sandberg's sixth homer in the sixth inning.

"My breaking pitch got better as the game went on," said Ryan, "but I hung one to Sandberg. You can't do that in this ball park. I also walked three more than I wanted to."

Cub Manager Jim Frey, claiming "I've never seen Ryan when he hasn't thrown well" thought the Cubs might have gotten to him with a break.

Ron Cey singled to open the seventh and Jody Davis hit a screaming liner which was foul by inches before striking out.

"If Jody's ball had been fair, we might have gotten into their bullpen," said Frey. "The score was only 4-2 then. Ryan was good but we had a chance."

Reds 7, Cardinals 6

On Friday, May 24, 1935, the Reds' Paul Derringer shut down the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 as major league baseball played its first night game in Cincinnati. Fifty years later, it was Dave Van Gorder's turn to light up the field.

Pinch-hitting in the eighth inning, Van Gorder electrified the home crowd with a two-run single to give Cincinnati a 5-4 lead. In the 12th inning, singling speedy Eric Davis home from second base.

the eighth came amidst a four-run rally and shocked Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog.

"Dayley against Van Gorder was exactly what I wanted," Herzog said. "That's what I wanted to get to, and I got there. Dayley just made a bad pitch."

Van Gorder wasn't high on his own chances either. "I couldn't keep my left foot still, I was shaking so much," he said. "I was nervous."

One man had faith in Van Gorder. "I knew he was due," said Cincinnati player-manager Pete Rose. He picked Van Gorder, who was hitting just .208, for the clutch role.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt turned on the lights by special hook-up from the White House. The 50th anniversary game started with a taped message of congratulations from President Reagan.

Pirates 4, Braves 2

Jason Thompson belted a three-run homer in the first inning and singled home Pittsburgh's other run in the ninth.

Jim Winn, in his first major-league start, combined with John Candelaria on a three-hitter. Winn, 1-0, pitched seven innings before giving way to a pinch hitter.

Padres 1, Phillies 0
Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly in the top of the eighth scored Garry Templeton with the game's only run. Dave Dravecky and Rich Gossage combined on the shutout.

Expos 2, Giants 0
Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks hit led off the third and fourth innings with home runs, backing Joe Hesketh and Jeff Reardon's combined two-hitter.

"You can't really tell here," said Raines of Montreal's Olympic Stadium. "Some days you hit the ball well here and it doesn't go anywhere. Tonight it went out."

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

Greg Brock and Mike Scioscia hit solo home runs in the sixth inning to back Orel Hershiser, 4-0. Hershiser, who had no-decisions in his last four starts, scattered six hits over seven innings.

The Mets lost a third straight game for the first time this season.

Carter promises perfect start at Indy 500

By MIKE HARRIS AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Pancho Carter is promising the perfect start to Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

"You'll see one of the better starts you've seen. No silly mistakes," Carter said after Thursday's final practice before the race.

Carter, a veteran of 11 previous Indy 500s with six top 10 finishes, set a four-lap qualifying record of 212.583 mph in winning the first Indy-car pole of his career, and he is well aware that it is his responsibility as the driver on the inside of the front row to set the pace for the start of the race.

Carter vividly remembers a wild false start that marked the opening of the 1982 Indy race.

That year, pole-sitter Rick Mears brought the field to the starting line at a very slow speed. As the 33 starters began to pick up speed nearing the starting line, Kevin Cogan — in the middle of the front row — suddenly veered right, bouncing off a car driven by A.J. Foyt, then careening back across the track and slamming into the side of Mario Andretti's racer. At the back of the field, rookie Dale Whittington and Roger Mears collided.

The melee brought out a red flag and instant criticism of Rick Mears.

Carter, who started in the fourth row in 1982 and finished third, says that won't happen to him.

"I plan to bring them to a smooth safe start, and they won't be able to criticize me after I win the race," he said. "I don't think you'll see a start like three years ago — real slow. I'll have everybody in high gear, not low, accelerating off the fourth turn and gradually speeding up. It'll be a rolling start, like it should be."

Carter, whose father, Duane Carter Sr., once finished fourth here, said he isn't intent on leading the first lap.

"I don't think it makes too much difference," he said. "The 200th (final lap) is the one I want to lead."

"I want to stay with the (lead) pack all day. I want to run my kind of race at speeds I feel comfortable with. If my race is fast enough to lead, I'll lead."

As for the competition, he said, "Anybody in the front three rows will be tough, and the back as well. Probably over half the field is running at competitive enough speeds to be potential winners."

"There's going to be a lot of turbulence out there Sunday with those fast speeds," said 1983 Indy winner Tom Sneva. "Whenever you get near others cars, you get a fair amount of buffeting around. We think the key is to stay as far away from the competition as possible."

"That's hard to do, sure. But here's hoping the field will sort itself out real early and get some of the slow learners out of the way."

Carter had a fast lap of 206.374 mph Thursday, while Sneva's best was 202.156.

Celtics aim to beat Lakers two straight years

NBA championship series begins Monday

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers are going to play it again. And the Lakers couldn't be more pleased.

"It's Boston versus L.A.," said Coach Pat Riley of the Lakers after his team won an unprecedented fourth straight National Basketball Association Western Conference championship. "It's what everybody wants. Why not? Let's get on with it."

The Lakers and Celtics will get on with it at 3 p.m. EDT Monday when the best-of-seven NBA Championship series begins at the Boston Garden, which is also the site of the second game next Thursday at 9 p.m. EDT.

The series then moves west for games on June 2, June 5 and — if necessary — June 7 at the Forum. The final two games, if needed, will be played in Boston June 9 and June 11.

"You've got the two best teams," said veteran Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "I think that's appropriate."

The Celtics, trying to become the first team to win back-to-back NBA championships since they did it in 1968 and 1969, were 63-19 during the regular season and are 11-4 in the playoffs.

The Lakers were 62-20 during the regular season and are 11-2 in the playoffs. Red-hot in the last several months, Los Angeles has won 42 of its last 48 games.

"This is what we've been pointing to all year," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It's very important to us. It's what the whole season is about."

The Lakers will be playing for the NBA title, something they last won in 1982, for the fifth time in the last six years. And they will be playing the Celtics for the ninth time in a Championship Series; the first was in 1959 when the Lakers were based in Minneapolis.

Boston has come out on top the previous eight times, the latest being last year when the Celtics won in seven games.

Despite what happened last year, Los Angeles guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson said revenge won't be a factor in this series, and several of his teammates agreed.

However, Johnson acknowledged that there will be some added motivation for the Lakers.

"All we wanted to do was get to the championships, regardless of who we had to play," Johnson said. "But since it is the Celtics, there's going to be a little extra incentive because of what happened last year."

Said Los Angeles forward James Worthy: "I don't think we had any preference (of opponent). We were just worried about making it ourselves."

Said Abdul-Jabbar: "That (last year's Championship Series) is a dead issue. We can't worry about what happened last year. We have to go out and do it this year. That's the only thing on my mind."

Worthy scored 25 points and Johnson had 19 assists and 17 points in the Lakers' 153-109 shellacking of Denver Wednesday night as Los Angeles swept the Nuggets aside in five games to move into the Championship Series.

"We're probably underdogs, but that's just as well," Boston forward Kevin McHale said Friday. "We like when people say we can't win and we can't do this and can't do that. That gets us excited. So I hope everybody keeps saying that right through the series."

The Lakers are on a roll heading into the best-of-seven final that begins here Monday afternoon. They were 11-2 in the Western Conference playoffs with a scoring average of 131.2 points per game. They have won 42 of their last 48 games.

Their 62-20 regular-season mark was second best in the NBA. Boston was first at 63-19 and earned the homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs. The Celtics are 11-4 in post-season action.

"I'd rather be the underdog," said Boston's Larry Bird. "They (the Lakers) really didn't breeze through anything during the regular season because they came in second. We had the better record."

"There's no team (in the West) that can match up with L.A. L.A. plays good defense and offense and a lot of teams out there just play good offense. So I don't think it's very surprising to us that they went through (the playoffs) so easy."

Los Angeles' strength is its running game, which Phoenix, Portland and Denver couldn't control in the first three playoff rounds. None of those teams plays as physical a game as the Celtics.

"It's the stars vs. the longshoremen," said McHale. "We have probably one guy who can dunk on our whole team. They've got a whole team that goes in there and flies through the air. We just go out there and kind of grind it out."

The Celtics' style prevailed last year when they took the championship series 4-3 as they outrebounded Los Angeles 52-33 in their 111-102 seventh-game victory in Boston.

Since then, the Lakers have improved. Forward James Worthy has gotten better and is Los Angeles' leading playoff scorer. Sharp-shooting guard Byron Scott is averaging 19.5 points per playoff game. His post-season average last year was 8.6.

"This could be the greatest team in Laker history," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley.

Boston has been in 15 final series and won all 15, seven of them against the Lakers.

Ainge went from hot corner to hot seat, now has hot hand

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Danny Ainge went from the hot corner to the hot seat. Now, with Boston's charge for another championship heating up, he has the hot hand.

The former third baseman for the Toronto Blue Jays has been cool in pressure situations. With timely baskets and crucial steals, his success has been a big part of the Celtics' playoff success.

"He has proven himself," said guard Dennis Johnson, who starts alongside Ainge in Boston's backcourt. "The biggest change in Danny is his confidence. When he hits the floor, he knows he can score."

The emergence of Ainge is one of the major changes in the matchups in this year's National Basketball Association title series rematch with the Los Angeles Lakers.

That best-of-seven confrontation, which could produce the NBA's first repeat champion in 16 years, begins here Monday. It continues Thursday night, then moves to Los Angeles for the next three games, if needed.

"Danny's the real key right now," said Boston forward Cedric Maxwell. "He's playing really inspired and with a lot of confidence. He's made steals, shots and quarterbacking plays he wouldn't have done last year."

Ainge was Boston's third guard last season behind Johnson and Gerald Henderson. He averaged just six points and 14 minutes per game in the finals against the Lakers and 5.4 points in the regular season.

But last Oct. 16, just 10 days before

Boston's first game, Henderson was traded to Seattle. Ainge, in his fourth season with the Celtics, was handed the starting job.

Suddenly, he was a vital cog who was counted on to keep the Boston machine running smoothly.

He rose to the challenge and averaged 12.9 points and 5.3 assists per game in the regular season. In the Eastern Conference final against Philadelphia, he averaged 12.2 points and 36 minutes per game.

In the second half of Boston's 102-100 victory in the fifth game that clinched the series with the 76ers Wednesday night, Ainge hit five of nine field goals, four of them on jump shots.

In the last four minutes, he had two steals. He also battled Moses Malone and Charles Barkley for a rebound, and the ball went out of bounds off Malone with 33 seconds to play.

That, said Boston Coach K.C. Jones, "was the biggest play of the game."

"Danny was great defensively," said Philadelphia playmaker

Maurice Cheeks. "I don't think I've ever seen him cover the floor so well defensively."

He may have to do better against the high-scoring Lakers when he'll have to guard people like Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Byron Scott.

The Celtics are concerned with the new format that they feel dilutes the homecourt advantage they earned with the NBA's best regular-season record.

Last season, the Celtics were home for the first, second, fifth and seventh games. This season, they are scheduled to play the first, second, sixth and seventh games in Boston.

"I think it stinks," said Maxwell. "You're really taking away the homecourt advantage we worked so hard for."

From the 1956-57 season through the 1968-69 season, the Boston Celtics won 11 NBA championships in 13 years. Their record was 716-299, a winning percentage of .705. In the playoffs, the Celtics had a record of 108-59, a winning percentage of .647.

First time since April 30

Rangers record back-to-back victories

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

A two-game winning streak may be small stuff in most places, but it was cause for celebration at Arlington Stadium.

Texas' 1-0 victory Friday night over the Boston Red Sox gave the Rangers back-to-back wins for the first time since April 30 and raised their record, worst in the major leagues, to 13-27.

But new manager Bobby Valentine was pleased. The shutout by knuckleballer Charlie Hough gives him a 4-4 record since taking over after last week's firing of Doug Rader.

"We're playing good baseball," said Valentine. "I think the players are starting to realize you can win one game at a time and turn things around."

Hough's six-hitter was the first shutout for Rangers pitching this season, the first since last Aug. 28 in fact, when Danny Darwin blanked the Kansas City Royals. It was Hough's third straight complete game and eighth career shutout.

"A knuckleball is a knuckleball," said Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. "Some nights you hit it and some nights you don't. We didn't get any runs, so I guess he was tough."

Hough walked two and struck out seven in running his record to 4-3.

The hard-luck loser was Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who gave up only five hits. The Red Sox have scored a total of one run in his last three starts. His record dropped to 4-4 even as his earned run average dropped to 2.78.

Texas outfielder Gary Ward led off the fifth inning with a triple and scored on Cliff Johnson's sacrifice fly to left to give the Rangers the game's only run. But Texas had to stave off a ninth-inning threat.

Boston's Bill Buckner led off the ninth with a single. Hough got Tony Armas to pop up, but Mike Easler singled to right allowing Buckner to advance to third with the potential tying run.

"He asked me how I felt," Hough said. "I said I felt like a double play."

"I asked him if he had it in him," Valentine reported. "He said he did."

Hough worked the count to 1-2 to Rich Gedman, who then foul-tipped a pitch that Glenn Brummer almost held onto, but didn't. Gedman fouled off another pitch, then chopped a ground ball toward first.

First baseman Pete O'Brien charged the ball and made a perfect, off-balance throw to Curtis Wilkerson at second. That retired Steve Lyons, who had come in to run for Easler, but O'Brien was at least 20 feet from first and Buckner was racing home with what would have been the tying run.

"There was no way I could get back to first," O'Brien said. "It was Charlie's play and he did a great job of getting over there."

Hough hustled over to cover first and take the relay throw just ahead of Gedman. End of inning, end of game.

"When I came here, they told me Pete O'Brien could turn that play with the best," Valentine said. "I thought I'd left the best (Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets), but the way Pete got rid of the ball and made that play is hard to top."

Valentine visited the mound before Gedman came to the plate, but said he wasn't considering taking Hough out.

"I asked him if he had it in him," Valentine said. "He said he did. I asked him if he had a double play in him. He said he did."

Added Hough: "The funny thing is that Pete had told me he was going for two no matter what and that I'd better get my butt over there to cover."

Brewers 5, Twins 2

Ted Simmons drove in two runs, Paul Molitor homered and Ray Burris and two relievers combined on a six-hitter.

Burris, who hadn't won since April 11, gave up one run on three hits before leaving with two out and the bases loaded in the seventh. Pete Ladd retired Mike Stenhouse on a fly ball to end the threat but surrendered Tom Brunansky's 12th homer in the ninth and Rollie Fingers came on to record his fifth save.

Tigers 4, Mariners 3

Darrell Evans slammed a leadoff home run in the top of the 11th inning while Detroit bullpen ace Willie Hernandez, 3-1, was the winner with 2-1-3 innings of hitless relief.

Seattle's Mike Moore went 10 innings, scattering 10 hits and striking out nine, but gave way to Mike Stanton at the start of the 11th.

Orioles 4, Angels 3

Lenn Sakata's eighth-inning double snapped a tie and gave Storm Davis, who scattered seven hits, his first triumph since April 23. After Larry Sheets led off the inning with a single off reliever Stu Cliburn, pinch-runner Mike Young took second on a wild pitch and was sacrificed to third by Fritz Connally before Sakata doubled.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 6

Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer and Ernie Whitt belted a three-run shot in a five-run third inning and Toronto held on for its fifth consecutive victory.

Jeff Barkley made his first appearance since being recalled from the minors last Sunday and Whitt greeted him with his homerun.

Yankees 10, A's 3

Dave Winfield's three-run homer capped a six-run New York outburst in the fourth inning and the Yankees coasted behind the six-hit pitching of Joe Cowley, 3-2, and two relievers.

Chris Codiroli suffered his first loss since opening day, 8-0.

Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer for Oakland.

Royals 8, White Sox 4

George Brett drove in four runs and Dan Quisenberry earned his seventh save with three innings of one-hit relief as Kansas City climbed past Chicago and Minnesota into second place in the AL West.

Brett hit a two-run single in the third inning off loser Britt Burns and added RBI singles in the fifth and seventh. In the eighth, the White Sox intentionally walked Brett and Steve Balboni delivered an RBI single. It was Kansas City's third straight victory and Chicago's fourth loss in a row.

State supreme court clears way for playoffs

By MICHAEL HOLMES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has cleared the way for the state Class 5A high school baseball playoffs to be completed, blocking a district judge's order that declared the no-pass, no-play rule unconstitutional.

"We're delighted the court has acted this quickly," said Attorney General Jim Mattox, who personally filed an appeal of the lower court's decision Friday.

Mattox also said he believes the high court ultimately will uphold the controversial no-pass, no-play rule.

"I think the fact that the (Supreme) Court has taken the action that it has is probably a good in-

Indy 500 is no longer a 'private party'

DIANAPOLIS (AP) — Once they ruled the Indy 500, a half-dozen veteran drivers who turned America's most famous auto race into their own private party.

If it wasn't Al or Bobby Unser, Indy belonged to A.J. Foyt or Johnny Rutherford. And if one of them didn't win, then surely Mario Andretti or Gordon Johncock would.

Only once in the dozen years from 1967-78 did one of them fail to capture Indy's checkered flag. Now, though, their domination is waning, replaced by a new class of Indy drivers.

Johncock and Bobby Unser have retired. Foyt, a racing legend, is treated as an afterthought in Sunday's field, locked in the seventh row of the 33-man starting grid. Three-time winner Rutherford was bumped by faster cars and did not qualify until the last possible day. He is hidden in the 10th row.

That leaves only Andretti, starting in the second row, and Al Unser, right behind him, to carry on the tradition of the old guard in the 69th Indy 500. They still are afforded the respect they have earned from yethe front row Sunday belongs to new names.

Pole-sitter Pancho Carter, 35, Scott Brayton, 26, and Bobby Rahal, 32, never have started that high at this track before. In fact, this will be only the fourth Indy for Brayton and Rahal.

Compare that with Foyt, running here for the 28th straight year and a four-time winner making his 300th Indy car start. But Foyt has won just once in the last 17 years here. Only twice before has he started farther back than he does this year. He is 50 now and has said he will race at Indy only twice more before joining Johncock and Bobby Unser in retirement.

dication about what ultimate ruling will probably be," he said.

The no-pass, no-play rule was a cornerstone of last year's sweeping school reform law. It bars students from extracurricular activities, including sports, if they are failing any class.

The rule took effect earlier this year. Since then, more than two dozen lawsuits have been filed challenging it, and judges are deciding different ways.

Mattox said the conflicting rulings in state district courts had created confusion about whether the state Class 5A high school baseball playoffs could continue.

District Judge David Dunn in Orange had upheld the no-pass, no-play rule Thursday, but within hours Judge Marsha D. Anthony in Houston declared it unconstitutional and ordered that the rule not be enforced.

The stay issued by the Supreme Court on Friday blocks Judge Anthony's ruling. The high court scheduled oral arguments on her decision for June 19.

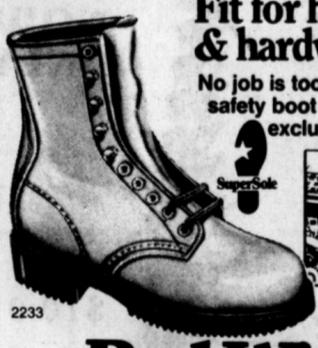

"The stay ... will in effect allow the state championship playoffs to go forward," Mattox said.

"I think this court realizes the importance of bringing about a consistency between these two district court orders and also the importance to these young people, allowing them to go on and play this championship tournament," he said.

"With 25 to 30 lawsuits filed already — and football season still some months away — we can expect nothing by chaos until this issue is resolved. A speedy resolution by the Texas Supreme Court is the most reasonable way to end this controversy," Mattox said.

People, pets invited to annual Pet Show

Give the dog a bath and spruce up the cat, it's time for the Women's Division annual Pet Show scheduled Saturday, June 1, at the Bull Barn.

There will be no charge to enter a pet which must be registered that morning beginning at 9:30. The show will last approximately two hours.

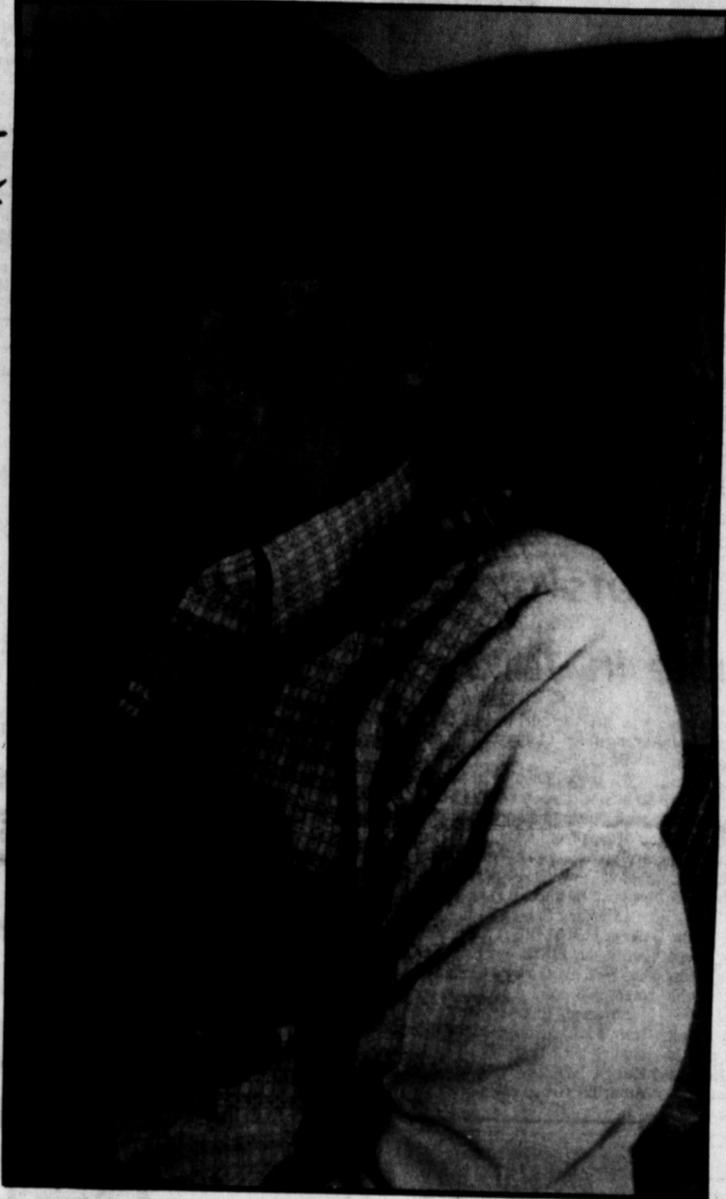

Jay Eubanks will serve as emcee and judges include Tommie Savage, Billie Sonnenberg and Dr. Lewis.

All dogs must be on a leash.

Pets will be judged in eight categories including biggest feet, shortest tail, longest tail, largest pet, smallest pet, longest ears, most unusual pet and shortest ears.

First, second and third places in each category will be awarded as well as a trophy for the people's choice and best of show.

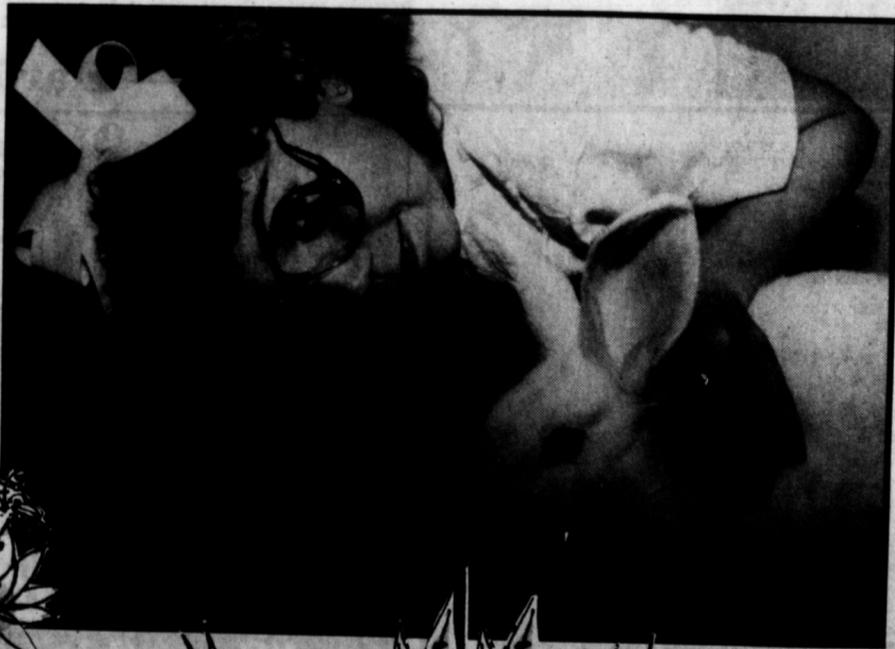

Chairman of the pet show is Jane White. Assisting are Margaret Formby, Olivia Denning, Joy Bunch, Linda Shipp and Debbie Gonzales.

Deadline nears for day camp registration

Deadline to register a child in Camp Lani Wa Day Camp is Wednesday. The camp is planned from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. June 3 through 7 at the park east of the new golf course and west of the old Veterans Park.

The camp will be for children from age four through the sixth grade. The fee is $12 and registration fee is $7 which registers the youth in the Camp Fire Council and also includes insurance.

A registration card must be filled out and the $12 camp fee must be turned in to the child's leader or to the Camp fire office. If the camper cannot attend, all but $2 of the fee will be refunded.

According to Nita Lea, day camp director, the camp is a time for youth to make new friends, learn new songs and games, make craft items, and enjoy the out-of-doors.

Parents are to deliver their children directly to day camp and pick them up there. Discovery and Horizon Club girls serve as program aides.

Parents are invited to attend the closing ceremonial on Friday afternoon from 1:30-2:30. Also, scheduled that day is a cookout for the campers only and everything will be furnished.

Day Camp will not be cancelled in case of rain but will be held in the Bull Barn.

The 4th through 6th grades will have the opportunity to work on Outdoor Progression ranks during the camp. In this program the campers progress through four ranks, Fire Tender, High Adventure, Trail Maker and Gypsy.

A fee of $12 will be charged for Outdoor Progression.

Explorer Scouts plan performance in Jordan

The Kwahadi Indian Dancers, a performing group composed of Amarillo Boy Scouts, is hoping to partially fund a trip to Jordan through advance ticket sales for its summer shows.

The dancers plan performances on June 15, 22, 28 and 29 and Aug. 2 and 3 at the Kwahadi Kiva Theatre, located at Plains and Bellaire in Amarillo.

Last February, members of the Explorer Post 80 dancers were honored by a request from King Hussein of Jordan to perform for the fourth annual Jerash Festival.

Twenty-three boys and seven adult leaders expect to make the trip to Jordan July 6-18, and King Hussein will provide airfare for 25 of the group from Chicago to Jordan and back.

The troop is hoping to raise $15,000 to help with air fares to Chicago and back, costuming and other expenses.

Groups from throughout the world are invited to participate in the folk festival, which is performed each year in the ancient ruins of Jerash.

According to a spokesman for Explorer Post 80, this is the first time an American Boy Scout Explorer Post has been invited by a foreign government to present a program.

Advance tickets are available from adult members of the troop, including Dick Lowery at 359-4193 and Karen Wesley at 374-8950 in Amarillo. Group rates are available.

La Plata officers installed Tuesday

La Plata Study Club met Tuesday evening for a salad supper and installation of officers. Conducting the installation ceremony was a former club member, Sherry Hoover of Plainview.

The dinner was catered by Something Special.

Peggie Fox was installed as president; Julie Helms, vice-president; Betty Taylor, recording secretary; Betty Quillen, corresponding secretary; Rosemary Shook, treasurer; Audine Dettman, historian; Dorothea Prowell, reporter; and Sunny Brush, parliamentarian.

An engraved gold charm was presented to Brush, outgoing president.

Also, the club decided to hold a summer meeting to make plans for the annual Town 'n' Country Jubilee which is scheduled in August.

Shook was appointed to present the Viola Chisholm Award to an outstanding Hereford High School art student. Club members have given a deserving senior with the award for 20 years.

A letter of resignation was read from Sarah Hazelrigg who recently moved to Comanche. Earlier this month, club members honored her with a farewell party.

Before the close of the meeting, Fox assigned committee positions. Serving on the yearbook committee will be Helms (chairman), Mary Lyles, Yvonne Simpson and Dorothea Prowell.

Shook will head the finance committee and will be assisted by Elizabeth McDowell and Margaret Schroeter.

Tender loving care chairman is Clara Brown with Ruby Boston assisting. Dorothy Mercer is chairman of the gift committee and Avis White will assist.

Dettman is telephone chairman with helpers Brush, Mary Bartlett, Quillen, Mozelle Neill and Mildred Fuhrmann.

Helms is head of the membership committee with Lavon Nieman and Virginia Woodford assisting.

Those present included Quillen, Boston, Avis Neill, Schroeter, Dettman, Brown, Virginia Woodford, Bartlett, Simpson, Brush, Shook, Fox, Lyles, Mercer, Helms and Nieman.

Many Good Reasons To Pick Pork

Fortunately, it is impossible to limit the number of calories in your diet without giving up all your favorite foods. In fact, one of your favorite foods—pork—can play an important role in a calorie-conscious diet.

At one time, pork was not included on weight reduction diets for it was thought to be high in calories. But today's pork can be eaten with confidence for it comes from hogs that have been carefully produced and fed to provide more lean meat, that's lower in calories and higher in nutrients per ounce than previously. A 3-ounce serving of cooked lean pork yields just 206 calories while a 3-ounce serving of cooked lean ham furnishes 187 calories.

Pork is also a good diet choice for it is a concentrated source of nutrients. Dieters, especially, need to be on the lookout for foods like pork that offer important nutrients in sizable amounts in exchange for relatively few calories. Pork's high ratio of nutrients to calories gives it a high nutrient density.

The protein in pork is very important for its complete, containing all the essential amino acids in the amounts needed to build, maintain and repair tissues and help the body resist infection and disease. Pork is also an excellent source of the B-vitamins—thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, B-6, and B-12. Thiamin merits special mention since pork is the leading source of this vitamin, providing three times as much as any other food.

Important minerals in pork include iron, zinc, phosphorus and magnesium. Dietary iron is essential in forming and maintaining red blood cells and in preventing anemia. Pork is a source of heme iron, the type easily used by the body.

Try these low calorie pork recipes:
PORK TENDERLOIN STIR-FRY

1 1/4 pounds pork tenderloin
1 tablespoon oil
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus pieces, defrosted
1/2 cup water
1 1/4 cups bean sprouts
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon minced ginger root
Dash mace
8 cherry tomatoes, each cut into quarters
2 cups hot cooked rice

Trim excess fat from pork tenderloin; discard. Cut pork diagonally into slices 1/4 inch thick. Quickly brown pork slices (1/2 at a time) in hot oil, stirring constantly; remove from pan. Sprinkle salt over pork. Reduce heat; add asparagus and 1/4 cup water to frying-pan and cook, covered, 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and continue cooking, covered, 5 minutes. Combine soy sauce, garlic, cornstarch, ginger root and mace with 1/4 cup water; stir into vegetables. Return pork to pan and cook 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in cherry tomatoes and heat through. Serve pork stir-fry over rice. 4 servings.

SAVORY PORK AND VEGETABLES

1 1/4 pounds boneless pork shoulder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon summer savory
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3/4 cup water
1 medium onion, cut into 4 wedges
2 medium carrots, each cut into 4 pieces
2 cups cooked hot Brussels sprouts
2 cups cooked hot cauliflowerettes
Trim excess fat from pork; slowly heat fat in large frying-pan to obtain 1 tablespoon drippings. Discard fat. Cut pork shoulder into 1-inch pieces; brown in drippings. Pour off drippings. Sprinkle salt, savory and pepper over pork; add water, cover tightly and cook slowly 15 minutes. Add onion and carrots and continue cooking slowly, covered, 30 to 40 minutes or until meat is tender. Remove carrots and cooking liquid to blender container; blend at high speed until smooth. Pour carrot mixture over pork and onions and cook slowly 2 to 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Arrange Brussels sprouts and cauliflowerettes around braised pork. 4 servings.

THE BEDROOM WRITING DESK

A writing desk and chair are popular additions to many of today's bedrooms. They introduce a sitting room atmosphere and provide a place for letter writing and paperwork. Choose a desk and chair that echo the mood and style created by other furnishings in the room. For example, if the bedroom is contemporary, select a modern desk, a chrome-and-glass or Parson's table and chair that is of similar modern style. A traditional room requires a desk and chair of period design. Lightly scaled pieces are readily available today in both modern and period designs. They can be used to good advantage in confined apartment rooms and in rooms with small dimensions.

Let your bedroom and all your living spaces meet your individual needs and reflect your personal style. We at FINISHING TOUCHES can help. Ours is a complete design service for residential and commercial establishments. Custom draperies and bedspreads, upholstering, wall coverings, window treatments, custom matting and picture framing are all available here. Also floor plans, and add-on custom designs. Room additions contracted out. Call on us at 501 E. Park Ave., ph: 364-8870. M-F 9-5 (other hours by appointment.)

A love seat can provide a fine place for reading or relaxation in your bedroom.

Students audition

Twenty-seven local piano pupils from the class of Evelyn Hacker, 119 E. 15th St., have recently played in the National Guild auditions held at First Christian Church.

The auditions give students the opportunity to play privately for a judge from another town. Judging the event this year was Caroline Goodnow of Amarillo.

Passing the national award of 10 pieces were Stefanie Latham, Michael Carlson, Jeffery Carlson, Jaci Edwards, Donna Grotegut, "Hold The Dream" by Barbara Taylor Bradford and "Jubal Sackett" by Louis L'Amour are two of the books available this week at the library.

Monica Grotegut, Allison Farr, Lee Harder, Jennifer Richardson, Brenda Allen, and Leslie Billingsley.

Earning the district award were Jennifer Cansler, Shawn Lance, Michelle Lance, Christopher Tardy, Eddie Mullins, Don Carl Tardy, Cally Revell, Charles Reinauer, Susan Gage, Chad Hutson, Nikki Hutson, Jennifer Legate, Cynamin Brownlow, Devany Paschel and Sharon Taylor.

"Hold The Dream" is a sequel to "A Woman Of Substance" which was first published in 1979 and has become a literary legend, a record-breaking international classic and a highly acclaimed television miniseries. "Hold The Dream" describes Emma Harte's legacy and the men and women who fought ruthlessly to make it their own.

Ambition, sacrifice, brains and courage made Emma harte one of the richest, most influential women in the world. For her granddaughter and heir, Paula McGill Fairley, Emma has left not only her vast financial empire but also her dream—the dream of power and prestige that Emma worked so long to fulfill, a dream as vibrant and vital as Emma's own spirit. And Paula, molded in the image of Emma, schooled in her principles, will come to be a symbol of today's woman as Emma was of an earlier generation.

"Hold The Dream" is more than a sequel; it is the continuing saga of Emma Harte, a compelling novel in its own right. Moving from the luxurious boardrooms and bedrooms of the wealthy and privileged to lush country estates and powerful centers of the international business world, from a coroner's court in Ireland to a ski resort in Chamonix, the novel is a stunning saga of ambition and greed, love and its loss. Barbara Taylor Bradford is also the author of "Voice Of The Heart."

Among the most popular of L'Amour's 91 books have been those novels featuring the generations of a single family, the Sacketts. The Sacketts have become Americas "first family of fiction."

Now in the longest and most powerful Sacket novel to date, "Jubal Sackett", L'Amour tells the eagerly awaited tale of Jubal Sackett, a restless explorer who dated to go "over the mountain", across the vast continent of North America, to gain intimate knowledge of a world few seventeenth-century white men dared to challenge.

"Jubal Sackett" isa masterful tale spun within the framework of the kind of authentically detailed adventure L'Amour's readers have come to swear by. L'Amour is the world's fourth bestselling living novelists with more than 140 million copies of his books in print.

Other new books available this week arThe Hunt For Red October" by Tom Clancy, "The Return Of The Gypsy" by Philippa Carr, and "To All The Nations": the Billy Graham Story by John Pollock.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

Repeat test to be certain

DEAR DR. GOTT — On a recent blood test, my glycohemoglobin level was unusually high — about three times the norm — yet no treatment or diagnosis was given. What could cause this, particularly while in a fasting state?

DEAR READER — Glycohemoglobin is a molecule formed by the combination of blood sugar and hemoglobin, the red pigment in blood cells. It reflects, in a general way, the average level of total sugar in your system over a period of weeks. Obviously, an elevated glycohemoglobin would indicate the presence of excess blood sugar — that is, diabetes.

Like any laboratory test, glycohemoglobin shows biological variation, false positives and negatives. In addition, certain drugs can interfere with normal laboratory values by disrupting chemical analysis performed in test tubes.

I am tempted to conclude that you are a diabetic. Before making such a rash presumption, however, I suggest that you see a doctor, who, by questioning and examining you, can resolve this apparent discrepancy. As a general rule, it's wise to avoid placing too much emphasis on a single laboratory test without correlating it with other factors having to do with your state of health.

About boozing, boating

Careunit issues warning

The foursome were out for a day of sportfishing on a pleasure boat 200 feet offshore.

When two of them decided to switch places, the boat capsized, spilling everyone into the water. Two clung to the boat while a third grabbed a floating cushion.

But the fourth, a middle-aged man who tried to swim ashore didn't make it and drowned.

As in 50 percent of the 1,033 fatal boating accidents that occurred in 1983, the tragedy involved drinking, according to the National Safe Boating Council.

"Drinking and boating are an especially dangerous combination," says Kay Kropff, program manager of Palo Duro Hospital CareUnit.

"It can make people feel bolder to the point where they're more willing to take chances. It can make the landlocked businessman suddenly feel like he's an America's Cup competitor."

DPS warns of dangers

School's out, and the Texas Department of Public Safety wants to remind motorists to be especially watchful all day long for children playing in or around the public streets and highways.

"School's out, warm weather is here and longer hours of daylight all signal the start of summer fun for our kids," warned Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lubbock. "Kids will be out from early morning until late at night and drivers must be especially tender."

In light of National Safe Boating Week, June 2 to 8, Kropff says people need to be especially alert to the temptation to mix "boating and booze."

Alcohol combined with the sun, wind, glare and motion of the boat can also distort even the most experienced sailor's ability to anticipate swimmers, rocks and other vessels.

The National Safe Boating Council says that since an intoxicated person can also lose his ability to see primary colors at night, he may be unable to recognize the red and green running lights that help control boat traffic.

She says other hazards of combining drinking and boating include the potential of falling asleep and drifting off course and the temptation to try dangerous stunts.

Kropff says the most potentially dangerous situations occur when alcohol impairs one's sense of balance.

The National Safe Boating Council indicates that falls overboard and the capsizing of boats under 16 feet are the primary causes of boating fatalities.

"Even without drinking, the swaying motion of a boat makes it more difficult to sustain your balance. Once you're intoxicated it's doubly difficult to maintain your balance and keep yourself from falling overboard or capsizing a small boat," Kropff says.

"Even an excellent swimmer will find himself totally helpless if he's been drinking and then thrown unexpectedly into dark, murky water," Kropff says.

Typically, boaters in that situation swim down and drown rather than swimming up to safety, Kropff explains.

People who are stranded for long periods of time in cold water can also die of hypothermia, Kropff adds.

"In light of the potential hazards, alcohol just simply doesn't have a place where boating is concerned," Kropff says.

Ann Landers

'Pick yourself up'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The women of today are smarter than I ever was. I admire their style. I always cooked at home, shopped for bargains and never bought anything I didn't need. My husband and I seldom went out. I asked for nothing. And that's what I got. We have been married 23 years. I was such a great manager and so determined to be the world's best wife that I didn't know what a jerk I was.

In the last eight years my husband has formed a great attachment to the people in his office. He goes without me to weddings, birthday parties, retirement parties, benefits for co-workers in the hospital, going-away parties. He gives hundreds of dollars in gifts and cash to these people who are total strangers to me.

If I ask to go with him to any of these functions, he tells me I wouldn't enjoy myself. If I ask him to buy me a gift he says, "It's not necessary." I always wanted an engagement ring because I never had one. He tells me I don't need one. Last week they bought one of the girls at work a solid gold chain and watch for her birthday.

So what have I been knocking myself out for? Tell me the truth. I was and still am a jerk. Right? I did learn a lesson, though. "Goodie Two-Shoes" winds up with NO shoes.

I read you daily. Thank you for listening. I hope I read about me in your column. It will help to know that maybe I taught someone a lesson in self-preservation. By the way, I'm not ugly, fat or nasty--just dumb. CINDERELLA FROM NEW YORK.

DEAR N.Y.: Obviously you have been wearing a sign for 23 years that says, "Kick me."

Why assume you must take such treatment forever? The only thing that is permanent is death. Now that you are awake and smelling the coffee, hie thee to a counselor and learn how to pick yourself up, dust yourself off and stop being a doormat.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter about the woman who complained because the physician who took care of her mother did not attend the funeral?

Why don't people realize that physicians deal with life and death every day and some of those patients are not going to make it? As a registered nurse I have seen more than my hare of terminal cases and it is always sad, especially when one develops a warm relationship with the patient.

Actually it's not the patients who are difficult, it's the relatives. Would you believe the daughter of a 73-year-old cancer patient told me the doctor was not going to be paid if her father did not get well? She said, "My husband is a photographer and when people don't like the way their pictures turn out they don't pay him. So what's the difference?"

Please print this to show your readers how crazy, stupid and unreasonable some people can be. — ELSIE IN OREGON

DEAR ELSIE: We knew about people before your letter arrived. But thanks for the reinforcement.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex - Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Kirk Jones recipient of undergraduate travel award

The American Meat Science Association has selected D. Kirk Jones, a West Texas State University senior animal science student, to receive one of five national undergraduate travel awards.

The award will be used to sponsor Jones' travel to the Association's Reciprocal Meat Conference at Louisiana State University, June 23-26.

Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Jones of 415 Ave. K., is a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School and has worked in several different jobs in the livestock and meat industry of the region. He is currently the student manager of the WTSU meat lab. He has a 3.36 grade point average in his college work.

Dr. Ted Montgomery, head of animal science said, "Kirk is one of the most outstanding undergraduates that I have ever had as a student."

The Reciprocal Meat Conference is the national scientific conference of meat scientists to present papers summarizing their research. It is generally attended by university scientists, meat industry personnel and graduate students in meat science. Jones will be recognized, presented a plaque and the $150 travel award at the conference.

Jones will graduate from WT in July and plans to attend graduate school at Texas A&M where he will work on his masters degree in meat science.

He became interested in meat science by participating on the Hereford FFA meats judging team for four years.

Gold Cups Received

Gold cups were presented to several of Evelyn Hacker's students recently. To receive a cup a student must earn 15 points in the local music festival which was held in March. These students will also be awarded a gold certificate for making three consecutive superior ratings. Pic-

Local award winners announced for year

Evelyn Hacker announces award winners for the past year. Students who had perfect attendance received a pen; those who played in the festival were awarded statues; and music dictionaries were given to those receiving theory awards. Perfect attendance theory awards and festival awards were given to Michelle and Shawn Lance, Sherry Vermillion, and Jeffery and Michael Carlson. Shalon Taylor and Lee Harder were presented theory and festival awards.

Receiving perfect attendance was Imad Khuri and Cynamin Brownlow received perfect attendance and theory.

Festival awards were given to Nikki and Chad Hutson, Jennifer Legate, Allison Farr, D'Ann Hill, Jaci Edwards, Brenda Allen, Devany Paschel, Don and Christopher Tardy, Donna and Monica Grotegut, Cally Revell, Jennifer Cansler and Susan Gage. Charles Reinauer and Greg Coplen received perfect attendance and festival awards.

Receiving theory awards were Chris Williams, Dusty Saul and Deborah Torres.

The above students and the following students were recently presented in an end of the year recital.

Musical drama strengths panhandle tourism industry

What is the second largest industry in the USA? - Tourism

In 1983, what industry brought in the third greatest number of dollars from abroad? - Tourism

What is the third largest industry in Texas? - Tourism

What Texas industry moved from the 25th place in market share in 1966 to the third place in 1983 after a modest program of advertising outside of the state, and faltered during the one year when the advertising was cut back? - Tourism

President Reagan has named May 19 through May 25th as National Tourism Week as a way of celebrating this movement of people and the effect that such movement and travel has on personal understanding and growth.

Can one attraction make a difference in the tourism picture?

Consider the case of "TEXAS."

It has changed the Amarillo/Canyon area from a pass through point to a destination.

According to the Institute of Outdoor Drama, based on economic studies prepared by the University of Kentucky, each person who attends one of the outdoor dramas spends more than $54. Last year, then, the 88,000 people in attendance spent $4,752,000. Since new money in an area is said to circulate seven times, that one season of "TEXAS" put $29,064,000 into the area economy.

The budget is three-quarters of a million dollars a year.

140 people are employed for three months (about half as many as the Youth Employment Service was able to place last year in the whole of Amarillo.)

Last year 25 percent of the audience came from within 110 miles, 50 percent came from 110 to 500 miles, and 25 percent came over 500 miles. About one percent of the audience came from abroad.

1985 is a year of excitement for "TEXAS". To celebrate the 20th season, the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation has granted $180,000 to refurbish the show. The audience will see new lights, new sets, a new road and a new train.

In addition, unlike almost all of the other outdoor dramas, "TEXAS" has stayed in the black through the years. However, there is not an adequate reserve for emergencies so an endowment fund has been created.

"TEXAS" also needs a flood of new and younger members in the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation to sustain the show through the next twenty years. The Meadows Foundation of Dallas has combined those two needs with a grant which will match any new $10 membership which comes in during the next year, with $100 toward the endowment up to $50,000. Armed with this, the Foundation is attracting the membership it needs.

To see "TEXAS", the drawing card, call the "TEXAS" office, 806-655-2181 or write "TEXAS" Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79105. The season will run from June 12 through August 24, nightly except Sundays. Celebrate tourism week by making reservations in advance.

THE TRUE FARM STORY - DOES AMERICA KNOW IT? According to one industry analyst, the achievements of American farm families go nearly unnoticed, even though those families contribute to an enviable standard of living. Instead of receiving praise for being the world's most reliable food source, he says, farmers have sometimes been the target of misinformed public disapproval when prices rise at the retail level. The public should be made aware of the true story, he says, and part of that truth is agricultural productivity has consistently increased in the face of escalating farm production costs and dwindling farm population. He quoted the statistic that, on average, one American farm worker now supplies enough food each year to feed himself and about 80 other people. That's a fact that just cannot be overlooked.

Weight Watchers reorganize here

Weight Watchers organization has scheduled meetings every Monday at 4 p.m. at Immanuel Lutheran Church, 100 Ave. B.

New members may join the group at any time and life members are always welcome.

At each meeting, topics of behavior are discussed to help make small changes in habits to aid weight loss efforts. There is an optional Pepstep program which will assist the individual in getting started on a sensible exercise routine such as walking.

ing good food choices during difficult times that may occur during the week.

With the help of an experienced staff, each member sets his own personal goal weight and works toward that goal for a lifetime of weight control.

The Weight Watchers program includes food plans for women, men and youths, recommendations for weight control during pregnancy and lactation, a vegetarian plan, and Spanish language program.

For more information about the program call 276-5239 or 364-0050.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tx -- He called himself Roger E. Morgan, M.D. Police say his name wasn't Morgan. He also was not a doctor.

He worked in a clinic treating mental retardation in New Braunfels, passing himself off as a psychiatrist. Detectives say that was nothing new. Once in Schulenburg, they say he talked his way into the principal's position at a parochial school without having any teaching credentials.

He has 12 different college degrees under 12 different identities, detectives say.

Who is this man? Investigators from Comal and Hays counties say he is Roger Prewitt Orive, 47, a man of a thousand names, a mysterious past and what is certain to be a cloudy future.

Detective Mario Guerrero of the New Braunfels Police Department says Orive worked in that central Texas community from August, 1984, to January, 1985, before skipping out on almost $25,000 worth of bad checks.

As investigators expanded their probe, they uncovered the fantastic saga of Roger Orive.

They discovered that he had degrees from such universities as Yale and California, that he had entered New York Teachers College three times under three different identities, that he had at least four different Social Security numbers listed to him under various names and that police departments from Alaska to Texas were looking for him.

On April 17, Orive was indicted by the Hays County Grand Jury for Theft by Check of over $750 and under $20,000. Comal County has an outstanding warrant charging him with theft of over $750 and less than $20,000, as well as a warrant for a woman identified as Orive's wife - Shirley Carlo Stuart.

This week Orive has been added to the Texas Most Wanted roster. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered for information leading to his capture.

Orive is described as a white male, 6-0, 160 pounds, with neatly cut brown hair and brown eyes. His most outstanding facial characteristic is a long, deep dimple on his chin.

Detectives have compiled an extensive list of identities that Orive has assumed during his strange career:

-He was Roger E.V. Morgan when he applied for a credit union application in New Braunfels. He used a Social Security number of 598-18-2272.

-He was Roger Vanderbilt when applying for a long in Austin.

-He was Roger E. Morgan, with a Social Security number of 261-38-1474, when applying for a loan in San Antonio.

-He was Roger Erik V. Ashly Morgan with a Social Security number of 491-18-2272 when applying for a loan in Oklahoma City.

-He was Roger Vanderbilt Morgan when he applied for his Texas driver's license.

Then he was Dr. Roger E.V. Morgan with a Social Security number of 595-18-3869 when he applied for employment in New Braunfels.

All these identifications have made it difficult for investigators to catch up with Orive.

"He's a real pro," Det. Guerrero says. "He really knows what he's doing."

There are a number of businesses throughout Texas that will sadly agree with Det. Guerrero's assessment.

Three businesses in San Marcos reported bad checks worth $6,439. Marion State Bank told detectives it lost $1,500 in loans. A Dallas collection service said it had $2,352 worth of bad checks. Nineteen businesses in Austin reported a total of $9,716 in bad checks written to the suspect's account.

But the big losers were businesses in and around New Braunfels. A total of 15 firms reported bad check losses of $24,219.31, most of them written in a two-week period between Christmas and January 7, 1985.

Detectives believe Orive and his wife have fled Texas, but continue to have ties to the Austin area. They say he might be using the name Roger E. Morgan Russmann.

Anyone who might have information concerning Orive's whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative program between the Department of Public Safety and Texas Crime Stoppers and is designed to generate information about the location of major fugitives wanted in the state.

Brand Policies

The Hereford Brand welcomes news articles of interest from local residents groups, and organizations. These guidelines should be followed when submitting news items:

-The Brand reserves the right to edit any and all copy submitted.
-Photos of club officers, donation presentations, etc., can be made at the Brand office, preferably after 2 p.m. Appointments for such photos must be made at least 24 hours in advance.

-On-location photos can be made, on approval, providing The Brand has at least two days notice.

-Reservations for cover pages need to be made as soon as possible to insure a desirable publication date. Arrangements for photographs need to be made with the photographer so that all photos are completed at least one week prior to publication date. The Brand also reserves the right to refuse a cover page request.

-New items or changes for the calendar of events must be submitted one week before the Wednesday or Sunday of publication.

-General news items for the Lifestyles section must be submitted by 1 p.m. the day before publication.

-The Brand has forms available to aid in preparing engagement announcements and wedding stories. Neither will be taken by phone.

-Engagements should be announced six weeks before the wedding to insure publication. Couples submitting engagement announcements after that deadline must choose to have either the engagement or the wedding photo published. Photos should be in black and white. A color photo may be used if the contrast is suitable for reproduction.

-Wedding and anniversary writeups must be submitted one week prior to the ceremony. Wedding notices submitted late will be edited considerably.

-Birth announcements are obtained from Deaf Smith General Hospital. Information on local babies born elsewhere, or who have grandparents in Hereford, must be reported to The Brand within two weeks. Forms are available, or the information may be called in.

-Club reports must be submitted within three days of the meeting or will be subject to considerable editing or omission. Forms are available at The Brand.

-Brief items of interest about former residents or children of Hereford residents are welcome when they concern degrees earned, academic honors, college news, career promotions, etc.

-Photos may be picked up from The Brand after 3 p.m. of the publication date. Published photos taken by Brand staffers may be purchased for $1. Reprints are available at $3.50 for 5x7 photos and at $4.50 for 8x10 prints.

To submit an article or obtain more information, contact Sandy Pankey, Lifestyles Editor, or Cindy Smith, at 364-2030.

Iowa leads nation in 1984 farm exports

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in three years, Iowa has moved ahead of Illinois as the nation's top exporter of farm commodities, says the Agriculture Department.

In the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, more than $3.44 billion worth of exports originated in Iowa, up from $2.85 billion in 1982-83, the department's Economic Research Service said Monday.

By comparison, Illinois accounted for $3.28 billion in farm exports in 1983-84, up from $2.94 billion the previous year.

According to USDA records, it was the first time since the record year of 1980-81 that Illinois ranked behind Iowa as the leading farm export state.

"The 1983 drought severely reduced soybean yields in 25 of the 29 producing states," the agency said in a new report on Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States, or FATUS. "Illinois soybean production in 1983 dropped 25 percent from year-earlier levels, and Iowa's fell 9 percent."

Next to corn, soybeans are the second largest export crop in both states, the report said.

Overall, the value of farm exports last fiscal year was $38 billion, an improvement over the $34.8 billion shipped in 1982-83 but still well below the peak of $43.8 billion in 1980-81. The export value this year is expected to slide again to $34.5 billion.

The top 10 states accounted for about $22.2 billion or 58 percent of last year's farm export total.

Customarily, the agency ranks only the top 10 states in its annual report. The others in this year's rankings, in order after Iowa and Illinois, included:

California, $2.66 billion last year and $2.46 billion in 1982-83, according to revised figures; Nebraska, $2.18 billion and $1.87 billion; Texas, $2.16 billion and $1.68 billion; Kansas, $2.15 billion and $1.94 billion; Minnesota, $2.07 billion and $1.81 billion; Indiana, $1.59 billion and $1.48 billion; North Dakota, $1.51 billion and $1.31 billion; and Ohio, $1.06 billion.

"Nebraska advanced to fourth from sixth position ... with sharp increases for feed grains, hides and tallow," the report said. "Texas moved up to fifth from seventh place, mainly because of steep export gains in cotton. Ohio moved ahead of North Carolina as tobacco exports fell $40 million."

North Carolina had farm exports totaling $1.06 billion last year, down from nearly $1.13 billion in 1982-83.

As in previous years, the annual report took care to explain how the state figures are compiled and stressed that they cannot be taken as absolute.

State export values "were based on the assumption that state contributions to exports are equal to each state's share of production or marketings," the report said.

"For example, if Iowa produced 17 percent of the U.S. soybean crop in 1983, it was assumed that 17 percent of the U.S. soybean product exports originated in Iowa."

However, other sources such as census marketing information were used to help compute state shares when export patterns appeared distorted or when production figures for some commodities were not available by state.

categories, the 1983-84 top 10 states in each category and each state's dollar share, rounded off, included:

Rainfall too late for farmers, ranchers

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — West Texas farmers and ranchers say heavy rains welcomed by drought-parched pastures and cropland may not have come soon enough to douse concerns about dwindling herds and falling profits.

Scattered thunderstorms, one of the region's primary sources of water, have returned after two years of drought, agricultural officials said.

"It looks good now, but two weeks of bad (dry) weather and we'll be back in the same situation," Michael Sturm, Concho County executive director for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, told the San Angelo Standard-Times. "It's important not to get too optimistic."

One rancher told the newspaper he has already sold most of his cattle herd because of bad grazing land.

"What we've had is a hand-to-mouth situation," said Buddy Clark of Menard. "What we're banking on now is trying to get the grasses up in any quantity at all to get us through the winter months."

He said he reduced his cattle herd by 75 percent last year and cut sheep flocks by 40 percent.

"I decided to reduce," he said. "I could have held on, but I wanted to get off before I damaged the grass to where it died."

"We're down to the nitty-gritty," he said. "We're talking about animals with a lot of breeding behind them, and when you have to sell them, it hurts."

Sturm said herds are now half the size of what they were in May 1984.

"We had quite a lot of stock sold off last year," he said. "There wasn't

KEEPING UP WITH THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

The monthly Social Security benefits that one receives upon retirement will depend on two things. These are one's age at the time of retirement and the average dollar amount of earnings that have been credited to one's account by the Social Security Administration. If the SSA's records reflect less than one's actual covered earnings, one could be denied benefits or receive less than one should. Thus, it is important to regularly check and ensure that all eligible earnings are properly recorded in one's account. To do so, obtain a copy of your social security earnings record every three years and carefully review it. With 115 million eligible people, mistakes do occur.

To keep your financial matters in order, you will find no better place to do business than RICK TOBERTS, CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (364-7525), 138 Third, Suite A. ## Most wheat farmers missed opportunity

LUBBOCK — Most wheat farmers throughout the Panhandle, South Plains and Rolling Plains have missed their opportunity to use fungicide to combat the worst outbreak of leaf rust to strike the region in many years, says a plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

But a few may still be able to obtain some advantage from treating their crop, said Dr. Robert Berry, who sounded the alarm for area producers two months ago.

County Extension agents in the northern tier of Panhandle counties echoed the view that producers need to take a very close look at their crop to decide if it is economically feasible to apply fungicide. "This is especially true from Interstate 40 north," said Fred Smith, Hutchinson County agent.

"Most producers made their decision a month ago," with many feeling the rust wasn't serious enough to justify the treatment, Berry said. But changing weather conditions have provided warmth and moisture which have aggravated the situation.

Producers who have wheat already blooming, or in later stages of development, with rust already evident on the flag leaves will find it is too late to expect satisfactory results from fungicide application, the Extension specialist said.

"Those plants will continue to decline and results of fungicide application will probably be disappointing, although there might be some yield enhancement," Berry said.

Fields which are in the flag stage or early heading, but without rust damage to the upper leaves, can still be treated with an expectation of good results, the pathologist said.

Berry described the Rolling Plains wheat crop as a "complete disaster" from the rust. "Many early fields are in the milk stage with absolutely no green leaves to fill the grain," he said. He said late fields are blooming and many have good color, but rust infestation is heavy and will probably kill the leaves before the grain is filled.

Berry said some fields in the Rolling Plains which were probably treated with fungicide are now showing rust. But he said it appears the two weeks of protection provided by the fungicide may be enough to yield a fair crop in these fields.

It's nightmare of declining collateral

LUBBOCK — Farmers who bought land in the past decade to fulfill their dreams of farming success are now finding themselves in a nightmare of declining collateral and profits.

Texas Tech University Agricultural Economics Professor Gary D. Condra said sharply declining land values are not only reducing the farmer's wealth, but also are limiting any ability to get credit.

"The value of a farmer's land is the basis of an ability to get a loan," Condra said. "If a farmer has a 1,000 acres worth $1,000 per acre when he bought it and it's decreased to $750, he has lost $250,000. That's a lot of collateral to lose."

Condra said the value of all U.S. farmland, which until recently has risen steadily since the 1930s, increased sharply in the 1970s with real value increasing by $465 billion. Because credit was easy to get, even though interest rates were high, many young farmers bought land that is now decreasing in value as quickly as it increased.

In the 1980s interest rates and production costs increased, export demands decreased and land values began a sharp decline. Condra said the real value of U.S. farmland decreased by $149 billion from 1980 to 1983.

"We don't have the figures for 1984 and 1985 yet, but I suspect the numbers for 1980 through 1985 will rival those of the '70s, only on the negative side," Condra said. "The thing that worries me is that we don't know where the bottom is on this slide." Condra said land is not only an indicator of a farmer's wealth, but also a traditional source of retirement income. Many farmers, after years of farming the land themselves, retire and rent the land to a younger farmer for a share of the crop.

"Many older farmers should be in good shape because their land was bought before the high interest rates, but they're not," Condra said. "Because profits are so low right now, many land owners are finding it difficult to even rent their land."

Condra said the lack of farmland buyers that is contributing to the slide in land values is partially attributable to the poor return from farming operations.

"Agriculture has never shown a great operating profit," Condra said. "Most manufacturers would look at a farm balance sheet with its average 2 to 4 percent return and think those guys are crazy to be in that business."

Condra pointed out that while the farmer is being seriously hurt by declining land values, a ripple effect is occurring that touches the economic situation of many other people.

A recent survey reported for every one farm job there 1.7 other jobs that depend on the existence of that farm position. And that, Condra said, includes everyone from the seed dealer to the grocery clerk.

"The lenders, people in agribusiness, and the town merchants the farmer has accounts with are also being hurt because they all own a portion of that collateral. With the farm economic situation the way it is, the farmer is either not buying or can't afford to pay for what's already bought," Condra said.

Rural school districts are also feeling the effects of declining land values, he said.

"A lot of rural Texas schools depend on land valuations as their tax base," he said. "The state makes up a portion of the lost revenues, but that won't help the schools maintain existing programs much less allow them to implement new programs."

Condra doesn't see any relief in the next five years unless there is a change in the current farm policy.

"I don't know what's going to happen, but I do know we need a farm program that will recognize the fact that everyone has a stake in the future of agriculture."

Farm Briefs

'85 COTTON OUTLOOK BLEAK — Although domestic cotton supplies are lower than first estimated and a lot of cotton farmers have enrolled in the 1985 acreage reduction program, the market outlook for cotton is still bleak, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Foreign production and the strong dollar abroad remain the culprits. These two things are challenging the market for U.S. cotton. Advanced export sales for 1985 cotton are lagging behind a year ago by more than 50 percent. Unless American trade policies supporting cotton are strengthened, cotton exports will continue to fall. Cotton farmers need to keep a sharp eye on the market situation to plot prices and to look for pricing opportunities during market rallies.

SPRING CATTLE MARKETING — Although most cattlemen look at the spring season as a time to expand their business, it may be a good time to do some "cashing in," notes an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Spring might be a good time to sell some cows and calves because market prices are usually at their peak since most cattlemen are out to buy more stock. Traditionally, increased demand for cattle, as well as reduced supplies, combine to boost cow and calf prices this time of the year. Cattlemen simply need to compare the weight of spring calves and the market price with their probable weight and price in the fall. Regarding cows, they need to look at the total dollars the animal would bring in the spring, at a higher price, compared to a heavier cow at a lower price in the fall.

BASIC TRACTOR SAFETY — Tractor safety is a serious matter, for violation of some basic operating rules could mean injury or even death. All farm workers should be instructed in tractor safety when they first begin work and at least annually thereafter, emphasizes a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Key safety guidelines include using seatbelts, allowing no extra riders, reducing speed when turning and when crossing slopes, staying off steep slopes, operating the tractor smoothly, hitching equipment only to the drawbar and hitch point, watching for dangers or obstacles at row ends and on roads, and setting brakes securely when the tractor is stopped.

4-H SCHOLARSHIPS — Ninety-three Texas youths will receive scholarships totaling more than a half million dollars at the 1985 Texas 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University, June 4-5. The scholarships are funded by 13 different businesses and organizations through the Texas 4-H Foundation, a non-profit organization that provides private sector support for the state's 4-H program, says a 4-H specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Christie joins local company

Jimmy Christie has joined the dealer network of Garrison Seed & Co., Inc., of Hereford, Texas according to an announcement by John Paetzold, district supervisor in charge of this area.

Jimmy will handle sales and service of the Garrison Seed line from his home in the Summerfield area.

Jimmy and his wife, Kathy and their 3 sons are members of the First Christian Church.

Garrison recently announced that they are now marketing their lines of hybrid corn, grain and forage sorghum under their own SG Brand name.

For years, Garrison Seed has been producing hybrid grain and forage sorghum and several varieties of grass seed under contract for other seed companies.

The company's headquarters, production and research facilities are located in Hereford, Texas.

The SG Brand of hybrids have a long history of top quality performance under a variety of growing conditions.

Along the border

Misunderstandings mark relations

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — The Mexico of fiestas, Spanish words, tacos and mariachi music that most American visitors enjoy is just a drop of tequila in the complex bottle of Mexican culture.

And Americans who pack their own cultural values for a trip to Mexico invariably will be fueling the silent war that is preventing Americans and Mexicans from understanding each other, say experts studying life along the long border between the two countries.

Consider these common scenes: An American arrives promptly at a Mexican office for an appointment. After waiting an hour, the American begins tapping his foot impatiently, glaring at the secretary and muttering words like "irresponsible" or "rude."

Two American women sit talking in a nice Mexican bar. After being propositioned repeatedly, the women storm out, ranting about the habits of Mexican men.

The Americans, said Jorge Bustamante, director of the Border Studies Center of Northern Mexico, are reacting to situations based on their own cultural values, not those of Mexico.

People on both sides of the border must realize that Mexican and American cultural differences run deeper than a Big Mac and fries versus a taco and guacamole.

In other words, visitors to Mexico must be willing to accept the whole cultural enchilada.

"We lack understanding of the two cultures on both sides of the border," said Bustamante during a visit here. His center is in Tijuana at the California border. "Americans tend to view things from their own experiences without considering the cultural values of Mexicans, and Mexicans do the same."

Americans can't understand why adult children in Mexico live with their parents while Mexicans see nursing homes for the elderly in the States as a sign of American "insensitivity."

Bustamante said, "If we make these kinds of mistakes, we cannot have rational communication."

Misunderstandings caused by cultural differences are especially troublesome along the border because, said Bustamante, "We interact with each other with increasing intensity."

Because the Mexican concept of time is different from the American, a person who arrives "late" for a meeting does not feel the need to apologize while a guest who arrives at his host's home at the appointed time for a dinner engagement might be considered rude.

In Mexico, the unescorted woman in a bar invariably will be considered promiscuous — and she will suffer the consequences.

Americans and Mexicans also tend to battle unwittingly over their own concept of personal space. So as the Mexican steps in closer during a discussion, the American steps backward to achieve relaxed distance he requires. But soon the conversation has moved across a room and both people are unconsciously trying to figure out why they are uncomfortable.

Visitors must learn to detect Mexico's less obvious customs — and to be open-minded enough to accept them in their appropriate context.

So, when Americans get irritated when they are "forgotten" by the waiter after having been served drinks in a restaurant perhaps they should remind themselves that it's the custom not to be offered the menu — or the check — until it's requested.

Likewise, a person who asks for a cigarette from a stranger in Mexico is not out of line, while a person who lights one without offering the pack to his or her companions is being discourteous.

Mexicans and Americans who want to fully understand each other must begin by making an effort to speak the language of the country they are visiting, Bustamante said.

The American who begins shouting in English to make himself understood in Mexico is a popular joke, while Mexicans who cross into the United States re frowned upon at the very least for not speaking English.

Misunderstandings of cultural codes creates problems wherever Americans and Mexicans meet — and sometimes even when they don't.

City hall takeovers such as the one carried out by members of the opposition National Action Party in the border city of Piedras Negras around New Year's are not uncommon in Mexico, and an election dispute is a natural spark for such violence.

Abundant Life

THE EXPANDING LIFE
By Bob Wear

IT IS OBVIOUS that we human beings have great capacity for continuing to learn, to grow, to improve and to do better. Of course, we have been given the privilege to do as we wish, with the understanding that we must accept the consequences. The 'expanding life' is not an automatic blessing, but it will be the outgrowth of our wise choosing and diligent efforts. The most rewarding accomplishment will be the result of following the best available standards and guidelines.

IT IS REPORTED, from studies that have been done in the field of human behavior, that the mind which is properly used reaches its greatest effectiveness between the years of fifty and sixty. There is a slight decline in later years, but this active mind will be as strong at age eighty as it was at age thirty. We do know enough about this aspect of living to know that our lives can be ongoing, improving, expanding and increasingly meaningful.

THE CHANGES involved should be controlled changes which make up the on-going process of growth and development. These carefully thought-out changes will help us to become stronger, wiser, happier, more effective, and more useful. As we continue this 'expanding life' there is more and more for us in the living experience, and as we give more to live, we will receive more from life.

AS WE CONTINUE the 'expanding life', living continues to be interesting, challenging, productive, forward-looking, hopeful, zestful and the rewarding experience it is intended to be. This can be done successfully, if we choose the best available value system and let this be the structure within which we continue to abide.

IN THE 'expanding life' movement toward the future provides strength and joy for the present.

Head injured survivors symposium slated June 1

"Celebration," a symposium for survivors of head injuries will be held June 1 at Bivins Rehabilitation Center in the Amarillo Medical Center. The Head Injured Survivors Symposium, the first of its kind for the head injured, will focus on overcoming the limitations of head injured persons through discovering increased means of using minds and hands to discover a more fulfilling life.

The symposium will include sessions such as lifestyle planning, craft activities, self-care techniques, planting and plant care, relaxation through imagery, managing sexuality, caring for pets, goal setting and personal growth.

LISA ARAGON, RAMIRO ALANIZ

Couple to wed

Connie Perez of Friona announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Lisa, to Ramiro Alaniz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Alaniz of Hereford. The bride-elect is a 1981 graduate of Friona High School and is currently employed by Friona Farmer County Community Hospital. Alaniz, a 1976 graduate of Hereford High School, is employed by Frito Lay Inc.

The couple will exchange wedding vows June 15 at 5 p.m. in St. Theresa's Catholic Church in Friona.

Texas' "Katy" may be a memory

By SUSAN ASCHOFF Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — When rail and energy giant Union Pacific Corp. announced its intent to buy the "Katy" railroad this week, it also foretold the end of an era.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, or Katy, has crisscrossed Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska for 115 years. The green engines with a yellow stripe have pulled cars full of rain, gravel, coal, equipment — even circus animals — over more than 3,000 miles of track.

More important, several Katy workers say, the railroad has been like a family.

"I was touched," said switchman George Robinson of the announced sale. "I have a very deep feeling for the Katy. I could have retired seven years ago and I stayed. It's just one big family here."

Robinson, 67, said he's turned down four promotion offers because "I like what I do." He's been with the Katy for 39 years. His father was a switchman, too, working on the Katy until the day he died.

"All of us know about the history of the railroad. It's a tradition" handed down, Robinson said.

Company officials Wednesday said they'd reached an agreement for New York-based Union Pacific to purchase the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad for $106 million plus other considerations.

Union Pacific said it will drop the Katy name, and the Katy cars will be renumbered and repainted for the new owner if the deal goes through.

Dallas-based Katy is a subsidiary of Katy Industries Inc. in Elgin, Ill. Although the parent company has reported recent losses, the Katy railroad racked up a $12.9 million profit in 1984.

The merger, which could take up to two-and-a-half years to complete due to required approval from the U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission, is not expected to affect the Katy's estimated 2,500 employees. Mergers or sales are common now in the railroad industry. For months it was speculated that the regional Katy would be acquired by a larger railroad.

Still, the Katy is the oldest railroad in Texas. And its workers say they can't help but feel protective of her. "The day of the small regional railroad is at an end," said Reginald Whitman, Katy president, on the day of the announcement.

The Katy, he said, was having increasing difficulties competing against the huge, merged railroads. The merger is expected to trim operating costs, extend rail lines and cut some mileage by connecting the two track systems.

"Ultimately, for the patrons and public, (the sale) is good," said Thomas G. Todd, vice president of the company's operations headquarters in Denison. "At this point, they (employees) don't feel any reason to be alarmed" about their jobs.

About 750 people work in the Denison area. Todd started with the company 35 years ago as a telegraph operator in North Texas. Robinson started as a clerk, and calls Todd — although he's upper management — a personal friend.

As a switchman, Robinson has twice routed cars for the Ringling Bros. Circus. The circus people growled as much as the animals about how to do the job, he quipped.

Both Todd and Robinson said the Katy is business as usual despite the pending sale.

"You usually find that nostalgia is more prevalent among railroad buffs than railroad employees," Todd said with a chuckle.

But Robinson said he'd hold onto the Katy a little longer.

"We're still taking care of it like we always did," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, we're still Katy."

Engagement announced

Donna Robinson and Raymond Bryan Diller, both of College Station, plan to exchange wedding vows July 19 in St. Rafaels Catholic Church in El Paso.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Robinson Jr. of El Paso and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Diller of Route 3.

Robinson, a graduate of Eastwood High School in El Paso, is a 1985 graduate of Texas A&M College of veterinary medicine.

Diller, a Hereford High School graduate, is currently attending Texas A&M.

Red Cross Update

A MultiMedia Standard First Aid Instructors class will be held Saturday, June 1, at the local chapter office. The class will begin at 9 a.m. and will finish about 5 p.m. that same day. Those persons interested in becoming instructors are asked to call the Red Cross office, 364-3761 Tuesday.

A first aid class will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for those prospective instructors whose certificates are not current. Those taking the instructors class must be at least 17 years of age and have a current first aid instructors certificate or be an E.M.T. with current status.

Prosecutors disagree on blue law enforcement

AUSTIN (AP) — While the Harris County district attorney said he will not sit idle if department stores in the area open on Sunday, the Travis County attorney said he won't prosecute violations of the blue law.

J.C. Penney and Foley's announced this week they will open Sunday even though Gov. Mark White hasn't signed a bill passed by the Legislature this week to repeal the 24-year-old blue law.

"Merchants like Foley's and Penney's are setting a poor example about what they are in the community," Harris County District Attorney Johnny B. Holmes said.

"By opening their stores on Sundays, they're choosing what law they want to abide by," Holmes said. "What if the citizens took the same attitude about choosing the laws they wanted to obey? It would be chaos."

But Travis County attorney Ken Oden said he would only prosecute if the stores forced employees to work on Sunday when they weren't willing to do so.

"Our position right now is that there is an obvious intent to change the law, and we are in a transitional period," Oden said. "It would have to be egregious conduct by a merchant before I would consider prosecution under the present law."

Legislation repealing the Blue Law — which prohibits the sale of 42 items on consecutive weekend days — is awaiting the signature of Gov. Mark White. White said he intends to sign the measure. When it is signed, repeal would be effective Sept. 1.

Foley's vice president Dan Hagan said Thursday that Foley's stores plan to open this Sunday.

"If you asked me if I felt badly about violating the law, I'd like to point out that a lot of the companies not open this weekend were open Sundays in December," Hagan said.

Macy's and Bealls stores won't be open on Sunday despite rumors among employees saying they would open, store officials said.

"As a corporation, we're definitely not interested in breaking the law. Period," said Bealls regional operating manager Jim McDonald. "Until the governor signs the law, the corporation doesn't consider it legal for us to be open on Sunday."

Officials at Macy's New York City headquarters surmised the same thing.

"The 'go' happened with no authorization from top management," said Ruth Schwartz, a Macy's vice president. "It was people at another level who assumed since the whole thing had passed, we'd be open. It was erroneous, as we all know."

FBI links doctor to Brinks radicals

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

SENATOR BILL SARPALIUS

AUSTIN — Railroad Commission members last week cut deep into the heart of the Panhandle economy, and some residents are wondering whether the region ever will be the same as a result.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two more terrorist members of the radical May 19 Communist Movement — one a former Austin, Texas researcher for the Texas Legislature and the other a fugitive physician linked to the bloody 1981 Brink's robbery in New York — have been captured in Pennsylvania, FBI officials said Friday.

A Salute to Top Grads!

Robin Hopper Connie Zinser

Robin Hopper is the valedictorian of the Hereford High School graduating class of 1985

Hopper is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hopper. A three year member of the National Honor Society, she finished her senior year with a grade point of 102.726, out of a possible 100. (Extra points maybe earned through taking advanced courses.)

For two years Hopper was involved in the advanced student program of "Pegasus." She was in honors band for three years and served on the drill team for two years, her last season as co-lieutenant. She was a varsity tennis player for three years.

Hopper was honored as a junior football attendant, a lion's Club Sweetheart and was named to Who's Who.

Connie Zinser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Zinser, is the salutatorian with a 101.9178 average. She was a member of the National Honor Society and was the local chapter's treasurer during her last year.

Her senior year she was the captain of the varsity tennis team on which she played for three years. She was on the drill team for two years, in honors band for three years and in marching band for one year.

She was voted Most Intellectual and was honored with the News Media Tennis Award her junior years.

Don Flood

Don Flood earned the highest ranking male student post with a 99.95 average. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flood.

Also a three year member of the National Honor Society, Flood has been recognized by being named to Who's Who, and as a representative to Boys State in 1984.

Flood has served his senior year in Key Club as president, and was active in that organization since his sophomore year. He also was a student council representative during his senior year.

Grads... What are their plans?

By SANDY PANKEY
Lifestyles Editor
Graduation, a time filled with a variety of emotions: excitement, reflection, happiness, sadness, relief. Every time graduation rolls around, high school memories (both good and bad) seem to crop up. Wonder what the 1985 Hereford High School seniors will be telling their children and grandchildren about their experiences? Seems with each passing year, those memories become distorted, in other words, the tales become grossly exaggerated. Surely the one about having to walk through three feet of snow to school everyday will be obsolete. (Now really, how many students would be that dedicated?) Or how about the time the parents were out of town and the big party was at that home. Did Sue actually get grounded for an entire year? Oh, sure, there is some truth in each story but... Remember when the car could be filled up for $6 and a big evening was going to the drive-in and ordering a burger and fries? (Maybe there was a little more going on at the drive-in?) Those senior bon fires were fun until you got caught burning real estate signs instead of using the old lumber that you got permission to use. That little episode cost $60 per person and the car keys taken away for three months (or was it $30 a sign and the keys taken away for six weeks?) How about all those times the teenagers thought they were pulling the 'wool over their parents' eyes' when they wanted to take the car and JUST go to the post office? "Yes, you can have the car but we don't want any extra mileage put on it," the parents said. "We WILL check the mileage gauge when you return home." Hey, no problem. It only took 10 or 15 minutes to 'make the drag' several times then you headed for the mall parking lot and did several backward 'doughnuts'. No one was the wiser. (That was the consensus at the time) As far as goals, they were more simple because the times were easier. Either get married and go to work or go to college for a few years.

Receiving a degree was icing on the cake. Okay, seniors, here's the chance to put down in black and white some of the more memorable high school experiences. (Don't forget to cut these out and place in a scrapbook so that the story can be retold ACCURATELY 20 years from now.) Questions asked included the following:
1. What have your high school years meant to you?
2. What is most memorable about HHS?
3. What are your future plans?

SANDY ALMAZAN
1. They have meant the world to me and I know there will be a lot of sweet and sad memories. My friends mean a lot to me. I'll sure miss them and all those cute guys will be gone too.
2. Being in drill team and marching out on the field was the most memorable part ever. It made me have a special feeling deep inside. The last time I performed sure made me cry. I'll love HHS always.
3. I want to be a secretary and hopefully a model.

NANCY MORENO
1. My high school years have meant a great deal to me. Leaving the good memories behind in which I shared with my fellow classmates, coaches, and teachers will be hard to come by but the memories will live forever in me.
2. The laughter and excitement whether it may be in the hallways or at pep rallies will be the most memorable about HHS.
3. I plan to attend college next fall at W.T. or San ANTONIO and major in physical education and minor in English. I plan to try out for the volleyball team.

KERRI DOBBS
1. No response.
2. I'll remember football games, homecoming and friends.
3. I plan to attend West Texas State University with a major in special education.

SHERI MCQUIGG
1. My high school years have meant a lot to me, to be able to be on the rodeo team, and I look forward to receiving my diploma.
2. The most memorable aspect about HHS is to go to class and see my friends and the teachers.

3. My future plans are to try to find work.
MOLLEY KEATING
1. These years have meant a time to enjoy my friends and family and a time to mentally mature for the future.
2. My most memorable memories will be going to the prom with Lee Brockman, the prom decorations and the ending of my research paper.
3. I plan to attend the University of Texas at Austin to major in communications.

DON FLOOD
1. The years have meant a time for growing up and for preparing for the trials and responsibilities of the future.
2. I'll remember most the abundance of spirit which the students, faculty and Hereford community have when it comes to supporting functions of the Hereford High School student body.
3. I plan to attend the University of Texas at Austin and hopefully study business and mathematics.

MARIZELDA SOLIZ
1. It's been hard work! All the work I've put in as a cheerleader has been worth the while. I'll always remember my HHS career mostly my senior year and especially my friends.
2. I will never, ever forget the prom. The food was good, the entertainment was exciting and the guys looked nice.
3. My future plans are to attend the University of Texas at El Paso. I'm undecided about everything else!

STEPHANY GEARN
1. It's meant a time to be with my friends, learn and have fun.
2. I'll always remember my friends and all the good times we have had together.
3. I plan to go to Baylor University.

BELINDA WARREN
1. It's been a time to learn about life and get ready for college.
2. Everything!
3. I plan to attend college in San Antonio.

DANNY CARRILLO
1. It's meant working very hard to graduate and get my diploma.
2. I'll always remember my friends and also the houses we built in building trades.

3. I plan to become a successful carpenter.

DOUG OWENS
1. My high school years have meant a lot to me. I will always remember my friends and the good times. I have learned how important people can be in someone's life.
2. I'll never forget the good times. Seeing people grow up and accomplish tasks that they really should not have been able to do. Also, the determination of all the Herd athletic teams.
3. I'm going to attend Baylor University and study business.

EDELIA CEBALLOS
1. The years meant that we just needed a few more years to go to be out of high school.
2. I'll remember when we played Plainview and we were behind and then in the fourth quarter we were catching up to them. A lot of people went to the football game.
3. I want to look for a job and maybe go to college and get married.

ALBERT VALDEZ
1. I can accomplish anything that I set out to do.
2. The golf team made it to regionals. It is the best high school I know.
3. I plan to get married, play golf, work and go to college.

MARTHA RODRIGUEZ
1. They have meant meeting new people and sharing new friendships which develop through the years. Also, to share a special feeling with the rest of the class as we worked our way towards our senior year.
2. My senior year will be most remembered with its prom and banquet and the musical I participated in. My best memories will be of the people and the special school we all shared.
3. I plan to study to become a professional decorator and to study nursing.

SANDRA SALDANA
1. These years have meant being able to make new friends, and preparing and maturing for the future.
2. I'll always remember being in activities like drill team, being homecoming and annual queen and most beautiful candidate. But most of all, I will always remember my senior year because you get to realize what true friendship is all about. I'm really gonna miss HHS.

3 I plan to go to W.T. and major in social work.

PRESTON LEE CLARK
1. There have been ups and downs, good times and bad, but overall the years have been enjoyable.
2. I'll remember the senior prom and banquet and the Plainview game of this year.
3. I plan to go to WTSU and major in communication graphics and mass communication.

BETTY MUNOZ
1. High school has meant the three most joyous years of my life which I will never forget.
2. Most memorable to me is being with my classmates and teachers at the senior banquet and being with them at graduation.
3. I plan to go to college.

CHAD FITZGERALD
1. A very special time which will be sad when it comes time to leave. The memories will linger on for ever!

LOVE YAHHHHHH!
2. The pep rallies, trips, marching band, being Scat and most of all-my friends!
3. College.

LISA CONNALLY
1. My high school years have been very special to me. They will be my most memorable years thanks to the extracurricular activities, teachers and most of all my close friends.

2. My friends will be the most memorable of all. The special school activities will also be very memorable.
3. After I graduate from high school I plan on attending Angelo State and being very active in the school activities.

RAUL DOMINGUEZ
1. My HHS years meant a lot to me because there was a time when I wanted to quit school, but then I decided I wanted to learn something and be somebody.
2. I'll ALWAYS remember the food at the cafeteria -EEEEEE!
3. My future plans are to be a carpenter and live it up in Longbeach, California!

KEVIN REDUS
1. These few but exciting years have transformed a child that I use to be into a man that I am now. I went through alot, some good, some bad. But inspite of the problems I had, high school taught me to stand up and face responsibility. If the problems got too heavy, I learned to look to God for assistance.
2. I'll remember all the smiling faces I saw even when things were not going as well as they should at school.
3. I plan to go to college and graduate as a physical therapist. But most importantly, I want to help people.

JESSIE J. GUERRERO
1. Right now its just a stepping stone to get to my career but climbing those stairs has been alot of fun.
2. There are tons of memories like the prom, band, etc. But what one I remember most are the friends you spend it with.
3. I plan to go to college, study pre-optometry and TAKE IT ONE DAY AT A TIME!

JOE DON ZETZCHE
1. At first HHS was merely another school in which I could learn, but as I got closer to graduation, they mean more and more to me.
2. When I performed for the entertainment for my fellow classmates at our great banquet, I was on cloud nine and so I will always remember it.
3. I will take pre-engineering for two years at WT and then take engineering at either Texas Tech or A&M.
