Dallas Most Economical City

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For a family of four with a moderate standard of living, it was most economical to live in Dallas, Atlanta, Houston, St. Louis and Kansas City in the fall of 1981, according to government statistics.

The same family were Honolulu, Anchorage, New York City, Boston and Washington, D.C., said the report released Friday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In the final in a series of comparative studies of living costs in the nation's 25 largest cities, the bureau compared expenses in the autumn of 1981 with the same period the year before for a "typical" family of four. That family consists of a 38-year-old working husband, a non-working wife and two children, ages 13 and 8. The comparisons were made at three standard of living levels — lower, intermediate, or moderate, and high. At the so-called "intermediate" level, the survey showed that it was easiest to make ends meet in Dallas, $22,678; Atlanta, $23,273; Houston, $23,601; St. Louis, $24,498; and Kansas City, $24,528. The study also showed that it cost the typical family of four $31,893 to maintain that moderate standard of living in Honolulu. That same family needed $31,890 in Anchorage, Alaska, $29,540 in the New York City and the northeastern New Jersey area, $29,213 in Boston and $27,352 in the District of Columbia, the nation's capital. The household dollar went further in metropolitan areas of the South and central states. On average, the survey estimated that a typical American family of four, with only the husband working, needed $25,407 — based on last fall's prices — to maintain the hypothetical "intermediate" standard of living. That was up 9.8 percent from the average $23,134 needed in the fall of 1980. The average family budget (See DALLAS, Page 2A)

Talks 'Well On Track'

Falklands Solution Rumored

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The return of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and rumors of a diplomatic solution to the Falkland Islands crisis have created "an air of optimism" here, press reports say. But Argentine officials are not predicting an imminent peaceful end to the dispute over the islands, and Haig's only public comment Friday was, "We are working hard." The private news agency Noticias Argentinas quoted unnamed sources as saying the talks were "well on track" and "an eventual accord would revolve around British recognition of Argentine sovereignty in the archipelago." However, there was no indication Britain relaxed its refusal to relinquish the islands 250 miles off Argentina's southern coast. The Falklands were a British colony for nearly 150 years until Argentina seized them April 2. Britain declared a 200-mile blockade zone around the islands and dispatched a 40-ship fleet, which is about 4,000 miles away. Argentine Foreign Ministry spokesman Hernan Massini Ezcurrea declined to suggest a peaceful solution might be near. When asked how long Haig might stay in Buenos Aires, Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez replied: "Maybe a day, a month or six months. I don't know." Haig returned to the Argentine capital Friday to continue his week-long effort to mediate the dispute. He brought a note from President Reagan to Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri but its contents were not disclosed. Haig's spokesman, Dean Fischer, would not say whether the secretary would fly to London from here. He declined to characterize five hours of discussions between Haig and Costa Mendez and said he did not know if negotiators had telephoned Washington or London. The Washington Post, quoting unnamed sources, said today that Argentina presented a proposal to Haig that would give Argentines the key role in administering the Falklands, inhabited by 1,800 British-descended shepherds and 600,000 sheep. The Post said the proposal called for Britain's fleet to stay about 3,000 miles away while Argentina withdraws its troops over 15 days. The proposal does not mention the word sovereignty and would allow Falklanders to run the government, but Argentina would appoint the governor, control the police and fly its flag on the islands, the newspaper said.

In London, the Guardian newspaper quoted Argentine diplomatic sources as saying the negotiations "were heading tentatively toward an offer from Argentina which could involve a period of joint Argentine-British rule over the islands." There was no comment from either nation. In Washington, a well-placed U.S. official who did not want to be named said the United States is providing intelligence to the Argentines, but he did not believe the information included the location of Britain's armada. It was learned earlier this week that the United States was supplying intelligence to Britain, and Washington officials have said the Soviet Union was similarly aiding Argentina, a major Soviet grain supplier.

Reagans Receive $14 Tax Refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his wife had key six-figure entries on their 1981 federal income tax return, but the bottom line was a $14 refund that the Reagans are using as a head start on their 1982 tax bill. The Reagans paid taxes of $165,641 — nearly 40 percent of their reported income of $418,826 in 1981 — and claimed nearly $6,000 in deductions for evening gowns donated to charity by Mrs. Reagan.

Jury Levels Death Sentence at Morin

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Convicted murder Stephen Peter Morin convinced jurors that he was truly converted to Christianity, but that alone was not enough for the panel to spare him from the death penalty, the jury foreman said. The jury deliberated for two hours and 15 minutes Friday before recommending Morin be put to death by injection for the December murder of a young woman he killed in a San Antonio restaurant parking lot. Defense attorney Pete Torres pleaded with jurors to recommend life in prison for the man who pleaded guilty to capital murder, but said he was converted to Christianity by a woman he kidnapped after the slaying of Carrie Marie Scott. "Give Christ a chance," Torres implored. "Give Christ a chance. Give Christ a chance, amen."

Jury foreman Floyd LaBure, 50, a chemical operator, said after the verdict that the jury believed Morin was a Christian. But, LaBure said, "As far as I'm concerned, he had just killed enough." Morin, 34, a drifter and a native of Providence, R.I., was on the FBI's 10 most wanted list. He had been sought since 1976 when he was charged with raping and brutalizing a 14-year-old girl in San Francisco, Calif. He was tried here for the murder of Miss Scott, 21. Despite his guilty plea, state law required prosecutors to present corroborating evidence of the killing before seeking the death penalty. A Nueces County grand jury has indicted Morin in the strangulation death of Janna Bruce, 21, of Corpus Christi and he is wanted in several other states on murder, rape and kidnap charges.

Morin testified in his own behalf during final arguments Friday and asked the jury to spare his life because he had been "reborn." He said he felt "very deep remorse" for his actions and told the jury that the trial's testimony showed him as "a person who had not met Christ till that fateful day... a person who had run and eluded the law for more than half his life." But prosecutors told the jurors that they could not disregard Morin's crimes even if they believed his conversion was genuine. "This man has made himself what he was and is," said Bexar County District Attorney Susan Reed. "He made himself a mass murderer." "I don't like to see God used by this man," Ms. Reed said.

Computerized Drug Device Implanted

CHICAGO (AP) — The first computerized drug-dispensing device ever implanted in a human being has kept a Joliet, Ill., cancer patient pain-free for almost a month without the side effects of more traditional treatments, medical authorities say. The implant, which administers tiny doses of morphine three times a day, was implanted in a 69-year-old man on March 19, officials revealed Friday. "The device is working well and the patient is very pleased," said Dr. Richard D. Penn of Rush-Presbyterian-

Hosting the Bike-a-Thon will be the Office of the District Attorney. All officer personnel will be on hand to kick off the event and award prizes. According to Roland Saul, District Attorney, those who wish to participate can obtain sponsor sheets from his office on the 4th floor of the courthouse, or from the office of any school principal in the Hereford school system. Participants should solicit pledges from relatives, friends, or neighbors for a minimum of cents per mile. The total amount to be collected from the sponsors after the event will be based on the number of miles each participant completes. Among the special activities will be afternoon racing between various age groups to be conducted at Veterans Park with T-shirts awarded to winners in each group. The races will commence at 2 p.m. with a small entry fee required. Pre-registration for the bike-a-thon begins at Veteran's Park with the event to get underway by 9 a.m.

Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon Scheduled for May 1

A special, county-wide, bike-a-thon to benefit the Hereford Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is scheduled for Saturday, May 1 at the County Library parking lot. The event is open to everyone who wishes to help support the fight against cystic fibrosis which, among genetic diseases, is the leading cause of death and disability in children and young adults. Youngsters with cystic fibrosis may be smaller than their peers, tire more easily and be frequently out of breath. They may have persistent coughs but the illness is not contagious. There is no cure at present for the disease, which affects approximately one in every 1,800 births.

WGN Joining Cable 'Family'

WGN, the Chicago Super-channel, a 24-hour Television Station now on Satellite, will be seen in Hereford effective Monday and Hereford Cablevision Manager, Lloyd Ames, says it will be a definite addition for viewers as it replaces KTVT, Ft. Worth, on Channel 11. The reason for the channel programming change is twofold. The first was a 731 percent increase in cost per channel and secondly, their service was sporadic and deteriorating. Ames noted that the Chicago Station will be received in Hereford via RCA Stacom 3R and will provide a much clearer and reliable picture as well as 24-hour viewing compared to 18 hours from the Ft. Worth Station. The new station features movies, sports and children's and family programming. At the same time, Ames noted that there will be no PBS programming on Channel 13 for about five weeks due to a change in technical receiving of the station in Hereford. Hereford Cablevision will soon receive PBS programming from KXTX, Lubbock rather than from the Dallas Station which has been received by microwave. The Lubbock PBS station is constructing a new 850-foot tower and upon completion, around the end of May, that signal will be received in Hereford rather, than the microwave process from Dallas. PBS will remain on Channel 13 and effective Monday, WGN, Chicago will be seen on Channel 11 with 24-hour satellite viewing.

James Mays Day Slated

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee will observe "James Mays Day" in Hereford Friday, April 23 to honor one of the city's most successful athletes according to committee chairman Steve Nieman. The observance is being held that day in conjunction with the District 4-5A Boys' Track Meet being held at Whiteface Stadium. Mays' a former schoolboy state 800-yard run champion, was a three-time All-America performer with Texas Tech University, and qualified for the 1980 Olympic Trials. Mays' accomplishments are numerous. He won the Class 5A 800 yard dash title in 1977, his senior year at HHS, and holds the school record in the event with a 1:52.0. As a sophomore at Tech he was the 600-yard-run champion at the SWC Indoor Meet, a qualifier for the NCAA Outdoor Meet in the 800, and was a member of Tech's Texas Relays distance medley and 2-mile relay teams. In 1980 Mays was the SWC champ in the 800 (Outdoors) and gained his first All-America honor with a fourth place in the 800 at the NCAA Outdoor Meet. He qualified for the Olympic Trials, and represented the South at the U.S. Sports Fest. That was also the first year he was honored as the Panhandle Sports Track Athlete of the Year. In 1981 Mays was twice an All-America with a third in the indoor 800 and a fourth place in the outdoor version. He was Tech's Athlete of the Year, the Panhandle Sports Athlete of the Year, and a member of the Athletes in Action European touring team. He currently runs with the Athletic Attic track team, and was a member of the U.S. National team which toured Europe March 7-20. Mays is the son of the Rev. L.V. Mays of Hereford.

Seven Officers Fired, Six Suspended In Election Night Spree

HOUSTON (AP) — Firing seven police officers and suspending six others without pay for allegedly terrorizing black guests at a hotel following a Nov. 4 election night drinking spree was a "deliberate attempt" to influence a grand jury, an attorney says.

Acting Police Chief John Bales notified the officers of his disciplinary action Friday, culminating a five-month investigation by Houston Police Department's internal affairs division.

But Richard Cobb, an attorney representing the disciplined officers, called the action "an injustice."

"I've never seen a more deliberate attempt to influence the vote of a grand jury," Cobb said. "They knew the grand jury would vote Tuesday. I only hope they will ignore this cheap shot."

Fired were Steven A. Bremer, John C. Passmore, Morris S. Davis Jr., Thomas E. Branc, Norman R. Giles, William F. Luvin and James A. Harris, said HPD spokesman Larry Troutt.

Two officers, Rodney H. McKenzie and William R. Cumbess, were suspended without pay for 60 days, Troutt said. Suspended for 15 days without pay were Stephen L. Franklin, Michael Butitta, Clyde H. Hall Jr. and Richard Barajas, he said.

All officers, in their 20s and 30s with from two to six years experience, have 10 days to appeal the action to the Civil Service Commission, Troutt said.

Cobb said the officers will decide what to do after the grand jury meets.

The investigation was prompted by reports that the officers terrorized guests at the Della Apartment Hotel in the predominantly-black Fifth Ward.

The guests claimed the officers drove through the hotel parking lot waving Confederate and skull-and-crossbones flags. The officers shouted racial slurs, harassed and beat several guests, the guests said.

Residents Back Home After Pipeline Break

NORTH RICHLAND HILLS, Texas (AP) — A dense, white cloud of explosive gas spewing from a ruptured pipeline gave about 1,000 evacuated residents of this Fort Worth suburb cause for worry and in at least one case — embarrassment.

There were no injuries just inconvenient for the other half," said hairdresser Carla McGee. "He wasn't too happy, but it was either that or blow up."

An explosion could have created a rolling fireball "200 to 300 feet in diameter," said Joe Erwin, fire chief at nearby Hurst.

But there was no explosion and the cloud of gas that had spread across a two square-mile area dissipated in winds gusting to 30 mph.

The residual liquid petroleum gas in the eight-inch line had been cleared by late Friday afternoon and residents were allowed to return home six hours after they had been forced to leave.

"They've gotten everything fixed and the residents are back in their homes," a police dispatcher said Friday night.

Brombacher Named Teacher Of Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — On the wall of Bruce Brombacher's eighth grade classroom is a sign that reads "Math Teachers Know All the Angles!"

Brombacher should. He bounced into education like a billiard ball, ricocheting off a career in physics and a stint in the military. Now — after only six years in the classroom — he's the nation's 1982 Teacher of the Year.

Brombacher, 33, teaches at the 650-pupil Jones Junior High School in Upper Arlington, a Columbus suburb. The husky 6-foot-4 teacher — a military policeman in Vietnam — has the physical tools to create a "learn it or else" atmosphere. But his students are completely at ease and seem to regard him more as a chum than an authoritarian figure.

"Kids at this age are pretty perceptive," he said, "you can't really fake them out. They read it pretty quickly if you're trying to put on an act."

Colorful mathematics posters dot the walls of Brombacher's classroom. And when the Rubik's Cube came on the market, he solved the puzzle and brought it in as a teaching tool.

He said, "we live metrics" when we study them — measuring, weighing and even talking in metrics. "They feel more excited in being involved in things like that."

Brombacher, Ohio's 1982 teacher of the year, was chosen as the country's top educator from more than 1 million teachers in the annual awards program, sponsored by the Encyclopedia Britannica Co., the Council of Chief State School Officers' and

President Reagan will present Brombacher with a crystal apple at a White House ceremony Thursday.

Brombacher was born into a teaching family in Bucyrus, a community of about 13,000 in north central Ohio. Ten members of his family have taught in the Ohio public school system for a combined total of 100 years.

"School was always a good experience for me," Brombacher said. "I enjoyed helping other kids learn. I always enjoyed helping tutor people."

However, Brombacher said his aptitude for math coupled with the demand in the late 1960s for science graduates led to his decision to study physics and math at Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio.

He received a masters degree in physics from Ohio State University in 1975 and won internships at Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee and Illinois' Argonne National Laboratory. Nuclear fusion and solar ponds were part of his research, he said, but he disliked working in a little room by himself.

"I'm a people person," he said, and "that teaching feeling was always there."

So he picked up his teaching certification at Otterbein College and was hired by the Upper Arlington school system in 1976.

A typical day in the classroom finds Brombacher reviewing algebraic equations on the blackboard, fielding questions along the way.

Model Iwo Jima Memorial To Be Unveiled Friday

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Naval artist Felix de Weldon was painting a scene from the Battle of the Coral Sea on Feb. 23, 1945, when the most famous photograph of World War II came over the wire.

After seeing Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal's image of five Marines and a Navy medical corpsman raising the colors atop Mt. Suribachi on Iwo Jima, de Weldon immediately began modeling a small clay statue of the scene.

He finished it in 48 hours. His superiors at the Patuxent (Md.) Naval Air Station marveled at the likeness. They shipped the painter's mate second class and his model to Washington, where he was commissioned to do a major artwork.

Almost 10 years and 36 models later, President Eisenhower dedicated the U.S. Marine Corps War Memorial in Arlington National Cemetery in 1954.

A second dedication will take place here Friday, when the original plaster model used to cast the memorial will be unveiled in its retouched and bronzed condition.

Gov. Bill Clements will speak at the ceremony, which is expected to draw 20,000 people.

A 9-foot by 14-foot flag for the statue will be delivered from Austin by a team of runners from the University of Texas ROTC program.

De Weldon donated the model, valued at $3.5 million, to the Marine Military Academy. The private boarding school enrolls 350 youths in grades 8 through 12. It is not affiliated with the Marines but retains the name by annually going through the same rigid inspection as Marine bases.

The sculptor wanted to move the four-story-tall structure from his Newport, R.I., studio to a Sunbelt location where it would be safe from damaging freezes. A general suggested the academy, by circumstance located at 320 Iwo Jima Blvd.

The cast was cut into 110 pieces and loaded aboard 10 flat-bed trucks. The Texas Motor Transportation Association hauled it free of charge from Rhode Island to the tip of Texas.

Each of the six figures was reassembled here, reinforced with steel and lifted by crane into position atop a granite-faced base.

A bronze epoxy coating will protect the delicate plaster and resemble the Arlington monument.

The Texas structure will be heavier, wider and taller than the bronze casting.

"Everything's bigger in Texas, you know," said the Vienna-born artist.

His works are on every continent, including a bronze statue of Admiral Richard Byrd at McMurdo Sound in Antarctica.

Bronze shrinks as it cools. The Arlington monument lost 18 inches in height after its casting, which alone required three years. The Texas version is heavier because of the steel reinforcements and wider to allow better balancing of the added weight.

Although de Weldon's first model copied the Rosenthal picture, his later versions group the men closer for artistic effect.

The man depicted at the foot of the flagpole is buried 15 miles away from here in Weslaco. Marine Corp. Harlan Block died two weeks after the flag raising as fighting continued on the Pacific island. The atoll's capture was declared complete on March 26, 1945.

Only one man in the group, former Navy Pharmacist Mate 2nd Class John Bradley of Antigo, Wis., survives and has been invited to the ceremony.

The other Marines immortalized in film and bronze are Pfc. Ira Hayes of Sacaton, Ariz.; Pfc. Franklin Sousley of Flemingsburg, Ky.; Sgt. Michael Strank of Conemaugh, Pa.; and Pfc. Rene Gagnon of Manchester, N.H.

Retired Maj. Gen. Ralph Spanjer, the academy's superintendent, said the school has raised $560,000 in private donations and in-kind contributions for the assembly and transportation.

"We have about $60,000 to $70,000 to go," he said. "This is like a new art form, reassembling and strengthening it so it will last for thousands of years."

De Weldon, whose expenses are being paid, is donating his time. He dropped work on 15 other projects to supervise the effort.

The original dedication was scheduled for Feb. 19 when President Reagan had been scheduled to attend. It took longer to recondition the cast than had been expected.

After the bronze work was cast in a New York foundry, de Weldon moved the plaster structure back to his Washington studio. He transferred it to his Rhode Island studio during the Korean War for fear it might be damaged if the enemy

Device

St. Luke's Medical Center, who implanted the device.

"The device has made it possible to care for the patient at home in the last stages of his illness," said Penn, who declined to reveal the patient's name.

The hockey puck-sized instrument, built by Medtronic Inc. of Minneapolis, was implanted in the patient's abdominal wall. It contains a small, refillable reservoir of morphine and injects it directly into the spinal cord through a catheter, said Penn, associate professor of neurological surgery at Rush-

Presbyterian.

By administering the drug directly to the nervous system in the pain-stricken area, Penn explained, the patient is being kept pain-free with only one one-hundredth the amount of morphine once needed to ease his debilitating lower back and pelvic pain.

The oral morphine the patient had been receiving before the implant was causing unwanted side effects, including constipation and excessive drowsiness, Penn said.

Penn stressed that the device, which was approved for clinical evaluation by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in February, is not applicable to all patients in severe pain. But he said it is an important development for certain patients and certain diseases — particularly diabetes and cancer.

Kent Van Kampen, head of the Medtronic team that developed the device, predicted the implant may have a place in the control of chronic pain, the treatment of cardiovascular disease, the control of diabetes and the administration of chemotherapy.

Dale Olseth, Medtronic's chief executive officer, said the device is fully automatic and can be programmed to release medication at a wide variety of rates.

Penn said that while the patient was recovering from the two-hour implant operation, the device was used to adjust the morphine dose level upward until the pain was gone. After a period of monitoring, the patient was allowed to return home, he said, and now has to make the 40-mile trip to Chicago only for occasional office visits.

Reagans

gowns that Mrs. Reagan reported donating to charity shortly before Reagan took office.

Roy D. Miller, the Los Angeles tax attorney who prepared the Reagans' return, said the gowns were donated Jan. 5, 1981 to the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising, Los Angeles, and the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

An additional $5,965 which Reagan claimed in cash contributions was donated to unspecified churches and public charities, Miller said.

Altogether, the Reagans claimed $101,943 in itemized deductions. They also claimed $6,096 in moving expenses for traveling cross-country to Washington.

Reagan, whose salary as president is $200,000 a year, reported receiving $189,167 in wages from the U.S. government (he was a private citizen until Jan. 20, 1981) and $42,635 in royalties, advances and payments for "past writings and from past radio, acting or other appearances."

He said he received $66,558 from his blind trust and $51,482 in delayed payments on the sale of some property several years ago. He also received a pension of $22,197 as former governor of California.

It was revealed some months ago that Mrs. Reagan had been wearing clothes she received from various American designers but did not pay for. Her office characterized the dresses and gowns as loans and said she planned to pass them along to museums.

Although some tax attorneys contend the new gowns — those received last year — should have been listed as income, the Reagans' return does not mention them.

Miller said it was his understanding that Mrs. Reagan "was just going to have the use of (the designer clothing) for official purposes, in her official role" as first lady, and that the designers themselves eventually would get the gowns back and give them to museums without claiming any deductions on them.

"We were satisfied that those gowns were not transferred in ownership to her" and therefore were not considered either as income or as deductible contributions, he said.

"Don't let him put God in this position. Don't let him use God."

Torres said following the verdict that the state had an "overwhelming case." "We did all we could," he said. "If I could have tried it all over,

Morin brought a red Bible into the courtroom for closing arguments and his attorney said he had said he was "prepared for the worst."

needed to maintain the "lower" standard of living was $15,323 a year, up 9.1 percent from the $14,044 of the previous year, and the figure for the "higher" standard of living was $38,060, an increase of 10.6 percent from the $34,409 during the autumn of 1980.

The survey included costs for food, housing — either home ownership or rental expenses — transportation, health care, tax payments, clothing, personal care and Social Security payments.

Annual family budgets needed for a "higher" standard of living were led by Honolulu, at $50,317, followed by New York-northeastern

New Jersey, $47,230; Anchorage, $45,119; Boston, $44,821, and Washington, D.C., $41,137. Dallas required the smallest family budget, at $33,769; Atlanta, $34,623; Houston, $34,728; St. Louis, $35,965, and Cincinnati, $36,599.

For the lower standard of living, the five most expensive areas were: Anchorage, $22,939; Honolulu, $20,319; Seattle-Everett, Wash., $17,124; San Francisco-Oakland, $17,080, and Washington, D.C., $16,702. The least expensive areas in this category were: Dallas, $14,392; Atlanta, $14,419; Buffalo, $14,710; Kansas City, $14,925; and Denver, $15,093.

Caution, Not Fear Learned From Hereford's First Tornado As Victims Recall Vivid Experiences of Twister

By SANDY PANKEY
BRAND STAFF WRITER

THE CALM before the storm, then suddenly a deafening roar, sounds of glass shattering, wood splintering...a tornado has hit.

The tornado season has come early this year to Texas. It is time NOW to start anticipating what precautions should be taken in the event a tornado does occur.

Last summer, more powerful warning systems were installed in Hereford. They are activated through the Civil Defense warning system. When a possible tornado has been sighted, it is reported to Jay Spain, civil defense director, County Judge Glen Nelson, Mayor Bartley Dowell or Dudley Bayne, city manager.

Immediate action is taken. These men arrive at the fire station, civil defense headquarters, and remain there until it is decided that the alarms should be activated or until the all-clear signal is designated.

Another alarm method is available through cablevision. Lloyd Ames, cablevision manager, can interrupt cablevision stations with a verbal announcement that a tornado is approaching. The warning cannot be broadcast on channels 3, 6, 11 or 13, however.

THE WARNING systems are located at the following specified areas: one block east of Deaf Smith County Library; 15th Street, between the alley of Ave. I and Ave. J; 13th St., near the 7-11 Store; the alley in the 200 block between Ironwood and Juniper Street; the west end of Norton Street; Country Club Drive; South Main; and the Labor Camp.

The tornado is the most destructive child of a thunderstorm. Although it is short-lived, when one of these local storms hits populated areas, it can leave a path of terrible destruction, loss of life and many injuries.

Fortunately, loss of life and serious injury was not the case when Hereford was hit by its first tornado at approximately 12:45 a.m. Monday, April 19, 1971.

Wipe Out

It took only a few moments for the tornado to rip through Hereford and cause massive damage. Fortunately there were no serious injuries.

The destruction the storm caused was extensive. Although it was only one block wide in its trip through this city, it caused nearly $1.8 million damage in the town itself, and county and city damages combined amounted to approximately $2.5 million.

Luckily, none of the residents were seriously hurt; only minor cuts were reported.

It first hit south of Hereford, near Ward Gin, and swerved slightly in a south-north angle. The tornado missed the Deaf Smith General Hospital by one half block. It made its way down a path bordered by Star Street and Ave. K in the eastern section of town.

For the most part, mass damage was limited to the east side of Star, and just the opposite was true on Ave. K. Homes on the west side of that street were heavily impaired.

Houses were unroofed, garages blew away, camper trailers toppled, large strips of tin wrapped themselves around trees, fences exploded, boards were driven into cars and the list goes on.

The twister itself lasted only five to 10 minutes in the city limits and although not all agreed that it actually ever touched ground, it caused much destruction.

For three Hereford residents, the memory of this frightening morning is still very vivid in their minds.

THE HOME of Earnest and Helen Langley of 502 Star was very badly damaged. It had to be completely rebuilt. Structural damage was heavy. The southwest bedroom was demolished; the entire roof of their home was lifted, rafters and ceilings had fallen, windows were broken and insulation was everywhere.

Believing that the tornado watch was no longer in effect in this area, the Langleys retired for the evening. Other occupants in the home at the time included Mrs. Langley's mother and father and her daughter Carolyn.

dumb things that you do and some of the ridiculous thoughts that come into your mind."

"I was simply furious because I couldn't get the back door to open. Backed up against it was every kind of debris imaginable. I was also worried that my father would get wet from the rain coming in from the ceiling and broken windows. It wasn't even raining! We helped get him dressed and he spent the remainder of the night with the Jimmy Gillentines across the street."

After the initial shock of such a tragedy, reality finally surfaces...time to begin cleaning up. Mrs. Langley and her family began moving furniture and other household goods from the badly damaged rooms.

"The help of the community was remarkable. It was like a big human vacuum cleaner. People began arriving to help carry off the debris and trash. I have never in my life seen a community get together in an emergency like this one did," she recalled.

Besides the tremendous help of friends and neighbors, the local city, county and state employees, along with gas, utility and telephone company workers were also highly commended for their part in assisting the community.

Several hundred workers helped to restore order and normal conditions to the stricken areas. Help was not confined to local residents. People from various neighboring cities came to lend a hand.

States Mrs. Langley, "Catholic nuns helped us pack things and J.D. Poarch offered his home, which we lived in for the next eight months while our home was being rebuilt."

Predictions of a tornado are never certain. Strange things happen which are totally unexplainable. Mrs. Langley remembers that before retiring for bed her husband had laid down his cigarettes and an ashtray with ashes in it on a table in the den. When they went to survey the damage, they noticed that trash barrels had made their way into their den and trash and litter were strewn everywhere, but the cigarettes and ashtray remained intact.

When asked if the experience of the storm had left the feeling of fear imbedded in her mind, Mrs. Langley responded, "I'm not afraid of bad weather. There is one thing I would never do, however, during a tornado warning, that is to go outside, much less to get into the car."

Mrs. Langley explains, "We had been under a tornado watch but went to bed after an Amarillo station had been given the all-clear sign. What we didn't realize was that the forecast was not for this area."

"It hit so suddenly that we were not immediately aware of what was happening. As we began walking through the house, we noticed glass all over the floor. The chandelier was broken and light was coming in through the ceiling," she said.

"When we finally realized that a tornado had hit, my husband's reaction was one of disbelief and shock. I was just frozen with fear."

"Our bedroom is centrally located in the north part of our home. It was not really damaged but the bedrooms that were occupied, as well as one that was not, were located in the south section of our house. They were badly damaged."

Mrs. Langley's mother had heard the approach of the tornado and had awakened her husband and told him to put pillows over his head for protection. Their daughter had fallen asleep under the hairdryer and hadn't realized what had happened.

Recalling with amusement, Mrs. Langley commented, "Thinking back on that morning, I realize some of the

Income Tax

It may be that the income tax, as we know it today, has outlived its usefulness.

Perhaps the best way to get all Americans back to paying their fair share is to switch to a straight 10 percent across the board--no deducts, no loopholes and no exemptions.

One of the reasons our income tax is so high is due to the "underground economy." Too many Americans are not recording and not reporting income to Uncle Sam.

In a recent Business Week magazine article, several economists estimated the "off the books" figure at approximately $380 billion. The Internal Revenue Service estimates that $300 billion of 1981 income will go unreported.

The amount unreported is sufficient, if taxes were paid on the amount, to wipe out this year's projected federal deficit.

The underground economy is made up of both legal and illegal activities. A breakdown attributes $255 billion from legal business--$115 billion unreported from self employment, $20 billion in interest is missing, $18 billion from corporate profits, $15 billion in rents and royalties, $80 billion in wages and salaries, and $7 billion from other activities.

Another $125 billion is attributed to illegal sources. That includes some $45 billion from drugs, $15 billion for prostitution, $6 billion to pornography, $4 billion from gambling and loan shark activities, and $10 billion to various other sources.

Impact of the unreported income is obvious. It means the U.S. economy is stronger than indicated, that people are actually saving more than reported, and that unemployment is much lower than published figures.

Falkland Islands

We would wager that not one person in 100 in Perryton ever heard of the Falkland Islands before Argentina took these islands over last week.

Now we hear plenty of the Falklands, the small islands some 400 miles off the coast of Argentina.

The Argentine government has twisted the tail of the British lion and while the lion is roaring, it has to be admitted that he is mostly toothless these days and it remains to be seen what, if anything, England is going to do about it.

Before we snicker too much at the British lion, however, we ought to consider what the United States would do if some second rate nation moved in and took over a U.S. possession.

We suspect that there would be very little direct action in the mold of Teddy Roosevelt or even Harry Truman.

Ronald Reagan would no doubt be bolder in action than Jimmy Carter was, but still the President these days is tied up with new laws which give Congress much more control over foreign affairs than at any time in our previous history.

Thus, if the U.S. were in the same situation, we could look for the Secretary of State to go to the United Nations and ask for a resolution of condemnation toward the aggressor. England did this.

We could look for the Democratic leaders in Congress to lay the blame for the takeover on the Republicans and some of them would go so far as to demand the resignation of the head of the nation.

England did just this, calling for Mrs. Thatcher's resignation.

The U.S. might round up as many seaworthy ships as are in the Navy and set sail, running a bluff on the enemy that may or may not work. England is doing this.

The problem is that these conflicts are not in the play book these days. The big nations, England included, have enough nuclear warheads to blast another nation's capitol to smithereens. But nobody seems to have enough conventional weapons, except Russia, to fight an old fashioned war.

Let's hope the U.S. doesn't get in the same fix England is in.

The Perryton Herald

The Newspaper BIBLE

DON'T MAKE THE SAME MISTAKE AGAIN!

This evil nation is like a man possessed by a demon. For if the demon leaves, it goes into the deserts for a while, seeking rest but finding none. Then it says, "I will return to the man I came from. So it returns and finds the man's heart clean but empty! Then the demon finds seven other spirits more evil than itself, and all enter the man and live in him. And so he is worse off than before." (Matthew 12:43-45)

Then Jesus stood up again and said to her, "Where are your accusers? Didn't even one of them condemn you?" "No, sir," she said. And Jesus said, "Neither do I. Go and sin no more." Later, in one of his talks, Jesus said to the people, "I am the Light of the world. So if you follow Me, you won't be stumbling through the darkness, for living light will flood your path." (John 8:10-12)

And when a person has escaped from the wicked ways of the world by learning about our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and then gets tangled up with sin and becomes its slave again, he is worse off than he was before. It would be better if he had never known about Christ at all than to learn of Him and then afterwards turn his back on the holy commandments that were given to him. There is an old saying that "A dog comes back to what he has vomited, and a pig is washed only to come back and wallow in the mud again." That is the way it is with those who turn again to their sin. (2 Peter 2:20-22)

The Penultimate Word

NOSES

I have never met a person who liked their nose. I have met one or two who just did not think about their's very much, but most folks have problems with their noses. Matter of fact, noses may be the cause of more unhappiness and psychological hang-ups than any other part of the human anatomy.

I have known people who never found a sense of worth because early in their lives, they decided their nose was ugly. Some of them did have ugly noses, but isn't it possible to still be a great person even if you are blessed with an ugly proboscis?

Most of us think our nose is ugly whether it is or not. The prettiest of women think their's is too long...too short...too pug...too pointed...too flat...too broad...too narrow...or too something. Maybe God created noses to give plastic surgeons something to do.

The truth is, all of us have ugly noses. There ain't no such thing as a pretty nose. God just didn't do His best work in that area. Not only man, but all other animals have ugly noses. Look at what He did to the elephant, and by the way, He didn't do the moose a favor either!

Braniff's Goal-Line Stand

Over my shoulder a backward glance.

Dallas, Texas. Braniff Airline, after 50 years of ups and downs, is way down this time. Crushed between inflated costs and recession-reduced traffic, Braniff flew backward last year 160 million dollars.

But like Dallas' Cowboys--when backed all the way back to the one-yard line--the men and women of Braniff are making a goal-line stand that is inspiring to behold.

If they can hold off hard-charging creditors until summertime's increased vacation travel, nose down on the turns they have a chance. And they will.

Or they will die trying. Most of a year ago Braniff, running out of altitude, lightened the load with a 10 percent pay cut for everybody.

Yes, including the boss man. But since then, and with personnel pared to bare bones, would you look at what else: Workers working for half-pay... Or extra hours at no extra pay... Or furloughed employees willing to keep working anyway--for no pay!

Not in the history of American industry has anyone seen anything like this. Pilots' wives volunteering 12-hour days answering phones. Furloughed stewards out selling tickets--office to office--in booths at shopping malls--wherever.

Big-D is a Christmas tree of billboards shouting, "Go Braniff! Fly Braniff!" Newspaper editorials salute the sacrificers; trade unions volunteer help. Cab drivers pass the hat. Merchants offer discounts to Braniff families. And phone callers from all over; full-time workers offering spare time to do anything. They mean anything--sweep floors, do windows, scrub toilets.

Braniff President Putnam returns from a trip seeking help which he did not get -- yet hundreds of employees were at the airport to "cheer him up!" Employees schedule early morning meetings for prayer--then go from there to sell T-shirts emblazoned: BUY NOW, FLY LATER.

Tom landry who is not for sale to anybody is on TV for free selling tickets. And many Dallas, Texans are paying for tickets they will never use. Recently at a Dallas-Fort Worth rally for 10,000 Texans of assorted occupations--at any mention of beleaguered Braniff they were on their feet cheering. Cowboy Stadium never heard a greater outpouring of support than for this gallant goal-line stand. I don't know... Maybe an all-wise Almighty allows cyclical recessions as a shakeout for the undeserving. And maybe what I see happening to rally the troops in Texas could not happen elsewhere. But maybe it could. Maybe all the rest of us need is a worthy example, a star to steer by. It's fourth down and one, Cowboys-- Go for it!

Warm Fuzzies, Doug Manning

Why He chose to build an ugly, wet thing with hair in it and then turn it upside down right over the mouth is beyond me. Then He put it right between our eyes, so we all have to look at it. There must be a purpose, but I cannot figure out what it could be.

Maybe He put it there to make kissing more of a challenge. The thing does get in the way, doesn't it?

Maybe He put it there so we would have somewhere to hang our glasses. Then we invented contacts but they are un-natural.

Maybe He put it there as a challenge. If you can find self-worth with a nose on your face, you deserve it.

I spent my youth hating my nose, and hating me because of my nose. It is big and bent. It has been broken twice. As big as it is, it had to get hit. My nose almost won. Then I started looking around. No one else has a pretty nose either, so mine ain't so bad. Besides, mine is big and handy for picking. My motto is "You can't pick the nose you want, so pick the one you have!"

It's My Turn

The Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers unit finally had to put its money where its mouth was this week. The indictment of suspect(s) in a former Crime of the Week has resulted in the payment of the $500 fine offered by Crimestoppers.

District Attorney Roland Saul has asked us not to reveal which crime of the week was involved at this time, but that doesn't really matter. What matters is that the idea of paying for information about a crime for which leads or clues have been scarce is working here in Hereford as it has worked in other areas.

Perhaps this first measure of success will encourage other possible informants to come forward with information that will help clear up other local crimes.

As has been stressed, persons providing such information may remain anonymous and remain free from fear of retaliation from the criminal element involved.

And, we remind you that you don't really have to see a crime in action. Any suspicious activity which you may have been a witness to may be connected to a crime, even though you didn't realize it at the time.

The Crimestoppers, Inc. board is dedicated to aiding local law enforcement officials and the DA's office in keeping crime at bay in your city.

But, YOU, the public, are still the key to making the program work. After all, they could offer a much larger reward and still not be successful if "John Q. Public" didn't do his part.

The clue line, 364-CLUE, is available on a 24-hour basis. The Brand and KPAN feature the Crime of the Week each week. But, informants don't have to wait until "their crime" is featured. The police need our help daily to help keep Hereford a safe, clean place to live.

Remember, the next victim may be someone you know or love; IT MIGHT EVEN BE YOU!

The Bootleg Philosopher

Geography

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has been forced to learn something new about geography.

Dear editor:

I don't know about others but I had managed to make it this far in life without ever having heard of the Falkland Islands.

Such ignorance wasn't something I was losing sleep over, as there must be thousands of islands scattered around in the oceans of the world most people haven't heard of. And if a man is going to be ignorant of something, tiny islands are about as good as anything else.

The reason I am now aware of the Falklands is that the world is too thoroughly televised.

As I understand it, Argentina has been arguing for 150 years that the islands belonged to her, not the British, although England has been in charge of the place. So, after debating for a century and a half Argentina, with what might be called Congressional speed, decided finally to take over the territory and make everybody there speak Spanish instead of Cockney, not to mention drill for the oil that may lie under the ocean floor nearby.

So the TV networks, tickled pink to get rid of the El Salvador story, which they couldn't make heads or tails of anyway, leaped on the Falkland Islands. A place with only 1,800 people and 600,000 sheep is a lot more photogenic.

It makes a person wonder, if Argentina hadn't charged on to the island, what would the three networks have lead off their evening news shows with that day and for days thereafter? For one thing, I still wouldn't have heard of the place.

At this writing, there's no telling what will happen. Forty-six British ships are steaming toward the Falklands 8,000 miles away and eventually will get there, if the mortgage holders don't foreclose and call them back to port. All wars are waged on credit and most nations are already over-extended. People who finance via taxes ships, submarines, airplanes and nuclear bombs are reluctant to see their investments risked in combat.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

THOUGHTS

Solomon says one task of a virtuous woman is to seek flax. The stalks of flax were spread on the roof to dry in the sun. The fibers were fine and were woven like wool to make linen.

"She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands." -- Prov. 31:13.

Tuesday

By "highminded" Paul means "haughty." We usually think of it as "having elevated principles."

"...Be not highminded, but stand in awe." -- Rom. 11:20

Wednesday

When Jesus sent 70 disciples out to preach and heal, He told them to salute no one. That may sound like a strange command from one who loved people, but the reason probably was that the formality connected with salutations would delay them unduly.

"...salute no man by the way." -- Luke 10:4

Thursday

The word "discover" means "uncover." Micah uses the word in his prophecy of what the Lord will do to Samaria.

"Therefore I will make Samaria as an heap of the field, and as plantings of a vineyard: and I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley, and I will discover the foundations thereof." -- Micah 1:6

Friday

As rain in harvest was unusual, Samuel called for thunder and rain during the wheat harvest to show God's displeasure with the Israelites for having insisted on having a king. Thunder was considered the voice of Jehovah, the symbol of divine power.

"The Lord thundered from heaven, and the most High uttered his voice. And he sent out arrows, and scattered them; lightning, and discomfited them." -- II Sam. 22:14-15

Saturday

The "dog-house" idea may be merely a modern version of domestic conflict.

"It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop, than with a brawling woman, and in a wide house." -- Prov. 25:24

"My husband and I have what we call a 'scare hole' inside of the southeast bedroom closet. It's a small area that goes beneath the house that is easily accessible to us if the need warrants itself."

CONTINUING ON this trip down "memory lane," the Dudley Baynes of 514 Star were more fortunate. "We didn't have much structural damage. Our two large willow trees in the backyard were stripped and somehow survived. The fence blew down and a large tree limb blew through a window. Estimated damage was around $5,000," Mrs. Bayne remembered.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Bayne, their three children—Jimmy, Sally and Billy were also in the home.

"We had just fallen asleep when lightning struck the television set in our bedroom. It was about two feet from my head. When I heard a terrible crackling sound, I screamed. Needless to say, the rest of the family woke up," recalled Mrs. Bayne.

"Everyone heard the wind approaching, it was kind of a roar. We got mattresses to protect ourselves and then got in the hall closet. Dudley had just gone to get another mattress when the tornado hit."

"As soon as it passed, a neighbor, came to see if everyone was alright," recalls Mrs. Bayne.

Although the Baynes' home was not severely damaged, they had no electricity and stayed in a motel for several days.

"One just has to use a lot of common sense and try to remain calm," Mrs. Bayne added. "I had never been nervous about tornadoes before and I'm still not."

ACTUALLY living through the nightmare of that early morning, is one experience that Grace Tinnin of 217 Star didn't have to do. She wasn't home.

Having a clean house is one thing but being cleaned out of the house is quite another. Mrs. Tinnin had just completed cleaning her house around 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon when she received a call from her sister in Elida, N.M. asking her to come spend the night. She decided to go and left around 4 p.m. By 4 a.m. Monday morning she came back to her home, minus a garage, roof, porch and yard.

Recalls Mrs. Tinnin, "Normally I would have been home by Sunday afternoon from my trip, but fortunately I decided to spend another day. I could have been severely injured if I had remained at home."

Around 2 a.m. Monday, her son-in-law, Charles Springer of Frio, called to tell her a tornado had hit Hereford. Mrs. Tinnin commented, "My first reaction was to ask if anyone had been hurt, neighbors or friends. When I found that everyone was safe, I began shaking and I didn't stop until I got back to Hereford and walked into what was left of my bedroom."

When she began taking inventory through the house, she also found that the wall separating the utility room and kitchen was gone. Damage was extensive. Besides damages already mentioned, her metal fence as well as her apricot trees were completely lowered to the ground.

"Before I arrived that morning, Dudley Bayne came over after the twister had hit to see if I was okay, as did several other neighbors. No one knew that I had left town. They thought I had taken shelter in one of the closets."

"So many people came to help me. After working for awhile, several of us wanted to get some coffee but there was no electricity. We finally found that Troy's Sweet Shop was open and went there."

Mrs. Tinnin, family members and friends began boxing up what was left. "I didn't know where I was going to stay. My family wanted me with them, but the problem was solved by some friends. Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Gilbreath, who were living in one of Ray Cowser's apartments, came over and suggested that I stay there and they could stay out at their farm."

"I lived in that apartment for four-and-a-half months while I had my home rebuilt. It was located within walking distance of my home and I would go over there every day and work in that yard trying to pry two-by-fours out of the ground and cleaning up the mess. At night I would take two flashlights into the house and clean up after the carpenters so they could start work early the next morning."

The irreplaceable things in Mrs. Tinnin's home were the hardest part of the ordeal to accept. She stated, "Treasured pictures of family and friends, scrapbooks and China that couldn't be replaced, were never found."

All these women have one common denominator in their stories. None is afraid of severe weather; perhaps more cautious, but not afraid.

SAFETY HINTS FROM THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

1. Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls. Protect your head.
2. In homes and small buildings, go to the basement or to an interior part of the lowest level. Get under something sturdy.
3. In schools, hospitals and public places, move to predesignated shelter areas. Interior hallways on lowest floors are best.
4. Leave mobile homes or vehicles, and go to more substantial shelter.
5. If outdoors, with no shelter available, lie flat in a nearby ditch and shield head.

REMEMBER: A tornado watch means tornadoes and severe thunderstorms are possible and a tornado warning is a tornado detected; TAKE SHELTER.

Red Cross Services Still Available

Emergency assistance continues to be available to victims of the devastating tornado that struck Paris, Texas through an American Red Cross Service Center located in the town Boy's Club.

Reba Cochran, serving as Assistant Director of Red Cross Family Services during the relief efforts reports that 520 requests for Red Cross assistance have been logged through the Family Service unit. According to Ms. Cochran, approximately 60 volunteers from the community are working each day in the center. "Volunteers have been trained by our organization to work with victims in providing food, clothing, medical items, and in some cases rental assistance," said Ms. Cochran.

The Department of Human Resources has made 34 of their employees available to the Red Cross as well. According to Bob Brown, Lamar County Director for the state agency, workers from 16 counties will work with the Red Cross as long as needed.

Upon their arrival, Human Resources personnel received training in Red Cross Family Service policy and procedure.

Candidates' Jobs A Sure Thing With No Competition

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — For most politicians, each election year means a fight for survival. But that's not so for eight senators and two House members who have only to mark time to take their seats in the Texas Senate next year.

The 10 have no opponents in either the May primaries or the November general election.

Rep. Craig Washington would be the first black in the 31-member Senate since Barbara Jordan, who left for Congress 10 years ago, and only the second black senator in 100 years.

Washington, D-Houston, and Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, an ex-FBI agent, are running unopposed.

The eight incumbent Democrats without an opponent are Carl Parker of Port Arthur, Kent Caperton of Bryan, Linton Williams of Houston, Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi, Grant Jones of Abilene, Hector Uribe of Brownsville, Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls and John Tejeger of Seguin.

Eight incumbents are not seeking re-election, including the only woman senator, Betty Andujar, and seven who decided to run for other political offices. Mrs. Andujar, 69, had triple bypass surgery last year but also said a legislative redistricting plan that excluded many Republicans from her Fort Worth district had a "tremendous effect" on her decision.

Her withdrawal will leave the Senate without a woman for the first time since 1945. Dr. John Andujar, the senator's husband, and former Fort Worth mayors Hugh Farmer and Woodie Woods are among seven candidates on the ballot to replace her.

Other incumbents who will not return in 1983 are Peyton McKnight, who filed for governor but withdrew when the race got too expensive; attorney general candidates Jack Ogg and Bill Meier; U.S. Senate candidate Walter Mengden; land commissioner candidate W.E. "Pete" Snelson; comptroller candidate Mike Richards; and congressional candidate Dee Travis.

Twelve senators have opponents either in the May 1 primaries or November general election, but only three — Democrats Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio, Oscar Mauzy of Dallas and E.L. Short of Tahoka — have opposition in the primary and general election.

Perhaps the most ironic Senate race is that of John Wilson, D-La Grange. Wilson is supported by the Texas Medical Association, whose members have donated thousands of dollars to his campaign, yet he drew a last-minute opponent in Republican J. Everett Ware — a Victoria physician.

"I don't know anyone who's worked harder with the Texas Medical Association than I have," said Wilson. "But I've been in politics long enough to expect anything."

Ware said, "It's one of those things that I always wanted to do. I really don't think that anyone should be unopposed in a general election."

In East Texas, Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, faces Longview lawyer R.E. "Peppy" Blount, who had the distinction of playing end for the Texas Longhorn Sugar, Orange and Cotton bowl football champions while he was a House member in 1947-51.

Another East Texas senator who apparently has stiff opposition is Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches. Blake claims his opponent, Blake Bailey, was selected by the Texas Trial Lawyers Association in hopes that voters would confuse the two names.

A third candidate in that race, Jim Cryan, a Lufkin denture-maker, says his campaign is based solely on passing a bill that would establish educational and testing requirements for people who manufacture dentures.

Snelson's far-flung West Texas district attracted former Midland mayor Ernest Angelo, a Republican who was deputy chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas, and two Democrats — W.B. "Bill" Rubey and Bill Sims. Rubey, by his own count, has lived in eight different places in the 35-county district. Sims, a San Angelo farmer and rancher, says his grandfather brought the first sheep into the area.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, has Republican opposition in Gary Hagman, the brother of Larry Hagman, who plays J.R. Ewing in the television show, "Dallas."

Rep. Tommy Adkisson, D-San Antonio, styles himself as an "aggressive fighter" in his Democratic primary race against Kothmann, who has served in the Legislature for 21 years — 10 in the House and 11 in the Senate. Dan Martinez, state chairman of Mexican-American Democrats of Texas, is the Republican in the race.

"Elect one of our own," is the campaign slogan Jesse Jones, a black college chemistry professor, is using against Mauzy, who has been in the Senate for 15 years. The Dallas district is 49.9 percent black.

Short's opponents include Democrat John Montford, the Lubbock County criminal district attorney who reportedly had considered a race for attorney general, and Republican Jim Reese of Odessa, who lost congressional bids in 1976 and 1978.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, is opposed by Bexar County Commissioner Tom Stolhandske, who said he is running because in 12 years on the commissioners court, commissioners have begged the Legislature for money but have never received any.

Former El Paso alderman Dan Ponder is trying to make campaign funds the issue in his primary race against Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso. Ponder said Santiesteban's reported use of funds for personal expenses showed "total contempt and disrespect for the people of El Paso."

Reps. Bill Clark of Tyler and Ted Lyon of Mesquite, Common Cause's choice as "Legislator of the Year," and McKinney rancher-lawyer Jim Caton are Democrats seeking McKnight's seat. Caton lost a House race in 1970 and to McKnight in 1972. Two Republicans also are in the race.

Houston House members Frank Hartung and Don Henderson are among three Republicans running in a Harris County district that Henderson says is "staunchly Republican." No Democrats filed.

Houston Rep. Bill Blythe is challenging incumbent J.E. "Buster" of Lake Jackson in the GOP primary, claiming he is a better Republican than Brown because Brown made two unsuccessful legislative races as a Democrat.

Rep. Neal "Buddy" Jones of Hillsboro and Chet Edwards of Duncanville, both Democrats, are the only candidates for Travis' seat. Edwards, a former aide to U.S. Rep. Olin "Tiger" Teague, lost to Phil Gramm by 185 votes in a 1978 congressional race. Jones, former county and district attorney, has received Gramm's support in his race against Edwards.

New Texas Handbook Being Published

Austin, Texas (Spl.)—A revised edition of "The Handbook of Texas," which will include new entries on all the significant cultural, physical and historical aspects of the state, is being published by the Texas State Historical Association.

The association, which is based at The University of Texas, plans to publish the completely new revised edition, a work of six volumes, in 1985 on the sesquicentennial of the annexation of Texas.

By that date, the first two volumes will be almost 45 years old, an age when most major reference works have been superseded by newer, more up-to-date editions," said Dr. L. Tuffly Ellis, director of the TSHA and editor of the new edition.

Dr. Ellis pointed out that the new encyclopedic-biographical dictionary is not a supplement, although it will have the same format as the handbook that was published in 1932 in two volumes. Billed as a "dictionary of essential information," the work lists important people, places and events of Texas history from prehistoric times until the mid-20th Century.

The new edition will be much more interdisciplinary and broader in scope than the original volumes, the director added. "There are whole new areas that have come into their own in the last two decades," Dr. Ellis said. "There are so many aspects of Texas that we see differently than we did 30 years ago."

Consequently, many entries will be completely rewritten—in fact, most of them will, the director pointed out.

"Reconstruction is one example," he said. "In the past 20 years, things have come to light through scholarly research showing Reconstruction to be much more complex than originally thought."

There also will be many more women, blacks and Mexican-Americans in the new edition.

America's Nuclear Weapons Tests In The Nevada Desert

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — Desert wind licks at the Joshua trees, whipping up sand around craters that dot Yucca Flats, while kangaroo rats skitter about oblivious to the whir of a drill rig in the distance.

The craters — scores of them stretching for miles — are signs of America's ongoing effort to stay ahead in the nuclear arms race.

A quarter-mile below this setting, the United States tests atomic bombs, neutron weapons and MX missiles, and learns how to kill Soviet satellites and how to "build space hardware so it will survive.

There were 17 blasts last year at the Nevada Test Site. President Reagan has asked for a 19 percent budget increase for nuclear testing, including $300 million for this desert testing ground.

In another era, reporters watched from Mount Charleston, a snow-capped, 12,000-foot peak jutting out of the Nevada desert 40 miles south of the site, and phoned in stories from a ranger station.

Today, a two-paragraph release from the Department of Energy, operator of the site, tells the code name and depth of the blast and whether it was less than 20 kilotons or between 20 and 150 kilotons.

The United States has announced 585 nuclear tests above and below ground at this expanse of desert 100 square miles larger than the state of Rhode Island. But not all tests are announced.

"We don't want to hand the Russians everything on the front page. We want them to work for some of it," says David Miller of the DOE.

Why does the United States still test nuclear weapons 31 years after the first domestic trial?

DOE spokesman Jim Boyer says each rocket missile, artillery shell or aerial bomb has its own size, weight and shape. Each must be tested to see that it works and that there are enough safeguards to protect against an accidental blast. Stockpiles are tested for viability.

"If you develop a weapon and, obviously, we haven't used it, how do you know that it's still going to be effective?" he says.

In the 1940s and '50s, nuclear weapons were dropped from Air Force planes, attached to tethered balloons or detonated on steel towers.

Today more sophisticated devices are housed in canisters and burrowed deep into the desert. The searing heat of each blast crystallizes sand and rock, forming cavities that leave tell-tale craters when the desert settles.

One of the most dramatic is Sedan Crater, the creation of a 100-kiloton blast on July 6, 1962, that displaced 12 million tons of earth. It is 1,280 feet across and 320 feet deep. The test was the largest of six for Operation Plowshares, an effort to prove nuclear blasts could carve out canals and serve other peaceful purposes.

The site is bounded on three sides by Nellis Air Force Base, which covers 4,000 square miles in Nevada. It is monitored by television cameras and infra-red and seismic sensors. The only exposed section runs along U.S. 95. Helicopters patrol the closed air space.

The 6,000 workers and scientists wear identification badges that measure radioactive exposure. So do visitors who pass a heavily guarded gate at Mercury, the tiny desert town where NTS begins.

The private security guards manning the gate are found throughout the test site. More discreet are the military teams. There are rapid deployment forces armed with grenade launchers, armored personnel carriers and, if needed, Air Force security at adjoining Nellis.

"Our security is not going to be able to withstand an all-out assault by the 1st Airborne, but for anything credible, we're ready," says Miller.

Mercury was born in December 1950 when it was decided to bring America's nuclear testing program home from the Pacific for cost and control reasons. It has a post office, bowling alley, offices and dorms, although most workers live 80 minutes away in Las Vegas.

Army tents dotted a valley northwest of Mercury during the 1950s and '60s. Nearly 250,000 troops passed through "Camp Desert Rock." They were used to test effects of the blast and radioactive fallout on humans. As a test approached, trucks would snake along the desert roads toward ground zero, returning later with their human cargo.

Groups like the National Association of Atomic Veterans contend the soldiers were used as guinea pigs and that veterans and their children are paying the price; a claim the DOE denies.

Others, like the Downwinders, contend the tests left a cancerous legacy in the area swept with fallout. About 1,200 claims have been filed seeking damages for deaths, cancer or other illness. Test cases will be tried in Salt Lake City this fall.

Four tests originally were planned at this "emergency continental proving ground." But after Ranger, a bomb with the punch of 1,000 tons of TNT, there were 83 atmospheric tests over the test site.

Today, there are few visible signs of the dirty era, beginning on Jan. 27, 1951, that spewed radioactive fallout on communities like Alamo, Nev., and St. George, Utah, 100 miles to the east.

One haunting reminder is 20 miles across the desert. A clutter of gnarled steel and concrete stumps are all that remain of a 50-story tower from which 29-kiloton Apple II was detonated on May 5, 1955.

The message of Apple II was not lost on a war-weary world when newsreels and Civil Defense films captured a frame home a mile from ground zero as it smoldered, burst into flames, then disintegrated.

Two houses are remnants of Survivaltown, as Civil Defense officials called the village: Doomsville as today's NTS workers call it.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower suspended atmospheric testing in 1958. Five years later, on Aug. 5, 1963, the United States and the Soviet Union signed the Limited Test Ban Treaty.

America's nuclear testing went underground.

Today, giant drills chew hundreds of feet into the desert with bits 12 feet in diameter to carve the setting for each blast. When the hole is carved, a dummy canister is lowered to make certain the canister with the nuclear device will not bind inside — a potentially hazardous complication. No canister has ever become stuck.

There may be as many as 15 practice sessions before detonation. Finally, the device is lowered to the bottom along with elaborate diagnostic equipment. The shaft is then filled with sand, gravel and special plastic pellets by dump trucks shuttling to ground zero. Filling normally takes a week to 10 days, depending on the depth of the shot — usually 1,400 to 2,200 feet.

Under the Threshold Test Ban Agreement signed by President Richard M. Nixon in 1974, underground tests are limited to 150 kilotons. Blasts at the higher kiloton range are announced in advance to warn residents in Las Vegas, 75 miles southeast.

When all is ready, ground zero is deserted, with the last person to leave arming the device electronically. Inside a concrete control center miles away, scientists and engineers eye television monitors carrying pictures via cameras half a mile from ground zero. Large maps show weather conditions across the Western and Northwest states.

Detonation sends a flurry of signals along cables running from the blast to trailers packed with scientific gear, while the radiation monitors watch to make sure the explosion does not "escape" the ground, belching out dangerous radioactive gases. Radiation sensors are placed at 17 locations around the test site, including tall buildings in Las Vegas.

There have been three ventings in the past decade, according to Mahlon Gates, a 62-year-old retired general who has headed the testing program since 1972. In December 1970, eight sheep herders were exposed to radiation when they drank coffee made from contaminated snow. They did not require treatment.

Twenty miles north of the underground test area is Rainier Mesa — a string of flat-topped stone mountains facing the majestic Sierra Nevada that string along the Nevada-California border.

Three tunnels have been burrowed into the mountain rock. In the past decade a series of weapons effects tests with names like Diamond Skies, Husky Pup and Diablo Hawk have been carried out by DOE for the Department of Defense.

Here America is learning how to knock out Soviet satellites, make its own space hardware survivable, and enable the MX to take the Soviets' best shot.

"We can simulate the effects of radiation on a satellite, or re-entry nose cone for a rocket," says Miller.

"We want to know what would happen should an enemy system encounter our own system in the atmosphere and explode," adds Gates.

Defense Department officials acknowledge the Soviet Union has had an anti-satellite program operational for years and admit it is an area in which the United States is lagging. The ability to knock out American satellites could be a devastating blow to the country's defenses because these space stations provide critical lead time in detecting an enemy attack.

It is known the United States is working on an anti-satellite weapon that could be launched from F-15 fighters. It can be assumed much of that work is being done at NTS and an adjoining section of Nellis so secret military officials won't even acknowledge its existence.

The weapons effects tests are carried out by placing a nuclear device in huge pipes, 30 feet in diameter, running half a mile or longer. The target material, such as alloys used in the nose cone of a cruise missile or a satellite, is then placed at the other end of the pipe.

As a test approaches, a vacuum is created, such as would be experienced in space. Upon detonation a complex series of trap doors allow the radiation to reach the test materials at the opposite end of the pipe, but shut off debris following from the blast.

Elsewhere at NTS, a part of the site is a dump for low-level radioactive waste, while another provides a testing ground to determine what to do with high-level waste that will remain "hot" for thousands of years.

Some of the cavities left by the underground tests are being used as dumps for the low-level waste. Stored in boxes and barrels, the waste is stacked in the desert dimples, then covered with sand after records are made of every container's contents.

In the northeast corner of the test site, visitors descend 1,400 feet into a shaft at the Climax Mine where weapons effects tests once took place. Today spent fuel elements from nuclear power plants are buried in granite vaults at the bottom of the mine to determine if the rock beneath the Nevada desert can provide a safe haven for the deadly materials.

UNEQUAL PAYCHECKS

The earnings of women continue to lag behind those of men for equivalent work. A Labor Department survey covering median wages in 100 occupations in 1981 turned up discrepancies similar to these in almost all instances. It found the best paying jobs for women to be in the education field and for men in engineering.

Ownership Is Major Contributor

"Home ownership is a major contributor to a strong democracy and the free enterprise system. Take away home ownership and the entire democratic system is weakened." Hub Bechtol, president of the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR), made these remarks recently as he announced Private Property Week (April 18-24), an annual event sponsored by Realtors nationwide.

Realtors in the state of Texas plan to observe the week-long event, which celebrates the basic rights of Americans to own residential, commercial and agricultural real estate, with a variety of activities.

Ken Glasgow, chairman of the TAR Public Relations Committee, announced a major nationwide high school essay project in which many Texas Realtor boards plan to participate. The essay theme will be, "How Losing Private Property Rights Would Affect My Future and Why These Rights Should Be Preserved." In addition to local prizes, TAR plans to award a $200 savings bond to the first place state winner, a $150 savings bond to the second place student and a third prize of a $100 bond.

Don Carter of Carthage, picked up the late first place award last year. Local boards are encouraged to send in their first place local winners to TAR by May 1.

State winners then become eligible to compete for prizes offered by the National Association of Realtors, including a trophy and $1000 savings bond to the national first place student. National winners will be honored at the NAR convention in San Francisco this November. More than 300 boards throughout the country reported their participation in the 1981 national essay contest.

Some Texas Realtor boards plan to sponsor art and photographic competition for elementary school children and senior citizens. Participants will be asked to depict the importance of private property rights through a variety of graphic media and craft projects suitable for display.

In addition to these contests, some local boards are scheduling free homebuyer-seminars designed to help the consumer understand important concepts such as people-to-people financing in a high interest rate market and energy effectiveness.

Bechtol stated, "The Realtor plan is to sponsor activities which will involve all segments of the population."

Despite Statistics, Block Optimistic About Farm Economy

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite many grim statistics, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he is optimistic the nation's agricultural economy may be turning around.

net farm income outlooks for this year do not paint a bright picture," Block said Wednesday. "I recognize these reports. I can't ignore them. They might be accurate, but they have been wrong in the past."

forecast that 1982 net farm income probably would decline for the third year in a row. However, at Block's direction, department economists have ceased publishing those forecasts until after midyear. Block's remarks were in a speech prepared for an international forum of the U.S.

Chamber of Commerce. Farm income figures "are based on the most reliable information we have to date," he said. But "we must remember that our outlooks always overlook the unpredictable nature of agriculture."

department's Economic Research Service issued a monthly "agricultural outlook" report which said farmers' net income "will likely remain at a reduced level for the third consecutive year."

However, the report omitted income forecasts and said those would be issued in September. It did indicate that total cash receipts from the sale of crops and livestock "may actually decline in 1982 for the first time since 1975" because of lower crop receipts.

Block told the Chamber of Commerce that efforts of the private sector, including farmers, will "solve our domestic problems." There is "only so much that the government can or should do."

An example, he said, involves private lending institutions that "are taking the lead in helping our farmers out of the cash-flow squeeze which many are currently facing due to low commodity prices and high interest rates."

Meanwhile, Block said, the Farmers Home Administration is doing its part "to help keep deserving farmers in business."

Block also cited efforts by the pork industry which, faced with a long period of depressed market prices, cut back production.

"The pork people realized what the problem was — they were producing just too many hogs," he said. "The pork economy has turned the corner. A similar situation has been happening in the beef and poultry industries. We're starting to see real strength in those markets."

Block said farmers also "are responding quite well" to acreage reduction programs for 1982 crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice — commodities whose huge supplies have helped depress market prices.

Record Grain Stockpiles To Continue Farm Worries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world is heading into the 1982-83 marketing year with record stockpiles of grain which may mean continued problems for American farmers, says the Agriculture Department.

A new analysis issued Thursday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said the grain outlook for the new year that begins July 1 is "still heavily influenced by the current abundance of supplies, depressed prices and sluggish trade" which have characterized 1981-82.

"The fears of possible tight grain supplies that prevailed at this time a year ago have been completely reversed," the report said. For example, world production of wheat and coarse grains such as corn, sorghum, oats and barley totaled a record of more than 1.22 billion metric tons in 1981-82, about 55 million more than last year.

After deducting consumption — domestic use and exports — the global reserve on July 1, the beginning of the next marketing year, is expected to be around 189.6 million metric tons.

That would be the largest mid-year world grain inventory since 1979 and a boost of 22 percent from 155.6 million tons on hand last July 1, according to the department's figures.

Of the July 1 total inventory, an estimated 94.5 million tons will be in the United States, an increase of more than 53 percent from 61.6 million in the U.S. reserve last July 1.

Looking at some of the factors affecting the outlook for 1982-83, the report noted:

—World wheat stocks are larger than a year ago but still "are well below" the average ratio of stocks-to-consumption of the 1976-77 and 1978-79 periods. Wheat consumption outside the Soviet Union in 1982-83 is expected to increase, though probably not at the rate during the late 1970s.

—Wheat acreage in competitor countries of Canada, Australia and Argentina "is expected to increase further as prices for wheat remain relatively favorable compared with alternative crops in these countries."

—The outlook for coarse grains also indicates that consumption is likely to expand but that production may increase more rapidly.

—Even if global coarse grain area and production were to hold at last year's level, production could again surpass use and lead to a further buildup in stocks."

—The overall state of the world economy "will continue to have a strong influence on livestock production prospects" in market-oriented countries. An economic turnaround could signal expanded feed requirements for livestock and poultry production in those countries.

—In the "non-market" countries, including the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, coarse grain import levels will depend on domestic crops as well as livestock production policies and credit availability.

Warm Weather Boosts Planting, Helps Young Crops

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Warmer weather returned to Texas this week, giving a boost to cotton planting in central areas and helping young crops already up, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Young corn, grain sorghum, cotton and rice are making good growth in southern and coastal areas although rain will soon be needed for continued progress, he said in his weekly report on Texas agriculture. Despite good early stands, crops in some areas have been plagued by rootworms, cutworms, birds and aphids. Heavy stand losses in some locations have made replanting necessary, he said.

While cotton planting continues in Central Texas and along the Upper Coast, corn and grain sorghum are still being planted in eastern areas. Grain sorghum planting also is under way in West Central Texas, and corn planting has started in the High Plains. Land preparation and preplant irrigation continue in the Plains and Far West Texas, where irrigation of wheat and alfalfa remain active. The first cutting of alfalfa is about to be made in Far West Texas, Pfannstiel said.

Soil temperatures at the 4-inch depth continue to warm up and are now in their mid-60s to low-70s over southern, coastal and western areas, according to the Agricultural Weather Service. Readings in the Plains and North Central areas include Bushland, 55 degrees F.; Lavon Dam (near Dallas), 60; Lubbock, 61; Stephenville 63; and Waco, 56.

A good spring rain is needed over most of Texas to boost young crops, pastures and ranges, Pfannstiel said. Soil moisture is generally short in all but eastern and coastal areas and some parts of Central and South Texas.

Harvest operations continue in the Rio Grande Valley, with citrus, sugarcane, onions, watermelons and other vegetables moving to market. Onion harvesting also is in full swing in the Winter Garden.

Reports from district

Extension agents showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Dryland wheat continues to suffer from lack of moisture; irrigated acreage looks good. Some corn planting has started. Preplant irrigations continue. Potato, onion and sugar beet stands look good. Alfalfa is suffering some damage from weevils. Ranges need moisture.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn planting is active, with 10 to 15 percent of the acreage in. Land preparation and preplant irrigation continues. Onion, potato and sugar beet stands look good. Dryland wheat is in dire need of moisture. Ranges also need rain.

Plant Disease Lab Opens at A&M

The Texas Plant Disease Diagnostic Laboratory at Texas A&M University is now in full operation. Under the direction of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the lab is set up to handle all types of plant disease problems, from field crops to garden and landscape plants, notes an Extension plant pathologist.

The new lab will operate on a fee basis just like the Soil, Water and Forage Testing Laboratory at Texas A&M. Cost per plant disease specimen is $7. Nematode tests will be $5 per sample.

Information on collecting plant specimens and mailing instructions are available at county Extension offices.

Cooking Garbage Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public comments are being sought by the Agriculture Department on proposed federal regulations which would require garbage to be cooked properly before it is fed to hogs.

Raw or improperly cooked garbage can transmit a variety of diseases among swine.

"Diseases such as African swine fever, foot-and-mouth disease and hog cholera can be spread to healthy swine if they eat raw or incompletely cooked meat scraps containing the virus," said Harry C.

Mussman, administrator of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Garbage also can help spread tiny microscopic worms — trichinae — which can infect humans after eating improperly cooked pork.

The proposed regulations would carry out the Swine Health Protection Act passed by Congress more than a year ago. It is aimed at preventing the introduction and spread of foreign animal diseases.

Mussman said Thursday the states would have the primary responsibility for enforcing the proposed regulations and that nothing in the proposals would prohibit a state from having even tougher requirements.

The proposed rules would prohibit the feeding of "food waste" to swine unless it has been "treated at a facility operated by a licensed individual." The treatment would consist of boiling the garbage for at least 30 minutes.

Under the proposed rules, food waste would be defined as "all waste material derived from or associated with the meat of any animal, including fish and poultry, resulting from the handling and preparation of food."

Mussman said garbage from "ordinary household operations fed directly to swine on the same premises is exempt."

Federal regulations would not supersede state laws which prohibit feeding garbage to swine, he said.

Sixteen states forbid the practice: Alabama, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Public comments can be sent by June 18 to: Deputy Administrator for Veterinary Services, APHIS, USDA, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Potato Inventory Up 7 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The potato stockpile is up moderately from a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

Inventories in major producing states as of April 1 were estimated at 77.5 million hundredweight, up 7 percent from a year ago but still 16 percent less than the supply of two years ago, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Thursday.

The 1981 fall crop of potatoes, which make up most of the U.S. supply, was about 281.4 million hundredweight, compared to 255.7 million in 1980.

However, that was down from 285.1 million produced in the fall harvest of 1979 and the crop of almost 312 million hundredweight in 1978, the report said.

Tension has increased in the explosive Persian Gulf region with renewed fighting between Iran and Iraq. Climber Soars By Foot And Plane

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — With his 8-week-old son cradled in one arm and his other hand gently maneuvering the baby bottle, David Saas is a dad with ambitions — and contrasts.

He can be tender enough to summon a baby's coos and brawny enough to challenge some of nature's most fierce tests.

This month he'll scale Mt. McKinley. In three years he'll tackle Mt. Everest. And after that — well, maybe it'll be toddler William's turn.

He'll be a mountain climber, too?

"You bet your life," Saas says with fatherly pride as vast as the Rockies.

A Continental Airlines pilot based in El Paso, Saas soars to the sky as often as he can — either on foot or by plane.

This week he'll be on the former as he and four others inch up Alaska's 20,320-foot Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in North America.

"For every climber,

there's a different motive," Saas said.

Forget the old notion of climbing it because it's there.

"That was originated back in the '20s by a British climber who was eventually killed on Mt. Everest," he said. "I enjoy the beauty of it. It's a fairly unique sport."

It's also an athletic pursuit that balances agility, strength and endurance over a precipice of possible death.

The 45-year-old Saas trains hard to give himself the advantage in that balancing act.

In addition to regularly lifting weights, he hikes up El Paso's Mt. Franklin about twice weekly, an eight-mile round trip, he said.

That regimen and a long history at the sport dating back more than two decades give the 5-foot-10, 175-pound athlete a strong foothold in climbing mountains.

So far, he's matched his skills against lethal terrain in New Zealand, Switzerland and South America and come out on top. In 1978, he mounted Argentina's Mt. Aconcagua, a 22,835-foot peak that lays claim to being the highest point in the Western Hemisphere.

Wife Patsy — "She's very, very tolerant. She understands why I do it" — has ventured on some of the climbs with him, not always with satisfactory results. In 1980, the couple were part of a team tackling Washington's Mt. Rainier when Patsy got "mountain sickness."

"We had to carry her down," Saas said.

That's one of the risks of the avocation, caused by ascending too quickly. Another is the extreme temperature range. Mt. McKinley, for example, is only 100 miles from the Arctic Circle.

Finally, there's the pain of pushing your body to its farthest limits.

But "when you get home and the pain goes away, you remember only the good things. It's a like a lot of things" in life, Saas said.

Since December 1979, he has been planning an American expedition to climb up the west side of Mount Everest, the Himalayan peak that at 29,028 feet towers over the entire world.

"We're attempting a route that's only been climbed successfully once," he said.

The expedition initially was budgeted at $185,000, but that figure could soar to $250,000 by 1985 when the trek starts.

Financing is only one factor on Saas' mind.

Only one climber older than 50 has reached the summit, he said.

After Saas stands atop Mount Everest and experiences that feeling of conquest — "one of relief," he says — what follows?

"I plan to retire and teach my boys how to climb," he said. "That's what I tell my wife anyway."

Shooting Sports Club, Reserve Open Range

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer
The Deaf Smith County 4-H Shooting Sports Club and the Sheriff's Reserve will open their indoor range at 2 p.m. today with a trophy shoot for 4-H'ers and fun shoot for adults.

Trophies for 4-H'ers will be given in junior and senior divisions for target shooting. Adults and spectators will be able to enter a fun shoot to knock over animal dummies. The two clubs have been revamping the old North Plains Printing Company at 403 W. First from a pressroom to a shooting range during the last three months.

"We had to clear it and clean it out," reported Henry Reid, shooting coach for the 4-H'ers. "We worked mainly on weekends and at night with five or six people there." "There wasn't much lighting in the building and we had to rearrange it and fix spotlights on the targets," Reid said.

Five lanes were painted for the 50-foot long range and all the windows and extra doors boarded up.

Red May built the target frames which can hold four bulls-eye sheets or a life-size human silhouette.

The clubs have spent about $1,000 on the project, and according to Reid the cost was shaved thanks to local support.

"All the labor, except for plumbing, was volunteer," he said. "A lot of the iron dealers gave us a break on the iron. Nearly everything we bought, we got a break on it."

"A lot of the materials were donated by local lumber yards; several donated chairs and several pitched in money for the cause," Reid continued. "It would really be hard to name just one or two people because everybody pitched in. Martha Shire really helped push and keep us going and Red May was instrumental in keeping the sheriff's reserves going."

The range is basically designed after an indoor facility in Canyon and a set of plans obtained from the National Rifle Association.

Marksmen from the 4-H club won fifth place in district competition 1st year and wanted a more convenient place to practice. Members had been driving to Canyon to use a range there for over a year.

The reserve and 4-H'ers will have exclusive use of the range except during an open shoot sponsored by either, Reid said.

The first American flag with fifty states was unfurled on July 4, 1960 at the Fort McHenry National Monument in Baltimore, Maryland.

NBA Season Highlights Listed

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

A desperate playoff battle that will conclude with one of five teams being eliminated despite a record well over .500 highlighted the 1981-82 National Basketball Association season.

The Boston Celtics' long winning streak, near-record losing streaks by the San Diego Clippers and Utah Jazz and a magic month by Moses Malone were other headline-making events in the NBA's 36th year.

Going into the final weekend, four teams — Denver, Houston, Phoenix and Golden State — were tied in the race for three playoff berths in the Western Conference. Midwest Division leader San Antonio also had not clinched a berth with two games to play.

One of these teams will not make the playoffs despite a record no worse than 45-37. A year ago, Houston made it to the NBA championship series and Kansas City was in the conference finals after each finished 40-42 in the regular season.

Los Angeles and Seattle were the only teams in the West that had clinched postseason spots.

The six East playoff teams already are determined. Boston, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Washington, New Jersey and Atlanta are assured of playoff action, but only the Celtics weren't jockeying for home-court advantages in the last days of the season.

The Nets, Bullets and Hawks each hoped to play two games at home in the first round, while the Bucks still had a chance to catch the 76ers for a home-court edge in their possible second-round meeting.

The Celtics, however, are certain to finish with the best record in the NBA. For much of the season, they were in a tight race with the 76ers and Lakers for that distinction, but an 18-game winning streak in February and March put Boston comfortably in front.

The streak, which equaled the 18 triumphs in a row by 1969-70 New York Knicks for

FCC Men's Retreat Has Teaff, Watson

The First Christian Church of Hereford will host an overnight men's retreat Saturday, April 24. Special leader for the retreat will be Grant Teaff, head football coach at Baylor University.

Teaff is a noted speaker and active witness for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He is also the author of a best selling book "I Believe," published by Word Books, Inc. He has been called by John Erickson, President of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, "One of the top five communicators in America."

Johnny Ray Watson, singer, writer and former basketball player will join Teaff and the men attending the retreat with his inspirational voice and humor.

Watson enjoyed much success in high school and college on the basketball court. He was named to all-district, all-area and all-State teams in high school and was leading rebounder, scorer and most valuable player at McMurry College in 1970-71.

He has traveled across the country and the world singing and sharing, appearing in concerts and with the Billy Graham Crusade in Lubbock.

His first album is entitled "The Straight and Narrow Path."

The First Christian Church men and their guests will travel to Canyon for the retreat at noon Saturday, April 24 at the campground of the First Baptist Church of Canyon, and conclude at 8 a.m. Sunday morning.

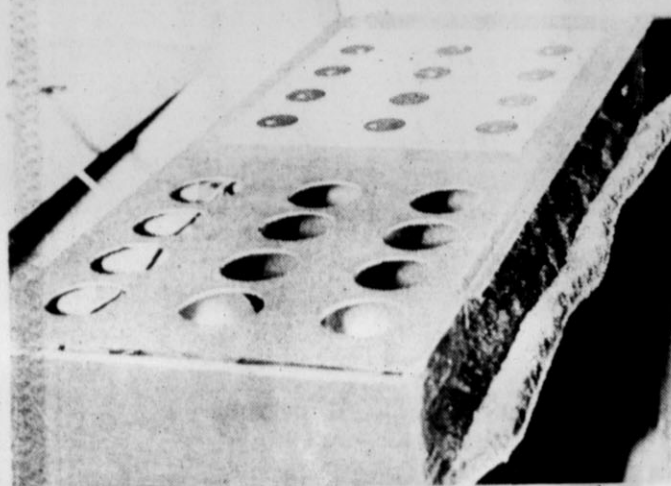

Teaff will also be the featured guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Sunday, April 25 at the First Christian Church. The public is invited to attend services Sunday and hear his inspiring message.

Bullet Pit

Quarter-inch steel sheets cause the bullets to ricochet into a pit of sand held back by a railroad tie. The sand is about eight inches deep. The 45 degree angle prevents any of the shot to fall outside the pit according to Henry Reid, shooting coach. (Brand Photo)

Nets Nip Celtics

By The Associated Press
For more than two years, the New Jersey Nets have had Boston on their minds. Now they'd like to believe the Celtics are worrying about them.

"If we have to play them in the playoffs, it gives them something to think about. It's fresh in their minds that we beat them the last time around," Jan van Breda Kolff said Friday night after the Nets, who hadn't beaten the Celtics since the 1979-80 season, polished them off 113-96.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association it was Philadelphia 100, Washington 96; Atlanta 109, Indiana 91; Chicago 112, Cleveland 102; Kansas City 123, Denver 121; San Antonio 118, Dallas 106; Milwaukee 112, New York 99; Houston 107, Utah 100; Phoenix 113, Portland 98, and Los Angeles 125, Golden State 109.

The U.S. Mint has coined money for more than 20 foreign countries.

Australia numbers more than 120 varieties of marsupials among some 20 species of mammals.

the third-longest in NBA history, ended March 28 with a defeat against Boston's archrival, the 76ers.

The Celtics, who hope to become the first team since the Celtics in 1969 to successfully defend their NBA title, won five of the games in the streak without superstar forward Larry Bird, who broke his cheekbone Feb. 28. When Bird returned, he was relegated to a substitute's role, although Coach Bill Fitch explained: "It's who is in there at the end that counts."

At the other end of the standings, the Clippers stopped a 19-game losing streak by winning their last game of the season Thursday. The skein was one short of the NBA record for futility set by the 76ers in the 1972-73 season.

The Clippers, 17-65, were stung in January when owner Donald Sterling announced that the team's first priority, was to finish last in the Western Conference so they could have the first pick in the 1982 draft. He might get his wish if the Clippers can win a coin flip with the Los Angeles Lakers May 20.

The Lakers acquired the first-round pick of the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have the worst record in the Eastern Conference.

The Utah Jazz nearly matched San Diego in futility, losing 18 games in a row before beating the Clippers to stop the streak.

Czech, Argentine Take Semi-finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina polished off their opponents in the $300,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament and then adjourned from the court to discuss politics and tennis rules.

Lendl rediscovered his forehand late in the first set Friday and rallied to a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Eddie Dibbs and then sided with Bjorn Borg in his decision to pass up Wimbledon this year rather than play in 10 Grand Prix tournaments.

Clerc defeated Victor Pecci of Paraguay, 6-4, 6-4 to join Lendl in today's semifinals and then said he would be glad to trade his tennis racket for a gun and serve his country in its dispute with England over the Falkland Islands.

Lendl, the No. 2 ranked player in the world, fielded more questions about the Borg controversy than he did concerning his victory over Dibbs.

"I agree with Bjorn; he has a right to decide how many tournaments he will play in," Lendl said. "He has a right to take one year or five years off if he wants to. He has practiced four or five hours every day for 10 years. I feel sorry for him. He is a great champion and should not be treated that way."

The La Plata 9th grade girls' 1600 meter relay team closed out their junior high career with a perfect record Thursday by winning the district title. The quartet included (from left)

Vida's Velocity Slips, But Not His Vitality

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Vida Blue has lost some of his velocity, but none of his vitality. "They say I don't throw as hard as I used to, that I don't average six or seven strikeouts a game," Blue says. "But I like to think I'm a complete pitcher. I like setting up hitters. You don't get paid for strikeouts, but for winning games."

Friday night, Cleveland center fielder Rick Manning called Blue "awesome" as the Kansas City left-hander helped the Royals take a 3-1 decision over the Indians.

"He doesn't throw as hard as he used to, but he hits the spots and kept us off balance," said Manning after Blue allowed the Indians just two hits in seven innings. "I've never seen his slider break so sharply before."

The victory was the first in the American League for Blue since he was a member of the Oakland A's in 1978. He was acquired by the Royals in spring training from the San Francisco Giants. The 32-year-old Blue limited Cleveland to two hits — including Toby Harrah's solo homer — in the first seven innings. Dan Quisenberry came on to pitch the final two innings and gain his first save.

The Royals snapped a 1-1 tie against Cleveland's Len Barker, 1-1, when Lee May led off the seventh inning with an infield hit and scored on U.L. Washington's two-out triple.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York routed Detroit 10-2; Texas stopped Milwaukee 4-1 in 10 innings; Toronto blanked Boston 2-0; Seattle whipped Oakland 5-0 and California trimmed Minnesota 4-2 in 10 innings. Rain postponed the Baltimore-Chicago game.

Success-Starved Texas Rangers Not Bothering With Motto This Year

An AP Sports Analysis - By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The success-starved Texas Rangers weren't even bold enough to have their own motto in the American League this year.

In 1981, it was "Coming Alive" which proved to be a blatant case of false advertising in their ensuing annual August dive.

After three consecutive games this season in which their pitching was pounded by Cleveland and the New York Yankees, press box pundits were suggesting "Stay-Alive" as a theme.

Burt Hawkins, the Rangers' media relations director, has agonized for a franchise winner since 1937, first at Washington, and now at Arlington, pleading for just one pennant.

The Senators never earned one when Hawkins was a sports writer and in the 12 years he was traveling secretary.

Since the franchise moved to Texas in 1972, the closest the Rangers have come is five games back.

Hawkins has suffered through disgrace after disgrace and it doesn't bolster his confidence when he sees a balk, hit batsmen, dropped fly balls, mediocre pitching and sloppy baserunning which were on display during the Rangers' first home stand.

"Buddy boy, (Hawkins calls everybody 'Buddy boy') it could be a long season if we keep doing that, but you've got to remember the team we have out there hasn't played together very long," said Hawkins.

Indeed, Ranger Vice President Eddie Robinson had only two returning 1981 starters in the lineup opening day.

Manager Don Zimmer said, "It will take them a month to get things together. It had better not take them to July, though." Robinson has received a clear mandate to produce or else from the Ranger Board of Directors, who are demanding a competitive team.

Zimmer is a Robinson man. The implications of another Ranger fade out are clear: It could mean the necks of Zimmer and Robinson.

Robinson has traded away second baseman Bump Wills and lifetime .300 hitter Al Oliver for the likes of Lee Mazzilli, Larry Parrish, and Doug Flynn.

The three newest Rangers have some weaknesses. Maz-zilli, playing left field, has not been overwhelming with his arm; Parrish, moving from third base to right field, has already dropped one fly ball; and Flynn's bat has been silent.

To win, the Rangers' pitching must be dynamite. Texas can't afford Frank Tanana, Doc Medich and Rick Honeycutt getting bombed, which they did recently.

The Rangers hope, just once, to shake their reputation as malcontents and losers so they can get out of the shadow of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

"Whitey" White, who is a longtime handyman for Texas, said several years ago the Rangers should be so ashamed of the way they play that they "ought to back up to the pay window."

White is still reserving his judgment on this year's team.

But Hawkins already knows what he would do if the Rangers won their first pennant.

"I'd have another round," he said.

There would be thousands of frustrated Ranger fans joining him.

Salazar Favored In His First Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — World record holder Alberto Salazar, unbeaten at the distance, runs in his first Boston Marathon Monday as a strong favorite in an unexceptional field.

Only three of the world's top 10 rated marathoners have entered the 86th annual classic that has drawn 7,603 runners. Japan's Toshihiko Seko, who set a course record of 2:09.26 last year, is bypassing the event.

Interest will focus on a confrontation between the young and the old — the 23-year-old Salazar, who is running only his third 26-mile, 385-yard race, and the 34-year-old Bill Rodgers, a four-time winner of his hometown test of speed and endurance.

"There's world record potential for both men's and women's races," said Rodgers, who finished fifth in the 1980 New York City Marathon won by Salazar. "I think the women's field is the best one ever in the 12 years it's been an official entry in the Boston Marathon. It may be the best of any marathon."

The women's race is headed by Grete Waitz of Norway, another runner who competes in marathons infrequently but successfully. She has been in just four, winning the New York City Marathon in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

Waitz dropped out with an injury in the middle of last year's New York City Marathon, won by Allison Roe of New Zealand in a world-record time of 2:25.29. Roe, who set a course record of 2:26.45 in the 1981 Boston Marathon, is not competing here this year.

The course winds from Hopkinton, west of Boston, to The Prudential Insurance Co. tower in the city. It may be the last time that route is used.

Prudential, the race's major sponsor for 16 years, is withdrawing after this year to protest efforts to commercialize the marathon. Race director Will Cloney said the current finish line is "ideal" but probably will be changed next year.

Marathon officials also are considering changing the race day from the traditional Patriots' Day holiday, a Monday, to a Sunday to attract better television coverage. Hopkinton officials, concerned with the impact such a change would have on church services, are reviewing the matter.

Rodgers, the world's seventh-ranked marathoner, and Dick Beardsley, of Rush City, Minn., rated ninth, have the best shots at upsetting Salazar, a former resident of suburban Wayland, Mass.

But Rodgers, third here a year ago, is not high on his chances. He says he is not in peak condition and has felt tired in recent races.

Salazar, who set his world record of 2:08.13 last October in his second consecutive New York victory, is coming off a strong performance April 10 in a 10,000-meter race in Eugene, Ore.

Henry Rono won in 27:29.9, but Salazar was right behind with a 27:30.0 clocking that was just 84-100ths of a second behind Craig Virgin's American record.

"I ran so well. I'm sure ready for a good marathon," Salazar said after the race. Rodgers agrees.

"He'll have to put out an effort to win, but I think he is so fit that, to me, it seems he's a strong favorite," said Rodgers. "I think I'm just one of the other runners out there."

Rodgers finished fifth in the Houston Marathon Jan. 24, then sagged to 34th in a marathon in Tokyo a week later. He was in a marathon in Seoul, South Korea on March 28 but said he didn't run with great determination.

Beardsley, 26, tied for first with a time of 2:11.48 in last year's London Marathon. His 2:09.37 finish last June 20 in Duluth, Minn., was the second best by an American in 1981, behind Salazar.

Rodgers, who won the Boston Marathon in 1975, 1978, 1979 and 1980, and Neil Cusack of Ireland, the 1974 champion, are the only previous winners returning for the men's race. John Lodwick, who came in fourth last year, and Ron Tabb, the third-place finisher in 1980, also have entered.

Virgin, last year's runnerup, is sidelined with a kidney ailment.

The strongest challenges to Waitz in the women's competition are expected from Charlotte Teske of West Germany, Lorraine Moller of New Zealand and Jacqueline Gareau of Canada.

Patti Catalano of West Roxbury, Mass., runnerup the last three years, is not running.

Watson Not Surprised To Be Leading Tourney

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson is not particularly surprised to be leading the $350,000 MONY Tournament of Champions.

But he was very surprised to be leading with a 36-hole total of 137.

"I'm surprised 7-under is leading the golf tournament," Watson said after gaining control of the winners-only event with a no-bogey, 4-under-par 68 in Friday's second round.

"I guess everybody's got the Masters-blahs," said Watson, twice a winner of this exclusive event that follows the important Masters tournament on the PGA Tour schedule.

"I can't explain it," Watson said. "Conditions couldn't be better. There are a lot of birdies out there. I guess

Whitmore Leads CPC By One Stroke

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Despite her 42 years, Kathy Whitworth says she still can compete with the younger set in women's professional golf.

And she proved it Friday, moving into a 1-stroke lead after the second round of the $150,000 CPC International.

Whitworth, who finished the first round with a lackluster 73, pulled off five birdies Friday for a four-under-par 68.

"I've had some troubles with my swing, but when I get my swing in the right slot, I don't think they're any better than me," she said.

Beth Daniel held on to second place, finishing Thursday and Friday with back-to-back 71s. She had a good shot at the lead Friday, but faulty performances on the 17th and 18th holes cost her two bogeys.

There was a three-way tie for third place, shared by JoAnne Carner, Julie Stanger Pyne and Debbie Austin at 1 over par.

everybody is just waiting for the last two rounds. It will happen. There will be some good scores.

"I figure I will have to shoot about 6- or 7-under for the last two rounds to be in it."

Peter Oosterhuis, a transplanted Englishman now living in California, moved into second with a 66, the best round of the tournament. His total is 138, a single shot behind Watson.

Lanny Wadkins, who led the first round, slipped to a round of par-72 and dropped to third at 139.

It was three more strokes back to a group of seven — Ray Floyd, U.S. Open champ David Graham, J.C. Snead, Ron Streck, Andy Bean, Tom Weiskopf and Fuzzy Zoeller — tied at 142.

Streck had a 70 in the mild, breezy weather. Snead and Floyd had 71s, while Bean, Weiskopf, Graham and Zoeller matched par-72 on the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course.

Lee Trevino, the defending champion in the elite tournament that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months, shot a 72 and was at 143.

Craig Stadler, a playoff winner in the Masters last weekend, also had a 72 that left him at 146, nine strokes back in the chase for the $63,000 first prize and one of golf's most prestigious titles.

Wadkins, who had a 2-shot lead at the start of the day's play, and Watson played together in the final twosome and matched 35s on the front nine.

Watson moved into a tie for the top with a nine-iron shot to 30 inches on the 13th and an eight-foot birdie putt on the 16th, then engineered a 2-shot swing on the par-5 17th.

To Be Honored June 16

At the gala opening of "Texas" this year on June 16, The Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation Board will honor pioneer farm families. One of the show's themes is the struggle of these hardy settlers against the elements.

County Historical Commission chairmen and county judges are helping to locate anyone who farmed in the Panhandle area before 1900. If the county was settled before 1900, the first farm family to arrive will be honored.

The celebration for the farmers will open the 17th season for "Texas" in Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Canyon. The drama's hero, Calvin Armstrong, is a farmer, and faces drought, fire, and wind just as the early pioneers did.

And to sleep
The last words of English romantic poet George Gordon, sixth Baron Byron (1788-1824), were, "Now I shall go to sleep."

THAT SIZE 18 IS HISTORY!
and it will stay there, thanks to Pat Walker's!

"When my friends see me I feel really proud! With 37 pounds lost and 50 inches off I am nearing my goal. Even my slack size has gone from an 18 to a 12. In 1980 I went on a diet and I managed to lose 20 pounds. Then, slowly, over the following months all that weight crept right back on again and even a few new pounds were added.

I decided that December that come January I was going back to the "old diet" again. Then I heard about Pat Walker's where you can lose weight without strenuous exercise and starvation dieting. I saw the Pat Walker's ad and I call for the free courtesy treatment and private figure analysis. The rest is history.

This time with Pat Walker's Symmetricon exercise unit firming and toning as the pounds and inches slip away, the weight is going to stay off. The reason I'll stay slim is that, for the first time, I faced up to it that you look like what you eat... and I just ate too much. At Pat Walker's you learn to eat the right combinations of food. I could say I ate my way back to being slim again. If wearing a leotard embarrasses you... if you don't like revealing your figure problems to a roomful of strangers, then Pat Walker's is your kind of place. Every aspect of Pat Walker's weight loss program — from counseling sessions on sensible eating habits to Symmetricon treatment — is in total privacy, something you deserve.

After Pat Walker's
Eleanor Stafford MERIDIAN, IDAHO

WE INVITE YOU to make an appointment now for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. We'll give you a free figure analysis and treatment on the Symmetricon. You'll enjoy the no-muss, no-fuss passive exercise in privacy. We'll tell you how long it will take to perfect your figure and its cost based on a per session cost of $5.00.

Ann Landers

Guidelines Should Be Drawn Up

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Until two months ago I was a well-paid office manager for an automobile company. I am female, 28. My sister, two years older, worked for a public relations firm. She received her pink slip last Friday. We share a comfortable apartment in Manhattan, but we can't stay here much longer. The job market is very soft and living expenses are out of sight. Our mother (divorced 10 years ago) retired in 1979 and moved in with her mother, who is 70 and widowed. Grandma's home has five glorious bedrooms, a three-car garage and is filled with lovely childhood memories. It's near New Brunswick, N.J. My sister and I decided it would make a lot of sense for us to move in with Mom and Grammy until we find suitable employment. The four of us talked about it over dinner Sunday, and they were both very enthusiastic. How does this set-up sound to you, Ann? From an economic standpoint it would be a godsend to my sister and me. What do you say?—Toe In The Water In N.Y.

DEAR TOE: Many families are doubling up these days because of job losses and divorces. Both women and men are moving in with Mom and Pop "temporarily." Sometimes it works like a charm, other times it's a disaster—depending on the temperament, flexibility, maturity and threshold of tolerance of all parties involved. A word of caution, however. Guidelines should be drawn up and discussed in detail before anybody calls the van.

Ray Fowler, executive director of the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapists, came up with the following suggestions. I believe they can serve as a good base for anyone considering this plan.

- (1) Clarify house rules. Include everything—room and board, eating schedules, clean-up responsibilities, space arrangements. Review rules from time to time to accommodate changing circumstances and keep the lines of communication open.
- (2) Recognize that conflicts are sure to occur. Settle them quickly and with good humor.
- (3) Set a target date for departure. Even if it changes, it gives everyone parameters and an opportunity to bring up the subject.
- (4) Act in accord as parents on homecoming rules and arrangements. Expect children to abide by parental values.
- (5) Respect one another's privacy. Both generations should have their own lives.

party. Please help me convince John that I am right.—Want It Lovely in Fort Lauderdale

DEAR LOVELY: Sorry, I'm voting for the runt. Is it a style show or a wedding? John has a right to make his selections based on who he wants—not on the height of your bridesmaids.

Sugar Works Met Thursday

Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club met Thursday morning in the American Legion Hall. Deborah Goldsmith gave a program on petit fours cake squares. Carl Odum and Clara Trowbridge demonstrated character cakes.

The next meeting will be April 22 and will feature filigree lattice work and basket work.

Couple To Observe Anniversary Today

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winget will be honored today from 3-5 p.m. at a reception in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Winget. The couple are celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary.

Also, serving as hosts will be their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Les Parker of Arlington; and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Griffith and granddaughter Shelley, all of Baton Rouge, La.

Charles Richard Winget and Virginia Newell Griffith were married April 19, 1947 in Hereford at the home of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J.O. Newell.

A native of Hereford and a graduate of Hereford High School, Mrs. Winget was employed at the Star Theater for three years.

Winget was a native of Sapulpa, Okla. before moving to Pampa where he graduated from high school. He owned and operated the Pampa Radio Service before joining the navy in 1942.

He came to Hereford in 1945 and was co-owner of Winget Bros. Pump Co. He then owned Winget Pump Co. with his son Wayne.

The couple are members of the First United Methodist Church. Winget is a member of the Board of Stewards.

DEAR ANN: I'm planning to be married soon. My three bridesmaids are all tall, beautiful girls. The ushers (my fiance's choices) are his three cousins. Two are six-footers. The third is a 5-foot-4 inch runt. I'm afraid he will spoil the looks of the wedding

Governor Proclaims Clean Air Week

Governor William P. Clements is proclaiming May 2-8 Clean Air Week in Texas.

The purpose of Clean Air Week is to protect and conserve Texas' air resources.

The American Lung Association of Texas (ALAT) and the Texas Air Control Board (TACB), the state agency with responsibility for reducing and controlling air pollution, are cosponsoring Clean Air Week at the state level.

"For the second consecutive year, energy conservation is Texas' theme for Clean Air Week because of the relationship between energy production and air pollution," said Dr. Stanton P. Fischer, president of the American Lung Association of Texas.

TACB Executive Director Bill Stewart said, "The need for energy and for clean air need not be at odds. Conserving energy can help protect our precious air resources by limiting the amounts of air pollutants released when oil, gas, or coal is burned to produce energy. Even with the best control equipment available, we cannot completely eliminate the release of air contaminants from industries and from mother vehicles.

"We hope that Texans will use Clean Air Week to focus their attention on how energy use relates to environmental pollution and to think of ways to conserve energy. Helping reduce air pollution can be as simple as using mass transportation or car pools, adjusting thermostats, using less hot water, and turning off lights when leaving a room," he said.

Dr. Fischer suggested several ways to help reduce air pollution:

- do not burn leaves and trash;
- keep automobiles properly tuned and keep pollution control devices maintained;
- do not smoke cigarettes;
- use car pools and public transportation and walk rather than ride as much as possible.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

District I TEHA Meeting Set

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Extension Homemaker Club members from the 19 counties of the Panhandle will be traveling to Hereford this Tuesday for the annual spring meeting of the District I Texas Extension Homemakers Association meeting.

Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council is the hostess for the all day event in the Bull Barn. Registration begins at 9 a.m. with the program being held from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Many club members have put in hours and hours and hours of hard work getting ready for the meeting.

Kate Bradley, Bippus Extension Homemakers Club, County T.E.H.A. chairman, has coordinated the event as well as taken care of advance registration.

Mary Carter, Ford Extension Homemakers Club, is in charge of decorations. A western heritage theme is being carried out in decorations of windmills, branding irons, and kerosene lanterns.

Roberta Campbell, North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club, and Johnnie Messer, Draper Extension Homemakers Club, have made hostess identification name tags for all Deaf Smith County members.

Anna Messer and Sherri Blackwell, both of Draper E.H.C., collected lovely door prizes graciously donated by Hereford businesses.

Carol Odom and Clara Trowbridge, members of Wyche E.H.C., received thousands of small items to be used in courtesy bags to be given to all registered guests. Gayle Carter, Palo Duro E.H.C. has made arrangements for 15 Hereford businesses to have exhibits at the day's activities.

Jewell Hargrave, Cultural E.H.C., and Mariellen Homfeld, Bippus E.H.C., are in charge of refreshments to be served as guests register.

Cindy Norvell, Palo Duro E.H.C., is coordinating a style show during the luncheon with the Pants Cage and Louise's of Sugarland Mall.

Terri Johnson, Westway E.H.C., is a candidate for District I T.E.H.A. director. The election will be held the day of the district meeting. We wish her the best of luck in her bid for the office.

Bruce Coleman, County Commissioner for Precinct III, will bring greetings to the

Homemakers Club Tour Harrington Cancer Center

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
Frio Homemakers Club members met at the home of Bonnie Baldwin Tuesday morning and went in a group to Amarillo. They had lunch at Furr's Cafeteria, where they were met by Mrs. Mattie King and Mrs. Veradelle Bruns, who accompanied them to the Harrington Cancer Center.

A member of the staff took the group on a tour of the Center, explaining the functional design and layout of the buildings, and the patient treatment facilities.

The presentation of colors will be given by Pack 55, Den I Cub Scouts. Their den leader is Janet Coleman, a member of Palo Duro E.H.C.

The Extension Homemakers have exhibited great leadership skills in preparing for this big meeting. The cooperation among members has been great.

Tuesday will be a great day! Because Extension Homemaker Club members are great people and they planned the whole event.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Going from here were Beverly Paetzold, Nadine Warrick, Darlene Richardson, Ella and Linda Caudle, Annie Vogler, Ruth Robbins, Loleta Vinson, Annie Lee Dobbins, Ellen Warrick, and Georgia Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson and their children, of Wheeler, were here visiting her brother, Eddie Matthews and family during the Easter holidays. The Matthews live in Shirley Garrison's house at Easter. They all attended Sunday services at Frio.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy McMillon and family were in Lubbock recently for the funeral of his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Neagle. She died on Sunday night. Services were Wednesday afternoon in Memorial Baptist Church, Lubbock, and burial was at Crosbyton Cemetery. A brother, Billy McMillon of Dimmitt, also went with the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Barber came home on Monday from an Easter holiday visit with their children, the Jimmy Barber, in Memphis, Tenn. They report nice weather and a profusion of dogwood and azalia blooms across that area heralding the Spring season.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

No one can pinpoint the exact day the first threat was made by a mother.

As close as anyone can figure, it was around the time of Eve who said to her son, Cain, "If you don't stop making faces at your brother, your face will turn into a pillar of salt."

Whatever you think of threats and intimidation, it's a weapon that has worked for mothers for years and is passed on from generation to generation.

Your ten basic menacing threats are still being use today and are as successful as ever in instilling fear and mistrust in a child.

"If you don't keep your hand in the car, the wind will blow your hand off." Despite the fact that you never knew anyone personally who had a hand blown off, I've never met a child who wants to take that chance.

"You cross your eyes one more time and they'll freeze that way." There was a rumor once of a telethon for frozen eyes of children who played the odds and lost, but it's not documented.

"Don't you dare wash your hair after 8:30 or you'll catch pneumonia." Someone's grandfather died once from pneumonia. I couldn't believe he didn't know better than to wash his hair after 8:30.

"If you don't comb your hair, the rats will build a nest in it." Would it look any different? "You keep playing with those matches and you'll wet the bed." I was 35 before I trusted myself to light the stove for dinner.

"Those who play with their gum get very sick." Do you want to tell your mother that makes no sense whatsoever? "Drink coffee before you're out of high school and your teeth will turn black."

"Sit up straight or your spine will grow that way." "Eat everything on your plate or I'm sending your food to the Armenians." I always wondered what the Armenians did with all those cold vegetables.

The universal threat was always, "You keep making faces and your face will freeze that way." I always wanted to laugh at that one until I remembered Lot's wife turning to salt as she left Sodom. I just knew she was horsing around!

Rebekah Lodge No. 228 Meets Tuesday Evening

Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with 28 members present. Noble Grand Robert Combs presided.

Ursalee Jacobsen was escorted to the floor and her commission as Lodge Deputy was read.

Susie Curtsinger was presented the Past District Deputy President pen, a gift from the Hereford Lodge.

Plans were also discussed for the banquet and other events to take place April 23-25 at Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

The banquet, dance and most meetings will be given to the public. Degree team practice was held under the direction of Team Captain Ben Conklin.

Laveta Fitzgerald was hostess to those present. They included David Rittman, Kee Ruland, Billy Sims, Nelma Sowell, Martha Bridges and Betty Danley.

Between the Covers

Best Seller Is Set In Texas

By DIANNE PIERSON
Novels by best-selling authors head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "Celebrity," a story of fame, passion, and vengeance, heads the list of new books this week.

Thomas Thompson is also the author of "Blood and Money," which is the story of murder and power in Texas and "Serpentine," a mesmerizing odyssey of love and evil.

"Celebrity" is set in Texas in 1950, when the world is ripe with promise for three inseparable boyhood friends. Each boy possessed a talent for winning that made success appear inevitable.

Then something unexpected and tragic happened. The three tried to forget this dark interlude in their young lives and each set out to ascend his own summit. But as they climbed they carried the secret, and it held the potential to destroy them all.

"Celebrity" will seize you on the first page and hold you in its power until the shattering conclusion. It is a knockout of a first novel by one of America's most acclaimed storytellers.

"Public Smiles, Private Tears" by Helen Van Slyke will be another best seller. It is the story of Beverly Thyson's extraordinary rise in the ruthless world of women's fashion. Beverly's personal life makes her feel lacking as a woman. She is still constantly searching for love.

"Public Smiles, Private Tears" is not only Bev's story—it is the story of an entire generation of women who find themselves in a world where traditional standards and assumptions no longer work. Helen Van Slyke drew upon her own experience in the glittering world of the powerful to tell a fascinating story of the people she knew so well.

Other new books available include "Thy Brother's Wife" by Andrew M. Greeley, author of "Cardinal Sins," "The Old Priory" by Norah Lofts, "Freemartin" by David Keith Kohler, and "The Winter of the White Seal" by marie Herbert.

Library Events: public story hour - 10 a.m. Thursday.

The word "taxicab" was coined in New York. "Taxi" came from a French company that made taximeters for horse carriages. "Cab" abbreviated the French word "cabriole," a light one-horse carriage.

Clint Formby Is Guest Speaker At Texas Tech

Texas Tech Regent Clint Formby, of Hereford, was guest speaker at the installation of Student Association officers Thursday evening in the University Center at Tech.
 Formby, who was appointed a Texas Tech regent in 1971, is the first to have served as president of the Texas Tech student body, president of the Ex-Students Association and chairman of the Board of Regents.
 Officers installed included Charlie V. Hill, president; Willard H. Abercrombie, external vice-president; and S.

Matt Nanny, internal vice-president.
 Others installed were the senators-at-large, and student senators from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Engineering, Agricultural sciences, Education, Graduate School, and School of Law.

Texas Poison Center Seeks To Protect Children

GALVESTON — Children are loving active creatures, unfortunately they can also eat and drink peculiar things. "We see children eating plants, medicines, clean agents, soap, bugs and all sorts of other things," said Michael Ellis, Director of the Texas State Poison Center. In 1981 the Poison Center received some 21,000 poisoning calls. "About 75 percent of these inquiries are about children under 5 years old," Ellis noted. "Many of the accidental ingestions by children are of little consequence, but some can be life-threatening. Liquid furniture polishes, lamp oil, gasoline, and other oil-based products can kill with as little as one sip." Springtime can be a particularly bad time of the year. "Blooming plants, fertilizers, plant foods, insecticides, and gasoline ingestions become almost epidemic this time of the year," said Ellis. "along with the numerous household cleaning products out for spring cleaning." The fact that the product might be foul-tasting doesn't really apply on a one swallow basis - when you are a two year old. Our rule of thumb at the Poison Center is "if it is small enough to get in the mouth and doesn't bite first, it will be eaten," Ellis said. As the weather warms up and children are in and out of the house more, they seem to be able to find more. In the event of a poisoning emergency, the first thing to do is to call the Texas State Poison Center at 1-713-765-1420. The Poison Center staff will help you determine if medical attention is required, or if the problem can be handled at home. "About 85 percent of our inquiries can be handled at home," Ellis noted, "thus rushing the person to the hospital, is usually unnecessary. If the poisoning is serious enough to need medical attention, the Poison Center will direct you to the emergency room and then call ahead so that the child will be treated quickly." Spring cleaning is a perfect time to inspect your home for poison hazards. The fact that no small children live in the home does not mean that a poisoning cannot occur. "Nearly everyone has a small niece or nephew, grandchild, or a friend with small children - all of whom may visit occasionally," Ellis said, "and that makes them prime candidates for a poisoning accident." Every home should have a bottle of syrup of Ipecac, particularly if small children live there. This nauseating liquid is used to cause vomiting in the poisoned child, if vomiting is indicated. "Sometimes, we don't want the child to vomit," Ellis said, "so the parent needs to talk with the Poison Center first, before using the Ipecac. But it is the only safe way to induce vomiting. Other household remedies like mustard and water, and salt water are ineffective, and can be quite hazardous, themselves."

Leaders Depicted As Vain, Deceitful

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In his novel "Burr," author Gore Vidal depicts George Washington as a vain, dull military failure and Thomas Jefferson as a charming but deceitful man.

He harbors equally iconoclastic views of current members of the U.S. Senate — yet he aspires to join the club, California voters willing.

"I have never seen a time when there were so many — inferior is a harsh word — inadequate members of the Senate" who don't know languages, history or geography, says Vidal, who is seeking the Democratic nomination in California.

He is far behind Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. as the June 8 primary approaches. The latest Mervin Field poll, the first in which Vidal was listed, put Brown at 57 percent and Vidal at 10 percent.

The Republican incumbent, S.I. Hayakawa, is not seeking reelection.

"A senator now is just a figurehead on a huge staff ... Most of them don't know very much," Vidal said in a recent interview. They're not meant to know very much. It was the great powers that put them there and they're not going to put in a very independent or learned person."

It was this cynical view of politics that led the 56-year-old writer to seek the post he has wanted since he accompanied his grandfather, Sen. Thomas Gore of Oklahoma, to the Senate chambers 46 years ago.

"Actually, I'm better placed in the hierarchy of the world than any senator is now, so it isn't any form of promotion for me. It's just a place where I can get more done," he said.

What he wants to get done is to air his views, which he said would fall on the Senate "like an earthquake." Some of them:

—The CIA, "the president's personal hit squad," should be investigated and audited by Congress, as is every other agency.

—A 10 percent to 15 percent tax or "license fee" should be imposed on the gross adjusted income of every corporation, and people with incomes under $11,700 should not have to pay income taxes.

—A national referendum should be held on gun control, and people buying guns should have to take out insurance "in case they shoot somebody."

—NATO should be phased out, since the European nations have larger per-capita incomes than the United States.

Vidal brushes off the constant hints that perhaps his candidacy is a lark by a rich intellectual looking for amusement.

"I have been speaking all around the state for two years. If that is not a sign of seriousness, I don't know what is," he said. "I am in a funny way the grass roots candidate."

He says his liberal speech, which he labels "a gentle survey about problems facing our nation," wins enthusiastic responses at conservative club luncheons and radical campus gatherings.

And it prompted him "to get politically active again" after a decade.

He was born at West Point, N.Y., where his father was an aeronautics instructor at the U.S. Military Academy. He spent much of his first 10 years in Washington, D.C., with his grandfather.

After graduating from Phillips Exeter Academy at 17, he joined the Army. At one time Vidal shared the same stepfather, Hugh D. Auchincloss, with Jacqueline Onassis.

He wrote his first novel, "Williwaw," at the age of 19 while he was stationed in the Pacific.

In 1948, he wrote "The City and The Pillar," known as the first American novel to deal openly with homosexuality. In the late 1950s and early 1960s, his plays "Visit to a Small Planet" and "The Best Man" were Broadway successes.

He returned to writing novels with "Julian," "Washington, D.C.," "Myra Breckinridge" and "Burr." His latest, and 17th, novel is "Creation," an epic of the 5th century B.C.

Vidal said he first lived in California in 1952 and has maintained homes there, in upstate New York and in Ita-

Band To Entertain Thursday

John Roberts and his brass band from Amarillo will be entertaining Senior Citizens at the Community Center Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. The music will feature the sounds of the 30's and 40's, sprinkled with the 20's and 50's.

There will be no admission charge for the concert and dance.

ly. His current California home is in the Hollywood Hills.

He ran for Congress in 1960 from upstate New York, the site of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's home. He lost, but "doubled the Democratic vote in the most Republican district in the U.S."

In 1968, he and Dr. Benjamin Spock founded the People's Party, an antiwar group.

"I think we made a considerable impression on the major parties, which at that time rather enjoyed the Vietnam War, which we disapproved of," Vidal said.

When he announced his U.S. Senate candidacy in March, he called himself the "only peace candidate."

While the response to his speech may be enthusiastic, the question remains whether voters will perceive him as a real candidate rather than a witty entertainer.

"You think they like what they have to vote for? You think they really like it? They have nothing but contempt for what's there in both parties."

Vidal says he has not voted for president "since I cast my vote for Lyndon Johnson as a peace candidate against Barry Goldwater. I refuse to be had again."
