

Appraisal hearings on valuation start

Tax appraisal pre-hearings started today at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse for taxpayers who want to question the values placed on their property in the recent revaluation program.

The "Notice of Reappraisal" forms were recently mailed to all taxpayers. Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, noted that these tax rates are "strictly estimates."

The tax notices will not become official and effective until the Appraisal Board of Review sets the certified values. This board will convene at 10 a.m. on July 23 in the courthouse. Taxpayers can appear before the board to appeal for adjustments if they feel the values are unjust.

Meanwhile, the pre-hearings in the county commission meeting room will give taxpayers an opportunity to meet with appraisers and discuss the revaluation changes. These hearings started today and will continue Thursday, Friday and next Monday.

Home owners are being hit with the biggest increase in valuations, many of them being doubled in value. The tax district claims homes have been on the tax rolls for 48 to 52 percent of market value since the last reappraisal in 1976. Now, they are being raised to an approximate 95 percent of market value. Fox said the revaluation completed by the tax district "will shift the burden of taxes, generally relieving the burden on business personal property inventories and farmland, while shifting more tax load to residential and commercial real estate."

Fox added that residential and commercial property owners will see taxes increased on their property by an average of 25 to 28 percent. "The tax district does not set the tax rate," said Fox. "The district sets values, which are certified by the Board of Review, and each taxing entity sets the tax rate."

Low census gives hospital net loss

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A net loss of $17,999 for the month of June was not bad, considering the "bottom fell out of the occupancy rate," Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator Jim Bullard told board members Tuesday.

The daily census dropped to 10 at one point, which Bullard described as a "near catastrophe." The average daily census for the month of June was 23.1, compared with 34.6 last year in June. That figure represented a 30 percent occupancy rate, as opposed to 44.9 percent last year. Bullard said the break even point is around 33 percent.

The hospital reacted to the reduced patient load by laying off some employees and reducing the hours of others until things picked up again. Bullard said the picture did indeed improve this past weekend, with all but one bed filled on Friday night.

While several of the local doctors took their vacations during June, Bullard was reluctant to blame the census reduction on that fact alone. He said ambulance runs also dropped to 34 as compared with 90 for last June, and he thought the fact that many of the county residents themselves were on vacation could have made a difference.

In other business the board heard from Doris Morgan of the hospital's Home Health Agency. Morgan said she understood the board's approval of the agency's fiscal year report and recommendations by the professional advisory board because the agency will be surveyed next week.

The board agreed to remove Bailey County from the agency service area, leaving Deaf Smith, Castro, Oldham and Parmer Counties to be served by the program.

Morgan said the agency is continuing its search for a medical social worker who would make home visits along with nurses to help determine the social or emotional needs of a patient.

She said that person might do such things as help a patient understand the medical benefits available to him (See HOSPITAL, Page 2A)

City gets payment

A check totaling $36,221.50 to cover Hereford's May sales tax payment was sent last week by State Comptroller Bob Bullock. The state total was $56.8 million on the one-percent city tax.

Houston received the largest check, $9.5 million, bringing the total 1985 payments to $86.2 million. Dallas' check for $7.2 million pushed its total to $63.7 this year. July checks represent taxes collected on sales made in May and reported to the comptroller by June 20.

Hereford's total for the year rose to $329,922—an increase of 11.6 percent over the same time a year ago.

Other Panhandle city totals for the period and year-to-date: Canyon $29,062 and $189,569; Plainview $65,662 and $614,877; Pampa $112,482 and $916,500; Dumas $46,429 and $349,638; Perryton $56,560 and $420,776; Dimmitt $11,780 and $85,450; Amarillo $729,468 and $8,554,207.

Intersection Blocked

The intersection of Sixth and Miles will probably be closed through Thursday for repair. The city contracted the work through Appian Construction of Hereford. The intersection, already torn out, will be resurfaced.

TRLA files wage suit over 'continual problem'

What Texas Rural Legal Aid (TRLA) defines as a "continual problem" of failure to pay minimum wage and keep proper records is alleged in a farmworker suit filed this week in U.S. District court against Griffin and Brand, Kelley Employment Service and Janis Kelley Robinson.

Twenty-nine families and eight individuals who planted and harvested onions for Griffin and Brand are claiming their rights were violated under the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act (AWPA) and the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA).

The plaintiffs listed are from the Texas cities of Laredo, Del Rio, Hidalgo, La Joya, San Juan, Raymondville, Dimmitt, Stanton, Edinburg, Pharr, Hereford, La Grulla and Eagle Pass.

The complaint alleges that the defendants gave false and misleading information to the defendants about the hours of employment, the period of employment and the terms and conditions of that employment, and did not keep accurate written records with respect to each plaintiff.

It also claims that Griffin and Brand's record keeping practices "were designed to confuse plaintiffs and to obscure the fact that defendants paid plaintiffs ... less than $3.35 per hour."

Griffin and Brand also is accused of discharging the Lazaro Martinez family of Hereford because they complained about the failure of the defendants to pay minimum wage or credit them with all hours worked.

Robinson is accused of acting as a farm labor contractor without being properly registered with the Department of Labor, an alleged violation of the AWPA, and violating terms of the work agreement.

The suit asks that each worker be awarded his or her unpaid minimum wages and an equal amount of liquidated damages, and $500 each for breach of employment. The plaintiffs also ask for damages for breach of employment, and the Martinez family is seeking reinstatement and payment of lost wages.

TRLA attorney Randall Marshall said that based on a six-year study by the Texas Department of Agriculture, the average farm worker should be paid about 74 cents for each sack of onions harvested to meet the minimum wage rate. The going rate, Marshall said, has been 50 to 60 cents per sack.

Marshall said attempts to settle out of court were made before the complaint was filed.

U.S. wants explanation for incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is demanding an explanation from the Soviet Union after a Soviet military truck rammed into the back of a car carrying U.S. soldiers in East Germany.

The American vehicle was carrying three members of the U.S. Military Liaison Mission to East Germany.

The latest incident, which occurred shortly after midnight on Saturday, left the chief of the U.S. military mission with a fractured eye socket, Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman said Tuesday.

Although the injury was described as minor, Col. Ronald Lajoie underwent surgery at a West Berlin hospital on Tuesday and was expected to remain hospitalized for 10 to 14 days, the Pentagon said.

Economy plagued by 'gross imbalances'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy is plagued with "gross imbalances" that cannot be rectified by changes in monetary policy alone, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker told Congress today.

Volcker, in testimony prepared for the House Banking Committee, said conflicting economic crosscurrents at this time make any strong action designed to bolster the economy inappropriate.

He spoke in defense of the board's decision to leave monetary policy intact for the time being, despite a sluggish economy and a rapidly growing money supply that could threaten to drive up inflation.

There had been some speculation that the board might act to pave the way for lower interest rates in an effort to bolster the lethargic economy. But it announced Tuesday it would hold to the same neutral course it has followed most of the year.

Volcker, citing the nation's enormous trade and budget deficits, told the panel in his mid-year assessment of the nation's economy: "We are dealing with a situation marked by gross imbalances that can neither be sustained indefinitely nor dealt with by monetary policy alone."

He said the recent, unexpected growth in the nation's money supply during the past few months likely will taper off on its own — although he conceded that "excessive growth of money, sustained over time, will foster inflation."

The nation's basic money supply, called M1, surged far above the board's targets in May and June.

"Against the background of a high dollar, the sluggishness of manufacturing output and relatively well-contained price pressures, quick and strong action to curtail the recent burst in M1 has not been appropriate," Volcker said.

The board announced on Tuesday it was changing its accounting methods and slightly increasing its money-growth targets — instead of taking direct action — to accommodate the money-supply surge.

In a meeting with reporters on Tuesday, Volcker declined to predict the future course of interest rates, but indicated the board was sticking to the basic course it has followed this year.

Bank robbed, two dead

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Port Arthur police said early today they have arrested a man in connection with the slayings of two savings and loan employees during a robbery Tuesday and were holding him in lieu of $200,000 bond.

Authorities would not release any information on the suspect except to say that he is a Jefferson County resident.

A statement released to the news media said, "During the night a Jefferson County resident was taken into custody and is being held on an accusation bond set by Judge (John)

DOE briefing set for next Tuesday

The U.S. Department of Energy will hold a public briefing in Amarillo next Tuesday evening concerning the high level radioactive waste management program.

The briefing will be from 4 until 9 p.m. in the Amarillo Civic Center Exhibit Hall. According to the DOE the briefing, scheduled at the request of Amarillo area residents, will be similar to the information forums conducted by the DOE in Deaf Smith County where a nine-square mile site is among three in the nation proposed for recommendation to the President for detailed characterization as a possible site for a repository.

Panelists from the DOE's Salt Repository Project Office and from the Amarillo area will present background information and answer questions about the implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 and studies made in the Texas panhandle.

The briefing will include round-table discussions on various topics, including site characterization activities and potential impacts, a slide presentation providing background on the issue, and an overview presentation by DOE representatives. Ample time will be reserved for questions and answers. The round-table session will begin at 4 p.m. and will be followed by panel presentations at 6:30 p.m.

The local DOE Information Office will be closed that Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Linda McClain, the Texas salt project manager, will be in the Hereford DOE Information Office from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. for conferences with local citizens.

A final recommendation to President Reagan is expected late this year after completion of the DOE's evaluation of comments on draft environmental assessments of nine states found potentially acceptable for construction of a repository.

The salt site near Tulia in Swisher County also was found potentially acceptable, but has not been recommended for further study.

Judge will decide in legal dogfight

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Gary Shaw calls her his "Pumpkin," but John Boosta insists that she's his "girl," so it's going to take a judge to bury their bone of contention.

Boosta and Shaw, who live a block away from each other in this Dallas suburb, are battling over the ownership of a half-poodle, half-border collie that Shaw says wandered away from his Plano home about a year ago.

Shaw says he found Pumpkin — or "Gir!" as Boosta likes to call her — on Boosta's property last April, and that's when the legal dog fight began.

The case already has been heard in a small claims court and municipal court in Plano, but was dismissed on both occasions. Shaw said he now plans to sue Boosta in state district court.

"If your child was being held some place," Shaw said. "I think you would have to do what you had to do to get it back."

Shaw said he got Pumpkin for free through a newspaper advertisement

Reagan feeling well

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, after his "best night" since cancer surgery four days ago, said today he felt as if it were "Christmas in July" when doctors removed a tube running through his nose into his stomach, the White House reported.

Reagan was examined by his medical team at Bethesda Naval Hospital shortly after 8 a.m. EDT. The doctors reported his condition as excellent, his vital signs as stable and spirits as good, said a statement by spokesman Larry Speakes.

He said the doctors reported the president had "the best night ever" and was not experiencing any discomfort.

When doctors removed a tube used to draw out gas and fluid secreted in the stomach, the president, who earlier had complained of some irritation from the device, said, "This is Christmas in July."

Anti-Nuke activist arrested

PANHANDLE, Texas (AP) — An anti-nuclear activist has been charged with trespassing and criminal mischief after allegedly dismantling railroad tracks leading into a nuclear-weapon finishing plant, police said.

Richard L. Miller, 26, of Des Moines, Iowa, was in the Carson County jail Tuesday night in lieu of $11,000 in bonds after police said he pulled up a rail from the Santa Fe Railroad spur leading to the Pantex plant.

The plant, about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, is the final assembly point for the nation's nuclear weapons.

Bearing a banner that proclaimed "Pantex Equals Auschwitz; Stop The Train," Miller was arrested at about 1 a.m. Tuesday near the U.S. Department of Energy plant.

Brown to challenge Mattox

HOUSTON (AP) — State Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, plugging his anti-crime record and saying "it's time that Texans got tough on crime," today announced he is a candidate for Texas attorney general in 1986.

"Today I'm beginning the campaign that will give Texas a tough, conservative, law-and-order attorney general," Brown said at a Houston news conference.

Brown, 44, R-Lake Jackson, will run against incumbent Democrat Jim Mattox, who was acquitted by a jury in March on a commercial bribery charge.

However, Brown said he does not intend to raise the issue of the bribery trial in the campaign because he believes voters already have opinions about the case.

County clerk conviction affirmed

AUSTIN (AP) — A divided Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today let stand the theft conviction of a former Falls County tax clerk found guilty of stealing $7,311 from the county.

Verna Jean Sowders was sentenced to two years in prison and a $1,000 fine. Both penalties were probated.

The woman was a title clerk in the Falls County Tax Assessor-Collector's Office when a March 1982 audit discovered a shortage in her drawer.

In her appeal, Ms. Sowders contended prosecutors failed to prove the money belonged to the county.

The majority in the Court of Criminal Appeals' 6-3 decision overruled the appeal.

Judge Sam Houston Clinton's opinion for the minority said Ms. Sowders was entitled to an acquittal because the state failed to show who had control of the money.

Spelling champ movie subject

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Linn Yann, the Cambodian refugee who became a spelling champion in 1983, had only one real question when she met the director of a movie about her: "Do you all know who's going to play my part?"

The ABC-TV movie to be shown in January is the first in a series of 20 new family productions from Disney Studios, said Simon Wincer, director of "The Linn Yann Story."

"They're not cutesy movies. They're very 1985, very moving, very warm and very good," said Wincer, whose credits include "The Man from Snowy River" and "D.A.R.Y.L."

Wincer declined to identify the actress, saying only that she had been chosen from 50 to 60 candidates who auditioned and that "she's perfect for the role." The $2.5 million movie will be filmed in Canada beginning July 29.

Miss Yann, 14, could speak only 10 words of English when she came to the United States six years ago, fleeing the communist Khmer Rouge.

Protest hurts border merchants

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP) — Merchants in this southeastern Arizona community say their businesses are being hurt by a continuing protest which has blocked vehicle traffic across the U.S.-Mexican border.

The sit-down protest, which has not affected pedestrian traffic, began Friday night on the Agua Prieta, Sonora, side of the border and is related to recent elections in Mexico.

A similar sit-down protest blocking the crossing between Naco, Ariz., and Naco, Sonora, was broken up Tuesday when about 25 people — said by a Mexican official to have been residents tired of the protest — scuffled with about the same number of demonstrators.

In Douglas, the chamber of commerce on Tuesday issued a statement saying its members were sympathetic towards the protesters but that they wished the sit-in were being staged away from the border.

Season's first storm hits Bermuda

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Gusts of more than 40 mph lashed Bermuda today as the season's first Atlantic tropical storm lingered some 90 miles west-northwest of the island, the National Hurricane Center said.

At about 4:30 a.m. CDT, the slow-moving storm, named Ana, was centered near latitude 32.6 north and longitude 66.6 west.

The system was moving toward the north at just over 9 mph with only minor changes in direction expected, the center said.

"None of the information gathered overnight suggests things are changing much," forecaster Miles Lawrence said today. "If (Ana) keeps heading north that should cause it to move over colder water and that would pretty much be the end of it. However, that's still speculative at this point."

Recording did not prove explosion

BOMBAY, India (AP) — The cockpit voice recorders from the downed Air-India jet show conversation coming to a sudden stop, an Indian official said. But U.S. and other foreign experts said today the discovery does not prove the plane was sabotaged.

Local news reports said today that the abrupt end of the cockpit conversation buttressed Indian officials' theory that a bomb exploded in the jetliner before it plunged into the Atlantic on June 23, killing 329 people.

Canadian investigators have said bodies and wreckage recovered from the ocean off the Irish coast gave no indication of an explosion.

"The cockpit voice recorder is just one piece of the puzzle. It is too early to say whether there was any kind of explosion," a U.S. expert told The Associated Press, speaking on condition he was not identified.

Another foreign expert, also requesting anonymity, said the public should not jump to conclusions about the sounds on the recorders.

"Anything can sound like an explosion on tape ... even someone coughing," he said.

or meet with the families of terminally ill patients.

A master's degree in social work plus some medical experience is required for the position, Morgan said. She added that even with the president's proposed cuts in medicare benefits, substantial funding still remains for employing a medical social worker as part of a home care program.

The board concluded its two-hour meeting with an executive session regarding personnel.

DOG

nine years ago when his family moved to Plano from Michigan. But Boosta said he and his wife, Linda, won't return the dog until Shaw can prove ownership.

"I'm saying that Mr. Shaw has changed his story four times as to when he lost the dog," Boosta told The Dallas Morning News.

Boosta said he also wants Shaw to assure him that the dog will not be neglected because of the dog's physical shape when he got her reflected a long period of neglect.

Shaw said he has photographs to prove the dog is his, but Boosta said the photos don't prove anything because the photographed dog is a puppy.

In April, Shaw's suit — which sought $999 from Boosta for allegedly "taking and concealing from me my dog..." — was dismissed the first time when Shaw failed to show. Shaw attributed that to a mixup in dates.

Earlier this month, the case was dismissed in Plano municipal court on the grounds that it was a civil — not criminal — matter. Judge Weldon Copeland said he offered to settle the case with binding arbitration, but that Boosta refused the offer.

Now Shaw says he intends to file a lawsuit in state district court, even though he already has spent $500 in legal fees.

"You have to pay for justice," he said.

Borne for $200,000 in connection with the Jefferson savings robbery."

The statement also said that "the case is still under active investigation and further details will be released later," according to police spokeswoman Jo Callison.

Late Tuesday police said they were searching for a pot-bellied, middle-aged man recorded on videotape just before the two employees were fatally shot in the vault during a robbery.

The bodies of branch supervisor Helen Jean Barnard, 28, of Groves, and 23-year-old Diana Joy Jackson of Port Neches, a teller, were found by a Port Arthur police officer about 10 a.m. Both had been shot with a .45-caliber pistol and the robber fled with at least $5,000, police said.

Ms. Barnard, with a wound to the head, was pronounced dead at the scene. Ms. Jackson, shot in the back, died at Park Place Hospital at 10:44 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Gayle Yarbrough. Both women were found in the bank's vault located in the back of the bank.

"It looked like they were shot in the vault," said Justice of the Peace John Borne.

Former Hereford priests celebrating anniversaries

Three Catholic priests and a religious brother whose careers have included work in the Hereford area will be honored Saturday in New York State.

The Franciscan Friars of the Atonement of Garrison, N.Y., will celebrate the golden jubilee of Fr. Raymond Gillis and the silver jubilees of Fr. Timony MacDonald and John Kiesling and Brother De Porres.

Fr. Gillis, a native of Prince Edward Island, Canada, worked for nearly 20 years with migrant farm families in the San Jose area. He used empty prisoner of war barracks to build a church, a school and a convent for the Catholic nuns and apostolates who worked at the labor camp.

Shortly after his ordination to the priesthood, Fr. Gillis volunteered for service in World War II. He was part of the 102nd Infantry Division which arrived at Chergburg, France, in September 1944 and continued in almost constant battle until VE-Day.

Upon returning to the United States he was assigned as Master of

Fattening Flower Fund

Hereford Kiwanis president Dempsey Alexander presented a check for $168 to Naomi Spann, president of the Bud to Blossom Garden Club, for purchase of an acre of flower seeds. The Bud to Blossom group is coordinating "Project Wildflower" in which businesses and civic groups are urged to participate in donations to plant wildflowers in local fields and open spaces. The sowing will begin at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame this November.

Bullriding class was a school of hard knocks

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — It was a school for hard knocks.

The instructor favored an arm that hung at a suspicious angle. The youths had been kicked and bruised.

The youths were students at a three-day bullriding school run by Ricky Lindsey, 24, of Huntsville. Lindsey placed third in the national championship bullriding finals in 1983. Darrel O'Brien, of San Angelo, organized the sessions at Crills Arena.

Jimmy Barton, 10, of Christoval, sported a hoof mark on his back that was half bruise, half scrape.

Orval Lawler, 15, of Big Lake had a nasty scrape beneath his eye and on his forehead where a bull kicked him.

"He barreled out of the chute and just blew me off. He went four feet into the air," Lawler said.

All the youths' bodies ached from the brief-but-relentless bucking and pitching of the one-ton beasts.

Each day they came back for more. All said they wanted to become professional bullriders. Lawler had sold his motorcycle to pay for the bullriding school.

Any prospective bullrider might reconsider after one look at the instructor's face. A scar cuts diagonally across half his face from forehead to lip.

"A bull stepped on me," Lindsey said with a shrug. He has had 17 plastic surgery operations, two ribs removed (one grew back) and several broken bones. One surgeon removed pieces from both Lindsey's hipbones to rebuild his cheek. Lindsey's body looks like a roadmap of scars.

"It's a living. Bulls don't scare me at all. I've been riding for 15 years and I know how to get away. It was so dumb what I did to my arm this time."

Lindsey said he had reached too far into the bull chute. The bull, a part-Brahman named Sealskin, objected and pushed Lindsey's arm against the bars of the chute, breaking it.

It was time for the boys to ride the bulls. All had ridden bulls before. The younger ones had ridden calves. The youths rubbed their ropes with resin so they could hang on easier. They pulled hard on the ropes so elasticity would disappear. They practiced tying knots.

"I don't what kind of knots. Bull knots, I guess," Lindsey said.

Lindsey told the students to jump off the bull when eight seconds passed. "Pick a spot and land there," he advised.

A bull carrying Charles Carlson, 15, of Odessa, exploded out of the chute. Carlson hung on for a wild, convulsive ride. The animal swiveled and gyrated in a jerky, graceless fling, doing his bull best to throw Carlson. A cowbell tied to the hand rope clanged. The weight of the bell would pull the rope loose when Carlson let go.

Onlookers held their breath while Carlson held on for the count. Lindsey yelled to Carlson to jump off when the bull came too close to the fence. Carlson landed on both feet.

"It feels good (to hang on for so long), especially at a rodeo," Carlson said. "You get paid for it there."

Justin Paxton, 11, of Eldorado, and Jimmy Barton, 10, of Christoval, stayed together away from the older students. One of them carried a snuff tin in his pants pocket. They spit, touf, as they talked. Later on, after they had done their best on the smaller steers, they would be accepted by the group. They also forgot to spit. They answered questions with the same ready "yes ma'am, no ma'am" as the older cowboys.

"I like it, (touf) it's exciting," said Paxton. "Sometimes it scares me."

Barton interrupted: "Yeah, like when they (bulls) jump up and down in the chute."

It was Paxton's turn to ride. He donned chaps to protect himself in case he was kicked or stepped on. He wore a thick leather glove on his right hand to hang on to the rope that circles the smaller steer he planned to ride.

The steer burst out of the chute. Paxton hung on. Pitching and bucking, the steer was unable to throw the determined 11-year-old. Paxton stayed aboard as the steer kicked and bucked his way to the far side of the ring. Finally Lindsey signaled the boy to jump off.

A cheer arose from the boy's mothers who were parked on the other side of the ring. Paxton's mother has caught the action on a video camera which sat on a tripod in the back of her pickup.

"We suggested this school for him. His sisters have been to gymnastics camp," said Paxton's mother, Prissy Paxton. "I'm not worried that he'll get hurt. He could get hurt on the street."

Barton's mother, Jacque Barton was also unworried. "I'd rather he would learn the right way. (Rodeoing is down to a science. It's the learning' tennis or gymnastics. I want him to learn to get away from the bull and not be hurt."

Ms. Barton said she has barrel raced in rodeos all her life. "I've never seen anyone killed in a rodeo. I've seen people killed on highways. What's meant to be will be."

Lindsey said he has cut back on his rodeo activities, but a love of the good life has motivated him to begin again. "You get used to spending whatever you want, whenever you please." One year, Lindsey earned $90,000 riding bulls on the rodeo circuit. "It sounds like a lot, but it's blow and go," he said.

Riding a cranky, half-ton bull is more than earning a living to Lindsey. "It's fun to win. Everyone loves a winner. Everyone knows you."

Gardening is tops in leisure time

Grow a garden, and you'll be in good company.

Eight out of 10 — or 83 percent — the nation's 90 million households are involved in at least one form of indoor or outdoor gardening, making it the top leisure time pursuit — ahead of golf, bicycling, jogging and tennis.

What's in gardening for you? Saving money is one good reason to raise vegetables. Other major factors include better-flavored produce with higher nutritional value than you generally can buy in stores — and much pleasure, pride and satisfaction.

The effort should be considered a healthy exercise rather than an arduous chore.

An expenditure of $30 or $40 for seed, fertilizer, bug controls and other supplies can reap $500 in fresh produce. Most homeowners have a spade, rake and trowel tucked away in a shed or garage.

The work can be spread so it doesn't become a burden, and a garden 15 feet by 25 feet can easily feed a family of four and leave some surplus for canning or freezing, or for friends and neighbors.

This year, America's home gardeners will raise an estimated $15 billion worth of vegetables.

According to a National Association for Gardening survey, flower growing is the most popular form of gardening, followed by vegetables, indoor house plants and lawns.

In a garden as small as 15 feet by 20 feet, you can grow about 20 varieties of vegetables that can yield a continuous supply for your table from spring to late fall in many parts of the country.

Radishes and spinach are the earliest vegetables to be harvested in this small garden. You can plant them as soon as the ground can be worked. Follow up with lettuce, beets, chard, peas and green onions.

To continue the harvest through the summer, plant bush beans, broccoli, cucumbers, zucchini squash, cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, parsley and carrots. Prolong the harvest with cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, leeks and a second sowing of cabbage, lettuce, beets, radishes, spinach and carrots. This will take you through the fall.

The biggest savings are in tomatoes and Brussels sprouts. Sprouts grown as a fall and winter crop mature at a time when store prices for fresh vegetables are high.

You may want to substitute some items in the small garden.

It isn't very practical, for example, to grow two short rows of sweet corn. Pollination won't be very good, the yield will be low, and you can buy corn inexpensively at the peak of the season. Some vine crops, such as squash and melons, that take up lots of room as they spread, are now available in space-conserving bush types.

Start preparing the garden as soon as you can walk comfortably onto the ground in the spring. In the fall or spring, add to the soil organic material such as shredded leaves, grass clippings, garden compost or peat moss. It will decompose and give the soil a finer tilth.

It is better not to hold over seeds from one year to the next, because fresh seeds generally yield bigger, better crops and more of the fresh seeds will germinate. If you do save seeds, store them in a cool, dry place, such as a sealed jar.

According to the nation's leading seed sellers, the top 10 home garden vegetables grown from seed are tomatoes, beans, sweet corn, cucumbers, peas, lettuce, radishes, squash, melons and beets.

Experts advise buying seeds and seedling varieties listed as disease-resistant. With tomatoes, start with short, stocky young plants. Stake the plants or cage them to keep fruit off the ground and prevent rotting. Tomatoes need at least six hours of sunlight daily.

Because it is easier and faster to grow, leaf lettuce outsells head lettuce. Two plantings are advised, one in the spring and the other in late summer for early fall harvest.

There is an old, outmoded folk ditty about sowing extra seeds: "One for the blackbird, one for the crow, one for the cutworm and one to grow."

But today it is not uncommon to find 90 percent of seeds planted sprouting into fine plants. Cardboard collars discourage cutworms, and plastic netting thwarts birds.

When seedlings are up, everyone hates to pull them out and discard them if they can't be transplanted. But too many seedlings in the row can react just like weeds.

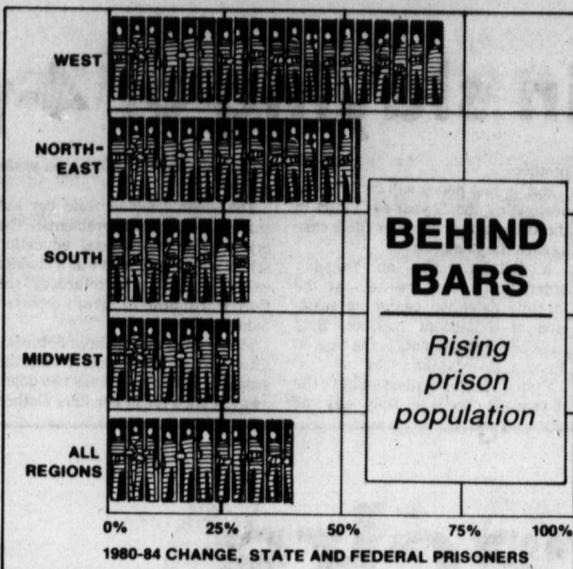

Here is a planting measuring stick: Beets 2-3 inches apart, rows 10-12 inches apart; carrots 1-3 inches apart (with inadequate space they'll grow small and twisted); head lettuce 10-12 inches apart (amateur gardeners are reluctant to thin leaf lettuce); sweet corn 8-12 inches apart, rows 30-36 inches apart.

Too much vine and too few melons come from planting too close. Rows should be 6-8 feet apart. Pumpkins need lots of space, 2-3 feet apart and rows 8-10 feet apart.

Choose a garden site that's fertile and well-drained, making sure it gets at least a half-day's sun and that it has a nearby source of water for irrigation when rain is lacking.

Think small, at least at first. Overestimating how much garden you can care for may lead to trouble. When the weeds start sprouting in June, you'll be left behind.

Good games let you zap opponents

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — "A good game lets you zap your opponents — in a socially acceptable way."

This Machiavellian game plan comes from Jeff Conrad, a 35-year-old professional games designer who passes Go at the thought of inventing a card or board game.

He spends his days, and many a night, plotting to make games suspenseful and even vengeful because a good game, he says, "has surprise elements that can suddenly and dramatically change the course of play."

Conrad is the director of product design for International Games, manufacturers of the card game UNO, among other games.

He adds that it is important that a game not be too difficult — or too simple — for the age of the people playing it.

"We use a child psychologist to pre-test our games with different age groups," he says.

Susan Laber, child development consultant for International Games, says there are a variety of games on the market designed for children. Many have bright colors, are oversized for easy handling, and have simple rules, she says.

Summer vacations provide a good climate for learning new games, she adds, "because children are traveling and experiencing new things and are especially receptive to new ideas."

She suggests that families schedule a card game at about the same time each night to provide some structure to the vacation. Games fill many needs for families when traveling by providing "good time" activities, easing tensions and stimulating creativity and imagination.

"Every trip should include time when the family is not on the move," says Miss Laber. "Puzzles, board games and card games are good activities for these quiet times."

Teen charged in slaying of 4-year-old girl

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager described as retarded by his school principal has been charged with delinquent conduct-capital murder in the slaying of his 4-year-old neighbor, authorities say.

But investigators, who filed their case with the Tarrant County district attorney's office Tuesday, would not say what crime made Saturday's slaying of Melody Ann Flores a capital offense.

Capital murder charges are filed if a slaying is committed during the course of a robbery, burglary, arson, kidnapping or sexual assault.

A capital murder conviction carries a maximum sentence of death by lethal injection, although Texas law says no juvenile can be put to death.

Homicide detective Curtis Brannan said that after almost two days of questioning the 16-year-old and his 12-year-old brother, his office filed charges only against the older brother.

But he said police will continue investigating the 12-year-old's part in the killing and could later file a case against the youngster.

A district judge on Tuesday ordered that both be held at the juvenile detention center on suspicion of delinquent conduct. Both gave police statements in the case on Monday, investigators said.

Police began questioning the 16-year-old because they say he reportedly was the last person to see Miss Flores.

The youth's mother said her son suffered emotional problems. The principal of the special education school where the youth was a student called him "mentally retarded," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Miss Flores disappeared Saturday after leaving her house to visit the suspects' sister, who lives two doors away. Police found her fully clothed body Monday afternoon in an alley behind a neighbor's house.

An autopsy showed the child died from asphyxiation, but police said they were awaiting results of tests to determine if she also was sexually assaulted. Brannan said he would not comment on the possibility until the medical examiner's report is complete. He said he expected the information to be available in about two days.

Jo Ann Flores, Melody Ann's mother, still was grieving for her daughter, but said she was at peace now that the waiting and wondering is over.

"Now at least I know what happened to her," she said Tuesday. "I don't have to go on wondering what. I still don't know why. At least I know she's at peace. I know no one else has her."

Yugoslavia's King Alexander was assassinated in 1934 in Marseilles, France.

Coloring book teaches children justice system

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Little children who pass through the Wichita County criminal justice system often are bewildered and frightened. Most have never seen the inside of a courthouse, much less taken part in a trial.

"I was out of college before I ever saw the courthouse," said Wichita County District Attorney Barry Macha. "For a child, or even an adult, fear of the unknown" can often produce a stressful situation.

But a new coloring book has been designed to acquaint youngsters with courtroom proceedings. It will be available for children in Wichita County who are victims of crime and must testify against the crime's perpetrators.

"It's a kind of novel idea," said Macha. "I really think it (the coloring book) is going to help relieve the kid's tensions. It will expand their horizons. It's something they can identify with."

Macha, who has been working with the Victim Witness Assistance Program, said the idea for the coloring book project originated in the district attorney's office. He said that he and Rita Weinstock, assistant district attorney, "put our heads together" and the result was the printing of 500 books by Nortex to be given to children who are scheduled to testify in court.

"It takes them step by step, tells them what to do," said Mrs.

Weinstock, who wrote most of the book. Characters in "The Wichita County Courthouse Coloring Book" include "a mommy and a little boy and little girl. It has a glossary in back. It's a beautiful hardback."

She said her own two little girls were enchanted with the pictures as she worked on the book at home.

"Most of the children (who pass through the Wichita County criminal justice system) have been sexually abused and they have to testify against the perpetrators. They may have inhibitions," Mrs. Weinstock said.

She said child welfare offices report 15 to 25 children sexually abused each month.

Macha said, "Children can relate to the book. It breaks down to their level and enables the to understand the system. It's a touchy area (testifying against perpetrators in sexual abuse cases). They don't know what to expect. The book can help them, relieve their apprehensions."

Though Mrs. Weinstock and Macha were excited about the coloring book, they realized that no funding was available for the project through the district attorney's office.

They decided to seek donations from Wichita Falls merchants and companies. "I went to various organizations, made speeches," said Mrs. Weinstock.

Hereford claims district Babe Ruth championship

Five Strikeouts In Two Innings

Tice Scores For Hereford

Joshua Tice, who hit an RBI triple, scores here on a double by teammate Seth Williams in the second inning of a 14-2 Mustang League playoff win over Dimmitt Tuesday. The Hereford team, from the Kids Inc. boys' minor league, scored 12 big runs in the second inning.

Wallop Dimmitt 14-2 Tuesday

Hereford wins Mustang League district

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor
Hereford pitchers Sammy Casarez and Ruben Ramos, each pitching two innings, recorded five strikeouts apiece to help power their team to a 14-2 victory over Dimmitt Tuesday night and the Mustang League district title.

Hereford, playing on its home field, won the best-of-three series two games to none, having defeated Dimmitt 12-2 Monday night. The district championship advances the all-star team from the Hereford Kids Inc. boys' minor league to the regional tournament in Amarillo. Starting pitcher Sammy Casarez faced the minimum six batters in the first two innings. He struck out all three of the Dimmitt batters in the first inning. The first out in Dimmitt's second inning was a groundout, and then Casarez struck out two more batters. Hereford gained a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Shama Hernandez hit an RBI groundout. Jamie Kapka and Joshua Tice opened the second inning with triples for Hereford, which went on to score 12 runs in the inning. Tice batted in Kapka with his hit. Seth Williams hit a two-run double, and Stacey Sanders and Johnny Sanchez each hit RBI singles.

The next two runs were scored on errors as Hereford built up its lead to 7-0. Rene Cano stroked a triple and scored on Casarez's single. Kapka then drove in a run with an RBI groundout. Tice and Kapka scored the next runs for Hereford for an 11-0 lead. Sanders then hit an RBI single, and Williams scored on an error, making the Hereford lead 13-0. Ruben Ramos pitched the third and fourth innings for Hereford. Ramos had some problems in the third inning, walking three batters and hitting a batter with a pitch. Dimmitt managed to score two runs without a hit in the inning and trailed Hereford 13-2. Ramos struck out two batters in the third inning. In the bottom of the third inning, Fonzie Enriquez reached base on a walk, stole second and third bases,

The Hereford Babe Ruth League 14 and 15-year-old all-star team won the district championship Tuesday night in Friona by recording its third straight shutout of the tournament, 1-0 over Muleshoe.

The contest was a pitchers' duel, with Hereford scoring the lone run of the game in the sixth inning.

The Hereford all-stars advance to the West Texas state tournament in Plainview and are scheduled to play their first game in that tournament on Sunday at 8 p.m.

Muleshoe advance to the tournament championship game by defeating Friona 4-3 Tuesday in the completion of a game suspended from Monday night.

Muleshoe beat Friona when, with the bases loaded with two outs in the seventh inning, a balk was called on the Friona pitcher. The game was tied 3-3 in the sixth inning when it was suspended Monday because of rain.

Hereford pitchers Tim Long and James Hernandez combined to hurl the shutout victory over Muleshoe, but it was much different than an 18-0 win over Friona Saturday and a 4-0 victory over Muleshoe Sunday.

Long hurled the first three innings, striking out four batters. Hernandez pitched the last four innings, recording six strikeouts.

Muleshoe had two baserunners in the first inning. The first one reached base on an error, but was picked off first base by Long.

The other Muleshoe baserunner, who hit a single, stole second base and tried to reach third base on a throwing error, but was thrown out at third.

Muleshoe did not get another hit until the fifth inning. Muleshoe had two runners on base in the second inning, none in the third, and one in the fourth.

In the fifth inning, Muleshoe had its first two batters reach base, one on a walk and the other with a single. But a strikeout, forceout and a groundout kept Muleshoe scoreless.

Muleshoe had a runner get to third base in the sixth inning, but Hernandez struck out three Muleshoe batters in the inning to maintain the shutout.

Two Muleshoe batters walked in the seventh inning, but both were stranded as Hernandez recorded a game-ending strikeout.

Double plays by the Muleshoe defense halted possible rallies by Hereford in the first and third innings.

Hereford had two baserunners in the second inning but failed to score.

Roger McCracken singled to open the Hereford fourth inning and his brother Rodney walked, but both were left on base. Hereford also left two runners on base in the fifth inning.

Rodney McCracken led off the sixth inning with a single, and pinch hitter Glenn Parker followed with a bunt single.

Long hit a sacrifice bunt to move the runners to second and third. Hernandez drove home McCracken with a sacrifice fly to give Hereford what was to be the final margin over Muleshoe, 1-0.

Hereford had six hits in the game compared to four for Muleshoe. Six Muleshoe batters walked in the game, and three Hereford batters walked.

Bell question haunts

Rangers' general manager

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Where Buddy Bell will go has become the most pressing question arising from the Texas Rangers' week-long struggle to find a new home for their ready-to-leave third baseman.

One of those people is believed to be Reds' Executive Vice President Bill Bergesch. Bergesch told the Cincinnati Post Tuesday he had talked to the Rangers, but said, "I honestly don't feel we're close."

It is a question that haunts Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve, who has been struggling mightily to get equal value for a player who averaged .301 and won six Gold Gloves during his first six seasons in Texas.

Grieve had set a self-imposed deadline of wrapping up a Bell trade by today, but once the players are agreed upon — Reds outfielder Duane Walker and a young pitcher or two are believed to be involved — Bell and agent Ed Keating must still approve the deal, which will include negotiations on a new contract.

But Tuesday, with rumors circulating that a deal with Cincinnati was imminent, Grieve was still waiting for a viable offer.

"That (getting it done by today) is the goal," Grieve said, "but I can't force that to happen."

"There's no news to report," Grieve told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "I need to have some conversations, but because of the All-Star Game, I haven't been able to reach people I need to talk to."

It has been a week since Bell's trade demands became public knowledge, and the Rangers had been making inquiries more than two weeks before that, but still no team has come up with a legitimate offer.

No-pass, no-play policy

White says he will help 'refine' rule

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has assured a group of Texas high school football coaches that the controversial no-pass, no-play rule is a good idea but says he will help them work to "refine" it.

The governor was joined at a Tuesday news conference by Texas A&M coach Jackie Sherrill, who arranged the meeting of 20 coaches from throughout the state with White.

"I am trying to refine what I think is the finest (school) reform package in the nation," White told the news conference. "I'm going to try to be imaginative in seeing how we can accomplish what we agree needs to be accomplished. That is to open the door of opportunity to our students."

The coaches were unavailable for comment, disappearing down a back elevator in the governor's office while the news conference was under way.

Sherrill told reporters the coaches in the meeting did not want to talk with reporters "because this group is not speaking for all coaches of Texas ... they did not want to speak to the press until they had the whole feeling of their coaches' association."

Numerous Texas coaches and some school administrators have complained about the no-pass, no-play rule decreed by the State Board of Education that says students must make passing grades in all subjects or they cannot take part in sports or other extracurricular activities.

The rule was upheld last week by the Texas Supreme Court.

"No one is against the theory of the rule, administrators and coaches, both want the same thing," Sherrill told the news conference.

Sherrill said he was asked by White to gather a group of coaches to talk over their problems.

"I felt the coaches' needs need to be expressed," Sherrill said.

After the Supreme Court's ruling last week there has been speculation the rule may cause problems to some of the state's top football teams. A six-week suspension in the middle of a season can effectively remove a player for the rest of the season.

White stressed that he continues to support the no-pass, no-play rule as a policy.

"I've seen it work in school districts around Texas," the governor told the news conference. "I'm hearing reports from others that kids are studying harder and doing better. What I am concerned about is I want this plan to be better. I want it to be as perfect as human beings can make it.

"Right now I am persuaded we can do more to give better motivation, better incentive to these marginal kids," White said. "I am going to strive to improve this reform package."

White denied there was any attempt to shorten the six-week suspension period, as the Senate had recommended during the recent regulat session.

When asked wha his specific recommendations were, White replied:

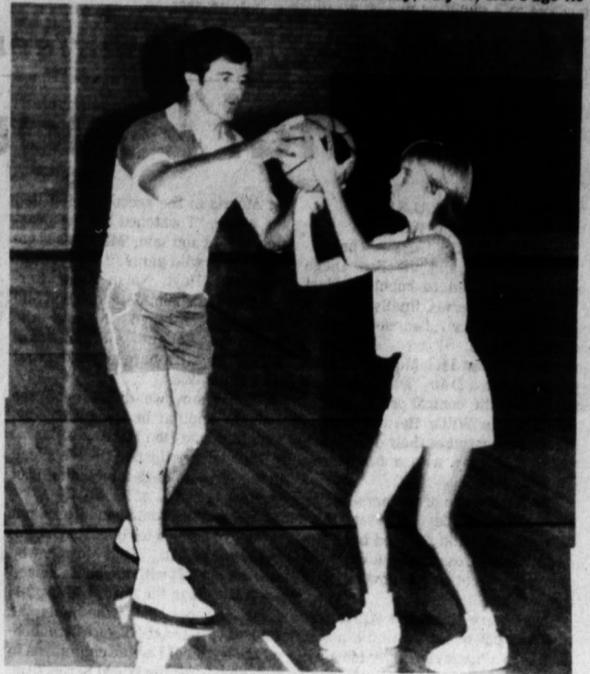

"I don't have any recommendations. If I had I would announce them."

Campgrounds evolve from changing lifestyles

By The Associated Press

In the past, campers went out into the wilderness, pitched a tent, unrolled a sleeping bag and went to sleep under the stars.

Times have changed.

Today, as camping's popularity increases, the camper is more likely to pull into a private campground with a recreational vehicle equipped with teak cabinets, crystal chandeliers, stereo sound system, a television set and perhaps a satellite dish.

"The real strength of campground resorts has evolved from a changing lifestyle," says C. James Jensen, chairman and chief executive officer of Thousand Trails, private campground operators.

"People want to enjoy the outdoors as a family unit and meet new people."

Many of the more than 60 million people expected to camp out this year will pay a one-time membership fee and annual dues to join a system of campgrounds. Members then can use any campground in the system for an unlimited number of visits of one or two weeks at a time.

Jensen says vacation membership at Thousand Trails accounts for more than half of the memberships sold in 1984.

The largest group of campers, he says, are those who take weekend and mini-vacations at the campsites. Another group is made up of retirees who spend a great deal of time on the campgrounds, going from one location to another.

Declares Texas general manager

Rangers' future rests with young players

By ALAN SAYRE Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The future of the Texas Rangers, sitting at the bottom of the American League West, rests with younger players, says General Manager Tom Grieve.

Even before the Rangers stumbled into the All-Star break with a 32-56 record, Grieve and Manager Bobby Valentine had some of the hopefuls trying to break into the lineup.

Grieve said the Rangers face "growing pains" and perhaps a lengthy period of development before the team can be called a contender.

"There's no doubt that younger players figure in — and that doesn't immediately translate into wins," he said.

Most prominent of the roster moves was the arrival of outfielder Oddibe McDowell, who was promoted to the Rangers from their Triple-A farm club at Oklahoma City.

McDowell, who occupied the lead-off position until he was dropped to the second position one game before the All-Star break, has been "outstanding," according to Valentine, even though his batting average has hovered just above the .200 mark — largely from his trouble hitting breaking pitches.

The youth movement also affected the pitching corps.

In an effort to bolster a lagging rotation keynoted by veterans Charlie Hough, Mike Mason and Burt Hooton, the Rangers called up rookies Glen Cook and Bob Sebra from Oklahoma City after dealing starter Frank Tanana to Detroit.

Cook had a 2-1 mark going into the All-Star break, but Sebra was returned to the 89ers after being viciously shelled in two outings against the Angels and the New York Yankees.

If it seems the Rangers are making roster moves more typical of September than June, perhaps it's because the season was largely over with before it began.

Going out of spring training, Grieve said he felt the Rangers would have been "competitive, a team that would be hovering around .500."

But the season may have been over with for the Rangers even before it really got rolling. After a 9-23 start, Manager Doug Rader was dumped in favor of Valentine, who has been feeling his way around as much as the Rangers.

"That is difficult to do during the season," Grieve said of efforts by the former New York Mets' third-base coach to learn the abilities and limitations of his club, as well as the rest of the American League.

To add to the Rangers' problems, veteran third baseman Buddy Bell, a former All-Star and Golden Glove winner, asked to be traded. Bell apparently is tired of his 6½ seasons with Texas, following a seven-year stint with Cleveland, the Rangers' twin in futility in the AL East.

The Rangers went into the All-Star break starting at division-leading California from the distant vantage point of 20½ games.

Valentine doesn't fault the Rangers' talent but points out the team is missing a key ingredient.

"To be a contending team you have to have the talent with the right chemistry," he said.

Meanwhile, the turnstiles at Arlington Stadium aren't quite as busy this year.

The Rangers drew 715,419 spectators through the All-Star break — compared with 792,233 for the same number of home dates in 1984.

Grieve thinks the fan-team relationship are better, but admits there is still one missing key to filling up the park.

"Fan relations have been improved, but I don't think they will improve to where (we) want them until the won-loss column improves."

National League wins all-star game--again!

By REN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National League and the San Diego Padres, reduced to rubble in last year's World Series, finally got back at the American League and the Detroit Tigers.

Knocking out Jack Morris, benefitting from Dan Petry's uncharacteristic control problems and roughing up Willie Hernandez, the Nationals continued their dominance of All-Star play with a 6-1 victory Tuesday night.

The NL parade of pitchers—led by Most Valuable Player LaMarr Hoyt of the Padres and finished by teammate Rich Gossage—shackled the vaunted AL attack, allowing only five singles.

These were the same AL hitters who had put on an awesome power display in a home run derby Monday. But none of the 54,960 fans expecting a long-ball show at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome would have known it.

"I thought it might be a 10-8 game or a 12-10 deal," said San Diego catcher Terry Kennedy, one of five San Diego starters, whose two-out single off Morris in the second inning tied the game. "I watched batting practice tonight and said, 'Man, this is going to be a wild game.'"

Instead, Hoyt, Nolan Ryan, Fernando Valenzuela, Jeff Reardon and Gossage combined to hold the American League All-Star team without an extra-base hit for the first time since 1958.

"You know, we didn't even see Joaquin Andujar or Dwight Gooden tonight," said Don Mattingly.

The victory widened the NL's lead in the series to 36-19-1, including 12 of the last 13 and 21 of 23.

"We had the home-run hitters, but if they're pitched to right, they're going to make outs," said Morris, who started but left with the bases loaded and two outs in the third, trailing 2-1. Last October, Morris beat the Padres twice as the Tigers demolished the National League champions in five games for the World Series title.

Ozzie Virgil singled home two runs in the fifth, and the NL put the game away in the ninth with Petry walked the bases loaded and Willie McGee greeted Hernandez with a ground-rule double.

"That doesn't make up for last fall, but it makes me feel good to see that those pitchers are human," said winning Manager Dick Williams of the Padres. "Because last year those guys were not human against us."

In all, the NL collected four of their runs, six of their nine hits and five of their seven walks from the Detroit pitchers.

Hoyt, dispatched by the Chicago White Sox in the offseason after leading the AL with 18 losses in 1984, pitched three innings and gave up one unearned run on two hits.

"The American League had the big boppers out there and they can be pitched to," Hoyt said.

Steve Garvey, another Padre, made it 2-1, getting the game-winning RBI with a two-out single off Morris in the third after Tommy Herr's double.

In all, it was quintessential National League baseball of the late 1960s and 1970s, hinging on great pitching, good defense and speed.

"That's what our league used to be all about," said 44-year-old Pete Rose, who became the oldest non-pitcher to appear in an All-Star Game when he grounded out as a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Along with being very aggressive, the NL batters were opportunistic. Darryl Strawberry, whose .229 average was the lowest among the elected starters, singled in the second and stole second. After Graig Nettles, another San Diego representative, flied out, Kennedy singled up the middle.

Garvey's RBI single and Virgil's two-run hit off Bert Blyleven also capped two-out rallies.

Hoyt receives MVP award at all-star game

By CLAYTON HASWELL
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A year ago he led the major leagues in losses. But LaMarr Hoyt of the San Diego Padres made that seem like ancient history as he won the Most Valuable Player award in the 1985 All-Star Game.

"I felt I had great stuff tonight. The ball was moving all over the place," Hoyt, the National League's starting pitcher, said Tuesday. "I had trouble getting the ball over the plate."

That's a problem Hoyt hasn't had much this year — he's only walked 13 batters in 138 innings.

"This is something I never dreamed of," Hoyt said after being presented with the award by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth. "That makes it all the better. This was a game I didn't want to lose."

Hoyt was one of five National League pitchers who held the American League to only five hits — all singles — in a 6-1 win. The victory was the Nationals' 13th in the past 14 All-Star meetings. Hoyt said superior pitching is the reason for that dominance.

"They have a lot of big swingers in the AL. But they can be pitched to — every one of them. There's a tendency to get the big boppers out there, and I think that shows up in an All-Star game."

Hoyt, 12-4 this season with a 2.93 earned run average, was the American League's Cy Young Award winner in 1983 for the Chicago White Sox. A year later he dropped to 13-18 and found himself on the trading block.

After joining the Padres in December, Hoyt put himself on a diet and shed 40 pounds. He said the weight loss helped him regain his winning form.

Hoyt said he regretted allowing the Yankees' Rickey Henderson, the first batter to face him, to score an unearned run. Henderson singled, stole second, advanced to third on a throwing error by catcher Terry Kennedy of San Diego, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Kansas City's George Brett.

"I was a little aggravated, but that's the way life goes," he said.

A.L. all-stars play nine-inning sleep walk

By HAL BOCK

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Somebody should have told the American League that the baseball strike is still three weeks away.

Sports briefs

By The Associated Press
BASEBALL

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, who said early this week that he thought a player strike was possible, was more optimistic on Tuesday, predicting that a strike deadline will put pressure on negotiators to agree on a new collective bargaining agreement.

On Monday, the Major League Players Association set an Aug. 6 deadline for agreement on the pact that expired last December.

BASKETBALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The young man accused of hatching a point-shaving and drug conspiracy that led to the termination of Tulane University's 57-year-old men's basketball program pleaded guilty to some criminal charges in a plea bargain with prosecutors.

Gary Krantz, a 21-year-old Tulane student from New Rochelle, N.Y., pleaded guilty to 10 counts of sports bribery and two counts of conspiracy in the case.

In return, prosecutors said they would not prosecute Krantz on several drug charges, as well as conspiracy and sports bribery charges evolving from a game last season against Virginia Tech.

TRACK AND FIELD

NICE, France (AP) — Britain's Steve Cram broke the world 1,500-meter record with a time of 3 minutes, 29.67 seconds at the Nice international track and field meet.

Cram, who observers said was in less than his best form, shattered the record set by fellow British runner Steve Ovett, who had clocked a 3:30.77 for the 1,500 meters in Rieti, Italy on Sept. 4, 1983.

Playing as if it was staging a preliminary job action, the AL did a nine-inning sleep walk against the National League Tuesday night and was rewarded with still another All-Star loss.

The AL has been losing these mid-season games consistently for a quarter of a century. The latest 6-1 NL victory made it 13 wins in the last 14 games and 21 in 21 for the Nationals.

More distressing than the loss itself was the rather lackadaisical way in the AL accomplished it. The Americans looked like they were suffering from a collective case of tired blood.

Consider that they managed just five lonesome hits, all of them widely-spaced, solitary singles. They thus became the first All-Star team to come out of this classic without an extra-base hit since the Nationals suffered that indignity in 1963. But the NL had the last laugh that year, winning 5-3.

Consider, too, that the AL accomplished this rather inoffensive offense in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome, a cozy place so conducive to long balls that it is nicknamed the Homer dome.

Bounce a single off the spongy turf and it's good for a double. Put one in the air and it often sails into the seats.

The AL, however, played as if it had a "Do Not Disturb" sign hanging in the dugout.

Against LaMarr Hoyt and Nolan Ryan for three innings each, and Fernando Valenzuela, Jeff Reardon and Goose Gossage for one apiece, the AL hardly stirred. No home runs. No earned runs. Even a managerial optimist like the NL's Dick Williams had to admit he never expected that to happen. "It was hard to believe," he said.

AL Manager Sparky Anderson had an explanation. "The way they pitched," he said, "They were outstanding. If they've got a whole bunch more of those guys, that's the reason they're hitting lower" this season.

Staci Payne honored at bridal shower

A bridal shower was held for Staci Payne of Eules Friday in the home of Mrs. Wendell Clark. The honoree and U. Mark Smith plan to exchange wedding vows Aug. 10 in the First Baptist Church of Hurst.

Mrs. Tom Wine of Bedford, the honoree's sister, invited guests to register. Those receiving guests were the bride-elect; her mother, Mrs. Gerald Payne of Eules; and Clark.

The World Almanac Q&A

Recognized as special guests were grandmothers, Mrs. M. D. Kennard and Mrs. Troy Payne, both of Lakeview.

Members of the houseparty wore daisy corsages depicting the honoree's chosen colors of blue and violet.

The main refreshment table, covered with an open crocheted tablecloth, was centered with an arrangement of daisies and violet phlox. Appointments of silver and crystal further enhanced the tablesetting.

Refreshments of assorted candies, cookies, fruit and punch and coffee were served by the bride-elect's cousin, Jackie Fangman of Hereford; her aunt, Frances Kennard of Amarillo; and her college roommate, Kim Williamson of Levelland.

DEAR POLLY - Is it possible to sell aluminum soda cans for recycling? Where can I find a place where they buy the cans? - SANDRA

DEAR SANDRA - Yes, there are recycling centers that will purchase aluminum beverage cans as well as aluminum products such as aluminum foil, pie plates, frozen-food and dinner trays, aluminum siding, gutters, storm-door and window frames, lawn-furniture tubing, cast-aluminum pots and pans, and barbecue grills. By selling your aluminum recyclables, you'll be earning a little extra cash and you'll be contributing to resource conservation.

To find a recycling center near you, look in the Yellow Pages under scrap metal, or call the Reynolds Aluminum toll-free number, 1-800-228-2525 for the location of the nearest Reynolds Aluminum recycling collection point. - POLLY

Do you mean that even before the frozen orange juice is diluted, while it is stored in the freezer, it loses some of its vitamin content, or do you mean it loses it after the juice is diluted with water?

DEAR FLORENCE - Frozen orange juice concentrate maintains a high vitamin-C content. Destruction of the vitamin doesn't start until the juice has been thawed and diluted with water. So feel free to buy several cans of concentrate on sale and store them in the freezer, but try to mix up small quantities that you will use within a few days. - POLLY

Tech University gardens serve as living classroom

A rainbow of colors at Brownfield Highway and Indiana Avenue can provide a brief vacation from the hot summer doldrums.

The Texas Tech University gardens are in full bloom with hundreds of varieties of flowers and plants that garden officials encourage people to visit and enjoy.

Garden director George Tereshkovich said, "We have hundreds of different plants. Some have been in the garden for years and some are brand new. We try to label everything, but we don't have a count."

The gardens provide more than a colorful nature walk for Lubbock residents. They also serve as a living classroom for College of Agricultural Sciences students.

"By letting students actually see, touch and smell the plants they are studying, they learn better than by just looking at pictures in a book," Tereshkovich said.

The gardens also have areas devoted to various patio and other outdoor building materials which are being installed in conjunction with an area landscape contractor, he said.

"We want people to walk through our gardens not just to see the colorful flowers, but to see the kinds of things they can do in their own backyards and patios," Tereshkovich said.

Ann Landers

Allowance modest

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mother of two teenage boys. We have kept the lines of communication open and never had any serious problems with them. Recently something has come up that requires the opinion of an unbiased third party. Will you be the one?

Our 19-year-old is in his second year of college. We agreed that 'Jeff' would not take a job during his college years, but concentrate instead on his studies and graduate in the shortest time possible.

Jeff gets an allowance of $8 a week for snacks and entertainment. He has a 19-year-old girlfriend who works full-time. When they go to a movie, my son is expected to pay her way. Often it is more than his entire week's allowance.

Jeff dislikes asking us for more money. He explained to her that his parents are paying for her ticket and suggested that they both pay their own way until he has an income. She was unwilling to accept this arrangement.

Should we increase Jeff's allowance or should the young woman be told that she must buy her own ticket? We are not Americans and maybe we don't know the customs of this country well enough yet. Will you please advise us?—STILL LEARNING

DEAR STILL: In all fairness I must say the young woman does not appear to be very flexible. On the other hand, $8 a week for a 19-year-old college student seems extremely modest.

Is it possible to give the young man enough of an increase to cover the cost of two tickets? If so, I recommend it. Should this woman end up as your daughter-in-law you would not want to be accused of having tried to bust up the relationship.

Dear Ann Landers: Please ask your experts what they think about tickling children. I am not talking about a brief tickle, I mean prolonged tickling that often ends up in screaming and crying.

Although I am not sure there is a conscious desire to torture, is there not an element of sadism in this type of behavior? Maybe I am reading more into the situation than is warranted, but doesn't it tell the child it is OK to do something to somebody else against his or her will?—CURIOUS IN VA.

Dear VA: You are right on target. The following letter arrived in the same batch with yours. It should be of interest to you.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago you published a letter about a father who tickled his son until the child screamed. I didn't pay much attention to that letter but it has taken on a new meaning since I became aware of the same behavior in a next-door neighbor.

Suddenly all the pieces of my own family history fit together. I don't know how I could have been so blind. Our daughter, as a child, was tickled a great deal by her father. She used to beg me to make him stop. I never went to the child's rescue because it appeared to be a game and I saw no harm in it.

I realize now he was torturing her and she hated it. After all these years, she still hates him. Please print this letter for whatever it may be worth.—LATE AWAKENING IN ILLINOIS.

DEAR LATE: Here it is—and it's worth a lot. Thanks for the short course.

The Bank of Vernal in Vernal, Utah, is the only bank in the world built from bricks sent through the mail. In 1919, the people of Vernal discovered that it would cost less to mail the bricks from Salt Lake City, seven to a package, than to have them shipped commercially.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter is 13 and has been getting blackheads in her ears. What can be done about this?

DEAR READER — I may be run out of town on a rail for telling you this, but it is all right to pick at blackheads. Make sure that your hands and your child's ears are clean, then take an ordinary bobby pin and gently but firmly press the oval end over the blackhead. Usually, the material in the pore will be expressed out and up through the loop. If performed regularly, this ritual should alleviate the pore blockage that causes her blackheads.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My daughter is 12 and has hair under her arms. Will it harm her to shave them this summer?

DEAR READER — Probably not, but remember that you are committing her to a regular procedure.

Axillary hair (under the arms) is natural for both men and women. Shaving it is a cultural preference that is as typically American as apple pie. European women didn't worry about this sort of thing until after World War II, when American customs became fashionable.

In a child of 12, silky sparse axillary hair is not a cosmetic problem, except to the extent that your daughter is experiencing peer pressure to appear grown-up. Once she starts shaving her underarms and legs, the new hair will grow in as a coarse stubble — and she will have to continue periodic shaving to get rid of it.

If your daughter is precocious, she may feel more comfortable shaving.

Ribbon cutting for REACT slated July 26

In response to the growing medical needs of the South Plains, Lubbock General Hospital recently inaugurated the first formal air ambulance service based in West Texas that includes a comprehensive flight team.

"To such a vast area, fixed-wing is the most efficient and time-saving mode of transportation," said Jim Courtney, associate director of Lubbock General Hospital.

The twin-engine Cessna 402B bears the name REACT (Regional Emergency Air Care Transport).

REACT provides safe and rapid transport for patients requiring emergency or urgent specialty medical care. REACT is also available for the transport of patients to and from other area hospitals.

REACT is equipped to function as an advanced life support air unit including cardiac monitoring and defibrillation equipment, oxygen, suction, endotracheal intubation and ventilation supplies, complete emergency medications and splin-ting equipment.

REACT is staffed with a minimum of two medical persons from the following categories for emergency transports: physician, paramedic, registered nurse, respiratory therapist or paramedic.

Emergency medical services paramedics attending each flight are required to complete an in-service training course in flight physiology, including plane safety.

Courtney expects that the routine operations will be in the area of 125-175 miles.

"It is a great addition to the health care of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico," said Don McInturff, chairman of the board, Lubbock County Hospital district.

The primary flight pilot of REACT, Mike Spradling, was licensed in 1966 and was later certified as a flight, instrument and multi-engine instructor.

Area physicians are invited to call for more information on REACT at 1-806-743-4444.

Age-old dating game has hit the road

NEW YORK (AP) — The age-old dating game has hit the road with a growing number of singles in clubs from coast to coast using bumper stickers to advertise and license plate numbers to establish contact. The concept is "something a little different, a little more adventurous" than personal ads, says a tape-recorded telephone pitch for Motor Mates, a club that operates in the New York metropolitan area.

Motor Mates and other clubs operating in New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and California operate the same way.

For a fee, members receive a bumper sticker, and their name, address and license plate number are logged in the club's computer. If one member eyes another on the road and wants to get acquainted, he or she jots down the license number and notifies the club, which forwards a letter of introduction or personal biography.

"I'm more apt to do this than something else," such as video dating services, where the people are "desperate," said a woman named Tracy who signed up during Motor Mates' kick-off party Wednesday at a Manhattan nightclub.

"It seems to be more casual," said the 21-year-old woman.

"Basically, we're the middleman," says Bill Lum, who owns Motor Mates with partner Sheldon Priess.

Motor Mates charges a one-time fee of $5 for membership and $2 for each letter forwarded, says Priess, who is 40 and single. The club started up in early May and already has more than 1,000 members, he says.

Modern chemicals present health risks, injury

When television news questions every other week whether our morning cup of coffee will cause cancer, it's no wonder Americans start the day off worrying about the invisible risk of substances classified as "hazardous."

Modern chemicals, like other miracles of recent science, make life more convenient and safer when used properly. Yet there is no question that they present risks of injury and disease, no matter how carefully they are handled.

The real questions are: how great is this risk? Which injuries and diseases can we prove are actually caused by exposure to hazardous substances, and to what degree? What's the fairest and least wasteful manner to compensate those who have been harmed?

These questions are especially contentious in the workplace, where the risk of injury and disease from exposure is most obvious. Fortunately, the literature shows that despite the recent wave of concern, the overall incidence of occupational diseases and of all cancers (except respiratory cancers) has actually held steady or declined since 1933—indicating great strides in the handling and management of dangerous materials.

Unfortunately, we are not nearly as far along in answering some of the other questions I just posed. In particular, attempt to address the causation and compensation questions in legislature and the courts have proved difficult and expensive. In court cases, the real winners are not the victims but the lawyers.

But in two recent instances, business has shown signs of providing some of these elusive answers. The first such event was the report of the ad hoc National Business Council on Injury Compensation brought together by the U.S. Chamber. The Council found that millions of victims were already compensated through tort awards, liability and health insurance, disability payments and Federal programs. Still, the Council concluded, programs must be improved to catch a large number of victims who "fall through the cracks" of this system—but the goal should be to compensate innocent victims, not punish employers. Finally, the Council urged that scientific principles be more widely applied in establishing links between disease and exposure to hazardous substances. Equally promising is a unique private-sector approach to claims linked to one particular hazardous substance: asbestos. More than fifty companies facing claims involving asbestos-related diseases have voluntarily agreed to refer these claims to an impartial panel called the Asbestos Claims Facility. This "Wellington Facility," named for Dean Harry Wellington of Yale Law School was served as the impartial mediator, will collect standardized personal and medical information from claimants—and will be authorized to evaluate, settle, pay or defend the cases. If a negotiated settlement cannot be reached, the facility will provide a full range of mediation services. At anytime, the plaintiff may opt to take his case to court. The bottom line: The opportunity for deserving claimants and business alike to achieve a prompt and fair settlement—while saving possibly millions of dollars in litigation costs. Increasing our knowledge of the risks—as well as the opportunities—presented by hazardous chemicals is a good thing. Even better would be to build on these efforts by the business community to address the remaining questions about hazardous wastes, so that they can be managed even more safely and responsibly.

Some say cutting your nails during a waning moon will keep them from coming back too fast.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The Texas Supreme Court last week took politics out of the "no pass, no play" law by declaring it constitutional, but pre-campaign activity was stepped up in the attorney general's race.

One Republican announced he would challenge Democratic incumbent AG Jim Mattox, and three other Republicans say they are lined up to follow suit.

Mattox, meanwhile, was all over the field in an aggressive display of the power of his office. Friend and foe alike concede Mattox is one of the best campaigners, bar none, in the state.

10 Most Wanted

He stepped up his war on fathers who fail to make child support payments by announcing a list of high-dollar delinquent dads.

Mattox called the regional lists the "10 Most Wanted", and asked state newspapers and television and radio stations to print or broadcast the names.

Mattox said his agency will buy advertisements if free space/time isn't provided.

Pass-Play Rule

The High Court's upholding of the no pass-no play rule will probably end the ruckus and lawsuits over the controversial new law which requires students to pass all courses or give up extracurricular activities.

In dozens of cases this spring, lower court judges ordered school districts to drop the prohibition on sub-par students' non-class activities.

Mattox said the ruling is a clear signal to lower courts to quit tinkering with the law, which the Legislature passed last summer when it reformed the public school system.

Student Competency

Another hotly contested reform, the pre-diploma test, is also about to get under way.

The State Board of Education is giving final approval to the test version which will be used to rate high school students before they graduate.

High school juniors who fail the exam will be required to take remedial classes, and, if they do not pass it by the end of their senior year, they cannot graduate on schedule.

Secrecy as well as controversy now surrounds the test: board members signed sworn statements pledging not to re-

"In" come is that portion of your resources spent for the latest fashion, trend, fad or whatever.

Geometry made easy: The shortest distance between two pints is seldom a straight line.

Mattox Challengers

The candidate who announced last week he would run for Mattox' job is former Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh. Walsh, elected last November as a Democrat, switched parties in March. He resigned from office prior to his campaign announcement after winning a conviction of alleged mass killer Henry Lee Lucas.

A state senator from the Houston-Galveston area, Buster Brown, said he will announce for the GOP slot soon. The man who lost to Mattox in '82 says he will settle "some unfinished business" by defeating Mattox this time: former state Sen. Bill Meier of Eules, also a former Democrat.

And last, but not least, is San Antonio state District Judge Roy Barrera, Jr., also due to formally announce soon. The son of former Texas Secretary of State Roy Barrera, Sr., he is also a party convert.

Barrera said Dallas developer Trammel Crow has agreed to serve as campaign chairman. Add to that his anticipated inroads into the Hispanic voting bloc, and he is a serious contender.

Texas Statistics

The good news is that Texas is ranked second-lowest in the nation of states with low taxes.

The bad news is: Texas unemployment increased to 7.2 percent, the national plateau.

Only Nevada ranked lower in a study published by the Washington-based Advisory Committee on Intergovernmental Relations.

State and local taxes from 16 common levies totaled $949.88, some 14.5 percent below the national average.

Texas scored higher than average on taxes on alcohol, tobacco and licenses. Texas was lower in drivers licenses, property tax and sales tax.

Progressive Reunion set Sunday

The Annual Progressive Reunion is scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Hereford Community Center.

Each family is asked to bring a basket dinner. Cold drinks and paper plates will be furnished.

For further information call Irvin Reeves at 364-3328.

Major Project Underway

This week the Hereford Key Club will be leasing red, white and blue storefront flag decorations to businesses for display during the Town 'n' Country Jubilee. This project, undertaken in cooperation with Grady Henly Decorators, is an important fund raiser for the club. Key Club members will be contacting businesses by phone and in person to rent the banners and fans. Decorations range in price from $12.50 to $45. For further information contact Gene Brock at 364-6591. Pictured with the decorations are (from left) Key Club members, Dale West and Westley Brown.

Surgery will not hamper lifestyle

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's cancer should have practically no long-term effect on the way he functions as head of state or even on his favorite hobby, horseback riding.

The 74-year-old president's doctors and other experts in the field agree that unless Reagan has a recurrence of his disease, which they say is not likely, the worst residual effect of his surgery will be the nuisance of frequent medical tests to check for signs of possible cancer spread.

By the time Reagan leaves Bethesda Naval Hospital this weekend or early next week, they say, he will have lost several pounds but will be eating a normal diet and should regain his strength over the next few weeks. Unless future tests turn up another tumor, which could require further surgery, Reagan can expect to return within a few months to riding horses, cutting brush at his California ranch and tending to the affairs of state as he did before he entered the hospital.

Although tentative plans for Reagan to attend a Republican fund-raiser in Richmond, Va., and the "Frontier Days" rodeo in Cheyenne, Wyo., later in the month had to be scratched, the president's aides expect him to make his first formal public appearance next week for the state visit of Chinese President Li Xiannian.

Reagan has not eaten since last Wednesday, when he began a fast to prepare for the intestinal examination that led to the discovery of his tumor.

Voyagers hope to retrace path of Polynesian migration

By STEWART TAGGART Associated Press Writer HONOLULU (AP) - Navigating the Pacific aided only by the stars and the motion of the sea, a group of voyagers hopes to bolster claims that Polynesians were sophisticated seafarers centuries before Westerners arrived.

Aboard the 60-foot, double-hulled Polynesian sailing canoe "Hokule'a," the group plans to retrace major migration routes believed to have been used to populate the Pacific from Southeast Asia.

"The big picture really is to awaken Polynesians' pride in their ancestors and themselves," said Myron Thompson, president of the Polynesian Voyaging Society. "This will give us an insight into how it may have been done way back when."

The Hokule'a, using star navigation, has sailed to Tahiti and back - about 12,000 miles - twice before, in 1976 and 1980.

Now the group plans to sail the vessel to Tahiti, the Cook Islands, New Zealand, Fiji, Samoa, Raiatea and the Marquesas before returning to Hawaii. Relying on rotating 12-member crews, organizers hope the vessel can cover nearly 16,000 miles of open ocean over 27 months.

"Hopefully the Hokule'a can now help bring the Polynesians and other Pacific islanders closer together culturally," said Gordon Pianaia, for part of the trip.

After weeks of delay caused by equipment problems aboard its escort ship Dorcas, the Hokule'a set sail from the tiny Hawaii Island village of Milolii on July 10. The Dorcas is to travel behind the Hokule'a during the journey so as not to give it navigational cues.

The most widely accepted migration theory is that the Pacific was populated through an eastward movement of people from Southeast Asia to Western Polynesia at about 1000 B.C., or about 500 years before the Golden Age of Greece. Western Polynesia comprises Fiji, Tonga and Samoa.

Archaeological evidence indicates the migration then proceeded to Tahiti, the Tuamotus, the Cook Islands and the Marquesas, or Eastern Polynesia, at about the time of Christ.

The heyday of Polynesian voyaging is believed to have occurred after that, with Hawaii to the north, New Zealand to the south and Easter Island to the east settled by 1000 A.D.

A less accepted theory holds the islands were populated by peoples of South America.

Capt. James Cook was among the first Westerners to sail extensively throughout the Pacific. When he arrived in Hawaii in 1778, he noted that the language was similar to the those he had heard in other parts of the Pacific.

"How shall we account for this nation having spread itself to so many detached islands so widely disjoined from each other in every quarter of the Pacific?" Cook wrote.

The veteran navigator aboard the Hokule'a is Mau Piailug, 54, a Micronesian who helped navigate the canoe to Tahiti and back on its two previous journeys.
