Israeli Attacks 'Frustrate' Reagan

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, frustrated by Israel's renewed attacks on west Beirut, is telling Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin in a firmly worded letter that a strict cease-fire is an "absolute necessity."

Reagan issued a public statement Wednesday admonishing Israel to stop its assault on the guerrilla stronghold and urging the Palestine Liberation Organization to leave the area without delay. His private letter to Begin was understood to be considerably tougher.

"The president is not an easy man to upset," said one White House official, who did not wish to be identified. But, he added, "It isn't the U.S. view that Israel should be shooting when negotiations are going on."

The official described Reagan as "frustrated and very concerned," especially since the White House had been optimistic about U.S. Ambassador Philip Habib's attempts to negotiate a settlement of the crisis in Lebanon before the latest outbreak of shooting began.

He said Reagan's "extreme frustration" stemmed partly from the optimism that had existed earlier. "Habib was a lot farther along than he had been before," the official added.

"We do not believe Israel is out to sabotage the Habib mission, but there is frustration with all sides," the official said.

Officials who asked not to be identified said the president had considered, but deferred, imposing sanctions against Israel. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes refused to confirm that report.

One source said he did not believe Reagan's letter to Begin specifically threatened Israel with any sanctions, but he did acknowledge sanctions were discussed during a three-hour meeting of Reagan's top foreign policy advisers Wednesday.

"You just couldn't have three hours of meetings without discussing all options," he said.

The Washington Post said today that Reagan's letter contained a clear implication, but not an explicit threat, that Israel's military supply relationship with the United States could be jeopardized.

Moshe Arens, Israel's ambassador to the United States was asked about possible sanctions Wednesday night on ABC's "Nightline" news program. "You can be very sure that Israel would be ready to sacrifice economic assets, if it came to that, in order to protect its security interests," he said.

Sanctions were imposed on Israel after it bombed an Iraqi nuclear reactor last summer and, to a limited degree, after the initial Israeli bombing of Beirut two months ago. Reagan also suspended delivery of U.S.-made cluster bombs after complaints that the devices had been used against Lebanese civilians.

Warhead Exploded In Nevada Desert

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — An underground test of a nuclear warhead with a yield many times that of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima sent shock waves rolling across the Nevada desert today.

Energy Secretary James Edwards and about 30 reporters witnessed the test, which went off with a muffled boom precisely at 7 a.m. PDT.

A ground television camera about 3/4-mile from the scene was knocked out by the blast. Twenty-one minutes later, a 1,000-foot-wide expanse of desert collapsed above the site where the bomb had been placed 2,100 feet underground.

The blast site, a desolate expanse of desert 77 miles northwest of Las Vegas known as Yucca Flat and 100 square miles larger than the state of Rhode Island, is pocked with indentations caused by hundreds of previous underground tests.

The huge, two-story concrete control building 10 miles away shook noticeably in a rocking motion and seismograph needle jumped erratically when the test was detonated.

Firemen Attend School

Ten members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department participated in the 53rd Annual Texas Fireman's Training School held at College Station July 25-30.

Hereford Fire Marshall Jay Spain was an instructor in Breathing Apparatus and Protective Clothing at the school, held at Texas A&M University.

David Kreig took Firefighting II, while Carey Black, Larry Brackett, Scott Holbert, Gary Whitfill, John Bob Drake, Donnie Henson, and Kirk Spain all enrolled in Firefighting I. Hap Cavness was enrolled in Fire Prevention I.

The Texas Insurance Commission issues Fire Insurances Key Rate Credits to towns and cities that have men participating in the annual fire training schools.

DR. TIM REVELL

Hereford Rated High On Checklist, Gains New Doctor

By JERI CURTIS Staff Writer

He wears jeans and boots to work. He likes to rough it in his homemade camper. He's used to minus 10 degree weather and plus 10 feet of snow. He has lived in the jungle. He doesn't own a television.

He's the new doctor in town.

"I feel equally comfortable coming to work in blue jeans and cowboy boots as in a three piece suit," declares Dr. Tim Revell, who moved to the Panhandle from the chilly environs of Ft. St. John's, British Columbia, Canada.

Raised in sunny California, Revell served a four-year stint in the service including two years in Viet Nam on a demolition team. Seeing the disease in that war-stricken country compelled him to go into medicine.

He returned to his hometown, Bakersfield, and started pre-med studies at a junior college where he also became student body president and the California representative to the Council on Higher Education.

Finishing his degree at the University of California-Irvine he received honors for undergraduate research on learning and memory.

After med school at UCI Revell interned at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver, B.C., where roughly two-thirds of all Canadian graduates apply. Revell was the first non-Canadian accepted for internship in 26 years.

He moved his family 900 miles north to Ft. St. John's for two years of general practice. The city, comparable to Hereford in size and friendliness, was buried in 10 to 18 feet of snow during the winter with 5 1/2 months of -10 degree or below weather.

Revell's practice differed in Canada due to the socialized medical system. Families pay $18 a month for unlimited medical coverage. Revell said that kind of insurance encouraged more preventive medicine and people were more conscientious about checkups.

"I think what I enjoyed about it was if a patient needed a procedure done, it could be done without being eyeball deep in debt," Revell said. He said the delivery of his

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by President Reagan's renewed call for a tax increase this year, a Senate-House conference committee has agreed to require 10-percent income tax withholding on interest and dividends.

The withholding plan is a major element of a bill passed by the Senate that would raise a record $98.9 billion over the next three years in an effort to cut federal borrowing and reduce interest rates.

Conference negotiators also agreed Wednesday night to reduce the tax deduction for uninsured personal losses, such as from fire and theft. Beginning next year, a deduction would be permitted only for the portion of such losses that exceed 10 percent of adjusted gross income; the only limit now is that the taxpayer bear the first $100 of loss.

The 15-member panel took its first votes on the compromise tax-increase bill after Reagan met with members of Congress to urge its approval. The meetings were prompted by warnings Congress would not raise taxes in this election year unless prodded by the president.

After the meetings, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who heads the Senate-House conference, told reporters, "I think if anybody had any doubt about where the president stood, he's made it clear."

The withholding provision approved Wednesday night would go into effect next Jan. 1. Banking institutions and corporations would withhold for the government 10 percent of interest and dividends, just as taxes are now withheld from wages.

Exempt from withholding would be any account earning less than $100 interest a year; people 65 and older who in the previous year paid $1,500 or less total taxes ($2,500 for a couple); and people of any age whose tax liability was $600 or less ($1,000 or less for a couple).

The withholding provision would produce an estimated $11.7 billion over the next three years, mainly by collecting taxes on a good part of the estimated 11 percent of interest and 15 percent of dividends that now illegally escape taxation. It is part of a package of changes to toughen compliance with the tax laws.

Most of the 100 provisions in the tax bill have yet to be considered by the conferees. These include higher taxes on cigarettes and telephone service; a lower deduction for medical expenses; a tougher "minimum tax" on high-income investors and cuts in a variety of business tax breaks.

The committee is expected to complete work on the tax bill next week.

Kemp, a leader in the battle for Reagan's economic program last year, is leading the GOP revolt against the tax increase this year. He has gathered the signatures of about 80 House Republicans opposing the tax bill.

Tough Budget Battle Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of a proposed constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget are predicting a tough battle in the House after the measure's narrow approval by the Senate.

The proposal squeaked through the Republican-led Senate 69-31 Tuesday, just two votes more than the required two-thirds margin required for constitutional amendments.

The proposal, which President Reagan is actively supporting, now goes to the Democratic-controlled House, where a similar measure has been bogged down before the Judiciary Committee since early this year.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., is a strong opponent of the measure and has given no indication that he intends to call it up for a committee vote.

Supporters are trying to circumvent his panel by petitioning to bring the amendment straight to the House floor.

But as of Wednesday, only 184 of the needed 218 signatures necessary for the petition to succeed had been obtained.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill

Jr., D-Mass., claimed the effort to bring the measure directly to the House floor "has kind of stalled." He called the Senate-backed amendment "a cowardly vote, an easy way out."

Sponsors of the amendment vowed to work to get the amendment to the floor, citing heavy political pressure to have the issue aired before the Nov. 3 congressional elections.

The proposed amendment would not absolutely require a balanced budget, but would make it more difficult for Congress to permit deficit spending.

If adopted by the House and ratified by the states, the amendment would bar Congress from spending more than the government takes in except in wartime or unless Congress votes by a three-fifths margin in both houses to permit a deficit.

The measure would limit Congress' ability to use taxes as a way of balancing the budget. It would restrict tax revenues to the same percentage of increase as the nation's overall economic growth — unless Congress specifically votes to change the formula with specific tax hikes.

The amendment is proving politically popular at a time when federal deficits could run to $140 billion or more.

Senate leaders said last-minute support from Democrats running for reelection this year provided the margin of victory.

Of the 22 Democrats who joined 47 Republicans to vote for the measure in the GOP-led Senate, 11 are seeking reelection.

Simpson To Speak

State Rep. Bob Simpson will be the featured speaker when Deaf Smith County Democrats get together at 6:30 tonight at K-Bob's Restaurant. County Democratic Chairman Susie Woodford said the dutch-treat luncheon will be held on the west side of the restaurant.

The purpose of the gathering is "to put a little life" into the county political party according to Ms. Woodford.

All interested Democratic party members are invited to attend.

Religious Worker Pulls Pair From Lake

WACO, Texas (AP) — A 63-year-old Waco man and his 7-year-old grandson were pulled from the waters of Lake Waco by a man who had been reading his Bible on the shore.

Chuck Vande Veegaete, who said he plans to travel to Sweden next month for missionary work on behalf of a Waco church, first rescued the boy, who could not swim, and then returned for the grandfather.

"No pun intended, but the Lord was the life preserver in this case," Vande Veegaete said.

H.G. Hale said a wave swamped his 12-foot, flat-bottom boat Tuesday. As he tried to hold his grandson, Joshua Sikes, his rubber boots filled with water and became a weight pulling him down.

"All I could think of was I'm going to kill my grandson," Hale said. Neither he nor his grandson were injured.

"I grabbed him (Joshua) and tried to keep him above water. But every time I pushed him up, (the boots) put me under water," Hale said.

Vande Veegaete, 22, said he is a former alcoholic and drug addict now doing religious work for the Waco Spirit of Love Church.

No Clues Found In Search For Three Teens' Killer

WACO, Texas (AP) — Waco police said they have received the final autopsy results on three Central Texas teen-agers who were stabbed to death last month, but still have no new clues.

Justice of the Peace Joe Johnson on Wednesday released the results of toxicology tests that found no drugs and no alcohol in the youths' blood.

The bodies of Jill Montgomery, 17, and Raylene Rice, 17, both from Waxahachie, were found July 14 bound, gagged and nude in a secluded area of Speegleville Park at Lake Waco.

The clothed body of Ken Franks, 18, was found bound a few yards from the other two bodies. Franks, of Waco, had been stabbed in the chest at least 10 times.

A reward fund established by local citizens has grown to $12,000, officials said.

Johnson said an earlier autopsy showed that the women had been stabbed repeatedly and had been sexually abused, but lab tests could not determine whether they had been raped.

Patient In Good Condition Following Surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — A surgical team performed a heart transplant operation on a 43-year-old woman early today, a spokesman at the Texas Heart Institute said.

Spokesman Pat Kiley said the team, headed by heart transplant pioneer Dr. Denton A. Cooley and Dr. Barry Kahan of the University of Texas at Houston Medical School, performed the operation at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

It was the second transplant operation during which surgeons used a new drug to help prevent the body's rejection system from rejecting the transplanted heart, he said.

The recipient, identified only as a 43-year-old woman, was in good condition following the surgery, Kiley said.

Kiley said today's is the second in a series of planned heart transplant operations using the new drug.

The first patient to undergo heart transplant surgery in which Cyclosporin A was used, a 43-year-old man, remains in good condition here, making normal post-operative progress, Kiley said.

Cyclosporin A, an immuno suppressant, has shown encouraging ability over previously used drugs to interfere with the body's rejection system, Kiley said. He said doctors hope that the drug will resolve infection problems that have hindered heart transplants in the past.

Paul Harvey News Schooling Without Going To School

With many public schools in disrepute and disfavor, new private schools are being created at the rate of one every seven hours.

And yet, another option — education of children at home — is multiplying

Next, with a multiplicity of television channels, specific educational programming will augment and inevitably stimulate this practice of "schooling without going to school."

The statutes of 11 states explicitly permit "home instruction" as an alternative to public schooling and 10 other states implicitly permit it.

In six other states, case law has interpreted the "compulsory attendance statutes" to permit home instruction.

Much of the recent years' escalation of home instruction derives from the efforts of the National Association of Home Educators.

Thirteen years ago a Gallatin, Missouri, mother, Mary Bergman, educating her own children at home, began to relate her experience in a newsletter to friends.

Her daughter, Cathy, a product of that at-home education, has expanded that newsletter to a circulation of 5,000 in 50 states.

Further, the Association prepared legal advice for challenged parents; advice on curriculum, on teaching methods for each subject; a resource center for home educators.

The NAHE processes some 250 inquiries each week from parents asking how or asking help, and has become a catalyst for home education organizations in 37 states.

Dr. Raymond Moore of Hewitt Research Foundation estimates that 500,000 children are now tutored at home.

In Grand Junction, Colorado, 200 families elected to augment home instruction with closed circuit television tutoring in mathematics and woodworking.

Out of Lincoln, Nebraska, the Central Education Network is now feeding by satellite "classroom subjects" to some 200 PBS television stations.

The adaption of educational television to home tutoring is already demonstrating a potential so exciting that proponents envision eventual abandonment of school buildings. Two-way "talk-back-TV" will permit student interaction. Don Bell writes, "Tax-payers have been spending $200 billion a year to support a public education system that is not working."

In a handbook called "Home Grown Kids," authors Dorothy and Raymond Moore have assembled step-by-step instructions for "giving a child a wholesome first-class education at home."

And an impressive succession of educators and psychologists has endorsed their curriculum.

Even Benjamin Bloom of the University of Chicago, one of the godfathers of the pre-school movement and Head Start, now suggests that the home, with reasonably good parenting, is the best educational nest for young children.

Doctor

causes stress in the personal lives of many doctors.

Cathy Revell, who worked as an x-ray technician to support him during med school, has learned to trash the Hollywood image of being a doctor's wife.

"I had to learn inside of myself that he wants this job, that it is his goal," she says of the profession. "We've worked so hard that we can't give it up."

"I had to work it through my head that he doesn't necessarily want to be at work more than at home, that it's just part of the job," she explained.

The mother of four said her husband's time is not his own. Sometimes he is called out in the middle of the night and wakes up everybody in the house. He was called away from a Valentine's Day dance to deliver babies.

"There's no definite nine to five," she said.

Yet, she doesn't consider it a compromise. It is just the way life is. And has been. "There were times I wouldn't see him for three and four days," she tells about internships. "He didn't like it and he knew I didn't like it. There was a light at the end of the tunnel, but it took a long time getting there."

Both noted the high divorce rate among doctors due to high stress situations. Of 15 couples they knew in school, only two couples are still married to the same spouse. One doc is on his fifth chance at marriage.

Revell admits it is tough for his wife and praises her patience and understanding for not knowing when he'll be home or have to leave home.

"But, the time we spend together is quality time," he says.

For six years the Revells have banned television in the home. They tried selective viewing, but the distraction was still too much and watching the tube became habitual. They just got rid of it.

Thus network reception was not a priority when the couple contemplated moving.

Mrs. Revell said each of them made up a checklist of qualities they wanted in a town and actually checked off good and bad for each place they interviewed.

The Catholic church, St. Anthony's School, the friendly people, and a better work schedule helped Hereford to win.

"He wanted to make sure I was happy and I wanted him to be happy," Mrs. Revell said. "Both of us came out with 'good' for Hereford."

Begin Defies U.S. Pressure

By The Associated Press
Lebanese police reported at least 250 civilians killed and 670 wounded in the devastating 20-hour bombardment of west Beirut by Israeli jets, gunboats and artillery backing tank charges that carved out new positions on three fronts around PLO's battered enclave.

Israel suspended the push after a strongly worded message from President Reagan. But Israeli officials vowed to continue their drive to crush the Palestine Liberation Organization, and guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat exhorted his followers to fight to the death.

Israeli warplanes bombed south and west Beirut for 90 minutes after sundown Wednesday, capping a daylong rain of shellfire that collapsed city blocks and gutted apartment buildings in west Beirut's residential and commercial districts.

Maize Days Celebration Scheduled

"Wild, Wild West" is the theme for this year's Maize Days celebration scheduled Sept. 16-18 in Friona.

The annual Maize Days parade will begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 18 and following the parade Savages Hickory Pit Barbecue will cater a barbecue lunch.

There will also be a carnival and exhibits displayed at the park located on Main St.

Skinny Dippers Visit Cowgirl Hall Of Fame

Skinny dippers visited the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Wednesday evening, taking a swim in the courtyard fountain.

Hereford police said the youngsters caused an undetermined amount of damage to the fountain lights. Other reports included a theft of a purse from a vehicle

A police spokesman said many of the wounded were expected to die soon because the Moslem sector's hospitals are suffering drastic shortages of plasma, water and fuel because of an 11-day Israeli blockade that has made fruit, bread and vegetables scarce.

The Tel Aviv military command issued a communique early today saying the Beirut war front was "relatively quiet" during the night apart from sporadic Katyusha rocket fire from Palestinian units. It said Israeli soldiers exercised "restraint," but did not say whether they fired back.

"Nobody is going to bring Israel to her knees," Begin said in a speech in Jerusalem that replied to a call for sanctions by the chairman of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Charles Percy, R-Ill.

"You must have forgotten that Jews do not kneel but to God," Begin said.

Clayton Hints He'll Back Clements For Re-Election

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Democratic House Speaker Bill Clayton says his party's gubernatorial nominee hasn't been much of an attorney general but the Republican in the governor's office has done a good job.

Clayton said Wednesday he's not ready to announce who he backs for governor. In fact, he said there's a chance he'll never actively back either Democrat Mark White or Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

But Clayton, who said he's never voted for a Republican, made it clear he is impressed with Clements and disappointed in White.

"I think the questions that come basically to Texans when they're assessing the candidates is to look to the incumbent and ask the question, 'What has he done right and what has he done wrong? Has he been bad or has he been good?'" Clayton told reporters.

"I think, personally, Clements has done a good job. I haven't seen anything wrong with the record," said Clayton.

The speaker is unimpressed with White's performance as the state's lawyer.

"How many lawsuits have we been in since he's been attorney general? How many have we won?" he asked, leaving the question unanswered but naming lawsuits in which he said White performed poorly.

Dwayne Holman, White's campaign director, said

White has won 97 percent of the cases in which he represented the state.

Clayton said White erred as the state's lawyer in the bilingual education and prison lawsuits.

"A lot of those things could have been won at the trial court level," said Clayton, who recently took the bar exam under a law allowing legislators to take the test without attending law school.

Clayton is not seeking re-election this year. For a time he was thought to be a possible candidate for land commissioner, perhaps as a Republican.

Clayton and Clements met privately for about 30 minutes Wednesday. Clements said they talked about several things, including the election.

The governor, criticizing White's statements on the Texas economy, said, "He doesn't know any more about these subjects than a hog knows about Sunday."

Clayton's ire was toward White was aroused by the attorney general's Monday ruling against the 1981 Legislature's effort to allow optometrists to administer diagnostic drugs with the approval of a physician.

Plainview Air Show Scheduled Sept. 26

Plainview's 1982 Air Show will feature a dazzling display of aerobatics complete with an old fashioned barnstorming show featuring a wing-walking act by Johnny Kazian and Jim Franklin. Bob Hoover nationally famous stuntman, will also be on hand for the show Sept. 26.

Hoover's world famous air show features precision aerobatics using an Aero Commander and other craft. Franklin's act includes Hollywood stunt type acts.

The Air Show is an annual event sponsored by the Plainview Kiwanis Club, the Experimental Aircraft Association of Plainview and radio station KVOP.

The EAA will hold a fly-in the day before the show.

Irving L. Burkett, nephew of Ira W. Ott of Hereford, was seriously injured July 25 in a jail break incident while on duty at Rocky Butte County Jail in Portland, Ore.

Burkett was trying to warn the guards when six inmates attempted to escape as he was shot in the back of the head.

It was not known how the prisoners obtained the small weapon. Several of the escaped prisoners were still at large.

Burkett has been employed as a deputy sheriff in Multnomah County for almost 20 years. He was born in Plainview, and moved to Oregon when he was a small child.

He has visited his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ott, on many occasions, and worked for D.C. Kinsey as an automobile mechanic in the 1940s. He was also employed by McCullough Motor Company.

they must register to participate in the games and be eligible for the door prizes," he added.

Capping the day's activities will be the "Poker Run," which is a ride of about 80 miles across the western section of the county. Riders will follow a mapped course, which includes Summerfield, Black, Friona, and Westway, stopping at five check points along the way to get a playing card.

"We will have various methods of getting the cards, like spinning a wheel, and the rider with the best poker hand at the end will win a trophy," Burkhalter explained.

The "Poker Run" will wind up at the Bull Barn, after which the meeting will officially adjourn.

"We'd like to thank the local merchants and businessmen who helped make this possible," Burkhalter concluded. "Without their help it would have been impossible to have it here in Hereford."

An estimated 150,000 were killed in the nuclear attack which hastened the end of World War II. A second U.S. atomic bomb dropped on Nagasaki three days later killed about 75,000 people.

The test also marked the 19th anniversary of signing of the Limited Test Ban Treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union, banning atmospheric atomic testing.

It was the 11th announced test at the Nevada Test Site this year and the 593rd announced test since an atomic bomb was dropped from a plane Jan. 27, 1951. Because of security reasons, not all tests are announced, the DOE said.

Going back to school this summer has been interesting after not taking classes for six years, comments Marsha Winget, a math teacher at Stanton Junior High. Marsha decided to work on her Education Diagnostician Certification this summer at West Texas State University. She has been teaching nine years. Just after earning her bachelor's degree in education at WTSU, she taught kindergarten in Lubbock. She then taught a language development class at Tierra Blanca Elementary School until transferring to Stanton two years ago.

Marsha grew up in Shreveport, La., and graduated from high school in Duncannon, Texas. She has received a master's as well as a bachelor's degree in education from WTSU.

Her husband, Wayne, was born and raised in Hereford. He earned his bachelor of science degree at WTSU, and works with his father at Winget Pump Co.

Marsha and Wayne met at WTSU, and were married eight years ago Tuesday.

Wayne is a volunteer fireman, and is a member of the Kiwanis Club. He has been a Key Club sponsor for several years.

The Wingets are members of the First United Methodist Church.

Marsha says that she enjoys teaching and the students are interesting to work with. "It seems as if I learn as much from them as I try to teach them," she smiles.

"I believe things are beginning to change somewhat in the field of mathematics. Computers were used some this summer, which is a new way to present the material," notes Marsha. "I think students need to learn how to use calculators and similar devices."

Karen Abney and I sponsored the Pep Club this past year" says Marsha. "We were involved in the football games and the homecoming parade, among other things."

Marsha worked with Sharon Hodges in co-chairing the Little Miss Hereford committee of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division this year. She has been involved in the Women's Division for several years, and worked on the Little Miss committee last year also.

"It was a lot of fun," comments Marsha, "and we were excited that it came off so well after all the work we put into it. The little girls just make the pageant."

Marsha is the newly-elected president of Toujour Amis Study Club, which was chartered only a year ago. "I've never done anything like that before" she says, "but am looking forward to it."

Marsha is rush chairman of the Hereford Panhellenic Association, which assists high seniors in registering for rush at the college or university of their choice, and plans related parties and activities.

Marsha enjoys taking care of plants, sewing, and doing needlepoint, cross-stitch, and other needlework, as well as reading. "Wayne and I like to roller-skate, and enjoy snow skiing when we have the chance," says Marsha.

One of Marsha's more unique hobbies, and one that she enjoys very much, is doing stained glass projects. Her father-in-law, Richard Winget, took two classes at Amarillo College and taught Marsha the art. She has a workshop in the garage and works on it when she can.

"It takes a lot of time," notes Marsha, "but I really like it." She has made several very beautiful pieces.

Marsha enjoys trying new things in the kitchen, and likes to bake bread for special occasions. She shares her bread recipe, as well as an apple pie recipe and one for pie crust, which makes a large batch so that individual portions may be frozen and used as needed.

"This saves starting from scratch each time a pie crust is needed," comments Marsha.

BREAD

Dissolve 1 package active dry yeast in 1 cup of warm water. Cream 4 tablespoons shortening with 4 tablespoons sugar; add 4 teaspoons salt.

Add 3 cups warm water (plus the water with the yeast) and approximately 12 cups of flour alternately, a little at a time, to the shortening, sugar, and salt. Mix and knead into a medium firm dough.

Shape the dough into a ball, place it into a bowl, cover the bowl and let the dough rise until double. Punch down the dough and let it rise two more times.

Divide the dough into 4 portions, shape each portion into a loaf and let rise in greased pans. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Brush the crust with melted butter.

PIE CRUST

1 (3 lb.) can of Crisco
1 (5 lb.) sack of flour
32 oz. ice water
8 tsp. salt

Use a plastic dishpan or other large container. Combine flour and salt; cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add water, blending until mixture forms a ball.

Separate the dough into 16 equal pieces. Shape each piece into a ball. Seal the 16 balls, individually, in plastic bags so they can be stored in the freezer until needed.

APPLE PIE

Make Pie Crust in above recipe. Roll out dough for bottom, line a 9-inch pie pan.

Filling:
5 c. sliced apples
1 c. sugar
1 Tbsp. flour
1 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
one third c. butter

Combine apples, sugar, flour, and cinnamon. Pour into the pastry-lined pan; dot with butter. Roll on remaining pastry; place on top of filling. Seal and flute edges. Cut vents in top crust, and bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes or until crust is golden.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBEEK

If a foreigner watched American television for an entire evening, he would end up believing the most influential man in our lives is our druggist.

There isn't a person on a commercial who will make a move without him.

Every night, there's a caravan of malcontents who drag in whining, "Gee, Mr. Brewster, do you know how long it's been since I've eaten blueberry pie with these dentures?" He fixes it.

The next one, a militant, registered cavity-fighter says, "I don't care how it tastes, Mr. Harper, my child only had three cavities last month." Then Mr. Harper, that sly old fox, will slip her a tube of toothpaste that will give her child zip cavities.

Or the one I love, where the woman doesn't open her mouth. The druggist just looks at her and says, "Embarassing itching, Mrs. Miller? Try this."

The steady stream of people into the drugstore who come to worship at the Mecca of quick remedies goes on all night. A throbbing headache? Try this. Indigestion? Try this. Painful sunburn? Try this. Disgusting roaches? Try this.

I have a neat druggist. I don't know his name. I just drop off prescriptions and he smiles and fills them. He wears a white jacket like they do on TV. I have a lot of respect for him because he reads my doctor's handwriting.

I have never discussed my irregularities with him. It's nothing personal. It's just that I have to be married to someone for at least five years before I discuss the subject with them.

We've gone through a lot of trends on television: westerns, police shows, lawyers and doctors. Ever since Quincy broke through with his practice of forensic medicine, druggists have been restless.

I think it's only a matter of time before a druggist will star in his own TV series. Each week he'll deal with a mouthwash that's being recalled or a whole city that becomes constipated. I see it as a Love Boat of sickies.

My druggist would be perfect for the part, but he doesn't wear glasses. I wonder why he doesn't wear glasses. Come to think of it, he has never told me what he takes to go to sleep on the nights he turns and tosses, or even what vitamins he gives his children. And he calls himself a druggist!

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, August 5, the 217th day of 1982. There are 148 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On August 5, 1963, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union signed a treaty outlawing nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in space and under water.

On this date:
In 1858, the first trans-Atlantic cable was completed.

In 1861, the U.S. government levied an income tax for the first time.

In 1914, Austria-Hungary declared war on Russia at the outset of World War I.

In 1949, an earthquake in Ecuador killed about 6,000 people.

Ten years ago: Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern picked former Peace Corps director Sargent Shriver for his running mate, following the withdrawal of Thomas Eagleton from the ticket.

Five years ago: The Vatican ruled that Roman Catholic men who had been surgically sterilized could enter valid marriages.

One year ago: The Federal Aviation Administration began dismissing air traffic controllers who went on strike.

Thought for today: If all our misfortunes were lumped together, with everyone forced to take an equal share, people would be glad to take back their own. — Socrates, Greek philosopher (about 470 B.C.-399 B.C.).

WISE SELF-RESTRAINT
(by)
Bob Wear

TO BE USEFUL, all power, and force, and action must be restrained wisely. This may be prevention; or it may be moderation of the force, effect, development or the full exercise of power. It may be held back by force or persuasion from acting or going to extremes; or keeping under control by subduing or holding in. We understand, and do very well with the impersonal powers and forces which we use daily. Of course, we make some mistakes.

THERE IS ANOTHER kind of power that is of greater concern, and it is people power. When people are out of control everything else is out of control. Currently we are concerned with the increase of violence, the widespread destruction resulting from the philosophy of permissiveness and all of the other problems associated with lack of "self-restraint".

WE MUST ADMIT that growing unrestrained behavior of people is threatening everything that is of value to us. Historically, when people have ceased to apply "self-restraint" they were eventually brought under some type of enforced control. We have a choice between "wise self-restraint" and some kind of undesirable compulsive domination.

"FOR WANT OF 'self-restraint', many people engage all of their lives in fighting with difficulties of their own making, and rendering success impossible by their own cross-grained ungentleness; while others, who may be much less gifted, make their way and achieve success by simple patience, equanimity, and self-control." - Smiles.

WISE SELF-RESTRAINT is the key to the wise use and conservation of our material resources. Excesses in personal thought and action cause mis-management oneself and everything else. It is all wrapped up in one package. If we mis-manage ourselves, we mis-manage all with which we are concerned.

THE YOUNG NEED good examples from us. Self-restraint must be taught in the home, in the school and everywhere else. According to all reports, we are fast becoming a people out-of-control. If this happens, will be no people at all.

WITHOUT "wise self-restraint", we are tormented with the agony of discouragement, frustration and futility. We will feel overwhelmed with the sense of wastefulness of both life and the things which support life. We must not let this happen.

Three Former HHS Gridders Set to Play in All-Star Tilts

Matt Collier

Ken Cospier

Aubrey Richburg

Three former Hereford Whiteface football standouts will officially conclude their high school careers on the gridiron this weekend at the Oil Bowl and the Greenbelt Bowl.

All-state defensive end Aubrey Richburg, headed to Texas Tech this fall, will start at left defensive end for the Texas squad which will play the Oklahoma All-Stars at 8 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium in Wichita Falls in the Oil Bowl.

And, former Herd standouts Ken Cospier and Matt Collier will be in the heat of battle Friday night as part of the West team in the Annual Greenbelt Bowl to be played in Childress.

Richburg, a first team Class 5A All-State selection following the Herd's 13-1 semifinalist season last year, is also expected to see some action at left offensive guard according to his father Jerry.

The future Red Raider had to take a break down from a job as a roughneck in the Oklahoma oil fields to participate in the game.

In Childress, Cospier and Collier are part of a star-studded West team for the 33rd annual Greenbelt Bowl game. Cospier will line up at center, while Collier will lend his talents at a defensive back spot.

Also on the West team are Dimmitt standout end Phil King, Palo Duro running back C.M. Martin, and Lubbock linebacker Len Levine.

The East team features first team all-stars Ricky Shepherd of Bowina and Ricky Duran of Stratford. Shepherd will give Collier and company a stiff challenge as he runs pass routes from his end spot, while Duran will anchor the East offensive line at a tackle position.

The East also features quarterback Matt Hill of Bowie, a 6-3, 175-pounder who played for the North squad in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game two weeks ago. Hill was coached by former Hereford standout Keith Kitchens in that game.

Golfers Will 'Sweat Out' PGA Tournament in Tulsa

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Jack William Nicklaus earned the first of his record-tying five PGA triumphs 19 years ago on a frying-pan-hot Dallas course where the temperature lingered above 100 degrees four consecutive days.

"It was the hottest golf tournament I've ever been to," recalled his wife, Barbara.

That was until today's opening round of the 64th PGA Championship on shimmering Southern Hills Country Club.

Temperatures above 100 degrees were predicted each day through Saturday. The high late today was to be around 108 degrees but the irrepressible Nicklaus said he would hardly notice.

"Heat? I practiced three days in Florida when it was 93 degrees with 95 percent humidity...that's warmer than it is here," he said. "I have the stamina to play in this kind of weather. I just wished we could play in shorts like I do at home but the PGA has a dress code, you know."

The 42-year-old Nicklaus, who has been playing in the shadow of Tom Watson this year, was seeking to become the only player in history with six PGA titles. He currently is tied with the late Walter Hagan at five.

Nicklaus hasn't won a major championship since his 1980 PGA triumph which followed his U.S. Open victory. He won Colonial in Fort Worth this May.

Nicklaus received a break with an early tee time along with Tom Kite and defending champion Larry Nelson.

Watson was to start in the early afternoon along with Masters champion Craig Stadler and Peter Jacobsen. A victory for Watson would give him every major championship and lift him onto a plateau with Nicklaus, Gary Player, Ben Hogan, and Gene Sarazen.

The same goes for 52-year-old Arnold Palmer, who was to tee off around noon seeking the only major title that has eluded him.

Nicklaus praised the 6,862 steamy yards of Southern Hills as "very nice but extremely difficult. There aren't many birdies out there. I just had two (birds) in two practice rounds."

Nelson was seeking to become the first player to win consecutive PGA titles since Denny Shute did it in 1936 and 1937.

Nicklaus predicted the winning score would be right at par or 280.

Missing from the field was former PGA champion Lee Trevino, who is undergoing treatment for his troublesome back in Dallas.

U.S. Women's Swimming Team Disappointing at World Meet

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — The U.S. women's swimming team, held to one silver medal and four bronzes in seven events, hopes it has a special ace in the hole for the final three days of the world swimming championships.

"I'm real disappointed with the women's performance," U.S. Coach Mark Schubert said before today's competition at the Alberto Vallarino pool. "The girls haven't been as tough as they should be. Part of the problem is that the Europeans have been going out so fast in the first part of their races.

"Our girls are used to being ahead in their races at the national championships, and when they see the other swimmers get ahead, they're losing confidence."

Schubert's hopes for regaining some lost prestige for U.S. women swimmers now rest largely on Mary T. Meagher of Louisville, Ky., who was scheduled to swim today in the 100-meter butterfly. On Friday she was to swim in the 400 medley relay and on Saturday in the 200 butterfly.

"We've been here for over a week and Mary T. is chomping at the bit," Schubert said of Meagher, who holds the world record for both the 100 and 200 butterfly and hasn't lost a 200-meter race since 1978.

But having a world-record holder in a race has not always been a good luck charm here for the United States. Rowdy Gaines of Winter Haven, Fla., finished second in both the 100 and 200 freestyles although he holds the world record in each event.

To compound the frustration of the defeats, Gaines lost the two races by a total of .11 seconds — .08 in the 200 and by .03 in the 100.

"Everyone feels we can do a lot better," Schubert said. While East Germany has six gold medals and 14 medals in swimming to four golds and a total of 12 swimming medals for the United States, the Americans continue to do well in the other sports here.

The U.S. team captured a silver medal behind Canada in the synchronized swimming competition Wednesday, an off-day for swimming.

That gave the United States

18 medals in the four-sport competition that includes events in diving and water polo as well as swimming and synchronized swimming. East Germany's 14 medals are all in swimming, while Canada and the Soviet Union are third with five medals each.

Besides the women's 100 butterfly featuring Meagher, today's events include the men's freestyle and 200 breaststroke, the women's 800 freestyle and the men's 400 freestyle relay.

Bronco All-Stars Defeated

The Hereford Bronco League All-Stars dropped a 7-2 decision to the Southeastern Oklahoma All-Stars at the Regional Baseball Tournament in Everman Wednesday. The loss dropped the Hereford stars from the tournament.

Hereford lost in the first round to Duncanville, and then defeated Mansfield Tuesday to set up the match with the Sooner state stars.

Gold Sox Move Said Imminent

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Plans are set to move a San Diego Padre farm club from Amarillo to Beaumont, the president of Lamar University says.

Lamar President Robert Kemble said Wednesday that school officials and civic leaders have reached an oral agreement with the owner of the Amarillo Gold Sox to relocate the Texas League baseball club.

"We are very happy. It's something we think is justifiable and will be a real asset to the community," Kemble said. "We hope it's a roaring success."

Beaumont has not had a professional baseball team in 30 years, since a New York Yankee farm club left.

Kemble said the school's regents plan to spend $60,000 to improve Lamar's baseball stadium, which would become the new home of the team. The Beaumont City Council earlier approved plans to spend $125,000 to improve seating at the park.

Gold Sox owner T.E. Moor said he was "pleased" with Kemble's announcement Wednesday. Moor operates an insurance business in Beaumont.

The planned five-year contract has not yet been drawn up, Kemble said, but all final obstacles to the move have been cleared.

Texas League officials could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

Kemble said the Lamar regents are unanimously in favor of the move, which he believes will enhance both Lamar's stadium and its baseball program.

Moor had said support from the city council and chamber of commerce was necessary for the move. Both civic groups have backed Moor's plans.

Braves Continue Slump, Face Red-Hot Dodgers

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Is there life for the Atlanta Braves after playing dead in Atlanta Stadium?

"We're not playing as well as we can, but it's time to find out what we're made of," says Atlanta Manager Joe Torre. "It'll be good showing up at a different ballpark, not the one that has frustrated us this week."

Wednesday night's 3-2 loss to the San Francisco Giants was the Braves' fifth in their last six games at home. It trimmed their National League West lead to 5 1/2 games over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who beat the Cincinnati Reds 8-2 Wednesday.

And it set up a dramatic four-game series with the onrushing Dodgers at Los Angeles starting tonight.

"They have to decide themselves whether they want it," said San Francisco's Joe Morgan of the failing Braves. "If they think they are good enough to win it, they will. It just depends on how good a team they think they have."

Morgan delivered the game-winning run for the Giants in the ninth inning against the Braves Wednesday night with an RBI single off Steve Bedrosian, 5-3, following a two-out pinch single by Champ Summers, a stolen base by pinch runner Max Venable and a walk to Chili Davis.

The victory went to Gary Lavelle, 5-5, who allowed one hit in one inning of work. Greg Minton worked the final inning for the Giants and gained his 18th save.

In other NL games, it was Philadelphia 5, Montreal 4; Pittsburgh 5, St. Louis 2; San Diego 5, Houston 2 and New York 7, Chicago 4.

Dodgers 8, Reds 2
Ricky Wright held Cincinnati to two hits over six innings in his first major league start and doubled in a run, and Steve Garvey slugged a three-run homer as Los Angeles crushed the Reds.

Wright, appearing in only his second major league game, gave up a leadoff single to Tom Lawless in the first inning and didn't allow another hit until Dave Concepcion hit his second home run of the season with two out in the sixth and Rafael Landestoy on base after a walk.

Wright struck out four and walked four before he was replaced by reliever Joe Beckwith, who gave up two hits over 21-3 innings. Beckwith lost his edge during a 40-minute rain delay and walked Dan Driessen and pinch-hitter Duane Walker when play resumed and was lifted for Terry Forster, who finished up.

Phillies 5, Expos 4
Steve Carlton pitched his 10th straight complete game and Manny Trillo single home two runs in the sixth as Philadelphia beat Montreal.

Montreal third baseman Tim Wallach accounted for all the Expos' runs with a three-run homer in the fourth and a solo shot in the eighth.

Carlton allowed eight hits, struck out five and walked four as he won the 15th of his last 18 decisions, after losing his first four games of the season. He boosted his record to 15-8, and is the first major league pitcher to win that many games.

Joel Youngblood, who was acquired from the New York Mets Wednesday for "future considerations," arrived from Chicago where he had knocked in the winning run for the Mets Wednesday afternoon. He played right field and contributed a single to the Expos' attack.

Youngblood tied the all-time record for most teams played with in one day (2), set by Max Flack and Clint Heathcote, who were traded by the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs between games of a doubleheader in 1922.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 4
John Candelaria pitched a four-hitter over the first six innings and ignited a two-run uprising with a double after two were out in the fifth, leading Pittsburgh over St. Louis.

Candelaria, 9-4, departed when muscles in his left forearm tightened after St. Louis scored in the sixth. He gave way to Rod Scarry, who posted his ninth save after giving up an RBI single to George Hendrick in the eighth.

Candelaria is rebounding from elbow problems last year.

Padres 5, Astros 2
John Montefusco went all the way for his first complete game of the season and Sixto Lezcano and Terry Kennedy knocked in two runs each with sixth-inning hits to lead San Diego over Houston.

Montefusco, 9-6, allowed five hits while striking out three and walking four. Losing pitcher Don Sutton, 10-8, pitched 61-3 innings, allowing seven hits and one walk while striking out eight.

AL Hurlers Enjoy Mound Stints

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Britt Burns pitched "decently," Dan Petry pitched "scared," and Bud Anderson just wanted a chance to pitch in a pressure situation.

All three wound up victors Wednesday night thanks to fine efforts on the mound.

Anderson, picking up his first major-league triumph, was the most thrilled.

"I couldn't be any happier than I am right now. It's just a feeling you can't describe," Anderson, a former linebacker at Rutgers University, said after pitching 32-3 innings of strong relief in Cleveland's 8-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Anderson, 26 is 1-1 with a 3.45 earned run average in 11 appearances since being brought up from Charleston June 8. He relieved starter Rick Waits with men on first and third and the Indians ahead 3-2 and got Lamar Johnson to pop up. Then Larry Parrish's grounder was booted by shortstop Mike Fischlin, tying the game.

He got out of the inning and the Indians, with Mike Hargrove and Andre Thornton each knocking in three runs, came back.

Burns, 12-4, threw the best game of his three-year major-league career, a two-hitter, to lead the White Sox over the Yankees 7-0 in the nightcap of a two-night doubleheader. New York became the first American League team to win 7,000 games by taking the opener — Clyde King's debut as Yankee manager — 6-2 as Ron Guidry and Rich Gossage combined on a five-hitter and Graig Nettles and Oscar Gamble homered.

Petry, 12-6, beamed Willie Wilson, the AL's leading hitter, in the third inning and it bothered him the rest of the night. Still, he hurled a four-hitter in Detroit's 7-1 victory over Kansas City.

Wilson was struck on the right cheek with a fastball and had to be carried off the field on a stretcher. X-rays showed no broken bones, but he was hospitalized overnight for observation.

Elsewhere, Seattle split with Oakland, winning 5-2 and losing 8-3 as Rickey Henderson set a league stolen base record; Milwaukee blanked Toronto 8-0, Baltimore beat Boston 4-2, and California edged Minnesota 8-6.

Youngblood Enters Record Book

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joel Youngblood started the day as a New York Met, got a game-winning hit, hopped on an airplane and wound up playing for the Montreal Expos before the night was over.

It enabled him to become the third man in major league baseball history to play for two teams in the same day. The others, Max Flack and Cliff Heathcote, were traded between games of a doubleheader between St. Louis and the Chicago in 1922.

Jet travel made it possible for Youngblood, who was traded Wednesday afternoon for future considerations, to become the only player ever to achieve that feat in two cities.

The telephone rang in the New York Mets' dugout during the third inning of their 7-4 victory over the Cubs at Chicago's Wrigley Field. The message was to send Youngblood, who had just ripped a two-run single, upstairs after the inning.

"I felt I was traded,"

Youngblood said.

And he was right. He went upstairs and was informed of the trade by Mets' General Manager Frank Cashen.

"It's funny," Youngblood said after completing 2-for-3 day with a single in his only time at bat during the Expos' 5-4 loss Wednesday night to the Philadelphia Phillies. "I left in the third inning at Chicago and arrived in the third inning in Philadelphia."

But, he explained, he almost missed his plane after making reservations, packing and checking out of his Chicago hotel room.

"At the hotel I realized I had left my glove in the dugout, so I went back to the ball park to get it," said Youngblood. "I made the plane with 20 minutes to spare."

Youngblood, who had been with the Mets since 1977, was hitting .257 in 80 games with 12 doubles, 3 homers, and 21 RBIs.

The Expos made room for him on their 25-man roster by designating infielder Frank Taveras for assignment.

"I felt better than I did all year and that includes spring training," Youngblood said when asked about the change.

"Your whole attitude changes when you're traded to a contender. I feel confidence in myself again. It's time I started playing up to my ability because this team wants me."

Youngblood, 30, said he didn't care that Montreal Manager Jim Fanning used him so soon.

"It was all right with me. That's why I came today (Wednesday)."

"I feel the team needs me. I want to be here to contribute. I could have come tomorrow

Networks Seek Program Fillers

By LARRY SIDONS AP Sports Writer

Uncertainty over the fate of the coming National Football League season has the three networks looking for programming to fill the gap should the players decide to strike.

It's a fairly easy situation for ABC, which has only Monday night prime-time slots to fill. At CBS and NBC, however, it's a tougher task to find replacement programming that will do as well in the ratings on Sunday afternoons.

Ironically, ABC could face the first strike cancellation, although it's not from the players.

The network is scheduled to open the NFL preseason with Saturday's Hall of Fame Game from Canton, Ohio, this year featuring the Baltimore Colts and the Minnesota Vikings.

But the game is being threatened by a strike — not by the players, but by Viking Coach Bud Grant and his staff.

Grant is upset because the coaches don't get paid extra for the Hall of Fame Game, and is threatening to stay away Saturday afternoon unless the NFL come up with some money. Grant's players have indicated they will follow their coach's lead.

If that happens and the game is called off, ABC probably will fill the time with regular "Wide World of Sports" programming. The game telecast is labeled a special edition of "Wide World," so not even the logo or theme music has to be changed.

By late Wednesday, however, definite word on ABC's plans for the Hall of Fame time slot was unavailable.

Much the same remedy will be used by ABC if a strike by the NFL Players Association occurs during the regular season.

Officials at the network say they would fill the 9 p.m. EDT slot with regular prime-time programming — situation comedies, movies and so on — as they did during last summer's baseball strike.

At NBC and CBS, the problem is stickier, but alternatives are being readied in case of a strike.

NBC is looking northward. The Canadian Football League would help fill the gap for U.S. fans on the American Conference's home network, officials say.

Beyond that, few details of the contingency plan are available. It's not known, for example, if the CFL would make it on NBC every Sunday, or what would happen if an NFL strike lasted beyond late November, when the Canadian league decides its champion.

But NBC officials are betting that 10 extra yards — the middle of a CFL field is the 55-yard line — and just three downs to make a first down won't matter that much to football-starved U.S. viewers.

CBS, on the other hand, is thinking collegiate.

If the NFLPA strikes, look for CBS to fill at least some of the time with NCAA football.

If college football cannot be used, or if there are limits to how often it can be shown on Sundays, CBS — the network of the National Conference — will use other sports and entertainment programs to fill the gap.

Detroit's Billy Sims A Holdout

DETROIT (AP) — All-Pro running back Billy Sims says he is determined to sit out the upcoming National Football League season unless the Detroit Lions agree to renegotiate the fourth year of his contract.

"I'm not backing down from that," Sims said Wednesday. "I like to play football and entertain people but I also have some pride in myself."

Sims refused to join the Lions when training camp opened last week.

Nominations for Prime-Time Emmys Will be Announced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Hill Street Blues," a surprise winner of nine Emmys for television performance last year, found itself waiting next to another NBC rookie, "Fame," in the lineup of today's Emmy nomination hopefuls for this year.

The nominations for the best prime-time television programs and performances of the past year by the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences were set for the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, site of the 34th annual awards ceremony.

ABC will broadcast the awards show from the auditorium Sept. 19.

"Hill Street Blues" is the program many are watching to see whether it will repeat its surprise performance of last year. The NBC police show got a whopping 21 nominations last August and received nine Emmys. But the series may be edged by "Fame," the finger-popping show adapted from the hit movie.

NBC also was likely to get multiple nominations for "Love, Sidney," a comedy series starring Tony Randall, and the mini-series "Marco Polo."

"Taxi" was likely to be nominated for a fourth Emmy as best comedy series, but NBC, not ABC, would be the one to take the bows. ABC canceled the three-time Emmy winner and it was snatched up by NBC for the fall season.

ABC seemed certain to get nominations for at least three of its ABC Theater presentations. One of them, "Divorce Wars," which starred Tom Selleck and Jane Curtin, already has received the prestigious Humanitas Award. The others are "The Elephant Man," an adaptation of the stage play, and "My Body, My Child," a story about abortion starring Vanessa Redgrave.

The network also could get nominations for "Inside the Third Reich," a mini-series based on the memoirs of Albert Speer, who ran the economy of Hitler's Nazi Germany.

"M-A-S-H" always a favorite both at the Emmys and in the ratings, was sure to pick up some nominations for CBS. The upcoming season is the last for the comedy series and multiple-award winner Alan Alda.

"Lou Grant," the newspaper drama canceled by CBS, may garner a few parting nominations. The show and its star, Edward Asner, have won before, and its cancellation caused a storm of protest.

CBS could also pick up nominations for "Desperate Lives," a strong story of teenage drug addiction written by Lew Hunter; "Coming Out of the Ice," a movie about an American sent to Siberia by the Soviet authorities, and "The Patricia Neal Story," about the actress' fight to recover from a stroke.

"The American Playhouse," an effort to revive original drama on TV, should bring nominations to the Public Broadcasting Service.

Ann Landers

Unruffled Over Handicap

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I felt sorry for Mrs. L.C., who appearing without her artificial limb in her brother-in-law's home movies. I, too, am a uniped, so I can help her.

Once I accepted the fact that my leg was not going to grow back, I decided if all my friends knew and it didn't bother them, it didn't matter if a world full of strangers knew.

When I go dancing I wear my cosmetic prostheses. If I am mowing the lawn, I wear an old-fashioned peg leg I found in a second-hand store. I use the wheelchair if I'm going to a shopping mall. For the beach or the pool, I put on my one-piece bathing suit and grab my crutches. If people stare, I figure it's their problem, not mine.

Some folks wear glasses, others need hearing aids. My problem happens to be a little more obvious. So what? — Unruffled in California

DEAR CALIF.: Some "handicapped" people are just about as handicapped as they allow themselves to be. To me, you sound like a lady with both feet on the ground. I love your spirit!

Texas Mining Council Approves Increase

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Mining Council, aware that the state may be getting a "second chance" to develop a hardrock mining industry in far West Texas, has approved recommendations to increase mineral production on state land.

On Wednesday the council sent seven recommendations to Gov. Bill Clements to "create an economic climate which will encourage, rather than discourage, exploration and development of state mineral lands."

Clements could forward all or some of the recommendations to the 1983 Legislature.

The recommendations apply to such resources as gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc but do not cover uranium or oil and natural gas.

Almost seven million acres of state mineral lands are involved, with nearly 90 percent of that acreage located in nine counties west of the Pecos River.

As part of its record, the council had a two-year-old paper by El Paso geologist W.N. McNulty stating that mining in the Trans-Pecos had "failed to develop to any significant degree largely because Texas mining laws and regulations, the status of public lands, and other factors bearing on the economics of mining were and are unfavorable as compared with other states."

"Unfortunately for Texas," the report said, "interest in mining in the West which began in the latter part of the 19th century focused briefly on Texas and then moved on. Now ... Texas has a second chance."

Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace, council chairman, said the United States is more dependent on foreign countries for hard minerals than it is for crude oil. "This country is out to lunch when it comes to mineral resources," Wallace said. "Encouraging development of these resources would do more to stabilize the economy than all the rhetoric in Washington."

Alpine geologist Frank Daugherty said a "serious problem" is that some surface owners of state land refuse to allow anyone holding a prospecting permit or mining lease access to the areas covered by the permit or lease.

Some other owners will allow access only if the prospector or miner pays cash or a royalty based on mineral production from the premises, said Daugherty, a council member.

Henry "Moak" Rollins of Austin, another council member, said it sounded like "blackmail" to him, and Daugherty said, "I agree."

Responses to a Daugherty questionnaire showed that one surface owner had asked for $500 a month, plus a minimum royalty of $1.80 a ton for talc production, and another sought $500 a day for prospecting on his land.

"It's extortion," said Daugherty. "I don't know any other way to describe it."

One of his committee's recommendations would grant the General Land Office and holders of prospecting permits and mining leases "full rights of ingress-egress to the permitted or leased premises."

The recommendations would extend prospecting permits from five to 10 years and would extend mining leases by 10 years or more from the expiration date of the first lease.

Other recommendations ask the Legislature to fix royalty rates for the state, and would require those leasing certain state land to pay a percentage of the mineral profits to the surface owner, in addition to damages caused by mining operations.

Daugherty said the recommendations "recognize economic reality, which in the past we haven't been blessed with at all."

"These are just common sense recommendations that will put Texas on an equal footing with other (mining) states," said Wallace.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 32-year-old divorced woman who has a good executive position, a lovely apartment, a new car and some inherited money. I tell you this so you will know I am not broke, hungry or in need of financial help.

An attractive man who joined the firm last year has been my steadiest escort, but only because my friends invite him or I buy tickets to the ballet, the theater, the opera, symphony, etc. I like him a lot, but he has never spent one dime on me. He loves my cooking and hates to eat out ... says it gives him indigestion.

I remembered him on his birthday. He forgot mine. Christmas, nothing. On Valentine's Day he drew a funny picture and handed it to me. I should confess that he is excellent company and sexually we are very compatible. Should I overlook this flaw which others have noticed? I think this man could be my bird of paradise. What do you think? — Flummoxed in Newton, N.J.

DEAR FLUM: If you don't mind a bird who goes "cheap cheap," you've got the ideal man. As a single woman I can tell you I wouldn't give that gink standing room at a skunk raffle.

DEAR ANN: I've been reading you for years and never saw this problem. Many office workers will bless you if you print my letter.

DEAR PROUD PARENT: I know how thrilled you are with your new baby, but please don't bring him to the office. I am tired of pretending to be interested when I couldn't care less. I'm sure you think your baby is special, but all babies look alike to those of us who aren't relatives.

When you bring your baby in, everyone feels he must drop everything and fuss over the kid. It's a bore and a nuisance. So if you want your colleagues to see your progeny, invite them to your home or arrange to meet in a coffee shop nearby. — Just Been Through In N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: Some colleagues enjoy seeing the new babies, but I agree, it is disruptive and such visits should be extremely brief.

The women in my office, however, did not feel as strongly as you. They believe you don't like the mamas, and your negativism rubs off on the second generation. Is this possible?

Probation Considered 'Tougher Sentence'

HOUSTON (AP) — Some of the jurors who sentenced a millionaire attorney to prison for plotting to murder his crippled wife with an exotic poison considered probation a "tougher sentence," a prosecutor says.

The same jury that convicted William A. Chanslor Jr., 50, of scheming to kill his paralyzed wife, Sue, sentenced him Wednesday to three years in prison and fined him $5,000.

Prosecutors had recommended a sentence of at least 16 years to the maximum 20 years for the "heinous, serious, cold, calculated crime."

But Chanslor's wife, who said she pleaded with her husband to help her commit suicide, tearfully begged the jury to be lenient because "I can't live without him."

Assistant District Attorney Jim Lavine said he had talked briefly with the jurors after the sentencing and "all wanted to punish him in some way." He said the jury had considered sentencing Chanslor to up to 10 years.

"They indicated they were all in favor of some kind of punishment. They quickly rejected probation as well as our suggestion. A couple of them had discussed probation but thought that it would be a tougher sentence" because of the long-term restrictions probation would mean, Lavine said.

District Judge Michael McSpadden said restrictions in cases of probation include prohibition against violating state and federal law or associating with people of questionable character. People on probation must abstain from habit-forming drugs and alcoholic beverages, must report regularly to a probation officer, and must remain in a specific area unless a probation officer grants permission to leave, he said.

After the sentence was announced, Chanslor embraced his wife and said, "It's OK. It's all right. Three years and $5,000 — no probation. That's all right."

Chanslor comforted his sobbing wife, reassuring her, "I can handle it."

"Let me go with you," replied Mrs. Chanslor, 42, who is partially paralyzed and has been confined to a wheelchair since suffering a stroke in 1979.

"No, you'll be OK," Chanslor said, hugging her neck and kissing her.

Defense attorney Robert C. Bennett quickly filed notice of appeal of the conviction. Chanslor, a church deacon and past president of the Houston Trial Lawyers Association, was booked into the Harris County jail and then released on a $6,000 appeal bond.

Afterward, he told reporters, "I thought all along I was not guilty. It was never my intent to harm my wife. That was my testimony. That was my wife's testimony."

He said the only thing he wanted to do now was "go home and be with my family. We need to talk this thing over. This has been very traumatic."

Chanslor was convicted Tuesday of plotting to kill her with the deadly but hard-to-detect poison, ricin, that he tried to buy with the help of a Canadian author who called himself "Dr. Death."

"Can you guarantee he won't go out and try to kill her in six months?" Lavine had asked jurors.

"He (Chanslor) had all the opportunities in life. Just because he is Mr. Big does not mean he is above the law," Lavine said.

The seven men and five women on the jury left the courthouse without commenting on their decisions.

Lavine said he was "very pleased that the probation plea was rejected and he will be doing time in the penitentiary. I think it shows the citizens will not tolerate this type of behavior."

Under Texas law, inmates become eligible after serving one-third of their sentences, and time off for good behavior can be used toward reaching that one-third mark.

Lavine said, "I think he will be eligible (for parole) in a year. If he's good and doesn't cause any trouble he may do under a year. Maybe 10 months." Bennett, the defense attorney, said he thought his client would serve 10 months if his appeal fails.

Prosecutors said Chanslor, using the alias John G. Thompson, met with John Minnery, the Canadian author of a series of books titled "How To Kill," to obtain ricin, a deadly derivative of the castor bean. Chanslor was arrested April 21 outside a Houston hotel, carrying two marked capsules of what he believed to be the poison. The capsules contained Vitamin C.

The jury returned a guilty verdict after twice listening to secretly recorded conversations in which Chanslor said his wife never would kill herself. He was recorded telling a man he believed to be a poison dealer that, "The bitch is really getting to me."
