Americans in Moscow get

few questions answered

MOSCOW (AP) - U.S. Embassy officials told Americans in Moscow that the KGB is using a potentially cancer-causing tracking substance on embassy personnel, but did not say who had been exposed or how Americans could avoid it.

A Soviet diplomat compared the report to a "cheap detective story."

But three separate briefings at the U.S. ambassador's residence Wednesday left American residents of Moscow with more questions than answers about the man-made compound, NPPD, or nitrophenylpenta-

Officials said the chemical leaves a deposit on people and objects that it touches. They said minute particles have been found, and they sought to reassure the Americans that there was probably no immediate health risk.

They declined to say who had been exposed to the chemical or where it had been detected.

"All I can tell you is there is no doubt that the KGB is using this substance. I can't go beyond that," Charge d'Affaires Richard Combs told one gathering of businessmen and journalists.

Issuance of power bonds approved

The issuance of $26.6 million in additional bonds for the construction of the Hereford Partnership Power project was approved Tuesday by the Deaf Smith County Industrial Development Corporation.

The project was split into two issues last year, with $71.4 million being placed in 1984, for a total project cost of $98 million. The action will be presented to Deaf Smith Commissioners Monday, since the county is the sponsoring governmental entity.

Bob Gentry, president of the industrial group, said the board also discussed the adoption of some new procedures in order to comply with new rules and regulations, and decided to call for an election of new officers when the bond issue is finaliz-

NPPD is a mutogen, a substance that causes cell mutations and can cause cancer, Combs said. He said only extensive testing could tell whether there was a hazard to those exposed to it.

Dr. Charles Brodine of the State Department's Office of Medical Services said little is known about the compound. The National Institute of Health and the Environmental Protection Agency have set up a task force that will come to Moscow in about 10 days to begin an investigation, he said.

Inflation rate gives some policy leeway

WASHINGTON (AP) - While economists keep a wary eye on an economy that some fear could slip into recession, a persistently moderate inflation rate offers policy-makers a measure of leeway in dealing with the stunted growth pattern that has marked the first half of 1965.

The Labor Department was releasing its Consumer Price Index for July today with most analysts predicting another in a long line of modest reases - in line with the 0.2 percent increases of May and June, or perhaps even lower.

On Wednesday, the Commerce Department reported that the economy grew at only 2 percent during the second quarter, while at the same time, members of the Federal Reserve Board's Open Market Committee were gathering to decide what to do about monetary policy in the weeks ahead.

Most analysts believe the Fed group struck a neutral pose neither easing credit nor tightening it pending further data on just how much amenia there is in the economy.

Conventional theory holds that the Fed must walk a narrow path from which too much deviation toward a loose money policy stimulates economic growth at the risk of also letting the inflation genie out of the August is the time when many employers start looking forward to family vacations-to end.

Margaret Bell, retired school teacher, has joined our news staff at The Brand on a temporary basis. The longtime English teacher worked briefly for the newspaper when she first came to Hereford a number of years ago. She also studied journalism in college and we appreciate her giving us a helping hand.

Sunday's issue of The Brand will include our annual Back-to-School section. We think you'll find the articles informative and interesting, and local merchants will be offering some great back-to-school buys!

The puzzle, in the form of a poem, we printed in Wednesday's paper drew more response than expected. The Brand was about inundated with

The best way to answer the puzzle is provided by the following poem, written by Elsie Kasten of Lit-swept through the plane. Survivors reported mass panic in the crowded aisle of the twin-jet aircraft as passengers tried to escape down emergency chutes when the burning plane came to a stop at the edge of the runway at Manchester Airport in northwest England.

MANCHESTER, England (AP) - 54 people perished when flames

The airport manager, who estimated the plane was racing down the runway at 100 mph, said the jet was saturated with fuel after the engine explosion and became "a towering inferno."

All 83 survivors were hurt, hospital authorities said, but only 15 were burned. Many suffered only from shock, they said.

"We were about two-thirds of the way on takeoff and there was a loud bang that sounded like an engine bang," passenger David Ashworth said. "I looked out to the left, where the sound had come from, and the left engine and wing were already on fire when we came to a stop.

"By the time the doors were open and the first people were out in the (emergency exit) chute, the fire was already inside the cabin, and the rear of the plane was completely full of smoke," he told reporters at the hospital.

Overtime suit called publicity stunt

AUSTIN (AP) - The top official of the Texas Public Employees Association says another group's lawsuit to collect overtime for state prison guards is a publicity stunt to gain attention and new Gary Hughes, TPEA executive director, said Wednesday that if the rival Texas State Employees Union had waited, the state prison system would have paid the overtime without having to go to court.

Now, according to Hughes, there is no telling when Texas Department of Corrections employees will get millions of dollars in over-time. He also told a news conference that the TSEU should withdraw the suit, which was filed in Houston federal court.

But Bill Adler, TSEU's communications director, said he didn't think the union would be willing to do that and added that "I'm not sure there's much in the way of validity" to Hughes' charge that the suit is a publicity stunt.

He acknowledged, however, that "the publicity that has been generated as a result (of the lawsuit) has been good. We've gotten a lot of inquiries from prison guards all over the state wanting to know how they can qualify for overtime, what they need to do."

On Feb. 19, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that states must pay overtime under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Hughes said the TDC was preparing to distribute checks with overtime pay to some 8,000 employees when the union filed suit. The Aug. 1 suit claimed the TDC owed prison employees millions of dollars more than it intended to pay them.

A TDC spokesman said the TDC figured it owed about $4 million in overtime through June, starting with the date of the Supreme Court

Halfway house to open over protests

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) - Despite residents' protests about converting a halfway house into a home for mentally retarded adults, six retarded individuals will be moving in next month, officials say.

About 30 neighborhood residents crowded into a Lufkin Planning and Zoning Commission meeting earlier this year to protest rezoning of the residence. The commission unanimously denied the re-

But with the help of a new state law, the house is being prepared for the six to move in Sept. 1. Senate Bill 940 overrides zoning laws in Lufkin and all other Texas cities, allowing such facilities no matter what objections are raised by neighbors. And that has some Lufkin residents outraged.

"It was like they couldn't play by the rules, so they changed the rules and are forcing this down our throat," said Phil Medford, who lives nearby.

"We've got rules, regulations and guidelines that everybody else in Lufkin has to abide by, but now this Senate bill has given them authority to act outside our current zoning laws," he said. "That's what's so upsetting is the way they did it after we had gone through all the proper channels."

Another resident shared Medford's dissatisfaction.

"It's very hard for me to understand why someone would come into a neighborhood a second time after being soundly defeated the first time, and try to force this thing on us," said local resident Bob Dunkin, who lives next door to what is now the halfway house.

When the first reading of the zone change came up eight months ago, not one family in the entire area wanted the mentally retarded halfway house. Now we look up one day and here they are moving

Mattox looks for on child support

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General Jim Mattox wants to extend his child support collection efforts across state lines. Satisfied with the success of his "most wanted list" program for tracking delinquent child support payments within Texas, Mattox said Wednesday he wants to improve interstate efforts.

"We're hoping that Texas and these other states will be better able to deal with these difficult interstate cases with better coordination," Mattox said at a Capitol news conference.

He told of an Austin woman who has sought to collect $34,000 in overdue child support from her ex-husband in New York. It took a year to locate the delinquent ex-husband. Then he hired a New York City lawyer who has managed to win 21 reschedulings of a family court hearing in New York.

That lawyer has written a magazine article on child support, ending it with a call for men to fight what he called "the subtle destruction of their manhood by the unholy alliance of liberated women, their leaders and the courts," according to Mattox.

The attorney general said Texas and several other states will try to trade information on delinquent child support payments.

The "most wanted program" recently initiated by Mattox features lists - published in newspaper ads - of Texas fathers who are significantly behind in child support payments. It has brought in thousands of dollars, said Mattox.

"People are coming forward voluntarily to catch up on their child support payments because they don't want to see their names in the newspaper," he said.

Fat man sets wourld record by losing

LONDON (AP) - Roley McIntyre was once so fat that he drove from the back seat of his specially built car and slept on a bed reinforced with timber beams. Women ignored him.

At 5-feet-10-inches tall, he had a 6-feet-6-inch waist and once got stuck in a turnstile at a soccer match. Stewards had to demolish the machine to set him free. The boom lowered when his doctor warned the 33-year-old that his weight would kill him in five years and his boss ordered him to do something about his health.

Now, 18 months later and 389 pounds lighter, the man they used to call "Roley Poly" has won a wife, a world listing in the Guinness Book of Records, the title "Slimmer of the Year."

The civil servant from Kesh in Northern Ireland weighed in at 578 pounds a year and a half ago before being put on a diet of salad, fruit and meat. He also stopped drinking beer.

At the height of his weight problem, McIntyre said a typical lunch included a half a pound of bacon, three or four eggs, nine or 10 potatoes and a lot of fried vegetables.

"For afters I might have a rice pudding," he said. He also ate a heavy bacon-and-egg breakfast, a big evening meal of meat pie, potatoes and pudding and a supper of sandwiches and

On Wednesday, in a ceremony at London's swank Savoy Hotel, McIntyre weighed in at 189 pounds and was awarded the title of "Slimmer of the Year" by Britain's Slimming magazine which described him as its "most remarkable success story ever."

Official deplores condition of Trinity

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) - A federal wildlife official says the condition of parts of the Trinity River is "disgraceful" and that the river and wildlife should be saved.

Dr. Roy Irwin, a research contaminant specialist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, took a 40-day tour along the river this week and said the condition of the Trinity's east fork was especially bad.

what I was going to see ... it was amazing," he said.

Water at the East Fork runs as a deep, thick sludge that is nearly black in color with no fish, Irwin told the Palestine Herald-Press

During his trip, Irwin said he found a raw sewage discharge in downtown Dallas and a chemical leak between Fort Worth and Arlington that "totally obliterated" wildlife.

Oxygen in the east fork section was measured at below 1 milligram per liter, Irwin said. Biologists say fish can't survive in waters below the 2 milligram level.

"It's black. It's a shame," said Irwin, who heads a federal probe into pollution problems along the Trinity

Despite its problems, Irwin said the river is "worth saving."

The river "has got a lot of potential. It's coming back. The river is downright beautiful in some places,"

The cleanest parts are at Benbrook Lake, Mustang Creek and the area near Palestine, he said.

"It's a pretty river down here, and it's just evident of the potential the river can have," said Irwin, adding that he found many species of fish in the Palestine area that he didn't find further north.

The study began in Fort Worth July 15 and drew near an end Monday as Irwin was near Palestine to take fish samples from the river. Fish have been taken at 23 sites - from Benbrook Lake, southwest of Fort Worth on the river's West Fork, to Palestine.

Fish collected will be tested for contaminants, including signs of lead, mercury, pesticides and petroleum, Irwin said.

Although test results won't be final for "several weeks," Irwin said he observed several pollution problems along the river, including a major chemical leak and raw sewage discharge.

On Aug. 7, Irwin's boat pulled into Village Creek on the border of Fort Worth and Arlington.

The area "smelled like we were floating in Chlorox," he said, adding that there was "not a living thing in the water. It looked like what you'd expect to see at a chemical waste dump."

Included in the mess was a dead skunk, water snake and snapping

"It takes a lot to kill one of those turtles," Irwin said.

Officials at the Village Creek Sewage Treatment Plant were "completely unaware" of a chlorine leak into the creek, said Ron Carlson, an engineer at the plant.

About a week later, on Aug. 15, Irwin said he and EPA official David Neleigh sighted a discharge of raw sewage into the Trinity River in downtown Dallas.

The waste flowed into the river at a rate of 2 to 3 cubic feet per second, Irwin said. That would be between 1.29 million and 1.93 million gallons of raw sewage a day.

"We weren't looking for anything like that," he said. "We just happened to come by it. We could smell the sewage as we approached the pipe."

Dennis Allen, assistant director of Dallas Water Utilities, confirmed the raw sewage discharge. He said a valve on a sewage pipe accidently opened, sending untreated waste into the river that should have been sent to Dallas' Central Wastewater Treatment Plant.

The valve was closed on Aug. 14, so the discharge lasted no more than two days, he said. Hereford police first filed a report on Loeffler also promised to replace politics with statesmanship in the governor's office.

"The politicizing of every issue, of every board and commission, will end when I become governor," the congressman said.

"Playing politics instead of showing the commitment and courage to solve the problems that face our state is a blatant abuse of the governor's power," he said.

Loeffler said that he is concerned that Texas could end up like New York, with high taxes, runaway state spending, chronic crime, and uncontrollable urban congestion. It will take creative vision and leadership to avoid those problems, he said.

Loeffler, flanked by his wife Kathy and two sons, was scheduled to make a similar speech in Austin, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth later today. He also scheduled stops in several other cities through the weekend.

The medical criminals are diseases, and the detectives who track each disease to learn how it spreads and who it may hurt are epidemiologists at the Texas Department of Health.

Their job is to map the big picture of disease in Texas and to know what's hot and what's not.

The mission, Dr. Charles E. Alexander, the state epidemiologist, explains, is to draw a map for the Texas doctors who take care of patients. "We need to know what to let them expect they'll run into when they see patients," he said.

That disease map is important because diseases aren't as changeable as the weather, nor as constant as death and taxes.

Gonorrhea, a venereal disease known for centuries, is a good example of how a disease can change, he said. The antibiotic penicillin has been used to treat gonorrhea since World War II, but different drugs must be used in some patients today because the organism causing gonorrhea is resistant to penicillin.

TDH epidemiologists tracked that drug resistance and kept Texas doctors advised on treating gonorrhea.

But the epidemiologists' work has gotten tougher in recent years because they're also investigating chronic and environmental diseases. Infectious and communicable diseases can be difficult to track, but frequently leave a hotter, more obvious trail of clues than do diseases like cancer.

The origins of cancer, which TDH has been tracking through a state wide registry, and other chronic diseases often are difficult to pinpoint. Such diseases require epidemiological bloodhounds because they may take years to develop and involve multiple risk factors, Alexander said.

Chronic disorders get an increasing amount of attention from THD epidemiologists because they are the 1985 killers. Heart disease is the No. 1 cause of death in both Texas and the United States; cancer is No. 2. In-

New

Sherlock Holmes and a breed of juries are the leading cause of death for Texans who are aged one to 45

Early in this century, the infectious diseases such as tuberculosis were the major causes of mortality.

Chronic diseases are increasingly important because the numbers of elderly persons are increasing; but communicable diseases haven't surrendered to medicine. New diseases, such as acquired immune deficiency syndrome and toxic shock syndrome, have appeared in the last few years. Old enemies such as syphilis, currently a major problem in infants who acquire it from their pregnant mothers, can resurface.

An infant can develop syphilis in the womb if the disease organism crosses the placenta, the organ that supplies nutrients and oxygen.

Because Texas is a border state, TDH epidemiologists must work closely with Mexican health officials because bacteria and viruses don't use passports.

Smoking is reason to worry daughter-in-law both smoke and have two small children. It sickens me to see them cuddling the baby with a cigarette dangling from their hands; I can't believe the smoke is good for a child. What do you think?

DEAR READER smoke is harmful to children. Also, parental smoking serves as a bad example to children; they may be likely to smoke in imitation of their parents when they are older. I think it likely that within the next few years, tobacco products will be universally viewed as harmful. Perhaps in the glorious future, smokers will be seen as pariahs, singular individuals who not only affect their own health but the well-being of those around them, Until we reach this new world, however, we all experience passive smoking - unwantingly participating in the cigarette smoked by someone else. I believe your son and daughterin-law could exercise considerate adult behavior by confining their cigarette smoking to areas where the children will not have to share the habit. Of course, you have no say in the matter; that has to be their decision. I would suggest that smoking around young children is a subtle form of child abuse.

Machine pulverizes kidney stones

DALLAS (AP) - Removal of kidney stones usually means several days in the hospital and a painful incision.

But a new treatment that immerses a patient in water and then disintergrates his kidney stones with shock waves could reduce the pain, time spent in the hospital and even the cost of curing the health problem.

The new treatment uses a piece of equipment called a kidney lithotripter, which has been installed in the newly opened Litho-Center Southwest at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, one of two in a five-state

"In this age of miracle medicine, it constitutes a miracle," Dr. James Cochran, center director, told the Dallas Times Herald. "The condition that usually requires at least a week in the hospital and a painful incision now can be treated with an overnight stay."

The average cost of $9,000 to $12,000 for such a stay will also be cut to between $6,500 and $8,500 with the new treatment, Cochran said.

Each year about a half million people in the United States are diagnosed with kidney stones, mineral deposits which form in the kidney and often block the narrow ducts leading to the bladder.

Although some stones pass through the urinary tract, as many as 80 percent of patients must have surgery,

Cochran said. The kidney lithotripter, approved by the Food and Drug Administration late last year, has already successfully treated 14 patients at the Dallas center, he said. The $2.2 million project is a joint venture of the hospital, a group of physicians and Uro-Tech Management Corp. of Houston, officials said. The machine focuses shock waves on the stones, causing them to crumble into small particles that can be assed through the urine.

The patient is placed under general anesthesia, then positioned on a reclining seat and lowered into a large tub of water. The kidney stones are located with an X-ray unit, and the patient is positioned over a reflector at the bottom of the tub.

"The shock wave puliverizes and crushes the stones by setting up an internal vibration," Cochran said. "The stones turn to sand, which can be passed through the urinary tract with minimal discomfort."

Doctors say the treatment is effective in about 80 percent of the cases. Patients must be referred by their physicians.

Morristown, N.J.-based Information Systems unit, announced the retrenchment to employee groups in a nationwide telephone call Wednesday and said market conditions could require additional cuts.

AT&T said it hoped to save hundreds of millions of dollars each year by eliminating approximately 24,000 jobs at the communications products unit to make the highly competitive business more profitable.

"Sales of new products at Information Systems are up across all of the competitive markets we serve," Allen said. "Now we must strengthen our ongoing efforts to improve profitability."

The Communications Workers of America, which represents about 190,000 of AT&T's 360,000 employees, said in Washington that it was outraged. The union's executive board demanded negotiations on transfers of employees whose jobs are in jeopardy, pensions and ex-

They're cutting people for profits short-term profits," said Morton Bahr, the union's president. 'They're laying off their skilled craft workers, who are their greatest resource, and in effect handing skilled workers to their competitors."

Brian Fernandez, an analyst for Nomura Securities in New York, said, "It's sad to see the leading technology company laying off people. These are trained people. It's not what the Japanese do.

Bahr complained that managers were not being asked to sacrifice as much as the company's workers.

About 30 percent of the positions being eliminated are in management, AT&T said.

"By its recent action, AT&T is creating an almost insurmountable obstacle to successful negotiations" on a contract next year, Bahr said.

He said the union would stage a na-

AT&T is establishing a factory in Singapore to make residential telephones that had been produced in Shreveport, La.

AT&T's streamlining had been expected in light of intense competition in the business communications field and followed rumors of major cutbacks that had circulated in financial markets and trade publications.

On Wall Street, AT&T stock rose 50 cents Wednesday to close at $21.871/2 a share in active trading following the announcement.

AT&T said about 7,400 of the job cuts were under way and that most would be completed this year.

It said the 24,000 employees affected would either be offered a transfer to any available post in AT&T or financial incentives, including improved pension plans, to leave the company. Layoffs would account for the remaining cuts, but AT&T said it was impossible to estimate how many of the jobs would be eliminated first through attrition.

Commission investigates state district judge

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The criminal record, it also helps law enterests Commission on Judicial Conforcement," Giblin said. duct is investigating a state district judge's "creative sentencing" that enabled a convicted felon to walk away from his prison sentence.

Criminal District Court Judge Leonard Giblin of Beaumont confirmed he is under investigation by the commission, which handles citizens' complaints against Texas

The Commission is investigating whether Giblin acted properly in sentencing John Freeman to prison and allowing his records to show he had served his term, although Freeman never spent a day behind

Freeman, 40, and his wife, Deborah, 36, of Orange were arrested Feb. 4, 1983 and charged with aggravated possession of a controlled substance.

The couple's arrest followed a police raid of a Beaumont residence in which about 300 pounds of marijuana were seized. The home was used as a temporary storage place for the marijuana, investigators said.

Mrs. Freeman was already serving a five-year probated sentence for a previous drug conviction when she was arrested in 1983.

In July 1983, Giblin revoked Mrs. Freeman's probabtion for violating a 9 p.m. curfew provision and ordered her to serve a 12-year prison term. But Giblin ordered Mrs. Freeman freed five months later.

Court records show John Freeman later pleaded guilty to a lesser charge possession of marijuana in the 1983 case. Giblin sentenced him on Sept. 4, 1984, to five years in

While Freeman's records show he served time in prison, he actually never spent a day behind bars, the Beaumont Enterprise reported.

Records indicate Freeman's prison term began Sept. 4, 1979, four years before the crime occurred and five years before Giblin actually sentenced him.

Mrs. Freeman also pleaded guilty to a reduced charge, and Giblin sentenced her to serve a five-year prison term. Giblin then back-dated the start of her incarceration to show she had already served the time.

But Giblin said such back-dating sentences is not unusual in Jefferson forcement," Giblin said.

"Enhancing a criminal record" means adding another conviction to a defendant's record.

Authorities told the Enterprise that evidence linking the Freemans to the 300-pound marijuana haul was weak. Neither of the Freemans was inside the home when police conducted the raid.

Investigators say they discovered Freeman's nickname, "Legs," in an informal accounting ledger found with the marijuana at the house. The ledger, authorities say, showed how the illegal weed was to be distributed.

Investigators said that when Mrs. Freeman violated her probation and went back to prison, her husband became distraught and offered to plead guilty to the 1983 drug charge on the condition that authorities set his wife free and not send him to Giblin said the plea bargain arrangement was approved by Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath.

"If the district attorney had objected, I wouldn't have allowed the deal," he said.

McGrath said he personally did not become aware of the Freeman deal until after it was made, but that a prosecutor in his office could have approved the deal.

'And I would stand behind that," McGrath said. "But I wasn't the one who approved it."

Giblin said that while he could have chosen other options in the Freeman case, the felony conviction and the unserved prison sentence "enhanced" dramatically Freeman's record.

Lum Hawthorn of Beaumont, said judge to use such a plea bargain.

the conviction cost Freeman many of Gist used the same sentencing the conviction cost Freeman many of his civil rights, including the right to vote and the right to bear arms. A probationary sentence would not have had the same impact, he said.

Hawthorn said that had Freeman received probation, the conviction could have been lifted from his record once he successfully completed the probation program. But because his record reflects a felony conviction and a served prison sentence, he would face much stiffer penalties if he is ever again charged with a felony, the attorney said.

Giblin said he did not develop the sentencing process, which attorneys call "creative sentencing." He got the idea from his colleague, State District Judge Larry Gist.

Gist said he is not sure when the use of creative sentencing began and However, Freeman's attorney, conceded he may have been the first found guilty of capital murder in the shooting death of a Port Arthur policeman.

Gist sentenced Ms. Gordon to a life term in prison in March 1977, but an appellate court reversed the jury's verdict in November 1980.

"The district attorney wasn't certain the state could get a conviction in a new trial," said Hawthorn, who also represented Ms. Gordon. "And, frankly, I wasn't convinced that I could get an acquittal. So, we compromised."

Hawthorn said that Ms. Gordon pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of murder and, in return, Gist sentenced her to 30 years and backed-dated the sentence to reflect her immediate eligibility for parole.

Hawthorn said.

Dallas County Court-at-Law Judge B.F. Coker, a member of the state Commission on Sentencing Practices and Procedures, said he knows of no other judge in the state that has used the creative sentencing Gist and Giblin employed.

Coker called the technique "a pret-

Bid sale slated on veterans' tracts of state land included in a September high bid sale of forfeited veterans tracts is now available, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced today.

Located in 37 different Texas counties across the state, the tracts range in size from 10 acres in Montgomery and San Jacinto County to a 61 acre tract in Panola County.

A public reading of bids submitted to the Veterans Land Board will be held on September 25, 1985 at 9 a.m. in Room 118 of the Stephen F. Austin Bldg. at 1700 N. Congress in Austin.

Mauro, who serves as Chairman of the Veterans Land Board, said, "I want to urge all Texans that have been looking for good land to take advantage of this unusual high-bid sale. Everybody has an equal shot at winning under this arrangement."

The tracts are divided into two lots with 40 tracts in Section I restricted to bidding by Texas Veterans.

Farm workers average $4.24 this summer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's hired farm labor force received an average of $4.24 per hour this summer, an 8-cent increase from a year ago, according to a new report by the Agriculture Department.

The average wage rate included workers who were paid on an hourly basis, on a piece-rate scale and other methods of payment during a survey period, July 7-13.

Workers who were paid by the hour received an average of $4.18 per hour, compared with $4.12 a year earlier. Piece-rate workers, who were paid for the amount of work performed, received an equivalent of $4.73 per hour, compared to the yearearlier average of $4.60.

Swift Independent reports big loss

CHICAGO - Swift Independent Corporation reported a $10,264,000 third quarter net loss due largely to charges associated with the previously announced closing of the Hereford beef plant, downward inventory adjustments, and a number of charges against earnings, it was announced today by John A. Copeland, chairman and chief executive officer.

In the third quarter, ended July 27, the company's loss was equal to $2.06 a share, on revenues of $700,904,000, compared with a loss of $550,000, or 11 cents a share, on revenues of $749,060,000 in the third quarter of fiscal 1984.

Through the first nine months of fiscal 1985, Swift Independent reported a loss of $8,872,000, equal to $1.78 a share, on revenues of $2,220,975,000, compared with net earnings of $7,587,000, equal to $1.52 a share, on revenues of $2,176,446,000 in the similar year-ago period.

"Despite this loss," Mr. Copeland said, "I anticipate return to profitability for Swift Independent during the fourth quarter."

He added, however, that despite anticipated fourth quarter gains, "it is unlikely that we will be able to report a profit for fiscal 1985."

Mr. Copeland said the total pre-tax loss in the quarter was $15,389,000, with nearly $8,000,000 of this attributed to realignment of operations, principally the closing of the Hereford plant in June.

In addition, a $7,441,000 pre-tax loss from operations included approximately $4,000,000 for increased workers' compensation costs, hospital and medical expense charges, closing costs for several sales units, and charges associated with a new labor contract at a San Antonio, Texas, pork plant.

Excluding these items, Mr. Copeland said, the pre-tax loss from actual company operations in the third quarter was approximately $3,000,000, with almost $1,300,000 of this cuased by the inventory adjustments resulting from lower livestock and fresh meat prices.

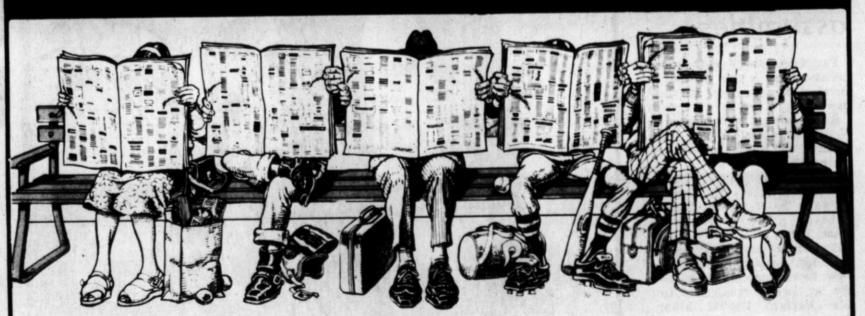

In addition to closing Hereford, Swift Independent closed a Glenwood, Iowa, pork plant on Aug. 2, and will close a pork plant at Sioux City, Iowa, on Sept. 1. Closing costs on the pork plants were covered by previously established reserves.

Rangers leave Red Sox fighting mad

AP Sports Writer

Texas Rangers have the slump-ridden Boston Red Sox fighting mad — at each ther.

Tempers exploded in the Boston clubhouse Wednesday night after the Rangers extended the Red Sox' losing streak to six games with a 5-3 vic-

National League castoffs Jeff Russell and Greg Harris combined for the Texas triumph, helped by four double plays, over Boston righthander Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd.

The 145-pound Boyd, who engaged in a shoving match with veteran Rick Miller after a 1-0 loss at Texas in May, was upset after a 10-hit, routegoing performance.

Winless since July 14 in a slump that has dropped his record to 11-11, Boyd complained loudly in the clubhouse that the Red Sox "don't get me any runs."

Veteran slugger Jim Rice, recognized as one of the strongest men in baseball, tried to quiet Boyd. "I respect you and I expect you to respect me," Rice said. When Boyd continued, Rice gave him a shove. Boyd tried to retaliate, but was restrained and ordered into Manager John McNamara's office. "I told him to cool down, to go home and I'd talk to him tomorrow," McNamara said. "Emotions are running high and there's a lot of frustration.' "It was a bad thing," said Rice, named the team captain by McNamara earlier this year. "You can't have that going on in the clubhouse. I don't want to even talk about it."

Russell, who had lost his first three starts since being acquired from the Cincinnati system and called up from the minors on Aug. 7, allowed seven hits and three runs before giving way to Harris with one out in the sixth inning.

Harris dazzled the Red Sox for the third time this season in protecting Russell's first American League victory. The 29-year-old right-hander purchased from San Diego last February allowed just one hit, struck out four and walked two in earning his eighth save, including two against Boston.

'Harris came in and got double play after double play," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said.

Actually, Harris got the Red Sox to ground into three double plays in 3 1-3 innings. Russell was helped by

The Red Sox lead the league in hitting with a .279 average. They also lead the league in grounding into double plays with 130, with a shot at their major league record of 171 set in 1982 and equalled by them in 1983. Ironically, Boston also leads the AL with 897 runners left on base.

Boyd retired the first two batters he faced. Then, Pete O'Brien singled and Cliff Johnson walked. Gary Ward followed with a three-run homer, his 10th, into the screen in left-center.

The Rangers picked up an unearned run on a two-out error by shortstop Jackie Gutierrez in the third. They added an insurance run on a two-out infield hit by Glenn Brummer in the ninth.

Wade Boggs, the AL batting leader with a .357 average, hit his seventh homer, a career high, in the first and had a single wasted in the fifth before he flied out to the bullpen wall in the

The Red Sox scored two runs on singles by Rice and Rich Gedman, a sacrifice fly by Steve Lyons and the second of two doubles by Mike Easler. Then Harris took over.

In his three relief jobs against Boston this year, Harris has allowed one hit, walked two and struck out seven in 7 23 innings.

Yankees 13, Angels 10

If judging in pennant races had a style category, the New York Yankees would have lost ground Wednesday night. Instead, they're closer to the Toronto Blue Jays than they have been since July 22.

The second-place Yankees beat the California Angels 13-10 Wednesday in a game that featured eight errors, nine unearned runs, and a bloop single that became, effectively, a two-run homer with the help of two

"I guess you could call this a laugher," said Yankee Manager Billy Martin.

Martin's club won its seventh straight game and 14th of 15 while the Blue Jays were losing to the Cleveland Indians 5-2. New York trails Toronto by only three games in the American League East after being behind by seven games just a week ago.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 2

Neal Heaton's six-hitter and a home run and two RBIs from Joe Carter allowed Cleveland to survive back-to-back home runs by Toronto's Jesse Barfield and Cecil Fielder in the fifth inning.

Heaton, 7-13, pitched his fourth complete game, walked four and struck out six. Doyle Alexander, 12-8, took the loss.

Orioles 11, Mariners 8

A 10-run third inning, highlighted by Eddie Murray's two-run double and Lee Lacy's two-run single, tied the AL's season high. Fifteen Baltimore batters rallied off three Seattle pitchers on five walks, four singles, a pair of doubles and a tworun throwing error.

Dennis Martinez, 10-7, pitched 5 2-3 innings for the victory. Seattle starter Jim Beattie, 5-6, walked the first three batters in the third inning and got the loss.

Royals 2, White Sox 1 Charlie Leibrandt and Dan Quisenberry combined on a six-hitter and George Brett's 17th homer broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning. Leibrandt, 12-6, reached a new career high for victories in a season.

The Royals had only five hits off Chicago's Floyd Bannister and Bob James. Bannister, 5-11, has lost six straight decisions and has not won since June 10.

Dallas Mavericks sign Wennington to contact

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks have agreed on a fouryear contract with Bill Wennington, a 7-foot, 240-pound center from St. John's who was one of three players the team chose in the first round of this year's National Basketball Association college draft.

General Manager Norm Sonju said the formal signing of the contract will be delayed until next month because of Wennington's scheduled marriage on Friday.

Sonju would not disclose the contract terms, but said the pact is approximately the same as Indiana 7-footer Uwe Blab signed last month. The Dallas Morning News said it is believed each will make about $250,000 the first two years. Wennington played for the 1984 lead St. John's to the NCAA Final player's rights.

The Mavericks chose Wennington and Blab back-to-back with the 16th and 17th picks in the NBA draft after taking Washington forward Detlef Schlempf No. 8. The Mavericks still have not signed Schlempf.

'We've had one meeting in Seattle. and we'll probably meet again in Dallas soon. We want to be rolling by early September," Sonju said.

Mark Acres of Oral Roberts, a 6-10 power forward the Mavericks drafted in the second round, is considering playing in Europe instead of the NBA this fall, Sonju said.

"I've heard he is in Europe, and that may not be a bad thing for him to do. But we will tender him a contract by Sept. 5," Sonju added. NBA rules require a team to submit a con-Canadian Olympic team and helped tract by then if it intends to retain a

When the St. Louis Cardinals took a 7-4 lead in the ninth inning against Houston Wednesday night, Cards Manager Whitey Herzog knew the odds had tilted strongly in his team's favor.

"We haven't lost a lead in the ninth inning all season," Herzog said.

The Cardinals did hold on to beat the Astros 7-4, but they weren't making much progress until Herzog started to do some patch work on his

With the score knotted at 4-4 in the eighth inning and the Astros challenging, Herzog sent relief pitcher Jeff Lahti into the game to brunt an Astros rally.

In the ninth, he sent Darrell Porter up to pinchhit for catcher Tom Nieto and the result was a three-run home

"When I came in, I knew I had to do my job right now,' Lahti said. "This was a big game for us because it stopped a three-game losing streak and we need all the wins we can get."

Lockhart threatens to leave Cowboys

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) -Dallas Cowboys middle linebacker Eugene Lockhart has threatened to leave the team, perhaps as early as this weekend, if the club refuses to renegotiate his contract to his liking.

Lockhart, a sixth-round draft choice last year, said he is disturbed that he is scheduled to earn $79,000 this season, while his backup, Steve DeOssie, will make $140,000.

He's also disturbed that the Cowboys gave former USFL running back Todd Fowler a $125,000 signing bonus and agreed to pay him $125,000 if he makes the team this year.

"They're giving more money to these unproven USFL guys than to me, and I am the starting middle linebacker," Lockhart said.

The club is not obligated to renegotiate Lockhart's contract since he has two years remaining on his original deal signed last year, but the Cowboys' policy is to renegotiate contracts of second-year players who have made the starting lineup.

The Cowboys have offered Lockhart a three-year contract of $110,000, $130,000 and $150,000, but he said he wants another $40,000 a year.

Lahti struck out three of the five men he faced in the game.

Porter drove a high pitch by Houston reliever Dave Smith over the rightfield fence after pinchhitter Andy Van Slyke and Ozzie Smith had reached base on singles.

"September is when the excitement really starts," Porter said.

'You never know what will happen." The Cardinals took a 4-0 lead in the first inning off starter Bob Knepper on an error by second baseman Bill Doran, a double by Jack Clark and Brian Harper's two-run single.

Houston got two runs in the first on a triple by Denny Walling and a sacrifice fly by Jose Cruz. They added another run in the seventh on pinchhitter Phil Garner's single and tied it in the eighth on Mark Bailey's

"I'm all out of sync," said Smith, 6-5, who has been the Astros' top reliever most of the season. "I've got to get it turned around quickly."

Knepper survived the shakey start but said he never felt quite into the

Giants 3, Mets 2 Dave LaPoint admits that the first losing record in his major-league career was starting to make him think like a loser.

When pinch-hitter Howard Johnson's homer in the bottom of the eighth inning gave the National League West-leading New York Mets a 2-1 lead, LaPoint was almost ready to concede that his record was going to fall to 5-12 for the season.

"Here we go again," LaPoint recalled thinking after giving up Johnson's homer. But some of the competitiveness that made him a key factor in St. Louis' world championship season in 1982 still shone

"I told myself to make some good pitches and get out of the inning and maybe something would happen," he

In the ninth, something good happened to LaPoint. Bob Brenly, an All-Star catcher in 1984, hit a two-run homer and Scott Garrelts stopped the Mets in the ninth for his 10th save, giving the Giants a 3-2 victory and cutting New York's lead to onehalf game over St. Louis, which beat Houston 7-4.

Reds 8, Pirates 5

Nick Esasky hit a two-run homer and Pete Rose edged closer to Ty Cobb's hit record with a single and added two RBIs for Cincinnati against Pittsburgh, which failed for the ninth time this season to extend a two-game winning streak.

Rose, who was 1-for-6 and needs 14 hits to break Cobb's career record of 4,191, tied the score 1-1 in the third with an RBI groundout and made it 4-1 in the fourth with a single. Esasky's homer, his 14th of the season, gave the Reds a 3-1 edge.

"I'm playing every day now, so I have a chance to get something going and keep it going," said Esasky, who has played regularly in left field since Cincinnati acquired Buddy Bell last month.

Hornung files $3 million suit against NCAA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Paul Hornung is seeking $3 million from the NCAA because it refused to allow the former football great to be a commentator for college games in 1982 and 1983.

Hornung filed the lawsuit against the NCAA three years ago. The trial began Tuesday in Jefferson Circuit Court and is expected to last a week.

Hornung claims his career was damaged and the NCAA defamed him by not allowing him to work as a color analyst for Atlanta cable station WTBS.

An NCAA official told the station that the 1956 Heisman Trophy winner was rejected because he "does not personify college football" and that "he had at least one undesirable public situation while a professional player," referring to Hornung's oneyear suspension from the National Football League's Green Bay Packers in 1963 because he had been placing bets on his team to win.

eight-game lead in the West primarily with strong pitching, bombed Philadelphia with a near-record 22 hits, including five by Candy Maldonado and four each by Mike Marshall and Bob Bailor.

It was the most hits by the Dodgers since they had 22 against the Phillies on July 24, 1979. Their all-time high is 24 against Chicago on Aug. 20, 1974.

Marshall had a grand-slam homer in the first inning and added an RBI groundout in the second to make the score 7-0. It was the second time this season that Marshall hit a grand slam after the other team pitched around sluggers Pedro Guerrero and Greg Brock.

"That's a risk that sometimes works and sometimes doesn't," said Marshall. "But I guess I'd rather pitch to me too. You have to make em respect you, so next time they'll think before pitching around Pete."

Maldonado, batting .188 going into the game, had a homer after Marshall's grand slam in the first.

Guerrero added his 29th homer for the Dodgers, and Fernando Valenzuela, 15-8, won his eighth straight decision despite giving up three-run homers to Von Hayes and Derrel Thomas.

Chris Speier's two-run homer broke a 5-5 tie against Atlanta in the eighth inning and Ryne Sandberg established a Cubs standard for combined speed and power with two homers and six RBIs.

Sandberg's three-run homer gave the Cubs a 3-1 lead in the third inning, he singled to tie it 5-5 in the seventh and added a homer in the ninth, giving him 20 homers this season and providing Chicago a four-run

MOSCOW (AP) - An elderly woman sat on an overturned orange crate with a hand-scrawled sign pinned to the front of her faded cotton dress: "Three rooms, telephone, near Metro."

Engrossed in conversation beside her were two other pensioners, also serving as human signposts while their adult children were working: "Three rooms, city center or suburbs.""Two one-room apartments, in exchange for two-room apartment."

On Bathhouse Lane, outside the city office for apartment exchanges, dissatisfaction with the capital's housing situation is displayed in abundance.

Housing is inexpensive, by law no more than 2 percent of a worker's salary. But a chronic shortage in Moscow and an awkward building and distribution system have spawned an elaborate swapping network and a black market for those with extra space to sell.

Each year the city government approves nearly 100,000 apartment exchanges. But Boris Zhukov, head of Moscow's housing distribution department, acknowledged in a recent interview that many more families want to leave unsatisfactory

Some want to move closer to work relatives or public services. Official figures also show that nearly 20 percent of the population still live in undesirable communal apartments.

Other apartment seekers include newlyweds who don't want to live with their parents, and divorcing couples who sometimes have to postpone their separation while they look for an extra apartment.

sustains a black market run by "zhuliki" (Russian for swindlers), who take money from families in return for promises to find a suitable exchange.

The bureau of housing exchanges is supposed to assist Muscovites in swapping apartments and to ensure exchanges are done legally. But with the overwhelming number of swaps sought, much of the activity has moved into the street and courtyard outside the exchange office.

Gentle cat achieves celebrity status

AUSTIN (AP) - Orlando the cat, who once must have wondered where his next meal was coming from, has parlayed his looks and a gentle disposition into celebrity status.

A former stray without identification, the black-and-white cat has become an advertising symbol whose face and form graces the local newspaper, television and T-shirts.

His enthusiastic owners and admirers plan to add a "voice" to Orlando when he does radio, and possibly more television, this fall.

Orlando has a philosophical bent, they say, which might be summed up with this message: "When in doubt, groom."

It's almost an overnight success story, and began when a skinny cat with a round head peered around the corner of a backyard deck and watched four family cats - "Mildred." "Mo," "Yellow" and "Tyrone" bend over their dinner dishes.

The hungry visitor was not encouraged to stay, but did, and insisted on his share of the food and attention, including indoor privileges. He would stand on his back feet and paw the glass doors to the deck until he was admitted. It was an irresistible stunt.

Five cats did seem a bit much, however, and the visitor's lean and hungry frame was so unattractive that he had to submit at first to the name of "Ugo," for ugly. Consequently, when the owner of a women's specialty dress shop, Mary Gayle Stromberger, expressed interest in acquiring a shop cat, the deal was done.

The name Orlando, from Shakespeare's play "As You Like It," was the first step in a new im-

He was ensconced at St. Germain's, and within days had the run of the store. Customers writing checks at the front counter often had to "write-around" Orlando, who liked to recline there. He also picked out a sweater to sleep on, Ms. Stromberger said, and it was viewed as his sweater "until one day a woman came in, grabbed it up, tried it on and bought it."

Orlando made friends on his excurisons into the shopping center, and was often sighted at a delicatessen, a travel agency, watching women having their hair done at Jezebel's and gazing at expensive crystal at Napoleon's antique store.

A woman at the deli treated him to a bowl of tuna juice daily. Orlando packed on so much weight that the woman was urged to stop but later said she didn't have the heart, and it was not until the delicatessen changed hands that Orlando trimmed down to 17 pounds.

Store manager Clara Heironimus took Orlando home on the weekend, and Sunday baths were added to his schedule.

Then in April, with the help of advertising man Larry McGinty, a former speechwriter in Mark White's gubernatorial campaign, Orlando began to develop as a symbol of women's fashion.

McGinty recalled that Ms. Stromberger and co-owner Shelley Dumas said "they had a wonderful cat and wanted something catchy, that they hadn't been able to establish any intrigue in the store."

Sketches of Orlando by artist Cassandra James, the store's name and messages appeared in the newspaper, and were flashed on the screen in TV spots. To wit: "St. Germain invites you to meet Orlando the cat, philosopher of fashion," and "Of life, two things only can I know: I am a cat ... and you really do need that new dress."

"Orlando," said McGinty, "is as eye-catching as a full-page advertisement and is the heart of the cam-

A WHOLE CITY TURNED OUT... AND TURNED ON!

"Brothers! Listen! In this man Jesus, there is forgiveness for your sins! Everyone who trusts in Him is freed from all guilt and declared righteous something the Jewish law could never do.

"Oh, be careful! Don't let the prophets' words apply to you! For they said, 'Look and perish, you despisers of the truth, for I am doing something in your day -- something that you won't believe when you hear it announced."

As the people left the synagogue that day, they asked Paul to return and speak to them again the next week. And many Jews and godly Gentiles who worshiped at the synagogue followed Paul and Barnabas down the street as the two men urged them to accept the mercies God was offering.

The following week almost the entire city turned out to hear them preach the Word of God. But when the lewish leaders saw the crowds, they were jealous, and cursed and argued against whatever Then Paul and Barnabas spoke out boldly and declared. "It is necessary that this Good News from God should be given first to you Jews. But since you have rejected it, and shown yourselves unworthy of eternal life -- well, we will offer it to the Gentiles. For this is as the Lord commanded when He said, 'I have made you a light to the Gentiles, to lead them from the farthest corners of the earth to My Salvation."

When the Gentiles heard this, they were very glad and rejoiced in Paul's message; for as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed. So God's message spread all through that region. Acts 13:38-49
