Farm bill will not be finished by deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration and Congress are eyeball-to-eyeball on whether a new farm bill can be passed by the end of the month. So far nobody's blinking.

Members of the House Agriculture Committee said Wednesday they will be unable to complete work on a new farm bill before current law expires Sept. 30.

Agriculture Secretary John Block said he would not accept a temporary extension of current provisions. Farmers don't deserve procrastination, he said.

If the present four-year law is allowed to lapse without anything to take its place, farm programs would fall back on so-called permanent legislation, dating back in some cases to the 1930s, that would drastically boost some price supports and hike consumer food prices.

The change could have a major impact on milk prices. Current price supports guarantee farmers $11.60 per hundred pounds of milk (nearly 12 gallons), but reverting to old law would send that level soaring to $16.87.

In addition, the underlying law calls for referendums among farmers on whether to greatly increase price supports for wheat, feed grains, rice, cotton and other crops, linking them to the outmoded parity scale based on farmers' buying power in the period 1910 to 1914.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., noted the threat of the old law as the committee resumed work on the farm bill after a month-long August recess, saying "I doubt we'll be in a position to finally pass a bill" by the deadline.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., suggested that Congress might pass a stopgap extension of current farm law for a month or two to prevent the sudden price hikes and the escalation of farm price support costs that would otherwise result.

But Block, at a news conference, said he would oppose such a move.

"We'll be obligated, we have no choice but to conduct a wheat referendum," Block told reporters. "And that milk price going up might be an incentive for the Congress to act on this legislation."

He added: "We will not accept an extension of the current law. We will not accept a temporary extension of the current law."

"Farmers deserve something better than procrastination," Block added. "Farmers deserve action on the subject, because it's the farmers' future that is at stake ... There's no excuse for procrastination and putting it off. The administration is not going to be a part of it."

Both the House and Senate agriculture committees still have work to do before reporting farm bill proposals for floor votes.

Both bills are $11 billion or more over congressionally approved spending targets, and House committee chairman Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, Wednesday appointed a 12-member task force to recommend areas in the bill where savings can be made. The group is to report back to the full committee on Tuesday.

In the Senate, which reconvenes next week, Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he hoped to bring a farm bill to the floor within two weeks. He said the Reagan administration is drafting its own list of proposals to reduce costs.

Rope Will Do

Department of Public Safety Trooper, Gary Whitfill inspects the seat belts of Emmett Duke's older model jeep. For a joke the rope seat belts will work fine, but for safety purposes, factory seat belts are required. Effective Sept. 1 all drivers in Texas are required by law to wear seat belts in the front seats. Warning tickets will be issued until December when fines will be given. (Brand Photo by Tom Weaver)

FCS to seek bailout from outside source

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress and other federal officials reacted with relief to a surprise announcement that the Farm Credit System, the nation's largest farm lender, will seek outside help to shore up its deteriorating finances.

"Finally!" said Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., chairman of the House Agriculture credit subcommittee, after getting word of the switch on Wednesday.

"We're going to have to do a bailout, just like Chrysler and New York City," added Jones, who has scheduled hearings on the issue next week.

While it is federally sanctioned, the Farm Credit System uses no federal money, instead raising capital by selling bonds. It is cooperatively owned by its farmer-borrowers, and regulated by the federal Farm Credit Administration.

Jones said upwards of $5 billion will be needed to restore the financial health to the $74 billion system. Others said the cost could run as high as $20 billion.

Farm Credit Administration spokesman Roger Stromberg said the system still is expected to be able to manage its problems for the immediate future. But he said worsening farm financial projections indicate that an infusion of cash will be necessary in 18 to 24 months.

Drug investigation reveals prison tax fraud network

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An investigation into a drug network run by inmates and prison guards also revealed a tax fraud operation involving more than 100 prisoners, authorities said.

The drug and tax refund operations came to light during an investigation by Walker County sheriff's officers that began in January, said Deputy Rick Berger.

At least three guards have been fired for allegedly delivering marijuana to prisoners and nine inmates believed to have distributed the drugs are also under investigation, Berger said.

"I was surprised at first at the number of the officers involved in this stuff," Berger said. "It's a large-scale operation when you consider that pounds of marijuana are being delivered every day by a number of employees."

Authorities also are investigating several civilians who allegedly act as fronts for the smuggling ring by setting up bank accounts and post office boxes to carry out the transactions, Berger said.

TDC spokesman Phil Guthrie said Wednesday that drugs are "a chronic problem in any prison system."

"And I think it's important to have these investigations," he said.

Berger said guards who participate in the delivery network can make thousands of dollars, some even doubling their salaries.

"We're talking about guards making $15,000 a year and picking up an extra $31,000 on the side if they make (several) deliveries a month," the deputy said Tuesday.

Arrests in the drug investigation began in July when officers learned a prison guard planned to bring drugs into a TDC unit, Berger said.

The guard, cooperating with the investigators, agreed to buy the drugs from two women at a motel, Berger

Permits break dollar record

Building permits for the city of Hereford have broken the dollar-amount record with August's 25 permits tallying a year to date total of $7,566,900.

August's $1,786,950 in permits pushed the year to date total past the 1976 year end total of $7,473,850. In 1984 the year to date total was $3,493,110 at the end of August.

Smith Grocery purchased the largest permit for a $1 million project. Arbor Glen Apartments had the second biggest project issued at $500,000. Permits were issued for the Hereford Schools' physical education building, valued at $63,000, and for an addition at Crawford Automotive, $27,500.

Two residences rounded off the major permits at $50,000 and $38,000.

WEDNESDAY'S HIGH: 90 OVERNIGHT LOW: 63
OUTLOOK: Rain chances less than 20 percent for early evening with a 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms during the night. Mostly sunny for Friday with less than a 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms tomorrow evening.

Police arrest one person

Hereford police arrested one person Wednesday for third offense of driving without a license, settled two domestic disputes, took a report on subjects who had cut the ties on some bales of hay, and filed a report on disorderly conduct.

Police also assisted on two ambulance runs.

Weekend burglary solved

The weekend burglary of the Texas Migrant Council has been solved with the recovery of the typewriter, cassette player and several other items which were reported missing. Upon investigation, the items were discovered in a cellar behind the office building, and the door had been kicked in to gain entrance, according to the Deaf Smith County sheriff's department. The question is whether it was an actual burglary with intent to keep the goods or a prank played on the council staff.

The investigation of a runaway girl over the weekend came to a conclusion when she turned herself in to local authorities on Wednesday. Her parents were notified of her return, and she was turned over to the county juvenile officer.

United Way still recruiting for large local volunteer force

A larger work force of volunteers is the one factor missing in an otherwise positive picture of plans now in progress for the 1985 United Way campaign, according to the campaign chairman of this year's fund-solicitation drive, Roger Eades. He invites any person interested in working in the September 9 to November 2 drive for monies to fund the work of the 10 agencies of the United Way to contact him at 364-5220 or Executive Director Wayne Amstutz at 364-2232.

"If our roster of volunteers was complete, we would be ready to kick the campaign off on Monday, September 9, with an assurance that every potential donor would be contacted and that the campaign would be one of ultimate success," Eades states.

The eight divisions in the drive, their chairpersons, and groups to be contacted are as follows: Agriculture, Johnny and Judy Wall, and Ted and Cherry McWhorter, the farmers of this county; General, Carla Sargent and June Owens, the area's churches; Major, B.J. Gilliland and Steve Nieman, the large trucking and cattle businesses; Metro, Joe Wallace and Ike Graves, city, county, state and federal employees which include the school staffs; Professional, Bobby Owen, local doctors, lawyers, dentists and other professional personnel; Pacesetters, Buddy Peeler and Dee Ann Trotter, the media and bankers; Special, Jeryl Baker, local businesses whose headquarters are located outside of Hereford; Whiteface, Nell Culpepper and Lottie

For eight divisions

Wertenberger, small businesses and study clubs.

With an average number of five to 10 volunteers per team, each division has the prerogative to choose as many helpers as seem to be needed to make the group's contact efforts a success, Eades states.

The announced goal for this year's drive is $130,625, reflecting only a two percent increase over last year's projected figure. The ten participating agencies have not changed and they include Hereford and Vicinity YMCA, Hereford Senior Citizens Association, Camp Fire, Inc., Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Family Services Center, Children's Rehabilitation Center and the High Plains Epilepsy Association.

Wayne Amstutz believes in involvement of more local citizens in the program of the United Way, and this involvement by the citizenry is the emphasis of the campaign due to be started on Monday. Participation will come in the form of workers in the fund-solicitation as well as being donors who are contacted for contributions. Potential donors are to be educated as to the service done by the ten participating agencies. The final step in the involvement process will be more volunteerism as Hereford area citizens agree to serve on the agency forces.

When the campaign comes to each business or individual, persons should realize that both small and large donations are welcome, depending on the persons' abilities to support this community project. Also, the donations or pledges can be made payable by payroll deduction, bank drafts, monthly or quarterly payments, cash, or any way the person contacted chooses to give, according to Amstutz. He adds that the slogan "Be a Winner" refers to the persons benefitted by the agencies' programs of service, the donor as he gives "10 gifts in one" to a fund to benefit all of Hereford and vicinity, and to the community itself as it seeks to help people with many kinds of needs which can be covered by just such an effort as the United Way.

In preparation for presentation of needs to prospective donors, each agency's director was asked to formulate a statement about its basic program of work and the needs served by what it does in and for Hereford's people. Resumes of these statements follow.

Houston attorney named to commission

AUSTIN (AP) — Houston attorney John O. Houchins, whose appointment is questioned by some environmentalists, has been named a member of the powerful Texas Water Commission.

The three-member commission will oversee the $1.4 billion statewide plan if it is approved by voters in November.

Dede Armentrout, speaking for the Audobon Society which had worked to influence the appointment, said environmentalist were disappointed but they would give Houchins "a chance."

"It could have been a lot worse," Ms. Armentrout said.

"We'll work with him," said Stuart Henry, Club in Texas. "We don't have any choice."

White made no comment about the conflict between environmentalists and those backing the water plan projects over the appointment but most considered Houchins' appointment a compromise.

Houchins, 45, was a classmate of White at Baylor Law School. He has been an accountant and a plaintiff's attorney in Houston.

The announcement of his appointment made no mention of a background on water issues.

Ms. Armentrout said the society's announced opposition Tuesday to the water plan was not tied to the appointment of a commissioner.

Teen witness kept in foster home

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A tug-of-war between prosecutors and the mother of a teen-age girl who is the key witness against two alleged child pornographers has ended, temporarily.

State District Judge Melton J. Murray Jr. on Wednesday ordered that the 14-year-old girl be held in a foster home under the care of the Texas Department of Human Services until Dec. 13.

Earlier Wednesday, Murray had denied a writ of habeas corpus to the girl's mother, who could not post a $5,000 bond to get her daughter's release.

The judge then ordered that the girl be moved from the detention center to a foster home until Friday.

But later in the day, the girl's mother, prosecutors and the mother's attorneys agreed that the girl should stay in a foster home until Dec. 13.

The teen-ager, whom authorities said posed nude for the alleged pornographers, is scheduled to testify in separate trials against them.

Golden Fleece awarded to martial arts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire today gave his monthly "Golden Fleece" award to a federal study of an unexplained phenomenon in which martial arts experts seemingly debilitate opponents by inscribing X's in the air.

Proxmire, D-Wis., gave his September fleece award to the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke, part of the National Institutes of Health.

Proxmire said the institute was "tossing away $160,000 to study in part whether someone can 'hex' an opponent."

Proxmire is the ranking Democrat on the Senate Appropriations subcommittee which has responsibility for the institute's budget.

Sylvia Shaffer, a spokeswoman for the institute, defended the two-year research program, which she said would cost $130,317. The project began last July 1.

"We try to understand the basic functioning of the nervous system," she said. "It is a phenomenon known to martial artists, in hand-to-hand strength contests, that if one of the contestants or even a third person passes his arm in an X across an opponent's sternum with no direct contact, the contestant is more easily defeated. The opponent experiences a dramatic loss of strength."

Falwell, Jackson to debate on T.V.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Revs. Jerry Falwell and Jesse Jackson, taking their longstanding disagreement on South Africa on national television, agreed that apartheid is an illness, but differed radically on the cures.

Falwell, leader of the fundamentalist Moral Majority, said Wednesday night the reason the media was focusing on South Africa over other African nations was because it was one of the few places with a free press.

"The South African issue has to be the Watergate of the American media. You have to go to 20 or 30 countries before you find South Africa as the major problem," Falwell said on ABC's "Nightline" program.

He said the famine in Ethiopia "was the major problem" in Africa by far, followed by "Uganda, where Idi Amin has killed 300,000 blacks ... Libya (with its) hit squads and terrorists" and other countries.

"We don't see these happenings in Havana and in Moscow because you can't bring a camera in there," Falwell added.

Jackson interrupted: "Mr. Falwell, let us not forget that Hitler was not a Communist or Marxist...the ruling elite of business and military political leaders (in South Africa) think they have some divine inspiration to determine the destiny of the majority of the people."

3 charged with illegal adoptions

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Charges of illegally arranging adoptions have been filed in this border city against three men, including an attorney indicted earlier this year in the United States for his alleged involvement in a fraudulent adoption business.

Lorenzo Prospero Arzola, 37, and two other men were charged Tuesday with falsifying birth certificates in adoptions they planned to arrange between Mexican mothers and couples in the United States, said Chihuahua state Judge Jose Eustacio Gutierrez Corona.

The men also were charged with giving false statements to officials investigating the adoption business, Gutierrez said Wednesday.

In addition to Prospero — who in February was indicted in Boston and Salt Lake City on charges of mail and wire fraud and conspiracy — Pedro Diaz Luna, a 38-year-old attorney, and Javier Morales Mendoza, a 34-year-old doctor, were also charged Tuesday.

All three were released Tuesday afternoon on bond of 400,000 pesos, or about $1,250.

Gutierrez said arrest warrants also have been issued in this city across the border from El Paso, Texas, for the three men's secretaries, who also are accused of giving authorities false statements during an investigation.

Last month, city officials took custody of five infants and two young girls who were being cared for at two Ciudad Juarez homes while Prospero allegedly was arranging their adoptions.

to go to camp. Seven handicapped units in the area council, including 75 boys and girls, are receiving the scouting program. United Way funds, including the Deaf Smith County United Way, provide 30.9 percent of income in the Llano Estacado Council nine county area.

HEREFORD SENIOR CITIZENS

United Way funds are used exclusively to help offset expenses in the different areas of need for the low-income elderly of Deaf Smith County. Over half of the participants in the home delivered food program are people of varying degrees of low income. Also, approximately two-thirds of the transportation costs for participants needing medical care involve low income persons who are unable to donate to this cost.

HEREFORD FAMILY SERVICES CENTER

Services of the Family Service Center are offered to clients on a sliding fee scale, and United Way funds are used to defray the cost to clients who are financially unable to obtain the services without assistance. The agency's services include counseling for marital problems, parent-child conflicts, DHR referrals, drug and alcohol abuse and after-care services for clients returning to our community from state facilities. Some immediate expenses, such as postage, telephone bills and some psychotropic medication for clients who need financial assistance, are also met with United Way Funds.

HIGH PLAINS EPILEPSY ASSOCIATION

This agency, located in Amarillo, estimates that about 400 people in Deaf Smith County have epilepsy, a neurological disorder that affects the brain and central nervous system and that manifests itself in seizures as its major symptom. To help local people and their families with the specialized medical care this disorder requires, the association provides testing and treatment. To help the persons involved understand the disorder and its treatment, counseling is provided. Literature on epilepsy and its associated problems is distributed throughout Hereford, and a lending library of books and audio-visual material is maintained.

CHILDREN'S REHABILITATION CENTER, INC.

The Children's Rehabilitation Center, Inc. has the responsibility of providing medical rehabilitation service to the physically handicapped child. With 42 volunteer physicians, its physical, occupational, speech and special education staff is serving approximately 300 children from all over the Texas Panhandle. The agency is totally responsible to the communities whose United Ways are the primary sources of operational funding. The center's services are available to all children, regardless of ability to pay.

Donald E. Wilkinson, FCA governor, has been insisting the banks could handle their losses through funds transfers, increased interest rates and economy moves. But this week he shifted positions, saying further deterioration in the farm sector makes potential loan losses more than the system can absorb.

"He recognizes that it's got to be faced at some point," said Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, who has advanced a long list of legislation to bolster the system's finances. Evans said Wilkinson's public admission of the system's problems would make it easier to get remedial legislation through Congress.

AMERICAN RED CROSS

The Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Red Cross is always ready to help alleviate human suffering by meeting needs for disaster preparedness and relief. It also assists members of the armed forces and their families. Significant local programs include the promotion of health and safety for the entire citizenry.

CAMP FIRE

Camp Fire provides programs which emphasize learning by doing, assuming responsibility, developing decision-making skills, as well as learning to appreciate, care for and work with others. United Way funding makes the program available to every youth in the community, according to their individual needs. Every child is offered the opportunity to participate in the program which depends heavily on community support for its success.

BIG BROTHERS/BIG SISTERS

United Way helps BB/BS of Hereford serve single parents and their children with a unique service free of any charge to them. BB/BS is unique because it is the only program for children that has a "one to one" service for each child who is matched with a local volunteer who becomes that child's special Big Brother or Big Sister. Monthly parties and activities are held, not only for the matched boys and girls but also for all the children in the program who are waiting for BB/BS's to be approved for their companions. United Way and special contributions are the only source of income for this agency.

HEREFORD AND VICINITY YMCA, INC.

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA is a non-profit organization serving the people of this area. Income to operate the YMCA comes from three sources: membership fees, program fees and the United Way. Adult programs are self-supporting through the fees and also help to pay the operating cost. Income from memberships covers the rest of the day-to-day expenses of the agency. Most youth programs, however, are not self-supporting and the United Way funds help to make up this difference. Discount membership rates are given to senior citizens and handicapped persons, and these reduced memberships are funded with United Way money. In some cases, families are not able to afford the program fees. In such cases, reduced rates or extended payments are applied. These special arrangements are made possible with the application of United Way funds.

Community Award

Walcott School superintendent Eddie Derr, left, presented Bobby Hammock with a plaque to honor him for outstanding community service in the community. Derr said Hammock, a county precinct foreman, has spent many after work hours helping the community school. Derr made the presentation at the Walcott reunion Sunday.

Whooping crane population may top 90 birds in winter

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — Wildlife officials hope a bumper crop of baby whooping cranes in Canada could boost the number of the rare birds that will winter in Texas this year.

The 16 chicks hatched this summer at a Wood Buffalo National Park could give the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge a population of more than 90 birds this winter, officials say.

Last year, the refuge had 84 of the endangered cranes, officials said.

Tom Stehn, a biologist at the refuge, said the young cranes at the park in Canada are "big and robust," with an average weight of about 10 pounds. He said an exceptionally wet spring at the park spawned plenty of minnows for the young birds.

"We expect a good survival rate from this point on," he said, adding that the birds were banded in mid-August to allow researchers and biologists to record sightings.

Stehn said 20 whooping crane chicks were hatched this summer at the Canadian national park, and the 16 banded birds are believed to be the only chicks that survived.

Fifteen whooping crane chicks survived the migration from Canada to the refuge last winter.

Stehn said the chicks would be beginning to learn to fly during the first week of September. They begin their winter migration in mid-October, and the majority of the birds will arrive at the refuge in November.

FRAUD

The women were arrested July 12 and charged with delivery of marijuana that was to be sent to the Wynne Unit.

Authorities declined to release the women's names, saying they also are helping in the investigation.

Berger said authorities believe the drug deal was set up by a convicted robber at the Wynne Unit and that a convicted forger also may be involved in the deal. The guard would have been paid $500 for the drug delivery, he said.

The inmate dealers sell drugs at a profit to other prisoners, and one inmate's dealings netted him about $27,000 over several months, Berger said.

Guthrie said three guards were fired in July and August for their alleged roles in the ring and another officer was fired after tests showed he had used marijuana.

Last week, eight TDC employees were fired on drug allegations.

The drug probe also revealed a tax fraud operation involving almost $1 million in false refund claims filed by more than 100 inmates during the past year, Berger said. Most of the inmates are confined to the Ellis I Unit, he said.

In July, Lisa Friedman of San Francisco pleaded guilty to filing fraudulent returns and admitted to using the Social Security number of TDC inmates to file tax returns, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Adam Kurland in Fresno, Calif.

Ms. Friedman has not yet been sentenced, Kurland said.

Also indicted in the case were Ellis I Unit inmates Steven R. Robertson and Douglas W. Smith, both serving life terms as habitual criminals; and Smith's wife, Patricia Ann Smith, of California.

Ann Landers Opinions differ

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thanks for printing the letter from the woman who opted for an abortion when she learned the fetus was not normal.

I am 39 years old, the mother of two children, ages 11 and 7. I was 4½ months pregnant with a third when the doctor called and said the diagnosis was "Trisomy 21—you are carrying a Down Syndrome fetus." My husband and I sat up all night talking. We decided to terminate the pregnancy.

This was the most difficult decision I have ever faced. Only a person who has experienced the anguish can understand what I went through. I had to come to terms with the fact that we had neither the financial nor emotional resources to care for a defective child.

I want to thank the woman who had the courage to write that letter and bless you for printing it. It helped me know I was not alone. I'm sure you'll hear from many readers who believe Down Syndrome children are a gift from God and others may even condemn me for what I did, but I know in my heart it was the best decision for us.—AN ANN FAN IN THE SOUTH

DEAR FAN: I already have a load of mail from readers who believe no pregnancy should be interrupted for any reason. They are entitled to their opinion and you are entitled to yours. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter from the reader who alleged that employee theft is a bigger problem than shoplifting. As a woman who has been in the department store business for 25 years I would like to mention another gigantic loss suffered by business: damaged merchandise. This problem stems from a simple lack of consideration on the part of the customer.

The word "bankrupt" originated in Venice, Italy, during medieval times. At that time, merchants conducted business on wooden benches in the town square. But when a merchant couldn't meet his financial obligations his creditors sought justice by breaking his bench and putting him out of business. The Italian for "broken bench" is "banca rotta," from which the word bankrupt is derived.

Every day we must mark down (or throw away) a staggering number of items that are broken, torn or soiled by thoughtless shoppers.

Lipstick and perspiration on expensive gowns are common. Vain ladies who insist they wear a Size 10 when actually they need a 14 rip seams, break zippers and pop buttons. Beaded, sequin and lace gowns are often handled so roughly they must be put on sale.

Handles are torn off handbags, mirrors are cracked, sweaty hands ruin leather goods as well as satin and silk. Toys are broken (especially the mechanical ones), china and glassware are chipped, cosmetics are rendered unsalable because women actually "try on" lipstick and eyeshadow, which violates the health codes.

All these losses could be eliminated or cut drastically if people would show a little consideration. Please print this letter. Every retailer in the country will be grateful.—SEEN IT ALL IN NEW YORK

DEAR N.Y.: Thanks for addressing a problem I've never dealt with before in the column. I hope those who see themselves will shape up. It boils down to nothing more than common courtesy and decent manners.

DEAR ELLEN: You win. According to Solly Hammer at Ronsely's florist shop in Chicago, a flower should be worn as it grows. This means stem down.

Abundant Life

APPROPRIATE WORDS
By Bob Wear

IT IS IMPORTANT that we learn to choose and use 'appropriate words', in our interactions with other folk. The more intimate the association, the more important it is that we select the most appropriate words, in what is to be said. Even after we have done our very best an unpleasant situation may develop. Most of us, perhaps all of us, will make some mistakes; however, we can keep such mistakes to a minimum.

IT IS POSSIBLE for us to develop great skill in our speech, and the degree of success we attain will enhance and enrich every other aspect of living. On the other hand, if we are careless in our talking, we create problems of all kinds. We will begin to experience difficulties in every other area of life. If this does occur, it can be reversed; and reversing it is what we must do. We have the power and the capability to make wise and right choices in this area of our behavior, and it will be done to the extent we make our thinking the best it can be.

WE MUST BE constantly alert, and never permit ourselves to grow weary. We must never become discouraged to the extent that we decide that the effort is not justified, because success requires a continuing effort. When we fully admit to ourselves that, in large measure, our personal happiness and effectiveness are determined by our manner of speech; we have sufficient motivation. In addition to this, our satisfactory associations with others are determined by the level of success in the choice and wise use of 'appropriate words' in communicating with them.

WE CAN SUCCEED in making the words appropriate for the time, the place and the person.

In 1931, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop air flight across the United States, flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours, five minutes.

Lighting, color affects behavior

Color and lighting used in hospitals affect a patient's behavior, mood and overall health, according to a Texas Tech University art professor.

Professor Christina M. Burton is researching how color and light can best be used in hospitals for the benefit of patients and staff. She worked as a nurse for seven years before studying interior design. She often serves as a color consultant in designing hospitals.

Burton suggests that the right color and light combination can be therapeutic for a hospital patient and the wrong design can be depressing or disturbing. The solution, she says, is creating the right combination of color, light and space.

"Some research has shown that color can even affect a patient's vital signs," she said. "But there is not enough research to say that a blue room will drop blood pressure 10 points or all pediatric rooms should be blue."

As a research study project Burton proposed designs for a psychiatric patient room, a birthing unit, a visitor's lounge and a nursing station.

When hospitals were first built they had all white furnishings to give a sterile look, Burton said. Eventually, they began using the institutional greens and grays. In the 1970s designers went to an extreme using bright colors and bold patterns that were cheerful but not necessarily therapeutic, Burton said.

Now, more hospitals are consulting with designers in the early stages of planning she said. Hospitals are becoming more competitive and need to market a place that will make patients feel good.

A trend in hospitals is to make patient rooms more like home and less institutional. But, the room must still look like a hospital to give the patient security, Burton said.

In designing a psychiatric unit, Burton used colors that are relaxing, comfortable and non-threatening, she said. She changed metal furniture to oak wood grain for a warmer effect. She used a light, cool blue for wallpaper which would be relaxing without being depressing, she said.

For a birthing unit, Burton considered the patient's perception while in pain or under medication. A birthing unit should be relaxing. A pattern in a painting or mural should not be exciting to the patient but should convey a comforting message, she said. The ceiling is important in a birthing unit, and is considered a fifth wall, she said.

Maintenance is an important factor in hospital design, Burton said. If the materials are not easily maintained the design will not be practical.

"Interior designers and architects have a serious role," Burton said. "Color and light are more important to a hospital than to any other structure."

Herd opens football season at San Angelo Central Friday

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford is ranked fifth in District 3-5A in the preseason Harris Rating System lists, and the Herd's first opponent of the 1985 season, San Angelo Central, is rated third in District 4-5A.

When one examines the rankings for the entire state, Friday night's high school football opener means a challenging test for the HHS varsity, because San Angelo Central is also ranked third in the state.

The top two teams in the preseason rankings for class AAAAA schools are Odessa Permian and Midland Lee, both members of District 4-5A.

Kickoff for Friday's season opener is 8 p.m. in San Angelo. Last year, Hereford fell to San Angelo Central 21-0 in a contest played in Hereford.

Both Hereford and San Angelo Central are said to be in rebuilding years. When asked how the 1985 version of the Herd compares to the other three teams he has coached at Hereford High School, Coach Jerry Taylor said, "I think all four teams are comparable. They've all been competitive.

"This group maybe doesn't have the stalwarts or superstars the others have had. But it could help us have more unity, to fight harder," Taylor continues.

"This group has good attitudes and good work habits. They'll play as hard as they can play. When they've given all they can give, that's good enough for me," the Herd head coach adds.

Team captains for the Herd varsity this season are Casey Smith, Brett Clements and Stefan Hacker, all of whom are listed by Coach Taylor as probable starters. His list of probable starters includes the following:

Returning players who lettered on offense last year for the Herd were Brett Clements, Casey Smith, Doug Watts, Chris Rowton, Allen Dudding, and Vincent Brown. Those who lettered in the 1984 season on defense were Rodney Torres, Patrick Phibbs, Pat Rodriguez, Freddie Gamboa, Stefan Hacker, Curtis Cotten, and Adam Olivarez.

Twenty-three members of the HHS varsity football team are seniors.

Concerning his team's preseason preparation, Coach Taylor said, "I've been pleased from a workout standpoint. The players have been attentive.

"We are showing improvement in areas we weren't so good in. We came out of the scrimmage basically with no injuries. We didn't tackle as crisply as I thought we should have, but we can improve.

"The passing game was fair and the running game needs to improve.

Overall, I was somewhat pleased with our scrimmage with Estacado."

About the defense, Taylor said, "Right now, I would say defense is our biggest concern. That's not to say our offense is home free, but our defense needs a lot of work.

"Over the years, we've taken pride in our defensive effort. Our defense has kept us in many games over the years.

"First things first, we try to start with our defense. Of course, you need both offense and defense to win. I think our defense will play as well as they can this year."

The Herd's basic offensive patterns under Coach Taylor are the drop back pass and the split back veer. The Hereford defense, using a 5-2 defensive pattern, will be faced Friday night with aiming to stop returning starters for San Angelo Central at running back and quarterback.

C.L. Bowman, a senior running back for the Bobcats, gained 1,100 yards last year to lead all District 4-5A ball carriers. The returning starter at quarterback is Mario Martinez.

San Angelo Central, which uses a wing-T offense and a 4-3 defense, was ranked in the top 20 in the state last year for class AAAAA schools.

Ranking all District 3-5A teams this year, except his own Herd squad, Coach Taylor puts the district teams in this order, from first to last: Palo Duro, Plainview, Amarillo, Lubbock Coronado, Lubbock, Caprock, Tascosa, and Lubbock Monterey.

Returning The Football

Football season officially has returned, with high school football action starting Friday night when Hereford High School plays at San Angelo Central. Pictured here are Herd players going through kickoff return drills this week.

To start 1985 season with

WTSU Buffs have no depth

West Texas State University football coach Bill Kelly said his team is starting the 1985 season without any depth, but adds that this is what a team goes through when building up a football program that has been on the losing side.

WTSU battles Abilene Christian University Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the season opener at Shotwell Stadium in Abilene.

"We don't have any depth," Coach Kelly said. "But that's part of the process of purging a losing program. You have to weed out people who were these for the wrong reasons.

"You have to eliminate everyone who's not committed to excellence on the field, in the classroom and in their personal lives. We have 22 from the previous program who are committed to excellence.

"The 30 rules also prevents us from having any depth the first year. I'd rather have no depth that have backups who do not have the same ideals as the kids who are going to start for us.

You can't compromise a program. You can't keep 30 of the questionables around. It's just like a bunch of apples—if there's a couple of rotten ones, pretty soon the whole bushel is rotten."

Kelly, a first-year coach for WTSU and a 1970 graduate of the University of North Carolina, has a head-coaching record of 30-13-2 in four years.

He directed Snow College of Ephraim, Utah, to victories in the 1981 Wool Bowl and the 1982 Valley of the Sun Bowl, with final rankings of fourth and ninth those seasons in the NJCAA.

Kelly then coached Eastern New Mexico University to the NIAA championship playoffs for the first time in the school's history in 1983.

"We really don't know much about Abilene Christian. I think they will be a better football team this year," Kelly said.

"They have eight starters back on defense. Offensively, they say they're young, but that can be an asset. They have a very good kicker and punter, Mark Turner.

"They're picked second in the Lone Star Conference by a lot of people. I know the type of football they play in the Lone Star Conference, so it should be a heck of a game," Kelly added.

Leading the Buffaloes on offense are junior quarterback Tod Mayfield; and receivers Stan Carraway and Jerald Welch, both juniors, and Steve Love, a sophomore.

On defense, WTSU is led by tackles Dennis Scheider and Tracey Hamilton, noseguard Baron Jackson, linebackers Anthony Miller and Brit Clare; and defensive backs Todd Littlejohn and Mike Butler.

Texas Tech to unveil new wishbone offense Saturday

A new wishbone offense will be unveiled by the Texas Tech Red Raiders in their football season opener Saturday against the New Mexico Lobos.

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock. Texas Tech led New Mexico 18-7 after three quarters of play last year, but lost to the Lobos 29-24 in Albuquerque.

The Red Raiders have one of their youngest offensive units ever, with 16 sophomores and freshmen among the 22 players on the offensive two deep team. Only three of those players are seniors.

But defensively, Texas Tech has 15 seniors and juniors among the top 22 players. The defense, which includes eight starters back from a team that finished No. 20 in the nation in total defense, is performing up to its expectations in the preseason, according to Coach Jerry Moore.

Leaders for Tech on offense include halfbacks Ansel Cole, Gerald Bean; and Timmy Smith; and quarterback Aaron Keese has won a starting position.

"We must overcome the stigma of losing to New Mexico three times in a row. They always play us very hard," Moore said. "They will give us a lot of looks defensively. They have gone to a more wide open offense this year, much like Rice runs. It should be a very interesting game."

New Mexico biggest margin of victory over Texas Tech was in 1983 by a score of 30-10 in Jones Stadium in Lubbock.

Texas Tech will play its second game of the season at Tulsa on Sept. 14. New Mexico plays at New Mexico State that day.

JAMAICAN RUM
Each Caribbean island has its own traditional rum style. Each rum label must specify the island on which it was made. As a result, when buying "Jamaican rum," you can be certain that you actually are getting a spirit that was made there. Distillers elsewhere may not use a term such as "Jamaican-type rum" to describe a spirit that was not made on the island of Jamaica. The pungent, dark-style of rum is most commonly associated with Jamaica, although most other rum-producing areas also distill dark rums. Jamaica was one of the very first commercial rum producers. It is still known as the home of the world's finest.

Har-rumph!

Watch 'Huskers plant the Seminoles

By Maj. Amos B. Hoople
Wizard of Odds

Egad, friends! This week's college football games include several big showdowns that will have a direct bearing on the national rankings.

For openers, how about: Florida State at Nebraska (ABC-TV); UCLA at BYU (ESPN); Penn State at Maryland (regional TV); and Southern California at Illinois. And, remember, the 1985 season is just getting started.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers-Florida State Seminoles game will be a battle royal between two explosive offenses.

The Huskers' pulverizing running attack is led by junior Doug DuBose, who scampered for 1,040 yards last fall.

The Florida State fireworks are supplied by QB Eric Thomas and running backs Tony Smith and Cletis Jones. And sure to see action is freshman tailback Sammie Smith, a 6-foot-1, 215-pounder who is being compared to Herschel Walker by excited Seminole fans. Can he be that good?

In a dramatic finish, the Hoople System sees this one going to the home-field Cornhuskers, 34-32.

As good as BYU is, the Hoople operatives in the Far West are looking for Terry Donahue's invading Uclans to spoil the Cougars' home opener. We look for All-America field-goal kicker John Lee to give UCLA a 24-21 victory.

Maryland lost a heartbreaker to Penn State last year by one point. But the Terps rate the Hoople nod to take a 25-18 decision this year at Byrd Stadium.

Both highly regarded Southern California and the Fightin' Illini are banned from TV this fall because of NCAA infractions. To watch this beauty, you are going to have to be one of the lucky 70,906 who will jam into Illinois' Memorial Stadium.

Joe Sunshine, our Golden State correspondent, sees all-Pac 10 RB Fred Crutcher and friends putting more points on the board for USC than gifted passer Jack Trudeau and his mates can garner for Illinois. Make it: USC 28, Illinois 24.

Elsewhere, we see Florida tripping the Miami Hurricanes, 27-24; Washington edging Oklahoma State 28-27; and Auburn getting off to a good start by trimming Southwest Louisiana, 28-20 (WTBS-TV).

And, finally, the last time coach Howard Schnellenberger took a team on the field, his Miami Hurricanes pulled off a historic upset of undefeated Nebraska, 31-30, in the 1984 Orange Bowl to win the national title.

Alas, this week the football gods won't be as kind to Schnellenberger.

His Louisville Cardinals will fall 28-14 to the West Virginia Mountaineers. Now go on with my forecast:

Boston Marathon has $10 million sponsorship

By SUZANNE WETLAUFER
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The 89-year-old Boston Marathon, a contest long proud of its amateur status, has parted with a bit of tradition by announcing a 10-year, $10 million sponsorship deal with the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

An agreement announced Wednesday by the Boston Athletic Association names Hancock as the race's major corporate sponsor and marks the first time that country's oldest continually run road race will pay cash prizes — $250,000 in the first year alone.

The deal also moves the finish line of the 26-mile, 385-yard race about three blocks, from the street in front of the Prudential Center to the front of the 60-story Hancock tower in Boston's Copley Square.

BAA officials predicted the sponsorship agreement would lure world-class runners accustomed to prize money back back to the Boston Marathon, which for years lost top competitors to more lucrative contests. The Chicago and New York marathons, for instance, each offered about $250,000 in prize money last year.

"This is a great day for the Boston Marathon and its future," BAA President Frank Swift said. "The $10 million in benefits will ensure that Boston will remain the No. 1 marathon in the world."

BAA and Hancock officials said that the $10 million from Hancock will defray not only prize money, but also a variety of other services, including clerical work and publicity. Hancock also will provide a finish-line facility for runners and the media and will pick up the tab for race-related events.

Hancock President E. James Morton said that the giant insurance firm does not plan to change the character of the marathon, and will not interfere with BAA decisions.

Hancock, with $33 billion in assets, is the sixth largest insurance firm in the United States.

Swift said the BAA will continue to seek smaller corporate sponsors, although by agreement with Hancock none will be financial service institutions.

"Even with corporate sponsors, the marathon will continue to be an amateur event," Swift added. "The basic intent of the marathon doesn't change. Anyone who can meet our qualifications can run."

The deal was announced at a news conference attended by several longtime marathon runners, including John Semple, who has finished the race 50 times since 1929.

"I'm tickled to death," Semple said of the sponsorship deal. "It will bring back the elite runners, but there will be no change in the rank-and-file. They'll still want to come because it's Boston. It has a mystique."

Oilers resign

Brian Ransom, quarterback

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Brian Ransom spent two seasons on the Houston Oilers roster as a third string quarterback and never played a down in a regular season National Football League game.

It was only after Ransom was waived last week that the Oilers suddenly discovered they needed the former Tennessee State star.

The Oilers resigned Ransom Wednesday to fill in for backup Oliver Luck, who suffered a broken ankle in the final preseason game and will be out for a minimum of four weeks.

Starting quarterback Warren Moon suffered a torn thumbnail in the same game but will start against the Miami Dolphins in Sunday's regular season opener in the Astrodome.

"Mentally, I think I'm better," Ransom said of his week of inactivity. "I'm concentrating on getting ready to play again."

"I was scheduled to leave Monday and I got a call from the Oilers Sunday. I have an opportunity here to play if Warren gets hurt. Otherwise, it might have been to my benefit to be somewhere else."

Ransom, who sweated side by side with Moon and Luck throughout last season, said he's been able to overcome the frustration of not getting a chance to play.

Hundreds of townfolk face eviction

PHILLIPS, Texas (AP)—A mass "eviction" notice to about 1,500 people threatens to destroy this small Texas Panhandle community, residents say.

The two biggest landowners in town, M M Cattle Co. of Amarillo and Phillips Petroleum, have told the people living in about 450 houses to move off their leased land by the end of 1986.

"What we're interested in is keeping our home here. Not moving out, but staying right here where we belong," said P.O. Atkins, his voice cracking as tears streamed down his face.

Atkins was one of about 800 people attending an emotion-charged town hall meeting Tuesday to talk about how to keep the landlords from forcing people off their land.

"We all have the same problem," said Sam Jackson, former Phillips school board member. "So we're not here to hear a bunch of personal problems, we're here to see if we can resolve our problems."

The residents expressed fear of displacement, support for their school and a desire to stay in the town they came to at the request of the petroleum company for which it is named.

A mass exodus would mean the end of Phillips High School, home to 400 students and the only governmental entity in this company town of 2,500 residents, the Borger News-Herald said Wednesday.

The cattle company is asking residents of about 390 homes to move their houses from its property because it cannot afford to build a sewer system meeting state regulations, said Wanda Whittenburg, an attorney for M M Cattle.

Phillips Petroleum asked residents in 68 homes to move because of plant expansion restrictions and the cost of upkeep on the property, said Art Austin, director of human resources for Phillips.

The oil company has a refinery, a plastics plant and a chemical plant in the area and is the largest employer in town, Austin said.

Phillips has offered financial assistance in relocating the homeowners. M M has not.

Ms. Whittenburg said Wednesday that resolving the homeowners' dilemma could be expensive since the state could fine the cattle company for operating a sewage system that does not comply with regulations.

"If (the homeowners) come up with something that could be beneficial to them and to us, we would listen to it," Ms. Whittenburg said.

Ms. Whittenburg said her company could be liable for civil fines of $10,000 a day and criminal fines of $25,000 a day.

A letter from Ms. Whittenburg went out last month asking residents to remove all property from M M land by Aug. 31, 1986.

The letter arrived less than a week after Phillips announced plans to move 68 houses from its land by Dec. 31, 1986.

Death penalty violates treaties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scheduled execution of Texas inmate Charles Rumbaugh would violate international agreements the United States signed — but did not ratify — prohibiting execution of convicts who committed their crimes when they were under 18 years old, says Amnesty International.

Rumbaugh is scheduled to die by injection on Sept. 11 for the 1975 killing of an Amarillo jeweler during a holdup. He was 17 at the time.

Amnesty International said Wednesday that except for one case in Barbados, Rumbaugh would be the first convict in 12 years of international reporting of such events to be put to death for a crime committed when under the age of 18.

The group, which protests the incarceration and treatment of political prisoners and opposes the death penalty, said it had written Texas Gov. Mark White in July seeking clemency for Texas inmates.

Amnesty International said it wrote White, "However heinous the crime, the imposition on a young person of a sentence of the utmost cruelty, which denies any possibility of eventual rehabilitation or reform, is contrary to contemporary standards of justice and humane treatment."

The group maintains the United States should abide by two agreements it signed in the 1960s:

—The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1966, which states, "Sentence of death shall not be imposed for crimes committed by persons below 18 years of age and shall not be carried out on pregnant women;" and —The American Convention on Human Rights, adopted by the Organization of American States in 1969, which says: "Capital punishment shall not be imposed upon persons who at the time the crime was committed were under 18 years of age or over 70 years of age, nor shall it be applied to pregnant women."

Both agreements were submitted to the Senate for ratification by then-President Jimmy Carter but were never ratified, the group said.

Amnesty International said Jay Pinkerton, who received a stay of execution from the U.S. Supreme Court 20 minutes before he was to be put to death on Aug. 15, also was 17 years old at the time he committed the crime for which he received the death penalty, the 1979 rape and mutilation of an Amarillo woman.

A spokesman in the governor's office said a response is being prepared concerning a letter Amnesty International wrote about Pinkerton.

White has not received a letter about Rumbaugh, the governor's office said.

Rumbaugh, interviewed Wednesday on death row in Huntsville, said the announcement by Amnesty International is "not going to have any affect."

"Look where it's at now," he said, referring to his case. "I have no more appeals. You've got to accept this sometime. The only thing possible is that the governor is going to intervene, and that's not going to happen."

Schools fail to teach invisible curriculum

NEW YORK (AP) — Business leaders charged in a report today that America's schools are failing to foster character traits like teamwork and honesty, which they consider just as crucial to career success as the 3 R's.

The 107-page report, "Investing in Our Children: Business and The Public Schools," said schools should stress the "invisible curriculum" of teamwork, honesty, reliability, self-discipline and "learning how to learn."

It also recommended operating schools like businesses, giving successful ones free rein and putting failures in "receivership."

The business world considers good work habits and character traits no less important to future employability than academic skills, according to a survey included in the report.

A majority of the business leaders surveyed said "an alarming number" of students leave high school with the unwholesome message that the adult world tolerates tardiness, absence and misbehavior.

"If schools tolerate excessive absenteeism, truancy, tardiness or misbehavior, we cannot expect students to meet standards of minimum performance or behavior either in school or as adults," said the report.

The three-year, $1 million study is perhaps the clearest expression ever of what the business world wants from public schools.

It is the latest of more than a dozen education critiques published by various sources since a presidential commission in April 1983 issued a report decrying the "rising tide of mediocrity" in America's schools.

Today's report differed from earlier critiques in stressing "bottom up reform" and warned against excessive state regulation. It said that unless a district is floundering, states should leave the running of classrooms to local school boards, principals and a revitalized, well-paid teaching profession.

"This report is a strong call for stringent education standards and tough discipline, but we also want to encourage maximum creativity on how these standards are achieved," Owen B. Butler, chairman of Procter & Gamble and head of the 60-member panel that produced the study, said at a news conference.

The report recommended that school administrators use tried-and-true business tactics to address some of education's ills.

It suggested, for instance, that excellent schools be freed from time-wasting state regulation and supervision. Failing schools, on the other hand, should be declared "bankrupt" and placed in state or local receivership to be either reorganized or closed.

The study was produced by the New York-based Committee for Economic Development, a public policy research group whose 225 trustees are mostly top corporate executives.

The panel that produced the report included officials from such companies as 3M Co., Dow Chemical Co., American Can Co., and Atlantic Richfield, as well as a number of university presidents and other educational leaders.

WOMEN ALONE CAN FIGHT CRIME

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Some 12 million women live alone in the United States and some of them are the victims of crime, usually theft and burglary.

But there are ways in which women can help protect themselves and their property. Honeywell Protection Services suggests an electronic home alarm system as the best overall protection.

In addition, areas that should be addressed include quality of window and door locks and frames; peep holes and safety chains, and adequate apartment building security and lighting on or near stairs, hallways and elevators.

DENVER (AP) — The average family in the United States uses more than 90,000 gallons of water a year, according to the American Water Works Association.

The nation's 60,000 community water systems produce a total of more than 34 billion gallons of drinking water each day, or nearly 12.5 trillion gallons a year delivered to an estimated 200.7 million Americans.

However, even these figures seem insignificant when compared to Lake Michigan, which contains nearly 1,300 trillion gallons — or enough water to meet America's needs for the next 120 years.

Congressman's son hospitalized after hazing

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A congressman's son who spent four days in the hospital after fraternity "hell week" at Texas Tech University says he volunteered for the initiation rites.

But Tech officials say they are investigating hazing allegations in connection with the incident.

Cary Stenholm, 19, was hospitalized Aug. 24 when he collapsed after doing sit-ups and push-ups as a Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity pledge, authorities said. He is the son of U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

"I don't consider what happened hazing. But everybody else does," Stenholm told The Associated Press Wednesday. "I was willing to do it. I love SAE. I want to be one."

The Tech dean of students, Larry Ludewig, said the investigation began last week after an anonymous telephone call to his office.

"We have an investigating officer looking into it right now," he said Wednesday. "It's an alleged act of hazing. We're trying to determine whether there were individuals involved or if the activity was group-sanctioned."

Stenholm said he is concerned that the probe will damage the SAE chapter at Tech.

"What I went through would be the same as a football practice where the coaches sit there and make you do calisthenics," he said. "When I went into hell week, I had not worked out for three months. I was ready to get back in shape."

Stenholm said there was nothing unusual about his initiation, which he described as a two-day series of activities that included "some fun stuff" and "some bad stuff."

"I think I'm getting this extra publicity because of my dad," he said. "I went in there with my pledge brothers. It was part of hell week. Everybody goes through it."

Sigma Alpha Epsilon president David Alderson told the campus newspaper that Stenholm was not hazed.

"We took him to the hospital and we took care of everything," Alderson said of Stenholm's collapse.

Ludewig said hazing is a violation of Texas Education Agency regulation and the Tech student code of conduct.

"We don't condone any form, any type of hazing, no matter how insignificant it may be," Ludewig said.

A person can be punished for hazing by sanctions ranging from a reprimand to suspension, he said. A fraternity guilty of hazing stands to lose its university registration, which allows it to meet on campus and use university facilities, he said.

Ludewig said the investigation would take several weeks.

He said his office confirmed about 15 hazing incidents last year. All resulted in some sort of disciplinary action, he said, but none involved serious physical injury.

Ludewig said about 17 percent of the 24,000 students at Tech belong to a fraternity or sorority.

He said hazing at Tech appears to have decreased in the past few years.

"I'm not saying we're pristine clean," he said. "I don't think any institution that has fraternities or sororities can say that. But I think we're in relatively good shape."

Stenholm said Wednesday he has fully recovered. He said his membership in SAE is still pending because of grades.

Christmas cards, as we know them, began in London in 1843, the same year "A Christmas Carol" was written, when Henry Cole asked artist John Horsely to design something he could send to his friends and acquaintances to wish them a Merry Christmas. Of the 1,000 cards printed, only 12 are known to exist, and two of these are part of the 70,000-card Hallmark historical collection at Kansas City.

Indians want marker replaced

CHIVINGTON, Colo. (AP) — Descendants of the 400 to 500 Indians who were killed and mutilated by Army troops on the cottonwood-shaded grassy bank of Sand Creek want to replace a monument calling the area a "battle ground."

"Massacre" is a more apt description of the incident on Nov. 29-30, 1864, says Cynthia Kent, chairwoman of the Colorado Native American Heritage Council.

Indians are discussing the wording of a plaque on the monument, which is expected to be placed on a bluff overlooking the creek sometime this fall. Ms. Kent said.

The marker, she said, will tell the truth about what happened 120 years ago.

Indians have maintained that Sand Creek was no battle, and memoirs of troops, Indians and civilians who survived the carnage bear them out.

The Colorado Historical Society agreed to provide a new marker after hearing from Indians and others, said Ms. Kent. The Northern and Southern Cheyenne tribes will decide what the marker will say.

"These Indians (who were killed at Sand Creek) ... didn't have blood in their teeth," said Ms. Kent, a Southern Ute. "They were camping."

Ms. Kent's organization has mediated the Cheyennes' effort to remove the present marker, a granite monument about 2½ feet high that memorializes the "Sand Creek Battle Ground."

The Sand Creek battle — or massacre — is not one of the brighter pages in Colorado history.

Col. John Chivington, a Methodist minister commissioned to lead the state's volunteer Third Regiment into southeast Colorado, directed the attack on the sleeping camp at dawn.

Some critics say the regiment was trying to overcome its derogatory nickname, "The Bloodless Third."

Firing with cannister-loaded howitzers and small arms, the troops kept shooting until about three o'clock in the afternoon. Patrols roaming the killing ground found that many of the dead were women and children.

Soldiers scalped Indians. One chief, White Antelope, was emasculated by a soldier who wanted his scrotum for a tobacco pouch.

That night, Chivington sent a message to Gen. S.R. Curtis, his superior and commander of the Army's Department Kansas:

"After a march of forty miles last night I, at daylight this morning, attacked (a) Cheyenne village of 130 lodges; from 900 to 1800 warriors strong; killed Chiefs Black Kettle, White Antelope, Knock Knee and Little Robe (Little Raven), and between 400 and 500 other Indians and captured as many ponies and mules. Our loss (was) 9 killed, 38 wounded."

Today the Sand Creek site, 250 miles southeast of Denver and 10 miles north of Colorado 96, is part of a cattle operation owned by William Dawson.

Dawson, who lives one-half mile from the site, has resigned himself to owning a piece of history.

"I'm sorry it happened," he said.

"And I'm beginning to wish, since it happened, that it had happened on somebody else's land."

Somewhere in the nearby sand hills lie the remains of more than 130 Indians.

Despite what Chivington said in his message, the Cheyenne chief Black Kettle was not among the dead. He and his wife escaped, only to be killed by troops under George Armstrong Custer during a similar incident on the Washita River in Oklahoma in 1868.

Almost a dozen years after Chivington attacked the slumbering camp at Sand Creek, the Sioux, aided by some Northern Cheyennes, surrounded and killed Custer and 264 of his soldiers at the Little Bie Horn River in Montana.

DO YOU WORSHIP "THE UNKNOWN GOD?"

Paul, standing before the people at the Mars Hill forum, addressed them as follows: "Men of Athens, I notice that you are very religious, for as I was out walking I saw your many altars, and one of them had this inscription on it -- 'To the Unknown God.' You have been worshipping Him without knowing who He is, and now I wish to tell you about Him."

"He made the world and everything in it, and since He is Lord of heaven and earth, He doesn't live in man - made temples; and human hands can't minister to His needs -- for He has no needs! He Himself gives life and breath to everything, and satisfies every need there is. He created all the people of the world from one man, Adam, and scattered the nations across the face of the earth. He decided beforehand which should rise and fall, and when. He determined their boundaries. His purpose in all of this is that they should seek after God, and perhaps feel their way toward Him and find Him -- though He is not far from any one of us. For in Him we live and move and are! As one of your own poets says it, 'We are the sons of God.'"

"If this is true, we shouldn't think of God as an idol made by men from gold and silver or chipped from stone. God tolerated man's past ignorance about these things, but now He commands everyone to put away idols and worship only Him. For He has set a day for justly judging the world by the man He has appointed, and has pointed Him out by bringing Him back to life again."

When they heard Paul speak of the resurrection of a person who had been dead, some laughed, but others said, "We want to hear more about this later." But a few joined him and became believers.

Texas gets second payment

AUSTIN (AP) — The estate of reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes has made a second $25 million tax payment to Texas, ending an eight-year legal fight over his fortune.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said Wednesday that Texas now has deposited just over $50 million in the state Treasury, the amount agreed upon in a settlement reached last year with the Hughes estate and the state of California.

"This wraps up a complicated case that lasted eight years, with the state of Texas definitely getting its money's worth," Mattox said.

When the settlement was reached, Mattox called it probably "the most publicized and complicated probate case in this country's history."

The legal battle began on April 5, 1976, when Hughes died aboard a private jet flying from Acapulco to Houston, where the billionaire was to receive medical treatment.

After his death, Texas and California each pursued inheritance tax claims on the massive Hughes estate. The case had been before the U.S. Supreme Court three times.

Hughes left no verified will. More than 40 purported wills and hundreds of prospective heirs surfaced over the years. A series of trials in 1981 trimmed the number of heirs to 22.

Hughes, the son of the inventor of the oil drill bit, was born in Texas and lived in the state for 20 years.

But he also lived in Los Angeles and San Diego counties in California for about 41 years. Claiming to still be a Texan during that time, he stayed in rented or borrowed homes and said he was visiting California on business.
