Gas Up, Food Down

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, fueled by the biggest gasoline price hikes in eight years but restrained by the sharpest food cost declines since 1976, rose at an annual rate of 7.1 percent in July, the government said today.

Department said. But food prices tumbled 1.5 percent, the biggest drop since February 1976. Falling prices for beef and veal accounted for much of the decline. July's overall increase seemed moderate, however, in comparison with the 13.3 percent rise posted the month before. Even with the sizable increases in June and July, inflation at the wholesale level was running at a modest annual rate of 3.1 percent for the first seven months of this year — well under the 7 percent of 1981 and 11.8 percent of 1980. Economists are still predicting that wholesale-price inflation for all of 1982 will be about 5 percent. Buttrressing that argument, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics revised its estimate of April wholesale price activity to record a 0.1 percent drop. The revised April figure, following declines of 0.2 percent in February and 0.1 percent in March, means that wholesale prices fell for three straight months for the first time since early 1967. Overall, the Producer Price Index for finished goods, the official name for the wholesale price measure, rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in July.

Prices rose for 12 straight months at July's rate, the yearly gain would be 7.1 percent after seasonal adjustment. The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public. Today's report said that for the 12 months ending in July, prices at the wholesale level rose 3.6 percent. The 7.9 percent gain posted by gasoline prices last month outpaced the 5.7 percent overall jump recorded for energy prices. Both gasoline and the overall measure of energy costs had risen 4.1 percent in June. Prices last month for home heating oil rose 5.4 percent, compared with 7 percent in June. Natural gas prices were up 2.4 percent, less than the 2.9 percent gain of June. For the first seven months of the year, energy prices have fallen at a 6.3 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate. But the once-abundant oil stockpiles have been shrinking the last few months, a development economists have pointed to in predicting that inflation for all of this year will be slightly higher than the rate registered so far. July's decline in food prices was the first since a 0.1 percent drop in March. Beef and veal prices tumbled 5.2 percent in July, after climbing for the last six months. Declines were also recorded for fresh and dried vegetables, fish, poultry, pork, fresh fruits and cooking oils. Egg and sugar prices

Gospel Jubilee Sunday Night

The Hereford & Vicinity YMCA will stage a "Gospel Jubilee" at 8 p.m. Sunday at Whiteface Stadium, featuring musical entertainment for the entire family. Two Hereford artists, Mary Crist and Johnny Ray Watson, will be among the featured performers in the show.

Also on the stage will be Zeldia Ellison from Dimmitt, Jim Fullingim of Petersburg, and The Living Water Gospel Band from Pampa. Tickets to the show are $3 in advance and $4 at the gate the night of the show. Advance tickets are available from YMCA board members. All proceeds will go to the YMCA's operating fund. In case of bad weather the show will be moved to the Hereford High School auditorium.

Miss Hereford Pageant Saturday

Seventeen Hereford High School beauties will vie for the title of "Miss Hereford" Saturday night in the high school auditorium. "The Rainbow Connection" is the theme for this year's pageant, sponsored again by the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Dana Ulbarri, the reigning Miss Hereford, will crown her successor when the finals are completed Saturday night. The pageant finale gets underway at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, but the contestants will be busy all day. Personal interviews with the judges will be held Saturday morning at the E.B. Black House, and talent competition begins at 2 p.m. in the auditorium. Eight girls will be selected to perform their talent in the finals Saturday night. Tickets for the afternoon talent show are $2 for adults and $1 for children. Tickets for the pageant finale are $2.50. John Dawson, popular Amarillo broadcaster, will serve as master of ceremonies for the pageant. Keith Ann Gearn is the pageant director, and judges are Cheri Turner Sparks of Big Spring and Bill and Carol Ellis of Friona.

Coalition Calling for Economic Assistance for Area Farmworkers

A coalition representing migrant farmworkers, many of whom are finding little or no work during harvests this year, Thursday called for government assistance for the workers at a meeting at the Dimmitt Labor Camp. The coalition, represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Bill Beardall of Hereford, said the call for help has three goals. The initial step according to Beardall is to promote a general recognition of the migrant farmworkers' problems, some 80,000 of which have been affected by crop disasters in the High Plains area.

The second step is to focus on sources of disaster aid that may be available. Beardall said applications for this type of aid have been filled out. And, thirdly, to search for contingency plans to be in place in advance. The 1981 Farm Bill allowed for farmer disaster aid payments, and the coalition believes the farmworkers need similar aid. Beardall asked that the workers be given the same consideration given area farmers whose crops were destroyed by violent weather this summer. Beardall, and other members of the coalition, rebutted claims by government officials who have said that the plight of farmworkers have been overstated. Texas Gov. Bill Clements said farmers with whom he had spoken did not believe that the problem was the extensive. "He hasn't talked to the same farmers we have," Beardall said. The lawyer specifically said that the coalition's call for assistance was supported by the American Agriculture Movement and the Texas Farmers Union, organizations made up of area and state farmers. Texas Farm Workers Union organizer Jesus Moya accused Clements of not seeing "the real need" for disaster aid to be given the farmworkers. "His administration has tended to minimize the problem by looking the other way," Moya charged. "What we need is immediate economic assistance for these people." Earlier this week, Dr. Robert Guzman, Texas migrant advocate from the governor's office is closer to 8,500 with only 4,000-5,000 or those in serious financial trouble. Guzman said those figures were based on a Motivational Education and Training, Inc.

program, but a MET spokesman attending Thursday's meeting said that Guzman didn't realize that the figures he was quoting were family figures and not individual figures. "He was using this as an individual figure when it is a family figure and every one of those 8,000 plus families consists of an average of six people. We aren't talking about 8,465 people, but 8,465 families of six," she said. She also said that the figure of 8,465 families is based on the 15 counties in the immediate area only, and another 70 counties throughout the state have been affected. "This figure doesn't include the people working in the vegetable production counties in the area either. Nor were permanent residents included. It was a totally migrant figure," she said.

Reagan Warns Begin 'Enough is Enough'

WASHINGTON (AP) — After muffled criticism of Israel for weeks, President Reagan publicly expressed outrage over its attacks on west Beirut because he felt "enough is enough," a senior White House official says. A stern-faced Reagan talked with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin by telephone for 10 minutes Thursday, saying the bombing and shelling of west Beirut imperiled the peace talks at a crucial stage and caused "needless destruction and bloodshed." Reagan told Begin that Israel's latest attack — the fiercest yet in the nine-week war — was excessive and out of proportion, according to the White House official who requested anonymity. "Today was pretty direct," he said of Reagan's tone. Until now, Reagan has been restrained in his public comments about Begin and Israel, fearing that criticism might make the volatile prime minister more defiant, and perhaps jeopardize the efforts of special envoy Philip Habib for the evacuation of Palestinian guerrillas from west Beirut. Reagan's frustration apparently had been growing for weeks; on Aug. 1 he told reporters, "This must be resolved and the bloodshed must stop," and added: "I lost patience a long time ago." After Thursday's attacks brought a halt to Habib's negotiations, Reagan placed the call to Begin, and later let aides make his criticism public. "It had just gone on too long," the official said. "Enough is enough, it's just gone beyond reason." As Reagan waited for his call to go through, he was called by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, who expressed concern about developments in Beirut and asked the United States to do whatever it could. Two administration officials, speaking anonymously, said Israel's actions threatened to undermine relations with the United States.

Insurance Companies Wanting Even More

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas automobile insurance industry spokesman says the $278 million difference between the rate hike it wants and the increase proposed by the State Board of Insurance staff is a result of "an honest difference of opinion." The two proposals were laid out Thursday as the three-member board began its review of auto insurance rates. The staff says a 17.3 percent increase is justified. That increase would mean $306 million more in premiums from Texas motorists. Any new rates approved by the board would be effective Nov. 1. The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office says a 33.2 percent increase is needed. The TAISO proposal would add $584 million to the $1.75 billion in premiums paid by Texans this year. David Irons, TAISO lawyer, told reporters that insurance companies now must

Veteran Actor Dead at 77

Nation Mourns Fonda

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Fonda, dead at the age of 77, was remembered from Hollywood to New England, the setting of his Oscar-winning role in "On Golden Pond," as the unpretentious hero he portrayed so well in more than 100 stage and screen performances. With his wife, Shirlee, at his bedside, the veteran actor died peacefully Thursday at Cedars Sinai Medical Center of respiratory failure brought on by his long fight with heart disease. Fonda, who appeared in more than 80 films and dozens of plays during a career that spanned a half-century, had worn a pacemaker since 1974 and had been in and out of the hospital since his most recent heart surgery in May 1981. He was hospitalized on Sunday for the last time. "He was comfortable and was in no pain," Mrs. Fonda, flanked by the actor's children, Jane, Peter and adopted daughter Amy, told reporters gathered outside the family's Bel-Air home. "He had a good night. He talked with all of us and he was conscious at all times. He woke up this morning, he sat up and just stopped breathing." Among those who paid their respects in person during the day were James Stewart, Eva Marie Saint, James Garner, Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers. In accordance with his wishes, Fonda's eyes were donated to the Manhattan Eye Institute and his body was cremated hours after he died, family spokeswoman Pat Kingsley said. She said there would be no funeral and the family had not decided what to do with the remains. A tall, lean man with an honest face, Fonda played presidents and senators, lawyers and soldiers, farmers and indigents with equal skill. But despite his prominence, he kept his open manner and was remembered as much for his personal qualities as his professional achievements. "I don't think you'll ever find anybody who'll have anything but good to say about Hank," said Glenn Ford, Fonda's co-star in "Midway" and "The Rounders." "We've lost one of a kind... he was a real super, super, super actor," said Lucille Ball, who worked with Fonda in "The Big Street" and "Yours, Mine and Ours." In the New Hampshire community of Holderness, whose Squam Lake was the setting for Fonda's Oscar-winning performance in "On Golden Pond," word of his death hit hard. "We feel we've lost an old-timer from this area, even though I think it was his first time here," said Malcolm Taylor, president of the Squam Lakes Association. "He much preferred to eat lunch with members of the crew — the roustabouts, cameramen, sound people. He just sat right down among them and was right at home." In his hometown of Omaha, Neb., Fonda was the boy who made good but never forgot his roots. His family asked that instead of flowers, donations be made to the Omaha Community Playhouse's Henry Fonda Theater Center Memorial. Born Henry Jaynes Fonda in Grand Island, Neb., on May 16, 1905, Fonda grew up in Omaha and got his start in acting at the Playhouse with a bit part in 1925. The son of a printer, Fonda quit journalism studies at the University of Minnesota to study at the Playhouse under Marlon Brando's mother, then moved east to work at the University Players Guild on Cape Cod. There he met Margaret Sullavan, first of his five wives, and Stewart, who later roomed with Fonda at New York's

Officials Hear Events Center Report

A special presentation on the Special Events Center proposal was shown to representatives of the city, county and school district Tuesday night following a regular school board meeting. A slide presentation was presented by Jim Conkright and Wayne Thomas, members of the SEC study group. The committee also introduced Jim Curly of Dallas, executive vice president of First Southwest Co., and Tom Mills and Tom Davis, Lubbock architects. Since the SEC plan recommends that each of the local governmental units call bond elections for building major portions of the complex, Thomas explained that the financial advisors and architects were invited here to answer questions on the proposal. Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce last week approved the master plan for the project. The concept was initiated by the Past Presidents' Committee of the chamber, and the subcommittee headed by Conkright was appointed to make a feasibility study. The SEC subcommittee commissioned a department at Texas Tech University to make a survey and do research on the proposal. The slide presentation is a result of that research. Thomas explained that First Southwest is the largest financial advisor in the state and does about six percent of the nation's business in municipal bonds. Curly said the bond market had been "more favorable" recently, dropping from the 13 percent range to 10 percent. Thomas noted that Amarillo sold some bonds this week at 9 percent. Curly also told the group that the three governmental bodies here were in "excellent condition" insofar as bonded indebtedness is concerned. Each of the local (See REPORT, Page 2)

Police Seeking Stabbing Suspect

Hereford police are searching for a suspect today after a local man was stabbed at McDonald's Restaurant Thursday evening. Joaquin Alejandro, 706 E. Third, told police that a man came up to him at the restaurant around 9:45 p.m. Thursday and stabbed him in the chest. Alejandro was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital and treated after the incident. He was under observation in the hospital's intensive care unit this morning. Police also received prower calls from residents on Ave. J and Douglas, while one harrassing phone call was reported. The Hereford Independent School District reported that employees at Northwest Elementary School caught a couple of kids removing a screen on a window there, and told them to leave Thursday, while A.L. Greenway, 334 Ave. G., filed a complaint on a neighbor for littering. Greenway told police that the neighbor allegedly cleans out trucks in front of his house, littering the street with the debris. Police issued five citations Thursday, and arrested one person for DWI.

Collapse of Bank Bringing New Pressure on Vatican

ROME (AP) — The collapse of Banco Ambrosiano, Italy's largest private bank, has brought new pressure on the Vatican to clarify its role in one of Italy's worst postwar financial scandals.

The controversy centers on the relationship between Banco Ambrosiano's late President Roberto Calvi and the Vatican bank, headed by American Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus.

It also involves Calvi's rise from ambitious banking clerk to president of the company, his suicide and an international trail of murky business deals.

The Treasury Ministry liquidated Banco Ambrosiano Aug. 6 and named a group of seven banks to take over the financially troubled operation.

Banco Ambrosiano's problems stem from $1.4 billion in loans that Calvi engineered — allegedly on the strength of a letter of patronage from Marcinkus — for several obscure Panamanian companies that apparently were unable or unwilling to repay the debt. Marcinkus has denied any wrongdoing.

Apparently because of that letter and reports that the Vatican owns part of the Panamanian companies, Treasurer Minister Beniamino Andreatta called on the Vatican bank to assume its share of responsibility for the debt.

Andreatta said he made clear that the government expected cooperation from the Vatican and had taken steps to determine "if we're talking only about giving trust to a friendly banker or involvement in a de facto partnership."

As president, Marcinkus has virtual autonomy in running the bank, known formally as the Institute for Religious Works. It provides normal banking services for its estimated 7,000 customers, mostly religious organizations and members of the clergy.

The Italian government and the Vatican have been at odds since the scandal broke in June. That struggle escalated in July when a Milan prosecutor probing the scandal sent Marcinkus and two lay officers of the bank official notification that they were being investigated.

The Vatican refused to accept the notices, saying they had not been sent by proper diplomatic channels to the independent city-state.

It was not known what the notices said, but Italy's leading daily, Corriere della Sera, quoted unidentified sources as saying the three men were suspected of fraud.

How the Vatican got involved in the scandal is a complicated story involving the wheeling and dealing of Calvi, who rose from a bank clerk to president of Banco Ambrosiano.

Because of his success — the bank's profits tripled in 1981 — Calvi was allowed a tremendous amount of leeway by the bank's board of directors in making financial deals.

Financial sources and press accounts said he used that power to arrange $1.4 billion in loans from a bank holding company to three subsidiaries of Banco Ambrosiano in Latin America and the Caribbean.

The subsidiaries then loaned the money to Panamanian front companies, the sources said.

Calvi reportedly raised the money for the high-risk loans using a letter of patronage signed by Marcinkus.

Italian banking sources say they do not know whether the letter of patronage legally binds the Vatican to back the loans.

There is also some question whether Marcinkus knew what Calvi was doing, or if he was just helping out a friend and trusted banker.

It has not been determined where the money ended up or what it was used for, although there were reports that Calvi used it to buy shares in his own bank.

Calvi's empire began falling apart last year when he was convicted of illegally exporting $26.4 million, sentenced to four years in prison and fined $13 million.

He was appealing that conviction when Italy's central bank asked him to explain the $1.4 billion in loans which were coming due at the same time.

According to press accounts, the banker approached the Vatican bank to help him out, but Marcinkus apparently refused.

Facing a jail term and unable to come up with funds for the loans, Calvi vanished June 10.

His disappearance upset Italian financial circles.

DOLLAR POWER Strong and Getting Stronger

The dollar has been making a strong and continuing recovery in world markets. It is at a high point for the last five years against most major currencies, although some experts are predicting a moderate downturn by the end of the year. The dollar's strength is a drag on U.S. trade — making American products more expensive abroad — but a boon to American tourists who are making this a boom summer for Western Europe. The latest exchange rates are for the first trading day of August. For previous years they mark the year's high point for the dollar.

Majority of Americans Believe in Reagan

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite growing pessimism about the economy and President Reagan's plans to fix it, a majority of Americans continue to have confidence in Reagan and his economic program, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

Sixty-one percent of those polled said they think the nation's economy has gotten worse in the last year, up from 53 percent in June, with two of every three people who said the economy had worsened blaming Reagan's policies.

At the same time, the poll found sharp division among Americans over Reagan's plan for tax increases to offset record budget deficits.

For the poll, 1,594 adults in a nationwide scientific random sampling were surveyed by telephone Monday and Tuesday.

Confidence in Reagan's plan for reviving the economy has been declining since January, when 75 percent of those polled said they had as much or more confidence in the program as one year earlier.

In the recent AP-NBC poll, 57 percent said they have some or a lot of confidence in Reagan's ability to improve the economy in the next year, and 57 percent said they have the same or more confidence in his economic program than they did a year ago.

Asked whether as of today they would deem the program a success or failure, 50 percent said a failure, 31 percent said a success and 19 percent said either they were not sure or it was too soon to tell.

That represents a slight change from the May AP-NBC News poll, when 47 percent said Reaganomics was a failure and 34 percent a success.

In the latest poll, 58 percent said Reagan has had enough time to begin improving the economy. But four out of five of those respondents said it has not improved since Reagan became president.

A cornerstone of the president's program of tax and spending cuts was a $350 billion tax cut approved by Congress a year ago.

Now, however, Reagan is pushing for a nearly $100 billion tax increase — mostly on business deductions, airline tickets, telephone calls and cigarette sales — to offset projected federal budget deficits of more than $100 billion for each of the next three years.

There was sharp division over the tax increase proposal among those polled. Thirty-seven percent approved, 32 percent disapproved, 6 percent were not sure and 25 percent said they had not heard or read about the proposal.

In June, 39 percent said the economy would get better, 24 percent said worse and 33 percent said the same. At that time, two out of three people saying they economy would worsen attributed it to Reagan's program.

Throughout the poll, confidence in Reagan was closely linked to what respondents thought the economy had done in the past year and what it is going to do in the next. People who said the economy has improved and is going to get even better were more likely than other respondents to say they have confidence in the president and his economic program.

Thirty-six percent of those polled said they think the economy will improve in the next year, 31 percent said it would worsen, 28 percent said it would stay about the same and 5 percent were not sure.

Three of four of those expecting the economy to worsen blamed Reaganomics.

Phase of Textbook Selection Ends

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The first phase in selection of $37 million in textbooks for Texas schools ended today as the State Textbook Committee completed a five-day hearing to gather public comment.

The committee meets in Austin again on Sept. 7 to select the books it will recommend for adoption in the state's schools next year.

At Thursday's hearing, Mrs. Russell Preston, a Garland housewife complained that proposed schoolbooks on health "teach values contrary to the values I teach my children at home."

Mrs. Preston objected to a definition in "Homemaking Skills for Everyday Living," which she said defined a family unit as two or more persons living together.

"This leaves the door open for homosexuality, cohabitation and communal living," she said. "This book has repeated attempts to undermine parental authority."

Singer Joe Tex Is Dead After Heart Attack

NAVASOTA, Texas (AP) — Soul singer and recording artist Joe Tex, 47, died early today at a hospital here three days after suffering a heart attack.

Tex, a professional singer for almost 30 years, performed on radio, television and in concerts in four continents. He made a number of records on the Dial label. His hits include "Hold On to What You've Got," "Skinny Legs and All," "I Ain't Gonna Bump No More (With No Big Fat Woman)" and "I Got You."

The singer was born in Navasota as Joseph Arrington Jr. He later adopted the Muslim name of Joseph Hazziez, but kept his stage name of Joe Tex.

He served in the Army and saw combat in Korea.

Striking Workers Agree To Contract

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — The 3,000-member union representing most of the 3,500 workers striking Texaco's flagship refinery since January agreed to a 3½-year contract Thursday that includes a 9 percent wage hike in 1982.

A majority of the members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Local 4-23 voted to accept the contract offered by Texaco management, union spokesmen said.

Details of the contract were not released after the vote, which came late Thursday night. Negotiators will meet Saturday to complete details on the approved contract proposal.

The union said it will not return to work until three other unions representing 500 workers agree to the contract.

update friday New Air Force Cargo Plane Chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee of House and Senate negotiators has selected the Lockheed C-5B as the Air Force's new cargo plane, says a congressman who took part in the deliberations.

The reported decision was made Thursday night by a conference committee meeting in marathon session to draft a compromise authorization bill for the Defense Department.

The panel, in recognition of the staunch battle put up by advocates of the rival Boeing 747 jumbo jet, also agreed to earmark about $150 million for three of those planes, said another source, who declined to be identified.

Rep. Robin Beard, R-Tenn., whose state would gain major sub-contracts if the Lockheed plane is built, said backers of the C-5B had to "struggle all the way" as the conferees met far into the night to compromise differences between the Senate's $177.9 billion bill for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 and the $175.3 billion version passed by the House.

The Washington Post reported, meanwhile, that the conferees accepted a House provision calling for more than $1 billion in production funds for the MX missile and a Senate measure obligating $54 million to begin manufacturing a new generation of nerve gas weapons.

But, By Others

Victim's Fiance Wants Revenge

HOUSTON (AP) — A man whose fiancee died in a car crash, says he won't seek revenge but hopes others will.

"There's people in Huntsville (the state prison) who probably make a specialty of trash like that, just eliminating them from society," said Bill Daigle, whose fiancee Elizabeth Montgomery was walking her dog last September when she was stabbed to death.

Daigle was waiting in Ms. Montgomery's apartment when he heard a scream.

"I ran out there," recalls Daigle. "She finished bleeding to death in my arms."

Coral Eugene Watts has admitted killing 11 women. He led police to three bodies this week and is suspected in a dozen other slayings in Michigan, Canada and Texas.

"On a personal level, I want to see him suffer as much as possible," said Martha Ryals, a friend of Ms. Montgomery, 25.

"I don't think any human can get revenge from him," Ms. Ryals said of Watts. "But I'd like to see it tried."

Daigle later moved to Louisiana, but said he wants to come back to Houston to take a hard look at the man police say killed his wife-to-be.

"It should be my right to see what he looks like," said Daigle. "I'm not trying to jump on him. I just want to look at him."

Police say Watts picked his victims at random and apparently believes all women are "evil."

He admitted the killings in a plea bargain, after authorities agreed not to prosecute him for the murders, police said. Watts pleaded guilty to an assault that could result in a 60-year sentence, the equivalent of a life sentence.

Some relatives approved of the arrangement and said they found comfort in having the slaying of a loved one cleared up.

John Wolf of Bay City, Mich., father of 21-year-old Susan Wolf, said he was saddened that Watts was not taken into custody early enough to save his daughter, but believes other deaths may have been prevented.

"I was kind of relieved to get somebody that's not right in his head off the streets," said Wolf.

Wolf said he last saw his daughter in February, 1981, when she left Michigan to find work in Houston. Her father didn't want her to go.

cover the increasing costs of car repairs and medical care.

"The simple fact is we have far more accidents and more cost per accident," he said, adding that there is "an honest difference of opinion" on how to calculate the increase needed.

No action was taken by the board on Thursday. Chairman Bill Daves recessed the hearing until Aug. 31.

Later, Daves told reporters that the staff recommendation might be reduced by an unspecified amount because of new data expected in two weeks.

Industry officials said the number of accidents in Texas rose by 6.2 percent during 1981. The number of injuries rose by 10.8 percent, according to TAISO.

Gaylon Daniel, board staff actuary, testified that while the cost of claims has risen, the number of claims has dropped. But he added, "It is evident that the increases in average claim costs have overshadowed the reductions in claim frequencies."

The staff and industry proposals are the only ones brought to the board. Rebecca Lightsey of the Texas Consumer Association called the TAISO proposal "ludicrous."

However, Ms. Lightsey said TCA would not get involved in the hearing because of the complexities of insurance rate-setting.

"We're pretty much left up to the State Board of Insurance. Their record of being fair to consumers and the insurance companies is excellent," she said Thursday.

rose. Coffee prices were virtually unchanged.

So far this year, food prices have risen 4.8 percent.

The department reported these other details on wholesale price activity in July:

—Prices for passenger cars rose a small 0.3 percent, after soaring 1.9 percent in the previous month. Light truck prices were off 0.7 percent after a sharp 3 percent advance in June.

—Capital equipment costs rose 0.5 percent, less than the 0.8 percent gain in June. Those costs are for machinery and transportation equipment used by business.

All the increases are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index for finished goods stood at 281.7 in July, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $28.17 last month.

units owes less than one percent on bonded indebtedness.

Thomas said that the committee selected the financial advisors and architects, hoping the local governmental bodies would use the same professionals. Besides picking "top-notch companies," Thomas said the committee avoided any favoritism by selecting persons who had not previously worked for any local agency.

He added that both the financial advisors and architects agree to work on a contingent basis, with no fees being charged unless the bond issues are successful.

The master plan for the Special Events Center calls for the city to build an indoor pool, the county to finance an auditorium-banquet hall, and the school district to construct a gymnasium.

The complex, as proposed, would also include buildings for the YMCA, Senior Citizens, and possible Hereford Day Care Center and others.

Madison Square Hotel while both worked on Broadway.

After starring with Imogene Coca in "New Faces" in 1934, Fonda won a $1,000-a-week contract with movie producer Walter Wanger and began his film career with "The Farmer Takes A Wife" in 1935.

Five years and 20 films later, he got his first of three Academy Award nominations for his portrayal of Tom Joad in "The Grapes of Wrath." Another would follow in 1957 for "Twelve Angry Men," in which he played a juror who singlehandedly persuaded his 11 colleagues to acquit a young murder defendant.

In 1961 he was awarded a special lifetime achievement Oscar. But it was not until this year that he won an Oscar for his performance in "On Golden Pond" as Norman Thayer, a retired professor who masked his fear of death with grim humor. Too ill to attend the awards ceremonies, Fonda wept as he watched daughter Jane accept the Oscar on television.

After his brief, stormy marriage to Miss Sullavan, Fonda married Frances Seymour Brokaw, mother of Jane and Peter, who committed suicide in a mental asylum while they were estranged. Later marriages, to actress Susan Blanchard and Italian Countess Aldera Franchetti ended in divorce. In 1966 he married Shirlee Adams, an airline stewardess 28 years younger than he.

Despite his liberal views, he feuded for many years with his daughter Jane over her radical politics and was for a time estranged from both Jane and Peter.

Fonda's best-remembered films focused on the quest for justice and fair play. He told biographer Howard Teichmann that his social consciousness dated from his youth, when his father took him to see the lynching of a rape suspect.

Fonda also had an explanation for those who wondered how a onetime Eagle Scout and aspiring journalist wound up an actor.

"It's therapy for me," he said late in his life. "I loved the theater from the beginning because it gave me a mask. It ain't me playing a role up there; I'm Tom Joad or Mister Roberts or Clarence Darrow."

Rome Hikes Fines For Unruly Drivers

ROME (AP) — Rome's government is trying to rein in the notoriously undisciplined drivers who often make the Eternal City the Infernal City.

Acting under a court ruling, the Communist-led municipal government hiked fines as much as sixfold for such traffic offenses as speeding, excessive horn-blowing, running red lights and driving without a license.

Milan, Naples and Florence also put into effect the "maximulte," as the press calls the large fines, after the Council of State, an administrative court, gave municipalities the authority to go ahead with the new traffic discipline.

The new penalties took effect in Rome Sunday, resulted in at least one attack on a policeman and touched off charges that the debt-plagued government was trying to raise money from easy targets.

The commander of traffic police felt compelled to appeal for cooperation and respect for traffic rules.

"Only a sense of responsibility and self-discipline by everyone can help those whose job it is to limit accidents and preserve human life," said Luciano Massarotti.

The city cracked down during the August vacation season when hundreds of thousands of Romans were at the seashore or in the mountains. But on the first day, fines collected totaled 30 million lire, or about $21,000, a 9 percent increase in the previous daily average.

Police said most drivers paid up on the spot rather than go to court. But one beat up the officer who called in a tow truck because his car was blocking a street. A tow now sets the driver back 77,000 lire ($55).

Actors Love To Be Loved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When an actor plays a character who is stuffy and pompous you can bet he's going to wage a campaign to change him to warm and lovable.

Loretta Swit made such a transformation on "M-A-S-H." She's no longer Hot Lips Houlihan, but is Maj. Margaret Houlihan. You can bet if Larry Linville had stayed we'd be finding Frank Burns adorable.

Actors want to be loved. It's no less true on CBS's "Trapper John, M.D." a sort of delayed spinoff of "M-A-S-H," in which Charles Siebert plays an updated (and more civilized) doctor. In the first few years of "Trapper John," Siebert played Dr. Stanley Riverside as a likable but officious chief of emergency services at San Francisco Memorial Hospital. His purpose in the show was to be a thorn in the side of Trapper John, played by Pernell Roberts, and Gonzalo Gates, played by Gregory Harrison.

But Dr. Riverside has also been undergoing change. Some of the stuffing has been coming out of his shirt.

"He's more human now, but it's hard to say how he's changed," Siebert says. "I've lived with it so much and am so much a part of it that the lines get blurry."

"There has been a deliberate effort on my part to make him a more acceptable human being without losing the comic edge. I also think the public accepts more. They like to predict the outcome."

In terms of success, "Trapper John" has just about, but not quite, equalled the success of "M-A-S-H."

"I was going to say it was because it's a medical show, but not all medical shows make it," Siebert said. "It's a compelling environment that people can latch on to. They've either been in a hospital, or they've never been and never want to. The light blend of serious subjects has caught on. And Dr. Riverside is the lightest one on the show. We've gotten into serious melodrama, but we've always kept pulling back — with a soupçon of giggles. It seems to be right for the times."

Siebert was a regular on the series, "Husbands, Wives and Lovers," and had recurring roles on "The Blue Knight" and "One Day at a Time."

He said he moved to Los Angeles after exhausting all the work possibilities in New York.

"It was time to come out, time to look for something different," said Siebert, a native of Kenosha, Wis., and a graduate of Marquette University. He studied at the London Academy of Music and Art and remained an additional two years as a teacher and director.

The first job he landed was on "The Rockford Files."

Registration Set Wednesday

Parents who are employed or enrolled at West Texas State University and wish to place their children at the Children's Center for the fall semester should pre-register them before Wednesday, Aug. 18.

Earleen Huff, director of the WTSU Children's Center, said the center will not close before fall classes begin and parents may pre-register their children for care. The fall semester begins with registration on Wednesday, Aug. 25.

She also said a rate increase has been necessary for the first time. Fees for one child for a full day have increased from $7 to $8 and the fee for one-half day is $5.50 per child. Center personnel will provide free transportation to and from school to the center and $3 is charged for the afternoon care.

Rates also include a hot lunch provided through the United States Department of Agriculture program. Huff said no cuts, as a result of federal budget reductions, have been indicated in the program. Lunches are provided to all children enrolled at the center.

The center is open to children between the ages of 18 months and 12 years who are children of WTSU students and employees. Center personnel provide day care and a pre-school educational program for children between the ages of 18 months and five years.

Certified teachers with special endorsements teach and provide activities for the group at five different levels of development, said Huff, including social, emotional, physical, cognitive and creative growth.

Teachers present educational material each morning and the afternoon will involve student workers and day care workers.

The center also has available a newly-published parent handbook which outlines procedures and policies.

"We also encourage visitors," said Huff.

During two summer school sessions at WTSU, children at the Children's Center participated in a variety of activities. An average of 54 children daily attended.

For the children in the age group of 18 months to four years, activities including cooking, wading, puppet shows and picnics. The older children participated in cooking, swimming, attended movies and skating parties, picnics field trips to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum on the WTSU campus and the Canyon Library.

They studied safety procedures, manners, pioneer life, patriotism, foreign countries, fears or "scary things" and hosted a circus week, said Huff.

The Children's Center at WTSU is a non-profit, self-supporting organization.

"The governing board discussed a fund-raising project and they ask for community support in recognizing our needs," said Huff. "We still need playground equipment and we could use volunteers to make clothes (doll clothing and costumes) and to rock the babies."

"The quality of our program is very much affected by increasing costs."

Additional information concerning the WTSU Children's Center may be obtained from Huff.

Braves Need Pride Royster Complains

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO
Associated Press Writer

The Atlanta Braves are starting to sound exactly like a team that has lost not only ten games in a row, but its hold on first place as well.

And, for a team that has made up 12 games in the standings in 15 days, the Los Angeles Dodgers are acting more than a little blasé about the whole thing.

"The guys are going to have to start showing pride," said third baseman Jerry Royster of the Braves, who lost their 10th straight and 14th in the last 15 games Thursday by an 8-2 margin to San Diego.

"It's nice to be in front by a game and a half, but it only matters if that's where we are the final day of the season," said Ron Cey, who homered and drove in three runs in Los Angeles' 6-2 victory over San Francisco. It was the surging Dodgers' 13th victory in their last 15 games, and improved their lead in the National League West to 1 1/2 games over the staggering Braves.

In other National League action, St. Louis vaulted into first place in the NL East with a 3-2 triumph over Pittsburgh, Montreal swept a twin-night doubleheader from Philadelphia 6-3 and 8-7, and Chicago pounded New York 13-6.

Terry Kennedy whacked a two-run homer while winning pitcher Chris Welsh belted a two-run double in a five-run sixth inning as the Padres beat the Braves.

"Everything we do seems to backfire," said loser Bob Walk, 10-8.

Welsh, 6-5, earned the victory in relief of starter Andy Hawkins as the Braves fell to 0-8 on their current road trip.

The incredible collapse of the Braves, who led the NL West by nine games as recently as July 29, has thrown the division into a four-team race. San Diego trails Los Angeles by 3 1/2 games, while the Giants are just five games behind the leaders.

Dodgers 6, Giants 2

The Dodgers broke open a 2-2 tie with four runs in the eighth. A bases-loaded walk to Pedro Guerrero brought in the tie-breaking run, and then Cey put the game out of reach with a two-run single.

Tom Niedenfuer, 2-2, who relieved starter Jerry Reuss when the Giants had the bases loaded in the sixth, earned the victory as the Dodgers snapped San Francisco's 10-game winning streak, the club's longest since 1966.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 2

The Cards went into first place in the NL East by a half-game over Philadelphia as Lonnie Smith had three singles and drove in two runs and Bruce Sutter quelled a Pittsburgh uprising for his 23rd save of the season.

Joaquin Andujar, 9-10, picked up the victory for St. Louis.

Expos 6-8, Phillies 3-7

The Phillies yielded first place in the NL East to St. Louis after dropping a pair to the Expos.

In the opener, Bill Gullickson, 9-9, scattered nine hits before getting last-out relief from Jeff Reardon, who notched his 18th save. Gullickson also contributed an RBI single. Warren Cromartie singled home Gary Carter from second base with two out in the ninth inning to win the nightcap.

Cubs 13, Mets 6

Steve Henderson, who lost his job as the Cubs' starting leftfielder earlier in the year, drove in four runs on four hits — including his first homer of the year — as Chicago scored their sixth victory in the last seven games.

Henderson credited Cubs' batting coach Billy Williams for his return to form.

Mike Proly, 2-1, was the winner in relief as the Cubs moved to within one game of overtaking New York and escaping the NL East cellar.

Tiant Downs Twins, 3-1

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

Veteran pitcher Luis Tiant gave his wife, Maria, an anniversary present, and had a little something for the California Angels, too.

The 41-year-old Tiant, who was playing in Mexico just a couple of weeks ago, hurled the Angels to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, boosting California back into the American League West lead over the idle Kansas City Royals.

"We've been married 21 years today," Tiant said Thursday night between puffs on a cigar. "I wanted to win as a present to her."

"I never lost the faith in myself or God that I could come back to the major leagues and win when I went to Mexico this spring."

"El Tiant" allowed six hits, struck out four and walked one in his seven-inning stint, his second start since the Angels purchased him from Tabasco of the Mexican League Aug. 2. And then he talked about the thing he knows best — pitching.

"You can't set up these young Twins the way you can an experienced hitter," said Tiant, now 1-1. "So I mixed a lot of slow stuff, then busted the fast ball once in a while when I really needed it."

In other American League games, Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Toronto, 7-1 and 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox edged the New York Yankees 2-1.

"I feel good. My arm is good," said Tiant, who is in his 19th year in the major leagues. "I made some good pitches today. I want to go on as far as I can, but I don't know how many years."

Tiant's last big-league victory came on Sept. 15, 1981, when he beat the Chicago Cubs while pitching for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Brewers 7-4, Blue Jays 1-3
Gorman Thomas smashed his 29th and 30th homers of the season — one in each game — to power Milwaukee to its doubleheader sweep of Toronto. The twin victories increased the Brewers' AL East lead to 5 1/2 games over idle Boston.

Charlie Moore scored the go-ahead run in the second game on an error by Toronto left fielder Barry Bonnell.

In the first game, Thomas belted a two-run homer and Jim Gantner added a two-run double to back the five-hit pitching of Bob McClure as the Brewers won 7-1. Randy Lerch, 8-7, scattered seven hits through six innings to earn the victory in the second game.

Rollie Fingers, the third Brewer pitcher, went the final 12-3 innings in the nightcap for his 27th save of the season and 299th of his career, both marks major league highs.

White Sox 2, Yankees 1
Jerry Koosman hurled a four-hitter and Tony Bernazard drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning as Chicago nipped New York. The victory was the 12th in the last 14 games for the White Sox, while the Yankees suffered their third straight loss.

It was Koosman's first complete-game victory of the season.

Separate envoys

Byelorussia and the Ukraine, constituent republics of the U.S.S.R., have separate representation in the United Nations General Assembly. This is a result of a compromise after the Soviet Union protested the separate admission of members of the British Commonwealth during the formative days of the world organization.

Foes Aiming at Him

Is Dallas' Walls for Real?

DALLAS (AP) — Everson Walls believes he should have a bullseye painted in place of the star on his Dallas Cowboys' helmet.

"They'll be coming at me from the very first game ... They'll still want to see if I'm for real," the cocky cornerback said in Dallas' Thousand Oaks, Calif. training camp recently.

As a rookie, Walls, was in the words of now retired veteran free safety Charlie Waters, "On another planet." Walls, a free agent who grew up just two miles from the Dallas practice field, intercepted 11 passes and made the Pro Bowl in 1981.

"It's like being on the stage for the first time and having a successful Broadway play," he says. "Now everybody will want to know if I can do it again."

Walls, who led the nation in interceptions in 1980 at Grambling, says he has been reminded of the so-called "sophomore jinx" during the off-season.

"I don't see why your second year should be tougher than your first season," he says. "I think the rookie year is more hazardous. That's when you get your career off to a start. If you fail then you may never get another chance."

Coach Tom Landry called Walls his big surprise of the 1981 season.

Does Landry look for a Walls drop-off?

"He can only get better," Landry says.

Walls will be on display along with the rest of the National Conference Eastern Division champions Saturday night when the Cowboys host the Buffalo Bills in the annual Salesmanship Club charity game in Texas Stadium.

Landry believes one of the reasons Walls is so successful is his mental outlook.

"He gets beat on a play, but doesn't get down," says Landry. "Then he comes right back and makes a big play."

"I know Coach Landry believes in perfection," says Walls. "But I'm realistic to know I'll get beat from time to time. I'll come back every time if I do."

Walls never celebrates wildly like some defenders do when they've intercepted a pass.

"I'm like Coach Landry ... I'm trying to think ahead to the next play," Walls says.

Walls has so much confidence in himself that he has refused to sign a contract offered by the Cowboys.

"They offered $80,000 and I'm making $37,000," he says. "I think I should get more than the $80,000 so I'll prove it by having another really good year." Asked if "cocky" is a good way to describe himself, Walls answered, "If having confidence is cocky, then I'm cocky."

"And I think my teammates have confidence in me," he said.

Dolphins, Redskins To Show Solidarity

MIAMI (AP) — It would be a sight not so uncommon in sports, but taboo, nonetheless, in the National Football League.

Members of the Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins announced Thursday they plan to shake hands in a show of union solidarity before the start of their exhibition opener Saturday night.

But, NFL officials say, if the plan is carried out the team members will be fined for defying a league policy against fraternization.

"The fraternization is not written into the collective bargaining agreement. It's been a long-standing league policy that it's on a club-by-club basis," Jim Miller, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council said Thursday after player representatives for the two teams announced the planned solidarity gesture.

Miller said league officials have told players they face a minimum $100 fine for participating in any formal union demonstration at exhibition games, but stressed that the league would not try to keep the players apart.

"There have been no orders to prevent the handshakes and no action is planned at this time," said Miller.

Meanwhile, Miami Coach Don Shula said he would take "whatever action I deem appropriate" if his players participate.

Mathias Rejected Politics To Return to Sports

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

Seven years ago, Bob Mathias had a decision to make — whether to stay in politics and some day maybe run for President of the United States or return to his original love — sports — and battle the Soviets in another arena.

He chose the latter. "I learned that in sports you don't make enemies," the two-time Olympic decathlon king said. "Usually 100 per cent of the people like you. In politics, every vote you cast turns somebody off. If 51 per cent of the people like you in politics, you're a winner."

So after four terms in Congress — starting in 1966 — and as a Republican becoming an innocent victim of the Watergate scandal, he turned his attentions to an endeavor with which he had an intimate familiarity — amateur athletics.

He worked with the Amateur Athletic Union. He made five trips abroad for the State Department, helping organize sports programs in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America. Then in 1977 he was named director of the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, the project a fruition of his efforts during his eight years in Congress.

"We were falling behind other nations, especially the Communist countries, in the development of our Olympic talent," he said. "All the teams except the United States were subsidized by their governments."

While a member of Congress, from 1966 through 1974, he worked to have the inequities reduced through a logical program. The vast training center in Colorado Springs is the result.

The new concept was that the Olympic program would be supported by public contributions and sponsorship by corporations. The slogan became, "America doesn't support our Olympic teams, Americans do."

For example, the 34-acre Colorado complex, with its 20 buildings and most modern facilities for every sport, is underwritten by the Miller Brewing Company, which has guaranteed a minimum $3 million through the 1984 Games.

More than 10,000 Olympic hopefuls representing 30 sports train there yearly. "The gains we have made are tremendous," Mathias insists. "In 1976, we had no training center. We had no yearly Sports Festival, as the one recently in Indianapolis. Little enthusiasm. Athletes are now placed in good jobs and they are assured three months for training and competition every year without loss of pay.

"Unfortunately, we have only one center. Russia, Germany and other countries have them in almost every good-sized city. It is our aim to set up regional centers in the East, South, Southwest, Midwest and West. It's on the drawing board. But it will take a lot of money."

Mathias, a strapping six-footer from Tulare, Calif., who won the first of his two decathlons in London in 1948 at the age of 17, had the credentials to make great strides in politics as have Rep. Jack Kemp (R-N.Y.), a former quarterback, and Sen. Bill Bradley (D-N.J.), ex-basketball star, both regarded as future presidential prospects.

At the advice of her doctor, Rachel Jackson — wife of President Andrew Jackson — relieved her bronchial condition by smoking a corncob pipe.

Nielsen Saves Day, Oilers Win 22-20

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Gifford Nielsen saved the day for himself and Oilers owner Bud Adams.

Just as the boo-birds were warming up in the second quarter, Nielsen rallied the Oilers from a 13-0 deficit to a 22-20 victory over the New Orleans Saints Thursday night in the National Football League exhibition opener for both teams.

For Adams, it means he has bragging rights in the exclusive River Oaks section of town where he is a neighbor of Saints owner John Mecom Jr.

"Obviously, Gifford had very good poise tonight," Oilers Coach Ed Biles said.

Nielsen, who netted the Oilers only 22 total yards in the first quarter, hit tight end Dave Casper with a 20-yard touchdown shot with 2:29 left in the game to secure Houston's first victory over the Saints in two years.

The Saints had taken a 13-0 lead on a 1-yard touchdown run by George Rogers and field goals of 44 and 39 yards by Benny Ricardo before Nielsen cranked up the Oilers early in the second quarter.

Nielsen hit tight end Tim Wilson with a 12-yard touchdown pass and free agent Florian Kempf kicked a pair of 37-yard field goals to tie the score.

The Oilers took a temporary 15-13 lead when linebacker John Coker tackled Saints quarterback Bobby Scott in the end zone.

Saints running back Hokie Gajan scored his first pro touchdown in the fourth quarter to give New Orleans its final lead and set up the Oilers' last rally.

"We played in spurts," Saints Coach Bum Phillips said. "We also made to many errors."

New Orleans' biggest error came in the fourth quarter when the Saints had 12 players on the field for a Houston punt, giving the Oilers a first down. This time Nielsen completed a 6-yard pass to Adger Armstrong for a first down and two plays later, Nielsen hit Casper with the winning points.

The Saint's biggest loss may have been in the first quarter when quarterback David Wilson, challenging Archie Manning for the starting position, left the game with a knee injury.

He watched the rest of the game on crutches.

Thirteen more exhibition games are scheduled in the next four days, including Cincinnati at Kansas City and St. Louis at Seattle tonight.

On Saturday night, it's Buffalo at Dallas, Cleveland at Detroit, Denver at Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota at Atlanta, the New York Jets at Green Bay, the New York Giants at Baltimore, the Raiders at San Francisco, Philadelphia at Tampa Bay, Pittsburgh vs. New England at Knoxville, Tenn., and Washington at Miami. On Monday, Chicago is at San Diego.

Players in the Redskins-Dolphins game agreed Thursday to shake hands before the kickoff in a show of solidarity for the NFL Players Association. The players union is involved in negotiations with club owners for a contract to replace the one that expired last month.

Boxing Champ's Fondness For Cars Led to Death

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World Boxing Council featherweight champion Salvador Sanchez had a fondness for cars. As he began to accumulate money through boxing, he bought nine of them. His favorite was a 1981 Porsche, and that was the car he was driving when he was killed in a three-car accident.

Police said the crash that killed Sanchez, 23, early Thursday occurred about eight miles north of Queretaro, a city 139 miles north of the capital.

When word spread that Sanchez, a national hero in his native Mexico, had been killed, police said "a great number" of people arrived outside the morgue in Queretaro to pay their respects.

Later Thursday, a police helicopter carried the body to his hometown of Santiago de Tlanquinsteno, where the funeral was to be held today.

An official quoted the accident report as saying Sanchez's car crashed into the back of a truck loaded with two farm tractors. He said "excess speeding on the part of Sanchez" appeared to be the cause of the accident.

Sanchez, one of 11 children and the father of two sons, 16 months and four months, turned professional in 1975 after recording a 14-0 record as an amateur. He was managed by Cristobal Rosas and trained by his personal physician, Dr. Jose Valenquela.

In a recent poll of boxing writers by The Ring magazine, Sanchez was ranked No. 6 among the best fighters in the world. He was called one of the great featherweights of all time.

Sanchez won the title Feb. 2, 1980, in Phoenix, Ariz., knocking out Danny Lopez in the 13th round. He finished with a 43-1-1 record, with 31 victories coming by knockout.

His last bout was in New York July 21, when he knocked out Azumah Nelson of Ghana in the final round of his ninth title defense. His next title bout was to have come Sept. 15 against Juan LaPorte of Puerto Rico, also in New York.

"I'm just heartbroken," said Howard Albert, LaPorte's manager.

Rosas and the boxer's representative, Juan Jose Torres Landa, said Sanchez planned to meet one more challenger this year, probably during the first week in December, and then retire in 1983.

WBC President Jose Sulaiman said the vacant title can be filled either by a tournament involving the top contenders or by a direct meeting of the top two challengers. The top four contenders currently are Mario Miranda of Columbia; Ruben Castillo of Bakersfield, Calif.; LaPorte and Rocky Lockridge of Paterson, N.J.

Federal Highway Police spokesman Javier Melendez said Sanchez died almost instantly from multiple injuries.

Melendez said he knew no details as to the cause of the accident.

Armadillos multiply by giving birth to four babies of one sex, alternately male or female.

Brown is Member of Highly Rated Squad

Norman Brown of Hereford is a member of the 1982-83 varsity cheerleader squad at Wayland Baptist University which received two superior and two excellent ribbons during its four evaluations at the National Cheerleader Association Camp last week on the Southern Methodist University campus in Dallas.

The six-member Wayland team was one of 15 squads to win the coveted Spirit Stick during the week-long camp, and only two of those 15 were from small colleges. A total of 60 cheerleader teams from universities and colleges all across the nation participated in the SMU camp.

This week the WBU team is hosting its own Cheerleader Camp. Sanctioned by the World Cheerleader Council, the Wayland camp has attracted seven high school and junior high squads from around the area. A total of 45 students and seven sponsors are taking part in the camp, which continues through Friday.

Ann Landers

Woman Voices Disagreement

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The best part of your column is that you will print letters from people who disagree with you. Well, here's another one.

Remember the wife who said it wasn't worth the effort to get her 70-year-old husband's motor going because he couldn't keep it running long enough to do any good? She added, rather sadly, that it made more sense for her to rearrange the furniture and wash down the walls. Your parting shot suggested that she didn't know what a loving relationship was.

You are wrong. My husband and I have had 35 years of a loving relationship with no sexual satisfaction on my side. Only his. From the beginning it was "Wham, bam, thank you, Ma'm" and he was sound asleep, snoring up a storm, before I could say, "You're welcome."

I can tell you, Miss Landers, it is a lot more rewarding to rearrange furniture. Granted, all 70-year-old men are not alike, but when the fire is out in the furnace, why don't they admit it instead of making their wives feel inadequate and guilty because they can't resurrect something that has been dead for years? — Another Wall-Washer In Mississippi

DEAR WALL-WASHER: Your point is well taken — and it WAS taken by several hundred women who echoed your sentiments. I defer to all of you who obviously know a lot more about this subject than I do. Touche.

DEAR ANN: Losing your best friend is bad enough, but losing her to a jerk is a real tragedy. She has moved in with a guy eight years her junior. (She's 28.)

He's obnoxious, crude and embarrasses her in public. Worst of all, he beats her up about once a week. I've begged her to leave him, but she says she can't. This has been going on for about six months, and I'm at the end of my rope. It hurts me to see her treated this way. She doesn't deserve it. What can I do to help her? — Sad In Vancouver

DEAR VAN: Cool it until you get an S.O.S. It is difficult to rescue a person who doesn't want to be rescued. When your friend gets her fill of knuckle sandwiches, she'll leave him on her own — and not until. MYOB, dearie.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 12 years old, I shoplifted an article that sold for $35. I don't know why I did it, and the humiliation when I was caught was the worst experience of my life. I never shoplifted again after that.

My question: How is that foolish mistake going to affect my life? Will it prevent me from getting into a good college? Will the information appear on my job forms? Do I have a record? I know it wasn't a felony.

I realize this is an insignificant problem compared to most, but I very much need an answer. — Worried In Florida

DEAR WORRIED: Twelve years of age? First and only offense? Even if you were taken to the police station and turned over to juvenile authorities, it is highly unlikely that you have a public "record." Not to worry.

Springer Inaugurated As Chairman of Board

Berl M. Springer, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Southwestern Public Service Company, was inaugurated Tuesday morning in Denver as chairman of the board of directors of the National Food and Energy Council.

The National Food and Energy Council (NFEC) is a non-profit "think tank" and educational organization headquartered at Columbia Mo. Its focus is on energy supplies and energy use in food production, food processing, and food distribution systems in the U.S. Springer characterizes NFEC as an "organization dedicated to helping the agribusiness industry and all the people that industry serves."

Springer's inauguration opened a three-day annual conference in Denver. "The conference was called to address critical issues that affect our nation's ability to produce adequate food and energy supplies on a timely basis," said Ken McFate, NFEC president.

Subjects that were discussed are vitally important to people in Southwestern Public Service Company's service area, Springer pointed out. Topics and speakers include:

"Water Availability; Use and Distribution," addressed by Senator Maurice Kremer, Chairman of the Public Works Committee, Nebraska Legislature, Lincoln, Neb.

"A Timely Look at the Future of Farming," by George Stone, president, National Farmers Union, Denver.

"Effective Management of Irrigation Loads," by Roland Skinner, manager, Northwest Rural Public Power District, Hay Springs, Neb.

"Optimizing Prime Land Use for Food Production," J. Evan Goulding, Commissioner, Colorado State Department of Agriculture.

"Timely Energy Supplies: Expectations of the Food Industry," Frank Hackmann, of Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, and chairman of the energy committee of the Grocery Manufacturers Association.

"The Nation's Economy and World Population: Impact on Food and Energy Supplies," by Berry Hughes, Associate Professor, Graduate School of International Studies, University of Denver.

"Coal Severance Taxes and Coal Exports," Dr. Kenneth Lindner, Secretary, Department of Administration, Madison, Wis.

Springer said, "One of the great responsibilities we as members of the National Food and Energy Council have taken on is to offer advice — sound, researched, thoughtful council — to both on-the-farm and off-the-farm food system managers."

"Part of what we want them to understand is that our nation's food system cannot be separated from and cannot function without equally strong energy systems."

"Also, we distribute a lot of information about wise management and efficient use of energy in the food system," Springer said.

The NFEC for years has been telling farmers to use minimum tillage, he said. The Council also suggests farmers should grow genetically engineered crops which require less nutrient from the soil and which require less water.

"Because our petroleum fuel resources are finite — there will be an end to them,

Berl M. Springer

someday — we're counseling food producers to hold petroleum fuels in reserve for only the largest mobile field requirements," Springer continued. "We're telling farmers and other managers throughout the food system, "Whenever possible, substitute electricity — manufactured from our truly abundant fuels, such as coal — to power your stationary operations."

Another major thrust of the National Food and Energy Council, the new chairman said, is youth education. The NFEC recently published a 15-unit school study guide called "Food, Energy and Your Future," which reviews major food and energy issues. And NFEC has for many years taught 4-H and FFA youth about electrical wiring and wise management of energy, Springer said.

One of the 1982 conference speakers, Springer pointed out, was Kenneth Pollard of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, Texas A&M, speaking on "Youth Education Opportunities." Pollard often helps Southwestern Public Service Company employees plan and conduct electrical wiring and energy workshops for service area youth.

Southwestern Public Service primarily provides electric service to a population of more than 1 million in a 45,000-square-mile area of the Panhandle and south plains of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle, and southwestern Kansas.

Scientist Researching Snake Venom

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Scientists are turning to one of man's longtime natural adversaries, the deadly diamondback rattlesnake, in their search for a cancer cure.

The reptile's potent venom could be harnessed by medicine and targeted to kill cancer cells, said Dr. John Perez, a biologist leading a team of researchers at Texas A&I University.

"The potential application is just unreal," said Perez, who has researched properties of snake venom for more than eight years.

Central to the research is a technique developed elsewhere to produce certain antibodies that recognize cancer cells. Researchers at Johns Hopkins University have done work in using the antibodies to carry radioactive tracers used in cancer detection.

The immune systems in humans and animals produce wide varieties of antibodies in reaction to foreign substances. Scientists using spleen cells from laboratory mice have been able to isolate a specific antibody, clone it, and chemically bind it to a plant-produced toxin to attack tumor cells.

The spleen cells are produced by fusing short-lived, normal cells with malignant ones to form hybridomas. The hybrid cells can live forever in the laboratory, he said.

Perez, 41, is working on techniques using the tissue-destroying proteins in venom to take the place of the plant toxin, ricin, made from the castor bean. Rattlesnakes and water moccasins, both pit vipers, are used in the research.

The project is funded by a $148,000 grant from the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., and a $20,000 grant from the Cesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute locally.

Perez began the research after attending a meeting in April in New Mexico in which scientists described their work with monoclonal antibodies and ricin.

"I was so excited I couldn't sleep when I came back," he said of realizing the potential for similar work with snake venom.

"Venom is a complex mixture of many toxins," he said.

He estimates it will be another four months before his team will produce a specific antibody from spleen cells grown in a laboratory. The next step would be binding a specific venom protein to the antibody, he said.

Before beginning his current line of research, Perez investigated different animals that are naturally immune to snake venom. These species include woodrats, possums and ground squirrels.

Research funding is competitive and the professor said venom study generally receives less attention since snake bite fatalities average 12 a year.

"That's a pretty low figure for the nation as a whole," he said.

Cancer research is a high priority, however, and he has been able to enlist help from one research associate, three graduate students, several undergraduates and a full-time animal caretaker.

Perez, who received his Ph.D. from Utah State, keeps several dozen poisonous snakes in a locked laboratory across campus from his office.

The snakes, native to the Southwest, are either caught nearby on the South Texas rangeland or purchased. They are "milked" every two weeks for their venom.

In addition to fighting cancer, snake venom possibly could be used to attack parasitic diseases such as malaria, which do not respond to plant toxin research, Perez said.

Clark to Enter Program at A&M

COLLEGE STATION — Ronda C. Clark of Hereford was among 138 persons accepted to enter the College of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University recently. The class will graduate in 1986.

The veterinary program at Texas A&M is the nation's largest and traditionally produces nine percent of all veterinarians across the country.

Actor Has Part Down Perfectly

NEW YORK (AP) — Jake Rubidoux is a character for those who may have found Bill Devane tough to swallow as JFK in "The Missiles of October" and a bit overbearing as Sgt. Milt Warden in "From Here to Eternity."

Jake Rubidoux is a tough-talking private eye, and Devane has the part — with sneer — down pat. The show is called "The Big Easy" — it's on ABC Sunday night — and the resemblance in name to "The Big Sleep" may be more than coincidental. It's an entertaining hour of television nonetheless, even more appealing for the Dixieland ambience of New Orleans.

Rubidoux is hired off of a French Quarter stage — he plays the clarinet in his spare time — by Nunnally Hayes to find the Texan's missing "daughter." He gets a tip from Walker Garrett, the inevitable gossip columnist, and in no time tracks the elusive Cynthia through New Orleans' Garden District to a lodge on Lake Pontchartrain.

That's when the fun starts. Nunnally, it seems, is a hired killer after Cynthia. And Jake has a new client — himself. He's got to protect the young woman and find out who is paying for Nunnally's seedy hotel room.

Mary Crosby plays Cynthia and Nicholas Pryor, who looks something like a fleshed-out Don Knotts, is Walker Garrett. Real-life heavy Hugh Gillin is the hired gunslinger, Lane Smith plays Jake's buddy, police Lt. Frank Medley, and Ja'Net Dubois is Gloria, who runs The Big Easy, the nightclub where Jake spends his free time.

"Hardcase" on NBC an hour later that night is a gritty, unpleasant cop show set in the selfsame Crescent City.

Lt. Grover Harding Case is suspended by Muehlberger, the chief, for roughing up a small-time perpetrator.

Here's A Unique Opportunity

WILL BE CONVERTING THE PRESENT COMPANY OWNED OPERATION TO A LOCALLY OWNED AND OPERATED BUSINESS IN HEREFORD, TEXAS

We're looking for Sales Agents with an urge to break out on their own. And, we may have just what you're looking for in our established business. Our unique Sales Agency Store program offers an exciting opportunity to operate a business of your own with a moderate investment, and also gives you the opportunity to take advantage of the investment we've already made, as well as over a century of Catalog business experience. Once you become a Sales Agent, you can use Wards name, catalogs and credit. Sell our branded merchandise with over 100,000 items, and have access to the same systems, concepts and materials we use to operate our company-owned stores. Best of all, your investment will probably be considerably less than would be required for a regular retail business with similar sales volume. If you are willing to accept responsibility in return for a future in your own business, we'd like to talk about your personal qualifications, and give you more details about our plan. Write or phone today:

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."
— Matthew 17:20

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.
— Sir James Matthew Barrie
