

Herd opens with impressive win over Pampa

By LES GILES
SPORTS EDITOR

If there were any flaws in Hereford's well-oiled football machine Friday night against Pampa, it would be hard to ascertain just what they might be. Looking more like a team in mid-season form than one playing its season opener, the Herd took right up where it left off a year ago, rolling to a 34-6 triumph before a crowd of 4,000 in Whiteface Stadium. Hereford, which now has won 14 consecutive regular season games, and 17 of its last 18 starts, did just what it wanted against Pampa, which in previous years had proved a troublesome first-game foe. Hereford scored on its initial possession of the game, breezing 68 yards in 11 plays, and was never really headed. In fact, by halftime it was 28-0 Hereford, and reserves played most of the second half. "No doubt about it," Herd boss Don Cumpston said afterward, "this was our best opening-game in quite some time. "But, we approached this one different than we had in other years. "With district play starting much sooner, we (the coaches) felt it was important that the kids progressed much quicker. In other years, when we had only four district games and six non-conference ones we could bring them along a little slower." In that opening TD drive, the Herd relied primarily on its ground attack, which rolled up 258 yards overall. Alfred Ball's 15-yard excursion around right end on the game's fourth play put the Herd on Pampa's 36. Four plays later, quarterback Charles McDowell hit wingback Glenn Pibbs on an 18-yard pass play which gave the hosts a first-and-goal at the Harvester 6. Three plays later, Ball went the final 3 yards over the right side of the line and Raymond Martinez' conversion kick gave the Herd a 7-0 with 6:36 left in the opening period. Alan Ritchie's interception gave Hereford the ball back with 2:17 remaining in the quarter, and when he returned it 10 yards to the Harvester 37 Hereford was in business again. This time, it took just two plays to hit paydirt. A 13-yard burst up the middle by Martinez, followed by a face mask penalty against Pampa, put the ball at the 12. On the next play, Ball scooted around right end for the TD with 1:58 left in the period. Martinez' PAT made it, 14-0. Pampa finally mounted a drive midway through the second quarter. The Harvesters moved from their 18 to the Hereford 17 in 17 plays, but ran out of downs with 5:43 left in the half. Hereford then went 89 yards in six plays. The payoff came when McDowell hit a speeding Brian Taylor down the left sideline for a 57-yard scoring strike with 2:54 remaining before intermission. But Hereford still wasn't through. A 24-yard punt return by Pibbs set the Herd up at Pampa's 40 with 7:15 left in the half. Five plays later, substitute quarterback Mike Scott (a sophomore) hit Kerry Beard on a 5-yard scoring toss with 27 seconds to play before halftime. Scott then tossed a two-point conversion pass to Ronnie Terry, following a 10-yard penalty, and Hereford owned a 28-0 bulge. After Pampa failed to move on its first possession of the third period, Hereford started from its 38 following a punt. This time it took six plays to negotiate the necessary distance. The payoff came (See HERD, Page 6A)

Reagan signs controversial tax bill

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan has signed a $98.3 billion revenue-raising bill in the seclusion of his mountaintop ranch, avoiding the pomp and ceremony that has marked his earlier budget victories.

The measure, bringing in the revenues over three years, amounts to a partial reversal of last year's tax policy when huge cuts were enacted for businesses and individuals.

The new measure wipes out one-third of the business reductions but leaves intact the across-the-board cuts in personal tax rates.

There was no presidential statement, not even a White House picture of Reagan, as he signed the bill Friday. Previously, the president said he had to "swallow hard" to support the measure.

Reagan waged an intensive lobbying campaign last month for congressional passage of the measure, saying he was convinced it was the only way to control runaway deficits, interest rates and unemployment.

In earlier budget fights, Reagan had nearly unanimous support in Congress from Republicans and conservative Democrats, but in this battle there was a deep breach in GOP unity. Only 103 of 193 House Republicans, a bare majority, sided with the administration.

Reagan calls for 'real freeze'

Begin told settlements not permanent outposts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has told Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin that Jewish settlements on the West Bank and in Gaza should not be permanent "territorial outposts" for Israel, sources here disclosed. Otherwise, the president took no position on the long-term future of the settlements in his letter to Begin, leaving their status to be determined by Arab and Israeli negotiators, the sources said Friday.

Reagan called for "a real freeze" on the number and size of the settlements. At the same time, Reagan assured Begin he would oppose the dismantling of existing settlements while Palestinians were making the transition to self-rule he has proposed.

Some 30,000 Jewish settlers and about 1.3 million Arabs live on the land that was held by Jordan and Egypt until the 1967 Middle East war. Begin has offered the Arabs "full autonomy" while vowing to uphold the right of Jews to live there.

Reagan's quiet signing of the measure contrasted with the fanfare surrounding the signing last summer of legislation cutting taxes by $750 billion over five years — the biggest tax reduction ever. Then, the White House chartered buses and brought reporters to Reagan's ranch for the ceremony.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes denied that Reagan was trying to play down his costly victory this year. He said last year's highly publicized tax and budget bill was the "first breakthrough in the economic program. It set the tone. This is about the fifth victory in a row."

Effective next Jan. 1, the measure will double the cigarette tax to 16 cents a pack; triple the 1 percent tax on telephone service; reduce deductions for medical expenses; and tighten reporting of income from tips, capital gains and state tax refunds. Nearly half of the increased taxes will fall on individuals, with the biggest share coming from people now cheating on their taxes. The bill includes a provision for a 10 percent withholding on most interest and dividends, beginning next July 1.

High-income investors will face a stiffened "minimum tax," and high-earning professionals will find reduced benefits from tax-deferred pensions.

The bill will repeal a controversial 1981 provision allowing companies to sell their excess tax breaks.

While raising taxes, the measure also would cut spending over the next three years — chiefly for health aid to the poor and elderly by about $15.2 billion.

It also includes up to 10 weeks of additional unemployment compensation for about two million jobless people whose basic benefits have run out.

overseas. "This harkens back to the bipartisan tradition" in U.S. foreign policy and strengthens Reagan's hand, Gergen said.

According to the sources, who declined to be identified, (See BEGIN, Page 2A)

We've noticed articles in several papers about older citizens receiving birthday greetings from the President of the United States. We've learned that you can request these greetings for persons over 80 by writing: Greeting Office, White House, Washington, D.C. 20500. You should make the request two to three weeks in advance of the birthday. We understand that 50th and 75th wedding anniversary celebrants might be eligible, too.

We saw this story in another editor's column and just had to share it with our readers:

Two Texas women in their mid-fifties went to New York this summer and while there, took in a Broadway play one night.

After the play, they tried for 30 minutes to get a cab to take them to their hotel less than three blocks away. Fearful because of all the stories they had heard about rapings, muggings, and killings on the streets of New York, the women were apprehensive about trying to walk back to their hotel.

Finally, they decided the only safe solution was to clasp their purses tightly to their chests and run the full distance to their hotel... and run they did... and made the trip safely but out of breath.

Once inside the hotel, they walked to the elevator, entered, and breathed a tremendous sigh of relief as the

Polish dissidents may face death

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Four of Poland's leading dissidents, charged with plotting to overthrow the Communist government, face possible death sentences as the martial law regime responds to a firestorm of national protests that commemorated the second anniversary of the suspended Solidarity trade union.

Mother found guilty of murder by omission

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district judge must consider what punishment to assess against a woman convicted of allowing her boyfriend to torture her 3-year-old son to death.

Eva Lott, 27, was convicted late Friday of murder by omission in the death of her son, Tommy. Jurors deliberated about 3 1/2 hours before finding that she had failed to prevent Gary Ray Barber from killing the boy.

Ms. Lott had asked that State District Judge Dan Walton set her sentence if she was found guilty. She faces a maximum of a life term in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Urban's remarks coincided with a government crackdown on the southwestern coppermining town of Lubin where violent demonstrations Wednesday and Thursday erupted after two protesters were shot to death by police Tuesday.

Two other demonstrators died in the unrest that hit 54 Polish cities Tuesday and official reports said no more than 100 civilians and police were injured.

Urban announced the "arrests" of Jacek Kuron, former chairman of the disbanded KOR organization, and three other KOR members — Adam Michnik, Jan Litynsky and Henryk Wujec. He said they are being held for allegedly "undertaking preparations aimed at overthrowing the political system by force."

All four have been interned since Dec. 13. Urban, when asked, could not say when the alleged acts of treason occurred.

KOR spokesman Anka Kowalska, who was released from internment in June, denied the charge. It carries the death penalty.

"We never planned or contemplated the use of force, and we hope there will be further opportunities for both sides to express themselves," David R. Gergen, the White House communications director, said Friday.

Meanwhile, Gergen said he was extremely pleased with editorial reaction here and read into the record by a policeman, and a stinging lecture from State District Judge Doug Shaver.

Shaver said there was some fear that Watts, who authorities say cut a swath of death from Michigan to Texas, "might shut up" now that the state has completed its end of a plea bargain arrangement.

Watts, 28, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary with intent to commit murder. Officials read into the record a list of 13 women whom the 28-year-old man admitted killing.

He is a suspect in a 1974 slaying in Kalamazoo, Mich., three 1980 killings in Ann Arbor, Mich., and 15 other stabbing and strangling deaths in the Detroit area. He moved from Michigan to Houston early last year.

Shaver said in delivering the sentence he hoped Watts would spend the entire 60-year sentence in prison, without hope of parole.

"If you do not act well in the prison, it is my hope that they will put you so deep into penitentiary they'll have to pipe sunlight in to you," said Shaver. "Since the death penalty is not available, I therefore sentence you to the Texas Department of Corrections for a term of 60 years."

Watts, dressed in a dark suit, sat motionless and without expression throughout the hour-long court appearance. Under a plea bargain arrangement that gave him immunity from prosecution, he has admitted killing women in Houston, Austin, Galveston and Michigan.

Shaver said the 60-year sentence, imposed for the burglary with intent to commit murder charge, was the maximum allowed by the law.

"Sadly to say," said the judge, "this is the only evidence the state of Texas has against you. The only greater sentence would have been death if you had been successful in this offense. I thank the grace of God that you were not."

Houston homicide detective Jim Ladd, called as a witness before the formal sentencing, described how Watts led him to a series of graves. The officer said Watts described in detail how he committed each of the 13 killings.

Convicted killer may seal lips in prison

HOUSTON (AP) — A mechanic who admits he killed 13 young women may take the secrets of as many as 20 more slayings to prison with him, says the judge who sentenced him.

Coral Eugene Watts was formally sentenced to 60 years in prison Friday after hearing a litany of his killings read into the record by a policeman, and a stinging lecture from State District Judge Doug Shaver.

Shaver said there was some fear that Watts, who authorities say cut a swath of death from Michigan to Texas, "might shut up" now that the state has completed its end of a plea bargain arrangement.

Mafia fighter, wife slain

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Gen. Carlo Alberto Dalla Chiesa, Italy's top Mafia fighter, and his wife of less than two months were killed in a hail of bullets in downtown Palermo in what police said may have been a Mafia assassination.

Premier Giovanni Spadolini told the Senate in Rome today Dalla Chiesa had just prepared a comprehensive plan "to stamp out terrorism and put an end to the Mafia reign" in Sicily. He called the general Italy's "most intelligent and courageous fighter" against terrorism and the Mafia.

Dalla Chiesa, 61, was killed Friday night along with his wife, Emanuela, 32, as they drove through a commercial neighborhood.

His bodyguard, Domenico Russo, 32, was critically wounded and doctors said he was in a deep coma with no brain activity. Police initially said

Russo also had been killed. "The challenge of organized crime and terrorism against the democratic state has reached the most intolerable levels," said President Sandro Pertini, who cut short his vacation in northern Italy when he learned of the killings.

Reagan administration: Better days ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, while expressing displeasure with continuing high unemployment, is asserting that jobs will be more plentiful "as the economy continues to improve."

Reacting to Friday's government figures showing unemployment holding steady at a post-World War II record 9.8 percent in August, a White House spokesman said that President Reagan "regards it as still at an unacceptable level."

Speaking on Reagan's behalf from Santa Barbara, Calif., where the chief executive was vacationing, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said "nearly all the other economic news is good."

That view was echoed here by Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, despite the latest figures showing no relief from high unemployment and 10.8 million Americans out of work last month.

Baldrige noted a recent jump in housing starts and an increase in orders for factory goods as signs of improved prospects for a business recovery.

But there was disagreement from Democratic Party figures and the head of the AFL-CIO.

Unemployment "continues to be the number one scandal in this country," said labor federation president Lane Kirkland.

Astros announced players in exchange for Sutton

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros have announced the names of three minor league players obtained from the Milwaukee Brewers in exchange for pitcher Don Sutton.

The players, announced Friday, are outfielder Kevin Bass and lefthander pitchers Frank DiPino and Mike Madden. They all played on the Brewers' Class AAA farm team at Vancouver, British Columbia, this season.

DiPino and Bass will join the Astros in Houston Monday when the team returns for a homestand. Madden will report to the Astros next season in spring training.

The Astros sent Sutton to the Brewers in exchange for what Astros General Manager Al Rosen said were the "three best prospects in the Brewer farm system." The names were not announced however, until Friday when the players cleared waivers.

Bass, 23, hit .315 with 17 home runs and 65 RBI last season and 23 stolen bases in 102 games.

DiPino, 25, had a 13-9 record with 11 complete games in 26 starting assignments. DiPino pitched 190 innings, yielded 187 hits, 86 walks and struck out 115.

Madden, 25, finished this season with a 3-8 record, 7.03 ERA in 18 starting assignments. Madden pitched 81 innings, gave up 92 hits, 60 walks and struck out 41 batters.

Robbers seize jewels 'Worth a Fortune'

DALLAS (AP) — Three men seized gold rings and diamonds "worth a fortune" when they walked into a north Dallas jewelry store at opening time, just as employees were taking merchandise from a safe, police say.

Phillip Samuels, co-owner of Village Jewelry, said the men got $500,000 worth of jewelry and fled in a silver-colored van. Police found the vehicle, which proved to be stolen, two hours later in a nearby apartment complex.

"They cleaned the place out," Samuels said. He told police the Friday morning armed robbery appeared carefully planned.

Samuels said he was in the store office when two of the men came in about 9:30 a.m. carrying a package — addressed to Samuels and his partner — which the men said they had been given to deliver.

"They pointed the revolvers at us and they said, 'Lie down behind the safe and don't look at us.' They helped themselves to everything that was in the safe," Samuels said.

The men did not fire a shot, Samuels said.

One of the men was armed with a long-barrel revolver and a second was carrying an automatic pistol, Dallas Police Department spokesman Bob Shaw said. It is not known what kind of weapon the third man had, Shaw said.

Major fire in apartment building; 11 deaths reported

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire swept through the top floors of a four-story apartment building early today, killing 11 people and injuring at least 12, officials said.

The blaze, which broke out at 4:27 a.m., sent flames leaping from the third and fourth floors of the building on Sunset Boulevard, said fire spokesman Jim Wells.

Nineteen companies of firefighters and eight ambulance crews were sent to the scene, and firefighters did not get the upper hand against the blaze until about an hour after the first alarm, Wells said.

Wells said "upwards of 12" people had been taken to hospitals for treatment for smoke inhalation and burns.

The cause of the fire was not known, Wells said.

Epilepsy Association serves Panhandle

Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a series of ten articles about various agencies supported by United Way funds. The High Plains Epilepsy Association is located in Amarillo and serves a wide area of the Panhandle including Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Epilepsy, which can best be defined as a neurological disorder of the brain and nervous system, effects over two percent of the population. A seizure, which is the result of imbalance in the electrical activity of the brain, is its major symptom.

There is no known answer as to what causes epilepsy. However, scientists generally agree the epilepsy can result from defects in the brain, brain injury before, during, and after birth, head wounds, chemical imbalance, poor nutrition, some infectious diseases, brain tumors, and some poisons. Sometimes the cause cannot be found.

There are approximately 6,800 people with epilepsy in the 25 county area served by High Plains Epilepsy Association. During 1982 services were delivered to 23 people in Deaf Smith County.

These services include the purchase of anticonvulsant medication, physician referrals, payment of doctor and hospital bills, transportation, literature, counseling on an individual and family basis, and information and agency referral.

There are eight active volunteers in Deaf Smith

County who assist in providing services.

Deaf Smith County United Way provided High Plains Epilepsy Association with $750 in 1982, which is .009 percent of the Association's total budget of $80,728. All of the $750 was used for direct services in Deaf Smith County.

Children who have epilepsy are now being admitted into the Crippled Children's Program, administered by the Texas Department of Health. Children who qualify for Crippled Children's are eligible for some medical benefits.

The program is limited in coverage to specific types of medical conditions and treatment procedures. The new program does cover doctors visits and anticonvulsant medications. Crippled Children's application forms may be obtained at the Deaf Smith County Public Health Office or High Plains Epilepsy Association, where a roster of cooperating pharmacies is kept.

The High Plains Epilepsy Association is located at 806 S. Bryan, Room 213; Amarillo, Tx. 79106; phone 372-3891.

"There are several things the average person can do to help," according to Kim Wilkins, caseworker from the Amarillo office. "One is to become informed about the subject. The second is to support the program through the United Way. It works for all of us."

Man believes relative may hold mineral rights

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Mark Twain once said there's not a square foot of land on earth that's in the hands of its rightful owner.

Ruben Cantu thinks Twain had the right idea.

Cantu, 28, believes he and other descendants of Jose Narcisco Cavazos — his great-great-great-grandfather — may hold the mineral rights to a vast area of land in South Texas.

In 1781, according to historical records, the Spanish Crown gave Cavazos 106.5 leagues of land in what is now far South Texas. The grant encompasses portions of five-county area in the Gulf Coast region of the state and totals nearly a half-million acres — including some 300,000 acres of the famed King Ranch, headquartered at Kingsville in Kleberg County.

According to figures from the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, mineral rights on the $552 million worth of oil and gas production generated $69 million in royalty payments from Kleberg County during 1981. Total royalty payments from the five counties in question came to $158 million last year.

But acquiring the land itself would be even harder than what Cavazos' descendants are really after.

"All we're fighting for is the mineral rights," Cantu said. "It may take years, like the lawyers are saying, but hopefully by the time my children are grown something will be there for them."

The heirs are seeking rights to future royalties and are not asking for retroactive reimbursement.

They're basing their contention on preliminary studies showing that 100-year-old state constitutional amendment conveying mineral interests to surface owners actually released the mineral estate to the original landholders — not necessarily the current owners — and consequently to succeeding generations of the Cavazos family.

Should the intensive legal and historical research now taking place bear out that contention, the heirs will take steps — including a possible lawsuit — to obtain the rights to future mineral development on the land, Cantu said.

"There are not concrete figures available," Cantu said, "but the lawyers are saying it could amount to billions of dollars in future royalty payments."

Back in the 1930s, Cantu's grandmother retained an Edinburg lawyer in an attempt to get her share of the land she was claiming as one of Cavazos' descendants. The attorney disappeared before he was able to determine the status of her claim, according to family legend.

In the 1950s, Cantu said, his father found papers in the Edinburg courthouse that supported the grandmother's claim. The father hired a lawyer to look into the matter, but shelved it when economic hardship forced him to move to West Texas.

Cantu said his father, who now lives in Ralls, went back to Edinburg 10 years later and discovered the second lawyer had died and his widow had somehow acquired 900 acres of the land and apparently still owns it. Cantu said he is going down there to try to learn more about that situation.

He'll also look into the circumstances surrounding an uncle who was mysteriously committed to a mental institution after he began checking into the Cavazos land grant.

"Ever since I was small my dad has told us we have a number of acres of land that was never settled properly," said Cantu, adding that although his father and other family members had tried to resolve the issue over the years, they were prevented from doing so by a lack of education and limited money.

But in 1976, many of Cavazos' descendants, including some members of the Cantu family, banded together in a group called the "Asociacion de Reclamantes" and began acquiring the money and expertise they need to pursue their claim. One result has been a $2 billion federal lawsuit filed against the government of Mexico.

The suit, filed in Washington last September on behalf of 433 association members, is not directly related to the mineral rights question. Instead, it seeks redress for $193 million Mexico acknowledged owing Spanish land grantees whose property was lost or stolen over the years.

Mexico's acknowledgment of that debt came in a 1941 treaty with the United States, according to the plaintiffs, thus giving U.S. courts jurisdiction in the case. To date, the claim has not been paid.

Man released from jail credits faith

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)

— A man cleared of an attempted murder conviction by a confession from an admitted mass slayer says his faith is the reason he is free to enjoy a belated wedding night celebration and begin looking for work.

Howard Ware Mosley, 25, was cleared of an attempted murder conviction by the confession of Coral Eugene Watts, a man who police say has admitted 13 slayings.

"I prayed and I prayed and I prayed," said Mosley after he had walked out of the courtroom Thursday clutching a pocket-sized Bible and still wearing prison clothes. "My prayers finally paid off."

Mosley was freed Thursday, went to church to give thanks and then went home for a combination freedom party and wedding reception.

On Friday, Mosley spent his first day as a free man looking for work.

Mosley was arrested earlier this year for the Jan. 20 slashing attack on Patty Johnson, now of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

Ms. Johnson picked him out of a police lineup and Mosley was convicted of attempted murder. With two other felony convictions on his record, Mosley was sentenced to life in prison.

But he continued to insist he was innocent. His girlfriend, Linda Sanchez, believed him.

"I had no doubt he would be set free," said Miss Sanchez, who married Mosley while he was in jail. "He was with me that night (of the Johnson assault)."

The pair married in jail in early August, just days before Watts confessed to the Johnson assault.

Galveston police made sure that Watts was telling the truth by taking him to the site of the assault, where he gave them details only the true assailant would know, prosecutors say.

Mosley was cleared of the Johnson assault on Aug. 17, but was kept in jail on an assault charge in a separate case and also faced revocation of his probation from an 1978 aggravated robbery conviction. But officials dismissed the assault charge last week and parole officers decided Thursday there was no evidence for parole violation. Mosley was ordered released after a two-hour court hearing.

"Praise the Lord!" he shouted. A group of relatives in the courtroom broke into applause and cheers.

"I knew the Lord didn't bring him this far to leave him," said Mosley's mother, Bertha Ware Mosley.

Legislators to meet Tuesday

By JACK KEEVER

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)

— Legislators will meet in special session Tuesday to prevent a Depression-era unemployment tax fund from going broke. The fund has been drained by the current recession in Texas as more and more workers are being laid off and collecting benefits.

The election-year session could determine the political fortunes of the two men seeking to become governor in 1983 — Republican Gov. Bill Clements and Democratic Attorney General Mark White.

White already has made the session an issue, claiming Clements had advanced word that the fund was in trouble but did nothing about it.

"I think it's going to be a disgrace for a man who claims to run government like a business to preside over the first bankruptcy in the Southwest of an unemployment fund," White said.

"It's kind of a crisis-to-crisis approach to government," White added. "We just kind of bump along from one crisis to the next."

The special session will be the third since the Legislature adjourned its 140-day session June 1, 1981, but Clements said those claiming that he knew the fund was in danger are "snapping at gnats."

One proposal that might not set too well with prideful Texans is to borrow money from the federal government to cover the projected deficit in the state unemployment tax fund.

Some have suggested that this would violate the pay-as-you-go provision in the Texas Constitution. White, however, held that the state could borrow money from the federal government.

Clements and other high state officials have stated they have no desire to get involved in all-out legislative debate on the tax fund, but merely want a "quick-fix" to carry the fund over until the Legislature meets in regular session in January.

A report from Rep. Lloyd Criss' office warns, too, that "all would-be reformers should bear in mind that Texas' unemployment compensation system is so complicated not even the professionals at the TEC (Texas Employment Commission) fully understand exactly how the system works."

Basically, more money is being paid each week to jobless Texans than is flowing into the fund on a quarterly basis from a tax employers pay on the basis of each worker. The total draw on the fund for August was in excess of $61 million.

TEC administrator estimates at the current rate of withdrawal the fund would go bankrupt before Thanksgiving, and another report distributed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby estimates the deficit could reach $340 million next year.

Texas businessmen obviously are not pleased with predictions that they may have to pay huge increases in unemployment taxes to cover deficits, but various reports note that Texas now taxes its employers at the lowest rate in the nation. A 1981 study showed that the average tax in Texas was $36 per employee — $12 an employee lower than the next lowest, Colorado — and the majority of Texas employers pay only $6 per employee, the minimum required by state law.

Criss, D-La Marque, has filed a bill that would raise the wage base on which the tax is levied from the first $6,000 of an employee's salary to $7,000, which would bring in additional money.

His proposal would raise the minimum tax rate from 0.1 percent to 0.5 percent and would set the penalty for late payments at 2 percent above the prime interest rate. The bill also would eliminate figures that automatically trigger increases and decreases in the tax rate. Of Oct. 1 each year, for every $5 million the fund is below the $225 million floor, a 0.1 percent surcharge is added to the tax. Likewise, if the fund is over its $325 million ceiling on Oct. 1, all tax rates are decreased 0.1 percent for every $5 million in excess.

Speaker Bill Clayton said, however, neither Criss' proposal nor three bills hastily introduced by Clayton were the answer to the problem, and new measures were prepared for pre-session review.

Clements and others have predicted it will not take the Legislature long to overcome the tax fund shortage for the time being.

"I hope it will be handled quickly, but there may be someone who may try to demagogue the situation," Clements said on a campaign trip. "We are in what has commonly been called the 'silly season.'"

Ignore scales, consider fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — Maybe you can tell me what is wrong. I try to keep my weight at a certain level. I'm taking water pills to keep it down.

I don't eat any breakfast or dinner, just salad with creamy bacon dressing. If I eat any amount of food, not much at all for supper, I'll gain two pounds every time. Why?

DEAR READER — Your diet must be a real disaster. And I don't approve of taking diuretics (water pills) to lose weight unless you have a fluid retention problem from some cause other than obesity that your doctor is treating.

You gain those two pounds so quickly because your body is short on water (dehydrated). Those pills and your diet wash out the salt from your body and the normal water content. That will not help you lose an ounce of fat. It just makes you unhealthy — like a wilted plant that needs water.

You need to become more conscious of the fat under your skin.

CONTACT LENS TYPES

QUESTION: Would you explain the three different types of contact lenses?

ANSWER: HARD LENSES are by far the most widely used. There are over 8 million wearers. They are easier to care for than the other types and last longer, but the adaptation period is longer.

OXYGEN-PERMEABLE LENSES have all the advantages of hard lenses with less discomfort. They are better able to retain water which enhances the flow of oxygen so the cornea can breathe, but they are more expensive than hard lenses.

SOFT LENSES are the most permeable and as thin as a human hair and can absorb a lot of water. Adjustment to them is rapid and they are extremely comfortable and can be kept in place for up to 14 hours, virtually all the waking hours.

Upbeat Attitude

One of the great things about Hereford and Deaf Smith County is that folks are proud of their community, and they expect to lead the way - not follow examples of other cities.

And, despite the doom and gloom preached by many national news sources, Hereford remains optimistic about the future. Citizens are now studying the possibility of a Special Events Center - one that would be a model, not a copy.

When the meat packing plant closed here and farm prices continued to be low, Hereford had an opportunity to roll over and play dead. Some folks did moan and groan but, thankfully, most citizens could sense a silver lining behind the clouds.

The announcement by Swift Independent Packing Co. that the plant would be opened again gave a big boost to the local economy. And though it had nothing to do with economics, the championship Whiteface football team helped us regain the winning attitude.

Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce continues to work on its industrial development program. This is always a longrange program, but chamber officials feel that prospects are brought for locating other new industries here.

Many folks in other areas of the state know us as "Hustlin' Hereford", and we got that name because there are plenty of optimists making things happen. Reminds us of a poem by McLandburgh Wilson:

"Twixt the optimist and pessimist,
The difference is droll:
The optimist sees the drought,
But the pessimist sees the hole!"

No prize

Nine-year-old Wendy Potasnik, of Carmel, Indiana, is suing the Cracker Jack Corporation because she allegedly found no prize inside her box of carmel corn.

In her complaint, Wendy wrote "They advertise a free toy in each box. However, there was none in mine. I feel since I bought their product because of their claim, they broke a contract with me."

"Wendy's mom, Rose Potasnik, added "At the time it was very upsetting to her. She was so sadfaced."

Poor Wendy. If she's this upset over her Cracker Jacks, think how she'll react to real life. Think of the lawsuit she might throw at her mother-in-law when she finds out her knight-in-shining armor isn't quite so shiny. One burp and the poor guy is out on his ear while his mother is being served a court summons.

And what about Poor Wendy's first job? What if she procures an executive position, say as an associate editor, and finds out that the job duties include scrubbing the toilets on Fridays? Will she fault her employer for giving her a bad prize? Will she sue the toilet for not being self-cleaning?

Let's consider what might happen if Poor Wendy should (shudder) bear offspring which are not born potty-trained, bilingual, and knowledgeable of the law, as apparently Poor Wendy must have been. Who in heaven's name will she be able to point the finger at then, pray tell. She's already kicked out her imperfect husband, alienated her mother-in-law, and shamed her boss. Will she put the blame on the hospital, the doctor, the nurse, the stork, the cabbage patch?

What Poor Wendy needs to learn is that you don't get a prize with every box of life. In fact, the Cracker Jack company probably should charge Poor Wendy a fee for teaching her a valuable lesson on living: Life is not in the Cracker Jacks; Life is the Cracker Jacks - sometimes sweet, sometimes crunchy, sometimes a little sticky, often prize-winning - but, always, always full of nuts.

IF THERE IS NO FOOTBALL

I am worried. What will we do if the football season is cancelled? It is looking more inevitable all of the time. The players say they need 55 percent of the income to keep body and soul together. The owners seem to think they did not buy the clubs so someone else could run the show.

I could give my opinion of all of this mess, but, since I do not know much, I choose not to prove my ignorance.

My worry is how will we fill the void? I don't remember what we did on Sunday afternoons before football became a national religion. I don't even remember what we did on Monday nights before we got our weekly Howard Cosell fix.

Howard provides a valuable service to all of us married men. By the time he finishes his weekly tirade the nagging our wives give us pales by comparison. I get rid of my anger on old Howard. If he is gone, I will have to kick the cat.

As a marriage counselor I recognize the seriousness of the situation. The football sason is a welcomed relief from a too heavy load of counseling. It gives the wife something to

Despite recession, no riots in America

WASHINGTON - Last summer, an outbreak of urban violence in Great Britain prompted a number of commentators in the United States to suggest that the same fate would likely visit American cities by the summer of 1982, thanks to Reagan administration economic policies and budget cuts.

Washington Post columnist William Raspberry was one of them. On July 15, 1981 he wrote, "The British unrest has to be considered fair warning." In fairness, Raspberry qualified his statements by explaining, "It would be foolish to make the outright prediction that there will be riots in the streets of America when the Reagan budget cuts in social programs finally hit home..." But he also wrote, "The people who lose those benefits, however, are not likely to wait quietly for the long haul. What seems far more likely is what is happening in the streets of England."

I responded to these suggestions, some of which were far more extreme than Raspberry's, in my own column on Aug. 3, 1981. I described the parallel between American unrest as "foolish at best, and at worst a prime example of irresponsible journalism." I pointed out the relative insignificance of the budget cuts in social programs and the fact that the worst wave of urban violence this country has experienced occurred at the height of Lyndon Johnson's Great Society spending binge in the 1960s.

Well, here we are closing out the summer of 1982, and despite desperate economic conditions in many of our inner cities, thankfully, there

Black gold of future will be what's left of farmland

There is no currency in the world which is not shrinking. Gold and silver prices are depressed from their peaks, "collectibles" - paintings, artifacts, coins and stamps and books - are not as dear as they were.

And now the world is oversupplied with food, oil and diamonds. Isn't anything worth anything any more? One thing is.

In FORTUNE magazine's listing of the world's TOP FIVE HUNDRED CORPORATIONS, One of the giants has fallen - from number 169 to number 339 - De Beers.

De Beers for generations has dominated - monopolized - the diamond business. Controlling the supply it could keep prices high. But De Beers is losing its grip.

As recently as 1980 De Beers harvested $2.8 billion from diamond sales; almost half of that clear profit. Last year sales dropped to half and profits were off by 34 percent.

Today De Beers is sitting on a mountain of already mined and unsold diamonds - is shutting down diamond mines.

De Beers, in a valiant effort to support diamond prices, has depleted cash reserves.

The company is not on the brink of bankruptcy, by any means.

FORTUNE computes De Beers' assets at something in excess of $5 billion and half of that is outside the depressed diamond business.

The company's profit margin last year remained in the neighborhood of 50 percent of sales, which is a very elegant neighborhood.

So De Beers can afford to continue to stockpile diamonds in its own vaults gripe about, which will not change. This is ideal. She can gripe in peace. Nothing is worse than griping about something and then have it corrected. If it is corrected then something else must be found to take its place. That is difficult. It is much better to have an unchangeable situation. This frees her to gripe with no fear of things getting better. It serves the same purpose for her that Howard Cosell serves for us.

If there is no football then suddenly she will be faced with having to handle the thing she has asked for and not really wanted. If football is there she can safely say, "You never spend any time with me." If it is not there he may say, "Here I am, now what?"

One lady described retirement as twice the husband and half the money. She did not know which was worse. If there is no football a lot of wives will find out which is worse. Now he is free, what will she do with him?

Maybe he will get hooked on the tiddledee winks tournaments on E.S.P.N. If so there is hope. If not I may have to work overtime.

Warm Fuzzies, have been no riots. But have we seen any statements by the riot forecasters acknowledging their past misjudgments? Not a chance. Instead, on July 16, 1982, exactly a year and a day after his 1981 article on the subject, a Raspberry column appeared in the Washington Post under the headline, "Chilling Forecast: Riots in '83." The column centered on a "study" by a Swiss-based business consulting firm that predicts riots next summer "worse than those of the 1960s, both in property damage and in personal injury..."

This loose talk about riots and Reaganomics is not only irresponsible, but it is founded on gross inaccuracies. The impression conveyed is that the federal government has essentially packed up and moved out of the inner cities, folded social programs and throwing whole segments of the population off the entitlement rolls.

In fact, a brief glance at the fate of major social programs under Ronald Reagan puts this charge to rest. Overall, federal spending is now running 10.3 percent ahead of last year - that's about double the rate of inflation. Uncle Sam will spend $11.3 billion on food stamps this fiscal year, and $11.4 billion in fiscal 1983. The Medicaid budget will increase as well, from $18.4 billion this year to $19.9 billion next year. Aid to Families with Dependent Children will experience a slight cut, from $7.6 billion in fiscal 1982 to $6.8 billion in 1983. Meanwhile, the granddaddy of all entitlements, Social Security, continues its wild expansion - from $217 billion this year to $241 billion next year.

There is no question that eligibility rules for many programs have been tightened - as well as they should be. But in nearly every case, the budgets of these programs will still grow. If you are looking for the reason why we face big deficits, look no further. There is still plenty of budget cutting that can and must be done. And to raise the spectre of riots as a consequence of the minor eligibility changes made so far is a crass diversionary tactic designed to scare Congress and the American people from exercising needed budget control.

It's My Turn

We had a story in Friday's paper about a guy in Nevada who has invented a nail clipper that catches the clippings before they can hit the floor.

That idea really hit home with me. I know just where he's coming from when he said the invention would help save thousands of marriages across the country. I can't remember how many times my wife has gently reminded me to "pick up those disgusting toenails and throw them away."

It's gotten even worse since we moved into a house with dark brown carpeting. Those little quarter-moons really stand out against that dark background.

It got so bad that I finally refused to clip my nails in front of my wife. Most of the time I'd wait until she went to bed and stay up with the television on to hide the "click, click, click."

Sometimes even that wouldn't work, and I'd rush to the bathroom to get the job done.

It's really easier in there anyhow. But, it's hard to twist and see the television around the corner when you have your foot perched on the toilet ring so the nails will fall into the bowl for handy disposal.

The guy who invented the clipper-catcher figures he can sell his little gem for around $3. I've already made out my check, and am waiting for the ads to appear on WTBS so I can get the address to write to.

On second thought, I ought to offer to write his commercials for him. I could get a piece of the action, and my own, first-edition clipper-catcher too.

I can see it now...

"...call 1-800-123-4567 to order your amazing Clipper-Catcher," the announcer would say. "Send $3 plus $1 postage and handling to avoid COD charge. Act now to receive the amazing Clipper-Catcher. Remember, it's not sold in stores, so order yours today and we'll include your very own manicure manual form..."

Bootleg Philosopher

Mandatory jail terms would reduce crimes

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca looks at a crime report this week.

Dear editor:
According to a U.S. Justice Department study, mandatory jail terms don't necessarily reduce crime.

As I understand it, under the mandatory jail term law, which several states have enacted, if you're convicted for example of using a gun to rob or selling drugs to kids, you automatically go to prison, even if you claim you should be let off because your personality is scarred because your great - great grandfather was thrown into debtor's prison in England in 1785 for failing to pay a debt of 3 shillings which he always claimed he didn't owe.

In other words, no plea bargaining, no sympathy verdicts, no insanity plea, no suspended sentence, no appealing from one court to another until your lawyer learns you've run out of money. If you used a gun or other deadly weapon you flat go to jail.

But the Justice Department survey claims such a law doesn't necessarily reduce crime, since the crime rate seems to continue to climb.

Well, I know this: when a man automatically goes to jail for using a gun to hold up a filling station or any all-night convenience store or a savings and loan office, any more crime by him has certainly been reduced as long as he's locked up. The law may not have any effect on other criminals but it sure does on him.

You can prove nearly anything by statistics. For some time now some laboratory scientists have been proving certain foods are harmful to humans because they are to rats, only to find out they've been using defective rats. I have long contended we need a laboratory to study defective scientists.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

All of the larger cities and many of the smaller towns observed labor day last Monday. Hereford had no parade or other demonstration except that the banks closed their doors, it being a national holiday. The observance of one day in the year by the people of America in honor of labor shows that the people count labor as the foundation of all American institutions.

50 YEARS AGO

In another announcement the city commission makes known its intention to deal more strictly with delinquent water patrons, asserting that repeated notices to those with unpaid water bills will be discontinued, and that water service will be discontinued on the 15th of each month if current bills are not paid on the 15th.

25 YEARS AGO

There were 141 more students at desks in Hereford Public Schools Tuesday than on the opening day of school one year ago. The total enrollment, which had lagged behind 1956 totals during pre-school enrollment periods last week, climbed sharply to 2,389 Tuesday afternoon, compared to 2,248 on Sept. 2, 1956 on the same day in 1955.

10 YEARS AGO

The Hereford Whitefaces had their first test of the grid season here Friday, and "teacher" Larry Dippel said the team didn't get a high grade due to a number of errors.

In a recent Brand survey, opinions on the proposed interstate highway which may be routed through Hereford were varied.

Many of the businesses located along Highway 60 were definitely against the proposal, since it may take some of the through traffic business away from the Highway 60 area.

1 YEAR AGO

The Hereford Whitefaces overcame a stubborn Pampa Harvester team here Friday night, using two big scoring plays in the final quarter to finally subdue their hosts 21-0 before a packed house.

Legislators take last look at cures

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators have taken a last look at proposed cures to the state's unemployment tax crisis before the special legislative session begins Tuesday.

A House committee was told of at least two solutions — hit employers with a one-time surtax or borrow federal money.

The House Committee on Employment Practices took no action on either suggestion, knowing the group would get the problem officially after the Tuesday opening.

One bill, presented by House Speaker Bill Clayton, would increase the unemployment tax rates paid by Texas employers in 1983, but would allow the state to pay up to $45 million in interest on federal funds borrowed to tide over the endangered jobless benefits fund.

"Clayton's bill will clear up the situation in time," said Henry Rothel, speaking for the Texas Association of Business, "although I still think we will need another increase in the tax in 1985 because of increased federal taxes ... I think the TAB will welcome such a bill."

Rothel said the business association would oppose a bill presented to the committee by Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-La Marque.

Criss proposed an immediate special tax before

Oct. 1 on all employers, equal to 150 percent of their 1982 payments to the unemployment tax fund. He estimated it would cost about $390 million, increasing the present $6 per employee payment to $9. There would be no federal loan.

"If the economy improves in 1983," Criss said, "we could get by with one quick surtax."

Gov. Bill Clements has called the special session next Tuesday specifically to take care of the unemployment benefits fund, which has been drained in recent months through payment to jobless payments.

Foreign cabbies come under fire

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — American taxi drivers are angrily trying to persuade the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth to prohibit foreigners from driving cabs at the airport here, but some are using their fists instead of words to settle the issue, officials say.

"There is a lot of tension out there and something needs to be done," said Lee Adler, vice president of the Dallas Taxi Association. "I'm afraid someone is going to get killed."

Foreign taxi drivers were banned until 1976. But now, one of every three drivers of taxis that pick up or discharge passengers at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport is from another country.

Several quarrels and fights have broken out in the battle for lucrative passengers who deplane daily at the world's fourth-largest airport.

The American drivers say the foreign cabbies ignore airport regulations and cheat customers.

The foreign drivers complain that the Americans just don't like competition for the $21 fares for rides to Fort Worth and $18.50 fares for rides to Dallas.

DTA members recently asked the Dallas City Council to impose citizenship restrictions on the airport taxi business, but council members said the restrictions would be unconstitutional.

"It would be a lot of help for us if every driver was a citizen," said airport police chief Tom Shehan.

"It's not uncommon for a non-citizen cab driver to pass his (driver's) permit on to the next. And if drivers get caught with the wrong permit, that's going to create quite a mess," he said.

The foreign cabbies say they have become the scapegoat for a decline in taxi business that should be blamed on the economy.

"The economy is bad and Americans are frustrated," said Andy Oziebo, a Nigerian paying his way through school by driving a taxi.

Samuel Dafa, an Ethiopian political refugee, said, "I have a right to work here and I have capital. I have a right to open my own business. If they don't like that, maybe they should change the Constitution."

Adler said the foreign cabbies often refuse the short trips between terminals for the more profitable rides into Dallas and Fort Worth. They also cheat customers by taking unnecessary routes, he said.

"They don't know their way around Dallas and Fort Worth. They don't know how to read a (street map), and what's more, they don't want to know," he said.

TWO TERMS IS ENOUGH

Texas has a healthy skepticism of their elected officials, a wariness of entrenched power that they have embodied in the state constitution. They have historically refused to keep top state officeholders more than a few terms.

Now my opponent comes along, having spent nearly ten years in the Lt. Governor's office, one of the top state policy-making offices. Mr. Hobby wants yet another term to make it 14 years in that crucial job. That is unprecedented.

Never in Texas' history has any Lt. Governor served that long—or wanted to.

His desire, frankly, puzzles me. You would think he would have other goals, other challenges he might want to tackle. As his primary opponent this year said, "If he had anything to get done, you'd think he would have done it by now."

My opponent will tell you that experience is what counts. I think voters need to look at the experience they have had with him. After ten years, our highways are in bad shape, the quality of education has declined, we still do not have a new, statewide water plan and he has refused to tackle the growing crime problem. We can't afford more of that kind of experience.

I have a long-held belief in what I call the citizen-politician: someone who holds a job, serves his country or state for a reasonable time, then returns to that job and private life. For that reason, the first order of business after I am elected will be to have a constitutional amendment introduced in the legislature limiting the Lt. Governor to two terms—eight years. That is enough time for anyone. Too great a concentration of power for too long is bad. That is a principle of democracy.

Mexicans crack down

Vehicles crossing the United States-Mexico border will be subject to searches as Mexican customs officials attempt to stop bargain-hunting Americans from stockpiling government-subsidized food, a Ciudad Juarez official says.

Luis Gutierrez y Gonzalez, head of Mexican customs in Juarez, said customs inspectors have been instructed by Mexico City officials to check for food in the trunks and glove compartments of outgoing vehicles.

The inspectors also were to limit outgoing cash to $1,000 per person, but were not conducting body searches, he said.

Gutierrez y Gonzalez said the inspectors were confiscating any food above what a person could use in "daily consumption."

The searches began Friday and traffic lines at one of the bridges between El Paso and Juarez were backed up nearly a mile as the inspectors checked vehicles driven by Americans and Mexicans alike.

Normally, traffic going out of Mexico isn't even monitored by Mexican customs officials, though cars often are checked by American customs officers on the northern side of the bridges.

"To say their checking has been stepped-up might be an understatement," said Jack Flynn, acting district director of U.S. Customs in El Paso.

The inspections are a result of buying sprees by Americans that began after the Aug. 5 devaluation of the peso. When the Mexican government allowed the peso to float on international money markets, it fell from a rate of about 49 pesos to the dollar to more than 100 to the dollar.

With their dollars suddenly worth twice as much in Mexico, shoppers from the United States hurried across the border to take advantage of bargains ranging from food to beer to clothing.

Particularly attractive were basic foodstuffs such as sugar, coffee, cooking oil and tortillas that remained at pre-devaluation prices because they are subsidized by the Mexican government.

Merchants on the Mexican side of the border claimed Americans were clearing their store shelves, causing shortages of food that Mexicans needed.

Bryan rolls, 28-0

Quarterback James Flowers scored an 11-yard touchdown run and hit paydirt on an option play to all-state halfback candidate Rod Bernstine as the Bryan Vikings took an 28-0 romp over Galveston Ball in schoolboy football play Friday.

Bryan, top-ranked in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, accumulated all of its points in the first half, scoring twice within a two-minute period of the first quarter on Bernstine's 67-yard run and Flowers' dash inside two defenders. Bernstine, one of the state's leading running back prospects, led all ball carriers with 114 yards on 11 carries.

Mike Bradford scored on a 2-point conversion with 3:19 left in the first quarter that gave the Vikings a 14-0 lead at the end of the period.

Carl Terry scored twice in the second quarter, first on a 4-yard pass from Flowers and then on a 5-yard run. Steve Reddell made both extra point attempts.

Bryan forced four Tornado turnovers and its defense limited Galveston to 55 yards total offense.

In other Class 5A action, Port Arthur Jefferson quarterback Craig Stump broke a school record by hitting on 21 of 34 throws for 326 yards to lead the Yellow Jackets to a 33-21 victory over the LaPorte Bulldogs.

Stump, an all-state quarterback in 1981, broke Todd Dodge's old record and also scored two touchdowns against LaPorte. Split end Paddy Doyle caught five passes for 110 yards and a touchdown for second-ranked TJ.

A 6-yard pass by Stump to split end Cliff Landry opened the scoring, and Stump kicked the extra point. A run by Yellow Jackets' tailback Jerry Chaney and a Landry kick made it 14-7 at the half.

Doyle then caught an 8-yard scoring pass with 9:50 remaining in the third quarter, and Landry added the extra point. Chaney closed the gap with 11 seconds left in the period on an 11-yard run.

The Yellow Jackets ended their scoring blitz on a 13-yard run by fullback Derek Theall, with 3:35 remaining in the game for their 22nd consecutive regular victory.

Also in 5A, Baytown Sterling quarterback John Tomjack tossed three touchdown bombs and completed six passes in a row for a 35-6 thrashing of Houston Westchester.

Scoring began with halfback Eric Donato's 3-yard run in the first quarter. With 7:32 remaining in the period, Wayne Tubbs dashed for 33 yards to score. And Tomjack lobbed a 28-yard pass to tight end Joe Jordan with 4:40 left.

Tomjack opened the third quarter with a 28-yard pass to Tubbs.

Herd impressive

when Martinez burst up the middle for 17 yards with 7:55 remaining in the period, making it 34-0.

And, that virtually marked the end of action for Hereford's starters. Reserves took over the rest of the way.

Pampa's only score came following Hereford's final TD.

The Harvesters rolled 70 yards in 14 plays. An 11-yard pass from Randy Skaggs to Kenneth Jackson and a 35-yard strike to Robert Hornback consumed most of the yardage.

The payoff came with 3:01 left in the quarter when Cliff Baker gouged over from a yard out, making the score final.

"One thing that really helped us out was the fact we got to play everyone," Cumpston added.

"It was pretty hot out there, and the starters didn't get worn out. I don't think we had any injuries.

"Overall, I was very pleased with the way we played. It would be hard to find much wrong with our effort. I thought all our kids played well.

"I was especially pleased with the play of McDowell and Scott. And, I thought Raymond (Martinez) ran very well. His teammates don't call him El Toro (the Bull) for nothing. He really ran like one against Pampa.

"Defensively, I felt we played well. We contained them most of the night.

"The majority of the yards they got was against our reserves."

Martinez led Hereford with 88 yards on nine carries. Ball added 79 yards on 12 rushes. Terry came off the bench to gain 26 yards on four attempts.

McDowell completed two of seven passes for 75 yards, while Scott was two of four for 23 yards.

"McDowell was pretty sharp," Cumpston noted. "Even though he only completed two passes, most of them were on target. Receivers just dropped some. And, I really thought Scott threw well. He looked very poised for a sophomore."

Friday's 28-point victory margin was the widest ever over Pampa. It was also the most points recorded by the Herd since 1967 when they defeated Floydada, 41-6.

The Whitefaces will travel to Pampa Friday for their final non-conference game. They'll open District 3-5A play Sept. 17 at home against Lubbock High.

Dolphins outlast Giants in overtime, 16-13

By MIKE EMBRY AP Sports Writer

Don Shula wasn't about to let his Miami Dolphins make the same mistakes against the New York Giants that they had made a week earlier with Kansas City.

And place-kicker Rex Robinson wasn't going to repeat his performance either when the Dolphins and Giants went into sudden-death overtime in their final National Football League exhibition game.

As soon as the Dolphins moved the ball to the New York 13, the Miami coach sent out his kicking team on first down to break the 13-13 tie. Robinson responded with a 31-yard field goal for the victory in the nationally televised game.

A week earlier in a 17-17 tie with the Chiefs, penalties cost Miami a victory when Robinson's 36-yard attempt bounced off the crossbar.

"Rather than take the chance of getting penalties on the next two plays, I decided to go ahead and kick," Shula said. "Rex could've been the hero last week, but the ball bounced out. This week, he made up for it."

The Giants got first possession in overtime but a quarterback sack and a penalty killed their chance for a winning drive.

Miami finished the preseason 2-1-1 while the Giants closed 1-3.

Elsewhere in NFL exhibition games, Cincinnati defeated Washington 28-21, Tampa Bay whipped Atlanta 34-0, San Francisco beat Seattle 17-13 and Minnesota downed New Orleans 24-21.

This afternoon it's Green Bay at New England. Tonight's schedule has San Diego at the Los Angeles Rams, Cleveland at the Los Angeles Raiders, Denver at the New York Jets, Detroit at Buffalo, Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, Baltimore at Chicago and Kansas City at St. Louis.

Ken Anderson completed 23 of 32 passes for 307 yards to lead the Cincinnati over Washington in the battle of winless teams.

"It was important to this football team that we won this game," said Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg. "I know it's only the preseason. But I think our people doubted themselves a little bit in a lot of ways."

Anderson had first-half scoring passes of 17 yards to Isaac Curtis, 10 yards to Steve Kreider and 38 yards to Cris Collinsworth in leading the Bengals to a 21-14 lead.

The winning score came with 12:54 to play when Anderson connected on a pass to Curtis and driving the Bengals 73 yards in eight plays.

Quarterback Joe

The Tampa Bay defense held Atlanta to only 92 total yards and allowed the Falcons to cross midfield only once in rolling to the easy victory. The Buccaneers also had sacks totaling 32 yards.

Brewers must beat best

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer

If the Milwaukee Brewers are going to win the American League East, they'll have to beat the best to do it.

Milwaukee, currently leading the division, plays only above-.500 teams for the rest of the season. And on Friday night, the Brewers began their stretch run on the wrong foot.

California's Tommy John, acquired from the New York Yankees this week, debuted with an eight-hitter for the Angels as they downed the Brewers 5-2.

"He's the same Tommy John," said Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn. "He keeps the ball down and away and doesn't make too many mistakes."

The loss reduced Milwaukee's lead in the AL East to 3½ games over Boston and four games over Baltimore, which both won Friday night. The victory kept California two games behind victorious Kansas City in the AL West.

"You can't count on shutting down the top hitting teams like the Brewers," John said. "I tried to hold them to three, four or even five runs, and I figured our club would outscore them."

Any thoughts on his new team?

"The Angels are like wine and cheese — they age well," said the 39-year-old left-hander, now 11-10 this season.

California's big hits came in the fourth inning when Juan Beniquez hit a two-run triple and Bobby Grich followed with his 16th homer.

Brian Downing started the game with a home run, the sixth time he has done that this season for the Angels. That tied the AL record for most leadoff homers in a season, also held by Eddie Joost, Eddie Yost, Tommy Harper and Bert Campaneris.

In other American League games, Baltimore topped Minnesota 4-2; Boston outslugged Seattle 10-8; Kansas City defeated New York 5-3; Detroit beat Oakland 6-3; Cleveland edged Toronto 3-2; and Chicago held off Texas 7-5.

Rockets' owner won't let Moses Malone get away

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets' general manager says he is not about to let star free agent center Moses Malone get away, despite the Philadelphia 76ers' offer of a $13.2 million contract.

"I can tell you there is no way that Moses will play for Philadelphia," Ray Patterson said. "The Rockets are not ready to start rebuilding this franchise from the ground up."

"We have built this team up to a certain level that is right near the top of the league. And it is now easier to stay at the top than to go back to square one and start all over," he said Friday.

Friday NL roundup

L.A. helps Braves

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers did nothing but hurt the Atlanta Braves during the month of August.

The way they're playing these days, they can do nothing but help them.

The Dodgers — who bumped the Braves out of first in the National League West by beating them eight straight times in August — lost for the fourth time in their last five starts Friday night, a 3-2 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Meanwhile, the suddenly revitalized Braves made hay with a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos on Claudell Washington's three-run homer and climbed 2½ games ahead of the second-place Dodgers.

"That's as long a home run as you're going to hit," Atlanta Manager Joe Torre said of Washington's blast at Montreal's Olympic Stadium. "I think the foul pole kept the ball from hitting the roof."

Washington stood at home plate several seconds watching the ball in flight.

"I was doing my Reggie Jackson imitation," he said jokingly. "Actually, I stood there because I didn't know whether the ball was going to be fair or foul."

Washington said the homer had been a case of guessing correctly.

"(Expos pitcher) Charlie Lea had been jumping ahead of most of the hitters with a fastball. He started me off with a curve, and I figured he'd come back with a fastball. I guessed right."

The Braves, who have won seven out of eight games and 13 out of 15, trailed 2-1 entering the fifth.

Winning pitcher Phil Niekro, 14-3, opened the fifth with a single off Lea, 11-8. One out later, Rafael Ramirez followed with a single before Washington struck the right field foul pole with a towering drive for his 13th homer and a 4-2 Atlanta lead.

In other NL action, it was Cincinnati 1, New York 0; Philadelphia 2, Houston 1; San Diego 3, Chicago 0 and San Francisco 3, St. Louis 2.

Carner set to defend golf crown

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Defending champion JoAnne Carner, top money-winner in LPGA history and leader on this year's tour, heads a field of more than 100 teeing off in the 54-hole Rail Charity Golf Classic.

The event, in its seventh year as a Labor Day weekend outing for central Illinois golf fans, is played on the par-72, 6,281-yard Rail Golf Club course.

"I've been putting pretty well lately," Carner said Thursday after her round in the pro-am tournament. She has won the last two LPGA events — the World Championship of Women's Golf and the Henredon Classic. The World victory qualified her for the LPGA Hall of Fame.

"Although I'm not hitting the ball real solid, I'm hitting it fairly well," said Carner, who has won a record $272,860 on the circuit so far this year. She said relaxing "is coming easier" since making the Hall of Fame.

"I'm going to play this week and then I'm going to take some time off and go fishing in Alaska," she said.

The top finisher in the tournament will take home $18,750 out of a purse of $125,000.

The only other golfer among the 1982 tour's top 10 LPGA money winners in the tournament is Hollis Stacy, ranked sixth in earnings.

Stacy's total of 271, carded at the 1977 Rail Classic, stands as the all-time LPGA record for a 72-hole event.

Farmers Union Insurance

My roof was damaged by hail and I had it repaired. If it leaks after another storm will this additional damage be covered by my insurance? If you have already collected on one roof repair necessitated by a storm, you must prove through receipts, etc., that the roof was in fact repaired by a reputable repairman. This would qualify you for collecting from your insurance should another storm cause a leak. If your certification of repair is in order, the insurance company would look at the cost of repairs as necessitated by two separate catastrophes. However, in order for your insurance to pay for the damage caused by the second storm, the deductible must once again be met. It is important to notify your company as soon as possible after such damages are incurred.

Federal judge denies request

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—Retired Braniff pilots must accept a pension reduction in September that slashes the amount of their checks by about two-thirds, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon's decision left intact a ruling by a federal bankruptcy judge enabling grounded Braniff International Corp. to cut the pensions from $3,000 to $1,000 on Sept. 1.

Dallas lawyer Jim Hicks, representing a group of retired Braniff pilots, had asked Mahon to postpone the effective date until Mahon could rule on their appeal of U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers' decision.

But Mahon said the retirees would not be greatly harmed because the cut would stand for only one month, and they would receive at least some benefits.

The pilots' appeal is based upon a June 28 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that declared the Bankruptcy Act of 1978 unconstitutional, effective Oct. 4.

The act gives bankruptcy judges authority over non-bankruptcy proceedings, such as the fight between former Braniff employees and the airline over the future of the company's pension plan.

Hicks argued that the Supreme Court ruling was ambiguous and that it was unclear which non-bankruptcy cases could be considered by a bankruptcy judge before the Oct. 4 effective date.

Mahon has already denied one request, based on Hicks' argument, to prohibit Flowers from deciding pension plan issues. He indicated Friday that there was little likelihood he would grant Hicks' appeal.

Braniff officials have asked Flowers' permission to terminate the company's four pension plans, so they can turn them over to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., a federal agency.

The hearing is one day before Braniff's Sept. 10 deadline for filing a reorganization plan with Flowers.

Clements takes campaign to hard times Panhandle

VERNON, Texas (AP)—While Democrats were on the road with their candidate preaching unity, Gov. Bill Clements took his campaign to North Texas, where he sparred with one fellow Republican and said the rest "couldn't elect a dogcatcher."

"If I had to rely on only Republicans to win this election, I'd go home and retire right now," he told a rally in Sherman after a day of campaigning in the Panhandle.

Clements repeatedly stressed that he needs the estimated 45 percent of Texas voters who are "ticket-splitters" to beat Attorney General Mark White.

At a stop in Fort Worth, Clements showed little of the intra-party lovey-doveyness the Democrats were displaying.

He accused Republican U.S. Senate candidate Jim Collins of committing "a breach of good taste and a breach of etiquette" in releasing a poll that showed Collins within 10 percent of incumbent Lloyd Bentsen — and Clements trailing White by 4 percent.

"I don't care what Mark White says. He's my competitor and he's in the race and he can do whatever he wants," Clements said. "But I don't want somebody else dipping into my race."

"I also feel very strongly that, if under those circumstances it continues, what's good for the goose is good for the gander," he concluded ominously.

Clements said he has done no polls since late June, when four separate surveys showed him with between 5 and 16 percentage points on White.

Party politics were left behind when Clements embarked on a day of "barnstorming" in Panhandle towns.

Incumbents traditionally rely on — or are stuck with — current conditions as the basis of their re-election campaigns, and Clements is no exception.

He touted Texas' prosperity at every campaign stop, even in this dusty plains country where four years of bad luck have worn Texas' cushion against the recession from thin to none.

Clements, accompanied by wife Rita, Fort Worth oilman Eddie Chiles and King Ranch Manager John Armstrong, hopped from tiny airport to tiny airport in Chiles' corporate jet.

At Vernon, about 50 miles from Wichita Falls, party worker Susie Byers said her cotton-farming husband shares her support for the incumbent Republican, even though drought and low prices have dogged him for four years. "I know he thinks Gov. Clements is trying to help him," she said during a drive from the airport to a courthouse rally, "and, bad as it is right now, he knows Reagan is trying to help him, too."

Clements, a strong backer of President Reagan, insisted voters will not connect him with bad economic times nationally.

"I think people are smart enough to know I don't control the interest rates," Clements told reporters in Canyon earlier in the day. "We're still searching to find out who does — but it sure as hell ain't me."

Nearly 40 percent of the people living in the world's poorer countries are less than 15 years of age.

Larger women can go in style, too

Clothes do make a statement, no matter what size or who wears them. To give the right message, however, a woman needs to know what is good for her size, her build, her lifestyle.

The years of the larger and taller woman having to look second best in fashion are gone. Manufacturers are beginning to put style into the fullers sizes, but there are still some special guidelines for the fuller figured woman to remember when shopping.

-- The best bet is a V-neck which gives length to the neck and face and draws the eyes upward. An appearance of V-neck can be achieved through a yoke or trim if a woman doesn't want her neck to show.

-- Next best is a peter pan collar or a plain shirt collar.

-- High necklines and large ruffles and flounces cut the neck shorter and makes a face chubbier. Keep ruffles only if understated.

-- Bodies are all different, however, so there really aren't any taboos. For example, a few ripples of a cowl neck may be just right to frame a particular face.

-- Long sleeves or three-quarter sleeves are most popular. They add length and also conceal large arms.

-- Sleeveless clothes are rarely flattering unless covered with a lightweight drape or lace jacket.

-- Princess styles with vertical lines are the most slimming.

-- Float dresses, full with accents and trim bringing eyes to the face, are good for the larger woman.

-- Embroidered tops with focus in the center and toward the face are flattering.

-- Blouses with ties falling the bodice length or vertical lines are slimming.

-- Broomstick pleated skirts are stylish and comfortable for a larger woman.

-- Gored skirts have been proven popular for big builds.

-- Pants should be topped with tunics, sweaters and jackets which fall a little longer than average.

A black velveteen jacket by Four Seasons topping a plaid box pleat skirt by Mr. Bow succeeds on Sylvia Paetzold. A dressy blouse in a dark fuchsia slims and frames the face with diminutive neckline ruffles.

Marie Cline's two-piece Castlebury Knit suit in diamond green and beige with a cream blouse slims with vertical lines dropping from the bow-tie. High pockets and trim on the jacket keeps eyes moving upward. The small print and character of the knit is flattering for a larger size.

A float style dress by Going Places in always slenderizing black is a classic choice for the woman on a reducing program - it can be worn at any size. The white collar and V-neck piping minimizes with an added vertical scarf that keeps eyes to the middle of the georgette fabric.

Length gives lean looks for party going in a royal blue caftan by Little House Creation. A swishy, but not clinging, velour knit style has its fullness in the sleeves and sides. A high-waisted jewel belt allows a long drop for a front slit.

Stephanie Futrell picks a georgette float dress by First Lady for a feminine look. The dress is in mauve green print with a brown border and trim at the neck and cuffs. An overall dressy appearance is important for all women.

Side welt piping in a contrasting color adds length to a denim sportswear outfit. Topstitching tailors a yoked jacket by Bobbie June. A longer line and drawstring waist flatters a fuller figure.

Maureen Jones lets her height shine in Salamander's hybrid of new wave and Santa Fe. Fuchsia is the color for a tucked tunic and ruffled circular skirt, both trimmed in black and silver braid.

Giddy-up Horsie!

Candice Lange, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lange, shows off her riding abilities to Raggedy Ann. Candice is as active as other little girls despite the fact that she underwent heart surgery when she was one month old. To receive therapy for a slight crippling in her right leg, Candice goes to the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Amarillo, which is supported by the United Way. Children from all over the Panhandle are the beneficiaries of this agency's activities. (Brand Photo by Linda Caudle).

Local child among beneficiaries

BY LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor
Editor's note: This is the final in a series of articles about various agencies who receive funds from the United Way. The Children's Rehabilitation Center is located at 1250 Wallace Blvd. in Amarillo and currently serves 14 children from Hereford, as well as children from all over the Panhandle area.

Candice Marie Lange a darling little three-year-old, is just one of the many children who have benefited through the services of the Children's Rehabilitation Center.

The daughter of Bill and Tammye Lange, Candice was born with a coarctation of the aorta which caused a ventricular septal defect. She underwent heart surgery in Lubbock when she was just one month old.

Through the surgery, Candice has been able to develop normally except for a slight crippling in her right side. She has been wearing a lively splint (or night brace) for the past year, and through the Rehabilitation Center, with financial support from the Texas Crippled Children's Program, Candice will soon be getting a brace that is attached to a high-topped shoe and extends to the knee. Candice has a checkup at the Rehabilitation Center clinic once a year and a 30-minute session at the Center once a month with Grace Holloway, who also teaches Candice's parents how to do therapy exercises with her at home two to four times a day.

The Langes began taking Candice to the Children's Rehabilitation Center when she was about one and a half years old. She has been seeing Dr. David Barry, who is still their pediatrician, and he referred them to the Rehabilitation Center.

Candice has seen several of the specialists who are on the medical staff at the Center. Forty-two physicians volunteer time to the Rehabilitation Center including pediatricians, orthopedic surgeons, neurosurgeons, neurologists, urologists, and ophthalmologists. There is no charge to the patient for clinical office visits at the Center.

Patients pay for therapy on a sliding fee scale based on their income. The Center staffs full-time physical and occupational therapists and one speech pathologist.

According to Richard Blake, Executive Director of the Rehabilitation Center, the United Way and insurance absorb part of the costs, the Crippled Children's Program pays about three-fourths of the cost of physical and occupational therapy, and patients make up the difference — a nominal amount compared to private clinic fees.

About 85 to 87 percent of the Center's operating funds come from the Amarillo United Way, says Blake. Hereford United Way contributed $481.85 to the Rehabilitation Center this past year.

Any child with a physical disability may be treated at the Children's Rehabilitation Center. The facilities and equipment are designed specifically for children, unlike most other facilities and the Center serves children from birth to approximately 22 years of age. The majority are preschool and early elementary age children.

For Amarillo children who need full-time guidance, the Rehabilitation Center operates four special education units in cooperation with the Amarillo Public Schools.

Candice attends the Early Childhood Development class at Shirley Elementary School from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. each weekday and is enjoying school very much, says Tammye, who admits that she was a little hesitant at first about sending Candice off to school so young. According to Texas state law, any handicapped child is eligible to attend school beginning when they are three years old. This enables them to get used to being around other children and more easily overcome their handicap as well as getting started in basic fundamentals.

Most of the children in Candice's class are very smart, says Tammye, and just have a minor handicap.

Candice had a catheterization when she was two years old, to check the condition of her heart. When she is 10 or 12 years old she will have to undergo surgery similar to that which she had at one month old because the replacement tissues do not grow with her.

Things look very optimistic for Candice, however, because of the medical attention and abundance of loving care which she has received. She was able to quit taking medication in June.

English visitors enjoy Jubilee, "Texas" show

BY LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Henslee welcomed two visitors from England into their home recently along with their son, Major Don R. Henslee, his wife, Merle, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troys Carmichael, and their daughter, Jennifer, of Lawton, Okla.

Visiting from England were Major John Middleton and his wife, Gwen.

The Henslees and their guests enjoyed the Town and Country Jubilee festivities here and the "Texas" show at Palo Duro Canyon, which the Middletons considered fascinating and one of the highlights of their visit.

Mrs. Donald Henslee had accompanied her daughter-in-law and granddaughter to Wiltshire County, England, two and a half years ago to visit her son, who was serving as an exchange officer at the Royal School of Artillery, Larkhill, at the time.

It was there that she met the Middletons, who were already good friends of her son.

The Middletons are spending three weeks in the United States, visiting at Major Henslee's home in Lawton, where he is now stationed, in addition to coming to Hereford. They hope to visit area museums and Indian towns as they enjoy history, particularly that of the American West.

Middleton notes that during the Jubilee in Hereford, "we were made to feel as much a part of the celebrations as any citizen. We found we were made welcome wherever we went by all those we met. The town has an atmosphere all its own, a pride in its achievements, but most importantly a unique, generous friendliness towards its visitors."

He also says that they were awed by the sheer size of this state. "One hears jokes concerning the size of everything within Texas, but the reality is that all that is said is true. Everything is big, impressive, and is equalled only by the big hearts of its inhabitants. Our fondest hope is that someday we may be able to return."

The Middletons are from the country of Sussex, the southernmost county in England. "We were both born and raised in the country away from the city lights," notes Middleton.

They are currently stationed in Hohn, in the north of Germany between Hannover and Hamburg, where Middleton is a gunnery instructor in the School of Artillery.

Late afternoon ceremony unites Schlabs, Weaver

Miss Donna Jean Schlabs and John Thomas Weaver exchanged wedding vows Friday afternoon at St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Deacon Kenneth Artho, of the church, officiating.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schlabs of Route 4 and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. B.J. Weaver of 815 E. Park Ave.

Decorating the altar of the church were two spring bouquets, consisting of orchid gladiolus, pink carnations, yellow daisies, blue carnations and white cushion mums; two brass tree candelabra trimmed with greenery; and a unity candle decorated with greenery and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Barbara Schlabs, served as maid of honor, and the bridegroom's brother, Bobby Weaver, was best man.

Serving as bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Mrs. Lance Martin, Mrs. Leander Reinart, Jr., and Terri Bethune.

Groomsmen were Michael Don Franks of Odessa, Chris Cabbiness of Canyon and Doug Jossierand.

Cheryl Schlabs served her sister as junior bridesmaid. The bride's niece, Julie Schlabs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schlabs, Jr., was flower girl and the bride's cousin, Keith Brorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Brorman of Vega, was ring bearer.

Lighting candles were Charles Hund and David Brorman.

"Bridal Vow" and "Our Father" were vocalized by Beth Owen, and accompanied by Mrs. Allen Evers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white chiffon. The sweetheart neckline was fashioned with a high lace collar and was scattered with pearls. The bodice of the gown was overlaid in chantilly lace and small covered buttons extended down the gown's back.

The full, sheer sleeves were trimmed in lace and were banded at the wrist with wide lace cuffs. Wide chantilly lace flounces bordered the skirt and extended to encircle the full chapel-length train.

To complement her gown, the bride wore a mantilla style walking-length veil of bridal illusion. Chantilly lace, accented with pearls, covered the headpiece and extended to edge the veil.

The bride carried her mother's lace handkerchief and a spring bouquet of lavender orchids, yellow roses, and pink and blue carnations in a cascade design.

Bridal attendants were attired in polyester lusterlargo rainbow colored dresses of chiffonett designed with blousen tops and split sleeves. The sunburst pleated skirts fell to floor-length. The colors were yellow, seafoam, periwinkle and blue. The junior bridesmaid's pink dress was designed like the bridal attendants' gowns.

They carried spring bouquets of carnations and roses made by the bride in colors to coordinate with their dresses.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Ray Schlabs, Jr., invited guests to register at the reception held in the Knight's of Columbus Hall.

The bride's cousins, Mrs. Bill Adams, and Diana, Joyce and Debra Brorman, served cake, punch and coffee from a table covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a six-taper arch candelabrum surrounded by the bride and bridesmaids' bouquets.

The bridal cake was designed with two tiers arranged on top of a flowing fountain and two smaller tiers placed on either side of the base. Miniature bridesmaids were placed on a staircase which led from the side of the cake to its top. Figurines of a bride and groom standing in front of a cross topped the cake.

The bridegroom's German chocolate three-layered cake was placed on a glass stand which was used on his first birthday. The cake was decorated with a golf green and miniature golfer.

Leaving for a surprise wedding trip which was a gift from the bridegroom, the bride was attired in her mother's two-piece lavender tweed going-away suit. Completing the ensemble was a beige lacy blouse.

The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride, a 1981 Hereford High School graduate, attended West Texas State University and is currently employed at Gattis Shoe Store.

A 1978 graduate of HHS, the bridegroom attended WTSU and is presently a golf pro at Dimmitt Country Club.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the bridegroom's parents' home Thursday evening before the wedding ceremony.

Larger economy sizes may save money

COLLEGE STATION — Will buying the "large economy size" save money on your grocery bill?

"As a rule, food in large containers costs less than the same amount in smaller containers," says Mary K. Sweeten, food and nutrition specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Left-overs that can't be stored properly, conveniently and safely may end up costing more, she says. If meals become monotonous, the large economy sizes may not be worth the money saved.

"However, if the food can be stored and used, buying large amounts can be easier. It will reduce shopping trips and save money on the food bill," Sweeten says.

Compare the cost per unit — ounce, pound or pint — of the food from different sized containers.

Look for "price per unit" on the display shelf or above the compartment. If unit pricing is not used, figure it by dividing the price of the item by the number of ounces it contains, she suggests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Seiver of 114 Elm. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sorrells of Dallas.

The front of the church was decorated with an arched candelabrum flanked by two spiral candelabra and two bouquets of gladiolas and blue mums. The aisle was accented with pew candles and bows.

Mrs. Dane Dees of Houston was matron of honor and Jim Taylor of Mesquite was best man.

Bridesmaids included Mrs. Roger Gregory of Paducah, sister of the bride, and Cindy Marshall of Amarillo. James Spires of Duncannonville and Steve Hickerson of Lubbock served as groomsmen.

Ushers were David Lemons of Dallas, brother-in-law of the groom, and John Seiver, brother of the bride. Candle lighters were Michelle Gregory of Paducah and Billy Seiver.

Principal wedding selections included "Longer," "The Lord's Prayer," and "Speak Softly Love." Vocalists were Mrs. Ken Walsler, who also played the organ, and Jack Wagner of Bedford, cousin of the bride. Pianist was Sandra Sorrells of Dallas, cousin of the groom.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a formal-length white gown of chiffonette trimmed with Venice and schiffli laces. The gown featured a wedding band collar of schiffli lace and a sheer drop shoulder yoke outlined with Venice lace appliques sprinkled with pearls and crystals.

The schiffli embroidered flounce was gathered to the yoke edge and dropped to the waist covering the fitted bodice. Sheer bishop sleeves were applied with Venice lace and cuffed with schiffli lace.

The sunburst pleated skirt of chiffonette fell from a natural waistline and was enhanced with vertical bands of Venice lace and bordered with a gathered flounce of schiffli lace. The skirt formed a chapel-length train in back.

Her fingertip-length veil of illusion was edged in schiffli lace and gathered onto a lace-covered bandeau sprinkled with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses in a cascade design.

The attendants wore blue pleated spaghetti strapped dresses with blue lace capes. They carried bouquets of blue and white camellias, roses, and carnations.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. John Seiver, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. David Lemons of Dallas, sister of the groom, invited guests to register.

The bride's table was centered with a silver candelabrum holding four white candles and an arrangement of blue and white silk flowers. The tablecloth was a white satin skirt overlaid with white net and outlined with blue net.

The bride's cake, decorated with white icing and blue flowers, was served by Mrs. Joe Rathbun of Lefors. Sandra Manning served punch.

An arrangement of blue and white flowers on a tablecloth of light blue was used for the grooms' serving table. Karen Poston, the groom's cousin, served the chocolate cake with chocolate icing and the German chocolate cake.

Sandra Sorrells, cousin of the groom from Dallas, served coffee from a silver coffee service.

Grandparents of the groom from Dallas were in attendance. They included Mr. and Mrs. P.W. Tullis and Mrs. J.L. Hudmon.

The bride's going away outfit consisted of a plum corduroy prairie skirt with raised slit and a matching plaid blouse.

The couple will be at home at 427 N. 25 Mile Ave. after a wedding trip to Santa Fe, N.M.

The bride graduated from West Texas State University in August with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics. She was listed in Who's Who Among American College Students.

The bridegroom is a May graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor of business administration in accounting. He is currently employed by Bob Gentry and Associates.

Barbados

Although both Arwak and Carib Indians inhabited Barbados at one time, the island was uninhabited in 1627 when the first white settlers arrived from England. In less than a decade, slaves were brought from Africa to work the sugar plantations, which continue to serve as the mainstay of the island's economy.

Egyptian children's tapestries, Western American art exhibited

The El Paso Museum of Art will have an exhibit from Sept. 12 through Oct. 31 a display of 57 children's tapestries from Harrania, Egypt, and a Western American art exhibit.

The tapestries were made by children, ages six to 11, from an Egyptian village near the great pyramids. An Egyptian architect Ramses Wissa Wassef introduced the children to weaving through an experimental workshop studio in 1952.

Many of the children who began weaving in 1952 are still weaving. The skill has offered them a new way to make a living. The village of Harrania now has over 20 studios producing tapestries. The designs are free-hand and figurative, representing the every day surroundings of the children - date trees, wildlife, and mudbrick buildings. Their designs are strictly their own.

Running concurrently with the tapestry display will be an exhibit of Western art, including notable works such as John Sloan's "North Road, Santa Fe," Fandall Davey's "Taos Child," Thomas Hart Benton's "Gateside Conversation," and Henry

Raschen's "Indian Hunter at Sunset."

Several of the contemporary living American Western artists to be included are William Kolliker, Lincoln Fox, Manuel Acosta, Russell Waterhouse, Ernest Blumenschein, Freemont Ellisa, and Charles Russell.

The El Paso Museum of Art is located at 1211 Montana Street in El Paso. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The museum is closed on Mondays. There is no admission charge for the exhibits.

Chapter elects new officers

The eighth grade chapter of Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO) at Stanton Junior High met recently to elect officers for the new school year.

Students elected include: Mindy Cano, president; Diana Gamboa, vice-president of programs; Anita Dominguez, vice-president; Yolanda Dominguez, reporter; Marylou Mendez, recreation; Lucy Enriquez, encounter; Norma Flores, treasurer; Janie Diaz, secretary; and Annett Buentello, parliamentarian. Other members present were Beatrice Martinez, Christi Goodfellow, and Monica Gayton.

Preparations are under way for the Oct. 8 opening of the 1982 State Fair of Texas. "Texas at its Most," this year's appropriately immodest theme, will make native, transplanted and would-like-to-be Texans proud to be a part of this 17-day ultimate Texas experience.

For the true Texan, nine days of championship rodeo and 30 different breeds of livestock for show and sale will be featured.

Those who prefer putting their boot to the pedal will have the opportunity to have a first look at the 1983 automobiles displayed in one of the biggest new car shows in the country.

Gridiron cowboys will not be disappointed when those Red River rivals, Texas and Oklahoma, battle it out once again in the Cotton Bowl on Oct. 9.

Royalty will be running rampant at this year's Fair. Yul Brynner will create his greatest role as the swaggering monarch in "The King and I," booked for 24 performances in the Music Hall.

A King of another kind will also be in the spotlight. King Olaf V will visit the Fair on Norwegian Day, Oct. 9.

FAR SHORE — Principal photography has been completed in Los Angeles on "The Far Shore," a CBS-TV movie about step-parenting that stars Linda Lavin, Tony LoBlanco and Tracey Gold. The film will air later this season. Alba Oms, Joyce Van Patten, Ron Rifkin, Doris Roberts and Jenny O'Hara co-star.

Linda Lavin

NEWEST NAME — The new ABC show patterned after "Raiders of the Lost Ark" has been given yet a third new name. Now the series is called "Tales of the Gold Monkey." Its original name was "Tales of the Brass Monkey," which was then changed to "The Golden Monkey." The series stars Stephen Collins as Jake Cutter, a dashing expatriate American flyer who is drawn into intrigue and adventure in the South Pacific in 1938.

TRACK RECORD — NBC Sports has acquired exclusive United States TV rights for the first World Championship of Track and Field, an international competition of elite athletes representing 126 nations, which will be held in Helsinki, Finland in August 1983. NBC plans more than 10 hours of live and taped programming, said to be the largest commitment of one U.S. network to coverage of an international track competition outside of the Olympics.

Stephen Collins

FAST LANE — Diane Lane will star in "Miss All-American Beauty," an CBS-TV movie to air during the upcoming season. The film takes a behind-the-scenes look at a beauty pageant and focuses on the story of a naive 18-year-old whose life changes dramatically as soon as she enters the pageant and wins the crown. Cloris Leachman, David Dukas and Jayne Meadows also are featured in the film, which will be shot entirely on location in Dallas and Fort Worth.

Miss Purl's role fuels Fonz wedding rumors

Is "the Fonz" headed for the altar?

Maybe. Because when "Happy Days" returns this month for its tenth season, the leather-jacketed Fonz (Henry Winkler) will have a new steady romantic interest.

Her name is Ashley Pfister and she'll be played by Linda Purl, who originally was seen in a few episodes as Richie Cunningham's (Ron Howard) girlfriend Gloria in 1974.

"Ashley is from a well-to-do Milwaukee family," explains Miss Purl. "Originally she met and married a greaser and her family disowned her. Then the greaser left her and their kid."

"She is a hard-working accountant, but she is a single parent living in the '60s. The last thing she wants in her life is another greaser, but somehow Fonzie wins her over with his charm," says Miss Purl.

Ashley's daughter will be played by "Poltergeist" star Heather O'Rourke. Miss Purl describes the youngster as a "normal little girl who comes in and gets to work, without being in awe of anyone."

As for the on-camera relationship between Fonzie and Ashley, Miss Purl downplays the possibility of eventual marriage. She points out, "Courtships are so much fun that we'll take it one step at a time. You'll also see that Fonzie loosens Ashley up a bit, too."

Linda Purl

Although Miss Purl has made numerous TV movies including "Women at West Point," "Having Babies" and "The Manions of America," and had been a former member of the "Happy Days" cast, she says she wasn't a shoo-in for the role.

"That just wasn't the case," Miss Purl says. "This was not the same character that I did in 1974. I had to audition all over again. The producers wanted to see Fonzie have a mature relationship and many different actresses auditioned for the part."

"I've wanted to do a series for the last six months and this is a whole new arena for my talents."

"My soul is among lions and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword." — Ps. 57:4

Dottie West's version of "If It's Alright with You," penned by Kenny O'Dell and Larry Henley, will be used in the David Carradine movie, "Americana."

Dottie West

After a one-month vacation, Don Williams and band are back on the tour circuit, headlining fair dates through Texas, Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri.

Don's single, "Listen to the Radio," has been one of his most successful singles to date.

The Statler Brothers have completed their first country music video for Polygram, featuring their current single, "Whatever," from their latest album, "The Legend Goes On."

The video combines performance segments of "Whatever" with four separate conceptual vignettes featuring each of the brothers — Harold Reid, Don Reid, Phil Balsley and Jimmy Fortune — acting out their dreams of wooing the beautiful women in the front row of the audience.

The video will be shown on various network variety and talk shows, cable programs and in-store displays. Nashville's Scene Three, Inc. produced the video, under the guidance of director Marc Ball.

George Hamilton IV has just begun his longest tour ever, with some 60 scheduled concert dates.

Hamilton was in New Zealand during June, then he crossed the Atlantic for a tour of Eastern European countries.

ROCK ON

By Ethlie Ann Vare

WHO'S WHO

Is there life after disco? — Dancemaster Gino Soccio nudged over into "electropop" for his new LP, "Face to Face," and it just won the People's Choice Award in Quebec. Soccio is a hometown boy there.

Forget the earplugs, get an umbrella! — Manowar, who played through 10 stacks of amps and claim to be the "loudest, fastest, heaviest" band ever, brought the house down in Chicago. Literally. Playing at a club there, they set up so much vibration that plaster fell from the ceiling like snow.

And the years pass — This week, Buddy Holly would have been 46 years old. Otis Redding would have been 41.

REVIEWS

Steve Winwood — "Talking Back to the Night" (Island) — Since he was 16 years old, Winwood has been a potent force in rock 'n' roll. From Spencer Davis to Traffic to Blind Faith, he molded the maturation of the British Invasion. His solo last year, "Arc of a Diver," was a consummate work of artistic integrity. Surprisingly, it was also a commercial success. "Talking Back to the Night" has all the elements of "Diver" — in fact, it sounds enough like it to be a sequel — and it disappoints for that very reason. In this one-man show, Win-

In between stops, he has recorded a new single and album.

Just before beginning the current tour, George guested on the Auckland Country Music Awards Show, which he followed with a trip to the United States for Nashville's Fan Fair and several guest appearances on the Grand Ole Opry.

After a brief vacation at his Matthews, N.C. home, he tripped back to Nashville for a recording session at Pete's Place, with production handled by Britain's Gordon Smith.

The finished product, to be released on Ronco Records, has an easy listening pop-country sound.

Hamilton is also set to return to Czechoslovakia where he'll record an album with popular local act Juri Brabec. Then he flies to Poland for a TV show, and concludes the "eastern trek" by again headlining the International Festival of Country Music in Budapest, Hungary.

Couple wed Saturday

University Church of Christ in Canyon was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Miss Lisa Gail McCabe of Frisco and Richard Thomas Hogg of Houston. Officiating at the ceremony was Don Browning of the University Church of Christ.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCabe of Dawn and Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Hogg of Houston. A fan candelabrum adorned the center of the altar. It was flanked by two spiral candelabra decorated with greenery. Pew candles lined the center aisle.

Kay Suttle of Bangs was maid of honor and Kyle Riddle of Houston served as best man. Bridesmaid was Marta Stribling and Brian Odom of Houston was groomsman.

Seating guests were Stan McCabe and Joe McCabe, brothers of the bride. Jeff Hogg, the groom's brother, lit candles.

Vocalists were a group from Southwest Church of Christ in Amarillo. They sang wedding selections including "My Sweet Lady," "There is Love," "Longer," "Time in a Bottle," "I Wish You Peace," and "We've Only Just Begun."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chantilly lace gown with long, cuffed sleeves and rounded neckline. Seed pearls decorated the bodice. The A-line skirt with chapel-length train featured a cascade of ruffles at the bottom.

She wore a Juliet cap with knee-length veil edged in lace, and her mother's pearl necklace, and carried a round bouquet of white wood roses and Stephanotis.

The bride's attendants wore floor-length smoky blue satin dresses trimmed with navy blue velvet ribbon. They carried arm bouquets of navy blue wood roses trimmed with navy velvet ribbon streamers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth and featured a three-tiered cake with candles and blue flowers swirled around the outer edge.

Janell Coupe, Sherry Strain, and Mrs. Stan McCabe served cake, while Mrs. Gary Thomas and Tammy Behrends served punch and coffee. Guests were registered by Mrs. Doug Smith of Denton.

The bride left in a peach linen peasant-style dress which was decorated in embroidery by her mother. The wedding trip is being postponed while the couple is attending school in Denton.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School. She is currently attending Texas Woman's University where she is majoring in medical technology. She is employed at Medical Laboratories, Inc. in Denton.

The bridegroom, a 1979 graduate of Northbrook High School in Houston, is attending North Texas State University where he is majoring in physical education. He is employed at Security and Safety Consultants.

Out of town guests included the bride's brother, Tom McCabe of California.

Ann Landers Too busy for little things

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As you can see, the attached column is yellow with age. I have had it under my dresser scarf for several years. Every time I read it I get tears in my eyes.

How I wish I had taken more time to play with my children, to hug them and kiss them more. Please run it again, Ann. I am sure that somewhere other mothers and fathers will see themselves - too hurried, too impatient, too foolish to give their little ones the affection they need to nourish their spirit. Also, I need a new copy. I sent you my one and only. (P.S. Our newspaper used to be the Galt Reporter.) - Mrs. M.F. in Cambridge, Ont.

DEAR MRS. M.F.: Here it is. And now may I suggest that you get it laminated in plastic, so it will be readable for many years to come?

TO MY GROWN-UP SON My hands were busy through the day

I didn't have much time to play

The little games you asked me to.

I didn't have much time for you. I'd wash your clothes, I'd sew and cook.

But when you'd bring your picture book

And ask me please to share your fun,

I'd say: "A little later, son."

I'd tuck you in all safe at night

And hear your prayers, turn out the light,

Then tiptoe softly to the door...

I wish I'd stayed a minute more.

For life is short, the years rush past...

A little boy grows up so fast.

No longer is he at your side,

His precious secrets to confide.

The picture books are put away.

There are no longer games to play,

No good-night kiss, no prayers to hear...

That all belongs to yesteryear.

My hands, once busy, now are still.

The days are long and hard to fill.

I wish I could go back and do

The little things you asked me to. - Author Unknown

DEAR ANN: Help me win a bet. I say Wilberforce University was the first completely co-educational college in America. Right? - J.H.E. In ky.

DEAR J.H.E.: You lose. It was Oberlin College in Ohio, founded in 1893. Wilberforce University (also in Ohio) was the first black university in the United States, founded in 1856. It was, and still is, first-rate. I am proud of the fact that I received an honorary Doctor of Humanities from Wilberforce in 1972.

McDonald, Weemes wed Friday

Miss Lavon McDonald and Donald E. Weemes, both of Levelland, exchanged wedding vows Friday evening at South Plains Church of Levelland with Eddie E. Trice officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine McDonald of Levelland and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Weemes of 205 Greenwood.

Decorating the main altar of the church were two seven-branch candelabra arranged on either side of a heart-shaped candelabrum trimmed with white and yellow roses. Tami McDonald served her sister as maid of honor and the bridegroom's father was best man.

The bride's cousin, Kimberly Esch, and Mrs. Brenda Huckabee were bridesmaids. John Tatum and Brad Huckabee served as groomsmen. Escorting guests were the bride's brother, Carl McDonald, and Steve Herring.

Alyssa and Aaron Herring, children of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Herring, were flower girl and ring bearer, respectively, and Todd Trice and Paul Pinkert lit candles.

"Flesh of My Flesh" and "Surely the Presence" were vocalized by the bridegroom's sister, Carla Weemes. Scott Wells provided musical accompaniment.

The bride given in marriage by her parents, wore a chapel-length white organza and lace gown. It was designed with a Queen Anne neckline and lace bodice. Her white net veil edged with scalloped lace was attached to a wreath of white and yellow roses.

She carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses with white and yellow ribbons. As good luck pieces, the bride wore a golden locket worn by her mother and great-grandmother and carried a white handkerchief made by the bridegroom's grandmother.

Attendants were attired in A-line, floor-length pale yellow gowns with lace capes. They carried single yellow roses.

Laura Martin served the wedding cake decorated with white and yellow roses at the reception held at the church. A two-branch candelabrum centered the table.

Others assisting were Libby Swartzendruber, Cecily Marrow and Susan Brown.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Lubbock, the bride wore a dark blue dress gathered at the waist and neck.

The bride, a graduate of Levelland High School, attended South Plains College for three years. The bridegroom, a graduate of Hereford High School, attended Ranger Junior College and South Plains College.

Cleaning older furniture

BY LOUISE WALKER
Many families have older wood furniture or purchase antique furniture at farm sales and auctions. These pieces of furniture have a build up of dirt and varnish. They need cleaning to restore the natural beauty of the wood.

Here's a cleaning "recipe" that is excellent to use on older wood furniture. It can only be used on varnished or stained wood. It is not appropriate for painted wood.

1/4 cup boiled linseed oil (Buy boiled linseed oil - do not boil linseed oil)
1/4 cup gum turpentine
Mix well and store in a pint jar or other tight-fitting container. Pour approximately 3/4 to 1 cup of hot water in a bowl. The plastic tubs that non-dairy whipped topping comes in are a good size and can be thrown away after use.

Pour a small amount (approximately 1/4 cup) of the boiled linseed oil and gum turpentine mixture in the bowl with the water.

Put on rubber gloves and dip a piece of 000 or very fine steel wool in the water and cleaning mixture and rub on the wood furniture. Always rub with the grain of the wood. Keep dipping the steel wool in the bowl with the cleaning mixture and rubbing the furniture until the old finish, dirt and grime are removed.

The wood should have a "glow" and look like a hand-rubbed furniture finish.

After you have finished cleaning the piece of furniture, pour out the water and cleaning mixture in the bowl. The boiled linseed oil and gum turpentine cleaning mixture will last for a long time if stored in an air tight container.

CRUNCHY STRAWBERRY DELIGHT

1/4 c. sifted flour
1/4 c. sugar
1/2 c. nuts
1/2 c. soft butter
3 to 4 c. sliced strawberries, fresh or frozen
1 1/2 c. sifted confectioners sugar
2 (3 oz.) packages cream cheese, softened
1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. heavy cream, whipped
2 tsp. cornstarch
3 drops red food color
1 drop yellow food color
Combine flour, sugar, and nuts. Cut in butter with pastry blender until crumbly. Mix with hands until dough forms. Press into 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 325 degree oven 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool.

Combine berries and 1/2 cup confectioners sugar; let stand 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, cream together cream cheese and remaining 1 cup confectioners sugar until fluffy. Blend in vanilla. Fold into whipped cream. Turn into pie shell. Refrigerate.

Drain strawberries; reserve juice. Add enough water to juice to make one-third cup. Combine cornstarch, one third cup juice, and food color in small saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and clear. Cool slightly. Combine sauce with strawberries; mix gently. Spoon over filling. Cover, chill at least 2 hours.

STRAWBERRY YOGURT POPS

20 ounces frozen strawberries, thawed and nonsweetened
1 envelope (1 Tbsp.) unflavored gelatin
16 ounces low-fat plain yogurt
12 (3 ounce) paper cups
12 wooden sticks

Thaw the strawberries and drain well, saving the liquid. Put the liquid into a sauce pan and sprinkle with the unflavored gelatin. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until the gelatin is dissolved.

Mix the strawberries, yogurt and gelatin mixture in a blender until smooth. Fill the cups with the mixture and cover with tinfoil.

Insert the sticks through the foil into the cup mixture so that the foil holds the stick in place. Freeze until solid.

To unmold, dip each up into a bowl of warm water and slip off the cup. Serves 12.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Little rules to live by: The last two socks in the drawer are always mismatched.

What this country needs is an auto touch-up paint that will blend perfectly with rust.

Select baby furniture

COLLEGE STATION -- Safety is a major consideration when one selects baby furniture.

"Manufacturers offer a variety of baby furniture, and it is wise to shop with safety in mind, especially when purchasing older, previously owned furniture," says Dr. Peggy Owens, housing and home furnishing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"A few general guidelines will aid parents in providing the safest purchase for their baby," Owens says.

A crib mattress should fit snugly so the child cannot get caught between it and the crib walls. If you can fit more than two fingers between mattress and crib, the mattress is too small, she cautions.

Crib slats should be no more than 2 three-eighths, apart, Owens says. Slats too far apart can allow the baby to slip through and strangle.

Buy a crib with a latch or lock for the "drop side" that cannot be easily tripped.

Maximum tonnage predicted for beets

Amarillo - Starting sugarbeet harvest about November 1 will produce maximum tonnage and sugar. Growers that harvest earlier will reduce yield and returns. Delaying harvest after November 1 is not likely to increase yield much, but greatly increases the possibility of bad weather and harvest problems.

Weather greatly influenced change in sucrose content after September 1. In two of the years weather was dry with warm sunny days and cool nights. These conditions favored rapid increase in sucrose up to 17.5 percent by November 9. The other two years the weather was cool and cloudy with above normal precipitation. Under these conditions root weight increased rapidly. However, sucrose content increased slowly and did not reach a high level.

per acre. Two weeks later in September the value of the crop increased over 100 dollars per acre. An additional increase of 140 dollars per acre occurred during October and another 47 dollars the first two weeks in November.

Winter says selecting the proper harvest date makes a big difference in returns from sugarbeets. Harvesting about November 1 will give the maximum yield of sugar and increase gross return up to 400 dollars per acre over harvesting on September 1.

On estate planning, tax laws

TAES sponsoring two tax seminars

COLLEGE STATION -- Farmers and ranchers can do something about high taxes that erode their estates. The first step is to learn all about estate taxes and recent changes in tax laws, and this is where the Texas Agricultural Extension Service comes in.

The Extension Service is planning two 2-day seminars which will help farmers and ranchers learn how to reduce taxable estates and learn new methods for passing their operations to the next generation.

These special seminars on "How to Lower Your Estate Tax Burden" are scheduled for El Paso, Sept. 21-22, at the Texas A&M University Research Center, and for Waco, Oct. 21-22.

"Of major importance is how every farm estate will be affected after the recent estate tax law changes," points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga, a lawyer and Extension economist. "The best tax planning of the past may be the worst under the new law."

Each seminar will begin with a discussion on estate taxes, including deductions, expenses and tax rates.

Basic estate planning devices will be explained in depth. Among these are wills, by-pass trusts, gifts, disclaimers and property titles.

There will also be a separate segment of the program devoted to treating beneficiaries fairly along with a session on estate planning tips for farmers and ranchers with mineral income and property.

Another discussion will center on estate planning tools for agriculture and will deal with corporations, partnerships and selling part of the business to heirs.

The second day of the program will be devoted to special estate tax rules for agriculture. These include special farm land valuation, deferred estate tax payment rules, life insurance, "Flower" bonds and other property.

Joining Hayenga in conducting the program will be Extension economists Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville, and Dr. Bill Capner of New Mexico State University.

The seminars are the fifth and sixth of a series in estate planning.

"Estate planning is a step toward reduced taxes," points out Hayenga. "This process should start when you plan to inherit substantial property, when you have an active and growing business, when you still have time to take tax-saving actions, when you have minor children, and when your children marry or divorce."

For more detailed information about the seminars, contact your local county Extension agent or Hayenga in the Department of Agricultural Economics, Texas A&M University, College Station, Tex. 77843, or call 713-845-2226.

SCS forms conservation endowment for special projects

Alarmed by the growing rate of soil erosion and by increasingly scarce water resources, a coalition of corporations, associations, and individuals have formed the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation.

Tom Cunningham district conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service at Cunningham said the Endowment hopes to raise $1 million in 1982 to provide financial aid for selected soil and water conservation projects; to increase the level of expertise in conservation and public awareness of the need to protect resources; to sponsor "applied research" targeted to specific needs; and to identify and activate new conservation programs.

Emmett Barker, president of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute of Chicago, is serving as chairman of the Endowment's provisional board of governors. "The Endowment was created for three reasons," Cunningham said. "First, if current rates of soil erosion continue, and if something is not done to protect and or start projects that will fill the gap between long-term studies and the producer's need for immediate, practical solutions.

The Endowment's activities will first be directed by a temporary board of governors composed of representatives of organiza-

Sugarbeet production cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers have cut sugarbeet production sharply because of sagging prices and huge world supplies of sugar — and the situation continues to look grim.

The Agriculture Department says world sugar output in the year ahead may fall just short of the record production of 1981-82.

Global output for the sugar marketing year which ended Aug. 31 was estimated Thursday at a record 97.9 million metric tons, up the previous forecast of 96.3 million tons last May.

tions, business firms, and individuals who have made initial contributions. When funding reaches the $500,000 level — half the first year goal — The Endowment will hold its first annual meeting to elect a formal board of governors and a five-member executive committee.

Funding for the Endowment operations will come from private, tax-exempt contributions and will be separate from administrative funds. The national Agricultural Lands Center, administrator of the Endowment, provides staff support through a grant provided by the Joyce Foundation, Chicago.

develop water resources, the day will come when we will not be able to produce the food and fiber needed in this country and around the world.

"Second, current conservation programs far-reaching as some of them are, are not cutting resource losses to levels that will assure future agricultural productivity.

"Third, some people concerned about the future believe a private citizen's effort is needed to generate increased conservation activity."

The Endowment will use its resources to assist or start projects which encourage development of inexpensive and innovative conservation techniques, or to set up demonstration projects designed to meet the needs of specific areas.

In the public awareness field, the Endowment will support projects aimed at making farmers, ranchers, and urban people aware of the problems they jointly face.

Record amount of corn to be used for food, industrial products

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record 830 million bushels of corn may be used in the coming year as food and to make industrial products, says an Agriculture Department analyst.

That would be equal to almost 10 percent of the 1982 record corn harvest, which is currently estimated at 8.32 billion bushels. Most U.S. corn, however, is used as livestock feed or sold for export.

"Food and industrial use of corn is expected to continue growing in the early '80s, possibly at a faster rate than in the late '70s," says Janet Livezey of the department's Economic Research Service.

The 830 million bushels of corn estimated for food and industrial use in 1982-83 compares with 765 million for those purposes in 1981-82 and 715 million in 1980-81. A decade ago, only 395 million bushels were used for those purposes.

Ms. Livezey said in a report issued Monday that the use of corn for food and industrial purposes "has steadily increased because of rapid growth in the wet-milling industry — producers of starches, sweeteners, ethanol and other products."

The dry-milling industry produces pearly hominy, brewers' grits, hominy grits, corn meal and corn flour. Byproducts are corn oil and hominy feed.

"Corn use by these industries may reach one billion bushels by 1985," the report said. "Use at that level will depend on the continuation of gasohol subsidies and on prices of petroleum and corn."

The report said that federal and state subsidies on gasohol production — a mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent fuel-grade alcohol, ethanol — are a major factor.

"Production capacity for ethanol continues to grow, even though decreased gasoline prices slowed gasohol demand in 1981," it said.

Corn refiners also "will likely see more growth" as high fructose corn syrup — called HFCS — continues to penetrate the soft drink market. But that probably will level off by the mid-1980s, the report said.

Since the mid-1970s, the wet-milling industry has processed more than 70 percent of the corn used in food and industrial products. They prefer No. 2 yellow corn, the most abundant kind in the United States.

Grazing management seminar Nov. 10-12

COLLEGE STATION — All areas of grazing management will be examined at a national conference at Texas A&M University Nov. 10-12.

The National Conference on Grazing Management Technology will feature an in-depth look at grazing research, technology transfer and implementation, and the future of grazing management.

"State, regional and national authorities on grazing research and management will be on hand to address various issues related to developing the transferring of grazing information," points out Dr. Bob Ragsdale, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Scientists, educators, agency personnel and producers will take part in this united effort to bring about improved communication, coordination and evaluation of current and future grazing technology," says the specialist.

According to Ragsdale, the conference has four major objectives:

—To examine previous grazing management concepts relative to current methods of grazing management research and application.

—To increase awareness of current grazing management research.

—To discuss future approaches for grazing management research, development, transfer and application.

—To examine the relative effectiveness and efficiency of grazing management information transfer from research and development to practical application.

The conference will open a tour of grazing management research sites at the Native Plant and Animal Conservancy at Texas A&M where short-duration grazing and related studies will be emphasized.

"Opening discussions will deal with research concepts and approaches relating to plant, vegetation and animal responses to grazing management, with a particular look at the systems approach," says Ragsdale. "Significant findings as developed by various universities, private research groups, state experiment stations and federal research agencies will be presented."

Speakers also will take an in-depth look at the transfer of grazing technology to ranchers on private lands as well as to agencies managing publicly owned rangelands. The role of the educational institution in technology transfer will be examined by university and Extension Service personnel.

"Ranch owners and managers also will have their 'say' as they will discuss implementing grazing management technology," notes Ragsdale. "Discussions on the economic risks of grazing management will highlight this session."

A "crystal ball" look at what the future holds for grazing management will conclude the three-day conference, says the range specialist.

Registration information and further details about the conference are available from Dr. Jerry Stuth, Department of Range Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Tex. 77843 (713-845-5548).

Cost trimming essential for cattlemen

COLLEGE STATION— Roundup held recently in Del Rio.

Cost-cutting is essential if cattle producers are to survive the present cost-price squeeze, according to a livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Dr. Robert A. Rupp of Weslaco emphasized that for many producers, it is costing more to produce a pound of calf than the calf will bring at sale time.

"Producers with a high level of equity in their land and cattle — and who can delay large capital expenditures — are in much better situation for survival," Rupp told cattlemen attending the International Ranchers

Roundup held recently in Del Rio.

Costs which are not cost effective should be eliminated, but it is also essential to incur production costs which do increase net profits or reduce losses, Rupp said.

"Lowering production costs per pound of calf sold is the key for evaluating production practices or alternatives. To measure production cost efficiency, multiply the number of calves produced (calving percent) by the weight of calves sold (weaning weight) by the market price per pound received (calf equity) and subtract the cost of producing these calves — total costs involved in keeping cows, bulls and calves," he said.

Some of the management or production practices ranchers may want to evaluate for cost include supplemental feeding, mineral supplementation, vaccinations, parasite control, pregnancy testing, breeding soundness evaluation of bulls, use of growth stimulant (implants) and performance testing, Rupp said.

"Every rancher should make cost projections for his or her individual ranch operation. When cost relationships are determined, the management practice can be best selected to either reduce production costs or increase production for the same costs," Rupp added.

Another speaker, Dr. John Merrill of Texas Christian University, said there has been a loss of about 100,000 beef producers per year since 1977. The cattle business may and should be better for the survivors, he added.

"The average size beef herd in the U.S. is composed of 24 head, and the operator is a major factor in our business. People with the most problems currently are those 'in between' the large rancher and the small producer — but it would be well to keep an eye on the small producer to decide if what he is doing will have an impact on your operation," Merrill said.

Hightower to speak at SCS Meeting

BUSHLAND — The USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory will host the fall meeting and barbeque of the Golden Spread Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America on Friday, September 10, according to Dr. B.A. Stewart, director of the research facility.

Congressman Jack Hightower will be the featured speaker at the event which will be preceded by a tour of research plots.

Anyone interested in learning more about soil and water conservation is invited, according to Reggie Jones, Program Chairman for the local Conservation Chapter. The tour is scheduled at 5:00 p.m. and the barbeque will follow one hour later. Congressman Hightower will address regional problems in resource conservation and the impact of the new enacted Resources Conservation Act (RCA) on Panhandle residents.

Guests on the tour will see research on wind energy, cropping systems, sunflowers, center pivot irrigation, limited tillage, and livestock diseases.

The Soil Conservation Society of America is a non-profit scientific and educational organization dedicated to promoting conservation of land, water and related natural resources. The Golden Spread chapter is part of the national organization and is comprised of farmers, agribusiness people, university and USDA agricultural researchers and Soil Conservation Service personnel from all over the Panhandle.

Reservations to attend the tour and barbeque can be made at the Research Laboratory by calling 378-5721 by September 8. The barbeque dinner is $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children.

Jones said, "Chapter members sponsor the annual event to increase awareness in soil and water conservation, as well as examine research directed toward that end". "This year we are very fortunate to be able to meet at the research laboratory and to have Congressman Hightower as our speaker", he continued.

Bluebonnets planted now for spring next year

By DR. JERRY PARSONS
Texas Agricultural Extension Service

Does anyone remember the beautiful fields of bluebonnet flowers swaying in the cool breezes of spring? Now, why would anyone be reminiscing about spring bluebonnets and cool breezes in late summer? The only remnant of the picturesque bluebonnet scene is a field of and the only cool breeze in Texas is from the nearest air conditioner vent! The simple answer is that if you want to have bluebonnets swaying in the cool breezes of spring next year, you must plant seeds NOW.

I know it is difficult to dream of a blue springtime while you're standing in a puddle of perspiration in your garden in the summer heat, but that is the way it works. Bluebonnets are a cool weather annual. That means they need heat to germinate the seed, but cool weather to develop the root structure. The seed look like pea-gravel and are multi-colored, with slate blue and light tan being the most common hues.

Bluebonnet seeds are coated with a lacquer-like substance and are very hard. The tough seed coat helps them survive. If you shell out green—but mature—bluebonnet seeds in the spring and plant them immediately, they will germinate in just a few days.

If that happened in nature, it would be tragic. The young seedlings would be quickly melted by the hot sun and they would die, causing a halt in seed production for the future. Bluebonnet seeds, in nature, need three to five years for the hard coat to soften enough to germinate. That means the seeds produced this year probably will not germinate until 1985 or 1986 in their nature stands.

You probably don't want to hang around until then for your bluebonnet crop to bloom, so what you have to do is cheat on nature just a tad. You can do this by scratching the seed—a technique known as "sacrificing"—or by soaking the seeds overnight in baby-bottle-warm water. Or a combination of both techniques: scratch, then soak.

Poor germination usually occurs unless something is done to soften the hard seed coat to allow moisture to penetrate. The oft-recommended practice of puncturing the seed with a needle or ice pick will sometimes work, but it is a rather time-consuming task as well as hard on the hands. Scratching the seed coat between two layers of sandpaper that have been glued to wooden blocks will also help.

To treat large quantities of seed, some commercial landscape companies often mix the seed with sharp sand and tumble the mixture in a cement mixer to scratch the seed coat. Since most of us do not have a cement mixer in the backyard, we have conned Carroll Abbott, the wild man of the nature flower cult, into scarfing a limited quantity of seed.

These rapidly germinating, fresh bluebonnet seed are available from Green Horizons, 500 Thompson, Dr. Kerrville Tx 78028. One thousand seed (enough for 200 square feet of spring blue) will cost $4, five thousand will cost $11, ten thousand will cost $16 and one pound of seed will cost $20. Those prices include sales tax and postage.

Abbott will accept credit card orders over $10 by telephone at 512-257-5141. One can plant the seed later—even into January with scarified seed—and still get a bountiful crop of bluebonnets. But if you plant now, the plants will be larger and the blooms will be much brighter and bigger.

Bluebonnet seedlings can be transplanted all during the fall and early winter. Valentine's Day is the cut-off date for successful transplanting.

Many seeds are wasted each year due to improper planting. Just tossing the seed into a grassy area along the road or in the corner of the yard does little else than provide expensive food for the birds.

Plant the seed in a sunny location. Bluebonnets will not thrive in the shade. Cover the seed lightly with soil and then gently walk on the seedbed. This makes for a firm bed which helps germination. Water gently, but thoroughly. And if it doesn't rain in a week, water some more. The seed will start germinating within a week and will continue for many weeks thereafter.

Bluebonnets make exquisite cut flowers bright and fragrant. It is not against any law to pick bluebonnets on private property.

So, this is the time and place to plant bluebonnets. We are fortunate that Carroll Abbott has such a good source of treated seed. Obviously, now is the time to act to insure that this will be the "Year of the Bluebonnet" at your house.

The alligator got its name when the Spanish first saw the reptile in the New World and called it "el lagarto," the lizard.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The U.S. Supreme Court recently handed down a decision refusing to limit the number of professional football games cable television can broadcast each Sunday. To me that means only one thing. That Statue of Justice who pretends to be a blindfolded woman is really an umpire in drag.

Who else would sanction Jock Sunday featuring 85 televised sports events from sign-on to sign-off in one day? I don't know who presented the proposition, but someone certainly ramrodded it through behind women's backs.

O.K., so I respect the law and I'll abide by it, but in the name of mercy, I ask the courts to consider a couple of amendments to keep women happy.

If a man sleeps during two consecutive innings or quarters, he should be declared legally dead and his estate probated.

Legalized Sunday dating for women married to sports nuts will not only be allowed, but enforced.

Admittance to his chair in front of the TV set will occur only after relinquishing his car keys, checkbook and credit cards to his wife.

Live with the possibility that any given Monday, Curt Gowdy could be named in an alienation of affection suit and you would have to offer proof that you had not spent 15 hours on Sunday with him.

Wives of the watchees will not be responsible for catheters or I.V.'s that become dislodged during the day.

If sports are appearing on more than two TV sets in the home, a woman has the right to smash one of them with a tire iron.

There's a lot more at stake here than women vs. televised sports. It is now a moral issue. When men are hooked up to these electronic support systems all day Sunday, do women have the right to let them go on living in their catatonic state, with no hope of functioning as a person? Or is it merciful to pull the plugs and watch them writhe in agony as they view their own children in the real world?

As I said to my neighbor last Sunday, "What kind of life does he have in there watching replays, reruns, and overdosing on statistics? I'm going in and turn off the set and see what happens."

As I leaned over to turn off a speedboat race in the South Pacific a voice threatened to alter the length of my arms. I'm beaten. He's also covered by the temporary insanity law.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON
Executive Director

The uniformed volunteers will meet for their regular luncheon meeting Thursday at the Red Cross office.

The Board of Directors will meet at noon, Tuesday, Sept. 21, at the Red Cross office.

The home nursing class is now being set up to begin in October. The class will have six 3-hour sessions, covering health and wellness, temperature, pulse and respiration, assessing illness and planning care, care of the person who is in bed, giving a bed bath, bedmaking and positioning, care of the person who is in bed, medications and simple treatments, and nutrition and feeding the sick person.

Since June, 1 International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) teams have been providing medical assistance and relief to the beleaguered population in Lebanon and carrying out protection and assistance actions on behalf of prisoners in accordance with the Geneva Conventions.

Additionally, the ICRC has a tracing service for families concerned about the welfare of relatives in Lebanon. Thus far 44,000 such queries have been received from 83 countries. The American Red Cross has handled 1,225 to date.

According to projections, by the end of this three-month period an estimated 200,000 persons will have been assisted by the ICRC at a cost of $22 million. Approximately 15 million of the total is still needed.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a member agency of the Deaf Smith County United Way.

For further information please call the office.

Final results are not in for the SWIM-A-CROSS but we would like to thank all of the sponsors and swimmers for their support.

CANCER American Cancer Society
ANSWER M. D. Anderson Hospital
LINE and Tumor Institute

Question: Is leukemia a cancer of the blood?

ANSWERline: Leukemia is a cancer of the blood-forming tissues. These are in bone marrow, the soft spongy center of the bone which produces red and white blood cells and platelets; and the spleen and lymph nodes which produce a type of white blood cell called lymphocyte. Red blood cells carry oxygen to cells throughout the body; while the white blood cells fight infection, and the platelets control blood clotting and prevent hemorrhaging. All blood-forming tissues daily release millions of each type of cell into one of the body's two circulatory systems - the blood vessels and the lymph system. When leukemia strikes, millions of abnormal, immature white blood cells called leukocytes are released into these circulatory systems. Since these cells are immature, they cannot carry out their basic function of fighting infection. In advanced leukemia the uncontrolled multiplication of abnormal cells results in crowding out the bone marrow's production of normal cells that fight infection, control hemorrhaging and prevent anemia.

Question: What are the signs and symptoms of leukemia?

ANSWERline: There are no definite early signs of leukemia. Acute leukemia in children usually appears rather suddenly with symptoms similar to those of a cold and progresses rapidly. Lymph nodes, spleen and liver become enlarged with white blood cells that accumulate in these organs. Leukemia cells circulate throughout the body via the blood and lymph system, and may cause the patient to develop a variety of generalized complaints.

FDA to determine whether starch blockers are safe

Dieting has been described as a system of starving yourself to death so you can live a little longer. Americans love both to eat a lot and to appear thin, and it is estimated that one hundred million of us are trying to lose weight at any point in time.

It is this fact of fat that spurs entrepreneurs to create fad diets and "miracle" weight reduction schemes. Such products come and go, generally lightening the wallet but not the waistline.

Recently, a purported weight management aid - starch blockers - was promoted as a food, but with promises of "enzyme inhibiting" that would result in permanent weight loss. Such claims, said the Food and Drug Administration, could be made only for a drug. But starch blockers, which are derived from beans, had not been approved as a drug.

Further, the Food and Drug Agency said that:

No scientific tests had been presented to prove either that starch blockers are safe or that they are effective.

Users complained of suffering nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and stomach pains, as well as flatulence or excess gas. About two dozen persons have been hospitalized - and some undergone surgery - due to complications following starch blocker use.

Manufacturers refused to provide specific information about the exact chemical composition of starch blockers, which are said to be made from a protein extract of various types of beans.

Persons with diabetes should not depend on starch blockers advertised claims of being able to ignore a precise number of calories per pill swallowed before eating.

Women who are pregnant or nursing should not be taking starch blockers as they might interfere with the nutritional requirements of their fetus.

Some animal studies suggest that long-term use of bean protein extracts may cause pancreas damage.

How could an unapproved product such as starch blockers be widely sold without FDA approval and without premarket testing?

No premarket approval is required for most food products sold in this country, but FDA must approve all human and veterinary drugs before they can be sold.

Starch blocker manufacturers have argued that their products are special dietary foods and therefore not subject to FDA approval. FDA maintains they are being sold as drugs.

Because the claimed effect of these products is weight control or reduction by their action to block or interfere with digestion, they may affect the body's normal metabolism function.

Democrats forget spats and preach unity

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The spring spat that blossomed into a summer romance is now a full-blown affair. Democrats — forget those bad things they said about each other earlier — are in love.

Buddy Temple, who rode daddy's money to a second-place finish in the gubernatorial primary, and Bob Armstrong, the nice guy who finished last, have signed on for Mark White's effort to beat Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

"If that isn't love it'll have to do until the real thing comes along," Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle said at an airport political rally this past week.

Even former Gov. Dolph Briscoe and John Hill, who opposed each other in the great schism of '78, are slapping each other on the back and preaching unity. Hill defeated Briscoe but lost to Clements.

"We're going to stick together this year as we never have done before," Hill told a Mark White Night fiesta, an event someone called "the Democrats' answer to the pope's conference on ecumenical peace."

"It is a privilege tonight to join with John Hill, Buddy Temple, and Bob Armstrong on this program to see to it that Mark becomes the next governor of Texas," said Briscoe.

Throughout a three-day tour Temple and Armstrong told crowds that White is a great attorney general and would make a fine governor. There was no public mention of the nasty words tossed around during the primary.

"Had Mark White been in private practice, he would today be worried about being sued for malpractice," Armstrong said in the spring.

"His response has been to ask his clients, the people of Texas, to overlook his shortcomings as attorney general and elect him governor."

Temple's spring campaign included this shot at White's handling of a lawsuit against a General Motors' rebate plan: "He botched the job. It's obvious that not all the lemons are on the car lots."

Temple ran a television ad displaying White's phone number and encouraging Texans dissatisfied with the attorney general's work to call White.

But that's all forgiven now, thanks to Clements and memories of the Hill-Briscoe split.

"I'm very proud to stand here tonight with Dolph Briscoe, John Hill, Bob Armstrong and Mark White to show the Republicans in this state that the Democrats are no longer going to self-destruct. We're not going to beat ourselves," Temple said.

White smiled broadly on the stage as Hill wrapped his arm around Briscoe and talked unity at the rally.

"I don't try to have bitter feelings," Hill told a reporter about Briscoe, who did little to help Hill in the 1978 general election. "I was certainly disappointed there was not more visible support for us in the fall."

On a flight from Houston to Beaumont, Armstrong said the importance of the joint campaign tour is what it prevents.

"If we didn't do it, people would read that as a negative," he said of his tour with White. "That's a price we paid last time that we never want to pay again."

What about the nasty words of spring?

"It was tough, but it wasn't irreparable," he said. "Otherwise we wouldn't be here."

"I don't think I laid a glove on White," said Temple, apparently forgetting that he called White the "Pinocchio of Texas politics."

White said the three primary contenders agreed early on that the losers would support the winner, regardless of what was said in the primary.

The White camp, bolstered by the unity tour, is pleased with the campaign so far. Campaign director David Doak, called in after successfully running Democrat Charles Robb's race for Virginia governor, notes with pleasure that Clements is hitting early with radio spots attacking White's record as attorney general.

It's unusual for an incumbent to go negative this early, Doak said. He views it as a result of Clements realizing he's in trouble.

The White tour was a publicity and financial success, according to the White camp. The fiesta raised about $250,000. David Lindsay, campaign news secretary, counted 18 television cameras at the various stops.

Hill and Briscoe are helping raise money. Armstrong and Temple have pledged to do whatever the White people say is needed.

"I cannot recall a time in my lifetime when there wasn't a blood bath underway (in the Democratic Party) at any given moment," White said on a flight from Beaumont to Dallas.

"Then again, for the first time we're the party on the outside wanting in. That's a great unifying factor," he said.

The Democrats are in love.

Dourte and Roby plan for war

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While other Texans toil at building houses or balancing books, Bill Dourte and Jim Roby spend their days thinking the unthinkable — planning for a nuclear war.

They are not paranoid, they are just doing their job.

Dourte and Roby are nuclear crisis planners at the Texas Department of Public Safety and responsible for devising a state plan as part of the Reagan administration's $4.2 billion, seven-year civil defense program.

The government has dispensed with the idea of shelters — except for military and political leaders — and has opted for a cheap evacuation plan modeled somewhat after a Soviet version.

It's called "crisis relocation" and means, basically, that almost two million Houstonians will be expected to disperse into 35 East Texas counties in three days. These, presumably, are the same Houstonians who think it now takes that long just to get past the city's outer traffic loop.

Some of Dallas would go to Oklahoma.

Asked one observer, "What if they won't let us in?"

Meanwhile, Bonham probably will never see so many Mercedes-Benzes and BMWs as when the fashionable Oak Lawn and Highland Park communities relocate there for the war.

It is easy to make fun of such a preposterous-sounding plan, and Dourte and Roby are used to it. But they are serious about their work.

"By mere virtue of the fact that we have a plan, there's probably the least likelihood of ever having to implement it," says Roby.

The concept is simple: take people out of "risk areas" near military bases and industrial centers — potential nuclear targets — and disperse them into less populous rural counties. There are 34 risk areas in Texas, mostly the larger cities.

The state planners are sold on crisis relocation, and cities long have had civil defense evacuation plans, but the idea of thousands of city-dwellers descending on their communities does not always sit well with rural officials.

Roby said one North Texas county official was more than skeptical when offered help on a plan to handle the refugees.

"He just laughed when I suggested it," Roby said. "He said, 'What have you been smoking?'"

The official changed his tune, though, Roby said, when he was asked just what he intended to do if thousands of frightened urbanites appeared in his town.

"He said, 'I guess I'd need a plan. I'd need to know what to do. I can't shoot 'em.'"

"We very often ask the question, 'How many people do you get at your county fair, or the Worst Fest?'" Dourte said.

About 70,000 people from central and North Dallas are expected to relocate to Fannin County, population 24,000, after checking in with officials in Bonham.

"You really can't plan for something that you don't know if it's going to happen," said Bonham emergency coordinator and Fire Capt. David Norris. "Where we're going to put them, I don't know."

Dourte and Roby work with a scenario that goes something like this:

Tensions between the United States and some world power increase dangerously. The threat of nuclear attack looms large. Officials in Washington order the implementation of crisis relocation.

Radio and television stations alert the public and newspapers print special sections of relocation instructions. Residents locate themselves on a map, get a sector number and turn to printed "sector designators."

The sector designator goes on the windshield. On the back are directions to the relocation site.

and hospitals designate "key workers," who remain in the risk area caring for hospital patients who cannot be moved and maintaining essential services for those who can't — or won't — leave. Dourte said that estimate is 20 percent.

"There are those that for one reason or another won't want to leave," Dourte said. "They may not believe what they're hearing, that the Soviets are going to attack with nuclear weapons, or they may not want to survive themselves. It's not a pretty picture, when you think about what we'd come out to after a nuclear attack."

But that's where the plan stops. "It's a survival program, basically," Dourte said. "You're going to have a roof over your head, food, water and you'll be protected from fallout. What we hope to achieve by having this plan is to deter attack."

He said federal officials have surveyed the "host" areas, locating restaurants and school lunch services that could feed newcomers. Assignments of relocators are based on those capacities.

"Of course, they don't stock shelters anymore," said Norris, "so as far as having any shelters stocked with anything, we don't have that. As far as I know, they don't have any plans to do so."

It would be "problem" for Fannin County to suddenly feed three times its present population, Norris said.

"We're going to eat a lot less, I can tell you that," Dourte said. "You'll eat what you can get."

"A lot of people are under a misconception that nuclear war is not survivable," said Roby, displaying a handbook that shows how to dig a trench under your car and turn it into a fallout shelter.

"People who don't take the time to find out how to protect themselves from it will be the ones who won't survive."

BIG GOVERNMENT

And Thousands of Smaller Ones

SOURCE: Census Bureau

NEA/Moffitt Cecil

Americans may be the most governed people in the world. In addition to the federal government, they are under the jurisdiction of 50 state governments and tens of thousands of local authorities. The fastest-growing government category are the special districts — for everything from flood control to fire protection — that jumped 11 percent in the last five years. School districts showed a slight decrease in the same period.

Economy slips in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A stream of immigrants into Texas from the Midwest and East has finally slowed down as the state's economy slips into the national recession and dreams of new jobs in the Sunbelt too often turn into family tragedies.

And disillusioned with the state's relatively high cost of living, low wages and record unemployment, many Northerners who already had moved south are heading home.

"They're finding Texas is not what it's publicized," said one social worker.

"They're expecting salaries that they were making up there or the government assistance they have up there."

For those who stay, hopes often have soured. Social workers say the stresses of cross-country moving and failed job hunting have produced a rash of child and wife abuse.

In Dallas the Salvation Army is expanding its hours to accommodate the crush of transients. Men sleep on cots in the agency's 76-bed lodge. And the 24-bed lodge for women is packed every night with 50 to 60 boarders, said Pat Reimann, administrative assistant for the organization's social service center.

"We have never had a summer this heavy," she said. "We have wall-to-wall people."

A third of the women are single parents from Northern states, a third have moved to Dallas from Houston and other Texas cities and third are battered — many from the North, Ms. Reimann said.

"We're seeing a lot of women who were battered or abandoned when they got here," she said.

"We had one lady who had relocated here for a better work opportunity... who said that unlike the other women here had husband had never beaten her. Six weeks later, she came in black and blue and he had left. And they were not having as difficult a time as some of the others (immigrants)."

The Texas Department of Human Resources has seen a similar increase in reports of child abuse in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Dave Chassie, a DHR program director in Dallas, estimated that 20 percent of the cases in which that state has removed a child from its home have involved the out-of-state families.
