Nuke public hearing set here May 16

Youth Quake starts here Monday

Hawaiian chaplain is featured speaker

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor
"Will the old Bob Turnbull Please Drop Dead?"
That's what one man, in effect, said to himself when he gave up his old way of life and said "yes" to Jesus Christ.
It's the title of a book he authored which describes his encounter with Christ and how that experience has changed his outlook on life, and it will also be the title of his message the first night of Youth Quake, where he will be featured speaker Monday through Wednesday evenings.

actor, author

A preacher whose "church" was Waikiki Beach and a former leader of a witches' coven will be speakers at Youth Quake services this week.
Sponsored by Hereford area churches, Youth Quake opens Monday at 7:30 p.m. in La Plata Junior High gym and continues through Thursday night.
Dr. Bob Turnbull will speak Monday through Wednesday evenings. The Californian is a former football and track coach who started an evangelism ministry on the Waikiki Beach in Hawaii. He was employed as the police chaplain for the Honolulu Police Department and now serve as executive director of the National Association of Police Psychologists. During his acting career he guest starred in many television shows and movies.
Mike Warnke and his wife, Rose, will conclude the Youth Quake Thursday with a comedy concert. Warnke was a satanic priest, hippie, Marine Corps medic, drug addict and pusher before his conversion. From their Kentucky home the Warnkes travel about 20 weeks out of the year using comedy as a way to spread the gospel.
Two special sessions for persons over 12 will be held at First Christian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday at 4 p.m. Tuesday's session is for "Ladies Only" and the Wednesday session is for "Men Only."
Music for the Youth Quake will be provided by area churches.
Doors open at 7 p.m.

Ex-Satanic priest now holy humorist

MIKE & ROSE WARNKE
in comedy concert

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer
A satanic priest was converted and thought he had a good, serious testimony.
Well, he did. But people were more blessed by the jokes he threw in than the testimony.
So Mike Warnke heeded the call to holy humor.
Trading hellfire and brimstone for ha-has and belly-laughs, Warnke uses his somewhat bizarre background to put the traditional repent-and-be-saved gospel in a different light with humor.
"All of it is derived from real life," Warnke declares.
And what a life. Warnke was a satanic priest, a drug addict and pusher, a Marines medic in Vietnam and a hippie.
His comedy concert with his wife, Rose, will conclude Youth Quake services Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the La Plata Gym.
"I think that what we do is funny and I think that the Lord has given us humor as a key to get over to people," Warnke explained.

The exact time and location of a public hearing to be held in Hereford May 16 concerning the ongoing site selection process for a high-level nuclear waste repository have been released by the U.S. Department of Energy.
The local hearings will last from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, May 16, and will be held at the Hereford High School Auditorium.
Additional hearings will be held in the Tulia High School auditorium, from 7-11 p.m., Tuesday, May 17; and at the Austin Hilton Inn, from 2-9 p.m. on Wednesday, May 18.
The hearings will be conducted for the following purposes: (1) to inform residents of the proposed nomination of sites in Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties, Texas, for site characterization activities as part of studies to site a repository for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel and to receive their comments, and (2) to solicit and receive recommendations on issues to be addressed in the environmental assessment of and characterization plans for the sites. The hearings are in accordance with Section 112(b)(2) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-425).
The Department of Energy reserves the rights to establish procedures governing said hearings and the maximum number of persons making oral presentations.
Parties interested in providing oral presentations at the hearings should request time in advance by writing to: U.S. Department of Energy, NWTS Program Office, ATTN: Hearing Office, 505 King Avenue, Columbus, OH 43201. Letters must be post-marked no later than five (5) days before the hearings. Individuals who do not make advance requests may register to speak with the hearing officer just prior to the start of the meeting.
Written requests will be given first priority. Oral presentations will be limited to ten (10) minutes. No cross-examination will be conducted of persons presenting statements. Written comments may be submitted at the hearings or by mail.
Written comments must be received by 4:30 p.m., E.S.T., May 30, 1983, by J.O. Neff, Program Manager, National Waste Terminal Storage Program Office, 505 King Avenue, Columbus, OH 43201.

Price of farm products up slightly, PIK impact due

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's index of prices farmers get for raw products rose 2.2 percent in April, the fourth straight monthly increase.
Officials said Friday that higher prices for cattle, corn, oranges, lettuce and potatoes were mostly responsible for the April increase.
However, lower prices for hogs, tomatoes, strawberries, milk and apples partially offset the gains for the other commodities.
The 2.2 percent April gain also was the second-largest monthly increase since the summer of 1981, according to department records.
After leading the year off with a 0.8 percent increase in January, prices rose 3.1 percent in February and 1.5 percent in March.

Prices paid by farmers to meet expenses, meanwhile, were unchanged from March as higher prices for feeds and fuels were offset by lower prices for feeder livestock and motor supplies. Compared to a year ago, the April index was up 2.6 percent.
The higher prices for some of the major commodities are good news to farmers, who have seen net income held down the past few years because of record grain harvests and the depressed world economy which has cut into U.S. exports.
But the burden on farmers has translated into good news for food shoppers. On the average, food prices rose 4 percent in 1982, the smallest annual increase in six years.

Despite the Reagan administration's payment-kind program to have farmers take up to $2.3 million acres from crops this year, department economists say the 1983 gain in food prices may be even less than last year, ranging between 2 and 4 percent.
The four-month string of increases in the price index was the first upturn since last September. In 1982, the monthly average rose in five months, declined in four and held steady in three.
Department economists predict that net farm income may show some increase this year but that the main impact of the PIK program — including higher grain prices — will not be felt until 1984. Also, they say, much will depend on the weather and crop situation around the world this year.

According to revised figures in the new report, the farm price index increased 1.5 percent in March instead of the 0.8 percent gain reported a month ago. The 3.1 percent increase in February was the largest one-month gain since August 1981.
In the preliminary figures for April, which are based mostly on mid-month averages, the index for meat animals was up 0.6 percent from March was also 0.6 percent above a year earlier.
The feed-and-hay index was up 9.2 percent from the previous month, averaging 12 percent above a year earlier.
Corn prices averaged $3 per bushel, up 29 cents from

No progress seen on Lebanon talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz met with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel today after indicating he expected little progress in talks on withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon.
"The issues are far from resolved," Shultz told reporters as he shuttled from Israel to Lebanon aboard his U.S. Boeing 707 jet.
Shultz said the role of renegade Maj. Saad Haddad's militia in southern Lebanon remained a key sticking point in winning agreement for the withdrawal of foreign troops.
Israeli sources said earlier Israel was offering Lebanon a limited concession on the issue, but Shultz said there was little change.
"The Israelis don't seem to have changed their view," Shultz said. They "have not changed their view about a command responsibility, that is commander of the (territorial) brigade or commander of the zone."
"But we will continue to push on that that subject that is clearly a matter of great importance to both parties," Haddad broke from the Lebanese army during the 1975-76 civil war and now heads a 1,500-man militia backed by Israel in southern Lebanon.

Israel has insisted that Haddad be put in command of a 25-mile buffer zone to prevent Palestinian guerrillas from entering the area after Israel withdraws. Lebanon refuses to negotiate the issue, saying Haddad's future is an internal Lebanese matter.
In Jerusalem on Friday, senior Israeli officials told reporters the U.S. role in the withdrawal negotiations had been "less than positive" because the United States appeared to be taking Lebanon's side in the talks.
Shultz told reporters on the plane he had "heard complaints" from the Israelis about the American role in the negotiations and rejected them. "I don't want to argue the past. I don't accept the criticism as being valid," Shultz said.
Gemayel, his foreign minister Elie Salem and Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan met with Shultz and special envoy Philip C. Habib in the garden of the hillside palace five miles east of Beirut in suburban Baabda for two hours and 20 minutes.

County gets mixed-drink tax rebate

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock this week said collection of the state's 10 percent mixed drink tax during the first quarter of 1983 was up 2.7 percent over the same period last year.
Bullock said the state received $36.1 million in taxes on the sale of mixed drinks during the first three months of 1983.
Bullock's office is sending checks totaling $10.5 million to 220 counties and 415 cities as their share of the gross receipts tax on mixed drinks for the first quarter.
The state's general revenue fund will receive the balance—$25.6 million—of the tax money collected.
Deaf Smith County and Hereford's share of the mixed drink tax rebate for the period came to $2,378.92 each. Total revenue for the quarter was $15,859.49 according to the Comptroller's records.
Texas cities and counties each receive a 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks in the state.

President touts economic progress, slams Mondale

HOUSTON (AP) — President Reagan is taking note of a potential rival for the White House next year, and he is calling him "former Vice President Malaise."
The president made the reference to former Vice President Walter F. Mondale on Friday in a Republican fund-raising dinner speech in which Reagan defended his Central America policies and touted his economic programs.
Reagan said recent positive economic signs such as falling interest rates, increases in homebuilding and auto sales and the soaring stock market reflect "the new hope that we've managed to build from the despair we inherited."

"You remember when they were calling what was ailing America as a malaise, and now former Vice President Malaise is running for president, promising he can do everything just like they did before," Reagan said.
The term "malaise" related to a speech that Jimmy Carter made as president in July 1979. Carter talked about specific problems in the country as well as problems with the nation's morale. The term "malaise" was applied to it by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Mondale's aides said they tried at the time to put some distance between the vice president and the president on the matter, and one aide, Richard Moe, said, "We always had some problems with that event."
Mondale has declared his candidacy for Reagan's job.
At another point, referring to Mondale by name, Reagan said, "I get a little irritated with that constant refrain about compassion. I got an unsigned valentine in February. I'm sure it was from Fritz Mondale — The heart in it was bleeding."

An attorney arrived at the gates of heaven where the welcoming committee included an impressive group of saints.
"Does everyone get this kind of welcome?" asked the attorney.
St. Peter said, "No, but this is a special occasion. It isn't often we welcome an attorney of your advanced age."
"What advanced age?" the attorney asked. "I'm only 43."
St. Peter said, "Not according to the hours you've billed!"

We salute the Hereford Kiwanis Club for sponsoring the annual track meet for local elementary school students. The event always attracts hundreds of students, and the youngsters seem to look forward to each year's meet. It's a lot of work for the Kiwanis Club members, but it should be a very rewarding project!

Ma Bell has been distributing new telephone books in Hereford. Since no one else volunteered, we researched the book a few minutes and came up with some trivia that our readers surely will want to know.
What surname appears the most in the listings? We're calling it a tie between the Smiths and the Garcias (58 each). Next came the Browns(40), Gonzales(37), Jones, (36), and Williams (33).
If you look through the book, you'll find that we have Snow and Rains. We don't have a devil but we got Angels; no rivers or highways, but we have Brooks and Rhodes; no preachers, but lots of Popes, Bishops, Priests and Parsons; no candlestick maker, but Barbers and Bakers; no amps but plenty of Watts.

And, the listings reveal that we have more Browns than Whites, and the Blacks outnumber the Allreds by 7 to 2.
See what important items you miss if you don't read this column regularly!

Area couple, son die in accident

PAGOSA SPRINGS, Colo.—A young couple from Earth, Texas, and their infant son were killed Wednesday evening when their semi-trailer truck ran off U.S. 160 at Wolf Creek Pass and crashed to the valley floor about 1000 feet below.
The couple's 2-year-old daughter was thrown clear of the truck shortly after it left the highway and suffered a broken collarbone and bruises.
The victims, identified as Danny Carl Vaughan, 25; his wife, Sharla, 24; their 4-week-old son, Adam Carl, were cousins of Butch White of Hereford.
The only survivor, Amber Denise Vaughan, was treated at a Pagosa Springs clinic before her uncle flew in from his home in Fort Collins and took the child to her grandparents' home in Texas.

According to Deputy Sheriff Gary Parsons, the bodies of the parents were found near the wreckage and the baby's body was recovered about 7:30 a.m. Thursday halfway up the slope.
Services for the family were at 2 p.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church of Dimmitt with Ronnie Parker and the Rev. Jimmy Nunn, pastor of First Methodist Church of Earth, officiating.
Burial was in West Lawn Memorial Park in Dimmitt under direction of Parsons Funeral Home.
Mr. Vaughan was born in Friona and married Sharla Burrous in Dimmitt Aug. 20, 1977. He was a fertilizer dealer in Earth and a

Superintendent believes bomb notes were part of elaborate hoax

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Superintendent Rodney Cathey says he believes notes demanding $7,000 for information about the location of bombs allegedly planted at McAllen High School were part of an elaborate hoax by student pranksters.

"It was a student prank pure and simple," Cathey said Friday after authorities discovered one ticking bomb-like device hidden in a student locker.

A bomb disposal squad summoned from Fort Hood in Central Texas attempted to detonate the object, but found it contained no explosives, Cathey said.

No other devices were discovered and no suspects have been apprehended, said Lt. Gary Miller of the McAllen Police Department.

Classes were canceled at the high school about 8 a.m. Friday after authorities found the device, a small metal box with a light and wires attached.

Virginia Zook, wife of McAllen High School Principal Gary Zook, telephoned authorities after she found three messages attached to her house and car about 5:30 a.m., Cathey said.

Miller said the messages — photocopies of a note made from letters cut from a magazine and pasted on paper — told where one device was and demanded $7,000 in exchange for information about the locations of two other bombs allegedly planted in the building.

The notes demanded the money be placed near the school's football stadium, but did not specify a time, Miller said.

Founder of New York ballet died Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — George Balanchine, one of Broadway's best-known choreographers, died early Saturday of pneumonia at age 79.

Born in czarist Russia, he left his native country in 1923, became a dancer, and arrived in the United States about 10 years later.

He founded the New York City Ballet and ran it until this year.

Roosevelt Hospital said Balanchine died there of bilateral pneumonia. He was admitted there six months ago with neurological problems that caused him to have difficulty keeping his balance.

Some of Balanchine's most famous work is in the 1936 musical play, "On Your Toes," now in revival on Broadway.

Car chased by lawmen crashes, four dead

TAYLOR, Texas (AP) — Four people were killed and another was critically injured early Saturday when a car being chased by lawmen crossed over the center lane and crashed head-on into a car carrying three teen-agers.

There was no immediate explanation why authorities were chasing the vehicle.

Both vehicles burned upon impact, and authorities said it might take several days to establish positive identification of the victims. The three people in the other car were thought to be teen-agers returning from a dance in nearby Elgin, officers said.

Taylor and Elgin are in Williamson County, west of Austin.

The accident happened about 12:45 a.m. on Texas 95, about five miles south of Taylor.

The driver of the car being chased by authorities was alive when an ambulance arrived. A passenger in his car and the three occupants of the other car were dead at the scene, officials said.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said it set up a roadblock after getting a call that the vehicle was being pursued toward Taylor. The car ran through the roadblock, however, and was being chased by a DPS vehicle and a Williamson County constable when the collision occurred.

Officers warned people to stay away from the burning wreckage because of explosions — apparently bullets or other ammunition in the car being pursued.

Soviet rocket brings UFO reports in North

SEATTLE (AP) — A bright orange ball which flamed across the night sky over the Pacific Northwest, prompting a swarm of UFO reports, was a falling rocket from a Soviet satellite, the Air Force said today.

The object, which witnesses said traveled from the northwest to the southeast at about 11:15 p.m. Friday, was described by witnesses as a fiery ball which appeared to be in several pieces.

"I thought it was a jet airliner on fire when I first saw it," said John Killen, sports editor of the Lewiston (Idaho) Tribune. "There were two large burning lights that looked like they could have been engines on fire."

Steve Lent of KBRO radio in Bremerton, Wash., more than 300 miles to the west, said he first thought it might be a plane, but added, "I've seen planes flying through clouds before, and it wasn't a plane."

Lent said it took less than three minutes for the object to pass horizon to horizon.

Chicago promised 'new era'

By MARK HEINRICH
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Minutes after taking his oath of office as Chicago's first black mayor, Harold Washington promised a new era for a city long ruled by patronage and special favors, and said he would begin by firing hundreds of recent political appointees.

"The only greater challenge in the history of Chicago was 110 years ago when Mayor Joseph Medill looked over a city burned to the ground and called for a great outpouring of civil responsibility," Washington said at his inauguration Friday, 17 days after being elected in a divisive campaign marked by racial tension.

As outgoing Mayor Jane Byrne sat stone-faced to the left of the podium, Washington told an overflow audience of 3,000 people that shaky city finances left "no choice but to release the several hundred new city employees ... added because of political considerations" in the last month of Mrs. Byrne's administration.

Washington also announced an immediate freeze on city hiring and raises, and a cut in salaries paid to executive-level managers to begin what he called "a great movement of revitalization and reform" in the nation's second-largest city.

The cuts would extend to his own office, Washington said.

The 61-year-old former state legislator and congressman has pledged to dismantle Chicago's patronage system, which he says froze minorities out of power and neglected poorer neighborhoods.

The grim, blunt tone of Washington's swearing-in address contrasted with the festive air of the inauguration, which featured poetry readings, orchestral numbers, the Chicago Children's Choir and an enthusiastic audience representing a mix of political persuasions and ethnic groups.

Washington broke tradition by moving inaugural rites from the cramped City Council chambers, which seat just 700, to the cavernous auditorium on historic Navy Pier to illustrate his campaign pledge to make Chicago government a mirror of neighborhoods, not special interests.

Religious leaders, including Cardinal Joseph Bernardin and Rabbi Harold P. Smith, sounded the unity message in their prayers. Author Studs Terkel read from Carl Sandburg's "The People, Yes!" and poet Gwendolyn Brooks read "Chicago, The 'I Can' City." Aaron Copland's "Fanfare For A Common Man" set the musical tone.

Mrs. Byrne, who had smiled earlier after Washington completed his oath of office, sat impassively as Washington alluded several times to mismanagement in her administration. The crowd cheered wildly at intervals in Washington's address, some shouting, "All right!" and "Right on!"

"In the beginning people thought I was trying to be sacrilegious. The more they listened, the more they realized I wasn't laughing at God."

The Warnke finger points at the world's oh-so-humanity.

He said his message is aimed at three groups.

"Backsliders, come back."

"Unsaved, get saved."

"Churches, get with it."

Nothing funny about that. Or is there?

"Two things I have found in every church or denomination are Christians who love the Lord and something funny," Warnke said.

One of the biggest problems of today is "everybody and everything" in the light that "they take themselves too seriously," Warnke believes.

"Any group of people that can learn to laugh is in a lot better condition than if they didn't," he muses.

The couple works as independent evangelists supported by ticketed events and donations. Traveling about 20 weeks of the year from their Versailles, Ky., home, the Warnkes see all ages at concerts, but say there are probably more in the 18 to 35 age group.

"We improve every show," Warnke said. "Each show is open for whatever the Lord wants to put across. We don't have any set thing. Before anything else I'm a minister."

The only way I know how to operate is by being sensitive to the Lord. The comedy is secondary to serving the Lord."

In 1972, Warnke published a book, "The Satan Seller," on his conversion from satanic worship to Christianity and in 1979 published another, "Hitch-hiking on Hope Street." Six of his live concerts are on record and tapes with magazine's contemporary and inspirational non-musical artist of the year.

Warnke has a bachelor's degree in Christian counseling from Valley Christian University and is working on his doctorate.

Mrs. Warnke is referred to by her husband as "the brains behind the operation." She is finishing her bachelor's degree in Christian psychology and counseling at Valley Christian University and a master's in Christian psychology. She also has a bachelor's degree in business management from the University of Kentucky.

She composes gospel music, for herself and with Aaron Ruben and B.J. Thomas, and plays the guitar and piano.

March.

Prices of food grains as a group rose 2.7 percent during the month and averaged 1.3 percent more than a year earlier. Wheat prices, at $3.78 per bushel, were up 12 cents from March. Rice, however, dropped 19 cents to $7.80 per 100 pounds.

Oil crops, mainly soybeans, showed an index gain of 3.4 percent from March, including a 22 cent rise in soybeans prices to $6.04 per bushel.

Vegetable prices rose 2.8 percent from a month earlier, mainly due to higher prices for lettuce, celery and onions. The index was 13 percent above a year ago.

The category of potatoes, sweet potatoes and dry beans showed a gain of 20 percent from March, with potato prices at the farm gaining 94 cents to $4.82 per 100 pounds. The index was down 19 percent from a year earlier, however.

Farm prices in April averaged 137 percent of a 1977 base-price average used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. The revised March index was 134 percent.

The April parity ratio was 57 percent, up one point from March. A year ago it was 58 percent. Last winter, the indicator sagged to 54 percent, the lowest since it also averaged 54 percent in April 1933, one of the worst years of the Depression.

Under the parity formula, prices farmers get for commodities are compared with prices they pay for production and living expenses — then stacks them up with a 1910-14 yardstick.

At 100 percent, the indicator would theoretically mean that farmers have the same buying power as in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual price of corn in April was $3 per bushel, according to the preliminary figures. That was 59 percent of the April parity price of corn — $5.10 per bushel.

The report also said: —Cattle averaged $61.90 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally compared to $59.70 in March and $60.10 a year earlier. These are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

—Hogs averaged $47.40 per 100 pounds compared to $50.40 in March and $51.20 a year ago.

—Corn, at $3 a bushel, compared to $2.71 in March and $2.55 a bushel a year ago.

—Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $3.78 a bushel, compared to $3.66 in March and $3.68 year ago.

—Rice averaged $7.80 per 100 pounds, compared to $7.99 in March and $8.54 in April last year.

—Soybeans were $6.04 a bushel against $5.82 per bushel in March and $6.17 a year ago.

—Upland cotton was 58.8 cents a pound on a national average compared to 59.9 cents in March and 55.3 cents a year ago.

—Eggs were 57.1 cents a dozen compared to 58.2 in March and 62.9 a year ago.

ticoat Junction," "My Three Sons," "Ironside," "General Hospital" and others.

While playing in a teenage movie, Turnbull met an actress, also cast in a lead part, who told him about the Lord. "I was very embarrassed because I had no knowledge about spiritual things," he remembers. "I had never read the Bible. But I was curious and responsive, because this was a class lady. She wasn't silly and she didn't flaunt her faith. She simply lived it."

This young actress invited Turnbull to a church camp, called a College Briefing Conference, in Forest Home, Calif. He was a little reluctant at first. "The word 'camp' bothered me because I thought of a reformatory and I couldn't imagine a group of church people at something like that," he explains.

Alaska not job country

JUNEAU — The Alaska Department of Labor has issued a warning urging job seekers not to look to Alaska for work this summer season. Commissioner of Labor, Jim Robison, says, "There are no worker shortages in Alaska. Job seekers should be very wary of advertisements offering high paying jobs or Alaska job information for sale."

"Each year," Robison says, "many job seekers have based their decision to come north on inaccurate or incomplete information and find that no jobs are available in Alaska where their limited food and housing dollars disappear at an accelerated rate because the cost-of-living is high."

Alaska has not been immune to the economic downturn that has swept the nation. The Alaska unemployment rate for 1982 was 9.9 percent, remaining among the 20 states most severely afflicted by unemployment. Alaska annual unemployment rates have exceeded the national average since the mid-1970's, and are expected to stay high during 1983. Some Alaska communities routinely experience seasonal unemployment rates of more than 20 percent.

Commissioner Robison says, "We welcome you to come and visit, but bring enough cash or a return ticket home so you do not run the risk of getting stranded."

Rising tide of mediocrity

A blue-ribbon panel announced this week that education in the U.S. is threatened by a rising tide of mediocrity. The response, needless to say, has been pro and con.

The panel recommended tougher standards and longer school days or school years. More emphasis on the basics and tougher standards might help, but we have doubts about a longer school year.

We've heard several local teachers complain about the difficulty in teaching elementary classes in April and May—mostly because of kids' baseball programs starting before school is out.

"Parents don't seem to care," said one teacher. "They're more concerned with getting the baseball over before summer's end so they can take a vacation. It seems more important that their child not miss a ball game than whether he or she learns anything the last two months of school."

We've commented in this column before about the school being influenced by society's goal of trying to make everyone equal. An example: One year, the cheerleaders were not allowed to be candidates for Homecoming Queen because "they already had an honor." And, on occasions, teachers want us to shoot pictures of everyone who entered a contest instead of the winner, or top three winners.

This kind of reasoning, it seems to me, is striving toward mediocrity. The examples might seem to be small matters, but not if the philosophy is extended into the classroom.

Way to cut

If Congress is serious about looking for ways to cut expenses in the federal budget, one way would be to cut back on the vast amount of money American taxpayers are spending these days to keep their ex-presidents living in luxury.

One of the budget studies given to Congress touched on this subject but apparently has received very little attention.

Some 18 years ago ex-president Harry Truman received $64,000 a year. Now two decades later, we have three former presidents whose costs for maintaining their style of living, including around-the-clock Secret Service protection, costs the taxpayers a cool $27 million a year!

Harry Truman was a man of simple tastes and when he went into retirement at his home in Independence, Missouri, he answered his own correspondence and carried his own luggage.

Congress was inspired to change this and began to provide a staff, office supplies, postage, transportation and other amenities so that the ex-president would not have to drop his standard of living.

The staff allowance for a former president now begins at $150,000 a year.

Last year former President Richard Nixon ran up travel bills of more than $20,000 and Gerald Ford spent some $10,000 on travel while Jimmy Carter spent $7,000.

The ex-presidents are not poor men, by any means. Each of them makes money from writing profitable books, by charging fees on speaking tours, and each has a comfortable pension.

There can be little actual justification for keeping Secret Service people at all times with an ex-president wherever he goes. What danger is an ex-president in years after he leaves office?

Like a lot of other government programs, this one to care and feed ex-presidents has grown like Topsy until those in charge of our public funds ought to take a long, hard look at this expense.

The Penultimate Word

DESERT WATER BAGS

Back in the 60's I lived in Weatherford, Oklahoma. Before they built Interstate 40 old Highway 66 ran right through town. One summer I noticed a large number of cars coming through town with desert water bags hanging on their bumpers. As the summer progressed the number of water bags increased. It seemed that every out of state car had a water bag.

While driving home from Oklahoma City one day I solved the mystery. Outside of El Reno, Oklahoma there was a dumpy little gas station (we Okies called them filling stations). For several miles ahead of the station there were some home made signs. The signs said:

Last Chance Mobil (It was the last chance for 19 miles)

Desert Water Bags

Desert Water Bags

Now, folks from back East all think this part of the country is a desert wasteland. When they saw the last chance Mobil and the signs about desert water bags they panicked. They thought the desert was beginning. The guy was doing a land office business in desert water bags. I almost stopped and bought one myself.

Unemployment: Made in Washington

By RICHARD L. LESHER, President Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON, D.C., home of the Internal Revenue Service and the Giant Panda Bears. Ever wonder what people in Washington do for a living? They don't produce automobiles like Detroit, or grow wheat like Kansas. Washington doesn't make television sets, or ball bearings, or steel ingots.

Instead Washington, D.C. makes laws. And regulations. It raises taxes and eyebrows. The only thing Washington makes—I mean really produces—is money. It prints it. Washington also imports money every April 15.

But the District of Columbia does have one major export: Unemployment. Through an ever increasing tax wedge, numerous regulations and special interest legislation, Washington has increased unemployment throughout the nation to over 10 percent. Oh, yes, the politicians talk a great game about creating jobs and increasing employment, but talk is cheap and doesn't do anything for the District's balance of payments. Creating unemployment is the really big ticket item for Washington's export trade.

The government has outlawed six different home industries. Remember the Vermont housewives who discovered in 1981 that knitting at home was a federal crime. Or more recently, the women in Ripon, Wisconsin, who were told that embroidering skirts violated a 40-year old regulation. H.L. Mencken described a Puritan as someone who had a growing fear that someone, somewhere, was enjoying himself. Well, Washington has the same fear that someone, somewhere, is working. And heaven forbid, making a profit. Only thing to do, of course, is to lock them up until they promise to stop.

The Davis-Bacon Act was passed in the beginning years of the depression to keep black Americans from working in the construction industry. Despite the progress with civil rights laws in the 1950s and 1960s, the Davis-Bacon Act remains part of federal law and is estimated to cost the taxpayers more than $2 billion each year and cost the economy more than 100,000 jobs.

And Congress has refused to enact a youth differential for the summer months to allow young Americans to work for 75 percent of the minimum wage. Such a change in the law—supported by the administration and most of the business community—would create between 150,000 and 600,000 jobs according to Secretary of Labor Ray Donovan.

In addition to regulations and anti-employment laws, Congress has increased income taxes, payroll taxes and business taxes each year so as to price American workers out of the world marketplace. Every tax is an increase in the cost of producing here in America and another incentive for the Japanese to undersell American businesses and workers. It isn't the cost of American salaries and wages that have priced American goods out of the world marketplace—it is the cost of government.

Behind the price tag on an American car is an array of federal taxes that make Toyotas and Datsuns look more and more attractive.

We invented transistor radios and computers and robots here in America, but taxes on savings and capital gains have driven the savings and investments of Americans overseas to finance the new businesses and jobs of our competitors.

The politicians are always telling us that they can create jobs. They can't. But if Washington would get out of the business of destroying jobs and opportunities for the American people, we could have a recovery unprecedented in our history and a job for every American who wanted to work.

Warm Fuzzies, Doug Manning

Bootleg Philosopher

Some thoughts on IRS rules

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has some thoughts on a new I.R.S. ruling this week.

Dear editor:

Although generally it's better to forget April 15 as soon as you can, there are a couple of announcements by the I.R.S. that caught my attention.

It has ruled that house painters can deduct the cost of overalls as a legitimate business expense because, it said, "they are required as a condition of employment and are not adaptable for general use as ordinary clothing."

This is two-fold news. (1) To farmers and others who like to wear overalls right out in public even though the I.R.S. says overalls aren't

In April this year most Americans paid a little less income tax than last year because of tax relief the President cajoled through Congress in 1981.

Now the bad news: Most of the tax relief you were promised has already been wiped out by recent tax increases — and Congress is presently contemplating taxing you another 268 billion over the next five years.

And the administration lacks the strong leadership in Congress necessary to stop them.

July of this year you are promised another personal income tax cut of 10 percent. Don't spend it yet.

Republican Senator Pete Domenici has capitulated to Democrats on his budget committee. As things stand the traditional tax-and-spend formula with which previous administrations cheapened dollars and strangled incentive will dominate even the Republican majority in the Senate.

A decade ago Congress seized budget responsibility from the White House. In the nine fiscal years since, Congress has spent $1.1 trillion more than in all of the previous 185 years of our nation's history.

Congress cannot be trusted with your money — because each member of Congress, feeling obligated to his home town voters, tends to vote more for them.

And the more vocal his constituency the more he will seek hush-money for homefolks.

And with 535 members of Congress seeking something extra—that adds up to a lot extra—though each figure he can hijack taxpayers in other states to cover his generosity.

As is voters are unable to hold any specific person or persons responsible for fiscal policy. What comes out of Congress is a corporate conglomeration of fat pork.

As Senator Steve Symms says, "There are too many members of Congress who are hell-bent on hiking your taxes—not to balance the budget—but simply to pay for more and more spending programs we don't need and cannot afford."

There is another factor working against us. Republicans have been losers for so long they don't know how to act like winners.

The very idea that titular Republican Domenici acquiesced to a Democrat-designated tax increase while five committee members were absent epitomizes the "defective" Republican congressional leadership.

It has to be frustrating for quarterback Reagan that it's not Democrats—it's Republicans intercepting every forward pass.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

Hereford, the city that gets things done, put another feather in its cap Tuesday at the general election when it voted to issue bonds in the sum of $20,000 for the establishment of a system of sewerage and waterworks.

This means a healthier and cleaner city and fire protection. When the city gets to work on the sewerage and waterwork system, the construction crews upon the Colorado, Hereford & Gulf, the promoters upon the flouring mill, the owners upon the electric light plant and the schoolboard upon the fine school house, all of which is to happen this summer, there will surely be something going in the gem city of the plains.

50 YEARS AGO

As near as the Brand can figure it more than 23,000 pounds of cream was brought to Hereford by the local creamery, Hereford Poultry and Eggs, and other stations who sell direct to the creamery, during the past week. Multiply this by 18 cents, the average price paid during this period, and it can be realized that the local creamery is paying a lot of money to farmers. Last year the price was about 13 cents.

25 YEARS AGO

Parker Brothers of Hereford were selected over West Texas Construction Co. of Lubbock as the contractors to receive contracts for seal coating 55,000 square yards of city streets in Hereford by the City Commission Monday night during a regular session.

Mrs. George Turrentine this afternoon will be recognized as Deaf Smith County Home Demonstration Club Woman of the Year for 1958 during a joint meeting at Jim Hill Hotel of the county organizers and other interested persons.

Deaf Smith County is still No. 1 in the feed cattle industry and growing, according to the annual southwestern area survey conducted by the agricultural development department of Southwestern Public Service.

The total number of cattle fed in Deaf Smith County in 1972 was 574,106, up more than 20 percent from 1971 total. Special sports achievement awards were presented Friday at noon when the sports committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce hosted the quarterly meeting at Hereford Country Club.

The other I.R.S. announcement said it has hooked up a phone system that automatically rings the phone every 30 minutes of anybody who is behind in his taxes. The thing will keep on ringing till the guy pays up or

U.S. reliance on Arab oil down 50 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — With striking swiftness, America is shaking its Arab oil habit.

The American Petroleum Institute reported this past week that, in January of this year, only 17 percent of U.S. oil imports came from Arab countries.

A year earlier, Arab oil represented 37 percent of U.S. imports, and two years ago the figure was 44 percent, according to the institute, which is a lobby group for oil companies. In January 1980 the Arabs had a 48 percent share.

The turnaround has come mainly at the expense of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Its dominant member, Saudi Arabia, remains the biggest Arab source of U.S. oil imports, but its share of the U.S. market has plunged. Another factor is the Reagan administration's ban on imports of Libyan oil.

In January the United States relied on the Saudis for 6 percent of total imports. A year earlier that figure was 17 percent.

The decline of U.S. dependence on Arab oil does not mean those countries have lost all influence on Western affairs. A cutoff of the approximately 4 million barrels a day of Saudi oil exports — whether deliberate or accidental — would create havoc in the world oil markets even if U.S. supplies were adequate.

Although the drop in Arab oil exports to the United States has been swift, few analysts think it will continue.

OPEC's decision in March to reduce its prices by $5 a barrel, to $29, is expected to prompt Exxon Corp. and the three other U.S. oil companies that produce Saudi oil to increase their purchases, though perhaps only modestly. Those four companies — Exxon, Mobil Corp., Texaco Inc. and Standard Oil Co. of California — are partners in the Arabian American Oil Co. that pumps Saudi Arabia's oil.

The effect of a reduction in purchases of Saudi oil was strikingly evident when those four companies reported this past week on their first-quarter profits.

Mobil said its overall profit was up 2 percent, and its foreign earnings — of which the Aramco operations are a key part — soared 108 percent. Exxon reported a 26 percent overall increase, including a 62 percent increase overseas. Standard of California was up 35 percent overall and more than 400 percent overseas. Texaco's overall profit dropped 13 percent but its foreign earnings more than doubled.

Board approves new degrees, homes

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas College Coordinating Board has changed scholarship rules and approved three new degrees in an effort to get a better ethnic mix in state-financed colleges.

The board also approved proposals Friday to provide residences for as many as three chancellors although one drew a protest from Marshall Formby of Plainview.

Formby, a board member since 1971, said he couldn't "ever remember voting against my friends from A&M," but he objected to a proposal by the Texas A&M University System to use $1.2 million in private money to provide a home for its chancellor.

He said even though the state would not have to pay for the home, "after it was built, taxpayers would have to keep it up."

With Texas in a "belt-tightening" economic situation, he said, "I think we're getting a little out of line. ... I'm not mad at the Aggies." Formby voted against the proposal.

"You really hurt my feelings," joked board member Herbert Schiff of Dallas, an A&M graduate.

A&M regents approved the project in June 1982.

Board members approved a request by the University of Houston System to buy a house valued at $750,000 in the Memorial area, six to eight miles from the school's central and downtown campuses. The house would be used as a chancellor's home or would be sold to buy homes for two chancellors. Regents have not decided on what option to take.

The board said the university could spend up to $300,000 in local foundation funds for the house. The remainder would be a gift.

The board voted unanimously to establish a master's degree in transportation at Texas Southern University in Houston. It would be the first such degree program in the state.

Also approved were a doctor of pharmacy degree at TSU and a bachelor's degree in computer science at Prairie View A&M, northwest of Houston.

The three new degree programs at predominantly black colleges are part of the Texas higher education desegregation plan.

School officials estimated the programs would require nearly $1.7 million in state start-up money, but the board staff said $800,000 for the computer science program may be too high.

Monterey 3-5A champs

Monterey's in... Coronado and Plainview would like to be, and Hereford had an opportunity to play spoiler on the final day of regular season play in the District 3-5A baseball race Saturday. Monterey clinched the district title Friday with a 10-2 win over cross-town rival Coronado. The loss dropped the Mustangs into a second-place tie with Plainview. Saturday, Plainview was at Hereford. A loss would leave the Bulldogs out of the playoffs, despite what Coronado might do against Lubbock High. If Coronado and Plainview tie for second place, the Mustangs advance to the playoffs because of a 2-0 record against the Bulldogs this season. For Plainview to advance to post-season play, the Bulldogs had to defeat Hereford Saturday, while Coronado lost to LHS. Hereford saw its district record drop to 6-9 Friday as Amarillo High posted an eight-inning, 8-7, triumph. The Herd fell behind, 7-2, after six innings, but rallied with five runs in the top of the seventh to knot the count. AHS, which ended its season 10-6 in league play and 15-7 overall, pushed across the winning marker in the eighth. The loss dropped Hereford to 9-12 overall. Mickey Stengel went the distance for Hereford, allowing 11 hits. Other games Friday saw Lubbock High trip Tascosa, 7-4 and Plainview thump Caprock, 10-4.

Lendl, Scanlon grab WCT wins

DALLAS (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl and fifth-seeded Bill Scanlon took quarterfinal round wins Friday in the World Championship Tennis Finals tournament here. Lendl beat Steve Denton 6-4, 7-5, 6-4 while Dallasite Scanlon defeated fourth-seeded Kevin Curren 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3. Lendl faces Scanlon Saturday while Vitas Gerulaitis takes on John McEnroe for the right to play in the finals of the $300,000 tournament.

In the second match, Scanlon sealed his win in the sixth game of the fourth set. Up 3-2 but trailing 0-40, Scanlon ran off five straight points for the game, winning the final set 6-3. Curren broke Scanlon's serve twice to win the first set but fell behind quickly, 4-1, in the second. The pair traded breaks before Scanlon fired two aces to tie the sets at one apiece. The top-seeded Lendl, 23, recovered from some mid-match inconsistencies to advance into Saturday's semifinals against Scanlon.

Optimism running high

Recent draft pleases Cowboys

AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The annual Dallas Cowboys' draft often recalls the heady optimism of baseball spring training. Big league managers can usually see a pennant through their sunglasses in Florida before heavy realism looms in August.

The Cowboys also are always pleased with themselves on draft day in April, or February, sometimes without reason. They steal away a free agent sensation like Everson Walls. But the books also balance out with major disappointments, like No. 1 pick Rod Hill in 1982 or Larry Bethea in 1978.

It wasn't much of a shock on National Football League draft day Tuesday when Dallas executive personnel director Gil Brandt called first and second round picks, Jim Jeffcoat and Mike Walter, "surefire, can't miss" prospects.

Brandt always perks with optimism about the talent his sleuths have unearthed.

He was delighted to have landed a defensive end like Jeffcoat of Arizona State and a linebacker like Walter, areas where the Cowboys are most needy.

Dallas has lost three consecutive National Conference title games. The reason: defense.

The question before the house is: Can these two players give the Cowboys IMMEDIATE help? Can these guys be counted on to keep Dallas from making it four losses in a row in the NFC title games this winter?

Lone Star mark

Brandt obviously thinks so. Other brows are less feverish.

He predicted Walter would be starting in the Cowboys' opener Sept. 5 against the defending World Champion Washington Redskins.

"He'll be a starter (at strongside linebacker), that's my feeling," Brandt said. "In my mind he is no gamble."

This word was relayed to Coach Tom Landry, who never wears sunglasses.

"I'd be surprised if Walter was starting," Landry said with a grin. "I have to worry about getting him (Walter) ready. Gil doesn't."

Was Landry trying to tell his team something by drafting defensive players like Jeffcoat, Walter, and the other Arizona State end, Bryan Caldwell, in the first three rounds?

"I don't send signals," Landry replied.

Landry doesn't have to. The message is loud and clear to his defensive linemen and linebackers: Competition is coming.

"We'll have eight defensive linemen competing and only six positions to fill," Landry said.

Then he said with relish: "It will be a very competitive situation."

The Dallas pass rush was not up to par in 1982 and the linebacking was also not of championship caliber.

With Guy Brown retiring because of an injury and a young crop of draft picks scrapping for first-string jobs, Landry also has competition in the linebacking corps.

He doesn't project Walter as an immediate help although he played the Landry "Flex" in college.

"You don't step into our system and play right off," Landry said.

Milwaukee comeback nips Celtics

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer
The Milwaukee Bucks figured the Boston Celtics couldn't keep hitting two out of every three shots, and they were right.

Trailing 57-42 after Boston hit 66.7 percent in the first half, Milwaukee cut the deficit to eight after three quarters and then held the Celtics to nine points in the fourth period en route to a 95-91 victory Friday night. The triumph gave the Bucks a 2-0 lead in their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference playoff series, with the next two games in Milwaukee.

"Things looked pretty dark in the first half the way (Danny) Ainge and (Gerald) Henderson were shooting," Milwaukee's Sidney Moncrief said. "They really outplayed us, but we didn't panic. We knew it was just a matter of time when the Celtics' shots wouldn't fall consistently."

In the Western Conference semifinals, both San Antonio and Los Angeles took 3-0 series leads with overtime victories on the road. The Spurs beat Denver 127-126 and the Lakers tripped Portland 115-109.

Larry Bird, the Celtics' leader in nearly every offensive category, missed Friday night's game because of a virus and a 104-degree temperature. But Ainge and Henderson took charge, scoring 12 and 10 points, respectively, as Boston raced to a 28-22 lead in the first period.

Ainge went on to add 11 points in the second period, hitting 11 of 12 field goal attempts in playing the entire first half.

He hit his first shot in the second half, giving him a career-high 25 points, but then he turned as cold as he was hot, missing his last nine shots.

"We were really psyched when we heard that Bird wasn't going to play," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said. "However, they played very well without him. We had to go back to square one, hoping they wouldn't continue to hit for the rest of the game."

Milwaukee outscored Boston 32-25 in the third period, cutting the 15-point deficit to 82-74. Then the Bucks completed the rally as the Celtics hit just four of 22 shots in the final 12 minutes. The nine-point fourth quarter was one point higher than the all-time NBA playoff low.

Fitch is not optimistic about his team's chances of becoming only the fifth team in history to rally from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-seven series.

"This is far worse than being down 3-1 to Philadelphia," Fitch said in recalling the Celtics' comeback from such a deficit en route to the club's 14th NBA championship in 1981. "In that one we had the home game coming up. This time we have to play two on the road."

Moncrief scored 20 points, Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman 19 apiece and Bob Lanier 13 for Milwaukee. Scott Wedman, filling in for Bird, had 18, Henderson 16 and Robert Parish 14 for Boston.

Spurs 127, Nuggets 128

Denver continued to give Johnny Moore open shots and he produced for San Antonio for the third straight game. Moore, who averaged only 12.2 points per game during the regular season, scored 39 points and hit the game-winning three-point shot with 12 seconds left in overtime as the Spurs took a commanding lead in the series.

In the first two games at San Antonio, he scored 24 and 26 points while dishing out 17 and 20 assists, the latter an NBA playoff record.

"I've been shooting with confidence," said Moore, who also had 12 assists, eight rebounds and five steals Friday night. "Denver keeps collapsing on Artis (Gilmore) inside and I've been open a lot."

Moore scored 13 of his points in the fourth quarter as the Spurs battled back from a 94-90 third-quarter deficit to tie the game at 118-118 at the end of regulation. Then in overtime, he scored all nine of the Spurs' points, including the game-winning three-pointer.

"We talked about shooting a three-pointer in the huddle, but we first wanted to work it inside to Artis," San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said. "I said if you have a solid three-pointer go ahead and shoot it. Johnny Moore is a very gutsy player. He never quits."

George Gervin, who didn't score after the third quarter, added 22 points for the Spurs, followed by Gene Banks with 21 and Gilmore with 20.

Denver was led by Alex English with 39 points. Kiki Vandeweghe had 34 and Dan Issel 22.

Lakers 115, Blazers 109

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored nine of his 30 points in overtime as Los Angeles squeezed past Portland for a 3-0 lead in the series.

The Lakers led by as many as 11 points in the second quarter and had a 54-47 advantage at halftime.

Portland outscored Los Angeles 16-2 over a 6½-minute stretch in the second half to take a 79-72 lead. The Blazers eventually built an 87-78 lead on Kenny Carr's three-point play with 7:36 left in regulation.

seconds left in regulation. He made only one of two free throws to force the overtime at 98-98.

Jim Paxson and Calvin Natt led Portland with 22 points apiece.

New law in New Mexico

Amateur boxers must wear protective headgear

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The fight was brief but fatal. It ultimately would be the catalyst for a change in amateur boxing in New Mexico and possibly the nation.

A bill recently signed into law by Gov. Toney Anaya makes it mandatory for amateur boxers in New Mexico to wear protective headgear whenever they step into a ring.

The Amateur Boxing Federation reports only Idaho has a law similar to New Mexico's, but some boxing officials believe it's only a matter of time before other states follow suit.

Supporters and opponents of the New Mexico law agree its course was set by the events of Feb. 12, 1982.

On that night, an unemployed former high school rodeo star named Benjamin Davis faced what was to be his second and final bout in a brief career. The 22-year-old Davis was paired against a relatively inexperienced opponent, 16-year-old Lewis Wade, in the semifinals of a regional Golden Gloves Tournament in Albuquerque.

Fifty-seven seconds into the second round, Wade caught Davis against the ropes and hammered home a straight left to Davis' head. Davis was knocked out by the seemingly routine punch and

Shriver, Turnbull

ATLANTA (AP) — With No. 1 seed Chris Evert Lloyd out of action, the top-rated match of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Atlanta women's tennis tournament will come when Pam Shriver and Wendy Turnbull meet in tonight's semifinals.

"On paper, this appears to be the final," said Shriver, the No. 2 seed. "But a final is a final; it doesn't matter who you play. It's for all the beans."

never regained consciousness. He died five days later.

The death of Davis and the much publicized fatal beating Korean pro boxer Duc Koo Kim took at the hands of Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini last year influenced Albuquerque state Rep. Henry "Kiki" Saavedra to seek the mandatory headgear law during the 1983 New Mexico Legislature.

"That was the final blow," said Saavedra, whose bill sailed through both houses without opposition.

Saavedra said the New Mexico law has drawn attention from legislators in other states. He said legislators from Oklahoma, Louisiana, Alabama, Texas and Illinois have requested copies of the law.

The law, which goes into effect July 1, has drawn mixed reviews. Most boxers and coaches approve of it, but at least one boxing official believes the sport would be better off without it.

"I think the politicians really jumped on this thing and made it a political issue," said Sammy Burke, a former boxer, coach and now president of the state Amateur Boxing Federation. The national ABF is the governing body for all amateur boxing in the United States.

Burke, the father of two professional boxers, said he does not oppose the use of headgear, but believes its mandatory status could lead to injuries.

"What's going to happen is that the poorer boxing teams are going to use one piece of headgear for all their boxers, from the 90-pounder to the heavyweight," Burke said. "If you get a loose headgear that moves and covers a boxer's vision, he can't see what's coming and can get tagged with some awful shots."

Saavedra, who says most amateur boxers come from poor minority groups, concedes some coaches may defeat the purpose of the headgear law by using one piece of equipment for all their boxers.

"But if a coach is really sincere about trying to protect his boxers, he'll find a way to raise the money to buy the equipment he needs," Saavedra said.

Like Saavedra, Burke said the media's coverage of boxing deaths had a lot to do with New Mexico's headgear law.

they know absolutely nothing about."

Dr. Mickey Demos, a Coral Gables, Fla., physician, believes the violent nature of boxing has hindered the enactment of similar laws in other states, but predicts the New Mexico Legislature's action could change that.

"The injuries have forced the public to demand more safety in boxing," said Demos.

Cub boss hot

CHICAGO — Manager Lee Elia's tirade against the fans and media that have been riding his 5-14 ballclub — the worst record in the major leagues — almost cost him his job, says his boss, General Manager Dallas Green.

But even though he had to apologize for the outburst, Elia makes no apologies for his team's effort.

"Rip 'em, rip those country suckers (fans) like they rip my players," Elia fumed in front of reporters after Friday's tough 4-3 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Eighty-five percent of the people in this country work and the other 15 percent come out here and boo my players," continued Elia, in his second season as a major league manager since moving with Green from the Philadelphia Phillies organization. "It's a playground for them."

But two hours after the outburst, sprinkled liberally with profanities, Elia turned around and apologized.

Cub General Manager Dallas Green called a news conference in his office after hearing a tape of his field manager's tirade and a subdued Elia said, "I get frustrated because a lot of positive things have transpired around here in the last year and a half, and that doesn't show on the record.

"There's no way to condone my actions. I lost it," he continued. "Yes, this is an apology."

Green said that after hearing the tape that Elia's job "was in jeopardy. I'll guarantee that. He called me before he got in the shower and he didn't know what he had said. We played the tape back so he understood at the time how bad it really was. It was not handled professionally and Lee has told you his feelings about that."

"There is no way to blame the media or the fans for a lack of performance," concluded Green, "but it will change."

What won't change immediately is the Cubs' dismal record, which was the focal point of a television commentary Thursday that set Elia off in the first place.

"Tonight," Elia began Friday's blast, "some jerk on TV will say that the Cubs are 5-14 with the worst record in baseball. That's lovely. I hope we get hot — just to stick it to those 3,000 people who show up every day."

"All these so-called fans (9,391 paying customers Friday) who come out here, who're supposed to be behind you, come out here and rip everything we do," he continued. "... What am I supposed to do, let my players go out there and get destroyed every day and be quiet about it? ... For the nickel-and-dime people who show up?"

Unfortunately, Elia wasn't the only frustrated man wearing a Cub uniform Friday. Outfielder Keith Moreland, the target of some fans' obscenities himself, tried to go after the group on his way to the clubhouse.

"I saw it," said Green, who indicated the fans had been drinking. "Three guys with a pitcher full of stuff. Keith tried to go over the dugout, which he couldn't do."

Byron Nelson Classic

Purtzer, Donald share top spot

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Purtzer had to win an exchange of harsh words in the scoring tent, his disputed eagle-3 intact, to retain a share of the lead going into today's third round of the $400,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

Purtzer was peering at a 10-foot eagle putt, which had hung on the lip of the cup for several seconds, when the ball dropped in for an apparent three that tied him with Mike Donald for the 36-hole lead Friday.

But one of Purtzer's playing partners, Ed Fiori, claimed Purtzer had his putter on the backswing when the ball dropped and that he should be charged with an additional stroke.

Logjam in Legends; 4 teams share lead

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The sixth annual Legends of Golf was a logjam of headliners battling for the $100,000 first place prize today going into the third round.

Pick a favorite legendary golfer over 50 and he was more than likely among the four-teams locked at a best-ball 10-under par 130.

They all had one thing in common: none of the teams have won this rich tournament where you get $5,000 apiece for just showing up.

Tied after a rain-splattered day of play were Australians Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle, Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, Jack Fleck and Fred Hawkins, and Roberto De Vicenzo and Rod Funseth.

Play was delayed an hour because of rain then Thomson produced the most brilliant golf, holing seven birdie putts including five in a row on the back nine as the Aussies shot 7-under par 63.

Fleck and Hawkins, the first round leaders, could manage only a 2-under par 68 while Casper and Brewer, riding Brewer's five birdie putts, shot a 6-under par 64.

De Vicenzo and Funseth coasted across Onion Creek Golf Club's soggy acres in 3-under par 67.

Thomson, five-times winner of the British Open, and two-times U.S. Open winner several seconds, when the ball dropped in for an apparent three that tied him with Mike Donald for the 36-hole lead Friday.

But one of Purtzer's playing partners, Ed Fiori, claimed Purtzer had his putter on the backswing when the ball dropped and that he should be charged with an additional stroke.

Casper were the happiest of the 16 players tied for the lead.

Thomson made a putt for birdie on 15th hole that he called "the length of a cricket pitch (22 yards) I just had a lucky streak."

Casper was doubly happy with Brewer, his long-hitting playing partner. Brewer made five birdie putts and killed a copperhead Casper almost stepped on just off the 15th fairway.

Brewer calmly killed the snake then birdied the next two holes.

"Some harsh words were exchanged," Purtzer said. "It's not the first time this sort of thing has happened between us. We've had some problems before. We just don't think alike."

Fiori declined any comment.

The dispute was not settled until they reached the scoring tent after completion of the round. PGA Tour official Frank Kavanaugh, after questioning both players, ruled that Purtzer had not addressed the ball, had not intended to strike the ball, and that the eagle-3 stood as the official score on the hole.

It completed a 7-under-par 64 for Purtzer and put him in a tie for the lead with Mike Donald, who also had a 64, one of four such numbers, compiled on the new Las Colinas Sports Center course.

Purtzer, whose lone tour victory came six years ago, and Donald, who has yet to win as a touring pro, each finished two rounds at 137, seven shots under par.

Fiori, with a 66, and first-round leader Lanny Wadkins were a single shot back at 136. Wadkins, who scored his second victory in four weeks last Sunday, had a 69 in the occasionally drizzly weather despite an inconsistent putter.

Mark Hayes, with a 67, and Brad Bryant, with a 68, were another shot back at 137.

PGA champion Ray Floyd shot a 65 and led the group at 138, only three strokes back. Also at that figure were Victor Regalado, Mick Soli, David Edwards, John Fought, Hal Sutton and Canadian Jim Neiford.

Sutton, winner of the Tournament Players Championship earlier this season, had a 66. Regalado and Neiford each shot 67, Edwards and Fought 68, and Soli 69.

Tom Watson, a four-time winner of this tournament when it was played at Preston Trail, improved to a 67 and 142. Jack Nicklaus drifted back in the field at 74-143.

SWC official gets the axe

HOUSTON (AP) — Horton Nestrsta, the dean of Southwest Conference football officials, said he was fired because Arkansas football coach Lou Holtz and Assistant SWC Commissioner Hal Lahar "wanted to get rid of me."

Nestrsta said his dismissal was prompted by a disputed call in the fourth quarter of last year's Southern Methodist-Arkansas football game.

"It's a rotten deal and it's unjustified," Nestrsta was quoted as saying in a story published in Friday's Houston Chronicle.

"It's a form of intimidation for the officials next year. If they'll fire me over a call Lou Holtz doesn't like, the officials next year are going to darn sure know what can happen to them."

Holtz was in Atlanta and could not be reached for comment.

Nestrsta, a back judge with 21 years experience in the SWC, flagged Arkansas cornerback Nathan Jones for pass interference on SMU quarterback Lance McIlheny's attempt to throw a sideline bomb with less than five minutes to play.

Holtz complained later that SMU receiver Jackie Wilson ran over Jones on the play. The call was criticized by reporters and Arkansas fans, but other officials defended Nestrsta.

Nestrsta said he was informed of his dismissal in a Feb. 23 letter. A spokesman for the league office confirmed the firing but declined to elaborate on the reasons.

Loyalty Day

The American flag is the focus today as Mayor Wes Fisher proclaims May 1 as Loyalty Day. Observing the proclamation are Betty Boggs, left, and Doris Wilson of the Post 4818 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary. The Auxiliary will be presenting flags and flag etiquette books to fifth graders at Shirley, Northwest and Bluebonnet Schools as part of its activities to show pride in the country's flag.

Wallpaper in rolls was not permitted in England until 1830 because it could be taxed at a higher rate if sold in small sheets.

Lawmaker to check constituents

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Al Edwards is talking to his constituents this weekend, and supporters of legalized pari-mutuel gambling hope Edwards hears something that will change his mind about horse racing.

"My vote on horse racing right now is no," Edwards said Friday. "I've got some things working, of course."

Edwards, D-Houston, could be a key player in the horse racing scenario because he is one of eight members of the 15-member House Urban Affairs Committee who oppose legalized gambling.

But Edwards has indicated his vote could be swayed. It would take just that one change of heart to get a horse race bill to the House floor. The Senate has approved a bill calling for a statewide vote on whether communities should be allowed to decide on pari-mutuels.

Edwards, a black, said he'd spend the weekend talking with his constituents about what he might be able to get in exchange for his vote.

What he wants is a commitment that legislators would support three minority-interest measures — congressional representation for Washington D.C., banning state universities from investing in companies that do business in South Africa, and a state affirmative action employment plan.

Edwards said clergymen and other constituents in his district "might feel" that promises of support for those measures "would warrant" an Edwards' vote for pari-mutuels.

Number of Blacks increasing in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of blacks in America is increasing faster than the population as a whole, with the proportion of blacks rising in all areas except the South.

The Census Bureau found that there were 26,495,000 blacks in the United States in 1980. They represented 11.7 percent of the population.

During the 10 years from 1970 to 1980, the number of blacks rose by 17.3 percent, while the total population went up by 11.4 percent.

"The main reason is because of a higher natural increase among blacks ... primarily due to higher birth rates," said Nampeo McKinney of the Census Bureau's Race and Ethnic Statistics Division.

Black fertility rates have declined over the last decade but are still higher than for whites, she said.

The South showed a major change in the 70s, she said, reversing the earlier trend trend of blacks leaving. By the end of the decade, more blacks were returning to the South than were leaving, she said.

But their share of the South's population declined anyway, due to a significant movement of whites to the Sunbelt, and the arrival of many Hispanics in Texas and Florida, Ms. McKinney said.

More than half of all blacks still reside in the South, the Census Bureau found. There were 14,048,000 blacks in the South in 1980, up 17.4 percent from the 11,970,000 blacks in 1970.

But the population of the region as a whole grew even faster — up nearly 20 percent — and that means that the share of the South's population which is black shrank from 19.1 percent to 18.6 percent over the decade.

By contrast, in the Northeast blacks increased their share of the population from 8.9 percent to 9.9 percent. Their share in the North Central region went from 8.1 percent to 9.1 percent, and their share in the West went from 4.99 percent to 5.2 percent.

Mississippi remained the state with the largest black population at 887,000, or 35.2 percent of the state's total, down from 36.8 percent in 1970.

South Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia and Alabama followed Mississippi in number of blacks. In all except Georgia, the proportion of the population which is black declined during the decade.

Vermont has the fewest blacks — about 1,000 or 0.2 percent of its total population. The percentage for Montana — with about 2,000 blacks — was the same. Vermont's share of blacks was unchanged over the decade, while Montana's declined from 0.3 percent 10 years earlier.

Both states had about the same number of blacks in each census, but Montana grew more over the decade, resulting in the declining percentage.

Rounding out the five states with the smallest share of blacks were South Dakota, Maine and Idaho, each listed at 0.3 percent of the total population of the state.

Another gain in economic indicators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another gain in the nation's main business forecasting measurement, the seventh in a row, is welcomed by government and private analysts as an encouraging signal of economic recovery.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators rose 1.5 percent in March, the government announced Monday, continuing an upward trend in the compilation of forward-looking statistics that measure unemployment, prices, business orders and other economic areas.

Wall Street followed the report with another record-setting day. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks jumped 6.68 and ended the day at 1,226.20, the ninth new peak in the past 13 sessions, ending a week that saw a gain of 29.9 points. Volume Friday was 105 million shares.

The increase in leading indicators was larger than the 1.4 percent increase in February, but below the January gain of 3.2 percent.

The Federal Reserve Board reports its basic measure of the money supply fell $2 billion in the week ended April 20. Interest rates fell immediately after the report was released at 4:15 p.m. EDT, and economists said they expected rates to continue a slow and modest decline over the next several weeks.

In September of 1976 Joseph Opple reported finding a 72-pound edible mushroom near Solon, Ohio.

Clean Air Week Set

Mayor Wes Fisher supports the American Lung Association of Texas by proclaiming May 2-8 as Clean Air Week in Hereford. June Rudd represented the Association at the signing. The theme for this year's week is "Citizen-Government Involvement." According to the association, health costs due to excessive air pollution exposure to 45 million Americans total over $40 billion.

Officer thought Reagan was dream figure

HOUSTON (AP) — A policeman says he thought he was dreaming when a "very kind" President Reagan appeared at his side, just after the officer was knocked to the street in an accident with his motorcycle.

"I don't think I was in my right mind," Sgt. Ralph Gonzales said at a hospital Friday, hours after being injured in the crash. "I do recall seeing Mr. Reagan, the president. I didn't realize I'd actually had a wreck until I was in the ambulance."

Gonzales, 32, and motorcycle officer Harold Prothro collided early during the presidential motorcade from Hobby Airport to downtown Houston. Police spokesman Larry Troutt said both apparently tried to close the same intersection.

Reagan, accompanied by aides and Secret Service agents, got out of his armored limousine, retrieved a police service revolver from the street and handed the weapon to a bodyguard. He then walked about 100 yards to where Gonzales lay with ambulance workers tending his injuries. Reagan had landed minutes before at 2:20 p.m. He was in town for a fundraising dinner for Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Deputy White House chief of staff Michael Deaver told reporters that Reagan insisted on getting out of the limousine when it stopped.

When the president reached the officer's side, "I thought I was dreaming," Gonzales said in a telephone interview from Memorial Hospital Southeast. "He was very kind, what I remember. I think he asked me was I OK and I told him I was sorry that I'd blocked the motorcade."

The officer suffered a sprained neck and bruises. He was released after about three hours of treatment and observation, emergency room supervisor Marilyn Peoples said. The officer with whom he collided, Prothro, refused to go to a hospital, spokeswoman Dorey Zedrow said.

Restaurant caters to the hungry poor

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — There's no cash register in William Land Jr.'s new restaurant — the poor may eat there free.

His Cozy Kitchen Cafe, which seats 15, is simple in fixtures and furniture. A microwave oven and commercial coffee maker sit on a shelf behind the counter. A covered metal pan marked "Donation" hangs on a wall near the back door.

Land opened the Cozy Kitchen in his Belleville home some three months after he met a woman who had been forced to feed her children cooked potato peelings because her food stamps had not arrived.

"The thing that bothered me was the tears in her eyes," Land said Wednesday. "I told my wife, 'Let's start being a doer.'"

A hand-painted sign in the restaurant reads, "No charge for food items. This restaurant is operated on donations only, so that no one who comes leaves hungry because of a lack of money. Donate only if you can."

In the first three hours the cafe was open Wednesday, five people stopped in for free food.

Land began planning the restaurant just after he sent the crying woman on her way with some food. He said it took three months to complete the paperwork. But Land got his restaurant license and now must keep records to show that sales tax has been paid on food purchased and food sold.

"You're not going to believe this, but it's hard in the state of Illinois to give anything away," he said.

National Music Week observance slated May 1-8

The Hereford Music Study Club hosted Quintessence, a jazz ensemble from West Texas State University, for the March meeting to complement this year's study of American Music. The concert, which was open to the public free of charge, was co-sponsored by the WTSU Foundation of Fine Arts, on which two local residents are board members.

Joyce Allred, left, outgoing Hereford Music Study Club president and Jan Walser, incoming president of the organization, discuss National Music Week activities. New music club officers will be installed Monday, May 16 for two-year terms.

'Music, the Invisible Bond' theme of 60th annual observance

National Music Week is celebrated to create an understanding and appreciation of the value of music in the home, community, nation, and the world. The National Federation of Music Clubs, a non-profit organization dedicated to the advancement of music, promotes the annual observance of National Music Week because its members believe that music is one of the greatest forces in creating peace and harmony, and one of the most important of all arts for welding a more harmonious understanding among people and nations.

Hereford Music Study Club, a member of the national federation, sponsors concerts by local and guest musicians, senior recitals and student days, and a yearly scholarship to a graduating senior planning to major in music.

Music events happening in the community this week include Hymn of the Day and musical features on KPAN by music club members and their children and students; school choirs, orchestras, and bands participating in the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo; a children's choir concert at First Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Wednesday; and musicians from local churches presenting special numbers for Youth Quake Monday through Thursday in the La Plata gym. Also, the West Texas State University choirs will present a concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Northern Hall on the WTSU campus in Canyon.

From The Lodge

Susan Owens

Camp Fire believes that spiritual development is essential to a healthy, wholesome personality. We recognize the importance of the church and synagogue and of religious teachings in the lives of youth.

The Camp Fire program is an ideal medium for supporting and encouraging the spiritual values of church and synagogue. Camp Fire endorses and enables a chance to learn and grow in religious values, just as Camp Fire endorses and enables learning and growth in leadership and citizenship.

Although families and religious institutions do carry primary responsibility for the religious upbringing of children, Camp Fire can support, supplement, complement and enrich this aspect of a child's life.

There are several ways youth can grow in spiritual knowledge and strength through Camp Fire. There are the many activities suggested in the program books for exploring various aspects of religious heritage and the specific projects designed by religious groups for Camp Fire members.

The spiritual values of the church and synagogue are basic to the Camp Fire program and the Camp Fire Law. Each part of the law is related to ethical living, encouraging appreciation for God's world, emphasizing the dignity of individual human worth and character and recognizing that service to others is one of the essentials of full living. All of these contribute to the spiritual atmosphere or climate that pervades the whole of life.

Camp Fire holds dear the basic freedoms of democracy, one of the most cherished of which is the right of freedom to worship. Not only does Camp Fire respect the right of every youth to practice her or his own religion, but through the Camp Fire program, encourages active participation in the church or synagogue.

Camp Fire also recognizes the diversity of values which exist among individuals, families, communities and countries. This diversity is especially prevalent when dealing with spiritual matters.

The task of helping Camp Fire youth develop attitudes of respect for the religious convictions of others is somewhat delicate. It can be explained that what makes a religion great is that it sees some fundamental fact of life or problem and speaks to it.

Religions differ on how the problem is seen and the means available to solve or cope with it. Youth should be encouraged to see that some questions do not have easy answers and there is not universal agreement on a right answer to these hard questions. There are different ways to grow spiritually. Loyalty and love for one's own way do not necessitate contempt for another's way.

Leaders are not asked or expected to teach religion in any formal sense; that would be overstepping their role.

Hereford Camp Fire Council is working with the churches in our community to make available a religious growth program for any youth who is interested in participating.

The God and Country program is an interdenominational series of resources for church groups' activities involving youth. They are designed to provide a denominationally oriented, informal religious emphasis.

In every case, the young people are expected to have project counselors who are recommended by their clergy. These projects may be undertaken individually or in small groups.

The Family of God Program is an official religious recognition program of the U.S. Roman Catholic Church for children enrolled in youth organizations, such as Camp Fire.

The Family of God Program is an activity series developed to complement the catechetical efforts of the parish and families with children in the second and third grades.

Sister Debbie of St. Anthony's Parochial School is conducting the Family of God Program for Catholic youth at this time.

The program material is available at the Camp Fire office at a cost of $2 per packet which includes the cost of the emblem. Please contact the Camp Fire office for a list of representatives of the churches we have contacted. When the child has completed the packet, it must be signed by the pastor of the church, the person in the church conducting the program, the child's leader, and then returned to the Camp Fire office so that arrangements may be made for the presentation of the award.

Please let us emphasize that the office will not be reading or approving these packets. They are returned strictly as a check system to ensure the child receiving the proper recognition of their accomplishment. This program is designed for the youth and their church.

For those youth who wish to participate in the interdenominational program, God and Family, Father Charles Threewit will be presenting this program at St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

If any child is interested in participating in any of these programs, please have them make arrangements through the Camp Fire office. Camp Fire will help the youth members make contact with appropriate persons in the church to get them started on these projects.

Pope Leon X conferred the title of Defender of the Faith on King Henry VIII of England in 1521 for his treatise against Martin Luther.

Axe, Artho exchange wedding vows Saturday

Miss Karen Jane Axe of Amarillo and Harold Paul Artho of Umbarger were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Vega, with Father Peter Di Benedetto, pastor, officiating.

White and pink flowers and candelabra decorated the main altar of the church and flowers adorned the pews.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Axe of Vega and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Artho of Umbarger.

Mrs. Verlon Duggan of Vega, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and Roger Batenhorst of Umbarger was the best man.

Bridesmaids included Mrs. Bret Richardson and Sherri Axe, both sisters of the bride from Vega. Duane Artho of Hereford, brother of the groom, and Jim Friemel of Umbarger were groomsmen.

Ushers included Raymond Artho, Eddie Artho and Arnold Artho, brothers of the groom from Hereford, and Verlon Duggan, brother-in-law of the bride from Vega.

Flower girl was Jennifer Duggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verlon Duggan, and ring bearer was Douglas Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Pope.

Wedding music, including theme from "Ice Castles," "Be Not Afraid," "On This Day," and "Oh Beautiful Mother," was provided by Mrs. Jerry Brorman of Vega on keyboard and Mrs. Eddie Gipson of Vega, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of chantilly lace featuring bishop sleeves, Queen Anne neckline, and chapel length train.

She wore a picture hat of chantilly lace and a necklace from her grandmother, Mrs. John Jennings. Her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses and Lilly of the Valley. Her attendants wore pink crepe dresses with pink lace caplets and carried white baskets containing pink and white flowers.

MRS. HAROLD PAUL ARTHO
...nee Karen Jane Axe

Jeanie Britten of Amarillo registered guests at the reception which followed in the Parish Hall. Mrs. Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs. Billy Baker and Pam Lawson of Amarillo served punch and coffee. The serving table was covered with a white cloth and silver service was used. The white wedding cake was trimmed with fresh flowers.

As the couple left for a honeymoon to Las Vegas, Nev., the bride wore a pink silk dress with white accessories. They will be at home in Umbarger.

The bride is currently employed by the American Quarter Horse Association and the bridegroom is engaged in farming at Umbarger.

20 Ways To Nutritionally Rescue Your Body

Some people allow nature to take its course - While others choose one of our natural formulas to work with nature

What is a Nutritional Formula

A formula is a combination of nutrients, vitamins, minerals, herbs, and raw whole gland concentrates scientifically, synergistically and professionally designed to support as a whole. Although each nutrient may be low in potency it is the total output that is important. Remember being taught the high school principle, "The sum total of the parts is greater than the individual parts."

FORMULA No. 106 - A unique combination of vitamins, minerals, and raw glandulars to improve skin tone. Nutrition of a proper balance is important for radiant healthy skin. Akne-Zyme is the kind of formula that works internally where the real improvement begins. This is the kind of formula Dr. Pfeiffer, M.D., Ph.D., Brain Bio Research Center Mental and Elemental Nutrients, says is so highly effective for the management of acne and other skin problems. Supplies an excellent combination of nutrients for the skin - vitamin A, C, Raw Thyms, Potassium, sulfur and niacin, etc.

FORMULA No. 115 - This formula is the most effective combination of nutrients to bring relief to sore feet, etc. caused by bone spurs. Also helpful when calcium is deposited on heels, joints, and other body locations. Brings fast, safe relief to sore shoulders caused by a build up of calcium. Acid-a-cal is a systemic acidifier par excellence. This superb formula is the first step to the correction of a poor calcium metabolism.

FORMULA No. 125 - This product is principally a proper balance of factors to improve bile function and fat metabolism. A formula of methionine, biotin, and choline designed to nourish the liver and gall bladder. An excellent way to keep your liver and gall bladder functions normal. A combination of lipotropics and bile thinning factors to produce an excellent detoxifying effect. Combined with two of the most powerful detoxifying herbs as well as green beet leaf juice. Lipotropic literally means fat loving. In effect breaks down the fat that infiltrates the liver causing a decreased function. This would be of value in bringing relief in any health conditions. Helpful for nutritional support for the liver while convalescing. With improved liver function most any condition symptoms will be relieved. For the individual who has tried everything without satisfaction, will find Liv-a-Tox is the product of choice.

FORMULA No. 126 - If you think this sounds like it might be a complex designed to improve your health, you are correct. A mixture of the most powerful nutrients the body can use to increase your resistance. As well as messenger RNA that encourages the body to produce interferon! Imagine a product that can effectively increase your resistance to Flu, Colds, Kidney complaints, Bladder complaints, etc., etc.! This formula tremendously improves the defense or immune system of the body.

FORMULA No. 145 - The product is most often overlooked, everyone seems to have a digestive aid. But we offer one 200 percent as potent as others on the market. Pro-Gest-Ade is a combination of HCL, carbohydrate and fat digesting enzymes. Enzymes which will improve digestion both in the stomach and small intestines. We use only the very expensive Lipase, Mylase and Mykozyme. Pro-Gest-Ade is a very potent enzyme digestive aid. If fact each tablet will digest the following, 165 grams Protein, 100 grams Carbohydrates, 60 grams fat.

FORMULA No. 156 - For you friends and relatives who suffer from weak ankles, shin splints, sprains, stiff knees, tennis elbow or any joint inflexibility. Myo-Tone has a combination of ingredients that promote elasticity in ligaments and tendons and eases muscle spasms and nerve irritability! Indispensable for most athletic injuries! Recovery time less than normal for most common injuries.

FORMULA No. 165 - Providing nutritional support for the glandular system with raw glandulars could be more important than vitamins and minerals. It is the glandular function that controls the chemistry of the body. Now in one table a complete formula for either male or female. The female (Nucleo-Pro F) can expect relief in personal female problems. Helpful to bring relief during that period of your life when things get you down. When you feel blue, heavy, and a little bit touchy. This is one formula you have to experience to believe for that heavy cramping feeling, etc.

FORMULA No. 175 - You may believe you have a good product to recommend to your friends for sore swollen joints accompanied with joint stiffness. Believe us when we say - you've never seen the equal of Artho-flex. Brings fast safe relief. Many health symptoms respond dramatically to this unique never before offered formula. Like all our formulas Artho-Flex is unconditionally guaranteed. We know this formula brings relief like no other product on the market. We encourage you to make this money back guarantee to your customer regardless of time or bottles used. You and your customer must be completely satisfied.

FORMULA No. 195 - Next to fatigue the other most common complaint heard is that of irritability and nervousness. The young mother who can't stand the crying of children, the employee or employer who blow up for no good reason. When individuals make mountains out of mole hills, it's time to nutritionally aid the nervous system with Neuro-Plex. A perfect balance of right Vitamin B factors, raw glandular extracts, and trace minerals makes this formula a perfect solution for external stress. Use both Neuro-Plex and Mega-Power together daily. They are synergistically related to give you that extra strength support.

Morgan, Eubanks married in morning ceremony

Dr. Louann Morgan of Lubbock and Jay Eubanks of Hereford exchanged wedding vows Tuesday morning at Candlelight Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas, Nev. Dr. James Dallas, of University United Methodist Church in Las Vegas, performed the ceremony.

An arrangement of orchid mums, carnations and daisies was placed behind the wedding party. On either side were two 15-branch brass candelabra. Palm trees also adorned the altar area.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Morgan of Borger and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Velma Eubanks of Chico, Calif.

Mrs. Lory Muellenberg of Concord, Calif., (the former Jerri Keith of Borger) was matron of honor and Eudell Bossard of Henderson, Nev., was best man.

Principal musical selections included "Wedding Song," "Bridal Chorus," and "Wedding Chorus."

The bride and groom wrote their wedding ceremony and spoke their own vows. Before the ceremony the bride gave a long stem mauve rose to her mother and after the ceremony she presented a long stem mauve rose to the groom's mother.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore a white striped chiffon gown designed by Bob Marcelleno of New York. A fitted satin bodice and skirt was worn beneath the chiffon gown. The bodice featured a Victorian collar of Venise lace and the natural waistline was gathered to create a blouson bodice with a mauve chiffon sash.

The long, full sleeves were finished with a wide cuff of Venise lace and the softly gathered skirt fell to tea length with a narrow band of scalloped Venise lace around the entire hem. Dyed sandals were worn to match the sash.

Her halo headpiece was a band of mauve, dusty pink and orchid rose petals with mauve ribbon streamers in the back. The bride wore a wide gold band bracelet which was given to her mother by her father and worn on their wedding day.

She also wore a square cut diamond necklace and diamond earrings given to her by the groom.

The cascading bridal bou-quet was centered on a white Bible, a gift from the bride's parents, covered in white satin made by the bride's mother. The bouquet was made of mauve and beige roses, daisies, violets, and baby's breath accented with mauve ribbon streamers adorned with rose petals. Worked in among the flowers was an heirloom handkerchief belonging to the groom's mother.

The matron of honor wore a street length dress in accents of mauve. She carried a cluster of three long-stemmed mauve roses accented with ribbon streamers.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Westwind Hotel in Las Vegas. Cake was served by Mrs. Bill Wood of Klamath Falls, Ore., sister of the groom, and champagne was served by Mrs. Phi Borgeson of Canoga Park, Calif., sister of the groom.

Mrs. Aldine Olsen of La Verne Calif., the groom's sister, registered guests, and Bret Olsen of La Verne, Calif., nephew of the groom, distributed rice bags.

The serving table was covered with a pink linen cloth accented with beige candles in brass holders. Mauve, dusty pink and beige flowers were arranged in a brass bowl. The two-tiered ivory wedding cake was topped with an arrangement of mauve and beige flowers enclosing two gold wedding bells. Loose flowers also adorned the bottom tier and the base.

The bride wore pink slacks topped with a teal blue jacket wrapped at the waist with pink and blue wrap-around belts as the couple left for a wedding trip to Cloudford, N.M. The couple will reside in Hereford.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Borger High School. She attended Texas Tech University and graduated from the University of Houston College of Optometry. The bride is a Doctor of Optometry practicing in Lubbock and is a member of Mensa International. During former residency in Hereford, she was president of the Newcomers Club and a member of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

The bridegroom graduated from Chico High School in 1969 and from California State University at Chico with degrees in agronomy and pomology. He is currently employed as Agriculturalist at Holly Sugar Corp. and is an officer in the Hereford Noon Lions Club and a member of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce.

Local students win national honors in art award program

NEW YORK — Jacinto Guerrero and Pam Nixon, both 18-year-old students at Hereford High School, have won top honors in the Scholastic Art Awards Program, conducted by Scholastic Inc., publisher of books, magazines, and learning materials for young people, schools, and home.

Guerrero received Honorable Mention in mixed media and Miss Nixon earned a Gold Medal in acrylics.

Work of Gold Medal and Hallmark Honor Prize winners will be displayed at the 56th National High School Art Exhibition June 2-19 in the Corcoran Gallery and School of Art, Washington, D.C. A sampling of winning student photographs will also be exhibited there.

"Scholastic is committed to helping young people develop their talents by providing an outlet and incentive through the Scholastic Awards Program," said Richard Robinson, president. "Winning a Scholastic Art Award is no small achievement."

National winners must first emerge as blue ribbon finalists from among the more than 150,000 entries that get first professional scrutiny at 57 regional exhibits across the country in late winter.

This year's national honors include 404 Gold Medals and 538 Honorable Mention Certificates. Special awards include 99 tuition scholarships granted by art schools and colleges, five Strathmore Paper Company Scholarship Awards of $1000 or $500 each for outstanding portfolios, and 57 Hallmark Honor Prizes of $100 each for the best painting or drawing from each regional exhibit.

Big, bold, bright describes jewelry scene this summer

By ANNE WINSTON
Big, bold and bright describes the jewelry scene for summer 1983 and it's a refreshing change from all the "serious" jewelry we've been wearing this winter.

Slender gold chains and discreet pearl earrings are fine for fall suits and businesslike moods, but comes the warm weather and we all need a little something to add some fun to the day.

That's where the summer jewelry collections come in. They're brilliant and boastful and don't pretend to be anything they aren't. Plastic, wood, shells, and metal are unashamedly themselves as they hang from necks and ears, encircle wrists and waists.

These are the pieces that will stretch your budget because they will stretch your wardrobe. The name of the game is update. Let's make last year's dress look as if you just ordered it from N-M's summer catalogue by adding a jewelry piece that is unmistakably 1983.

Look for:
Color—the brighter the better in wood and plastic pieces that give the Fifties look. Pick a giant red earring splattered with white dots or a black bangle striped with lavender.

Spice up last year's black chemise with wooden beads alternating from blue to yellow, then encircle the waist with a vivid blue belt.

If all that's a bit much, opt for the absence of color. You can make a strong fashion statement by combining black and white. Sew huge, black buttons down the side of last summer's white skirt, team it with a black T-top, an armful of narrow bangles in black and white, and you're ready to go.

Look for:
New metals—frosted or oxidized. These add a new dimension to jewelry and, since they've only just come on the market, can really give you a 1983 attitude.

Probably the prettiest are the frosted "silvers" silver-colored metals with a dull finish that literally look as if they're covered with frost. These are often combined with cubes of clear plastic for an icy cool effect.

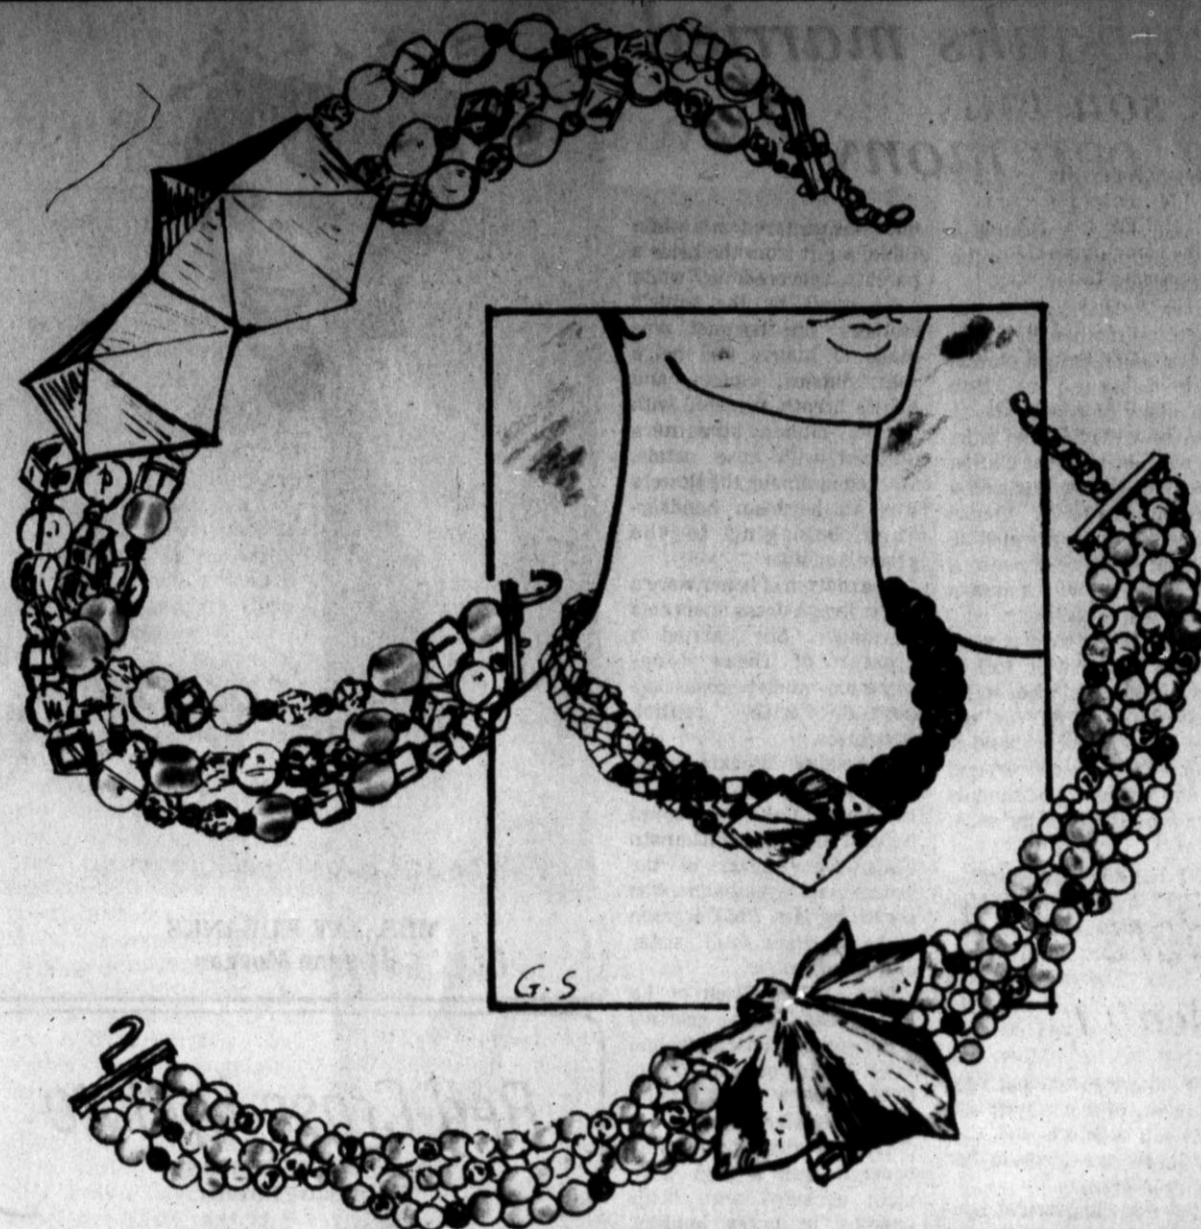

You'll also find some oxidized finishes that shimmer with iridescent color. These, combined with glass beads in rich jewel tones, make a dramatic centerpiece for last summer's "little black dress."

Look for:
Brass—just as bold as, and not pretending to be anything else. If you catch the brass ring this year, you'll be right in step. Some of the best ring your wrists in heavy-looking-but-lightweight bangles, often set with stones of glass.

Others ring the waist either totally or buckling leather strips. (Note: the day of the ornate belt is NOT over—in fact, it may be stronger than ever, so don't hesitate to make the investment).
Look for:
Important Neck Pieces—much too elaborate to be called necklaces. Composed of many strands of beads or chain, ornamented with pendants or a magnificent clasp, these put the point of focus on your face, which is where it should belong at all times.

Last year's beige shirt-dress will get an uplift from a triple strand of blue, amber and green beads dangling a brass pendant. Or, pick a confetti mixture of pastels and shells to make romantic lace seem new and fresh.

These are some of summer 1983's most important jewelry looks. There are others and the stores are chock-full. Just remember, don't be shy. Go for the bold and make a strong statement about your fashion sense.

Big, bold jewelry is made for summer 1983, as well as these frosted looks, cool and icy

Summer jobs available to lower income youth

The local Employment and Training Office is now taking applications for the Summer Youth Employment Program. Lower income youth between the ages of 14 and 21 will be eligible to participate according to guidelines.

Any applicant under the age of 17 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. If both parents work, arrangements may be made to meet with the applicant and a parent after working hours.

All youth who are interested in applying must have a Social Security Card by May 27, 1983.

The purpose of the program is to develop work skills in all youth and to give in-school youth the opportunity to earn money for school expenses.

Jobs will be available at various county and community work sites. Length of employment may average 10 weeks.

Information regarding applications may be obtained at the following locations: Employment and Training Office, Room 301, County Courthouse, phone 364-5722; or VAC (Vocational Adjustment Coordinator) Office, Hereford High School, Room 122, Phone 364-6591.

Appreciation expressed to Los Ciboleros Chapter DAR

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent

A great big thank you goes to the efforts of the Los Ciboleros Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution. They do lots of noteworthy projects to promote our wonderful heritage. The history essay contest is one of these.

Last fall several youngsters in the area were scurrying and wondering what part of American life they'd write about. The time period was 1750-1850. Subjects could be farming, foods, education, clothing, medicine, and on and on.

Last Sunday the local chapter honored the winners with a lovely reception and awards program. It was great to see entire families there in support of their children. And, too, the chapter is composed of some of very favorite ladies in Hereford.

The contest meant a lot personally to my oldest son, Stewart, a sixth grader. He placed second in his school and was delighted. He enjoyed doing the essay. It gave his grandmother in Arkansas and him a chance to work together. She is a retired fifth grade teacher and that was right up her alley. Brought back lots of wise memories for her.

It's good to have some positive things about our children and our country emphasized. I'd like to express to the Los Ciboleros Chapter of D.A.R. for all the positive things they do.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Reception planned for Reinart

The 4-H Parent-Leaders Association will host a reception for Penny Reinart, who has served as assistant county extension agent for the past three years, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday in the Community Center Banquet Room.

Ms. Reinart is leaving the Extension Service this month. There will be a money tree for her at the reception. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Stephen Foster, the composer of such songs as "Oh, Susannah," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Camp-town Races," died in New York City in 1864.

Last WT Brown Bag Seminar set this week

The last Brown Bag Seminar of the spring semester at West Texas State University will allow participants to visit during a "semester wrap-up."

Returning Student Program and Women Involved in New Goals (WINGS) will host the luncheon at noon on Wednesday and 12:15 p.m. on Thursday in the Faculty Lounge of the Student Union Building.

"We have this time at the end of the year to just visit, say our goodbyes and relax," said Jane Kerr, director of the WTSU Returning Student Program.

Chips and drinks will be provided.

WINGS includes women students who are 23 years of age and older.

Public invited to annual meeting

The public is invited to attend the American Heart Association's annual meeting and Appreciation Dinner at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Caisson House.

Dr. Joel C. Osburn, a cardiologist from Friona, will be the guest speaker.

Bing Crosby's son tells his story

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian
Several new biographies will be available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "Going My Own Way" by Gary Crosby and Ross Firestone heads the list of biographies about famous actors and actresses.

Just three weeks into the world, Crosby was the subject of a carefully scripted Paramount Studio publicity blitz. The era of the "Happy Crosby Clan" had begun.

Bing and family were to become an idealization of the normal American household, incongruously yet credibly living in Hollywood without having gone Hollywood. But as Gary Crosby tells the story of his life as Bing's first son, the image bore slight resemblance to reality.

Parental squabbles, his mother's alcoholism, and his father's stern discipline made life tense for young Gary. Unlike his father, whom he remembers charming everyone, Gary wasn't able to transform himself into what he was expected to be: a younger reflection of the public Bing.

The resulting conflict alienated Gary from his father and turned him into a brawler and an alcoholic. In "Going My Own Way," Gary is as tender and insightful with his difficult father as he is candid about himself and the various famous personalities who appear in this engrossing story of a singular father and his equally singular son.

"Ava" by Roland Flamini will also be available this week. She seemed to be one of those fortunate souls—beautiful, lovable and possessed of a gritty ear-thiness that drew some of the most interesting and desirable men of her time to her, among them Frank Sinatra, Adlai Stevenson, Ernest Hemingway, and bullfighter, Luis Miguel Dominguin.

Yet for Ava, the poor girl from the Boon Hill, N.C., tobacco fields, destined to become the barefoot contessa, Mrs. Frank Sinatra, Mrs. Artie Shaw, Mrs. Mickey Rooney, and a reigning love goddess of mid-century America, love was fleeting and superstardom as albatross.

Today, Ava Gardner is a solitary woman of London. In "Ava," she emerges in all her larger-than-life contradictions: the salty wise-cracking broad of "Mogambo," the glamorous contessa, exploited by the system, the sadly experienced Lady Brett Ashley trying to find the self she has lost. Ava is all these things.

She is a survivor of hard knocks whose public rebellions are part of a larger drive for self-determination. "Ava" is a definitive biography of an extraordinary woman who was willing to break the rules to go her own way, whatever the cost.

Other biographies available this week are "Julie Andrews" by Robert Windeler and "The Shirley Temple Story" by Lester David and Irene David. Other new books available this week include "When You Owe The IRS" by Jack Warren Wade, Jr., "The Power of Money Dynamics" by Venita Van Caspel and "Royal Service: my twelve years as valet to Prince Charles."

Ann Landers Sickened by video tapes

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a problem you are going to be hearing more about as hard-core pornography spreads throughout the country.

My husband, with whom I have had a warm and loving relationship, came home from an electronics convention with three of the filthiest videotapes you can imagine. He said we were the only people in the country with video recorders who didn't own these tapes, and the main idea of videotape records is to have access to stuff like this. The tapes show explicit sex photographed about three inches from the participants. They are not just naked people walking around, but wild orgies. I could not bring myself to describe them and you could never print it.

I see no use for this garbage. It did not arouse me in the least. In fact, it made me want to vomit. I have been unable to let my husband touch me since seeing that trash. I feel violated.

Do I need a psychiatrist or does he?—Turned-off In The Big D.

DEAR BIG D: Pornography affects people differently. For some (like your husband) it's a turn-on. For others (like you) it's a turn-off. Since you are so upset that you cannot let your husband come near you, I suggest that you see a counselor. I am not implying that you are peculiar because you don't enjoy such filth and that counseling will help you appreciate it. I AM saying you need a better understanding of why some people find pornography exciting and it makes others sick.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 11 years old and have not visited my grandparents' house for six years. I am allergic to animal fur and they have a dog. I was in the hospital three times last year because of asthma attacks.

My grandfather loves his dog more than he loves me, and this makes me very sad. My parents are upset over this, too. All my cousins get to sleep overnight at my grandparents' house, but I can't sleep there because of the dog. I keep wishing the dog would die. Will God punish me for having such thoughts? Please tell me your opinion.—Audrey In Chicago

DEAR AUDREY: It is normal for you to hate the dog because you feel he is depriving you of something you want very much. God understands this. But please remember, it is not the dog's fault. Also, keep in mind that if your grandparents are dog-lovers they would probably get another one if this dog died.

Would it be possible for your grandparents to treat you to a night in a motel on your birthday? Perhaps their neighbor could keep the dog that one night. Suggest it and see what happens.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read your column about the average frequency of sex between married couples. I am in a state of shock. I am 46 and my wife is 44. I was stunned to find that my wife has sex twice as often as I. Is this grounds for divorce?—Lake Country

DEAR L.C.: You know darned well that "timetable" was broken down according to age, but thanks for my laugh for the day.

Tuesday board meeting slated

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will meet at 12 noon Tuesday in the Chamber board room.

25th annual home tour slated Sunday afternoon

For the 25th year, Garden Beautiful Club will host a home tour, featuring three Hereford residences. The tour will begin at 2 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m. Sunday. Visitors may tour the homes in any order they wish.

Tickets are $2 and may be purchased from any club member or at any of the three homes on the day of the tour. Proceeds, which are used each year for beautification of the community, will be for the Hereford Senior Citizens Center this year.

Featured homes include the residences of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Brackett, 809 N. Lee St.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Emmons, 101 Oak St.; and Mrs. Joe Reinauer Sr., four a half miles west of Hereford on the Harrison Highway.

The Bracketts have completely redecorated their home since moving in, using clever decorating ideas. They have highlighted natural wood floors in the living room and dining room and accented with neutral colors to give the illusion of more space.

Mrs. Emmons, who is Vietnamese, and her husband have lived in several foreign countries and have collected furniture and accessories from the places they have lived. In decorating their home, they have combined modern and oriental touches.

Mrs. Reinauer, a longtime Hereford resident, recently redecorated her entire home, which could be described as comfortable and very livable. She selected new living room carpet in the same shade and type as was used in the house when it was first built.

Wood 'n Baskets

Kim Brackett and her 5-year-old son, Nicholas, are pictured in the kitchen of their home on 809 N. Lee St. In completely redecorating the small home, the Bracketts highlighted natural wood on the walls and floors and accented these wood tones with bamboo and baskets. Visitors will have a chance to tour this home and two others during Garden Beautiful's 25th annual home tour from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Oriental Touches

Mrs. Bill Emmons sits at the fireplace of her home at 101 Oak which will be featured on the Garden Beautiful Club's home tour Sunday afternoon. The Emmons have lived in other countries and have collected artifacts from Liberia, Taiwan, Nigeria, and Egypt, combining oriental and modern touches in decorating their home.

Center plans programs for Mental Health Month

A 10-year-old girl daydreams in school about her parents' upcoming divorce.

A 24-year-old married man wonders how he and his wife can work hard enough to ever get ahead.

A 51-year-old man finds that he is drinking more and becomes very upset when little things go wrong in his business.

These examples are reflective of common pressures faced by many of us in 1983. There seem to be so many demands and so little time in just our daily living that we often are unaware of patterns or ruts in our behavior.

Speaking at his daughter's commencement, Alan Alda remarked that the world was running "about as smoothly as a car with square wheels." Mike Moon, director of the Hereford Family Services Center, points out that May is National Mental Health Month and a good time for each of us to become more aware of our respective lifestyles.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" was written by Julia Ward Howe. It was published in Atlantic Monthly in 1862.

Astronauts Alan Shepherd and Edgar Mitchell landed on the moon from Apollo XIV Feb. 5, 1971.

He adds, "Coping today requires the development of some basic knowledge about health and problem solving skills. Coping is a process, and we do not develop good mental health overnight. It is important that even at an early age, we all begin taking responsibility and learn how to problem solve for ourselves.

During May, the staff of the Hereford Family Services Center will be giving two community education presentations. The first, entitled "Recognizing and Dealing With Stress," will be given by Moon on Monday, May 9.

This program will focus on identifying stress, clarifying some misconceptions about stress, and offer suggestions on how to deal with it.

"I hope that persons attending will come away with one practical idea to incorporate into their lifestyles," said Moon.

The second program will be given by Barbara Karins, the Family Service Center's alcoholism counselor, on Monday, May 16. The program, "Alcoholism: A Family Illness," will be highlighted by the film "Soft as the Heart of a Child."

Ms. Karins commented, "With alcoholism and other types of chemical dependency, we often overlook what is happening to other family members, that is, spouse and children. They too experience may problems and confusion."

Both programs will be given in the Heritage Room of the county library at 7 p.m. and should conclude by 8:30 p.m. There is no charge for these programs. Child care services will not be provided.

"I hope that our community will make time to attend at least one or both of these programs," Moon stated. "If anyone needs further information, I invite them to contact our Center at 364-6111."

The Hereford Family Services Center is a Deaf Smith County United Way Agency.

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Sunday, May 1, the 121st day of 1983. There are 244 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 1, 1945, German radio announced the death of Adolf Hitler in Berlin.

On this date: In 1707, a union between England and Scotland was formed under the name Great Britain.

In 1898, an American naval force under Adm. George Dewey destroyed a Spanish fleet in Manila Bay in the Spanish-American War.

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York.

And, in 1961, the first political hijacking of an American plane to Cuba took place.

Ten years ago: Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson was nominated to replace Richard Kleindienst, who had resigned as attorney general in the wake of the Watergate scandal. Five years ago: It was announced that a Japanese explorer had reached the North Pole after a 600-mile trip by dogsled over the frozen Arctic Ocean.

One year ago: President Reagan took part in opening day ceremonies at the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn.

Today's birthdays: Singer Kate Smith is 74 years old. TV personality Jack Paar is 65.

Thought for today: "In the midst of great joy, do not promise to give a man anything; in the midst of great anger, do not answer a man's letter." —Chinese proverb.

Frio Homemakers Club tours Lubbock firm

By Mrs. Owen Andrews

Frio Homemakers Club went to Lubbock Tuesday to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Robbins. The Robbins served lunch to the group and then he conducted a tour of the architect designer business of H. Dean Pierce, with whom Steve is associated. The business designs and decorates homes and businesses for its clients, Steve working primarily with interiors.

Those making the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robbins, Mmes. Marguerite Cole, Vada Axe, Loleta Vinson, Ella Caudle, Bonnie Baldwin, Darlene Richardson, Ruby Sparkman, Michelle Harder, Sue Andrews, Ellen Warrick, Sharon Caro, and Helen Barber. They were met there by Mrs. Barber's cousin, Cleo Sage of Lubbock, who made the tour with them.

Mrs. Annie Dee Dobbins spent a couple of days the first of the week in Amarillo with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Scott of Dimmitt. Mrs. Scott underwent hip joint replacement surgery on Tuesday in St. Anthony's hospital. She was improving as expected and apparently on the road to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Carter are announcing the birth of a daughter on April 23 in Deaf Smith General Hospital. The young lady has been named Ashley Reha. Her mother is the former Luanne Kind-sfather. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kind-sfather, Mrs. David Gibson of Dallas and Doc Carter of Oklahoma City. Mrs. Margaret Knott is a great-grandmother. The Carters lived in this community for several months until moving into Hereford early last winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lang-good are parents of a new baby daughter born Tuesday, April 26. Mrs. Langgood is the former Kristy Mason. Here parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mason. The Langgoods have two other daughters, Myca and Alexia, and a son Christopher. The new baby has been named Summer Shae.

Mrs. Donald Adams has been in Dimmitt hospital for a week with a severe infec-tion. She was able to return home on Tuesday much im-proved.

Q: You have mentioned an "umbrella" policy which takes over where regular homeowners liability stops. Could you explain more?
A: Certainly. In cases where you have the top limitations of homeowners liability under your company's policy, you may purchase an "umbrella" policy which provides additional coverage. Depending on the company, location and policy, the first $1 million of an "umbrella" policy will cost $100 to $150 per year, with each additional million at $10 to $20. It's important to remember is an "umbrella" policy will also supplement your auto liability, as well as any other liability coverage you carry, such as on a boat. Usually, a certain amount of liability coverage on your regular policy is required before an "umbrella" policy will take over.

TERRY COLLIER, MICHELLE DeHART

Couple engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth DeHart, Route 5, announce the engagement of their daughter, Michelle Layne, to Terry Lynn Collier. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Collier of 211 Avenue A.

The couple is planning a June 11 wedding at Westway Baptist Church.

The bride-elect will graduate from Hereford High School in May. She is currently employed at Frosty's Meat Market.

The prospective bridegroom attended Hereford High School until 1978, when he went into the United States Air Force. He is presently employed at Shupe Brothers Company as a mechanic.

Speller vows comeback

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Cambodian immigrant Linn Yann, who learned English only four years ago, got crossed up by a Mexican word in her bid to reach a national spelling bee but vowed to study hard and "try again next year."

A crowd of about 500 spectators groaned in sympathy Thursday night when the chilada "as enchelatta" and 12-year-old misspelled "en" was eliminated from Hamilton County's spelling championship.

Her mistake cost her the chance to win a trip to Washington to compete in the Scripps-Howard national spelling bee in June.

North Sea storms in 1953 were the worst in 500 years and casualties totaled 443 dead in Britain, 941 in Holland, and 22 in Belgium.

Vows exchanged

St. Joseph's Catholic Church was adorned with white and baby blue carnations and candelabra recently for the wedding of Martha Valdez and Manuel Carrasco.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel A. Valdez of Mexico and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aurelio Carrasco, 208 Lake St.

The bride's aunt, Adrianna Valdez, was maid of honor and the groom's brother, Rodolfo Carrasco, served as best man.

Padrinos were Gilbert Carrasco and Yolanda Hernandez Lazos, Juan De Los Santos and Beatriz Garcia Cojines, Mark Valdez and Sylvia Romo Biblia, and Aurelio Carrasco and Velora Tijerina Aras.

Fernando Carrasco and Lauro Carrasco served as ushers, and Benny Carrasco was candle lighter. Cindy Garcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincente Garcia, was the flower girl and Rodolfo Carrasco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aurelio Carrasco, was ring bearer.

Raul Guerrero sang the principal selection, "Anillo De Compromiso" accompanied by Mrs. Kaul.

Given in marriage by her youngest brother, Joe Valdez, the bride wore a pale blue dress with white organza overlay on the bodice. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline and was trimmed with seed pearls and lace. The skirt was of organza and lace with blue ribbon trim and featured an attached lace train.

She wore her hair up accented with white baby's breath and carried a silk bouquet of blue daisies and white and blue baby's breath.

Her attendants wore formal light blue dresses and each carried a blue rose.

Patty Salinas registered guests at a reception in the Hereford High School cafeteria. Lilia Ruiz, Gilbert Carrasco, and Yolanda Hernandez served refreshments. The five-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue and white roses.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rodriguez and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Valdez of Dallas and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Valdez of Denver, Colo.

The bride wore a beige prairie skirt and matching beige blouse trimmed with lace and a small black tie as the couple left for a wedding trip to Fort Smith, Ark. They will reside at 322 Avenue A.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Hereford High School and is presently employed at Hereford Day Care Center.

The bridegroom graduated from Hereford High in 1980 and is employed by Jake Diel Construction.

House approves proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — If the Senate goes along with minor changes made by the House, Texas voters will decide in November whether to expand the state's veterans' loan program.

The house voted 125-12 Friday in favor of a proposed constitutional amendment that would authorize the sale of $800 million in bonds to raise loan money for land and home purchases.

If the amendment is approved by voters, the Veterans' Land Fund $300 million from the bond sale and a proposed Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund would get $500 million.

In the House version of the plan, veterans would be eligible for the programs if they lived in Texas for five years, served 90 days in the military and were discharged honorably.

Memorial concert scheduled Tuesday

A Keith Green Memorial Concert is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Amarillo Civic Center, 400 St. Buchanan.

The concert, presented by Last Days Ministries, Lindale, Texas, will feature a large-screen video of Green sharing his final message on world missions through music and the spoken word.

The 27-year-old musician and founder of Last Days Ministries was killed in an airplane crash near Lindale last August. Since that time the ministry has been presenting memorial concerts around the country featuring video tapes of one of his last concerts.

Also speaking on video tape will be Green's wife, Melody, who resides in Lindale with her two children.

A live concert will be presented by Bob Ayala, who has recorded several Christian albums. Floyd McLung, director of Youth With a Mission in Holland, will also be present to bring a special message.

The concert is free of charge and open to the public.

Church Women United to observe May Fellowship Day on Friday

May Fellowship Day, which is observed the first Friday in May in communities across the country, will be celebrated by the Hereford Unit of Church Women United this Friday with a covered dish luncheon at 12 noon in the Fellowship Hall of First United Methodist Church.

Women are asked to bring dishes large enough to serve eight or ten people since there will be a number of special guests attending. Working people, and men as well as women, are encouraged to attend this ecumenical experience. A nursery will be provided.

During the May Fellowship Day celebration, which brings together those of Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Orthodox faith in a worship experience designed to develop creative and healing relationships between all people, Mrs. Brenda Reinauer will lead in a Bible study and Johnny Ray Watson will minister through music.

This year's service was written by women of Black denominations related to Church Women United. They take their theme from the spiritual, "There is a Balm in Gilead," and their inspiration from the lives of Black women who have left their mark on our country's history.

Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman, Mary McLeod Bethune, Nannie Helen Burroughs, Abbie Clement

Jackson, and Rosa Parks are highlighted as examples of the countless Black women who have made outstanding contributions as leaders, liberators, and educators. Bearers of the "balm" of healing, they were participants in a continuing ministry of reconciliation.

There are more than thirty recognized and entirely different predominantly Black denominations, but well over half of the total Black population is either Methodist or Baptist. Women of three Baptist and three Methodist Black denominations relate to Church Women United and are represented on the Common Council.

Two churches in Hereford, Mt. Sinai Baptist and St. John Baptist, relate to the National Baptist Convention of America, one of the six Black denominations related to Church Women United.

The offering taken up on May Fellowship Day stays within the local unit, and this year will go to help support Operation Good Shepherd.

Observance Planned

Members of the Hereford Unit of Church Women United will observe May Fellowship Day Friday with a covered dish luncheon to be held at First United Methodist Church. Planning the event are from left, Troyce Hanna of

First United Methodist Church; Brenda Reinauer, St. Anthony's Catholic Church; Laura Walker, Mt. Sinai Baptist Church; and Faye Landers, St. John Baptist Church.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

Every good thing known in the human experience is contingent upon our willingness to exercise self control.

This includes our willingness to submit to the controls which have been established for the common good. Human power, like all other power, can be constructive or destructive. Under control, the power is constructive; uncontrolled it is destructive.

Voluntary control is the desirable personal choice. Of course, this must be learned. This means we must be taught and we must have help as part of the maturing process. At first, control will be imposed; but, if the training is as it should be and can be, we will learn the skill of "voluntary control" of our self.

Self control is the goal, or should be. In our society, the need for control is beginning to be more fully recognized. "Permissiveness" is literally threatening everything that is of value in the human experience. This unrealistic distortion of the concept of personal freedom has developed until personal freedom is being lost.

Without wise control of one's self, there is little or no freedom. This means no right of choice in everything. There is a growing loss of personal movement. People cannot go where they wish unmolested; they cannot do what they wish to do; they are unable to make meaningful plans for a profitable life experience, and may not be able to carry out the plans they do make.

The less we control ourselves, and the more we rebel against lawfully-established controls; the sooner we will be ruled by, cruel and destructive forces. When enough people are out of control, a state of anarchy exists. Anarchy is temporary because it is self-destroying; it brings some sort of imposed controls, the anarchy is gone, and so is human freedom.

Freedom is not the freedom to do as we please, but is the freedom to do "right" as nearly as we can know and support the "right".

Honored for Services

Aggie Mothers Club to host dinner on May 24

Local students graduating from Texas A&M University and students planning to enter TAMU this fall will be honored with their parents by the Hereford Aggie Mothers Club May 24 at a covered dish dinner.

Bill and Mary Lyles' home will be the scene of this annual gathering which will also include present students and their families.

At a recent Aggie Moms meeting, Bera Boyd reported

Big aircraft carriers, the largest cargo ships and tankers, and even some passenger liners are too large to pass through the Panama Canal.

Mt. Erebus is one of three active Antarctic volcanoes. It is located on Ross Island and towers 13,200 feet.

that the scholarship committee had interviewed Kari Walterscheid, Hereford High School senior, and Rodney Hunter and Shelly Frye, both Dimmitt High School seniors. One of these students will receive the organization's scholarship at the awards assembly of his or her school during May.

Merle Clark, president, presented a pewter-like plate, engraved with TAMU insignia to Pat Clark, immediate past president, for her services to the club.

Pat Clark's oldest son, Jason, will be graduating at TAMU this week and son, Dawson, will be a senior there next year, while her third son, Mitchell, will be entering the same university this summer. A fourth son, Preston, a high school sophomore, has not revealed his plans for his future.

Doggett files as U.S.

Senate candidate

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, says he has notified the Federal Election Commission in Washington that he is a candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Doggett told a news conference Friday he would make a formal announcement of his candidacy later when his state legislative duties are completed.

Former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, who lost a close Senate race in 1978, has said he also plans to make the race as a Democrat.

Doggett held his news conference Friday outside the Albert Thomas Convention Center where a $1 million fund-raising dinner was held for Tower.

While a helicopter flight may be an exciting way to tour any of the Hawaiian islands, it is almost a necessity in exploring Kauai. Of the major Hawaiian islands, Kauai is the least developed and, perhaps, the most beautiful. It has very few roads and storms and currents make a sea landing all but impossible. Yet, Kauai was the first of the Hawaiian archipelago to emerge from the sea. It is the greenest, lushest and wettest island, with an annual rainfall of 400 to 600 inches. When movie-makers sought the perfect location to film South Pacific, they chose Kauai's Lumahai Beach.

Kauai is the least spoiled and least developed of the Hawaiian islands.

TV science-fiction miniseries would play better as satire

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)— Aliens from outer space used to be ugly, menacing creatures intent on eating the Earth. In "V," NBC's four-hour science-fiction miniseries, they look like blow-dried actors from central casting. But be warned. They're not what they appear to be.
"V," which will be broadcast Sunday and Monday night, chronicles what happens when earthling lookalikes arrive here on a supposed mission of peace.
Great anticipation is cleverly built about the appearance of these aliens. When their leader first arrives, he resembles some smoothie from an afternoon soap opera. "We're pleased to meet you," he tells the world in a voice that has a computerized ring to it.
The visitors say their planet is near environmental collapse and can be saved only by chemicals from the Earth's sewage.
"E.T." the movie about amiable aliens, has been done, so suffice it to say that these visitors don't stay friendly. In fact, they turn downright ugly. Also suffice it to say that executive producer Ken Johnson, who wrote and directed "V," is not Steven Spielberg.
If "V" were a satire on how Americans treat new arrivals, it would have worked better. One kid is disappointed that they don't look like E.T. or Dr. Spock.

In the suburbs, status-conscious society patrons organize teas and show off their visitors.
"V" is NBC's $23 million attempt to put some big Nielsen numbers on the board before the network's affiliates meet next month. It's bound to produce better ratings than NBC's normal programming. But it's vastly overpriced, considering ABC got 10 hours and four nights of "The Thorn Birds" for $21 million.
The special effects, however, are spectacular. The huge spaceships do appear to be hovering simultaneously over the world's major cities. And the battle scenes, including the one that looks like "Star Wars" at the end, are believable.
But the major flaws are a hokey comic-book adventure story, characters out of the Saturday cartoons and laughable dialogue.

Administration to sell satellites

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) — The clustered satellite receiving dishes on Virginia's Eastern Shore dwarf the plain, brick building where government technicians gather the raw data that feeds the nightly weather forecasts.

For 18 years they have worked in near anonymity, collecting pieces of the Earth's weather mosaic for those who hope to predict what will happen tomorrow.

But now the Command and Data Acquisition Station at Wallops Island is threatened by a Reagan administration plan to sell the nation's weather satellites to private companies.

The plan announced in March could close the isolated station about 10 miles from the Maryland state line and throw its 105 National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration employees out of work.

The administration contends the move could save taxpayer money and reduce government involvement in a field where it believes private enterprise could operate more efficiently. The station's staff disagrees.

"It makes us annoyed when someone says he can do it better," said David Beatty, an engineer responsible for training the station's technical staff.

"We're manned with some dedicated civil service employees. We think we're doing a good job," said station manager Russell R.

Thieves steal donations for critically ill tot

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Jars containing donations for the family of a child in need of a liver transplant have been stolen twice this week from a convenience store, the manager says.

The special donation jar contained money for 8-month-old Ashley Bailey of Clyde, Texas, who was in critical condition late Friday in the intensive care unit of a Fort Worth hospital.

Coy Hanes, manager of Allsup's Convenience Store, said two jars were stolen this week.

"What I think about the thieves would not do to be printed," Hanes said. "They should be strung from the highest tree. That baby needed that money."

"That's pretty low. The jar was nearly full and there were some $5 bills," said Ronnie Middleton, Allsup's area supervisor.

Hanes said store officials are hesitant to place a third jar on the counter because his clerks aren't able to watch it.

"Jars have always been taken from that store," he said. "Whether it's the Jerry Lewis Telethon or whatever, they're always stolen."

Vollmers. The station, and a similar one in Fairbanks, Alaska, keep track of satellites taking pictures of the Earth's cloud cover.

In 1982, Vollmers noted, the station recovered 99.2 percent of the information it was asked to retrieve from its two polar satellites.

The information is relayed to a government computer center in Suitland, Md. From there it goes to the National Weather Service in Washington, which distributes the photographs and weather maps shown on nightly television weather forecasts.

In addition to the polar satellites, which move in a nearly polar orbit 540 miles above the Earth, the Wallops Island station also monitors two geostationary satellites, which stay 22,300 miles above one spot by matching the speed of the Earth's rotation.

These satellites are particularly useful in tracking a tornado or hurricane, Beatty said. While the polar satellites scan a local storm system only once every 12 hours, the geostationary satellites can provide pictures of a specific area every half hour.

The station, with a $4 million annual budget, has operated 24 hours a day, seven days a week, since it opened in 1965. During the Carter administration it had as many as 121 employees, but Reagan budget cuts have reduced the staff.

Although the National Weather Service is the station's prime customer, it also gathers information used by the Departments of Agriculture, Defense, Energy and the Interior.

Industries, universities, state agencies and other countries use data gathered by the satellites.

For example, the satellites can track the Gulf Stream, providing information shipping companies can use to plot their ships' courses, Beatty said.

Companies engaged in mineral or oil exploration pay to have the satellites track data from the companies' ground sensors, he said.

The Wallops Island employees pride themselves on repairing and calibrating their own equipment, making the station a self-sufficient operation.

Spa soaks away aches, pains

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — Lewis Smithwich makes no promises about the curative powers of hot mineral water.

But many people bring their aches and pains to Smithwich's spa in Marlin, there to soak their bones and cares away in a tub of naturally heated mineral water.

People who come to bathe in Marlin share a belief in the water as medicine.

Smithwich believes the mineral baths may boost Marlin's economy as they did in the early 1900s, when Marlin was a health mecca.

"They really believe it works, and they get results," he said. "What it is I don't know. We don't tell anybody it will cure anything."

"People have come in here crippled and walking on two walking sticks, and by the time they leave, they're walking on their own without any help," he said.

"Oh, I could just go on all day telling you case after case like that." Early in the century, Marlin's economy was built around the mystical properties of foul-smelling water that flowed up to the town from a mile down.

During the early 1920s, as many as 200 people a day went through the bathhouse Smithwich now owns, he said.

Bathers afflicted by different diseases came from across the United States in hopes of leaving their aches and pains in the hot mineral water.

Belief in the therapeutic properties of such water dates to the time when early Greek physicians used mineral water extensively in their treatments.

Some historians believe the hot springs of Arkansas were the "fountains of youth" of early American legend.

Marlin residents became part of the mineral water legacy in 1893 — totally by accident, Smithwich said.

"There's an old story — I don't know how true it is — that when they drilled the well they were looking for drinking water for the town," he said. "But when it (the well) blew out it was this bad-tasting water."

"The townspeople were disappointed and just let it run down the steets into the gutter," he said.

"Well, supposedly somebody with a real bad skin condition got to sitting in it (the water) and soaking their feet in it, and it cured them. And that's how they say it all got started."

After the water was discovered, Marlin began to grow rapidly as a resort city. Four sanitariums were soon built, and several hotels sprouted under the rain of tourist money.

The flow of people to Marlin's baths slowed to a trickle, however, as the Depression began to focus people's attention more on their next meals than on their arthritis.

One of Marlin's four bathhouses managed to survive the economic problems of the 1930s and 1940s.

Since that time, Marlin has based its welfare on more than tourism, but has not recovered the boom-town atmosphere of its early days, Smithwich said.

With the proper advertising and restoration, the city's mineral water could again become a major tourist draw, he said.

"It could be better than it ever was — even back in the old days," Smithwich said.

Earlier, the mineral water was enough to entice Conrad Hilton to build his eighth hotel in Marlin. But it went bankrupt in 1934.

Mineral baths brought the New York Giants baseball team, which had its spring training grounds in Marlin during the team's glory years, 1902-1932, when it won the National Baseball League pennant 10 times and the World Series three times.

Smithwich bought the bathhouse and former Hilton Hotel, which sits across the street, in 1968. The wealthy rancher said he sold it in 1977, and recovered it in 1980.

Falls Health Spa now offers male and female customers separate weight rooms and bath facilities. An aerobic dance class is taught at night.

GOP leader fights Democrats, not fellow Republicans

HOUSTON (AP) — George W. Strake Jr. is expected to become chairman of the Texas Republican Party this Saturday. It's a job, he says, that can either end his political career or put him in to the governor's mansion.

"Everybody who has had the job has ended up being chewed up like a piece of raw hamburger," said Strake, a soft spoken, 47-year-old Houston oilman. "It could happen to me."

Strake said that if he survives in the job politically, he'll consider running for governor in 1986.

"I will (run) if the conditions are right," he said. "But if I find somebody better than me, I will work for him or her."

The important thing, he said, is for the Republicans to regain the momentum lost last November when Bill Clements, the first GOP governor in Texas since Reconstruction, was defeated by Democrat Mark White.

It was, said Strake, a severe blow to the century-long efforts to turn Texas into a true two-party state.

Strake was part of the loss — he was a candidate for lieutenant governor and was buried at the polls by Democratic incumbent Bill Hobby.

After the defeat, some Republicans blamed the loss on Chet R. Upham of Mineral Wells, the current state party chairman. There was a movement to put another man at the helm of the GOP organization. Upham agreed to step down, provided Strake was named as his replacement.

Pat Black, executive director of the Harris County Republican Party, said Strake was viewed as a man who could bandage the wounds of the crippled party and pull warring elements together.

And that's what the Houstonian plans to do.

"I want to turn the guns of the Alamo outward, not inward," Strake said.

The targets of those guns are Democrats and Strake's already talking like a political warrior.

White was elected on promises that he can never keep and the state's voters are just beginning to understand that, Strake said.

"White misled the teachers into thinking he can deliver a 24 percent pay raise," said Strake. "He's painted himself into a corner."

If White sticks with the teacher pay raise plan, he will force 564 school districts in the state to hold tax increase referendums, he said.

"Taxpayers aren't ready for that," he said.

Added Strake: "White made so many promises to get elected he is now finding himself unable to live within the limits of the state's revenues. The result, said the Republican, may be new state debts."

"He's saying 'I'll build my political palaces today and let the children pay,'" said Strake. "He's leading us into a New York State-like system (of high debts)."

Strake believes the state and the nation should stick to the Republican principles of fiscal conservatism. But to make that happen, he said, the state's Republicans have got to stick together.

"I've got to try to keep the various factions (within the party) from warring with each other," he said. "If I can, I've got to keep them focused on re-electing Ronald Reagan, George Bush and John Tower. We can't do that by dissipating energy on each other."

Strake's master plan calls for erasing the state party's $160,000 debt, building a block worker program, reorganizing a telephone bank system that Clements used so successfully in 1978 and starting neighbor-to-neighbor drives.

The long political pathway toward the November 1984 elections starts for the Republicans on Friday night with a fund-raising dinner for Sen. John Tower. President Reagan and other Republican notables are expected to attract enough of the party faithful to the $1,000-a-plate function to raise more than a million dollars.

That should be only a part of what Tower will need for his war chest. The four-term senator is expected to face one of the toughest battles of his political career.

"I wouldn't even guess at how much money that campaign will require," said Strake.

A Houston native, Strake comes from a family that has lived here for three generations. His grandfather was in the cotton business and his father made a fortune in oil.

Strake graduated from a private prep school in Houston and then earned a bachelor's degree from Notre Dame and a business degree from Harvard. In between, he served a tour in the Navy.

For more than 20 years he has taken on party jobs, starting with pounding the pavement in neighborhood surveys and then slowly taking on more responsibility.

Along the way, say party regulars, he's managed to get friends in all camps of the sometimes-splintered state organization.

Strake has been married almost 25 years and he and his wife, Annette, have six children — three sons and three daughters.

His family helped him in his unsuccessful race for lieutenant governor and he says they are not eager for another political campaign.

He said that for that reason, they're happy he's to become the state party chairman, a job that has often been the graveyard for political careers.

Said Strake with a grin: "They think it (the chairmanship) might prevent me from getting involved further, which is fine with them."

"Wish List"

Why the need for taxes if the budget leadership has balanced the budget as it claims?

This session the Legislature is writing the budget in a manner different from the past: the first six sections are the traditional appropriations bill which the lawmakers have balanced. But added this year is a seventh section, dubbed the "wish list" section, which contains proposed increases in funding if taxes are raised.

Contained here are the proposals to increase highway construction, prison construction, increase teachers' salaries, increase state employees salaries, fix the state's potholes.

Spending in Section Seven is about $2 billion.

The Senate

The Senate voted to suspend the rules and allow consideration of the controversial horserace wagering bill, but an all-afternoon filibuster by Dallas Republican John Leedom postponed a vote on passage until after the weekend. Leedom read fistful after fistful of anti-horseracing mail while his bored constituents yawned, left to go eat lunch, then returned to give him the temporary victory.

Earlier in the week, the Senate approved measures to:

- Authorize school districts to excuse students of all faiths on holy days but count the students present for state funding purposes.
- Outlaw sport dogfighting for betting or entertainment.
- Allow the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission to order new car dealers and manufacturers to replace "lemon" vehicles or refund the purchase price.

"The Pothole Bill"

Hobby said the proposed "pothole bill" which revises the highway spending formula could provide a legislative vehicle for a fuel tax hike. The Senate can initiate a tax-increase proposal provided the money was intended for a dedicated fund and not for general coffers.

However, the initial reaction of Capitol legal staff was their office would not provide such a loophole.

A gasoline tax is favored by many legislators because its proceeds are split 75-25 between highways and public schools, thus providing an estimated extra $642 million for roads and $214 million

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—In the topsy-turvy world of state politics, taxes, taxes, taxes are hogging the limelight while pretty near blinding any observer trying to closely watch the show.

Early last week, House and Senate budget writers crowded they had finally balanced the state budget at $29 billion with no new taxes, and conservatives in the House (where a tax bill by law must originate) vowed no tax bill would make it out of committee there.

Within four days, following an onslaught on the Capitol of tax hike proponents, most of that same leadership was touting the probability that some form of tax hike will be passed this session.

Governor Mark White, who wants a tax hike to upgrade public education and teachers salaries, announced after an hour-long skull session with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis he expects the trio to reach agreement to raise some state taxes and finance most of the state's spending needs.

Speaker Lewis, who had until last week stood firm against any tax hikes, did not commit publicly to a softening of position, but surprised many by saying he is looking at the options.

Most surprising was Hobby's announcement he may have found a loophole allowing the Senate to initiate an increase in the state gasoline tax which funds highway construction.

His family helped him in his unsuccessful race for lieutenant governor and he says they are not eager for another political campaign.

He said that for that reason, they're happy he's to become the state party chairman, a job that has often been the graveyard for political careers.

Said Strake with a grin: "They think it (the chairmanship) might prevent me from getting involved further, which is fine with them."

Okie-grown cowboy enters world of fiction

MARLOW, Okla. (AP) — He looks like he would be at home on the range. He wears a well-worn cowboy hat, faded blue jeans and dusty boots, and he spends his days in a feed store.

But in the evening, this Oklahoma-grown cowboy leaves the feed store behind him and turns his thoughts to space exploration and the future of mankind. Through his growing library he reads fictional accounts of strange new worlds and lifetimes, and he reads facts and speculation about space exploration and commerce.

Mike Bates, owner of Marlow Seed and Grain, grew up in Addington and attended Waurika High School. He worked on the Price Ranch at Addington, dealing with cattle, hogs, farming, hay and horses. He studied business and agriculture at Oklahoma State University.

"I love horses," Bates said. "If I could figure out a bookholder that would fit on a saddlehorn, I'd love to read while riding."

Paperback books lie in little piles in various parts of his office. Photos of the space shuttle share the walls with the drawing of a bull, customer orders and a Future Farmers of America calendar.

But his reading is only one aspect of his far-flung interests. Get him started talking about space exploration, and he practically radiates excitement.

He's a member of the L-5 Society, which was formed in September 1975 to promote space development in government, industry and private sectors. "I'm a charter member. As far as I know, I'm the only charter member in Oklahoma."

The "L-5" refers to the Lagrange libration point No. 5, which is a point in the moon's orbit around Earth which is stable. In other words, had Skylab been placed there, it would still be there, instead of scattered in pieces across the Australian Outback and Indian Ocean.

"L-5 is a lobbying, education group," Bates said. "If we educate the public more about the space program, they'll put more pressure on our representatives (in Washington). And if we lobby the representatives, it in turn comes back and educates the public. We need people at the top applying pressure, and people at the bottom applying pressure."

"Space is not a Buck Rogers deal. We have never said anything about military use. We feel private industry could pick up the lead and run off and leave NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) behind."

The L-5 Society believes in free enterprise in space, Bates said. "We can get power from space, and knowledge." The space program has resulted in hundreds of improvements in medical science alone, he noted.

Although one might view farming and space activity to be as far apart as the Earth and stars, space research can help the farmer, Bates said. A laboratory in space can come up with new, hybrid seeds without worry of cross-pollination ruining the hybrid, he said.

"It will benefit all of mankind for us to have an active space program," he said. "I'd like to get people interested," he said.

He noted that used book stores in the area have large science fiction sections, which indicates a heavy readership in that genre. "I want them (the readers) up and doing something. If they enjoy what they read, and think it's worthwhile, I'd like to see them do it."

Bates wants to form a local chapter of the L-5 Society, and wants to recruit members for the growing organization. Yearly dues range from $15 for students and $25 for regular members to a life membership for $500.

The dues include a subscription to the monthly "L-5 News," a publication that covers the social, political and economic developments as well as the technical aspects of space industrialization, he said.

Prospective members can join through Bates or by writing to the L-5 Society at 1060 E. Elm, Tucson, Ariz. 85719. The L-5 Society is a non-profit organization, and donations are tax-deductible, he said.

States took in record tax revenues last year, but the rate of increase slowed from previous years. The total was 8.6 percent more than 1981, which had registered a 9.3 percent increase over 1980. The eight states on the map collected more than half the national total. Wyoming had the largest increase, up 62.6 percent, followed by Nevada with 44.7 percent. Hawaii and Oregon showed decreases. Per capita tax revenue ranged from $353 in New Hampshire to $6,316 in Alaska. The national average was $720.

Puts in 16-hour workdays

Lawyer fights death penalty

By CHRISTY DRENNAN
The Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorney Will Gray, a tall, gray-bearded man, sits behind the pine drop-leaf table he uses as a desk and talks about the thing that occupies much of his 16-hour workdays — the death penalty.

On some subjects, especially things personal, Gray is laconic, almost non-communicative. But when the talk turns to the death penalty, he livens, somewhat.

Figuratively speaking, Gray holds in his hands the lives of 30 men. They are men convicted of crimes so heinous that even Gray will not argue the wrongness of their deeds. What he does argue is whether those men were treated fairly in their travels through the court system.

Gray admits that, in filing appeals in death penalty cases, some lawyers believe he is trying to bring the wheels of justice to a grinding halt. But he has an apparently heartfelt belief that the state should not kill people — no matter what.

This week, Gray goes to Washington to argue that belief before the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Thomas Barefoot, convicted of killing a Central Texas police officer in 1978.

Gray won a last-minute stay for Barefoot, 37, who was scheduled to die Jan. 25. The stay was won on grounds that the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals should have considered the issue of new evidence at a hearing separate from the one in which it considered Barefoot's request for a stay of execution.

The Supreme Court decided to consider standards for granting stays of executions to prisoners challenging the legality of their convictions and death sentences. The court is expected to issue a decision by July, when its session ends.

There's a lot riding on the outcome, Gray said.

They may eliminate the procedure we're arguing for or approve what the 5th Circuit did," he says. "If they do that, there'll be a ton of executions. But we're hoping that they'll set down more stringent standards."

Gray has long been an anti-death penalty crusader.

"You could call it a speciality but there ain't much competition. There's no demand. Nobody is out soliciting capital murder cases once the money runs out," he says.

Because many on Death Row are indigent, Gray does the appeals work for nothing.

Gray traces his speciality back to the time that he got his first appointment to a death penalty case in the 1960s.

A black man had killed his common-law wife by strangling her and pouring lye down her throat and turning the gas on and stabbing her a couple of times.

"She lived for about 10 days in horrible pain with her whole insides burned out from that lye. He finally made parole and he's been a perfect citizen since he's been released on parole."

Gray says he was appointed because "he (the judge) didn't think I could do a good job representing the guy. I had just started handling criminal cases at that time. He got the death penalty but I finally got it set aside after about six or seven years" by challenging the jury selection in the case.

The fact that he was appointed to that case irked Gray, who says he wasn't experienced enough to handle a death penalty case. "It was unfair for him (the judge) to appoint me to that case."

Gray is quite candid in his assessment of judges and others in the criminal justice system, to say the least. His criticism comes easily and often. It is, perhaps, one reason that some lawyers who know him label him arrogant.

Gray believes that life imprisonment is severe enough punishment in capital cases.

Gray started out in the civil end of the legal business but soon turned to the criminal, which he finds more challenging. "That civil stuff was just boring. I didn't like it. No challenge. Just adjusting claims."

Criminal law, he says, is a lot of hard work but you can beat the establishment every once in a while.

Gray's me-against-them, anti-establishment attitude is apparent in the advice he once gave a protege, Terrence Gaiser.

It was in the early 1970s after Gaiser had spent some time as an intern with Gray and had decided to stay awhile. On the way to the county criminal courthouse, Gray told Gaiser: "I want you to remember one thing if you don't learn anything else. Everybody in the building we're going to is your enemy and don't ever forget it."

Although Gray spares few words in talking about his work, he reveals little about his personal life.

Gray was born in Palestine, the son of a railroad man. He grew up in Huntsville and wound up at South Texas College of Law, where he was valedictorian of his 1958 class.

He made the second highest grade in the state on his bar examinations in October 1958.

Gray came to Houston in 1945 after serving in the U.S. Corps of Engineers in World War II. Before he went to law school, he operated an import-export business and worked as an insurance claims adjuster during law school.

He lives in Simonton with his wife, Barbara, and a stepdaughter and also has a daughter from a previous marriage. He offices in the Montrose area of Houston and in an old two-story school house next to his home.

Gaiser says the reason Gray likes to keep personal things personal is because of the nature of his work.

"I think when you represent as many people as he does charged with the sorts of things — the more heinous crimes — that you don't want your family and your home invaded by those sorts of things. I think that you have to keep them apart to maintain your sanity, if there's any left."

Gaiser says Gray is without peer in his death penalty appellate work but that some people think that that is his only real legal talent.

"Down at the courthouse people say that Will Gray is a great appellate lawyer but maybe not such a great trial lawyer and I flatly dispute that statement. I think the people that say that about Will are not intelligent enough to know what Will's doing in a courtroom to make that assessment," he said.

Gaiser says Gray is devoted to the appellate work.

"He (Gray) says he can't sleep because of all these death penalty cases. I've heard him say myself that he'll go before any one of his clients goes. He's never lost a client to the death penalty."

"The man is a real humanitarian. He doesn't like to see people picked on. He doesn't like to see the small man picked on, run over, bulldozed," he said.

Famed attorney Percy Foreman says that whenever he thinks of Gray he remembers something Gray is fond of saying — "He boasts of having more clients on death row than all the other lawyers in Texas put together."

"I suppose there's a lot of difference in notoriety and fame," Foreman says. If I had one (a client on death row), I'd try to avoid anyone knowing about it," he said.

State District Judge Miron Love sees Gray as a "very careful attorney who will not abandon his client's rights on any issue. That's the kind of lawyer the trial court wants, someone who's going to protect his client's rights and interests. You certainly don't want to execute anyone without a very careful examination of all the facts and proper application of the laws."

Gray's feeling about how other people see him is summed up in a few words: "I don't care."

Transplant needed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Doctors at Cook Childrens Hospital here issued a nationwide appeal for an infant's liver needed to save the life on an 8-month-old girl suffering from a rare congenital defect.

Ashley Bailey's condition worsened Thursday as doctors moved her to the top of the waiting list for transplant recipients, doctors said.

"The reason we recommended her for a transplant is because there are no other options," said Dr. Lyn Hunt.

"Without a transplant, her chances are very, very poor."

Her mother, Annette Bailey, said she believed a transplant would be coming soon. "I can't wait," Ms. Bailey said. "I've never seen Ashley looking like a regular baby. She's always been so yellow and skinny."

The child, who is in critical condition at Cook Childrens Hospital, will be taken to Childrens Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa., if a liver from another infant who had the same blood type — A-positive — is found, said Dr. Hunt.

High-tech school program announced

AUSTIN (AP) — A "high-tech" high school program of advanced mathematics and computer science courses that has just been funded in Bexar County will be repeated elsewhere in the state, Gov. Mark White says.

White was joined at his Thursday news conference by San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros to announce the state-funded project, which will be part of a $490,000 program.

School districts could not have afforded the program on their own, said Cisneros.

"The full potential of our Texas talent is what will be reaped from this," he said.

White has spent much of his first 100 days in office, marked at the news conference Thursday, touting high-technology training as a long-term solution to present budget woes.

Texas budget shortfall may be debated by the House as early as next week when the general appropriations bill comes to the floor. White said he may have a "message" for lawmakers on the issue of taxes by then.

White has suggested raising "luxury" taxes on liquor, cigarettes and amusement games to pay for a 24 percent teacher pay raise. He recently said doubling the state's five-cent gasoline tax might be offered in the form of a proposed constitutional amendment as an alternative to slashing highway funds.

House leaders have maintained that the state can write a budget without a tax increase. The bill approved by the House Appropriations Committee would not necessitate a tax hike, but leaves teachers and highways with the nominal increases they would have gotten anyway, not the big boosts they sought.

"The needs are great and the time is now," White told reporters.

White said he might go so far as to call a joint session of the Legislature to try to convince lawmakers to adopt his tax increase proposals.

He said his staff is still working on other tax increase alternatives, saying the only tax he had ruled out was a state income tax.

"I am persuaded that our sin taxes, our luxury tax, will go a long way toward providing the needed education funds," White said. "We may need to find more sin to tax."

Fresh artichokes will squeak when rubbed against another one.

Lubbock youth testifies in behalf of religious groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 17-year-old Lubbock, Texas, high school senior told Congress that a federal court decision last year banning voluntary, student-initiated religious activity in her school district has had a bad impact on her classmates.

Bonnie Bailey, who attends Monterey High School, argued that students are taught that the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech for all citizens, including students, but apparently religious speech is not protected.

"We are allowed to picket, demonstrate, protest, curse and take God's name in vain, but we can't voluntarily get together and talk about God," Bailey told the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"We all make decisions," she continued. "I can decide if I want an abortion or if I want to use contraceptives, but I can't decide if I want to come to a meeting to talk about religious matters before or after school and to me this just isn't fair."

Bailey and six other students, all of whom related incidents in their schools where religious meetings were banned, testified on legislation designed to prohibit discrimination against religious groups in the use of school facilities.

The legislation was introduced by Sens. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore. and Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala. A similar bill is pending in the House.

The proposed legislation would make it unlawful to deny equal access to students in public schools who wish to meet voluntarily for religious purposes.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which has brought most of the law suits against permitting religious groups to meet in public schools, told the committee there is no need for federal legislation "because the lower federal courts have been properly interpreting the Constitution, and Supreme Court precedent, in the cases that have already been decided."

"The pending legislation is unnecessary because if a school does adopt and implement a truly open forum policy, then a party denied access for any purpose — religious or otherwise — already has sufficient legal remedies available," the ACLU said.

The committee will hold hearings today and Monday on a Constitutional amendment allowing for voluntary prayer in schools.

Education Secretary T. H. Bell said the Reagan Administration supports the equal access bill and the proposed Constitutional amendment on school prayer.

Bell said the equal access legislation "would merely put voluntary religious activity on an equal footing with other extracurricular activities permitted on public school premises."

"If that appears 'dramatic' it is only because we have drifted so far from the standards of liberty established by the founders," he said. "If a public school allows students to meet before or after school to discuss or engage in politics, social activism or athletics, why should the rule change just because the students happen to be religious?"

"The present policy which the president is committed to reforming, institutionalizes invidious discrimination and second class treatment for one part of this nation's children," said Bell. "That is wrong."

The other students who testified were Lisa Bender, Williamsport, Pa., Stuart Kennedy, College Park, Ga., Sara Scanlon, Sonoma, Calif., Peter Eagan, Seattle, Wash., and Bill Kidd and Judie Jankowski, St. Paul, Minn.

The State of Hawaii creeps toward Japan about four inches a year, which is four times the rate of the North American continental drift.

The Consumer Alert

by Jim Mattox
Attorney General

AUSTIN—The Texas market has been flooded recently with retail jewelry advertising promising enormous savings to the public. Unfortunately, some of these claims have not been substantiated by the advertisers.

Some of the typical claims that may be misleading are:

1. Sales that never seem to end. If it is not one sale, it is another. There are the End of the Year Sales, New Year Sales, Inventory Clearance Sales, and New Inventory Sales. When there is continually a "sale" price, it may not be true sale but the regular price at which the jewelry is usually sold. As a consumer, if you do not see a beginning and an ending date in the advertisement, it may not be a true sale.

2. Comparisons to regular prices that have not been in effect. This may go hand-in-hand with the never-ending sale. A "regular price" should be the price the merchandise actually sold for before the sale price went into effect and should have been in effect for a reasonably substantial period of time. As a consumer, you may want to ask the jewelry advertiser when the regular price was in effect and when the merchandise will be back to the regular price.

3. Reference to list prices that have not been in general use. Many times jewelry advertisers, as well as many other advertisers, put in their advertising a list price and then their price. The implication to you, the consumer, is that there is an actual savings from what the manufacturer suggests. You should realize that a list price, particularly in the jewelry industry, is sometimes a useless price. The manufacturer can set any arbitrary amount as the price that he would like to get for the jewelry, but if the price is too high for the particular market, the list price may in effect be a "wish price" for the manufacturer. Sometimes the jewelry advertiser says "list price" is the price that the same jewelry is sold for through other dealers in the area. You should be skeptical when seeing a list price and ask your jeweler for substantiation of their claim before you buy.

4. Claims to be able to sell at wholesale instead of retail. Many jewelry advertisers are saying in their advertising that they sell "wholesale to the public". You should be aware that if jewelry is being sold to the general public, by definition it is retail rather than wholesale.

As a careful shopper you should always do comparison shopping on jewelry, just as you do on larger items such as appliances and automobiles. You should be aware that jewelry prices vary greatly from store to store and with the fluctuation in gold and silver prices. When you are interested in jewelry for which you have seen advertising, don't be afraid to ask for detailed substantiation on the advertisement. A reputable dealer will be glad to substantiate and have backup material readily available.

Also you can check with your local Better Business Bureau for reputability information on any company you are interested in doing business with.

If you have an advertising complaint you can also contact the nearest Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office to request assistance in making a complaint.

Gondolas once glided along the canals of Venice in colorful trappings as nobles vied in display. But edicts in 1562 decreed: "Henceforth one color for all." To this day, the craft remain unadorned, hulls painted black.

Picante sauce makers pepper competition

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — To liven up their already sizzling blend of jalapenos, tomatoes and onions, hot sauce makers in this city have been tossing in another spicy ingredient — lawsuits.

The competition in San Antonio's lucrative picante sauce market has been liberally peppered with litigation and, along with the companies' legal fees, demand for the eye-watering, mouth-parching product is growing.

Texans just plain like hot sauce — slathered on most everything — and the rest of the country seems to be catching on.

"Down here, it's always been used like salt and pepper," said Kit Goldsbury, president of Pace Picante Inc. "Now, a lot of people are making it part of their daily diet."

Goldsbury has presided over much of the family-operated company's expansion, which mirrors the boom in the $350 million Mexican food business.

Mexican sauces rake in about $135 million annually and Pace makes the nation's best-selling sauce, even though it concentrates its efforts mostly in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arizona and Colorado.

Pace is moving to a new manufacturing complex from its current cramped facilities, where the sauce's pungent smell of success permeates even the business offices.

That aroma of success, the company's lawsuits say, has drawn imitators.

Larry Amstutz and Brian Loranger left Pace about 1½ years ago to form Sauces Unlimited Inc., which manufactures a generic-labeled picante sauce marketed in a three-state area.

Amstutz and Loranger had been mixing their sauce for less than a year when Pace obtained a temporary injunction, contending the pair pirated the Pace recipe.

Sauces Unlimited filed a counterclaim charging Pace with antitrust violations.

A jury acquitted Sauces of the pirating charges, but Pace's appeal still is pending before the 4th Court of Civil Appeals here. Sauces Unlimited's suit is pending in federal court.

Both Amstutz and Goldsbury refused to discuss the litigation in any detail.

Asked about the supposed similarities in sauces, Goldsbury answered only, "Just taste it."

Amstutz limited his comments to "Pace is a fine company and makes a fine product." He said his split with Pace was amicable.

Pace filed suit against another local sauce maker in 1981, contending Jimenez Food Products Inc. imitated the bottles and label shape used by Pace.

Jimenez turned around and filed an antitrust violations lawsuit against Pace.

Jimenez agreed to change its bottles in an out-of-court settlement in April, and lawyers said the company would drop its countersuit against Pace in exchange for an undetermined amount of cash.

Now the South Texas sauce makers face heated competition from a new source — national companies with virtually bottomless bank accounts, mammoth marketing campaigns and a thirst for a chunk of the picante profits.

Campbell Soup Co. and Chesebrough-Ponds have jumped into the Mexican sauce business in the past several months, with Campbells pushing La Especial and Chesebrough-Ponds, Montero.

"We've got our hands full just keeping track of the competition," said Rod Sands, Pace's vice president of marketing. He said 67 brands of Mexican sauces currently are on the market.

"We've got an advantage being headquartered in San Antonio," Sands said. "We know what good picante sauce ought to taste like."

Ag Dept. considers reducing cheese program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is considering a cutback on donations of surplus cheese to needy people in order to prevent undue competition with commercial sales.

Gene Hemphill, as spokesman for Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, said Tuesday that donated cheese began cutting into the commercial market in January and February.

"It's no big displacement," Hemphill said. "What they're talking about now with the commercial people are early-warning signs." President Reagan on Dec. 22, 1981, announced that surplus cheese would be donated to charitable institutions for donation to needy people.

The cheese, along with surplus butter and non-fat dry milk, is bought by the Agriculture Department to help prop up the price paid to farmers for their milk.

In all, the milk supports have been costing taxpayers around $2 billion a year.

"It doesn't make a whole lot of sense to displace commercial products, because every pound you displace is another pound the government's got to buy to keep the price up," Hemphill said.

Also, the USDA has initiated an experiment to see if government-owned natural cheddar can successfully be used in the give-away program as well as processed American cheese.

In Albany, N.Y., on Tuesday, State Assemblywoman Rhoda Jacobs, D-Brooklyn, said that USDA will begin sending some cheddar to New York state to offset shortages of processed American cheese.

According to USDA officials, who asked not to be identified by name, the experiment will involve other states as well as New York to help ease the backlog of requests for donated cheese.

The department's Commodity Credit Corp. owns surplus cheddar as well as processed American cheese. Overall, the cheese cost the agency around $1.40 per pound.

Normally, the cheddar is processed into American before it is repackaged and ready for donations. Stocks of American cheese are normally in 500-pound barrels, and that cheese also must be reprocessed for donation.

One official said that plans are to put some of the block cheddar up for bids so it can be into small packages weighing one, two and five pounds — which will then be distributed beginning in May for donation.

Processed American cheese can be a blend of several cheeses, including cheddar. Emulsifiers are added to keep the fats and oils from separating, then the mixture is cooked, pasteurized and, in a semi-liquid state, is molded into the shapes and sizes desired.

Although both cheddar and processed American have good shelf lives, the latter can stay fresh longer when properly wrapped and stored.

The government owned 758 million pounds of "uncommitted" cheese as of April 8, which included 238 million pounds of cheddar in 40-pound blocks.

Processors have been handling about 35 million pounds of the surplus cheese a month, although sometimes the pipeline runs as high as 50 million a month.

As of March 31, some 222 million pounds of surplus cheese had been shipped to states for distribution since Reagan announced the donations more than 16 months ago.

But the backlog also has risen, totaling 401 million pounds in requests for cheese as of April 22, the officials said.

FARM NEWS

PIK payments will dominate farm income

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows that federal payment-in-kind benefits will comprise a major portion of farmers' income in 1983.

Under the PIK program, farmers can get free surplus quantities of wheat, corn, sorghum, rice and cotton in return for taking cropland from production this year.

In all, producers have signed up to idle a record 82.3 million acres as part of the Reagan administration's strategy for reducing burdensome surpluses and boost market prices.

Although most of the benefits are expected to be felt in 1984, department economists say that PIK also may determine whether net farm income rises modestly from the depressed levels of the last few years.

One of the major effects of PIK will be to reduce farm production expenses — the less land in crops, less seed, fertilizer and fuel will be needed.

A new report by the department's Economic Research Service examines the various components that go into the national farm income balance sheet.

Cash receipts from the actual sale of crops and livestock are expected to decline this year to a range of $134 billion to $138 billion from $144 billion in 1982. Most, perhaps all, of the decline is expected in crop receipts.

Although cash receipts are the major sources of gross farm income, there are others. Here they are as listed in the report:

—Cash government payments are expected to be $4 billion to $5 billion, up from $3.5 billion in 1982. Those include deficiency payments under the target price formula, plus other federal payments for paid diversion of cropland from production, and payments for grain storage and conservation.

—The value of PIK commodities given to eligible farmers is projected at $4 billion to $6 billion in 1983. None was available last year. The PIK value is based on the government's price support loan rate.

—Other cash income from custom work, machine hire and farm recreational activities is expected to be $1.5 billion to $2.5 billion, compared to $2.1 billion last year.

—Total cash income from all sources is forecast at $145 billion to $149 billion, down from $149.6 billion in 1982.

In addition to cash income, USDA economists include "non-money" income, which is the value of home consumption of farm products and the rental value of farm dwellings.

This year, the report said, non-money income may be $15 billion to $17 billion, compared to $15 billion in 1982.

Adding it all up, farmers are expected to have a "realized gross" income of $161 billion to $165 billion in 1983, not much different from a gross of $164.6 billion last year.

But 1983 expenses are expected to decline to $139 billion to $143 billion from $144.4 billion in 1982.

That would mean a "realized net" income of about $22 billion in 1983. To play it safe, the report says net income could range between $20 billion and $24 billion, compared to $20.2 billion in 1982.

Gary Lucier, who wrote the report, said Thursday that the actual value of the PIK commodities received by farmers is expected to be higher than the $4 billion to $6 billion cited in the income sheet.

Eventually, he said, the PIK commodities will be sold or fed to livestock, mostly in 1983 — although some may be held until next year. The actual value, because of expected higher prices, would be in the range of $7 billion to $9 billion.

Livestock cash receipts are projected at $68 billion to $72 billion this year, comparable to the $69.3 billion shown for 1982, the report said.

"Much of PIK's impact on livestock receipts ... will occur after 1983," the report said. "The forecast of livestock cash receipts has declined over $1 billion since the advent of PIK, mostly because pork production will be larger than forecast earlier."

FmHA credit flowing again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John Block says the Farmers Home Administration has farm operating credit flowing again to producers in every state with a $200 million reserve to avert future shortages.

"We are moving money to all of the states," Block told the House Appropriations agriculture subcommittee on Thursday.

Undersecretary Frank Naylor, who oversees FmHA operations in the Agriculture Department, also said that the number of farmers leaving agriculture this year is running behind the level of last year when severely depressed farm prices gave rise to increasing numbers of farm foreclosures and liquidations.

Naylor, however, did not provide specific statistics on that issue.

Earlier this month, the subcommittee endorsed an emergency credit appropriation of $600 million to the FmHA in an effort to provide needed planting-season credit to farmers in 20 states, where federal farm credit funds had already been used up.

But Block headed off the need for that bill by shifting $400 million from other agency programs so that farmers in the affected states could again obtain operating capital.

Block said $200 million of that amount is being held in reserve to make sure no other states run dry of FmHA credit in the coming months.

FmHA, serving about 12 percent of all farm borrowers, provides credit to the highest risk producers who can no longer qualify for commercial loans.

Young heroes win awards

HOUSTON (AP) — An 11-year-old boy and his younger sister have been hailed as heroes for saving the life of their father after his arm was badly mangled in a farming accident.

For their quick action, Chris and Amy Wilhite received the 1983 Rural Heroism Award of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council.

The children's father, Steve Wilhite, 30, was working with a hay baler on his 160-acre dairy farm near Saltillo in northeast Texas last June when he slipped, pinning his right arm in the baler rollers.

Wilhite screamed for help, and his children came running from a nearby lake. Chris shut off the tractor's power and lifted the tailgate of the baler, allowing his father to remove the severely mangled arm.

Although he had driven only in pastures, Chris drove the family pickup truck on the highway at 75 mph. Amy, 10, kept her father awake to shift gears for the eight-mile drive to the Franklin County Hospital at Mount Vernon.

Chris said his thought was "to get daddy to the hospital." Amy's primary interest was "keeping daddy alive."

Hospital officials determined that the only chance Wilhite had to save his arm would be at Dallas Parkland Hospital. Wilhite was transferred by helicopter within 38 minutes with his arm packed in ice.

Doctors at Parkland, however, decided Wilhite's arm could not be saved because the bone had been twisted beyond repair.

Other nominees for the award were Mrs. Paul Fox of Desdemona and John Henshall of Beeville.

The awards were presented Monday at the annual meeting of the Texas-Southwestern Safety Conference and Exposition here.

The motto of the state of Idaho, "Esto Perpetua," means "Let It Be Forever."

Rare dry April leaves some crops stunted

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — An unusually dry April has left young crops stunted in Central and South Texas, and pastures and ranges in many areas are deteriorating rapidly, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Farmers in the Rio Grande Valley and Southwest Texas are irrigating young crops, but in dryland areas the dry weather has limited crop growth, Carpenter said in his weekly report on Texas agriculture. Recent high winds have also damaged some young crops, said Carpenter.

Cotton planting continues in Central and East Texas, and Pima cotton is being planted in Far West Texas. South Plains farmers are gearing up to start planting cotton while farmers in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas will be planting later in a unified effort to battle boll weevils.

Grain sorghum planting is active in West Central Texas, and corn is being planted in the Panhandle and South Plains. A little rice is still being planted in coastal areas; recent cool nights have stunted some young rice, Carpenter said.

Soil temperatures still remain cool in some locations. Temperatures at the 4-inch depth as reported by the Agricultural Weather Service Center at College Station were as follows for the past week: Big Spring, 72 degrees F.; Bushland, 56; Haskell, 72; Lavon Dam (near Dallas), 60; Longview, 68; Lubbock, 63; Pecos, 64; San Angelo, 71; Stephenville, 70; Vernon, 47; and Waco, 62. Onion harvesting continues in full swing in the Rio Grande Valley, but the citrus harvest remains sluggish due to poor prices. Carrots and spinach continue to move to market in the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas.

Although cattle are getting good grazing from small grains, clovers and ryegrass, grass on pastures and ranges is short in most sections. Some producers have resumed supplemental feeding, noted Carpenter. Stock water is also getting short in some locations.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Farmers are planting corn but are generally through planting sugar beets. Onions and potatoes are starting to make good growth and the wheat crop remains in good shape. Cattle generally are in good condition and making good gains on wheat.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn planting is up to 65 percent complete. Farmers have finished planting sugar beets, onions and potatoes and are gearing up to start planting cotton. Preplant irrigation is under way in some locations. Some farmers are plowing up wheat in PIK.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cropland preparations continue along with the first cutting of alfalfa. Much of the wheat acreage in PIK is being grazed out or harvested for hay. Livestock are making good gains on wheat, and ranges continue to look good.

NORTH CENTRAL: Corn

stands are adequate while some grain sorghum and cotton planting continues. Wheat and oats look good, with some rust disease in wheat. Peach trees have set a good crop. Cattle conditions are improving but pastures and ranges need rain for continued grass growth.

NORTHEAST: Farmers are planting cotton and grain sorghum. Corn is up but will need rain soon along with pastures. Wheat and oats are heading, with stripe rust increasing in wheat. Recent cool weather continues to hamper pastures and gardens.

FAR WEST: Grain sorghum planting is complete, and farmers are now planting Pima cotton. Onions are making good growth with warmer weather. Range conditions continue to deteriorate due to the dry weather although most livestock remain in good shape.

WEST CENTRAL: Grain sorghum planting is active. Recent high winds have depleted soil moisture, with small grains and ranges needing rain. Wheat and oats are heading. Some cattle are still being fed. Early lambs are moving to market; this year's lamb crop was down due to poor range conditions during the breeding season last fall.

CENTRAL: Cotton planting continues active. Young corn and grain sorghum need rain along with pastures and ranges. Wheat is in full bloom, with rust disease a problem in some fields. Cattle are getting good grazing on wheat; horn flies are increasing.

EAST: A little corn and grain sorghum are still being planted and cotton planting is active. Most young crops, small grains and pastures need rain. Cattle are getting good grazing from clovers and ryegrass. Recent cool weather has slowed pastures and vegetable crops.

UPPER COAST: Most rice has been planted, with early fields being flushed. Recent cool nights have stunted some rice. Young corn, grain sorghum and cotton need warmer weather and will need rain soon in some areas. Most cattle are in good shape and have adequate grazing although pastures could use some rain.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Cotton planting continues in full swing. Young corn and grain sorghum need rain; some fields were damaged by recent high winds. Recent cool weather has slowed the growth of young crops and pastures. Most pastures and ranges need rain.

SOUTHWEST: Dry conditions and high winds are plaguing young crops and ranges. Farmers in irrigated areas are watering crops heavily. Spinach and carrot harvesting continues active along with baling of wheat in PIK. Early peaches are being harvested and onion harvesting will start soon. Forage and stock water are short.

COASTAL BEND: Young crops are making poor growth and need rain badly. A little rice is still being planted. Pastures and ranges are drying rapidly and need rain. Some ranchers have started feeding cattle due to lack of grazing.

SOUTH: Young crops are making good progress, with irrigation active. Some grain sorghum is booting. Onion harvesting remains in full swing while carrots are in light volume. About 24 percent of the grapefruit and 40 percent of the late oranges remain to be harvested; growers are irrigating citrus groves for the coming crop.

Skin is the body's largest organ, weighing an average of five-and-one-half pounds.

The new "Payment in Kind" program to cut farm surpluses and raise farm incomes is a bigger success than Washington anticipated — more than twice as big. Instead of committing 30 million acres to remaining fallow as expected, farmers signed up 69.1 million under PIK. With another 13.2 million idled under other acreage reduction programs, the total of 82.3 million acres is 36 percent of the 230 million acres eligible. Under PIK, farmers participating receive products from stored government surpluses equivalent to replace what they would have grown on the idled land.

Wheat Field Day set for May 26

The annual Wheat Field Day at the USDA research lab at Bushland will be May 26 starting at 1 p.m., according to Dr. Paul Unger, acting director of the lab.

In addition to observing the small grain plots, visitors will be shown research projects on cropping systems, weed control, irrigation, limited tillage, and wind energy. Also, the latest methods of spray application will be discussed.

Speakers at the four stops will be Dr. Frank Petr, Extension agronomist; and Dr. David Worrall and Gary Peterson, researchers from Vernon and Bushland Texas Agriculture Experiment Stations.

Clements claims White will pay for deceiving

By GARTH JONES AP Political Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Bill Clements says Gov. Mark White has deceived the people of Texas "and he'll pay the price for that."

"I think he has lost his credibility," said the former Republican governor in his first interview since leaving office.

"When is he telling the truth? Does he really want more taxes or does he not want taxes?"

"I don't think the people of Texas believe him, one way or the other."

Clements, a 65-year-old multi-millionaire, upset all political speculation in 1978 when he became the state's first GOP governor this century, but then was upset himself in 1982 by Democrat White.

Now, the outspoken former oilfield roughneck is recuperating from hip joint surgery that eased the pain of a 16-year-old handball game injury which caused him to limp in recent years.

"I feel real good," he says and proudly tells of walking almost three miles every morning, with the occasional aid of a cane. He spends the afternoon in his Dallas office at SEDCO, the worldwide drilling firm he founded in 1947.

There is only one item in his office to remind him of four tumultuous years in Austin — a bronze plaque of the Texas governor seal on one wall. But he still keeps a close eye on Austin and Washington — and does not hesitate to comment in his usual no-holds-barred manner.

"I am not a bit surprised at the (White) administration's start. They're doing about what I thought they would

Clements recalled White's campaign promises of a 24 percent pay raise for schoolteachers and an elected Public Utility Commission.

"They're not going to fly. I think everyone else who had any knowledge of the Legislature and the general scene in Austin realized they wouldn't," Clements said.

"So, he deceived the Texas public, the Texas taxpayers, the Texas voters and he'll pay the price for that."

Clements also recalled that in his own "state-of-the-state" message to the Legislature, just before leaving office, he urged that the state's 1984-85 budget be "cut to a pattern to fit the cloth."

"I think it is incumbent upon our state government to live within our means and to acknowledge that a revenue increase of approximately 12 percent over the past two years is sufficient, and make it be enough.

"I don't think the public understands we do indeed have 12 percent more money for his (White's) budget than we did the last time around." What would Clements do if still in the governor's chair?

"I would veto any kind of a budget that exceeded that 12 percent revenue. We do not need any new taxes."

Clements said he is puzzled, like others, about White's various statements on taxes. "I suppose he's lying about that like he has a lot of other things," Clements said, and chuckled.

"He gives off the noises that 'Yes, we do want new taxes' and in his words we are going to have 'sin taxes,' more tax on gasoline, an increased tax on oil and gas severance in order to raise additional funds so that he could pay the teachers a 24 percent salary increase and so forth. Which story is correct?"

"Does he really want more taxes or does he not want more taxes?" Clements has some definite predictions of how the budget-taxes controversy will end.

"Just from where I sit and from listening to a lot of people I'm of the opinion there will no new taxes in Texas," he said.

"I don't think it is going to happen."

Furthermore, he said: "If I had to render a judgment, I'd say they (the Legislature) will get their business done in the regular session and the governor will not call a special session, because he knows it would not accomplish anything."

Before leaving office in January, Clements told a group of reporters that his main political aim of the future would be to make White a one-term governor.

"Right now, he doesn't need much help," Clements said in an interview during the past week in his Dallas office. "He's doing a good job of being a one-term governor."

Clements made it clear he would not personally oppose White in 1986.

"I won't run for public office again," he said. "I want to clear the air so far as that."

"So far as helping an opponent (to White), I certainly will help," Clements said. "We have a governor who was elected primarily by a coalition of minorities. I think the people of Texas are already manifesting their unhappiness, a lack of empathy with this present administration."

"I would suggest that Mark White ought to just keep on doing what he's been doing if he wants to be a one-termer."

And Clements said he, and his wife, Rita, definitely will have a part in the 1984 GOP presidential campaign in Texas. He was President Ronald Reagan's state campaign chairman in 1980.

"I expect President Reagan to run again. He has not personally told me that, but that is my judgment," Clements said.

He thinks Texas will be a key state and maybe the most important state in the 1984 general election.

"The Democrats realize they have never won the presidency in modern times without carrying Texas. By the same token, I don't believe that Reagan can get re-elected if he doesn't carry Texas."

"Here are the two opposing forces — Reagan feeling like he is going to have to carry Texas, and the Democrats know they are going to have to carry Texas or they can't win the presidency."

"So Texas is going to become a real battlefield in the 1984 presidential election. I am going to do everything I can to help President Reagan carry the state."

Clements has been serving on the president's special commission to study the strategic forces of the United States, resulting in about a dozen trips to Washington.

However, he has no plans or wishes to return to Washington permanently, where he was deputy secretary of defense under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

"I'll be happy to help when I can make a contribution but so far as taking on a full-time job up there in the cabinet or something of that kind, I have no ambitions in that direction," he said.

Although he spent many long days involved in SEDCO's operations in the past, Clements hopes to limit his office hours to half a day. He remains chairman of the board and will sit in on policy decisions, but others will make the day-to-day operations, he said.

He points proudly at SEDCO's headquarters, actually a beautifully restored brick school building, one of Dallas' first.

Some time in the future the building will become the home of the Clements Foundation. His prized collection of more than 6,000 books and other items of Texana, along with the papers from his gubernatorial administration, will be available to writers and researchers.

"But that's off in the future," he says, obviously enjoying his more leisurely life since leaving the stress of the governor's office.

"In due course I will go through them (his papers) but that is not a high item on my agenda and it doesn't really carry any priority with me."

Small town mayor breathing new life into Georgia community

WILLACOOCHEE, Ga. (AP) — Mayor Lace Futch thinks the trouble with big-city mayors is that they don't drive pickup trucks with a fishing pole and cooler of beer in the back.

"A man does his best thinking when he's fishing and drinking beer," Futch said as he sipped a beer and leaned against his pickup truck. "I know I do. But I've been so busy, I haven't had much time for fishing."

Since his election in 1978, the 45-year-old former meat-cutter has been busy getting money from the federal and state governments to breathe new life into this south

Georgia town of 1,600 residents.

"Willacoochee was dying when I took office," Futch said. "It was just like a lot of small towns in the South where the mayor is usually some retired person who comes to city hall every Friday just to sign checks. But we've turned things around."

When he took office, Willacoochee had assets of only $150,000. Since then, they've grown to $2 million, including a new library, fire department, a beefed-up police department, a senior citizens center and a 17-acre recreation park.

"It took a lot of damn hard work and a lot of politicking," Futch said, frequently interrupting his comments to greet voters or ask them whether the fish in the Alapha River were biting.

It doesn't stop there. The town has just taken bids for a new $280,000 water system, and the mayor's drawing board includes plans for a new $1 million school.

He recently completed a major project — getting a doctor for Willacoochee. Now, he doesn't rule out a medical center for the town.

More than half of Willacoochee's $558,323 annual budget consists of grant money from the federal government, the primary fuel for Futch's fire.

"The resources are there," he said. "You've just got to know where to look. And you can't take 'no' for an answer. The federal bureaucrats hate to see me coming, because I give them hell."

Part of Futch's problem with the federal government has been the "bunch of incompetent Northern college students" the government sent to take Willacoochee's census.

They counted 1,100 people, so Futch got former postmistress Hazel Shellhouse to write down the name of everyone who lives in Willacoochee. Her list, compiled in alphabetical order by memory, totaled 1,600.

As a result, Futch sued the Census Bureau and said a recount is possible. "That'll qualify us for more grant money," the mayor said. "And now, they know how to spell Willacoochee."

Futch believes the federal government has a bias against small towns.

"They pay too much attention to the big cities. We have to scratch and fight for every dime we get. They don't," he said. "They just holler and get about all they want because that's where the votes are. I don't have anything against big cities, but the government is wasting money on them. They don't get the results we do."

Farm Bureau to fight taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Farm Bureau Federation says it is prepared to wage an all-out effort to head off proposals in Congress that would raise taxes or postpone scheduled tax breaks.

Robert B. Delano, president of the federation, said he delivered that message Wednesday at a White House meeting with presidential adviser Edwin Meese.

Federal workers move away

ANTHONY, Texas (AP) — Federal housing board directors have decided they should move away from a new mayor here, so they moved their office to New Mexico — two blocks away.

Anthony, just north of El Paso, straddles the state line and has two sets of town governments, one in Texas and one in New Mexico.

Mayor Adrian Baca swept control of the Texas town council three weeks ago and the federal housing board approved the move less than a week later. Two of the board's directors had run unsuccessful Town Council campaigns against Baca-backed candidates.

Baca "is very strong-willed about having control over everything that happens in this town" and intended to take credit for the federal programs, said board president August LaVora.

Baca said he has contacted officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to challenge the legality of the housing authority move.

HUD spokesman Mark Pihelke of Fort Worth said Wednesday LaVora was told informally that the move is legal.

"We don't want to get involved in the little political situation of that city," he said.

Pihelke said HUD's priority is "getting the job done." The move "may interrupt the working relationship between the mayor and the board, but not between HUD and the board," he said.

Baca called the move a "political vendetta" in retaliation for his ticket's sweep of the April 2 town elections.

China may have record wheat crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — China is headed for a record wheat harvest of about 65.9 million metric tons this year, up 5 percent from the 1982 harvest, according to an Agriculture Department report.

The estimate was forwarded by the U.S. agricultural counselor in Peking, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday.

A 4 percent increase in acreage is the main reason for the record harvest estimate, the report said.

Rainfall in March and early April have been near normal in much of the North China plain, with "somewhat drier" conditions reported in wheat areas north of Peking.

"Satellite data analyses has shown reservoir levels and irrigation supplies to be at or above last year's levels," the report said.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat.

The record U.S. wheat harvest last year, for comparison, was 76.4 million metric tons, or about 2.8 billion bushels.

Melvin, Texas shaken by bank fraud, scandal

EDITOR'S NOTE: As a devotee of the good life, Orrin Shaid Jr. shared a $400,000 East Texas lake home with his attractive blonde girlfriend and spent freely on boats, airplanes and luxury cars. He was big and flamboyant and, says the FBI, just a little crooked.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
MELVIN, Texas (AP) — Many of Melvin's 205 residents remember the tall, good-looking blonde in the sleek limo and recall the big, wavy-haired guy behind the wheel.

Some knew Lynn Carruth Maree as the absentee owner of the Ranchlander National Bank, and a few assumed the big guy was her chauffeur. They were wrong on both counts.

The townspeople also remember a bank official named Jean Moon and a few even recall her boss, the bank president, Roger Pipkin Jr.

But mostly they remember the men in the three-piece suits who showed up one day and closed down the Ranchlander bank.

The men were federal bank examiners and the date was Nov. 19, 1982.

So began another episode of Texas bank fraud and financial intrigue, one laced with scandal and suicide and a plot not unlike a prime time television soap.

From this tiny southwest Texas hamlet, the investigation spread across the state and into the phantom financial empire of a high-rolling, big-spending East Texan named Orrin Shaid Jr. FBI agents needed no introduction. A decade ago, federal prosecutors sent him to prison.

For bank embezzlement.

No one knows for certain how Orrin Shaid even found Melvin, a quietly crumbling little village in sheep and goat country a mile off Texas 87 between San Angelo and San Antonio.

Bypassed by the highway and with rail service ended, Melvin today is a grocery store, a feed store, a welding shop, two service stations, a post office, a flood of memories and, up on the highway, a bank manned by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"We used to have a pretty nice town here," recalled Mrs. Raymond Cook, whose husband runs the welding shop.

"That was a long time ago when Melvin was on the map. We had an undertaker's office, a drug store, a hotel, a picture show, a Piggly Wiggly, two or three cafes and a barber shop."

Leaning on a pump outside his Gulf station, Walter Wilkerson recalled the days of lumberyards and cotton gins and said: "On Saturday, you couldn't hardly find a parking place here. People would come to town from the farms."

Thus, the closing of the Ranchlander National Bank, while unsettling, was merely one in a series of economic disasters that has reduced Melvin's population from a high of perhaps 1,000 to 205.

"Losing the school affected us worse than losing the bank," said Wilkerson, referring to the incorporation of the town's school system by the Brady school district.

At any rate, Melvin was on the ropes long before Orrin Shaid and Lynn Carruth Maree rolled into town in mid-1981 and bought the Ranchlander bank from Brady businessman Doyle Todd.

Presumably to avoid questions about Shaid's checkered banking career, Ms. Maree was shown to be the owner of record. At the time, investigators said, the couple was living in a luxury home on the shores of Lake Palestine south of Tyler.

Unlike her boyfriend, Ms. Maree has never been charged with any wrongdoing. Prior to her association with Shaid, she reportedly was a $600-a-month Dallas secretary.

Reporters later wondered why that fact alone didn't lift regulatory eyebrows when the bank charter was approved.

Investigators contend Shaid took control of the bank well before any money changed hands and that he named Roger Pipkin of Houston as president and one of Pipkin's mortgage company employees, Jean Moon, as vice president.

As chief operating officer, Ms. Moon said, Shaid offered her $1,900 monthly plus expenses, a car and a home in

Brady. "I didn't know that much about banking and banking regulations, but Orrin assured me he would be available seven days a week to help me," she later said under oath. "He fulfilled that promise."

In addition to her banking duties, Mrs. Moon also managed the Ranchlander Steak House, a restaurant-club conveniently housed under the same roof as the bank, a modern glass and native stone building.

Townspeople referred to her generally as "nice" but said they saw little of her outside the bank and even less of Ms. Maree and Shaid.

"I met Shaid at the bank," recalled Mayor Shields Norwood, "and he and Mrs. Maree and Mrs. Moon came to a community supper once."

Allen McCann, who runs the general store with her husband, said Ms. Moon "came in the store a time or two" but...she didn't fool around Melvin much.

She indicated Ms. Maree made more of an impression: "She'd come over here in that big car, a limo of some type, probably a Cadillac, and he (Shaid) would be driving. We thought he was her chauffeur."

Such misconceptions ended abruptly on Nov. 19, 1982, although quite a few residents suspected something was amiss before the bank failed.

"Some people were saying, 'No, it can't close.' Others would say, 'Yes, it's going to,'" recalled Mrs. Cook.

On a Friday morning in November, Ross McSwain, a reporter for the San Angelo Standard-Times, got change from a Ranchland bank teller to make a telephone call. Seconds later, at 10:10 a.m., the bank was closed.

Unknown to Shaid, Jean Moon went to the FBI several days before the closure and it was her revelations and allegations that brought the examiners pouring into the bank.

She would say later that Shaid instructed her in early November to destroy Ranchlander microfilm records and that she told him she had done so.

Instead, she said, she went to the FBI "because I felt if I destroyed those records, there would be no evidence left. I'd be killed and everyone would think I took the money."

Subsequently, Mrs. Moon, in a deal with the government, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to make a false statement in connection with the Shaid case.

Investigators, meanwhile, found her story compelling.

"Through a number of fraudulent loans and false statements made to other banks, Shaid has embezzled and stolen hundreds of thousands of dollars," she told FBI special agent Larry Tongate on Nov. 17.

She identified Shaid as the actual "financial owner" of the bank and explained the technique he allegedly used to finance the purchase.

She told Tongate that Shaid bought two $1,000 certificates of deposit from the Ranchlander bank and then, as she looked on, altered the face value to $10,000 each. He then used the forged documents as collateral for a $200,000 loan at the Chandler State Bank in East Texas.

Although he eventually repaid that loan, Shaid had acquired controlling interest in the Ranchlander bank at a personal expense of only $2,000.

Shaid was arrested Nov. 29, 10 days after the bank closed and only about a month away from completing his parole on the 1972 bank embezzlement conviction.

He had served five years of an eight-year sentence in federal prisons.

That case stemmed from a $900,000 loss at the Chireno State Bank in Nacogdoches County, where Shaid was bank chairman.

After the latest arrest, the FBI accused Shaid of defrauding Texas banks in Kilgore, Corpus Christi, Abilene and Melvin of slightly more than $900,000, in addition to the Chandler bank capex. Reportedly, the biggest loser was Interfirst Bank of Abilene, formerly the Citizens National Bank, with an unpaid loan of more than $311,000.

Authorities put the known Ranchlander losses at nearly $277,000.

Shaid was jailed in lieu of a $250,000 cash bond.

Meanwhile, FBI agents from Dallas, Tyler, Corpus Christi and San Antonio looked deeper into Shaid's banking and non-banking activities and the extent of his association with Mrs. Moon, Roger Pipkin and others.

The FBI said Pipkin had bought a bank in the tiny East Texas town of Wells and the agency wondered if Shaid might be involved there.

Of special interest was an

October 1982 civil suit accusing Shaid of defrauding a Brownsville television station of tens of thousands of dollars.

The suit alleged that Shaid and Mrs. Moon, doing business as Central Texas Factors Inc., defrauded KVEO-TV through a scheme involving the sale of uncollected advertising revenues.

Wise use of outside air can reduce air conditioning costs

COLLEGE STATION — Using outside air wisely can reduce energy use for residential air conditioning.

During spring and fall periods when average outside air temperatures are comfortable (82 degrees F. or below), whole house or attic fans can be used to pull outside air into the home and remove heat, points out Dr. Bill R. Stewart, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. However, this practice may not be desirable for those with allergy problems.

A whole house fan is usually installed in a hallway ceiling or other convenient location so that it can pull air through any or all the rooms, notes Stewart. Air flow will depend on having windows or doors that will open in each room to admit air. Then openings must be adjusted to equalize the air flow or to control the velocity of air through the room.

Whole house fans should be rated to provide an air flow of 10 cubic feet per minute (cfm) for each square foot of house area. Thus, a 1,000-square-foot home would need a whole house fan rated at 10,000 cfm, explains Stewart.

Where fans are installed in the ceiling to exhaust air out through the attic, be sure there is enough attic ventilator outlet. Attic screened vents should have 1.75 square feet of area per 1000 cfm of fan capacity, says the engineer. These may be gable vents, under eave vents or roof vents.

When whole house fans are installed in ceilings they should be covered when central air conditioner are used to prevent excess attic heat from entering the home through the fan openings.

Another method of reducing air conditioning bills during the summer, particularly for those homes with low levels of ceiling insulation, is to provide attic ventilation, says Stewart, since air will try to rise as it is heated.

Attics can be ventilated by providing adequate outlet vents near the peak of the roof along with the same amount of inlet vents at the eave. Both inlets and outlets should be uniformly distributed to provide uniform replacement of attic air.

Research with attic ventilation has shown that attic temperatures can be reduced substantially by providing about one square inch each of vent outlet and inlet per square foot of ceiling area, notes the engineer.

The greater the difference in height between inlets and outlets, the greater will be the ventilation rate. High peaked roofs are easier to ventilate than low sloped roofs.

Some roofs are not easy to ventilate by gravity systems, so power vents can be used.

However, research in the Houston area has indicated no significant saving in energy use when a home had a ceiling insulation level of R-19 (6.5 to 8 inches of insulation).

Attic ventilation is most effective when the ceiling insulation level is below R-11 (less than 4 inches). However, if investing in energy-saving material or equipment, the wisest choice would be to increase the ceiling insulation level, says Stewart.

U.S. Department of Energy Public Hearing

To address the proposed nomination of Texas sites for characterization as a potential high-level radioactive waste repository.

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) has scheduled public hearings in Hereford, Tulia, and Austin, Texas, to inform residents of the proposed nomination of sites in Texas for site characterization and to receive recommendations of issues to be addressed in the environmental assessments and site characterization plans. Details of the Department's plans to find a suitable site for a repository for the isolation of high-level nuclear waste will be outlined at these hearings, including a description of the studies in Texas. The purposes of the hearings are:

- To inform area residents of this proposed nomination and to receive their comments
- To solicit issues to be addressed in an environmental assessment which must accompany formal nomination for site characterization
- To solicit issues to be addressed in a site characterization plan which would be used in studying the potential of the sites as a candidate repository site.

The sites proposed for nomination are in the Palo Duro Basin bedded salt formation, one in Deaf Smith County just north of Hereford and the other in Swisher County northeast of Tulia. All interested parties, including individuals and organizational representatives, are invited to attend and/or comment. Individuals may register by writing at least 5 days in advance to the DOE office listed below. If time permits, unscheduled speakers may testify by registering at the registration table. Oral presentations will be limited to 10 minutes. Written comments also may be provided for incorporation into the formal record.

Drake foremost 'sessions man'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pete Drake, leader of the softball team, "Pete's Funks," may not be a whiz on the ball field, but the late Elvis Presley, Bob Dylan, Ringo Starr and George Harrison have wanted him on their teams in the recording studio.

Drake, a steel guitar player, is one of Nashville's foremost "sessions men" — a musician who plays for recording sessions. As versatile as a utility infielder, he also is a record producer, owns a recording studio and runs a music publishing firm and a record company.

He's best known to the public for his 1964 million-selling hit, "Forever," in which he hooked up a special device to his steel guitar and it "talked."

The sound from his famous "talking steel guitar" came by running a tube into a small speaker and putting the tube in his mouth.

"Your mouth becomes an amplifier and the guitar becomes your vocal cords," he said.

He calls this device an "actuator," and owns the patent.

A more important legacy is how Drake's brilliance on the steel guitar boosted the instrument from its use in the country music field to acceptance in rock 'n' roll and pop music.

When the 50-year-old Drake played his steel guitar on Dylan's records about 15 years ago, Nashville was established as a recording center for rock and pop music and not just the headquarters for rhinestone-suited country performers.

After that, Drake traveled to England to play on Harrison's album, "All Things Must Pass." Starr came to Nashville so Drake could produce the ex-Beatle's "BeCausa The Blues." For Presley, he played on five motion picture soundtracks and other albums.

But he reserves some of his highest acclaim for singer B.J. Thomas. Drake is the producer of Thomas' hit, "What Ever Happened to Old-Fashioned Love?"

"B.J. is one of the easiest persons for me to produce," the gray-haired Drake said during an interview in his second-floor office. "He's a singer's singer. He can hear a song twice and sing it like he's known it for 20 years. He's just a pro, and probably the greatest singer I've ever worked with."

His proudest achievement, though, was producing the 1979 album, "Ernest Tubb: The Legend and the Legacy." "It was a way to show someone who had done so much for so many people that we appreciated him," Drake said. "The record went gold, and it was the biggest thrill of my life."

Reba McEntire finished 1982 with her first No. 1 single, "Can't Even Get the Blues," from her LP, "Unlimited."

"Unlimited" is also her best-selling album to date. Says Reba about her first No. 1 record: "Having a No. 1 record was my New Year's resolution for 1983, but it turned out to be the best Christmas present I've ever had."

She will hit the concert tour to support the next single from the same album, "You're the First Time I've Thought About Leaving," when she joins the Statler Brothers on their Southwestern tour in mid-February.

Plans have been completed for David Allan Coe's February tour of Britain.

Steve Young, once described by Waylon Jennings as "the second best singer in country music," (George Jones was the first) has been named as the support act for the tour. He has toured Britain on two previous trips.

The attempt by Applause Records to sneak Sammy Davis Jr. onto the country charts as a country artist barely got off the ground.

His remake of the Tex Williams standard, "Smoke, Smoke That Cigarette," debuted on the charts at No. 89 and hung there for a second week before disappearing. Not to discredit Mr. Davis as an entertainer, but country — he ain't!

Martha White Foods, a Nashville-based company with a long association with country music, has committed to become the first advertiser on the Nashville Network, the national country cable-TV network.

Cohen Williams of Martha White, who made the announcement, has had some influence on country music, having "discovered" the team of Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs in 1953. He helped to form a sponsor-performer relationship with them that became one of country music's most famous associations.

The "Martha White jingle" became Flatt and Scruggs' most-requested song and was performed by the duo from Carnegie Hall to Tokyo.

The food company first sponsored a show on the Grand Ole Opry in 1948 and is now the oldest continuous sponsor of a full show on the Opry.

Scheider's cop image prevails

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor Roy Scheider's agent was in a rage. "No, not another cop movie," he said. "Not after what we've been able to accomplish with 'All That Jazz.'"

The agent had cause for concern. Scheider proved himself a versatile actor in the theater. But in films, he has been overwhelmed by the police image. That's because of two enormous hits, "The French Connection" and "Jaws."

"All That Jazz" seemed to change that. He portrayed a choreographer with heart disease in Bob Fosse's autobiographical movie, and earned a nomination from the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

So why would he play another cop in the forthcoming "Blue Thunder"?

"You notice I never wore a uniform in the movie," he smiled.

And he doesn't. He plays a Los Angeles Police Department helicopter pilot, a Vietnam veteran still haunted by war nightmares. He is entrusted to test the federal government's newfangled plane, designed to seek and destroy terrorists who might disrupt the 1984 Olympic Games.

Scheider said the machine is a real threat because it "cannot only sight you, it can call up data on you — and then destroy you."

Scheider, 49, grew up in Maplewood, N.J. He studied drama at Franklin and Marshall College in Pennsylvania and was enlisted by Joseph Papp for his Shakespearean workshop in New York.

"When I started out in 1960, I was able to get work in repertory because of my face," said the actor, whose sharp features resemble a Renaissance prince.

"I could play Italians, Turks, almost anything, so I could appear in all three plays — Shakespeare, Moliere, whatever — during a repertory season," he said.

The face also translated well to film. He made his movie debut in 1964 in "The Curse of the Living Corpse" and moved upward from there with such films as "Kluge" and "Marathon Man."

But Scheider also has had his share of duds, including "The Seven Ups," "Still of the Night" and "Jaws II," which earned him a lot of dollars "but was not my favorite movie."

They came in 50 spaceships

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Visitors came in peace from outer space. Or, so they said. They also looked just like human beings. Or, so it seemed.

They simply showed up one day in 50 spaceships, each three miles across, and the world was theirs.

But you can find out for yourself Sunday and Monday when NBC shows the TV movie, "V."

Kenneth Johnson, the writer, director and producer of the project, says that he didn't have either science fiction or aliens from outer space in mind when he began to work on the story.

"I'd had the notion for a long time of doing a piece in which America is occupied by a military power," he said.

Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, was intrigued by the idea but the question was, who would be the occupying army?

"We thought it should not be a homegrown rise of fascism but rather an invading army," Johnson said. "The Russians? The Chinese? I didn't believe they had the staying power for that. We needed someone bigger and stronger."

Hence, the Visitors.

Johnson says he plays down the science fiction aspect in "V" and concentrates on the dramatic elements as the Visitors become less and less friendly.

"I wanted to see how America would react under occupation — who would be the collaborators and who would be the resistance fighters," he said.

In the TV movie, Marc Singer stars as a television cameraman, and Faye Grant as a young medical student, who detect the Visitors' sinister plan and become resistance fighters. The two-part movie ends with the Visitors still occupying Earth, so further efforts to save the world will have to be carried on during a series.

NBC has asked Johnson to draw up a five-year story plan and is considering putting it on the schedule.

Jeffrey Ballet begins debut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Jeffrey Ballet begins its debut as the Los Angeles Music Center's first resident dance company with seven premiere works.

The two-week engagement of 17 performances, beginning Saturday, signals the start of the Joffrey's move to Los Angeles. The company announced last June that it would take up residence here while still performing part of the year in New York.

"We've always been a national company," says Robert Joffrey, the founder and director of the ballet company. "We tour more than we play any city, and of all the states we played, we played more in California."

The troupe hasn't appeared in Los Angeles since 1978. Joffrey said the Los Angeles season this spring will be followed by visits to New York, San Diego, Portland, Ore., Seattle and San Francisco.

The decision to settle in Los Angeles was made for several reasons, Joffrey said, including the excellence of the theater facilities, the opportunity provided by longer stays for creating new ballets and the possibility of working with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, which also makes its home at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

Rather than playing it safe, Joffrey is offering seven Los Angeles premieres during the spring season. Four are by Gerald Arpino, associate director of the company. There also will be two works by Laura Dean and one by Frederick Ashton.

"Coming here is so important I feel you deserve something new," Joffrey said.

The short spring season — April 30 to May 15 — and the equally brief autumn return, are only a few of the things the 27-year-old ballet will be doing in Los Angeles.

First, the Music Center Unified Fund, which underwrites the center's resident companies, will be the beneficiary of a $500-a-ticket dinner-dance following the

Synthesizer helps make good music

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Dolby may have written "She Blinded Me With Science," but he's one synthesizer player who says technology is just a means to an end — making good music.

"I hate machines," Dolby says. "They blow up to spite me, I swear it."

There's no hint of that in "She Blinded Me With Science," a mixture of electronic instruments and a generous dose of funk and humor supplied by a doddering old scientist. The song has given Dolby his first hit at the ripe old age of 24.

Dolby has also written a hit for Lene Lovitch, "New Toy." And he's played the synthesizer on albums by Joan Armatrading and Foreigner. His own LP is called "The Golden Age of Wireless."

It's tempting to lump Dolby with such bands as A Flock of Seagulls and Human League. They're all from England, and all rely heavily on hi-tech keyboard instruments.

Dolby says he's not a virtuosic keyboard artist. "Virtuosos anything bores me stiff, and my music doesn't sound cold, heartless and mechanical," he says.

While other synthesizer players try to perfect their technique, Dolby says his playing is getting worse. He's too busy working on the insides of the devices.

"I have ways of planning accidents with my synthesizers," he says. "It keeps the adrenalin flowing."

EYE CARE UPDATE

Dr. James Smnacher, O.D. OPTOMETRIST

TWO FOR ONE

QUESTION: I've been wearing contact lenses and just found out I have two kinds of vision problems. Does that mean I'll have to switch to bifocal glasses?

ANSWER: If you've been wearing contact lenses and don't want to lose the comfortable feeling or natural look of your face, you can have separate contact lenses made for each eye. One will correct for distance vision, the other for near vision. This may

The Commissioner's Court of Deaf Smith County will open bids at 10 AM on May 9th, 1983 for a pickup and tractor for Precinct 2 to be paid for with revenue sharing funds. A used, maybe bid tractor, for Precinct 4, to be paid for with regular funds. Specifications may be obtained at 242 E. 3rd, Hereford, Texas. The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY PUBLIC HEARING

To address the proposed nomination of Texas sites for characterization as a potential high-level radioactive waste repository.

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) has scheduled public hearings in Hereford, Tullia, and Austin, Texas, to inform residents of the proposed nomination of sites in Texas for site characterization and to receive recommendations of issues to be addressed in the environmental assessments and site characterization plans. Details of the Department's plans to find a suitable site for a repository for the isolation of high-level nuclear waste will be outlined at these hearings, including a description of the studies in Texas. The purposes of the hearings are:

1. To inform area residents of this proposed nomination and to receive their comments.
2. To solicit issues to be addressed in an environmental assessment which must accompany formal nomination for site characterization.
3. To solicit issues to be addressed in a site characterization plan which would be used in studying the potential of the sites as a candidate repository site.

The sites proposed for nomination are in the Palo Duro Basin bedded salt formation, one in Deaf Smith County, just north of Hereford and the other in Swisher County northeast of Tullia. All interested parties, including individuals and organizational representatives, are invited to attend and or comment. Individuals may register by writing at least 5 days in advance to the DOE office listed below. If time permits, unscheduled speakers may testify by registering at the registration table. Oral presentations will be limited to 10 minutes. Written comments also may be provided for incorporation into the formal record.

HEARING IN HEREFORD, Hereford High School Auditorium, 200 Avenue F, Monday, May 16, 1983, 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. HEARING IN TULLIA, Tullia Junior High School Auditorium, 401 N.E. 3rd St., Tuesday, May 17, 1983, 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. HEARING IN AUSTIN, Austin Hilton Inn, 6000 Middle Fiskville Rd., Wednesday, May 18, 1983, 2 p.m. to 9 p.m.

For More Information, Contact - U.S. Department of Energy, NWTs Program Office, 505 King Avenue, Columbus Ohio 43201, Telephone (614) 424-5916.

Please don't squeeze the you-know-what

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Wilson — former Canadian airman, New York vaudevillian and father of three — never expected to build his acting career on toilet paper.

But in 483 television commercials, he's been curmudgeonly "Mr. Whipple," the whining grocer who gets customers, "Please don't squeeze the Charmin!" — and sometimes ignores his own advice.

Jokes about the role seem to come with the territory. Wilson first heard about the job 19 years ago when his agent phoned to ask, "Dick, how do you feel about toilet paper?"

"I think everybody should use it, especially when they're coming to my house," Wilson recalls replying.

A screen test was filmed the day after his agent called. "They flew the film overnight to New York and the following Monday we shot my first Charmin Toilet Tissue commercial in — are you ready for this — Flushing, N.Y.," Wilson said.

But he's not complaining. The commercials have provided a comfortable living for his wife and three children, and they've made his face famous.

"There was a contest a few years ago when Jimmy Carter was in the White House," Wilson said making an appearance in San Diego last week. "They asked fourth-grade kids who knew who Jimmy Carter was and who knew who Mr. Whipple was. Sixty-nine percent knew Mr. Whipple and 22 percent knew Jimmy Carter."

"I'd tell people if more kids know who's in the bathroom than in the White House, we're really in trouble."

Wilson, born 66 years ago in England, says he hopes never to retire. He lives in North Hollywood and spends his time doing Charmin commercials, dinner theater shows, an occasional TV pilot and standup comedy shows.

He says his father starred in a vaudeville minstrel show and his mother was a singer. He served in the Canadian Air Force during World War II, and last week celebrated the 29th anniversary of his naturalization as a U.S. citizen.

His first television appearance — on an experimental broadcast at the Canadian Exposition in Toronto — came when he was 12. By the time he was 17, he appeared in twice-daily vaudeville shows in New York.

He came to Hollywood before his 20th birthday, getting involved in movies by offering to fill in for a missing stunt man during filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty" with Clark Gable and Charles Laughton.

After that came nine Broadway shows, including "Laughing Room Only" and "Brigadoon," plus movies such as "Shakti Gun in the West" and "What a Way to Go." He also appeared in the "Bewitched" TV series.

Wilson said he's "not too happy" with today's movies, citing the time he was asked to play a nude scene.

He says he told the filmmaker, "Hold it pal. Have you ever seen me without my clothes? The first four (theater) rows will throw up!"

FAVORITE BRANDS SPECIALS

If these aren't your favorite brands now, perhaps they should be . . . They're our private brands and if you're concerned about high food prices now is a good time to get acquainted with them. What are private brands? They're products we buy in quantity and package with our name on them. These private brands are not heavily advertised so the savings are passed on to you. So our brands are less expensive. And because we put our own name on each package, we're very fussy about the quality that goes inside. You should be completely satisfied or you get your money back! Lower price, higher quality, our guarantee, plus very special prices for our Favorite Brands Saving Sale. Isn't it time you gave our favorite brands a try?

Prince Valiant

OUT STORY: PRINCE VALIANT HAS STUNNED ADAM WITH A STALEMATE. THE CROWD GROWS DENSE. THE EXPECTED EXECUTION. BECAUSE NEITHER KING HAS FALLEN, NEITHER MUST DIE. UJF AND ALP ASK SLAM. ZOG'S TWIN BOYS ARE SET FREE. AND IN THE HUSH, A LITTLE BOY QUESTIONS HIS MOTHER. "WHAT ABOUT PRINCESS GRENOU? HE ASKS."

"DOES THIS MEAN SHE MARRIES ME ONE?" GRENOU. "THE THROING TAKES UP THE CRY. REMINDING KING ZOG THAT THE TOURNAMENT'S PRIZE...."

... WAS TO BE HIS DAUGHTER'S HAND IN MARRIAGE. HE SENDS WORD TO THE PALACE AND THE PRINCESS MAKES HASTE. SWEET GRENOU. THE POETS ACCLAIMED HER FOR HER BEAUTY YET NONE BUT THE ROYAL HOUSEHOLD HAD SET EYES UPON HER. THE TOURNAMENT JUDGE DELIVERS HIS VERDICT!

BEFORE TODAY, THE MARRIED STRANGERS WERE TIED WITH PRINCE VALIANT AND ALL MARRIAGE AFTER THE STALEMATE. THEY ARE STILL TIED.

BUT WILL STEPS BEFORE KING ZOG. "MY LORD, HE SAYS. I WOULD ALREADY HAVE MARRIED YOU. I SAID 'I CANNOT WED MY OWN SISTER.'"

ADAM SMILES AT LAST. FOR HE IS THE ONLY ONE LEFT. AS GRENOU ALIGHTS FROM THE LITTER THE CROWD SINKS. A HUNDRED LOSING CONTESTANTS PRAISE THE GOOS FOR THEIR BAD LUCK. BUT LOVE IS BLIND. "GRENOU," CRIES ADAM. "SHEDDING HIS MASK, 'MADAM,' CRIES GRENOU. 'SHEDDING HER VEIL, 'KISS ME,' CRIES ZOG. SHEDDING HIS DIGNITY FOR GRENOU. HAS WON HER OLD SUITOR."

NEXT WEEK: Family Reunion
