

TMI Controversy Still Rages After 2 Years

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Roaring boos and rousing applause still disrupt public meetings on Three Mile Island.

Hard-core activists are as determined as they were two years ago to keep the crippled nuclear plant closed. Their opponents, claiming America needs "a mixed energy bag," are equally determined to reopen TMI. But the impassioned pleas of the public hearings are not heard in the streets of the towns near the reactor — silent since March 28, 1979, when it was shut down by the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

"It isn't as hostile as it used to be, when you couldn't even talk about it. I'm not saying people are not worried, but it's normal daily living," said Anfe Trunk, a Middletown housewife who was on the Kemeny Commission, the group appointed by former President Jimmy Carter to investigate the accident, and now sits on a TMI citizens' advisory panel.

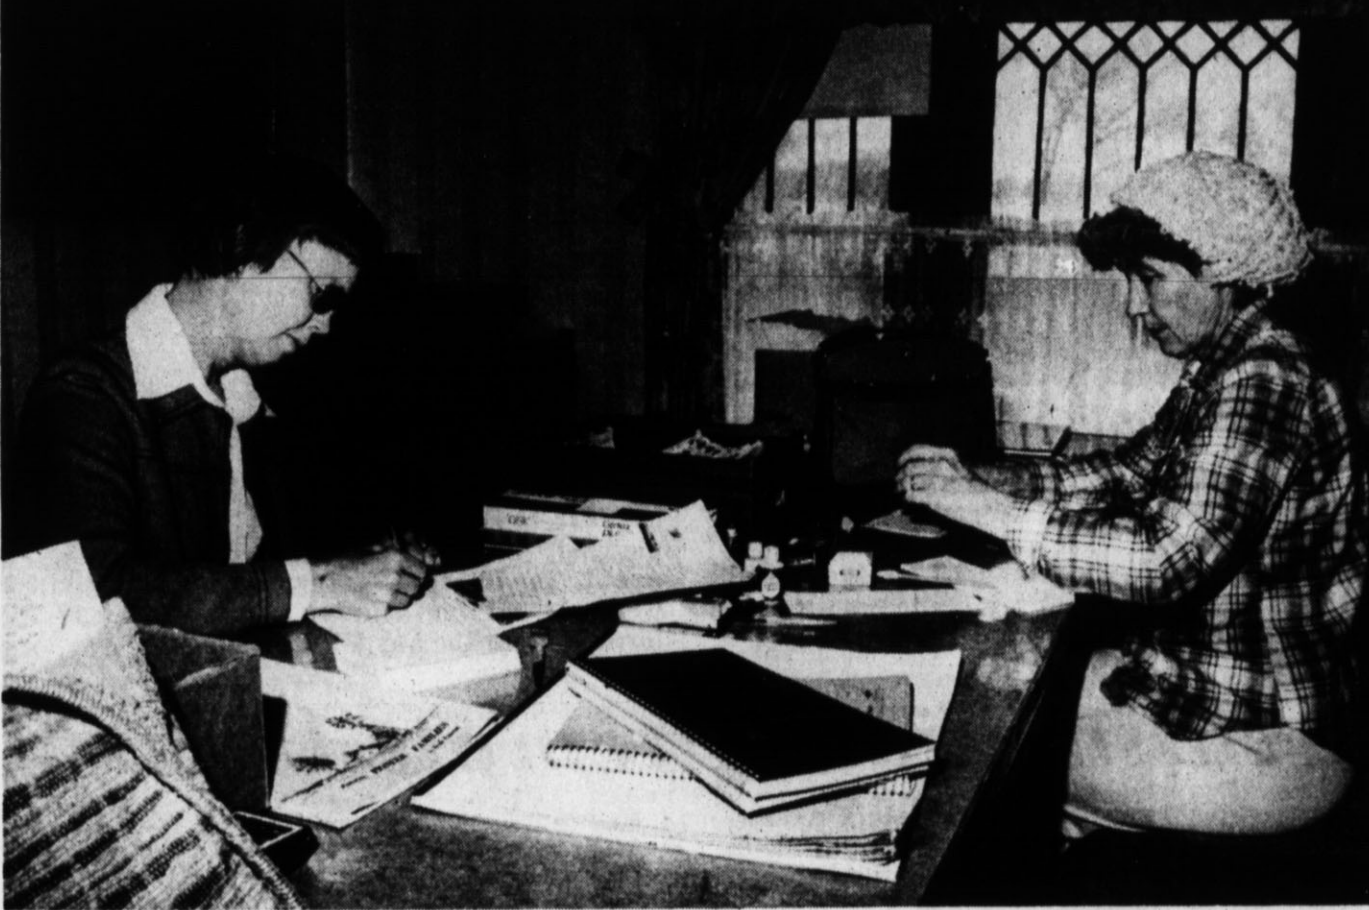

"Most of the people I come in contact with are not antagonistic. They are just confused by conflicting reports. I'd say it's calmed down," said Lori Dubiel, president of the pro-nuclear Friends and Family of TMI.

Still highly visible, however, is a vocal band of anti-nuclear activists. Admittedly weary after two years of legal and regulatory battles, they remain fiercely committed to their crusade. Typical is Elizabeth Chavey of PANE (People Against Nuclear Energy). She contends nuclear boosters have no moral right to make her live under stress and pollute the air she breathes.

"Their logic is simply economics and a job. Their argument seems to me pathetic, without compassion or morality. Economics to me is nothing," said Mrs. Chavey, a registered nurse with five children.

On the other side, Friends and Family of TMI presents itself as a voice of reason in a sea of irrationality. "I feel really sorry that they are so terrified by it (nuclear power), because I feel their terror comes from a basic misunderstanding," said Cheryl Shipman, whose husband is a TMI engineer.

The anti-nuclear groups, joined by a coalition of labor unions, have planned a march, a rally and a utility "bill burning" for the second anniversary of the accident.

Reviewing Stories

Work continues on the Project County History book, "The Land and Its People," as volunteers Marian Kreig, left, and Juanita Owen process the family history received for the book. Approximately 700 people have submitted history for the book, however, volunteers are now encouraging younger families of the county to participate by submitting their family stories. The office is located at the E.B. Black House under the management of Sue Coleman.

'Recent' Histories Needed By Project County History

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer
The history of Deaf Smith County never stops and members of the Project County History want to record that "recent" history as well as the "pioneer" history.

Once these history stories are received about the county and its residents, the information will be compiled in a book, "The Land and Its People," as a non-profit endeavor to preserve the history.

The book will be divided into three sections and volunteers are especially interested in the history from 1940-1980. "We need the younger families to write their history for the book. Deaf Smith history has not stopped, yet, and we need that history," Sue Coleman, office manager, said.

"People think they have to be pioneers to turn in a story about their history in the county, but that is not so," Mrs. Coleman continued. After organizing the project in October of 1980, volunteers and members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society mailed some 6,000 letters to county residents. About 700 people have responded, but project workers are hoping to receive at least 1,000 stories.

Volunteers emphasized that individuals do not have to have one of the letters to submit history. Anyone who is interested may do so. "If anyone needs help in writing their history they can call the office. We have several volunteers who are already helping residents," Mrs. Coleman said.

In addition to family histories, the book will consist of history of communities, churches, organizations, businesses, education and historical landmarks. Although a great deal of work has begun in this area, committees are still working on the family histories.

Stories should be written in 500 words or less and may include a photograph. Volunteers are asking all stories to be submitted by April 30.

"We would like to get as many history stories as we can by this date," Mrs. Coleman said. Residents are urged to order a copy of the book when they submit a story as only those ordered will be printed for purchase.

"I think it will be a good book and something people would want to have," she added. Residents wanting to buy (See HISTORY, Page 2)

Government researchers can be hazardous to your health! While President Reagan is trimming the fat, we hope he fires a bunch of those researchers who claim everything we eat or drink is causing cancer.

As far as we're concerned, the FDA boys stopped preaching and started meddling when they put coffee on the cancer-causing list. If people listen to them, can you imagine what that will do to our economy?

If we can't get started each morning with a cup of coffee, then trouble is brewing. What about all the business deals made over a cup of java? What will become of women's coffee klatches?

The thought of a world without coffee is too much to bear. Personally, we'll be glad when they kill all the rats so they can quit testing!

Did you hear about the farmer who had driven his team of mules to town and was late returning home? "What took you so long?" his wife demanded to know. "On the way back, I picked up the Methodist preacher, and from then on them mules didn't understand a thing. I said."

Though we've never cared much for bumper stickers, we were pleased and encouraged to see this one: HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR KID TODAY?

There are several reasons why that one seems most acceptable to everyone. First, of course, it is non-partisan. Anyone should understand that hugging kids is less political saving whales. You can put that saying on your bumper and not be worried about being pegged liberal or conservative.

Secondly, it is simply a notable sentiment. No matter where you stand in relation to the issues of the world, kid-hugging is the business of everybody who has a kid, or even knows one.

Kid-hugging is universal language, and it's unusual to find universal language on a bumper sticker.

Tennessee Authorities Seize Cocaine Worth $217 Million

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Authorities searched today for four people believed connected with the aborted shipment of 614 pounds of uncut cocaine seized from an unattended airplane at the Sevier County Airport.

Still wrapped in dozens of yellow plastic bags, the cocaine, with an estimated street value of $217 million, is under lock and key in Nashville, where it was taken for weighing, analysis and safekeeping after Tuesday's predawn raid, said Tennessee Bureau of Investigation officials.

It took 13 boxes and two duffel bags to load the cocaine bags, officials said. TBI Director Arzo Carson said the raid by federal, state and local authorities resulted in the second-largest cocaine seizure in U.S. history and the largest ever from an aircraft.

"We've known for some time now that there might be a shipment of cocaine coming into the state, but we didn't know exactly when or where it would be coming to," Carson said Tuesday. Sevier County Sheriff Carmen Townsend said the search for the four people was concentrated in the county. Authorities said the contraband — 90 percent pure — could have netted about $75 million wholesale.

Agents had tracked the plane starting Friday when it left San Antonio, Texas, and headed for Colombia, South America. Two men picked up Bolivian cocaine and headed back for the United States, U.S. Customs Service officials said.

The plane landed briefly in Orlando, Fla., before making the stop in Sevier County in Upper East Tennessee on Monday night, authorities said.

Al Wenzlaff, a member of the U.S. Customs San Antonio air branch, said agents did not board the Beechcraft Queen Air until Tuesday because they needed a search warrant.

At least two men reportedly were seen leaving the airport in Sevierville, agents said.

Wenzlaff said he and other agents from his department were on surveillance aircraft with a member of the Austin, Texas, Organized Crime Unit.

"My partner and I had been tailoring the plane but we were quite a bit behind because of some ground fog," Wenzlaff said. "Before coming to Sevierville, they touched down in Florida, but were never in touch with the control tower."

Carson said authorities had not determined the plane's final destination. He declined to give any details of the chase. The plane, valued at $90,000, also was seized.

The cocaine will be kept in a secure place, but not the TBI laboratory which has been broken into recently, Carson said.

He added that he thought the cocaine would be burned eventually. Earlier this month, officials seized 466 pounds of cocaine near Okechobee, Fla., said Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Con Dougherty of Miami.

Last May, DEA agents seized 854 pounds of cocaine base — which had not been processed into powder. That haul was the largest ever for base, which Dougherty said would have been processed into an equal amount of finished cocaine.

Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, asked board members to approve a quality assurance program required by the Joint Committee for Accreditation of Hospitals.

Although the program was approved, legal questions arose as to whether or not the minutes of the committee meetings could be subpoenaed. JCHA rules say the minutes are not subject to subpoena, but Smith said he didn't see how they could get around it.

Congressional Budget Officials Say Proposals 'Optimistic'

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional economists acknowledge that Reagan administration projections about taming inflation and spurring the economy with its budget and tax cuts are "optimistic, but certainly not impossible," even though their own calculations are less rosy.

The House Budget Committee planned today to question Alice M. Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, about her office's conclusion that the administration has underestimated federal spending and may not be able to achieve its goal of a balanced budget by 1984.

In the Senate, Democrats were debating for a second day alternatives to the Reagan economic program in advance of Senate consideration Thursday of a $36.4 billion budget-cutting package.

The Congressional Budget Office forecast reinforces its preliminary projection last week that the federal deficit will be at least $115 billion more than the Reagan administration figures over the next four years.

According to the report, Reagan's economic plan will push deficits up almost $8 billion more than the administration predicts for this year, $22 billion more in 1982, $36 billion in 1983 and about $49 billion more in '84, the year Reagan has promised a small surplus in government spending.

The budget office predicts higher inflation and unemployment and less economic growth than the administration forecasts for 1981-1984.

The report said its conclusions were based on "historical experience." But it noted: "Estimates of the economy, even without major policy changes, cannot be projected with a high degree of reliability, and the effects of the policy changes are subject to even more uncertainty."

The administration says Reagan's proposed budget cuts, tax reductions and regulatory reform would lower inflation, interest rates and stimulate economic growth more rapidly than most economists believe possible.

Assurance Program Put On Hold By DSGH

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer
The board of directors for the Deaf Smith County Hospital District decided to put the newly approved quality assurance program on hold after hearing legal reports from director Jerry Smith.

The board met in regular session Tuesday to discuss the program as well as to hear operating, bids and medicine reports.

At the February meeting, Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, asked board members to approve a quality assurance program required by the Joint Committee for Accreditation of Hospitals.

Although the program was approved, legal questions arose as to whether or not the minutes of the committee meetings could be subpoenaed. JCHA rules say the minutes are not subject to subpoena, but Smith said he didn't see how they could get around it.

Polish Leaders Renew Negotiations Today

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
BYDGOSZCZ, Poland (AP) — Labor leader Lech Walesa and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski resume critical negotiations today under the twin threats of new nationwide strikes and the spring war games in and around Poland by the Soviet army and other Warsaw Pact troops.

Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania warned Walesa's Solidarity labor federation that its threat of four-hour strikes by 10 million members on Friday and a nationwide general strike Tuesday was an invitation to suicide.

After some investigation I found a 1969 statute that states minutes are privilege information. However, there is a 1978 statute stating that committee minutes are open and the information has to be released," Smith, a local attorney, said.

The Texas Hospital Association says the minutes from a review committee can be subpoenaed while the joint committee is saying the opposite," Smith explained. "This is an industry-wide problem, so I would suggest we put our program on hold until we find out something definite," Bullard said.

Walesa told Warsaw Radio he hoped the negotiations would yield "satisfactory" results and end the need for a general strike. But the federation increased its demands on the government.

Solidarity's national commission voted earlier Tuesday to call a four-hour nationwide warning strike on Friday, followed by a general "sit-in" strike next Tuesday if the demands were not met.

Before the vote of 35-8 with two abstentions, Walesa overcame a mini-rebellion by militants demanding immediate strike action and the breakoff of negotiations with the government.

Kania warned that the strike threat pushed the debt-ridden communist nation to the brink of explosion. "Who has the courage to make out of a local incident a national cause threatening catastrophe?" he asked in a speech to agricultural officials broadcast by Warsaw Radio. "How can one call for strikes in this situation?" He cited Poland's $27 billion debt to the West and said, "We have to undertake more. Export is dropping because of decreasing production. This diminishes possibilities to buy food and increases our debts."

"We are debating at a difficult moment for the country, the most dangerous since the August crisis. The economic crisis has been compounded by a deep political crisis. In such a situation, how should we understand the call to

Ethics Bill Wins

House Approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An ethics bill that grew out of Speaker Bill Clayton's experience with the FBI Brilab investigation has won unanimous House approval.

The measure was approved by the House, 134-0, and sent to the Senate on Tuesday.

The bill creates a 15-member committee to assess Texas laws governing state officials' conduct and offer advice on how best to comply with them.

Clayton started talking up the proposal after he was acquitted in October of FBI charges he took a payoff from an informant posing as an insurance man seeking state group insurance business.

Clayton was a target of the FBI sting operation that was known as "Brilab," a contraction of bribery and labor.

His bill would establish a Public Servant Standards of Conduct Advisory Committee that would study state laws relating to officials' conduct, including those on bribery, corrupt influence and gifts to public servants.

The committee also would issue guidelines "to aid public servants in the day-to-day application of these laws." It also would recommend changes that would make the statutes "more clear and reasonable."

The committee would be abolished on Aug. 31, 1983, after the next Legislature adjourns its regular session.

Award at 7:30 p.m. Thursday to open the 15th Texan Legislative Conference at the new Braunfels Civic Center.

Former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, a Houston attorney and former winner of the award, will make the presentation recognizing contributions Mrs. Armstrong has made to Texas and the nation.

Previous recipients of the award include Judge Robert W. Calvert, Jaworski, Lady Bird Johnson, former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Texas, former Gov. John B. Connally and former Baylor University President Abner V. McCall.

Briscoe will be principal luncheon speaker at the conference on Friday, directing some of his comments to President Ronald Reagan's economic package and its effect on Texas if implemented, according to John Chunn, arrangements committee chairman.

Speakers addressing national issues on Friday will include Larry Kudlow, assistant director for economic police of the Office of Management and Budget; Assistant Secretary of Defense Jack R. Borsting; Professor of Political Economics Walt Rostown of the University of Texas, and Rep. Mikey Leland of Houston.

The conference is co-sponsored by the State and new Braunfels Chambers of Commerce.

Police Hunt

For Rapist

DALLAS (AP) — A young, knife-carrying rapist who may have abducted as many as 13 young neighborhood girls in the past two years probably needs help and should voluntarily surrender, police said.

The latest victim was a 7-year-old girl taken from her home and sexually molested early Sunday, said police investigator Lonnie Bolin. He said 12 other victims between the ages of 7 and 14 have been raped or molested in the past two years and all but one has lived inside a square-mile section of East Dallas.

The one girl from outside that area is also the only black child to be attacked, and Bolin said investigators are not sure that case is related to the other 12.

However, in each of the attacks the man has entered a house through a rear window or door between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m.

"Sometimes he will go into the bedroom where the parents are sleeping and take their belongings before he takes the little girl," Bolin said. "He picks them up very quietly. In nearly every case, they don't wake up until they're already out of the house."

The man usually is armed with a knife and threatens the child if she screams, Bolin said.

Once outside, he said, the man will take the child to a vacant building, garage or lot nearby, Bolin said.

"In nearly every instance he asks them if they can get home by themselves," the investigator said. "Sometimes he'll walk halfway back with them. He seems concerned that they know how to get back home."

Victims have said the man is black and between 16 and 20 years old, which "fits the description of any number of people who would live and work in that area," Bolin said. "We've checked numerous leads without results."

Bolin said investigators have checked about 150 people, including men with police records for sex offenses.

"... the person has a problem of some sort," Bolin said.

"So far, he hasn't hurt anybody, maimed anybody or killed anybody. Maybe he can be helped. I would be delighted to talk to him if he calls me collect from wherever he is."

Hereford Panhellenic members are making final plans for its spring information party set for Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Meredith Wilcox, 205 Ranger. All Hereford High School senior girls are invited to attend the party in which information about college sororities and rush parties will be offered. Several Hereford girls who have recently pledged with college sororities will be at the event to present information. Brenda Reinauer left, and Carolyn Cannon review information for the annual party.

Assassination Attempts Linked

DALLAS (AP) — The same people who plotted an unsuccessful attempt on the life of a federal prosecutor also planned the subsequent assassination of a federal judge, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

In a copyright story, the newspaper said a convicted killer has told authorities he attended a secret meeting in 1978 at which the killing of a "top federal official" — Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr of San Antonio — was discussed.

The same people plotted the May 29, 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., according to the man's story as related by the News.

Kerr escaped injury when two men opened fire on his automobile with automatic weapons as he drove toward downtown San Antonio. Wood was killed by a single gunshot wound to the back as he left his home.

According to the News, the convicted killer has become a secret witness in the Wood case. He is currently under heavy security at an 18-month prison after his conviction on several charges, including several killings, the newspaper said.

He was rebuffed when he first offered his information in late 1979 but investigators later believed his story and offered protection in return for his testimony, said the News.

"What he has said has proven out straight down the line," the newspaper quoted an investigator as saying. "It also says something when he doesn't ask for the (reward) money until there's a conviction."

A group of attorneys has posted a $125,000 reward in the Wood case.

Neither the investigator or a new witness was identified by the newspaper.

The witness said he attended a meeting two weeks before Kerr was attacked at which a group of men talked about killing "somebody big," the newspaper said.

He said he was offered $100,000 and a cocaine source if he would supply the weapons and dispose of them later, but he declined, according to the newspaper.

At another meeting shortly after the Kerr attempt, the same men said "a bigger hit" was in the works, "bigger than the Kerr deal," said the News.

The newspaper said law enforcement agents have seized photographs and identified several people who were at those meetings.

perform scans instead of sending these people to Amarillo for the test," Bullard told board members.

The machine which is a 1973 model will cost the district $6,600.

"This is a real bargain, because most new models cost more than $75,000. Even though it is a used model, I would say we would be able to use the machine for at least 10 years," Bullard explained.

The additional equipment, which will be used for lump, liver, brain, thyroid and other scans, will compliment the ultrasound equipment.

Depository and insurance bids were discussed at the noon meeting.

The hospital had asked for depository bids earlier and based on bids received, the hospital will leave deposits at the Hereford State Bank.

The hospital also asked for building and contents insurance bids.

"We have received bids, but we are going to move the action to the finance committee because we are going to combine our building liability, building and contents insurance into a new form," Bullard said.

Bids will not be released until a later date in order to research the new program which could save the hospital at least $5,000 each year.

And state Rep. Bruce Smith, a strong nuclear opponent whose wife has been outspoken in the anti-nuclear movement, won election last year after defeating five candidates in a Republican primary.

But Smith said he received both pro- and anti-nuclear votes. And man-on-the-street interviews last fall indicated that Middletown voters — like those all over America — were more concerned about the economy than TMI.

In the Senate, assistant minority leader Alan Cranston of California said Democrats are going through the proposed budget cuts and seeking ways to reduce spending and hold down the federal deficit.

Sources said the Democrats agreed Tuesday to seek more money than the administration wants for some social programs in the areas of education, health and assistance for low-income families in buying fuel.

Cranston, however, said no specific figures were discussed.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Tuesday the Democrats informally rejected a portion of the Senate Budget Committee plan that calls for private financing of the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve. The Reagan administration also has rejected the plan, although it could reduce spending by more than $3 billion.

Under the private financing plan, major oil importers would pump 125 million barrels a year into the stockpile, which is intended for use during national emergencies. Instead of buying oil directly, the government would repay the companies at the rate of 10 percent a year for 11 years.

If the private financing plan is rejected by the full Senate, Kennedy said, other cuts would have to be found to make up the difference.

Crawford's vehicle was parked at the Avenue Baptist

Bernadette Wright told police all four hubcaps were taken from her vehicle Tuesday night when it was parked at the high school. The hubcaps are valued at $200.

Bennie Neal of Friona is being held at the Amarillo Pavilion for Clovis authorities for a warrant with an extensive bond of $20,000.

Hereford police stopped the man when he was driving on highway 60 Tuesday about 4 p.m. Upon further investigation the man was found to be drunk and disorderly.

Officers issued 14 traffic citations Tuesday.

Constitution Forms Foundation

(Editor's Note: The following is the last of a series of essays written by Hereford High School seniors in conjunction with a Masonic Lodge sponsored contest, "Americanism." The winner of the contest to be announced at a later date will receive a $50 savings bond.)

AMERICANISM - THE 1980's

By Willa Bess Lawson
HHS Senior

It is 360 years since the landing of the Mayflower. When our forefathers reached these shores in 1620, they sowed the first seeds of Americanism and began to develop a land of freedom, to build a nation of liberty, righteousness, and law. Their strife, coupled with their undying love for civil and religious liberty, resulted in the great Constitution of the United States. The Constitution, then, is the rock upon which our country stands: the foundation of our government. It is the Constitution and its principles we must look, to revitalize the Americanism that our forefathers possessed.

Clearly, America has always been for Americans. There was a time when we could say that all Americans were for America. There is a possibility that Americans have taken their guaranteed rights and privileges so much for granted that we have become apathetic and spoiled. Apathy and indifference have no place in an American's life for words "I did," "I can," and "I will" are the motivating forces in such a life. America is not perfect yet, nor is it finished, because we have not reached our potentials.

It is our duty as citizens to reach our potentials, so that Americanism can flourish. It has often been said, and is so everlastingly true, that America is the best and last hope of mankind. If we should fail, where in all the world would the broken in spirit find refuge and a land of liberty, righteousness, and law?

We will not fail you and —! We cannot fail if we do our duty, but we must stop asking what our country can do for us and start asking what we can do for our country. The time has passed when we can remain silent. We must promote Americanism in the 1980's. We must stand behind the Constitution.

In order for us to stand behind the Constitution as a country, we must squelch the power of corruption. Joseph W. Folk stresses that the power of those who would corrupt is obtained through the indifference of good citizens. If good citizens could be induced to join hands in a patriotic endeavor, the bad would be shorn of their strength. There is a constant conflict between law and lawlessness, right and wrong, good and evil. The wrong must be fought against and the good must be fought for. It is one thing to be against the wrong in society and another to fight that wrong. One is a noncombatant who never won a cause, and the other is a soldier in the fight for Americanism.

Yes, America is for Americans — Now let's all Americans be for America. Let's all Americans strive to reach our potentials. I am an American, and the last four letters of American are: I-C-A-N, and I can.

Ann Landers

Listeners' Helpful Hints

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A lot of people who wouldn't listen to anyone else listen to you. You could perform a wonderful service to millions if you would ask your readers to do the following:

1. Stop saying "Have a nice day" to everyone you come in contact with. You have no idea the number of people who have just been fired, attempted suicide, gone through a divorce or are having terrible financial problems.

2. Stop saying "You're kidding" to everything you hear. This standard remark can be highly inappropriate, especially if a person has lost all his possessions in a fire, been mugged on the street, just learned that his rental is going condo or been in a car accident. People do not kid about these things.

Thank you, Ann, for joining me in my crusade to reverse these senseless speech habits.—English Teacher

DEAR TEACH: Don't thank me. I haven't done anything. Trendy phrases are easily picked up, and they hang around for a long time. Thanks for writing and have a nice...I mean, let me hear from you again some time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Joe and I stayed in the old home town where we were born and raised. Our sisters and brothers are scattered from coast to coast. Our children are grown and they are scattered, too. The only ones left in town are Joe's mother and mine.

We are beginning to resent every holiday because it is expected that we entertain both mothers here. What we would love to do is be with our children. I have hinted to my sisters and to Joe's that it would be nice if they would invite Mom for Easter or Mother's Day or Christmas or Thanksgiving or the Fourth of July or anything, but there are no takers.

Our brothers and sisters send cards and they telephone our home to wish Mom a happy this or a merry that. The conversations are lovely, but no invitations.

I know your attitude is that no one can be imposed on unwillingly, but in this case there is also "Honor thy father and thy mother." How does one get sisters and brothers to take responsibility? I want to write and tell them we've been doing it year after year and now it's their turn. But my husband says, "No—they don't care enough to help, and they don't want to be bothered." My anger keeps building. What should I do?—Caught In The Middle

DEAR MIDDLE: First recognize the fact that your husband is part of the problem. He wants to be "the good son" (and son-in-law) so he keeps quiet and urges you to suffer in silence, also.

You have earned the right to spend some holidays the way you want to. Write to both his sisters and brothers and to yours. Tell them you are planning to spend Easter or Christmas or whatever with your children and they should decide among them who is going to take the mamas. The Bible doesn't say just one of the children should "Honor thy father and thy mother." Give somebody else a chance.

DEAR ANN: I read somewhere that a poll of college freshmen was taken. Question: What career do you wish to pursue? Some answers were, "Business," "Finance," "Sailor," "Senestr," "Physist," "Airtotics," "Secteral," and "Undesided." Do you believe it?—Flabbergasted In Flatbush

DEAR BUSH: Yes, I do. If you could see my mail, you'd have no doubts.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most

All 4 Teams Confident In NCAA Tournament

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Confidence could be a factor, says Virginia Coach Terry Holland, but it will favor all four teams in the finals of the NCAA college basketball tournament that gets underway Saturday in Philadelphia.

Holland's fifth-ranked Cavaliers meet Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina, ranked sixth, in one of the semifinal games, while No. 9 Indiana and fourth-rated Louisiana State meet in the earlier contest.

The championship and consolation games are scheduled for Monday.

Virginia, 28-3, beat the Tar Heels twice during the regular season, but Holland feels North Carolina is a changed team.

"They're playing with a lot more confidence," the Virginia coach said, "but I think that's true of any team in the Final Four. I know we are, and I would guess Indiana is and LSU is."

During the season, Virginia beat North Carolina by scores of 63-57 and 80-79, in overtime, but both times, the Cavaliers had to rally from large second-half deficits. In the first game, it was 13 points — 16 in the second. North Carolina Coach Dean Smith's famous four-corners offense, a half-court spread, led to both defeats.

"Let's face it, they're a great team with a great tradition, and I don't think they'll change their game for us," Holland said. "We'll have to change our strategy, though. Down 14 won't work again."

Virginia won the ACC's regular season title, while North Carolina won the conference tournament. But while Virginia never has been to the Final Four before, Smith has made it five times — without winning the title. The last time North Carolina won it all was in 1957 under Frank McGuire.

"This one is for all the marbles," Holland said. "We have two films on them, and they have two films on us."

Holland will send one of the best big men in basketball, 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, against what has become one of the best front lines in basketball. Freshman center Sam Perkins, 6-9, will be giving away seven inches to Sampson, but he will get plenty of help from forwards Al Wood and James Worthy.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight will be going after his second NCAA title. His Hoosiers won it in 1976, but with a more experienced team that relied on a starting five of Bob Wilkerson, Scott May, Quinn Buckner, Tom Abernethy and Kent Benson. All are still playing in the National Basketball Association.

"As long as we win, it doesn't matter who plays," said sophomore Isaiah Thomas, Indiana's All-American guard. "We have to count on guys like Chuck Franz (sophomore), Mike LaFave (freshman) and Phil Isenberger (senior)."

"These guys might not see a lot of playing time, but they're the guys who play the opposing team in practice, and they're the ones who take all of the bumps and bruises ... they're the guys who set the picks and the ones who get knocked around," Thomas said.

David Graham of Australia, Masters champ Seve Ballesteros of Spain and South African Gary Player.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Earl Campbell, the great running back of the Houston Oilers, is less than 6 feet tall, standing 5-11.

Arrayed against him on this resort island is an extremely strong, elite, invitational field of 120, headed by Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Bruce Lietzke.

Lietzke has won twice already this season and played well last week. Irwin, twice a U.S. Open champion and a winner in Hawaii earlier this season, has scored two previous victories on this picturesque course.

Watson, golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons, has not played up to his usual standards this season and is making his last start prior to the Masters.

The field also includes defending champion Doug Tewell, Jerry Pate, two-time Heritage winner Hubert Green, and 1981 tournament winners John Cook, Andy Bean and Tom Kite.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Johnny Miller are not competing.

The strong foreign entry includes Isao Aoke of Japan,

Waits to Return

Trent Thomas prepares to return a shot in yesterday's tennis action against the Portales, N.M. team. Hereford lost only one boys' singles match and one girls' singles match in taking 8-1 victories in both divisions. Thomas rebounded from a 3-6 loss in the first match to score 6-4, 6-1 wins over his opponent. The players had to overcome the windy weather in playing the matches.

HHS Tennis Teams Win

Hereford's boys' and girls' tennis teams swept to impressive victories over Portales in matches played at the Whiteface courts.

Both Hereford teams posted overall 8-1 triumphs over the visiting New Mexico team. The local teams travel to Fort Stockton for a tennis tourney Friday and Saturday.

Longhorns' Lee Quits to Coach Broncos' Backs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Charlie Lee, assistant football coach for the Texas Longhorns, has quit to coach the Denver Broncos' running backs.

Syracuse Optimistic About NIT Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Syracuse hopes to complete a month-long cycle of disappointment and happiness on a positive note tonight when the Orangemen meet Tulsa in the championship game of the 44th annual National Invitation Tournament.

Syracuse completed the regular season Feb. 28 with a 15-11 record, its worst in 11 years, followed that with a glorious three-game sweep of the Big East tournament and then was crushed when three other conference schools were invited to the NCAA championships and it was ignored.

Instead, the NIT selection committee came calling and the Orangemen responded with four more victories leading to tonight's game with the Golden Hurricane, this year's best rags-to-riches basketball team.

"Our backs were to the wall after the 15-11 season," said high-leaping forward Tony Bruin, a standout in the postseason after a so-so year. "Now the NIT is our reward for winning the Big East tournament."

"It's funny how life works out sometimes," said assistant coach Brendan Malone, who represented Syracuse at a news conference Tuesday while head Coach Jim Boeheim kept a speaking engagement in Philadelphia.

"We were so disappointed a few weeks ago. Now we're just delighted to be in the NIT. For some reason we've put seven real good games together."

In addition to the three victories in the Big East tournament, the Orangemen have won four in a row in the NIT for a combined 22-11 mark.

To win tonight at Madison Square Garden against Tulsa, 25-7 under new Coach Nolan Richardson after an 8-19 season in 1979-80, Syracuse will probably need a healthy 6-foot-11 center Dan Schayes.

The son of former professional star Dolph Schayes injured his left ankle in a Monday practice and limped noticeably throughout Monday night's 70-63 semifinal victory over Purdue. Schayes had only nine points, well under his average of 15, but he had a basket, a free throw and two rebounds in the final minute after the score was tied 63-63.

"He'll be there Wednesday," said Malone. "He's in his hotel room with his foot in ice right now."

"When the adrenaline starts flowing, it's amazing what the body will do when the mind starts talking," said Richardson, expressing no doubt that he will have to contend with Schayes' height and outside shooting touch.

Tulsa, which beat West Virginia 89-87 in Monday night's other semifinal, relies heavily on four transfer players, all of whom were on Richardson's national championship junior college team at Western Texas last season.

"When I heard Coach Richardson was bringing four players with him from junior college, I didn't know what to expect," said senior forward Bob Stevenson, the lone holdover starter from last year. "Then I saw we would have more talent than we had at any time since I've been here, and I realized my role would change."

Greg Stewart, a 6-9 center, and Paul Pressey, a 6-5 swingman, are the key players Richardson brought to Tulsa.

Stewart was the leading scorer during the regular season with a 15.2 average and he scored 19 against West Virginia.

Pressey, Richardson's "rubber band man" because of his long arms and quick hands, runs the offense and makes Tulsa's defensive press tick. On Monday, Pressey made an NIT-record seven steals and scored 11 of his 20 points in the final eight minutes.

"Because I hadn't seen him shoot, I didn't think he was a complete player until late in the game when he hit two 20-footers," said Malone. "I re-evaluated his ability real quick. He's a real NBA prospect."

In Baseball Contest

Sandies Rout Herd

The Amarillo Sandies collected 16 hits off two Hereford hurlers and took advantage of eight errors by the host team to score a 21-5 baseball win over the Whitefaces Tuesday.

The loss evened Hereford's record at 3-3. The Whiteface nine plays at home again Saturday, hosting the Borger Bulldogs at 3 p.m.

Amarillo scored six runs over the first three innings, then erupted for five runs in the 4th inning and 10 more in the 5th frame. The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run lead rule.

Hereford managed only three hits off Sandie hurler Scott Lester. Norman Hill rapped out the only extra-base hit—a double—for the Whitefaces. Kyle Eddleman hit a triple and home run for Amarillo, and Mike King contributed a double and a homer.

Matt Collier started on the mound for Hereford and was relieved by Glen Phibbs in the fourth inning. Collier took the loss and now has a 2-1 record.

Hereford trailed by 11-0 before plating a run in the bottom of the fourth frame. The Herd added four more runs in the fifth, but Amarillo had put the game on ice with 10 runs in the top of the frame.

Floyd Takes Hot Hand To Heritage Classic

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Ray Floyd brings the hottest hand in the golf and the most financially-productive game in the history of the sport into the $300,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

"Winning tournaments back to back — something I'd never done before — is rewarding enough in itself," Floyd said before a practice round Tuesday. "The monetary considerations are just icing on the cake."

And it's very expensive icing, too.

Floyd's playoff victory in the Tournament Players Championship Monday was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $440,000. And, as the winner of the Doral Open the week before, Floyd also collected a $250,000 bonus prize put up by sponsors of certain Florida events.

Those two checks, along with the $45,000 he won at Doral, gave Floyd $367,000 in earnings for the past two weeks, $117,000 of it "official" money.

And that makes the 38-year-old veteran the man to beat in the chase for a $54,000 first prize in the prestigious Heritage which begins Thursday on the deceptively difficult 6,850-yard, par-71 Harbour Town Golf Links.

"We all know that your golf game can go at any time," Floyd said. "But, happily, I'm still playing wonderful golf, the best of my life. There's no reason I couldn't win again."

"I'm not predicting that I will win. There are too many factors that go into it for anybody to say he's going to win a specific tournament."

"But I'm playing very well. Success breeds success. I'm coming in here with my confidence at a high point. I feel like I can hit the shot I need at the time I need it. It's a wonderful feeling."

Arrayed against him on this resort island is an extremely strong, elite, invitational field of 120, headed by Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Bruce Lietzke.

Lietzke has won twice already this season and played well last week. Irwin, twice a U.S. Open champion and a winner in Hawaii earlier this season, has scored two previous victories on this picturesque course.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — We don't want the federal government to take half the land between Sherman and Hockley Counties.

The federal government has a plan to expand our system of land-based missiles. It's called the MX missile system. The plan would put missiles on vehicles on underground roads and drive them around to avoid detection.

This is fine with us, if the government thinks our national security requires that. But that's not the whole story.

The government really has two plans for MX missiles and has not yet decided which one to use. One would put all the missiles on one base in Nevada and Utah. The other would put half the missiles on a base in Texas and New Mexico — right in the middle of the Panhandle, all the way down the South Plains to Hockley County.

We think this plan is ridiculous. For one thing, it would cost the U.S. taxpayers an extra $3.475 billion. In this day of trying to cut down on the amount of money Washington spends, this is a terrific waste.

The plan to split the base also would displace 500 families. If that is not bad enough (and it is), the plan also would use thousands of sections of some of the best agricultural land in Texas. For example, it would take half the land in Deaf Smith County alone. Deaf Smith County consistently ranks as one of the top two agricultural counties in the state, and is the number one county in cattle production. It also would take all the land in Dallam County. We already have letters of support from Senator Lloyd

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Limiting caffeine helps

DEAR DR. LAMB — After reading an article in the newspaper about the effects of caffeine on the body I was able to eliminate some feelings of lightheadedness and some weird feelings I'd been experiencing by reducing the amount of caffeine in my diet.

Is the amount of caffeine in 97 percent caffeine-free coffee sufficient to affect the body if one cup is consumed a day? Is caffeine cumulative in the body or is it eliminated each day?

DEAR READER — First, I would like to point out that your symptoms of anxiety and nervousness are not unusual in people who consume a lot of coffee. Caffeine in coffee is a brain stimulant. I do think that a major portion of the American population, would feel less anxious and function better if they eliminated or significantly curtailed the consumption of caffeine in coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. We have a society with a lot of people who need or take tranquilizers but who still consume large amounts of "liquid go pills" in the form of caffeine-containing beverages.

Caffeinism also occurs in school children from an excess intake of colas and chocolate. And young people's nervous systems are more sensitive to caffeine than adults.

Now, 97 percent caffeine free means there is no significant amount of caffeine in the coffee. But decaffeinated coffee can still be irritating to a sensitive digestive system, causing bowel complaints and burning in the pit of the stomach.

Caffeine is not accumulative unless you drink a lot in a short time. Generally, its initial effects are gone in about four hours. But it causes the body to produce an excess amount of adrenaline which may affect you longer. And people do develop a tolerance to coffee. I don't think your one cup of decaffeinated coffee will bother you unless you have digestive complaints.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You said that once a person has wrinkles the only thing to do for them is to use moisturizers. You said the best moisturizer for this was petroleum (Vaseline). Well, I hear that it makes hair grow on the face. Is that true?

DEAR READER — False. All that inert moisturizers such as Vaseline do is to form a film over the surface of the skin so the moisture normally in your skin doesn't evaporate and let your skin dry out. The retained moisture that accumulates naturally plumps out your skin and smoothes out the wrinkles.

I suspect that wild rumor got started because women at the age when they have problems with wrinkles are also at the age when they may have an increase in facial hair growth because of hormone changes. But they would have more prominent hair even if they did nothing.

Besides moisturizers there are cosmetic surgical procedures that are very successful in some cases — for both men and women.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When the body lactic acid is too high, resulting in muscular aches, how can it be lowered? The person involved is allergic to milk products so doesn't eat or drink them.

DEAR READER — I wonder if you have lactose, the double sugar in milk, confused with lactic acid. Lactose is a combination of glucose and galactose found only in milk, from lactation. Lactic acid is an intermediate compound in the process of breaking down glucose. If your working muscle does not have enough oxygen, it will still metabolize glucose to a point by forming lactic acid. This enables your muscles to get energy from glucose without using oxygen.

This usually occurs during vigorous exercise when the work exceeds the circulation to the working muscle. When the lactic acid level gets too high, the person has muscular fatigue. With rest, the circulation catches up with the oxygen needs, and the lactic acid is further metabolized, lowering its level. Rest is usually all that is needed. Physical training decreases the tendency to build up lactic acid with exercise.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer
— Cleaning dolls' faces

DEAR POLLY — I have quite a few dolls I have been trying to restore and dress for needy little girls. Their plastic or vinyl faces and bodies have been marked with ballpoint ink. I cannot remove it with hair spray, peroxide or several other things. Nothing seems to fade this ink, so I wonder if you or any of the readers have any suggestions. — MRS. B.H.

DEAR MRS. B.H. — I assume these are just used (not valuable antique) dolls, so one might be used for a bit of experimenting. Could these spots be touched up with a bit of matching paint that is carefully blended in?

Are you sure it is ballpoint ink, as it is usually fairly easy to remove. Rub on some petroleum jelly and then follow with a non-flammable dry cleaning fluid. Have you tried plain soap and water, used sparingly? You are to be commended for this worthy project, and I am sure you will be hearing from readers with other suggestions. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To clean off salt, cinders and so on, which have melted off the car on to the garage floor, I shovel snow on to the dirty areas, sweep out and the floor is left clean. Saves the concrete, too.

I like to eat grapefruit during the flu season, so I buy them and then clean, section and remove the seeds. I put them in a quart jar in the refrigerator, so they are handy for the children to get to or for anyone who wants a snack. — MRS. M.J.M.

DEAR POLLY — Like Alfreda I, too, had trouble with fringe on crocheted bedspreads. I have found that the ideal way is to wash them in the washer in a bag. I bought five yards of thin, cheap cotton and a very long zipper. The fabric was folded in half, the zipper sewed in on one side and the rest of the three sides sewed together. This makes a very large bag, so the spread can be folded loosely and zipped in it, then spread out in the washing machine. I use the gentle cycle and then take the spread out of the bag before putting it in the dryer, where I do not leave it too long, as it is better if it is a bit damp when I put on the bed. It can be shaped as desired, and if the fringe has to be worked with, it is better to do this while it is a bit damp. — LOU

King, TCGA Support Higher Loan Levels

By BOB NIGH
Managing Editor

The Texas Corn Growers Association, through spokesman Carl King of Dimmitt, urged the Congress to raise the loan levels on Basic Commodities equal to the cost of production plus 15 percent last week. King, Chairman of the TCGA, testified before the Corn, Soybean, and Wheat sub panel of the House Agriculture Committee Friday, March 20, regarding the 1981 Farm Bill.

The main thrust of King's testimony, which lasted about one hour, was the commodity price goal, with King calling target levels inadequate at best. King testified that "target prices, set at the national cost of production (tenet share) are too low and should be scrapped only if low levels on Basic Commodities are set at a cut off production level, which would cost the government very little, if any, monies if administered correctly."

Other items touched on by King included water importation, gasohol, exports, and funding for the Legal Services Corporation.

"We favor a water importation plan initiated by individual states, and urge co-operation of the Federal Government and the Corp of Engineers in any endeavor to hasten importation of water so as to assure the nation of an adequate food supply,"

King testified. King, and the TCGA went on record in favor of any efforts of the National Gasohol Committee to establish synthetic fuels to eliminate the nation's energy problems. They also promoted the expansion of exportation, recommending the government step up the P.L. 480 Program and "especially expand our export credit program to friendly countries."

As to the controversial Legal Services Corporation, King told the sub panel that his group "favors limited tax payers dollars to the Legal Services Corporation so as not to continue bureaucratic harassment to farmers and unnecessary hardships placed on agricultural business people."

King's testimony also called for call levels to be set at not less than national average price goals, with the government paying storage and interest costs. The TCGA supported a diversion of land when surpluses exceed one month's supply, adding that it should be automatic at the time oversupply is determined. And, they (TCGA) recommended continuing with a choice of the disaster loan program or the Federal Crop Insurance.

tained for 1981 until a permanent label can be obtained for the product, which fight spider mites in corn crops."

In a summation of his testimony King told the panel "Weather factors, embargos, and low loan and target levels have all contributed to the farmer's financial dilemma. I cannot emphasize enough the need for raising the low level on Basic Commodities. Higher price incentives to the producer are essential if we are to maintain adequate food supplies to our nation and to a hungry world."

Wind Energy Conversion System Profitable

EDMONSON, Texas -- Standing 60 feet above the plowed farm land, the thirty-two foot diameter blades of Terry McEachern's Wind Energy Conversion System beat against the twenty miles per hour breeze, and McEachern laughed as he watched a utility meter spin. "I love it, because when that meter spins, it means that I'm making money from energy I produce with my wind turbine."

Installed in early February, the Wind Energy Conversion System, (W.E.C.S.) is a sleek, two-bladed machine manufactured by Jay Carter Enterprises, Inc., and sold regionally by New Dawn Energy Concepts, Inc. of Plainview, Texas. The Carter JCE-25 produces 25 kW in a 25 mph wind, and is expected to produce approximately 45,000 kwh of electricity in a year. This electric power is first applied to the load, be it a home, irrigation well or industrial application. Any excess can be sold to the utility company at the prevailing rate established by the Texas Public Utilities Commission. Should the wind not produce all the power needed, the utility will provide the necessary power to make up the difference, but the wind machine will provide all the power it produces to the load, thus reducing the amount of energy which must be purchased.

"I have a tremendous electric bill here at McEachern Farms, where the average electric bill has been in excess of $400.00 per month. I expect the wind turbine to reduce that bill considerably, if not completely. With the spring winds that we have experienced already, there are many days that the wind turbine will produce enough power to completely power my needs and have excess power to sell to the utility. I think that's better than money in the bank."

Gary Garrison, Secretary of New Dawn Energy Concepts, Inc. believes that an even more attractive rate structure may be available in the near future for WECS owners. "At the present time, the utility generally pays the fuel adjustment rate as a fee for wind generated power. However, the federal regulations which apply to utilities will soon require the utility to pay a rate which reflects their "displaced costs" which means that the rate must reflect the savings realized by the utilities for obtaining power that they did not have to generate. This may well result in a direct trade-off of power, with the utility paying just what they receive for power they sell to the consumer. In some states, the utility even pays more for wind generated power than they charge a typical consumer for the energy."

When the power out-put of the WECS is considered along with the tax incentives and depreciation schedules available for wind energy systems, the pay back period on such a system is impressive. The McEachern Farms unit, installed at a cost of $21,000.00, is expected to pay for itself in five to seven years. In a commercial situation, that period of time could well be less than three years. From the point of pay-back, the energy savings will literally become an investment in the wind, paying dividends over the remaining life expectancy of the WECS, which is expected to be some 20 years, according to the manufacturer.

Wind power in the Panhandle is becoming commonplace. At least six manufacturers have installed their units in an area within 100 miles of Amarillo, Texas and at this time, perhaps as many as 30 WECS units are either in operation or in the process of installation. The same wind that residents have long cursed may soon become the saving power which allows irrigation farming to continue in the face of escalating energy costs. Wind powered irrigation systems, as McEachern points out, would allow farmers to continue to irrigate while fossil fuels become too expensive traditional irrigation farming. "Just the difference between one year production of dry land and irrigated would pay for the Wind turbine," McEachern insists.

Recent announcements by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District also point out the value of wind power and the relation to irrigation farming in the future. The Water District claims that by use of secondary recovery methods similar to oil field operations; as much as 200 million acre feet, an amount equal to all the water pumped out of the Ogallala formation, could be recovered by pumping compressed air into the water strata. Water held in suspension by capillary action would be forced into a "free water" situation where it could be pumped. The source of the compressed air -- wind generators. It would appear that the old settlers' description of West Texas "Where the wind makes the water and the cows make the wood" will soon come true.

Sugar Industry Wants Non-Recourse Loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Inclusion of non-recourse government loans for sugar in the 1981 Farm Bill -- a program similar to those currently operated for other commodities -- will be proposed by representatives of the nation's sugar industry today in testimony before the U.S. House of Representatives' Cotton, Rice and Sugar Subcommittee.

If they follow the pattern set in Senate Agriculture Committee hearings last week, for the first time in several years, all of the country's sugarbeet and sugarcane growers and first-processor segments will be unified in support of a program that will assure adequate supplies and stability of sugar prices at levels "best serving both consumers and producers."

Also appearing on behalf of the U.S. sugar industry at the recent Senate hearing were U.S. Senators Daniel Inouye and Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, a major sugar-producing state.

The Senate hearing focused on increased U.S. dependence on the volatile world sugar market, which represented only about 25 percent of total world production last year. As the principal purchaser of world market sugar, U.S. sugar prices typically reflect prices on the world market.

According to Senator Inouye, the percentage narrowness of the world free sugar market places the U.S. consumer and producer at the mercy of the world's largest producers, such as Cuba, and the world's largest consumers, like the Soviet Union.

"Minor changes in the sugar marketing agreements between those two nations can send the free market price of sugar skyrocketing or plummeting," Inouye said. "As recently as last October, rumors of a huge Soviet purchase on the world market pushed the price of sugar on the New York futures market to a 5 1/2 year record high of 42.93 cents per pound."

Ramon S. Billeaud, speaking on behalf of the American Sugar Cane League of the U.S.A., said the wildly fluctuating prices precipitated by the absence of a U.S. sugar policy over the past seven years has caused the nation to become increasingly reliant upon dependable foreign supplies.

"We are all aware of the volatile political climate in El Salvador, Nicaragua, Panama, the Philippines and other supplying areas," warned Billeaud. "Our dependence on these nations would increase tremendously without a domestic sugar industry," he added.

Although the nation's food processing industry currently is largely dependent on domestically produced sugar, it remains virtually the only agricultural commodity produced here which is not covered by some type of government program, reported David Carter, president of the U.S. Beet Sugar Association. During his testimony, Carter urged approval of a program that would place sugar growers "on equal footing with domestic producers of other food and fiber crops."

Reiterating other statements given during the hearing, Mark Sandstrom of the Great Western Sugar Company told the Subcommittee members that at current domestic price levels there would be no net cost to the U.S. government or impact upon the price of sugar with the adoption of a straightforward commodity loan provision in this year's Farm Bill.

"This loan proposal is a reasonable method of insuring the continued existence of the domestic sugar industry, an industry which provides industrial users and U.S. consumers greater access to sugar at prices much lower than if no domestic production capacity existed at all," he said.

Tick Patrol Officers Want Permission To Carry Firearms

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Agricultural inspectors on the tick patrol along the Texas-Mexican border are looking to Washington for permission to carry firearms on their excursions into the isolated countryside.

"We've had our people shot at more than once, and we had a fellow killed," Agriculture Department spokesman Tom Gilliland said. "So these guys are rather anxious to be armed."

Specific legislative authority is required for federal employees to bear firearms on duty.

There are about 125 tick inspectors working on horseback in the tick eradication program, looking for stray cattle from Mexico in a strip of territory that runs from north of Del Rio, Texas, to the Gulf Coast.

Gilliland, legislative affairs director for the department's animal and plant health inspection service, said the inspectors are on guard against the tick species that carries the cattle-killing disease called Texas fever.

"It's a quarantine device to try and keep these ticks out of the country," he said. "It may seem small but if it ever got out of hand again it could be millions of dollars to the cattle industry."

Rep. Abraham "Chick" Kazen, a Democrat from Laredo, has introduced a bill in the new congressional session that would give the inspectors permission to carry handguns.

"Being so close to the border, they do run into aliens and smugglers," a Kazen aide said Thursday. "I guess occasionally they have run into an angry rancher."

The aide, who asked not to be identified by name, said the tick inspectors believe that carrying firearms would be an adequate deterrent to any dangers in the rough and remote areas they patrol, often alone.

An inspector was killed in 1976 about 50 miles northwest of Laredo. The shooting remains unsolved.

Gilliland said many of the inspectors already carry firearms because they are worried about the potential for danger.

"What that bill is attempting to do is make official what is the fact of the situation right now," he said. "Unofficially, we look very kindly on that bill."

The tick eradication program is based in Laredo. The American Federation of Government Employees in South Texas has worked actively to get congressional attention for the issue.
