Reagan proposes 'fresh start' with peace effort

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - President Reagan, offering a "fresh start" in troubled U.S.-Soviet relations, today proposed the superpowers undertake a regional peace process in five war-torn countries.

"We must begin somewhere." Reagan declared in an address to the U.N. General Assembly, "so let us begin where there is great need and great hope."

In all five countries -Afghanistan, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Angola and Nicaragua — the president said, Marxism-Leninism is at "war with the people."

"Lives are being lost each day" because of Soviet expansion in those countries, Reagan charged. And, in each instance, he said, the conflict has spilled over into "war with their neighbors."

Reagan said the United States seeks "real peace" and, to pursue it, he intends to make the resolution of regional conflicts in Africa, Asia and Central America a "central issue" at his summit meeting Nov. 19-20 with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva, Switzerland.

The proposed regional peace talks would be initiated by the warring parties, the president said.

In Afghanistan, where the Soviets have more than 100,000 troops sustaining a pro-Moscow government, Reagan said the Soviet Union must be included in the negotiations from the start in order to achieve an end to the four-year-old civil war.

His speech, marking the 40th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, recalled that the world organization was intended to be a "guiding star" to freedom. "Dreams of trust are worthy," the president said, "but in these 40 years, too many dreams have been

Hill estate donates to Lions Club

Checks totaling $20,000 from the Jim Hill Estate were presented to Hereford Lions Club Wednesday for use in three of the club's projects.

Rocky Lee, a trustee for the estate, announced that the checks were earmarked for Girlstown, U.S.A. ($10,000), the Lions Crippled Children's Camp at Kerrville ($5,000), and the High Plains Eye Bank ($5,000).

Lee also announced that trustees are closing out the trust fund at the end of this month, bringing to an end the generous contributions made by the Jim Hill Estate over the years to many civic and charitable causes.

Club President Donald Hicks, who personally knew the late Jim Hill. praised the many accomplishments made possible by the estate.

Gayle Cotton, program chairman, introduced Marilyn Van Patten as the guest speaker for the weekly program. She presented an overview of the work being done at the Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo. The facility was completed in 1981 through a major grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation and contributions from individuals, foundations and corporations. The out-patient facility serves the entire High Plains area.

The center treats about 100 patients a day, according to Van Patten, and has treated more than 4,000 patients from 176 localities. Approximately 53 percent of the patients reside outside the Amarillo/Canyon area. A total of 260 patients have been treated from the Hereford-Dimmitt-Friona area since the facility started operations. The center is a non-profit institution. Current operations are funded by patient revenues and contributions through on-going solicitations.

The cancer center's medical staff includes physicians specializing in various forms of cancer. The patient care team also includes nurses, pharmacists, laboratory technicians and radiation therapy technologists. pastoral counselors, dieticians, physicists, enterostomal therapists. and volunteers. The team approach is inherent in the center's philosophy to treat the whole patient-physically, emotionally and spiritually, said Van Patten.

Three Checks Presented

Three checks totaling $20,000 were presented by the Jim Hill Estate Wednesday at the Hereford Lions Club meeting. Rocky Lee, left, trustee for the estate, presented the checks to Lion President Donald Hicks. The checks are to be used for Girlstown ($10,000), Lions Crippled Children's Camp ($5,000) and the High Plains Eye Bank ($5,000).

No hearing date was set. The 90-page petition asks the court to force the Texas Association of School Boards and its members to listen to the grievances of TSTA's 96,000 members. The suit also asks $1,000 each from every school superintendent and school board member involved, mostly to help pay attorneys' fees.

The Texas Association of School Boards office said it had not receiv a copy of thd petition and would have no immediate comment.

"We are especially concerned about the right of teachers to discuss, challenge and, if necessary, to grieve decisions that directly affect whether or not they are placed on the career ladder," TSTA President Charles Beard told a news conference The 1984 Legislature's major school reform bill established a "career ladder" for teachers that would provide additional benefits for outstanding teachers.

The teachers association has accused the school board association of advising its members to refuse to listen to complaints about contracts, assignments, salaries and the evaluation process. "While we supported many of the education reforms enacted last summer and believe that many are now working well, we had and continue to have grave concerns about the career ladder," Beard said. "Of all the reforms, the career ladder is causing more havoc and confusion and ill will among educators than any other."

The TSTA wants a court order directing the TASB and its members to cease "willful and improper interference with teachers' rights."

The 20 individual school districts named as defendants in the suit are Grand Prairie, Kingsville, San Benito, McKinney, United (Laredo), Beaumont, Duncanville, Halletsville, Lampasas, Midland, El Paso, Denton, Vidor, Irving. Galveston, Waco, Channelview, ed the Internal Revenue Service. The panel did a major bit of backtracking Wednesday as it sought to keep the tax-overhaul issue alive despite an apparent lack of public interest. Following a week of criticism, the committee reversed much of a major $1-billion-a-year tax cut it had voted for commercial banks. And, going once again against the wishes of its chairman and President Reagan, the committee agreed that all credit unions should remain exempt from federal income taxes.

The votes came in a closed-door session that, according to two members, was marked by increasing frustration over the slow pace of members, who would not be quoted by name, said fellow lawmakers were pressuring Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., to abandon the entire tax issue until 1986.

The fate of the tax-overhaul bill, which Reagan has made the top domestic priority of his second term, could be determined this weekend. Rostenkowski scheduled work sessions for Friday, Saturday and Sunday amid indications that a lack of significant progress might end the effort this year.

In the meantime, the panel made several decisions Wednesday affecting banking institutions. It also voted to make it a little tougher on taxpayers who are delinquent in payments to the IRS.

Aides to the committee said members are convinced many taxpayers take advantage of the by the IRS; they prefer to owe the IRS rather than go to a bank and borrow money to pay their taxes. That also discourages a negotiated settlement of a tax debt with the IRS and encourages the filing of Tax Court suits, aides said.

Present law ties the interest rate charged delinquent taxpayers to the "prime rate" that blue-chip corporations pay when they borrow money. Under that formula the IRS rate now is 11 percent.

The committee approved an amendment by Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., tying the IRS rate to the interest the Treasury Department must pay when it sells 90-day bills, plus three percen5ae points.

However, the interest the IRS pays on money it owes taxpayers would be one percentage point less. And that difference, the committee estimates,

7th Houston driver slain

HOUSTON (AP) - A widowed taxi driver with three children who was robbed and fatally shot has become the seventh Houston driver slain during the past 13 months, authorities said.

Cecilia N. LaTray, 39, died Wednesday morning, one week after she received a city permit to drive a taxi for Yellow Cab Co., authorities said.

Yellow Cab Co. president Joe Chernow said Ms. LaTray was almost "penniless" when she took the cab driving job and had three children, the youngest of whom was 8 and the oldest a teen-ager.

Chernow said the cab company was offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the killer's arrest.

A witness, the Rev. Henry Idlebird, said he saw a cab drive by his home about 9:45 a.m. with a passenger in the front seat next to the driver. The minister said he then heard a gunshot and the sound of a car speeding off.

Mother reunited with children

DALLAS (AP) - Sherry Filimonuk says she has not "come out of the clouds" since she being reunited with her two children, one of whom recognized his picture on two missing children posters.

The 8-year-old boy saw the posters on the same day last month while he was with his father and his sister, Michele, 6. He persistently questioned his father, who eventually decided to return the children to their mother.

Rate hike deemed unreasonable

AUSTIN (AP) - The Public Utility Commission's decision to seek more information about AT&T Communications' $114.5 million rate hike request is "unreasonable," says a company official.

"We provided as much information as any utility has ever provided," said AT&T Vice President Tom Jones.

But Commissioners Peggy Rosson and Dennis Thomas, who disagreed on whether AT&T is entitled to any more money, agreed that the company's rate hike package left unanswered questions.

In a meeting Wednesday, Ms. Rosson said AT&T should get no hike. Thomas favored a $50 million hike. Jones said the company will lose about $30 million in Texas this year. He said the $50 million hike "would not get us out of the red."

The three-member commission is down to two because Gov. Mark White has not appointed a replacement for Phil Ricketts, whose term expired in August.

Royal found auilty

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - Jurors deliberated about three hours before convicting former Big Spring federal prison guard Eddie Joe Roybal of accepting a gratuity from convicted drug kingpin Rex

Roybal, 33, also was found guilty Wednesday of two counts of accepting gratuities from other inmates, one countof smuggling a controlled substance into the prison camp and one count of smuggling contraband into the facility.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward will sentence Roybal at a later date. Meanwhile, Roybal, who now lives in Weatherford, remains free ona personal recognizance bond.

On Tuesday, Roybal denied doing any favors for Cauble in exchange for a $11,550 loan from Cauble's sister, Thelda Cauble Harris of Denton. The defendant also denied doing any special favors for inmate Gary Marcus Gunter in return for money.

FBI agents testified that Gunter was cooperating with prison officials and FBI agents when he arranged $1,000 in marked bills to be

Helmets not adequate in protection

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly a half-million soldiers and Marines wearing a new combat helmet may be inadequately protected because a manufacturer changed production specifications for the synthetic-material headgear, the Pentagon says.

Officials are investigating whether the manufacturer of the new helmet, which is designed to replace the familiar "steel pot," ignored government specifications to improve its profits, William Caldwell, a Pentagon spokesman, said Wednesday.

More than 460,000 helmets, out of the 800,000 already in use by Army and Marine Corps units, are affected. The helmets, produced over the last two years by Gentex Corp. of Carbondale, Pa., are made of a special resin and synthetic fiber material known as Kevlar. Gentex no longer makes the helmets itself, but still supplies the material for production by two other firms, Caldwell said. Gentex denied any wrongdoing.

The report, requested by House and Senate committees, noted that many new and uncontrolled methods of surveillance are made possible by the very technologies of which more and more Americans are availing themselves - electronic mail, computer conferencing, cellular and cordless telephones, beepers and electronic pagers. Intercepting such devices is easy, and "the law has not kept pace," the agency said.

But other devices, such as miniature television cameras and pen registers - which monitor the numbers called on a given telephone line - have enabled new ways to spy on people even if their own communications habits are more oldfashioned, the agency noted.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on courts and civil liberties, said the study "shows how the law in this area has broken down; it is up to Congress to fix it. If we fail to act, the personal and business communications of Americans will not have the privacy protection they deserve."

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said the report "documents how new and more intrusive forms of snooping have followed in the wake of the exciting advances in communications technology," and agreed Congress must "bring federal privacy laws up to date.'

The congressional agency said it could not estimate the extent of electronic surveillance in the private sector, saying only "it is probable that many forms ... go undetected, and if detected, go unreported."

But in its survey of the federal bureaucracy, OTA found 35 agencies, mostly in the Justice, Treasury and Defense departments, used or planned to use:

-Closed circuit television, 29 agencies.

-Night vision systems, 22.

-Miniature transmitters, 21. -Electronic beepers and sensors,

-Telephone taps, recorders, and pen registers, 14.

-Computer usage monitoring, 6. -Electronic mail monitoring, 6.

-Cellular radio interception, 5. -Satellite interception, 4.

"We've been here nine years and that's why it was time for a facelift," said Peggy Ferguson, owner and stylist of A Touch Class beauty salon.

Ferguson decided to remodel when the state board inspector came and informed her she would reupholster her styling chairs.

"One of the state rules is no rips or tears in the upholstry," said Ferguson. "I really wanted to redecorate - but then I had a reason."

"Rainbow Carpet came and dyed the carpet right there on the floor," said Ferguson, "I didn't realize you don't have to take up the carpet to have it dyed."

After choosing a complimentary tile, the floor was also redone.

"One of the first things we did after repainting," said Ferguson, "we to get rid of the heavy drapes and put up matching mini-blinds."

The next step was to recover some of the furniture. "My mother (Peggy Lemons) re-covered the sofas in the reception area," said Ferguson.

"Stockstill Interiors did a beautiful job of reupholstering the style chairs in the same matching teal," said Ferguson.

All remodeling materials were purchased in Hereford at local stores. "The only thing I did go to Amarillo for was epoxy paint to paint the shampoo bowls," said Ferguson. She explained, "that when painting cast iron shampoo bowls, you have to thoroughly clean them. This means lightly sanding the bowl with sand

Ferguson also said that epoxy paint has two bases that have to be mixed together immediately before "The naint hardens and you only mix what you need," warned Ferguson.

After the first coat, the paint dries for 24 hours and a second coat of epoxy is applied.

Art of quilting topic of program

"Cold Night Beauties" was the program presented by Gladys Setliff when members of Hereford Study Club met recently in the home of Nedra Robinson

Miss Setliff's topic concerned quilts. She gave a brief history of quitling from the time it was introduced into western Europe by knights of the Crusades who came home from the Holy Wars in the near East wearing quilted vests under their harsh steel armor. The women of that era adapted this art to the making of bed coverings.

Patchwork quilts, those made by piecing squares, rectangles, diamonds and triangles into designs with rhythm and balance, originated in America. The method was invented because of scarcity of material. Necessity forced them to make bed-size quilts from small pieces of material sewn together. The names of these patchwork quilt patterns outline the history of Miss Setliff exhibited four quilts illustrating points made in her discussion of the subject.

Underground economy has grown in 15 years

Otherwise law-abiding citizens are contributing to the growth of the underground economy as they become disenchanted with the federal income tax system, a Texas Tech University economist believes.

The underground economy-the part of the economy not measured in gross national product (GNP)-has grown the past 15 years as people have resorted to it as a means of income tax evasion, said Dr. Ronald D. Gilbert, chairperson of the Economics Department.

Underground economics include explicitly illegal activities such as drugs, gambling and prostitution and normally legal activities which take on an illegal aspect because the transaction is conducted in a way to avoid reporting income.

While activities such as drug trafficking and gambling have probably not grown relative to the economy, activities designed to evade taxes have, he said. Classified in this category are most instances of bartering and trading goods or services on a cash basis so transactions do not appear on income reports.

"We're developing a major problem with the underground economy," Gilbert said. "There seems to be a growing feeling in the public that the federal tax system is unfair, so people are looking for ways to reduce their income taxes."

Gilbert said there is a strong link between tax rates and demand for currency. When federal taxes are increased, there is a corresponding increase in the demand for currency as individuals begin using cash for more of their transactions. Selling goods and services for cash is a widespread practice to avoid reporting and paying taxes on the income, he said.

It is not difficult, Gilbert said, to find businesses which will sell their product or service at a cheaper price for cash payments.

An illustration of the demand for currency to fuel illegal activities is seen at the branch bank of the Federal Reserve in Miami, Fla., he said. The bank distributes twice as many $100 Federal Reserve notes per capita as any other bank in the country. The demand is attributed to the large amount of drug trafficking in the coastal city.

reporting income is an indication of discontent with the federal income tax, said Gilbert.

"The United States is the only country to ever achieve widespread success with an income tax. That was done through withholding-type taxes so the government gets the money directly," he said. "Now, the element of voluntary compliance is eroding. That is seen directly as contributing to the growth of the underground economy."

The underground economy would add an additional 15 to 30 percent, $450 to $900 billion, to the nation's $3 trillion GNP, Gilbert estimates. Using 25 percent as an average figure paid by individuals for income taxes, the unreported income could generate between $112 and $225 billion in tax revenues annually.

Gilbert said the government is gradually moving away from income taxes to usage-type taxes because of erosion in honest income reporting. However, the U.S. will probably never abolish the income tax, he

The public generally considers sales tax a more fair way to support the government. Part of that is because it comes in small doses when a product is purchased.

The increasing dominance of service-related businesses as part of the economy has also contributed to growth in income tax deception. Services generally do not have an inventory to account for and cash payments not reported often go unnoticed.

Bartering-trading goods or services for anothr person's goods or services without the exchange of currency-is an increasingly popular form of transaction which often has tax evasion as its intent. Bartering houses aid in connecting individuals for trades of this type.

Despite the resurgence of bartering, Gilbert said, it will never become a major part of the economy.

"Bartering is a very inefficient way to conduct business because the information costs are so high. To barter, you have to find someone who has something you want and who has a need for your product or service," he explained. "Currency is a social contrivance developed because of the need for it to exchange goods or

An inexpensive reflective banner that asks passing drivers to "Call Police" and help the stranded motorist is available from the Los Angeles Commission on Assaults Against Women (LACAAW).

The reusable plastic banner is recommended as an important part of every car's safety equipment by many law enforcement agencies. The banner folds down to fit inside a car's glove compartment. When a motorist has car trouble, all she or he needs to do is lock the car doors, get the banner out of the glove compartment, place it in the rear window (four corner stickers are provided) and wait for the police to arrive.

"Motorists do respond by calling the police," said Judy Ravitz, executive director of LACAAW," and we feel this sign will help deter potential attackers because the police may arrive any second. It's also a good safety measure because you don't have to get out of your car and take the chance of being hit by traffic.

The signs can be ordered by sending a $4 donation per sign and 50 cents for postage and handling per sign to: Car Safety Signs, P.O. Box 48903, Los Angeles, CA 90048. The signs are also available in bulk quan-

Marriage still popular

Although more couples are living together without the sanctity of wedding vows at their threshold, those who want the stronger commitment of marriage are just as serious about it as ever.

Sociologist Brent S. Roper said that, in fact, the guest for a marriage partner appears to have caused an upset in the sexual revolution of the pat two decades. Roper is a member of the Texas Tech University faculty.

"Marriage is still the most popular game in town," Dr. Roper said. To accomplish the goal of matrimony, people often are imposing some restraints on themselves to avoid the results that previous sexual permissiveness has brought them.

Roper said people now seem to be afraid that the laxity of today's dating relationships has left little incentive to make a trip down the aisle.

"We went through a time when we shocked the world with our sexual liberalism." Roper said. "Now we're turning back the other way."

The old attitude that men want their women to be chaste is taking over, Roper said, along with the decision by women to give themselves totally to a relationship only if it is going to be permanent

"We went too far and too fast with the sexual movement. We weren't ready for the things we were doing," Roper said.

People who wanted a commitment in a relationship found themselves without hope when a balking partner became too comfortable in the current arrangement. One of the problems unmarried couples living together experience is that one partner may view the setup as a trial marriage, while the other is just there for convenience, Roper

Another pitfall is brought about by the partner who comes into the relationship with a list of rules and regulations and expects too much. Roper said statistics showing cohabitation on the increase may be a reflection of couples living together for economic reasons, such as the 60-year-olds whose Social Security benefits would be reduced if they were married. Another factor may be that couples now are waiting later in life to get married, he said.

And, the busines world's change in attitude that people do not have to be married to succeed has taken the pressure off some to tie the knot.

"It used to be with the upwardly mobile male executive that he had to have a wife to get ahead-so he got one," Roper said. "Now busineseses are looking more at people for what they have to contribute as individuals."

But Roper said he always sees a place for the marital union. "There is no way marriage will ever fade out totally.'

Not only is the desire for its permanence still apparent, but people seem unwilling to approve of any other kind of arrangement.

"We're still a very religious society. I know of no major denomination that totally accepts cohabitation," Rober said.

EVOLUTION OF

LAS VEGAS LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mention Las Vegas today and there's instant recognition.

But it wasn't always so, according to Travel Agent Magazine. In the 1900s when Las Vegas was a dusty, desert town, it was picked by the Union Pacific Railroad as a watering spot for the line's Los Angeles-Salt Lake City run. And, 50 years ago the total popula-tion was less than 9,000.

After the construction of nearby Hoover Dam in the 1930s, many construction workers and their families stayed on. And the establishment of an air base during World War II resulted in the population's doubling.

Today, Las Vegas has nearly 900,000 residents and nearly 12 million visitors

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A judge has ordered disability payments to begin to a former city sanitation supervisor who won a muchcriticized workers' compensation ruling based on his fear of working with black people.

Gary Pearl, 39, left his job two years ago after suffering a nervous breakdown, brought on, he claimed, by the stress of working with blacks.

The Kentucky Workers Compensation Board ruled in April the state must pay Pearl's weekly benefits. the city must pay his medical expenses and that he should receive back pay dating to his resignation in March 1983. Medical malpractice suits increasing Families expecting babies natural- traces the stages of pregnancy and ly plan for smooth pregnancies and delivery, noting where problems perfect babies. When that doesn't which can lead to lawsuits typically happen, they may look for someone to blame and end up in a courtroom, accusing their doctors of negligence.

Texas Tech University law Professor Scott M. Lewis said whether or not negligence is a factor, almost all pregnancies which do not go well for the mother or the baby result in lawsuits. The facts are that a certain percentage of pregnancies will not end happily even under the best of circumstances.

Many factors contribute to the increasing incidence of medical malpractice suits, but the end result leads in only one direction-good doctors leaving the field, Lewis said.

"Excessive jury awards have increased the cost of medical malpractice insurance so much that some doctors can't really afford to stay in the high risk specialties," he said. "Lots of obstetricians are leaving the practice and not delivering babies which means the best trained people are being driven out."

Lewis has written a practice book "OB/GHN Malpractice" which will be released in February by Wiley Law Publications. Primarily for lawyers and physicians, the book

State Capital HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN-The controversial "no-pass, no-play" rule last week hit the Texas schoolboy football season for the first time as thousands of worried students, parents, and coaches watched to see if their fall football ritual would be decimated.

Political movers and shakers across the state watched, too, wondering whether those decimated souls would become angry enough to tilt momentum their way now for the '86 elec-

How angry can you get when some 15 percent of Texas students fail the first six weeks and become ineligible for football, band, volleyball, drama and other activities?

One prevailing theory, of course, is that all this will effect the governor's race. Folks angered by the reform will rise up and vote against Gov. Mark White, who strong-armed nopass, no-play through the Legislature.

The other side of the coin is that concerned Texans will now see how badly the rule was needed and applaude the action.

Clements Counters

White, the one in the hot seat on this issue, took the positive road last week when the results were brought in: the "dire predictions" of mass failures proved false and students had buckled down to their studies.

He also jumped a potential opponent, former Gov. Bill Clements, whom he called "one of the first to retreat" from hardball academics.

Clements, when he saw that 15 percent of students were out for the next six weeks, said he favored changing the law to allow them to return to extracurricular activities as soon as they made higher grades, rather than making them sit out the entire six weeks.

Block or Punt?

In Houston, failing students are pushing a state district judge to decide this week whether to block enforcement of the no-pass, no-play law un-til the U.S. Supreme Court can rule whether it is unconstitutional.

The lawyer in that case wants the judge to make it a class action case.

Lights Out

Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock, who announced for reelection last week, issued a report pointing out ways the state can cut back on its utility

State buildings in Austin are supplied power by the city, which is increasing its state rates by about $1.8 million.

Bullock wasn't too happy with Austin about the rate hike, but he charged the state with wasting energy and throwing away millions of tax dollars.

Insurance Rates

Attacking rate hikes could become a popular political trend in '86.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox last week intervened in a car insurance rate case before the State Board of Insurance, saying the proposed rates are too high.

The move took some by surprise, since Mattox has never intervened before, but he said rates shouldn't go up at all because ratemakers hadn't weighed sufficiently the effect of the new seat belt laws, child safety seats and tougher DWI enforcement.

The Board agreed to postpone the issue to study those points.

Hot Utilities

White, of course, is catching political flak in Southeast Texas where utility rates have risen close to 50 percent, but his anticipated plan to fill a vacancy on the Public Utilities Commission with a former college buddy is drawing fire from consumer groups.

The governor is believed to be narrowing his choice to a Beaumont utility consultant, David E. Young, but a joint statement by a coalition of consumer groups called him the wrong appointee to the wrong job at the wrong time.'

Their move has caused Austin state Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos to delay confirming the nomination. Barrientos wasn't too happy with White's last-minute notification of his potential nominee and said he would study the issue for awhile before deciding whether to invoke senatorial courtesy.

Short Takes

• Rep. Kelly Godwin, R-Odessa, says he's starting a statewide petition drive for legislation to repeal the manda-tory seatbelt law, which he says is "an infringement on personal freedom."

· Texas Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez announced his candidacy for the post to which he was appointed by Gov. White.

· The Comptroller's office says an investigation has led to indictment of Thomas McGuffey, Lubbock, for alleged theft of sales taxes totaling $5,300.

Landry figures White can play on Sunday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer IRVING, Texas (AP) - Danny White should be able to start against the Atlanta Falcons Sunday, and that's a match he doesn't want to White, who is nursing injured ribs, has had some of his biggest days in the National Football League against the Falcons. He didn't play in last week's 16-14 loss to Philadelphia, but Coach Tom Landry said he should be ready to go this week.

"He threw a little bit last week and should work all this week," Landry said. "Being off a week shouldn't bother him too much." White's great games against Atlanta included one in the 1978 playoffs, when he replaced an injured Roger Staubach and rallied Dallas to a 27-20 victory. In the 1980 playoffs, White threw two touchdowns in the final four minutes in a 30-27 victory over the Falcons. 'The second Atlanta game was the kind of confidence builder that I really needed early in my career," White said. "I think I'll be able to play Sunday without any problems.'

White has a separated rib cartilage, an injury he protects with a flak jacket but still hurts every time he is heavily jarred.

In Sunday's game, there also may be another change in the starting lineup - right cornerback.

Landry said a knee injury has been bothering Ron Fellows, who has been the No. 1 target of opposition quarterbacks.

"Ron had one of his best summer camps, but hasn't played as well since he hurt his knee," Landry said. "He's still in pain. We could replace Scott has been playing very well," said Landry.

Landry said although the Cowboys' secondary was holding quarterbacks to the lowest percentage of completions in the NFL, some bad habits are developing.

"We need to stop the big plays," Landry said. "We can't go on the rest of the season giving them up like we have the last several weeks."

The Cowboys, 5-2, are rated 13-point favorites over the 1-6 Falcons in the noon game at Texas Stadium. It will be Atlanta's first regular-season visit here since 1970.

The Cowboys are expected to activate offensive lineman Howard Richards this week. Rookie guard Crawford Ker, who has been hospitalized with back spasms, is expected to be placed on the injured

Texas Tech rodeo set for tonight through Saturday

An exhibition of cutting horse techniques will be demonstrated by world champion cowboy Larry Mahan and cutting horse trainer Leon Harrel at the 36th annual Texas Tech National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Rodeo, which is scheduled today through Saturday.

Students from 14 colleges and universities from West Texas and Eastern New Mexico are expected to enter the rodeo.

Rodeo events begin at 8 p.m. each day at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. The events will include bareback, saddle-bronc, bull riding, calf roping, team roping and breakaway roping, steer wrestling, goat tying, and barrel racing.

The coronation of the 1985-86 Texas Tech rodeo queen will be held, and the 1985 inductee into the Texas Tech rodeo hall of fame will be announced. Also appearing at the rodeo will be "A loss is a loss," said Tulsa Coach Don Morton about the loss to Florida State. "It doesn't matter what the score is. Obviously, Florida State is a very talented and excellent football team with outstanding quickness, speed and athletic ability.

"It's like fighting the Russians with limited bullets. We're 2-5, and we have to think of a way to bounce back and be 3-5."

It was the worst defeat for the Golden Hurricane since a 100-6 loss to Houston in 1968. Florida State led Tulsa 41-7 at halftime, and had 462 yards total offense compared to 325 yards for Tulsa.

Tulsa leads the all-time series against West Texas State, 12-1-1, including a 35-7 victory over the Buffaloes last year. WTSU's only win over Tulsa was 57-21 in 1977, and the tie game was 17-17 in 1976.

Tulsa has the longest Missouri valley Conference winning streak with 22 straight league victories. The old record in the conference was 19 straight wins by Nebraska from 1910 to 1916.

Tulsa's last MVC loss was 36-34 to Southern Illinois in 1981. Tulsa had a 15-game winning streak in the conference from 1939 to 1943.

West Texas State rallied in the fourth quarter to tie Illinois State last Illinois State held a 29-8 lead at the end of three quarters. WTSU quarterback Tod Mayfield directed touchdown drives of 66, 62 and 51 yards to help WTSU tie the game at

James Morton scored for the Buffaloes with one-yard runs in the first and third touchdown drives of the fourth quarter. Mayfield passed 50 yards to Stan Carraway for the other fourth quarter touchdown.

Mayfield, who completed 32 of 49 passes for 369 yards against Illinois State, is rated No. 1 in the nation in NCAA Division I-AA in total offense with 320.1 yards per game.

Mayfield is also first in completions with 208; second in passing yards, 2,335, an average of 333.6 yards per game; second in completion percentage, 61.4 percent, and tied for fourth with four other players in touchdown passes with 14.

Mayfield is 13th in the nation in passing efficiency with 126.7 rating points.

Carraway is second in the nation in catches per game, 8.1, and is also second in receiving yards with 874 and second in passes caught with 57. Carraway is tied for third in touchdown receptions with eight and is 16th in yards per catch with a 15.3 average.

Mayfield needs just 23 more completions in WTSU's last three games to break Victor McGee's school record of 230 completions in a season (1982), and needs 890 yards to break McGee's single-season yardage record of 3,224 (also in 1982). McGee had 20 touchdown passes in 1982 to set a school record, and Mayfield needs seven more scoring tosses to break that record.

WTSU had 428 yards total offense against Illinois State, bringing the Buffaloes' season total to 2,977 yards--an average of 425.3 yards per game. Tulsa quarterback Steve Gage has completed 43 of 68 yards this season for 619 yards, one touchdown and six

Tudor pitches 3-0 shutout against Kansas City

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The St. Louis Cardinals are close enough to total victory to begin thinking about which of them will be voted most valuable player of the World Series.

Cardinal first baseman Jack Clark has already cast his vote for lefthander John Tudor.

"I would have to think so. He's probably the best pitcher in baseball," Clark said following Tudor's 3-0 victory over Kansas City in Wednesday night's fourth game of the series. "If we go on and win, he's been the guy."

guess I did just about everything I was supposed to do," said Tudor, whose five-hit, eightstrikeout masterpiece gave the Cardinals a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. "Everything was right. I had real good command of all my pit-

'When you think you're going to get Landrum, whose .400 series batting that pitch, you get a screwball or a changeup."

St. Louis second baseman Tommy Herr said Tudor was at his best against Kansas City pinch-hitter Hal McRae, a nemesis from Tudor's days in the American League. McRae came up with the bases loaded in the seventh inning.

"He's had good success in the past against John. The scouting reports showed that," Herr said. "If they get a big hit there, it's a different

But McRae, swinging at the first pitch, hit a grounder to third baseman Terry Pendleton, who stepped on the bag to end Kansas City's only major threat.

"It was a good pitch on the outside corner," Landrum said of the pitch from Kansas City left-hander Bud Black that he drove over the rightfield fence. "If you look at the TV monitor, the ball hooked.

"I don't hit many home runs, especially to right field," said Landrum, a right-handed batter. "I was figuring on a double."

Willie McGee crushed a ball over the wall in left-center an inning later, and the Cards got an insurance run in the fifth when Terry Pendleton tripled and scored on Tom Nieto's squeeze bunt.

"It was a slider that was supposed to be down and in. He got it up and a little out over the plate," McGee said of the pitch that became his third World Series homer. He hit two in St. Louis' 1982 defeat of the Milwaukee

Herr warned that getting to the brink of a championship doesn't mean the battle is won.

"Everybody knows they're an excellent team. If they beat us tomorrow night, we're going to have to go back to their ballpark," Herr said. "We just want to put the thing away. Now we've got a chance to end it before our home fans. That would be

Kansas City catcher Jim Sundberg knows the reputation of the go-forbroke Cardinals, who are liable to do anything at any time in a baseball

It came as no great shock to Sundberg when Nieto dropped down the suicide-squeeze bunt to deliver the Cards' final run Wednesday.

But on a 3-2 pitch, when a foul ball would mean a strikeout?

"It's a guessing game," Sundberg said. "Sometimes you win and sometimes you don't. They tried the squeeze on the first pitch. There was a chance they would try it again."

Pendleton was on third with a triple with one out in the fifth inning and Nieto, starting his first World Series game, was coming up. The catcher bunted on the first pitch and pitcher Bud Black and first baseman Steve Balboni led the ball roll foul. Had it stayed fair, Pendleton would have scored easily.

"I tried to be a little too fine with it," Nieto said.

If Sundberg still was concerned with the squeeze, Black was not. "He swung at the 0-1 pitch," the pitcher said. "But they do squeeze a lot."

The count went to 2-2 when Sundberg guessed squeeze again and called for a pitchout. He was one pitch

Nieto didn't miss. Black got to the bunt quickly and barehanded it, but rushed his throw. The ball squirted past Sundberg as Pendleton slid

"The throw was up the line, into the runner a bit," the catcher said. "You plant yourself in the middle to go in either direction. The bodies linking and all, it just got by."

"Pendleton's a good runner," said Black. "A left-hander can't eyeball him back to third, so that gave him a better jump. It was just a good

"We haven't seen the squeeze hardly at all this year," the catcher said. "Billy Martin did it a lot. When I played for him (at Texas) I did it six of seven times in 11/2 years."

Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog said he didn't consider bunting on 3-2 to be a risk.

"I'm not going to tell how many times we bunted on 3-2, but just let me say we've squeezed 19 times this year and been successful 16 times."

And would he do it again? "I squeeze with everybody except Jack Clark and Darrell Porter," Herzog said.

In being down three games to one Royals face enormous odds

ST. LOUIS (AP) - There's nothing left to say. If the Kansas City Royals don't know what to do by now, nothing Dick Howser can tell them will mean very much.

"It's too late for conversation," the manager said following Wednesday night's 3-0 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals that brought the Royals to the brink of elimination in the World

"I don't mean that fatally," he said. "But for me to sit up there and tell them this is a do-or-die situation and all that - no, we won't get into that. The players know it."

With one more victory, the Cardinals will win their second World Series in four seasons.

Jackson to have an outstanding game like the first time he pitched against them," Howser said.

Jackson was the loser in the Cardinals' 3-1 opening-game victory despite allowing only four hits and striking out seven batters.

The problem then was that he was pitching against John Tudor, the winner with 6 2-3 innings of seven-hit, one-run ball.

Jackson won't have that problem tonight because on Wednesday night Tudor shut down the Royals on five hits and struck out eight.

It gave the Cardinals a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Series with the fifth game tonight and, if necessary, the final two next weekend in Kansas Ci-

The Royals are facing enormous odds. Only five times in the 82 years of the World Series has a team down 3-1 ever won it, most recently the 1979 Pittsburgh Pirates. And no team that lost its first two Series games at home, as Kansas City did, has come back to win it all.

The Royals have been in this situation before, most recently against Toronto in the American League

'We didn't quit, we didn't pout, we didn't moan, we didn't give up," Royals slugger George Brett said, "and we're sure as hell not going to give up now. We've come too far to give up."

But Howser acknowledged that there's no comparison between last week and today.

"Those were the playoffs. This is the World Series. There is a difference," he said. "I'd like to say it's the same. We're in the same position. But there's still more at stake." So with survival on the line, the 23-year-old Jackson, 14-12 during the regular season, will be pitching against Bob Forsch, 9-6 as a spot starter and long reliever. Forsch, a 35-year-old right-hander, was ineffective in his only playoff appearance, giving up two runs in 3 1-3 innings against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

No matter, said Howser. "He's a starting pitcher on a National League championship team." Are the Cardinals the best team

Kansas City has faced this year?

"They're the best we've played in the last couple of days," Howser

But Brett, who struck out twice Wednesday night - and looked bad doing it in the eighth inning - said the Royals were facing the best this time, better than the Blue Jays.

"They're the most sound, fundamental baseball team there's been in a long time," Brett said. "They don't make mistakes, they've got solid pitching and they've got a lot of speed."

Brett sliced a single to left to start the seventh and, when Jim Sundberg punched a one-out single to right, Todd Worrell began warming up in the St. Louis bullpen. Darryl Motley flied to left, but Tudor walked Steve Balboni to load the bases.

Tudor was pitching around the Royals' leading home-run hitter, thinking he would face weak-hitting Buddy Bianacalana.

Then Tudor said he saw Hal McRae taking off his jacket and heading for the bat rack. "The first thing that went through my mind," Tudor said, "was, 'I'm in a lot of McRae, the Royals' designated hitter during the season but reduced to pinch-hitting in this DH-less Series, batted for Biancalana and hit the first pitch to Pendleton, the third baseman, who stepped on the bag for the inning-ending force play.

It was Kansas City's last chance in the game. Tonight may be the Royals' last chance in the Series. Howser can't look any farther down the road — to the possibility that the Royals could win the next two games and then wind up facing Tudor again

Man's business was born on the wind

EARTH, Texas (AP) - The wind blows, the wheel turns and Doug Parish smiles.

Parish makes windmills.

He's the only man in Texas who

"As long as there are ranches, they'll have to have windmills for pumping," the Earth native says. "There will always be a need for windmills."

And the Parish Windmill, he is quick to add, is the finest windmill made.

"The big thing that is better about our's is the chain-sprocket drive and sealed bearing" as opposed to gearbox-type windmills, he explains. All parts are easily repaired or replaced and require little maintenance, he adds.

"Our theory when we started was that if we went out of business in 20 or 30 years, you could still get parts for this windmill," says Parish.

That theory was the driving force behind "Poppa Gus" Parish's decision to start the business 15 years

THIS IS YOUR REPORTER

INTERVIEWING THE FAMOUS

"LONE BEAGLE" AFTER HIS

FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

"Dad got into it because he was afraid there wouldn't be any mills for ranchers. Everybody was going out of business," Parish says. "A lot of your old mills that were popular had gone out of business and you couldn't get parts. He wanted to make mills that you could get parts for very easi-

"It took hold very fast."

"Poppa Gus," who died in 1981, was an inventor. He moved to the South Plains from Llano in 1921, began farming, established a hardware store and "did a lot of mechanical work," says Parish.

One of his greatest successes was the development of a special windmill tail that acts as a governor for controlling wheel revolutions and pump rod strokes, says his son. The tail is hinged in a way that controls the position of the wheel in the wind in order to maintain regular strokes in high winds.

The Parish windmill also operates in less wind than other mills and features flat, heavier gauge wheel blades that can easily be repaired as opposed to the curved blades on other types of windmills, he says.

Parish Windmills are pumping water in 35 to 40 states, says Parish. Several thousand have been sold from Mexico to Montana. The factory, which normally employs about 12 people, can produce up to 10 wi idmills a day.

A Parish Windmill sells for between $4,000 and $5,000. Manufacturing and assembly is all done in Earth.

The company is one of only four in the nation still producing windmills. At one time there were probably 20 windmill companies in the U.S., producing about 15,000 mills a year, Parish estimates.

Parish, who produces about 300 windmills a year, says his business has been hurt by the slump in the cattle industry.

"In the 70s, the windmill business got better and better every year. In the 80s, it began to dip back down," he says. "It has been slow the last couple of years because of marketing conditions. We're probably 50 percent to what we normally run.

"A lot of your older mills that should be replaced have been patched up," he explains. "I think as soon they can get back on a profit basis with the cattle herds, you should see the windmill business pickup."

In the meantime, Parish has begun manufacturing a drag-type grader that has been successful, he says. The implement is pulled behind a motorized grader or tractor and costs about a tenth of what a motorized grader sells for, Parish adds.

But Parish's business was born on the wind and that's where his heart

"You get a satisfaction out of building something that is part of the past. It is something that is unique in itself," he says.

"Eventually the old mills will have to be replaced. We'll be there when

Known as a gastro-clip, the device reduces the size of the stomach and consists of two arms that hinge at one end. When closed, it creates a permanent opening approximately one-third the size of a normal stomach exit opening. The clip compresses the stomach walls and prevents bigger pieces of food from passing through the new opening. However, it does allow well-chewed particles to pass. Insertion of the clip does not require an opening in the stomach.

According to Drs. Samuel B. Bashour and R.W. Hill, surgeons are now focusing on reduction of the stomach's capacity as a means of gradual and more lasting weight loss rather than performing an intestinal bypass where a segment of the small intestine replaces the entire length of the intestine.

Patients in the study conducted by Bashour and Hill lost an average of 68 pounds. The weight loss was calculated at one week before and 12 months after surgery for each patient. According to Bashour, an individual who weighs 75 to 100 pounds over idea weight may be a candidate for the gastro-clip.

THE IMPORTANCE OF VINTAGE

Vintage is important in both foreign and domestic wines but with a different emphasis. The primary importance of vintage for foreign wines and where wine drinkers mention the phrase, "a good year," has to do with the widely variable climatic conditions in most winegrowing areas, notably France. Indeed, weather conditions change so drastically from year to year that there can be both particularly good years and particularly bad. These extremes are what make vintage especially important. Climatic conditions in California are much more uniform than those in most other wine-growing regions of the world. Knowing the good and bad years is not too much help when selecting a

TEST YOURSELF

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans bought more than $415 millon worth of home health tests in 1984, according to Feeling Great Magazine.

The magazine, citing a study by Creative Strategies International, says predictions are the figure will rise to $1.2 billion a year by 1988.

It says many people buy these devices because of the fitness trend. With men and women running and doing aerobic exercises, they want to know their pulse rate and blood pressure on a regular basis.

Among the tests and devices currently available are blood pressure monitoring devices, pulse meters, pregnancy tests, and glucose meters for diabetics.

During the meeting, Texas Tech Libraries Director E. Dale Cluff announced that Charlotte Niemann of Corpus Christi was the winner of the competition to design a logo for the Friends. Niemann, a junior art major with a specialty in design, received a $100 prize. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Niemann, 3050 Austin, Corpus Christi.

The Friends organization is a support group which raises funds and provides volunteer services to the University Library and the Southwest Collection. The year-old organization now has 301 individuals with memberships.

Court refuses to reconsider case who has been fighting Texas' sodomy law for six years lost

Donald F. Baker said he didn't expect the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to reconsider its earlier ruling upholding the sodomy law, and the justices didn't surprise him.

abbreviations.

The appeal put forth in the petition, however sincere and deserving of response, is another round Wednesday, directed to the wrong audience," the court said. "It is but he said the next battle will be before the U.S. Supreme not the role or authority of this federal court to decide the morality of sexual conduct for the people of the state of Texas."

Baker said the 5th Circuit appeal was a matter of routine and intended more to prevent later procedural tangles than to kill the law that forbids sexual intercourse among homosexuals.

"We wanted to follow all legal avenues," he said. 'Having done that, we're on our way. We have planned since Aug. 26 to go to the U.S. Supreme Court."

The appeals court ruled in August that the state did have authority to pass such a sodomy law.

The complex opinion, signed by nine of the 16 judges on the court, referred to the "strong objection to homosexual conduct which has prevailed in western culture for the past seven centuries.'

Opponents claim the law makes criminals of the 700,000 lesbians and gay men in Texas, and Baker said Wednesday that "we started in 1979 to get this law ruled unconstitutional, and we will continue that fight."

The appeals court said in its latest ruling that although it is "sensitive and sympathetic" to some of Baker's complaints, "It is simply not the business of this court to act upon them."

It added that "we suggest that the proper understanding of our constitutional authority is even more important to the republic than is this particular moral issue." The case has been tied up in court since 1979, when Baker. of Dallas, said in a lawsuit that the sodomy law threatened his job. Complicating the issue was the decision by state Attorney General Jim Mattox to drop his appeals after a federal judge struck the law down in

Potter County District Attorney Danny Hill of Amarillo took up the fight for the state. raising questions about his authority to jump in where the attorney general refused. During the long court fight. the case also took on other implications as both proponents and opponents connected it to the AIDS issue.

Baker said the law would threaten efforts to combat the killer disease by driving homosexuals under cover. Hill and others said the law was needed to control acquired immune deficiency

But neither the appeals court's ruling Aug. 26 nor the one Wednesday touched on the question of AIDS.

"There are a lot of people out there who would encourage us to appeal this," Baker said. "Even though they may not understand the issue, they understand fairness. The American people understand that this law Both murders shocked residents living in the small community. "The mood of the town is pretty shaken up. A lot of people are buying locks for their doors. People who didn't lock their doors before are locking them now," Leon Smith, editor of the town's weekly newspaper, the Clifton Record, said last week.

"A lot of people are afraid to stay home alone at night."

The Clifton City Council met in emergency session last week and voted to hire an additional patrol officer for the town. The council voted to put an extra officer on duty between midnight and 5 a.m.

"The people here are also in the process of setting up a town meeting to get out neighborhood crime watch implemented better," Smith said. "It was started at the time of the first murder, but it sort of went dormant.

U.N. report says

Mexican quake losses enormous

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The September earthquakes devastated large sections of the Mexican capital and killed 6,000 people, injured 30,000 more and caused property damages estimated at $4 billion, a report by a United Nations commission says.

Another 2,000 people are still missing and presumably dead, buried in rubble. The report by the Economic Comission for Latin America, or ECLA, was prepared by U.N. experts "in close consultation with Mexican authorities" and made public here this week.

Mexican newspapers described it is the most authoritative survey so far of the damages caused by an earthquake that neasured 8.1 on the open-ended RICHTER SCALE Sept. 19, and 77 more aftershocks in the week that followed, including one of 7.5 on Sept. 20.

The report said the eathquakes serious affected an area of 320,000 square miles, was felt by close to 20 million people, and about 150,000 persons suffered property damage. An estimated 30,000 people homeless were forced to live in temporary shelters.

'The earthquake caused considerable damage to housing, health and education, with high financial costs, aside from damages impossible to assess to murals, historical and archeological monuments, whose value is impossible to estimate," the report said. A total of 3,300 "major buildings" were destroyed or damaged in Mexico City, about 125 of them housing government agencies, the report said. These included apartment and office buildings 8 to 15 stories high, hotels, hospitals, theaters and schools

Some 30,000 housing units were destroyed and another 60,000 were damaged, aggravating an existing housing deficit that before the earthquake were estimated by government sources at 3 million units, the report said.

According to the report, healthcare services were the most affected. Five hundred hospital and clinical buildings were damaged and nine more destroyed, causing a total loss of 5,000 hospital beds.

Some 137 school buildings were destroyed and 313 more were damaged, leaving 150,000 students without a place to study. Five hotel buildings tumbled, four more were severely damaged and another 36 need extensive repairs, it said.

Seven of the capital's 250 movie theaters collapsed and 49 had to be closed for extensive repairs the report said. But most bars and nightclubs were not seriously affected.
