City Will Close Paving Deal Friday

A paving program in Hereford reached almost to the last rung of the ladder Monday when the City Commission opened bids for the proposed 14 blocks of paving, but awarding of the bid was put off until 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Mayor J. H. Sears said that the low bidder proposed to subcontract a major portion of the actual work, and the commission wished to obtain further information about the subcontractor before making its decision.

A paving program was also planned last year, but various problems arose, including a lack of interest on the part of many property owners, and the paving was never carried out except in the Westhaven addition. That was done under a separate contract with a firm other than the one which had proposed to do the main work in the remainder of the city.

Even after the bid is awarded Friday, there will be several policy matters in the handling of the program which the commission will have to decide about, and individual contracts with property owners will have to be signed.

Monday night the commission went into its regular session, and handled several important matters. One new addition was accepted, a tax equalization board appointed, a decision made to fence all city wells which are not already fenced, and to hire a full-time city engineer.

Members of the equalization board, who have already accepted the appointment, include Claude Ricketts, Paul Harvey and Carl McCaslin. They will not go to work, however, until the city tax rolls are completed, which will probably be the latter part of July or the early part of August.

The new addition, while not giving any legal title, is known as the Engler addition. It lies between 13th and 14th Streets, and between Avenue K and Avenue J. It was put on the books as the Block 44 Addition.

A CHECK OF PROPOSED paving was in order Monday afternoon when the City Commission opened bids submitted by various contractors who wished to handle the paving here this summer. City Manager Cecil Massey is pointing to one of the areas to be paved while Commissioner Raylan Evans, left, and Commissioner Wayne Edwards study the map. Property owners in 14 city blocks signed petitions saying that they wished to participate in a paving program this year. (Staff Photo)

More Crops Hurt By Hail Tuesday

Rain, hail and a small twister hit parts of Deaf Smith County Tuesday afternoon to cause further damage to crops, some of which had already been badly damaged.

Wheat farmers north and west of Hereford seemed to have received the most damage, though other crops, while not as plentiful, were also hit by the pounding pellets of ice, and one dryland farm was reported washed out.

Three power poles and three transformers were lost by the Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative, according to Leo Forrest, co-op manager. Apparently the damage was done by the twister, which must have been traveling from northwest to southeast.

Transformers Ruined

One of the poles was on Highway 51 about seven miles north, another was at the C. E. Bowman place 6 miles north and about one-half mile west, while the third pole was 8 1/2 miles northwest. There were three transformers, which evidently developed a short circuit when they were blown into the road, were "burned to a crisp," Forrest said.

Other than that, there were only minor interruptions of electrical service, all caused by lightning.

Wilbur Gibson, who has a place north of Hereford, reported 60 to 75 percent damage on grain and a total loss on some 50 acres of cotton. Gibson had 25 acres in barley and about 75 acres in maize.

Buren Sowell, who lives out 9 miles northwest of Hereford, reported hail so heavy that it was in drifts, and his wheat and other crops were considered a total loss. Roy Lee Wilson reported about one quarter hail damage to his wheat, also.

Total Loss

Tilden Slagle, who lives on the Roy Slagle place, reported 100 percent loss on both wheat and cotton, and windows on both the south and southwest sides of the house were knocked out by the hail.

A report from one of the men at the Jack Renfro place was that about half of the onions were ruined, but he thought that the potatoes would pull through all right. Renfro was away on a trip to Oklahoma, and was not expected back in Hereford until today.

Ira Scott, who lives 14 miles west of Hereford on Harrison highway, reported an estimated 20 percent damage on 250 acres of wheat, and felt sure that he would have to replant his row crops, which had already been planted for the second time.

B. E. Jackson, 15 miles west and one mile south of Hereford, had an estimated 80 percent loss on his wheat. "It was all irrigated and just beautiful wheat," Mrs. Jackson said. She estimated that the crop had been about three weeks from harvest.

Their maize crop, which was still under water Wednesday morning, will probably have to be replanted. They had put 130 acres into that crop.

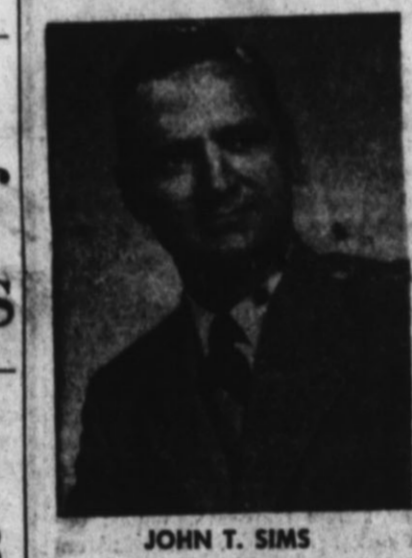

R. W. Mitchell, who also lives out that way, is going to have to replant some dryland acreage which was on a slope, and was washed out.

Alfred Smith, whose place is 13 miles west of Hereford, figured from 10 to 20 percent damage, while Leo Ohlig was estimating that he had about 10 percent damage to his crop.

In the Dawn community, F. L. Carmichael had already received approximately 50 percent damage on his crops, and figured that the hail Tuesday afternoon ruined half of what he had left. "We can take a little, but after a while it gets mesochinous," he said.

Carmichael figured that his wheat was really hurt the worst, but is hoping that his cotton will be all right. He lives six miles east and four miles north, and was one of the few in that area to receive any serious hail damage this time.

State Senator Says

Strengthening Moral Fiber Would Cut Youth Problems

"Juvenile delinquency is a sign of moral disintegration which can only be eliminated by strengthening the moral fiber of the land," State Senator Andy Rogers said when he spoke Monday at the Hereford Rotary Club.

"Juvenile delinquency doesn't grow by itself—it is part of larger things," Rogers pointed out in his opening remarks. "Part of it has grown out of a lack of distinction between what is morally right and what is legally right. There are many people in this country today who will do things which are legally right, even though they would not think of obtaining the same things by illegal means, even though both ways are equally immoral."

Definite recommendations concerning the dedication date for the bridge on Highway 51 between Channing and Vega will be presented by the Texas Highway 51 Association bridge dedication committee at the association's meeting in Hereford Tuesday.

Plans call for the meeting to get underway at noon that day with a dinner in Hotel Jim Hill.

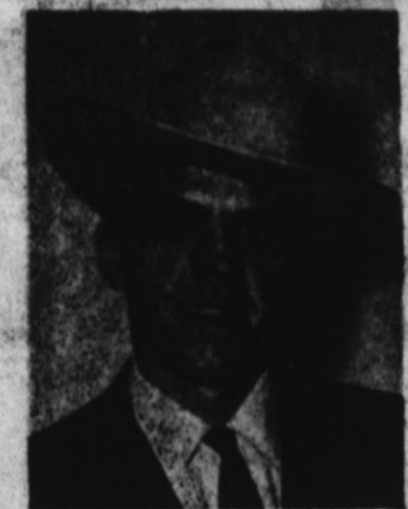

Tentative date for the bridge dedication is August 29. A barbecue will be held at Boys' Ranch just prior to the dedication ceremony, which will begin about 1 o'clock. Association members are expected to confirm these plans, which have been drawn up by the dedication committee.

Governors of Texas and other states in the International Parks Highway Association, which includes Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota, will be invited to the big event. Over 2,000 association members and friends are expected at the dedication.

ANDY ROGERS

Andy Rogers Announces For State Senator

Andy Rogers, State senator from this district, has authorized The Brand to announce his candidacy for re-election.

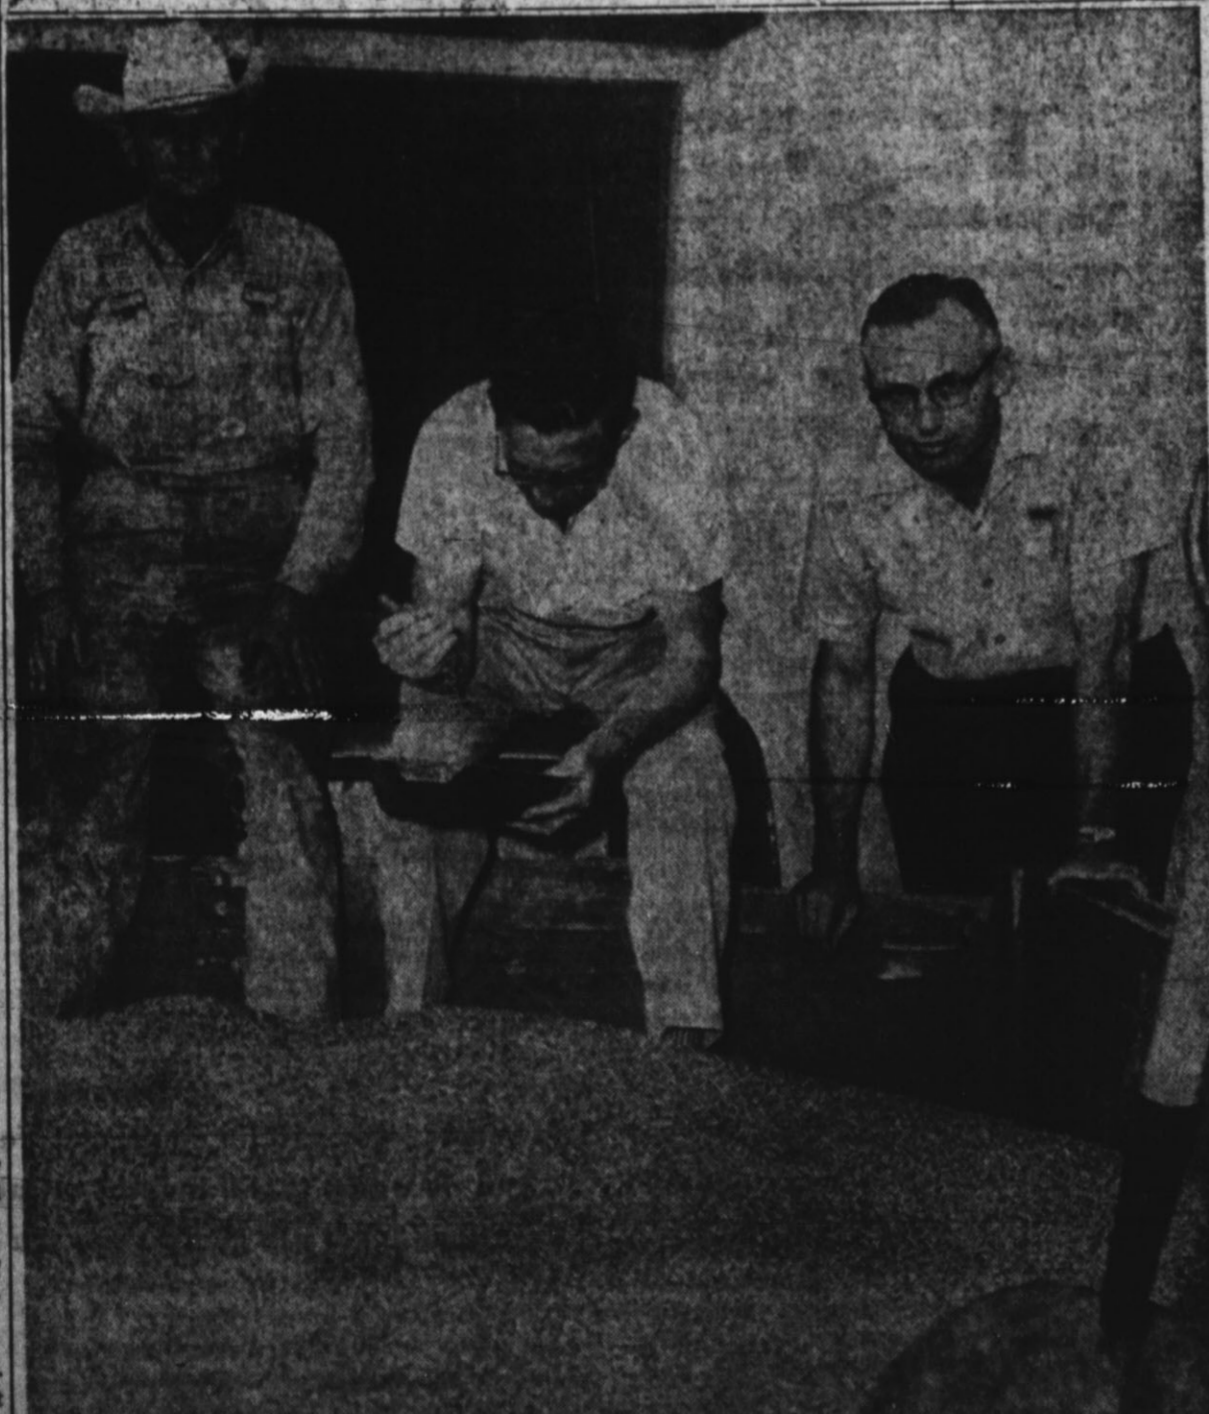

In announcing his candidacy, Senator Rogers said:

"It was deep satisfaction in 1951, as a State Representative, to help create our new 30th Senatorial District and thereby give West Texas a fair share of representation in Austin.

"It has been an honor, a pleasure and a privilege to serve as the first Senator from that new District.

"In reviewing my record, I would be the first to insist that I have made mistakes. No doubt, I shall make others. These will always be honest mistakes.

School Board Appoints Committee On Repairs

Repairs and improvements to be done on Hereford Rural High School district buildings during the summer are to be handled by a special committee appointed by school board president Howard Gault at the monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Gault asked Ira Scott, Mrs. Earl Plank and Robert Waggoner to handle the necessary details. Don Zimmerman was asked to act as advisor for the committee.

In addition to routine painting and other repairs, the board discussed general plans for adding at least one rest room in the top floor of the present high school building. The committee is also to handle the problem of getting crash bars put on exits at the present high school building and at Central School where they are needed.

Committee members were asked to see about moving the barracks building used as dressing rooms for the football boys to a location where it will look better, since the present location causes its appearance to clash with that of the new high school building.

Teachers, some of whom are going to school this summer, were approved as carpenters and painters for repair work on the school buildings. The pay scale will be $1.25 an hour for most of them, with $1.50 for the foreman.

One Man Held After Accident

A car which sideswiped a tree about four miles east of town, then crossed the railroad tracks before coming to a stop received some damage Sunday night. Neither of the occupants of the car was injured, so far as is known.

Railroad men found the car south of the tracks Monday morning and woke the driver, who left the scene, but were unable to wake the other man, Clyde D. Klutts, according to the sheriff's office. County officers did wake him, however, and placed him in the county jail.

It was believed at the sheriff's office that both of the men were from Adrain. As of Wednesday morning, no formal charges had been filed against the driver, who had, up to that time, failed to report the accident to the authorities.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this method of thanking our friends for their prayers, food, toys and many other kindnesses shown us during the recent illness of our son, Kenneth Charles. We want to specially thank Dr. Mims and Dr. Aronoff of Dallas and all of the hospital staff. May God's richest blessings rest on you all.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Laing, and Kenneth Charles.

The board included a request from the Assembly of God Church that they be allowed to rent the High School auditorium the night of June 28 for an appearance of the Stamp Ozark quartet; the appearance of C. K. Thomas, who wanted to get a contract for flameproofing the attic and other unpainted wood in the high school, and unpainted wood in Central School; and Superintendent George Graham's invitation to teach a three weeks course in "Problems in Public School Administration" at Hardin-Simmons University this summer.

The board approved the request for the use of the auditorium and agreed that it was all right with them for Graham to teach the course at Hardin-Simmons.

After some discussion on the flameproofing idea, they definitely decided against the flameproofing work. Cost of the work would be $3,806 for the high school building, and $890 for Central School. About a five percent reduction would be allowed on the present fire insurance costs, which are $700 a year on the High School building.

seems to be spreading through the land, Rogers stated his belief that the cure must come from the homes, the churches and the communities.

One of the factors which contributes to juvenile delinquency, and one which Rogers has tried to help eliminate is the dissemination of lewd, licentious and immoral literature. He pointed out that there had been a law against such material since 1879, but in 1913 the penalty was changed from a two year prison sentence upon conviction to a six months sentence or a $1,000 fine.

Under the old law, pictures were not included, but Rogers pointed out that he wanted to differentiate between lewd pictures and art, with which he has no quarrel.

Rogers authored Senate Bill 105, which would have amended present laws so that magazine dealers would not have to take material that they did not want. "However, pressure from certain areas caused this bill to die in the Texas House of Representatives," Rogers added.

"Part of the work each of us must do is the job of preserving freedoms," Rogers said in closing. "It is a personal responsibility which we owe to our children, just as we owe them protection and care."

Rogers was introduced to the Rotary Club by Leo Forrest, program chairman.

ming lessons was given tentative approval, subject to a check to make sure that those classes would not interfere with other scheduled activities at the pool.

C. I. Wall, vice president of Pioneer Natural Gas Company, appeared before the commission to discuss the matter of getting a new franchise for the company's operations in Hereford. The gas company, which was known as West Texas Natural Gas Company before being consolidated with several other natural gas companies, has been operating in Hereford without a franchise since last September.

Wall pointed out that the situation in Hereford was rather embarrassing to the company as the city had not given any reason, other than a proposed rate cut, which he said is not possible at this time, for not renewing the franchise.

Following the discussion with

Wall, the commissioners took up the possibility of hiring a city engineer who could take over much of the work which is presently done by the firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock.

In a report prepared by City Manager Cecil Massey at the request of the commission, it was shown that the city will have paid out, from the beginning of 1948 through this year, some $52,633.40 for engineering fees of various types, or more than $7,500 a year.

In the report, Massey showed that four full-time men could be used in the city now, one for building inspections, one for city planning work, one for full-time assessing, and one for engineering. The total cost of such a crew would be over $15,000 a year.

However, it is believed that one man, while not able to handle the work in as great a detail as is sometimes needed, would still be of great benefit to the city.

With a zoning ordinance going into effect soon, the commissioners agreed, there will be greater need for a city engineer, as well as for the handling of many other duties which the growth of Hereford demands.

Following the discussion the commissioners agreed that the city does need a full-time engineer, but they did not make definite plans on how soon the man will be hired.

Liquor Board Says Juvenile Drinking Is Biggest Problem

Austin — Consumption of alcoholic beverages by juveniles was described today by Coke R. Stevenson Jr., Texas Liquor Control Board administrator, as "our No. 1 problem." "We are doing all we can, with the co-operation of other law enforcement agencies and the industry to stop sales to minors," Stevenson said, "but enforcement is not the complete answer to the problem." "Some parents do not always know where their children are or what they are doing," the administrator said, adding: "It is easy for a boy or girl, left alone for an evening, to fall into bad companionship. You and I know what the result can be — and sometimes is." "We must use education along with enforcement if we expect to achieve the results we seek. This education is the business of the home, the church, and the school." "A boy or girl can ruin his whole life by one drunken act; or he can end that life prematurely in a thousand different ways if he behaves hazardingly while under the influence of alcohol." "Herein lies a responsibility that is ours, as adults. If we fail to discharge that responsibility, then we, as parents, are guilty when tragedy occurs."

One particular difficulty arises, Stevenson said, from the fact that armed forces personnel 18 years old may purchase alcoholic beverages on military posts. When off the military establishments, the administrator said, underage service people sometimes use fictitious credentials and other unlawful devices to attempt to buy alcoholic beverages. Stevenson's remarks were made along with issuance of the Liquor Board's monthly review for April. The review showed April revenues collected by the Board at $1,367,347.79. During the month, Liquor Board agents filed 376 cases for violations of the state liquor laws. Liquor cases tried resulted in 321 convictions and 28 jail terms, 59 dismissals and 7 acquittals, and $53,287.05 collected in fines and costs.

The board's auditors checked over 58 accounts of 8 types, involving $1,742,443.22 in tax-paid and tax-due revenues. Five illicit stills were seized, one each in the counties of Red River, Bowie, Nacogdoches, Smith, and Tarrant.

Silver Wedding Is Celebrated

The group entertained themselves with games of 42 after which a silver coffee service was presented to the honorees. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Cawthon Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Bartlett Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Witherspoon; Mr. and Mrs. Hartland Caraway, Ann and Kay; Pat and Raymon Childers, the honorees and the hostess, and family.

Childers Attend Babcock Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Childers of the Northwest Hereford Community attended the funeral of Joe Babcock in Groom Friday afternoon. Mr. Babcock was the father of Mrs. Childers' sister's husband, J. H. Babcock of Kermit. Enroute to the funeral Mr. and Mrs. Childers heard the radio in their car report the death of Mrs. Frank Babcock, the dead man's brother's wife, who was killed in a car accident near Sunny while enroute to attend the funeral. Of six people in the car, four were hospitalized. Mr. Babcock is in critical condition, having received a fractured pelvis, broken shoulder and collar-bone and internal injuries. They are in the Dumas hospital. Mrs. Frank Babcock was buried in Groom Monday afternoon. Their home is in Dumas.

Hotel Team Takes Solid Foothold On League Lead

By Billy Paul Knox

Iley Barton hurled a no-hitter to lead Dawn to a 13-3 victory over the Road Knights in the second game of a twinbill Tuesday night. Hotel Jim Hill crushed Rutherford's 12-1 in the first game.

The Road Knights are now occupants of the cellar which was vacated by Dawn, now tenants of fifth. Jim Hill's fifth straight victory gave them a steadier hold on first and dropped Rutherford to third, one-half game behind Summerfield.

Barton hurled a masterpiece, although three runs scored. All were accountable to errors and bases on balls. He walked seven and was never in trouble other than the times when the runs scored. Dawn capitalized on eight walks, clouting two homers and four doubles.

The Road Knights did not score or threaten seriously in the first two innings.

Dawn was runless in the first but they broke the goose egg by scoring one in the second. Melvin May doubled Marvin May home to break the deadlock.

The Knights manipulated a lone tally in the third. After Gerald Wilson had walked he went to third on two grounders then scored on Asa R. Atchley's throwing error.

Dawn's walkathon. Dawn's half of the third had the makings of a "walkathon." They sent thirteen men to the plate, scoring nine runs. Road Knights pitching gave up the vast amount of six walks in this inning but Dawn also shelled them for four hits with the big blow being a home run by Ed Lemons.

In the fourth the Road Knights managed to push one more marker across. With one out Box walked and took third on Miller's error in left field. Eugene Hutchinson grounded out, driving the run across.

In the last of the fourth, Dawn picked up their twelfth run thanks to a two run home-run by Jelly Hagar.

A Futile Attempt
The Courtesites made a futile attempt to stay in the game in the top of the fifth. Burden lifted a high fly to left which was misjudged by the leftfielder handing Burden third base. Cochran drove him across with a ground out.

Dawn sent only two batters to the plate in the fifth since they needed only one run. Ray Stewart doubled and Barton singled him in to end the game.

The winning pitcher was Iley Barton. Gerald Wilson drew the loser's ticket.

Barton also led Dawn hitters with three singles.

Going Away Party Planned By Knights
Plans for a going-away party for Joe Walters were made at the Road Knights meeting Monday night.

Walters is leaving Monday to go into the service. The party will be a dance held at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night in Paetzold's potato shed.

Officers for the coming year were also elected and more plans were discussed for the building of a clubhouse.

Several members of the club are taking leave of absence from the club during the summer while they go to the country.

The Rutherford crew scored their only tally in the first inning. Burdine was gifted with first on Thomas error. Duane Albracht doubled him to third then Suttle drove him in with a long fly to left field.

Hotel tallied three in their half of the first. Two walks by Carroll and Renner and a home run produced by Bill Howard were responsible.

Jim Hill duplicated their first inning output in the second.

Winkler walked but Cook and Timberlake were retired. Then Carroll, Howard and Renner rebounded with the resounding fury of three straight safe blows driving all three runs across the plate.

The Hotel bunch scored for the third straight inning, picking up two in the third. Two walks, a single, and one error were the major factors.

Jim Hill scored four runs to ice it down in the fourth. Three walks combined with a hit and an error pushed them across.

Rutherford was scoreless in the top of the fifth ending the game. Carrol led Hotel Jim Hill with three hits. Duane Albracht collected both of the two hits given up by Winkler who pitched a fine two-hitter to become the winning pitcher. Ken Walterscheid was loser.

Farmers May Apply For 1955 Wheat Allotment

Farmers on land on which no wheat was seeded for grain for all of the years 1952-54 may apply for a 1955 wheat acreage allotment, according to Walter N. Hodges, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

However, to be considered for an allotment on a farm which had no wheat seeded for grain for any of those years, the farmer must apply to the county ASC committee by June 30.

Blank application forms for use in applying for the allotments are available at the county ASC office, Hodges said.

Sheldon Alexander Hurt In Accident

Sheldon Alexander, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving J. Alexander, 410 Avenue A, was taken to Deaf Smith County Hospital, where he had three stitches taken in his forehead, following a minor collision Monday afternoon.

Sheldon was thrown against the dashboard of the 1950 Buick that his father was driving when it collided with a 1954 Plymouth driven by Clyde E. Barker, 101 Norton, about 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the intersection of Fifth and Main.

Both cars were going south on Main and approaching the signal light at Fifth and Main. The Plymouth stopped and as the Buick attempted to stop it collided with the back of the Plymouth.

Fancy Cooky Recipes Have Been Created By Mrs. Scarth

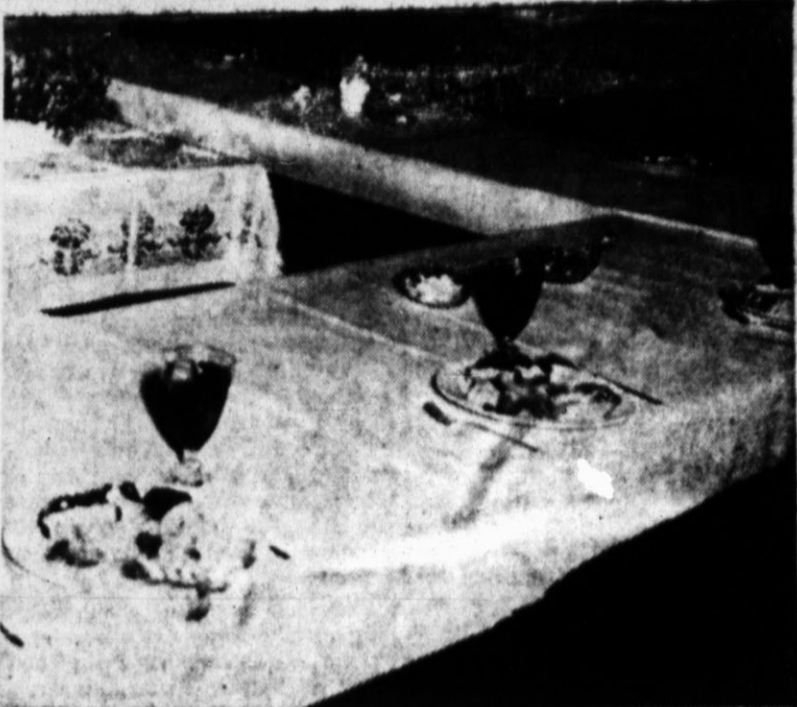

MRS. W. R. SCARTH

Childhood memories always seem to include cookies whether they were chewy cookies — soft cookies — or buttery kinds. The ones with the greater fascination for the older folk are the fancy ones that the housewife who likes to experiment has passed on to find their way into cook books that always attract the cook looking for new ideas.

Mrs. W. R. Scarth of the Wyche Community is one who delights in creative work of all kinds and would naturally take time to work out an original recipe like the one for a pinwheel cookie below, which is pretty to look at and delightful to eat.

Date Pinwheel Cookies
 1/2 cup shortening
 2 cups brown sugar
 2 well-beaten eggs
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 3 1/2 cups flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
 1 teaspoon cream of sugar.
 Add eggs and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients; beat well. Roll out until about 1-8 inch thick. Spread with the Date and Nut Filling, roll as you would a cinnamon roll and wrap in waxed paper.

On the right a section of the refreshment table arrangement is shown. Mrs. Ethel Benger who was hostess for the meeting arranged quartet tables in a square around a table holding the flower centerpiece and used banquet paper to cover the tables as a base for the pretty individual place settings. Clubs Study About Frozen Food

(Editor's note: Home Demonstration Clubs that have been making inquiry about their reports will find all of those which have been turned in in the June 6 issue of the Sunday Brand. They are the reports that have missed the last two issues of the Thursday paper. We are sorry for the delay.)

Bippus
 Mrs. Elmo Hall, president, presided at the meeting of the Bippus Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. C. F. Homfeld on May 26.

Roll call was answered by one of the subjects chosen from the yearbook.

Argen Draper, County Home Demonstration agent, gave a talk on "Making the Water Supply Safe." She pointed out the danger of contamination to the water supply from cesspools and septic tanks, and other unsanitary conditions around the well.

 President Eisenhower says he is appalled at the lack of youth's understanding of what America is," Mrs. Fred Barrett told members of the North Hereford H. D. Club at the program following the luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. W. H. Russell on June 3.

Community Center Made From Black School House

When a club has been active for 20 years, it has worked on many projects, no doubt, but perhaps the largest one undertaken by the Black Social and Study Club was the rejuvenation of the Black

School building as a club house after the school was discontinued three years ago.

Three charter members are all that are left still active since the club was organized in 1931. They

4-H Club Leaders Plan Bake Show For June 18

The Deaf Smith County 4-H Leaders Council met in regular session May 28, in the County Court Room with the chairman, Mrs. J. E. Dyer, Secretary. New business included:

are Mrs. Emma Elmore, Mrs. Altha Presley and Mrs. Anna Mae Hays.

For a good many years the club had used a smaller building on the school grounds as a club house but it was Mrs. Elmore who first thought of making the larger building into a club house that would serve as a community center.

At first, the idea of giving up a neat little room for one that would involve a lot of expense and hard work was not so popular with the women generally but after they realized the possibilities they decided to sell the smaller building and use the money to fix up the school house.

About $1,200 dollars was realized from the sale and Mrs. Jessie Douglas is jokingly referred to as the most expensive treasurer the club has ever had as she has written the checks to pay for the outside labor that has transformed Black's two room school into an attractive, convenient meeting place for all community activities.

Beginning from the inside the walls were first cleaned up by painting them a soft green, the floors were sanded and waxed and the former book room was changed into a powder room with plumbing installed, which first necessitated the piping of water to the building from the well. This room also provides storage for benches which can be used for additional seating.

In the kitchen arrangement at one end of the two rooms which

Fundamentals Of Sewing Taken Up By 4-H Girls

Before 4-H girls can really sew a fine seam there are some fundamentals they must know. Demonstrations are being given to the various clubs on such preliminaries as pattern marking, use of construction guides and pressing.

Caprock
 The Caprock 4-H Club met in the Adrian School June 2 with Mrs. F. A. Kromer acting as hostess. Cynthia Kromer, president, presided at the meeting.

Roll was called and the minutes were read by Etta Ray Blalock secretary. Recreation was led by Glenda Homfeld, Argen Draper, County Home Demonstration Agent gave a demonstration on the correct way to sew seams to keep from stretching the material as you sew, making darts, and pressing as you sew.

Those present were: Glenda Homfeld, Etta Ray Blalock, Kathleen Kromer, Cynthia Kromer, Mrs. Draper and Mrs. Kromer. The next meeting will be in Adrian School on June 16 with Cynthia Kromer as hostess.

Sadle Lee Oliver
 "Use of Patterns" and "Pressing As You Sew" were the subjects of the demonstration given to members of the Sadle Lee Oliver Club at the home of Jane Auten on June 2 by Mrs. Elvin Wilson, leader.

Ann Wagoner, president, presided at the business meeting. Gayle Wagoner called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

The motion was made and seconded that meeting time be changed from 4 o'clock to 2:30 o'clock. The motion carried.

Refreshments were served to Oma Lee Ranspot, Gayle Wagoner, Ann Wagoner, Sandra Townsend, Mary Lynn Morrison, and Mrs. Bob Wilson has called the office and has a number of fruit jars of all sizes to give away. If you need these, call her at phone number 461.

Mrs. Paul Hoff and Mrs. Horace Hershey have given me recipes for Mrs. Hare. I haven't given them to her yet as she's working and I can't get her on the phone. Thanks to you two for giving us the recipes.

Mrs. Bob Baird got both the frozen deberries and strawberries last week for the freezer. She was well pleased with the quality and the number of packages.

The annual 4-H Bake Show will be held in High School Cafeteria June 18. The girls will bring biscuits, banana nut quick loaf bread, fruit pie, and butterwakes.

They will bring six biscuits, a loaf of the quick bread, whole pie, and if the butter cake is fed two layers, but for the divisions of younger members only one layer uniced. Any recipe may be used but not commercial mixes. The girls and their leaders have been mailed rules and regulations. The public is invited. Most of the judging will be done around 11:30 or 11:45 o'clock so if you'd like to see the products, the 4-Hers would be glad for you to come to the Bake Show.

Wednesday while Miss Loyce Avant was at District Camp I met the Caprock 4-H Club at the Adrian School Building. Cynthia Kromer is the president and Mrs. C. F. Homfeld, the leader, had helped her plan the meeting. This was certainly a well organized meeting and the girls tended to club business in an efficient manner.

The Home Demonstration Clubs in Texas use Logan's Parliamentary Rules as the procedure guide.

 have been opened up to make one large room that has a folding door partition. A porcelain sink and cabinet combination was installed with additional storage space added on the sides. There is also a refrigerator and a stove and other equipment for serving refreshments including a large coffee maker which would make quite a dent in the club treasury to operate at the present price of coffee. A narrow dividing counter can be used in serving.

The club owns 18 card tables uniquely decorated with ads from Friona merchants on top and about 40 folding chairs. There is also a piano and an assortment of tables that serve the other needs of the club as for flower arrangements, gifts and other decor such as table lamps and planters.

Match stick curtains in natural wood make an attractive addition to the long windows in one room and in the other some bright cafe curtains were made from old ones by Mrs. Elmore.

Pictures have been hung and a new heating stove installed.
 Club members may use the club house for social activities outside of regular meetings such as showers and such but a charge is made for other groups wishing to use it and those doing the entertaining are obligated to clean the building after it is used.

In reference to the club as an organization, their programs are outlined in a yearbook which lists the past presidents as follows: Emma Elmore, Jessie Welch, Bertha McLean, Altha Presley, Effie Wylie, Naomi Price, Lottie Bennett, Prudy Black, Mrs. Gordon Shackelford, Maxine Price, Anna Mae Hays, Lucille Rockey, LaVada Barnett, Mildred Barnett, Pearl McLean, Beulah Mae Deaton, Maude Allmon, Helen Fangman, Grace Parr and Louise Roberson.

A page is dedicated to six former members who have died. Officers for last year were Christine Braxton president, Eleanor Prewett, vice president; Jessie Douglas, secretary - treasurer; Carrie Tatum, reporter; and Maudine Edimon, parliamentarian.

Officers installed for next year are: Eleanor Prewett, president; Janice Patton, vice president; Carrie Tatum, secretary - treasurer; Altha Presley, reporter; and Louise Roberson, parliamentarian. Mrs. Braxton was installing officer.

One custom of the club is to present the outgoing president with a gift shower in appreciation of her work. The club also maintains a community flower fund.

With the interior of the building completed the women are already making plans to dash the outside of the building and build a new fence to enclose the trees and yard, as soon as they can finance another project. Some of the men who assisted in the work just finished can likely be counted on to help once the work gets under way.

One look inside the new quarters for the Black Social and Study Club will be convincing evidence that they are living up to the club motto which is:

In Essentials - Unity
 In Non-Essentials - Liberty
 In All Things - Charity

THE WINNAH--AND STILL CHAMPION Ray Barnick, left, with upraised hand, this year for the second in a row won the battle to bring in the first bale of cotton of the season in the nation. With the honor goes a guarantee of $1,000 at auction and a bonus of $1,000 for bringing the bale to Harlingen, where this picture was made. At the wheel of the Cadillac which brought the bale from Mission to Harlingen is George Anderson. At right is Jeff Bell, manager of the Harlingen Chamber of Commerce, whose idea it was to sponsor the guarantee and bonus. Barnick's first bale last year was worth more than $4,000 to him. (AP Photo)

Add up the home attendance of a Texas League baseball club these days and you'll find the average is about one-third of what it takes to pay expenses.

In one stretch of four days, the average was 936. That means much less than 100,000 for the season at home if the average is maintained. Texas League club owners, forever optimistic, say this is low, that in May attendance never is good because of bad weather. They think it'll pick up in June. But it will have to do a lot of picking up if enough is taken in at the gate to meet expenses.

Dick Barnett, owner of the Dallas club, figures he can get by with 200,000 for the season. He couldn't have done that last year because his expenses were higher. He has cut this year and will cut some more if he can't make it. But can he cut enough to break even and still have a ball club that will attract the fans?

And, to get brutally frank about it, is anything going to bring attendance up to a paying level? Has baseball lost its appeal? If so, what's wrong with the game?

Of course, television is doing the most to cut down attendance at the baseball parks. Not the television of baseball itself but television—that entertaining medium that keeps you at home to see Broucho Marx, Red Buttons or Jackie Gleason.

A bunch of old heads at this baseball business were in a gabfest in Dallas the other day. J. Alvin Gardner, former president of the Texas League who once operated a Texas League ball club, had some very pertinent ideas on what's wrong with baseball.

It's the stalling, the slowness in which the games are played, the dullness of the game. The manager who strolls out to talk things over with the pitcher, who gets into a time-consuming argument with the umpire over whether a ball was over the plate or not; the batter who steps out of the box for no apparent reason than to knock a speck of dirt off his shoe or grab a fistful of dirt which he wipes on his pants; the pitcher who looks toward home plate three or four times, looks over at first base, then, when he's ready to pitch, suddenly decides he needs to touch the resin bag.

The rule is that a manager can go out to talk with his pitcher which was designed to acquaint the new officers with procedures and problems concerning Lions clubs, and to give those present a chance for a mutual exchange of ideas and information.

Lions clubs which are in this zone include the Amarillo Downtown Lions Club, and clubs at Canyon, Dimmitt, Friona and Bovina.

only twice during an inning. Nothing is said about how long he can do the talking.

There is no rule that forces a batter to step in and take his cuts immediately.

The so-called "master-minding" of the manager is one of the most time-consuming acts.

The games drag out. Some run far into the night. The fans are disgusted with the slowness. They also lose sleep and don't feel like coming out the next night.

"The only thing that can speed up baseball games and cut out the stalling is the club itself," says Gardner. "The club owner can make his manager and players snap through their paces and get the ball game over with in a reasonable time."

Here, however, you run into the situation of the club owner wanting the games to run long so there will be more business at the concession stands. The trouble is that if you don't get the fans out you don't have the business at the concession stands.

Baseball needs to do some things for itself and not be calling on the people to support it as a civic enterprise. Regardless of what the courts say, baseball is a business and not a sport. That is pretty well illustrated by the fact that the ball club losing money goes out of business.

Baseball can help itself if it'll find out what ails it and act accordingly.

At The Movies

Showing Friday and Saturday at the Star Theatre.

Starring Donna Corcoran, Ward Bond, Frances Dee and Gypsy.

Children and grownups alike will succumb to the appeal of "Gypsy"

Colt." For this M-G-M Anisco Color film, telling the story of the unique devotion between a small girl and a spirited colt, touches the heart as it unfolds the tale of Gypsy, the handsome colt with an almost human understanding, who reveals his courage and stamina in his refusal to be separated from the young mistress he loves.

Highland Dale, the horse destined to become known as Gypsy, takes direction like any other member of the east by voice command. Everyone is familiar with "horse sense." A lot of people claim they have it. Few have seen it. This picture brings to the screen a visible demonstration of horse sense with a four-footed actor displaying more "man sense" than some of his two-legged companions.

You're bald because your ancestors were bald. If it's in the genetic cards that you are to lose your hair, there's nothing you can do about it.

How Can I?

- Q. How can I preserve a thermos bottle when storing?
A. Do not put the thermos bottle away with the cork inserted, as the bottle will become musty. Keep the cork elsewhere but do not forget the location when the bottle is again required.
- Q. How can I remove odors from the fingers and from the breath?
A. Rub the fingers well with crushed parsley. Chewing a sprig of parsley after eating onions will clear the breath.
- Q. How can I sharpen scissors?
A. One of the quickest methods is to cut sandpaper with them until a sharp edge is secured.
- Q. How can I keep the bathroom disinfected?
A. When cleaning the bathroom add a few drops of disinfectant to the water. It will give the room a clean smell and will kill any germs that may be in the bowls.
- Q. How can I facilitate the pressing of a pleated skirt?
A. When pressing a pleated skirt use needles to pin down the pleats. They will leave no marks when they are removed.
- Q. How can I soften brown sugar that has become lumpy?
A. Keep the brown sugar in an open jar in the refrigerator and it will become and remain soft and moist.
- Q. How can I soften and remove old varnish and paint?
A. Try using two parts of spirits of ammonia to one of turpentine; apply with a rag. For difficult corners or carved places, use a stiff brush.
- Q. How can I clean a ring that has a set?
A. Pull a tiny feather back and forth between the prongs of a setting and the back of the stone will be cleaned nicely. The stone will also shine more clearly.
- Q. How can I make food digestible?
A. To render any food more digestible try using gelatine in the food mixture.
- Q. How should blankets be laundered?
A. Do not handle blankets roughly when washing them. Allow the water to soak through them, then wring or squeeze until saturated with water, and use the same method for drying. This will keep the fibers soft.
- Q. How can I clean leather furniture that is soiled?
A. By applying warm milk with soft cloth and then rubbing thoroughly until dry.

Masked Marvel Kept Record Clean With Win

In the big triple-main event matches at the Bull Barn Saturday night the Great Masked Marvel kept his long undefeated record clean when he tangled with an equally famous wrestler, Danny O'Rourke.

The Marvel using his well known "two-legged crab" hold handled the Irish wrestler with ease. The first fall, of the 45 minute, best first out of three event, lasted only ten minutes the second fall, which gave the match to the "Hooded Visitor" lasted even less, seven minutes.

Even though Danny O'Rourke made many attempts to take the mask off the Marvel, he and the fans attending still do not know the looks or the "whether does he come" of the man who has wrestled in secrecy since the 1930's.

The warm-up event proved to be a "hot affair" when Bill Sledge of Thornton, Tex., met a new comer to the Hereford Bull Barn, Al Cortez, Cortez, a West Coast performer, invaded the Hi-Plains to take the Texas wrestler in only 11 minutes of the 20 minute limit event.

Perhaps the most honest-to-goodness wrestling match ever to be held in the Lions club arena was the main and final event which tutored Hereford's own Bob Cummings against the Atlas of the Latin-American race, Louis Martinez. This event, after going the limit of three falls, was given to Cummings only after Martinez was carried from the ring on a stretcher and whisked off in an ambulance with what many thought to be a broken neck, however later reports proved that only a dislocated vertebrae was the cause of the trouble.

Town With Two Times Causes Many Problems

Sierra Blanca — Setting your watch can be a problem in this far West Texas town. Set it one way and you might miss a bus. Set it another and you could be late for your wedding.

Sierra Blanca, 87 miles southeast of El Paso, lies in a "twilight zone" between two time belts—Central Standard Time and Mountain Standard Time. All of Texas is in Central Standard Time except the extreme Western tip, which is in Mountain Standard. Central Standard is one hour ahead of Mountain Standard.

Sierra Blanca's problems are described in the April issue of the Fudapest County Monthly Review, published at Sierra Blanca. The "Desert Sage," author of a column, "Sand Dunes," tells of them: "We are still having timely troubles here. The schools and the court house have MST... the post office, the railroad and buses have CST... A man suggested I try to get them together. I told him that was an excellent idea, except I wanted him to try it."

"We don't have many fights over it except when some one says his is Standard Time. Some people here don't know when to go to bed; others don't know when to get up."

"A man started to El Paso and got to Fort Hancock (36 miles) before he left Sierra Blanca. He had CST. Some say it gets dark here before the sun goes down; others say it depends on which 'watch' it is. More than one has missed his bus in Sierra Blanca... Appointments are not kept and dates are broken. All weddings here are announced CST (and) MST, so the groom will not leave the girl at the altar. A politician wore his watch out running it up and back, trying to agree with everyone. "It times don't change, it's going to get hot next summer."

Corregidor Scrap Sold MANILA — About 10,000 tons of scrap steel and iron, strewn during World War II, about Corregidor Island, is being sold to dealers for conversion into materials needed for the Philippines' economic development.

Talpa Life Austere TAIPEH — More than 3,000 foreigners now live in Formosa, the majority in Taipei, giving this capital city of Nationalist China some of the cosmopolitan atmosphere which once prevailed in Shanghai and other former treaty ports on the mainland. There is no chance, however, of Taipei ever becoming the Paris of the east as was Shanghai. The government's austerity program prevents that. Most remaining is done in private homes. There are no western-type night clubs.

Weather Station Is New College Station Activity

COLLEGE STATION — A new and developing activity of Texas A. and M. College is the weather station in the veterinary medicine building. The Department of Oceanography operates the station as a part of its meteorology training program.

The station is equipped with the basic weather instruments and facilities. Indoors are the apparatus which measures and continuously records atmospheric pressure, a panel indicating continuously the wind speed and direction which the combination anemometer-wind vane on the roof gives, the weather teletype and numerous devices for working up weather reports.

Standard outdoor equipment on the ground consists of a rain gage and instrument shelter. The shelter houses the hygro-thermograph which continuously records temperature and relative humidity, maximum and minimum thermometers, and a wet-and-dry-bulb psychrometer for measuring temperature and humidity more accurately.

There are facilities for measuring winds from the surface upward by the "pilot balloon method." A balloon is filled with helium (or any gas lighter than air) to the point that its force exerted upward corresponds to the desired rate of ascent.

After the balloon is released it is followed by means of a theodolite — a modification of the engineer's transit — and its azimuth angle and angle of elevation above the horizon are read at one-minute intervals. At night a small dry cell lamp or Japanese lantern with candle is attached to the balloon. From the data so obtained the position of the balloon at each reading is determined, and thus the wind direction and speed at each level are computed.

Radioed on Display
On demonstration in the weather station is the complete radiosonde rig which is sent aloft to measure pressure, temperature, and humidity. This consists of a large balloon parachute, and radiosonde.

The radiosonde, a small radio transmitter powered by dry-cell battery, sends signals which a radio receiver - recorder at the ground picks up. Nearly 100 stations over the United States and adjacent areas make such observations on a regular basis. The weather station is not equipped to make these observations now, but it may well be in the near future. A radar set for tracking such violent phenomena as tornadoes and thunderstorms is planned also as part of the facilities.

The teletype receives the basic weather reports in code from all the United States, bordering land areas and ships at sea. The machine operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Reports consist of weather observations made every six hours at all first-order weather bureau stations, pilot-balloon wind reports every six hours, radiosonde reports every 12 hours, and weather summaries and forecasts. The forecasts are those broadcast to the public as well as detailed and specific ones for aviation. Weather maps are prepared daily from the observations received.

A number of weather charts are received regularly by mail from the central office of the Weather Bureau in Washington, D. C. These include the actual weather maps for the entire northern hemisphere, five-day forecast maps for that area, monthly forecast maps, and the Daily Weather Map for the United States. Although the history of the matter is somewhat confusing, it appears that under present day law the husband has control of ordinary community property; but control of the wife's special community property is reserved to her.

Certain restrictions are imposed upon both husband and wife in exercising such control. For instance, the husband cannot legally dispose of community property in such a way as to defraud the wife, nor can he sell the homestead without her signature and acknowledgment — and the wife's sale or mortgage of her separate real estate, stocks or bonds is not valid unless her husband joins with her in the transaction — he must sign and execute the necessary legal papers along with her.

There are laws exempting the wife's separate and special community property from liability for debts incurred by the husband. Such liability is restricted to his separate property and the ordinary community property.

On the other hand, debts incurred by the wife in obtaining necessities for herself or the children bind all property belonging to either party, including the husband's separate property. For other debts which she has power to incur, only her separate and special community property are liable.

All of these distinctions emphasize the advisability of keeping proper records. By doing so the various classes of community and separate property owned by a married couple will always be easily distinguishable. Each category will then receive the special protection afforded to it by our laws.

Marriage Doesn't Give Husband Right To Take Wife's Property

June is traditionally the month for weddings, and many couples will be taking marriage vows within the next few weeks. But the act of marrying another person does not give you the authorization to take control of his property.

Generally speaking, each spouse has the right to control and dispose of his or her own separate property. The separate property of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired by either after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Aside from the ordinary community estate, there is a class of property known as the wife's "special community," which includes all the income from her separate real property, and probably the interest on bonds or notes, and dividends on stocks owned in her separate right. While the husband may have similar assets, the law accords them no particular distinction from ordinary community pro-

Although it is maintained as a laboratory and center of the meteorology instruction program, the weather station is open to students and staff of the college and to the public. It is entered through the northeast entrance of the Veterinary Medicine building.

Skates To Faith
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Rev. Arthur F. Koons, who is experimenting with a "faith on wheels" program at his roller rink in nearby Westerville, says he gets more queries on spiritual matters there than he ever did "at my church."

Rev. Koons thinks the reason is "people are afraid to approach a minister at church or at home, fearful that they may be broadcasting the fact they have troubles and need advice."

The minister offers a prayer each evening in connection with a flag ceremony. He calls the rink run by himself and his wife an "experiment in the field of juvenile delinquency."

Death Backs Petition
SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Those signing a petition to have the city mark with white lines the street crosswalks at 30th St. and Adams Ave., included James McMahon, 78. Later, McMahon was hit and killed by an automobile while crossing at the intersection. The city council was then told that crosswalk markings and lighting by the street department would be placed there immediately.

Music Not For Birds
WICHITA, Kas. — Since installation of a carillon in the city hall's clock tower, there has been a marked thinning out of the hundreds of noisy starlings that used to gather on ledges of the mid-city building.

Language Detour
HONG KONG — When 73-year-old Yugoslav priest, Francis Alexis

READ THE BRAND CLASSIFIEDS

Benigar, was expelled from China recently he presented a problem to American priest, Paul J. Duchesne, who met him at the Hong Kong border.

There was a bit of difficulty about Father Benigar's ancient passport. He went into China 30 years ago and has been there ever since. His Yugoslav passport, issued by King Alexander I (1921-34), was so out-of-date and battered the customs guards were suspicious. Suspicion was allayed after lingual detours.

Father Benigar speaks seven languages—ugoslav, Polish, Russian, German, Chinese, Mandarin, Italian and Latin. Father Duchesne speaks four, English, French, Chinese Cantonese (which has no similarity to Chinese Mandarin) and Latin.

The old passport was explained in the language of the Caesars to Duchesne and in English to the border guards.

Father Benigar is now in a Hong Kong hospital recovering from general exhaustion.

Mr. Grain Producer

Will You Have Sufficient

STORAGE SPACE

For Your Crops!!!

If you want to sell your grain (particularly grain sorghum) for the highest prices you may need storage space.

The nation has more grain and oil seed crops in storage now than ever before - Texas storage facilities are full in most areas, so YOU will have to be responsible for finding space for your 1954 crops.

If you can't find commercial storage - and do not provide your own approved farm storage, you will have to sell the crop at harvest time when prices usually are lowest and lose the benefit of government support prices.

Conditions and price supports vary within the State by county. For instance, the support price on grain sorghum varies from $2.09 to $2.62 per 100 lbs.

You can store grain sorghum on your farm without loss of grain or quality if it is:

- Dry enough
- Stored in approved structures
- (1) That are protected from outside moisture, insects, rodents, bugs and other hazards.
- (2) That have adequate turning or drying equipment.
- Fumigated and ventilated.

You can contact county agricultural agents and county Agricultural Stabilization Conservation officials for more detailed recommendations on storage methods and requirements.

DON'T SELL SHORT

Check for available space from your local commercial elevator.

If space is not available from normal channels, check on cost and feasibility of providing your own "on-farm" storage.

Build the type of storage that will be most suited to your long-time farming operation.

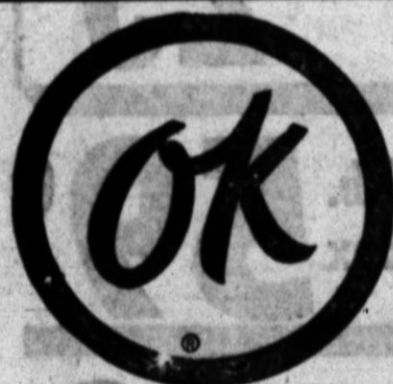

See Us Today About YOUR Storage Problem!

White Silk
While white silk cannot be guaranteed from turning yellow when washing, usually rolling them in a Turkish towel as soon as washed will prevent their turning yellow. They may be ironed in a half-hour or can be left 24 hours without harm.

Moths
To prevent moths in carpets, scrub the floor with strong salt water before laying the carpet and sprinkle the carpet with salt once a week, before sweeping.

Reducing
To reduce flesh avoid starchy foods and fats. Take plenty of exercise. Take hot baths followed by cold baths. Do not drink water with meals.

Hemstitching
To hemstitch sheets, pillows or any such article, try pulling the threads, slightly loosening them; then, using a medium stitch, stitch hem down on center of space where threads are pulled. When stitched, pull up into place.

Wringing Clothes
You can avoid breaking buttons when wringing the clothes by keeping the buttons at the bottom. They break easily only when exposed to the top wringer.

Ink Stains
Cover the stains with a paste made of starch and buttermilk. Allow this paste to dry and then wash the fabric in warm water.

Piano Keys
Piano keys may be kept white by rubbing them occasionally with a cloth dipped in alcohol, and then dried with another cloth. Be careful not to get any alcohol on the varnish, as it is a varnish remover.

Dry Salt
If the salt containers are kept on or near a warm range, or other fire, where the salt will keep warm it will remain dry and no difficulty will be found in pouring it.

Bee Sting
The pain of a bee sting can be relieved if common mud is applied.

Clothespin Bag
Try making a bag of heavy ticking and fastening it to a wooden coat hanger. Hook the bag over the clothesline and push it along the line as the pins are needed.

House Passes Second Important Bill Under No Amendment Rule

The Social Security bill that recently passed the House of Representatives was passed under the "gag" rule. This was the second time this session that major legislation originating in the Ways and Means Committee was forced through the House of Representatives while Members stood handcuffed and gagged. The other time was when the voluminous tax revision bill was shoved through.

One of the members of the Ways and Means Committee, appearing on television just before the tax bill came to the Congress, stated that the bill was being written by the Ways and Means Committee and that the House of Representatives would not be allowed to dot an i or cross a t. That is exactly what happened. The bill was printed on March 9, contained over 800 pages (small print) and was voted on on March 18.

This procedure simply means that sixteen members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives can dominate and control 435 duly elected Members of Congress, insofar as legislation before that particular committee is concerned. The Social Security Bill wasn't even printed when the House began considering the rule to debate the bill. An attempt was made to open the bill for certain types of amendments, but this was soundly defeated by a vote of 70 to 76. The great majority of the 76 were Southern Democrats. Men who have always believed in the real democratic processes, and who realize that the "gag" rule practice is nothing less than steam roller politics, and that a slightly expanded use of this practice could do tremendous damage to the legislative processes so necessary in a democratic form of government. We sincerely hope that the Senate (where the "gag" rule does not apply) will remove some of the inequities of the bill.

PUERTO RICANS GO ON TRIAL

The Puerto Ricans, three men and a woman, are now on trial in Washington for the March 1 shooting in the House of Representatives. The woman undertook to make a speech when the case was called for trial, but was quickly hushed by officers of the court. It would be a good guess that she was going to make a speech on freedom of Puerto Rico. The poor gal doesn't seem to understand the place to get water is at the well. Puerto Rico can have its independence if Puerto Rico wants it. The place to determine this is in Puerto Rico, not in the United States, either in the Congress or before a district court. If justice prevails, I would venture that it will be several years before this woman or her thick-headed pals have an opportunity to visit Puerto Rico or any place else. One of the witnesses who appeared in the beginning of the trial was my good friend, Congressman Ken Roberts, from Alabama. He was shot in the leg and has had a pretty tough time of it. In fact, he was the last one to get out of the hospital.

He is still on crutches and has a specially designed chair in which he sits. The chair is fixed so that it affords a special support for his left leg.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S SPEECH

I did not like the statement of the Attorney General to the effect that the recent segregation decision of the Supreme Court was a complete answer to Communist propaganda criticizing racial segregation in this country. The Communist propaganda agents could very easily say that such a statement was an admission on the part of the Attorney General that the United States of America had been guilty of something before the Supreme Court made this segregation ruling.

We should spend our time telling the world about the shortcomings and viciousness of Communism, rather than trying to answer some false criticism thought up by some expert Communist propaganda spreader. We are all going to wake up some morning and find out that Communist criticism and condemnation can not be satisfied by sacrificing our basic rights that distinguish Americanism from Communism. If propaganda is the weapon that is going to be used, it is time that we got on the offensive with it, rather than being on the defensive.

Before anyone knew it, the Wells Fargo Company put on free express delivery in the city. This is the direct result of the work of the Secretary Holman and the results came sooner than he expected. George Kent has the contract for making the deliveries but says that the new arrangement makes the delivery of packages slower than before and that there has been some kicking. There will always be some objectors even when progress is made in the right direction.

This question will not down, but George A. Stambaugh has put up two patent posts on the curbing in front of his store. They are made of iron piping with a weighted chain dropped inside. One farmer on discovering the posts announces that he is hereafter the customer of Mr. Stambaugh's.

There has been some talk of a daily paper in Hereford and The Brand has been asked why not? This is a question where "fools rush in where angels fear to tread." When Hereford gets big enough to support a good local daily, you may rest assured that The Brand will be ready to enter the field.

The new currency is considerably smaller in size than that in circulation today, being 6 5/16 by 2 11/16 inches. The design of the bills is very attractive and each denomination is readily recognizable at a glance because of the large figures printed on each.

Each bill bears a portrait of a famous American on the front. The $1 bills and denominations over $100 will have ornamental backs—all other denominations will have engravings of buildings on the backs.

Being the most famous American in history, the portrait of George Washington will appear on all $1 bills the denomination most used by all. Thomas Jefferson's portrait will adorn the $2 bills and the likeness of Abraham Lincoln will appear on the $5 bills.

Trieste Is Strange Town Full Of Occupation Troops

By Cecile B. Eubanks

Weary of arriving after dark in strange cities with no place in which to lay my head and subsequent walling to an assortment of Tourist Bureaus for help, I called on the American Express in Rome for assistance in arranging an itinerary through Switzerland and Germany. It was nearly closing time so I was politely put off with suggestion I come back early (9 a.m.) in the morning.

When I reached my hotel a telegram waited me from a young Captain friend located in Trieste. His family had suggested (I am quite sure) that he invite me here. He stated hotel arrangements had been made and that he would be at the airport to meet me that afternoon unless I telephoned I could not be here. So I am here, the hotel problem being settled for me for the next few days.

The plane I came on looked like a very small coil belonging to a mighty TWA mother. The first qualms I ever had boarding a plane. It was so little and had only two engines. At least it looked as if it had only two engines. If I had known it was a DC-2 built in America I might have been saved a bit of heart jumping. Isn't it odd how everyone feels the things made in his own country are one? As it was I kept repeating to myself that one of the first non-stop plane flights (if memory doesn't play me false) was piloted by an Italian. So, I reasoned, our crew must be good.

While over some of the sharpest, blackest and most threatening looking mountain tops something happened to the sun. It simply disappeared. It became so dark electricity had to be turned on. The hostess — as pretty and dainty a bit of femininity as I ever saw — came and said to fasten our seat belts. Lightning flashed against my window. Instead of frightening me as I would have expected it to, I felt a sort of shimmer inside as if I was facing some high adventure. But all this lasted only about 10 minutes. Then the sun was shining. We were floating smoothly over some of the loveliest farmlands I ever saw. Must have been a lot of flowers raised for market because the landscape below looked like an artist's palette spread neatly in rectangular patches with the rainbow.

We let down in Venice. Out from Venice, I should say. Only there 20 minutes. Didn't see much. Just a very ordinary small air terminal surrounded by pansies. And the pansies in turn surrounded by water. Islands on which appeared piles of masonry which might have been occupied homes or medieval castles. What looked like farmland with growing vineyards and trees etc., were inundated. Canals ran here and there. I wondered if the sea had rushed in and destroyed some hard-working man's labor.

Thirty minutes after leaving Venice we landed. Still in Italy. It is my understanding that there are no commercial planes landing in AMG Trieste, Free Territory of Trieste. My young friend waited for me in a civilian car. No military car is permitted to cross the Trieste border into either Italy or Yugoslavia. Entering Trieste, we both had to show our passports. AMG stands for Allied Military Government. It is composed of British and American forces with British in supreme command or something like that. Betfors is used for British Element Trieste Forces. Trust means Trieste United States troops.

Our General McFadden lives at a tragic, famed and lovely Castle Ramare some of whose history I shall try to tell you later. It is located on a point of land jutting into the sea and clearly visible from one of my four windows. The grounds are unbelievably beautiful. If the sun ever shines Bill is going to take me out there to get some pictures. Please, shine Sun! American Officers' headquarters (living) are eight or nine blocks from here. British are in this hotel but they reach their rooms through an exclusive entrance and seldom are seen in the public lobby or lounge rooms. The remainder of this hotel is commercial and is patronized by VIPs of all nations. And others, like me.

The most noticeable social phenomenon to me is that the British and Americans fraternize very little. I am sure the British won't. The Americans are friendly to everyone who will permit them to be. However, if one meets the British they are very nice. Bill took me to the British Bar and Lounge night before last for a few minutes and we were invited to a table by two British officers he knew and entertained royally. It is just noticeable that you never see them together anywhere else.

My room is on the second floor and looks out over the harbor. Lovely. I look up from this type-write and see fishing boats, some with sails, some being rowed by hand. All kinds of boats are visible sometime during the day. It is American territory or under our control straight across from here, and nothing docks there or is allowed to clutter the harbor.

A four lane street runs between the hotel and the water. It is paved with stones twelve to 15 inches thick, 18 to 36 inches wide and from 3-72 inches long. Probably been here centuries. At least since Trieste became one of the most valuable ports in the world. Through the center of this wide pavement runs a parkway of trees and flowers. I look out high over the tree tops. When I say "high" I mean "high." While I am on only the second floor, it doesn't mean what that means in America. There is "Piano terre," which means ground floor. Then Primera piano-first floor. Amazzanto piano which is mezzanine. Secundo piano which is my floor. By this time you have guessed "piano" means floor here. It does. But also other things. For instance if one does not care about it, one shrugs the shoulders and murmurs "piano." Nice little gadget, that word. So I am HIGH above the tree tops.

Diagonally across the street is the Trust headquarters for entertainment for the American forces. It is a large building built on the pier extending far out into the harbor. At one time I understand it was a shipping company's property. Since AMG came here it has been diverted to military use, as has practically everything else in Trieste: homes, buildings, hotels, etc. The Deaf Smith County Courthouse could be set down in one corner of the building that is stone (outside) tile and marble inside. The marble balustrades along the wide stairways are a marvel of color and polish. Made by hand, I'm willing to wager. The curves are something only conceived by an artist.

Everything in this building belongs to the American Government — or at least is operated by American parties of AMG. The magazine and book stands sell the soldiers their wares at less than I would pay in the United States. The restaurant served American food only. It is imported from home. I believe the milk is about the only exception. And Italian dairies from whom they get the milk are supervised and inspected by the military. Bill says he drinks milk ONLY there. Practically everything is brought here frozen.

Part of this is to provide the boys with familiar foods. But mostly so as not to compete with the local residents for food, clothing, nicknacks, etc. If it were all bought on open market it would send the prices skyrocketing until only a few here could buy food. It sounds reasonable to me. The Post exchange has fewer things on sale. I am told, than most American Post Exchanges in Europe. That is because the families were sent home not long ago. I haven't found out if it was when the AMG tried to turn this territory over to the Italians and Yugoslavia and Italy massed troops along the border. But I think it was. One colonel's wife referred to herself as having been a DP. She and her children had been deported to Switzerland or Germany for safety, of course. Also all the other families. Now no American soldier's wife is permitted to live here more than two weeks.

Bill is in "Housing" and tells me there are some 400 houses empty, caused by this state of affairs. He says they need them badly to take care of demand, but cannot as it might be announced the families can come back. If that were the case there would be no place for them to live.

Of course, as families are not here there is less demand for groceries, clothing, etc., at Post Exchange so the supply is kept low. Everything bought through these government managed concessions is paid for only with script issued to soldiers and good as legal tender only in such places. I have eaten over there several times as my young Captain's guest. Everything is about as in the average American restaurant except the variety offered each day which changes daily. And the price. These boys get a big helping of meat, gravy, potatoes, spinach or other vegetable, a salad, pie, coffee or milk for about 50 or 60 cents. But, remember, they get paid a base of only $96 per month and live under discipline away from home! There should be some small compensations.

The reading rooms, bowling alleys, tennis tables and other game rooms, picture show etc., are free to the soldiers. The dance hall is a big one and I am told it is quite active in the evenings.

Right now everybody over there is concerned about a stray mongrel dog that wandered in a few days ago. It was petted and made welcome in the hallways (only place he would be allowed, I think.) It was run over by some kind of motor vehicle yesterday. Think perhaps it died last night as it seemed on verge of it.

The gloom about the pup was overshadowed by the fact an American boy was also struck by motor vehicle and is in the hospital suffering from a fractured skull. I asked the girl who works in the magazine concession if it was done by another American. She said "No. That is the trouble." While it plainly was an accident she would have felt better if one of his own countrymen had done it. No one of any other country could be blamed.

Which brings me to the riots of some few weeks ago. Students here move about in groups of a dozen or so at practically all times. They wield a big political influence, I am told. I know nothing about politics and want to even less here. However, I am told that there are 32 political parties here. There are four papers, each representing a different view point. A translated version of any story from each of these papers show such diversity they do not sound like an account of the same event.

Some weeks ago, on a National holiday (Italian) some students ran up the Italian flag. This is forbidden as this is Free Territory. So the British moved in to take or order the flag down. Rioting ensued. Or the riot started between factions and the British came in. Whatever happened six persons were killed. One a boy of fifteen. Before the Americans arrived on the scene I was told some people sought sanctuary in a neighboring church. Blood was spilled before the altar. I cannot vouch for the exactness of times, but it would seem the facts are about correct. I heard the Americans were cheered and the riot quelled. Somewhat, I doubt this was EXACTLY how it occurred. We are not loved here. We are considered interlopers. Even though necessary ones. Everybody seems to wish things would smooth out and all the foreign troops go home. I can understand that.

The Allied Military Government keeps living down in cost for the poorer people by rent controls etc. But the others do not get along as well as usual. Their investments bring in less income. They have had to cut down their scale of living, and who would like that?

The Italian people I have met and visited with are of this class. Only now and then a word slips in that shows they feel the pinch.

Everybody is nice to me here. My banker friend took me through the various departments of the Bank of Naples yesterday after lunch. He is called "Director" but the word does not mean the same as in America. Here it is "Manager" or "Head." With us a director is but one of several who direct policies of a corporation. It comes nearer here of being "President" I think.

All the bookkeeping and such offices are on a floor above bank proper. The director's private office is also up there. And it is the nicest office I ever saw. And my friend seems to fit perfectly into the setting.

Have luncheon appointment at home of new Italian friends in a few minutes, so long!

P. S. Just heard the pup at PX has a chance to live. It seems that someone called the Trieste equivalent of Dogpound and reported the injured dog. He was taken there to be killed. Some of the soldiers found it out and rushed over there, got the dog and he is on the road to recovery in a hospital bed arranged for him in the back seat of a car! Maybe not on road to recovery, exactly, but he is able to lap up some milk every hour. So, our boys haven't lost the love of the helpless just because they are in military uniform.

John Renner of Friona tied Stan Barrett, defending city champion, for medalist honors Saturday. Playing in an extremely high wind both players shot creditable 4 over par 76's. They will play for the medalist prize in their first match. Around 100 golfers and wives attended the festivities at the Jaycee Clubhouse Saturday night when pairings were announced. There were a total of 56 entries (seven full flights). Pairings for the first match which must be played before Sunday.

There were good years and bad. "First 20 years we were in business, the money rolled in," recalls Justiss. "Then came the lean years. Like 1920 when cotton went to six cents a pound."

"Folks don't depend so much on cotton nowadays," he explains approvingly. "They raise different things 'round here. Changes our credit system, too. Don't do a lot of that long-term credit now. They can pay more often."

"Back in the old days, we'd carry some families all year. Matter of fact," he chuckled, "We're still carrying some of that credit we passed out 20 years ago."

Despite his age, salesmen say Justiss is still a shrewd man to deal with. He does most of his store's buying.

Justiss can't help grumbling when they quote the prices to him. "Remember when navy beans cost $1 for a 100-pound sack," he added wryly. "Now they're $15. And coffee that used to sell for 25 cents a pound goes for $1.25 nowadays."

One thing hasn't changed. Most anytime of the day, you can find a couple of Justiss' old cronies around the pot-bellied stove and they still use the same old nail kegs and block salt to sit on.

Importance Of Chisholm Trail Brought Out In Recent Release

By Martha Cole Associated Press Staff

To a proud Texan, it's something of an affront to read that Missourians once took to guns to keep Texans out of their state, and Abilene, Kan., sent out notices it didn't want Texans.

It's told in "The Chisholm Trail" written by Wayne Gard and published in May by the University of Oklahoma Press. Gard is an editorial page writer for the Dallas Morning News.

His book is full of factual material. Put all together, it tells a tale of Longhorn cattle laboring up the old Chisholm trail to northern markets during those dozen tempestuous years after 1866.

It's a tale of hardships, of spring storms, flooded river crossings, sudden cattle stampedes, and always the cowboy fighting to keep his herd moving.

It's a tale of the towns at the end of the trail — Abilene, Newton, Wichita, Caldwell and Ellsworth, and that Gomorrah of the plains, Dodge City, Kansas.

Before the Chisholm trail became a worn path northward, Texas cattle plodded up to Missouri, along the Shawnee trail.

Vigilante Committees

The longhorns were as mean a creature that traveled on four legs. They also spread a livestock disease known as Spanish fever or Mexican fever in Texas. In 1855 Missouri farmers organized vigilante committees to keep the herds from going through their land and spreading disease.

Then later, Abilene, Kan., decided it didn't want the wild whooping Texans celebrating at the end of the trail. Some citizens sent circulars to Texas telling the trail drivers to stay away "as the inhabitants of Dickinson County will no longer submit to the evils of the trade."

Undaunted, the Texans and their Longhorns kept moving up the trail. On to Wichita, Ellsworth and Dodge City.

Gradually, barbed wire fences cut off the old Chisholm trail. "Wind and rain began to beat out the prints of millions of Longhorn hoofs," Gard writes. "Soon a carpet of new grass spread over the battered path."

A Lasting Impression
But Texans can take pride in what those pioneers and their rangy old longhorns accomplished. "On the nation's economy, the trail had a more lasting impression," Gard says.

It spurred the growth of Chisholm Trail, it lessened the animosity after the civil war by bringing Yankees and Texans together in commercial transactions, it lessened the cost of beef to the housewife.

It spurred the growth of Chicago and Kansas City as centers for beef packing, it gave incentive to railroad building and to the development of refrigerator cars and meat canning.

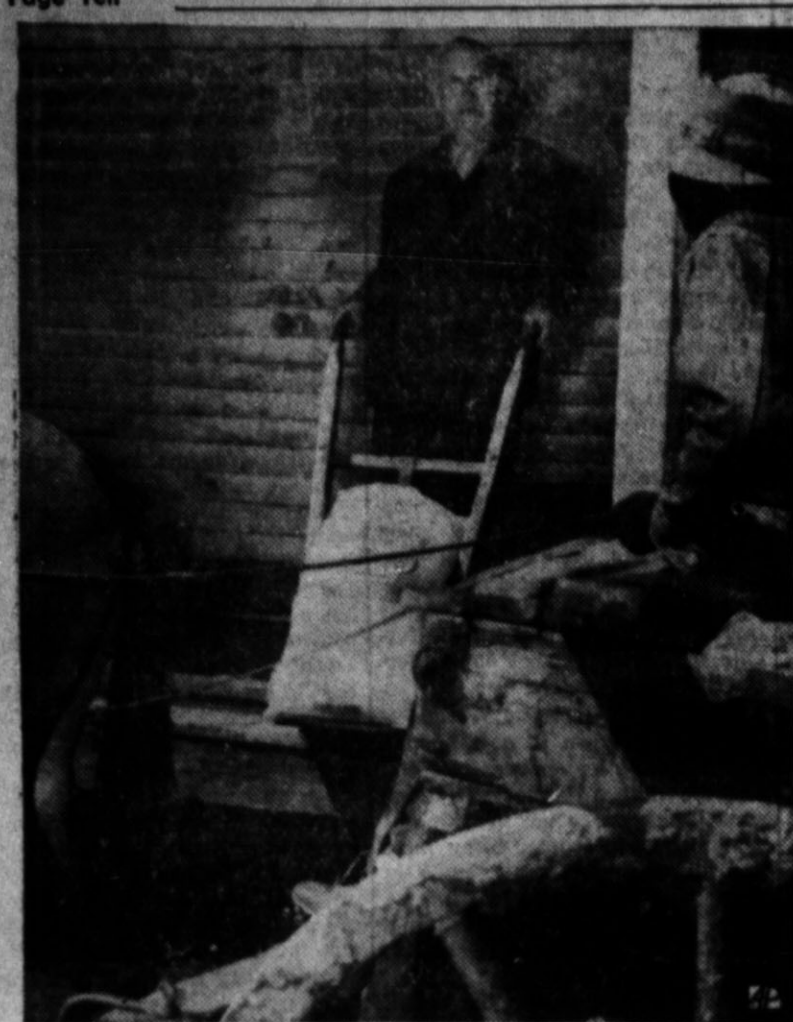

And for much of Texas, the Chisholm Trail offered a way of escape from the poverty in which the Civil War had left the state.

The book is worth the reading for any Texan.

COUNTRY STOREKEEPER Once in a while Dick Justiss hoists a 100-pound sack of flour onto a customer's wagon. The 87-year-old Justice has operated a country store at Howland, Texas, for half a century. Time has brought its changes, he says, but there is still place for the old country and business is good. (AP Photo)

Country Store Still Has Place In Some Areas

Howland, Tex. — There's still a place for the old country store in this modern land we live in.

Old Dick Justiss, down at Howland Mercantile Company, has been catering to the needs of the farm folk for 57 years and business is still pretty good.

"Aw, things get kind of dull sometimes," agrees the mellow old gentleman. "But I feel like the people would miss us pretty bad if we closed our doors."

Wagons, buggies and horse-collars don't sell so good as they used to. Matter of fact, there's only one horse-collar in the store and it has been gathering dust on the back wall for years.

Dick Justiss is still a shrewd businessman, despite his 87 years. He has shoved aside the old cracker barrel and cheese hoop for a modern meat counter and other improvements.

Instead of kerosene lamps, he now stocks electric light bulbs.

"Don't carry women's shoes any more, either," Justiss explains. "Got where they make so many styles and sizes. And women are harder to please than they used to be too."

Justiss doesn't handle caskets and shrouds any more, either.

Grande to the Gulf and sometimes swallowed up her bridges. The newest bridge, a $333,000 band of steel, was completed in November, just south of here. New highways were laid out to join it, and the Mexican government has mapped out a 250-acre townsite to serve a chemical plant and an oil field nearby.

To beat the river's floods, the bridge is built in a special way. Hermetically sealed box girder beams allow the bridge to float if it should be washed out. The beams will float in as little as two feet of water.

An older bridge at Laredo, built in 1922, beats the river in a different way. The builders used aluminum rails that can be removed in 30 minutes and carried to safety. Even a plaque placed in the center of the bridge by the Pan American Roundtable to honor all the women of the Americas is aluminum and removable.

These are toll bridges, like all those joining Texas and Mexico. Federal and state governments have no control over any of them except for customs inspection and policing.

You can even try to buy a bridge—and unlike the hicks who try to buy the Brooklyn bridge, you won't be regarded as a sucker.

For example, the company running the United States half of the bridge at Del Rio went bankrupt last summer. This side of the bridge was sold at public auction.

The city of Del Rio tried to buy it but was outbid $5,000 by the Citizens Bridge Co., of Eagle Pass with a $275,000 offer.

The bridge at the big international port of Laredo is city owned. All the other—bridges at El Paso, Eagle Pass, McAllen, Brownsville, Ysleta, Presidio, Roma, Rio Grande City and the new one near here—are privately owned.

The franchises vary greatly. The Roma bridge company has a perpetual franchise from the state. One at El Paso was granted in 1902 and runs 85 years. The Laredo franchise is on a year-to-year basis.

The only place on the border where you can cross—legally—without paying a toll is at Falcon Dam, 45 miles upstream from Mission. A paved road across the big water storage project joins the two countries.

The old Zapata, Tex., customs station was moved to the dam when spreading Falcon Lake inundated the international bridge at Zapata last summer.

Texas highway officials wish all the crossings were free.

"Texas is the real gateway to Mexico for the entire United States," State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer said. "It has long been the opinion of the Texas Highway Commission that the free flow of traffic between the nations would be improved if at least some of the bridges were state owned and free. We would like to see no toll bridges at all across the Rio Grande."

"Over a long period of years we eliminate toll bridges over the Red River into Oklahoma and the Sabine into Louisiana, as well as some toll bridges that were inside the state."

To build a free international bridge, Greer said, the state first would have to make an agreement with Mexico. The commission long has had plans for a free bridge at Laredo, but negotiations have never reached the international agreement stage.

IT ISN'T NECESSARY to say that members of the Bluebird groups enjoyed their annual two day Bluebird camp when one can look at the happy faces at the close of the second day. The four groups held their camp Friday and Saturday of last week. Friday night the girls hiked to Jaycee Park and cooked supper out after an afternoon of games, folk songs, stories and painting. Saturday the girls went on a nature hike and did spatter painting of leaves they found on the hike. They cooked dinner in the Campfire Hut and later in the afternoon had refreshments of ice cream and cookies. Fifty-one girls registered for the camp. Village Smithy Nearing End Of Very Long Trail Roxton, Texas — A few glowing coals still smoulder in Elmer Fuqua's old forge.

Once in a while, somebody drifts in with a horse to be shod. And during the winter, there are still a good many plow sweeps and bedder points to be sharpened.

Blacksmith shops are just about extinct, admits the man who runs Lamar County's last one.

"Another 10 years," smiled old man Fuqua sort of sadly. "And us village blacksmith will be just another page in somebody's history book."

There were better days. Fuqua, whose Roxton blacksmith shop has given way to welding, lathes and machine work, remembers when he used to shoe 12 to 14 horses and mules a day.

Cost you $1 a horse to get your animal shod.

Fuqua will be 80 years old next August. He really didn't realize he was that old, though, until the big red oak beside his blacksmith shop turned up its roots and died five years ago.

"That old oak used to be the best shade tree around here," recalls the smith, whose shop has been in the same spot for 50 years. "Used to shoe horses under it. Sometimes had to tie the mean ones to it."

Fuqua quit shoeing horses 20 years ago. His big, good-natured son, Arthur, handles the heavy work now. Had only one horse to shoe last year.

"You know," recalls the old gentleman, "Shoeing horses is an art. I studied every book I could get on it when I was a kid. Guess if I had studied the Bible like I did horseshoes, I would have been a preacher instead."

Two-chipped, beaten anvils still come in for heavy use around the shop. Business is pretty good with plow points and sweeps.

Fuqua still heats the steel to a bloody red with his old forge then pounds away on his anvil. Through the years he never suffered more than a few mashed fingers.

Being the only blacksmith hereabouts, Fuqua reaps a trickle of business from all over the Red River Valley. He remembers when there were five smithys along Sulphur River alone. He's the last.

Texans In Washington

By Robert H. Johnson Jr. Associated Press Staff

Mission, Texas — Thirteen bridges and a giant dam have wrapped the rowdy Rio Grande. They bind Texas and Mexico along the river's 1,240-mile course from El Paso to the Gulf.

In the old days, treacherous currents and sand bars trapped unskilled or unwary travelers. When you got across, somebody was likely to take a pot shot at you.

Now modern engineering has tamed the capricious stream. The U. S. Border Patrol and the Mexican Federals keep the border peaceful.

The biggest force in taming the river was the new Falcon Dam, dedicated last October 19 by President Eisenhower of the United States and Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico. It will limit the floods that used to course down the Rio bridge, Greer said, the state first would have to make an agreement with Mexico. The commission long has had plans for a free bridge at Laredo, but negotiations have never reached the international agreement stage.

Congress has approved a free bridge at Del Rio but never at Laredo. The highway commission hasn't pressed for the Del Rio bridge because it would be only an indirect link with Mexico's highway system.

Greer said Texas would like to have free bridges at Laredo, El Paso and Brownsville as a starter.

The first known bridge across the Rio Grande wasn't really a bridge — just a limestone ledge lying outside what is now Laredo. During dry spells — and there are many along the border — the ledge was exposed and formed a natural crossing for the Indians.

In 1757, Don Tomas Sanchez, who founded Laredo two years before, built a skiff that became the first known toll ferry across the river.

It was more than a hundred years before the first real bridge was substituted for ferry transportation. In the meantime, the Laredo crossing was part of Gen. Santa Anna's route to the Alamo during the Texas revolution.

After losing the battle of San Jacinto and the war with Texas, the defeated Mexican troops returned across the river the same way.

This wasn't the only time defeated troops splashed through the Rio Grande. On July 4, 1865, Gen. Joe Shelby and 500 members of his Missouri Cavalry arrived at the river, beaten and bitter at the defeat of the Confederate States.

Before the men scattered into Mexico as fugitives, four colonels lowered the unit's battle flag into the muddy river to keep it out of union hands. General Shelby tore the white plume from F's hat and tossed it after the flag.

Pancho Villa used to ford the stream to raid border villages and dodged back across when the troops of Gen. John J. (Blackjack) Pershing got too close.

During the gold rush, the Rio Grande boomed when some fortune hunters took the southern route to California. Some stopped off on the way and settlements grew along the river.

Into the 1920's river boats plied the Rio Grande, some as far upstream as Laredo.

Now the bridges give Texas and Mexico a firmer binding. The only trouble facing the ordinary traveler is digging into his pocket for who don't cross by bridge—the wet backs, Mexican citizens who cross without passports to hire out on United States farms.

A favorite story along the Rio Grande is about two border patrolmen who arrested a young Mexican as he trudged out of the stream. He wore ragged clothes and a greasy sombrero was pulled down over his shaggy hair. The patrolmen questioned him in Tex-Mex—the border version of Spanish — and started off with him to the Brownsville jail. They were startled when he spoke up in perfect English.

"Gentlemen," he said, "can you arrange to have me tried by Judge Allen Hannay of Houston? You see he always sends me up to the Seagoville prison farm at Dallas, and if I go there one more time I can get my high school diploma."

Beauty At Home

By Lynn Carter

Q. What are some DON'TS to observe when dressing gray hair?

A. Don't dress with thick buns or knots at back or on top. Don't wear tight marcel waves, but use wide and shallow waves. Don't wear ringlets, as these tend to accentuate lines and wrinkles. Don't wear low at back of neck, as this tends to call attention to every tiny defect and line throughout the lower part of the face.

Q. How can I give the impression of whiter teeth than I really have?

A. A slightly darker shade of lipstick, preferably one with just a little blue, will do this. Stay away from orange tones, for they make the teeth look yellow.

Q. What makeup should be used when wearing glasses?

A. The same that is most becoming to you without glasses. Be sure not to permit the rouge to outline the lower rim of your glasses, but blend it up under the lenses.

Q. What can I do for dull and unruly hair if I have no time for shampooing and setting?

A. Brush it vigorously with a clean brush over which is spread a piece of sheer chiffon. Anoint the ends with a bit of creme set and brush again. Wrok up the sleekest coiffure you can master. Perhaps a little lacquer is necessary around the front hairline.

Q. I've heard that women over 30 should avoid wearing black. Is this true?

A. Certainly not! But they should relieve the black with a bit of color or white near the face. Unless the woman over 30 has kept her beauty youthful, solid black near the face tends to drain it of color.

Q. How should an oily complexion be cleansed?

A. With a mild soap lather and a complexion brush. Oily skin is a lazy skin and needs stimulation. Unless scrubbed well, it will produce a nice crop of tiny blackheads.

Q. What is a good way to apply one's face powder?

A. After applying the proper makeup foundation, powder generously with a piece of fresh cotton, first in the concaves, such as the chin, cheeks and temples. The nose is last! Stretch the skin as you powder, so that the wrinkles will be the same tone. Last, distribute the powder only with a powder brush.

Q. What is a good way to cool skin during hot weather?

A. With a couple of face tissues or a wad of fresh cotton soaked in chilled skin tonic, pat the back of your neck, your throat, and your temples. This is refreshing.

Q. How can sun tan be bleached off the face?

A. A nightly application of a rich cream to which the fresh juice of a lemon has been added is good.

Wildlife Study Before Harvest Now Underway

AUSTIN — The Executive Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission said staff employees in various parts of the state are making studies preliminary to setting major harvest seasons.

The Commission will meet in Austin in July to make its recommendations on waterfowl, white-wing dove and mourning dove regulations to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service which sets the seasons.

At the same time, the Commission will determine harvest specifications for areas where it has regulatory powers, including the major zones West of the Pecos and in the Panhandle and in smaller regions at scattered points in the state.

The seasons on big game and the quail for the state at large are set by law.

Now, Commission staffers are surveying the antelope herds, checking potential white-wing flights in Mexico and investigating mourning doves.

Meetings Continuing
Meanwhile, meetings between sportsmen and Commission representatives are being concentrated, Panhandle, West of the Pecos and in smaller areas over which the Commission has regulatory authority to determine harvest dimensions on the basis of current developments.

Data likewise is being accumulated, according to the Executive Secretary, to background the state's recommendations to Federal authorities on the duck and goose seasons.

The Director of Wildlife Restoration, W. C. Glazener, reported that the first completed census—that on antelope in the Big Bend area—indicates possibility of too few mature bucks to warrant an open season there this fall. The area has been scourged by drought.

The aerial survey in the Panhandle, which last year had its first antelope hunt in modern times after successful restocking is just getting underway.

Whitewing dove studies in the Rio Grande Valley and in the area southward in Mexico where the fleet birds sometimes concentrate, have been rather pessimistic to date, according to Glazener. The whitewing population, harassed by habitat shrinkage, reached an all-time low last fall and the annual harvest was disappointing.

Recipe of the Week

Blackberry or Dewberry Jelly

Select a mixture of slightly underripe and ripe berries. Prepare a small quantity at a time (6 quarts is a good amount.) Wash quickly and carefully in a colander. Drain. Remove the caps.

To extract the juice use the proportion of one pound of the prepared berries to 1/4 cup water to firm fruit; add no water to soft fruit. Put the fruit and water (if used) in a broad flat-bottom pan. Bring to a boil. Boil 5 to 10 minutes. Stir to prevent scorching. Pour hot cooked fruit into a jelly bag made of cotton flannel or 2 or 3 thicknesses of cheese cloth. Let the juice drip on a bowl. When the dripping has almost ceased, press the jelly bag to obtain all the juice. Strain the juice through a fresh, wet bag. Do not press bag. Test the juice for pectin by adding 2 tablespoons cool fruit juice to 2 teaspoons sugar then adding 1 tablespoon Epsom salts and stirring until dissolved. Let it stand 5 minutes. If a solid mass of jelly is formed the juice is rich in pectin and is good for jelly.

To prepare the jelly use 4 cups blackberry or dewberry juice and 3 to 4 cups of sugar. Heat the fruit juice and sugar quickly to boiling using a large flat-bottom pan that permits rapid evaporation. Stir only until the sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until jelly stage is reached. To test for jelly stage dip a large spoon in the boiling syrup and lift the spoon so that the syrup runs off the side. When the syrup no longer runs off the spoon in a steady stream but separates into two distinct lines of drops which "sheet" together, stop the cooking. Pour into hot sterilized jelly glasses, seal with paraffin, label and store.

Timely Tips

1. Jellies add variety and flavor to family meals. They are a good source of energy.

2. The bulletin B-200 "Sweets for the Family Table" available at the local County Home Demonstration Agents' office has information on how to prepare jellies, preserves, marmalades, jams, conserves and fruit butters.

IRWINGTON, Ga. — State Troopers went to a rural home to pick up a man's driver's license for failure to report an accident.

The man's wife said he was away, cutting wood. But the officers asked a little boy where his father was and he pointed in an opposite direction from the one his mother had given. Then, when one of them asked the lad if his daddy was making whisky the youngster replied "Uh-huh."

The troopers seized a big still.

Quite A Change From Musician To Girl Matador

San Angelo, Tex. — A blond San Angelo girl has swapped her bassoon for a matador's sword.

And Patricia Hayes, 22, is as good with the sword and cape now as she was two years ago when she studied music at North Texas State College in Denton and played with symphony orchestras in San Angelo, Tyler and El Paso.

She was fascinated when she saw her first bullfight, in Ciudad Acuna just across the Rio Grande from Del Rio, Texas.

"The matadors and other toreros were like graceful ballet dancers, and I was moved deeply by the stirring music of 'La Virgen de la Macarena,' the bullfighters' anthem," she said.

So she read every book about bullfighting she could find, especially Ernest Hemingway's "Death in the Afternoon."

She tried her hand in the bull ring for the first time early last year by facing fighting calves on a ranch near San Luis Potosi in Mexico. Raul Munoz, secretary to a famous matador, Luis Procuna, saw her through though she had what it takes to be a bullfighter.

Miss Hayes has classic, sensitive features and she's graceful on her feet.

Munoz introduced her to Procuna. He gave her pointers while she trained under Carlos Suarez, a Mexican instructor.

Last Oct. 23 she made her professional debut at Cortazar, where she was awarded the ears of the bull for her skillful performance.

Since then she has stayed busy in the bull ring.

Her 13th appearance was in the ring at Ciudad Acuna, where she saw her first fight.

Hometown fans from San Angelo and members of her family from Texas and Tennessee — her father, John H. Hayes, now lives in Nashville — flocked to see her.

It was another big day for Patricia.

She performed so well the crowd awarded her an ear of the bull.
