But he, or anyone else for that matter, is entitled to the American right of free speech. Nobody is compelled to attend his rallies or listen to his speeches. They don't have to pay any attention to him. Hence, the heaping of physical indignities on a person whom no one is obliged to hear in the first place is hardly in the spirit of a cherished constitutional right.

Tossing eggs at candidates for high political office is not going to accomplish one thing except attention-and attention is one commodity on which most targets for such missles thrive.

Berlin Crisis Only Phase Of Drive By The Communists

Berlin has been building up for three years -ever since the war ended in 1945.

It's no surprise. It was to be expected. If this blows over, expect another at Berli or somewhere else. The reason: The differences between the aims and thinking of Russia and her wartime allies, the United States, Britain, and France. When Germany fell, the four allies faced a double problem: Political and economic. This was the political one:

Stamping out Nazi thinking-to prevent the rise of another Nazi dictatorship-and getting the Germans ready to set up a new German government so they could at last run them themselves.

This was the economic problem: Shattered Germany needed help, mayb for years, to get business and farming and trade going so Germans would have food and jobs and once more be able to stand beside and work with other nations. SO THE FOUR ALLIES AGREED ON a plan, but you can be sure they had their fingers crossed when they did it. It 1. They'd split Germany into four sones.

Each ally would occupy one zone with its troops and have complete control over everything that happened in its zone, including the Germans and the zone's economic recovery.

2. Then as time went on they'd try to agree among themselves on how they could work out plans for the political and economic recovery of Germany as a whole. (The political side of the problem will be dealt with in another story. This will explain only the economic side.)

The allies had their fingers crossed be-

WASHINGTON, UP - THE CRISIS AT cause the plan was pretty hopeless from the start. Why? For the reason given above: The great difference between the aims and ambitions of Russia and the Russia wants to see the world Communized. The others don't. Russian Communism means state ownership of everything and state control over everything: Trade, farming, business, and people. THE WESTERN NATIONS STAND FOR the freedom of the individual and for trade, business and farming that is more

So the Russians could be expected to lay the foundations of Communism in their zone of Germany and try to set the stage for pulling all Germany into Communism some day. They couldn't be expected to set up a free enterprise system in their zone. And the western powers were a cinch to do everything they could to block the spread of Communism in their zones. Yet, unless some deal could be worked out for uniting all four zones of Germany economically, how could it ever recoveras a whole?

To handle this problem all four powers -this was in 1945-agreed to create economic agencies for all Germany so it could he treated as a unit.

That was three years ago. Those agengies never have been set up. The result: The individual zones had barriers to trade with the others. Each nation handled the economic problems of its own zone in its

The Americans and British finally merged their two zones economically-the French are coming in now-so trade and money could flow between them. Russia has refused to take part in this.

French Stand With Allies In U.S. Very Encouraging and hopeful-aspects of the East-West quarrel over Berlin is the manner in which France finds herself able to stand squarely beside America and Britain in charging Russia with menacing world peace.

For those familiar with the situation it was a moment of great drama when French Foreign Minister Schuman conformed French-British-American solidarity in addressing the General Assembly of the United Nations in Paris. He declared that the three western powers had "exhausted every possibility of direct agreement" with Moscow. He said the trio hadn't found even "a minimum of good will" in their talks with Russia.

True, that was mild compared with the emotional and fiery denunciation of Red tactics by British Foreign Secretary Bevin. But there was a vast difference in the position of these two statesmen.

ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT- of his war-stricken country. He couldn't forget that the Communists have the largest single political party in France and have a powerful hold on labor. Clearly France must avoid war at all hazards within reason.

> Yet Schuman threw down the gauntlet to Red Russia, thereby enabling the three Democracies to present a solid front at this dangerous moment.

Clearly a terrible weakness in the deenses of western Europe against Communist aggression would have been exposed had France felt unable to take her accustomed place beside her old allies. However, the situation has been squarely met.

Moreover that's not the whole story. The defense ministers of the five western European alliance nations-France, Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg-met in Paris last Monday to discuss plans for coordinating their military resources. It was unofficially understood later from British sources that the ministers discussed a program of joint action - even to the extent of mobilization-in the light of the tension over Berlin.

WELL WHAT EFFECT WILL ALL this have on an aggressive Bolshevism? Certainly it will be impressive, but will it be impressive enough to halt the Red offensive? Will Russia and her satellites withdraw from the United Nations and go their own way while the Democracies go

There is a possibility, as this column pointed out yesterday, that the UN may split over the Berlin imroglio. However, I think that will depend on the nature of the action taken by the UN in dealing with the charges of the Democracies. An effort to impose heavy sanctions likely would result in the Communists walking out of the "peace" organization.

On the other hand the Muscovites are bound to consider carefully before quitting, because membership in the UN gives them good chance for obstruction and for sounding off Red propaganda.

WASHINGTON, -While Gov. Dewey's campaign train operates with clockwork precision, even to the exact timing of the moment when Paul Lockwood takes the Dewey manuscript up to the rostrum, President Truman's does not. It's much more helter-skelter, hit and miss, hot and human. Some of the jealousies and backbiting of the Palace Guard are all too obvious.

For instance, the President di not know until the last minute that Judge Sam Rosenman of New York wasn't going to be on his special train. Shortly before leaving Washington, Truman asked his aides:

"What's happened to Sam? He promised to help out during the campaign. Why isn't he here?" Speech-writer Clark Clifford gave a noncommittal answer. 'I guess Sam doesn't have time for us anymore," he said. Real fact, however, was that Rosenman did not run out on Truman. He was ready and willing to go on the trip, but others around Truman didn't want him. It was Rosenman who helped prepare the President's acceptance speech at the Philadelphia convention, probably the greatest Truman ever delivered. Rosenman also had a hand in the meseage to the special Congress has advised Truman to do more adlibbing, told him to lay-off the civil-rights issue during the campaign. "It has already done enough damage to the party," Rosenman cautioned.

However, Clark Clifford, Truman's other chief ghost writer, and John Snyder, secretary of the treasury, who is jealous of anyone with too much presidential influence, haven't been fond of Rosenman. Somehow or other it was arranged that he not be invited on the campaign train, Note-Bob Sherwood, famed playwright, who ghosted many of FDR's speeches, felt differently about working for Truman. Unlike Rosenman, he side-stepped a suggestion that he travel on the train. G.O.P. DRAFT RECORD Truman advisers also can't make up their minds as to whether they should go after the Deweyites on their war records. The President gave a veiled hint of this in his California speech in which he told how, when a Senator, he had offered his services to Chief of Staff Marshall in any capacity. Truman also took a left-handed crack at those who sought farm deferments and remarked that none of the men around him had sought draft exemption.

Behind this speech was the advice of various Trumanites to give the all-out facts on Gov. Dewey's farm deferment, at a time when he was not in public office but was practicing law in New York.

Truman's advisers also wanted him to call the roll of the four men on the Dewey brain trust, and point out that though of draft age, none saw war service. That was what was behind the President's reference to his own war record in California.

UNDERSTANDING Here are some more reactions to the recent meeting of club leaders in Montgomery, Ala., to discuss better understanding between the North and South and to erect a Blue and Grey memorial to that understanding.

Ralph Edwards Plans Another 'Hush' Hunt

HOLLYWOOD -Amid all the furor about banning giveaway air shows. Ralph Edwards is starting yet another "Hush" contest. The "Truth or Consequences" quizzer tells me he'll begin a Mr. and Mrs. Hush contest this week. The stunt will benefit mental health and, of course, everything except the S. S. Mechanical Age Bringing Vast Problems Of Traffic

Big Spring is experiencing its difficulties in regulating traffic, along with many other cities which have discovered that a "faster" age is bringing along problems that even the most exacting forethought failed to make provision for, but some metropolitan centers that have existed for much longer periods probably would call it mere child's play.

After all, they might point out, most of the bustling cities that have come of age since the turn of the century can solve their perplexities with some zoning, erection of signs and signals in proper places and extra emphasis upon enforcement of their modern statutes.

Such is not the case around some of the older population centers. For example, the City of New Orleans which grew up during the Mississippi river steamboat days, has been plagued with narrow, oneway thoroughfares since beginning of the mechanical age, despite the spacious with of its Canal street which pierces the heart of the business district.

Charleston, S. C., which has been described as a miniature New Orleans, is another urban center which has felt the pinch caused by modern vehicles travelling streets of colonial design. Its King street, a major business artery, is searcely wide enough to permit parallel parking, even with a one-way traffic regula-

Probably one of the greatest such problems arose right here in Texas, however, when automobiles first began to appear in San Antonio. That city's street system apparently developed from trails which were beaten out by horsemen and cattle drives. Not only were they limited to minimum width, but they represented a haphazard pattern. One-way streets have become a necessity, of course, but huge moving projects were required before some of the avenues could even accomodate traffic in one direction. Back there in the 'teens, when motor cars still were considered a novelty the problem was outlined upon the horizon. Large buildings in the business district were inched back from the curbs, and all possible space was cleared for streets. Nothing could be done, however, to alter the fig-saw pattern.-WACIL McNAIR.

New Englanders Leave Views On Area Merits To Others

semblance between a New Englander and fact that he isn't likely to find a gold a clam, living or dead, is purely coincidental

I found this out by going to a clambake It just isn't true that New Englanders regard a clam as a blabber-mouth. They are as talkative as anybody. The only obstacle in the path of having a conversation with a New Englander is the need of first convincing him that you are worth talking to-

The New Englander may mince his meat but he doesn't mince his words. He gets full value from them and he budgets his adjectives as carefully as he does his income. He may try to sell you an antique -but he won't try to sell you an opinion.

The New Englander doesn't indulge much in the bragging local pride that is typical of many American regions. He doesn't boast he has the biggest climate or the best sunsets. Minnesota's Dunn Fighting For Farmers In GOP Party

By JOSEPH ALSOP

(Copywrighted by New York Herald Trib-une Syndicate, 1948.) ST. PAUL, Minn.,—Mr. Roy Dunn, best known nationally as Minnesota's Republican National Committeeman, is a political landmark of this city. He is wellmade for a landmark, being a huge, craggy-faced, slow-moving, slow-spoken man, with an appearance of assured authority that is only enhanced by his manner of being a solid farmer at a county fair. And he has a landmark's appropriate story, being the son of very poor homesteaders who has become a rich farmer, a successful businessman and a major powerin Republican politics by dint of hard work, strong character and deep shrewd-

Back in the 1930's, when the Famer-Laborites took over Minnesota, Roy Dunn persuaded the state's almost hysterical businessmen to keep cool and let him handle the situation. He handled it with g eat efficiency, using funds contributed by the quaking business groups for a successful campaign to recapture the state legislature. He has controlled the legislature ever since, although Harold Stasgen would certainly have liked to break his power if possible. Roy Dunn's constituents are still the Minnesota farmers who elect him and his faithful followers to the legislature. and the Minnesota businessmen who pay the Republican party's bills. He can technically be called a servant of the interests. He frankly beleives that what the businessmen want and what the farmers want are good for Minnesota. He gives the businessmen what they want, to the best of his ability. He is therefore cordially detested by the state's labor groups and liberals. But it would be hard to discover any man more different from the "servant of the interests" of the Eastern urban imagination. In truth, itinerant students of politics will have to go pretty far to find a more astute or likeable man. whatever they may think of his politics.

In a way, this is a very happy time for Roy Dunn. The departure of Harold Stassen to the larger opportunities of Pennsylvania has left a vacuum in Minnesota. Partly because of Dunn's control of the legislature, the change wrought by Stassen in Minnesota Republicanism was always pretty patchy. Now the younger men who were brought into politics by Stassen are losing interest again. The Stassen group is accordingly losing strength in the Republican party. And the faction of Roy Dunn and the businessmen, with its support from the farm vote, is recapturing control. Stassen's hand-picked Governor Youngdahl is likely to be reelected almost without opposition, but he will be an isolated figure.

Despite the polls. Dunn also expects to earry Minnesota for Governor Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Joseph Ball. Thus it would seem that every prospect ought to please him. But the worm in his apple of contentment still remains, in the form of a dilemma which also afflicts many comparable but much less likable Republican servative position on labor, power and other great domestic issues. In the same way, many Eastern Republican leaders are relatively amiable toward labor, but ungenerous to the farmers and conservative about power; and North-western Republicus are progressive about power and reclamation policies, friendly to the farmers, and violent about labor.

Roy Dunn's dilemma can be simply stated. If the issues listed above and the others like them were submitted to a free vote by the Republicans presently in Congress, shifting majorities would give the victory to the conservative viewpoints in each case. The effect in Minnesota would be, primarily, further impairment of the government farm programs, along the lines of the grain trade lobbyists' raid on the Commodity Credit Corporation at the last session. That raid alone, by abolishing government storage of grain given as security for parity loans, is going to force many Midwestern farmers to sell much of their huge corn crop well below the parity price. The farmers' fury will eventually be sated by victims.

Price Of Farm Is Up

DES MOINES, Iowa (#)-When a 180 acre farm, near Melvin, Iowa, was auctioned off recently it sold for forty times its original cost-$302 per acre, or $48,320 for the 160. The farm went for $1,200 when it was sold 65 years ago. The recent sale was for cash. John McDowell, auctioneer, said there were a half dozen bidders ready to start the sale with bids of $250 per acre.

Bronchos Heavily Favored To Kayo Longhorns Tonite

Jim Patterson Leads Visitors

Joe Coleman moves his Odessa 45 Dick Laswell high school football artillery into 47 Lee Axtens the village for a broadside at the 51 Big Spring steers tonight and the 49 Bill Van Pelt expected pyrotechnics are expect- 34 Kimbel Guthrie ed to lure more than 5,000 fans into 32 Virgil Roundtree Steer stadium. As usual, the Bronchos from out west are heavily favored. In the first place, Coleman had Jimmy team this year and Patterson rose to the challenge. In the second, the Wild Hosses have neutralized the doubt of some of those Thomases who think they can't repeat as 3AA champions by bowling over North Side (Fort Worth) and El Paso high in succession.

Those two adventures occurred after the Cayuses had been held to a 7-7 tie by a respected Lubbock Westerner club.

The Bovines can in no way match that gaudy record- they were shellacked by Brownwood, 32-0, and then managed to nudge the Cisco Loboes, 14-12, with the help of some first inning lightning-but the resident eleven has a habit of playing a better caliber of ball on familiar terrain and could give the Odessans a warm reception.

Two years ago, on the local commons, the Longhorns held the Brones to a 12-0 score and might have made it closer still with a break here and there. That was the season the Odessans picked . up steam and murched to the state

Patterson will have plenty of help in the Odessa secondary. Howard Dye, a 153-pound speedster, was a thorn in the El Pasoans' side last week. He was one of the secret weapons Coleman's backers said he would spring on the opposition this

Then there are James Mobley 142 pounds, Carl Beard, Charley Clover, Joe Howell, Billy Nichols and others-any one of whom could blossom as a threat.

Against all that, the Big Springers' offense pales in comparison. The locals have Arliss Davis, a 170-pound line rammer who has been their most consistant ground

COSTLY SLIDE BY BRAVES' JEFF HEATH - His left foot twisting, Jeff Heath, slugging outfielder of the Boston Braves, suffers a fracture of the fibula as he tries to score in the sixth inning of the game with the Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Sept. 29. Putting him out is Dodgers' catcher Roy Campanella. Injury will prevent Heath from appearing in the World Series. The picture was made by Associated Press staff photographer John Lindsay. Legion Urges Safety Review By Everyone

School bells are ringing again. The local American Legion post therefore urges that everybody children and adults-reveiw the rules of safety.

"With vacation over and children going back to school, dirvers must be extra careful. All of us must see Whitehorn of the state highway department said today. "When I say all of us, that's just what I mean. the Safety of our children is a job for the whole community, parents, the police, school officials, teachers and every club or organization that numbers motorists, parents or young people among its members."

The child safety compaign this month is part of a continuing traffic safety program co-ordinated in this city by the 355th post of the American Legion and sponsored state wide by the Texas Safety association and the American Legion. Back-to-school safety pointers

Whitehorn listed are: 1. Motorists, give the kids "brake" by using special caution in residential areas, school zones and where ever you see them.

2. Parents, see that your children know the safest route to school-and that they know how to behave safely in traffic. And set them a good example.

3. Older boys and girls, watch out for smaller children. They follow your example-so give them s good one to follow. 4. Younger children, obey traffic officers and school safety patrols. Keep out of the street except when you cross with the traffic signal and always cross at the intersection, never in the middle of
