Abalos In Role Of Child Saver When He's Not Preparing Dishes

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Paul Abalos the restaurant owner seems out of place as Paul Abalos the child saver. After all, his office at West Central Elementary School hardly resembles a dining room.

During the day Abalos is director of the Parental Involvement School and Community Program, designed to act in a liaison capacity for the Hereford Independent School District. In the evenings he waits tables and helps his wife run Lil Charro Too Restaurant.

"This is hard work," said Abalos as he carried a Mexican food dinner to a hungry couple. "I guess you'd have to say I stay busy."

His work with the PISC program is difficult, too. Difficult and crucial--there are more Mexican-Americans than whites, 55 to 42 per cent (3 per cent are blacks) to be precise, in the Hereford school system, one of the first districts in the state to initiate a program to help migrant families.

"We're the liaison people for the school district. Being that, it is our job to identify the needs of the migrant student," Abalos said.

"If these kids are not in school, why are they not in school? We find out why by talking to the parents. If a child needs a pair of shoes to go to school, we're going to see he gets it. And sometimes it's medical attention the child needs. We see that he gets it."

Abalos was not trying to generalize the duties of his office, which consists of himself and three assistants. There are too many and listing specifics would be difficult.

"It would be very tough to put what all he does in a nutshell," said Dr. Harold Holder, Hereford superintendent. "Basically, he helps to establish positive relationships with parents and help them to overcome physical, financial or other problems that might be interfering with the education of their children."

Holder added, "We need the program. I definitely feel that working with the parents is one of the key issues in the education of boys and girls."

Obviously, much of Abalos' time is spent in the home.

"When my staff goes to a home, we go there for a purpose--either to get information on a youngster or invite the parents to a school meeting or tell them that the principal wants to have a meeting with them about a program their child might need," Abalos said.

Abalos, a classroom teacher for 13 years before taking over the PISC program full-time, interprets, translates, counsels and, most of all, visits for the school system.

His work is not limited to the Mexican-American--the program is for migrant student or potential student and there are around 150 white children who qualify for it in Hereford schools.

He helps families make the transition when they move from another farming community to Hereford by giving advice and seeing that the children enroll. Once a child becomes a student, the parents and Abalos work together in seeing that the youngster benefits from various classes and programs.

"An important part of his department is that of getting input from parents that would help us improve our educational programs for the children. He goes out and gets with them," Holder said.

The potential dropout is another concern of the PISC director.

"I've got a philosophy in working with dropouts," Abalos said. "If you can't meet the needs of this dropout or, actually, potential dropout he's going to create problems in your school. Whenever the teacher or counselor or administrator can't succeed in getting the youngster back into the fold, we need to look elsewhere. We have tried to keep them in school and our record is zero."

To the dropout who is unphased by advice or counselling, Abalos recommends the Job Corps or high-school equivalency.

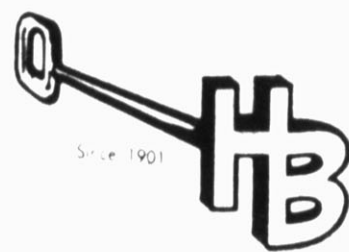

Abalos the child saver-- the role goes even further. He is the district coordinator for child abuse.

"If the principal contacts me and suspects child abuse, it's my job to check it out. I go to the home and visit with the mother or father or both and if I determine it is child abuse, I turn it in to the state welfare office," Abalos said.

"We've had only two or three real bad cases here over the years. There's not much of it going on here but we have had some cases...When something like this happens it tears your heart out. I want to help those kids."

Abalos believes in getting involved whether it's with the school or community. For four years he was a city commissioner and recently was knocked out of a shot at another term by John Matthews. The race was close. In fact, the two tied with 605 votes apiece before Matthews won a runoff by 21 votes.

"I was very disappointed, heart-broken you might say. It was close and I really enjoyed being on the city commission. I

Rodeo Countdown Enters Final Week

Brand Farm Editor

Entry books for the third annual National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage All Girl Rodeo will open at 8 a.m. tomorrow, setting the stage for a full schedule of events which will kick off with a reception and art show Thursday and conclude with the induction of five honorees into the Hall of Fame here on Saturday.

SOME 900 LETTERS have been mailed to GRA cowgirls, inviting them to participate in the local rodeo, according to a spokesman for the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Rodeo books will close at 2 p.m. tomorrow, with local workers taking entries in events which will include bull riding, barrel racing, bareback bronc riding, tie down calf roping, steer undecorating, team roping and goat tying.

Each riding event will feature a $550 added purse, and timed events will carry an added purse of $500. An expected 400 entries should make the event the largest womens' professional rodeo in the nation.

While the rodeo will serve as the drawing card for hardy cowgirls, a number of special events will get the community involved in the long rodeo weekend.

WOMEN ARTISTS OF the American West will have works of art on display at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame in the basement of the county library from noon to 7:30 p.m. Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

One of the highlights of the rodeo will be the downtown parade, which will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Entries are currently being taken at the Chamber of Commerce office for the parade, and individuals wishing to enter the parade should contact Ceclia Monroe at 364-6387 or the Chamber office at 364-3333 as soon as possible.

Terry Ann Edington of Cross Plains, Miss Rodeo America, will serve as the parade marshal.

FOLLOWING THE parade, activities will shift to Dameron Park, where competition will be held in events including cow chip throwing, a womens' greased pig race, horseshoe pitching, and a children's stick horse race for youngsters 2-10 years of age.

Rodeo performances are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Riders Club arena on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and a dance will follow each rodeo performance at the Little Bull Barn at approximately 10:30 p.m.

Music for the dances will be provided by the West Texas Express.

Culminating the rodeo events on Saturday will be an awards ceremony which will include the induction of five honorees into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage.

THE INDUCTEES WILL include Rhonda Coy Sedgwick, the first woman organizer to hold a contract member's card in the Rodeo Cowboys Association; Bernice McLaughlin, who rode a wild pony in high jump competition against male competitors in Calgary, Alberta, Canada in 1911 and three times broke the existing record; the late Lucille Mulhall, a wild west show performer who twice broke world records in competition with men ropers; the late Sydna Yokely Woodyard, a native of Canadian, Texas, who was especially noted for her performance as a top flight calf roper and trick rider, and who helped form the American Quarterhorse Association in Southern California; and Mike Reid Settle, winner of the National Collegiate Rodeo Championship in barrel racing for three straight years in 1959, 1960, and 1961.

Others Join In Fight Against Inflation

LONDON (AP)-- President Carter and the leaders of six other major industrial nations made a "general commitment" today to ensure enough growth in their economies to reduce unemployment and control inflation. U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said.

"It is a step forward that the countries have pledged themselves to take steps to meet the targets they have set for themselves," Blumenthal said after the opening session of a two-day summit conference on world economic problems.

He said Carter told the other leaders in the United States would meet its own target for economic growth this year of between 5.8 and 6 per cent and probably would exceed the goal for reducing unemployment below 7 per cent.

Unemployment in the United States declined to 7 per cent in April, government statistics showed.

The other conference participants are the leaders of France, West Germany, Japan, Italy, Canada and host Britain.

The meetings were being held today and Sunday at 10 Downing St., the official residence of Prime Minister James Callaghan.

Blumenthal said that at the four-hour opening session this morning each leader discussed his view of the world economy.

There was "a broad measure of agreement" that while the world is recovering from the recent recession, the recovery is not proceeding fast enough, Blumenthal said.

He said participants agreed there should be regular consultations between governments on economic problems, including another summit meeting if necessary.

The summit leaders planned to resume their discussions in midafternoon.

As the morning session began, the arriving leaders expressed confidence in their ability to restore the non-Communist industrial world.

"Anything can be resolved..." said West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt as he entered the meeting at No. 10 Downing Street, the official residence of Britain's prime ministers.

Reporters asked Carter if he expected the talks to be productive and he replied, "I think so."

The two-day meeting, Carter's first international gathering as president, is expected to focus on a wide range of problems besetting the industrial countries, including the high price of oil, trade, unemployment, inflation and relations with the Third World.

And it will provide a test of Carter's skills as a world statesman.

Also attending the summit were Prime Minister James Callaghan of Britain, President Valery Giscard D'Estaing of France, Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda of Japan, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada, and Premier Giulio Andreotti of Italy.

The head of the European Common Market commission, Roy Jenkins, will attend the Sunday session to represent the interests of the small Western European countries not invited to the gathering.

Before the conference opened, Carter met over breakfast with Schmidt in an apparent effort to smooth over differences that have emerged between Bonn and Washington since Carter took office.

Schmidt described the meeting as "excellent."

In another move toward harmony, the Carter administration announced resumption of enriched uranium sales to West Germany, Japan, Canada, the Netherlands, Belgium and an international agency that includes France. Sales had been suspended last year by the Ford administration pending a review of U.S. nuclear export policies.

Carter told reporters Friday night he had discovered "a great confidence among the leaders about the future of the democratic society," and all the participants wanted "to make sure that this conference is not just to produce a communique."

Although U.S. officials said no major announcements were expected from the summit, Carter told reporters en route to London on Thursday he was bringing a "new initiative." He declined to elaborate, and Press Secretary Jody Powell cautioned against expecting bold new breakthroughs.

Carter is scheduled to remain in London for a meeting Monday with leaders of Britain, France and West Germany for talks on East-West relations and the status of Berlin.

Amarillo Expects To Host Davis Trail

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - District Court Judge Tom Cave is expected Monday to name Amarillo as the site for and June 6 as the date for the murder trial of millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis.

Cave also is expected to disclose during the change of venue hearing whether or not he will remain as the presiding judge.

According to published speculation, it appears Cave will surrender jurisdiction to District Court Judge George Dowlen of Amarillo if the trial is moved to the Panhandle community.

Davis, 43, is accused of killing two persons and wounding two others at his $6 million mansion last summer. He will be tried first for the shooting death of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

EPA Files Suit Against Detroit

DETROIT (AP) - The federal Environmental Protection Agency, concerned about U.S. failure to keep a clean water agreement with Canada, has sued the city of Detroit to try to make it clean up the sewage it dumps into Lake Erie.

The suit, filed Friday in federal court, demands improvements in Detroit's waste water plant that could nearly triple sewer rates paid by 3 million residents on the area-wide sewer system in 76 communities.

Detroit is the biggest city that the EPA has sued for being a direct polluter. Suits against other cities have been brought charging local governments with failure to force private interests to comply with pollution standards, according to EPA records.

U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam, who filed the suit on behalf of the EPA, said the complaints seek to stop Detroit from dumping pollutants into the Detroit River, which flows into Lake Erie.

Big Companies May Purchase Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) - Oil industry lobbyists are breathing easier now that an amendment to limit the power of big oil companies to buy foreign oil has been removed from the bill to create a cabinet-level department of energy.

But the congressman who proposed the limit of foreign oil purchases that was first approved then rejected by a House committee says he's ready to take his campaign to the full House.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., predicts enough congressmen are unhappy with the present relationship between huge U.S. energy companies and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries OPEC to give him a good chance of success.

The House Government Operations Committee approved the energy department bill Friday after striking Conyers' controversial amendment to make the government the "sole importing agent" for foreign oil.

Ehrlichman Says Interview False

LOS ANGELES (AP) - John Ehrlichman says former President Richard M. Nixon's version of the Watergate cover-up in his interview with David Frost was a "rationalization that will be tested and found false."

Nixon's former domestic affairs adviser also said in a magazine article he wrote following the Nixon-Frost interview Wednesday night that Nixon's was "overcome with self-pity" when he fired him and that Nixon "offered me a huge sum of money. I declined it."

"I asked him why I was being fired," Ehrlichman said. "He didn't reply."

"I then said I had only one last request: that some day he explain it to my children. He didn't reply."

A Bee Tree?

There are many unusual things which grow on trees, but this huge cluster of bees hanging from a small tree at 109 East 6th proved a real curiosity item Friday morning. The insects appeared in the tree virtually overnight, and one of the residents living at the address reported he had no idea why the bees were attracted to that particular tree. The concentration of bees looked almost like a huge fruit hanging from the tree, but one look at the swarming insects was enough to discourage even the most stout-hearted individual from plucking the "growth." Local President Outlines Purpose of GI Forum

By O.G. NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

What is the American GI Forum? What's its purpose in Hereford?

These questions have been posed by a number of citizens in the community recently and Rinaldo Garcia, president of the GI Forum chapter here, wants folks to know the objective of the organization.

"It seems some people have the idea we're a radical group even to the point of planning violent acts. Nothing could be further from the truth," says Garcia, who points out that the organization is pledged to "uphold and maintain loyalty to the Constitution and the flag of the United States."

Garcia points out that the Forum has become the largest Mexican-American organization in the country, after being founded in Corpus Christi on March 26, 1948. While it was established to seek ways to abolish discrimination against Mexican-American servicemen, the Forum has broadened its objectives to include a program for the "improvement of the social, economic, and political conditions of the Mexican-American community as it affects our country."

Garcia reports that the local chapter include Armando Hernandez, vice chairman; Juan de la Cruz, secretary; Gregory Rodriguez, treasurer; Noe Coronado, sergeant-at-arms; and Father Jose Gilligan, chaplain.

Garcia said the objectives of the organization are spelled out in the American GI Forum pledge. The nine-point pledge of the organization:

(1) Develop leadership by instilling interest in the Mexican-American people to participate intelligently and wholeheartedly in community, civic and political affairs.

(2) Advance understanding between citizens of various national origins and religious beliefs in order to develop a more enlightened citizenry and a greater America.

(3) Preserve and advance the basic principles of democracy, the religious and political freedom of individuals, and equal social and economic opportunities for all citizens.

(4) Secure and protect for all veterans and their families, regardless of race, color or creed, the privileges vested in them by the Constitution and laws of our country.

(5) Combat juvenile delinquency through the Junior GI Forum which teaches respect for law and order, discipline, good sportsmanship, and the value of teamwork.

(6) Award scholarships to deserving students of Mexican ancestry.

(7) Uphold and maintain loyalty to the Constitution and to the flag of the United States.

(8) Preserve and defend the United States of America from all enemies.

(9) Aid needy and disabled veterans.

Garcia said that "because of these objectives and the constant vigorous activities promoted to secure them, the American GI Forum has won the respect and support from leaders on all levels of government in many areas of the state and nation."

The history of the Forum is outlined in a recent edition of "GI Forum", the official state publication which carries a slogan, "The Mexican-American Veteran's Voice of Texas."

Founding father of the Forum was Dr. Hector P. Garcia, a World War II combat surgeon who later served as alternate delegate to the United Nations under President Johnson. He and other Mexican-Americans were angered by an incident at Three Rivers, located between San Antonio and Corpus Christi, and met to protest discrimination against servicemen of Mexican-American ancestry.

A soldier from Three Rivers, Pvt. Felix Longoria, had died in action in the Philippines in 1945. When his body was to be reburied after the war, it was reported that the funeral director in Three Rivers had refused the use of his chapel because "whites would object."

After protests from Dr. Garcia and others, Sen. Lyndon Johnson arranged for an honor burial for Longoria in Arlington National Cemetery. He was buried there on Feb. 16, 1949. Mexican-American groups and Anglo friends in Three Rivers raised more than $2,000 to fly the Longoria family to Washington. Dr. Garcia reports the incident was a "catalyst for the cause of Mexican-American civil rights."

It marked the second year in a row for the Hereford orchestra to earn a first-division rating in the festival. Stanton Junior High of Hereford this year was named the outstanding orchestra.

La Plata also competed in sight-reading and earned a Division II.

Elizabeth Rudd, an eighth-grader, made a I on a violin solo, while Dana Barber, also in the eighth-grade at La Plata, earned a II. Two quartets also entered, both earning a Division II.

Bumper Standard Delay Forced High Premiums

WASHINGTON (AP)—Your repair bills from automobile collisions and your insurance premiums will be higher if the government had moved faster in setting bumper standards, the insurance industry and a lawmaker say.

The national Highway Traffic Safety Administration has announced that bumper standards would take effect in September 1978 for 1979 model cars. The action comes five years after a law was passed that required the agency to develop the standards to limit damage in low-speed collisions.

The insurance industry complained about the long delay Friday at a hearing of the House Commerce subcommittee on consumer protection.

The federal agency also is considering putting off a more stringent second phase of the regulations from 1980 to 1981 models as suggested by General Motors and Ford Motor Co. Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, the subcommittee chairman, said he wasn't satisfied with the agency's action.

"The cost of repairs for 'fender benders' and more serious accidents has soared to unconsiderable heights," said Eckhardt.

He noted that in the five years since the agency was directed to come up with bumper standards, auto insurance premiums have risen steeply, with a 30 percent jump between 1975 and 1976.

To underscore that "fender benders" can be costly, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety showed films of crash tests of 1977 model cars. The roof buckled on a full-size Chevrolet Impala driven at 10 miles per hour into a wall angled at 30 degrees. At an hourly labor charge of $11, the repair bill came to $928.

In 16 crashes in which the test car hit the rear of an identical car at 10 m.p.h., the cost of repairs to both cars ranged from $4.40 for the Honda Civic CVCC to $594 for the Plymouth Grand Fury.

In crashes into an angled wall at 5 m.p.h., the cost of repairs ranged from $397 for the Chevrolet Vega to $686 for the Ford LTD. At 10 m.p.h., the damages ranged from $9 for a Chevrolet Chevelle to $437 for a Datsun B210 and $458 for the Honda Civic CVCC.

An official of the American Mutual Insurance Alliance told the hearing, "The interests of the consumer have been ill-served by this lack of effective action."

"Any further delay in the implementation of the bumper standards, as is proposed, would subject automobiles to needless damage and their owners to financial loss," Andre Maisonnier, the group's vice president, told the panel.

A spokesman for the traffic safety agency declined to comment on the testimony.

After enactment of the 1972 law, the agency proposed a bumper standard starting with 1975 models, but the proposed effective date repeatedly was delayed.

The regulation adopted Friday had been proposed in March 1976.

It will require all new cars to survive head-on or rear-end collisions at 5 m.p.h. with damage only to bumpers and devices attaching them to the chassis. The same standard will apply to collisions to the corners of a car at 3 m.p.h.

The Young Criminals

The late J. Edgar Hoover once stirred up a hornet's nest of righteous wrath when he said, "Any youngster old enough to commit a man's crime is old enough to take a man's punishment."

We were not ready to accept that. To this day, policemen are reluctant to shoot at a fleeing fugitive for fear he might turn out to be "a mere youngster."

But youngsters are nowhere near as "mere" as they used to be.

New York sought to dry up hard drug traffic with a new law—stiffer penalties for adult pushers.

So now the adult pushers are using children to do their dirty work.

A boy arrested on a Harlem street—in possession of $94,000 worth of heroin—was 11. So the criminal court had to send him home to his mother.

What do we do to punish juveniles who are less juvenile than heretofore?

A New York gun club is offering a $200 reward for crime victims who shoot and kill robbers; says it's time for the "good guys" to defend themselves.

But you know society is not going to sit still for such bounty hunting when the robber is a young boy—or girl. Last year a record 43 percent of all suspects arrested were under 18.

New Orleans' suspected French Quarter stabber—believed responsible for four slayings—in 16!

The easy out these days is for parents to blame "the sitter"—and the No. 1 "sitter" is television.

Nielsen says children under 5 watch television an average of 23½ hours a week—multiplied by 17 years that's 20,000 hours. TV gets more time than any other human activity except sleep.

Without doubt, it is a potent influence.

Most psychologists concede that viewing violence produces aggressive human behavior.

But while television seeks to moderate this negative influence, and while the government allocates $3.2 million to employ students to police schoolhouse crime, and while New Yorkers are invited to become bounty hunters, a federal prosecutor in Philadelphia is getting no public response to his remedial suggestion.

U.S. Attorney David Marston says there is already a law which would deter juvenile crime if he would enforce it.

It is part of a child slavery law which has been on the books for a hundred years.

It was used in the 1880s to put a stop to child beggars in New York.

It is a law which says that, when an underage child commits any crime, his parents face trial. It is they who must

Flights Approved Between US, Cuba

MIAMI (AP)—The way has been cleared for Mexicana Airlines to begin commercial flights between Miami and Cuba. But there will be no Cuban exiles on the June 15 flight that will end a 17-year suspension of service.

The communist government in Cuba is not granting visas to any Cuban-born tourists even if they have become American citizens, according to Kitty Villamil of Mexicana Airlines.

Approval for the Boeing 727 flights came from Cubamex, which represents Cuba's Tours Department in Mexico, said Ben Lopez, of Evisa Travel on Friday. Evisa Travel is handling planned tours of the island.

The flights on Wednesdays and Sundays will leave Miami International Airport, stop in Merida, Mexico, and then proceed to Havana, Lopez said.

"We received definite confirmation from Cuban officials for 27 people so far...but no clearance yet for Cubans, either American or Cuban born," Lopez said. An estimated 125 passengers will be on the first flight.

"American applications so far are running 3,100," Lopez said. "We have, so far, 4,600 applications from Cubans who want to visit relatives, or just see how the country has changed."

Miami attorney George Nicholas, one of those approved for the first flight, said, "I feel great that I got approved. I used to go to Cuba four or five times a year from 1950 when I graduated from law school."

Nicholas' next trip will be different in at least one respect. Under the agreement Evisa has with the Cuban government.

Americans flying into Havana will be members of eight-day package tours, costing between $600 and $700. They will stay at one of three designated hotels. The tour calls for two days in Havana, one at the Peninsula de Zapata National Park, two days in Cienfuegos with side-trips to the restored colonial city of Trinidad and three days at the beach city of Varadero.

The itinerary leaves tourists free time only during the Varadero leg of the tour. Most of the rest of the time is occupied by tours of Old Havana, national parks, colonial buildings and one factory.

U.S. travel restrictions to several foreign countries, including Cuba, recently were lifted. Beginning in 1960, when the communists took control of Cuba, most Americans were forbidden to visit the island.

Miss Scott Scores Lone Eagle During State Golf Tourney

Sophomore district 4-4A medalist Barbara Scott of Hereford fired a two day total of 183 to finish fifteenth in the medalist division of the state golf tournament in Austin Friday. Miss Scott carded a 92 in the second day of competition, after finishing with a 91 on Thursday. The Hereford linkster scored the first eagle of her golfing career on Thursday on a 485-yard, par 5 hole. It was also the only eagle scored during the tourney by any player in class 4A. Commenting on Miss Scott's performance, Hereford Golf Coach Terry Russell said, "Her tee shots hurt her the most, and she had a little trouble with the traps. But I feel she played well and represented herself well, and the scores of 91 and 92 weren't that bad on a tough, long course at Jimmy Clay." Conroe captured the team championship in the 4A division with a point total of 696. Other placings were Stafford Dulles, second 712; San Antonio Roosevelt, third, 739; Amarillo High, fourth, 741; Carrollton Turner, fifth, 742; Midland Lee, sixth, 761; Denton, seventh, 792; and Harlingen, eighth, 794.

WTSU Schedules Three Tennis Camps

If you're a tennis buff between the ages of nine and 17; a beginner who doesn't know the difference between a volley and a rally, or an advanced player, you'll have three chances this summer to improve on your game through a series of tennis camps to be held at West Texas State University.

Three camps will be held during the summer under the direction of WT tennis coach David Kent, who will be assisted by Dr. Ronny Smith, tennis coach at Campsville College.

The first session will begin May 29, lasting through June 4, with additional sessions to come June 26-July 2 and July 24-30. The camps will be conducted on the 14 Laykold outdoor courts on the WT campus.

"Each camper will get individual attention plus needed sessions on strategy, drills and training methods," Kent said in a prepared release.

In addition to the two directors, leading collegiate players and coaches of the Southwest will be on hand to lend instruction.

Cost per session is $175 per camper, which includes room, board, instruction, and all activities. A $50 deposit is due upon application, with the remainder due two weeks prior to the respective session.

"Campers should get their application in as quickly as possible since the sessions are filled on a first come basis," Kent said.

In addition to the 14 Laykold outdoor courts, the facilities on the WT campus include a bowling alley, two indoor uni-turn courts, an Olympic size swimming pool, an indoor gym, all-weather track, and 10 handball courts.

Each session will begin at 4 p.m. on Sunday and will conclude at 6 p.m. the following Saturday.

Instruction during the camps will include lectures, films, drills, and free play on the WT courts. Application forms are available by writing to Kent at Box 413, W.T. Station, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Rockets Facing Quickness Problem

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"It'll be the same lineup—our water buffaloes."

Houston Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke joked at the sardonic reference to his team, but it really was not funny. Nissalke simply was trying to provide a word picture of what his big, comparatively slow team looked like chasing the deer in Philadelphia 76ers' uniforms.

The 76ers unleashed their fast break offense Thursday night in the first of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference final playoff series and won 128-117. The second game is in the Spectrum today.

"We didn't play the way we wanted to—slow," said Nissalke. "If we did, speed shouldn't be a factor."

Nissalke candidly admitted that the Rockets could not beat the 76ers in the racehorse game.

"The only thing we can do is to try and slow the tempo down," he said. "And we have to do a little better job of rebounding than we did in the first game Philadelphia won the rebounding battle 45-38. 'But if we get in a run-and-shoot game with them the way we did the other night it's going to be all over shortly.'"

Nissalke also dismissed the oft-heard charge that the 76ers strictly were a one-on-one team. "They're not a one-on-one team. They've got great one-on-one players, but they run a lot of different patterns. They run many, many things. We've scouted them quite a bit and we've got them down with 10 or 12 different things that they do."

Nissalke said forcing the 76ers to play Houston's pattern type offense was the only way the Rockets could win against this team.

Nissalke also noted the big problem of defending Julius Erving and George McGinnis.

"They do make it difficult. I coached against both of them for several years in the ABA (American Basketball Association) and as tough as they are playing together, you should have seen them when they were featured. Then it was almost impossible to shut them off. Fortunately here they have to split the ball up a little bit," said Nissalke.

Nissalke said he did not have any other quick players than those he used in the first game. "And I'd rather play a big, slow guy than a smaller, slow guy. If I had a George Gervin or 'Dr. J. Erving I'd be looking at another situation. I could go with Dwight Jones, but he's 6-10 and with about the same quickness of Kevin Kunnert."

Coach Gene Shue said the key to the series for the 76ers continued to be rebounding. "If we allow them to dominate on the boards—they will have success," said Shue.

Local umpires L.J. Clark and C.D. Snow are in the process of forming a local umpires and officials organizations, and are asking all interested men and women to attend an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 12 in the civic center.

The two men will conduct a baseball school for interested officials the following week, and will give a test over the material, which qualify a person for umpiring baseball upon passage.

Umpires are needed locally for various softball and baseball leagues. The two hope to continue the group on through basketball and football as well.

Persons wishing more information may contact Clark at 364-3176 or Snow at 364-6758.

Spirits in the Hereford Whiteface camp following the first new days of spring practice are high, Herd head coach Fred Upshaw revealed Friday.

Upshaw had praise for the kids' "hustle and good mental attitude." "We have a lot of spots to fill, and we have some kids who are trying real hard to come in and fill them," he said.

The first week of practice has been used to bone up on the basic fundamentals of the game, and the usual problems have arisen, although the coach emitted forth a confident attitude as to their solving.

As usual the defense is ahead of the offense at this stage, and the 'Faces have "come on real well" defensively according to the coach.

Upshaw had praise for defensive end Gerald Vaughn and secondary performers Jackie Mercer, Donald Johnson, Glen Yosten, and Arthur Villegas. The coach's comments on these ranged from "really impressive" to having "come on real well."

Offensively Upshaw cited Mark Moten and Cory Walden in the line and backs Chris Hill, Paul Bell, and Kelly Kitchens. "Chris has been catching the ball real well, and in turn Kelly has been on target really well also," he said.

"When we get our timing down a little better and the protection from the linemen comes around, we'll be in good shape," he added.

Consistency has been the main bug in the workouts so far the coach said, but all that is to be expected this early in the year.

"At this stage we are pretty well pleased," he commented. The coaching staff got a good look at the overall team in their scrimmage Saturday morning, which was filmed and gave all the kids a chance to show their stuff.

Another scrimmage is set for next Saturday, and the annual spring game comes up Friday evening, May 20.

With the coming of spring the weather has improved and the local duffers are getting their bags and clubs out and heading for the links. I may even get out on the course myself although only nine holes of the game reside in my back yard.

A good chance for golfers to get in some time on the course will come this Friday when the local Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter holds its tournament.

Tea times are available at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. for the event, which costs $15 to enter. Golfers must list a handicap on their entry forms.

The proceeds from the tournament will go toward sending local representatives to the national conference. Interested golfers may contact FCA sponsor Rick Stewart at 364-6614 for details.

Kids Inc. Mothers Set Sale

Mothers of boys or girls playing in either baseball or softball within the Deaf Smith County Kids, Inc. have been requested to participate in a bake sale, which will take place at the Sears parking lot immediately prior to and during the All Girl Rodeo Parade Saturday, May 14.

"We would like to have mothers bring by cakes, pies, sandwiches, cookies, tea, or punch to the parking lot by noon that day," Mrs. Buddie Evans, spokesman of the group said.

The parade is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

All the proceeds from the bake sale will go toward the building of the new ball park complex here. "If this one goes over well, we may have three or four the next Saturday," Mrs. Evans said.

Fred Lindstrom, at 18, was the youngest man ever to play in a world series when he starred for the Giants against the Washington Senators in the 1924 classic. He was also the youngest man ever to get four hits in one game.

Toss By Duvall Good For 6th

Hereford senior Suzanne Duvall ended her high school track career with a sixth place finish in shot put competition at the girl's state track meet in Austin Saturday.

Miss Duvall, who qualified for the state meet with a toss of 39-2 in Regional competition, bettered that mark by nearly three inches Saturday in making a good showing.

Her throw was taped at 41-5. The Hereford thrower had a toss of 37-10 1/2 in a warmup meet at Bovina last weekend, and Coach Roy Shipp's hopes for some improvement via the experience gained at that meet were well-founded, as evidenced by Saturday's showing.

Ann Moon of Angleton took first place in the 4A school shot put competition with a toss of 45-3, while second place was nailed down by Natilie Polk of Dennison with a 44-10 heave.

Debra Evans of Arlington-Sam Houston was third with a distance of 44 feet, and fourth place finisher Tammi Hahn of Port Lavaca Calhoun made a 43-1 1/2 showing.

Abilene's Lela Hines was fifth at 41-1.

Lubbock High Sweeps Twinbill Saturday

Lubbock High's Mariq Montoya pitched a no-hitter to shut out the Hereford Whitefaces 4-0 in the first game, and the Westerners converted a sixth inning tie into a 6-4 victory in the nightcap as the baseball Herd dropped its two final games of the season in Lubbock Saturday.

All four Lubbock runs came in a big fourth inning for the Westerners, in the first game as the local diamondmen just couldn't seem to get untracked.

Chris Hill suffered the loss for the Herd in the first game to finish with a 4-9 season mark, while Montoya picked up the win to go 3-3 on the books.

The Herd rebounded in the second game, despite a lack of extra base hits in both games, and managed a 4-4 tie going into the bottom of the sixth inning.

Lubbock jumped on the Herd pitching for two runs at that point however, and the runs couldn't be recovered.

Jim Lawson went five innings on the mound for the Herd in the nightcap, giving up six hits and four runs. He had six walks and two strikeouts.

Kevin Bunch, who came in as Lawson's relief, suffered the loss for an 0-1 record, and gave up one hit while walking two.

Guerro picked up the win for Lubbock in the second game.

Floyd, Crenshaw Tied For Lead

DALLAS (AP) - Ray Floyd and Ben Crenshaw both birdied the final hole shortly after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day—and remained tied for the lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Bryon Nelson Golf Classic.

Crenshaw, erratic in the mild, hazy weather, started the day in a four-way tie for the lead, once dropped three strokes off the pace, then birdied the 15th and 16th to catch up again.

But after the television coverage had ended, he fell behind once again when Floyd dropped a 15-foot birdie putt on the last hole.

Ben, playing behind Ray, lofted his approach, high and soft against the cloudy sky, and ripped a huge roar from the gallery when the ball came to rest less than two feet from the cup.

Saturday's losses dropped the Herd baseball record to 6-22 for the season and 1-15 in district play.

Practice for the 61st running of the world's richest automobile race began Saturday.

Already a legend, Foyt draws standing ovations from fans just by walking into the pits. Charisma, raw talent, experience or whatever, he is always regarded as the man to beat. This year's 500 will be his 253rd USAC championship race.

It was in 1958 that the then-young driver from Houston, Tex., first took the green flag at Indy. He finished 16th. No other driver that day is still active in big time racing.

Foyt last year pushed his total lap prize winnings to a record $82,616.19, passing 1963 winner Parnelli Jones, who retired with $75,050. The nearest challengers among active drivers are the Unser brothers, Al at $48,200 and Bobby at $41,497.17.

With the 800 points, Foyt climbed from fourth to first in all-time USAC standings with 6,450.

Foyt, who won a record sixth national driving championship in 1975, also padded three of his records last year. The 1976 race was in 19th start, two more than Lloyd Ruby. The 255 miles he completed pushed his record to 6,657.5.

Other former winners besides Foyt entered in this year's race are Johnny Rutherford 1974-76, Gordon Johncock 1973, Bobby Unser 1968-75, Al Unser 1970-71 and Mario Andretti 1969.

More than a dozen first-year drivers have been certified by USAC, including Janet Guthrie, the most publicized rookie in Indy history a year ago. Miss Guthrie, 39, failed to qualify last year, but she's back with a much faster car that should easily get up to speed.

Rutherford holds the official track record of 199.071 miles per hour. But Johncock became the first to top the long-sought 200 m.p.h. barrier with an unofficial clocking at 200.4 during the tests in March.

The field of 85 entries—second largest in Speedway history—includes 16 different makes of cars, and more than half of them are either Dan Gurney Eagles or English-built McLarens. There are also seven different makes of engines entered.

A week of practice precedes pole-position qualifying Saturday, May 14.

Foyt Still Seeks Elusive Fourth Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Aging A.J. Foyt, whose chance for that elusive and unprecedented fourth victory was washed away in last year's rain-shortened Indianapolis 500, continues to add to his impressive list of Speedway records.

And he shows little sign of slowing down.

The 42-year-old Foyt became the recordholder in three more statistical departments last year by leading the race for the 10th time, accumulating $4,350 in lap prizes and earning 800 U.S. Auto Club championship points for second place.

No one has won the Indy 500 four times, but Foyt—who will seek his 20th start on May 29—has been trying to accomplish that feat for 10 years.

Practice for the 61st running of the world's richest automobile race began Saturday.

Already a legend, Foyt draws standing ovations from fans just by walking into the pits. Charisma, raw talent, experience or whatever, he is always regarded as the man to beat. This year's 500 will be his 253rd USAC championship race.

Slew Slays Dusty In Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Unbeaten Seattle Slew got into high gear turning for home and shot through the tunnel of noise that is the Churchill Downs homestretch to win the 103 running of the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

The 1-2 favorite shot under the wire in front of Ron Dusty Run, with another stretch runner, Sanhedrin, third.

Seattle Slew, who was near the pace all the way to the final turn before making his winning drive, covered the 1 1/4 miles on this warm, muggy day in 2:02 1-5.

As the field of 15 3-year-olds charged around the final turn, it appeared that Seattle Slew might lose for the first time in his seven-race career.

But when much-criticized jockey Jean Cruguet asked him to move, the dark bay son of Bold Reasoning came up with a winning answer in the $267,200 race.

Seattle Slew joined Majestic Prince as unbeaten Derby favorites to reach the winner's roses that shoots a horse's value into the millions of dollars.

The winner got home 1 1/4 lengths in front of Run Dusty Run. Sanhedrin was a neck further back and 3 1/4 lengths in front of Get The Axe, who carried Willie Shoemaker on his 20th Derby trip.

Shortly after the finish, Jorge Velasquez, who rode Sanhedrin, claimed foul against Run Dusty Run and jockey Darrel McHargue for interference in the stretch. The foul claim was quickly rejected.

Seattle Slew had trouble right at the start of this running of America's most famous horse race. He stumbled coming out of the gate but recovered quickly and roared off in pursuit of For The Moment. Seattle Slew had the lead over For The Moment going into the clubhouse turn but For The Moment took it back.

For The Moment led Seattle Slew down the backstretch with Bob's Dusty third. Cruguet hit Seattle Slew seven times with the whip in the first half of the backstretch to get him moving.

That big move came on the turn as Run Dusty Run, Steve's Friend and Sanhedrin also began to pick up steam.

But Seattle Slew's was the strongest. The winner, owned by Karen

Taylor and trained by Billy Turner, paid $3, $2.80 and $2.80. Run Dusty Run, coupled in the betting with Bob's Dusty as a Simley Adams-trained entry, returned $3.40 and $3.20. John Galbreath's Sanhedrin was $4.60 to show.

Completing the order of finish after Get The Axe were Steve's Friend, Papeote, Giboulee, For The Moment, Affiliate, Flag Officer, Bob's Dusty, Sir Sir, Nostalgia, Western Wind and Best Person. Each competitor carried 126 pounds.

"They made him work today," trainer Turner said, looking a little shaky in the winner's circle. "I was afraid that they'd get him hurt. They had him in really tight early on. He moved when the time came."

"I was absolutely thrilled with the race. It showed that when he is hooked, he doesn't give anything up."

"I was happy...I knew he could do it," said Cruguet, the Frenchman who had been criticized by other trainers and in the press for his handling of Seattle Slew, although he has gotten the 1976 2-year-old champion home first every time out.

Although the stewards rejected Velasquez' claim of foul, the Panamanian who rode Sanhedrin thought Run Dusty Run cost him the race.

"I thought I had it won in the last eighth of a mile, but then he intimidated me," Velasquez said of Fun Dusty Run. "He came in on my horse. I just filed a foul claim."

A foul claim has never been upheld in the history of the Kentucky Derby, which has been called "the most exciting two minutes in sports."

Saturday, it was the most exciting 2 minutes. 2 1-5 seconds for the Taylors, a young couple from White Swan, Wash.; Cruguet, a jockey who once lost a sure Derby favorite because of injury; and Turner, a trainer who once was fired from handling a horse who went on to win the Derby.

Mickey Taylor, who is in the logging business, bought Seattle Slew for his wife at a yearling sale in Lexington, Ky. He paid $17,500, a modest price in the yearling business.

The purchase was made on the advice of veterinarian Dr. Jim Hill, who when he first saw Seattle Slew said: "If that colt isn't a runner, my name isn't Jim Hill."

Seattle Slew put Hill's name in all capital letters Saturday with a courageous performance in which he simply would not let challengers pass him when the drive to victory began.

Seattle Slew is insured for $3.5 million and the Taylors reportedly had already rejected a $7-million offer to sell him. Both of those figures will be increased now that the Slew's on the road to a possible Triple Crown.

The next step comes May 21 in the 1 3-16th-mile Preakness at Pimlico, Md., where he will meet some of his Derby rivals plus some fresh challengers. The final step in the Triple Crown, last won by Secretariat in 1973, will be the 1 1/2-mile Belmont Stakes June 11.

But Triple Crown title or not, Seattle Slew is thoroughbred racing's Horse of the Hour now.

NEW YORK (AP) - Among the thousands of racing fans and officials who have been impressed by the sensational teenage jockey Steven Cauthen is New York racing secretary, Tommy Trotter. "He sits still in the early part of a race," Trotter observed. "He can sense trouble and avoid it with the utmost ease. He doesn't need an apprentice allowance to win races. He has already proved that point."

Two New National Records Set At Girls' State Meet

AUSTIN (AP) - Fort Worth Trimble Tech set two national relay records Saturday in defending its Class 4A championship at the girls state high school track meet.

Two other national girls records were broken and one tied as Paducah also defended its Class A title and Meridian captured the B championship.

Tech broke its 1976 record in the 440 relay by one-tenth of a second with a winning time of 46.7 seconds and climaxed the two-day meet by racing to a mile relay record of 3:50.2. The old record of 3:53.6 was set by Houston Worthing in 1976 and tied Friday night by Brenham.

Debra Davis anchored the 440 relay victory for Trimble Tech and Frances Punch - who set a 4A record in the 440 with a 54.9 - ran the final leg on the mile relay.

Robbin Coleman of Beaumont Charlton-Pollard erased the national record in the 100 yard dash by zooming to a 10.5 time, one-tenth of a second faster than the old record held by two girls.

Karen Holmes of Fort Worth Wyatt tied the national 80-yard hurdles mark of 10.2, set by Janet Beall of Germantown, Tenn. last year.

Dannett Alford of El Paso Burges was second and Cheryl

Sanderson of Burleson was third in the same time of 10.2.

Kathy Vetter of Richardson Berkner just missed a national record in winning the 4A 880 in 2:20.9, three-tenths of a second over the mark.

Tech piled up 59 points to 52 for Wyatt, which had no mile relay team but finished second in the 440 and 880 relays.

Meridian had a winning point total of 54, with 20 of those coming on a first place in the final mile relay to beat Crawford's 42 points. Crawford won the 440 relay in a conference record of 49.0 and also the 880 relay.

Paducah set a Class A record of 1:42.8 in the 880 relay and finished with 48 points, four more than Longview Spring Hill, which won the mile relay. Canyon won the 3A title Friday night, with Merry Johnson setting a national record of 54.2 seconds in the 440. Marble Falls won the 2A team title of the 14 events that Texas girls participate in, they hold national records in eight and share a record in another.

Walton Outclasses Jabbar
By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The first round of the UCLA Alumni Invitational went to Bill Walton, class of '74, with a lot of help from his classy Portland teammates of '77.

It was supposed to be a showdown between the two former star centers of UCLA's glory years, Walton and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, once known as Lew Alcindor, class of '69.

But what Friday night's National Basketball Association semifinal playoff between Walton's Trail Blazers and Abdul-Jabbar's Los Angeles Lakers turned out to be was a runaway, namely Walton handling the ball to a variety of teammates who ran through the Laker's defense and rolled up a 121-109 victory.

That shattered the Lakers' near-invincibility at home this year they were 41-5 going into the game and shifted the home-court advantage to the Trail Blazers. The teams meet again today before heading to Portland for the third and fourth games in the best-of-seven series.

Also on today, the Philadelphia 76ers, the one-on-one, playground champs of the NBA, try to widen their 1-0 semifinal lead over the Houston Rockets in Philadelphia.

Walton had 22 points to Abdul-Jabbar's 30 and Maurice Lucas, Portland's top scorer, had 28 points to Earl Tatum's 32. But the Lakers had nothing to match the high-scoring Portland balance-Lionel Hollins' 25 points and Johnny Davis' 20. More importantly, the Lakers had nothing to stop the Trail Blazers' back door plays. Time after time the guards or forwards passed to Walton, charged to the hoop, took the return pass and put in easy layups with the Lakers looking on helplessly and hopelessly out of position.

"They have tremendous quickness," said Lakers Coach Jerry West. "They were a lot quicker than we were...I don't know how many baskets they scored from four or five feet, but it was quite a few."

Said Portland Coach Jack Ramsey: "We ran the way we wanted. Walton did a good job on Kareem with a little help...We stressed ball and player movement, and, as a result, got some key baskets."

In the 1965 World Series between the New York Giants and Philadelphia A's New York's Christy Mathewson pitched three shutouts in six days.

Just for Today
JUST FOR TODAY...I will carry my load cheerfully. I will not expect others to deliver as much as I for they may be marching to a different beat - one that does not yet produce the inner reserves I may enjoy.

The Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm comes out with a simplified tax system this week, surely with tongue in cheek, although you never can tell.

Dear Editor:

About this time of the year, a short while after income tax paying time, somebody comes out with a demand to simplify the tax forms and everybody agrees; that is, everybody except lawyers and other people who get paid for filling in the forms.

One economist who had trouble understanding the complicated 1040 instructions which send you from one page to another and then back again, in language not even clear to the man who wrote it, came out with a simple plan. He says throw out all the forms, the deductions, the credits, etc., and just tax everybody 10 per cent of his income, regardless of what it is. He claims this will bring in about the same tax revenue as the present complicated system, not to mention how much coffee it'll save for people who stay up late April 15 sweating over the thing.

This plan is far too simple for the government to consider. The government isn't interested in something unless it's unreasonable.

The plan however is sound, only it doesn't go far enough. Instead of taxing 10 per cent of your total income, it ought to tax 10 per cent of what you have left at the end of the year. This would suit everybody except those with a million-dollar income. They like the present system.

Now the government will argue that Now the government will argue this wouldn't leave it enough to operate on. The same argument can be turned the other way: the present tax system doesn't leave some people enough to operate on either.

But we're all facing days of austerity, we've been told, and the government shouldn't be exempt, although this goes contrary to the fundamental principles of politics. When a politician tells us to tighten our belts, he generally shows us how belts are adjustable by loosening his. Congress just recently taught us how to fight inflation by giving itself a 29 per cent raise.

Your's faithfully,
J.A.

On Wall Street

BY BOB HILL

The stock market seems to have a bad case of the jitters lately. Investors seemed concerned about the Federal Reserve's tightening of the money supply and moving short term rates it charges member banks higher. Despite good economic news, the financial markets are skittish and that skittishness may spread down through the economy.

The two main factors affecting Wall Street's nervousness is uncertainty over the direction of government policies and fears of another wave of inflation. President Carter has made assurances that his policies were the kind on which business could make plans confidently. But the programs, out of necessity, have been complex with the result that the stock market has been backing and filling.

The promotion of the comprehensive energy program seems to have added to the uncertainty. The simultaneous dropping of the tax rebate caused the sharpest week drop in consumer confidence in 22 years, says one public opinion pollster.

The cancellation of the $50 tax rebate pleased businessmen but when President Carter withdrew support of the investment tax credit, it made it tougher for businessmen to firm up capital spending plans.

The energy package, complex and controversial, faces a tough road in Congress. This increases business reluctance to start capital expansion outlay.

The anti-inflation program is purely voluntary, the way business and labor want it to be. But, there is a lingering suspicion that President Carter, despite frequent disavowals, may ultimately move to wage and price controls. Last week he moved to put a lid on hospital costs.

Most economic signs are favorable now. Forecasters point to booming sales of automobiles and other consumer durable goods; the sharp rise in housing starts in March and a first quarter surge in employment. They also point to a 43 per cent spurt in machine tool orders in March.

The Penultimate Word

TIME MANGLEMENT

Will Rogers claimed all he knew was what he read in the papers. He must not have read the Amarillo Daily. I sometimes think all I know I owe to Reader's Digest. That magazine has taught me more about nothing than any other source.

I recently made the mistake of reading an article called "Ten tips to help you manage your time". No one needs tips on that subject any worse than I do. No one has struggled with time anymore than I have. No one has lost that struggle as often as I have.

The problem is, I flunked eight out of the ten tips. The tips were:

Plan: Big deal! The ability to plan died when Alexander Bell invented the telephone. One of the reasons I want to go to Heaven is that I hope there are no phones there.

Concentrate: Don't try to do too many things at once. After the phone gets me behind, if I don't do too many things at once I don't get anything done at all.

Avoid Clutter: Come on! If it weren't for clutter, I would spend all of my time dusting my desk.

Don't be a perfectionist: That I passed with flying colors!

Don't be afraid to say no: The guy that wrote this article did not have deacons.

Don't procrastinate: I celebrated National Procrastination Week a month and a half late.

Apply radical surgery: Cut out wasted activities. The only one I dare cut is lunch. That I will not do.

Delegate: I called my staff together to do this. They told me to drop dead (or something similar to that).

Don't be a "Work-Aholic": Believe me, I am not that. I am just slow.

Take Breaks: That I passed. I break for lunch and it lasts 'till quitting time.

The article left me so depressed I could not work for three weeks. I finally struggled back and now am so far behind and so deep in clutter I can't even find the phone which is ringing its head off.

I think I will write an article for Reader's Digest called, "One tip for managing your time".

The tip is: Never read any articles on time management. Not even the ones in Readers Digest.

Warm fuzzies,
Doug Manning.

When God Created Mothers...

When the good Lord was creating mothers He was into His sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one."

And the Lord said, "Have you read the specs on this order?"

She has to be completely washable, but not plastic;

Have 180 moveable parts... all replaceable;

Run on black coffee and leftovers;

Have a lap that disappears when she stands up;

A kiss that can cure anything from a broken leg to a disappointed love affair;

And six pairs of hands;

The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands... no way."

"It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pairs of eyes that mothers have to have."

"That's on the standard model?" asked the angel.

The Lord nodded. "One pair that sees through closed doors when she asks, 'What are you kids doing in there?' when she already knows. Another here in the back of her head that sees what she shouldn't but what she has to know, and of course the ones here in front that can look at a child when he goes up and say, 'I understand and I love you' without so much as uttering a word."

"Lord," said the angel, touching His sleeve gently, "Come to bed. Tomorrow..."

"I can't," said the Lord, "I'm so close to creating something so close to myself. Already I have one who heals herself when she is sick... can feed a family of six on one pound of hamburger... and can get a nine-year-old to stand under a shower."

The angel circled the model of a mother very slowly.

"It's too soft," she sighed.

"But tough!" said the Lord excitedly. "You cannot imagine what this mother can do or endure."

"Can it think?"

"Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator.

Finally, the angel bent over and ran her finger across the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced. "I told You You were trying to put too much into this model."

"It's not a leak," said the Lord, "it's a tear."

"What's it for?"

"It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride."

"You are a genius," said the angel.

The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

From The Past Pages Of The Hereford Brand

ONE YEAR AGO

The Hereford Division of the Opportunity Plan Inc. student loan program headquartered at West Texas State University got a real shot in the arm this week when it was announced that the Jim Hill Estate here would contribute $10,000 provided it was matched equally with local donations... Lynton Allred was elected as president of the United Way of Deaf Smith County when directors met Tuesday morning to name officers for 1976-77... April was the second million dollar month in 1976 for the city's building permit office. A total of $1,295,340 in permits were issued.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Rolling storm clouds in the west Friday afternoon swept across the county, depositing up to a half-inch of moisture in some sections and leveling wheat fields in others with pea to marble sized hail. The moisture Friday totaled .35 of an inch in the city limits, which more than doubled the moisture for the first four months of the year. It also was the best rain since the fall of last year... The Deaf Smith County United Fund board dipped into its ranks Thursday and picked Bud Eades, a man with more than 10 years UF work experience, to serve as president of the fund-raising organization...

TEN YEARS AGO

Building permits show that Hereford is growing with new construction, but they also show that many people are adding to homes, expanding businesses and generally improving property that they own. Spring is traditionally the time to paint trim, refurbish the whole house, and fix that sagging ence. A town is only as progressive as its efforts to maintain what has been built... In a spot check of wheat late Saturday, Justin McBride county agent, said that damage appears to be more extensive from the light freeze than farmers had first thought. Fields in full bloom have suffered as heavy as 70 per cent damage, he said.

25 YEARS AGO

Deaf Smith county farmers are scoring another "first" in new methods with the installation of concrete irrigation ditches on several local farms. Those concrete waterways are the first in the state of Texas, save for some around El Paso. The process itself is new-- five years old--and has come to local installers from the Salt River Valley of Arizona... Deaf Smith county's five Republican county convention delegates went down the line for General Dwight D. Eisenhower and instructed the county's two delegates to the May 27 state conventions at Mineral Wells to support "Ike."

50 YEARS AGO

Plans are being laid for a big county fair for Deaf Smith County to be held the latter part of September... The West Park Cemetery is fast becoming a real park. The entire grounds have been cleaned, trees and flowers planted. Elmer Morrison is in charge of the park as caretaker and is putting in some hard labor... Chairman Ralph Barnett, of the local Chapter, Red Cross, is advised by wire that the total amount for relief of the Mississippi flood refugees will be ten million dollars and that Deaf Smith county's quota of $100 is doubled.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

WEATHER VANE— A cup of sliced onions is all Mary Ellen Gilt of Perryton, Ochiltree County, needs to predict the rainfall for an entire year.

At precisely 6 p.m. on New Year's Eve, Ms. Gilt takes a bunch of white onions and cuts each in half. Then she peels them apart until they are in the shape of a cup. Next she lines 12 cups—one for each month—with the onion slices.

To each cup she adds a sewing thimble full of salt. The cups are then carefully placed in a cardboard box and set outside the house.

At exactly 6 a.m. on New Year's Day, Ms. Gilt brings in the onion-lined cups and examines them. The amount of moisture in each cup gives an accurate prediction as to whether that particular month will be wet or dry.

Tumbleweed Smith, a Big Spring broadcaster who travels the state interviewing interesting personalities for his syndicated radio show, has observed Ms. Gilt through several New Year's. He swears that her system works better than that of most trained meteorologists.

Ochiltree County residents say she is almost infallible. Even the Perryton radio station broadcasts her predictions each January 1.

COW TOWN— It never became famous like Abilene, Kans., but the fact is that Hebronville, Jim Hogg County, once shipped more cattle to market each year than any other point in the U.S.

HIS OWN STORY— When the Sam Houston Regional Library and Research Center formally opens May 14 in Liberty, one of the prized items to be displayed is the hand-written personal journal of Jean Lafitte, the pirate.

The journal, written in French and still legible 151 years after the privateer's death, records his exploits along the Texas Gulf coast. Lafitte decided to write the journal "so that I may leave a true account to my descendants."

The pirate's family held the document for 107 years after Lafitte's death in 1826 before permitting its publication.

Associate Justice Price Daniel of the Texas Supreme Court, whose home is in Liberty, acquired the original journal several years ago from Lafitte's descendants. Daniel, who also served as governor of Texas and as a U.S. senator, donated the land where the Sam Houston Regional Library and Research Center stands.

The Lafitte journal is one of several items of historical importance which Daniel is placing on permanent loan in the new library.

THE FAST MAIL— On May 12, 1926, Texas letters started traveling to destination by air when a plane load of mail left Dallas' Love Field.

First airmail service was between Dallas and Chicago and was soon expanded to other cities. It was not until 16 months later, however, on September 1, 1927, that passenger service began between Dallas and Chicago.

In 1928, Texas got its own air passenger service when a line linked Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Galveston and San Antonio.

Today is Sunday, May 8, the 128th day of 1977. There are 237 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Potash Company Acquitted

CHICAGO (AP) - Five potash companies accused of conspiring to set prices and production levels of the mineral have been acquitted by a federal judge in a retrial.

Judge Prentice Marshall of U.S. District Court said that an overview of the case failed to show that the firms conspired to maintain levels of domestic potash to match price levels legally set by the government of Saskatchewan, Canada, to regulate potash mined in the province.

The mineral is mined mainly in New Mexico and Saskatchewan. Federal antitrust lawyers had contended that from 1968 to 1974 the firms agreed informally to raise their prices to the level set by the government of the late Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher.

This was the second time the case had been tried. An earlier trial before Marshall ended in a hung jury after 10 weeks of testimony.

Acquitted in the case were AMAX Inc. and AMAX Chemical Co., Greenwich, Conn.; Duval Corp. and Duval Sales Corp. Houston, Tex.; and International Minerals and Chemicals Corp. IMC, Libertyville, Ill.

The government's case was based on evidence that in 1968 New Mexico potash producers assured Thatcher that they planned no sudden production increase to undermine the Saskatchewan pricing plan.

Since New Mexico potash reserves were declining, Marshall said, he found credible the companies' argument that "as a matter of economics... Mr. Thatcher need not fear a sudden increase in production... That is not a conspiracy."

The judge called the evidence attributed to IMC officials "the most damning" and said one IMC memo "read like a blueprint for the government's theory of the case."

But he noted that, although some IMC statements could be construed as a conspiracy, evidence from other defendants showed that they did not participate.

"IMC couldn't find any partners," Marshall said, "and they couldn't conspire alone."

As for evidence against Duval Corp., Marshall noted that, although some documents complained that other firms were cheating on the Canadian floor price, he was "not persuaded beyond a reasonable doubt that Duval conspired as alleged in the indictment."

Marshall said the so-called AMAX deal, which government lawyers alleged was indicative of a conspiracy, also was a matter of economics.

In 1970, AMAX bought some IMC potash reserves in Canada and reduced its New Mexico production by the same amount.

The judge accepted the AMAX contention that the action was part of a long-term plan to move into the Canadian market and reduce New Mexico reserves, rather than part of a conspiracy.

A total of nine firms were indicted June 29 by a federal grand jury. But Marshall dropped charges against two firms, and two other firms were acquitted by the jury during the first trial.

Allen Says Plenty Disasters To Go

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Irwin Allen says he's in no danger of running out of disasters to turn into motion pictures.

The man who turned an ocean liner upside down in "The Poseidon Adventure" and incinerated a skyscraper in "The Towering Inferno" is back with a forest fire big enough to cause a timber shortage.

"Fire," starring Ernest Borgnine, Vera Miles, Patty Duke Astin, Alex Cord and Donna Mills, is an NBC Big Event at 9 p.m. EST Sunday.

"As long as in real life we have floods, storms, fires and other disasters, there's no end in sight," said Allen. "These kinds of pictures will be around as long as we're alive. Every poll we've taken says, 'Give us more.'"

"No, I'm not going to run out of disasters. Pick up the daily newspaper, which is my best source for crisis stories, and you'll find 10 or 15 stories, and day."

The veteran producer said there are two reasons for the popularity of crisis stories, as he prefers to call them.

"Every man, and every woman for that matter, fancies himself as a Walter Mitty character," he said. "Everyone wants the thrill of being a hero, and films like this let them be Errol Flynn without getting hurt. "The other reason is in human nature. I think we all suffer from a faulty id. People chase fire engines, flock to car crashes. People thrive on tragedy. It's unfortunate, but in my case it's fortunate. The bigger the tragedy the bigger the audience."

SUPERMAN
LOS ANGELES (AP) - Even Superman gets older. Kirk Alyn, who played Superman in 30 movie serials in the late 1940s and early 1950s is now 66 years old and drawing Social Security checks.

"But I feel like I'm 39," the actor said. "And I wish they would stop offering me the same roles."

For years after producers stopped making the serials, Alyn found it difficult to get acting parts. Movie-makers felt the public wouldn't believe him as anybody other than Superman. "Now I get offers, but it's only for detective roles," he lamented. "I just turned down two such parts. For one thing, I can't get used to the language they want you to use today."

Malpractice Bill Forces Meeting

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - After making the Senate cool its heels for more than two weeks, the House has called for negotiations over the smoking medical malpractice issue.

Representatives voted 106-26 on Friday to call for a conference committee to negotiate differences between the chambers over the bill.

Senators amended the House bill drastically before passing it on April 19, upsetting a delicate compromise between trial lawyers and several health care organizations. Most of the amendments came from the Texas Medical Association, which was not a party to the compromise.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, the sponsor, said if the Senate changes are not removed, "we will have no medical malpractice legislation this session."

One item of controversy is a Senate provision allowing judges to reduce awards in malpractice cases by the amount of money a victim might already have received from his or her own insurance.

"I hope to have it (a bill) back to the floor of the House next week," Uher told reporters.

The House passed and sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe for signature a bill requiring insurance companies to offer "underinsured motorist coverage."

It would fill the gap between actual cost of injuries and the amount of liability insurance carried by the at-fault driver. The bill also adds property damage to the present uninsured red motorist coverage.

Another major feature shifts from the policyholder to the insurance company the often impossible burden of proving whether a motorist was uninsured.

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, beat a hasty retreat from his crusade to force the Senate to take up his property tax "reform" bill.

He knocked four bills off the morning calendar of local and uncontested bills because they were sponsored by senators who had not publicly agreed to vote to bring up his bill for a vote.

Sen. Tom Creighton, chairman of the Senate Economic Development Committee, said the bill would stay there until Peveto could prove he had the 21 votes required to bring it up on the floor.

"We in the House have sat here for too long and let the Senate run over us, and that affects the integrity of the House," Peveto, D-Orange, said in a personal privilege speech.

Then came his chat with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, followed by withdrawal of his threat and release of the four bills, which then quickly passed.

"The lieutenant governor told me he would work very hard and commit himself to work with the committee and get it out and pass it," Peveto told reporters.

House members voted 68-59 against a Senate-passed bill raising from $10 to $25 per month the amount a judge can assess a convicted criminal to help defray the cost of the probation.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, said the House the bill would tell drug abusers and alcoholics, "here is another $25 per month we are imposing on you because of your illness or sickness."

Backers of the bill said it would cut the cost of probation to the taxpayers.

100 Miles Per Gallon? El Paso Man Says So

EL PASO (AP) - After looking at a reconditioned car that an El Paso man claims gets 100 miles per gallon of gas, a national Energy Research and Development Administration ERDA engineer said the system contains no fakery.

In a copyrighted story Saturday, the El Paso Times reported that engineer Richard W. Hern said he could find no faults in Tom Ogle's vaporized gas system.

"I think, personally, and with strong conviction, that there is no hoax," Hern, supervisor of ERDA's research center at Bartlesville, Ohio, said.

While impressed with Ogle's work, Hern said he could not comment about the 100 mile per gallon claims. He said he would require a laboratory analysis before commenting on the super mileage attributed to the 4,600 pound 1970 Ford.

The car recently made the 205-mile trip from El Paso to Deming, N.M. on less than two gallons of gas. Ogle claims to be the sole inventor of the vaporized fuel system that injects gasoline fumes into the cylinders. The Ogle system eliminates the need for a carburetor.

Hern said the system seems to be in "the rudimentary state of development with obviously much engineering refinement needed." He added, though, that it is not unusual for new engineering concepts to need such refinements.

The ERDA engineer was asked by U.S. Rep Richard White, D-Tex., to come to El Paso to meet Ogle and analyze his fuel system.

"I applaud the inventor for his imagination and ingenuity and for developing a system that has such apparent potential for the nation's energy situation," said White.

Hern said ERDA would be receptive to accepting further information or data on the system. He was cautious about considering the system as a relief to the energy crisis.

"I'm not saying this particular system is a viable option," Hern said.

LEATHER EXPORTS FROM ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES (AP) - Argentina, the world's No. 1 leather wholesaler, exported an estimated $120-million-worth of tanned leather during 1976. Eastern Europe accounted for half of Argentina's sales, while the remainder was shipped to Western Europe and the United States.

Each tannery tailors its products to the individual specifications of its clients, both nationally and abroad, and the industry is capable of processing all the 12 to 13 million animal hides a year the country produces.

Tris Speaker of the Boston Red Sox made an unassisted double play against the Giants in the 1912 World Series. It was the only one ever made by an outfielder in the history of the series.

Babe Ruth pitched the longest game in world series history, a 2-1 decision in 14 innings over Brooklyn in 1916.

Meany Won't Applaud Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - AFL-CIO President George Meany says the decline in the nation's unemployment rate to 7 per cent is "nothing to brag about."

Carter administration officials concede further improvement is likely to be gradual.

The figure dropped from 7.3 per cent in March, the Labor Department reported Friday. Employment rose by 548,000, raising the total number of Americans with jobs to 90 million. The number of unemployed totaled 6.7 million, down 330, from March.

The new jobless rate, lowest since the 6.7 per cent rate in November 1974, was hailed as signaling an end to the economic dislocation many areas suffered because of severe winter weather.

Meany noted that it took 2 1/2 years to get the unemployment rate down to 7 per cent. "That's just not good enough," said the union chief, warning that the jobless rate would stagnate again unless job programs were created.

A $4 billion public works bill that is expected to create at least 150,000 jobs is awaiting President Carter's signature.

The number of unemployed now stands at 6.7 million, with women, minorities and teenagers still having the most difficulty finding jobs.

The new labor figures were good news for the administration, whose goal was to achieve the 7 per cent figure by the end of the year. The unemployment rate has fallen a full percentage point since the November election.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, told the Congressional Joint Economic Committee that unemployment "remains at an unprecedented high level for this stage of economic expansion."

However, he said the gain of a total 1 million jobs in March and April was "fantastic."

Further improvement in the jobless rate probably will be gradual, according to Charles Schultze, Carter's chief economic adviser, and Maynard Comiez, the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist.

"I don't think growth in the economy has been that rapid to support such a continuing sharp decline," Comiez said.

The improving job situation was tempered by large increases in the inflation rate, however. Wholesale prices have risen at a 13.1 per cent annual rate during the last three months, and consumer prices have increased at a 10 per cent annual rate.

In addition, Republic Steel Corp., the nation's fourth-largest steelmaker, announced price increases of up to 8.8 per cent Friday.

"We all need it," an official at one steel firm said of the price increase. But the Council on Wage and Price Controls decried the boost as "excessive."

At its height, the unemployment rate was 9 per cent in May 1975.

The civilian labor force totaled 96.7 million in April, an increase of 220,000. The labor force is composed of everyone working or seeking work.

WINDOW ON DISPLAY

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) - The Corning Museum of Glass has acquired a leaded glass window made by the Tiffany Studios, America's famous producer of art nouveau glass.

The window, made in 1905 for the home of Melchior S. Belzhoover at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, is one of the most impressive ever produced by Tiffany, according to David P. Donaldson, assistant curator of 20th-century glass at the museum. Louis Tiffany personally supervised the design, assembly and installation of the window. It is now on permanent display at the Corning Museum.

Have You Hugged Mother Today?

Annie Ruland's four youngsters know how to say thanks to "Mom" on her day. Clockwise from left are Whitney, 5, Neal, 8, Jason, 3, and Patrick, 1.

She Cares For You From Infancy

Ann Reiter's first Mother's Day will be doubly meaningful for her since the birth of her one-month-old twin daughters, Terri and Traci.

Once dusted in talcum for diapered skin,
Mother's hands no longer battle with bottles,
Sew tiny seams nor vanquish vampires at night,
At least not for me.

The nimble fingers, beginning to blotch,
Do not fight my fever or bandage bumps;
They don't mend broken crayons, dolls or dreams,
At least not for me.

Hands that quieted mine in church,
That punished regretfully and shared generously,
That opened doors to light and learning,
That cared so well for me.

Telling lines and extended blue veins,
Mother's hands, so maternal, eternal,
Are clasped in prayer for her wayward babe.
This time, and always, for me.

MRS. G.C. MERRITT SR. ...with "traveling" rose bush at museum

Rose Bush Symbolic Of Pioneers' Spirit

As a memorial to the love of beauty displayed by pioneer women in the Panhandle, Mrs. G.C. Merritt Sr. donated a rose bush to Deaf Smith County Historical Museum.

The bush, resplendent with yellow rose blossoms, was planted by the doorway of the half-dugout on the museum's rear grounds. Museum officials report that it was common to see roses or other plantings of flowers at the site of a dugout, in an effort to add a touch of color to the sparse Plains.

As settlers prudently packed their goods for the arduous trip West to the Texas Plains, pioneer women often dropped a few flower seeds into an apron pocket or secreted a cutting from a favorite rose bush somewhere in their household goods. The floral additions made a dent in the primitive surroundings faced by this area's founding mothers.

Mrs. Merritt brought the museum roses with her to West Texas 50 years ago. She reported that she has moved it from place to place and that it has always flourished.

MR. AND MRS. JOE WILLIAMS ...to describe rock polishing techniques

Lapidary Program Scheduled Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williams, residents of King's Manor Retirement Home, will give a special program on lapidary work at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. The public is invited free of charge by the County Lapidary Club, which is sponsoring Tuesday's presentation. Lapidary skills involve the shaping and polishing of rocks without altering their original form. Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who have been interested in the hobby for about five years, will demonstrate the changes in a stone as it is taken through the tumbling stages necessary for a polished surface. The couple will display some of the required lapidary equipment and suggest ideas for using polished rocks for personal adornment or other decoration. They will explain how to determine various kinds of rocks and distinguishing them from minerals in the earth.

Linda Dickerson Receives Showers

Miss Linda Dickerson, bride-elect of Kenneth Cook, was honored with a morning shower and coffee recently in the Flame Room, Pioneer Natural Gas company. Receiving guests were the honoree, her mother, Mrs. J.W. Dickerson Jr., her fiancée's mother, Mrs. Lawrence Cook, her fiancée's grandmother, Mrs. B.D. McGuire, and her sister Mrs. Tom Burkhalter. Mrs. James Moore invited guests to sign the registry. Draped with a white cloth, the serving table was centered by a spring bouquet incorporating shades of purple, blue, pink and white. Silver and crystal appointments were used in serving fresh fruit, cheese, pastries, coffee and hot spiced apple cider. Out-of-town guests, all from Amarillo, at the April 30th courtesy were Mrs. Cook, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Burkhalter, Mrs. Wayne Gentry, Linda Gentry, Carolyn Gentry and Cheryl Malone. Shower hostesses were Mrs. Gwynne Owen, Joe Frank Clark, Jack York, Leonard Walterscheid, Joe Hamilton, Carmen Angel, Dennis Lomas, Robert Rhoton, Francis Hill, A.T. Mims, Ted Higgins, Earnest Langley and Albert Maxwell.

Miss Dickerson was also the recipient of an informal prenuptial shower earlier in April in the home of Mrs. Wayne Gentry. After the honoree had opened gifts, guests were served cake, decorated in blue and white, mints and nuts from a table appointed with crystal and silver. Also of interest on the serving table was a doll bride handmade by Mrs. B.D. McGuire, grandmother of Miss Dickerson's fiancée. Miss Carolyn Gentry served cake while Mrs. Wayne Gentry laddled punch. Assisting Mrs. Gentry with hostess duties was Miss Ruth Stice. Count on a cup of rice, after cooking, to serve six when it is an accompaniment to a meat, poultry, fish or egg dish. Bake fish with stewed tomatoes, onion and green pepper rings; thicken the sauce, if you like, after the fish comes out of the oven. Creamed vegetables or fish look attractive and taste good with a topping of sieved hard-cooked egg.

Strafuss-McNutt Vows Repeated at Ceremony

Twin bouquets of white Killian daisies and yellow carnations flanked the altar of St. Anthony's Catholic Church Friday afternoon for the marriage of Miss Sharon Gerene Strafuss and Harold Lee McNutt. Vows were read by the Rev. Bernard McGory, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Strafuss, who reside 17 miles north of the city. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon McNutt, 137 Greenwood, are the bridegroom's parents.

Miss Debbie Albright was the bride's honor attendant and James Waits was best man.

Other bridesmaids were Miss Gayle Yosten and Miss Brenda Strafuss, sister of the bride.

Groomsmen included Randy Carter and Tommy Carter, cousins of the bridegroom. Guests were ushered by Jay Robinson and Larry McNutt, the bridegroom's brother.

The bride's sister, Sandra Strafuss, appeared as flower girl and was escorted by the bridegroom's brother, Garland McNutt, who was ring bearer.

Serving as acolytes were the bride's two brothers, Rodney and Chad Strafuss.

Miss Susan Schlabs sang "Wedding Prayer." The Lord's Prayer and St. Francis' Prayer with accompaniment provided at the organ by Mrs. Allen Evers.

Presented at the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin designed with a Queen Anne neckline edged in Venice lace and empire bodice of Alencon lace. Her long, tapered sleeves of English net were appliqued with Venice lace motifs and enhanced by deep cuffs of lace.

Unadorned in the front, her softly gathered A-line skirt had lace flowers trailing down the chapel train. Lace encircled the hemline.

She wore a matching lace coil complemented by satin ribbon and a fingertip veil illusion, edged in lace.

The bride carried a cascade of white silk roses and stephanotis. As heirloom pieces, she wore her mother's pearl earrings and her grandmother's pearl necklace.

Carrying nosegays of yellow daisies and white carnations, the bridesmaids wore floor-length gowns of pastel yellow satin, fashioned with square neckline and empire waistline.

A three-tiered wedding cake complete with fountain and fresh flowers was served to guests during the reception in Knights of Columbus Hall after the ceremony. Mrs. John Williams served cake while coffee was poured by Mrs. Phillip Carnahan and Mrs. Richard Schlabs.

Registering guests was Mrs. Steve Meiwes Jr.

For a wedding trip, Mrs. McNutt chose to wear a navy blue pin-striped dress with white accessories. The couple will be at home at 128 Ave. I.

The bride is a candidate for graduation this spring from Hereford High School. She is employed by Latham's Tree House. McNutt attended Bethany Nazarene College at Bethany, Okla. after graduation from HHS in 1974. He is an employe of West Texas Rural Telephone.

Out-of-town guests at the recent wedding were Mr. and Mrs. L.L. McNutt, Mrs. Lillian Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sonmann and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wyatt, all of Plainview; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Carter and family and the Tommy Carter family, all of Hobbs, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Becker and Paul and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hess, all of Muenster; and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Muerer of Windthorst.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Mother's Day greeting cards are traditionally written for young mothers... the breakfast-in-bed, sticky milk kisses, 50-cent dusty powder variety.

But where is the greeting card for the 80-year-old mother who lost "Dad" last year, whose only son is in Alaska and who needs a cheery, "Hi There!" like a pair of gym shorts.

There are thousands of these women around today who have been retired mentally, physically, domestically, and emotionally to be "made comfortable."

I've been saving this letter for a whole year because it's so beautiful and couldn't have been written by anyone other than a 56-year-old son in Alaska who could not be with his mother. The mother was so moved by it, she wanted it shared.

"I hope you have a happy time on your day. The important thing is to make it a happy day. It's another year that God has granted you. You know He has you on earth for a reason so you must live it fully for Him. You have been one of His angels on earth for a long time, helping so many lonely and lost souls that have needed you. Every little act of kindness is listed in His book and I'm sure the book is so heavy there isn't anyone could lift it. There are still many that need the little lift that just being close to you gives them. You are a Very Important Person to me of course, but to so many others. Remembering this will give you a special kind of inner strength.

I know the years have made your body tired. As my 56 years already are weighing me down. You have something to drive down that tired feeling though that I and so many others don't—the strength of the true love of everyone you have ever contacted. Lack of this is the thing that brings sadness to so many. If you try, I'll bet you can feel its warmth and strengthening power at any given moment, day or night. So look ahead to the coming year. It has so many lovely things in store if you will only reach for them.

Take the mirror from in front of your face, so you can stop looking over your shoulder. What's behind you is now gone, the road is in front of you and each turn in it has something new and different.

Look at Mother Nature's work in your own front yard. The old rose bush still bears the most beautiful flowers. The tree that has had part of it taken away reaches out its leafy arms and is fuller and more beautiful in its enlargement of age. Sprout and blossom with this year so that those that look upon you can feel good and enjoy your own special beauty. This is my wish."

Maybe your mother doesn't need a reminder of the past today. Maybe she needs a reason for tomorrow.

The girls from the Princess Hair Fashion want to wish all the mothers in the Hereford area.

Happy Mother's Day.

Easter Seal Establishes Toll-Free Action Line

A new service for disabled Texas children and adults, called "Easter Seal Action Line," has been initiated by the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. Easter Seal Action Line's 24 hour, toll-free number, 1-800-492-5555, can be used by disabled persons and their families to obtain information regarding help they need.

William E. Russell, Executive Director for the Texas Easter Seal Society, reports, "Many people, especially in the rural areas, don't realize how many services are available for the handicapped today." The Easter Seal Action Line is designed to serve as a link between the handicapped and those services. With a phone call, persons can receive that assistance in helping them to locate service they need, where it can be obtained, and who can provide it for them.

Among the many services available through the Texas Easter Seal Society Action Line are speech, physical, and occupational therapies, evaluations, purchase of needed orthopedic equipment, all of which require a medical doctor's authorization. The Texas Easter Seal Society pledges to make every effort to locate the needed service if that service is offered in the State of Texas. The Texas Easter Seal Society makes these services available to the handicapped of all ages.

DEAR READERS: Recently I printed a letter from a woman whose husband enjoyed dressing up in her clothes. I said, "Some psychiatrists say all transvestites are either homosexual and bisexual."

That sentence unleashed a flood of angry responses from hundreds of transvestites, their wives and sweethearts. I was told in no uncertain terms (and unprintable language) that I am "off my nut," "crazy as a loon," "ill-informed," "living in the Dark Ages," and to "crawl back under that rock."

From Tucson, Ariz.: Take it back. You made an awful lot of trouble for me. I enjoy dressing up in women's clothes—have for years. My wife loves to see me put on a fashion show. I am neither bisexual nor am I homosexual. Our sex life is great. After your column appeared, my wife kept me up half the night insisting that I tell her what guy I am seeing on the side. Please print this letter so she will get off my back. I swear I am straight.

From Louisville, Ky.: Listen, you creep, I have been cross-dressing for 20 years and anyone who calls me a homo gets a fat lip. It's a great way to relax and have a little fun. No one has seen me in my outfits but my wife. She thinks it's O.K. and it's nobody else's business.

From Orlando, Fla.: My wife and I have been married 12 years and I have never looked at another woman—or a man. I resent your statement that just because I enjoy dressing in ladies' gowns and slippers that I am a homosexual. We play these little games about once a week in the privacy of our home. Once in a while we invite another couple in who enjoy the same thing. But we never swap partners and I have no desire to make love to a man. Please get your facts straight.

From Berwyn, Ill.: My boyfriend is beautiful. I wish I were half as good-looking. He surprised me one day by bringing a complete female wardrobe along on a weekend trip. The two of us decided to go to a first-class restaurant for dinner with him wearing his best dress. It thrilled me when heads turned to look at the gorgeous "gal"—not ME—him. He is straight as a rail and is a fantastic lover. If a man makes a pass at him when he is dressed up he becomes very indignant. I can't speak for the others, but I can tell you my guy is no homo. Run a retraction, Kiddo.

So now, Dear Readers, I will repeat my original statement: "SOME psychiatrists say all transvestites are either homosexual or bisexual." Please note the word "SOME."

I have checked further and have additional opinions from two of Chicago's most distinguished psychiatrists. Both Dr. George Pollock, Director of the Institute of Psychoanalysis in Chicago, and Dr. Harold Visotsky, Chairman of the Department of Psychiatry at Northwestern University Medical School and Northwestern Memorial Hospital, said as follows: Approximately 20 per cent of the cross-dressers are either homosexual or bisexual, but the majority are heterosexual and have no interest in other males. They get their jollies dressing up and that's as far as they go. When I asked Dr. Pollock if such behavior was "normal" (a word most psychiatrists deplore) he replied, "Not if the cross-dressing produces an orgasm."

So—now you have an idea of what my week has been like. How was yours?

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Boy Scouts in Troop 151 here are helping themselves and the environment by collecting old tires and are also solving a raw material problem for a local tire retreader.

The troop collected more than 1,500 old tires for Fred's, a retreader in nearby Orange and earned more than $600 for troop projects.

The recycling drive, in addition to ridding the landscape of discarded tires, helped save oil—it takes three times more oil to make a new tire than it does to make a retread.

June Rudd Given

Easter Seal Office

June Rudd, 105 Douglas, has accepted the position of Easter Seal Treatment and Service Chairman for Deaf Smith County and will be the person to contact to request assistance or services from the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

Mrs. Rudd's appointment was announced by Irving Baker, Dallas, president of the Texas Easter Seal Society.

Last year the Society aided 20,152 Texans through an information, referral and follow-up program; physical, speech and hearing therapies; orthopedic equipment purchase loan; and related aids. The Texas Easter Seal Society program is active in all 254 counties, in attempting to reach all physically disabled Texans who need information and/or assistance. This program is to insure that every disabled child and adult has an equal opportunity at a normal way of life.

Mrs. Rudd said that to secure services, a disabled person or his family should contact her for the required confidential patient referral form.

Mrs. Rudd cited the fact that there are no fees for these services and urged any person needing assistance to contact.

The Texas Easter Seal Society helps support treatment facilities which treat physically handicapped children and adults who cannot pay the costs of their disabilities and who are not eligible for help from any other source. The Society serves all 254 counties in Texas.

The Easter Seal Society of Texas has provided care and treatment for physically handicapped children and adults in the state since 1929 and is the oldest voluntary health agency serving physically disabled Texans.

ACCESSORIES FOR SUMMER

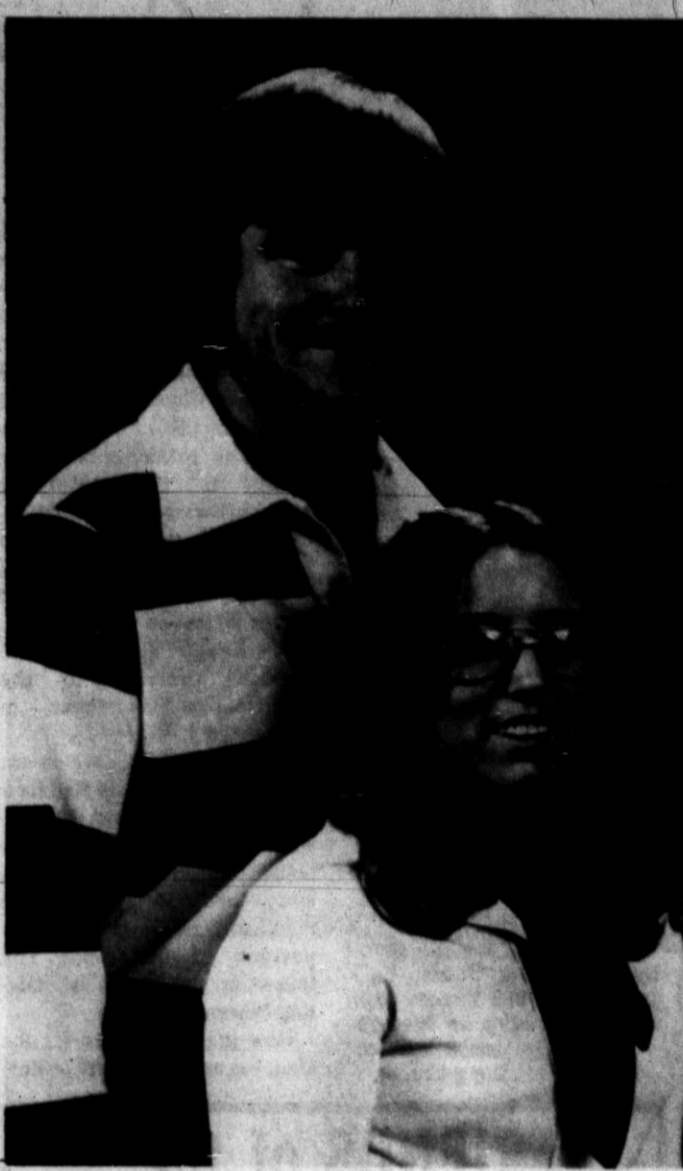

Summer fashion accessories will add excitement and variety to casual and formal moods--from "just-for-fun" styles to understated elegance.
Barrel bags and umbrellas in waterproof silver and gold fabrics will add gleam to summer showers--while gold and silver leather sandals can complete the ensemble.
Bags run the gamut of styles and shapes--with clutch, attache' and tote most popular. Evening totes in luxurious fabrics are a new trend. Popular fabrics for daytime will be canvas and linen trimmed with lizard and printed canvas. Hemp will remain important for casual wear.
Belts will be very narrow. Wear a single snakeskin belt for a classic look, or wear three skinny belts for the "now" look. Cord belts and denim with lizard trim will be important, too.
Another important accessory item this year is sunglasses. Lenses are larger, often shaded and frames are thinner and lighter weight.
Scarves are still popular to provide a finishing touch for many ensembles. The coordinating pleated scarf is a crisp change from past seasons.

SPRING/SUMMER WEDDINGS

Bridal fashions will likely recall Victorian femininity--perhaps with a dash of bolder color for bridesmaids--to give spring and summer weddings a traditional feeling.
For her gown, today's bride probably will choose luxurious fabric--and use yards of it for a full skirt. Popular fabrics include lace, eyelet, organdy, chiffon, pique, gauze, linen, batiste, and voile in white, candlelight or ecru.
U-shaped necklines will be popular and often have self fabric flowers or cut-out lace appliques.
For sleeve design, expect to see a variety from the traditional long slim sleeve and long billowing sleeve to a three-quarter or even sleeveless fashion.
Bridesmaids attire may go for bolder colors this year, although pastels will continue their popularity.
Use of stripes and solids is the newest idea in color and fabric coordination. Bridesmaids dresses may be striped--while the maid of honor wears a solid to match one of the stripes, and the mother of the bride wears another solid color to coordinate with the stripe.
Fashionable accessories for bride and attendants include picture hats, lacy parasols (for outdoor weddings), lace gloves, simple head scarf, and, of course, traditional veils.
Silk flowers for bridal bouquets, attendant accessories and other cosages often take the place of fresh flowers.
The bridegroom and attendants have a choice of various styles and colors in tuxedos.
Colors may be white, ivory, dark or pastel blue, soft yellow, plum, camel, or others to coordinate with the bridal party.
Shirts may be plain, pleated, or ruffled and usually in a soft coordinating color, or white with colored ruffle trim.
Vests take the place of traditional cummerbunds, while the bowtie may be a traditional cut or a new fuller, and longer, and draping version.

FREE VACATIONS

A free vacation may turn into a nightmare if the consumer isn't careful to explore several important facts.
Free vacations are often offers as part of a land sales promotion or other sales scheme. Consumers are contacted by mail or phone and told they have won a free vacation. However, many of these vacations do not include transportation costs, meals, or other essentials.
Besides these problems, consumers find they often must endure a long, high-pressured sales talk that gives them little chance to relax and enjoy their vacation.
Before accepting a "free vacation," consumers need to find out exactly:
--what is paid for and what they must pay for.
--where the vacation is--the city and quality of the resort or motel
--how much time you will have to be alone
Remember, before you commit yourself--be sure all of the above details are written into any contract you sign--and be sure there is no commitment to buy or invest.

To Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Don Cherry, 310 N. 25 Mile Ave, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leesa Gayle, to Brian G. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Clark, southeast of the city. The couple plan a ceremony July 29 in First Christian Church. Miss Cherry is a senior student at Hereford High School, where she is a member of Future Homemakers, Future Business Leaders and Future Teachers of America. A 1974 graduate of HHS, Leesa earned an associates of arts degree from the University of Southern Colorado at Pueblo, Colo. in 1976. He is presently a senior student studying civil engineering at the Pueblo University and is associated with his father in farming operations. He is a member of Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Basic Water Rescue Classes Begin May 16

It is a helpless feeling to witness a member of one's family drowning in an irrigation ditch, unsupervised pool or any other body of water.

In hopes of relieving this dire situation, the Red Cross Water Safety Program is now able to offer a new Basic Water Safety course designed especially for non-swimmers and swimmers with limited ability. According to a program spokesman, "Often, a safe rescue is literally at one's fingertips."

This course shows how rescues can be made from land. This class is especially pertinent for parents. "It is so important to know the simple things that can save your child's life," the spokesman said.

This Basic Water Safety course will be held at Hereford City Pool May 16-17 from 6-8 p.m.

For individuals 11 years old and older, this course will be continued with a Basic Rescue Class (formerly known as Junior Life Saving) from 6-8 p.m. May 18-20. This second course teaches the fundamentals of water rescue.

Registration will be conducted at the time that classes begin. For further information, telephone Katy Miller at 364-2554 or 364-1011, or the Red Cross office, 364-3761.

Comings And Goings At Kings Manor

Mrs. Belle Harris and Mrs. Jo Thomas of Amarillo visited their parents Mr. and Mrs. Sumrow during the week.

Last Sunday the United Methodist Church at Hart with the pastor, Rev. Elra Phillips invited all residents of King's Manor to their Morning Worship Service. Sixteen accepted the invitation with Chaplain Seago who became the official chauffeur of our freshly painted bus in which we proudly rode. Rev. Seago spoke at the Morning Service to the gratification of those in attendance.

After services, we were directed to Fellowship Hall for a delectable and sumptuous meal, which had been prepared by the ladies of the church. Everything was, oh, so good! We manifested this by the way we partook of the food. The fellowship, too, was stimulating beyond words.

How grateful we are for the kindness and hospitality of Rev.

and Mrs. Phillips and their good people. The trip there and back was most enjoyable.

We may add that Chaplain Seago did an excellent job of driving the bus. It was suggested that should he ever retire as chaplain, he would have no difficulty in securing a job as bus driver.

The American Legion Auxiliary under the guidance of Ruth Gandy, Pet Ott, Virginia Adams, Gene Holden provided much joy and good fellowship for Manories and some from Westgate with a Bingo Part last Thursday afternoon. The result was fun galore. Tasty refreshments were served at the close.

Our hearty thanks to these lovely ladies and to the Auxiliary for this happy occasion which everyone thoroughly enjoyed.

We are so proud of the new drapes in the North and South lounges of the Manor which were provided by the Craft Department under the supervision of our ingenious Vena Hudson. They are most attractive and add much to the appearance of the lounges.

We were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon by the Friona Study Club when they sponsored Mrs. Jo Witten and her group of fourth grade boys and girls in song with Mrs. Witten accompanying them at the piano. Their repertoire consisted mainly of numbers from "The Sound of Music", some of which were: "The Hills are Alive with the Sound of Music", "Eidewis", "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi", and "I Believe in Music, I Believe in Love". Other numbers were: "Hi Neighbor", "Oh Susanna", "Stout Hearted Men". The singing by these lovely boys and girls was really exhilarating. It added a bit of zest to our lives. They showed excellent training and poise.

This is the sixth consecutive year that this club has so graciously favored us in presenting Mrs. Witten (who teaches music in Friona Public School) and a group of her music pupils. We are, indeed, grateful to everyone.

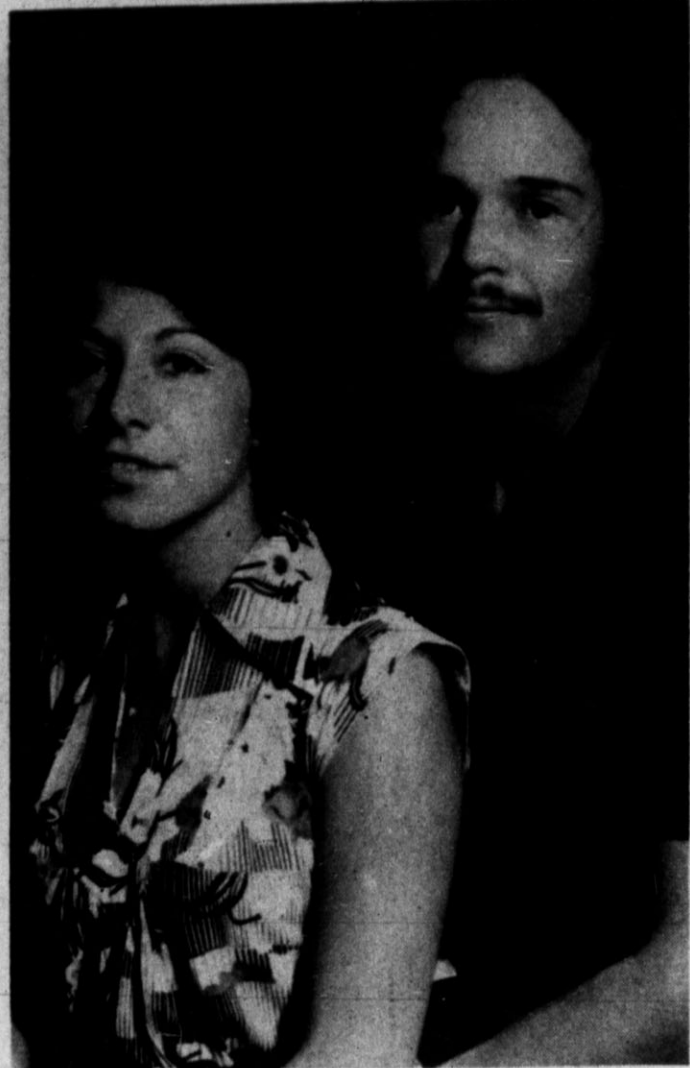

Club Members attending were: Mrs. Carl Maurer, president, Mrs. Bessie Boatman, Mary Dixon, Anna Mae Hayes, Anne Shackelford, Carrie Tatum, Fern White and Vela Woods. Delicious refreshments were served following the program.

The Board of Trustees of King's Manor met Saturday in annual session at the Manor for dinner, and afterwards in a regular business meeting, with the president Leo Southern, Jr., presiding. He presented Dr. Clifford Trotter keynote speaker for the occasion whose subject was "Beholding People". Dr. Trotter noted that King's Manor did this by "Engaging in a fellowship of love", in practicing a "Provisional responsibility between God and those who have lost hope", and "Being a creative strength". He closed by quoting Jesus' words "Greater things than these you will be able to do".

Those attending were: Mrs. Joyce Lyons, Administrator, Leo Southern, Jr., H.G. Andrews, Mr., Jim Conkright, Rev. Wesley Daniel, C.W. Foote, Mrs. Earl Harkins, Earnest Langley, C.H. Hamilton, Donald Hicks, Wayne Williams, Mrs. Dorothy Renfro, Mrs. Don Davidson, J.C. McCracken, Don Hunt, Rev. James Carter, Dr. Jordan Grooms, Bill Allen, and Rev. Dewitt Seago. H.C. "Brownie" Hamilton of Lubbock was presented with a plaque in recognition of his many years of faithful service while serving in different capacities.

Evadne Cox and Lucile Naylor attended the Clarendon College Reunion April 30th. and May 1st. The College Spring Festival was also held as an interest drawing feature of the reunion.

Wedding Date Set

Miss Irma Suarez will be the bride of Freddie Cano on July 9 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, announced her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jasinto Suarez, 509 Ave. K. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Cano, 413 Ave. C. Following graduation from Hereford High School in 1975, Miss Suarez attended South Plains College at Levelland. She is temporarily employed by Man Power Education and Training. Cano is a 1973 graduate of HHS and is employed by Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative.

Garden Beautiful Club Dismisses for Summer

In their last meeting until autumn, members of Garden Beautiful Club conducted their installation of officers Friday morning in the Medallion Room, Rural Electric Cooperative.

Using the colors of the rainbow to represent the duties of each officer, Mrs. N.D. Bartlett conducted the installation. The retiring president instated Mrs. W.P. Axe as president; Mrs. Deward Robertson, first vice president; Mrs. Burney Rudd, second vice; Mrs. L.H. Lookingbill, third vice; Mrs. W.T. Carmichael, recording secretary; Bessie Story, treasurer; Mrs. Francis Hill, Women's Forum representative; and Mrs. Earl Springer, reporter.

In the installation ceremony, Mrs. Bartlett gave a brief history of the garden club, stating that it was organized in May of 1946 in the Jim Black home, which was recently given to the County Commission as an addition to the local museum. The first meeting was June 4 in the home of Mrs. Lyle Blanton with Mrs. Maurice Tannahill serving as first president.

On the club's business agenda Friday was a report that two flowering crabapple trees and two flowering plum trees have been planted at Deaf Smith General Hospital by the club.

Mrs. David Higgins was accepted as a new member. After refreshments were served, members travelled to Amarillo for lunch and to tour AAA Green House.

Members attending were Mmes. Axe, Bartlett, T.J. Carter, Carmichael, Hill, Dorothy Noland, Story, Springer and A.L. Jordan.

Take all of the unpleasant things you've ever known about banks. And forget them. Forget that you've ever felt uncomfortable asking for a loan. Forget that you've ever had to wait in a long line to make a transaction. Forget that banks are cold buildings that lock your money up in a safe. Forget all of that!

Now... think about what you'd like your bank to be. And think about how you'd like to feel when you visit it.

Think about how you'd like to be treated by the people who work for your bank. The way you'd like to be treated as a person and not just another customer.

Think about the trust you put into your bank. How much you depend on it when you need assistance. And why it's so important to have faith in the people who run it.

If you've never cooked shredded lettuce in a little chicken broth, try it! Weight-watchers have discovered that it tastes good and is low in calories — filling, too.

Once you add a little olive oil to the water in which you boil artichokes, you'll probably continue the practice because the oil gives both good flavor and a shiny appearance to the artichoke leaves.

Thank-you notes were read from the Bill Lookingbill and Tom Cunningham families.

Gail Richardson, Ann Washington, Marie Sears and Jewell Hargrave volunteered to clean up the club house and wash the curtains before the AGRA rodeo this week.

The Range Meeting will be Tuesday in Canyon, with the Palo Duro Range Riders serving as hosts. The United Meeting will be Friday in the Southwestern Public Service Building in Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cox and family were accepted as new members.

The club this week will continue repairing and cleaning the facilities around the arena in preparation for the AGRA rodeo.

VENETO

by Thomasville.

Thomasville designers have captured the true essence of Italian art and culture from the first four decades of the 16th century in a splendid collection of bedroom furniture. Simplicity and dignity are apparent in each piece. The dressers feature a breakfront design. Authentic ornamentation such as the egg-and-dart molding and the fluted post crowned with a decorative motif are perfectly detailed and proportioned. Figured cherry veneers, solids of cherry and wood products offer beautiful grain character. The woods are further enhanced with the rich fruitwood finish that is handrubbed to a satin luster. Adding a jewel-like quality to the collection is the custom designed hardware. A classic bead appears on the ball handle and backplate. A variety of special interest pieces include a tri-fold mirror which can be used on either of the two dressers. This Italian classic design brings the look of royalty to rooms and an extra touch in decorating. Whether selected for the master bedroom or guest room, Veneto offers you the Classic Italian beauty and Thomasville quality that your home deserves.

Treasure To Go On Display For 1st Time This Summer

AUSTIN (AP)—The fragile beauty of the tiny, intricate gold crucifix did not dim in the 400 years it spent on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico.

The minute cross weathered the 16th century shipwreck of three Spanish treasure ships in an April squall off Padre Island, more than four centuries in the Gulf and nearly a decade of political and legal battles.

It's now locked in a safe to which only one person knows the combination, along with the rest of the artifacts salvaged in 1967 by a group of Indiana treasure hunters.

The collection was the focus of a stormy controversy that caused the political demise of crusty former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler and gave birth to the Texas Antiquities Committee.

Part of it, including the one-inch cross that Sadler called "priceless," will go on public display for the first time this summer.

Truett Latimer, executive director of the Texas Historical Commission, said this week that the display of silver coins, cannons, spikes and other artifacts will open in August in Raymondville, a small coastal town about 25 miles from the where they were recovered.

The display, being prepared at a cost of $40,000, will then travel to several other Texas cities in the following 16 months.

University of Texas archeologists have spent several years and more than $150,000 in painstakingly preserving the artifacts. Most were clumped into unrecognizable masses with barnacles, shells and sand.

Attorneys for Texas and Piatore, Ltd., Inc. of Indiana, have spent thousands of dollars and hours in court battles over their custody. Texas politicians also fought verbally and physically over the artifacts for which treasure hunters could only get about $125,000.

"These artifacts are priceless to a historian or archeologist," said State Marine archeologist Barto Arnold. "They tell an incredible story about early Texas history."

The gems of the display come from the collection salvaged by Piatore in 1967. The rest was salvaged by TAC divers in 1972 from another of three small Spanish ships that floundered off Padre Island on April 20, 1554.

For several years, reporters and politicians mistakenly called the ships "galleons." Actually, they were "naos," which were only about 100 feet long and carried relatively little gold and silver, Arnold said.

Spanish documents show that the "San Esteban," the "Espiritu Santo" and the "Santa Maria de Yciar," left Vera Cruz April 9, 1554, heading for a rendezvous in Cuba with several other small treasure ships.

Three weeks later they ran aground in a spring squall near the Mansfield Cut off Padre Island.

"The documents show that Spanish salvagers were there by June and salvaged most of the limited amount of gold and silver aboard," said Arnold. "We have even seen documents listings what was aboard and what was salvaged."

Rev. Moon Arrested

BARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, leader of the controversial Unification Church, has been arrested on charges of trespassing on the campus of a small, Episcopalian-affiliated college.

The 57-year-old Moon and 10 of his followers told authorities they were "sightseeing" on Thursday at the Bard College campus about 100 miles north of New York City.

Campus security police said their attention was drawn to the group because their behavior was "inappropriate" and their responses to questions "needlessly evasive."

College President Leon Botstein, who confirmed that Bard would press charges, said he had been told that some of the "Moonies" had walkie-talkies with them. He would not elaborate.

He said Bard had warned Moon and his sect three years ago that they would be subject to a trespassing charge if they came on the campus uninvited. Until now, Botstein said, Bard has had no incidents related to the Unification Church, which operates a seminary nearby.

Authorities said the trespass charge carries a maximum penalty of 15 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Drill Sergeant Pleads Guilty

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A drill instructor pleaded guilty at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot Friday to seven counts of assault, one of hazing and eight counts of financial dealings with recruits.

The plea was entered by Sgt. Albert J. Fragua, 27, of Albuquerque, N.M., during a special court martial. Capt. Richard D. Sullivan, the military judge, indicated the nonjury trial would continue Monday with recruits testifying.

Fragua was accused of borrowing $55 which he never paid back, in addition to Mike Simpson has taught English at Hereford High for 1 and ½ years. His wife, Sarah, is librarian at Shirley Elementary. He graduated from Denison High School in Denison, and received an Associate of Arts from Western Texas College and his B.A. and M.A. from Austin College at Sherman. Simpson holds professional membership in TSTA and NEA. He enjoys basketball officiating.

Mike's philosophy of education is that education should contribute to the social as well as the intellectual maturation of the student. He feels students have become increasingly dependent on the schools for a set of values, discipline, and methods of socialization and thinks that our educational system should meet these needs.

An innovative teacher himself, Mike says, "The teaching trend seems to be swinging back so that the basics, such as reading and writing, are being emphasized again. After all of the experiments in teaching have run their course, the traditional values of education seem to be emerging again."

MIKE SIMPSON

"Innovation is now complementing tradition, rather than replacing it. I think teachers have realized that before a student can analyze a great philosophical work, he must first be able to read, write and spell," he said.

Meet Set On Referendum

A countywide meeting about the proposed Beef Research and Information Act has been called for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Bull Barn in Hereford by Jim Conkwright, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Beef Development Task Force.

Details about the upcoming beef referendum will be explained, the chairman has announced. The educational program, which is designed for all beef and dairy cattle owners of the county, will include two slide presentations about the Beef Research and Information Act—one prepared by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service—and the second by the Beef Development Task Force. There will be a period for questions and comments from producers.

Additionally, the BDT chairman, County Extension Agent Justin McBride, and Extension Livestock Specialist, Dr. John McNeil, will provide more detailed information about the forthcoming beef referendum. The Beef Research and Information Act serves as enabling legislation and authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct a referendum among beef producers to determine whether they want a beef development plan, developed by an industry-wide committee.

"The beef development plan is a proposed national checkoff program that would be financed by assessment as spelled out in the beef marketing order. If approved, the plan would provide some $30 to $40 million per year for beef research, consumer and producer information, promotion and market development," explains Conkwright.

Expenditures, he added, would be directed by a 68-member board of cattlemen and representatives of livestock organizations.

To be eligible to participate in the beef referendum, beef and dairy cattle owners need to make two trips to their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Offices: the first trip to register, and the second to vote.

Pork Processing Method Being Studied At Tech

LUBBOCK—Pre-cooked pork chops may soon add a new dimension to quick and easy cooking.

A new method of processing pork loins which can conserve energy, save time and money for meat packers, and provide a tasty, nutritious convenience food for consumers is being investigated by Texas Tech University's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The technique involves "hot processing" of carcasses and pre-cooking loin chops one hour after slaughter, as opposed to the conventional "cold processing" method, according to Dr. C. Boyd Ramsey, professor of animal science.

Meat packers are among the top energy consumers in the nation, said Ramsey, with conventional pork processing methods involving chilling carcasses for up to 24 hours before cutting the carcasses into wholesale cuts.

Much of this energy expenditure is avoided in hot processing because roasts are pre-cooked soon after slaughter while the carcass is still warm, reducing cooking time and eliminating carcass-cooling in a freezer.

The hot processing method has been used before to prepare cured pork, but this is the first work done using the procedure with uncured cuts. If used commercially, this would allow consumers to buy pre-cooked pork loin chops just as they now can purchase pre-cooked hams.

A taste comparison of loin chops prepared by both methods indicated that the hot processed chops were tenderer than those prepared the conventional way. There was no difference in flavor, and only a slight reduction in juiciness.

Pre-cooked chops reheated by broiling were more palatable than those reheated by microwave, although Ramsey said the microwave-heated chops were quite tasty and suffered only by comparison with the others.

The hot processing method of preparing pork loin chops is the subject of a research paper by D.H. Sigler, who received the masters degree from Texas Tech in December 1976. The paper has been entered in competition for the best research paper at the Reciprocal Meat Conference to be held at Auburn University in Auburn, Ala. in June.

Frona Industries Reports Improvement

FRIONA—Frona Industries, Inc., had net income of $190,000 or 15 cents per share, on revenues of $14.5 million during its third quarter ended March 31, 1977, John G. Carrothers, President, reports.

This was a considerable improvement over the first two quarters of the current fiscal year in which the company reported losses.

In the third quarter of the prior year, the Company achieved net income of $337,000, or 27 cents per share on revenues of $14.8 million.

For the first three quarters of the fiscal year, Frona sustained a loss of $119,000, or 10 cents per share, on revenues of $43.5 million, compared with net income of $1,109,000, or 89 cents per share, on revenues of $40 million in the first nine months of fiscal 1976.

"Custom feeding and the manufacture and sale of commercial feeds were the most profitable areas of our agribusiness operations in the third quarter, and for the year to date," said Carrothers.

Custom cattle feeding during the third quarter benefited from slightly higher occupancy at the company's feedyards.

Commercial feed revenues in the third quarter were ahead of the prior year because of increases in tonnage and ingredient costs. Gross profit margins were comparable on a year-to-year basis.

Retail sale of animal health supplies and steel fabrication activities made minor contributions to income.

"As was the case in the two prior quarters, the sale of company-owned cattle was once again responsible for the largest deficit, although the third-quarter loss incurred was substantially below that of either of the first two quarters," he added.

Grain and transportation were marginally in the red for the third quarter loss incurred was substantially below that of either of the first two quarters," he added.

Grain and transportation were marginally in the red for the third quarter of this year.

"Actually our grain operations during the third quarter greatly helped our custom feeding and manufactured feed businesses to achieve better profitability," explained Carrothers.

"Cattle prices were somewhat more stable and, near the end of the quarter, cattle feeders were once again able to make a small profit on the cattle they marketed," he commented.

"The number of grass-fed cattle available for slaughter has declined; more grain-fed cattle are being marketed than are being placed in feedyards; and the number of cattle on feed is below that of a year ago. All of these factors would seem to indicate that there should be improvements in the grain-fed cattle market in the coming months," said Carrothers.

Water District Approves 40% Reduction In Taxes

BY PAT NICKELL
Director of Public Education
A 40 per cent reduction in taxes was voted by the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District, No. 1, in their May meeting Tuesday in Lubbock.

The District has operated on a five-cents per $100-valuation of ad-valorem tax from District residents since 1953. The District has been in existence since 1951, and taxes have never been reduced before in the District's history.

Beginning with the 1977 tax year, the tax rate for District residents will be three cents per $100-valuation of their ad-valorem taxes.

Board President Webb Guber said, "We think we can operate for a time under this tax rate without curtailing our services."

District Manager Frank Rayner noted that over the years the District's irrigators have grown accustomed to adherence to the District's well spacing and waste abatement rules and that voluntary acquiescence to such rules had made possible a considerable savings in legal fees. He also noted that the District has continued some cost-savings management practices which were initiated in 1969, to reduce the District's outstanding indebtedness at that time. The dedicated funds for building and furnishing the District's new office have continued to grow, however, after all such capital improvements have been paid for, and he added that such funds are, at least temporarily, in excess of the District's present operating needs.

Rayner further noted that the staff salary adjustment and personnel benefits which have been provided by the District since 1969 have not encumbered the District, thereby making this tax cut possible.

All of the District's tax income is derived from the five-cent tax assessed and collected by the individual tax assessor-collectors for each of the 15 counties in the District.

The District has no control over the assessment or collection of any of its tax income.

Although the tax rate has not been increased in the District's history, its income has increased annually, with the growth of the area and the higher valuation placed on property within the District by the county tax assessors.

Rayner also noted that additional income to the District is derived from nominal fees for some specific District services beneficial to only certain segments of the District's residents; such as the District-maintained water-depletion income tax allowance program serving irrigation landowners within the District. He pointed out that this program is now maintained entirely by fees paid by such tax allowance claimants.

Other members of the District's Board of Directors include James Mitchell of Wolfforth, vice-president; Selmer Schoenrock of Levelland, secretary-treasurer; Mal Jarboe of Floydada, member; and Ray Gerk of Hereford, member.

Tractor Safety Program Planned

Boys 14 and 15 years of age who have had experience driving and operating a tractor are eligible for a Tractor and Machinery Safety Program to be held locally.

The Hazardous Agricultural Occupation Order of the Department of Labor prohibits boys under the age of 16 from operating tractors and machinery, unless they have participated in such a program.

If the individual completes the training program and passes a written test as well as a driving test, he will be issued an exemption allowing him to operate tractors and certain other equipment.

A meeting will be held Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. at the Deaf Smith REC Medallion Room to finalize dates for the program.

All persons interested in the program are urged to contact Garland Stewart at the county Extension office by 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Thompson Takes Part In Evaluation In Hawaii

AMARILLO: Dr. G.B. Thompson, Director of Research at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at Amarillo is part of a team to evaluate livestock research in Hawaii. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist departed May 5 for the three day study. The evaluation team was selected from the most outstanding Animal Scientists in the United States.

The Cooperative State Research Service, part of the United States Department of Agriculture that grant Hatch funds to state experiment stations, evaluates research projects about once in 10 years. Animal health research in Texas was evaluated in April of this year.

Other members of the team are Dr. George Mountney with the USDA, Dr. D.C. England from Oregon State University and Dr. Nels Konnerup with AID in Washington D.C. Researchers that work on projects being evaluated have an opportunity to get suggestions from study team members. Scientists doing the evaluating get ideas that may be useful in their own research.

Hawaii has a diverse livestock industry. They have all the problems associated with feedlots. Parts of the island are lush tropical vegetation and some areas are almost as dry as West Texas. Few people know it, but the Parker Ranch in Hawaii is one of the largest ranches in the world. There are several other large ranches that rival those in Texas. The Hawaiian climate makes possible two crops of corn per year and continuous forage and pasture production.

"Information about managing cattle West Texas style may be helpful to Hawaiians", Dr. Thompson said, "on the other hand, I hope to pick up a few ideas from the Hawaiian cattle industry."

Ancient Greeks drained their cheeses in wicker baskets called "formas," the Latin term being "forma". From that Latin root came the modern French "fromage" for cheese.

Naman Warns Of Cotton Import Proposal

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman of Waco has issued a warning to cotton producers that there is a move afoot which is aimed at assuring a weak market price for cotton despite the low supply and strong demand. He is calling the maneuver "a total fiasco of cheap prices created by the trade interests at the disastrous expense of the producers."

Speaking from the nation's capital where work is being done on pending farm legislation, Naman expressed once again his "shocking dismay over Administration and Congressional farm leadership that appears bent on ruining the farmer."

"There are people up here who are about to deal a death blow to cotton producers and they are hardly even letting farmers know about their fatal plans until they are already passed into law. Special interests of the trade who want to keep cotton at low prices are telling the Agriculture Committee that the cotton industry is united behind cheap cotton and price ceilings. It's high time for producers to get angry and tell them they are wrong!"

Naman's comments center around proposed cotton legislation, H.R. 5719, combined with parts of the new law which would replace the expiring Farm Act of 1973. The bill which is being pushed by the National Cotton Council and apparently gaining acceptance with the committee due to that push, allows for special limited global import quotas for upland cotton. Importation would begin whenever the market price reaches 130 per cent of the previous 36-month average price.

The global imports would go hand-in-hand with general farm legislation which establishes loan rates calculated on spot market prices weighed at 85 per cent as long as that figure did not exceed 90 per cent of the world price.

"What that essentially amounts to as best we can tell," says Naman, "is a loan somewhere around 51 cents a pound and a ceiling which would trigger raw imports at around 63 cents a pound in the case of West Texas cotton. Such a loan is totally disjointed from any cost of production figure and such a ceiling is ridiculous and devastating with the only possible benefit going to trade groups who are getting nervous watching a strong cotton market develop against their better wishes."

Joe Rankin, Texas Farmers Union Vice President and a cotton producer in the Falls area, points out that the effects of the pending legislation are already being seen in the Panhandle. "Producers are having a hard time contracting their 1977 crop, at least at any decent rate. The National Cotton Council has filled the air with omens of 50 cents cotton and a ceiling in the mid-sixties range, so there is no reason for a buyer to offer any more on a contract. Farmers who saw a strong market this past year on their cotton crops, and who know that supply and demand are still in good shape, can't figure out what's happening. But the answer is simple and it's coming from Washington."

Both Rankin and Naman have been in touch with Congressmen on the matter and have been shocked with their indication that they had believed from cotton lobbyists that this is what the farmers wanted.

Said Naman, "It's time we stop this thing and unless we as producers do something quick, this disaster of a cotton program is going to be passed. The effects of this huge influx of foreign cotton would not only establish a ceiling on domestic cotton at less than the cost of production level, but would also discourage the operation of the marketing system which permits cotton farmers to lock-in a price on a future crop."

"It is paradoxical that the textile industry is seeking rigid controls on the importation of finished cotton goods while at the same time seeking importation of raw cotton which would create low domestic cotton prices."

"Stopping H.R. 5719 and its provisions for importation of raw cotton to establish a ceiling is going to be the most important thing cotton producers must do if they have hopes for ever staying in business in the future."

Mahon Will Testify On Cotton Dust

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Congressman George Mahon announced today that he will be in Lubbock on Tuesday and will testify at the field hearings on the OSHA cotton dust exposure standards.

Prior to departing for Lubbock on Monday, he will meet with Dr. Eula Bingham, the new Assistant Secretary of Labor for Occupational Safety and Health.

Mahon will urge Secretary Bingham to abandon cotton dust exposure standards, pointing out that, if fully implemented, they would tend to paralyze the entire cotton industry. In a statement to the press, Mahon said:

"OSHA is the most unpopular agency in the federal government because of some of the foolish and irresponsible actions the organization has taken in the past."

Continuing, Mahon said, "It would be indefensible for OSHA to require cotton gins and cottonseed oil mills to spend an estimated half million dollars for plant equipment when there is not adequate proof that a genuine health hazard exists in these industries; and I am appearing at the hearings on Tuesday to impress this fact upon OSHA officials responsible for writing the proposed standards."

Applicator Training Scheduled

Deaf Smith County producers will have an opportunity to qualify for certification as private applicators during a private applicator certification training program scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 17, at the Bull Barn.

Private applicator certification training programs will be scheduled as a means by which Deaf Smith County producers may qualify for certification as private applicators. This training will be May 17 at the Bull Barn in Hereford, Texas at 7:00 p.m.

As an alternative to participation in a training program, self-study materials are available at the county Extension office. To complete the self-study option the person seeking certification must submit a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The single-product, single-purchase, single-use certification for emergency situations will be available as restricted-use pesticides are marketed.

The full implementation of the amended Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act is scheduled for October 1977. On this date, barring any changes in the law, producers of agricultural commodities must be certified applicators as a requisite to the use of restricted-use pesticides.

Wool Price Support Flexibility Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee voted 21 to 9 Monday to reject the Carter administration's request for flexibility in setting price supports for wool.

The support has been frozen at 72 cents a pound since 1970. The administration wanted authority to set it somewhere between 75 cents and $1.

The committee accepted a subcommittee proposal to raise it to 99 cents for this year, $1.08 in 1978 and by similar amounts for each year through 1981.

The current market price for wool is about $1, but the Agriculture Department predicted it would fall to 80 cents a pound by August.

In has averaged above 60 cents only three times since 1938 and only nine times in the 38 years before 1976 has the market averaged above the support level.

The support payments are made on season-average prices and paid the following April. In 1975, the last year for which final figures were available, the government paid $40.8 million in such supports.

The panel lost its quorum before finishing a vote on limiting total payments to wool growers to $20,000 this year and $35,000 next year, with the ceiling rising to $46,585 by 1981.

The committee did strike a subcommittee proposal that the government help pay for wool-promotion programs in years when no support payments are made. Now, a part of the support payments is taken from ranchers for those programs.

Because of high prices, no support payments were made for 1973. The average has been $46.6 million since 1965.

Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., argued that "the Australians will take over the wool market in this country" unless government supports are brought up to date.

Despite supports above the market price, U.S. wool production has declined in ops of every four years for the last four decades, with total poundage dropping to 50 per cent since 1963.

The wool program now has no payments limit. In 1975, 22 ranchers were paid between $50,000 and $500,000, with 119,440 paid less than $100 in supports.

The administration is seeking a $50,000 per farmer cap for all commodities payments. That was defeated on a voice vote.

The staggered ceiling lost on a tie vote by a show of hands. A call for a record vote, by names, adjourned the meeting because the required 24 members weren't present.

The committee and its Senate counterpart are drafting legislation to replace the wool and other farm programs that expire Sept. 30.

Assistant Lashes Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Canners Association says Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Foreman is mistaken in saying that four bigname companies dominate the canned applesauce and sweet corn businesses.

Charles J. Carey, association president, said Friday that Ms. Foreman earlier this week made "allegations which have no basis in fact." Her statements were at a meeting of farm magazine editors here Monday.

Carey's protest followed a brief comment by Ms. Foreman as she discussed competition in the food industry. She thinks there should be more competition.

Her remarks from the prepared text, were:

"I don't think competition is working when, for instance, just four leading canners - Del Monte, Heinz, Libby and Campbell - control 57 per cent of the canned applesauce sold and 52 per cent of the sweet corn."

Carey said in a statement that three of the companies mentioned do not pack applesauce at all and that the fourth is a "minor packer" of applesauce. Only two of the four produce canned corn, he said. Carey did not identify which companies produce what.

Moreover, he said, there are a total of 48 companies in the United States that produce canned corn and 42 that turn out canned applesauce.

Ms. Foreman, who prefers that designation, is a former executive director of the Consumer Federation of America and is a long-time critic of the food industry.

Carey said that "it is indeed unfortunate that a high government official in her first days in office should reveal such antagonism toward an industry for which her department has responsibility."

Although Ms. Foreman did not confine her remarks about business competition to the canners, the four companies were the only ones she named. Supermarket chains also have "inadequate competition," she said.

In his statement, Carey said a report last November by the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability showed that "the percentage of industry shipments accounted for by the four largest canning companies declined from 24 per cent in 1963 to 20 per cent in 1972."

Vegetable Specialist Says Cross Pollination Not A Garden Problem

COLLEGE STATION—Home gardeners who may be concerned about cucumbers, watermelons, cantaloupes and squash crossbreeding and producing fruit that is off-flavored and off-colored need not worry. These garden favorites may be planted side-by-side without any problem.

"Even though cross-pollination is necessary to obtain fruit-set in all members of the cucurbit family, there is no way that the interchange of pollen will affect the genetic makeup or the flavor or color of the fruit as it develops," points out Tom Longbrake, vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "What is affected through cross-pollination is the offspring of that cross, which are the genes of the seed within the fruit. Thus, only plants grown from seed of the fruit would show the difference."

So, gardeners need not be concerned about growing their favorite cucurbits. In fact, these plants cousins cannot be effectively used as flower pollinators for each other, says Longbrake. Only squash on squash, cucumbers on cucumbers, and the like are successful.

Of course, bees or other pollinating insects are still necessary to move pollen from each plant's own male flower to the female flower, points out the horticulturist.

eventually rid Texas of the stinging pest.

"Even though the insecticide mirex has been an effective control for fire ants in the past, the environmental protection agency has banned the aerial use of the chemical on the grounds that it is environmentally unsafe. Therefore, we must concentrate our efforts in another direction, that being in the area of 'juvenile hormones'.

This program, when perfected, can be safely used, through aerial methods, over the infested areas without the risk of endangering people with chemical residues."

"In the past, the TDA has given the experiment station only $100,000 per year for research on the control of fire ants. The Agriculture Department already has appropriated to them $1.5 million for fire ant control that, in the past, has not been used. If we ever expect to find a program that is effective, while at the same time environmentally safe, for the control and eradication on the fire ant in Texas, then we are going to have to legislatively instruct the commissioners of agriculture to release some of this money for research."

The legislation, which has been included within the appropriation bill is expected to pass without opposition.

Bill Introduced For Fire Ant Research

State Representative Joe A. Hubenak (D. Rosenberg) chairman of the committee on agriculture and livestock, has introduced legislation authorizing the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) to contract with the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station an amount not exceed $250,000 per year for each year of the biennium for Fire Ant Research.

Hubenak, known throughout Texas as the leader in the fight against fire ants, has repeatedly pushed for an increase in funding for research on "juvenile hormones", a method which would keep the insects from hatching and thus Qualifying for a large irrigation loan might be a problem without us these days. Financial institutions will be taking a careful look at the equipment you've chosen with two considerations in mind. Will the equipment last the term of the loan, and maintain its value? And is the company behind the system sound and experienced? When you decide on Valley Irrigation, you're covered on both points.

Hot dipped galvanized protection is standard on all Valley equipment, giving you twice the life expectancy of mere painted steel systems. You can also expect a substantially higher resale value. Some of our dealers report that used, galvanized Valleys bring $3,000-$5,000 more than painted systems manufactured in the same year. No Ag Plan in Energy Program 'Disappointing,' Brown Admits

AUSTIN—Admitting his disappointment that plans for agriculture were not specifically included in President Carter's energy plan, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said he "would do all I can to help the President achieve his conservation goals."

"But we will be just as vigorous in championing the cause of farmers and ranchers," Brown added, "for in the final analysis, as the farmer goes, so goes the nation."

The new commissioner, named in March to fill the unexpired term of the previous head of the Texas Department of Agriculture, said he felt the President's message "was straightforward and sobering."

"There seems to me to be a consciousness in all America that we must tighten our belts to conserve energy and move with all deliberate speed in developing new sources of energy."

Speaking of the admission of agriculture's role in the plan, Brown said, "I have great confidence that President Carter, himself a farmer, Secretary Bob Bergland, and Undersecretary John C. White are monitoring these developments to assure a supply of agricultural fuels at prices which will ensure that farmers and ranchers can stay in business."

"All Americans have a stake in agriculture's ability to produce," Brown added. "They are as close to agriculture as the next meal."

PROTECT HORSES—Horse owners should vaccinate their animals against equine encephalitis (horse sleeping sickness) as warmer weather and increased mosquito populations bring danger of infection, according to Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Strong Price for Cotton Boosts State's Acreage

AUSTIN--Dramatic increases in cotton acreage, a result of strengthened prices, are being reported in some areas across the state, according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Some counties that haven't seen a cotton plant in four or five years are reporting acreage," said Reagan V. Brown, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, explaining that increased prices, plus a weakening grain market have rekindled interest in the crop.

Cotton planting throughout the state is only four per cent completed at this time, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Service, compared to a three-year average of 11 per cent.

The most increase is in the Winter Garden area,

Brown said, where growers are expected to plant 30,000 to 40,000 acres this year, compared to only 4,000 acres in 1975 and 12,000 acres last year.

The cotton planting deadline in the Lower Rio Grande Valley has been extended to midnight, April 15, after wet weather deterred planting activity in the area. Producers for the rest of the Valley and most of the Coastal Bend have until April 20 to complete their planting.

Wet fields have also delayed grain sorghum planting in the past few weeks, but producers have been taking advantage of recent fair weather to step up activity. Planting is 43 per cent complete, compared to 45 per cent this time last year and a three-year average of 38 per cent.

Horse Sleeping Sickness Shots Urged by State Ag Official

AUSTIN--The warmer months of spring and summer should remind horse owners to vaccinate their animals against equine encephalitis (horse sleeping sickness), according to the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"When mosquito populations increase we often see an increase in the disease," commented Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Effective vaccines are available, according to veterinarians of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"Owners should remember, however, that the vaccines are effective for only one year," Brown said, "so revaccination is necessary each spring."

Combined killed-virus vaccines are available for eastern and western equine encephalitis (EEE and WEE), and also for eastern, western and Venezuelan (VEE). EEE and WEE occur seasonally in many parts of the country. VEE has not been diagnosed since 1971 when this foreign disease invaded South Texas.

Research has shown that VEE has a complex natural history and many hosts.

State Ag Leader Encourages Heavy Beef Referendum Vote

AUSTIN--Every "man, woman and child who owns cattle in Texas" should register and vote in the upcoming national beef referendum, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has urged.

"Every cattle producer in the state has an equal vote in deciding the future of the proposed national beef check-off system," Brown said, "and as the major cattle-producing state in the nation, we have a particular responsibility to make our wishes known."

Brown said that at least one-half of all registered cattle owners in the country must cast a vote concerning the referendum before the results can be validated. "Since no list now exists of cattle producers in Texas or the nation, prospective voters will be required to register during a prescribed time period prior to voting," he added.

Projections are that registration will begin in May. Actual voting on the referendum would probably take place in early June, following a waiting period to accommodate any challenges made concerning voter eligibility.

A two-thirds majority is required of those who do vote for the referendum to pass.

The Scientists Tell Me... A Back Yard Garden Can Be Worth $900 Per Year

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

An experimental back-yard garden near Dallas has yielded 1,778 pounds of vegetables and small fruit on 1,776 square feet of land (about 42 x 42.3).

That's more than a pound of food from each square foot of garden. The value of the vegetables and fruit were calculated to be worth more than $900 retail.

The back-yard garden was started in the fall of 1974 by a research scientist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Renner.

It was established to help draw some economic guidelines for those who are serious in producing home-grown vegetables. The scientist, Benny J. Simpson, kept record of all costs except labor.

Expenses totaled $90.39 so the garden had a net value of $823.18. Simpson is quick to point out that the net value would be eaten up by hired labor.

Costs were broken down like this: vegetable seed, $17.10; 10 bunches of Hamburger onion plants, $14.95; 100 Comanche Blackberry plants at $10.00, depreciated over 10 years, $1.00; Bacillus thuringiensis, 1 1/2 ounces, $.98; chemical pesticides, 6 1/2 ounces, $2.07; fungicide, 2 ounces, $1.19; fertilizer, $2.84; water, 11,544 gallons at $.60 per thousand feet, $6.93; and rototiller, depreciated over 6 years, $33.33.

Simpson says he didn't figure charges for labor, compost, organic mulch, or small garden tools such as hoes, rakes and shovels. The smallest possible containers of pesticides were purchased and the garden was charged only with the amount used.

Flow rates of water were measured with a meter and all applications were timed for the exact amount used.

Now what did Simpson actually harvest? In April, there was a total yield of 161.9 pounds of lettuce, English peas, green onions, turnips, and turnip greens for a total value of $58.40.

In May, he harvested 173.7 pounds of Chinese cabbage, English peas, broccoli, cauliflower, green beans, squash, and blackberries worth $91.52.

In June, 407 pounds of tomatoes, beans, blackberries, broccoli, squash, cucumbers, sweet peppers, jalapeno peppers, eggplant, and purple hull peas were harvested for a total value of $229.19.

In July, Simpson harvested 215 pounds of onions, purple hull peas, beans, tomatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, sweet peppers, jalapeno peppers, and okra for a total of $81.05.

In August, 180.9 pounds of tomatoes, okra, sweet peppers, eggplant, jalapeno peppers, and cucumbers were harvested for a value of $92.16.

In September, 255.9 pounds of okra, jalapeno peppers, tomatoes, eggplant, sweet peppers, squash and bell peppers were harvested and valued at $148.14.

squash, tomatoes, broccoli, cauliflower, eggplant, long yellow sweet peppers, jalapeno peppers, bell peppers, turnip greens, cucumbers, and English peas were valued at $145.78.

In November, Simpson harvested 158.12 pounds of cauliflower, broccoli, turnip greens, turnips, tomatoes, squash, eggplant, jalapeno peppers, and English peas for a total value of $57.33.

Simpson points out that in very few years do we have as severe a winter as 1976.

Real Estate Facts

By DON TARDY
President, Hereford Board of Realtors

Are home buyers becoming more energy conscious? Owens Corning Fiberglas conducted a nationwide telephone survey of 200 realtors last fall to find out. Realtors were surveyed because realtors, in the words of the report, "are the best source of information on the current attitudes and overall atmosphere of the home buying market."

The survey had two prime objectives. The first was to determine the degree of importance the home buyer attaches to cost of utilities and energy conservation. The second was to determine the relationship between home price and energy efficiency.

Forty-two per cent of the realtors surveyed reported that home buyers are greatly concerned about utility costs. Fifty per cent said that home buyers were at least somewhat concerned. Only eight per cent indicated that home buyers voiced no concern at all.

Are home buyers aware of energy savings features in homes built today? Thirty-four per cent said that home buyers are very aware. Fifty-five per cent reported that home buyers were somewhat aware. Eleven per cent responded that home buyers indicate no awareness.

Forty per cent said that home buyers asked about specific energy savings features. Sixty per cent of the responding realtors reported that they were not asked questions about specific energy savings devices.

When specific questions were asked, 77 per cent dealt with insulation, 19 per cent concerned double pane windows and 19 per cent dealt with the type of heating and cooling equipment.

Seventy-one per cent of the realtors queried said that insulation was the single most important energy saving feature when selling a house. Ten per cent said that the type of heating and cooling equipment was most important.

If home builders were to offer homes with "Energy Per Month" ratings in the same manner that auto makers advertise "Miles Per Gallon" ratings, would sales be helped or hindered?

Sixty-eight per cent of the realtors surveyed thought that such a rating system would help sales. Four per cent said it would hurt sales. Twenty-six per cent said such ratings would have no effect and two per cent said they did not know what the effect would be.

Of the realtors responding positively to the question, 20 per cent said EPM ratings would help sell homes because of the high cost of energy needed to operate a home. Seventeen per cent replied that EPM ratings would be helpful because people are interested in saving money. Fourteen per cent indicated that home buyers are more energy conscious now so such ratings would help sales.

Realtors reacting negatively to the question said that people are leery of low energy homes, that such ratings might prove confusing or might not be understandable.

Realtors who indicated that such a rating system would have no effect said that buyers aren't all that energy conscious and that they are more concerned about the overall cost of a home, among other reasons.

In terms of price ranges, the realtors reported that about two-thirds of the buyers in the under $30,000 and $30,000 to $60,000 range expressed concern about energy costs.

American Prisoners Watch Money, Hope For More Changes At La Loma

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP)—Rules and regulations are tightly enforced these days at La Loma prison in this Mexican border city, but the prisoners aren't complaining.

"It's better when things are tight," said one prisoner, a two-time loser who had spent time in several Mexican jails, "because you don't have to be dealing all the time."

In a three-part series on the 20-year-old prison where 34 Americans are among the 480 inmates, the Laredo Times found that regulations were not the only things changed.

While money is still the key to life within the prison walls, the new warden, Francisco Espinoza Flor, 25, has made a person's wealth less important in his existence.

"Under the old regime, a prisoner had to pay, and pay heavily for everything he got, including the very necessities of life," said John Epperson, an American.

"The payments went to line the pockets of inmates and officials that made up the administration of the prison," Epperson said. "Since the new warden has taken over, that kind of extortion has dropped to an acceptable level."

The Mexican government pays each inmate 11 pesos a day, equal to about 45 cents at the inflated rate of exchange in the prison. Each prisoner is expected to feed and clothe himself with this money.

But the prisoners say it takes a minimum of $2 a day to make the necessary purchases from the shops and stores located within the prison walls.

"In here, a man without money is a man with a problem he can't solve," said Kenneth Simpson, another American inmate.

For about $4,000, an inmate may purchase a two-room "apartment" in the most desirable part of the prison. For another $2,000, a prisoner can have electrical outlets, televisions, radios and other amenities.

Under the old regime, such quarters could be sold by inmates upon their release. But Flor has ordered that stopped.

Flor's administration has allowed newsmen into the prison for the first time as well as started the prison toward becoming a rehabilitation center.

In March the prison's name was changed to La Loma Rehabilitation Center.

The facility now has elementary and secondary level schools offering courses ranging from academics to welding.

La Loma officials say they hope to receive approval from the Mexican government this month that will allow prisoners to work outside the prison walls.

The change to a rehabilitation center was made possible by a Mexican penal code that allows certain institutions to be reclassified as minimum security facilities.

Steering committees, one inside the prison and one outside, were set up to meet the requirements of the code.

The external committee consists of Flor, the Nuevo Laredo mayor and several area businessmen.

Epperson said the rehabilitation program, including the work release part, was available to the Americans.

Meanwhile, many aspects of life in a Mexican prison appear to continue unchanged—women still come for private visits with their husbands or lovers while guards, with pistols slapping at their legs, mingle among the prisoners.

And drugs and liquor are reportedly still available although one prisoner said prices had jumped considerably under the current administration.

For their female guests, the prisoners have constructed a "hotel" for inmates who want more privacy than their cells or want their guests to stay overnight.

For those prisoners thinking of snatching a guard's gun and shooting his way out, the thought of the time spent in custody before trial by Mexican authorities is a deterrent.

"This is really a minimum security prison by American standards, but to get out, an inmate would have to hurt someone," said Epperson, who added no prisoner likes the idea of being captured after killing a guard. But for Americans in La Loma, the question is still, "Hey, man, what's happening with the treaty?"

Although the prisoner exchange treaty between the U.S. and Mexico was approved last year by the Mexican congress, the American version is still mired in committee.

"It's the uncertainty that's so bothersome," said one American. "We really don't know where we stand, and we can't seem to get the ungarbled word from someone."

So, until the treaty is put into effect or until sentences are served, American prisoners, like their Mexican counterparts, will continue to watch their money and hope more changes occur at La Loma.

Business Boom Expected For Insulation Makers

BY LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Insulation manufacturers are gearing up for an expected business boom because of President Carter's proposal for insulating 90 per cent of all American homes by 1985.

But they also are worried that sales may slump temporarily if homeowners delay improvements pending Congressional action on tax credits for people who install insulation.

And some government officials warn that the new emphasis on insulation is likely to bring out unscrupulous dealers with shady offers, making it harder than ever for consumers to get their money's worth.

A spokesman at the National Bureau of Standards in the Department of Commerce warned would-be buyers to "be very wary," particularly if someone proposes an unusually low-cost insulation program.

Under Carter's proposal, homeowners would receive tax credits of up to $410 for spending on such energy-saving items as insulation, storm windows and weather stripping.

According to a 1974 study by the National Bureau of Standards, some 40 million owner-occupied, single-family homes are wasting energy because of inadequate insulation. Eighteen million of these homes have little or no insulation.

The amount of energy—and money—that can be saved by installing insulation varies widely, depending on the location of the house, the design, the amount of insulation already in place and the cost of fuel.

According to the Federal Energy Administration, installing proper insulation in a previously uninsulated attic can cut energy usage by about 20 per cent; storm windows and doors can reduce consumption by 15 per cent; caulking and weatherstripping doors and windows—an inexpensive process—may save up to 10 per cent.

There are three basic types of insulation—mineral wool, which accounts for 80 to 85 per cent of residential insulation, according to the National Mineral Wool Insulation Association; cellulose fiber usually sold in loose fill form; and plastic foam.

Sheldon Cady of the mineral wool group said "plants are working at capacity even without the legislation." But he said the industry can meet the demand, providing the nation's homes are insulated over an eight to 10-year time span.

Both Cady and L.A. Barron of the National Cellulose Insulation Manufacturers Association expressed concern about people holding off on weatherproofing. Barron said that when a statewide program was proposed in California, "everyone stopped buying insulation."

Cady and Barron said that insulation is just as important in the summer to keep the house cool as it is in the winter. "The sooner you buy it, the better," said Barron.

Bank Director Plans To Make Fargo Scenic

FARGO, N.D. (AP)—North Dakota's largest city doesn't have a hill. Ed Clapp is going to build one.

The City of Fargo also lacks a lake. Clapp says he's going to fix that too.

This east-central North Dakota city of 60,000 is located in the fertile Red River Valley. The terrain around here is mostly table-top flat—the city's elevation is 900 feet. An arrow-straight horizon stretches unbroken for miles.

Clapp, 58, a retired Army officer and director of a local bank, is a Fargo native. "I've lived all over the world," he says.

"I figure this is a good town for children to grow up in, but it would be a lot pleasanter to live on a lake and be near a recreation area like a ski hill would provide."

Clapp, an artillery officer in World War II and the Korean War, plans to take clay soil from his land at Fargo's south edge and build a 100-foot-high hill from it.

The holes left by the departed dirt will form three interconnecting lakes ranging in size from 12½ to 15½ acres, he says.

But there's a problem connected with hill-making in Fargo. The hill might sink.

"There's quite a bit of moisture in the Red River soil," says Clapp. "Engineers are afraid that when we put a big pile of heavy clay on top of it, the ground beneath will act like jelly and pop up some place else."

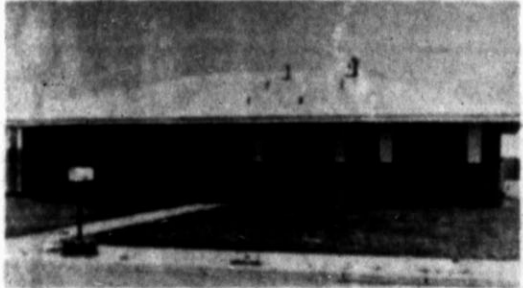

"So we're going to put up a 40-foot test hill—about 450,000 cubic yards... We'll let it stand a year to see what happens so we can anticipate what a full-sized hill will do."

If it works, the cost of the big hill—containing about a million cubic yards of dirt—will be about $750,000, Clapp estimates.

There will be additional costs for a ski lodge, snowmaking equipment and landscaping on the 20-acre site. Clapp says the Fargo Park District "will accept the ski area for a public park."

Sea Oil May Free Britain Dolly's Doin' It All

HOUSTON (AP) - Dr. J. Dickson Mabon says North Sea oil offers Great Britain the means of freeing itself from its historical restraints.

Mabon, the British minister of state for energy, visualizes the United Kingdom attaining oil self-sufficiency within four years.

"We have arrived as an oil producer," Mabon said while in Houston for the ninth Offshore Technology Conference.

Mabon told oilmen and newsmen the buildup in the North Sea oil production already has caused considerable improvement in Britain's balance of payments problem.

"We can't lose," he said. Britain, he said, has long been regarded even by friends as the sick man of Europe.

"For many years we have faced economic difficulties stemming from our role as an international reserve banker, from the effects of divesting ourselves of a huge empire, from the aftermath of the last war, and from the large scale imports of raw materials on which, as a small island, we must rely," he said.

"North Sea oil offers the means of freeing ourselves from these historical restraints. This year our trading balance should break even and in 1978 we should be well into the black."

Mabon placed current production from seven fields in the British sector at 750,000 barrels a day, well over one-third of domestic demand. He added that production has increased by more than 50 per cent in the past four months.

"Two more oil fields should come onstream later this year together with the Frigg Gas Field," he said.

By the end of 1977, barring accidents, we should be producing at a rate equivalent to at least half of the United Kingdom demand the rapid buildup will continue next year.

This means, he added, production of 2,000,000 barrels a day or self-sufficiency is well within Britain's reach in the calendar year 1980.

Mabon said the United Kingdom recognizes very clearly its offshore oil will not last forever.

"It must be seen as fitting into an energy supply pattern changing over the decades and we have a plan now for the day when North Sea oil runs out," he said.

Mabon said Britain, therefore, is not putting all its hopes for the future on oil developments.

"The present estimated level of reserves should see us well into the 1990s and, perhaps, into the next century," he said.

"It is at that point that we will need to have so developed our coal and nuclear industries that we can bridge what would otherwise be a quickly widening energy gap."

By then, Mabon said, the United Kingdom hopes to have secured a modest but significant contribution from renewable energy sources like the waves and the sun.

"All of this, of course, applies in lesser or greater degrees to every other Western industrial nation, to a larger degree in most cases since the United Kingdom is about the only such nation which will actually attain energy self-sufficiency in the 1980s," he said.

Mabon said Britain already has a very ambitious plan for expansion of its coal industry into the next century and added that very large deposits of coal also have been found during the North Sea oil explorations.

"It is much too deep and remote to exploit now," he said. "Nevertheless, it is there for the future."

He said nuclear power is being developed with care.

North Sea oil buys us some time in this respect," Mabon said.

"We are sinking an increasingly large amount of cash into research and development of renewable energy sources and there is a good case for using some oil revenues for the purpose."

Mabon said Britain regards energy conservation as another effective energy source.

"We have had an energy conservation policy several years based on economic pricing of fuels alongside exhortation, advice and inducements for householders and industry to use energy wisely," he said.

"The policy helped to reduce United Kingdom energy consumption by an estimated 6 per cent between 1973 and 1976."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "I'm like anybody else - I want to see what all I can do while the doin's good."

Toward that end, Dolly Parton has high-tailed it out of Nashville, where the doin's have been good, indeed, and headed for Hollywood, where she hopes they'll get even better.

The Queen of Country has set her sights on the pop-rock market, an audience that has been increasingly willing to lend an ear to the Nashville product. Other stars - Linda Ronstadt, Olivia Newton-John - have found the going quite lucrative once they crossed the dimming country-pop boundary.

"I want to keep my country audience," Dolly says, "but I want to try to appeal to another following that I have had for quite some time the denim and dope set. I have never really exercised that area. I've never gone to where they could see me or put out the kinds of records they want to hear."

Dolly didn't falter when she made up her mind she wanted to explore greener fields. She booked a six-week tour taking her to some of the country's better known rock-oriented watering holes - including the Roxy here, San Francisco's Boarding House and The Bottom Line in New York.

She gave the pink slip to her Nashville agent in favor of a slick Hollywood firm and released an album, "New Harvest, First Gather," which, though not quite rock, isn't exactly haystacks and fiddles, either.

And in what she calls her most "hurtful" move, Dolly fired her Travlin' Family Band, a collection of country kinfolk she says couldn't play the kind of music she wanted to make, and hired Gypsy Fever, a group more suited for her plans.

"Of course, the Travlin' Family Band, they were made up mostly of relatives," she says, "and my family and me were so close."

"But they wasn't really qualified to play all the things I wanted to play. They weren't qualified to play all the things I was doin', although they were very qualified to do just the country thing."

Some of Dolly's doings didn't quite set right with the folks back in Nashville. After all, doesn't Dolly Parton, with her extravagant hairdos, skin-hugging sequin suits and East Tennessee twang, personify Nashville. More than a few of the folks along Music City Row are wondering out loud whether their high-steppin' friend might be letting herself in for a big fall.

Good business and "doin' everything I can" has long been Dolly Parton's credo. She was 10 years old and sharing a Tennessee mountain shack with 11 brothers and sisters when she realized that somewhere on the other side of that mountain, music was a business.

An uncle took her to the local radio shows, and when she graduated from high school, she moved out to Nashville. There, she met Nashville singer-entrepreneur Porter Wagoner, and Dolly Parton became a star.

Plan Of Action Gets Preliminary Nod From Catholic Conference

CHICAGO (AP) - Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, spurred by urgings of its people, have headed the church toward new, broadened efforts for faith, peace and social justice.

A five-year "plan of action," born of a grass-roots consultation, got a preliminary go-ahead, in part, at a closing session Thursday of a three-day meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"We're with the people," said Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, the conference's president. In response to them, he said, "the bishops have faced the call to compromise Catholic teachings," they said, declaring the proposals unacceptable.

Nevertheless, on a motion by Archbishop William D. Borders of Baltimore, the bishops asked "theologians to join us in a serious study of the issues" behind the Vatican's recent declaration against ordaining women.

A "sign of hope," Sister Kathleen Keating of Chicago, head of the National Assembly of Women Religious, said of the addition. "It says this matter is still open."

The bishops also called for stepping up diocesan church tribunals to handle marital annulment cases, following earlier action to life a century-old decree excommunicating Catholics who have divorced and remarried.

The organization also is said to supply necessary documents

SOVIET PARTY Chairman Leonid Brezhnev wants to join the United States in solving world problems. But, referring to the Carter administration's campaign for human rights, he warns that some aspects of American policy "do not square with the principles of equality, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and mutual benefit."

Illegal Alien Smuggling Is Discovered

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) - Illegal aliens from Mexico are smuggled to Joliet at a rate of up to 50 a week for dispersal throughout the metropolitan Chicago area, federal agents say.

Joliet is the main distribution point for illegal aliens from Guanajuato, Mexico, two agents with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Thursday.

The aliens then are scattered in jobs through the Chicago area, including Cook, Kane, Will and Lake counties, the agents said.

They said families and friends of the aliens pay about $1,000 a person, with Joliet distributors receiving about $250.

An investigation of illegal aliens that started in Arizona resulted in the arrest Friday of a Joliet couple.

"There is no doubt Joliet persons are heavily involved in the smuggling problem," one immigration investigator, said. He and another investigator, who asked that their identities be withheld, worked on the Arizona end of the current case and say there is a formal organization in Joliet to handle the distribution.

The organization also is said to supply necessary documents and to have listings of available jobs.

Davis Vandersall, immigration director for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, said there are probably 300,000 illegal aliens in the extended Chicago area. About 160,000 of them are employed, he said.

Immigration investigators concentrate on employed aliens, noting that most of their jobs are in light industry.

Vandersall said buses carrying 20 to 45 illegal aliens back to Mexico leave Chicago as often as three times a week.

"But it's like a revolving door," he said. "Many return shortly to the same jobs."

"Last year, the 900 immigration investigators in the U.S. located and returned some 800,000 illegal aliens, he said. Yet, "we are only scratching the tip of the iceberg. We are barely making a dent."

The Column of July is a monument dedicated to patriots killed in the French Revolution of 1830. It was erected in Paris in 1840 on the site of the old Bastille.

'Gutter Language' Subject Of Crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) - Uncle Charlie will overlook "hells" and "damns" on Citizens Band radio channels, but will crack down on "really severe gutter language."

And what does he consider indecent? Language depicting "sexual and excretory activities and organs in a manner patently offensive by contemporary community standards."

Uncle Charlie, of course, is the Federal Communications Commission to CBers.

Use of indecent language is one of six "trigger" violations that determine his priorities in enforcing FCC regulations on the CB airwaves.

Actually, indecent language is lumped with obscenity and profanity in that "trigger" violation.

But Deputy Chief James C. McKinney of the Field Operations Bureau, the FCC's enforcement arm, says the last two violations seldom are among Uncle Charlie's citations.

"Profanity is not a viable term when it comes to broadcasting," McKinney says. "There's never been a court case won on the basis of profanity. So while it appears in the law, it's never enforced."

McKinney says the obscenity charge seldom is made because its definition will vary from local court to local court.

"Hell" and "damn" have never been considered anything we'd take action on," McKinney says. "We're talking about really severe gutter language."

The FCC usually can count on help from the Federal Bureau of Investigation in enforcing its ban on indecent language.

"We can deal with it administratively by fines of up to $500 a day and revocation of licenses," McKinney says. "But more likely the violator will be taken to federal district court."

In addition to violating FCC rules, use of indecent language on the air is a criminal offense subject to a year in jail and a $10,000 fine. McKinney says jail sentences no longer are rare.

In fact, an Indianapolis man was sentenced to the full year in jail earlier this year by a U.S. District Court judge on charges including the broadcast of indecent language. Witnesses had testified that his radio transmissions were heard on television sets, radios and telephones in his neighborhood.

"U.S. attorneys tend to want to prosecute violators" because of the volume of complaints they generate, McKinney explains.

Cmdr. Robert E. Peary reached the North Pole on April 6, 1909.

Imports Will Be Left To Control Of Oil Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House committee which had voted to have the government negotiate the price paid for foreign oil reversed itself Friday and decided to leave imports in the control of the big U.S. oil companies.

By a 24-17 vote, the House Government Operations Committee rejected a proposal from Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., which would have altered drastically the way foreign oil is purchased.

Meantime, a Senate committee chairman announced a compromise with the White House on a modification in the administration's bill to establish a new energy department.

Under the compromise, the new secretary of energy would have to share some of his proposed authority over domestic oil and natural gas pricing with a three-member regulatory board.

In a surprise 18-16 vote Thursday, the House committee had approved Conyers' proposal, which would have established a new agency within the new energy department as 'the sole importing agent' for foreign crude oil and petroleum products. The government would then have turned around and sold the foreign oil to U.S. energy companies.

That vote surprised not only the oil companies but the Carter administration, which had not requested such pricing power in the President's new energy program now before the Congress.

In voting against the Conyers amendment, Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., said, "This would be setting up an oil dictatorship in this country."

Conyers said, to the contrary, the proposal would have put the United States on equal terms with Middle Eastern nations whose governments, not private firms, set the price of crude oil.

Across Capitol Hill, Senate Governmental Affairs Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., announced the proposed compromise, backed by nearly all senior members of the panel, on domestic oil and natural gas pricing powers.

The three-member regulatory board would actually set oil and gas prices and have other energy regulatory powers, but would act upon the recommendation of the new energy secretary, expected to be White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger.

The President would have the power to veto decisions by the board if he felt they conflicted with his national energy program. Otherwise, the board's decisions would be final.

A vote on the compromise was put off until Monday.

In a separate development on Thursday, the Federal Energy Administration had proposed that oil companies on Alaska's North Slope be allowed to increase their revenues by $2 billion over the next four years. Officials said, however, the move would not raise consumer prices.

The pricing rule would raise government-controlled prices to let oil companies charge an extra $2 per barrel for Alaskan oil.

Watergate All Over Again...

WASHINGTON (AP) - Well, our long national nightmare is back - the Watergate agony in televised rerun.

After nearly three years, it is like an instant replay. The same man is out, and he hasn't stopped arguing with the umpire.

No crime, no impeachable offense, said Richard M. Nixon in the first of four interviews that will pay him at least $1,923.08 for each televised minute.

It is the same story, with the same flaws, based on the same selective memory that Nixon recounted before he resigned from the presidency in the face of likely impeachment conviction.

That is when Gerald R. Ford pronounced the national nightmare over, only to have it and the pardon he granted Nixon haunt him throughout his own

White House days.

Interviewer David Frost paid Nixon $600,000 and a cut of the television profits for the retelling that began with Wednesday night's broadcast.

Nixon used to tell the story for nothing as he fought futilely to save his presidency.

Nothing he says now is likely to change minds that were made up against him long ago, or to shake the support of those who stuck with him through scandal and resignation.

It is easy to poke holes in Nixon's self-serving account of his own downfall, and to criticize the man himself. But it doesn't advance the case.

After all, Nixon has virtually confessed, not to the original impeachment charges, but to his own, modified version of them.

He denies obstruction of justice on grounds that he sought "pure political containment" of the scandal, and that this was not a corrupt motive.

He admits that he lied.

He admits that he did not meet his responsibility as president to see that the laws were enforced.

That, as amended by the accused, is at least two out of three of the impeachments charges the House Judiciary Committee lodged against him.

More to the point now is the question of Nixon's future.

"My political life is over," he said. "I will...never again have an opportunity to serve in any official position. Maybe I can give a little advice from time to time."

He's tried. Three times he has offered to brief President Carter on his contacts with world leaders.

Carter says Nixon has written him several letters "and we have exchanged telephone calls."

It is evident he would like to do more.

There are three more 90-minute interviews to come, and during those programs, Nixon talks about the subjects he likes best, about his foreign policy, the opening to China and the effort at detente with Moscow.

The reaction to those programs, and the climate they create may determine how far Nixon can try to go in reemerging publicly.

For now, he is part of the past. It pays well—first the interview fee, then the memoirs for which he is paid to be receiving $2 million.

But Richard Nixon always wanted more than money.

Windmill Customers Get Special Rate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - The state Public Service Commission has approved a plan allowing Consolidated Edison Co. - the nation's largest utility - to establish a special experimental rate for windmill customers.

The rate plan was filed by Con Ed after owners of a 2-kilowatt windmill on a rooftop in Manhattan - the only windmill in operation in the city - sought to feed back into the utility's system any excess electricity they generated.

Con Edison, citing possible dangers to its equipment from electrical surges, turned back the offer from the owners of the $4,000, three-bladed windmill and asked the PSC for a ruling.

The PSC on Thursday ordered Con Ed to buy back the electricity. The state agency also approved a wind-power rate plan proposed by the utility that would allow Con Ed to connect up to 25 windmills within the New York City area to its power system. Each windmill will be permitted to have a generating capacity of up to 10 kilowatts - enough power to operate 100 100-watt lightbulbs.

Under the wind-power rate, customers would pay the standard minimum charge for small commercial customers of $4.96 per month, and $1 monthly charge for an extra meter to measure the flow of electricity back into the system.

The customer also would pay the company a surcharge of $6.80 for each kilowatt of windmill capacity.

The surcharge, Con Ed said, will enable it to monitor its power system to see what impact or interference the flow of excess electricity might have on other customers in the area.

And the minimum rate is being charged, because as a Con Ed spokesman said, the utility has to "be ready at any time" to supply current when the wind is not blowing.

Any excess wind-generated electricity would be purchased by Con Ed at a rate of about 2.5 cents per kilowatt-hour.

would depend on the amount of wind-generated electricity he can tap.

And in theory, the plan would let some customers perhaps even get a little money back by selling excess power to Con Ed. But it would take a lot of dependable wind to turn a profit and perhaps save an appreciable amount on the monthly bill.

So that the power generated by a windmill can supplement an entire household's electrical needs, the windmill owners would be allowed the hook up the machines directly to the company's power system.

Existing Con Ed rules forbid customers to attach any kind of generator to its power system.

OPERATION FRIENDSHIP

NEW YORK (AP) - A Canadian veteran's idea for former servicemen and women stationed in England during World War II to return to the country as peacetime visitors led to the recent launching of "Operation Friendship" here by Admiral of the Fleet the Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

A suggestion letter from the Canadian veteran was taken up by British tourist officials as particularly appropriate for this year - Queen Elizabeth's Silver Jubilee.

Lord Mountbatten, last of the Allied Supreme Commanders, one of Britain's most famous veterans and cousin of the Queen, presented the first Operation Friendship Welcome Card to a Flushing, N.Y., couple who met in England during the war and married.

These cards are given out free at British Tourist Authority offices in this country to any American veteran. They are a kind of passport to special welcome arrangements in Britain, including a book of coupons giving discounts on food, accommodations, entertainment and guide services.

Residents Afraid To Attend Meetings

FALFURRIAS, Tex. (AP) — What began as verbal warfare has escalated to real violence in this South Texas town between concerned citizens and dope dealers.

Firebombings and death threats have plagued the life of Bill Hellen, a local car dealer, since he organized the first town meeting to deal with the drug problem.

The fourth such gathering was staged last week with 33 persons attending after previous meetings had averaged more than 100 persons.

"The people are afraid to come. They know what has happened to Bill," said Lois Wilkinson, a first grade teacher and widow of the former county sheriff.

Falfurrias a town of about 7,000, straddles U.S. 281, a prime route for marijuana and narcotic traffickers moving the illegal cargoes from the Rio Grande Valley to Texas' large cities. Local ballads refer to 281 as the "Marijuana Highway."

Since the first town meeting about six weeks ago, the Brooks County community has become a heated battleground.

Somebody threw gasoline on the side of my house and then lit it with a Molotov cocktail," said Hellen of the April 14 incident. "The sound of the bottle hitting my house woke me up and I put it out with a water hose."

The following Tuesday, a 1957 Thunderbird, considered a classic by automobile collectors, was doused with gasoline and set ablaze. The car, valued at about $10,000, was parked at Hellen's business.

The first death threat came the next morning.

"It will be your family next time, buddy," growled a male voice over the telephone to Hellen.

"My family has gotten dozens of phone calls from the good people in Brooks County expressing their support," noted Hellen after presiding over Wednesday night's meeting. "That's what I'm trying to tell the elected officials: Do your jobs because most of the people are behind you."

The fire bombings and threats have sparked investigations by federal and state officers in addition to the efforts underway by the city's police department and county sheriff's office. No arrests have been made, however.

"The drug traffic around here has slowed down considerably from what the law enforcement people tell me," said Hellen. "But the old boys that have been making a living on drugs are going to get hungry... They'll be back."

Police Search For Escapees

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Police were searching Saturday for three American prisoners who escaped from police headquarters where they were being held at the request of the U.S. consulate. Six other Americans who escaped Friday have been apprehended, officers said.

The nine had been moved from a state prison to police headquarters to protect them from rioting that erupted last Wednesday at the prison, officials said.

The prisoners used bedsheets to climb out of a bathroom window to the street.

Mexican authorities identified those still at large as John Gordon Williamson, Stephen Joseph Matalon and James Lawrence Otis.

Those recaptured were listed as brothers Dick and Tony Vanderbrink, Roger Timothy Richards, Allen McDonald, Harry Johnson Dixon and Mickey Troad.

No hometowns or ages were available. Sources said they were being held on drug charges.

SAIL BIKE?

FOREST PARK, Mo. (AP) — A tall sail billowing in the breeze over the asphalt of a parking lot can't match the Yankee Clipper for glamor, but it sure attracts attention.

"I get a lot of people asking me about my sail bike," says Grant MacLaren, probably the only sail bike skipper in the area.

"About three years ago, I read an article about a man who invented a sail bicycle," he explained. "I was fascinated, so I built one myself."

The 40-year-old coordinator of instructional resources for the St. Louis Community College District also traveled to Darien, Conn., to talk to George Patterson, the inventor of the sail bike.

"I was enthusiastic about his idea and told him I would be glad to be the Midwest representative," MacLaren said. "I am, but we haven't sold any."

JERUSALEM'S PAST is a living part of its present. Street scene in the Christian Quarter of the Old City, near the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, has changed little over the centuries. Huge paving stones unearthed during excavation for a new sewage system, are believed to be part of a road dating back to 500 A.D.

Pricing Rule Is Designed To Encourage North Slope Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, in a continuing effort to reduce foreign oil imports, is proposing an oil pricing rule designed to increase revenues by at least $2 billion over the next four years for companies using the Alaskan North Slope.

The pricing rule, which was proposed by the Federal Energy Administration on Thursday, would give the producers up to $2 a barrel in additional revenues for each barrel shipped through the 800-mile Trans-Alaska pipeline.

An FEA official, Douglas G. Robinson, said the Administration rule, would not result in price increases for consumers.

The rule came about through the FEA's "entitlements program" to equalize the cost domestic refiners across the country pay for crude oil. Because of the different mix that various refineries have of domestic oil, companies that have to buy more high-cost oil are "entitled" to a payment from those who have lower price oil.

What the FEA proposes to do, a spokesman said, is to guarantee that producers of oil on Alaska's North Slope get a wellhead price for their oil that will encourage them to continue its productions.

Foreign oil sells for about $13.50 per barrel. The idea of the FEA program is to make sure the per-barrel price of Alaskan oil doesn't sale higher than that of foreign oil. Domestic per-barrel oil prices range from about $5 to $11.

The FEA spokesman said, however, that significant costs are involved in transporting Alaskan oil to the other 48 states. He said the government must do what it can to encourage production of the Alaskan oil at a domestic price that is competitive with that of foreign oil.

The spokesman denied the proposal would result in huge profits for the oil companies.

"Their streets are not lined with gold at this point," he said in a reference to huge investments by the affected oil companies.

Atlantic Richfield, Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, Exxon Co. and British Petroleum own 95 percent of the 9.5 billion barrels of oil in the Alaskan Prudhoe Bay, and FEA said. It estimated that the companies have spent $2.9 billion developing Prudhoe Bay oil since 1958.

The FEA has estimated that some 1.2 million barrels of oil will be produced in Alaska by the end of this year.

Mitchell Home Attracts Visitors

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The two-story Victorian home where Martha Mitchell was born is becoming something of a shrine.

After standing empty and unattended for more than five years, it was saved from almost certain demolition when a Pine Bluff couple bought it just before Mrs. Mitchell died last May.

Now the home is repainted, refurbished and refurbished, and visitors are coming-sometimes by the busload-to see without charge the place where Martha Mitchell spent much of her life.

The new owners of the home at Fourth Avenue and Elm Street near downtown Pine Bluff are Vanya and Bob Abbott.

Mrs. Abbott, who once took elocution lessons in the house from Martha's mother, said visitors are attracted by a sign in the front yard: "Home of Martha Beall Mitchell."

"They regard her as a latter-day heroine," Mrs. Abbott says. "They admire her. They feel like she was one person who helped straighten the government out."

Mrs. Mitchell was a staunch defender of the Nixon administration until the Watergate scandal and became well known for her outspoken comments about administration members. At the time of her death she was separated from her husband, former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

Martha's grandfather, C.M. Ferguson, built the frame house in 1887. It sits amid stately pecan, walnut and pin oak trees. A porch surrounds the house on two sides.

The Abbotts had no intention of turning the home into a museum when they bought it. Now they are thinking about seeking a spot in the National Register of Historic Places.

Mrs. Mitchell was born in the house, grew up there, and lived there while she worked at a Pine Bluff arsenal during World War II. The Abbotts have furnished it with furniture from the 1900-1930 period.

No one lives in the 14-room home, but a wind-up Victrola, a parlor piano, a pedal-operated sewing machine and Chipendale couch help the nostalgia-minded envision how it was when Martha lived there.

Some of her high school textbooks line the bookshelves, and the Abbotts are negotiating to buy belongings from her later years.

Abbott is surprised at the interest the home has inspired. "People come from everywhere just to go through Martha's home. It's unbelievable."

"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

Growth Theory May Provide Cancer Cure
DETROIT (AP) - A California scientist has come up with a new theory which he says may explain the rapid growth of cancer cells and may be of use by scientists searching for a cancer cure.
Dr. Ham Elias of the University of California at San Francisco believes cancer cells do not grow by the normal cellular reproductive process of mitosis - the process by which one cell divides into two new cells. Instead, he thinks, they may divide into hundreds of cells at a time.
Elias also says it appears that cancerous cells can transmit their genetic material to normal cells so that they, too, become cancerous.
Elias' theory, which he is pursuing with a research grant from the National Institutes of Health, was presented at the 90th session of the American Association of Anatomists here Wednesday.
He says his explanation for cancer growth is part speculation, because he is working at the limits of available technology.
Most cancer researchers believe cancer begins with a single cell which somehow becomes cancerous and then grows much more rapidly than surrounding tissue.

"Additionally, many building administrators, and probably most of them, try to hide evidence of crimes committed at their schools, fearing that full comprehensive reports will reflect poorly on their stewardship and jeopardize their jobs," the report, released Thursday, said.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY— I put pieces of left-over wallpaper to good use by cutting bottom liners for waste baskets. When the baskets are emptied none of the trash sticks to the bottom. These liners are pretty and I have cleaner baskets. — BILLIE.

© 1977 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — To keep a steel wool soap pad from rusting after using, wrap paper toweling around the pad and place in a soap dish. Rewrap each time it is used. It will stay almost like new. — MARY O'D.

DEAR POLLY — Furniture scratches can be covered up easily and inexpensively with nuts. Take a fresh, unsalted pecan or walnut break in half and rub the blemished area with the broken nut meat. Watch the color return! — HAZEL.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer concerns those old dress shirts you don't know what to do with. Being a working gal, I come home and put on one of my husband's old dress shirts to cover and protect my good work clothes while starting supper. This sure helps if you are a sloppy cook, like me. — MARJORIE.

DEAR POLLY — The toothpick holder on our dinette table was constantly being upset, until we discovered that a thin piece of styrofoam placed in the bottom of the holder kept the toothpicks in place after they were stuck into it. — P.M.

DEAR POLLY — I make place cards from the unprinted parts of greeting cards. I do quite a few at a time to have on hand for my own use or to give as gifts. When using them for my own party I have the cards serve as icebreakers by writing each person's name on his card backward. — CAMILLA.

DEAR POLLY — Those plastic holders on soft drink or beer cans can be put together with the wire closures that come on so many things and used to guide plants that need to vine out. This works fine on green beans. — LOIS.

DEAR POLLY — A cotton swab or two work great for cleaning hard-to-get-at places like between the blender buttons, as that is a real squeeze, or in between oven and stove dials, and in corners in the kitchen and bathroom. — MRS. J.D.R.
