

It's Hot, and No Relief in Sight

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

How much longer? That seems to be the biggest question of the summer, as a blistering heat wave continues to scorch Hereford and the surrounding area.

The National Weather Service has an answer to the question, although it won't be to the liking of anyone except air conditioner salesmen. The forecast reads:

"Fair with hot afternoons and warm nights. Highs 95 to 110."

Of the last 29 days in Hereford, 27 have had temperatures above 90 degrees. It has topped 100 nine times.

"In this area, it's the hottest we've seen in eight years. It's the longest stretch of heat in that period," said Len Slesick, meteorologist with KVII-TV in Amarillo. "Many daily records have fallen, and it looks like some more are going to fall before it's over."

Slesick Tuesday predicted rain for Hereford "but it won't last long enough to do any good." The clouds built up in the west, but the rain never came. Slesick said the next good chance for rain probably will happen towards the end of the week.

Hereford residents are staying inside as much as possible.

"I'm okay as long as I stay in the house where it's cool," said Mrs. Jonny Cloud, 108 Oak. "I do a little yard work, but I can't stay out as much as I'm used to."

Mrs. Bill Bookout, 137 Juniper, said that summer heat usually does not bother her "but it has this year—it's hard to do anything. My energy is sapped."

"I stay inside a lot more this year. My little girl stays in more. She stayed inside yesterday and watched TV for the first time this summer. She usually stays outside in the summer."

Mrs. N.D. Kelso, 243 Aspen, said her children "have not played outside as much, and the grass is not doing so well."

Other records besides temperatures have fallen this week. Record water and power consumptions have been common in Hereford since the heat wave began in mid-June.

The peak day for water consumption was July 10, when the city used 9,197,000 gallons of water.

"Sunday and Monday were down because of the article you ran in the paper," City Manager Dudley Bayne said, "but we've been topping 8 million gallons nearly every day. I think the story in the paper really helped. Something has helped and I don't know what else it could be. People just cooperated."

Bayne contacted The Brand last week concerning the need for an article asking people to curtail their water usage.

"I was worried, but I worry about everything. I was concerned because we were pumping 9 million gallons a day, and we've never even come close to that before."

The record before this year was 7,800,000 in July, 1977.

Bayne himself has cut down on the use of water at his home. "I was doing the same thing as everyone else—I was watering my yard three times a week. But I found out it looks just as good if I water it once a week."

"This is the worst stretch of heat I've ever seen," Bayne added.

It was 103 in Hereford Monday and 104 Tuesday. The hottest day in July last year was 96, even though it was 105 on June 17, 1977. There were only two days last year when the temperature topped 100, and both were in June.

A spokesman for Southwestern Public Service Co. in Amarillo said Panhandle electrical usage has almost "hit the limit—if we hit the limit, we'll have to get power through the Southwest Power Pool."

The pool is a group of utilities in Texas which move power, as needed, from one area to another. "If we top our limit, we'll just pull power from the pool," the spokesman said. "We only have so much generating capability, but we've got enough reserve on hand."

The SPS official said the area is approximately 5 percent ahead of last year in electrical usage. "If this keeps up, we'll exceed our projected peak load very quickly. We're almost up to that already."

The reason for the high power output is air conditioning. Sales of fans and air conditioners have boomed this summer.

"I've called all over the country trying to find fans and I can't find any," said Ed Coplen, Western Auto manager. "I can still get a few evaporative coolers, but I can't get refrigerated air conditioners. This is the first time I haven't been able to get them."

Gibson's Discount manager Mike Carr said that fan sales would be profitable for his store "if we had any to sell—we sold out early, ordered some more, got them, sold them out, and couldn't get any more. The manufacturers are out."

Tim Scott, Montgomery Ward manager, said his business has sold out of air conditioners. "We ordered six yesterday, and we're going to order some

Scorcher Continues Throughout Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Ervie Gipson sits on her front porch fanning herself, waiting and wondering: "How long Lawd? How much longer?"

At 64, and on Social Security, the widow Gipson is scared. Among the horror stories she remembers hearing recently involves an old couple found dead in their un-air-conditioned home last week.

A small fan battles feebly to stir the 101-degree air coming into her empty living room through an open window.

It was Tuesday afternoon, the 17th consecutive day of 100 degrees or worse in Dallas.

Since July 2, 14 people have died of heat-related illnesses in Dallas, another seven in Fort Worth, 25 miles to the West.

People suffering from the heat continued to straggle into Dallas and Fort Worth emergency rooms, but no heat-related fatalities had been reported in the area since Monday when two women died at a Dallas hospital within five minutes of each other.

From where she sits, Mrs. Gipson can hear her TV blaring out the latest heat casualty report — 20 or 21 dead, depending on who you talked to — and no relief in sight.

"Sure I'm worried," she said. "Most of those folks who died are older. But I guess all I can do is trust in the Lawd. I been here most all my life and

Postmaster Warns Those Talking Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General William F. Bolger is warning each of 554,000 postal employees that they could be fired if they strike when their contract expires at midnight Thursday.

In letters delivered to postal workers across the country Tuesday, Bolger warned that striking employees would also be committing a felony and could forfeit paid health and life insurance coverage.

Bolger, who has so far kept out of the negotiations with four employee unions, said, "I want you to be personally aware of the grave consequences of strike participation."

His letter came as the contract talks deadlocked over management efforts to eliminate a no-layoff clause the unions insist on retaining in the new contract.

But the unions say that without job security thousands of people would be laid off.

I ain't never seen it so bad."

At least 12 heat victims were hospitalized in Dallas Tuesday night and three more in Fort Worth. Bob Clark, assistant administrator at Dallas' Parkland Hospital, said, "We have not experienced anything like this year before."

Dr. Jack Oliver, director of emergency services at Fort Worth's Peter Smith Hospital, added, "We're seeing heat syndromes on a daily basis. We average one or two cases of heat exhaustion a day."

Across town from Mrs. Gipson, Ken Graves took a break. It was 5 p.m. He had been at work since 8 a.m. and probably wouldn't crawl into bed before midnight again.

Graves' 3-year-old, one-man air-conditioning business has been catching considerable overflow from larger companies that can't handle the demand. Last month, he was averaging "10 to 12 service calls a day. Now it's in excess of 20."

"It's usually feast or famine in this business," he said. "Right now, it's a feast. I've even had to turn down some people because I can't get to them."

The area forecast indicated Graves would spend another 16 hours today servicing overworked air conditioners.

What the city dwellers couldn't get fixed, they were buying new. One harried air conditioner salesman estimated window unit sales were up 65 percent in Dallas alone.

"We're selling just about all we can get our hands on," said Sears' department manager Barney Taylor. "Some people are buying window units to supplement central systems that were designed for use in 95-degree temperatures and just can't cool under these extended temperatures... We're trying to ship air conditioners from other parts of the nation to this area."

What may become the deadliest of Texas summers, however, is not yet the

Bell Investigated For Alleged Fraud

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office here is investigating an alleged criminal fraud against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. by one of its own executives who has since retired, the Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story today.

The newspaper quoted a Texas Public Utility Commission source as saying the case could be a major scandal with repercussions for the entire Southwestern

The Heat's Not Getting Her Down

Brandy Lea Brookhart, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Brookhart, 228 Aspen, doesn't seem to mind Tuesday's 104-degree heat; in fact, she looks as if she wouldn't have it any other way. Temperatures, which have topped 90 degrees for a month, are expected to be around 100 for at least the remainder of the week, with Hereford having only a slight chance for late afternoon thundershowers. (Brand photo by Dianne Banner)

Funds To Upgrade Water System

Grant Reserved for San Jose

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor

A $120,000 grant has been reserved to construct a water system for the San Jose community on the south edge of Hereford. It was revealed Tuesday afternoon by Congressman George Mahon.

The funds will be reserved for Deaf Smith County, which made application for the small community block grant on behalf of the San Jose community. The grant was reserved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under the small cities program.

The funds are earmarked for the San Jose project pending submission of a full proposal meeting all requirements of statutes and regulations, reported a Mahon aide. The grant reservation is authorized by Title I of the Housing and Development Act of 1974 as amended.

The county had agreed to submit an application for the San Jose community in May and had requested a grant of $400,000 based on estimates by an engineer. HUD officials had recommended the county apply for the grant and transfer the funds to a San Jose water district later. The water district is being formulated.

County Judge Sam Morgan said Wednesday morning he didn't want "to get too excited about the project until we have the funds." He added, however, that submission of full plans and details "seems to be a formality." The judge said he thought the project would be "a good thing for the county and the San Jose community."

Since the grant is reserved in the county's name. Judge Morgan said he was not sure when a transfer would be made if the grant gets final approval. "They may require the county to supervise the project to its completion, but I am not sure about this factor."

Two public hearings were held on the San Jose problem in May with an urban-regional planner from the Panhandle Region Planning Commission and a representative of the Texas Department of Health Resources outlining the procedures in applying for a

Briscoe Asks for One Appraisal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe broadened the scope of the special legislative session today by asking for property tax revision that would include countywide single appraisal of property for taxes.

The enlargement of the special session call gave a green light to consideration of a property tax revision bill by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, scheduled Wednesday afternoon before a House committee.

Briscoe, who must say what subjects the special session considers, also opened the call to a proposed constitution amendment that would allow agriculture producers to form associations and make assessments the sale of those products.

The Briscoe proclamation today on a proposed state constitution change concerning property tax administration included the requirement that such changes must call for "periodic uniform reappraisal of all taxable property, imposing a limitation on increases on local property taxes and taxpayer remedies."

The broadening of the session duties came as Briscoe and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appear to be digging in their heels for a political tug-of-war over tax cuts.

Hobby apparently has the Senate on his side, with Briscoe's support coming from Speaker Bill Clayton and some House members.

Hobby predicted a "pretty good little fight" today over Senate proposals to give farmers, ranchers and timber owners a tax break by basing their property taxes on what their land can produce rather than on speculative real estate value.

The fight is expected over whether to exclude large corporations from the tax benefits.

Hobby noted, however, that the proposals do not include a provision requested by Briscoe to reimburse school districts for any tax money they might lose as a result of the change.

He also criticized the governor's proposal to reimburse school districts for money they would lose if the Legislature approves a measure granting a homestead exemption against school taxes of $10,000 — plus $10,000 more for persons over 65.

"That would be spending another $1 billion of state money," Hobby said of the reimbursement proposals. "and I wouldn't think that would be very popular" with Texans.

"I certainly haven't seen any hue and cry for more state spending," he added at an impromptu news conference Tuesday.

Later, Briscoe was asked at another news conference if he would be satisfied

Senate Committee Passes Break For Texas Farmers, Ranchers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee vote Tuesday to give farmers, ranchers and timber owners a tax break, after 12 witnesses — some representing 100,000 or more Texans — pleaded for help.

Pat Smith of the Texas Farm Bureau told the Senate Committee on Economic Development it was a now-or-never situation, with 2,000-3,000 family farms failing financially each year.

"We can wait no longer," said Smith. "We must have this amendment on the ballot this November."

The committee approved, 6-1, a proposed constitutional amendment to base property taxes for farms, ranchers and timberland on what they can produce rather than on speculative real estate values.

A companion bill also was approved, 6-1, with Sen. Carlos Truan casting the lone "no" vote on each proposal.

Truan, D-Corpus Christi, favored a proposal that specifically excluded large corporations from possible tax benefits.

Committee chairman Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, said he would seek approval of the full Senate on Wednesday.

An amendment is expected to be offered to exempt from the tax benefits corporations that include 10 or more shareholders.

The timber interests oppose such an amendment.

Jim Nance, a lobbyist for the Temple Eastex timber and paper company, said, "The only chance to get it through is to send it clean" — or without such an

Vance, Dayan Try To Break Deadlock

LEEDS CASTLE, England (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan today in a last-minute effort to extract some benefits from the deadlocked Israeli-Egyptian peace talks winding up in an English castle south of London.

Israeli sources left little doubt that they saw no progress coming out of the two-day parley between Dayan and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel on the stalemate over the future of the West Bank, the Gaza Strip and the Palestinian population.

On Tuesday, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat cast a pall over the talks by threatening that there would be no more Egyptian-Israeli contacts unless Israel softened its position.

The first day of discussions ended with Egypt and Israel agreeing only that "a very wide gap" still existed between their peace proposals.

Both Kamel and Dayan dined with Vance in the tightly guarded castle and sources said the three men continued informal talks late into the evening Tuesday.

Arguments Ensur Over Auto Insurance Rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance men and number crunchers for the State Insurance Board disagreed today over how big an increase there should be in the price of auto coverage.

Board statisticians recommended a 3.2 percent average statewide increase in personal car rates, while the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office sought an 8.9 percent hike.

The date supporting each request was laid before the board at its annual car insurance hearing.

Overall, counting both personal and commercial policies, the staff recommended a 5.2 percent increase and the service office a 10.7 percent upward jump.

The board staff proposal would mean $63 million in added premiums over the coming year, while the industry's would mean about twice that.

Board members have not granted an auto rate change since October 1976. The 1977 hearing was recessed by then-chairman Joe Christie after major insurers told their stockholders they were having a good year.

When Christie resigned to run for U.S. senator, his replacement, Hugh Yantis, decided not to reconvene the hearing.

Yantis also had several revolutionary proposals on today's agenda.

One would require companies to reveal their underwriting guidelines — standards that dictate who they will refuse to cover. Others would prohibit companies from rejecting persons with good driving records.

Carter Halts Computer Sale to Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's unannounced decision to impose trade reprisals against the Russians serves to underscore both his displeasure over recent Soviet trials and his desire to avoid provoking a further deterioration in Soviet-American détente.

The president issued his order canceling a multimillion-dollar computer sale to the official Soviet news agency Tass without the rhetorical fanfare that usually accompanies a retaliatory move by the United States.

And in placing new controls on export of U.S. oil technology to the Soviet Union, Carter fell short of demands by a group of senators led by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that he specifically cancel a controversial $144 million deal to sell the Russians a modern plant for producing bits for oil well drilling.

Both moves were taken in retaliation for the harsh sentences given Jewish dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexandre Ginzburg by Soviet courts last week, and for a Moscow judge's guilty ruling against two American journalists on Tuesday.

But in keeping with the low-key and unemotional tone of Carter's response, the White House and State Department steadfastly refused any comment Tuesday night on the president's decision. Word of his action was quietly leaked to selected reporters, and the decision was confirmed by Stanley Marcus, a Commerce Department official.

Dwelling 'In God's Pocket'

Boat Life Is Carefree-Practically

For some, it's deliverance from lawn mowing. For others, it's catching dinner from the front porch. For most, it's simply the peaceful spell of water all around.

That's why some people have abandoned urban congestion and suburban sprawl for houseboats.

According to Seattle houseboat aficionados Ben Dennis and Betsy Case, nobody is quite certain how many people live on the water. The continent's largest houseboat colonies — numbering several hundred floating homes each — are located in the waters around Sausalito, Calif.; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, and Vancouver, B.C.

But houseboats aren't only a West Coast phenomenon.

Case, a Louisiana native, estimates that as many as 200 "shantyboats" may be tucked into the bayous of the Mississippi River. A few houseboats have even been sighted off Manhattan in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty.

Floating homes are nothing new. In researching their new book, "Houseboats: Reflections of North America's Floating Homes," Dennis and Case learned that Americans and Canadians have been living in houseboats for nearly a century.

For instance, wealthy San Franciscans spent turn-of-the-century summers aboard their plush arks. Many of the boats became their owners' full-time homes in 1906, following the city's devastating earthquake and fire.

Meanwhile, more proletarian houseboat colonies were being founded by Pacific Northwest loggers. Some of their camps on water included floating hotels, general stores and "cook houses" as well as homes.

Originally all-male preserves, the communities soon imported female cooks, who eventually became wives and mothers. According to Dennis and Case, as many as 50 such outposts may still dot British Columbian inlets.

Farther east, fleets of shantyboats traveled down the Mississippi from St. Paul to New Orleans in the late 19th century. One of the voyagers was "Espanto, the Mexican-Indian Medicine Man" — actually a Michigan fellow named Billy — who once sold more than $1,000 in remedies for assorted human afflictions in a 10-day period. He didn't even have

Waterfront Houses

The laid-back lifestyle of Lake Union houseboat dwellers seems far removed from the bustle of downtown Seattle. Yet, the city is only a block from their floating doorsteps. "A house on land is a nice place to visit," says one. "But I wouldn't want to live there."

to leave his boat to do so.

"Used to be a lot of houseboats, but people went to something better," one Mississippi River resident told Dennis and Case. "Me, I wouldn't have anything else. I sleep so quiet every night."

Houseboat residents have not always given in to these requirements without a fight, Case notes.

Seven years ago off Sausalito, the conflict erupted into the "Battle of Richardson Bay." After county officials began towing away artist Russell Grissom's "substandard" boat, a hastily formed convoy of Chinese junkies, canoes, rowboats and tugs followed in Grissom's defense.

Case describes the outcome of the battle as a "standoff." Grissom regained his boat in the confusion, but civic leaders pressed ahead with their plan to upgrade Sausalito's "Haight-Ashbury-on-the-water."

Forced improvements such as these have brought a more affluent group of residents to the water. According to Dennis and Case, today's typical houseboat residents are professionals — doctors, lawyers and stockbrokers — ranging in age from their late 20s to early 40s. Some have young children, who are strapped into lifejackets day and night.

As one member of the Sausalito counterculture lamented, "It all started with a bunch of drunken plumbers during the war, then the artists moved in ... now the rich people have discovered the lifestyle."

Despite their change in economic status, houseboat dwellers remain an independent lot. "Mavericks," Dennis calls them.

Case describes them as "a hard-working, free and easy group of people who have a live-for-today attitude and a love of the water." Most love the water so much that they have small sailboats tied to their floating homes, adds Dennis.

Houseboat living seems to bring out one's artistic tendencies. Owners are continually modifying their floating homes, adding a stained-glass window here or a red-wood tub there.

"Houseboats reflect the spirit of their owners more than any other dwelling since man discovered caves," claims Case.

Houseboats visited by Dennis and Case range in price from the whimsical "Annie's Boat," built mainly of scavenged materials by an ex-schoolteacher who says she "took Peter Pan too seriously," to the $500,000 "Taj Mahal," complete with elevator and swimming pool.

"Anything that floated at one time or another has probably been made into a houseboat," says Case. Some are renovated sidewheelers, ferries, battle tugs and barges. And the authors discovered a "houseboat," fashioned from recycled offset printing plates to resemble a high-topped shoe.

The size of North America's houseboat population has changed little in recent years, says Case. And she sees few prospects for expansion in the years just ahead.

But looking farther into the future, Dennis foresees a time when floating homes may be used to "take the pressure off highly populated areas." Until science learns to control the weather, however, houseboat colonies will probably be limited to sheltered areas with moderate climates.

Don't houseboat residents eventually tire of the runs-in with "marinelords" and city councils, the fears that each storm may turn into Hurricane Agnes, the "water, water everywhere"? Fat chance!

"We're captives of a joyous way of life," says Seattle octogenarian Terry Pettus, a houseboat resident for 33 years. "When you live on a houseboat dock, you're in God's pocket." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Heat

more today," Scott said. "Air conditioner sales are higher right now than they've been in the last five years for all Ward stores."

Jim Clarke, owner of Jim's Plumbing, Heating and Air Conditioning Co., said that he is "a day and a half to two days behind" in repairing broken air conditioners.

"We have a waiting list of people with busted air conditioners," Clarke said. "The biggest problem is the flip breakers. The motor overloads and this causes the breaker to flip. I've had more this month than I've had in the last five years."

Session

if the special session only abolished the sales tax on utility bills, raised the inheritance tax exemption and provided for assessment of farm, ranch and timber lands on the basis of productivity.

"We need more than that," Briscoe said.

His comments followed a presentation by three House members, who asked him to submit yet another topic to the 30-day session.

Rep. Jiff Nugent of Kerrville, Lynn Nabers of Brownwood and Bennie Bock of New Braunfels proposed dedicating one

"We've sold a lot of air conditioners, too, and we've replaced more complete units—10 to 12 year old units that I installed 10 or 12 years ago—than normally."

Hereford physician Duffy McBrayer said he has heard no local reports of heat exhaustion or stroke, the apparent cause of 21 deaths in the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolis lately, but urged that people take caution while outside.

"Preventing heat exhaustion is fairly simply—don't get too hot," Dr. McBrayer said. "When you do feel yourself getting really, really hot, get in the shade, and drink lots and lots of water. Pour it on your body because your body's trying to tell you something.

"This is especially true for people who have to work outside."

Although the rain missed Hereford Tuesday night, other places in the Panhandle were lucky. Rainfall during the night amounted to about .21 of an inch at Amarillo and 1.24 inches at Palo Duro Canyon.

Forecasters said more widely scattered shower and thunderstorms activity was expected today in sections of the Panhandle exemption. "The governor didn't say to golly goop it up," when he submitted the proposal to the special session, Nance stated.

Mayor Pitzer Garrison of Lufkin said every community in East Texas had benefited from the timber industry, which is more than 100 years old.

Forest-based activities employ 161,850

Texans and contribute $2.2 billion a year to the state's economy, said Rip Byrd of the Texas Forestry Association.

"I'm a rancher, I'm hurting, and I need help," said Donald Hoffman of Nixon, representing the Independent Cattleman's Association.

Asked if he would support the proposal if large corporations were excluded, Hoffman said, "If you have to kill one cow which has black leg to save the other 100, you're going to shoot her."

The Texas Farmers Union and Texans for Equitable Taxation also opposed extending tax benefits to large corporations.

"We feel that provision could sink the resolution," said Mike Moeller, executive director of Texans for Equitable Taxation.

The committee substituted the Senate versions on a 10-1 vote, which virtually guarantees that a conference committee will have to work out an estimated $237 million difference in the higher House bill and Senate proposal.

Grant

grant. Mary Arndt, with the PRPC, explained that grant money from HUD is not a loan and would be fully funded by the federal government. The county actually submitted two applications—one for a small community grant and one for an imminent health threat grant.

Mahon's office Tuesday reported the grant had been reserved under the small cities program "in order to undertake community development activities. The description for the grant reads specifically for construction of a water system for the San Jose community to alleviate an imminent threat to public health."

Austin Rose, Precinct 2 county commissioner, explained at the May meeting that there was not enough money in one block grant to get both a water and sewer system for San Jose at one time. "We are trying for water system grant now, and we may try for a sewer system grant later."

According to the application submitted by the county, the grant would be used to rebuild the water system, including a new well, pipe of adequate size for proper distribution, chlorination equipment, elevated water storage to insure proper water pressure and a sufficient reserve of water to tide the community over in case of a well failure, meters and fire hydrants.

Rafael Quinones, from the Texas Health Resources office in Canyon, said at the May public hearing that the system proposed appeared to be "first class." He estimated that each resident in the San Jose community would probably have to spend about $50 for his hookup to the water system, and he added that each would be billed for the water used.

Concern over the water system at San Jose arose early in 1977 after the privately-owned well had a failure. Residents of the community formed a steering committee to seek solutions to the problem and, at the same time, formulated volunteer groups to begin cleanup work on their own within the village.

Over the past year, livestock which had been kept in the community in violation of state health laws have been removed, residents have conducted several drives to remove refuse from streets and alleys, and some streets have received a coating of caliche at the hands of volunteers.

longest when 100-degree readings are discussed.

"Back in 1952 or 1954, during August, we had 26 or 27 straight days of 100 or more," said KDFW-TV meteorologist Warren Culbertson. "But the way things look now, I'm afraid it's not going to get any better."

Culbertson attributed the sweltering conditions to a high pressure area dominating the Gulf Coast that dissipates any cool fronts, which tend to cross the state from the northwest.

Unless the heat wave eases, Texas can expect to break last year's mark of 22 heat deaths, according to Dr. Raymond Moore, deputy state health director.

Moore said 68 died of heat stroke from 1972 through 1977.

Les Robinson, director of the Fort Worth water department, said Monday's

Hill Relative, Clements Argue During Testimony in House

At one point, House Constitutional Committee Chairman Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, told

Man Stabbed At Apartments

Robert Beles, 45, who lives in Apartment 17 of Greentop Apartments, was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Deaf Smith General Hospital after he was stabbed at approximately 12:10 a.m. today.

Police said Beles was stabbed one time in the back with an eight-inch knife while he was in the parking lot of Greentop Apartments.

Jose Rodriguez, 57, of Apartment 13, was charged with aggravated assault in connection with the incident. Police said the stabbing occurred following an argument at the apartments.

Bond on Rodriguez was set at $2,500 on the aggravated assault charge and $250 for public intoxication.

Zoo Gives Polio Shots

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Gorillas, orangutangs and gibbons lined up for an ounce of prevention at the Gladys Porter Zoo here Tuesday.

County health officials, concerned about an outbreak of polio in northern Mexico, began administering polio vaccine to about 50 primates here.

Clements and Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, to stop arguing politics.

Hill and Clements are opponents in the general election race for governor.

Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, Hill's son-in-law and a committee member, cross-examined Clements about his opposition to a property tax uniformity bill that has broad support in the House. The bill is sponsored by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has not submitted the measure to the special legislative session yet.

"Do you understand that bill?" Clark asked Clements.

Clements replied the bill would "dilute the authority" of local taxing authorities and make them subject to a state agency.

Clark related this to Clements' support for a Briscoe proposal that would grant a $10,000 homestead exemption against school taxes to every Texan and an additional $10,000 for the elderly.

Briscoe and Clements would have the state make up revenue that school districts would lose from the exemption.

Clark said this would penalize districts such as Tyler that regularly re-evaluate property and tax on full market value.

Asked for his solution, Clements said, "I would hope you would mandate the counties to update their rolls on a regular cycle."

"Mr. Clements, you have just stated the essence of the Peveto bill," Clark said.

Bryant, one of a group of legislators who openly backed Hill against Briscoe in the Democratic primary, cross-examined Clements about his failure to appear before legislative committees prior to becoming a candidate and about his service as deputy secretary of defense.

Bryant said the public is more concerned about federal waste than about state and local taxes.

"Are you proud of the job the money managers did under the Nixon administration?" Bryant asked.

"I am even less proud than

DENVER (AP) — Ruth Carter Stapleton, the evangelist sister of President Carter, says reading a quote attributed to her in the current Newsweek magazine which said Jesus was just a man was "the most devastating experience of my life."

She is featured in the magazine's latest issue and is quoted as saying "Jesus was just a man" ordained by God to carry mankind's burdens.

"And I believe that through the Holy Spirit, God can be in me just as he is in Jesus," the president's sister is quoted as saying.

Here for a Christian Booksellers Association meeting, Mrs. Stapleton distributed a written statement saying she is an "orthodox Christian" who believes in Christ as "the living, bodily-resurrected Son of God who died for my sins upon the cross."

Mrs. Stapleton said the Newsweek article contained 21 errors, including claims that she keeps in almost daily contact with Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt.

She said she calls Flynt every two weeks or so and conceded the job done by the Carter administration," Clements replied.

He told Bryant he had been paying taxes longer than Bryant has and Bryant responded by saying that as a former Washington official "it seems you are not the best person to be telling us how to run state government in Texas."

that she had asked him to shut down Hustler magazine.

Mrs. Stapleton said a Newsweek writer called her before the magazine came out and warned her the article would contain some things "that are going to make your hair stand on end."

Hypochondriac Writes

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have spent a fortune on doctors and they still can't find anything wrong with me. Finally I came to this world-famous hospital in Boston for a complete checkup. Now I am furious. I've been here for three days and have had every part of me looked into, up and through. The final consultation took one hour. The doctor reviewed my X-rays and medical history going back eight years. He ended the consultation by saying, "You are in good physical condition. Go home and find something to keep yourself busy." In other words, he is saying I am nuts -- that all my headaches and stomach pains are imaginary. This burns me up. Why, when the doctors can't determine the cause of the problem, do they always intimate that the trouble is in the patient's head?

I am not the only person who has had this experience -- and it's maddening. Will you please give me some explanation? -- They Muffed It In Mass. DEAR MUFFED: Your name is legion and I know you well. You will go from doctor to doctor until someone sells you an operation. Then you will complain about your adhesions. I'm sure your aches and pains are real. You feel them and they hurt. If there is no organic reason for the discomfort, this means you have emotional problems which are causing tension. Tension and stress can create pain. A lot of it. If your doctor did not get this message across to you he should have. Some people reject any suggestion that they have emotional problems. They would much rather have an operation or be given the name of an illness and avoid the "stigma" of not coping.

I wish more physicians would get this notion across to their patients in plain, ordinary, two-bit language. And it would be very useful if they suggested counseling to their overwrought, anxiety-ridden patients who need to ventilate their frustrations and fears. DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few days ago our bridge club met at Mrs. Z's house. We are all mediocre players, the stakes are low, and we just have fun. On this particular day there was a lot more gabbing and laughing than usual. Just as we were getting ready to leave, the hostess said, "How would you girls like to hear what you sound like?" She then showed us the tape recorder hidden behind the sofa. The machine had recorded everything that was said. In fact, Mrs. Z. even went back there to change tapes a couple of times on the pretext of looking for something. When she began to play the tapes back we wanted to drop through the floor. We all sounded so gossipy and foolish. We asked her to erase the tapes but she refused, saying "Not on your life! This is a collector's item!" What do you think of someone who would do such a thing? -- No Bleeps. DEAR N.B.: It was a dirty trick, and in some states a violation of the law. Unless Mrs. Z. agrees to destroy the tapes in your presence you women have every right to replace her with another fourth.

EMT Meeting Scheduled Tonight At Amarillo

The Texas Panhandle Emergency Medical Technician's Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Ratliff Hall of Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing in Amarillo. The EMT urges those who have been trained to become better in their field of work and attend the meeting which is being called in order to further educate people who are faced with difficulties each time an ambulance is called to the scene of an accident or to a heart attack victim. "The emergency Medical Technician's Association is working to make the Medical Services in the Panhandle better for everyone," stated Donna Marsh, EMT recording secretary. For the lowest new-car price, buy in August--before the new models come out, advises Claudia Kerbel, consumer informatin specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University Sytem.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, July 19, the 200th day of 1978. There are 165 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1918, in World War I, German armies began a retreat across the Marne River in France after failure of their last big offensive on French soil. On this date: In 1776, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia resolved that the Declaration of Independence be engrossed on parchment and signed by all members of the Congress. In 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began after the Prussians refused to guarantee France that they would not seek the Spanish throne. In 1941, the Allied "V for Victory" campaign in World War II was launched in a broadcast by Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill. In 1960, the Soviet Union protested to the United States over a plan to equip West Germany with the Polaris nuclear missile. In 1965, President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria was deposed in a bloodless army coup. In 1967, 82 people were killed when an airliner and a small plane collided and crashed over Hendersonville, N.C. One year ago: it was disclosed that the United States was seriously considering the sale of 60 F-15 fighter plans to Saudi Arabia.

"It's very imposing, but you know it's hollow inside."

IN WASHINGTON Rural reappraisal

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

MANCHESTER, Ky. (NEA) - The first thing you notice is the trailers, curtains at the windows and clotheslines out front, which squat on cinderblocks up every hollow, on every hillside, along every road winding through the mountains in the coal country of Eastern Kentucky.

The trailers are the ghetto housing of Central Appalachia. They are not real property, in the eyes of the law, so there is no property tax.

They can be bought with loans from the finance companies and plunked down on any patch of ground big enough to hold them. They may not be fancy, but they're better than nothing.

The "minimum property standards" of the Department of Housing and Urban Development which dictate site slope, lot size, sewage and water arrangements, access, sidewalks, curbing and all the other requirements which must be met before federally subsidized home loans can be made for conventional housing don't apply to trailers.

So you have trailers, everywhere trailers, in this isolated pocket of rural America where two-thirds of the housing is officially substandard and more than half the families have incomes below the federal poverty level.

Jack Watson saw the trailers last week when he and two staffers from the White House, where Watson is one of President Carter's top aides, toured Eastern Kentucky to see what the federal government is doing right - and wrong - about rural development in this country.

And Jack Watson saw the people who live in the trailers and the shacks and the scattered decent homes throughout these mountains and who get their medical care - all of it, in many cases - from clinics of the Frontier Nursing Service like the one he visited at Oneida, Ky.

He met two nurse-practitioners who provide primary medical care to the people from the trailers and the shacks and the homes around Oneida, day in and day out, year-round because doctors don't like to serve in places like this

Watson heard how the federal government will not reimburse the Frontier Nursing Service for its treatment of the rural poor because the federal government's Medicare program, for instance, does not acknowledge that nurse practitioners can provide competent medical service without the direct supervision of a doctor.

He heard how the efforts of nonprofit community groups like the Kentucky Mountain Housing Development Corp. to get people out of trailers and into homes of their own built with loans from the Farmers Home Administration, or FHA, or other federal agencies are thwarted by standards and regulations which may work fine in the city or suburbs but bear no relationship to reality in rural America.

And Watson went back to the White House, and to his boss, the president of the United States, with a checklist of 30 or 40 examples of "disconnects" or "misconnects," federal roadblocks to federal help for the 30 percent of the American people who live outside the urban areas of the country.

He went back to Washington to find out why HUD, for instance, will not authorize federally subsidized loans for houses with certain types of alternative sewage disposal units like the "clivus multrum," a dry-compost toilet, that have been approved by the state health department of Kentucky.

He went back to tell the bureaucrats that in a mountain community where building sites are so scarce land runs $20,000 to $40,000 an acre, minimum lot sizes and curbs and sidewalks are ridiculous standards to impose for home loans.

Having disengaged a much-ballyhooed "urban policy" last March, the Carter administration is now focusing on rural development - but on a far more modest scale. No big-buck new programs are in the works, no public-relations extravaganzas.

But Jack Watson, having seen for himself how useless the dollars are if they can't be funneled to people in ways that are meaningful, may ultimately accomplish more for rural America than the whole lumbering bureaucracy produces for the cities.

Homosexuality Causes Turmoil For Gay Parents in Divorces

NEW YORK (AP) - They were, after all, only four words.

But for Frank, they carried the weight of a hundred. They could cause tears, rejection, confusion. But no, there were just four simple words of reply. "I am a homosexual," he told his 11-year-old daughter.

"Oh, that's OK, Dad," she answered. Would she live with him after he divorces her mother, the elated father asked. Yes, the daughter said.

But for Frank - not his real name - the happiness does not last. He knows he now faces months and perhaps years of a court custody fight. His sexuality will be a big issue.

Frank, who lives in Denver, is not alone in performing this painful, second coming out of the closet to seek custody of his child. No one knows how many homosexuals are doing it, but there is agreement that with the opening of that first closet, an increase is inevitable.

How many have been successful is not certain either. Linda Guthrie of the New York Lesbian Mothers Legal Custody Center estimates 98 percent of the cases involving a parent's sexuality are lost.

For those unsuccessful, the loss can be double. Certain visitation rights can be taken away. Stipulations can be imposed, conditions that would not be instituted for heterosexuals - such as not being able to kiss the child near the mouth or always having a third party of the opposite sex present during visits.

For that reason, homosexual and civil liberty groups have been fighting to bar information about sexuality from being used in custody cases. The New York Legislature has before it a measure to do that, and Washington, D.C., already has such a provision.

But advocates of homosexual rights do not see much progress.

"The continued non-action by the Supreme Court to uphold the rights of gays has left the lower courts at best indecisive and at worst willing to allow continual denial of the constitutional rights of gays," says David Harrison, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney in Seattle. He represented two lesbian mothers who won custody of their children in a case the fathers are appealing.

Superior Court Judge Norman B. Ackley, who presided in the case, said the mothers' sexuality did not figure in his ruling. "If I were to decide the case solely on homosexuality, it would show a prejudice that doesn't have any place in judicial institutions," he said.

"I determined that the mothers were good mothers and they should remain with the children and could live together," he said. "There were six children between the two mothers. They were very happy and healthy children in every way."

James, a homosexual parent who lives with a lover in New York, plans to tell his son Terry about his sexuality when the 8-year-old spends a month with him this summer.

"When I tell him, I will try to explain to him that there are infinite choices in the universe and that's what distinguishes human beings from animals - the ability to choose," James said. "I'll tell him there are people who are afraid of choices because they don't know any other way and are afraid to take chances."

And if Terry rejects him? James' eyes cloud, and he says: "I would have to accept part of the responsibility that he doesn't understand me. If he rejects me and decides he never wants to see me again, I will have to accept it - sadly."

In all custody cases involving a homosexual parent, a court-appointed psychiatrist testifies. In the Seattle case, Ackley said, the psychiatrist noted the children had more sexual knowledge than other children but "were not adversely affected" by it.

Nor, he said, were they unduly affected by negative reaction from peers. "When teased in school with the taunt, 'Your mother is a lessie,' they would say, 'So what!'" he said.

"The parenting relationship is the key," says Dr. Edward Futterman, director of the Clifford W. Beers Guidance Clinic in New Haven, Conn. "I would look more to the quality of the child-parent relationship than sexual orientation. But I would have to weigh how that attribute affected the child-parent relationship and how the child reacted to the relationship."

Adds another psychiatrist, Dr. Robert J. Campbell of Gracie Square Hospital in New York: "We don't have any evidence that children of homosexual parents fare any better or worse than children of heterosexual parents. The relatively new approach of people coming out of the closet and admitting their homosexuality to children is new and we need time to see the effects of role modeling. The degree to which there will be problems depends a great deal upon the community and what peer acceptance is."

Bruce Voeller of the National Gay Task Force worries about community and peer pressure. "Gay parents spend a considerable amount of time dealing with how the kids' peers handle homosexuality," he said.

"The thing that tears us is that we're immediately vulnerable once we tell our children. But I wanted my children to see me as caring and open, and as affectionate with the man in my life as I was with the woman in my life."

Voeller, whose three children live with their mother, is also concerned about the homosexual role model for children. He said he grew up "in isolation," knowing he liked men, but lacking a model.

"I want my children, should they be gay, to have a good role model of a caring and responsible person," he said. "On the other hand, if the kids are not gay, which is the case with mine, I want them to know some competent, caring gay people so they can have respect for people and are not taught hatred."

Revolutionaries?

These modern Yankee Doodles from the First Maryland Regiment are successors of a force that earned the title, "Bayonets of the Revolution," for its effectiveness against the Redcoats. The modern regiment's red and blue uniforms are duplicates of those worn by the original unit in 1780. And their drills come from Baron von Steuben's manual, first published in 1778, says the Maryland Office of Tourist Development.

Senate Honors Hope

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Senate adopted a resolution Tuesday honoring comedian Bob Hope for helping to raise money for a $1 million high school in Port Arthur for crippled persons.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said the Bob Hope High School will add grades 9 through 12 to the Hughen School for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc.

Parker's resolution honors the Grand Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, as well as Hope, for raising money for the school. The fund-raising project was on Hope's birthday, May 29.

Representative Hopes For Probe of Slaying

HOUSTON (AP) - State Rep. Ben Reyes said Tuesday he and three other state legislators hope to ask a Dallas federal grand jury to investigate the police slaying of 12-year-old Santos Rodriguez in 1973.

U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell announced Friday the Justice Department will not seek federal prosecution in the case.

Reyes said the legislators will seek a hearing this week with the grand jury which, he said, could initiate an investigation without Justice Department approval.

He said the legislators also will petition the United Nations Human Rights Commission to investigate "violation of human rights in Texas."

Reyes said that in addition to himself the group includes Reps. Craig Washington of Houston, and Matt Garcia and Joe Hernandez of San Antonio.

He said Ruben Sandoval of San Antonio, state LULAC legal adviser, also will participate. Reyes said Washington is an attorney and, as a state legislator, can request a hearing before the grand jury.

Rodriguez was shot to death in 1973 while in the custody of Dallas police. Darrell Cain, a former policeman, received a five-year prison sentence in state court.

Sandoval said Hispanic leaders are angered by Justice Department rationale that too much time had passed since the Rodriguez death even though the department recently intervened in a similar but older case involving a New York City policeman.

He said the federal penal code gives grand juries the authority to initiate investigations of their own.

Action is needed this week, Sandoval said, because the five-year statute of limitations expires Monday and that the legislators will seek prosecution under federal civil rights statutes.

Incentive To Invest in U.S. Gone, Claims Head of Sales Company

NEW YORK (AP) - "The Disincentivization of America" is the label J. Peter Grace affixes to the economic attitude that accepts government-generated inflation and seeks to pay for it by taxing investors.

"In the last 10 years, the combination of inflation, and tax policy has all but destroyed the incentive to invest in the American economy," says Grace, the chief of W.R. Grace & Co. He's worried.

Too little money, he says, is going into research and development, into new technology, into new enterprises, into plant and equipment, into the stock and bond markets - into building the economy.

Why? It doesn't pay, says Grace. Why? Because of inflation and taxes.

W.R. Grace sells about $4 billion worth of goods a year and so far as is known, J. Peter is not permitted to label any of them, having demonstrated little skill in creating simple, catchy brand names.

Still, a 49-page report carrying the tongue-twisting title referred to earlier is selling - selling in the sense that it is being talked about and circulated widely, and perhaps most importantly, in Washington.

It is a tossup whether the word "disincentivization" is more difficult to pronounce than to spell, but there is no misunderstanding the meaning. It is when investors are penalized rather than rewarded.

"Investors who bought stocks and bonds in 1968 - and paid taxes on the gain - were left at the end of the 1977 with 33 cents to 76 cents of the purchasing power of their original dollar," he writes.

One dollar invested at the beginning of 1968 in the Value Line Average, a broad measure of stock prices, would have left the investor with just 33.4 cents in buying power at the close of 1977, Grace maintains.

A better return would have been "earned" had the dollar been invested in the Dow Jones industrial average, Grace concedes. Yes, he says, 65 cents would have come back, leaving only a 35-cent loss.

If investment is discouraged, says Grace, how can the economy expand and become more efficient, providing jobs and relieving the pressures of inflation? It cannot, he says, and we had better recognize it.

Matched against Japan, West Germany, France, the Netherlands and Belgium, the United States during the years 1962-1977 invested the smallest amount of its gross national product in business.

Grace's immediate goal, as you might have guessed, is to get the capital gains tax, now 49 percent, cut back to 25 percent maximum. In none of the other countries, he observes, is there a tax at all.

Under the administration's tax reform proposal, however, the tax would rise to more than 52 percent, or more than double the 25 percent rate that existed in 1968.

Rather than raising money, says Grace, such taxes actually cut into the government's revenue-raising ability by slowing economic growth, creating the context for deficit spending and the resulting inflation.

Tax Cut Won't Come Easy in Washington

BY WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - Cutting taxes in an election year is supposed to be a piece of cake. It makes voters happy, which makes members of Congress happy as they head into the campaign season.

But it is not working that way this year. Congress still is struggling with the issue, and President Carter has threatened to veto a tax bill if it includes, as is likely, a sharp reduction in capital gains taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee resumes on Thursday its effort to come up with terms everybody can accept. The administration has indicated it might go along with a less drastic cut in the tax on capital gains, the profit realized from the sale of real estate, stock or other assets.

And Republicans are trying to make the most of the issue, figuring that no matter who loses, they win something. Rep. William A. Steiger of Wisconsin sponsored the capital gains tax cut.

"And even though a compromise may be necessary to get final action through the Democrat-controlled Congress, the fact remains that this is a Republican initiative," says Ronald Reagan.

At the same time, the Republicans are pushing their version of a tax cut, a one-third reduction over a three-year period. They claim that would spur the economy as to generate more revenue than it costs.

That idea has been around for a while, and although it has been rejected at least a dozen times, there is evidence now that the administration is taking the GOP challenge seriously.

The administration's two top economists bore down on the GOP tax bill in appearances before the House Budget Committee, calling it wasteful, inflationary and unrealistic.

"Whatever benefits might be envisioned would be quickly negated by the rise in prices and in interest rates," said Secretary of the Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal.

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said to claim that such a tax cut would pay for itself is to look for a free lunch that does not exist. He called the Republican bill "a sure-fire recipe for inflation."

The Republicans, of course, dispute that.

Whatever the economics, the politics of it are clear. Republican National Chairman Bill Brock has said the big tax cut should be made the keystone of GOP campaigns this fall. Brock said the national committee will stage a series of seminars for candidates on the subject.

The White House wants a $15 billion tax cut, stripped of other features and open to administration reform amendments when it reaches the House floor.

It is more likely to get something along the lines of a compromise plan sponsored by Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., including capital gains reductions and a few of the changes Carter originally proposed as tax reforms.

The Robot Revolution

It sounds like something out of science fiction, but it's actually a very well-educated guess at what the industrial near future will be like.

The four-day workweek — or as many may prefer to think of it, the three-day weekend — is racing up on us, it appears.

We have it on the prescient authority of the Delphi Forecast, a look into the near future of employment trends by a joint research team of the University of Michigan and the Society of Manufacturing Engineers.

In just 12 years, the study predicts a 32-hour workweek will be standard in unionized industries. And it will be in large part because of the advent of a new stage in industrial development which might be called the Robot Revolution.

Within the next few years, Delphi advises, new generations of robots and other mechanical devices with sensory sophistication approximating human capabilities in assembly work will be developed and introduced into basic manufacturing processes.

By 1990, at least half of the direct labor presently involved in small parts assembly will have been replaced by programmed automation. Production patterns also will have been changed to eliminate repetitious simple tasks by workers. Instead, individuals in a streamlined workforce will perform a variety of tasks that have not or cannot be automated, in some cases following the production of an item from start to completion.

The new industrial era isn't likely to be problem free, however. Delphi foresees a shortage of technicians with the skills necessary to service all the new computer-controlled robots and automated equipment.

The 32-hour workweek could thus turn out to have some unprogrammed and not so desirable characteristics, such as a high rate of robot absenteeism and a lot of overtime for their human repairmen on those long three-day weekends.

Endangered species?

The lucky few are getting fewer.

We're referring to those taxpayers among us who are in the big-bucks category but manage to avoid passing any of them on to the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS now reports that the number of no-tax payers among individuals with adjusted gross incomes of $200,000 and up has taken a precipitous drop — from 230 in 1975 to a scant 57 in 1976, the most recent year for which complete statistics are available.

At this rate, they could well shortly disappear altogether as a tax class — and there are millions of small-bucks taxpayers who would say good riddance.

LA May Reject Olympic Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Los Angeles stood on the brink today of becoming the second American city in six years to reject the Olympic Games.

This latest crisis took shape Tuesday when Mayor Tom Bradley, long a proponent of bringing the Games here, recommended that Los Angeles withdraw its bid for the 1984 Summer Olympics.

In 1972, Denver voters spurned the Winter Games by a 178,000-vote margin in a referendum that was hailed as a victory for environmentalists. In this case, the battle is drawn over money.

Bradley's announcement comes after months of battling first with other city officials and then with the International Olympic Committee over terms that would safeguard the city against incurring massive debts for holding the Games, such as those piled up in Montreal in 1976.

Bradley said his decision came after he received a letter from IOC President Lord Killanin terming Los Angeles' latest take-it-or-leave-it offer unacceptable. Under the offer, the city would turn over financial responsibility for the Games to a private businessmen's group, the Los Angeles Olympics Organizing Committee.

While Killanin said the IOC respected the city's desire to be free of financial risk, he concluded, "The IOC must protect itself for the future and not compromise itself with other cities."

"That proposal having been declined by the IOC," Bradley wrote to the City Council, "I am therefore recommending that the council withdraw the city's bid for the 1984 Olympic Games."

Asked whether the council would approve Bradley's recommendation, council President John Ferraro said, "I'm sure it's certain. I don't think there's any possibility the mayor's recommendation will not be accepted."

However, there still was hope that this city, which was the last U.S. city to hold the Summer Olympics - in 1932 - would still find some way to work out its problems with the IOC.

Attorney John Argue, head of the private Olympics group appointed by the mayor, said he and Howard Allen, another member of the seven-person committee, may fly to Europe to make a final plea to the IOC this week.

Ferraro said the council might delay action on Bradley's recommendation until Argue and Allen return.

In addition, Ferraro said, the council may even postpone final action until after the July 31 deadline set by the IOC for the city to make an acceptable bid, thus forcing the IOC to reject the city.

"If we withdraw, the IOC can then turn to the rest of the world and say, 'Los Angeles withdrew its bid,'" Ferraro said. "I'd just as soon wait until after the deadline and let them reject us."

City Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky accused Bradley of "playing brinkmanship" with the IOC and contended the mayor's recommendation had "very little meaning," as the final decision was up to the council. However, Yaroslavsky, a longtime critic of holding the Games here, said he would vote in favor of withdrawing the city's Olympic bid because of possible debts that would have to be borne by taxpayers.

Sutton, Richard In NL Spotlight

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Don Sutton thanked the umpires, J.R. Richard thanked his natural ability and Eric Rasmussen thanked his lucky stars in a night that saw some outstanding pitching performances in the National League.

Los hander Sutton, in uniform only by the grace of league President Chub Feeney, made a six-hitter stand up for a 7-2 win over Pittsburgh and his 200th career victory.

Richard, Houston's strikeout king, fanned 10 and gave up three hits to beat Philadelphia 9-1.

And Rasmussen, acquired by San Diego in May from St. Louis, hurled a five-hitter in his first start against his former club as the Padres beat the Cards 3-2.

Sutton, Richard and Rasmussen weren't the only pitchers in the league with live arms Tuesday night. Phil Niekro handcuffed the New York Mets on six hits in Atlanta's 4-3 victory and Hal Dues of Montreal yielded only four hits to Cincinnati in 6½ innings for a 3-1 win. Jerry Kosman of the Mets also threw a six-hitter, but lost to Niekro.

Chicago edged San Francisco 7 in 11 innings in the other NL games Tuesday night. The boxscore, by the way, showed 10 pitchers.

Astros 9, Phils 1
Richard's 10 strikeouts raised his league-leading total to 177 and his record to 9-9. He walked six.

Houston tagged three Philadelphia pitchers, including loser Jim Lonborg, 7-7, for 18 hits, the most this season by the Astros. Art Howe and Julio Cruz each drove in two runs.

Padres 3, Cards 2
Rasmussen, 9-7, whom the Cards traded to the Padres for outfielder George Hendrick, won his seventh in a row, allowing a run in the second on losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich's RBI single and a ninth-inning solo homer by Keith Hernandez. The Padres scored a run in the fifth on Ozzie Smith's run-scoring single and two in the sixth on RBI singles by Fernando Gonzalez and Bill Almon.

Braves 4, Mets 3

Niekro, 11-9, struck out seven with his knuckleball and didn't walk a batter in his winning performance, but he did hit a batter, costing him a run. Leading 3-1, Niekro hit Willie Montanez, then allowed John Stearns' two-run homer.

Cito Gaston drove in the winning run with two out in the ninth inning off Kosman, 3-10.

Expos 3, Reds 1
Andre Dawson drove in two runs with a double and solo homer, his 15th of the season, to make a winner of Dues, 4-4, who left in the seventh with two out and the bases loaded.

Tom Seaver, 9-9, has now lost his last four starts for the Reds.

Cubs 7, Giants 6
Greg Gross drove in two runs with an official appearance at the plate, including an 11th-inning sacrifice fly that made a winner of relief ace Bruce Sutler, 7-3, the fifth Cubs pitcher.

The Giants had gone ahead 6-4 in the top of the 10th on RBI singles by Jack Clark, who has hit in 19 consecutive games, and Willie McCovey.

Surprising Brewers Now Second in AL Race

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Nobody expected the Milwaukee Brewers to be where they are at this point of the American League season. Not even the Milwaukee Brewers.

"I didn't really believe our pitching would be this good," says Manager George Bamberger.

"What makes this unbelievable," adds third baseman Sal Bando, "is coming from next-to-last place to second place."

The Brewers, whose best previous finish ever was a 76-86 record in 1974, are rolling along in high gear this season with a solid chance to create some unique club history.

Now 17 games over the .500 mark with a 53-36 record after Tuesday night's 7-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox, the revitalized Brewers finally find themselves in the role of a contender in the AL East, eight games behind Boston.

The Brewers' latest victory gave them a four-game sweep of the White Sox and provided them with their eighth triumph in the last nine games. Tonight, they start a two-game series with the AL East leaders.

In the other AL games, the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Texas Rangers 5-1; the Cleveland Indians trimmed the California Angels 8-3; the Oakland A's stopped the Detroit Tigers 6-3 and the Toronto Blue Jays edged the Seattle Mariners 13-12 in 10 innings.

Money and Gorman Thomas belted bases-empty homers and Jerry Augustine scattered 10 hits to lead the hot Brewers past Chicago. Sixto Lezcano knocked in two runs with a single and double for the winners.

Augustine, 10-9, carried a five-hitter into the eighth, when the White Sox tagged him for five singles and both their runs.

Orioles 5, Rangers 1
Ken Singleton and Mark Belanger drove in two runs each and Scott McGregor hurled a seven-hitter as Baltimore beat Texas. Singleton drove in runs with a first-inning double and a fourth-inning single.

McGregor, 10-8, in beating Texas for the second time in two starts, allowed a run in the sixth when Jim Sundberg drew a two-out walk and scored on Al Oliver's double.

Indians 8, Angels 3
Rick Manning tripled home a pair of runners and Duane Kuiper drove in two more with a double, pacing Cleveland over California.

Rick Waits, with relief help in the sixth inning from Jim Kern, won his seventh game against 10 losses. California starter Don Aase, 7-5, who was knocked out in the fourth inning, took the loss.

A's 6, Tigers 3
Mitchell Page hit a three-run homer as Oakland scored five runs in the second inning and went on to defeat Detroit. It was the fourth straight victory for the A's.

Rich Langford won his second game of the season, allowing seven hits before leaving the game after five innings. Bob Lacey took over for Langford in the sixth inning and blanked the Tigers on three hits over the final four innings, gaining his fourth save of the season. After Toronto loaded the bases with two out in the 10th, Velez dribbled a grounder down the third base line off Seattle's seventh pitcher, John Montague, who replaced loser Dick Pole, 4-11, with one out and a runner on second.

'Y' Soccer Being Formed

A soccer league for first through ninth graders is being formed by Hereford YMCA with registration continuing through July 29.

Interested youngsters should sign applications at the "Y" office in Sugarland Mall. Registration fee is $6 for "Y" members and $10 for non-members. This includes a shirt which the player keeps, adult supervision and instruction, and awards and necessary equipment.

Practice for the league will begin July 31 and league play will start Aug. 14. Games are to be played on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5:30 p.m.

One of the league rules will be the participation of all team members in each game. Weldon Knabe, program director, said that "every youngster plays and every player has a chance to develop skills and a sense of worth of themselves as individuals and as team members."

Knabe also reported that parents are welcome at the games, and are also urged to help coach a team or help referee.

Tulsa Tops Amarillo

By The Associated Press

John Pacella and Kim Seaman combined to pitch a shutout as the Jackson Mets edged the San Antonio Dodgers, 2-0, in Texas League baseball action Tuesday night.

In other Texas League games, Midland beat Shreveport, 4-1, Arkansas blasted El Paso, 11-2, and Tulsa beat Amarillo, 6-3.

Tulsa Drillers pitcher Mike Griffin struck out 11 and Doug Duncan had his third homer of the year for the Drillers in a 6-3 victory over Amarillo. The Drillers got the victory despite a shaky defense as they had six errors.

Tulsa's Greg Jemison, who leads the league in stolen bases with 46, was thrown out while trying to stretch a triple into an inside-the-park home run.

Sugar Ray Wins 13th

BOSTON (AP) - Sugar Ray Leonard is cruising through boxing's welterweight ranks but is in no hurry for a title shot.

"I can wait. I know I have a great deal to learn," said the 22-year-old 1976 Olympic champion Tuesday night after running his professional record to 13-0.

The stylish, quick Leonard pounded out a punishing, 10-round decision over Dick Eklund, despite the loser's gritty refusal to give in after three knockdowns.

"We'll take the fights as they come," said Leonard's trainer, Angelo Dundee. "We've been moving by leaps and bounds so far."

Leonard pulled a near-capacity crowd of 5,000 and a gross of at least $50,000, into Hyatt Auditorium for the fight. Handlers of the young welterweight said his gross was about $30,000 for his night's work; the fight's promoters, Ferriabough Enterprises, said Leonard's actual purse was in the $22,000 range.

Annual Cowboy-Charger Rookie Scrimmage Today

THOUSAND OAKS, California - Dallas Cowboys rookies and young veterans are expecting a rough test Wednesday at Irvine, California, when the final rookie scrimmage of the 1978 training camp will take place.

The Dallas group will face a squad of San Diego Chargers. Since the Chargers have only 20 rookies in camp this summer, a number of veterans will be in action.

One of the Cowboys' own young veterans, second-year offensive tackle Jim Eidson, was ruled out of the scrimmage after he jammed his neck in practice Monday.

Two of the Cowboys' top draft choices also will miss the scrimmage. Larry Bethea of Michigan State, the No. 1 selection, has missed several workouts this week with an ankle injury, and the Cowboys' third pick, David Hudgens of Oklahoma, has a knee injury. The No. 2 pick, Todd Christensen, a running back from Brigham Young, is expected to take part in the scrimmage. He did not practice Tuesday because of a bruised shoulder.

Veterans are due in camp Thursday, but Tony Dorsett showed up Tuesday, two days early. The Cowboys' offensive rookie of the year in 1977 said he is fit and ready to begin workouts with the 13 other offensive veterans who came to camp early.

The Cowboys waived four free agent rookies Monday including defensive backs Tim Abney, Lincoln, Mo., and Russell Swilley, Denver University. Also waived were linebacker Biff Madon, Western Kentucky, and center Jim Pier, Houston.

Bean Learned From Tourney

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Andy Bean's trip to the shrine of golf at St. Andrews in Scotland last week turned out to be an artistic and financial bust.

But the U.S. pro golf tour's leading money winner says he wouldn't have missed the experience for anything. "I learned the way they play over there - the hard way," said Bean, who is here for this week's $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Bean, who has won $240,058 on the tour this year, picked up a paltry $663 in last week's British Open.

"They pitch and run the ball at the pin. I guess I learned the hard way, but it will stick a little longer."

Bean said it was an expensive lesson and one that should make people think about the other side of golf's financial picture. He said the fans only heard about the big purses.

"It cost me close to $5,000 for the trip, and I won $663," he said. "Of course, I took my father. The air fare tickets were $2,600, the hotel $1,200, food $400. I only wanted to rent the rooms, not buy them."

Bean, however, laughed at his expensive trip. "I at least had a free caddy," he said. Bean's father, Tom, a working pro from Lakeland, Fla., told his son's bag.

Lopez Gives Women's Open Extra Dimnsion

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - There's an added dimension to the United States Women's Open Golf Championship this year.

It's the Nancy Lopez factor. And it figures to be around for some time, quite possibly as the dominant force in women's golf.

"My overall goal is to break as many records as I can," said the 21-year-old Lopez, who has hit the women's tour with the greatest impact in its history. "Because of my age I feel I can do this, and if God is willing, I will have many years to accomplish this goal."

Her immediate challenge, of course, is the Open Championship, which begins Thursday on the hilly 6,115-yard, par-71 Country Club of Indianapolis course.

She is, of course, the favorite - in an overwhelming favorite - in an international field of 153. Her presence in the field has produced a larger press corps and a greater general interest that this event has ever seen.

Many observers feel that in the short time Lopez has been on the women's tour she has done for the LPGA what Arnold Palmer did for the men's game in the late 50's and early 60's - singlehandedly produced a surge to prominence.

A number of factors go into the phenomenon. One, of course, is her unparalleled success.

In her rookie season, which will be completed this week, she has won seven tournaments, including a record five in a row. Her money winnings of $35,564 are the most ever by a first year player - male or female. The total is almost double that of JoAnne Carner, No. 2 on the list.

But there's another big factor. It's the woman herself. It's Nancy of the flashing eyes, the ready smile, the calm composure. It's a personality that reaches people and makes them identify with her. "People just seem to smile when she walks by," one newsman said.

"I've been covering her for some time and I'm still waiting for her to do something wrong, something that just isn't right. Nobody can be that good, that perfect."

She has suffered a mild letdown in the wake of that five tournament winning string but expects to be at a peak here. "As soon as the streak was broken I started looking ahead to the Open," she said. "That's my big immediate goal."

Chief among her opponents are Hollis Stacy, the bouncy, bubbly-defending champion; the veteran Carner, a two-time Women's Open Champion and the winner of the last regular tour event; Jane Blalock, a three-time winner this year; Sandra Palmer, and Judy Rankin, the first women to win $100,000 in a season.

Portions of the final round Sunday will be telecast nationally by ABC.

Campbell-Still Clash is Bust

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Art Still delivered his best quip and his hardest hit just minutes after he and his buddy Earl Campbell launched their professional careers.

"For a fee," said Kansas City's towering defensive lineman, "I'll set you free."

Campbell, flat on his back after Still had halted him for no gain, laughed loud enough to be heard on the sidelines.

Then Campbell, last year's No. 1 selection in the National Football League draft, and Still, the No. 2, resumed what proved a dull contest between rookies and free agents of the Chiefs and Houston Oilers Tuesday night.

"We already knew some things about Earl," explained Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "We had to find out things about people we weren't so sure about."

"Earl and I got to be good friends playing together in the all-star games," said Still, a 6-foot-7, 250-pound blithe spirit. "And we ran into each other a lot at banquets, too. I guess it was good public relations to say this was a Campbell-Still battle, but it really wasn't. But after I put that good hit on him early, I just had to give him a little."

After Still stopped him at the line early, Campbell managed gains of six, five and five yards on successive chugs into the line. Later he went wide and gained eleven.

"I'll probably get better," Campbell said. "I didn't know how much I would play before the game. I don't call the shots, but it's good that everybody gets a chance."

The Pants Story

The word pants is derived from a stock character of classic Italian comedy - "Pantalone". He wore a kind of leg covering that resembled our modern-day trousers. Later, in England, the Duke of Wellington gave the necessary impetus to the changeover from knee breeches to pants about 1815.

USDA Opposes Names

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department today opposed legislation that would name three of its research centers after one retiring congressman and two former congressmen.

An official told a subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee that a 50-year-old department policy is not to name such facilities after individuals, living or dead.

The only exception to it is the Richard B. Russell Laboratory in Athens, Ga., said Arthur H. Nies, an acting deputy director of the department's Science and Education Administration.

Nies said that the policy "is based on the recognition that research laboratories result from the combined efforts of many people over several years and that to name such a facility for one individual might be improper."

Subcommittee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said, "We may just have to change the department's policy."

Nies said that the policy does allow national forests or grasslands to be named after persons - if he or she has been dead 100 years and "the name is firmly established in history or legend."

One bill would rename the USDA Pecan Field Station at Brownwood, Texas, for Rep. W.R. "Bob" Poage, D-Texas, who is retiring after 40 years in the House. Poage was chairman of the Agriculture Committee until voted out of that position in 1974 by the Democratic Caucus.

A second bill would name the USDA Bee Research Laboratory in Tucson, Ariz., as the "Carl Hayden Bee Research Center," after the late Arizona Democrat who was president pro tempore of the Senate when he retired. Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., testified in support of the bill.

The third measure would name the USDA Meat Animal Research Center near Clay Center, Neb., after former Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., who retired in 1976. The sponsor of that measure is Rep. Charles Thone, administrative aide to Hruska in the 1950s and the GOP candidate for governor there this year.
