Iranians Brutalized Americans

Hostages Tell of Mistreatment

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) - The freed American hostages told of brutal treatment by their captors, and ex-President Carter accused the Iranians of "despicable acts of barbarism." The savagery included beatings, strip searches, solitary confinement, a mock execution and Russian roulette.

Malcolm Kalp, an economic adviser accused of being a CIA agent by his captors, told his family in a telephone call he was beaten and spent 374 days in solitary confinement because he Michael J. Metrinko, a political officer from Olyphant, Pa., said he was held in solitary for 81/2 months, and Moorhead C. Kennedy Jr., the economic counselor from Washington, D.C., said he and others were lined up in their underwear, guns to their heads, for a mock execution.

Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel told his parents in Balch Springs, Texas, that an Iranian guard knocked out his tooth and an interrogator said his mother had died. He said he was told if he wanted to go to the funeral he had to give the Iranians information, but that all he gave was name, rank and serial number.

Elizabeth Montagne, a secretary freed with four other women and eight black hostages three weeks after the embassy takeover, said in an interview in the United States that the militants forced her to play Russian roulette in an attempt to get information.

Richard Queen, a consul freed in July because he was suffering from . multiple sclerosis, said he and others were held nearly five months in a windowless warehouse basement, and that during a "Gestapo raid" armed guards in white masks stripped them to their underclothes and searched them. The 52 remaining hostages were freed Tuesday, 444 days after their capture, and flown to West Germany. Carter, whose administration negotiated their release in the before flying back to the United States, he said:

"Our Americans in Iran were mistreated much worse than previously revealed. The despicable acts of barbarism which were perpetrated on our people by Iran can never be condoned. Iran, in my judgment, and the people responsible in Iran for this criminal act ought to be condemned by all lawloving decent people of the world. It's been an abominable circumstance that will never be forgotten."

The 50 men and two women spent their first day of freedom making telephone calls home, "taking showers and telling stories," as Marine Sgt. Paul E. Lewis of Homer, Ill., put it. Some came out on the balconies of the third-floor wing of the Air Force hospital here, enjoyed

Reagan Eyeing Hostage Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Reagan administration says it expects to live up to the deal with Iran that gained freedom for the 52 American hostages but is reviewing it "very closely" before implementing the final terms.

Officials of the former Carter administration said the United States could not breach the agreement without disregarding international principles.

Minutes after Ronald eagan took office Tuesday, the hostages left Tehran under a complex financial ettlement negotiated by Jimmy Carter. Basically, the agreement traded the Americans' freedom for billions of dollars in Iranian assets frozen by Carter after months ago.

"The Reagan administration would not want to commit itself to following through without having a chance to go over the agreement and see just what it has to follow through on," William Dyess, the new State Department spokesman, said Wednesday. He said it would be reviewed "very closely."

To keep the U.S. end of the pact, Carter signed 10 executive orders directing that various actions be taken in regard to the Iranian money. Carter's treasury secretary. G. William Miller, said the deal called for one of history's largest and most complicated financial maneuvers.

Alexander M. Haig, talking the hostages were taken 1412 to reporters Wednsday at the White House shortly after the Senate confirmed his nomination as Reagan's secretary of state, said he "would certainly anticipate" the new administration would live up to the Carter agreement. But he said he didn't want to take areas of Hereford have been noticing a peculiar flavor and odor as they've drawn water during the past few weeks.

Many have complained about the water's poor taste, and some about the fact that the water smells as if it contains natural gas or possibly drip oil.

According to City Manager Dudley Bayne, a State Health Department requirement that the city add more chlorine to its water supply is the culprit responsible for making water here unpalatable.

"Every month we must send water samples to the State Health Department in Amarillo. A total of 24 samples are taken at random over the city. Health department officials claim the water samples have been too turbid to take an accurate "The phone committee coliform count and for that reason we've been required to add more chlorine," stated

We must clean our water until it is no longer turbid. The water doesn't qualify for an approved system when it can't be read for coliform so we've been treating with additional chlorine at health department directive," he continued.

The extra treatment has been under way here for about three weeks and Bayne reported that he hopes the city can drop back to a lower level of chlorine treatment by the end of the month.

City personnel began overflowing overhead tanks and reservoirs in the water system Tuesday afternoon to help clear the system of sediment and other material.

Complaints concerning water quality have been received from scattered areas of the city since the city temporarily upped its chlorination rate, according to Bayne.

Water turbidity, which resulted in the Department of Health requirement for more chlorine, was particularly notable in the western part of the city, according to Bayne.

17-year-old Held In Beating Death

HOUSTON (AP) - A 17-year-old boy was held for questioning today in connection with the beating death of Angelia Dean, the teen-age daughter of Crosby High School football coach George Dean.

Authorities said the youth told them he and two former Crosby High School athletes planned to rob the Dean home because they knew the coach was at a football banquet.

Sheriff's Detective King Mason said the boy told authorties that Angelia, 15, had been struck repeatedly with a shotgun and a hammer.

The youth was expelled from Crosby High School shortly before the death when he was accused of stealing some tennis shoes.

Authorities also said the teen-ager was angry because he had not been named a winner of one of the awards to be presented during the banquet.

Mason said Angelia apparently was killed because she knew the three in-

Senate Committee Approves Pay Hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A Senate committee has approved an immediate pay raise for state employees, with a 9-0 Democratic vote, but Republican opposition is expected when the bill is debated by the full Senate.

The proposal cleared the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday. It would cost the state $110.3 million, twice as much as one supported by Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

Sponsors said they hoped legislative action could be finished in time for the measure to take effect Feb. 1.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said because of "vigorous Republican opposition" there "are still obstacles to overcome" to put the pay raise into effect.

Asked about a possible veto by Clements, Doggett said he would "approach it with the assumption" the governor "will see the light" and sign

The governor's budget officer, Paul Wrotenbery, said Wednesday Clements "strongly discourages any increase above 3.4 percent." Doggett's proposal would raise salaries by 6.8 percent. State employees received a 5.1 percent pay raise on Sept. 1, and the Legislative Budget Board has recommended a 14.3 percent increase on Sept. 1, 1981.

The Texas Public Employees Association said the committee vote "climaxes a year-long campaign our association has led to lift state employee salaries toward a breakeven point in the battle with inflation.'

It said a pay increase "now seems to be a bandwagon idea.'

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, submitted a 1979 survey to the committee that showed many state salaries are higher than salaries for comparable jobs in the private sector but he declined to debate the issue.

Leedom, not a member of the Finance Committee, noted the 9-0 Democratic majority and quipped, "Custer never was one of my heroes."

Hostages -

Spokesman Jody Powell said as Carter shook hands with each one, "tears were welling in everybody's eyes, the hostages and Carter's."

The ex-president described the meeting as one of "the most moving and gratifying" acts in his life. He said the freed Americans applauded when he told them he had frozen between $11 billion and $12 billion in Iranian assets after the embassy takeover but returned less than $3 billion to get their freedom.

Terrorism has proved not to pay," he said.

But back in the United States, criticism of the agreement to return all of Iran's frozen assets was developing, and this was heightened by the reports of Iranian brutality. There were suggestions that repayment of frozen Iranian assets, cancellation of legal actions against Iran and other unfulfilled provisions of the agreement be halted.

The Reagan administration's new State Department spokesman, William Dyess, said the administration would study the agreement "very closely" and "would not want to commit itself to following through without having a chance to go over the agreements and see just what it has to follow through on."

Reagan Tackling Economy In Earnest; Plan Promised

WASHINGTON (AP) -The parties over and his own team in the White House, President Reagan is tackling the economy in earnest, with his aides promising to deliver a "unique and different" recovery plan in three or four weeks.

The president arranged a series of meetings today with his economic policy group and congressmen who chair economic-related House committees.

Budget Director-designate David Stockman said, meanwhile, Reagan is working on a "sweeping, comprehensive, bold, far-reaching economic plan," including tax and budget cuts. Our program will be one designed to jolt the economy," he said Wednesday. "It will be a full-throttle, four-year plan in which there will be no equivocation."

Just as Reagan has telephoned several foreign leaders Wednesday to establish friendly relations from the outset, aides said today's meetings with congressmen were designed for informal consultation.

Easing into his White House routine, Reagan performed a mixture of ceremonial and official duties Wednesday that ranged from cleaning house of most Carter administration holdovers to throwing his first White House party.

'Go west' again

It is not the sort of report we are accustomed to seeing such pro bono publico research efforts produce.

Usually an official scrutiny of national problem areas produces a plan to resolve the problems and effectively restore the status quo, usually requiring the generous expenditure of

But not the President's Commission for a National Agenda for the Eighties. In focusing on the plight of the urban centers of the Northeast and Midwest, this comprehensive survey of what the nation faces and what it can expect to accomplish in the decade ahead suggests that the decline of older cities be met not with would-be remedies but accepted as inevitable. Likewise the corollary, the pronounced shift of population in recent years to the South and Southwest.

The commission makes a blunt case for it's conclusion:
"We cannot ... avoid the fact that growth and decline are integral parts of the same dynamic process in urban life. When the federal government steps in to try to alter these dynamics, it generates a flood of demands that may sap the initiative of urban governments via the expectation of continuing support. There must be a better way. The commission believes there is, and defines it as scrapping attempts to revitalize aging cities by propping up obsolete industries. Instead, the government sho its "moral and material resources" by assisting the affected communities and their economically displaced residents to adjust to the inevitability of change in post-industrial urban

Federal aid would be directed toward relieving the trauma of a declining economy and population as much as possible. The emphasis, however, would not be on creating new jobs in the old cities but on retraining and relocating their now unneeded working populations.

Relocation would be heavily in the direction of the Sunbelt with its expanding economy and explosively growing cities. In this respect, the commission is proposing a return to national policy of a century ago when Americans were urged to "go

The commission's draft report, which became public during the holidays, was a dismaying gift to the northern cities and predictably drew some sharp initial responses. Publicly, the New York City administration termed it a "death knell" while Mayor Edward Koch's private comment was reported to be unreportable by family publications.

Dismay, however, does not change facts. And the latter is what the commission was dealing with and, for a refreshing change in these matters, upon which it based its conclusions. It would have the federal government not oppose but adapt its

It would have the federal government not oppose but adapt its policies to the massive migration the preliminary 1980 Census figures so vividly demonstrate is already underway.

For just a few examples, these show population gains of 63.3 percent for Nevada, 52.9 percent for Arizona, 41.1 percent for Florida, 26.4 percent for Texas and 17.7 percent for

This has been a natural and accelerating development of the last decade or so. Recognizing it is one thing. Adapting federal policies to it could, however, be several others. Some beneficial, others not so.

There is a significant difference between the westward move-There is a significant difference between the westward move-sement of the past and today's. Then, the new lands were virtually unpopulated and offered virgin resources for exploitation. Now, some areas may already be overpopulated in respect to an essential resource — water, which much of the West and Southwest have precious little of.

That is something that will have to be taken into account in shaping future policies to the commission's recommendations, providing they are acted upon. And chances that they will be would appear brighter now than when the study of the '80st commenced.

Commissioned by the Carter administration, it will be landing on the desks of a successor with a politically much greater stake in the Sunbelt's future.

Ann Landers

Carrying On The Business

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My dad owns a business that was started by my grandfather. I went away to college at age 17 and worked for him during summer vacations and holidays.

I know the business inside and out and I like it, but my old man drives me up the wall. He is a very domineering person and everything has to be done his way. He also refuses to give me any responsibility or let me make decisions. I feel like a 15-year-old.

I have thought of walking out at least a dozen times, but my mom says it would be . foolish. My older brother is, in medical school and wants no part of this business. It's very profitable, and since it is a family-owned enterprise, Mom says I should carry it girlfriend is bugging me to leave. She says my dad will never change and it's not worth the grief. She thinks I have a lot of ability and can make it anywhere. What do you say? - Feeling Inferior In Superior, Wis.

DEAR WISCONSIN: Have you considered going to another city and obtaining a job in the same type of business? I recommend it. You will get valuable experience and learn some things that your dad cannot teach you.

After a few years, reassess the situation. Your dad is sure to have more respect for you and maybe he will be inclined to welcome you back as an adult who can bring an added dimension to the business.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a few words to the young woman who is considering marrying a fine young man whose grammer and mispronunciation of words is so embarrassing she wants to hide her head?

Twenty years ago I was where she is now. I was sure if I corrected gently and in private he would improve. I also had the crazy idea that he might take some courses offered at our high school for "new Americans," although he was born in this country.

Joe was a sweet-tempered guy and sat silent when I corrected him during our courtship. After we were married, he responded by using language that is unprintable. Now the children are asking why Daddy says, "Dat guy don't know nuttin" and "We was just sittin' der."

Please keep telling your readers that if "Beloved" doesn't use proper English by the time he marries, the chances for improvement are nil. If it bothers you during courtship, it will kill you later. - Sedalia, Mo.

DEAR SED: Well said. I second the motion.

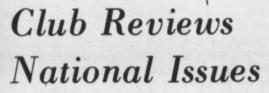

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have an older brother who is a great guy. He is really a good person and proves it by doing so many things for lots of people, including me.

Tonight I did something to him that was really gross. I felt lousy about it. I didn't think an apology would do any good, but I said it anyway. He accepted so graciously it made me feel even worse. I never appreciated him so much until that moment.

We are both teenagers, and I am sure this was a turning point in my life. From now on I will have a lot more respect for him. I just want to say, "Thank you, big brother, I really do love you." - Your Little Sis

DEAR LITTLE SIS: What a warm and tender letter. I'm omitting your initials and the name of your city. Let's let every older brother out there whose younger sis did something gross recently think this letter was meant for him.

Ann Landers discusses teenage drinking - its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading "Booze and You -For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents and a long, self-addresses, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Summerfield Study Club gathered recently in the home of Mrs. Thurman Atchley for a program on "Hot Spots at Home and Abroad." Among the forum were Mrs. Clayton Sanders, Teader; Mrs. Atchley, and Mrs. Jerry

Mrs. Sanders gave a review of San Salvador. Mrs. Atchley spoke about Iran and Mrs. Lance's topic included Poland.

After membership pa ticipation the leader gave a resume of major problems for the nation. Among the problems members discussed were Soviet Union buildup, use of Cubans as surrogate armies for Soviet purposes, instability in the Middle-East, resource war, proliferation of nuclear weapons, anti-Americanism in Latin-America, increasing tension between Mexico and U.S., U.S. immigration policy, crippled U.S. intelligence capability, and energy supple disruptions.

Mrs. Ray Johnson gave a memorial tribute to the late Mrs. R.B. Baker who had been a member of the club for 20 years, serving much of that time as American Heritage Chairman. In business, Mrs. Sanders, president, gave a report of Top of Texas, reporting on a

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

It's probably because it's new and I'm not used to it, but men advertising sexy products make me giggle.

They're so awkward playing the sex object role. Throughout the years, women models have sold seductiveness. They flirt with their eyes, invite with their smile, entice with every movement and top it off with a 60-day war-

Male models look like a poodle that has just missed the Part of the problem is that advertisers haven't figured out yet what kind of man impresses women. At the moment they're going for the Statue of David look ... plush pile chest, curly hair and blacksmith arms.

I saw a man in a catalogue recently. He was propped up in bed (bare chest showing), tousled and yarning. On the tray beside him was a cup of black coffee, a glass of Alka Seltzer and on his shoulder he had the imprint of two red lips. A pillow next to him was mussed a silk gown reckless left behind intimated he hadn't spent the night doing biblical connect-a-dot pictures.

It took me 15 minutes to figure out what he was selling. I saw a line that read, "Twin, $80" and was about to order the other brother when my girlfriend said, "I think he's selling satin sheets."

Somehow, he didn't impress me as someone who knew percale from corduroy.

Men are comfortable in the authoritative role That's why for years male salesmen told women what appliances to buy to keep their houses running smoothly, what laundry soap to buy to keep their clothes their brightest, and what cold medicines to buy to assure a healthy family

Now that sex is an appeal used to sell everything we buy, it's a whole new thing for men.

I loved the guy the other night who rustled cattle all day in his dusty jeans and capped teeth. Then he hit for the showers where he slapped his hairy chest so hard with show-no-mercy cologne I thought he'd break something. He positioned his white cowboy hat which he wore with an evening suit, climbed into his sports car and zoomed off to become a legend in his own time.

I should have felt desirous, titillated, arduous, breathless and womanly.

I felt like giggling.

TCA Sets Deadline For Aid

Deadline for financial assistance awards applications to the Texas Commission on the Arts is Feb. 1, announced TCA Chairman Mary Lou Brayme today:

"Awards from the Commission are actually contracts between the State of Texas and local organizations to provide services to the people of Texas," Mrs. Braymer explains.

The awards which must be matched by local funds, assist in supporting public programs in music, dance, theatre, visual arts and architecture, media, literature, community development and education.

Applications are received and postmarked no later than Feb. 1 and Sept. 1 of each year. Applications are then reviewed by advisory panels comprised of experts in the field. Their recommendations are reviewed by the Commission's Assistance Review Committee, with final awards made by the full 18-member Commission in April and December.

Nonprofit tax-exempt organizations, units of government and educational institutions may apply for financial assistance awards to sponsor arts programs.

The Texas Commission on the Arts serves Texas, its arts organizations and its people by providing coordination, information and financial aid for art prorams. TCA's primary goal is to serve as a catalyst for making the arts accessible to the public. Application forms and details about financial assistance awards programs are available by requesting a State Arts Plan from the Commission, P.O. Box 13406, Capitol Station, Austin, Tx. 78711, or call toll free 1-800-252-9515.

'Texas' To Begin Auditions For Cast

On January 31, 1981, the directors of the musical drama, "TEXAS," will begin their search for the members of the cast for the 1981 summer season. They will travel to Dallas, Austin, Albuquerque and Lubbock and will hold auditions in Canyon as well.

In order to match the excitement of the past fifteen seasons, they will be looking for actors, singers and dancers who can command the stage, who can be heard outside, and who understand character motivation and can convey emotion.

A part in a production of this famous drama by Paul Green can be a valuable asset in a young artist's career. After three weeks of intensive training, the actor, singer or dancer will appear fifty-nine nights in the game show, polishing, growing in understanding and smoothing out the performance of his role. He will play in heat and cold, dust and spitting rain, and in some of the most glorious weather ever known,

Hughes, a native of Amarillo, has grown up in the Panhandle of Texas where he lives at present. From early childhood he has shown unusual ability in artistic creativity. His painting during junior high and high school won him honors and prizes in local and national

His work first began to appear in art shows and galleries in the Southwest in the early part of his high school years. Since then he has completed a degree in Commercial Art along with his development as a fine art

In 1976 Hughes spent a year working in Europe and studying art, religion and philosophy. Working in both watercolor and oils, he has become a master realist in landscape and still-life. His work has been exhibited in prominent galleries and shows through out Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, and Kansas. In his search for truth in creative expresion, the Christian world - view has had its effect on Hughes's attitude that art is creative communica-

He believes that he is responsible to communicate skillfully and acurately about the reality that exists; the beauty, order, harmony, and hope in life, without romanticizing about the brokenness of the present world.

The Two Minute Bell Took its Toll

THE FUROR PEAKED at 2:00 till zero. All the mobbing and smothering panic associated with D-Day, Black Sunday or nationalized Championship Wrestling seemed harmless compared to the disenchanted throng's pheaval in the final moments of Hereford's struggle with the Monterey Plainswomen here Tuesday night.

Mauri Montgomery

Even the quiet and usually docile Hereford girls' coach Larry Sowers exhibited only occasional outbursts before the digital clock struck two bells - from that point on however, no one could be held responsible for their actions.

IT WAS BASKETBALL in its finest moment, the one where the intensity of the game cast remarkable likeness to unpadded football, and also where conflicts were often won and lost on sheer emotion - either by the lack of it or too

Both teams had more than enough incentive to play for. The list of reasons why either one of the two should win was a long one.

Each had demonstrated early dominance in their pre-district fields. They were creatures of habit. Hereford had skimmed past weekly opponents en route to a 20-1 overall mark (19 of those coming as a full-scale blitzkreig). Monterey had fashioned a comparable 19-1

THE HEREFORD BRAND

ledger over the season's course, but against what many considered a tougher schedule. Tie ball

THEN THERE WAS the experience factor. Eventhough Monterey was coming off a 31-3 season filled with post season competition (the crew pushed its way the state tournament playoffs before eventually falling to South Oak Cliff in the second round), it had lost all but two of last year's regular's in All-State guardssisters Kriss and Kamie Etheridge.

Hereford was slightly ahead in that category after it returned five regular starters off last year's 16-11 squad.

But perhaps the one offsetting factor, if there was one between the two respectively close squads Tuesday night, was the home court advantage held in the first half by Hereford.

It was basketball in its finest moment, the one where the intensity of the game cast remarkable likeness to unpadded football.

LONG BEFORE THE conflict had warranted legitmate worry, Sowers admitted that the home crowd would be a crucial concern. His sharpshooting leprechouns, as he prefered to put it, "would need all their emotions to play on in order to maintain an advantage over Monterey." More importantly, the home turf factor only came once against the Plainswomen, and he wanted to make the most of it - preserve it on a dusty shelf before second-half play began.

BUT ALL HIS hopes for that initial icing over the Plainswomen faded after Monterey took four last-second points to win Tuesday night's district showdown, 54-49.

Sowers exasperatingly pounded a plastic chair beside him, and as an afterthought put his hurt hand into his pocket.

The loss didn't eliminate his sorority from this half's title, but it was a game he felt his squad needed to win badly.

"Plainview has still got a shot a knocking them off, but the think what hurts the worst is that we should've been the first one to nick them with a loss," he said following Tuesday night's conflict. "We almost had it, but we let it slip away from us. That's how Monterey is though - even when they're behind, they're not. They have a way of making up ground under intense pressure."

"AND THERE WAS a lot of pressure put on them because of the crowd. The big turnout played a significant role in the way we played during the first three quarters of play - we played pretty well then, but later we got flustered in the fourth quarter," he added.

The Whitefaces, coasting shots in from the moon, jumped out to a narrow front-runners advantage early in the contest, but held on at times by mere clinging fingernails to maintain the pace. The Monterey team edged Hereford out slightly in the second period 18-16 before Sower's Sorority delivered an 11-3 onslaught in the third

"We were playing very intense and yet we weren't making very many mistakes at that point in that game - we were doing everything we needed to," he noted. "But then we lost the shooting edge we had earlier and fell off in our attack on the defensive boards in the last quarter. If we'd held on for just another two minutes we could have put it away."

IN THOSE FINAL TWO minutes, Hereford watched the lead it fought so hard to keep, filter through its fingers as three last minute MHS field goals plus another two shots at the charity line hit their marks - all unanswered by the previously flaming HHS crew.

Screams flew from the packed and excited crowd with each slight increment toward the close ball game's end. Sowers, exasperatingly pounded a plastic chair beside him, and as an after thought put his hurt hand into his pocket. The awesome 19-game winning streak nurtured from week to week by the talented Whiteface team had just been snapped.

"We played a good ball game, but we just didn't produce when we had to. Now, I hope we'll just forget about this game. We can't afford to let this one get us down. We'll just have to see if we can't win the rest during this half."

Sixth Ranked Wildcats Plaster Florida

By The Associated Press

Kentucky finally is back on the winning track, and Coach Joe B. Hall thinks his sixthranked Wildcats may be over their emotional problems.

"We showed more emotion than we had since very early in the season," Hall said after Kentucky trounced Florida 102-48 in a Southeastern Conference game Wednesday

We just need that so much, and we have talked about it," the coach said. "It's been tough on us. there's been a lot of pressure. Certainly, no one likes to lose, and everyone talked about how we were going to have a really good game.

Kentucky, ranked third in the nation at the time, began its slide with a 59-55 loss Saturday at Alabama, then lost again on the road Monday to Louisiana State, 81-67. returned home Wednesday night to record their widest scoring margin ever in Rupp

The 54-point loss also was the most lopsided in the basketball history of Florida, whose worst previous defeat had been by 48 points, 85-37, to Kentucky 31 years ago.

'They got off to a fast, freewheeling start," said Florida Coach Norm Sloan, former coach at North Carolina State. "They were shooting relaxed from all over the floor. Kentucky has great personnel. They just didn't have any respect for us

Sam Bowie led all scorers with 29 points for Kentucky, and Dirk Minniefield and Mel Turpin added 17 apiece.

Kentucky led by 28 points at the half, 52-26, and the Wildcats' advantage ballooned to as many as 56 points, 102-46, with 27 seconds to play on a tipin by Charles Hurt. In other games involving ranked teams, second-rated Virginia whipped George Washington 86-56, fifthranked ISU topped Auburn 74-64, No. 8 Tennessee downed Mississippi State 81-57, 13th-ranked Notre Dame stopped San Francisco 80-75, 19th-ranked Clemson defeated Georgia Tech 72-48 and Villanova upended No. 20

Connecticut 63-59.

Ralph Sampson and Jeff Lamp paced Virginia with 17 points apiece, and Lee Raker added 15 as the Cavaliers extended the nation's longest winning streak to 20 games. Now 15-0 on the season, Virginia led by as many as 34 points.

George Washington's Wilbert Skipper led all scorers with 23.

Louisiana State won its 15th game in a row, getting a career-high 33 points from Howard Carter. The Tigers, now 16-1 with their only loss coming to Arkansas in the second game of the season, led 36-31 at the half and moved out to leads of as many as 12 points on two occasions in the SEC matchup

Banks and Darrell Lockhart with 16 points each.

Dale Ellis hit two free

Oakland's King Tired of Being No.2

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -The Oakland Raiders' Kenny King likens himself to that familiar car rental agency he is trying harder because he is tired of being No.2.

"At Oklahoma, my job was to block for Billy Sims," the powerful speedster said. "Last year at Houston, playing behind Earl Campbell, I got my hands on the ball only three times.

"I can't tell you how many times I almost lost it altogether - I came close to packing it in.

"I would have, too, if it hadn't been for my mother." King said that in the midst of his depression, while rusting away on the Oilers' bench, he spent around $500 a month telephoning his mother, Louisa, at their home in Clarendon, Tex.

'I would tell her how bad things were and I might be coming home," he added, but she always told me, 'Don't worry, son. Give it your best shot. God is looking out for you. Everything will work out."

It did. In the offseason, Al Davis, the iconoclast principal owner of the Raiders, grabbed King and added him to his mushrooming brood of outcasts and retreads.

"I feel like I am starting a new life," said the 205-pound running back, a key offensive threat in the Raiders' Super Bowl match Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

King, who has run 100 yards in 9.5 seconds, considers himself one of the game's most underrated and least recognized ground gainers.

"If I hadn't been injured and missed seven games, I should have gone over 1,000 yards," he said. "I am a lot like Wilbert Montgomery (Eagles' running back). Nobody hardly knew who he was until he had that great day against Dallas (194 yards) in the championship game two weeks ago."

King ran for 761 yards during the past season, an average of 4.4 yards a carry,

UPS has applied for intrastate operating authority in Texas.

(Right now we only have interstate authority. We're only permitted to handle parcels coming into or leaving Texas.*)

If our application is granted, you'll be able to send a package by UPS to any address in Texas—as well as anywhere else in the continental U.S.

You'll also be seeing even more of our shiny brown vehicles.

So we thought you might like to know a little more about us.

A LITTLE HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY

UPS got started in 1907 when a couple of young men began doing local deliveries in Seattle. Today UPS is still employeeowned, with most of our stockholders actually managing and supervising the company.

Our headquarters are in Connecticut,

Dantley, the National away from them and kept them farther out than they wanted to be. We made guys shoot who are not used to shooting."

"The Celtics play good team defense," said Dantley. "They denied me the ball. I couldn't shoot from where I wanted to shoot and they cut me off when I wanted to drive."

Griffith made good on just one of nine field goal attempts.

"He got open but he didn't seem in synch on his shot," said Boston Coach Bill Fitch. "Chris (Ford) seemed to be around him all the time. The one he made was downtown from the water cooler." In other NBA games Wednesday night, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Indiana Pacers 118-104, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Atlanta Hawks 116-106, the Milwaukee Bucks topped the Golden State Warriors

105-98, the New Jersey Nets edged the Seattle Super-Sonics 126-122 in overtime, the Kansas City Kings beat the San Antonio Spurs 115-108, the Houston Rockets downed the Phoenix Suns 106-100 and the San Diego Clippers defeated Denver Nuggets

Boston has won 22 of its last 23 starts and trails Philadelphia by one game in the Atlantic Division race. Philadelphia, 42-9, and Boston, 40-9, have the two best records in the league.

"We tried to get the Celtics to play a conservative game," Utah Coach Tom Nissalke said of his team's strategy. "We did it for a couple of minutes."

Utah led 16-14 before the Celtics ran off 13 points in a row to take command. Boston led 62-48 at halftime and by as many as 30 points in the fourth quarter.

Larry Bird led the Celtics with 20 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists. M.L. Carr, making his first appearance after missing 41 games with a broken foot, played 15 minutes and scored 10 points for Boston. 76ers 118, Pacers 104

Philadelphia, bouncing back from an 83-75 loss to Detroit Tuesday night, went ahead to stay after five minutes and coasted past the Pacers. Julius Erving led the way for the Sixers with 31 points, including 17 in the third quarter, while former Sixer George McGinnis was high scorer for Indiana with 25 points.

Rockets 106, Suns 100

Allen Leavell sank two baskets and two free throws in the final minute as the Rockets beat Phoenix. The Suns led 98-97 but were outscored 9-2 down the stretch, with Leavell leading

Super Bowl Teams Have Gentlemen, Scholars

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -You'd expect the Super Bowl to have its quota of players from Ohio State, Oklahoma, Southern California, Notre Dame and the rest of the nation's big-time football schools and this one doesn't disappoint.

The Philadelphia Eagles and Oakland Raiders, who play Sunday for the championship of professional football, are suitably equipped with their share of blockers and tacklers carrying proper collegiate football creden-

But also tagging along are two representatives of schools less noted for their football record, a pair of classroom heavyweights who could play in the Brain Bowl instead.

Oakland running back Mark van Eeghen owns a degree in economics from Philadelphia tight end John Spagnola, a political science major, learned his X's and O's in the hallowed Ivy-lined walls of Yale.

There were no scholarships, no Top 20 rankings, no bowl games in their football heritages. There was, instead, academics.

"Football was kept in its proper place at Colgate," said van Eeghen. "We didn't have spring practice or winter workouts. You showed up two weeks before the first game in the fall, played for 10 weeks, and then went back to the fraternity and the rest of college life. It was great."

The only trouble van Eeghen had at Colgate was playing on Saturday and missing the biggies. "I found myself wishing I could watch Oaklahoma-Nebraska instead of playing Lehigh or

"I idolized the bigger schools. But I'd have gotten lost in the shuffle at Michigan or Ohio State or Southern Cal. I played at the level I wanted to play at, in a small school, where football was secondary and where I could get a good education. I had a truly great college experience."

He could have gotten the same kind of experience at Yale. Spagnola testifies to

They are members of exceedingly small alumni associations.

Colgate has sent only two other players to the NFL strong safety Mark Murphy, who played for a while at Washington, and fullback Mary Hubbard who, ironically, preceded van Eeghen as Oakland's heavy-duty ballcarrier. Yale's NFL alumni include running backs Calvin Hill and Chuck Mercein, center Mike Pyle, defensive backs Dick Jauron and Gary Fencik and precious few others. Spagnola thinks about players who fail to complete their education. "What happens to them after football?" he wondered. "No degree, no real education or skill. Where do they go?"

For Spagnola and van Eeghen, that's no real pro-

Spagnola worked on the successful senatorial campaign of ex-basketball star Bill Bradley in 1978. He thinks about a career in politics.

Van Eeghen will work this summer in an executive training program at a bank in his native Rhode Island, laying the groundwork for an eventual move into the world of finance.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Newer treatment for arthritis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My wife has had rheumatoid arthritis for 20 years. She has been on gold shots, prednisone and Motrin. She is now on penicillamine and has been taking it for 16 weeks with no sign of relief. Her doctor claims it will take time. She goes in for blood and urine tests which are OK so far. The gold shots were doing the job for 13 years. The doctor took her off to start the penicillamine. Was that right? The prednisone had bad side effects. I am also aware of the danger of cortisone. How effective and how many shots can a person have?

DEAR READER - Penicillamine is one of the newer treatments for rheumatoid arthritis. It has actions similar to gold shots. Like gold, it can have important side effects. The only way to tell how a person is doing with such medicines is with frequent blood, urine and other tests that may become indicated.

I can't second guess your wife's doctor. Evidently he hoped that he would get better results from penicillamine than he was getting with gold shots. Gold shots don't work for everyone. When a good response is obtained, it is usually within the first 30 doses. Apparently your wife was on a maintenance dosage. If she doesn't do better with the penicillamine, her doctor may want to use it again or try another medicine. To avoid confusing other readers, I would like to point out that there are three main kinds of arthritis, the rheumatoid type your wife has, gouty arthritis and osteoarthritis that occurs more commonly in older people and is some-times called degenerative arthritis. Osteoporosis, dissolving bones, is not really arthritis although many people call it arthritis.

The nature of rheumatoid arthritis, which is an inflammatory disease, and treatment is discussed in greater detail in The Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of , P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is sometimes difficult to judge the effectiveness of medicines used to treat rheumatoid arthritis because it has exacerbations and remissions even without treatment.

DEAR DR. LAMB Please comment on moles. Are they usually cancerous? I have this large mole under my buttocks where it gets irritated when I go to the bathroom. It puts me in mind of a mushroom. The outer edges can be lifted up. It's starting to feel uncomfortable when anything touches it. It is about the size of a dime, dark in color with dots on it.

DEAR READER - Moles that show any change whatsoever are not to be trifled with. See your doctor at once. And a mole that is located in a place where it is irritated repeatedly for any reason should be removed. This includes those on the face where a man shaves or where a belt rubs. Early removal of a mole with any changes whatsoever may prevent the spread of a malignant melanoma. Other moles without changes are usually innoc-

Now I am not convinced that you have a mole. The only way you will find out is by having a doctor see it. You may be describing a "venereal" wart. These are commonly located around the pubic area. They are caused by a virus and are treated in a different

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 62-year-old male and retired. I do not get a lot of exercise. My temperature varies from 96 to 98 F. I would like to know what makes it vary that much and if there is any danger from the variation. What gas is trapped. can be done for it?

This cyclical change is the diurnal cycle and is related to our sleep cycle and hormone secretion.

We usually say that body temperature may vary from 96.6 to 100 F and still be normal. But it depends a lot on the individual and also on how the temperature is taken. Even the thermometer may not be entirely accurate. Skin temperature is lower than mouth temperature and that may be why you have given me a relatively low reading. You could have a bad thermometer, or, if you're taking your temperature by mouth, you may not be leaving it in long enough. I have discussed the various things that affect taking body temperature in The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addresssed envelope for it to me P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. These factors include whether you have just taken a hot bat! and even what you have health. But it is important to know that it can be above the magical 98.6 F and still be entirely normal, particularly in active young children in the evening. The low temperatures are more often associated with low metabolism. Check out your method with the information I am sending you and if your temperature persists on the low side, see our doctor. A low thyroid condition or being totally inactive may be the reason. But it could be just normal for

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am an 18-year-old girl who has never been in the hospital and am what you might call sort of a hypochondriac. Every once in a while I get a slight pain where my appendix is. What do you think I should do? When I get the pain I don't double over or anything, although sometimes it almost gets to that point. I am deathly afraid of my appendix bursting or having to be taken

DEAR READER - It probably is not your appendix but the next time you have such a pain you may want to see your doctor. The typical pain of appendicitis is preceded by fullness or loss of appetite and discomfort in the middle of the abdomen. The pain moves to the right lower side later. But all cases are not typical.

Your discomfort could be from gas. Gas pains can be so severe that they cause people to double up, and the cecum, the blind pouch at the end of the colon, is one place where

Daniel Remembered for Government Reform

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Price Daniel Jr. left behind a record of lasting government reform and utter failure in both his statewide political ambitions and his desire to give Texans a modern constitution.

Daniel, 39, was shot to death at his home in Liberty Monday night.

Daniel was House speaker in 1973, winning the job on a "reform" wave that followed former Speaker Gus Mutscher's involvement in the 1971 Sharpstown scandal.

Because of Daniel's efforts as speaker, Texans who wish to take the trouble can see the origins of the money that fuels political campaigns.

Laws pushed to passage by Daniel also forced legislators and other officials to reveal the sources - if not the amounts - of their personal income and wealth.

Daniel bills opened up government records and forced lobbyists to disclose how they were spending money. Yet his stated overall objective of ending one-man rule in the House and weakening the grip of business interests on legislation did not come to pass.

Daniel was a one-term speaker who wanted to limit the number of terms a speaker could hold. A speaker's control over each representative's legislative success or failure is so tight it is hard to say no when the speaker asks for a written promise to vote for him next

Daniel was unable to get the two-term limit he sought, and his successor, Bill Clayton, is serving his fourth term and talking about a

Lobbyists must report their spending, and so do the political action committees through which they funnel money to legislators' campaigns. Yet the spending is bigger than ever, and business lobbyists had one of their best years ever in the 1979 legislative session.

Daniel mounted a behindthe-scenes campaign and won the presidency of the 1974 Constitutional Convention. He badly wanted the conven-hostage crisis.

Usually mild-mannered, Daniel could be waspish, quick to blame or call names.

One memorable moment or the convention came when he refused to apologize for calling some of the delegates "cockroaches" for stalling the work of a convention committee. **

Politics, the convention and the speakership strained Daniel's first marriage, to Diane Womack Daniel, and the couple divorced within months after the convention concluded in 1974.

Daniel married Vickie Moore in November 1976. She was present when he was shot to death Monday night and was hospitalized for shock.

Daniel didn't run for reelection to the House in 1974, saying he wanted to devote full attention to the constitutional convention, and he sat out th 1976 elections.

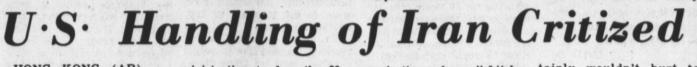

He announced early as a candidate in the 1978 attorney general's race.

His famous father, former Gov. Price Daniel Sr., was on the Texas Supreme Court but announced he would not run for re-election. The senior Daniel's action was widely taken as clearing away a potential political barrier for his son. The Supreme Court handles dozens of cases each year involving the attorney general.

Nonetheless, Daniel's opponent. Mark White, argued repeatedly that the younger Daniel was taking advantage of a political name that had been before Texans for almost 40 years. White was little known outside of Austin, and Daniel's supporters were overconfident. Even when White launched a heavy radio and television blitz in the closing two weeks of the primary campaign, Daniel hoarded his campaign money for the general election.

White won, 851,030 to 778,899, and Daniel returned to his law practice in Libery. Friends said he had no plans for a political race in 1982.

HONG KONG (AP) -American diplomat Mark Lijek, who escaped from the U.S. Embassy in Iran when it was seized, today criticized U.S. government handling of the hostage crisis and said there should be an investigation to insure that it doesn't

The invasion of the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4, 1979 followed Iranian demonstrations in Tehran and New York protesting the shah's admission to a New York hospital for cancer treatment.

Lijek, who is now an administrative officer in the U.S. Consulate here, strongly endorsed planned congressional investigations into events leading up to the seizure of the 52 Americans who were freed Tuesday after 444 days in captivity.

"I think a lot needs to be discussed, especially how to ensure that it doesn't happen again," Lijek said. "It certainly wouldn't hurt to analyze why we got into that situation in the first place."

The diplomat, on his first foreign assignment when he went to Iran, said he is convinced the militant students never intended to stay when they first broke into the embassy compound.

Lijek said: "It was something that developed its own momentum. I think it was a bunch of punks acclaimed by the Ayatollah (Ruhollah Khomeini) and world attention - and nobody tried to get them out.

"Khomeini, who is clearly very intelligent and able politically, grasped the opportunity and saw this as a way to rally people around a foreign enemy and forget the country's economic problems," he said
