DSGH plans to offset losses

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith General Hospital, faced with a decline in patients and revenue, is moving to develop a plan that will help ensure the continuation of quality local health care, it was announced today by Gary Moore, hospital administrator.

The hospital showed an operating loss of $200,000 in March. Moore attributes much of the problem to more outpatient services, and the fact that Medicare and Medicaid inpatient days are growing while while these payments are not increasing proportionately.

To meet the challenge of balancing costs while maintaining services, the hospital's plan calls for consolidating areas and trimming staff requirements.

"One of the first steps was to locate all departments on the first floor, reducing utility and housekeeping costs," said Moore. The OB department is being moved to the east wing of the hospital, with that area being renovated for a May 1 opening.

"The second stage was to trim staff without compromising the level of quality care that patients receive," stated Moore. "The staff reduction will affect 20 people, but a closer look at the individual positions is necessary to understand the minimal effect on overall service."

"Although seven people are being released from the nursing staff, only one is a full-time LVN. One is a part-time RN, one a part-time nursing tech, and four are full-time nursing techs," Moore pointed out.

Two full-time positions are being trimmed from the business office, and two full-time and one part-time positions from the dietary staff. One part-time position in the pharmacy has been eliminated as well as one position in medical records.

"A smaller patient load naturally requires fewer staff to meet their needs," Moore said. "Two people in housekeeping—one full-time and one part-time—will not be needed. Four other positions will be vacated in the next four months due to natural attrition, and they will not be replaced," said Moore.

"We looked very closely at every department and every position in the hospital before we made our decisions," said the administrator. "It is very realistic, based on the trends we see, to maintain a staff sufficient to meet the needs of our patient level, which is down 20 percent from last year. Our first priority is that quality of service does not suffer."

Raymond Schroeder, board president, said of the changes: "In the past decade we've seen many small, local hospitals close because of rising costs and inability to recognize the changes they needed to make to survive."

"We need a hospital in Hereford and we will do everything possible to continue its operation. Everyone connected with Deaf Smith General Hospital is actively working to make the changes—positive changes—necessary to continue our services."

After the reorganization, DSGH will have 25 RNs on staff and 18 LVNs. "We're fortunate to have the quality of nursing staff that we do," Moore commented. "They're well trained, efficient and flexible, which is a necessity in a smaller, rural hospital."

Moore said the need for health care reform is one of the most pressing issues facing our society. "Like many other hospitals, one of the major financial burdens we face is that of uncompensated care—either from indigent care or from uncompensated Medicare/Medicaid related costs."

Moore said the Medicare/Medicaid shortfalls for the first six months of this fiscal year are $770,509. An additional $364,924 has been lost due to indigent care and bad debt.

The administrator said the emergency room is one department where the patient load is up, but it is also the one area which treats a proportionately larger number of uninsured patients, and losses are greater.

The administration of the hospital is not only looking for ways to trim, but ways to expand, said Moore. "Out-patient services may not require overnight stays, but they can be enlarged to draw in more patients who might otherwise go out of town for these services."

Moore said the new swing-bed program, a procedure that lets a patient switch from one level of care to another without changing beds or rooms, will also raise more revenues for the hospital.

Going to UIL state meet

Four Hereford students will be representing Hereford High School at the UIL State Academic Meet May 2-4 at the University of Texas at Austin. The students are, from left, Camille Betzen, Zach Walker, Jeri Ann Parker and Jason Barrett.

Four qualify for state

Four Hereford students have qualified for the UIL State Academic Meet in Austin May 2-4 after placing at the Region I Meet last weekend in San Angelo.

Qualifying for the state meet are Jeri Ann Parker, who was first in persuasive speaking and third in Lincoln-Douglas debate; Zach Walker, second in persuasive speaking and fourth in Lincoln-Douglas debate; Camille Betzen, first in informative speaking; and Jason Barrett, an alternate to state who finished fourth in prose.

By participating in the state meet, the students will not only attempt to gain one of the prized medals but will attempt to qualify for one of the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation scholarships. Last year, the TILF awarded more than $504,000 in grants to 382 college students who competed at the state meet. This year, the TILF will award about $600,000 in new and renewed scholarships to about 500 persons. Lana Hall is the students' sponsor at HHS.

Richards asks for education 'quality' plan

AUSTIN (AP) - Now that school finance legislation has been enacted, Gov. Ann Richards says it's time to pay attention to education quality.

Richards on Tuesday proposed a series of ideas she said would boost schools' performance, including sending "SWAT" teams of education experts to assist failing schools.

She called for monetary rewards for good schools, higher teacher pay and scholarships for top-achieving high school graduates in a legislative package she wants passed before the current session ends May 27.

"We spend a lot of money on education in Texas," Richards said. "But we are not certain that the students are getting their money's worth or that our taxpayers are getting their money's worth."

Richards said the proposals would be encompassed in a bill being sponsored by Sen. Bill Haley, D-Center.

A key proposal would allow the state education commissioner to assemble a so-called SWAT team of expert teachers and administrators to help troubled schools make improvements.

She also suggested combining and expanding reward programs for schools that prevent dropouts and do an exceptional job teaching students.

"I'd like to see this bill infuse about $10 million a year ... so that you'd reward not only excellence in correcting problems with dropouts, but you'd reward excellence in moving the standards and success rates up," she said.

Richards said she didn't know how much the proposals would cost, either in state or local property tax dollars.

Among her proposals, Richards called for:

- Raising salaries of Texas public school teachers to the national average by 1996.

- Allowing local councils of principals, teachers and parents to design their own programs.

- Giving all teachers access to a health insurance program, possibly through the state employee retirement system.

- Evaluating schools on individual improvement, based on their past records, rather than "adherence to a rigid set of bureaucratic standards."

Quake victims live off coconuts

PUERTO LIMON, Costa Rica (AP) - Electricity has been restored to most of this Caribbean port devastated by an earthquake felt as far away as Panama. But there is still a shortage of food and almost no water yet.

A number of people are surviving on coconut milk.

Rescue workers continue digging through the rubble for bodies and possible survivors, and hundreds of people in Puerto Limon and neighboring villages huddle outside their damaged homes, afraid to go back.

The aftershocks continue, but they were nowhere as intense as the five big ones that followed Monday afternoon's killer earthquake, which measured 7.4 on the Richter scale and was believed centered in the sea a few miles away.

As of Tuesday night, casualties numbered 79 killed, more than 800 injured and thousands homeless - 50 of the dead in Costa Rica and the rest in Panama's remote Atlantic province of Bocas del Toro.

Puerto Limon took the brunt of the teleric fury because it was so close to the epicenter. About 400 of its homes, most of them old and built of wood, shattered like dry kindling.

The port's 130,000 mostly poor residents - who make a living as stevedores, fishermen or working in nearby banana plantations - appeared devastated.

The quake destroyed bridges and roads all the way to western Panama, making it difficult to assess the extent of deaths and damage. The road to the neighboring Batan, for instance, was cracked 9 feet deep in some places.

Radio reports said freight cars had derailed, blocking railroad access to an area normally reachable only by rail, air and sea. The Pan American Highway linking Costa Rica to Panama reportedly was cut by damage to a bridge.

"We're subsisting solely on coconut milk," said Manfred Ching, 20, one of several volunteers who helped put out a huge fire when a gasoline storage tank exploded in the government-owned refinery on the outskirts of town.

Ching, a banana loader, sat in grimy overalls on the sidewalk, cracked and buckled by the quake. Across the street was the International Hotel, a four-story structure that collapsed with the first jolt.

A second hotel, the customs house, and an office building also caved in. When the Tony Facio Hospital began cracking apart, its 160 patients were quickly moved outdoors to an adjoining basketball court. They lay on stretchers, shaded from the sun by a huge tarpaulin.

Doctors said they delivered six babies in the makeshift installation on Monday night.

"I felt absolute terror," hospital administrator Jose Gomez recalled. "The whole building was moving." He said the building, while damaged extensively, is salvageable.

U.S. military engineers were surveying damage to the airport runway and other structures in Puerto Limon and American medics were also on the scene.

The U.S. provided two helicopters for the rescue effort and the U.S. Embassy in San Jose donated $25,000 for immediate relief.

Publicity harmful to raped women

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The woman who says she was raped at the Kennedy family compound could be further traumatized by the overwhelming publicity given the case, says the counselor who first interviewed her.

"When these kind of things happen, her picture's splashed all over the world, she can't get back in control, the first step in the healing process," said Denny Abbott, coordinator of Palm Beach County's victims' assistance program.

Abbott was the counselor on call when the 29-year-old woman reported she had been attacked March 30.

William Kennedy Smith, nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been identified by police as the suspect. No charges have been filed and Smith has denied any wrongdoing.

Police say they're still investigating and Palm Beach County authorities said it may be another three weeks before a decision is made on whether to prosecute Smith.

Such a delay is hard on a victim, Abbott said in an interview Tuesday. "I think it's clear that the longer the process is, the more painful it is for the victim," he said.

Abbott, a former probation officer and child advocacy specialist, headed the Adam Walsh Center for eight years. The center is named for the murdered 6-year-old son of John Walsh, host of the television show "America's Most Wanted."

Abbott said confidentiality rules prohibit him from discussing details of a particular case, but he criticized news organizations that have identified the woman.

The supermarket tabloid The Globe, NBC News, The New York Times and several other news organizations have revealed the woman's name. The Associated Press has not released her name and does not identify rape victims except in extraordinary circumstances.

The identification prompted a national debate over whether rape victims' names should be made public. Proponents say it will bring the crime into the open, but opponents say it will discourage victims from coming forward.

Abbott said identifying a victim "only worsens the stigma" of rape, and he said he would support the prosecution of news organizations that have identified her.

Allies pitch tents, warn area patrols

ZAKHO, Iraq (AP) - Iraqi security forces were still patrolling this town today, raising concern that Kurdish refugees might prefer ed hundreds of tents outside this northern town in an attempt to lure frightened refugees off rocky mountainsides on the nearby Turkish border.

In an attempt to boost confidence in the effort to establish a U.S.-protected safe haven for the refugees, the Americans invited more Kurdish leaders to inspect the camp today.

NATO's supreme commander, U.S. Gen. John Galvin, was to visit Zakho today, demonstrating that the Americans, British and French forces in the area consider it secure.

One thousand tents capable of housing 5,000 people were to be erected by late today, and the first refugees could move in within several days, said Fred Cuny, a disaster consultant with the U.S. State Department.

But dust storms stirred up by hot windy weather in the valley slowed today's effort, and completion of the first phase could be delayed a day.

Officials hope to provide shelter for up to 100,000 refugees around Zakho, eight miles south of the Turkish border. Other camps would then be set up in a 1,000-square-mile protected zone.

Kurdish clan leaders visited the camp on Monday and were to return for a second look today, Cuny said. About a dozen Kurdish guerrillas visited on Tuesday, he said.

U.S. Army Col. Bob Flocke said one Kurdish leader "liked" the camp. But Flocke noted that Kurdish leaders "are concerned about the Iraqi police. It is affecting their decision."

Zakho remained a city patrolled by both allied and Iraqi troops despite allied demands that Baghdad keep its forces clear of the operation.

Comptroller hosts Thursday meeting

A representative from the State Comptroller's office will be in Hereford on Thursday to meet one-on-one with area business people who may have questions about state taxes.

day to meet with anyone having questions about sales taxes, franchise taxes or the state gasoline tax.

"Meeting with taxpayers in their home counties makes tax collecting more efficient both for them and the state," said Comptroller John Sharp.

Sharp said help with state tax questions is immediately available by calling Austin toll-free at 1-800-252-5555.

Combest named 'taxpayers friend'

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) has been named the "Taxpayers' Friend" for his voting record to reduce federal spending during the 1990 congressional session.

The National Taxpayers Union, a nonpartisan, nonprofit public interest organization ranked Combest as the 39th best on taxpayer issues among the 435 members of the U.S. House of Representatives. He was one of 56 members of Congress to be honored.

"I applaud the Taxpayers Union for keeping the spending issue before the public and members of the Congress," said Combest. "Taxpayers are always aware of what happens when Congress fails to hold the line on federal spending increases. The big spenders in Congress need to be reminded of that."

State school care reported improved

DALLAS (AP) - The level of medical care provided at four state schools involved in a 17-year-old lawsuit is improving, a recent study shows.

Late last week, Ms. O'Neall reported that the state's mental retardation services, said in a written statement.

The main problems outlined in the report filed Tuesday in federal court. The report submitted by Dr. Linda O'Neall, the court's expert consultant, were disorganized medical files, a failure to respond quickly to medical complaints, and improper documentation of treatment.

All these things led in specific instances, she said, to improper treatment.

Although she cited several instances of improper treatment, Ms. O'Neall said the Austin, San Antonio, Denton and Fort Worth state schools have complied partially with a 1987 plan agreed to by both parties.

She recommended reduced monitoring of medical programs at Austin, San Antonio and Denton.

But her report noted some residents with medical problems had to wait hours to see a doctor. In some instances, it took weeks or months after initial diagnosis before treatment began.

The state's top mental retardation official recognized the need for improvement in a written statement issued Tuesday and praised the report for pointing out the improvements.

"We are pleased that the report recognized the significant progress made in providing medical services at these schools," Jaylon Fincannon, deputy commissioner for mental retardation services, said in a written statement.

Late last week, Ms. O'Neall reported that the state's mental retardation services, said in a written statement.

David Ferleger, the Philadelphia attorney representing approximately 2,000 plaintiffs in the lawsuit against the MHMR, said Monday the report was too lenient on the state. Including the four facilities named in the lawsuit, there are 13 state schools in Texas caring for about 7,100 residents.

Ferleger, in Texas this week to conduct his own review of the four schools in the suit, said dangerous conditions continue to exist despite the state's attempts to comply with the 1987 court order.

"Dr. O'Neall is consistently easy on the state, and I believe the situation is much worse than what the court's expert describes," said Ferleger, who on Tuesday was reviewing residents' files at Fort Worth State School.

Schwarzkopf honored by Bush, chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf collected a personal pat on the back from his Pentagon superiors and President Bush as he took a break from overseeing the withdrawal of troops he commanded in the Persian Gulf War.

"What he and his troops did for the morale of the United States of America is unbelievable," Bush said Tuesday during a photo session with the four-star Army general in the Rose Garden of the White House.

Bush played host to the general at lunch and signed legislation to award Schwarzkopf and Gen. Colin Powell, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, gold medals for their "exemplary performance" in conducting the Gulf War.

Schwarzkopf, who returned to his Florida home on Sunday after eight months in Saudi Arabia, met earlier Tuesday at the Pentagon with Powell and the other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in what officials described as an informal, welcome-home session.

Schwarzkopf returned to Tampa, Fla., Tuesday afternoon to resume his command at McDill Air Force Base, where he will oversee the return of the 250,000 troops remaining in the gulf region.

The Pentagon said the troops, who numbered 550,000 at the peak of the deployment, are being withdrawn at a rate of 5,000 to 7,000 a day.

The 56-year-old Schwarzkopf has announced he will retire before the end of the year.

Bush told reporters he had told Schwarzkopf that "what he and his troops did ... in terms of fulfilling our objectives is fantastic."

"We have a great team in (Defense Secretary Dick) Cheney and General Powell and General Schwarzkopf, and the country knows it. You can feel it. ... It is fantastic. And I told him that, and congratulated him."

The portly Schwarzkopf later came in for some kidding from Bush when the president gave a speech at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

"He hadn't had a good meal in a long time. You should have seen the guy eat. So we're a little late. I tell you, we can't afford to invite him over there any more," Bush said.

America's third most popular hobby—after coin collecting and photography—is tropical fish.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every time I saw a bag lady on the street, I used to wonder why she didn't seek help. Now I know. I am a landlord. One of my tenants is a mentally incompetent woman who was supported by her foster mother for the last five years. Her foster mother died recently and the woman is now penniless. My only recourse is eviction -- to simply put her out on the street. I called every agency in the phone book and they all said, "We have no budget for such cases." The mental health people tell me they cannot become involved unless the person is suicidal or murderous. An ordinary, everyday person who is mentally incompetent doesn't qualify for assistance. I ask you, Ann, where can this woman get help? I feel rotten about this but I've done my darndest. -- F.D. in Brookfield, Ill.

DEAR F.D.: We made several phone calls and had better luck than you did. Dr. Ron Davidson, director of public policy at the Mental Health Association in Illinois, as well as Gina White at the National Mental Health Association, said if the woman is not behaving in an unusual manner but is simply broke and unable to care for herself, help may be available. Many people don't realize that there are federal and state "safety net" programs which may entitle this woman to disability income and health care, enabling her to live independently. If this woman is a danger to herself or others, the police should be called. She will then be taken for psychiatric evaluation to a hospital or mental health clinic. Your local mental health association can direct you to the right agencies, as well as outreach counseling programs and support groups. Call the National Mental Health Association's toll-free number, 1-800-969-NMHA. Good luck this time and bless you for trying.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a very strong hunch that my daughter-in-law, the mother of my two teenage grandchildren, is having an affair. My son works two jobs and is not at home evenings, Monday through Friday. His wife does not work outside the house and has a great deal of freedom and plenty of time on her hands. Ever since my husband passed away two years ago, I've spent my evenings at their place so I know more about what goes on there than my son does. Almost every night my daughter-in-law gets a phone call from a man whose voice I recognize as that of a family friend. He is also married and has children. The calls go on anywhere from 20 minutes to one hour. She always uses the phone in their bedroom and speaks in a low voice. Ann, it's very difficult for me to have this knowledge and not say something about it. I don't know whether to confront my daughter-in-law or inform my son. Or should I just butt out? -- Perplexed in New Jersey

DEAR NEW JERSEY: I am a strong proponent of the MYOB school of behavior. If you mention this to your daughter-in-law, she will probably deny it and you may no longer be welcome in her home. If you tell your son, the result would probably be the same. I have always believed that when there is cheating in a marriage, the cheated-on person has a clue. It's best to let that person handle it.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.87.)

Reinauer wins regional finals

Hereford's Brenna Reinauer claimed the Region 1-4A girls' singles title by beating Carrie Helbing of Wichita Falls 6-4, 6-1 in Tuesday afternoon's finals of the regional tennis tournament in San Angelo.

Reinauer, the only Hereford tennis player to advance past the second round, beat Melody Lowery of Brownwood 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the semifinals Tuesday morning to earn the right to go to the state tournament May 10 and 11 in Austin.

Reinauer lost only one set in winning four straight matches. In the first round, she beat Emily Shutts of Arlington Heights 6-0, 6-1, and in the second, bested third-seeded Adele Hippe of Lake View 6-2, 6-0.

She benefitted from upsets that allowed only one seeded player, fourth-seeded Danette Jordan of Borger, to reach the semifinals. Hereford coach Ed Coplen said that Lowery beat the bracket's second seed and Helbing took out the first and fourth seeds in the first two rounds.

Jordan lost in the semifinals but beat Lowery for third place and the alternate spot. Her Borger teammate, Barry Thutchley, was District 1-4A's only other non-Whiteface representative at regionals. He finished third in boys' singles.

The rest of the district's representatives--all four of Hereford's doubles teams plus Jamie Kapka in boys' singles--lost in Monday's second round of competition. Kapka beat Keith Jordan of Fort Worth Boswell 6-1, 6-1 in the first round, but lost to James Gibson of Estacado 6-4, 3-6, 6-2 in the second round.

Hereford's top boys' doubles team, T.J. Head and Greg Coplen, beat Vuong Dao and Kirk Meyers of Boswell 6-0, 6-1, then lost 6-3, 6-3 to Sunel Sudarshan and Bubba Spraggins of Wichita Falls, who ended up third.

Torey Sellers and Randy Robbins beat Clay Russell and Jimmy Allison of Boswell 6-0, 6-0, then lost to Chris Estrada and Allen Davis of Lamesa 6-4, 6-1. Estrada and Davis lost in the finals to Steven Peiser and Christopher Lewis of Sweetwater.

In girls' doubles, Gina Alley and Teresa Baker beat Evelie Dos and Natalie Eiller of Granbury 6-0, 6-1, then lost to Amanda Barnett and Kristi Benson of Wichita Falls, the eventual champs, 6-2, 6-0.

Trisha Munoz and Robyn Sublett beat Rachel Wilson and Gayle Henderson of Snyder 6-1, 6-2, then lost to Carol Rogers and Jennifer Hines of Andrews 6-1, 6-0. Rogers and Hines lost in the finals.

The pattern that developed in the doubles matches was that the

Regional champion

Hereford's Brenna Reinauer prepares to hit one of the shots that helped her win the Region 1-4A girls' singles title at the region tournament Tuesday in San Angelo.

Hereford team won easily in the first round, then lost badly in the second. Coplen said that was because they all played seeded teams in the second round.

Some of those doubles teams, particularly from Wichita Falls, Coplen said, play year-round and are ranked in the state by organizations that are not tied in with schools. Some have also been together for a long time. For example, Sudarshan and Spraggins, the team which beat Head and Coplen, have been together for four years, Ed Coplen said.

Three-run homer downs Herd 6-3

A three-run homer in the fifth inning by Pampa's Zack Thomas lifted the Harvesters over Hereford 6-3 Tuesday in Pampa.

Thomas' homer came after teammates singled and reached on an error. It broke open a game which was tied at 2 at the time.

The Herd's record falls to 2-6 in district with only two games left. Hereford hosts Caprock Saturday and plays at Randall Tuesday. The Herd is 5-19 overall. Pampa improves to 18-3 and stays tied with Borger for the District 1-4A lead at 6-2.

Hereford had what Coach T.R.

Sartor called a "shaky start," committing three errors and misplaying a fly ball into a double in the first inning and letting Pampa score twice.

The Herd came back to tie, scoring one in the second inning and one in the fourth. In the second, George Jowell singled and Richard Sanderson, courtesy running for Jowell, stole second. Jason Tataravich knocked him in with a single.

In the fourth, Amado Lopez doubled but tore a hamstring, Sartor said. Rene Cano replaced him, went to third on Ralph Martinez' bloop single and scored when Jowell hit into a double play.

Sammy Casaraz started on the mound for the Herd. He pitched well, Sartor said, allowing six hits and only three earned runs while striking out six Harvesters. The six strikeouts was a season high for Casaraz, Sartor said. Unfortunately, one of the hits was the three-run homer.

Hereford scored one more run after Thomas' big blow. In the top of the sixth, Matt Bromlow hit a triple which bounced over the Pampa left fielder's head. He scored on Roy Cantu's groundout.

Pampa scored once more in the bottom of the sixth. The Harvesters got a single, a stolen base and a single to provide the final score, and shut out the Herd in the seventh to seal the victory.

In other district action, Dumas beat Randall 8-4, making the district record of both 4-4. That may clear up the issue of who goes to the playoffs, since Borger beat Carock 3-2 to join Pampa atop the district standings at 6-2.

Ismail's contract has 'out' clauses

TORONTO (AP) - Now that the Rocket has landed north of the border, the question is how long will he stay?

Raghib "Rocket" Ismail has a clause in his contract with the Toronto Argonauts that will permit him leave after any of the four years for which he is signed.

If Ismail stays in Canada for the full four years, team owner Bruce McNall has guaranteed him no less than $18 million. Should he go, the Los Angeles Raiders would have first crack at him. The Raiders picked Ismail in the fourth round of Sunday's NFL draft.

Sue Waks, McNall's chief financial officer, confirmed that Ismail could go to the NFL at any time, but expects him to remain with the Argos.

"Bruce is on the record as saying he wouldn't stand in Rocket's way but Rocket himself and Bruce have said that this is a four-year contract and we expect it to run that long," Waks said.

Asked if it would be possible for Ismail to finish his CFL commitment in November and immediately put on a Raider uniform, owner Al Davis said he didn't think so.

"But, like I said, I haven't seen the contract, so I'd only be guessing," Davis told the New York Daily News.

Ismail's got Team Rocket - lawyers, agents and marketing experts - offering him advice, but when the time came to make the biggest decision of his life, he listened to his heart ... and his mother.

"When he said he was going to go to Canada, I said, 'Honey, get on that freedom train and let's go,'" Fatma Ismail said at a SkyDome news conference Tuesday to introduce her Toronto Argonaut son to the media.

Ismail and his mother not only grabbed a freedom train, they caught a big-buck express to the CFL.

The 21-year-old Notre Dame junior could earn as much as $26.2 million under terms of the four-year contract he signed Saturday.

AUKAMP AT PIVOT
WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) - There was an Aukamp starting at center during the 1989-90 basketball season for both the men's and women's teams at the College of Wooster.

Stan was the regular pivot for the men's squad, and his sister Amy held the same position for the women's team.

"We compare each other's statistics all the time," Stan commented.

The NCAA theorized that it was the first brother and sister situation in the college game.

YMCA starting soccer league

The Hereford YMCA is taking registration for a youth soccer league to start play May 11.

Registration is open until May 1. The fee is $9, and participants must be YMCA members.

Games will be played on Saturdays, and the league will last six weeks plus playoffs.

If enough players sign up, they will have one division for first and second grades, one for third and fourth grades and one for fifth and sixth grades. All divisions are co-ed, and a YMCA flyer promises that "everyone plays half of the game."

The YMCA needs people to help coach a soccer team. A coaches' meeting will be held May 6. Anyone interested in coaching, or anyone needing more information, should contact Weldon Knabe at the YMCA.

Correction

It was incorrectly reprinted in Tuesday's Brand that the Region 1-4A track meet will be Saturday and Sunday. The actual days are Friday and Saturday. The meet will be in San Angelo.

Girls' golf team earns Austin trip

The Hereford High School girls' golf team earned a trip to Austin for the state 4A golf tournament by shooting a sizzling 371 Tuesday at the Region 1-4A tournament in San Angelo.

Though Andrews High's team pulled away from the entire field by shooting 341 and 339, Hereford pulled away on Tuesday from a group of six teams that were bunched near second place after Monday's first round.

The Lady Whitefaces were in third place at 400 after the first round. Their 371 Tuesday was plenty to overcome second-place Burk Burnett's six-stroke lead. Burk Burnett shot 391 Tuesday after a 394 Monday.

Hereford was led by two girls who shot their best rounds of the year Tuesday. In fact, Paula Britten's 82 was the lowest score of any of the 61 girls who played Tuesday, including defending state champion Lisa McQuarters of Andrews, who had an 83.

Jennifer Prater was the other hot Whiteface, shooting an 85 Tuesday. That was the fourth best round from Tuesday, and what's more, came after she shot 111 Monday.

"She really came through for us when we needed her to," Coach Stacey Bixler said.

Bixler said a 111 is what can happen when you play on a tough course like the one at Bentwood Country Club.

"This was a super-hard golf course," Bixler said. "It had sand all around the greens, had water on most of the holes and out-of-bounds on all the holes. It was just about as tough as you can find anywhere."

Britten's 82 gave her a two-day total of 176, good for fourth in medalist play. McQuarters won by going 76-83--159, and her teammate Andi Lehman was second with 84-83--167, which explains why Andrew was so far ahead of everyone else. Melissa Isham of Brownwood was third at 88-85--173.

Prater's excellent Tuesday was good enough to put her into a tie for twelfth, and Dusty Saul went 96-105--201 for fifteenth place. The other Lady Whitefaces who contributed were Cecelia Albracht at 105-99--204 and Stephanie Walls at 105-106--211.

performance. "The last month we've been playing our best golf. Who knows? Maybe we can keep doing it."

The state tournament will be held May 9 and 10 at the Jimmy Clay course in Austin.

The final team standings went like this:

- Andrews: 341-339--680
- Hereford: 400-371--771
- Burk Burnett: 394-391--785
- Snyder: 412-385--797
- Pampa: 404-395--799
- Justin NW: 406-404--810
- Andrews "B": 412-422--834
- Levelland: 426-416--842
- Stephenville: 426-421--847
- Boswell: 435-432--867
- Granbury: 440-428--868
- Arlington Heights: 432-444--876

Dodgers lose fifth- straight home game

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Home suddenly isn't looking so sweet to the Los Angeles Dodgers. Meanwhile, the Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres no longer are road worriers.

Los Angeles lost again at Dodger Stadium, falling to Tom Glavine and the Braves 4-0 Tuesday night.

The Dodgers are winless in five home games. That matches their 0-5 start in 1970 as their poorest at home since moving to Los Angeles in 1958. The team is researching whether it ever did worse in Brooklyn.

"When you get a team that's down like this, you try not to be the guy or the team that gets them back on track," said Glavine, who pitched a four-hitter and struck out a career-high 10.

The Braves are 4-0 on the road. That's their best start away from Atlanta since winning nine straight to begin 1982, the last year they won the National League West.

San Diego stayed unbeaten in five road games by winning 7-6 in San Francisco. The Padres are just 5-5 at home.

In other games, New York beat Philadelphia 2-1, Cincinnati defeated Houston 3-1, St. Louis stopped Chicago 4-2 and Pittsburgh downed Montreal 7-3.

Glavine walked none, retired 23 of the last 24 batters and won his fifth straight decision against the Dodgers.

He pitched his fifth career shutout in 108 starts.

Glavine also drew a bases-loaded walk from Kevin Gross (0-3). Dave Justice hit his second home run of the season as Gross, who took Fernando Valenzuela's spot in the rotation, failed to go five innings for the third time in three starts.

"It's probably the beat I've felt," said Gross, who gave up three runs on four hits and five walks in 4 1-3 innings.

Padres 7, Giants 6

Fred McGriff capped a four-run first inning with a two-run homer and Eric Nolte struggled to win his third straight start.

Kevin Mitchell hit his major league-leading seventh home run for the Giants. Will Clark homered and drove in four runs, but struck out against Craig Lefferts with a runner on second base to end the game.

The Padres scored four runs before making an out. Bip Roberts singled, Tony Fernandez walked, Tony Gwynn hit a two-run triple and McGriff homered off Scott Garrelts (1-1).

Mets 2, Phillies 1

In Philadelphia, Ron Darling pitched six shutout innings and doubled for New York's only hit until the ninth as the Mets spoiled Jim Fregosi's debut as Philadelphia's manager.

Fregosi replaced Nick Leyva, fired after 13 games.

The Mets took advantage of six walks by Jason Grimsley (0-3) to score twice without a hit. Leadoff walks set up Dave Magadan's RBI grounder in the fourth and Kevin Elster's sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Reds 3, Astros 1
At the Astrodome, Rob Dibble tied the NL record of six straight strikeouts by a reliever.

Dibble took over to start the eighth and walked his first batter, then fanned the next six for his second save. He matched the league mark held by 10 others.

Herm Winningham got three hits, including the go-ahead triple in the eighth off Jim Corsi (0-1). Chris Hammond (2-0) gave up one run on five hits in seven innings.

Pirates 7, Expos 3

In Montreal, Barry Bonds and Andy Van Slyke hit two-run homers and Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run double.

Van Slyke hit his third homer in the first inning off Bill Sampen (1-1). Bonds, the NL MVP, hit his first home run of the season in the eighth against Steve Frey.

John Smiley (3-0) won despite allowing nine hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 2

In St. Louis, Felix Jose got three more hits.

Jose hit a two-run triple, a double and a single. He scored two runs, stole a base and raised his average to .345.

Bob Tewksbury (2-1) outpitched Rick Sutcliffe (1-1). George Bell and Jerome Walton homered for Chicago.

Bill Walton of UCLA set a record by scoring 44 points in the 1973 NCAA basketball title game against Memphis State.

Clemens shuts down Blue Jays, 3-0

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Even if Roger Clemens loses his appeal, and he probably will this week, the Boston Red Sox have been big winners.

By delaying a five-game suspension, Clemens has gotten off to another fast start and the favored Red Sox have followed him into first place.

Clemens extended his scoreless streak to 30 innings Tuesday night, shutting out Toronto for seven innings and leading Boston to a 3-0 win and its sixth straight victory.

Clemens (4-0) gave up five hits, struck out seven and walked four. Elsewhere, Seattle tied a team record by winning its eighth straight game, 2-0 over California. Oakland beat Minnesota 7-5, New York downed Detroit 5-0, Chicago bopped Baltimore 10-4, Texas topped Milwaukee 6-5 in 11 innings and Kansas City defeated Cleveland 6-0.

Commissioner Fay Vincent looks like the only one who can stop Clemens. Vincent is expected to rule shortly on Clemens' five-game suspension and $10,000 for last year's histrionics in the playoffs and likely will uphold American League president Bobby Brown's penalties.

In the meantime, Clemens has pitched 32 innings this season and given up only one run (an 0.28 ERA). He has struck out 34 and walked one.

"I'm throwing as well as I have to right now. That's the key," Clemens said. "All my games have been pretty close and there isn't much room for error with a 1-0 lead. You can't let a guy hit the ball out of the ballpark in that situation."

Jeff Gray worked the eighth and Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for his fifth save. Denis Boucher (0-1) took the loss.

Wade Boggs homered for the second straight game and Mike Greenwell also hit a solo home run. Mariners 2, Angels 0

Scott Bankhead, coming back this year from his second shoulder surgery, pitched seven strong innings.

Bankhead (1-1) gave up five hits, walked none and struck out three, and Russ Swan relieved for his first save.

Seattle scored twice in the first off Scott Lewis (1-1).

Yankees 5, Tigers 0

At Yankee Stadium, Don Mattingly ended the longest home run drought in his career at 312 at-bats and Dave Eiland and Steve Farr shut down Detroit on four hits.

Mattingly had not homered since last May 20 before connecting for a solo shot in the first inning off Frank Tanana (1-2). Mattingly missed six weeks late last season with back trouble.

Athletics 7, Twins 5

In Minnesota, Terry Steinbach hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Jose Canseco stole home.

Rookie Kirk Dressendorfer (2-1) gave up six hits in 5 1-3 innings. Dennis Eckersley allowed Greg Gagne's leadoff home run in the ninth, but settled down for his fifth save.

Steinbach hit his first home run of the season off Mark Guthrie (0-2). White Sox 10, Orioles 4

In Chicago, Frank Thomas, Robin Ventura and Craig Grebeck hit home runs as the White Sox waited out a two-hour rain delay.

Joe Orsulak and Tim Lulett homered for Baltimore.

Thomas hit his second home run in two days, a two-run shot in the second inning. He hit a two-run double in the fifth that chased Dave Johnson (1-2).

Jack McDowell (3-1) gave up three runs on eight hits in eight innings. Royals 6, Indians 0

In Cleveland, Storm Davis pitched his first shutout since 1985 and Kirk Gibson homered.

Davis (2-1) gave up five hits, walked none and struck out three. Gibson hit his fifth home run of the season off Eric King (1-2). Warren Cromartie added three hits for Kansas City.

Rangers 6, Brewers 5

In Milwaukee, pinch hitter Mike Stanley's suicide squeeze in the 11th inning lifted Texas over the Brewers.

Nick Capra drew a one-out walk from Chuck Crim (1-1) and moved to third on an Brian Downing's single. Dan Plesac relieved and Stanley bunted the second pitch.

Goose Gosage (1-0) got two outs for his first victory since Sept. 7, 1989, with the Yankees.

Knicks face simple task

By The Associated Press

The New York Knicks' playoff task is simple.

All they have to do to get past the first round is slow down the NBA's leading scorer, win at least one game in one of the toughest places in the league for visiting teams and beat the best team in the Eastern Conference - which whipped them four straight times during the regular season.

Sounds simple, right?

"We know we're up against a superior team," Knicks coach John MacLeod said as his club prepared for its playoff opener on Thursday at Chicago against the Bulls, whose 61-21 record was the best in the Eastern Conference.

At least the Knicks are getting healthy. Gerald Wilkins, a key to the their 12-2 surge that was the high point of their season, is back after missing three weeks with a sprained left ankle.

Shumate plans ND interview

DALLAS (AP) - Southern Methodist University basketball coach John Shumate says he is interested in the vacant head coaching job at Notre Dame and plans to interview for the job.

But Shumate Tuesday told the Dallas Morning News he is "not looking for a job."

Notre Dame Director of Athletics Richard Rosenthal called SMU Director of Athletics Forrest Gregg Tuesday seeking permission to talk to Shumate. Rosenthal then contacted Shumate to ask about his interest in the job, which opened up last week when Digger Phelps retired.

Shumate, an All-American at Notre Dame, told Rosenthal he was interested.

But MacLeod said Trent Tucker, the team's best 3-point shooter and defensive guard, will be in the starting lineup attempting to guard NBA scoring leader Michael Jordan.

"Gerald has been out three weeks and it's tough enough to guard Jordan when you're 100 percent healthy," MacLeod said. "Tuck has been on the floor. He's been in the playoffs before and he's looking forward to it."

In the other Thursday night games, the team's best 3-point shooter and defensive guard, will be in the starting lineup attempting to guard NBA scoring leader Michael Jordan.

Golden State at San Antonio, Utah at Phoenix and Houston at the Los Angeles Lakers.

The other three series start Friday with Atlanta at two-time defending champion Detroit, Seattle at Portland and Indiana at Boston.

No matter who guards Jordan, the Knicks face a formidable task after a regular season that ended 39-43. They were 0-4 against the Bulls, blowing a 23-point lead at home in one game they ended up losing by 10 points.

"I've had plenty of time to rest," said Wilkins, whose 13.8 average was third on the team. "Now I've got five games to just go crazy. I'll have to be ready to play 30 minutes or more."

Kiki Vandeweghe, who missed the final regular-season game with a sore back, also expects to play. Center

Patrick Ewing will return after missing practice because his wife, Rita, was giving birth.

MacLeod is hopeful but realistic. "We're not going to beat them three straight, but we're not going to Chicago to get our tails cracked," he said. "In order to have success, we're going to have to play at their level for 48 minutes."

Boston, seeded second in the East, has to be happy that its series against Indiana doesn't start until Friday. That gives Larry Bird's back an extra day of rest.

But coach Chris Ford didn't know on Tuesday whether his star forward would be ready to go.

"He feels a little bit better than he did (Monday) and it's still on a day-to-day basis," Ford said. "When he's ready, he'll play and he'll practice as well. I don't know when that will be."

The Celtics were 10-12 in the 22 games Bird missed this season. They were 46-14 in the others. Bird missed seven consecutive games before returning for Sunday's season-ending loss to Atlanta and sat out practices Monday and Tuesday.

"We haven't been that successful without Larry, but I think we have the ability to be successful," Ford said. "Our offense this year has been well distributed. We had six guys score over 1,000 points."

National appreciation week

Local volunteers to be honored Friday

A salad supper, hosted by the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Board of Directors, will be held to honor volunteers Friday as part of the national celebration of Big Brothers/Big Sisters Volunteer Appreciation Week which concludes Saturday. "Throughout the year volunteers give unselfishly of their time as Big Brothers and Big Sisters. The lives of boys and girls in this community are enriched by their caring," said Alva Lee Peeler, executive director of BB/BS, in announcing the Volunteer Appreciation Week event. The special week is celebrated nationally to pay tribute to the many volunteers who give of their time for the benefit of at-risk children. There are more than 490 Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America affiliated agencies throughout the United States. Locally, BB/BS of Hereford provided services to 55 children in Deaf Smith County through the involvement with a BB or BS volunteer.

"We are grateful for our current volunteers, but we need even more men and women to join with us," said Alva Lee. "As the number of one-parent households rises, there are many more children who need the friendship of a big brother or a big sister. We always have a few children who are waiting to be matched with volunteers."

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford was founded in 1975 and has offices in the Y.M.C.A., located at 500 E. 15th. The telephone number is 364-6171.

The cornerstone for the Lincoln Memorial was laid in Washington, D.C., in 1915.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. My granddaughter and I have decorated cookies together for the last nine years. Please tell us how to color egg yolk successfully for painting cookies before baking. Mrs. M.O.P. and C., Scappoose, OR

A. Blend an egg yolk with 1/4 teaspoon of water. Divide this among several custard cups. Add drops of your favorite food colors to the egg yolk mixture. You can make more than just basic colors by combining food colors. To make lavender "paint", add one part red coloring and two parts blue. For turquoise, mix one part green coloring and three parts blue. For gold, mix one part red coloring and about 20 parts yellow.

Community promotion series comes to end of two-year run

Articles designed to inform, boost county's pride

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Today marks the 104th week and the end of the "Hustle Hereford" series, a weekly Hereford Brand feature that began the first week of May 1989 and has been published every Wednesday the past two years.

The in-depth articles were aimed at promoting community awareness of the many good things Hereford has going for it, and some of the leaders who have played a role in the development and progress of the area.

The series is believed to be the first of its kind—unique in that it was not packaged as a commercial endeavor of the newspaper, and that it was published without a break for two years.

A group of community leaders and the newspaper united to produce the promotional series in hopes of raising the level of community pride.

When the newspaper introduced the series two years ago, we said: "Our community seems to have lost some of its famous 'Hustlin' Hereford' attitude that we've been noted for over the years and we, as a newspaper, want to call attention to the many good things we've got going for us."

But the feature articles did more than focus on the positive side of business—they informed, entertained and provided a background on local business success stories. During the two-year run of articles, more than 500,000 words and more than 500 photographs were published about the business community. After first appearing in The Brand, many stories were picked up by national newspapers, magazines and wire services.

"I checked with at least a half-dozen editors and publishers of national newspapers and magazines and not a one could recall of anything like this ever being done in the United States," said Orville Howard, the free-lance writer who authored the "Hustle Hereford" series.

"As a matter of fact, one Houston editor said it was nothing short of a miracle in getting community leaders and a newspaper to work so close together over a long period of time for a common goal," added Howard.

Mike Cochran, a veteran feature writer and investigative reporter for the Associated Press, Dallas bureau, said he had never heard of any such community promotional in his career as a wire-service writer. "First of all, I've never seen a series of such articles run for so long a time in Texas and, secondly, I've never seen such teamwork where the writing was supported by businessmen and the editing and publishing handled by the newspaper."

Cochran is an award-winning writer for AP and has specialized in hard-hitting series on controversial issues and capital murder cases. He was most recognized for his news coverage and book on the famous Cullen Davis murder trial.

Chip Brown, another AP writer from Lubbock, wrote a feature article on the "Hustle Hereford" series in the summer of 1990 after spending a couple of days in Hereford interviewing some of the people Howard had written about.

"In my 30 years as a writer," said Howard, "I've never seen such cooperative work between a community and a newspaper than this series of feature-length articles." A longtime reporter for the Amarillo Globe-Times, Howard served as city editor from 1972 to 1981.

"The Amarillo paper ran a series for about 20 weeks back in 1973, but even that feature promotion was geared to advertising. They also had a number of reporters writing the stories and had more typesetters than the entire staff of The Hereford Brand."

Though the "Hustle Hereford" series involved more than a dozen Hereford community leaders and The Brand staff, credit for the idea must be attributed to one man—James W. Witherspoon, a lifelong Hereford attorney and one-time district judge who has been of the greatest boosters of Deaf Smith County for the past 50 years.

"This whole idea was actually spawned 30,000 feet over Washington, D.C.," said Howard, in recalling the very conception of the series. "Mr. Witherspoon had commissioned me to fly to New York to handle some publicity for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Restaurant that was opening there in February 1989."

"So, as the pilot dipped the plane a bit to show off the nation's capitol, Mr. Witherspoon tapped me on the shoulder... 'When we get back to Hereford, let's try to do the same thing about the various businesses of Hereford.'"

"Do what?"
"You know, the same thing we're doing on the Hall of Fame...lots of promotional feature stories." No more was heard of the proposal until mid-

March when Howard received a phone call from Witherspoon... "Ready to come over to Hereford and start writing? I just talked to Bob Josseland and Speedy Nieman, and they said they'd support the idea."

Witherspoon then put together a volunteer coalition of Hereford businessmen—cattle feeders, seed dealers, insurance executives, bankers, commodity brokers, food factory executives, utility executives and individuals in the medical profession.

They called themselves the "Enthusiasm" group and had an initial goal of bringing about greater unity of the area through a series of positive stories about progressive people of the Golden Triangle. It was agreed that Howard would be employed on a part-time basis to write a feature-length story each week, and The Brand agreed to publish the articles.

There were no contracts or written agreements—everything beginning to end was handled with only a handshake by all parties involved.

The features covered the full economic spectrum of the Greater Hereford area—from the billion-dollar cattle feeding industry to homespun needlecraft that has received national acclaim in designer quilts. In a related field, Howard wrote about a jacket and cap factory that ships to the far corners of the nation, and then touched on the green-thumbs of the retail greenhouses.

Features on the Hereford steel fabricators, however, was one of those picked up by the national and international wire services, with the new car dealerships catching much local readership...and then there was the trendy touch on a Hereford firm that manufactures replicas of vintage cars.

The entire series dwelt heavily on Hereford life-styles, pointing to the positive side of life, rather than the negative. And a general theme of a unified Hereford was found in every story...from a "mom and pop" retail store on Main Street to the 10-digit sugar beet industry of the turnrows. At many intervals between newborn business and the old guard, the articles pointed to a number of economic horizons that could be scaled...providing Hereford moves on a unified front.

Stories on the Hereford food factories also caught national attention, running side by side with the beef industry in gaining coverage position of the national press.

The vast seed industry around Hereford was a key segment of the series, with a number of the articles showing that Hereford, among other things, is the Cattle Feeding Capital of the World, hub of the richest agricultural center in Texas and second in the nation, center of the largest sugar beet production in the Southwest, home of world champion cutting horses, home of national champion cowboys and hometown of more national organizational presidents (per capita) than any other town in America.

Howard noted that the articles on the Hereford financial institutions were an integral part of the articles. "No matter whether you're a big spender shooting for big deals or a wage earner trying to make ends meet on Friday night, banks play a very important role in nearly everyone's life." The series also dipped back to the beginning of Deaf Smith County 100 years ago, with the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum taking a prominent spot in the promotional program.

Howard wrote about the professional world—insurance agents, CPAs, veterinarians, singers, artists, and a couple of newspaper men. He found a lot of new adjectives in the dress shops, with words on the sporting goods store bringing back memories of earlier years in the reporting field. And recollections of Hereford's volunteer fire department came easily for a police-reporter of another time and another place.

In the middle of it all came stories on the city airport, a bowling alley, service stations, factory outlets and Saturday-night shindigs. And the "rags-to-riches" story of an itinerant field family caught the hearts of hundreds—a man who went from a labor camp kitchen stove to head one of the largest Mexican food manufacturing companies of the nation.

HUSTLE HEREFORD

Howard also wrote about a dryland wheat farmer who made a run for a dream in building one of the finest natural food factories in the world. Hereford's own meat packing plant became a segment of the food factory stories, which also included the largest carrot processing plant in the state, and a colorful story on exotic vegetable production. He topped off this menu with an article on potato packing sheds and the local dairies.

But all of the stories on business were not just on business—each and every article brought but the best of the men and women who built it...the human side of the industry. Like the recount of Hereford's family blacksmith shop where men still hammer out a reputable lifestyle on an anvil just a block from Main Street.

Key points of community service were brought out from time to time in the articles about the big, big world of Hereford, Texas. The YMCA was featured in a full-page article, while the United Way was featured in another.

Howard said one of the most impressive segments of the series was in the lifestyles of Hereford's senior citizens. "I've written of hundreds of towns from Canada to Mexico and I've never seen anything for the elderly that would even come close to Hereford's Senior Citizen Center and King's Manor...Hereford should be highly complimented for efforts put forth in taking care of their own."

But Howard wrote best about what he knows best—the farm and ranch industries, segments on the old West. Howard was reared on an Oklahoma farm near Logan and graduated from Darrouzett High School in 1947. He graduated from West Texas State University in 1958 with a double major in journalism and geology. He joined the Globe-News in December 1958 as a police reporter, was named farm and ranch editor in 1962 and then left for a stint with The Record Stockman.

He returned to the Amarillo paper in 1967 as farm and ranch editor and, during the next two years, was in charge of the regional department, oil department, business department, then was named assistant city editor. He was named city editor in 1972 and served there until resigning in 1981 to go into contract feature writing.

Howard continues his work as a contract writer for national publications, with writing studios at 2920 Duniven Circle in Amarillo and at his country home 20 minutes west of Amarillo. He has four children—Leslie of Dalhart, manager of XIT Feeders; Kenton of Bishop Hills, safety engineer for Farmland Industries; Wade of Midland, a petroleum engineer for Texaco; and Cheryl of Canyon, housewife of a Randall County rancher and farmer.

Article after article in the Hustle Hereford series reflected Howard's background as he told of the turnrows and the cattleguards, wheat and grain production, food corn, sugar beets, vegetables and a dozen exotic crops.

Beef industry stories not only held the spotlight in the series but also caught the cover pages of a half dozen national publications...articles which traced the infancy of the Hereford beef boom in the early 1960s to its maturity into a billion-dollar business of the 1990s. The articles also followed the same pattern in the vast sugar beet industry, from the vision of a few far-sighted Hereford leaders to one of the largest beet processing plants in the world.

Witherspoon was no stranger to Howard when he did the Cowgirl Hall of Fame publicity. Howard, as farm and ranch editor for the Globe-News, had followed a Hereford delegation across the nation as the group sought to bring sugar beet processing to the Texas Panhandle. And Howard was on hand when the Hereford Feedyards was organized in 1960, writing the first feature newspaper article about custom feeding pioneers of Hereford.

"During the course of an interview with Mr. Witherspoon not long ago," said Howard, "he told me he had either organized or help organize 94 companies or corporations in his lifetime. And his experiences were as varied as the profession he served...such as getting stuck with a circus in South Texas, a zinc mine full of water and snakes in Missouri, swapping a wheat crop for a truck that had no engine, taking on (in court) the entire U.S. Department of Agriculture over an international wheat deal, and winning a court battle against one of the largest oil companies in the world."

But despite his far-flung interests in both the professional and business worlds, Witherspoon's lifelong ambitions were to build a better Hereford—goals known to all who know him.

And the concept to pump some enthusiasm into the community through some positive feature stories to be published here and elsewhere was another stepping-stone in Jim Witherspoon's long walk of progress through the heart of Hereford.

James W. Witherspoon
a leading booster for 50 years

Accent on Health

Texas health officials have announced that the number of Texas babies reported born with syphilis more than doubled in 1990. Congenital syphilis, in infants younger than one year, increased in 1990 by 123 percent over the previous year.

The rise in reports partly results from changes in national reporting methods. However, it appears that more Texans had syphilis in 1990 than in any other year for decades, according to Joe Pair at the Texas Department of Health (TDH). Pair is director of TDH's Sexually Transmitted Disease Control Division.

"In 1989 (latest national data), Texas ranked third in the nation with 95 reported cases of congenital syphilis, behind Florida and New York," Pair said. "It's a real tragedy because this serious, sometimes deadly disease can be prevented. Suffering from syphilis, especially of babies born with it, is needless."

During 1990, some 300,000 women in Texas were tested for syphilis during pregnancy. About 800 were treated for syphilis, preventing several hundred cases of congenital syphilis in their babies.

For all of 1990, there were 210 reported infant (young than one year) cases of congenital syphilis in Texas. Statistics show that the mothers of these babies were typically single, minority women (younger than 24. About 71 percent (141 cases) were Black, 21 percent (44 cases) were Hispanic, 85 percent (166 cases) were single, 40 percent were 20-24 years old and 33 percent were 19 or younger. Some 65 percent (124 cases) received no prenatal care.

Pair explained that a pregnant woman with syphilis can be treated and cured to prevent her baby from being born with the disease. The sooner syphilis is discovered and treated with penicillin, the better the chances are of preventing health problems or death for the unborn baby. Of the 210 reported cases of congenital syphilis reported through December 1990, 42 were stillborn.

"Babies die needlessly from syphilis. A significant number of cases are stillborn," explained Pair. "It's that serious, fatal in some cases. Such problems as lack of prenatal care, teen pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, lack of education and drug use are all interrelated."

A newborn acquires syphilis from his or her mother's blood during the pregnancy or at birth from lesions in the mother's genital area. Texas law requires that all pregnant women be tested for syphilis during their first prenatal visit to the doctor and at the time of delivery. But, according to Pair, many women who have syphilis are poor, uneducated and frequently never seek prenatal care. Therefore, the disease often is not detected until routine blood tests at birth.

Pair said that some of the 1990 increase in reports can be attributed to a change in surveillance case definitions by the Centers of Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta. Before September 1989, some medical personnel waited to report a diagnosis of syphilis in a baby until the baby was 15 months old. The reason: a diagnosis of syphilis cannot be made with absolute accuracy until the baby begins producing his or her own antibodies and the mother's antibodies are destroyed (at age three to six months).

But research shows that the 15-month reporting delay has sometimes hampered accurate reporting. To improve surveillance, CDC now asks that medical personnel report all infants born to mothers with untreated or inadequately treated syphilis as "presumptive" cases of congenital syphilis, regardless of the babies' blood test results.

"You can't identify a problem and do something about it if you don't know there's a problem. A lot of cases go unreported," said Pair. "But with these new CDC guidelines, more cases will be reported and cured. Many states will see an increase in the reported number of congenital syphilis cases because fewer cases will be missed."

In 1990, Pair said, 5,165 cases of infectious syphilis (a 21 percent increase over 1989), usually found in adults, were reported in Texas. The increased use of drugs and trading of sex for drugs has contributed to the spread of syphilis as well as other sexually transmitted diseases. "It's a situation that doesn't have to be. Syphilis is completely and easily curable," Pair said.

Syphilis has been termed the "great imitator." The disease can have no symptoms at all. If symptoms exist at the first stage, they can include a painless, temporary chancre sore or lesion at the point of sexual contact. Second-stage symptoms can be a rash on the palms of the hands or the bottoms of the feet, loss of hair, and/or inflamed mucus patches. Later stages create cardiovascular and neurological problems.

"If you think you may have syphilis or any other sexually transmitted disease, by all means, go to your family physician or to a public health clinic, or to a sexually transmitted disease clinic in your area," Pair urged. "All pregnant women should receive prenatal care-including syphilis testing-as early as possible in their pregnancies."

What's "moo"? Summer jackets and hats for cows! Not only do they beat the heat, but they look cool, too.
 Mosaku Sakurai, an agriculture professor in Tokyo, says he has developed straw jackets with matching straw hats to help cows keep their cool in the summer. The three-piece outfit covers the head, back and stomach to shield cows from the sun and insects.
 And if the cows stay cool, Sakurai says, they produce more milk. That's why their hats and jackets are made for the shade.

State of the art facilities

The obstetrics area of the Deaf Smith General Hospital is now located in the east wing. Kenneth Cook places new light fixtures in the hallway of the redecorated area where new ceiling have been installed. The move to the new location will be cost effective as well as accommodating patients comfortably.

Obstetrics facilities remodeled at DSGH

Beginning May 1, babies born in Deaf Smith General Hospital will spend their first few days with mom in brighter, more modern surroundings. The hospital has moved the obstetrics area to the east wing and has given the area new ceiling, paint and wallpaper.

The OB area will accommodate up to six patients per day. Currently the department averages two to four patients a day. As of March 30, 133 babies have been born in Deaf Smith General Hospital. The physicians who handle deliveries at the hospital include Dr. Gerald G. Payne, Dr. Howard Johnson, and Dr. D.E. McBrayer.

Donna Kemp, RN day supervisor and OB department head, said, "It is important for regional hospitals to provide state of the art facilities for local deliveries. The move to the east wing will accommodate patients comfortably as well as being cost-effective."

By relocating OB and closing the old area, the hospital will save on staff and housekeeping.
 Gary Moore, administrator of DSGH, said, "This move will enable us to make better use of our staff and facility. Today's hospitals must be especially aware of sound fiscal management in every area of operations. We will continue to look for areas that we can fine-tune and streamline, thus assuring area residents of continuing quality health care at the local level at the least cost to area taxpayers and patients."

"After taxes" dinner held by Velea Study Club

Members of Velea Study Club met April 15 in the Kinsey Parlor of First Baptist Church for their annual "after taxes" dinner with husbands as guests.
 Those present were attired for the occasion in appropriate clothes to show what they had left after paying taxes. Francis Crume and Della Hutchins tied for first place with their costumes.

 Following a meal of salad, beans, cornbread and cobbler, the group played "42."
 Attending the event were Messrs. and Mmes. Bill Bradley, Frank Zinser, George Ritter, Gid Brown, John Seiver, Bill Sisson, Lloyd Crume, Buryl Fish and Hutchins and Betty Dickson.

Exercise important during pregnancy

Probably no woman who is concerned about her health and fitness would relish the thought of taking a nine month break from physical activity.

At one time, this is what a pregnant woman might have done. Fortunately, today we know that regular exercise during pregnancy can have many benefits.

Women who stay active during pregnancy often feel better about themselves, are less tired, and have fewer discomforts, than women who do nothing. How active you can be during pregnancy depends on your health and how fit you were before you became pregnant. In general, you can continue to exercise and take part in most sports if you taken special precautions.

Here are some guidelines for a safe workout:

-Always warm up for at least five minutes before beginning intense exercise.

-Maintain a regular workout schedule (about three times per week).

-Avoid jerky, bouncy, or jarring motions or activities that require rapid changes of direction.

-Stay away from deep knee bends, double leg raises, and full sit-ups to prevent injury to the tissue connecting your leg and back joints.

-Don't exercise intensely in hot, humid weather or when you are feeling ill.

-Avoid overheating. Drink plenty of water both before and after exercising during your workout if you feel dehydrated.

-Keep track of your heart rate and don't let it exceed 140 beats per minutes.

-Avoid exercise on your back after 20 weeks of pregnancy.

-Cook down for a five to 10 minute period after your workout.

-Stop exercising if you experience pain, dizziness, bleeding, shortness of breath, faintness, irregular or rapid heartbeat or other unusual symptoms.

Walking, swimming and low impact aerobics are all good activities to help you stay conditioned during pregnancy. Jogging can be done in moderation if you were used to jogging before you became pregnant and you avoid becoming overheated. Tennis is generally safe for those who played the sport before pregnancy, but be aware that your change in balance may affect rapid movements.
