Lions Enjoy Readings By Miss Roberts

Billie Jo Roberts entertained members of the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday at the regular noon meeting with two readings, both of a human-interest nature.

Her first reading was entitled, How We Hunted a Mouse, and met with such popular approval that she gave an encore number the story of one small lad's effort to rid his dog of fleas. Miss Roberts is a student in the Hereford schools, and proved herself an accomplished entertainer.

Prospects for a good wheat crop in this area continued to appear unusually bright this week as the month of March drew to a close—with a total of 1.40 inches of rain during the 31-day period.

While dust storms failed to appear with the regularity of last year, the moisture also came as a surprise to many residents of this section. Generally speaking, wheat is looking good in every section of this county, according to farmers and old timers who

Scenes At Community Easter Hunt

The scenes above were snapped Saturday at Hereford's first Community Easter Egg Hunt, sponsored by the Lions Club, and made possible through the cooperation of Hereford merchants. Hundreds of boys and girls entered the big hunt, and few were those who failed to find some Easter eggs in the joyful scramble over Lake Park and Mother's Park.

Boys and Girls Throng Parks to Make Hereford's Easter Egg Hunt Success

Hundreds of eager children last Saturday swarmed over Lake Park in less than an hour to find 5,000 Easter eggs—and to mark the success of Hereford's first annual Community Easter Egg Hunt. Following the hunt, 500 of the eggs were turned in at stores over Hereford for prizes which totaled $100.

Sponsored by the Lions Club, the hunt followed a special Easter show at the Star Theatre Saturday morning. The show was attended by 500 pots, who gained admission for three Easter eggs. In addition to the 1,500 eggs secured at the show, the Hereford Brand furnished 3,500 candy eggs, and the chamber of commerce donated 300 eggs, which were colored by the Boy Scouts. With a few exceptions the prize eggs were paid off by local merchants.

Generally proclaimed an outstanding success, the hunt will become an annual affair, sponsors said. In some cases where merchants failed to take up the prize eggs, however, they were presented more than one time for payment.

In addition to the boys and girls who attended the hunt, there were also numerous parents who accompanied the children to view the scene. Smaller children were placed in Mother's Park, and the larger boys and girls scoured Lake Park.

Miss Nell Wyche of Wichita Falls has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Dow Mercer.

Moisture Boosts Crop Hopes

state that continued moisture in April will definitely assure a good yield.

All farmers who are using irrigation are in high spirits, and many dry land farmers state that they will make some wheat—even if they fail to get another drop of rain. A few scattered fields were reported to have blown in parts of the county, however, but not more than in years when exceptional yields have been made. Moisture readings for March

Main Street To Be Reproduced On Pioneer Day

Old Main Street—as it looked years ago—is one of the major projects to be reproduced in Hereford on Pioneer Day, May 10, according to the announcement of Mrs. Egbert Brady, publicity chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Cecil Williams, who has charge of reproducing the street in a special display at the stock barn, today sent out a call for suggestions and assistance from old-timers.

"We would especially like to have some pictures of Main Street in early years," she said. She also asked old-timers to make suggestions of especially well-remembered stores along the street, or other ideas which will make the exhibit a success. Persons who can assist along this line were asked to either see or write Mrs. Williams.

Working with the hope of making Pioneer Day the most outstanding in history this year, the club is planning numerous displays and special attractions. They have asked the cooperation of every person in the county, and will visit rural communities in regard to contributions to the display.

Special Meeting Tuesday

A special meeting of the Band and Orchestra Parents organization has been called for 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, April 6, at the high school. Announcements urged all parents to attend since important business will be discussed at the session.

Project Gets Approval By Federal Head

REA PROGRAM CALLS FOR 115 MILES LINES IN COUNTY

Rural electrification for Deaf Smith county was assured Tuesday, when John M. Carmody, administration head, wired the government's approval of the project.

The telegram, received by H. V. Hennen, chamber of commerce secretary, read: "Glad to advise allocation of $135,000 for project Texas 47, Deaf Smith has been made. Letter follows."

Congressman Marvin Jones and Morris Sheppard wired congratulations the same morning.

Develop Irrigation.
Climaxing many months of work on the part of Mr. Hennen and other county leaders, the rural electrification program is calculated to develop irrigation and industry more than any other possible movement. Specifications for this county called for 115 miles of power lines, which are calculated to serve 221 farm homes for domestic and irrigation purposes.

Delayed for several months, the REA project approval put new life into farmers and business men of this section. Hinging upon the rural electrification project has been an extensive Rural Rehabilitation program upon which the government proposes to set up model farm units. Immediate action is expected to result along this line following the letting of the REA project.

Many Improvements.
Commercial development is also expected to follow the installation of the electrification lines as irrigation results in crops of such nature that will demand canning plants and other industries.

Although complete details were not available, it was supposed that a reasonably low rate, resulting in the approval by the government. Persons will pay for the lines over a long period by small additional charges on their power bills each month.

Something shook her; some dark fear beset her. "You shan't!" she cried defiantly; and then, seeing his frown, already repentant: "Oh, Father, can't you see that he and I have to be the ones to decide? "Nonsense," he retorted. "You're too young to decide anything." And then, urgently: "Nancy, don't you realize that Mr. Jerrell wants to marry you?" "He doesn't!" she denied. "I know—" "You know nothing, Nancy," he retorted in a deep exasperation. "You're a wittless child. I tell you, Mr. Jerrell—" He checked himself, spoke more calmly: "Ira has spoken to me, Nancy," he said urgently. "He came to me, like an honorable man, to ask what my attitude would be. Yes, he wants to marry you. And, Nancy, he is my good friend. I am under many obligations to him." She was aghast now with deep anger, and cried in furious score: "You mean you want to use me to repay him?" Her wrath warned him to caution. He spoke in the tone of one who reasons with an unreasonable child: "I mean only that I think you ought to treat him with ordinary courtesy," he said. "The courtesy to which a strong man's devotion entitles him. I only ask that you defer any decision until you have had time—" She was cold, trembling. "I'm sorry," she said. "I can't pretend!" "Can't? You mean that you won't!" he corrected stiffly. "I mean I won't, then!" she assented. There was silence. Then he said, half to himself, in a hushed tone:

"It might be better for Dan, and for you, to be a little reasonable." She cried, in a quick terror: "Father, you mustn't try to scare me! That isn't fair!" He looked at her for a long moment with eyes she had never seen before; then the flame in them died and he managed a wary laugh. "I'll talk to Dan," he said. "He has some common sense." "You shan't do anything to Dan!" she exclaimed. "You can't scare Dan. Or me!" And he reassured her with the words: "I'm not trying to scare you, dear. Just to talk some reason into the stubborn little head of yours. You and Dan are in love, swept away, lost to all sensible considerations." She backed away from him, and her hands raised as though to push him from her. "No, no," she cried in a whisper; and then, desperate, seized on a reckless expedient: "You can't do anything to stop us. It's too late!" she exclaimed. His eyes widened in shock and then in wrath. He was over the net in one bound. He gripped her arm like a vise, dragging her toward him. "What do you mean?" he demanded. "I mean we're married!" she cried. "Let go, Father! We're already married. So it is too late for you see."

CHAPTER VIII

Nancy that night did not come down to dinner. She could not bear to face her father. That mask of anger which she had seen upon his countenance left her sick and shaken with a fear she could not name. She stayed in her room, sent word that her head ached. At dusk from very weariness, she slept, and dreamed and woke cold and terrified; and thereafter she lay wide-eyed in the darkness. After a long time she heard her father getting up, and then he opened the door into her room. Entering, he said gently: "Awake, Nancy? Feel better now?" His tones were soft and reassuring. "Yes, Father," she murmured. He sat down on the edge of her bed and touched her hand. "I came to tell you I'm sorry, dear," he said, smiling, his tone humble. "Forgive me." She whispered piteously: "You mustn't ever scare me, Father." He repeated: "I'm sorry. You're all I've got now, Nancy!" And he urged, pleading in his own defense: "But since your mother died, my nerves—" "I know," she confessed. "I understand." There were sudden tears in her eyes; she loved him and pitied him. "I do understand. And I didn't mean to—defy you, Father. Only, Dan and I—" He asked quizzically: "Are you two youngsters really married?" She shook her head. "No, I just—said that because I was desperate. I was—fighting for everything I want, Father. We're not, no." She added quickly: "But we will be."

"What is it?" Dan asked. "Hear something?" her cheeks faintly flushed. She felt this scrutiny and asked disarmingly: "Mr. Jerrell? Is he coming?" "I'm afraid you and I won't get much work done over the week end," Doctor Greeding confessed. "Dan and Nancy will be absorbed in each other, so we must keep Jerrell entertained." "We'll go meet him," Nancy volunteered. "Dan and I." But her father shook his head. "Nonsense! Mary Ann and I will do that." And when presently they rose from the table, he said: "Nancy, you and Dan perforate a few targets. We'll join you after we fetch Jerrell." He asked Dan: "Ever try pistol-shooting, Dan?" "Some, yes," Dan confessed. "I used to belong to a club. I rather like it." (Continued next week)

HAVE WE LEARNED OUR LESSON?

The experiences of life are many and varied. Some of them make impressions so deep as to appear permanent. But really impressions are as chalk-marks on a blackboard, made today and erased tomorrow. Economic conditions of one day are forgotten the next. Man repeats his mistakes because impressions do not stick.

ing in half an hour." "Thank you, Thomas," Doctor Greeding assented. He was watching Mary Ann, saw that her eyes were brighter, settled in a simple, inevitable pattern. Jerrell and Mary Ann! Jerrell and Mary Ann! He remembered small incidents, forgotten words, each one trivial, yet in their sum enough to confirm the truth of what Nancy had said. Jerrell and Mary Ann! But if Nancy had been free, Jerrell would have never turned to Mary Ann. And Nancy would have been free, but for Dan. Dan! On this rock his plans were shattered, then. Then he walked calmly toward the house. He went to his room and opened a drawer in the bureau, and took from its holster the pistol there. Nancy that night did not come down to dinner. She could not bear to face her father. That mask of anger which she had seen upon his countenance left her sick and shaken with a fear she could not name. She stayed in her room, sent word that her head ached. At dusk from very weariness, she slept, and dreamed and woke cold and terrified; and thereafter she lay wide-eyed in the darkness. "I know," he assented. "And I know you would—do as I wish, if you could. But I know that love can be too strong for a girl, for a woman." He added, watching her: "For a man, too." "Yes," she said gravely. He laughed, in an abashed fashion. "I'm in a confidential mood tonight, Nancy. Don't blame me, too much; but you know, men—even men of my age have sometimes thoughts, dreams, hopes they can't control." And he asked slowly: "Do you understand what I'm—confessing, Nancy? What dreams I'm telling you?" She whispered: "Yes, I think I've guessed before." "Do you blame me terribly?" She pressed his hand. "Poor Father," she whispered. He bent to kiss her brow. "But of course," he said ruefully, "since she and Jerrell—" He left the sentence unfinished. "So I've only you, Nancy." And, "Sleep sweet," he bade her. "Good night." "Good night, Father." The door closed behind him, and darkness wrapped her close. But not terror now. His magic had worked its miracle. She was at peace. She slept till full dawn, and woke refreshed; her father joined her for a swim and breakfast afterward. The interminable morning somehow sped. Dan and Mary Ann would arrive on the noon train, and Nancy insisted that Doctor Greeding come with her to meet them. It was a fifteen-minute run in the fast boat to the landing by the station. Nancy kissed Mary Ann, kissed Dan only with her eyes and then they went down to where the boat was moored, Dan and her father carrying the bags, stowing them in the after cockpit. Her father took the wheel. Mary Ann was beside him, and Nancy and Dan sat just behind. In a moment they were in the open lake; and Nancy leaned secretly to Dan, to kiss him. Her father said with a chuckle over his shoulder. "You two showed an admirable restraint, to wait so long." His tone was amazed and kindly. Dan was startled, and then he laughed. "Nancy has told you about us, then, sir?" "Of course." Nancy held tight to Dan's arm, and the young man said: "I want to talk to you about Nancy, while I'm here." Doctor Greeding chuckled. "This brother of yours has a fine old-fashioned courtesy in him," he told Mary Ann. "Not many young men trouble to consult the girl's father nowadays." Mary Ann smiled happily. "Dan has been very well brought up," she agreed. They were at lunch when the telephone rang, and Thomas took the call. "Mr. Jerrell, sir," he reported. He will be at the land-

Tremendous progress has been made in poultry raising the past three decades. Both in chick feeding and in chick management have new and important discoveries been made. Before 1900 chicks hatched out into a world where bugs, worms, weed seed, corn bread, rolled oats, table scraps and clabber were the chief starting feeds. Only the strongest had a chance to live. They were hatched and brooded under hens. More than half died before they were six weeks old, and those that did live seldom weighed more than a pound at six weeks. In 1900 commercial scratch feeds for chicks were first placed on the market. Chicks fed these feeds showed an improvement over those on the bug diet. In 1904, a leading feed manufacturer brought out a laying mash for hens, which many poultrymen used as a starting feed. Although not intended for them, chicks came through the six weeks starting period far more satisfactorily on this feed. Sixty-five per cent of them lived with an average growth of three-quarters of a pound at six weeks. Henry Hastings made a trip to Lubbock Monday. It's The New Gleaner Baldwin

SEE ME TODAY ABOUT THE NEW CLEANER-BALDWIN COMBINE

AT THE HEREFORD NEWS STAND

THE GREATEST ADVANCEMENT IN COMBINE HISTORY

Since its introduction over ten years ago, the Gleaner Baldwin Combine with its spiral conveyor harvester unit and other advantageous features, has been heralded as the greatest improvement ever made in harvesting-threshing machinery. The improvements which are incorporated in the New 1937 Gleaner Baldwin Combine do not affect the fundamental principles in the cutting, conveying, threshing, separating and cleaning mechanisms, which have made the Gleaner Baldwin the universal favorite during the past decade.

The 1937 Gleaner Baldwin is truly the most modern, most dependable, most efficient and most economical Combine ever offered.

Thorough Simple Separation and Cleaning An Economy Feature

The separation in the Gleaner Baldwin starts directly behind the cylinder, where the bulk of the threshed grain falls immediately onto the first or thresher raddle bottom and rides between the raddle slats through the separator to the cleaner shoe, and grain and straw are not again mixed.

The straw is thrown back into the separator by the rapidly revolving cylinder, which is augmented by a three-wing beater—The threshing does not chop up or pulverize the straw.

After the straw has been worked through a series of three distinct processes of separation, few kernels have escaped, but as a last precaution the straw is deflected downward to the last raddle for final separation.

The Gleaner Baldwin has thirteen feet of separating and you will note the simplicity of the entire machine after you have seen it. The Gleaner Baldwin separators are as nearly all steel as possible to make them. With proper care in handling, Gleaner Baldwin Combines will last indefinitely. No expense has been spared in building them.

Other exclusive features of the Baldwin Harvester unit are Spiral Feeder blades which are a part of the harvester conveyor. Conveyor Feeder is practically indestructible, rain and moisture cannot damage it. The sickle is driven by cut steel gears running in a bath of oil, and is equipped with Timken Taper Roller Bearings.	GLEANER - BALDWIN RASP BAR TYPE CYLINDER The Bars of the 1937 Gleaner Baldwin Cylinder are drop forged steel with deep rasps and will give from three to five times the service of malleable bars. The cylinder, placed immediately back of the conveyor feeder, is one of the patented features of the Gleaner Baldwin. DEPENDABLE SAFETY CLUTCH Protection against breakage of the reel is assured through the action of the dependable friction clutch. This safety clutch is so constructed that should the reel come in contact with any unusual obstruction it automatically stops operation.	EXCLUSIVE BALANCING, RAISING AND LOWERING DEVICE The Harvester Thresher unit is pivoted to the main frame by large steel angle arms and the frame is scientifically cross-trussed, forming a sturdy support of sufficient strength to carry the harvester unit. GRAIN ELEVATOR IMPROVED A new type weed seed screen in the grain elevator deposits weed and other foul seeds in a sack held in place by a special holder, thus assuring clean grain.

The frame is made of structural steel, is scientifically braced and trussed and is easily telescoped for transporting the combine.	ADJUSTABLE SLIP CLUTCH The Gleaner Baldwin separator is driven by a double grip "V" belt running over steel sheaves. An adjustable tension slip clutch on this drive automatically protects the separating mechanism, should the raddles or other working parts of the separator come in contact with some unusual obstruction. STURDY WHEELS All wheels on the Gleaner Baldwin are mounted on heavy duty anti-friction bearings. These sturdy wheels assuring long life to the combine.	CLEANER SHOE The grain-tight cleaner shoe on the Gleaner Baldwin has been increased 6 inches in length and is of the end shake type, constructed of galvanized steel and is driven by eccentrics from both sides of the separator. SPECIAL TRANSPORT TRUCK When moving the Gleaner Baldwin combine, it is sometimes necessary to detach the harvester-thresher unit and mount it on a transport truck, especially when moving the combine over long distances.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation, which may appear in the columns of this paper, will be gladly corrected upon due notice of same being given to the editor personally at the office at 402 Main Street, Hereford, Texas.

A WORTHY MOVEMENT

Those who heard the High School Glee Club in the annual Easter cantata Sunday might realize the apex which these girls have reached. In addition to the personal achievement of the girls, the community was also rendered a distinct service.

While we are fortunate enough to enjoy such an organization, we often fail to fully appreciate such splendid work. The fact that the Hereford club has, from time to time, been awarded honors over this section indicates that they are far above the average.

No achievement is made without hard work. To Miss Thelma McMinn, their director, should go our appreciation. To the girls, themselves, we can not give ample thanks. Their achievement, however, is thanks within itself, for in being able to entertain the community in such capable and cultured fashion they have acquired a measure of success; an accomplishment which will go with them through life.

Are you a booster for the High School Glee Club? If not, think it over. Those girls are forging ahead in their work. They will appreciate a kind word—a pat on the back, and some personal praise, to which each of them are certainly entitled.

By Their Words AND OURS

Those who have wondered what causes the discords that rock the world, not to mention the tiffs that affects individuals, will be interested in hearing that Lord Maddox Ford asserts that it is all brought about by bad food. "People cannot be amiable with their fellows if they are not properly fed," says the writer, who adds, "when people have had cooking they have indigestion, and when they have indigestion, they pass bad nights, and wake up cold and empty in the morning. And they find no relief in their meals because the meals are bad." Now, those who disagree with the theory of Mr. Ford might try going without food for a day or so and see how it affects their dispositions.—Plainview Community Weekly.

panel was dismissed by the court. As no criminal cases were docketed for the term, there was nothing for jurors to do but go home. Two non-jury cases were scheduled to come before the court today.—Miami Chief.

So long as the Constitution and the Supreme Court remain living instruments, "it can't happen here." When they perish, the end of human liberties is near. "The week have lost their sanctuary.—Paducah Post.

In Saturday's poll on the repeal of beer, only two boxes in the county voted wet. They were Farnsworth 6-8, and Notla, 7-10. The total vote was 420 against beer, and 813 for legal sale. It was a light vote, considering the interest in the question and the active campaigning by both sides. It is very evident that many stayed away from the polls, not caring enough about the result to vote either for or against. According to latest information, it appears to be a certainty that this election will be contested on the grounds that the ballot was improperly worded.—Ochiltree County Herald.

Talkative Tillie says 1937 would be a lot easier year on husbands and visibility if feminine stylists would desert pancake hats for pancakes.—Scurry County Leader.

A LONG TIME AGO IN HEREFORD

(From The Hereford Brand, March 30, 1906.)

Down at Hart, natives woke up one morning the past week to find three inches of snow on the ground, and the poor cattle backed up against the North Pole for protection.

"The ground," remarked the editor, "is evidently wet clear through to China, and Deaf Smith will show the world something new in the agricultural line."

A total of $184.50 had been raised for the purpose of repainting the Panhandle Christian College dormitory here.

"Hereford will not be permitted to put on city airs for some time to come," grieved the editor, as he recorded a vote of 77 to 56 against the incorporation of Hereford.

Eli Dunlap had lost the seat of his cultivator. He did not so state, but it was suspected the plowing was rather rough without this seat, and Mr. Dunlap offered a reward for its return.

This region was rejoicing over the almost total absence of the usual spring winds.

(From The Hereford Brand, March 30, 1916.)

It was gratefully noted in the Brand that hog raising was becoming a major industry in this region.

Ham Lambert had been out of school for several days.

A windmill was soon to be erected at the cemetery, to be used in irrigating shrubbery.

The Brand was moving to its new home, and the management asked that if, the following week, the paper seemed more "weakly" than usual it would be because of the unusual conditions caused by the shift in location.

Quarterly Zone Meeting Held At Methodist Church Wednesday

On Wednesday, March 31, the quarterly zone meeting was held at the Methodist church, with Mrs. W. P. Nittler, zone leader, presiding. The program was built around "Making the Most Out of Life by Intelligent Service". The morning service opened at 10 o'clock. Rev. Biggs of Friona led the opening prayer. Mrs. D. W. Hawkins gave the welcome from the Hereford church and introduced the song, "The More We Get Together," which was sung by the entire group.

As an appropriate prelude to the devotional given by Mrs. J. O. Haymes of Amarillo, Mrs. A. C. Thompson played, "Take Time to Be Holy," on the violin, with Mrs. W. J. Stanford at the organ. Mrs. Hamyee cited Christ, Paul and Moses as strong examples of intelligent service. She closed her remarks with the challenging statement, "We are here; do we help or hinder?"

The theme discussion was divided into five parts: Study to serve intelligently in the church; Mrs. Lanham Dimmitt; Study to serve intelligently in spiritual life, Rev. Waldon, pastor of Y-L circuit; Studying to serve intelligently in soul winning, Mrs. Calloway, Friona; Study to serve intelligently in social service, Mrs. Plach, Bovina; and Study to serve intelligently through Christian education, Mrs. Lindop, Oklahoma Lane. Rev. Hardy gave a message in song, "Is that Somebody You?" Rev. T. C. Willett closed the morning service with a prayer and a covered dish luncheon was served at noon.

The afternoon session opened with a prayer led by Mrs. Gibbs. The devotional was given by Mrs. Hunter. A vocal solo, "One Life's Highway," was rendered by Mrs. B. M. Wiltshire. Roll call was answered by members giving the number present from each church represented. Reports were given and Mrs. J. O. Haymes gave a report on young women's work in the district. Mrs. D. W. Hawkins announced the presentation of three appreciation boxes as gifts from Zone 2 to Rev. Waldon, Y-L circuit, Rev. Johnson, Dimmitt circuit, and Mrs. Mattie Mae Swisher, in St. Anthony's hospital, Amarillo. Mrs. A. C. Thompson played a violin solo, "The Rosary." The closing prayer was made by Mrs. Addison.

Central School To Hold Meet

Central School is holding its track meet next Thursday night and Friday, April 1 and 2, 1937.

The choral singing and declamation will be given in the high school auditorium Thursday night. There will be about ten declaimers on both the white and maroon sides. The students will then march back to the school house, where the program planned for that day will begin. The winners of the different contests will be presented ribbons which will have the date and occasion printed on them. These ribbons will be printed by local merchants. The program planned for Friday will begin at 8:30 a. m. and last until 4 p. m.

Ford Doings

BY MRS. H. M. BENSON
About two inches of snow fell Sunday night and gave new hope to wheat farmers.

Cari Straffuss, Mrs. L. J. Straffuss, E. D. Ferguson, H. D. Hill and family were in Amarillo last Wednesday.

Clarence Canham and family have been ill with influenza the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Harris are staying with them.

A 42 party was held at the school house Saturday night. Mrs. Alice Dyer of Vega was awarded the quilt.

Bob Fullwood of Hereford called in the H. M. Benson home Sunday.

Miss Lara Kelly, Mrs. Benson and daughter attended church in Hereford Sunday.

Guests in the Carl Straffuss home Sunday were Messrs. and Mmes. L. J. Straffuss, Ted and Henry Rohrbeck of Sims.

Mrs. F. D. Ferguson entertained with a birthday dinner honoring her daughter, Elizabeth, Sunday. Games and an egg hunt were enjoyed by the children, conversation and 42 by the older ones. A shower of lovely gifts was received by the honoree. A decorated birthday cake centered the table, and jello, cake and cocoa were served the many who attended.

Children of this community thank all who helped make the Easter celebration possible Saturday. It was enjoyed by all who attended.

RESULTS

Results are queer things. They are always following some action of ours. But the bad part of it is that we do not stop and think about the results before we do the action.

THANKS

The F. H. A. club wishes to express their appreciation to the faculty and the senior boys for their splendid help in raising the money to help send representatives from Hereford High School to the State Rally at Fort Worth in April.

WRANGLERS AT WORK

The Wranglers sent two teams to Amarillo Saturday to the tournament for speech events. Viola Phillips and Mary Jane Morgan won their debate over White Deer.

SEEN ABOUT SCHOOL

The band marching every sunny morning. English III students memorizing poetry. Biology classes studying wood (not the kind in one's head).

IDEALS

How is this for an ideal boy? Howard Higgins, hair. John Hayes, eyes. Grant Fuller, complexion.

SENIOR PERSONALITIES

On that fatal day, April 13, 1918, incidentally on Friday, the 13th, Dorothy Jordan saw this cruel world. She was born in Carlton, Texas, and spent most of her school life there.

GUESS WHO

The last person described in this column was Mary Turrentine and Charles Wilson. Girl. She is short, not so stout, has big blue eyes, and curly hair.

BOY

He is tall, has blue eyes, a very smooth complexion, wears glasses, and is quite a ladies man. He is active in H-Y work, holds an office in that organization, is trying to graduate, and is a good sport and all-around boy.

BEGINNERS' TEAMS HAVE TILT

Friday afternoon, March 26, the two teams of younger girls coming out for spring basketball played their first matched games with Mr. Wilson as referee.

IT ISN'T EASY.

To apologize. To begin again. To admit error. To be unselfish. To face a sneer. To be considerate. To endure success. To keep on trying. To think and then act.
