Fellers named Brand's '91 Ag Man of the Year

Dick Fellers was named the 1991 Man of the Year in Agriculture at the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association banquet at the Bull Barn in Hereford on Saturday.

The banquet attracted almost 600 persons. Organizers said the banquet probably helped lift spirits that had been dampened by the worst sugar beet harvest in 22 years.

The keynote speech was given by Ray Wilkinson, a farm broadcaster from Raleigh, NC. Wilkinson told many humorous anecdotes he has gathered over the years.

"That was just what we needed, someone like Ray to come in and lighten the mood and get our minds off the bad things that have happened lately," said Bill Cleavinger, president of the TSBGA.

Fellers was honored by the Hereford Brand. The newspaper has honored a Man of the Year in Agriculture each year since 1977. John Brooks, managing editor of the Brand, presented a plaque to Fellers.

Fellers was selected by a jury of his peers, including all but one of the past winners of the award. Fellers and his sons farm 3,600 acres of sugarbeets, seed milo, corn and wheat in Deaf Smith County. Fellers has lived in Hereford all his life, and began farming on his own in 1964 after studying mechanical engineering at Texas Tech University.

Fellers, a member of First United Methodist Church, has served on the boards of Consumers Fuel Cooperative, Farmers Home Administration and the Hereford Cotton Gin. He is currently on the board of the TSBGA, West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative and the First State Bank of Happy.

Fellers' family came to Deaf Smith County in 1922, and Fellers bought his first land in 1974 and has steadily expanded it to its current size. Fellers used his engineering studies to build special equipment in the mid-70s, including 40- and 60-foot equipment, a 16-row planter and 16-row cultivators.

His family has helped through the year. He married the former Pamela Joan Walker on Dec. 23, 1958; she, their children, and his mother, Byrdie Fellers, have all played a crucial role in the farming operation.

"I was born in the Hereford hospital and I know there is no better town than Hereford, Texas," Fellers said. "I am proud to say I am from Hereford and I love all of you," Fellers said.

Past winners of the Man of the Year in Agriculture award include: 1977--Charles Schlabs; 1978--Jim Perrin; 1979--Carl Kleuskens; 1980--Donald Hicks; 1981--Bill Cleavinger; 1982--Carl Straffuss; 1983--Jerry Roberts; 1984--Bromman Brothers; 1985--F.L. Eicke; 1986--Nick Yosten; 1987--Raymond Schlabs; 1988--John Fuston; 1989--George Warner; and 1990--Bill Walden.

Dennis Printz, agriculture manager at Imperial Holly Sugar in Hereford, recognized members of the 1991 10,000 Pound Club. The growers averaged more than 10,000 pounds per acre harvested from their sugar allotments this year. Members of the group include Jerry Hardin, Factory Northwest; McLellan Farms, Friona; Circle C Farms and MWH Farms, Bovina; Bridges and Riley, and D&D Farms, Dimmitt; Rex Ramaekers, Nazareth; and Bobby Brunson, Kenneth Sjogren, Jackie Welch, and James and Tim Wilhelm, all of the Kress Region.

Cleavinger: next year will be better

The president of the Texas Sugarbeet Growers Association says there's a huge difference between 1969, when much of the area's sugarbeet crop was wiped out, and this year, when growers will lose at least $6 million on a bad beet year.

"In 1969, we started 10 years of decline," Bill Cleavinger said Saturday at the annual TSBGA banquet at the Bull Barn in Hereford. "This time, we're ready for next year."

Cleavinger told the crowd that beet growers were hit by the lack of a sugar program and problems within Holly Sugar Corp. The company shut down two major plants and considered closing the Hereford operation.

"This time we have the people and the company working together. We know these are going to be trying times for a while for us and for you. This time, though, we have an opportunity to make things better for all of us."

Holly will continue growth commitment

Sugarbeet growers attending Saturday's annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers heard from one of their own: Steve Reynolds, director of seed development and research for Holly Sugar in Colorado Springs.

Reynolds, a former grower in Worland, Wyo., said the company is strengthening its commitment to research and development in spite of a bad beet year in the Hereford area.

Growers in this region lost at least $6 million in this year's crop. An early hard freeze and heavy snow, followed by untimely rain and snow, turned many beets in the area into a mushy mess. Holly called off the harvest last Thursday.

Reynolds said it was the second year in a row Holly has lost an important crop. In 1990, the seed crop being raised in Oregon was also "burned" by a hard freeze. Holly lost 47 percent of its seed crop.

"We are an industry of survivors," Reynolds said. "...It is the learners who inherit the future."

Reynolds said Imperial Holly is still seeking acreage expansion and expansion of its operations. "We need to get to a critical size so we may

Thanks for the years

A plaque noting 24 years of service to the City of Hereford was presented Monday night to Bonnie Duke, who retires this month as city secretary. Reading from the plaque and presenting it during the brief surprise ceremony at the City Commission meeting, Mayor Tom LeGate extended appreciation to Mrs. Duke for her service.

City battling over low vs. local bids

By GEORGIA TYLER

Another chapter in a continuing debate over awarding contracts to out-of-town businesses was written Monday night when the Hereford City Commission gave a street seal-coating contract to an Aspermont company, but only after hearing an explanation of legalities involved.

During their meeting, commissioners also engaged a Dallas consulting engineering firm to conduct a feasibility study on incineration of solid waste and directed the city engineer, Bill McMorries, to prepare estimates for an assessment paving program on two streets.

For the summer seal-coating job, Liphon Construction of Aspermont was the low bidder, $1,670 less than the next low bidder, Appian Corporation of Hereford.

After hearing the report by City Manager Chester Nolen on the bids, with Liphon offering to do the work for $107,638, Commissioner Emory Brownlow questioned, "Why would it not be advantageous to go with the local contractor?"

Brownlow observed that "there's sure not much difference" between the low bid and the Appian bid, $109,308.

Mayor Tom LeGate asked City Attorney Terry Langehennig to brief the commission on state laws related to bids.

Langehennig quoted from the city charter and Texas statutes that specify that low bids must be taken by municipalities unless specifications offer exceptions.

"We'd like to have local bidders do the work but we can't structure the specifications to fit," said Mayor LeGate.

The discussion on the seal-coating bids came several weeks after the commission approved purchase of three pickups from an Amarillo dealer that submitted the low bid on three units.

Langehennig suggested that the city could seek an opinion from the Texas Attorney General on bid awards but commissioners declined to take that approach.

On motion of Irene Cantu and second by Silvana Juarez to accept the Liphon bid, Wayne Winget and LeGate voted with Cantu and Juarez to award the contract to Liphon. Voting against the motion were Brownlow, James McDowell and Roger Eades.

Bids for purchase of a garbage truck chassis drew less comment from commissioners as they voted unanimously to accept the low bid of $35,818 from Stevens Chevrolet of Hereford. Other bids were from Western International of Amarillo, $37,478, and Whiteface Ford, $40,528.

No bull: manure can be more than good fertilizer

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Area farmers, livestock producers and agribusinessmen learned the latest facts on using manure as fertilizer at a special meeting Monday at the Hereford Community Center.

The meeting was sponsored by the Texas Cattle Feeders Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The meeting attracted 107 persons.

Experts from TAES and producers who are using manure as part of a nutrient management program on their farms addressed several areas where manure can be used profitably.

Dr. John Sweeten of Texas A&M University in College Station said farmers, livestock producers, manure haulers and others must think of themselves as a team.

"You take the grain, produce beef, then return those nutrients to the soil when you use manure," said Sweeten, one of the nation's leaders in animal waste research. "Manure is a valuable product. You need to consider it as another harvest."

Manure is high in ammonia (NH4), which is eventually converted into nitrogen. Nitrogen is required by plants. It is usually applied through inorganic fertilizers such as anhydrous ammonia.

Manure has other benefits, according to Sweeten and others. It can create a better phosphate balance in the soil, and add other micronutrients; improve moisture retention and the soil structure; and can add needed carbon monoxide in many crops.

Sweeten addressed several drawbacks to manure usage cited in the past. Weed seed and the non-manure contents like rocks, concrete and pipe that have shown up occasionally were cited as major drawbacks.

Sweeten cited work being done in Australia, where he has been a consultant, that could help area producers. Australian producers have developed a screening process that filters out most non-manure contents.

Sweeten and others contend that the high temperatures generated in a manure pile kill almost all weed seed. Sweeten said temperatures in a manure pile are often 140 to 160 degrees F. That is hot enough to kill weed seeds.

Dr. Michael Hickey, a soil specialist from Lubbock, stressed the need for annual soil testing and development of a nutrient management plan. "A good nutrient management plan is the key," said Hickey. "Get your soil test done first before you do anything. Then you can work from that."

SWEETEN

Hickey also stressed that manure acts as "time release fertilizer." It would not be good for crops like cotton, sugar beets or potatoes, where an early, short-lived shot of fertilizer is best.

Randy Darnell, a Randall County farmer, said his program calls for using 15 tons of manure an acre for his corn crop; summer fallow; plant wheat in the fall; then add 10 tons of manure per acre and go to corn again.

His fertilizer cost has dropped to $26 an acre from $60 an acre when he was using inorganic fertilizers. Darnell stressed immediate incorporation into the soil after trucks have spread manure into the fields.

"It doesn't have to be deep, but it needs to be worked in," said Darnell. "I don't know what to tell you on how many times you have to plow. I know that if you're smelling it (manure) you're losing it (nutrients), and you need to plow again."

Investigation of judges' role asked

AUSTIN (AP) - Federal judges James Nowlin of Austin and Walter Smith of Waco should be investigated for allegedly acting improperly in ordering a state Senate redistricting plan, a member of a public watchdog group says.

Common Cause board member Lewis Earl said that Smith shouldn't have participated in the redistricting case because of ties between his brother and a Republican state senator who benefited under the court-ordered plan.

Earl, a lawyer from Post, also said that a further probe was needed into allegations that Nowlin, a Republican, was in contact with other Republican elected officials when considering the redistricting lawsuit.

The Texas attorney general's office has also started an investigation into questions about whether state Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio, helped Nowlin's law clerks in establishing the new Senate district boundaries.

"If this proves to be true, then, at the minimum, the image of impartiality and fair play that federal judges enjoy has been shattered," Earl wrote in a letter to the Judicial Conduct and Disability Commission of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The letter was released Monday.

Earl also noted that Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Tom Phillips, also a Republican, said that he spoke with Nowlin about the timings of hearings on separate redistricting cases.

On Monday, Phillips said he talked to Nowlin at the request of the other members of the state Supreme Court. "There was certainly nothing illegal or unethical about it. We did not discuss the merits of the cases," Phillips said.

Nowlin has refused to comment on the allegations. Smith did not return a telephone call from The Associated Press. Pierce also has not returned phone calls from the AP, but issued a news release last week denouncing the allegations.

Republicans were the big winners under the plan that was decided in a 2-1 vote by a three-judge panel. Nowlin and Smith ordered the plan, while 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Will Garwood dissented. All three judges were appointed by former President Ronald Reagan.

Last week, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a request by the state to block the plan imposed by Nowlin and Smith.

Those boundaries will be used for the March 10 primary and give Republicans their best chance ever in capturing a majority of the Senate.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause, said that Earl acted on his own in seeking the investigation. She also said the group believes that redistricting should be done by a commission rather than politicians.

Earl said that Smith's failure to excuse himself from the case "is short sighted, and does disservice to the federal judiciary."

Smith's brother, Jack Smith, is a political consultant who received more than $23,000 from state Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco.

Earl said the code of judicial conduct says federal judges should not be involved in cases that could affect their relatives.

The court-ordered plan greatly enhances Sibley's chance of being re-elected. "Certainly a senator's re-election in a safe Republican district, i.e., the one drawn by the federal court, could have a substantial effect on that senator's consultant," Earl said.

Holly announces 10,000-lb. Club for 1991

Eleven farms in the Imperial Holly Sugar growing region in the High Plains were members of the prestigious 10,000 Pound Club. The farms produced an average of over 10,000 pounds per acre. Japanese given warning by official WASHINGTON (AP) - A top Bush administration official cautioned Japanese auto makers to expect "a very negative reaction" if they back off their goals for sharply increasing imports of U.S. auto parts and cars.

And House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said that unless the Japanese face penalties for failing to meet the goals, "you'll never have the pressure you need to change the behavior."

The warnings came after Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa said in Tokyo on Monday that the figures announced during President Bush's visit - to import nearly 20,000 more American cars and buy an additional $10 billion worth of auto parts - were "a target rather than a firm promise."

Toyota Chairman Eiji Toyoda said his company "will study and consider the possibility of selling GM cars. It is too much to say we will actually sell them."

J. Michael Farren, undersecretary of commerce for international trade, said of those statements: "It may be a sign of backing off from the stated goals that they have unilaterally set for themselves."

"It is not unusual for Japanese government officials to make what looks like a fairly basic commitment and then qualify it heavily at a later date. This doesn't shock me," Farren said.

Still, he added, Japanese automakers should know there will be "a very negative reaction here in the United States if they don't expeditiously move to meet and exceed the goals."

The firestorm erupted as Japanese Foreign Minister Michio Watanabe arrived here for meetings today with top U.S. officials, including Vice President Dan Quayle, Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

On Wednesday, Watanabe is scheduled to attend a White House signing ceremony of an agreement for the Japanese government to buy U.S.-made supercomputers.

Bush took the heads of the Big Three U.S. automakers and other executives with him on his trade mission to Japan two weeks ago. Leading Democrats have charged Bush wasn't tough enough with the Japanese over their $41 billion trade surplus.

"Mr. Toyoda's comments show that Japan has no intention of opening its home markets to U.S. cars," said Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. "Japan's trade cheating in cars and other goods is steadily destroying the U.S. industrial base."

Riegle said Bush's decision to take his Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher rather than U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills demonstrated "the emptiness" of his trip to Japan.

Gephardt called the Japanese leaders' remarks Monday "another indication that when you use traditional methods we have used to solve the problems, it doesn't work well."

Gephardt is cosponsoring legislation to force Japan to eliminate its trade surplus by 20 percent a year over five years. If those goals were not met, quotas or other barriers would be imposed to limit Japanese cars exports to the United States.

Farren said the 20,000 figure was never included in the formal Japanese government statement - at U.S. request.

"We told them we did not want a number in there on autos," Farren said. "Frankly any number they might come out with would probably be low and not necessarily realistic."

But the goal of raising auto part imports from $9 billion to $19 billion by 1994 "was in the document the government put out," said Farren, who attended the Tokyo summit.

The $19 billion represented "individual commitments that the Japanese auto companies made in their voluntary plans," he said.

WTSU hosts summer job fair

Enterprising Individuals with at least one year of college education will have an opportunity to end the frustrations of a summer job search with a visit to the Summer Job Fair.

The annual event, sponsored by West Texas State University Office of Career Planning and Placement, the WTSU Recreation Club, the WTSU Residence Hall Association and the Amarillo College Student Job Center, is scheduled from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Monday Feb. 10 in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center on the WTSU campus.

Representatives from more than 50 companies, hospitals, summer camps and governmental agencies will be available to discuss summer employment and internship opportunities.

According to Gene Parker, director of career planning and placement at WTSU, employer representatives are looking for individuals with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests.

"Summer camps, including those offered to special and gifted children, employ a great many young people every summer," Parker said. "And agriculture agencies are looking for interns to work in areas of soil conservation, animal research and marketing. Opportunities extend to store managements, accounting and computer science."

"The opportunities are endless if you know where to look, and this summer job fair is a great place to start."

Parker advises individuals serious about securing a job to dress appropriately and to be prepared with resumes in hand.

Although the fair is of primary interest to job seekers, parents interested in visiting with camp directors and registering their children at summer camps are welcome to attend.

Admission is free, and the public is invited.

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) has warned that thousands of unwitting Texas parents may be buckling their infants and small children into safety seats which have been recalled by their manufacturers because of defects.

State law requires that all children younger than two must be buckled into safety seats while riding in cars. In addition, such seats must be approved by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). To be approved, each new seat model must pass federal crash-test standards for a child's safety in a 30 mph collision.

An emerging problem, though, is that many approved seats have been recalled by their manufacturers, usually because of defects they develop after a few months of use. Defects ranging from buckles which cease to work properly to flammable cushions have been common.

According to Steve Anderson at the Texas Department of Health, "Notices of the recalls, though mandatory, routinely go only from the makers to the wholesale and retail outlets--not to parents to may already have bought the seats.

"Consequently," Anderson said, "few parents are aware that even some of the most popular safety seats have been found unsafe, much less whether the specific model they own is on the recall list. Legally, the manufacturers must provide a repair kit, if the defect in a seat is minor; a substitute seat, if NHTSA has canceled its approval of a given model; or a refund of the purchase price."

Anderson is statewide coordinator of the Occupant Protection Programs of the TDH Public Health Promotion Division. He said that dozens of different models of child safety seats have been recalled by their makers in the past two years. "Several manufacturers have had at least some of their seat models recalled this year," he said.

Some seat makers have now gone out of business; he added. Yet there is growing evidence that defective seats--which should have been returned by retailers to their makers--are still being sold to the public.

"Our immediate concern is the safety of kids. We want to inform the public about whether the seats they own are on the recall lists, and we want to know which retailers are selling seats in violation of the recalls," Anderson said.

Anderson said that he is distributing lists of the recalled seat model numbers and manufacturers' phone numbers to call local health departments. More detailed lists, which also describe potential defects, are available in each of the TDH regional offices, as well as in the central office in Austin.

"We also are distributing copies of the list to each of our 256 Child Passenger Safety Seat Loaner Program administrators throughout the state, as well as to regional Public Health Promotion staff members," he said.

He urged anyone who is uncertain about the safety of their child's passenger seat to contact a local health department, a TDH regional office (see numbers listed below), or the toll-free Occupant Safety phone line at 1-800-252-8255. Callers should be ready to give the brand name of their safety seat, its model number and manufacture date, which is usually found on the side of the seat shell.

The TDH Product Safety Program also needs information about any Texas retailers known to be selling any previously recalled models of safety seats. Reports of such sales should be made to Charles Branton, director of the program, at 512-458-7519.

Anderson added, "So far we have not learned of any injuries or fatalities directly related to use of the recalled seats. But the potential for tragedy is real. Use of safety seats is not just a matter of choice. All 50 states have laws requiring millions of parents to transport babies and toddlers in NHTSA-approved safety seats.

"It is essential that we make sure that the seats available to Texas are, in fact, as safe as they are supposed to be," he explained.

TDH regional office telephone numbers are Region two Lubbock, 806-744-3577; Canyon, 806-655-7151.

Pampa shows it deserves ranking

The Herd's basketball trip to Pampa Saturday was mostly unsuccessful, as both of the varsity teams and only one of the five Hereford teams won.

The girls' junior varsity saved face for Hereford with a 36-27 win over the Lady Harvesters' JV. Otherwise, the news for Herd fans is bad: the Hereford boys' varsity lost to the top-ranked Harvesters 91-48; the girls' varsity lost 64-47; the JV boys lost 88-32; and the sophomore boys lost 69-49.

The varsity Harvesters wasted little time in showing why they are ranked number one in Texas Class 4A by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches. They scored first, then Hereford tied it at 2-2 on Derek Mason's lay-up. Hereford spent much of the quarter looking for its third point, as Pampa's relentless press gave the Herd fits and gave the Harvesters layups.

They led 32-8 after one quarter and 54-25 at the half, and they kept the press on until the final two minutes of the third quarter, when the lead had topped 35. The third quarter ended with Pampa leading 78-39, and without the Pampa press, the pace slowed in the fourth quarter.

"They're so quick on the press," Hereford coach Jimmy Thomas said. "We were real tight. A lot of times, we had their press broke and we'd fumble it out of bounds. That was the big thing."

"They didn't miss a whole lot of shots right off—inside or outside—and their press just ate us up. I think they deserve to be number one."

Leo Brown led the Herd with 16 points and Kyle Hansen added 10. Hansen also distinguished himself by drawing charging fouls three times. That gives him 15 for the season, eclipsing the record of 12 set by Andrew Tijerina last season.

"It's the way Coach Thomas says: 'It's the best defensive move,'" Hansen said, "and the best part of my game is defense."

The game was the Herd's first in district competition. They are now 5-16 overall.

The Lady Whitefaces were able to keep up with the Lady Harvesters through the first half. A late spurt by Pampa made their halftime lead 27-20. However, in the second half, the Lady Whitefaces started to feel the effects of playing the night before, Coach Dickie Faight said.

"The fatigue factor bit us in the late, third and fourth," Faight said, adding that though Pampa also played Friday night, it was tougher on Hereford because the Herd would need every bit of its press to win, but they couldn't keep it up.

Pampa came out of the third quarter with a 47-29 lead and held approximately that lead through the fourth quarter.

"Fatigue was one thing, and they've got great athletes," Faight said. "Nikki Ryan broke away from us. If you get a little tired, that girl can run right by you. She is an exceptional athlete."

"As a whole, their athleticism overpowered us in the second half," Faight said.

Jennifer Bullard led Hereford with 15 points, and Kyanne Lindley added 13. The team drops to 0-3 in district and 7-18 overall.

In the girls' JV game, Pampa took a 13-0 lead, but Hereford fought back. Hereford was still down 25-21 going into the fourth quarter but outscored Pampa 15-2 the rest of the way to pull out the win.

"They played really well," Faight said.

Jenifer Holmes led Hereford with 11 points, and Claudia Ramirez added 10.

The boys' JV trailed only 18-11 after one quarter, but Pampa scored 23 and 28 in the second and third quarters, while Hereford was limited to single-digit totals in the final three quarters.

Tim Burkhalter led Hereford with 14 points, and Corey Scott added eight.

The sophomores led 16-8 after one quarter and even led 29-28 at the half, but a 32-13 burst by Pampa in the fourth quarter decided the game.

"We played a good three quarters. We just couldn't make it all the way," Coach Key Harrison said.

All five teams play today in Hereford, all hosting Caprock.

The sophomores play at 4:30 p.m., the girls' varsity and boys' JV play at 6:30, and the boys' varsity and girls' JV play at 8.

Saturday was a bad day for other Hereford High School teams, as three freshmen teams faced Randall and one won.

Hacked in the act

HJH drums Dumas

The Hereford Junior High boys' basketball teams dominated Dumas Monday at HJH with four wins by an average margin of 25 points, while three of the four girls' teams got wins in Dumas.

The big blowout for the boys was the eighth grade Maroon's 59-19 win. Hereford outscored Dumas 19-2 in the second quarter and continued to roll up the lead throughout the second half. Marquise Brown had 16 points, and Joe Ricenbaw added 10.

"We ran a full-court press the whole (first) half, and in the second half, we came out with a half-court press," Coach John Nino said. "They just kept throwing the ball at us."

The eighth grade White took a 48-24 win. After a low scoring (8-2) first quarter, Hereford turned it on in the second to score 16 points to Dumas' seven, then topped it off with a 16-3 fourth quarter.

"Our kids played well defensively throughout the game," Coach Henry Perez said.

Todd Radford led the team with eight points.

The seventh grade Maroon team won the closest game of the night 33-22. They built a 24-6 lead at halftime, but Dumas got back into the game with a 10-5 third-quarter advantage but couldn't come back all the way.

"They couldn't handle our press at all," Coach Rodney Allen said. "Everybody got to play a lot, which is good."

Isaac Walker had 15 points for Hereford.

Herd tennis starts with win

The Hereford junior varsity and junior high tennis teams started their season Monday and combined to beat Amarillo's Travis Junior High 11-7 in Amarillo.

Hereford's girls swept all nine of their matches and the boys came up with two wins to seal the victory.

The girls with wins were: (in singles) Terri Reiter def. Nguyen, 7-6; T. Sublett def. Thanh, 6-1; Jamey Parker def. Patryca, 6-3; Traci Reiter def. Thanh, 6-4; (in doubles) P. Robbins/N. McWhorter def. Brianna/Khio, 7-5; Traci Reiter/T. Sublett def. Thanh/Nguyen, 6-4; Terri Reiter/Sherry Vermillion def. Thuy/Patryca, 6-3; N. McWhorter/T. Sublett def. Brianna/Khio, 6-2; and Sherry Vermillion/Jamey Parker def. Thuy/Patryca, 6-2.

The two wins from the boys were provided by B. Barrientos, who beat Hanh 7-5 in singles, and Tommy Munoz and S. Shaw, who beat Hanh/Johanny 6-3 in doubles.

Travis won the rest of the boys' matches (Hereford boys are listed second): (singles) Hieu def. T. Jerecki, 6-2; Isaac def. L. Perez, 7-5; Jon def. J. McWethy, 7-5; Johnny def. I. Martinez, 8-6; (doubles) Hieu/Hanh def. B.J. Lockmiller/Pete Vargas, 7-5; Isaac/Son def. Munoz/S. Shaw, 7-6 (9-7); and Isaac/Hieu def. Lockmiller/Vargas, 7-5.

The seventh grade White team won its game 46-21 after building a 25-7 halftime lead.

"We played as a team, and we played well," Coach Chris Christopher said. "I was pleased with them."

In Dumas, three Hereford girls' teams had no trouble beating the Impettes, while one lost by nine points.

"All the teams played extremely well," Coach Jane Radford.

The eighth grade Maroon team overcame a slow start to claim a 49-17 win. They trailed 7-6 after one quarter but stormed back to lead 19-13 at the half and allowed only four more points the rest of the way.

Brittney Binder and Krista Beville shared scoring honors with 12 points, and Heather Hodges added 10.

The eighth grade White won 32-14. Hereford won every quarter in this low-scoring, the best of which was the second, when Hereford had a 6-1 advantage. Carlotta Ruiz led the team with 12 points.

The seventh Maroon also won all of its quarters on the way to a 33-13 win, including a 6-0 fourth quarter. Three players shared scoring honors with eight points: Shawna Don Juan, Danielle Cornelius and Jennifer Jones.

The seventh White team got the loss, falling 32-23 after Dumas cut loose with 17 points in the second quarter to take a 23-13 halftime advantage. For Hereford, Kari Barrett scored nine points.

The Herd varsity tennis team starts its season today, at 3:30. It hosts Canyon at Whiteface Courts.

Hereford YMCA makes changes

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA held an open house Saturday to show off its new self. Many people took tours of the building, which were conducted by YMCA staff members and board members, and 22 paid for memberships, said Weldon Knabe, director of the YMCA.

The Y did some remodeling, including new paint on many walls, new tile floors in some areas and new ceiling fans, but one big change is new membership rates.

Previously, the Y has offered two different tiers of membership: the regular and the fitness. The difference was that the fitness membership allowed use of the weight room, sauna, pool and other features beyond the regular membership. The fitness membership also was considerably more expensive than the regular membership.

Now, there is only one membership type, and it allows use of all the YMCA's facilities under one price. That price is about 10 percent more than the previous regular membership, but significantly less than the previous fitness membership.

"We didn't want to be in a situation where we were an exclusionary organization," Knabe said. "We didn't want it to appear that only wealthy people could afford the fitness membership. We feel like we can involve more people overall by making memberships more affordable."

Also less expensive are racketball court fees, which have been cut in half, and towel service and locker-use, which are now free.

Another benefit of membership is that you can have a personalized fitness program designed by fitness director Dan Odell.

The building's hours have been shortened slightly, but the changes are on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, times when the fewest people were using the Y, Knabe said.

The Y now closes at 8 p.m. on Wednesday and Friday and 5 p.m. on Saturday, and it stays open until 10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The building opens at 5:30 a.m. on weekdays and 8 a.m. on Saturdays. The Y is also open Sundays from 1-5 p.m., except June-August.

Several new memberships were given away Saturday. Receiving three-month family memberships were William Gromowsky, Felipe Pesina Jr. and W.H. Kitchens. Alberto Martinez won a youth membership, and Jose Padilla and Sonja Satterfield won aerobics cards.

HERD

The boys' B team, playing in Whiteface Gym, held on to win its game 52-48. Hereford jumped out to a 13-0 lead, Coach Curtis Cotten said, but Randall came back with a small run of its own. "From there, we maintained an eight-point lead until the fourth when they got it to 44-42," he said. Randall moved to within one point with 20 seconds left, but the Raiders couldn't take the lead.

Michael Marquez led Hereford with 17 points, and Bubba Brock added 13.

The A team fell 62-57 after losing their lead early in the fourth quarter. Hereford took a 38-26 halftime lead on the strength of a 22-8 run in the third quarter, but then stumbled in the second half, getting outscored 16-6 in the third quarter and 20-13 in the fourth.

"We just didn't play as hard (in the second half) as we did in the first half,"

Coach Robert Gamboa said.

Michael Brown led the Herd with 15 points, Ashley Noland and Tony Mercer each had nine, and Raymond Alaniz chipped in eight.

The girls played at Randall and fell 46-24. "We got down really early and never made a move," Coach Brett Stegall said. Jessica Evers led the team with five points.

Wannstedt promoted

DALLAS (AP) - After learning that Dave Wannstedt would not be leaving, the Dallas Cowboys have promoted their defensive coordinator to assistant head coach.

He becomes the second assistant head coach under Johnson, who hired David Shula for that position as well

Spurs' Brown may, may not be fired

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - San Antonio Spurs owner Red McCombs apparently changed his mind about firing coach Larry Brown after attending a team practice, a television station reported.

But a spokesman for the Spurs says he couldn't confirm the media reports.

Matt Sperisen said by telephone from his home late Monday that he first saw the reports on San Antonio television station KSAT.

"I was just like a normal fan," Sperisen said. "I was watching the television this evening ... the anchor led off by saying 'Is Brown here or gone?'"

Sperisen said he didn't have KSAT, which broadcasts Spurs games in San Antonio, cited unidentified sources as saying McCombs fired Brown early Monday.

The station said McCombs blamed Brown for the team's recent losses to the Chicago Bulls and Boston Celtics. The two-time defending Midwest Division champions dropped to 21-17 on the road trip. The Spurs were 28-10 at the same point last year.

McCombs' home telephone number and couldn't reach Brown.

"This is typical Spurs communications where the right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing," he said. "We've done that on a few other items."

Brown then reported for a team practice and met with assistant coaches and team members for 2 1/2 hours behind closed doors.

Forward Sean Elliott declined comment about the meeting, except to say, "There was a lot of yelling."

"We had a lot of people today say a lot of things that needed to be said," assistant coach Gregg Popovich said. "You've got to face problems before you solve them. It was an unbelievably candid, honest and sensitive meeting and afterward we had our best practice of the year."

McCombs attended the 1 1/2-hour practice, after which he told Brown he could keep his job, the television report said.

KSAT said McCombs, when contacted by telephone, denied the story and said Brown will remain the Spurs coach "as long as he wants to be."

Ags go on after scare

DALLAS (AP) - Texas A&M has canceled its Wednesday night game against Texas Southern to give the Aggies more time to recover from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Aggies senior forward Anthony Ware, two assistant coaches and six other people were released Monday from a Dallas hospital where they were treated for exposure to the deadly gas.

Texas A&M coach Tony Barone put his team through a one-hour workout Monday afternoon, minus Ware and Derk Schwiager, who were still recovering from Saturday night's poisoning.

"We wanted to go out and try to get back to normal," said Barone, who had team physician Jesse Parr on hand. "We will not take a chance with the health of any of our players."

Parr said in the interest of the players' health, "I feel it would be better to postpone the Wednesday night basketball game until they are fully recovered."

Texas A&M's next game is Saturday against Rice.

The Aggies were overcome Saturday night when a heater system malfunctioned at Baylor's Ferrell Center in Waco before a game against Baylor. The nine treated in Dallas were the worst of dozens stricken when fumes invaded the visitors locker room and a hospitality room.

Ware and the others were released Monday after psychological testing and a night of observation, said Ellen Lytle, a spokeswoman at Humana Hospital-Medical City Dallas. Doctors said their prognoses were good.

All had been placed in a hyperbaric oxygen decompression chamber to speed their recovery Sunday, but Ware was removed because of a sinus infection, Dr. David Turner said. Ware received oxygen via a face mask.

Fumes entered the locker room when gusty winds and an open door caused a backdraft, sending exhaust gases that should have gone up a chimney down into the boiler room, Baylor spokesman Mike Bishop said.

The arena was evacuated and the game was postponed.

Nine 76ers beat Bullets

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers did not have much to work with. So, Charles Barkley, Hersey Hawkins and Armon Williams made the most of what they had.

The 76ers, limited to nine players because of injuries, still were strong enough to beat the Washington Bullets 99-91 Monday night.

Starting center Charles Shackleford was out with a pulled hamstring and Mitchell Wiggins did not play because of a sprained ankle.

Dave Hoppen, Brian Oliver and Jayson were already on the injured list for the 76ers.

"All I know is we won, and we're very glad to get out of there with a win," Hawkins said after his 24 points helped the 76ers at home.

In other games Monday, Boston beat Cleveland 107-102, New York defeated Indiana 107-102, Los Angeles stopped Seattle 116-110, Golden State downed Charlotte 135-119 and Miami beat Minnesota 121-106.

MR. BUMSTEAD!

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: When ordering or receiving food baskets by mail order, remember that in recent years, meats and poultry have become mailable due to better packaging techniques.

If you are ordering such foods to be sent as gifts, check on how perishable they are, the packaging (insulated container, cooling agent/dry ice, clearly marked "perishable") and the expected delivery date.

Also keep in mind that the recipient of a large food basket may need to save refrigerator/freezer space for it. And it's better to send food to someone's home instead of office because of possible mail delays or lack of proper refrigeration facilities.

If you have any questions about conditions or storage of meats or poultry received in the mail, call the USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. The hotline staff will be happy to answer your questions about the safety of meat and poultry. — Heloise

ADDRESS BOOK

Dear Heloise: A couple of years ago I bought a new address book and never got around to filling it in.

Last year when my Christmas cards started arriving, I cut out the return-address stickers and Scotch-taped them in the new address book. — Shirley Nissen, Sparks, Nev.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While our family was living in New York, the children attended a public school in a middle-class neighborhood. They were beaten up and robbed so many times they were afraid to leave the house. Finally I decided to keep them home and teach them myself.

This worked out very well. My children were much happier and they felt secure. I was a tough taskmaster and they learned a lot. After the first year, city officials informed me that I could not continue to keep my children out of school. They said a private school was a legal alternative. Unfortunately, I could not afford the tuition.

I then moved to Boston. Again, in a middle-class neighborhood my children were beaten up and robbed, not only on the streets but also in the school halls. I decided to keep them home after I discovered that one of my sons was carrying a knife to defend himself.

After several months, I gave up. Half the kids in that school carry guns. There were several shootings—two of them fatal.

This time I moved my kids to Canada, where the gun laws are much stricter. No school anywhere is perfect these days, but in Canada, I do not fear for the lives of my children every time they walk out of the house.

The pro-gun lobbyists in the United States have helped make life impossible for peace-loving citizens. A person can buy a gun as easily as he can buy a pack of cigarettes. Television programs show every kind of violence imaginable, and it is made to look exciting and manly.

If there are any parents left in the United States who care about the future of their children, my advice is to insist that public schools check all students for weapons on a daily basis and demand that American TV be cleaned up.

What a disgrace that I had to leave the country in order to find peace of mind.—No Longer Afraid in Toronto

DEAR TORONTO: Surely there are not gun-carrying kids in every school in New York and Boston. Could you not have moved to another neighborhood?

It's truly an outrage that there are guns in ANY schools. Does this have to be? I'd like to hear from some principals and superintendents around the country. Are there guns in YOUR school? What can be done about it?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a government employee who has worked in this office a short time so I don't know everyone by name yet. A pleasant young woman here asked me to sign a large, glittery home-made birthday card. I thought she was collecting signatures for someone's birthday so I signed it. She then pointed to the card said, "You can tape your dollar right here." I saw where others had done so and reluctantly took a dollar out of my wallet and taped it to the card which said, "Happy Birthday, Lisa," although I had no idea who "Lisa" was.

I then asked, "Who is Lisa?" She said, smiling "I'M Lisa!" I was so burned up I didn't say another word—just walked away. Now I'm sorry I didn't rip my dollar bill off the card and take it with me.

Have you ever heard of this gimmick before?—Panhandled in Baltimore

DEAR PANHANDLED: How tacky. For a few measly dollars that girl has ruined her reputation with everyone in that office. She must have popcorn where her brains belong.

NOTICE BY PUBLICATION STATE OF TEXAS

TO: BILLY JOE MCKINNEY GREETINGS: YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable 222nd Judicial District Court, Deaf Smith County, Texas, at the courthouse of said county in Hereford, Texas, at or before 10:00 o'clock a.m. of the Monday next after the expiration of twenty (20) days from the date of service of this citation, then and there to answer the petition of Texas Department of Human Services

Said child was born on the 7 day of November, 1980 in Durant, Oklahoma.
The Court has the authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child's interest which will be binding upon you including but not necessarily limited to, the termination of the parent/child relationship, the determination of paternity, and the appointment of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.

CITY

Larry Stone of NRS Consulting Engineers of Dallas presented an outline of a study that would determine economic feasibility of installing an incineration system for solid waste.
A facility in the East Texas city of Carthage, Stone told the commission, reduces solid waste volume by as much as 97 percent.
With new rules on landfill for garbage disposal to be implemented in less than two years, Stone said,

MANURE

Robert Diller of Hereford has been using manure in a compost program for many years. He began his own business, Natural Fertilizer Company, five years ago to manufacture compost for other farmers.
Diller explained how he uses a mixture of manure and other natural ingredients to make the compost. He uses a special agent of bacteria derived from soil to speed up the nitrogen-making process in the compost.
"When you spread compost you are inoculating your farm," Diller said. "You need to think of the soil as a living, breathing thin. It is not like a pot to hold up plants. It is a living thing that can do a lot of work for you...This is like spoon feeding your crop."
TAES and TCFA are working together to increase manure usage by area farmers. Besides the natural benefits, feedyards are looking for ways to safely reduce their stockpiles of manure. Producers received tips on how to avoid runoff from manure into playa lakes and other waterways. Although continuing tests have shown that manure has not led to leaching unwanted chemicals into the underground water supplies in the region, that continues to be a concern of state and federal government officials.
Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Dennis Newton said TAES and TCFA began working on the plan in March 1990 and will continue working with area livestock producers and farmers to address their mutual needs.

HOLLY

have a large impact on the marketplace," Reynolds said.
Reynolds said Imperial Holly is continuing to invest in its staff, material and resources. He pointed out the $13 million iron exclusion plant added to Holly's Hereford plant in 1991 as an example of the major investments. Imperial Holly has also beefed up its develop, research, seed technology and agricultural information services.
"Through all of this, the company knows where the wealth really is: on the land," he said. "The company is treating you (growers) as partners because we all share in the sugar dollar. The company is paying significant attention to that and that is very important as we go into the future."

During the meeting, JoAn Dwyer, executive director of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, reported on activities during the last year.
She said that in addition to funding from the city, Deaf Smith County and donations, adjoining counties that use the center's services will contribute to the $60,000 budget. The center also receives $25,000 from a state source.
In other business, the commission approved specifications for city police cars and a dump truck.
expense of incineration may be less than other methods of waste disposal. Commissioners voted unanimously to engage the engineering firm to prepare the feasibility study at a fee not to exceed $4,800.
A request for paving on two street will be decided after the commission hears a report from McMorris on city costs of the project. Property owners on two blocks of Knight and 650 feet of Norton would be assessed their share of the paving expense.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.
Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.
Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.
Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise. It's an integral part of our lives.
Newspaper. It delivers.

Microwave Mexican makes good food

In today's world, a big drawback to most authentic Mexican cooking has been the time it takes to make it. But no more. Now you can explore real South-of-the-Border tamales, for instance, by making them in a fast, untraditional way - in your microwave oven.

For these hot tamales, chorizo (chor-EE-so), a Mexican pork sausage, spices up the filling. You'll find chorizo in Mexican specialty food stores. If you're using corn husks for wrapping the tamales, soften them quickly in your microwave. In a pinch, you can substitute hot Italian sausage for the chorizo and plain parchment paper for the corn husks.

Chorizo Tamales
 8 corn husks or parchment paper
 2 cups water
 1 and 2-3rds cups masa harina tortilla flour
 1 cup warm water
 2-3rds cup shortening
 1 teaspoon salt

1 pound chorizo or hot Italian sausage
 1 cup chopped onion
 1 cup salsa
 2 tablespoons raisins
 1 cup water
 Salsa (optional)

In a 3-quart microwave-safe casserole arrange husks; add the 2 cups water. Cover; cook on 100 percent power (high) for 4 to 6 minutes or until boiling. Let stand about 1 hour, or until softened. Drain; pat dry. (Or, cut parchment paper into eight 8- by 6-inch rectangles.)

Combine tortilla flour and the 1 cup warm water. Cover; let stand for 20 minutes. In a large mixing bowl combine shortening and salt; beat with an electric mixer on medium speed until fluffy. Add flour mixture; beat until combined.

In a 2-quart, microwave-safe casserole cook meat and onion, covered, on high 4 to 6 minutes or until no longer pink. Drain fat. Stir in the 1 cup salsa and raisins.

For each tamale, spoon 1 cup dough onto a corn husk or parchment wrapper. Spread dough on wrapper into a 5- by 4-inch rectangle, leaving 1 inch space at both ends. Spoon 2 rounded tablespoons of the filling lengthwise down the center of dough. Fold one long edge over the filling, overlapping about 1 inch. Roll up jelly-roll style. Tie ends.

Arrange tamales in a 12- by 7- by 2-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Add the 1 cup water. Cover with vented microwave-safe plastic wrap. Cook on high for 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is pulling away from the wrappers.

To serve, snip ties and unwrap tamales. If desired, serve with additional salsa. Makes 8 tamales or 4 servings.
