Messer will seek DSC seat

Roy Dale Messer, a former county Democratic Party chairman, has announced his candidacy for County Commissioner Precinct 3, subject to the upcoming Democrat primary.

Messer, 37, is a lifelong Hereford resident. He graduated from Hereford High School in 1973 and holds a BBA degree in finance from West Texas State University. He is president of Messer Enterprises Inc.

He and his wife, Marybeth, have four children. They are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford.

Messer served 2 1/2 terms as county chairman for the Democratic Party in Deaf Smith County.

Today is the last date to file for races in any party primary, unless the deadline is again extended by court order.

The previous deadline of Jan. 2 was extended by a federal court ruling. A state court ruling issued earlier this week could have an effect on the filing deadline, and on when the party primaries are held.

James McDowell, county chairman of the Republican Party, said earlier this week there had been no filings in that party locally. McDowell also said he would be resigning from his post immediately.

DPS will use laser

AUSTIN (AP) - There's both bad news and good news for Texas drivers who like to drive faster than the speed limit.

The bad news is that the Texas Department of Public Safety will soon use a new "stealth" speed detector that can't be picked up by conventional radar detectors. The good news is that the state is only getting one of them.

The new device uses a laser beam that can't be picked up by conventional radar detectors.

Officials say the new technology could put them one step ahead of speedy drivers, many of whom are equipped with expensive radar detection units.

"If we have a device which can clock speeders and they are not going to get a warning via their radar detectors, then it will be an effective law enforcement tool," DPS spokesman Mike Cox said Thursday. The devices cost about $3,700 each.

"Because of the high cost, right now we just don't have the funding to go out and get a bunch of these," Cox said. "Down the road, if we get bucks, we may get some more."

The first device is being donated by GEICO Insurance Co., which has 12 offices in Texas. The company already has given about 20 units to law enforcement agencies nationwide, and plans to hand about seven more to Texas law enforcement agencies in 1992.

DSGH using billboard to boost business

A new billboard on East U.S. Highway 60, just outside of Hereford, is part of the marketing program at Deaf Smith General Hospital. The billboard is designed to remind residents that many healthcare services are available from local physicians and at the hospital.

Bush: trip successful

TOKYO (AP) - President Bush flew home today at the end of a 12-day journey to Australia and Asia, proclaiming success in "leveling the playing field" in U.S.-Japan competition and winning jobs for Americans.

But executives from the auto industry, the supposed beneficiary of trade concessions squeezed from Japan after arduous negotiations, complained that too little was done to turn around Japan's huge trade surpluses.

Bush, speaking to reporters shortly after boarding Air Force One for home, said the trip had produced "major accomplishments" in further opening Japan's markets to U.S. goods. But he said "it will take a while for people to realize what did happen."

After his arrival in Washington this morning following a 12-hour flight from Tokyo, he planned to make a speech heralding the accomplishments of his trip to Australia, Singapore, Korea and Japan.

Democrats, however, were already saying Bush was returning from Japan empty-handed.

"Japan is offering table crumbs," Michigan Sen. Donald Riegle said in Washington. "They're obviously going to do the least that they can get away with. Unfortunately the administration just hasn't pushed them before and didn't push them very hard on this trip."

After suffering a sudden flu that led to his fainting at a Tokyo state dinner Wednesday night, Bush cut a planned speech from his schedule before leaving Tokyo today.

He said before his departure that he was feeling better and "I almost went running today, but then I thought, well, somebody would point out that I was overdoing it."

Japan was the centerpiece of his trip and the site of the most contentious issues Bush and his aides had to discuss as they sought to make a dent in the $41 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan.

Bush said the opening of Japanese markets was a way to help the moribund home front economy and create jobs through more exports.

"I think we have created jobs," he said. He declined to estimate a number but, citing a formula that $1 billion in exports generates 20,000 jobs, said Japan's pledge to buy more U.S. auto parts could mean 200,000 jobs.

Bush emerged Thursday with a loose pledge from Japan to buy 20,000 more U.S. cars per year, and to double purchases of auto parts, to $19 billion, by fiscal 1994.

Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa also was eager to put the trip in a positive light. "In the history of the human race, never before have two nations of such different history and culture deepened such a relationship of mutual interdependence," he said.

But the trade agreements will have little short-term effect on the U.S. jobless rate or the trade imbalance, which the Bush administration has blamed on Japan's closed markets. And both sides were left dissatisfied by the high-profile emphasis on trade problems.

Japanese negotiators contend the Bush administration is making Japan a scapegoat for America's inability to cure its own economic ills. Japanese accused Bush of violating the free trade practices he espouses by demanding Japan set import targets, and were upset by Bush's decision to bring along 18 American business executives to browbeat Japan into buying more U.S. goods.

Members of the business delegation were equally unhappy. They said a process that might eventually lead to progress had been begun, but there were at no significant steps in the agreements reached on this trip.

"We were not satisfied that the issue of the trade imbalance was fully addressed," said General Motors Chairman Robert Stempel, complaining that the Japanese did not respond to the automakers' proposal for a 20 percent annual reduction in the trade imbalance.

"There was some progress but it was definitely insufficient," said John Reilly, president of Tenneco, a major auto parts producer.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater passed out to reporters statements from the American paper and electronics industries praising the trade accord, which encourages more market access for paper, semiconductors and computers.

Lottery officials seek ban for some outlets

AUSTIN (AP) - Many sexually oriented businesses would be prohibited from selling Texas lottery tickets under a recommendation made by a citizen advisory panel.

The Lottery Start-Up Advisory Committee's recommendations will go to State Comptroller John Sharp, whose agency will oversee the lottery.

Voters approved a Texas lottery last November. Scratch-off tickets are scheduled to go on sale in July.

If the recommendation is enforced by state officials, businesses that offer services or devices intended to provide sexual gratification or stimulation would not be allowed to sell lottery tickets.

That could include adult bookstores, adult movie theaters, massage parlors, nude studios and adult motels. Bookstores, movie theaters or video stores that do not sell sexual devices or services, however, could receive licenses to sell lottery tickets, under the recommendation.

"It's really to protect the image of the lottery," said El Paso County Judge Alicia Chacon, a member of the panel. Committee Chairman Ken Oden, who is the Travis County Attorney, urged a prohibition of lottery ticket sales in sexually oriented businesses, because he said many of these enterprises are connected with organized crime.

But some committee members questioned whether businesses, if operating legally, could be denied the chance to sell lottery tickets.

"I'm not so certain that we ought to have an absolute exclusion," said William Taylor, an attorney from Houston.

Taylor asked the committee to give the director of the state lottery discretion in determining whether sexually oriented businesses could get a ticket-selling license. But that proposal was rejected, 6-4.

Mike Driscoll, who is the Harris County attorney, then moved that the ban apply to sexually oriented businesses. That passed 7-1.

13th District race erupts in big arguments

AMARILLO (AP) - U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius says he will meet Republican challenger Beau Boulter "head-to-head after every attempt to distort my record" in the race for Texas' 13th Congressional District seat.

It didn't take long for things to heat up between Sarpalius, an Amarillo Democrat seeking his third term in the House, and Boulter, an Amarillo Republican who announced last week he would attempt to regain the 13th District seat he held for two terms before stepping down in 1988.

Thursday, Sarpalius released voting records that show Boulter had the worst voting attendance in either the House or Senate in 1988.

The release of the records came on the heels of comments by Boulter that Sarpalius fits in the mold of a "do-nothing Congress." Boulter added Sarpalius is "not achieving anything" in the House.

The records released by Sarpalius - published in Congressional Quarterly, which documents all the votes in Congress - showed Boulter attended only 15 percent of the 451 recorded votes in 1988.

Boulter blamed his poor attendance on time spent for his unsuccessful campaign to unseat U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"It should be pointed out that his Democratic opponent (Bentsen), while running for the Senate against Boulter and for vice president at the same time, managed to compile a 74 percent attendance record that year," Sarpalius said.

"Being a real leader in Congress is much more than showing up," Boulter said.

"Sarpalius is like a school boy with a perfect attendance record, but he is flunking all of his subjects. He is not achieving anything," Boulter added after holding two press conferences Thursday in Amarillo and Wichita Falls to announce the race would have "no mudslinging."

Sarpalius said Boulter is an out-of-work career politician desperately seeking a re-entry into office. After Boulter was defeated by Bentsen in 1988, he bid unsuccessfully for a seat on the Texas Railroad Commission in 1990.

"Despite his promise to conduct a clean campaign, it is apparent Mr. Boulter is going to carry out the same distortions that previous Republican candidates for this job have attempted," Sarpalius said.

"I am going to meet him head-to-head after every attempt to distort my record and show the media and the public that he is just not truthful," Sarpalius added.

Harping on recent reports that the country is frustrated with incumbents, Boulter said Congress worked harder during his term than nowadays. "In the White House and in Congress, we had leaders of vision and courage, Republicans and Democrats, who made a difference. I was proud to be one of them," Boulter said.

"But today, Congress is filled with free-spending, nest-feathering, check-bouncing, highly-paid, tax-hiking, gerrymandering congressmen. And Sarpalius fits right in."

Another former congressman from the 13th District, Bob Price, will face Boulter in the Republican primary. Price, a Pampa rancher, represented the 13th District from 1967 to 1974. He was elected to the Texas Senate in 1979 and served a two-year term.

Russia, Ukraine bicker over navy

MOSCOW (AP) - The foreign ministers of the Commonwealth of Independent States met today on the contentious issue of dividing up the former Soviet military.

Control of the powerful and prestigious Black Sea fleet already is a major issue between Russia and Ukraine, the two most powerful former Soviet republics.

Dividing up the huge military has preoccupied the commonwealth states since the Soviet Union dissolved last month, and has prevented them from devoting their full efforts to developing new political systems. Today's meeting was closed, and details were not immediately available.

Up until now, the biggest struggle has been over the Black Sea fleet. The armada, consisting of 45 surface warships and 300 smaller vessels, has long been the pride of the Soviet navy and of czarist Russia.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin reaffirmed Thursday that he had no intention of giving any of the ships to Ukraine.

Ultimately, Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk put the dispute on hold by announcing a six-month postponement of his demand that the fleet switch allegiance to Ukraine, Tass and Russian television reported.

Kravchuk said Ukraine would agree to put the fleet under the control of the commonwealth as long as the ships carry nuclear weapons.

But after July, when the last of the nuclear weapons are scheduled to be removed from the ships, the fleet must belong to Ukraine, Kravchuk said.

In other developments:

-Russia's government announced that starting today, items in short supply such as certain food, alcohol, tobacco, fabric, shoes and household appliances cannot be sent to other former Soviet republics that have restricted exports to Russia.

-Moscow Mayor Gavriil Popov on Thursday accepted the resignations of almost all of the city's officials, and gave his vice mayor two weeks to form a new government to improve economic reform.

Kravchuk said Russian leaders were claiming the Black Sea fleet, based in Ukrainian waters, because they still do not treat Ukraine as an independent state, a sore point for the country, which was long under Soviet and Russian control.

Kravchuk, Yeltsin and the leaders of the other two former Soviet republics with strategic nuclear weapons, Belarus and Kazakhstan, have agreed to place all nuclear arms under a unified command.

When President Mikhail S. Gorbachev resigned in December, he gave the weapons' launch codes to Yeltsin. But Kravchuk has insisted that Ukraine have the right to block the launching of any nuclear weapons from its territory.

He said Thursday that a device soon would be installed in his office giving him the ability to prevent a launch, but not order one, Tass reported.

The weekly newspaper The European reported today that Ukraine has refused to hand over thousands of tactical nuclear weapons that it was to have transferred to Russia.

Herd JV, sophs start tourney with wins

Hereford's junior varsity and sophomore boys' basketball started the Hereford tournament with wins Thursday.

The sophomores picked up their first win of the season against the Levelland sophomores, 49-34. Hereford led 14-9 after one quarter and 24-19 at the half, then pulled away in the second half.

Coach Key Harrison said the team didn't do anything special or different. "We just executed better than we have been," he said.

Josh Tice led the balanced scoring with 11 points, followed by Justin Wright with 10 and Hayden Andrews with 8.

The Herd JV fell behind Sanford-Fritch 14-9 after one quarter, then blew open the game with a 26-12 run in the second quarter on their way to a 57-43 win.

"We made a little run at the end of the second quarter," Coach Oscar Rendon said. "The press just started clicking. We pressed the whole game; it just started working."

Greg Coplen led the JV with 17 points, and Angel Orosco added 12.

In other JV games, it was Pampa 43, Canyon 39; Caprock 51, Dimmitt 43; Levelland 48, Dumas 46; and Randall 58, Frenship 47. In other sophomore games, it was Caprock 52, Dumas 31 and Pampa 53, Tascosa 50. Both Borger teams had semester testing and were unable to make first-round games, Rendon said, so Estacado's JV and Amarillo High's sophomores advanced by forfeit.

Hereford's sophomores play Amarillo High at 4:30 p.m., and the JV plays Levelland at 6. All games are played at Hereford Junior High.

Hereford's freshman teams also played Thursday, dropping three out of four games to Tascosa teams. The girls played in Hereford, and the boys went to Amarillo.

Hereford's winner was the girls' B team, whose 15-6 advantage in the third quarter overcame a good start and a strong finish by the Lady Rebels. Hereford won 38-35.

"They ran a half-court trap that we handled pretty well," Coach Jill Harrison said. "It was just a good game."

Bree Perrin, Robin Chandler and Crystal Kelley each scored eight points for Hereford.

The girls' A team overcame a bad start (15-4 in the first quarter) and got back into the game (down 17-14 at the half), but fell short, 40-31.

"At the start, we fell behind 15-0," Coach Brett Stegall said. "We had a pretty long layoff, and we didn't come out and play with a lot of intensity. After that first quarter everybody did a good job."

Brooke Bryant led Hereford with 10 points.

In the boys' A game, a 77-53 loss for Hereford, Tascosa surged out to a 21-3 lead in the first quarter, and Hereford couldn't overcome that deficit. Michael Brown led Hereford with 17 points.

Hereford fell in the B game 72-61. The Rebels held only a 15-14 lead after the first quarter but expanded that to 37-23 at the half and cruised home. Raymond Alaniz had 19 points for the Herd.

Herd's start time changed

The Hereford boys' varsity game against Estacado in Lubbock tonight will be played at 7 instead of 7:45, Coach Jimmy Thomas said Thursday.

The girls' varsity opens district play tonight at 8 in Dumas. The JV teams start at 6:30.

Lions concern Redskins

HERNDON, Va. (AP) - Barry Sanders aside, is there really any reason for the Washington Redskins to worry about the Detroit Lions during the NFC championship Sunday?

The statistics say otherwise, but the Redskins are quite concerned about a team that has overcome injuries to win games they have been expected to lose.

"That team is red hot, and they have a runner that's like no other runner," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said as his team prepared for the Lions. "They've been playing super in the last 5-6 weeks."

Actually, it's been for the last seven. Since losing to the woeful Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Nov. 10, the once-lowly Lions have captured seven straight wins for the first time since 1962, with the exclamation point coming in last Sunday's 38-6 divisional playoff triumph over the Dallas Cowboys.

Unquestionably, emotion has played a huge role in Detroit's success, and Gibbs is worried because that is precisely the kind of intangible that is impossible to devise a strategy for. Offensive tackle Mike Utley, paralyzed from the chest down in a game against the Los Angeles Rams, has become Detroit's chief inspiration.

"The last thing he told me when he left the field when they put him on a stretcher, when he was going into the ambulance, was, 'Coach, don't let the guys get down,'" Detroit coach Wayne Fontes recalled this week. "So I told the team that, and they kind of rallied around that."

High five

Josh Tice (54) of Hereford's sophomore team shoots around a hand in his face in the Hereford Tournament Thursday. The sophomores beat Levelland 49-34.

Last Bill-Broncos game a wild one

ORCHARD PARK N.Y. (AP) - Thurman Thomas calls it "the craziest game I've ever been involved with." John Elway says it was "as drastic a turnaround in any game I've ever been in."

And nearly every member of the Buffalo Bills and Denver Broncos suggests that it turned around the 1990 season - positively for the Bills, negatively for the Broncos.

The game in question was the last one played between the two teams that meet Sunday for the right to represent the AFC in the Super Bowl Jan. 26 in Minneapolis.

It took place at the same site, Rich

Stadium, on Sept. 30, 1990, with the Broncos, the defending AFC champions, 2-1 and the Bills with the same mark.

It was, by many standards, one of Buffalo's worst performances of the season and one of Denver's best. But the Bills won 29-28 despite being outgained 410 yards to 197, largely because of what's known in Buffalo and Denver as "the 77 seconds."

It started innocently enough.

Leading 21-9 4:30 into the final period, the Broncos lined up for a routine 24-yard field goal by David Treadwell that would just about put the game away. But Nate Odomes broke through and blocked it and Cornelius Bennett scooped up the ball and ran 80 yards for a touchdown.

"That was a tribute to our effort," Buffalo coach Marv Levy said this week. "Normally on a short field goal like that, teams just make a half-hearted try for a block. But we broke through and got it."

That made it 21-16 and was only the start.

Two plays into Denver's next possession, a pass by Elway was tipped into the hands of Leonard Smith, who brought it back 39 yards

Cavs rally past Bullets for 10th straight win

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - The Cleveland Cavaliers' winning streak is at 10 games, thanks in part to the confidence they gained while building it to nine.

Down by 17 points after being held scoreless for more than five minutes, the Cavaliers rallied to beat the Washington Bullets 99-92 Thursday night. Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens said the victory could be partially attributed to the fact that his team never thought it would lose.

"I think when you're playing well, it always help you to come back because you know you can make certain things happen," Wilkens said.

After Washington used a 17-0 run to take a 40-23 lead, the Cavaliers tightened their defense and responded with an 11-2 spurt.

"We came back with our defense," said Cleveland's Larry Nance.

Mark Price scored a season-high 25 points on 10-for-16 shooting for Cleveland, but Nance was just as significant, getting 20 points and 15 rebounds in 41 minutes.

After Washington expanded its 50-46 halftime lead to 57-50, Price and Craig Fhlo each had six points in a 22-6 surge that gave Cleveland a 72-63 lead. The margin eventually grew to 78-66, and the Cavaliers held on.

The Bullets closed to 89-88 with 4:10 left, but Price hit a driving layup and Brad Daugherty made a hook shot in the lane to make it 93-88. Harvey Grant had 25 points and Pervis Ellison added 24 for Washington. Michael Adams made only four of 21 field goal attempts and finished with 13 points.

"It's not that frustrating to lose a game like this," Bullets coach Wes Unseld said. "That team is playing some of the best ball in the league."

Hawks 124, Mavericks 108
Dominique Wilkins scored 32 points, Kevin Willis had 24 and Atlanta hit all 28 free throws.

The Hawks never trailed, going in front for good on a Willis fastbreak layup to break a 2-2 tie 72 seconds into the game.

Atlanta built a 19-point lead in the first 9:30 on a Rumeal Robinson dunk that made it 32-13. Dallas, losing its sixth in a row, never got closer than 13 the rest of the way.

Derek Harper led the Mavs with 24 points.

Hornets 109, Kings 96
Kendall Gill scored 26 points and rookie Larry Johnson added 23 points and 16 rebounds.

Leading 97-90 late in the fourth quarter, the Hornets went on a 9-0 run to go up 106-90 with less than three minutes left. Sacramento failed to score for 4:47 in the final period, missing 15 straight field goals.

Mitch Richmond led the Kings with 23 and Lionel Simmons and Dennis Hopson had 17 apiece.

Longhorns bury Cougars in league opener

By The Associated Press

Benford Williams says the Texas Longhorns sent a message to the rest of the Southwest Conference basketball teams with their victory over the Houston Cougars.

Williams scored 21 points Thursday night to lead the Longhorns to an 86-75 victory over the Cougars in the conference open for both teams.

In the only other conference game Thursday night, Rice defeated Baylor 76-69 in an overtime contest.

"I think we made a big statement to the conference tonight," Williams said. "That was the important step, to win the opening game of the conference (season). The next time we go to Houston, the pressure will be on them."

Houston (10-3) led by 63-59 with 9:43 to play, but Texas (8-6) went on a 15-4 run to pull away.

Williams and B.J. Tyler, the Longhorns' leading scorers, were on the bench late in the game, but Texas pulled away, largely behind two Tony Watson three-pointers.

Houston, playing its third road game in a eight days, was off to its best record in coach Pat Foster's six years.

The teams combined for 42 turnovers. Houston was one below its season-high and Texas was two below its worst.

Williams' 3-point shot at the buzzer gave Texas a 42-42 halftime tie.

The Longhorns have won 11 consecutive home games against conference opponents.

Derrick Daniels led Houston with 18 points and Charles Outlaw added 13. Terrence Rencher scored 16 for Texas and B.J. Tyler 14 and a game-high 6 assists.

"The one good thing that came out of this is that they have to play us in Houston," Daniels said. "That's the one good thing."

of his career-high 19 points in the second half and Dana Hardy hit five straight points in overtime to rally Rice to a 76-69 victory over Baylor.

The Owls (11-4) extended their home winning streak to 13 games and won the opening SWC game for the first time in 14 years. Baylor dropped to 7-5.

Baylor's David Wesley, who led the Bears with 20 points, hit a three-point basket with 24 seconds left in regulation play, tying the game for the seventh time in the second half at 60-60 and forcing the overtime.

Baylor took a 66-63 lead with 3:24 to go in the overtime before Hardy's three-point basket tied it and his two-pointer put Rice ahead for good.

The Bears were scoreless in overtime from 3:24 until Wesley's three-point basket with 1:04 provided Baylor's final points.

Peakes, who has replaced scholastically ineligible Chase Maag, hit two straight three-point baskets to start the second half, breaking a 30-30 deadlock.

"We weren't making things happen, we had a slight decline in intensity but we picked it up in overtime," Peakes said. "They had the momentum going into the overtime, but we were able to shut them down."

Rice coach Scott Thompson was pleased to get the victory, but looking forward to a smoother offense.

"We showed some great flashes, but we have to smooth some things out in our offense," Thompson said. "We knew it would be a nail-biter with Baylor. They're not going to let down."

Tar Heels trample Tigers

By The Associated Press

The Atlantic Coast Conference has been so competitive for so many years that any team can win at any arena, they say.

Just try telling that to Clemson.

For the 38th straight time, the Tigers lost as the visiting team at North Carolina. On Thursday night, the No. 8 Tar Heels won in a rout, 103-69.

"I actually was worried about this game because of their great quickness," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "But we played an excellent overall game."

Almost all of Clemson's losses in North Carolina have come in Chapel Hill. There were a few games in nearby Greensboro, but the results have all been about the same since the Tar Heels started the streak on Jan.

15, 1926, with a 50-20 victory over the Tigers.

In other games, No. 2 UCLA beat Arizona State 83-62, No. 6 Arizona trounced No. 23 Southern California 107-68, No. 10 Indiana routed Minnesota 96-50, No. 11 Michigan defeated Iowa 80-77 in overtime and No. 24 Tulane downed Central Connecticut State 95-68.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My young daughter might be sitting next to you at the moving theater. She's the annoying one with the constant twitching, gesturing, sniffing, humming, throat clearing or clicking noises. She has Tourette Syndrome, a neurological disorder that affects approximately 1 million people in the United States. Those repeated tics and vocalizations are involuntary, much like a sneeze. Symptoms can sometimes include obsessive behaviors and thoughts as well as problems with concentration and learning.

I hope a little knowledge of TS will promote tolerance of people who can't control these noises and gestures. TS can be a humiliating, lifelong ordeal. These people deserve compassion, not ridicule.

Our national, non-profit organization has excellent information about this misunderstood disorder. Your readers who are interested should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Tourette Syndrome Association, 42-40 Bell Blvd. Bayside, N.Y. 11361, or call 1-800-237-0717.

Thank you for your help, Ann-- A TS Parent in New York

Unfortunately, explanations do not change behavior. We can, however, change ourselves, and this will change the way people think about us. If you continue to do what you always did, you will get what you always got. You cannot change the world but you CAN change yourself. When you behave differently, people will look at you with different eyes.--K.S. Lakewood, Colo.

DEAR LAKEWOOD: Your theory is sound--and it works. Thanks for contributing a new ideal to the old argument.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Six months ago a close friend asked my 5-year-old daughter to be a flower girl in her wedding. "Gloria" was thrilled. For several weeks we have been practicing walking down the aisle.

Yesterday my friend told me that her fiance's family insists on having the groom's 7-year-old niece serve as flower girl.

I was shocked and upset and told her that Gloria would be heartbroken if she couldn't be in the wedding. My friend got mad and screamed, "This is MY wedding and I should be able to do what I want."

Is there another solution? Please don't suggest that there be two flower girls. I already have and my friend said, "It's not possible."-- Back Bay Mother

DEAR MOTHER: This is terribly unfair, but it's not the end of the world. View this as an opportunity to teach your child that life holds many disappointments and we must try to accept them without bitterness.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband is 31 and does not smoke. He has been complaining for over two years about a sharp pain just under his left lung. We have been to three different doctors--our family doctor, a gastroenterologist and a specialist in internal medicine.

He has had lots of tests, such as an upper GI, blood work, ulcer tests and a scope down his throat into this stomach. Everything has come out negative. All the doctors act as if it's all in his head.

He says it hurts all the time, whether he's just eaten or if his stomach is empty. It hurts up higher when he lies flat on his back. He often has diarrhea and expels gas. Could you help us out? Is there something we are overlooking?

DEAR READER: Of course, I can't tell from your letter just what is wrong, but a number of problems should be eliminated from the tests that were done. The diarrhea, gas and pain all suggest the irritable bowel syndrome. That is associated with spasms of the colon, and may cause diarrhea or constipation. The spasms may interfere with the release of gas. The colon bends under the diaphragm on both the right and left side. Gas may be trapped in either place and cause pain under the edge of the ribs and may also cause backache.

What causes an irritable bowel? Often it is impossible to find out. But diet is a frequent cause. Increased fiber intake may help, but it may also cause an increase in gas formation when first used. Certain foods may be the cause, including milk in those who have lactose intolerance and gluten found in cereals. Coffee, tea and colas may make matters worse as well.

Read Special Report 73, Irritable Bowel and Constipation, and perhaps some of the suggestions in managing such problems I have discussed will help your husband. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/73, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Intolerance to milk or gluten or other foods and beverages will not be apparent with X-rays. It sounds like your husband's problem is in the colon, not the stomach.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - Visitors to the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library got to study history and meet some, too, when they ran into the nation's 40th chief executive roaming the Peace and Freedom exhibit.

Reagan dropped in Thursday morning, said library director Ralph Bledsoe.

"Everybody loved him. They were all excited," Bledsoe said. "He had a lot of fun talking to the kids."

On his way in, Reagan stopped at the lobby and asked, "Do I need a ticket?" A volunteer waved him on through.

DEAR NEW YORK: I've written about Tourette Syndrome before, but it's been several years now and I am pleased to repeat the message. Thanks for asking.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter on why men are so violent? Uncivilized behavior is easy to explain but it's difficult to change. It has more to do with how people react to fear and feelings of inadequacy than gender.

Violent behavior is a result of feeling powerless and impotent. This applies to men and women of all ethnic groups, races and nations. Clearly, if we get the message out that violence reveals to the world that the individual feels powerless or impotent, no one would regard violent behavior as admirable.

If we behave in a way that lets others know we are sure of ourselves and that we have a strong sense of personal worth, violence will disappear, except as a last resort to protect ourselves from those who haven't yet gotten the message.

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family. Tomorrow night, let another member read something. A news story. A Bible verse. A Robert Frost poem. A cereal box panel. History. Humor. Anything. Each night a different family member can read a selection. Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days. What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits. We have 23 million illiterate adults in America. We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet. It's non-fattening, but enriching. And it doesn't cost a dime.
