Roach leaves WTSU

West Texas State University President Ed Roach will be leaving the position Dec. 31 to become the deputy associate chancellor for academic planning for the Texas A&M University System.

Roach's appointment to the position is expected to be formalized at the TAMU board of regents meeting Thursday and Friday at College Station.

The appointment ends a stormy tenure for Roach that embroiled the Canyon school in controversy on several fronts. The university became part of the Texas A&M family last Sept. 1.

Recently, Roach was criticized in an audit report concerning monies taken from other areas and used for projects in other areas of the university. Currently, the school is facing a January deadline for raising funds to continue its long-standing football program.

Regents are not expected to name a successor for Roach at this week's meeting. A successor is likely to come from within the TAMU system.

Richards appoints Guerrero

AUSTIN (AP) - The appointment of Lena Guerrero as the first woman and first Hispanic on the Texas Railroad Commission sends a message about the makeup of the new administration, governor-elect Ann Richards says.

"That is that rich and poor, and old and young, and men and women, and white, black and brown alike are going to be in positions of power and responsibility in this state," Richards said Monday.

The nomination of Ms. Guerrero, 33, to the century-old panel that regulates the oil, gas and transportation industries in Texas is the first major appointment for Richards.

Ms. Guerrero, a three-term House member from Austin, will succeed Commissioner John Sharp, who was elected state comptroller. Richards said the appointment would take effect as soon as she is inaugurated Jan. 15.

If confirmed by the Senate, Ms. Guerrero, a Democrat, will serve until the next general election, in 1992. The nominee said she would seek election at that time.

Kalka wins big contest

Melvin Kalka Jr. of Arlington missed just five games to claim the $100 first prize in the Hereford Brand Football Contest.

Kalka was one of 27 previous first, second and third place contestants who vied for the big Hereford Bucks in the grand prize game.

Raymond Lueb missed six games and was closest to the Dallas-New Orleans tiebreaker to take second place and $35. Darrel Dirks was third, after also missing six but being a little further off on the tiebreaker. He will win $15 in Hereford Bucks.

In the regular weekly contest, Mike Manchee of Hereford missed six games and was closest on the tiebreaker to win $25 in Hereford Bucks.

Pat Nunnally of Hereford was second and will win $15 in Hereford Bucks, while J. Dale Butler was third and will win $10 in Hereford Bucks. Nunnally and Butler also missed just six games, with the difference determined by the Dallas-New Orleans game.

Telescope troubles mission

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Columbia's astronauts struggled today to try to get NASA's $150 million observatory working right after losing almost a full day of precious star-gazing time.

The astronauts were able to look briefly at a distant galaxy and two stars Monday, but NASA said up to 10 percent of the shuttle mission's 230 planned observations might have to be scrapped because of problems in aligning three of the Astro observatory's four telescopes.

"What we just have to do is make sure that we reallocate what is left to the higher-priority objects that have been lost," said mission scientist Ted Gull. "Perhaps a low-priority object is going to get pushed off the list as we go."

The 10-day mission, which began with liftoff early Sunday, was already six months behind schedule because of five launch postponements, four of them caused by hydrogen leaks in Columbia and one by problems with Astro.

NASA flight director Al Pennington said the telescope repairs were nearly completed Monday, with only some fine-tuning remaining to be done today. But he said that could take until the afternoon.

Repairs were delayed for a few hours Monday when a computer aboard Columbia malfunctioned after a faulty message was included in a series of commands from Earth. The reason for the mistake wasn't immediately clear, NASA said.

'Video Catnip' pampers pets

HERNDON, Va. (AP) - At last, the purr-fect Christmas stocking stuffer for indoor cats who have everything. It's their very own videotape, featuring a mouth-watering parade of live birds, squirrels and chipmunks cavorting on the TV screen.

The 25-minute, full-color video, taped in a wooded backyard of this Washington suburb, is sure to delight all those latchkey kitties who are bored with napping, scratching the furniture and swatting ornaments off the Christmas tree.

Just slip a $19.95 copy of "Video Catnip" into the VCR and watch them turn into regular couch furballs. But heed the warning at the start of the tape: "While watching this video, your cat may become excited and attempt to get inside your television set to get at the birds. ... We strongly suggest that you remove all breakables from on top or around your TV set. No kitting."

Creator Steve Malarkey promises "some cat-a-clysmic fun with no paws in the action." His satisfied customers, speaking for their pampered pussycats, say his video really delivers the goods.

The live action is divided into segments titled "Cheep Thrills," "Mews and Feather Report" and "A Stalk in the Park." Voyeuristic feline viewers will enjoy lots of juicy close-ups of their favorite outdoor creatures, feasting noisily on birdseed and popcorn.

Malarkey was a disgruntled computer technician searching for a career change when he decided to "get into the cat business." He tried making heated "cat houses" and tree-shaped scratching posts, but both were flops.

Then one night, he said, "I was sitting in front of the TV with my wife, watching a National Geographic special on birds of the Cayman Islands or somewhere," he said. "Our cat Stick, who never even glanced at TV before, came out of his box like a shot and sat right in front of the screen, growling and meowing."

Malarkey borrowed a friend's video camera and tripod, seeded his backyard with treats and let the tape run for an hour.

"When I brought the tape back to the house and showed it to Stick, he went ballistic," Malarkey said.

Malarkey hired a professional camera crew and doused his backyard with 200 pounds of birdseed and popcorn. "It was springtime, and things were really hopping out there," he said.

Can cats really "see" a TV video?

Veterinarians agree with Malarkey that although cats don't discern shapes and colors as distinctly as humans, they are acutely aware of moving figures and sounds that excite them.

Malarkey has sold 7,000 tapes since "Video Catnip" appeared on pet store shelves a little more than a year ago. He's already planning sequels, with "bigger birds, bigger squirrels, maybe some sea gulls thrown in."

Human viewers might find "Video Catnip" boring after a while. After all, what's thrilling about watching a pair of blue jays squabbling? Or a squirrel snatching a peanut from a bowl? "Steven Spielberg it ain't," said Malarkey, who now lives in Morgantown, W.Va., "but we haven't gotten any complaints yet from the cats."

Malarkey takes telephone orders at 1-800-TABBY TV.

City hears park ideas

By DANEE' WILSON Staff Writer

Hereford city commissioners were presented with proposals Monday night for beautification of Dameron Park by the Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee.

Committee Chairman Mauri Montgomery presented a slide presentation comparing area cities' parks to those of Hereford.

"We visited towns comparable in size to Hereford and some smaller than Hereford," said Montgomery. "We found some good things that we can do in Hereford at Dameron Park."

Dameron Park, located at Main Street and Park Avenue, was chosen by the committee because of its close proximity to the downtown area.

"The committee feels there is a renewed interest and thrust to our downtown area," said Montgomery. "We want to make our downtown area more attractive."

The following are eight committee priorities categorized in short term and long term time tables:

1. Drainage--Relieve playa lake with a submersible pump centrally located.
2. Restrooms--Revitalize usage of park through construction of a restroom facility.
3. Trash cans and park benches--Encourage a clean park with a more trash cans; encourage people to make the park a relaxing retreat by installing more benches throughout the park.
4. Concrete curbing--Construct concrete curbing around all playground equipment to facilitate easier maintenance, improve areas for play and provide a neat and well-designed appearance to the park.
5. Landscaping and tree pruning--Add some new growth to existing growth; define park activity areas with shrubs and border plants; prolong the life of existing growth with pruning.

6. Walking paths--Encourage exercise and daily activity in the park with walking paths. Add to the paths as budget and time permits.

7. Pavilion--Encourage large groups to congregate at the park (class reunions, musical events, political events) by providing a covered facility.

8. Parking--Offer easy parking access to the park. Expand current parking availability and improve existing roadside parking through paving.

The commissioners expressed an interest in investigating these proposals further, but said further information was needed as cost and workability was unknown at that time.

Davis Ford also made a presentation to the commission for beautification. His proposal concerned restrictions in the residential areas.

"It's good to get input from the community," said Commissioner Tom Legate. "We have a very limited tax base to work with and it's good to know what the community wants and I think these are all good ideas."

In other business, the commissioners voted to transfer $50,000 from the water and sewer fund to the airport account. The money was needed to cover the city's financial responsibility after receiving a $900,000 grant to repave the runway, said Hereford City Manager Darwin McGill.

Commissioners voted to pay the Chamber of Commerce $1000, up from $600 last year, to assist with the lighting at Christmas.

Panhandle Plains Higher Education Authority requested Hereford appoint suggested members to the authority. Locally, Waldo Baxter was appointed taking over his wife, Carolyn's, position. She did not wish to be reappointed.

Authorization was given to the fire department by the commissioners to draw up specifications and bid requests for a computer.

Baghdad offers to free Soviets

By LISA GENASCI Associated Press Writer

Baghdad backed away from its confrontation with Moscow today, saying it would allow all 3,000 Soviets stranded in Iraq to leave, but it demanded the Kremlin pay compensation for canceling their work contracts.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze had warned that Moscow, which has not sent troops to join the U.S.-led multinational force stationed in the Persian Gulf, would use military force if its citizens were harmed.

Meanwhile, former world boxing champion Muhammad Ali and six Americans who had been detained in Iraq arrived in New York early this morning.

As Iraq apparently tries to chip away at the world alliance arrayed against it by releasing hostages on a piecemeal basis, Senate Democrats continued to express reservations over the Bush administration's gulf policy.

Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said on Monday that the U.N. trade sanctions against Iraq should be given more time to work before Washington considers war to liberate Kuwait.

But Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told Congress that military action was the only sure way to drive Iraq from the oil-rich emirate.

The official Iraqi News Agency said today that the Soviets, mainly oil industry experts, will be allowed to leave beginning Wednesday. It said, however, Moscow would have to pay compensation for broken contracts.

Moscow last week accused Iraq of breaking a promise to allow Soviets to leave. The accusation came as Moscow adopted a harder line against Iraq.

The Kremlin was Iraq's main arms supplier and chief ally before the gulf crisis began on Aug. 2.

About 8,000 Soviets, including military advisers, were in Iraq at the time of the invasion. About 3,000 of them remain in Iraq and have encountered difficulties securing exit visas.

Iraq is holding hundreds of Westerners, many at strategic sites to prevent an attack by the 340,000-strong U.S.-led multinational force deployed in the gulf. Soviets are not believed among those used as "human shields."

The British Foreign Office said today that Iraq sent Britain a $289,000 hotel bill to pay for 27 British construction workers it is holding at two five-star Baghdad hotels.

The British Embassy in Baghdad will pick up the tab, a Foreign Office spokesman said, but claim that money back from Iraq after the crisis ends.

Meanwhile, about 30 Britons and Irishmen who returned home Monday said foreigners being held in Baghdad are depressed and bored, but are finding enough food and managing to get by. Six of the Britons were among the 15 Saddam Hussein freed in response to a request from Ali, the former boxing champion.

Missouri town prepares for big one, big let down

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) - The politicians, the hucksters, the souvenir hunters, they all rumbled through this town like an earthquake. About the only thing that didn't make itself felt was the earthquake itself. Climatologist Iben Browning has shaken this sleepy hamlet of 3,300 by saying there was a 50 percent chance of a major quake along the New Madrid fault this week.

Some seismologists used words like ridiculous to describe the projection. But along the 120-mile fault that runs from Marked Tree, Ark., to Cairo, Ill., schools closed, some people stayed away from work and hordes of reporters arrived just in case the quake really happened. "It didn't happen," said Sean-Thomas Morrissey, technical director of St. Louis University's geophysical observatory. The university runs a network of 60 seismographs that sense the slightest tremor in the fault. "There is a small probability of an earthquake on any given day, but it's the same today as on any other day," said Lawrence Braille, a Purdue University seismologist and member of a U.S. Geological Survey advisory

"It's been good for business," Councilwoman Barbara Jones said after a council meeting Monday night.

Among the entrepreneurs who showed up to capitalize on the excitement was Lynn Akins of Sikeston, Mo., promoting his outdoor safety equipment, including a sleeping bag that opens up into a huge "Help" banner. Tom Benz of St. Louis pulled a barbecue smoker into town to promote his catering business.

At one point 20 TV news satellite trucks jammed Main Street.

Monday to 48 hours afterward. "Let's wait until the whole 48 hours are over," she said.

Browning said his projection was based on the fact that the sun and moon's tidal pull on Earth's oceans reached a 27-year high at 5 a.m. Sunday.

Although that didn't produce a quake on Monday, New Madrid was reeling from all the attention it brought.

Safety For Pot Luck Dinners

"Pot Luck" dinners can represent a public health hazard because a large variety of foods, mainly casseroles, are served -- a high amount of handling of ingredients during preparation -- and inadequate storage temperatures of the food.

In spite of these problems, pot-luck dinners do not have to be banned. Observation of the following health recommendations should offer a solution:

- * Keep menus simple; avoid an elaborate variety of foods.
- * Avoid serving low-acid foods such as creamed dishes, meat stews, cream-filled pies and pastries.
- * Stress that food must be cooked thoroughly.
- * Keep time between cooking and serving foods to a minimum.
- * If prepared foods must be stored overnight, place them in small quantities in a reliable refrigeration unit.
- * Keep hot foods hot (above 140 Fahrenheit) and cold foods cold (below 45 F).

- * Use chilled ingredients in the preparation of foods that will be served cold.
- * Protect foods from contamination (insects, dust, humans) prior to serving.
- * Use disposable ware as a sanitary measure.
- * Do not include home-canned items.
- * Use individual packets, closed containers or pump bottles to serve sweeteners or condiments.
- * Provide adequate garbage containers lined with plastic bags.
- * Because of timing and casual serving, it is most practical to discard leftover as garbage at the end of the dinner.

People have a high regard for neighbors, friends, and co-workers and appreciate their efforts and good intentions. By following the above recommendations, pot luck dinners can continue to be successful without any unhappy aftermaths.

Credit spending may bring woes after the holidays

Early Christmas shoppers bound for the cash registers are cautioned to take it easy on the plastic.

"Consumers who wait until the last minute often don't have the extra cash to buy gifts, so they use credit cards for just about everything," said Nancy Granovsky, family economics specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "In the months that follow, some will find themselves juggling bills and having serious problems especially if they are already overextended."

Christmas is "a tempting time because people are not buying for themselves and they want to be more generous," said Jay Muzychenko, vice president of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit in Silver Springs, Md. "We recommend that people use only one or two credit cards and keep invoices so they'll know what they're spending."

This method can also help credit clients who are rational spenders most of the year, but tend to overindulge during the holiday season, Granovsky said.

The credit foundation is affiliated with the non-profit Consumer Credit Counseling Services (CCCS), which help people learn money management and work out plans to pay off debts. Nationally, over 300,000 families -- an increase of 24 percent from last year -- are receiving counseling from the 550 service centers, Muzychenko said. Families experiencing credit woes can find the nearest CCCS by calling the national referral line at 1-800-388-2227.

"Many people get caught up in post holiday blues because of poor planning," Granovsky said. "There are really two ways around the holiday financial crunch -- year-round gift purchasing to take advantage of sales and putting spending limits on gifts you buy and give."

The ideal time to start planning for Christmas is January of that year, Muzychenko said. However, most people don't do that. Even starting in the summer is early enough, he said, and purchases are more likely to be made with cash.

"Since it's too late for year-round shopping, families can still make a list of individuals, gifts and amounts to spend to manage holiday money," Granovsky said.

Too often gift-giving for co-workers, friends and others is forgotten when families draw up their spending plans and monthly budgets, she said, and "this may be one reason many people charge presents to plastic."

"Be careful of easy lines of credit that offer no payments until February," Granovsky said. "If you can't pay the full bill that month, additional finance charges will mount up and you may be stuck paying for this Christmas most of next year."

Adopt a grandparent

Otho Noland and Houston Beauchamp of Golden Plains Care Center want to remind the public that Wednesday is the deadline for adopting a grandparent for Christmas. This year some grandparents will be unable to visit their families due to various circumstances. Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
Prevailing Winds

We accustomed to seeing trees which are not upright, but are misshapen and leaning some degrees off center. We know that they have been fashioned by the prevailing winds which blow. We understand how this works. It is not uncommon to see young trees tied or braced to help them remain upright, and not be gradually shaped to lean in a certain direction. It is much the same with one's life as it is with trees. There are prevailing winds (forces) in a social order, and lives are often fashioned by these. There is a significant difference between trees and people.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Pierce Brosnan, the suave detective in the TV series "Remington Steele," turned the quill on Hollywood critics and penned an article that jokingly dismissed his new film.

Brosnan defended the movie, "Mr. Johnson," in a Los Angeles Times column Monday, saying his yet-to-be released film directed by Bruce Beresford should be given a chance.

"If any art form ever required an open mind and a closed mouth until the work had a chance to prove or disprove itself, it is the motion picture," Brosnan wrote.

He was responding to a recent Times article that reported: "No word at all on Bruce Beresford's 'Mr. Johnson' ... but referring to its setting of road building in West Africa in the 1920s, one producer quipped: 'They ought to put speed bumps in the aisle ... to prevent people from leaving in droves.'"

Brosnan said that remark virtually wrote the film's obituary.

Brosnan noted that Beresford directed such distinguished films as "Driving Miss Daisy," "Tender Mercies" and "Breaker Morant."

trees are passive, and must accept whatever wind that blows; but people can choose the prevailing winds (forces) by which their lives are fashioned. It will sometimes be necessary to protect a life so that it will not be misshapen by the prevailing wind.

It would be great, if the prevailing wind were always moving in the right or the preferred direction; but we know that it is not doing so. There is a popular expression, "go with the flow," which is another way of saying, let the prevailing wind control your life. This may not always be the wise way to go. The view of "just let yourself go" is a rather widely accepted viewpoint, and it receives strong support from persons who speak authoritatively. These people often use biased data obtained from faulty surveys made up of limited and distorted samplings. They must not be trusted.

We may not be able to control everything that happens to us, but we can decide what kind of person we wish to be. If the prevailing wind will misshapen our lives, we can successfully resist it, and should do so gladly.

The tree cannot choose the prevailing wind which fashions it, but we can choose the winds (the views and forces) which we wish to prevail in our lives; and we can do so wisely.

Natural gas reduces pollution

Because natural gas is the cleanest burning fossil fuel, it can help improve the quality of air and water, especially when used in place of other, more polluting energy sources.

Natural gas combustion results in virtually no atmospheric emissions of sulfur oxides, or small particulate matter, and far lower emissions of carbon monoxide, reactive hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides and carbon dioxide than the combustion of other fossil fuels.

Using more natural gas can help reduce the causes of acid rain and the ozone pollution that appears as smog in major urban areas.

Natural gas can also make a significant contribution toward improved air quality in the field of transportation.

Advanced natural gas powered vehicles have the potential to reduce carbon monoxide emissions by up to 99 percent, reduce nitrogen oxides emissions by up to 70 percent (30 percent in light vehicles) and reduce reactive hydrocarbons emissions by more than 90 percent, when compared to today's gasoline vehicles.

Answers to insurance questions

Noted health care writer Florence Isaacs answers some of the most common questions on how to make the best decisions about your health care coverage.

Q. Why does health insurance cost so much today?

A. The cost of health insurance is a reflection of medical costs, which have skyrocketed in the past 10 years for a number of reasons. High-tech equipment and procedures are enormously expensive. Our population also is growing older, and the older we get, the more medical services we tend to use. Add to these ingredients the element of regular, everyday inflation, and the result is even higher health care cost and more expensive health insurance premiums.

Q. I've been hearing a lot about HMOs and PPOs lately. What are they, and what's the difference?

A. HMOs, or health maintenance organizations, are groups of doctors who agree to provide you with all the health care services you need at a fixed price, which is your premium. As long as you receive care from the "primary care physician" you've chosen from the HMO's doctor panel, your other out-of-pocket costs will be very small--perhaps $2 per office visit. However, if you receive care somewhere else without a reference from your primary care physician, you usually have to pay those bills yourself. HMOs typically cover ordinary office visits, well-baby care and flu shots, while traditional insurance probably will not.

PPOs, or preferred provider organizations, resemble a combination of HMOs and traditional insurance. They give you a financial incentive (higher coverage) to use affiliated or "preferred" providers. But you can opt for a non-PPO provider and still receive some coverage.

Q. My employer offers several options of health care coverage. How do I choose between them?

A. That depends on several factors. Ask yourself these questions:

*What are my individual needs? Your age, lifestyle and health status are considerations. Are you married and planning on a family? Then maternity and well-baby benefits are important. For others, coverage for prescriptions, eye care or mental health treatment may be critical.

*What will my total out-of-pocket costs be? There can be enormous variation between different plans. How much is your share of the premium? How high is the deductible? After the deductible is paid, does the policy pay 100 percent of your medical bills, or less? Is there an annual limit to your out-of-pocket expenses?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - C.C. DeVille of the rock group Poison was arrested and jailed for seven hours before giving a concert, appropriately, at Freedom Hall.

DeVille, 28, was arrested Saturday at a lounge after jumping on the hood of a car, police said. The musician was jailed on charges of alcohol intoxication and criminal mischief.

The band is on tour promoting their album "Flesh and Blood."

The band will pay for damage to the car, said Scotty Ross, Poison road manager.

Dennis Fischer, the lounge's security manager, said DeVille left the building with the video cameras rolling and sprawled across the car hood.

Herd, Lady Whitefaces fall Saturday

The Hereford Whitefaces dropped a 107-66 decision Saturday to Denver City in a game played at the Texan Dome in Levelland as the Herd basketball teams got the season into full swing.

The loss was the second in two days for the Herd (0-2) as they continued their string of games against three top 10 Class 3A schools to open the season. The Herd will host Dimmitt at 8 p.m. today as part of a quadruple-header against the Bobcats. The day's schedule gets underway with the Lady Whiteface junior varsity at 5 p.m. followed by the Lady Whiteface varsity and Herd junior varsity at 6:30 p.m.

In other Hereford games Saturday, the Lady Whitefaces lost to Lubbock Monterey 59-50 in the consolation finals of the Canyon Classic while the Herd sophomores rolled to their first two wins of the season to take the consolation title at the Muleshoe JV Tournament, blasting Farwell JV 81-29 before routing Muleshoe JV 63-39.

In Monday's junior high action, the Hereford boys teams hosted Borger while the girls played on the road. Hereford won four of five boys contests and lost the five girls' games.

Denver City had four players finish in double figures, led by David Green's 37 points.

M'rey 59, Lady Whitefaces 50
Monterey opened an 18-11 lead at the end of the opening quarter and spent the rest of the contest holding off Hereford rallies.

Michael Kriegshauser (44) of the Hereford Junior High seventh-grade Maroon team puts up a short jumper during Monday's game with Borger at the HJH Gym.

49ers hold off New York

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers have been known for their finesse, their offensive explosiveness. Joe Montana to Jerry Rice, that's the 49ers.

The physical, defensive teams? The Chicago Bears and New York Giants. Those are the team whose defenses stuff opponents senseless.

Well, the 49ers proved in their 7-3 victory over the Giants Monday night they can play that game, too.

"To slug it out with them was great," Montana said. "People don't think we can do that."

Even though they had already clinched their fifth consecutive divisional title, the 49ers (11-1) met the Giants squarely on Monday, slamming helmet to helmet, matching tackle with tackle. All their defense was given was a 23-yard touchdown pass from Montana to John Taylor with 1:30 left in the first half. It was enough.

"We had to come out and prove a point," said Charles Haley, who led the 49ers with 11 sacks and five tackles. "We are the World Champions and are the best, and people can't come in and dominate us."

Twice the Giants had first-and-goal - at the 3-yard line in the second quarter and at the 9 with less than five minutes to play - and could only muster three points. Matt Bahr's 20-yard field goal with 3:26 left in the first half was all the points

New York could put on the scoreboard.

"We've played with that intensity before," said 49ers linebacker Matt Millen. "It's just that in this particular game it had to last the whole game.

"This one from beginning to end you had great plays inside the 20. We had Darrell Pollard inside the 20. The goal line stand in the second quarter. It was good, solid football."

Any questions the Giants (10-2) may have had about how close they

Free-agent signings open up market

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) - The signings of Willie McGee, Terry Pendleton and Dennis Martinez has led to all sorts of other possibilities in the frenzied free agent market.

McGee was the big winner on Monday when he signed a four-year deal for $13 million with the San Francisco Giants.

"Could we have waited and made more money in a month? Yes," said Tom Reich, McGee's agent. "Last year was very frustrating for Willie. He just wanted to get this done."

Most players would gladly accept such frustration. Even though he finished the season with American League champion Oakland, McGee ended up winning the National League batting title with a .335 average for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cards feared they could not sign McGee and traded the speedy outfielder to the A's on Aug. 29 for outfielder Felix Jose and two minor leaguers. McGee left Oakland because manager Tony La Russa could not guarantee an everyday job.

"Willie McGee wants to wake up in the morning knowing he's in the lineup," La Russa said. "With Dave Henderson in center, I couldn't promise that."

The Giants feared center fielder Brett Butler would be declared a new-look free agent and general manager Al Rosen was not prepared to pay his asking price of $15 million for four years.

"We didn't want to leave here without a center fielder," Rosen said. "I think we have a good one."

McGee, 32, is a lifetime .297 hitter who was selected the MVP in 1985 when he led the NL with a .353 average. In 1987, McGee drove in 105 runs in leading the Cardinals to the World Series for the third time in the 1980s.

Butler, who will probably be a free agent by Thursday, will be a hot property. Both the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets have expressed an interest and both have the bucks to spend.

The Dodgers have already signed Darryl Strawberry to a $20.25 deal for five years, but would rather he played right field instead of center.

To make up the loss of Strawberry, the Mets are trying to sign free agent Vince Coleman to play left and may also go after Butler.

Pendleton, a teammate of Coleman and McGee, left the Cardinals on Monday when he signed a four-year deal with the Atlanta Braves for $9.8 million. The switch-hitting third baseman batted .230 with six homers and 58 RBIs for the Cardinals last season in 121 games.

"He's a good, solid player who makes us a much better team," new Braves general manager John Schuerholz said. "He plays a position we felt was very important to strengthen ourselves at."

Pendleton, when healthy, is among the best defensive third basemen in baseball. Three times he has led the NL in assists and twice he has won a Gold Glove award.

The Braves needed a third baseman since Jim Presley became a free agent and indicated he would not return. Presley may end up in San Diego.

Like Butler, the Expos were concerned Martinez would leave if he was declared a new-look free agent. He re-signed with Montreal on Monday for $9.25 million over three years.

The Pittsburgh Pirates were considering going after Martinez if they lost Zane Smith. But since Martinez stayed in Montreal, the Pirates may increase their $7 million-plus offer over three years to the left-hander.

Smith is also being pursued by the Chicago Cubs, Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds. By the time it's all over, he may end up with close to $8.5 million for three years.

In another free agent signing on Monday, the Los Angeles Dodgers agreed to a three-year deal with right-hander Kevin Gross for $6.4 million. Gross is 80-90 in eight seasons with Philadelphia and Montreal. Gross was 9-12 for the Expos last season and opponents hit .272 against him.

Two more free agents signed late Monday night when veteran outfielder Willie Wilson agreed to a two-year deal with the A's and right-hander Bill Gullickson agreed to a two-year deal with the Detroit Tigers.

Cowboys fill open week with talk of playoff spot

IRVING (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys are rediscovering the wonderful world of playoff chatter.

They have a week off while Valley Ranch buzzes with playoff talk. The Cowboys downed New Orleans 17-13 on Sunday and don't play again until Dec. 16 when the Phoenix Cardinals come to town.

"A year ago a lot of people were counting the days until the end of the season," coach Jimmy Johnson said on Monday. "Now, they have the feeling of they can't wait until they can play again."

"It's exciting," linebacker Bill Bates said of the Cowboys 6-7 record after last year's 1-15 season. "We know we've impressed a lot of people, a lot of disbelievers, and we've set ourselves up in a position to control our own destiny. And who knows? The way the NFL's going this year, anything can happen."

Dallas trails Philadelphia and Washington, both 7-5, and Green Bay and Minnesota, each 6-6, in the race for the three NFC wildcard spots.

"After last year, which was really tough, this feels awfully good," said defensive tackle Dean Hamel.

The Cowboys have won three games in a row for the first time since 1986. Dallas has won back-to-back games at home for the first time since 1985.

"The win was great and everybody starts talking about the playoffs, but for us every win is great," said Dallas fullback Daryl Johnston. "You worry about having some success and then getting complacent about it. Each week the games get bigger and bigger for us."

Johnson said the team is a giant leap ahead of the 1989 cellar inhabitants.

"We're a decent football team right now," Johnson said. "We've had six wins and they've all been in the fourth quarter. We were barely above zero last year. We've gained some creditability but nothing fantastic yet. It's still too early to talk playoffs."

Dallas defensive back Manny

Hendrix said the Cowboys are no longer worried about how they are going to blow games.

"Just knowing we can win close games like the one against New Orleans gives us a lot of confidence going down the road," Hendrix said.

After its final home game, Dallas is on the road to play Philadelphia and Atlanta.

"This team has really come on in the second half of the season," said defensive back Ray Horton. "You can't even compare it to this team early this year. We are more focused, more together. We have every intention of winning every game we play from here on."

Even Saints quarterback Steve Walsh, traded by the Cowboys, has noticed a difference from the two months he has been gone.

"The talent is about the same," Walsh said. "But they're playing with more confidence. And the biggest thing is that they've had some success. When they get behind, they get in there and pull together."

Y plans hoops leagues

The Hereford YMCA is accepting entries for its winter men's and youth basketball leagues.

In the men's league, for players who are out of high school, competition will be offered in A and B divisions.

Entry fee for the league is $8 for YMCA members or $24 for non-members or a $190 sponsor fee. Games will be played on Sundays beginning Jan. 6. Each day's schedule will begin at 1 p.m.

The league will last six weeks with a double-elimination tournament following the season.

Members of the regular-season champions will receive individual trophies or shirts while team trophies will be presented to the top three teams in the post-season tournament.

In the youth leagues, competition will be offered in separate divisions for boys and girls in first and second grade, third and fourth grades and fifth and sixth grades. Six-year-olds may participate in the first- and second-grader division.

Entry fee for the leagues is $9 per player and all players must be YMCA members. One-year memberships may be purchased for $20 and include the use of all YMCA facilities. Players must provide their own shoes with only appropriate footwear being allowed.

Teams may practice once a week beginning Jan. 7 with games beginning Jan. 19. All games will be played on Saturdays.

Entry Deadline for both men's and youth leagues is Dec. 28.

For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

SAN FRANCISCO

are to the top of the NFL mountain were answered, too. Their defense rushed Montana into a 12-for-29 performance and 152 passing yards. That's putting a lid on the NFL's best quarterback and the league's most explosive offense.

"You don't hold a team like the 49ers to seven points and lose," said Giants defensive back Greg Jackson. "That's what hurts."

The Giants' chances came down to a fourth-and-goal play from the 9 with less than four minutes to play. Coach Bill Parcells gambled and went for the touchdown, calling a slant-in pass to Lionel Manuel.

This is the play Millen was talking about, the one where Pollard bumped Manuel at the line, then deflected Phil Simms' pass out of the end zone.

"We knew it was a difficult play, but we didn't think we'd get another chance," Parcells said. "(The 49ers) have a powerful offense, so we thought we had to go for it."

The Giants did get another chance. They had the ball on the 49ers' 28 as time expired.

"(Going for the touchdown) surprised me a bit," John Taylor said. "But it's the coach's call. It was a gutsy call to make."

The 49ers and Giants were able to combine for 461 yards, but just as many hard tackles. The 10 points were the fewest scored in an NFL game this season.

This will be a game remembered for Ronnie Lott's hits on Mark Bavaro. For Kevin Fagen and Haley sandwiching Simms. For Lawrence Taylor and Pepper Johnson crashing into Montana.

"There were two great defenses out on the field tonight," Montana said. "They were great, but I don't want to take anything away from our guys. They were playing a good offensive team that can stuff the ball down your throat.

"Both teams expected it to be this type of game, maybe not 7-3."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As a single woman living in Florida, I feel an obligation to all women everywhere who are hoping to find a mate.

About six months ago a very good-looking guy with personality plus moved into the area. Everyone took a liking to "Freddie" and went out of their way to be nice to him because he was still grieving over the loss of his wife to cancer. Everything was wonderful until I noticed that he was drinking a little too much. After a few months he began to forget dates and when he did remember, he was too drunk to be a decent companion. Sex became a thing of the past because he was always falling asleep, or should I say, "passing out." He kept apologizing for his substandard behavior by saying he was having a hard time getting over his wife's death. That was fine for a while, but suddenly it dawned on me that many of Freddie's stories were conflicting.

I became suspicious and decided to have the guy investigated. It was rather expensive but believe me, it was worth every penny. The information proved that he had never been married to a woman who had died of cancer. His girlfriend, however, was married to another man at the time she was murdered. Freddie was a prime suspect but nothing was ever proved.

I'm writing to warn other women that love can be plenty blind. If it doesn't feel right, ladies, do what I did. Hire a private investigator. It will be the best investment you ever made. -- Experience Plus.

DEAR EXPERIENCE: Thanks for a real eye-opener. You've proven that love can be not only blind but deaf and dumb, as well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell readers that it is inappropriate to ask parents of adopted children about their child's biological parents. In the six months we've had our chosen child, at least 100 people have asked, "What do you know about her real parents?" I would love to say, "It's really none of your business," but I've never had the nerve.

It so happens that this little girl was sexually and physically abused by her father before she was 5, then abandoned. She lived on the streets with 10 brothers and sisters in a Central American country for three years before they were all taken into a Catholic orphanage.

The point I want to make is that an adopted child's past is intensely personal, so please don't pry. -- No Name, No City.

DEAR N.N.N.C.: There's a simple solution to the problem. When a needle-nosed clod asks nunofyerbizniz-type questions, say, "I can't imagine why this would concern you."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a secretary employed full time. Until recently, I was imposed on by friends who would drop by with a "little typing job" they wanted done.

I have been asked to type everything from wills to term papers for their children, minutes of club meetings, and, no kidding, letters to Ann Landers. When I would tell these clods that I didn't have time, they'd say, "Oh, there's no hurry!"

Here's how I solved the problem: Whenever anyone asks me to type something, I say, "I'd be happy to. My rate is $1 per page." They never ask again. -- Anonymous in Salina, Kan.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Beautiful. Thank you for an astute solution to a thorny problem.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 6-611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.87.)

Handcrafted items add a "welcome" to home decor

One of the most romantic touches in a home is the decorative accent of handcrafted fabric items. Whether vintage or crafted yesterday, these often underestimated luxuries can be showcased to create an inviting and intimate environment.

Beyond the visual joy of handicrafts, however, lies an appreciation for the time and attention to details involved in completing a piece. It is therefore only fitting that handicrafts are treated with special attention to laundering and preservation.

To protect delicate lace and the rich colors of needlepoint and embroidery yarns, consider handwashing crafted items with Palmolive Dishwashing Liquid. The product costs much less than some others designed for washing by hand; it is easy and convenient to use; and can help reduce fading caused by bleaches or harsh detergents. By handwashing your decorative items, you can also minimize risk of stretching, shrinking or other damage.

Just two teaspoons of Palmolive dissolved in a sink or basin of cool water quickly and thoroughly cleans handicrafts. For great results, follow these help hints:

1. To avoid stretching or shrinking, trace the item's outline on a tissue paper before washing. Place the outline on a flat surface, cover with a transparent sheet of plastic such as a drycleaning bag.
2. Next, briskly shake the item to remove loose dust and surface lint.
3. Prevent snags or damage by closing any buttons, zippers or hooks.
4. If applicable, turn item inside out to help reduce fading.
5. Dissolve Palmolive under running cool water in the sink or basin.
6. Submerge item and quickly wash with extreme care by gently pressing with the palms of your hands.
7. To rinse, gently squeeze fresh water through item until suds disappear. Never wring or twist.

COLONIAL LAWMAKER

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Jurist Roger Ludlow, who was born in England in 1590 and educated at Oxford, came to America in 1630.

He was made deputy governor of the Massachusetts colony in 1634, and later moved to Connecticut.

There he drafted, collected and codified the laws of Connecticut, known as "Ludlow's Code." In 1634, he helped create the New England Confederation, consisting of the Massachusetts, Plymouth, Connecticut and New Haven colonies.

Ludlow left America in 1654 and later settled in Ireland.

8. When rinsed, put the item on the plastic sheet and pat it to its original shape using the outline as a guide.

9. Cover with a towel, and allow to dry until moisture is absorbed.

10. Replace towel with a dry one, flip over so the item is on top of the towel. Dry thoroughly.

By devoting extra care and handwashing your crafted items, they can become treasured heirlooms for all to cherish.

Give a picture perfect gift

Here's a picture-perfect gift idea that can please many on your holiday gift list: A quality camera that's a snap to operate and takes wonderful pictures. It's a great gift to give to yourself as well!

The rugged and versatile Olympus 35mm Autofocus SLR IS-1 creates a new category of 35mm camera the Zoom Lens Reflex (ZLR). The compact, lightweight 35-135mm built-in zoom lens gives photographers the tool to do it all—whether shooting indoors or out, portraits or scenery, sports or nature.

From 35mm wide angle to nearly 4x135mm telephoto, you can get an unprecedented range of shots. You'll never miss a shot with the built-in zooms memory.

By storing the wide macro mode, for instance, while shooting at any focal length, you can instantly switch to wide macro with one punch of the zoom memory button.

This breakthrough lens is made of a kind of glass usually used only for the most expensive lenses that cost thousands of dollars.

Called ED Glass (Extra-Low Dispersion), it has been redesigned by Olympus to bring the cost down to an affordable level. This kind of glass makes a significant difference in the quality of your photographs, compared to those taken with a standard lens.

Scientists develop food testing device

A new diagnostic testing device developed by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station promises to speed up food and feed grain safety tests and permit quick and relatively inexpensive field analysis for toxic substances.

Substances that can be tested by the device range from natural poisons produced by fungi to antibiotics and synthetic pesticides, the researchers reported.

The instrument, consisting of transparent tubes with isolated layers of selected materials that bind and react chemically with the tested toxins, was developed by Dr. Timothy D. Phillips, food toxicologist, and Dr. Beverly A. Clement, an organic chemist, in Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

Phillips said the device will resolve, immobilize and detect mycotoxins, toxic substances produced by fungi. The instrument will allow contaminants to be detected in the field in a matter of hours, he said. Samples now are sent to laboratories for analysis, which may not report results for some days.

Phillips said a growing awareness of the dangers of mycotoxins as frequent contaminants of food and feed makes these testing devices significant.

"Mycotoxins encompass a diverse group of natural poisons that have caused disease and death in humans and animals, and have resulted in substantial losses in agriculture," Phillips said.

Under a licensing agreement recently approved by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents, a Utah-based environmental technology company, Terra Tek Inc. of Salt Lake City, will manufacture and market these testing instruments.

Phillips said a mycotoxin mixture passing through the detector comes in contact with various reactive materials.

"If mycotoxins are present in the sample above the detection limit," he said, "they will appear as visible fluorescent bands at the top of the interface layers that are selective for those particular chemicals." Phillips said the testing device is easy to construct using readily available, inexpensive materials. The test are easy to use and provide a rapid screening analysis of suspected contaminants when performed in the field.

He said the initial products were designed to detect mycotoxins. The tests have been extended to include certain regulated antibiotics. Future tests for soil and water contaminants, he said, are in the developmental stages and are expected to be ready soon.

Dr. William Hugh Bollinger, vice president and division head for Terra Tek, said, "We are pleased to be commercializing this important assay technology which allows for such rapid and inexpensive analytical measurements of environmental contaminants."

The Texas A&M University System will receive a royalty on all sales of products derived from this technology.

Turkey walk successful

The November Turkey Walk, sponsored by the American Heart Association, raised approximately $1,200 for the Deaf Smith County Chapter of AHA. Other top winning money raisers were Arrowhead Mills and

Food costs to reflect higher oil prices

Food costs in the coming months could easily rise by 10 percent if the recent swings in oil prices remain near levels of $40 per barrel, a Texas A&M food marketing expert said.

The first foods to feel the impact of the near doubling oil prices as a result of Mideast tensions will be those hit hardest by increased transportation costs, according to Dr. Dick Edwards of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. These will include certain fresh produce, frozen seafoods and many imported fruits and vegetables.

Among the most vulnerable, he said, will be frozen imported seafood items such as crab meat and baby clams, smoked shrimp and whole clams, peeled smoked shrimp, frozen salmon steaks, stuffed orange roughy and some fish fillets. Cod, haddock and pollack also will be in short supply because of international harvest quotas and increased world demand.

With the Texas citrus supply expected to be greatly reduced this season because of last December's freeze, pink grapefruit is being flown to supermarkets here from Florida; oranges are coming from California. Transportation costs will increase checkout counter prices.

"But not all higher costs for produce can be tied to the oil situation, since transitional seasonal marketing shifts in production areas often result in temporary shortages of lettuce and similar produce,"

Edwards said. "These prices climb during any marketing season as products become scarce."

Ray Prewett, with the Texas Vegetable Association, McAllen, said the sweet potato whitefly is a major new pest in the Rio Grande Valley. "It has greatly damaged the fall melon and squash crops here, and reduced yields," he said. "Thus, insects and other problems add to produce costs of consumers."

"With oil prices bouncing higher, consumers definitely will help pay for the added costs with higher food bills," Edwards said. "Until there is some stabilization in oil futures and the forces driving them, the situation will continue to be erratic."

In the food distribution chain, Edwards said, the cost of fuels and electric components generally amounts to about five percent of the retail food dollar.

"But the 100 percent increase in oil prices since July -- from $20 to about $40 per barrel -- will have a significant impact."

"Higher oil prices eventually will raise the many costs of the food chain, from agricultural chemicals to plastic pip bottles," Edwards said. "This also would include wrapping materials on many packaged items, foam meat trays and plastic bags used to carry groceries home."

Fall leaves provide mulch for next year

Cool autumn mornings, holiday preparations, falling leaves, all these things are apart of the changing of the seasons in Texas.

"Those falling leaves are somewhat a nuisance this time of year," said Bob Perry, district conservationist with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Hereford. "But, they can be a valuable asset to next year's garden. Leaves can be converted to valuable compost, one of the best mulches around."

Using a mulch in your flower garden may will be your most valuable garden practice. A good mulch can reduce erosion, suppress weeds, keep the soil moist and cool, and add organic matter to the soil.

Mulches prevent loss of moisture from the soil by evaporation. Moisture moves by capillary action to the surface and evaporates if the soil is not covered by a mulch. Sun and wind can rob valuable moisture during the growing season.

Mulches add organic matter and also furnish food for earthworms, which are valuable in aerating the soil. The organic matter helps to keep the soil crumbly and easy to work. Farmers call this good tilth.

"To provide a source of mulch and to do something with those fall leaves, every gardener should have a compost bin--preferably two--one for making compost from organic materials such as leaves," said Perry.

Bins can be made by attaching ordinary wire fence or boards to solid posts or open brickwork. Each bin should be 4-6 feet high, 3-5 feet wide, and any convenient length. One side of each bin should be removable for convenience in building up the compost material and for taking it out. In late fall, a temporary piece of wire fence may be used to increase the height about two feet. After the material settles in March, the piece of fence can be removed.

"Many organic materials, such as autumn leaves, are rich in carbohydrates and low in nitrogen," said Perry. "Usually, one will find it beneficial to add nitrogen fertilizer to the material before applying it as a mulch. One of two cups of fertilizer high in nitrogen for each bushel of organic material is about right. To avoid burning the plants, do not let the fertilizer touch them."

The organic material should be moistened thoroughly when fertilizer is added to the bin. Some garden soil may be added to one of the bins, about one inch for every 6-12 inches of organic material.

Pack the material tightly around the edges, but only lightly in the center so that this area settles more than the edges and water does not run off.

After three or four months of moderate to warm weather, begin turning the material by moving it from one bin to another. Before turning, it is a good idea to move the material added the previous fall from the edges, which dry out first, to the center.

Bananas get good grades

Before school, it's easier to control a child's diet. Once they're away from home for most of the day, it's anyone's guess how much and what kind of food they're eating.

What young children and teenagers need is complex carbohydrates for energy and an ample supply of those nutrients important for growth and normal development. They should also enjoy the foods they consume and develop good eating habits.

One fresh fruit children love is the banana. While bananas alone won't meet all the nutritional needs of a growing child, they do supply both fast-acting carbohydrates for quick energy and slower natural sugars for longer sustenance.

Among the nutrients in bananas are vitamins C, A and B6 and the important minerals potassium, magnesium and copper.

All these contribute to the growth and development of healthy active children. That's why many parents send their youngster to school with a banana for mid-morning snack time and tuck an extra into lunch boxes for noontime, a good way to avoid unhealthy snacks and maintain good nutrition all day long.
