EDC interviews one director candidate

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A candidate for executive director of the local Economic Development Council was interviewed Tuesday night by EDC members during a meeting at the Deaf Smith County Library.

"We really have no definite proposal," EDC chairman John Perrin explained before the meeting. "We just want to see what can be done. We talked with three persons who were good candidates and we invited one of them back to talk to us and other people from the city, county and school board."

One of the major problems the EDC is facing is with money. The Hereford Independent School District, citing a legal problem, has had to withdraw the $24,000 it was planning to give the EDC for its first-year efforts.

The school district, by law, cannot use funds for anything other than education.

The EDC still has about $85,000 available from the City of Hereford and Deaf Smith County for use during the first year, speaking unofficially, County Commissioner Troy Don Moore and Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher said those funds will still be there.

"The city is prepared to go and get something going," Fisher said.

"You're in until you're out on this," Moore said.

Perrin said the EDC is looking at alternatives to a full-time executive director for the EDC.

"This could be structured right if a person can produce and perform the way he needs to. We're in a situation where we need someone to be close to the situation, but we have this cut ($24,000) in our first-year funding. It's a pretty uncertain picture."

"One alternative is as a consultant, but that person would have to be here most of the time," Perrin said. "That might involve someone coming here and working during the week and going home on weekends or something."

DSGH board approves renovation

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

A renovation project at Deaf Smith General Hospital which would provide office space and exam rooms for as many as three physicians was approved by directors of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District Tuesday night.

The board accepted a bid of $33,890 for the project from Northline Construction Co., the only bid submitted, with construction expected to be completed in 30 days. The project calls for remodeling the west hallway at the hospital to provide three doctors' offices, seven exam rooms, and conversion of the old board room into a waiting room.

Two physicians have already agreed to rent offices in the wing, according to hospital administrator

Gary Moore. Dr. David Baddour, urologist, will move into one office and a new general surgeon, Dr. Robert Clark III, will be moved to Hereford. Dr. Clark, now of Memphis, is expected to start practice here next Monday and will move into temporary offices upstairs.

Dr. Clark is a native of Memphis, where his father is a doctor and his grandfather also practiced and helped start the hospital. The hospital is still seeking to recruit another physician here.

In other business Tuesday night, the board approved the purchase of an operating room table at a cost of $14,850, extended the bid deadline on employee health insurance, and took a tour of upstairs' rooms where the home-health care services and the social worker's offices will be located, as well as temporary space for a doctor.

After a brief discussion on health insurance, board chairman Ralph Detten recommended that the bid deadline be extended to Dec. 1 in order to receive additional bids. The finance committee will review the bids and recommend a plan to the board.

The hospital's current policy with Blue Cross shows a 25 percent rate increase for next year. The concept of self funding for health insurance was briefly outlined by an agent at the board meeting.

Directors present for the meeting were Detten, Marjorie Ford, Raymond Schroeder, Dr. Gerald Payne and Frank Zinser. Absent was Craig Smith.

School okays annual report

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board approved the local section of the district's annual performance report at a special board meeting Tuesday night.

The board also supported Hereford High School administrators in their discipline decision on a junior student.

"This is a report card on the district," explained Marc Williamson, the district's assistant superintendent for instruction. "When we have it ready to go, I would encourage everyone in the community to read it to see what is really going on. If people are uninformed, they can't change for the better what they don't know about."

Minor changes were made in the report by the board on Tuesday. The report will now be submitted to the Texas Education Agency.

The only missing part of the report is the state's section that compares Hereford to other districts around the state. That section was supposed to be ready in October, but has not yet been received.

When the entire report is complete, copies will be placed in public, high-traffic areas and will also be available at the administration building.

In an open hearing, Estella Montoya appealed a decision to place her daughter, a junior at HHS, on three-day in-school suspension for continual disruptive behavior in the classroom.

Montoya's daughter was first sent to assistant principal Marilyn Leasure on Sept. 23 for "repeatedly not following specific instructions" concerning her behavior in a classroom.

On the first referral to the office, the student was given the option of two swats or two days of after-school detention. The girl, according to a report written by Leasure and signed by the girl, said "No one is going to hit me," and accepted the two-day detention.

The girl was sent to the office again on Oct. 13 for the same infractions in the same classroom.

"The teacher had tried several times to correct the problem," said HHS principal Terry Russell. "We ask our teachers to try to correct any problems they can in the classroom.

If they have trouble, then we can help them in the office."

"According to the teacher, the situation with the girl had worsened. The situation reached the point where the girl was bothering the learning of the other students."

On the second referral, the girl was placed on three-day in-school suspension (ISS), as called for in school policy.

According to policy, that decision is not open to appeal; however, Montoya was granted a hearing by Russell, who supported Leasure's decision.

Montoya then appealed that decision to the board, even though there was still no formal avenue of appeal.

"they never told me nothing like that," Montoya told the board after Russell's report. "This is not right for my daughter to get this because there were other children involved and they weren't sent to the office." "I think this (three-day ISS) is too much for this. You might as well send her to a correctional home for talking. This man (Russell) made his decision and didn't hear nothing, he just sided with her (Leasure)."

"Sometimes I have a problem with our discipline system because I think three days of in-school suspension is way too light," said board president John Fuston. "I wish the whole plan could go back to where we take them to the woodshed and wear them out."

"I think maybe we're too light in trying to make our students a better person and a better student. I feel that if these people feel this is the best punishment in the situation to get her turned around, then fine."

The board voted 5-0 to support the three-day ISS decision.

Revenues may grow for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The projection that state revenues will grow during the next two years is being hailed by Texas officials who've had to cope with repeated budget crises and seen taxes raised by record amounts.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's official revenue estimate says the Legislature will find an additional $1.6 billion available to spend when it convenes in January and total state income over the next two years rising $4.2 billion.

Bullock's estimate for the 1990-91 budget years said the state would take in $45 billion from all sources, with the increase due to a rebounding economy.

"The Texas economy is in recovery and state government's revenue outlook is better than it has been in years," Bullock said.

Bullock said the additional $1.6 billion available marks a $3.7 billion turnaround from the point less than two years ago when the state's available income fell by $2.1 billion.

"We have bounced back big and strong and we think the improvement will continue. And our estimate would have been even larger if it had not been for the continued poor condition of the oil industry," the comptroller said in the forecast given to Gov. Bill Clements and legislators Tuesday.

Bullock said the additional $1.6 billion will be available to lawmakers even though several temporary taxes adopted by the 1987 Legislature are set to expire on Aug. 31, 1989.

The good news follows massive budget problems that began in November 1985, when oil prices plunged from near $30 a barrel to less than $10 and took the state's economy down with it.

"It's certainly positive news for us for the first time in a long time," said state Treasurer Ann Richards.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said the news arrived in the nick of time.

"The announcement ... could not come at a more critical time in light of the growing demands on state services in the areas of prison overcrowding, public and higher education enrollment increases, as well as new mandates from the federal government on welfare and nursing home reform," Lewis said.

A Clements spokesman, Jay Rosser, called the forecast "wonderful news for state government and great news for Texas taxpayers" and said it is "proof-positive that the Texas economy continues to grow and expand and a sure sign that our economic development programs are working." The governor was traveling in Europe.

Although revenue from all sources will rise $4.2 billion, all that extra money won't go into the Legislature's checkbook.

State and federal laws and the Texas Constitution restrict $2.1 billion of the increase to education, highways, human services and other specific programs.

Another $1.5 billion is a reserve to pay for pending legal challenges to the state's tax laws, particularly the corporate franchise, insurance and utility taxes, Bullock said.

That leaves a net increase of $600 million in income, but lawmakers in the 1989 Legislature also gain $1 billion that had to be spent last session to repay debts left over from 1986-87.

While OPEC nations agreed this week on production controls to boost oil prices to $18 per barrel, Bullock said the relative importance of Texas' oil and gas taxes has fallen dramatically and the industry remains a shakey economic link.

Quayle 'playing it slow'

May show need for transition education

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unlike George Bush, who is rapidly picking top aides, Dan Quayle has yet to make major staffing decisions in a transition period marked chiefly by meetings with conservatives and others seeking his ear.

The turtle-like pace of Quayle's transition, aides say, reflects that a politician moving from the legislative to the executive branch of government inevitably needs some educating.

Moreover, the vice president-elect apparently is in no hurry to make appointments without Bush's acquiescence.

"He's not going to rush it," said Dan Evans, the head of Quayle's transition team whose friendship with the Indiana senator goes back nearly 20 years.

Quayle's transition team operates from a white, federal-style town house off Pennsylvania Avenue near the Old Executive Office Building where Quayle eventually will work as vice president.

The town house customarily is set aside for the use of former presidents, and the walls are adorned with photographs of Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and Richard Nixon. The quarters are elegant, if cramped, with barely enough room for Secret Service agents posted in the narrow hallways. Press aides on the second floor must move to the lobby if the senator wishes to use the conference room that serves as their makeshift office.

Those drawbacks aside, Evans says Quayle's transition is moving ahead as it should and Quayle is selecting his staff "in consultation with President-elect Bush and his staff."

"He isn't waiting for approval or disapproval, but in keeping with the collegiality of the decision-making process, decisions will not be made in a vacuum," Evans said in a recent interview.

Bush moved quickly to pick his chief of staff, John Sununu, and many of his top Cabinet officials. An announcement on Quayle's chief of staff, who will head a team of roughly 100 people, is expected in early December.

Evans himself is said not to be in the running, nor are any of the top "handlers" that traveled with Quayle during the campaign. Many of them, veterans of previous White House jobs, have said they now prefer private life. Evans won't say whether Quayle is looking for a Washington insider, Indiana crony or someone from his Senate staff.

Dozens of "high quality resumes" and hundreds of unsolicited resumes have come into the transition office, Evans says, but Quayle is "educating himself on the executive branch before he makes his staffing decisions."

And although Quayle's staff organization will be patterned after Bush's vice presidential office, there is one top adviser who doesn't appear on any official flow chart. That is Marilyn Quayle, the senator's wife, who occupies an office in the transition building and who probably will have space in the vice presidential office as well.

"There is no adviser senior to her," Evans says.

Quayle's work day usually begins shortly after 7 a.m. when he arrives to prepare for breakfast meetings. It ends 12 or 13 hours later after more meetings, perusal of briefing papers and an occasional black-tie dinner.

His meetings have read like a roster of the conservative elite: Heritage Foundation president Ed Feulner; outgoing Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.; conservative columnists George Will, William F. Buckley Jr. and William Safire; former United Nations ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Paul Weyrich of the Free Congress Foundation.

Evans rejects the notion that Quayle is being used by the right to further its agenda for the incoming administration.

Agricultural workers face midnight amnesty deadline

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Agricultural workers who are in the country illegally have until midnight tonight to apply for immigration amnesty.

This deadline is passing much more quietly than the May 4 deadline that applied to non-agricultural workers. During the last month of that yearlong application period, the Immigration and Naturalization Service as well as private groups put out the word on radio, television, billboards, newspapers and pamphlets.

That kind of hype is not accompanying this deadline. Although the 18-month application period for agricultural workers is ending with a relative whimper, lines outside INS legalization centers have gotten longer in the past week or so, officials say.

"Today was the longest line we've had since May 4," El Paso legalization center director Henry McGehee said. "But it wasn't nearly as long as the ones we had then."

McGehee turned away about 50 people and told them to return today. About 120 aliens, mostly Mexicans, filed applications Tuesday, he said.

In contrast, the center processed more than 1,000 applications May 4 and almost as many the day before.

Longer lines of agricultural workers have been reported in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where there are more farms and farmworkers.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, people who had lived in the United States illegally since before Jan. 1, 1982, were allowed to apply for amnesty from deportation. Amnesty recipients received temporary U.S. residency and permission to work and are allowed to apply later for permanent residency.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Children, Families, Drugs and Alcoholism, I want to add to your excellent response to the letter in a recent column claiming that today's mother works to buy a BMW and a country club membership.

Women work for the same reason men work. To support their families and pay the bills. Far from destroying the traditional family, mothers' wages keep millions of children from sinking below the poverty line.

Two-thirds of the women in the work force today are either the sole support for their children or have husbands who earn less than $15,000 a year. In 1988, fewer than one in four single mothers received the full amount of child support due on time.

And while women in the work force have been a boon to businesses, most businesses have not responded by providing on-site child care or granting parental leave.

Ann, please keep telling your vast readership that American women haven't turned their backs on their children by entering the work force. They have gone to work to keep their families together. --Sincerely, Christopher J. Dodd, United States Senator (Conn.)

DEAR SEN. DODD: I appreciate the back-up. Most mothers tell me they would love to stay at home and be full-time mothers, but it just isn't financially possible. Thank you for stating the case so well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read the letter about the woman whose neighbor snuck into her bedroom and planted a pair of lace panties between the sheets as a "joke," it brought back some fond memories.

While I was in high school, a "friend" decided to play a joke on me and planted a gay magazine in my locker. The plan was for me to find it while the school football team was in the locker room. I did. It was only seconds before the taunting and kiss-blowing began. I tried to explain but there were whoops of laughter and my declaration of innocence was drowned out by the jeers.

After a few minutes I became so enraged that I threw the magazine across the room. As it sailed through the air, a piece of paper fluttered out. It was a mail-order receipt with my friend's name and address on it.

What could have been an ugly episode turned into one of the best examples of a joke that backfired. Everyone laughed at the unexpected turn of events.

There's a moral to this story that I hope is recognized by all practical jokers out there. Sign me — The Last Laugh in Alameda, Calif.

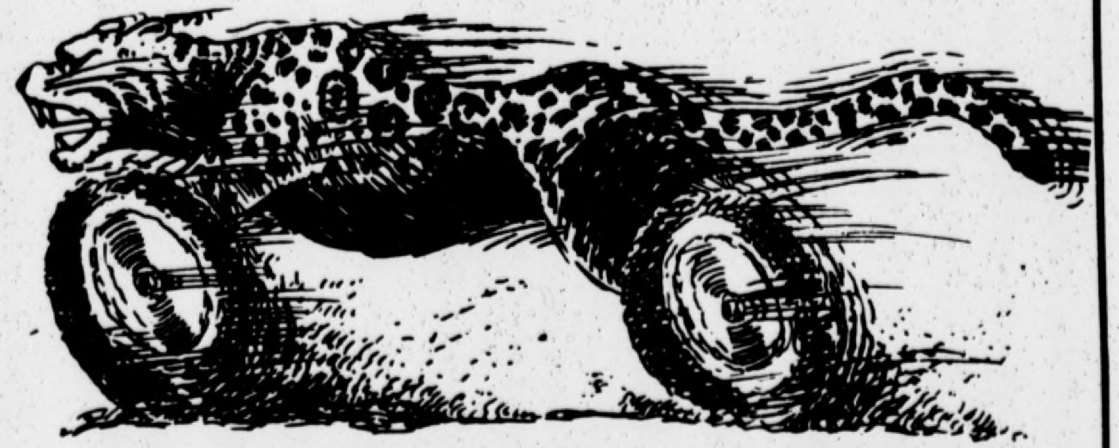

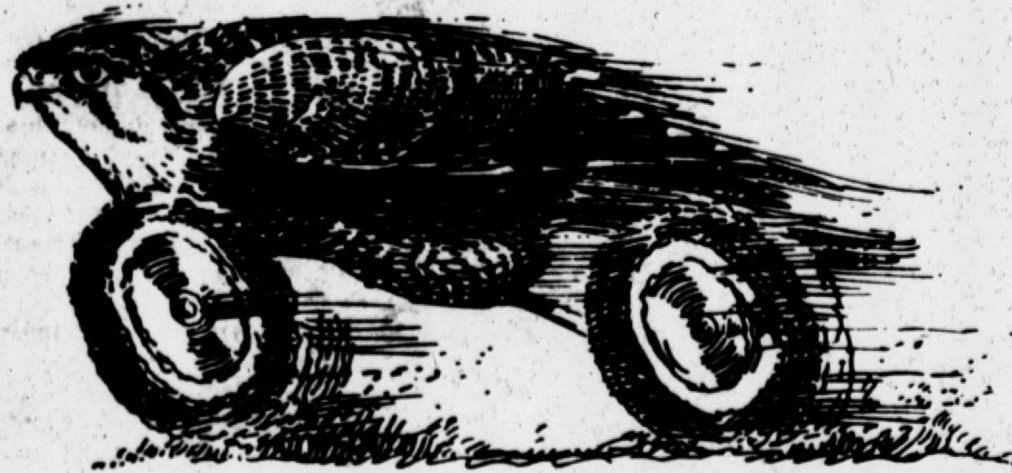

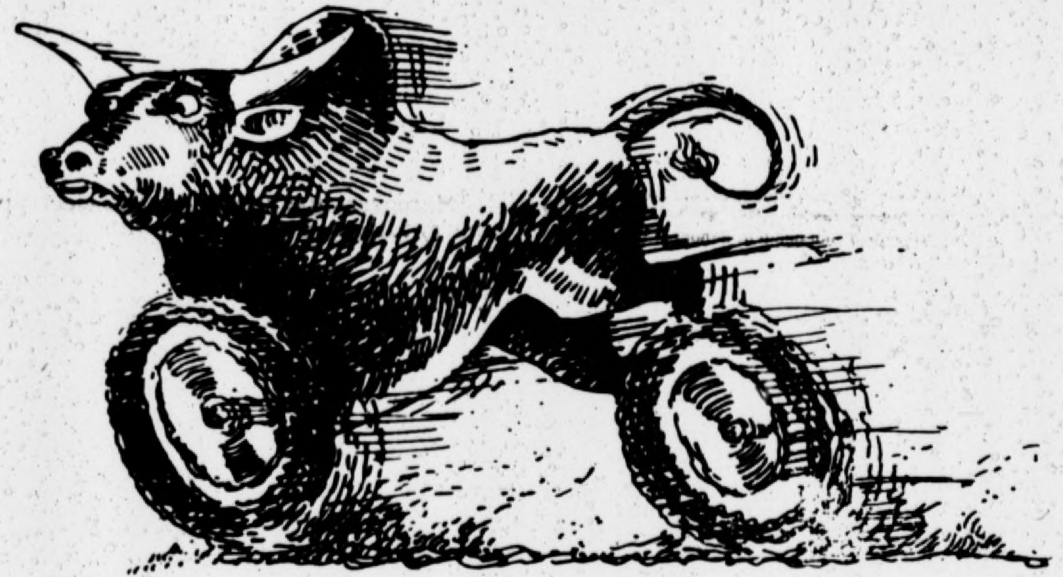

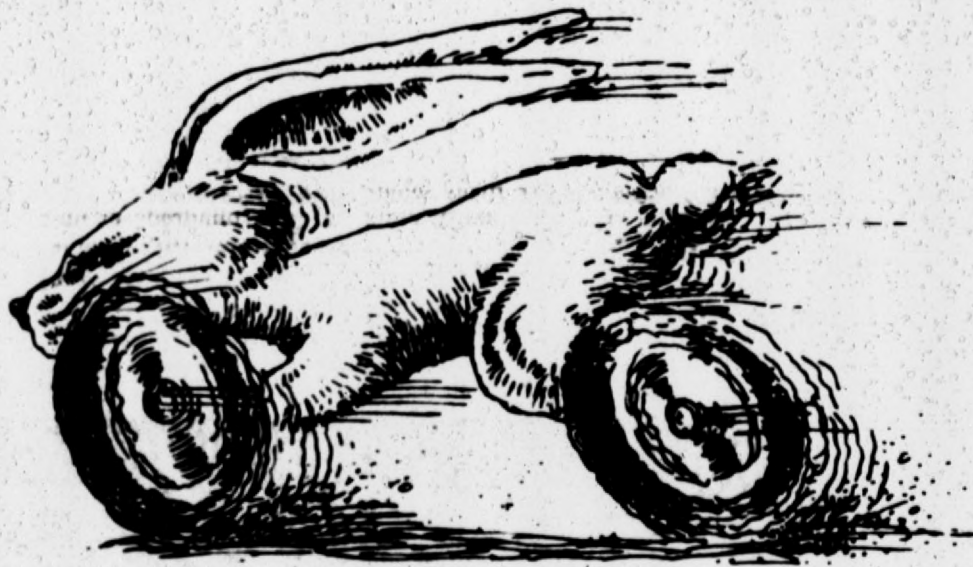

DEAR ALAMEDA: Call me a sourpuss, but I think practical jokes are for the birds. Most of them have a seed of petty meanness and some are downright cruel. In my opinion, something is fundamentally wrong with people who enjoy embarrassing or humiliating others and then expect the victim to be "a good sport" and laugh it off.

DEAR READERS: The pig lovers of America have united to let me know that the beloved porker has more sensible eating habits than dogs, horses or humans. They will NOT overeat dangerously (mea culpa) nor do they "eat like pigs." They do not bolt down their food, but chew it, savor it and shove it about with the snout to release and enjoy the aroma. If humans ate like pigs, the authorities say they would be a great deal healthier.

For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Girls fall to Loboes, boys drop one-pointer

By JOHN BROOKS
 Managing Editor

The Hereford girls opened their District 1-4A basketball schedule Tuesday with a 65-33 loss to defending state champion Levelland.

The Hereford boys, most with just one day of practice under their belts after the football season ended last Saturday, lost a close game to undefeated Amarillo Caprock, 71-70.

"We're just not playing as well as we can right now," said Hereford girls coach Frank Belcher. "Levelland executed a little better than I thought they would, and they're definitely good. I don't think anyone in our district can beat them."

"We're just not getting as good an effort as we can get. But, I'm glad we got that one out of the way. Now we can get on with the rest of the district next Tuesday."

The Hereford girls will host Dumas next Tuesday. This weekend, the Lady Whitefaces, 3-6, will play in the Clayton, N.M. Tournament. Hereford will meet Texline at 10 a.m. Central time on Thursday.

The Hereford JV girls lost to Levelland 57-45. "Our JV girls played a pretty good game," Belcher said. Individual statistics were not available.

The Hereford boys had a chance to beat Caprock, now 7-0, in the last 20 seconds of the game, but missed two 3-pointers and a shot in the middle before the Longhorns finally got a rebound.

"We had to foul them, and they made both free throws," said Hereford boys coach Mike Fields. "That put them up by four, and we came down and made a three-pointer, but there wasn't any time left."

"We banged them pretty good and played a pretty good game. We just came up a little short. With a couple days more of practice we could have fared better. Overall, I'm pleased with our effort. I think it's going to be a fun year."

Clint Cotten led the Whitefaces with 29 points. PAT Mercer had just two field goals but was 7-of-9 from the line for 11 points. Hereford, with just one day of practice, shot 46 percent from the field, making 27 of 59 shots.

Friday, the varsity boys meet Amarillo High at 7:15 p.m. in the first round of the Amarillo Invitational.

"That's going to be a good tournament," Fields said. "It's mostly a 5A field, and four of the teams were in the playoffs. It will be a good test for us."

The JV boys will face the Happy varsity at 5:30 on Thursday in the Tulla Varsity Tournament, while the sophomore boys face Sudan on Thursday in the Muleshoe JV Tournament.

Herd facing rebuilding year

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
 Editor-Publisher

The football playoffs ended abruptly for the Hereford Whitefaces against Cleburne last Saturday. It was a predominantly senior-class team for the Herd with 37 players making their final appearance for the Herd football team. Only 12 junior were on the varsity, but prospects appear good for next season with junior varsity and sophomore teams posting strong records this season.

Varsity returnees will include backs Jim Andrews, Steve Steward, Chuck Lemons and Russell Backus along with Brian Wagner, Tate Smith, Jason Lueb, Aaron Savage, Edward Castillo, Benny Gonzales, Anthony Tijerina and Steve Tucker.

After finishing second in District 1-4A action with a 6-1-1 record to Levelland's 7-1 mark, the Whitefaces knocked off top-ranked Sweetwater 29-12 in the area game before losing to Cleburne, 35-20, in the regional round.

In 12 games, the Herd scored 348 points while limiting the opposition to 134.

The 1988 Herd compiled 3,822 yards in total offense: 2,641 rushing yards and 1,181 passing. With an average of 29 points a game, the '88 team had the highest scoring average since team statistics have been kept back to 1960.

Three offensive players earned spots in the local record. Quarterback Jason Scott recorded the best completion mark in HHS history, hitting 59.9 percent of his passes (79 of 132). He also had the most touchdown passes for a 12-game season with 13. Scott ranks third in passing career yardage.

Tailback Keith Brown finished with 1,229 yards rushing, a game average of 102.4. That puts him fifth among Hereford's all-time runners.

Wide receiver Pat Mercer moved up to third among HHS pass catchers, with 30 catches for 571 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Pelluer will start for Cowboys Sunday

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry named Steve Pelluer his starting quarterback for Sunday's game against the Cleveland Browns but added that the Cowboys need to address the quarterback issue in the final three weeks of the season.

"We do need to solve some of the problems we have at quarterback," Landry said Tuesday. "And we need to make a decision on quarterback."

Landry said the Cowboys' disastrous 2-11 season "isn't all Pelluer's fault. He has showed a steady performance the last several weeks."

He added that Kevin Sweeney also would see action sometime during the Cowboys last three games against Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia.

"I can't tell you exactly when I'll put Kevin in there," Landry said.

Landry said he would study the quarterback situation in detail in the off-season but reiterated veteran Danny White was still in his plans.

"I know what he can do and we may need him to play next year," Landry said.

Landry said the Cowboys will be going all out to win in December.

"It's important that we win those games if we can," Landry said. "You can't just keep losing and have much going for you. We're going to try to win those games even if it does hurt us in the draft."

The Cowboys, who have lost nine consecutive games, are tied with Green Bay for the worst record in the NFL. The team with the most losses gets the top pick in next spring's NFL draft.

"We won our last two games last year (over St. Louis and the Los Angeles Rams) and it had a big carryover during the off-season," Landry said. "We need to show we can compete. And I believe we can compete against anybody if we just don't self-destruct."

Landry announced that running back Herschel Walker will miss some practice time this week to attend the funeral of Kenneth Walker, 31, who was killed in an accident Monday in Wrightsville, Ga.

Walker will go home Thursday and rejoin the team in Cleveland on Saturday night for Sunday's noon game.

"Herschel will work out with the team on Wednesday," Landry said.

Landry also said that tight end Doug Cosbie will undergo surgery on Thursday on an achilles tendon and will not play the rest of the year.

Rookie linebacker Ken Norton Jr., the club's second round draft pick who has been on injured reserve, will be activated. Norton will play on the speciality teams and see limited duty at outside linebacker. Landry put wide receiver Kelvin Edwards on injured reserve to make room for Norton.

Landry also may start tailback Darryl Clack at fullback against the Browns.

HOW MANY LAPS?

DENVER (AP) — Fights in pro football training camps are inevitable. You get them between veterans and rookies trying to take their jobs, between offensive and defensive linemen and between wide receivers and defensive backs.

Dan Reeves, the coach of the Denver Broncos, has seen a lot of fights in his time and he has come up with an idea to stop them quickly.

Dan simply walks over to the fighters and quietly inquires: "After this is over, how many laps do you want to do?"

Baylor loses first game in new center

WACO, Texas (AP) — For 20 years, the Baylor basketball team has played in the Heart O' Texas Coliseum, the same place the rodeo is held when it comes to town.

"The coliseum was always the object of a lot of joking," Baylor Athletic Director Bill Menefee said Tuesday. "Sportswriters, some who have never covered a game there, made fun of it all the time."

Now Waco has one place for bull riding and another for college basketball, the just-built 10,000-seat Ferrell Center, located on the Baylor campus.

The Bears lost their first regular season game in the new center Tuesday night when they fell to San Diego State, 53-58, before only 3,915 fans.

The Bears had been playing in the old faded blue, tin-roofed coliseum for too long, in the estimation of most associated with the school.

Veteran Baylor radio broadcaster Frank Fallon recalls well at least one of the reasons it was time for a change. The night of Feb. 3, 1962, Baylor had just wrapped up the first half of a 7:30 game against Southwest Conference rival Texas A&M.

A Baylor band member running late for the game ran into a guy wire attached to a power pole and knocked out the coliseum lights for an hour.

It was Fallon's job to try and hold the attention of fans who wanted to listen to a good basketball game.

"I talked to 31 people," said Fallon. "I interviewed everyone from the school president to all the sportswriters there."

When 40 percent of the lights finally came back on at about 10:15, legend has it that an old man grabbed former Baylor coach Jim Haller as he walked back toward his bench and said: "Coach, that was a heck of an idea having somebody throw the switch on the lights. That ought to really screw up the Aggies."

Baylor won, 50-55.

The Bears might not have such a home-court advantage in the new Ferrell Center, but they'll have a lot of things the old coliseum never had.

To begin with, the arena has 2,000 more seats than the "H.O.T.," as the old place is referred to here.

It's built with brick and has an anodized gold dome for a roof. The seats are all Baylor green, as opposed to the Heart O' Texas seats, which were just about every color in the spectrum.

And it's walking distance from all dormitories, whereas students once had to drive across town to see games in the coliseum.

Menefee thinks the new center will be a good place to hold early rounds of the NCAA tournament.

"I don't think we'll hold the Final Four here, but I think it would be a good place for regional play," he said.

Players liken the transition to getting a new car.

Forward Bert Brown, for instance, said the prospect of playing his senior year in a new arena helped him decide to sign with Baylor.

"You don't want to lose at home anymore," he said. "It's something you want to take care of.

"It's loud in there too," he added. "The place really echos. When we played the Australians (in an exhibition game), it was so loud, and we only had 3,000 fans.

"The crowd really loves it. It's top-of-the-line."

Arkansas hogs All-SWC squad

DALLAS (AP) — Cotton Bowl-bound Arkansas hogged honors on The Associated Press 1966 All-Southwest Conference football team in a tribute paid by the coaches, who named eight Razorbacks players to the first team.

Arkansas' Ken Hatfield was selected as Coach of the Year in balloting that had Jack Pardee of Houston a close second.

Hatfield's team was the first in five years to win all its SWC games. It was only the fifth time in history Arkansas had won 10 regular season contests.

The Hogs meet UCLA on Jan. 2 in the Cotton Bowl.

Defensive tackle Wayne Martin of the Razorbacks was picked the SWC's Defensive Player of the Year.

Razorbacks on the first team offense included quarterback Quinn Grove, a sophomore from Lawton, Okla., whose option wizardry kept Arkansas moving; tight end Billy Winston, rated as one of the top blockers at his position; senior tackle Jim Mabry and senior guard Freddie Childress; and placekicker Kendall Trainor, who hit a school and SWC record 23 field goals in a row.

Martin, a 6-5, 263-pound senior defensive tackle from Cherry Valley, Ark., led the all-league defense.

Others Hogs on the first team included linebacker Kerry Owens and defensive back Steve Atwater.

Arkansas also scored on the second team with center Elbert Crawford, defensive linemen Kerry Crawford and Michael Shepherd, and defensive backs Patrick Williams and Richard Brothers.

In all, 13 Razorbacks were honored on either the first or second teams.

The offensive player of the year was Texas A&M's Darren Lewis, who had eight straight rushing games of over 100 yards. He edged record-setting wide receiver Jason Phillips of Houston.

Lewis joined Texas' Eric Metcalf in the first team backfield.

Joining Phillips at first team wide receiver were Houston teammate Jason Dixon and Texas' Tony Jones, who tied in the balloting.

Other first team linemen were tackle Matt McCall and guard Jerry Fontenot, both of Texas A&M, and center Courtney Hall of Rice.

The offensive newcomer of the year was Robert Wilson of Texas A&M.

Joining Martin in the defensive line were Glenn Montgomery of Houston, and Tracy Simien and Mitchell Benson, both of Texas Christian.

At linebacker, Texas' Britt Hager, and Texas A&M's John Roper drew the most ballots while A&M's Aaron Wallace tied Arkansas' Owens for the third spot.

In the secondary, TCU's Falanda Newton, Houston's Johnny Jackson and Baylor's Robert Blackmon joined Atwater.

The punter was Texas' Bobby Lillard and the kick returner was tiny Tyrone Thurman of Texas Tech.

The defensive newcomer of the year was Texas' Willie Mack Garza.

Raiders learn Japanese customs

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — By the time Texas Tech's Red Raiders boarded the plane for Tokyo Tuesday, they had learned a thing or two about how to get along in Japan, where they will play No. 12 Oklahoma State Saturday in the Coca-Cola Bowl.

For instance, it's OK to chew and spit tobacco in public and to wear gomme caps on the streets of Tokyo.

But for heaven's sake, don't crack any one-liners about the seriously ailing Emperor Hirohito, the 87-year-old Japanese monarch who has been ill with abdominal bleeding for more than two months.

"Don't make any jokes about emperors," warned Sam Ishihara, a Tech associate professor of electrical engineering and physics who is a native of Osaka, Japan, at a team meeting in which players heard how to avoid foreign faux pas.

Older Japanese worship the emperor as a deity and would be highly offended at a visitor's flippant remarks about the gravely ill monarch, Ishihara told players.

Tech officials were concerned about whether the game would be played if the emperor should die. But they have been assured that despite a national period of mourning that would follow such an event, the contest would go on, said Tech athletic director T. Jones. The players would wear black armbands on their jerseys to honor the leader who has ruled Japan since 1926.

Jones also told players sternly that the elaborate customs of their hosts must be respected.

The water is safe to drink, but boisterous behavior is sure to offend, said Jones, who with Ishihara's help demonstrated how to offer a socially correct bow when greeting a native.

"You must remember we are visitors in their country," Jones said. "Patience is one thing we will have to have."

To make sure they don't forget, players were given a packet full of cultural do's and don't's and a list of what annoys the Japanese about Americans and vice-versa.

"You will be stared at, especially by little kids," said Bob Sweazy, Tech's associate vice president for research and Southwest Conference president. "Be nice to the little kids."

About 150 Tech players, coaches, staff and pompon squad members are making the trip to Tokyo, where most of the attention will be focused on Heisman hopeful Barry Sanders, a junior tailback who enters the game with 2,296 yards rushing and 35 touchdowns.

For Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver, the prospect of facing Sanders gives his team just one more thing to worry about as Tech, 5-5 overall, heads to the Orient to meet the Cowboys, 8-2.

"I'm excited about going to Japan," he said. "But I'm not excited about the plane trip and I'm not excited about playing Barry Sanders."

The National Football League was first split into two divisions in 1933 with the two leaders meeting for the league title.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What is maple sugar? C.McF., Epsom, NH

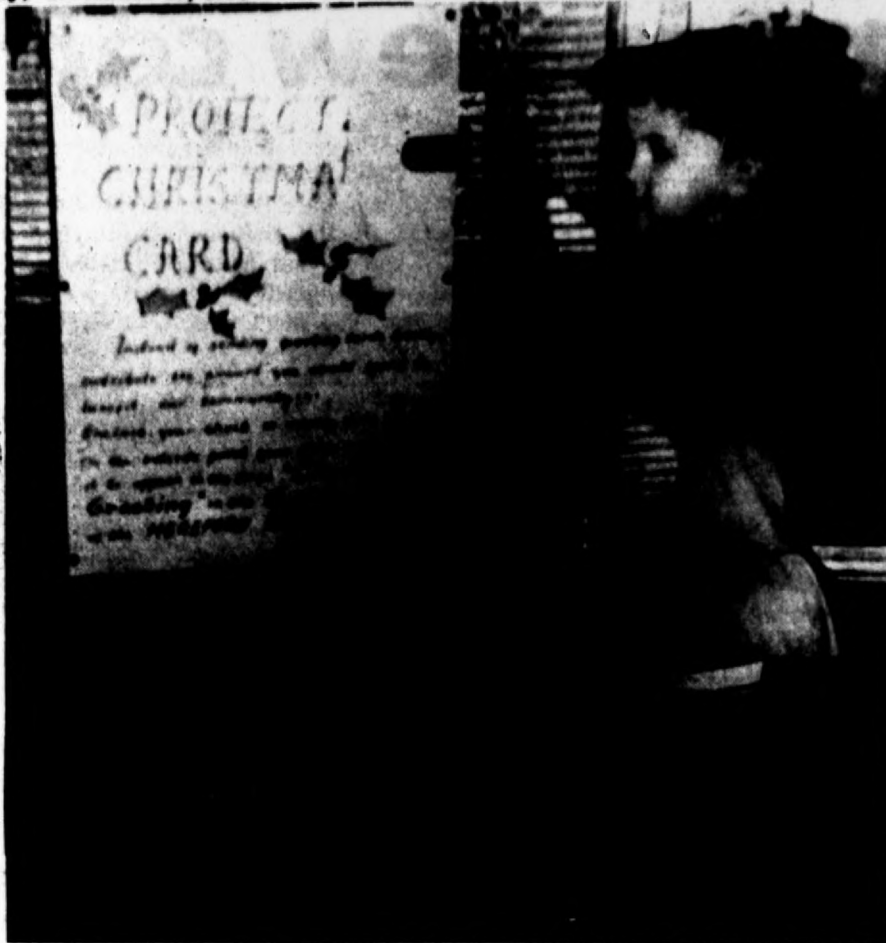

A. Maple sugar is sugar crystals made by boiling maple syrup. To make it, pure maple syrup is boiled to 230 to 233 degrees F and beaten till it starts to thicken. Pour into molds.

Q. Do I need to add more salt when I use prepared soup or soup mixes for recipes? R.C., Goodwin, SD.

A. The soups alone may give enough seasoning to the entire recipe. If not, you may be able to add less salt than the recipe indicates. Let your taste buds and health considerations be your guide.

Q. Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

TIP OF THE WEEK: You can make a small amount of concentrated chicken stock from chicken giblets and neck.

Admiring bedroom

Nancy Paetzold, at left, and Pat Walsh, both members of La Madre Mia Study Club, admire a brass bed found in the home of John and Jodi Meyer at 328 Fir. The home will be open for public viewing during the club's 19th Annual Christmas Tour of Homes from 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Other tour residences include Earl and Dodi Brookhart, 200 Kingwood, and Lee Roy and Erma Rickman, 500 Union. Admission price is $2 per person, tickets may be purchased at the three homes or from club members. The public is also invited to have refreshments at the E.B. Black House where the winner of the door prize, $25 in Hereford bucks, will be announced at the conclusion of the tour. Proceeds will be used to benefit the community.

Institutes of learning were first called "universities" in the twelfth century.

Carr chairing Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony

Janice Carr is heading this year's 18th Annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony set for 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, on the courthouse lawn. A special invitation is extended to all children to attend the event as Santa Claus will be present to take holiday gift requests.

Others assisting with the tree lighting ceremony, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, are Joann Hill, Barbara Yavornik, Mary Hamby, Juanita Koetting, Betty Drake and Brenda Reinauer.

According to Carr, this is a special year for the ceremony and committee members are encouraging Hereford residents to have their homes decorated and Christmas lights turned on at 7 p.m. that day so that those returning from the courthouse can enjoy them. Plans are also in the making to have not only the community tree lit, but the courthouse and the surrounding downtown area synchronized in their lighting.

The idea for a community Christmas tree and special lighting ceremony was conceived by the Women's Division in 1979 when Margaret Formby served as president. A three-and-a-half foot Douglas fir, now over nine feet tall, was planted in the southwest corner of the courthouse lawn with the consent of county commissioners who also agreed to supply electricity for lighting of the tree.

During the past ceremonies, a variety of entertainment has been provided by community choirs, bands, and, of course, Santa Claus, who has arrived in everything from a horse-drawn wagon to a three wheeler.

Better Business Bureau's Tips for the consumer

Winterizing Your House And Lawn

Don't wait until the first snow flies to prepare your house and lawn for winter. The time to get started is now.

Do you have adequate insulation? Are there any air leaks around pipes, doors or windows? How efficient are your hot water heater and furnace? To find out the answers, ask your utility company if it offers a low cost "energy audit" which measures the energy efficiency of your house. Private contractors also provide this service.

Don't forget to have your furnace checked professionally each year and change the filters regularly. If you need a new furnace, shop around to compare warranties and efficiency.

Also keep in mind, the proper insulation can save up to 20-30% on your heating costs. Weatherstripping and caulking your doors and windows can save an additional ten percent.

If you don't know how much insulation you need, contact your state energy office. This office will tell you the "R" (resistance) value that is recommended for your area. The higher the R-value, the better it slows winter heat loss and summer heat gain. And remember, while aluminum siding may improve the appearance of your home, it does not provide a substantial amount of insulation.

To protect gutters against damage from ice and snow, run water down the gutter with a garden hose to make sure there's no blockage. If there is, clean out the debris. You may have to take the downspout apart to remove twigs or leaves.

To help outdoor plants survive cold winter months, prune them when appropriate and add mulch to shrubs and bushes when they become dormant. Also, fertilize your lawn in late fall or early winter and keep in moist with proper watering. This will help it become more resistant to cold temperatures. And before mowing the lawn for the last time this year, lower the mower height to make raking easier and the grass less prone to disease.

For more information about winterizing your house and lawn, contact your county cooperative extension office.

During the American Revolution, forces under Gen. George Washington suffered defeat Sept. 11, 1777, at the hands of the British in the Battle of Brandywine near Wilmington, Del. Washington's troops were forced back into Philadelphia, which fell to the British.

Planning for festival

The Wesley United Methodist Church is sponsoring its 8th Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Hereford Community Center. Among the various items to be sold include rag jackets and cloth pictures displayed by Carol Moore. Proceeds from the event will benefit the church and Operation Good Shepherd.

The Boulder Dam, now known as the Hoover Dam, was dedicated in 1936 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Roosevelt pressed a golden key in Washington to signal the startup of the first hydroelectric generator in Nevada.
