in action when you're looking at therapy area, garden center and these wonderful people," said Mrs. Daniels with a sweeping gesture toward the hundreds gathered for lunch. "They built it, they operate it and they use it. You've never seen teamwork until you've seen the Hereford people at work."

Mrs. Daniels paused for a moment as she squeezed an aging hand, then said, "We've reached something of a plateau here at our Senior Center, but mind you it's a beautiful plateau filled to the brim with the most wonderful people on Earth."

As executive director of the Hereford Senior Citizens Association, Mrs. Daniels was speaking of a proposed expansion program that will be placed before the membership on Monday.

The vote will take place during a 10 a.m. meeting. Mrs. Daniels said the vote will take place at the end of the meeting. Members who are unable to come to the center to vote should call 364-5681 early Monday and a ballot will be delivered.

If it passes by a majority vote, the Senior Center will be nearly doubled in size in the proposed two-phase program that will include expansion of the dining "You're looking at Hereford area, an auditorium, a water additional parking for 110 cars.

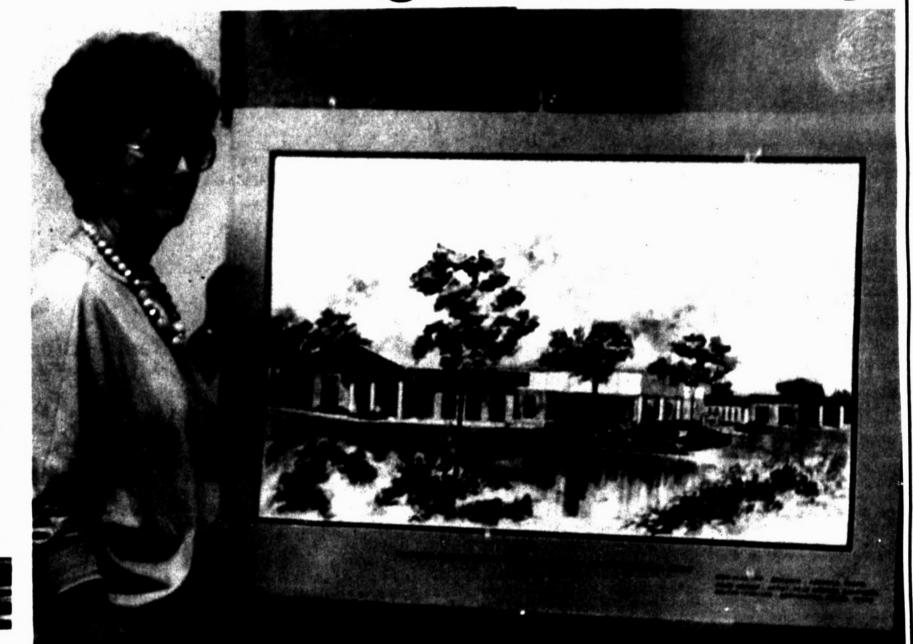

> The expansion would also include a conference room; a tea room for special occasions; an exercise room; three open-air courtyards; and special rooms for quilting, ceramics and bridge.

The auditorium would have a fold-out stage and have dressing rooms, a backstage area and an office.

"Our plans are to build the west wing first," said Mrs. Daniels. "This would include the auditorium, the exercise room and the water therapy area. I believe the members would like to see this portion of the building program constructed first.

Shirley Garrison, president of the association, pointed to capacity crowds that pack the center for lunch each day in describing the expansion needs.

We serve between 300 and 400 meals every day for dinner," said Mr. Garrison. "Our association just keeps growing and growing and that's the way we

Mrs. Daniels said the parking area would be expanded to handle about 460 cars under the proposed building program.

'We don't have the exact cost figures in as yet, but it looks like the proposed expansion will cost somewhere around $500,000, said Mrs. Daniels as she reviewed an architect's rendering of the plans. "We believe that we have the finest Senior Center in the country and all we need is just more or the same.

Parole official:education key to help corrections

By JOHN BROOKS Managing Editor

A unit supervisor for the State Board of Pardons and Paroles told the Hereford Lions Club last week that the state's criminal justice system has been playing a "shell game" with the public in dealings with Texas prisoners.

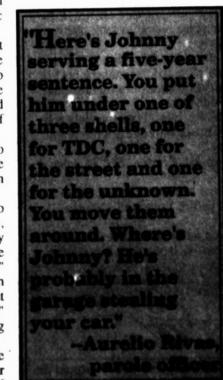

Aurelio Rivas of Amarillo said that the state's parole supervisors are carrying too much of a caseload to properly help prisoners, and that more input is needed from the parole board to make the Texas Department of Corrections more effective.

A person on parole has gone to prison, but must then meet many of the same conditions of a person placed on probation.

"Persons on parole must report to their parole officer one time a month, be employed, and expect visits at any time in their home and at their place of work from their parole officer," Rivas said. He said some persons in this region, which is currently without prison facilities, have "absconded," leaving or moving without notifying their parole officers.

"I'm glad to see the Amarillo site (where a new prison is under construction)," Rivas said. "We had three persons come in one day that They didn't want to go back."

Rivas said that despite changes in said they wanted to get their situation the criminal justice system designed straightened out after they saw there to reduce caseloads, many officers are was going to be a prison in Amarillo. working over 50 hours a week and have a reduced rate of success because of a growing criminal population that's hard to employ because of a lack of education.

Rivas used a shell game for an example.

"Here's Johnny serving a five-year sentence," Rivas said. "You put him under one of three shells, one for TDC, one for the street and one for the unknown. You move them around. Where's Johnny?

"He's probably in the garage stealing your car."

Rivas said that many ex-prisoners that are freed from jail are "mandatory releases," persons who have served enough time and accumulated enough

"good time" to warrant release. "On the day they have earned and served their time, they must be released," Rivas said. He estimates that 45 percent of the parole board's caseload is made up of "mandatory

Mrs. Daniels pointed out that a person does not have to pay dues to become a participant in Senior Center activities, but only dues-paying members are permitted to vote on any issues concerning the Center. Memberships are open to anyone 55 and older.

At the Center, Americana is everywhere, from the stately sitting room to the dining halls. No one travels very far at the Center without seeing Old Glory portrayed in pictures and paintings along the way. Patriotic messages can be spotted on almost every wall and the symbol of love for mankind is round everywhere. A game room flanks the entrance hallway where an occasional chuckle of victory can be heard over a set of dominoes or deck of playing of playing cards.

One of the key features of the expansion will be a special exercising room where physical therapy equipment will eventually be hand-picked to fit the needs of the community. The therapy pool area will also be a big plus for the Center, featuring the latest in water therapy equip-

Since the present center was opened on Ranger Street in March 1985 participating in activities has more than doubled, with the center now reaching its limitations in dining, line dancing, physical fitness programs and parking.

"As an example of our growth, the center served an average of 10,000 meals per month during the past April and May," said Mrs. Daniels. "Our present building was paid for when we moved in four years ago, and no construction on the proposed expansion will begin until funds or pledges are in hand.

> In the mid-1970s the fledgling organization occupied two rooms at the Old Central School. As an example of its humble beginning, a financial statement dated July 1976 showed the organization had a petty cash balance of $42.05 with a total banking account balance of $122.05. The early records also revealed that the group had received a company donation of $2; a rummage sale had grossed $121.78; and five turkeys had cost a total of $42.86. The balance in the bank as of Dec. 30, 1976, was $128.29.

When her husband was transferred to Hereford in the fall of 1978, Mrs. Daniels answered an ad in the Brand seeking a director for the Hereford Senior Citizens Association. She went to work as the group's director on Oct. 15, 1978.

"I was the only staff and we had very little money back in those days," she recalled. "From the very first day, I started writing down by goals for the organizations: nine one-year goals and my five-year goal being this present building and an adjacent apartment complex. We got them both."

In the beginning, the group had enough money for about 30 made to private and public meals a day provided by the foundations and agencies for a Hereford High School cafeteria. "I soon had this built up to 40 meals a day and one of my first goals was to get our own kitchen

"I remember that first winter when the boilers had gone out," said Mrs. Daniels. "We plugged in a couple of small electric heaters and shut all of the doors to keep warm. But we ate our dinners and played games just like everything was first class."

In the meantime, she had gone to the Texas Department of Aging to get additional funds for food, then made a plea to another group for some staff funding.

One of the first persons hired was Rosemary Smithers, who now heads up the reception area of the Senior Center. The first homebound food program was started in September 1979, following the installation of the first kitchen.

The first official move build the new Senior Center came on a favorable vote of the board of directors in October 1981. As plans began to develop toward construction of a permanent center, the association bout three acres for $20,000.

In January 1984, groundbreaking ceremonies were staged in conjunction with the opening of the first fund drive to finance the $760,000 center. The fund drive started on Feb. 3, 1984, and over $400,000 in cash and pledges had been received in the next month.

Some of the larger contributors, as designated by wall plaques at the Center, included the Meadows and Mabee foundations, the Jim Hill Estate, the Homer and Shirley Garrison families and Jim and Elizabeth Witherspoon. More than a dozen other names appear on a wall of plaques in which individual donations soared well into five figures. And there were hundreds listed in the 50 cents-to-$1,000 category. # Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, July 9, the 190th day of 1989. There are 175 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 9, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was read aloud to Gen. George Washington's troops in New York.

On this date:

In 1540, England's King Henry VIII had his six-month marriage to his fourth wife, Anne of Cleves, annulled. In 1755, British Gen. Edward Braddock was mortally wounded as his troops suffered a massive defeat near present-day Pittsburgh during the French and Indian War. One of the survivors was an aide to Braddock - Colonel George Washington. In 1816, Argentina declared its independence from Spain.

In 1819, sewing-machine inventor Elias Howe was born in Spencer,

Mass. In 1850, the 12th President of the United States, Zachary Taylor, died in the White House, having served only one year and four months

In 1918, 101 people were killed in the worst train wreck in U.S. history as an inbound local collided with an outbound express in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1947, the engagement of Britain's Princess Elizabeth to Lt. Philip Mountbatten was announced.

In 1951, President Harry S. Truman asked Congress to formally end the state of war between the United States and Germany. In 1976, Uganda called on the U.N. Security Council to condemn Israel for its raid on Entebbe Airport July 4th to rescue hostages held by pro-Palestinian hijackers. In 1982, a Pan Am Boeing 727 crashed in Kenner, La., killing all 146 people aboard and eight people on the ground.

In 1986, the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography released the final draft of its 2,000-page report, which linked hard-core porn to sex crimes.

In 1987, in his third day of testimony on Capitol Hill, Lt. Col. Oliver North said he had shredded evidence as part of a long-planned cover-up of his role in the Iran-Contra affair.

Ten years ago: In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance urged lawmakers not to rewrite the SALT 2 treaty, which was signed on June 18th by President Jimmy Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Five years ago: Canadian Prime Minister John Turner announced national elections in September, saying Canadians needed a "renewal of confidence and certainty in this country."

One year ago: Teamsters President Jackie Presser died in Lakewood, Ohio, at age 61.

Today's Birthdays: Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath is 73. Actor James Hampton is 53. Football hall-of-famer O.J. Simpson is 42. Actor Tom Hanks is 33.

If they're not doing good, call one of our officers. We'll visit with them, and they'll usually come back with a better attitude about work.

"When they're not employed, they have eight more hours in the day to do something wrong. They'll hang around with others who are not employed, and that won't work."

The Hereford school board will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the school administration building. The agenda will include general and committee reports; honoring of the employees of the month; changes in the at-risk plan; the Pegasus program for gifted and talented students at Hereford Junior High; and guidelines for updating curriculum documents.

Commissioners meet Monday

The Deaf Smith County commissioners' court will meet at 9 a.m. Monday at the courthouse in Hereford.

The agenda will include discussion of the budget and formal adoption of the tax rate for 1989-90; discussion of the Economic Development Council; medical health insurance; and permission to cross a county road in Precinct 1 with a water line.

Police arrest one

Hereford police arrested a man, 23, on Friday for a second offense of no liability insurance and defective equipment.

Other reports included theft of beer; a prowler in the 800 block of Lee; family violence in the 100 block of Norton; theft of $800 in the 200 block of 25 Mile Avenue; assault in the 100 block of 25 Mile Avenue; theft of a sign, worth $750, in the 200 block of South Main; and family problems in the 500 block of U.S. Highway 60.

Police issued 18 citations and investigated two minor accidents. Hereford volunteer firemen were kept busy with grass fires Priday evening and Saturday morning.

NASA wants moon outpost

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - While America marks the 20th anniversary of man's landing on the moon, NASA has on its wish list a permanent scientific lunar outpost early next century.

When astronauts Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin set foot in the lunar dust July 20, 1969, some scientists saw it as a logical step toward building a research base there.

But no overwhelming public or political support developed for such an expensive undertaking, and blueprints were shelved.

Some scientists continued through the years to yearn for a moon base. Mineral-rich lunar soil could support crops grown under pressurized domes, researchers say, and a commercially valuable gas, prevalent on the moon, could be returned to Earth where it is

The scientists have a glimmer of hope in a document released last December by NASA's Office of Exploration, "Beyond Earth's Horizons -Human Exploration of the Solar System in the 21st Century." It outlined possibilities for two moon bases among four potential manned expeditions. The other two involve flights to the Martian moon Phobos and to Mars itself.

One of the moon bases envisioned would not be permanently staffed. It would serve chiefly as an astronomy laboratory where telescopes, free of the Earth's obscuring atmosphere and interfering electronic transmissions, could study the most distant radioemitting galaxies and search for extraterrestri-

The exploration office plan puts this unmanned base on the moon's far side, which is permanently hidden from Earth. Each of four successive fourperson crews would work through a 14-day lunar day, setting up equipment delivered by unmanned cargo vehicles, before returning to Earth or an orbiting space station as a 14-day night begins. Staying through a frigid lunar night would require considerable extra support equipment.

Once the observatory is built the of the United States for a year. telescopes would operate automatically, sending images and data to Earth through a satellite orbiting the moon, or the ground could direct them to look at report did not include expedition costs, certain celestial objects.

Astronauts would return to the base every three years to service the equipment and to collect and replace telescope film.

The second base, on the front side of the moon, would be permanently

Many astronaut crews over several years would be required to construct an Antarctic-type facility, using raw building materials already there. The Apollo missions disclosed that every shovelful of lunar soil is rich in metals and silicon and that this soil can be mixed with water to form a type of Oxygen is the most abundant element on the moon, and this can be combined with hydrogen to make water. Because oxygen is five-sixths of what rocket engines burn, the base could also serve as a tank farm for spacecraft flying between Earth and the moon or embarking for Mars or elsewhere in the solar system.

A lunar resource of potentially great commercial value is helium-3, an isotope of helium with three atomic nuclei instead of the more common two. Physicists see it as a cleaner, more efficient alternative to the fuels foreseen for conventional fusion reactors to generate electrical power.

On Earth, helium-3 exists only in very small quantities as a by-product of nuclear weapons production. But on the moon it is abundant, deposited by the sun's charged particles.

Studies done by the Fusion Technology Institute at the University of Wisconsin and NASA indicate that as little as 40,000 pounds of helium-3 could be transported to Earth on just two lunar return trips. Used in a national array of fusion reactors, this amount could supply the energy needs

The exploration office study says either or both moon bases could be started early in the next century. The

Gutter talk

"Nothing shocks me, but some things offend me." This quotation is from a letter to columnist Ann Landers from a 64-year-old man who "has been around." He adds: "I'm talking about the F-word in the presence of my 15-year-old grandson. I'm afraid to take the boy to the movies again.

You don't have to be prudish to be offended by inappropriate language. We all know what the words mean . . . and so do the 15year-old boys and girls and many who are a lot younger than that . . . but you don't have to use gutter language just because you understand

You don't have to expose yourself to it, either, if it is offensive to you. The fact that it may be prevalent in our society these days doesn't mean that you are deprived of freedom of choice. There's a button on your television set which you can push with one finger if its programming offends you. You have the right to refuse to pay admission to any movie which offends you, or to refuse to buy(or read) any book or magazine which has offensive language or pictures. And if enough of you refuse to watch, refuse to buy, or refuse to read offensive material, the marketplace will respond by cleaning up its act.

But government censorship is not the answer. When governments assume the power to tell adults what they can and cannot read or sec or hear, then you have submitted to a monster much more dangerous than the one you sought to avoid. The power of public opinion is better. and your own opinion, freely expressed, is a powerful part of it.

The prevalence of the F-words(and the S-words) and others of that ilk)in the movies and on television these days is offensive to many people, as are the nude scenes and the lewd actions that feature many of these programs . . . and the justification offered for them that they are merely reflecting what is happening in the real world is only part of the truth.

They are there because they produce profits at the box office . . . it's . as simple as that. They are less a reflection of the bad taste of the producers who make them, than of the bad taste of the public which

My own personal objection to "gutter language" in the movies, on television, or in casual conversation is that it is symptomatic of poverty of the mind and paralysis of the tongue. there are so many more colorful, more explicit, and more acceptable words in the English language to express our ideas and emotions than resorting to the obsecene or the scatological. The F-words and the S-words are so limited in their range and descriptive power that they depend on endless and boring repetition and have lost most of, or all of, their capacity to shock, it not their capacity to offend.

The Penultimate Word

Watch What You Hear

I was listening to a television preacher the other morning while I was shaving. He was trying to convince me that if I would "plant a seed", which means if I would send him some money, then I would be blessed with prosperity.

He was quoting from the book of Job. The text he was using said, "If you declare a thing, it will come to pass." I wrote down the text and looked it up. The text reads like the preacher said. The only catch is that much of the book of Job is a series of speeches made to Job by the four friends who came supposedly to comfort Job but, in fact, came to set him straight. If the book of Job says anything, it says that these four friends did not know beans about God.

Well, you have already guessed it. The text was a quote from one of these four friends. Now if that preacher did not know this text was from one of those friends, then he is too dumb to be preaching. If he did know, and used it anyway, he is a crook.

My point is not really about that preacher nor others like him. My point is that we are bombarded every day by folks trying to sell us, or convince us, or change us. We need to learn how to listen with a healthy level of skepticism. If I had the money, I would start a center for healthy skepticism.

I would collect some rabble rousers who would look at what we are hearing and help us see through the chaff. If a politician talked around an issue, this group would say so. If the government tried to hide stuff or put the best face on it and not tell the truth, this bunch would have a ball.

It is time we were told the truth. It is also time for us to learn how to tell when we are being told the truth. We are becoming a nation of sheep looking for a leader. If a person sounds good and looks good, we are ready to follow.

When we do not know how to listen and discern what we hear, we can only hope the person we follow does not want to go to South America and drink funny Kool-Aid.

Bush's China course fits plan for Reds

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent WASHINGTON (AP) - Proceeding with caution despite Chinese repression, President Bush is determined not to tear down bridges to Beijing, believing that ties with the United States, though shaken, may yet be the path to greater economic and political freedom.

He's been facing political pressure for a more forceful U.S. policy since the days before the crackdown and massacre in Tiananmen Square, but he has resisted demands for tougher

That's based on practical judgment as well as philosophy. There's little chance that the Chinese government would change its repressive course because of them.

Bush's China course fits his broader view of the way the United States should deal with economic and political change in the Communist world. He is doing so with care, wary of over-reaction that could court

Bush is applying that guideline as 'It is important the United States show its interest in these countries that are undergoing change," Bush said last week. "You don't want to overexhort. You don't want to overpromise. You don't want to rally people to levels of political activity that might cause repression."

In an interview with three Polish journalists, Bush repeatedly stressed that concern. He said he would not seek to inflame, would not do anything that could provoke crisis.

When students seeking democratic reforms in China first occupied Tiananmen Square, Bush resisted demands that he speak out forcefully in behalf of their demonstrations as well as their goals. But he said on May 22 that beyond urging the students to peacefully stand up for their beliefs, he was not going to try to tell them what to do. Bush also urged the Chinese government to seek a peaceful resolution that would further democracy.

The president said he did not want to exhort the students "in a way that is going to stir up a military confronta-

The Chinese government protested those measures as interference in domestic affairs, but apparently continues to cooperate in U.S. intelligence-gathering from missile and nuclear monitoring sites near the Soviet border.

While the administration has not been explicit about that, Bush has said that any president must be concerned about the strategic importance of U.S. relations with China.

Bush said he will continue to express outrage about the attack that ended the demonstrations, and the executions that have followed. The House voted unanimously on June 29 to toughen U.S. sanctions against China. An amendment to a foreign aid bill would put into law the steps Bush took, and add suspension of trade and development programs, a ban on sale of police equipment, and a bar against transfer of nuclear aterials that might have military application.

Garbage Disposal is a Major Problem

Question: What weighs 3 pounds and is going no place fast? Answer: the household garbage that you generated today.

Multiplied by the garbage of the other 240 million or so Americans, it mounts up to quite a heap: more than 160 million tons a year, give or take a few garbage sacks full.

Disposing of garbage has been left mainly to local and state governments, which primarily have burned it or buried it. Both methods are becoming more costly, and more restrictions are being placed on them.

The Congressional Office of Technology Assessment has studied all of this and has recommended a national policy to deal with trash disposal, which is overwhelming state and local officials.

Uncle Sam's entry into the great American garbage sweepstakes would be a welcome contribution. The federal government might offer pilot trash-disposal programs and innovative technology. Also, it might direct a big load of bucks to the problem. Both are needed, as state and local officials

Town concerned over treatment center

By SCOTT McCARTNEY

Associated Press Writer NEWKIRK, Okla. (AP) - Crews chip away old paint and hack at kneehigh weeds at the abandoned Chilocco Indian School, seemingly unaffected by the tempest brewing in this remote corner of Oklahoma.

When a California group received state permission for a 75-bed drug and alcohol treatment center, Newkirk thought the project on the reservation six miles away would solve local economic troubles brought on by oil and farming slumps.

But the initial euphoria, like the old paint, has chipped away, replaced by distrust, frustration, even fear.

Townspeople say Narconon International hasn't been honest about its affiliation with the Church of Scientology, its financing, its medical credentials and its plans for the project, which will draw mostly out-of-state clients.

They say Narconon denied the project had anything to do with Scientology until Newkirk officials turned up a Scientology magazine with a story headlined "Trained Scientologists to Staff Huge Oklahoma Facility.

And the mayor says Narconon tried to dupe locals at a staged ceremony, where a $200,000 check and a glowing study were presented to Narconon by a group that turned out to be part of Narconon itself.

Now the town fears it could earn a "cult image" because of the project's ties to Scientology, which follows the teachings of the late science fiction writer L. Ron Hubbard. Former members have accused Scientology of fraud and mental abuse, and the Internal Revenue Service has challenged its tax-exempt status as a religion.

"People interested in coming to this town will see the Church of Scientology thing - the cult thing - and I think that that image will hurt our possibilities for growth and development," Mayor Garry Bilger said in an interview last month.

Some townspeople say they worry about the kind of people the project will attract and that the stately 80building campus, built of native Oklahoma stone and tucked more than a mile off the nearest road, will become a Scientology recruiting

"I don't think any of us are against drug abusers getting rehabilitation," of the same organization," he said. said Mike Clitton, pastor of the First Christian Church. "(But) there's a lot of concern in the community because we really don't know what these folks are exactly about. What really worries us is what they're not saying."

In the basement of the First Baptist Church, pastor Mark Jones is making copies of a videotape of a British Broadcasting Corp. documentary on Scientology, which he showed to his congregation at a worship service.

The tapes, along with Scientology literature, have been circulating in this town of 2,400. There have been town meetings and public forums, including a sometimes heated session with state officials who approved the Narconon project before the town knew it was supported by Scientology.

"The town got the shaft," said insurance agent Charles Eisenhauer. "I don't think anybody can undo anything that's been done so far." The center is scheduled to open in September.

Narconon officials say Newkirk's concern is inflated and unwarranted. Narconon is a legitimate, worldwide drug and alcohol rehabilitation program with 23 years' experience and an 86 percent success rate, they assert.

Narconon spokesman Gary Smith said he tried to reassure the town that Narconon's "sole intention is to get people off drugs." He said the town has been misled.

"There's fear being put into the town by false information being fed in there by somebody who's in favor drug abuse. They're either connected to selling drugs or they're using drugs," Smith said.

Smith declined to be more specific about the identity or whereabouts of these "outside sources with criminal motives."

"Trust me, I know," he said. Another Narconon attempt at persuasion provoked an angry response.

In a letter printed May 18 on the front page of the weekly Newkirk Herald Journal, Narconon president John Duff wrote: "There will be those that will not want Narconon to succeed at Chilocco because they are for drugs and are on the other side in the battle against drugs.'

Jones, the Baptist minister, responded the following week, writing he "resented the implication, or more accurately the accusation, that was made by Narconon's Mr. Duff. He accused me of supporting illegal drug Planning Commission gave Narconon use in our area if I did not swallow his program hook, line and sinker."

Bilger said he had been so optimistic projected to 400. about the promise of a revitalized Chilocco that last December he wrote weekly Herald Journal, was by then Oklahoma health officials supporting Narconon.

He accused me of supporting illegal drug use in our area if I did not swallow his program hook, line and sinker." -- Rev. Mark Jones

But the mayor said his winter hope turned to disillusionment by spring when he learned of Narconon's history, and he came to believe he had been misled when Narconon held an emotional ceremony April 8 in which the Association for Better Living and Education presented a glowing study of Narconon and the $200,000 check.

Later Bilger learned that ABLE shared a street adkress in Los An cles with Narconon, and is identified in a Scientology magazine as part of Narconon.

'They totally misrepresented what was going on," Bilger said.

"I came away with the impression that we had an independent group here interested in mankind and they had researched the Narconon process. Then I find out ABLE and Narconon are part

I try to be straightforward; and when somebody doesn't do that, I wonder why.'

In late June, Narconon's Smith used a copy of Bilger's December. letter of support to suggest to The Associated Press that the mayor supported Narconon.

Bilger says the December letter no longer reflects his feelings.

"I imagine if I was in his shoes I'd use it, too," Bilger said. "I just think now it (Narconon) is a problem and if all the facts were out at the time, things might have been done differently."

The Chilocco Indian School closed

Affairs, which turned control over to five Indian tribes - Ponca, Kaw, Pawnee, Otoe-Missouria and Tonkawa.

Last year, Narconon invited representative hf tribes throughout the country to a meeting in Clearwater, Fla. Narconon touted its program and said it was looking for a site for a treatment center. Currently, Narconon's only U.S. inpatient center is a Los Angeles clinic with 12 beds.

A Ponca representative told Narconon about the Chilocco site. The 25-year lease eventually drawn up offers the tribes a percentage of gross earnings, up to $16 million. The tribal leadership remains enthusiastic about the Narconon

Robert Lobsinger, publisher of the becoming curious about Narconon. In Newkirk's tiny library he found articles about ties to Scientology and past run-ins with officials. His first story, published April 27 under the headline "Chilocco Drug Treatment Center May Be Part of Notorious Religious Cult," set the town abuzz.

Townspeople said they have repeatedly asked Narconon what medical credentials they have, and so far, have received no answer.

'My first question is, do they think that everyone down here is stupid?" said Jones. "People around here are not world travelers, but they've got a lot of common sense and they ask a lot of questions.

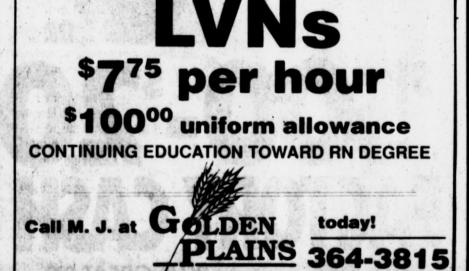

'We've encountered deceit from the beginning," he said. "There have been smoke screens everywhere, and there have been flat-out lies.

In May, state officials told residents they believed Narconon was a legitimate enterprise and would be inspected by the state once operating.

'A lot of people want to get their church (Scientology) involved and the way state law is written ... church affiliation has nothing to do with it. The state of Oklahoma shouldn't get involved in discussing church affiliations," said Leroy Bridges, Department of Mental Health

Sheriff Glenn Guinn says he and others are not reassured by the state, or by the Narconon officials with whom he has met. He said he was originally told the alcoholism and drug abuse center would be for local Indians but now has learned only 25 percent of the beds have been promised to indigent Indians.

Narconon, like Scientology, has had a sometimes turbulent history. In Spain last year, authorities charged Narconon with swindling clients and luring them into Scientology. Seventy-one people in 1980 and was declared surplus were arrested, including Scientology

> Scientology, founded by Hubbard in 1954, has grown into an international religion that at its mid-1970s peak claimed 6 million members and $100 million in annual earnings. The faith is based on Hubbard's concepts of mental health through which members can achieve a "clear state."

Critics have labeled Scientology a cult. Scientologists have battled the IRS and fought lawsuits filed by former members. In June, the Supreme Court ruled that "fixed donations"

Narconon is supported financially by Scientology, spokesman Simon Hogarth acknowlegfd, but the group maintains it has no "direct ties" to Scientology.

Narconon says its rehabilitation program is based on Hubbard's methods, using withdrawal, diet supplements, exercise and sauna sessions to treat addicts.

William Mehojah, chairman of the Kaws, said the tribes would not allow Scientology activities at Chilocco and would hold Narconon to its contract.

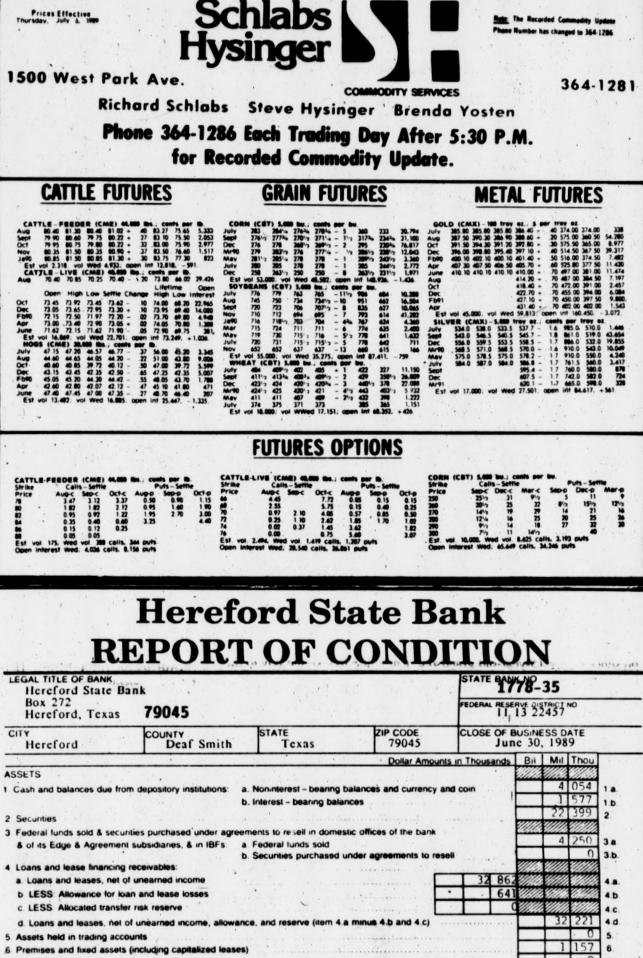

"We are attempting to provide made by Scientology members are not service to people who need it," Mehojah said. "This is our way of combating (society's) drug problem. This is our stand.

Hogarth said Narconon has "had a very good response" from Newkirk, which he said had eagerly embraced the idea of a drug and alcoholism treatment center.

But Bilger said he did not think Hogarth changed any minds. "I am still concerned and I think most people in town feel that way," the mayor said.

"Nobody wanted that thing to be a success more than me. Now I'm disappointed. I still hope there's a way it can work for everyone. But right now, I'm disappointed.'

Standing ready: Clements answers call at A&M

By SAM W. WALLER Sports Editor

On Jan. 2, 1922, one of the great legends of Texas football was born at Dallas' Fair Park.

The Fightin' Farmers of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas were facing the Praying Colonels of Centre College in the Dixie Classic, a forerunner of the Cotton Bowl. The team from the A&MC entered the game at 5-1-2 while Centre sported a perfect 6-0 record that included a win over national power Harvard. There was little argument among the experts over the Colonels being made a 20point favorite for the game.

In an effort to cut expenses on the holiday trip, the club from College Station had only 18 players in uniform. The Texans made a game of it, but the hard-hitting contest sent several players off the field with injuries.

Late in the third quarter, A&M coach Dana Xenophon Bible sent a yell leader into the stands to get sophomore halfback E. King Gill, who was working in the press box as a spotter for a Waco sports writer, down to the field and told him to suit up. Not having an available uniform, Gill swapped clothes under the stands with team captain Heinie Weir, who had suffered a broken leg on the third play of the game.

Gill never went into the game, which A&M won 22-14, but stood on the sideline ready if the team

Sherrill made that call when he formed an all-volunteer unit to cover kickoffs at home games. The Twelfth Man squad became an instant success with students an alumni, adding to the school's ample traditions.

"I'm really excited about making the team," the 6-foot-1-inch, 218pound senior said. "Whether I play every game or don't get in at all, I want to do whatever is necessary to help the team win."

That sentiment illustrates Clements' nature, according to his parents, Don and Adelle Clements of Hereford. "He's always been real goal oriented," said his mother, who is head of the math department at HHS. "We're real proud of him and what he's done." "He'll decide 'I'm going to do this' or 'I'm going to do that,' and then do what he has to," Don Clements, a 1964 graduate of A&M, said. "He's always found some way."

The Clementses, who have two other children -- Chad, a sophomore at A&M and also a former Whiteface center, and Robin, an HHS junior -- plan to make all six Aggie home games this fall.

"We're going to all of them," Mrs. Clements said, "after we go to the Hereford games on Fridays."

"I really appreciate the support my family has given me in this," Clements said. "This is something I've dreamed of doing for a long

Clements reflects the original meaning of the term "studentathlete," carrying a full load of classes in one of the hardest majors -- biochemistry -- offered at the College, Station campus.

"I knew it was going to be hard," Clements said of his course load, which includes classes like medical microbiology and organic chemistry, "but I didn't know how hard.

He has been putting in even more time studying this summer, when not working on a survey crew for the ASCS or putting himself through a rigorous training program, preparing to take the MCAT in early September in hopes of being accepted to medical school.

Clements, who also tried out for the squad last year, and the rest of the Twelfth Man members will work out before rest of the team. The volunteer unit is being coached by volunteer assistant Greg Dillon, who played wide receiver for the Aggies. New A&M head coach R.C. Slocum has no problem with continuing the existence of the Twelfth Man squad.

"They do a great job," he said. "They're an inspiration to the team during workouts and games, and they exemplify what the spirit of the Twelfth Man is all about.

"They've all made sacrifices to come out here without scholarships and play football."

And the group will play football. After spending an hour working on kickoff coverage, Twelfth Man members will go up against the starters as the scout team, representing the next Aggie opponent.

Slocum said members of the unit will have the same opportunity to make the traveling squad as other players in addition to performing at the six home games this fall.

"The limit on the number of players allowed to travel was raised to 66 for this season," he said. "We're going to try to take as many as numbers allow on the road."

Clements said the possibility of making the traveling squad is added incentive for doing well, especially with the Aggies playing Texas Tech in Lubbock on October 7.

"That's the one I really want to go to," he added.

'Pokes add to QB stockpile, take Walsh

NEW YORK (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys, who said they didn't draft Steve Walsh to trade him, could have plenty of suitors willing to talk about

Green Bay, Miami and Kansas City all said they wanted Walsh in Friday's supplemental draft, only to see the Cowboys win the lottery and take the quarterback who led the University of Miami to a 23-1 record in two years, including a national championship in

That gives the Cowboys two rookie quarterbacks. They took Troy Aikman as No. 1 in the regular 1989 draft and signed him to an $11 million, six-year

'That makes an interesting scenario in Dallas," said Tom Braatz, Packers executive vice president of football operations. "The first thing that everybody said as soon as Dallas took Walsh was: 'Do you think that makes Aikman available?' So people started clicking in their minds that Dallas all of a sudden has two young quarterbacks. We like both of them. That may be a place to go in the future to find Braatz said the Cowboys told him in conversations prior to the supplemental draft that they would let Aikman and Walsh compete in training camp and then trade one of them.

In Saturday's editions of the Minneapolis-based Star Tribune, Walsh's agent, Ron Simon, was quoted as saying a trade was likely.

'The impression (Dallas coach) Jimmy Johnson gave to Steve Walsh, was that if they trade him, they'll try to accommodate his wishes. And that means Minnesota. I would think there is a significant chance of a trade from Dallas to Minnesota in the next year." Minnesota general manager Mike Lynn said he contacted Dallas about "It doesn't make a lot of sense to have two first-round quarterbacks the same year, " said Lynn, quoted in Saturday's editions of the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch. "There's a good chance they'll move him. It'd be logical to assume he'll be traded.

"I expressed our interest. They said they would not trade him without calling us first.'

Walsh told The Tribune that the Cowboys are in a good position either

"Now they have strength at the quarterback position," Walsh said. Whenever you have a strength, you're in good shape with your team. or in good shape to make a trade."

Chiefs general manager Carl Peterson said he expects to talk with Johnson and Dallas owner Jerry Jones in the next week or so.

"I would venture to say Dallas will be talking to lots of teams," Peterson said. "The assumption is probably a good one that they probably don't want to go into the 1989 season with both those young quarterbacks. But I can't speak for Jimmy Johnson or Jerry

The Chiefs drafted Mike Elkins of Wake Forest in the second round of the regular draft and also will go into the season with veteran quarterbacks Ron Jaworski and Steve DeBerg. In the supplemental draft, they passed on Washington State's Timm Rosenbach, taken in the second phase of the first round by Phoenix.

Asked if the Chiefs passed on Rosenbach because they considered Elkins a better prospect, Peterson said, "That is probably a good assump-

By taking Walsh, Dallas gave up its first-round pick in the regular 1990 draft. Phoenix did the same with Rosenbach and Denver with running back Bobby Humphrey of Alabama.

Walsh said. "It's the only way to be fair to my career and Troy's career."

"I think people have found out in this league, you have to have more than one quarterback," said Johnson, who coached Walsh at Miami before joining the Cowboys. "I would have kicked myself for a long time if I had passed on a player of the quality of Steve Walsh.

"He drafted me to come out and compete for a job," Walsh said. "Troy and I are very similar, neither of us have taken a snap in the NFL. Coach Johnson has known my ability and they get to know Troy better day after day. It should be an interesting camp."

Green Bay, Detroit, Kansas City, Atlanta, Tampa Bay, Pittsburgh, San Diego and Miami all passed in the first round, opting to keep their 1990 firstround picks.

The two quarterbacks and Humphrey were the only prime players of the 12 eligible for the supplemental draft. Running back Mike Loman of Coffeyville Junior College was taken by Dallas in the 12th round.

The NFL did not release the order of selection by the first nine teams. which means it is not known how many, if any, teams passed on Walsh before Dallas took him.

Phoenix coach Gene Stallings says Phoenix got Rosenbach at the No. 13 spot in the draft and was surprised he dropped so low.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - The law of averages still has a long way to go before catching up to the Texas Rangers when they face Storm Davis, but the trend is finally going in reverse. Davis was 10-0 against Texas when he pitched for the Baltimore Orioles. Since joining the Oakland Athletics in 1987, Davis is 2-2 against Texas with three no-decisions after losing 6-3 to the Rangers and righthander Bobby Witt Friday night.

"It has a little something to do with the talent we now have," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine. "I had a team that couldn't hit a high fastball a few years ago.'

Davis, 7-4, saw his personal fivegame winning streak end against the team he has had the most career success against. It was his first loss since a 6-3 setback May 6 in Detroit.

Davis was hoping the Rangers would still have trouble with his high heat, but not this time. Ruben Sierra connected against him for a three-run homer in the eighth, his 14th, raising his AL-leading RBI total to 65.

"Yeah, that's what I threw Ruben," said Davis, "and he reached out and hit it out. Their lineup is approaching the ball a lot better. They got a guy at the top of the lineup (Cecil Espy) who can get on base, and they've put together a pretty formidable lineup behind him. They've put together a great ballclub."

Witt reversed his own trend in Oakland, where he entered the game with a 1-3 career record and 10.80 ERA in five Coliscum starts. In two starts, Witt has allowed only two runs and six hits after going 0-3 with an 8.51 ERA in his previous five starts.

"I have a tendency to carry over to my next start," said Witt. "I'm just trying to go out and get that feeling back.

Left fielder Rick Leach helped give Witt the feeling and probably lost a few feelings of his own at the same time. He made a spectacular running catch and collided with the left field wall to rob Oakland's Mark McGwire of extra bases with a man on and the game still tied 1-1 in the sixth.

Leach finished the inning, but then left the game and was taken to an Oakland hospital for what the Rangers said was a mild whiplash.

On Tuesday, May 23, at Preston Trail Golf Club, PGA Tour pro Lanny Wadkins lost an 18-hole match to fellow member Jim Leake, an 8-handicapper. The stakes, depending upon who tells the story, were a) $10,000; b) $30,000; or c) the debt service of a small Latin American nation.

The catch, and what captures the imagination of anyone who has stood over a three-foot putt with lunch hanging in the balance, is that the bet was even. Wadkins played two shots and had to choose his worst; Leake Wadkins, the winner of 18 tournaments in 18 years on the tour, lost 2

Last Anaheim game is recalled

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - What if they gave an All-Star Game and nobody scored? Don't laugh. It almost happened the last time baseball's best players conducted their mid-season convention down the road from Disneyland.

Tuesday night's renewal comes 22 years to the day after the All-Stars last gathered in Anaheim Stadium for the longest game in the history of the series. The Stars struggled 15 innings that afternoon and evening in a game finally settled by Tony Perez' home run that gave the National League a 2-1 victory.

The key here is afternoon and evening. Because of television's desire to showcase the event in prime time, the 1967 All-Star Game began at 4:15 p.m., leaving batters squinting through the late afternoon California sun against some of the best pitchers in the game. It made hitting an adventure and the results were obvious in the box

There were a record 30 strikeouts, 17 by AL hitters, 13 by the NL. Ferguson Jenkins tied a record with six strikeouts in three innings of work. Gary Peters and Catfish Hunter each struck out four hitters, Peters in three everybody was swinging at the wind." innings and Hunter in five.

On a day where the offenses were all but invisible, where scoring rallies were non-existent, all the runs came on homers.

Rich Allen connected for the NL against Dean Chance in the second inning and Brooks Robinson tied it against Jenkins in the sixth. Then the teams played scoreless baseball for the next nine innings before Perez settled the issue against Hunter in the 15th.

Except for the three home runs, it was largely a three up-three down game. There were precious few scoring threats and the game is best remembered for the strikeouts, all those strikeouts.

The game was less dramatic than it was draining, stretching through 3 hours, 41 minutes of offensive futility. The setting sun and some talented pitchers completely neutralized the game's best hitters.

Perhaps the most frustrated was Roberto Clemente, one of 16 Hall of Famers who dotted the two rosters. Clemente would win his fourth batting title that season, but you couldn't tell from his performance in the All-Star Game. He singled in his first at-bat and then struck out the next four times against four different pitchers, setting a record.

'Those late afternoon and early twilight shadows made breaking pitches especially tough to follow,' he said at the time. "No wonder Not to mention the sun.

And those guys weren't facing alltime strikeout king Nolan Ryan, who, at the age of 42, has won a spot on this year's AL staff.

Tom Seaver, who pitched the last inning to get the save for the NL in the 1967 game, will be in the broadcast booth for NBC Tuesday night. He has a hunch that the hitters, swinging again in the California twilight, may be in for a not-so instant replay of the kind of frustrations the '67 Stars experien-

"I think it could be the same kind of game," Seaver said. "I believe you will see a number of strikeouts early Seaver was a rookie that year on a veteran pitching staff that included Jenkins, Juan Marichal, Bob Gibson and Don Drysdale. That left NL Manager Walt Alston with a surplus of Hall of Fame arms and it showed. The AL managed just eight hits, three of them by Carl Yastrzemski. The NL didn't do much better, getting just nine hits against Chance, Jim McGlothlin, Peters - who threw three perfect innings - Al Downing and Hunter.

"Possibly, it was over-all the best pitching in any All-Star Game I've seen," Alston said. "You'd have a hard time picking the best one."

That game's Hall of Fame contingent was a galaxy of some of baseball's greatest stars - Alston, Yastrzemski, Hunter, Drysdale, Clemente, Gibson, Marichal, Brooks Robinson, Frank Robinson, Al Kaline, Mickey Mantle, Harmon Killebrew, Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, Willie Mays and Lou Brock."

But the leading vote getter - at that time All-Star balloting was done by the players, managers and coaches - was Pittsburgh shortstop Gene Alley, who received 250 votes. Perhaps in recognition of his status, Alley was permitted to play the whole game. That, however, turned out not to be such a good idea. He went 0-for-5. Alley had plenty of hitless company, though. Killebrew, Orlando Cepeda, and Tony Conigliaro were each 0-for-6. Bill Freehan was 0-for-5. Willie Mays, a non-starter for the first time since 1956, pinch-hit in the sixth inning, stayed in the game and went 0-for-4. Bill Mazeroski was 0-for-4 and Rod Carew and Dick McAuliffe were each 0-for-3. The Anaheim game was second in a series of three where All-Star hitting was nearly entirely absent. The year before, in St. Louis, the NL won 2-1. The next year, in Houston, the score was 1-0. Pitching was king in those days and its dominance led to changes in the rules, a lowering of the mound and the eventual introduction by the American League of the designated

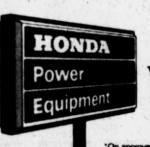

Even though the twilight affected the hitters, baseball has not hesitated to play subsequent west coast showcase games at that hour. The last California All-Star Game was in 1987 at Oakland, where the two leagues were scoreless for 12 innings before the NL won 2-0. All five of last year's World Series games in Los Angeles and Oakland also had twilight starting times.

AP Newsfeatures In Colonial days, when Britain had a virtual monoply on iron smelting, nails were so scarce that some builders turned to another construction method posts and beams fastened together wall supporting horizontal and sloping an optional wall that raises the R-value with wood dowels.

This building technique is still around in residential applications. consists of vertical posts in the outside beams that are part of the roof, ceiling to 28. and floor.

Basically, post-and-beam construction inches on center, posts and beams usually are spaced 4 feet on center. Post-and-beam Hoors are considered more economical to build than standard floors. Instead of the regular floor joists, solid or laminated beams spaced 4 feet on center are located over posts and supported by concrete piers. The exterior ends of the posts rest on foundation walls. Wood planks or plywood flooring are nailed to the beams.

Besides the economical angle, are there other advantages to post-andbeam construction? We asked Douglas Lindal, executive vice president of a company in Scattle, Wash., that constructs custom-home packages with post-and-beam methods. He replied:

'Our homes are a blend of Western red cedar with contrasting drywall. We use nails with the method. As for the advantages, customers like post-andbeam construction because of its natural look indoors, the vast amount of light made possible by large windows and the open atmosphere that cathedral ceilings offer." The floors in this method are tongueand-groove planks or plywood panels placed so the joints between butt ends are staggered. Each plank is usually 8 feet on center so it spans two spaces between floor beams. To compensate for heavy items such as bathtubs and refrigerators, certain areas are braced with additional framing.

Insulation applied under the floor has an R-value of 12, that in the walls an R-value of 22. The walls are 7 inches thick with 1-inch tongue-andgroove cedar planks on the outside applied over 1/2-inch plywood and a lightweight sheeting of high-density woven polyethylene fibers that greatly reduce heat loss. Inside, on the warm side, the interior layer of insulation is sealed with a vapor barrier. There is 1821.

Unlike conventional construction Unlike conventional framing of 16 in which the walls support the roof's weight, it is the posts and beams themselves which support the weight of the roof. Because of this, spaces between the posts are often used for wide floor-to-ceiling windows, though some of these spaces may be framed to provide expanses of solid walls for privacy or furniture placement.

The main components of a postand-beam roof are the ridge beam, the roof beams and the planks used as the deck of the roof covering. The Lindal system uses horizontal, glue-laminated roof and loft beams of 2-by-4 Douglas fir. Sturdy posts support the roof's weight instead of partitions which are conventionally framed and come with drywall.

There are two basic post-and-beam roof designs - longitudinal, in which the roof beams run the length of the house and are supported by posts at each end, and traverse, in which the roof beams run from the exterior walls to the ridge beam. There are a variety of roof systems, known as Polar Cap 1, 2 and 3, to overcome problems of condensation in warm, humid areas and the need for additional insulation in cold climates.

While our ancestors used post-andbeam construction because of a shortage of nails, the addition of nails, insulation and amenities has made this type of construction even better.

County approved for emergency loans

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by tornadoes, flooding and severe storms in Deaf Smith and Oldham counties are being accepted now at the Farmers Home Administration office in Hereford.

County Supervisor Ross James said Deaf Smith and Oldham counties are two in Texas recently named by ag secretary Clayton Yeutter as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from tornadoes, flooding and severe storms.

James said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses, the operating loan needed to continue in business, or $500,000, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest rate is 4.5 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FmHA emergency loan," James said. "Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance programs will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss. Applications will be accepted until next Feb. 26, but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possibly carry over into the next farming season." FmHA loans can be used to replace installations, equipment or building. including homes, lost through disaster. Funds may also be used to buy feed,

Exotic experts are available

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has a new list of experts who can help new and veteran small-scale farmers find just the right information about raising game birds, exotic herbs and hundreds of other specialties.

It's a 109-page soft-cover book -The Directory for Small-Scale Agriculture - which its chief promoter says will be "a handy tool" for anyone seeking to establish a small farm or improve the operation of an existing acreage.

Howard W. (Bud) Kerr Jr., director of the department's Office for Small-Scale Agriculture, said Thursday that the publication is "not only for those who have the acreage but for those who are contemplating getting into the ownership of a small parcel of ground.'

Kerr added in an interview: "They have dreams, they have visions. They don't know how to network, how to reach the right source of information." The book tells how to trace subject matter to hundreds of sources listed

Kerr said a user with questions can 'go to the horse's mouth for an answer.'

For example, someone in Georgia (or elsewhere, for that matter) might want to know about short-stake tomatoes, peppers and cole crops. There's an address and phone number for an expert at the University of Georgia.

What about greenhouse production of European cucumbers, or perhaps khigh bush and rabbit eye blueberries? There's a listing for someone at USDA's South Central Family Farm Research Center, Booneville, Ark.

The latest in research on fresh market vegetables in New Hampshire? Plant scientists at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, will be able to help.

And if a Virginia broccoli growers has problems with club root disease, perhaps a call to Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Blacksburg, could help.

A third option would be to continue federal income supports to farmers, but without annual requirements for idling specific crop acreages. Farmers would be free to plant what they choose.

The report said this would require 'a transition period, during which prices and sales receipts would

"Following about two years of adjustment, increased market growth would bring price recovery and higher incomes as well," the report said.

Market surveys made in the mid-1950s by economists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) reported that many consumers wanted leaner beef. Many producers dismissed these results because "consumers also wanted tender beef, which is dependent on fat."

The notion that tenderness is dependent on fat content is a mistaken idea, according to a series of studies on lamb and beef initiated in the 1950s. A TAES scientist discovered that tenderness is heritable, is negatively affected by the age of the animal at slaughter, is not closely related to fatness of the animal, and is dramatically affected by method and final temperature of cooking.

These findings have been verified over the years and have proven quite significant. Fat's major contribution, in the form of marbling (the flecks of fat in the lean portion), seems to be added flavor and juiciness.

During the past decade, after a sizeable drop in consumer consumption of beef, TAES economists in cooperation with beef organizations, conducted a national survey on consumer preference of beef. The result showed that a good segment of the market wanted lean beef.

This demand for lean beef is recognized as an enlarged market opportunity for beef, over and above the widely accepted choice product of producers and feedlots. Early and continuing research by Station scientists has shown a growing need to produce a palatable, lean beef product because of an increasing consumer demand, potential health benefits, lower cost of production and increased profits.

Business mushrooming for Forest Service crew

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Forest Service has found a solution to the knotty problem of how to make money from the tons of scrub hardwoods that are constantly cleared and burned from East Texas forests. The answer: grow Japanese mushrooms.

Shiitake mushrooms were originally a gourmet restaurant item, Ken E. Rogers, a wood technologist at the Forest Products Laboratory in Lufkin, said.

"Now they're everywhere. We had $1.6 million of mushrooms going into Texas from the East Coast. There's no reason they can't be grown in Texas."

The market for shiitake mushrooms has, well, mushroomed. Rogers has noticed shiitake mushrooms, which have a distinctive flavor favored by connoisseurs, in grocery stores in Dallas and has seen shiitake recipes in the Houston Chronicle.

"Campbell's is even making shiitake mushroom soup," Rogers said, pronouncing it she-ee-tahkey. "There's that much difference in the taste."

The mushrooms have been grown for centuries on shii trees, a Japanese version of the oak. By 1985, they were Japan's leading agricultural export, a $2 billion business. Growers in Minnesota, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio discovered they could get a share of the market, and $2.1 million pounds of mushrooms were grown in the United States in 1986. "They've been grown in the United States for 10 to 15 years now," Rogers said. "I'm not trying to say we've invented the wheel. We certainly haven't."

What the Forest Service has done is start research to address problems Texas growers may have. For example, mushroom growers in Minnesota don't worry about fire ants, a potential problem in Texas. Also, the Texas heat may be a mixed blessing. The disadvantage is that mushrooms will not grow in intense heat, and will die when their temperature - not the air temperature - reaches 105 degrees. The advantage is that the mushrooms will grow in Texas in the late fall and early spring, opening up opportunities for supplying hungry connoisseurs with fresh mushrooms during months when the North is under snow.

Rogers believes Texas has other logistical advantages. The mushrooms are popular in urban areas, and Texas has three of the 10 largest cities in the United States. Being close to the market helps, since there is a huge price difference between fresh and dried mushrooms. Fresh mushrooms have a wholesale price of $4.50 to $6.50 a pound. Dried mushrooms sell for $8 a pound, but there is a catch. It take about seven pounds of fresh mushrooms to make a pound of dried mushrooms.

Perhaps the biggest advantage is that, in East Texas, a shiitake farm could get off the ground with little start-up cost. Little space is required, and the two basic ingredients needed - scrub oak and water - are plentiful.

"It's a business you can get into for a few thousand dollars," Rogers said. "Probably, for $5,000 to $6,000, you could have a business."

To grow the mushrooms on a small farm would require about 1,000 hardwood logs, 3 to 6 inches in diameter, cut into four-foot lengths. The logs must be cut when they are dormant, from December through March in Texas. White oak is best, although other hardwoods have been successfully tested. Oak is preferred because the denser the wood, the more mushrooms you get.

"Essentially, you can expect onequarter of the weight of the wood," Rogers said.

The logs are stacked and inoculated with shiitake "spawn," dowels. The sawdust or dowel have been infected with the shiitake organism, and the logs are inoculated by drilling holes in the logs and plugging them with the spawn. The logs are then stacked under heavy shade and are watefed once a week. The logs will not produce mushrooms until the shiitake organism grows throughout the sapwood, which is the reason small logs are used.

available in sawdust or in wooden

It generally takes the organism three to six months to colonize a 3to 6-inch log. The logs are then soaked, bringing out a crop within five or six days. They will produce a crop every eight weeks, about four of five crops during the Texas growing season. Rogers recommended that the mushrooms be picked every other day.

They are then sorted into grades. The lower quality mushrooms are dried and packaged for sale to retailers, while the high grade mushrooms are refrigerated and sold to grocery chains, restaurants or directly to consumers.

While Rogers emphasized that projections are difficult because shiitake horticulture is new to Texas, he estimated that a tiny farm with 1,000 logs could, in theory, generate $8,000 to $12,000 in income a year.

"That's maybe $5,000 to $7,000 profit, for a couple of hours a day

(in labor)," he said. "This is not a get-rich scheme. You've got a lot of labor invested in handling all those logs. But it is a good parttime living. For some people, it could be a good full-time living. It can be a business."

While researching the mushrooms, Rogers visited a farm in Virginia that inoculated 1.5 million logs. The stacks in the laying yard were about a mile long, he said. But Rogers said he thinks mushrooms would make a good crop for parttime farmers in East Texas, people who live in the country on 5 or 10 acres and want to generate some extra income.

"You can do a lot with a couple of acres," he said. "You'd have all you wanted to do. If a fellow had 1,000 logs, it'd take him a couple of hours a day to do the work."

While Rogers sees opportunities, he also urged caution. So far, the Texas Forest Service has helped eight farmers get started, and the farmers "really have to consider themselves pioneers," he said.

The Forest Service has had 200 inquiries about the mushrooms and is planning several seminars on shiitake culture in July. "This is new and unproven in Texas," Rogers said. "But the market is here. There is no reason we shouldn't grow them here instead of Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Virginia."

USDA bullish on sheep raising

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department analyst says the once-troubled U.S. sheep industry has settled into a profit-making venture that no longer shows signs of the traumatic declines of decades past.

The number of sheep has plummeted from a high of 56 million in 1942 to fewer than 11 million today. But economist Richard Stillman says that since about 1980, the U.S. inventory "has exhibited cyclical fluctuations" that are typical of most livestock production.

Abundant Life

CONSTRUCTIVE CONSIDERATION By Bob Wear

More and more is being said and written about the need for maintaining and showing the best possible consideration for each other.

There is more about how we need each other, and how we should work together for the common good, and to help when help is needed. This is good, and to whatever extent it becomes a wholesome reality the whole life situation will be better.

Constructive consideration is intended to suggest 'consideration' at its very best. We are thinking about 'thoughtful or sympathetic regard or notice' and 'attentive respect, appreciative regard'. The wholesome concern we can and should have for each other.

There may have been a time in the past when people found it easier to understand the need for properly considering each other. So many things obviously depended upon mutual assistance. The general condition was such that this need was self-evident. The need for this mutual view of one another is just as great today, but it may not be as obvious, not as easily seen.

Guided by knowledge and good judgment, all of this will be profitable to the extent we will be thoughtful and sympathetic in our consideration for each other. The sophistry, distrust, narrow selfishness, and shortage of love make constructive, helpful consideration of one another very difficult. We may find ourselves being reluctant to consider others, even when we would like to do so. We will have an improved life situation, when we find some way to overcome this reluctance, and we can.

Some of the elements of 'constructive consideration' are kindness, wholesome tolerance, intelligent understanding, the extension of a helping hand, the softening of criticism and the genuine expression of appreciation.

What we know as the 'golden rule' seems to fit in this space: "Do unto others, as you would have them do anto you.

EMILY KELLER, ROBBIE CHRISTIE

To Our Fellow Citizens:

We, who have served, fought and seen our comrades wounded and killed for these United States of America, probably have a more profound understanding of the symbolism and meaning of the Flag of our nation than those who have not had that opportunity. However, we believe that most good citizens believe the Flag stands for more - much more - (and an act of its desecration or destruction signifies more much more) than a figure of speech, an utterance or writing expressing an opinion or grievance; which each person has a right to do under Amendment I of the Constitution - and which we support and adhere to

We are confident that we who love our country, our heritages, our as currently written. cultures, our ways of life, our economic and political systems, our government as established by the Constitution, believe that each of us have a proprietary interest in this republic including each and every flag having the design of the 'Stars and Stripes.' We believe the willful and malicious destruction or desecration of the Flag is a trespass on each of us when such action is done by a citizen of the United States of America; and thus, the act should be defined as a felony and made punishable accordingly. We futher believe such action should be defined as an act of terrorism, insurgency, insurrection or rebellion; and thus the act should be classified as treason under the provisions of Section 3.1 and 3.2, Article III of the Constitution, and, we believe that if such an act of desecration or destruction is done by a citizen of another nation that that nation should be held accountable, and the person, if a resident of the United States of America, be deported immediately.

But, because its symtoms are often confused with those of other upper respiratory infections and there is no quick and inexpensive test for the disease, feline chlamydiosis isn't easily diagnosed, and may be even more prevalent.

Dr. Ed Daniels, who has been researching chlamydia for several years at Kansas State University, admits, "There's more of it out there than we realize, and it's frequently misdiagnosed."

While cat owners should keep an eye out for the symptoms of this contagious infection, feline chlamydiosis can be avoided altogether simply by vaccinating a cat against the a Minnesota psychologist.

STRONG BONDS NEEDED

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Researchers believe children who form strong bonds with their families during infancy will make more friends and be happier in adult life.

Encouraging an infant to express feelings improves the odds of growing up well adjusted. When the baby expresses feelings by smiling or crying, for example, your response gets results. Also, by your action, the infant can count on family members always being there when peeded being there when needed.

ULTRASOUND: NOT JUST FOR PREGNANCY By Robert C. Park, M.D. President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

If you hear the words "ultrasound" or "sonogram," chances are it is from someone who has been pregnant. Ultrasound is a method of using sound waves to produce a picture of your internal organs.

A doctor uses ultrasound in pregnancy to determine how big the baby is, what position it is in, where it is located, and if the baby is developing normally. He or she can also use ultrasound to determine if a pregnancy is growing someplace other than the uterus (womb) such as the fallopian tube. Ultrasound and very sensitive blood tests can often detect these ectopic pregnancies before they rupture and cause life-threatening problems. ,

Ultrasound has also become an important tool in helping nature with fertility. During invitro fertilization, an ultrasound scan is used to tell the physician when the women ovulates, so her eggs can be retrieved. The physician uses ultrasound to locate a woman's eggs. When ultrasound is used in this way, the woman's eggs can be recovered without major

Ultrasound has been particularly valuable in helping physicians locate tumors or lumps in the pelvic area. For instance, most cysts that form on the ovaries are harmless and soon disappear. Ultrasound may be able to confirm that a lump on an ovary is indeed a cyst, which can be safely observed for several months, rather than immediately removed.

Because of its ability to "see" inside the body, this procedure has been used to find IUDs when the string is missing. It is also used to determine if certain organs are in place and are a healthy size and shape.

In ultrasound's 30-year history, no studies have shown that the levels of ultrasound used to diagnose problems cause any damage to tissues or to fetuses. The procedure is painless, quick, and available through most hospitals and some doctor's offices.

Ultrasound has become an important part of medicine. It can be used to show you that your unborn baby is normal and healthy or to help catch a condition before it becomes serious. Whatever the reason, ultrasound can provide a medical window that can be used to better ensure your health.

TORONTO (AP) - For Britain's queen mother, it was deja vu.

She rededicated the same highway, made a royal departure in the identical Lincoln LeBaron convertible, and was presented again Thursday to the youngest reporter to cover the royal tour across Canada in 1939.

Reliving a part of the first tumultuous visit by a reigning monarch and his consort on a five-day trip that began in Ottawa on Wednesday, the 88-year-old Queen Mother Elizabeth expressed disbelief that half a century had passed.

"When I arrived at the International Airport yesterday evening, I could hardly believe that it is some 50 years since the royal train pulled into north station, and the king and I had our first sight of this exciting city," a beaming queen mother said.

READ THAT RENTAL

NEW YORK (AP) — If you plan to rent a car on your next trip, remember to read the fine print on the back of the rental agreement.

These are contract provisions which, if violated, can render your rental agreement invalid, says the Travel & Leisure Information Center. For example, without reading the fine print, you might not know you must name in advance and pay a surcharge for additional drivers.

If you don't, allowing anyone else to drive constitutes a breach of contract. Often only one other person than a Connic and Heidi Plaster of Valley spouse may be designated.

SUMMER CONTACT LENS HINTS

Swimming and flying have little in common, unless you're a contact lens wearer and have discovered that both can lead to eye discomfort. Here are ideas to keep in mind which may help.

If you wear your contacts during water sports, keep your eyes open when entering the water, but close them when your eye area breaks the surface of the water. This will prevent chlorine burn and lessen the chance of losing your lenses. After leaving the pool, it will be easier to remove your lenses if you add a drop of lubricating/rewetting solution to each eye first. This reduces the chane of tearing a lens during the removal process.

Take along a small bottle of contact lens rewetting solution when you are traveling by air. The dry air in the cabin, combined with changes in air pressure, may result in dry, irritated eyes that will make your contacts uncomfortable. A few drops of solution administered to each eye can solve this problem.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am with progressive nerve deafness. I has a hearing problem that is driving her to consider suicide. Of course she is depressed. It's hell to be deaf.

I know all about the problem. I've worn two hearing aids for 25 years. This woman should see an audiologist who will give her what she needs and not a salesperson who is trying to sell her something.

I have only 15 percent of normal hearing, but with my two aids I lead a wonderful life, travel, lecture and am involved with the world. It's great!--Linda L.S., Brownwood,

DEAR LINDA: I hear you loud and clear. The mail on this subject has been staggering. Read on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here to that poor woman who is being writing in regard to the woman who am now 63, and although my hearing is extremely poor I am having a lot of fun and enjoying life. Panic is poison. The first thing you must do is stop pretending that you can hear. Don't apologize for being deaf. Ask for help. Let everyone know that you have a hearing problem and are trying to cope. You will be amazed at how much help you will get. Join that fine organization, "SHHHH." Their literature is great. Write for it. The address is 7800 Wisconsin Ave., Dept. 6, Bethesda, Md. 20814. Be sure to enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.--A.B.M., Whippany, N.Y.

From Long Island: I am 30 years old and have a 40-percent hearing loss due to nerve damage. It are some words of encouragement runs in the family. That woman should think of hearing aids as driven crazy because she can't hear. eyeglasses for the ears. Now that I Since sixth grade I have been living am bilaterally amplified, I laugh and humor can help a lot. in the conversation. I can't hear very well and people are so cruel about it. Often I will ask, "Please repeat that." The other person says, "Oh, never mind." This makes me feel like I am not worth bothering about .-- J.M. West Palm Beach: Ann, tell the woman who is losing her hearing that there are two excellent alternatives: sign language and lip-reading. I've mastered both and feel as if I am now a participating member of the human race .-- L.K.

New York: I know what agony

San Antonio: No one should give up on hearing before checking with an allergist. I was also becoming suicidal because I couldn't hear. When a friend suggested that my problem might be caused by an allergy, I thought she was insane. As a last resort I decided to be tested. Heaven bless her, she was Sioux City, Iowa: If you live long enough everything is going to malfunction, eventually. Expect it. Nothing lasts forever. My hearing began to go bad 10 years ago. Frankly, I don't mind. There hasn't been much said lately that is worth listening to.

BY REBECCA WALLS

Hurry, hurry! This is the last week of the Summer Reading Club. Tuesday is the last activity day and the drawing for the 12 dinosaurs will be held at 10 a.m. on the library parking lot. You do not have to be present to win, but your books must be recorded in the library before that morning.

Some of the new books available at the library this week are:

The Bridesmaids: Grace Kelly, Princess of Monaco, and Six Intimate Friends by Judith Balaban Quine is "the most intimate and revealing portrait of Grace Kelly that the world will ever have." The story is told through the eyes of the women who knew her best: Carolyn Reybold, model; Rita Gam, actress and author; Maree Frisby Rambo, Gracie's oldest friend; Beltina Thompson Gray, Marine Corp brat; Sally Parrish Richardson, actress; and Judith Balbain Quine, author. This is also the story of a generation of women raised on the myth that happiness comes attached to the perfect man and marriage. The Bridesmaids is as moving as it is unforgettable.

Spying for America: The Hidden History of U.S. Intelligence by Nathan Miller shows that the types of covert operations revealed by Oliver North are as old as the nation itself. The father of "plausible deniability" was James Madison not Ronald Reagan. This history of covert operation goes back as far as George Washington's burly Tory spy, John Honeyman or the chilly late night clandestine meetings in Boston's Green Dragon Tavern with Paul Revere. Against this backdrop of colorful and courageous characters we see the gradual development of American intelligence from a single function of the military operations to the ominous and pervasive presence of the modern intelligence community. Soul/mate by Rosamond Smith is a psycho thriller that shows at every riveting unexpected turn, the hand of a master. It becomes known at the beginning of the story that Colin Asch is a killer. Set in an elegant and most respectable Boston suburb, Colin has come to stay with his aunt and uncle. It is at one of his aunt's dinner parties that he meets Dorothea Deverell. Unknown to Dorothea, Colin has chosen her to be soul mate. Now the question comes, who will be his next victim. Dorothea or the casual stranger, and will he escape detection as easily this time as he has in the

The Power of One introduces a new fiction writer Bryce Courtenay. In this spellbinding story of personal courage we find a small English boy, Peekay, growing up in South Africa during World War II. Peekay's journeys take him from the brutality of a Dickensian boarding school through countless close calls, to an awesome confrontation in a distant, dangerous place. Armed with his secret weapon "the power of one", Peckay encounters heroes and villains of mythic proportion. capturing both the natural beauty and civilized horror of South Africa, Bryce Courtenay creates an unforgettable saga of heroism and triumph in The Power of One.

Fire Horse by Denis M. Way is a story that begins in 1949 in China. John Huart arriving at Hong Kong's Victorian Harbor has one objective and that is to rebuild a once-famous trading company. Tu Chien also has ambitious plans for the future. One plan is to transplant the Chien opium trade to Hong Kong while the other more sinister plan is to avenge himself on the British officer responsible for the death of his family. Tu Chien's plan of revenge will be sweeter and. more subtle than a simple death. The innocent Englishman finds himself confronted with a portentous Chinese legend, as well as the customs, superstitions and dangers inherent in the Hong Kong business world.

"There should be no embarrassment whatsoever about asking about prices for a funeral service."

"When you're my age, you usually have had to make funeral arrangements for someone who is near and dear to you. And I can tell you it's never an easy thing to do.

"You have so many decisions to make... the funeral services are involved in some of them. And most of the time you really aren't prepared to make those decisions, especially if it's an unexpected loss. In fact it's best to have a pre-need plan before you require these services."

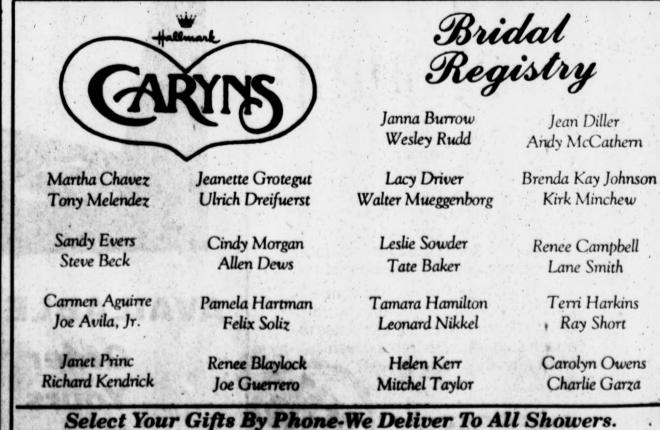

The personnel at Rix can arrange the kind of service that you feel you can afford either at time of need or by having a Pre-need Plan before the inevitable happens. Give Rix your ideas in this instance, ask for a price list and an explanation of services, then stay within the budget you set by ecting the services you want. Pre-planning takes much of the pressure off you at the time when death does come to a member of your family. Let our fessional counselors give you the experience that comes with years of service. For more information on Pre-need funeral plans call us or fill in the coupon printed below and we'll be glad to answer any uestions you may have.

Fact #4

When you hear a sales pitch for a heat pump this summer, you need to think ahead to next winter.

A heat pump does such a poor job heating in our raw West Texas winters, they have to hook it up to a furnace to keep your family from being miserable when it gets cold.

After all, if your furnace has done a good job keeping your family warm all these years, does it make sense to attach something to it that doesn't work anywhere near as well?

THOMAS AND RUTH PARSON

Parsons to be honored at reception July 15 in Friona

Thomas and Ruth Parson of Friona N.M.; and Nancy, Albert, Dora, and invite their friends and relatives to help them celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary from 2-4 p.m. July 15 at Calvary Baptist Church in Friona.

The reception will be hosted by their children: Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Parson, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Parson, Summerfield; Mr. and Mrs. Neal Parson, Valle de Oro; Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers, Tucumcari,

Alice Parson, all of the home.

Parson married the former Ruth Wilson July 17, 1939, at Seminole. They have lived in the Friona and Dimmitt area since their marriage. They are members of Calvary Baptist Church and have 16 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. The couple has also been foster parents to numerous amino acids and muscles was most suspect your son would not like. him. Now I wish you would comment on steroids and body building. My son lifts three to four times a week under the supervision of trained people. Recently he was told by an acquaintance - not from his fitness program that he should, have a doctor prescribe steroids so he can put on more weight. He is 6 feet 2 inches and 155 pounds. I adamantly told him no and suggested a better diet and less junk food would be the answer. Do you have a Health Letter on steroids in body building? The guy who suggested this to him is in his 30s and kids look up to people in this age group, so I need your help.

DEAR READER: I would not have much respect or confidence in any physician who would prescribe steroids to a young man to help him develop muscles. Steroids are not as dangerous in adults as some believe, but they are more risky in young men.

In the mature male, steroids may suppress the formation of sperm, but that is reversible and the function returns to normal after the steroids are discontinued. But there remains the possibility that steroids in a male who may not be fully matured sexually may induce sterility.

Your son is probably not biologically mature yet, despite-being over 6 feet. Even if he has stopped growing in height, the skeleton still grows and develops by forming larger bones, even if they are not longer bones. The skeleton is not mature until between 30 and 35 years of age. As his development progresses according to nature's plan for him, he will automatically become more muscular. His best-course of action is a proper diet and a proper exercise program to stimulate muscle growth.

Liver disorders are seen in men taking steroids. Some of these are transient, but there are rare cases of liver cancer. Other side effects include an increase in acne and greasy skin and hair. In fact, steroids Steroids may also increase the size of National Geographic.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Your column on the breasts in young males, which I helpful. Myo 17-year-old son wanted Have your son read Update on me to buy an amino acid product for Steroids, in THE HEALTH LETTER 33-08, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/33-08, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. And tell him to exercise properly, eat properly and be patient.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 59 years of age, about 5 feet 4 inches and weigh 210 pounds. I suffer with a pain that is unbearable from the lower back to my toes. I have suffered with this for almost two years. The doctor told me it is the sciatic nerve. I only get a prescription for pain pills. I hope you can suggest something that will cure me of this pain. I really don't want to go through life suffering like this.

DEAR READER: The sciatic nerve is the longest and largest nerve in the body and originates from spinal nerves in the lower back and passes to the bottom of the foot. Any disease process in the spine that irritates the spinal nerve roots can cause pain dong the distribution of the sciatic nerve. That irritation can be from a protruding vertebral disk or arthritic degeneration.

Your weight is probably an aggravating factor. Considering the long duration of your symptoms, apparently without relief, you may wish to see a specialist in neurology to find out what is causing the pain and if you need some other treatment. It is possible that you need surgery if you have a protruding disk.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Supermarket fish is a great catch

The variety of fish and shellfish in supermarkets continues to grow as America's appetite increases for this healthy source of nutrition.

Preparing fish in the microwave helps retain its moisture. Here are chopped mixed vegetables and cheese top fish fillets in an easy recipe.

FISH AND VEGETABLES

1 1/4 pounds fish fillets (cod, bluefish, haddock, sole) 1 medium green pepper, seeded and chopped I medium ripe tomato, cored and

1/4 cup chopped green onions I tablespoon chopped fresh dill

1/2 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 cup shredded Jarlsberg cheese

Microwave method: Place fish in glass dish. Combine vegetables and place over fish. Sprinkle with dill and salt, drizzle with lemon juice. Top with Jarlsberg cheese.

Cover and bake 7 minutes on high. fish is done when it flakes easily when tested with a fork near the center. If necessary, continue cooking on high for an additional minute. Let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. This kitchentested recipe makes 4 servings.

Conventional method: Place fish in oven-proof dish. Top with vegetables and remainder of ingredients. Bake, uncovered at 375 degrees for 20 minutes or until fillets are done and cheese is browned.

THOMAS AND RUTH PARSON

Parsons to be honored at reception July 15 in Friona

Thomas and Ruth Parson of Friona N.M.; and Nancy, Albert, Dora, and invite their friends and relatives to help them celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary from 2-4 p.m. July 15 at Calvary Baptist Church in Friona.

The reception will be hosted by their children: Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Parson, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Parson, Summerfield; Mr. and Mrs. Neal Parson, Valle de Oro; Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers, Tucumcari, children.

Alice Parson, all of the home.

Parson married the former Ruth Wilson July 17, 1939, at Seminole. They have lived in the Friona and Dimmitt area since their marriage. They are members of Calvary Baptist Church and have 16 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. The couple has also been foster parents to numerous amino acids and muscles was most suspect your son would not like. him. Now I wish you would comment on steroids and body building. My son lifts three to four times a week under the supervision of trained people. Recently he was told by an acquaintance -- not from his fitness program that he should have, a doctor prescribe steroids so he can put on more weight. He is 6 feet 2 inches and 155 pounds. I adamantly told him no and suggested a better diet and less junk food would be the answer. Do you have a Health Letter on steroids in body building? The guy who suggested this to him is in his 30s and kids look up to people in this age group, so I need your help.

DEAR READER: I would not have much respect or confidence in any physician who would prescribe steroids to a young man to help him develop muscles. Steroids are not as dangerous in adults as some believe, but they are more risky in young men.

In the mature male, steroids may suppress the formation of sperm, but that is reversible and the function returns to normal after the steroids are discontinued. But there remains the possibility that steroids in a male who may not be fully matured sexually may induce sterility.

Your son is probably not biologically mature yet, despite-being over 6 feet. Even if he has stopped growing in height, the skeleton still grows and develops by forming larger bones, even if they are not longer bones. The skeleton is not mature until between 30 and 35 years of age. As his development progresses according to nature's plan for him, he will automatically become more muscular. His best-course of action is a proper diet and a proper exercise program to stimulate muscle growth: Liver disorders are seen in men taking steroids. Some of these are transient, but there are rare cases of liver cancer. Other side effects include an increase in acne and greasy skin and hair. In fact, steroids may increase a loss of scalp hair. Steroids may also increase the size of National Geographic.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Your column on the breasts in young males, which I helpful. My 17-year-old son wanted Have your son read Update on me to buy an amino acid product for Steroids, in THE HEALTH LETTER 33-08, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/33-08, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. And tell him to exercise properly, eat properly and be patient.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 59 years of age, about 5 feet 4 inches and weigh 210 pounds. I suffer with a pain that is unbearable from the lower back to my toes. I have suffered with this for almost two years. The doctor told me. it is the sciatic nerve. I only get a prescription for pain pills. I hope you can suggest something that will cure me of this pain. I really don't want to go through life suffering like this.

DEAR READER: The sciatic nerve is the longest and largest nerve in the body and originates from spinal nerves in the lower back and passes to the bottom of the foot. Any disease process in the spine that irritates the spinal nerve roots can cause pain along the distribution of the sciatic nerve. That irritation can be from a protruding vertebral disk or arthritic degeneration.

Your weight is probably an aggravating factor. Considering the long duration of your symptoms, apparently without relief, you may wish to see a specialist in neurology to find out what is causing the pain and if you need some other treatment. It is possible that you need surgery if you have a protruding disk.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

If humans had evolved on the moon, with one-sixth Earth's gravity, they might be double their height but too spindly to play basketball; on Jupiter, they might look like pancakes with short legs, says

Supermarket fish is a great catch

The variety of fish and shellfish in supermarkets continues to grow as a.m. America's appetite increases for this healthy source of nutrition.

Preparing fish in the microwave helps retain its moisture. Here are chopped mixed vegetables and cheese top fish fillets in an easy recipe.

FISH AND VEGETABLES

1 1/4 pounds fish fillets (cod, bluefish, haddock, sole) 1 medium green pepper, seeded and

I medium ripe tomato, cored and

/4 cup chopped green onions l tablespoon chopped fresh dill 1/2 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons lemon juice 1 cup shredded Jarlsberg cheese

Microwave method: Place fish in glass dish. Combine vegetables and place over fish. Sprinkle with dill and salt, drizzle with lemon juice. Top with Jarlsberg cheese.

Cover and bake 7 minutes on high. fish is done when it flakes easily when tested with a fork near the center. If necessary, continue cooking on high for an additional minute. Let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. This kitchentested recipe makes 4 servings.

Conventional method: Place fish in oven-proof dish. Top with vegetables and remainder of ingredients. Bake, uncovered at 375 degrees for 20 minutes or until fillets are done and cheese is browned.

Luncheon reservations being taken

Clubs and organizations p'anning their new club year may wish to make April 1990 luncheon reservations sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

According to Donna Brockman, executive director of Deaf Smith County Museum, last year's response was so overwhelming that the Society had to turn many groups away.

The luncheons are served at noon each Tuesday and Thursday during April at the E.B. Black House to groups of at least 20 and not more than 32. There will be limited days for small individual groups of two, four, etc.

Cost per plate is $7.50 as a gournet meal is served by Society members who also conduct a style show in conjunction with the meal.

Reservations, which are required, can be made by calling the museum at 364-4338.

Coplen honored

A. Paul Coplen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Coplen, and student at First Baptist Church, has been selected as one of the country's most outstanding music students by the Who's Who in Music editorial staff.

He will be included in the 1989 edition of Who's Who in Music, an annual directory of outstanding music students first published in the school year of 1974-75.

The music leader and editors of this publication have included the name of this student based on outstanding musical ability and contribution to the school's overall music program, personal growth and development through participation in musical activities, citizenship and service to the school and community.

Paul Coplen joins an elite group of music students selected from institutions in all 50 states.

Treat kids to healthy snacks

Americans are known for their love of sweets. And unfortunately, this love of sugar is often passed along to the children. If your child is among those who believe all snacks must be sweet, take heart, because there are ways to make summer treats both appetizing and healthy.

"Children have such a sweet tooth because we use sweets as treats so often that they begin to expect them," explained Evelyn Roberts, a Texas Christian University instructor of nutrition and dietetics.

One approach is to make sure sweets served have some nutritional content, suggested Roberts. For example, make peanut butter, oatmeal or gingerbread cookies so the sugar and fat content will not be as high.

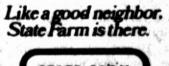

Fruit also can be made more appealing by making it into little figures, she added.

"Make a little apple bird or a pineapple decorated with other fruit pieces," Roberts said. "Children tend to eat those things if they're cut or attractive."

Other food ideas include finger sandwiches, cubes of cheese and low fat ice cream or dairy drinks, she said.
