

Minister airs claims of cult activity

By JOHN BROOKS

Law enforcement authorities are looking for more information into allegations made by two purported witnesses of satanic rituals that they allege have occurred in the Hereford area over the past 10 years, including the possibility of up to 70 persons being killed by cult members in this area.

Two women made the claims to the Rev. Mack McCarter, pastor of the First Christian Church of Hereford. The Rev. McCarter first made public the witnesses' claims during a July 9 sermon.

The Rev. McCarter said he would not deal with the media concerning the claims made by witnesses. He said he was not withholding information from the media to prevent the media from obtaining the story, but because he felt that his main concerns were in pastoring to his congregation, counseling with the witnesses that have come to him, dealing with other pastors in Hereford, and working with appropriate law enforcement agencies.

"The only forum we are dealing with is the churches of Jesus Christ," he told his congregation.

However, the Brand has obtained a tape recording of the Rev. McCarter's sermon and a letter that was sent to church members and others on the church's mailing list.

The Rev. McCarter has called the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Texas Rangers, and the agencies are investigating the claims made by the witnesses.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been called in because witnesses claim some of the persons who were allegedly killed here were trucked into the area from out of state. The FBI would not comment on the case other than to say that are studying the witnesses' accounts.

"They (law enforcement officials) absolutely believe the veracity of the witnesses," the Rev. McCarter said several times in his sermon.

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown, in an interview this morning on KPAN Radio, said he learned of the witnesses' allegations "about two months ago, over two months ago" from Hereford Police Lt. Pat Michaels.

Brown said there was not an investigation at this time by his department "because that was the only time I had heard about it... that was the last time I had heard about it," Brown said.

"We need to know where they are buried, or at least where the bones are," Brown said. "...We'll dig or do what we need to do, but there's nobody, nothing."

Brown said he had not seen enough missing persons reports in the county to lead him to believe that a large number of people had been killed in the Hereford area.

The Amarillo Daily News, in a front page story this morning, quoted Sgt. A.L. Morris, assistant director of the Special Crimes Unit of the Amarillo Police Department, as saying there was "no basis" for the stories the Brown said that an FBI agent had called him "two or three weeks ago. He came down and visited with a preacher, he told me, and went out with a couple of the people about it, but he hasn't called me back or come by," Brown said.

KPAN News Director Chip Formby asked Brown if the FBI would notify Brown if an investigation was going on in the county.

"Sure they would," Brown replied. "We would help each other out, see where we need to go from here."

Brown said there would not be a more in-depth investigation unless more concrete evidence was provided.

"We need to know where they are buried, or at least where the bones are," Brown said. "...We'll dig or do what we need to do, but there's nobody, nothing."

Brown said he had not seen enough missing persons reports in the county to lead him to believe that a large number of people had been killed in the Hereford area.

The Amarillo Daily News, in a front page story this morning, quoted Sgt. A.L. Morris, assistant director of the Special Crimes Unit of the Amarillo Police Department, as saying there was "no basis" for the stories the unit has heard from the witnesses and the Rev. McCarter.

Eight Hereford ministers met with the Rev. McCarter on Thursday to listen to tape recordings of the witnesses.

The Amarillo paper quoted "an anonymous minister" in Hereford as saying there was no question the witnesses "have been involved in satanic cult activity. They're local people who are trying to get out of it and are having some degree of difficulty."

"Everything you read about what happened in Matamoros, Mexico that happened earlier this year in Mexico, County," the Rev. McCarter said in his sermon.

If the witnesses' statements are true, the incidents were as shocking as what happened earlier this year in Mexico, where at least 19 persons were brutalized and murdered before they're hearts, organs and other body parts were consumed by persons participating in the rituals and sacrifices.

The pastor detailed how the first witness had married a man that was a member of a satanic cult. The Rev. McCarter said the woman did not know she was marrying a satanist because she was "drugged" in a systematic manner. "She was drugged so she would do things that an animal wouldn't do," the Rev. McCarter said.

The woman has since become a born-again Christian.

The Rev. McCarter said that the woman first came forward with information on April 23, Easter Sunday.

"She testified of memories that were occurring," he said. "The human mind became seared over with the memories because they were so traumatic."

He said the woman came back to him on April 25 with memories of people being chained and persons wearing black robes and hoods.

The Rev. McCarter had warned his congregation that his sermon would not be pretty. He told of the woman's recollections, which came over the course of several weeks, of carnage and rituals carried out in the name of satan at several locations in the Hereford area and other areas, including several children killed in the Granbury area near Fort Worth, and other Texas locations.

The Rev. McCarter said another person came to him "who had spent over 10 years in the occult," he said. He said the witnesses had not had a chance to get together and make something up.

"They were independent of one another," the Rev. McCarter said.

"They corroborated one another."

According to the minister, events, including rituals and human sacrifices, took place on a farm north of Hereford; a deserted house north of Hereford; a place west of Hereford; a barn south of Hereford, and another place "further South," the Rev. McCarter said, where the witnesses said six persons were crucified; and a barn "we believe someplace in Deaf Smith County" where 40-50 persons, from babies to adults were killed on a Dec. 24.

Both witnesses told of a house near Canyon, about 30 miles east of Hereford, that was a "holding house" for persons that were to be killed by the cult.

Both of the witnesses described the house, and they independently identified a mug shot of the man that owned the house. The owner of the house, whose holdings included a porno theater in Amarillo, has since died, the Rev. McCarter said.

Authorities have investigated several of the sites pinpointed by the witnesses, but no clues have been found.

"This is a different league," the Rev. McCarter said. "They don't leave signs, and they are well disguised."

Grand jury returns 6 indictments

The Deaf Smith County Grand Jury returned six indictments during its regular July session held Thursday.

Three of the six indictments were issued against Richard Vera Rodriguez. All three counts were for arson.

Isobel Ornelas Sr. was indicted for injury to a child.

Two other individuals indicted by the grand jury remained at large as of Thursday evening. The names and a list of charges against those individuals will be released following their arrests.

Clements, lawyers trade jabs

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements and trial lawyers traded political punches on who was responsible for the Legislature's failure to pass workers' compensation reform.

Referring on Thursday to attorneys who represent injured workers in disputed workers' comp claims, Clements said, "Few times in the history of Texas has one group so blatantly placed their selfish interests above the greater good of the people of Texas."

Lawmakers failed during a special session that ended Wednesday to reform the insurance system that compensates workers for on-the-job injuries. Clements called the 30-day session specifically to address the issue.

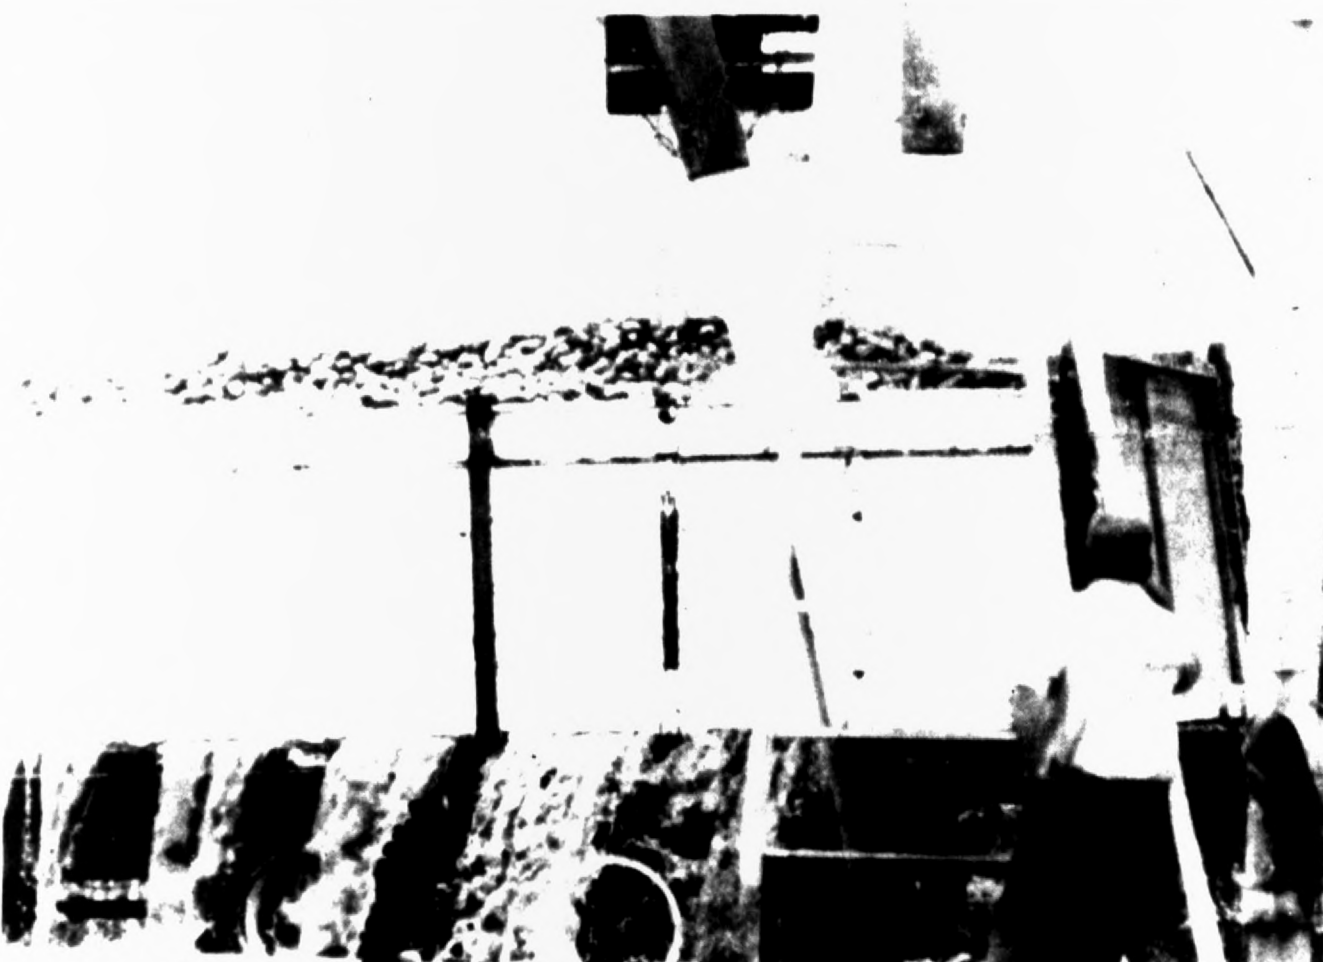

Tommy Jacks, president-elect of the Texas Trial Lawyer Association, said Clements' remarks were unfounded. "I really think it's irresponsible to play this blame game. I would never make the same accusation of Richard Smith (the House lead negotiator) and I don't accuse him of being a harlot of business interests."

Jacks noted the House-Senate conference committee on workers' comp had agreed on a proposal to rollback workers' comp premiums by 15 percent for small businesses. But the House conferees refused to support a plan to try and pass just a portion of the bill.

"The governor's office made a partisan decision that they could gain politically by delaying those reforms," Jacks said. Both Clements and Smith are Republicans.

Added to the political soup on workers' comp was the announcement by the insurance industry that it needs an approximate 30 percent rate increase.

Richard Geiger, a spokesman for the National Council on Compensation Insurance, said the increase is needed to offset claims and medical costs during a period when the Texas economy took a downturn.

Pilots report no control of plane in last minutes

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) - United Airlines Flight 232 pilot had almost no control as he struggled to land a DC-10 that had lost an engine fan and sustained holes in the small wing of the tail, investigators said.

The jumbo jet's hydraulic system, which is routed through the tail and allows the pilot to manipulate wing and tail controls, contained no fluid as Capt. Al C. Haynes tried to bring the plane into Sioux Gateway Airport, National Transportation Safety Board officials said Thursday night.

"The aircraft could only be turned to the right. They made three 360-degree turns" before Wednesday's crash landing, NTSB member Jim Burnett said.

At least 76 people were killed and up to 43 others were missing and believed dead in the crash. United released the names of survivors

Thursday but withheld a list of casualties while relatives were notified.

As workers continued to search wreckage strewn through a cornfield and across a runway, investigators released details of the harrowing last hour of the flight bound for Chicago and Philadelphia from Denver.

The chief flight attendant told the NTSB an explosion rocked the jet over western Iowa, knocking flight attendants to the floor, Burnett said. The attendant, who was unidentified, went into the cockpit and found the flight crew struggling to regain control of the plane, he said.

Thirty-four minutes before the crash landing, the pilot told air traffic controllers he had almost no control of the aircraft, Burnett said.

Eight minutes later, the crew expressed "serious doubts" they could reach the Sioux City and began discussing small airports and four-lane highways as possible landing sites, he said.

Investigators found a 10-inch-by-12-inch hole and three or four smaller ones in the horizontal stabilizer, the small wing on the plane's tail, NTSB spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said. The rear engine sits just above the stabilizer.

Lopatkiewicz said the holes were "projectile penetrations" but declined to be more specific. Such holes could be caused by pieces of metal spewed like shrapnel from a disintegrating engine.

Burnett said investigators were surprised to discover the entire fan rotor system missing on one engine.

The DC-10 has three engines, one on each wing and a tail engine.

"That's the first time for this type of engine that we've ever seen," he said.

At a news conference, Burnett said investigators could not determine if the fan had come from the rear engine. However, an NTSB official who spoke on condition he not be named said the rear engine did suffer explosive failure.

The Des Moines Register and The New York Times reported, in today's editions that Burnett confirmed the fan came off the rear engine.

The failure of the tail engine may have caused the hydraulic system to fail, said Bob Raynesford, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Woman jailed for perjury in 'kidnapping'

A Hereford woman is being held in Potter County Jail today after she was charged with perjury in connection with an incident last weekend in Amarillo.

The woman had reported to Amarillo police early Sunday morning that she and her son had been kidnaped by her estranged husband from their Hereford home. She told police that she had escaped but her son was still being held at her husband's home.

The Amarillo Special Weapons and Tactics Team was called to the scene, entered the home, arrested the man and freed the boy.

The man was arrested on kidnaping and aggravated assault charges at that time. He was freed from jail on Tuesday after other witnesses contradicted the woman's statements.

The woman was picked up Thursday on a warrant for perjury, accusing her of making false statements in her sworn account of the incident.

The charge is a Class A misdemeanor.

AIDS may attack more cells in victims

WASHINGTON (AP) - AIDS patients may have up to 1,000 times more diseased blood cells than previously believed, making it even harder to stamp out the virus that causes the fatal disease, according to a National Institutes of Health study published today.

In a study led by Steven M. Schnittman of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, researchers discovered that in a patient with active AIDS the virus that causes the disease can infect up to 1 percent - 1 of every 100 - of a blood cell known as the T4 lymphocyte.

Schnittman said in an interview that previous studies, which used indirect measurements of the infection rate, had calculated that only 1 in every 10,000 to 100,000 of the T4 lymphocytes in such a patient were infected.

The higher rate of infection, a factor that doctors call "virus load," suggests that it will be more difficult to develop a therapy to find and eliminate each and every pocket of the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) which causes AIDS.

"The quantity of the virus (found in the study) was a lot higher than previously expected," Schnittman said. "There are more cells infected, a greater proportion, than we knew before."

Schnittman said the study showed that a new research procedure, called polymerase chain reaction, or PCR, may be used to monitor the level of AIDS infection as a patient progresses from a point of showing no symptoms to where the disease becomes life-threatening.

With PCR, he said, researchers could measure precisely the effects of drugs being tested to control or kill the AIDS virus.

A research report authored by Schnittman and eight other scientists was published today in the journal Science.

Schnittman said he and his colleagues used blood samples from patients with active AIDS to conduct the PCR search for the virus.

Researchers first separated from the samples the T4 lymphocytes. These immunity cells are thought to be the primary target of the HIV virus.

Blood studies in the past counted the number of cells infected with the AIDS virus by measuring proteins triggered by an active HIV virus. Thus, the level of infection was inferred instead of directly measured.

But Schnittman said the PCR technique detects the genetic pattern of the AIDS virus while it is within a cell. In this way, he said, the researchers could find infected cells even when the AIDS virus is inactive.

The PCR survey, which was developed only about a year ago, he said, is an important new tool to help scientists understand the life cycle of the highly complex AIDS virus, and perhaps find a weak point where the killer disease could be attacked with drugs.

AIDS is a contagious disease that attacks immune cells in the body and renders them unable to resist disease. The HIV virus, which causes AIDS, is spread most often through sexual intercourse with infected persons or through needles shared by intravenous drug users.

As of May 31, 1989, AIDS had been diagnosed in 97,193 Americans, of whom more than half, or 56,468, have died since June 1, 1981, according to the Centers for Disease Control. No one is known to have recovered from AIDS.

'Splashdown' celebrates moon landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - A "splashdown" party celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Apollo 11 lunar landing resembled parties from 20 years ago. All that was missing were swimming pools.

Thursday's splashdown party at the Johnson Space Center that drew about 10,000 past and present NASA employees was patterned after the informal celebrations that followed each Apollo mission.

"This is just like the splashdown party 20 years ago, except then they threw everybody in the pool," said Cookie Leisenring, a retired NASA employee who was trying to take pictures of the honored guests - Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins.

"You knew everybody, the cars were parked on the medians and you had to work to get up to the bar," Mrs. Leisenring said of the earlier parties. "All the contractors had open bars at the hotels and you just walked up and tried to make your way to get a drink. The parties were everywhere."

The only difference between Thursday's party at the Robert R. Gilruth Recreation Facility and those from 20 years ago was that the hotels had swimming pools and partygoers created their own splashdowns by throwing people in the pools, Mrs. Leisenring said.

The NASA recreation facility has no swimming pool.

Separate outdoor areas of the party were designated for different departments such as engineering and development and recovery crew. Inside, a band played in a gym-sized room decorated with star-shaped balloons and blue balloons with the U.S. flag on them.

Beer and soft drinks were free, but partygoers had to pay for hot dogs.

Space station is first step to Mars, President says

WASHINGTON (AP) - Now that President Bush has endorsed "a journey into tomorrow" - a tomorrow that includes people living and working on the moon and Mars - Congress will first have to give NASA a space haven closer to home.

It's called Space Station Freedom, an orbiting laboratory, that was to have become a reality in 1992 but will be lucky to be built in time to greet the 21st century.

Only a few hours after Bush spoke Thursday, the station survived another financial cliffhanger in the House of Representatives, one of a long series.

When President Ronald Reagan proposed the station in 1984, the cost for that single component of a moon-Mars future was estimated to be $8 today's dollars, not figuring in inflation.

"I know it seems like a very large number but you have to remember that it is over a 30-year period," Darman said. "Obviously, it puts the system to the test. It is a question of how much one cares about the future."

Bush, in a speech that commemorated the 20th anniversary of the first landing on the moon, said pointedly that it is up to Congress to make the space dreams a reality.

It is in the Congress, he said, "where the future of the space station and our future as a spacefaring nation will be decided."

Bush called the space station an essential bridge to the moon-Mars proposals for the 21st Century.

It is in the Congress, he (President Bush) said, "where the future of the space station and our future as a spacefaring nation will be decided."

billion. Today's guess is $30 billion and some experts say even that won't come close.

Returning to the moon and going on from there to Mars would cost untold billions more and would require a buildup of NASA engineers and industrial machinery not unlike the Apollo days of the 1960s. More than 400,000 people worked on the moon program; today, NASA and its civilian contractors employ fewer than 150,000.

One of the president's chief aides, Budget Director Richard Darman, was the only administration official to say what Bush's vision might cost.

"Our current estimates are roughly - very, very roughly - that if you went to Mars by the year 2020 and did so first establishing a lunar base and then going from the moon, the pricing over this 30-year period would be on the order of $400 billion," he told reporters. The figure, he said, is in

Members of Congress criticized Bush's omission of a timetable and estimated costs but the House readily turned back an attempt by Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., to transfer $714 million from next year's budget for the space station to programs for veterans' medical care, pollution control and low-income and elderly housing.

"If the Schumer amendment had passed, it probably would have killed the space station," said Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., chairman of the House space subcommittee.

At a White House news conference on Thursday, NASA Administrator Richard Truly said that even if the money were made available, NASA today could not do the job.

"We have a full plate with space shuttle flights and space station Freedom," he said. "To take on extra programs, we would need extra help - technicians and engineers and facilities. But NASA has the underlying structure, and given the money, we could flesh out."

The space station, orbiting 250 miles high, would be used as a facility to deliver, assemble, refuel, maintain, and service lunar and interplanetary vehicles. The station also would be used to transfer huge amounts of rocket fuel arriving from Earth and serve as a way station for crews going to and returning from deep space.

Here's a guide to selecting cheeses

NEW YORK (AP) - Whether it's served on a burger for lunch or with wine at a party, cheese is a popular item on the American menu.

With over 2,000 varieties available, there's a cheese for every occasion. But with such a large selection, which cheese do you choose? How do you read the complicated labels? What are the benefits of the new "light" cheeses?

The following guide is offered by the nutritionists at Dorman-Roth Foods in Moonachie, N.J.:

HOW IS CHEESE MADE?

Cheese has been enjoyed for more than 4,000 years, and has been a basic source of nutrition for many cultures. Cow's milk is the basis of most cheeses. It is typically heat treated, or pasteurized, and fermented with acid-producing bacteria or enzymes to develop the cheese. The differences in processing methods produce the more than 2,000 varieties of cheese.

WHAT ARE THE DIFFERENT CATEGORIES OF CHEESE?

Traditional cheeses and the new "light" cheeses fall into the following four categories.

"Natural cheese" is pressed curds that have been aged; 2 to 3 months for mild cheese and longer for sharp cheese. Swiss cheese is an example.

"Pasteurized process cheese" is a blend of fresh and aged natural cheeses that have been shredded, mixed with an emulsifier and heated to stop ripening. American cheese falls into this category.

"Pasteurized process cheese food" is similarly prepared but slightly lower in fat because it has less cheese, more water and more non-fat milk or whey solids.

"Pasteurized process cheese spread" has even less milk fat and more water.

WHAT IS AN AVERAGE SERVING OF CHEESE?

Most cheeses you select from the dairy case will include nutritional information and serving size on the package. When you select cheeses to be sliced or cut at the deli section, you generally won't find labeling information.

An average serving of cheese, including new "light" cheeses, is generally 1 ounce. This is typically 1 average slice or a 1 1/4-inch cube. A serving of cottage cheese is 1/2 cup or 4 ounces.

WHAT TYPES OF CHEESE HAVE THE MOST CALCIUM?

Most hard cheeses are good sources of calcium: 205 milligrams in an ounce of Cheddar or Muenster, 275 in Swiss, 185 in mozzarella. A 1/2-cup serving of cottage cheese has only 80 milligrams, about half the amount in a cup of milk.

WHAT DOES "LIGHT" MEAN ON THE LABEL?

Generally, cheeses labeled "light" are lower in sodium, fat, calories and cholesterol than traditional versions.

WHAT ARE LOW-FAT CHEESES?

If a cheese has less than 9 grams of fat per ounce, it's considered a full-fat cheese; if it has 6 to 8 grams of fat per ounce, it falls into the moderate category; and cheese containing less than 5 grams of fat per ounce is low-fat.

Cheddar, American and Muenster each contain 9 grams of fat per ounce; there are 8 grams of fat in an ounce of Swiss; and 6 grams in feta and mozzarella.

ARE ALL CHEESES HIGH IN SODIUM?

Cheese is often high in sodium, with the processed cheeses among the highest at more than 400 milligrams an ounce. Cottage cheese is also very high at 450 milligrams per 1/2 cup. Among hard cheeses, the lowest in sodium are Swiss and mozzarella. Low-sodium cheeses are lowest of all.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Youth of First United Methodist Church will be at Ute Lake in New Mexico this weekend for their annual trip to enjoy water skiing and other sports. They will leave Saturday morning and return Sunday evening and will spend the night at the McMorries' family place on the lake.

This is the high spot of the summer program for youth of the church, who are accompanied by several adult sponsors. Arrangements have been made under the direction of Kathy Moore, the church youth coordinator.

Activities for fall will start soon. A new director of youth and education ministries in the church, Jo Linker of Lubbock, will be here next week to begin her duties Aug. 1 and lead the planning.

Dr. Steve McElroy, pastor, will preach at the morning services Sunday in First UMC, at 8:30 and 10:55 a.m. He has been on vacation and in his absence the pulpit has been occupied by Rev. Marty Hamrick, director of the Wesley Foundation on the campus of West Texas State University, and the Rev. James Hamilton, a retired UMC minister who has recently moved to Hereford.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Dr. Jim Cory's sermon for the regular 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service is titled, "Pick Me! Pick Me!" The scripture is Acts 6:1-7.

This past Sunday, the Session hired as the new church secretary, Martha Henson. She has been the financial secretary at First Presbyterian Church in Amarillo since 1987. Before then, she worked for seven years in various financial institutions in the Dallas area.

Henson is a 1966 graduate of Memphis High School and attended Clarendon Junior College. She and her husband moved to Hereford this past month after he received a four-year contract to be Hereford's rural mail carrier. The couple have one son who graduated from high school in May. She will begin work Monday and will be in the office from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A children's division swimming party, for all children who have completed grades 1-6, is planned from 7:30-9 p.m. Sunday at Green Acres pool.

All children who have completed 1-3 grades are invited to a Baptist doctrine study on Wednesday nights from 7-8:15 p.m. in the third and fourth grade Sunday School room. This is a basic doctrine study that covers church, creation, the Bible and Jesus.

The R.A. Day Camp will be held Monday and Tuesday. Those interested in participating are asked to

ARTHRITIS TREATMENT

ATLANTA (AP) - Treatment programs for arthritis are most effective when tailored for the individual, says the Arthritis Foundation.

These programs usually include some combination of medication, rest, exercise and methods of protecting the joints. Different parts of the program complement the others and together help relieve pain, reduce inflammation, minimize damage to joints and improve movement.

A program depends on many things, especially the kind of arthritis, how severe the disease is, which joints are involved and the person's age and everyday activities.

Larry Leon spoke on "You Can Do It" and Chuck Danley talked on "Humorous Heckling", as did Joe Don Cummings.

Andrews was cited as best table topics speaker while Leon was recognized as best program speaker. Bruce Hernandez was best evaluator.

Members present were Adams, Walters, Andrews, Lee, Weaver, Tom Weemes, Leon, Cummings, Hernandez, and Danley.

Cotton king of cool

NEW YORK (AP) - Hemlines rise and fall, styles change, designers come and go, but there is one constant in the fashion world: Wear cotton for maximum comfort in a heat wave.

"Cotton has superior ability for breathability and absorbency," says Mary Louise Hawkins of Cotton Incorporated. "Because of its structure, cotton absorbs body moisture and wicks it away from the skin."

"Body moisture and vapor is absorbed in the interior of the fiber through the various layers or walls and brought to the surface where it evaporates. Anyone who has ever used a cotton towel is familiar with this."

Hawkins, senior director of fashion marketing for the association of cotton growers, says that loose fitting silhouettes allow the body freedom of movement, enhancing comfort. She also says that white is traditional for summer because of its ability to reflect heat, as opposed to darker shades, which absorb color and retain heat.

Dr. Norman Hollies, a researcher at the University of Maryland, says the best rule of thumb for hot weather dressing is to use common sense.

Hollies, director of the university's Comfort and Perception Research Lab, says that making the most of the body's evaporative action is vital to keeping cool. If you have to be out in the heat, he says, it's better to be in slow motion to allow air to circulate around you. Standing still does not allow enough air to circulate.

Dressing to match regional weather conditions is also important. Hollies says that in areas of strong sunlight and low humidity, light colored, protective clothing works best. For hot and humid areas, loose, open knits and short sleeves are important. In all cases, Hollies recommends all-cotton T-shirts next to the skin.

"Contact comfort against the skin will alleviate the sensation of heat for a longer time," says Hollies, "and cotton provides excellent moisture absorption to increase evaporative cooling."

The armed forces also recommend loose-fitting cotton clothing. Norbert Rodil, chief of life support clothing systems and equipment branch for the U.S. Army Natick Research Development and Engineering Center, which tests the comfort of army combat clothing, says that both field and laboratory research has shown that for tropical conditions loose-fitting cotton clothing is the best option for reducing heat stress.

"All Army and Marine Corps combat camouflage uniforms for use in tropical zones are 100 percent cotton," says Rodil. "This fabric offers good moisture removal and evaporative cooling."

Rodil says to look for clothing that offers good "air permeability" - clothing that allows cooling breezes to come in contact with your skin.

WT's Graf optimistic about season

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

West Texas State University head football coach Steve Graf said Thursday he expects the nucleus of his team to be much improved over last year's 2-8 squad.

Graf, who spoke at the Noon Kiwanis Club meeting, said the majority of his team will be sophomores and redshirt freshman, and last season's experiences will provide incentive for success in 1989.

"We lost only four seniors off last year's team," he said, "and we'll probably lose only four more from this year. The younger guys are going to have plenty of chances to perform."

Graf based his optimism on performances during spring drills and the first Maroon-White game held at the Canyon campus in several years.

"This was the first year since I've been at WT that we had enough healthy players at the end of the spring to hold a game," Graf said of the intra-squad scrimmage.

"We showed a lot of improvement from the fall. I felt like we could have played any game on our schedule the next day and made an impact."

The Buffalo mentor is expecting about 115 players for pre-season workouts, which begin Aug. 12 with contact drills starting Aug. 14.

"We're real excited about the recruits we signed," Graf said. "We've changed our recruiting philosophy from the past years and are starting to build with freshmen instead of junior college transfers. We've got a great (high school recruit) from Hereford in Pat Mercer.

"They've all got a great attitude and they want to win," he added.

The schedule for the upcoming season will provide an opportunity for the Buffs to face top-quality competition from the nation's smaller colleges, Graf said.

"We open up at home with Sacramento State on Sept. 2 and they were ranked fifth in the nation at the end of last season (in Division II)," he said. "Then we have (Division I-A) Lamar and with their high-powered offense the game may last four hours.

"(Texas) A&I is ranked No. 2 in the nation and East Texas (a road game) is up there also. So people will have a chance to watch some of the best teams right here."

Of the proposed merger between WT and the Texas A&M University System, Graf said it should have no effect on WT athletics.

"People have asked about the slush funds (at A&M) and all that," he said, "but I don't think we'll have any problems with it.

"You won't here anybody chanting 'Gig 'em Buffs' at the games," Graf added.

Graf also addressed the problem of financing collegiate athletics, saying the merger would help since an expected increase in enrollment would increase the amount of money WT's athletic program from student service fees.

"It costs us the same amount of money to recruit players as it does the larger schools, it costs us the same to outfit them in equipment," he said, "but we don't draw as many people for our games as Tech and A&M do, so we have to work at finding other ways to raise the money to offset expenses."

Graf will be back in Hereford on Monday with the rest of his staff for the Buffalo Thunder Scramble and Barbecue at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

"This is not going to be a big tour event," he said. "It's going to be more of a time for fellowship, to get together with the coaches and meet everybody."

Stephens leads British after one

TROON, Scotland (AP) - David Feherty, a journeyman from Northern Ireland, blistered a cool and cloud-shrouded Royal Troon course today to move into the lead as he neared the end of the second round at the British Open.

Feherty, a two-time winner in 1986 with just three top 10 finishes on the PGA European Tour this season, started the day 1-under par, but birdied the first hole and roared away from there.

A birdie-3 at the 13th was his seventh of the day and left him at 8-under par for the tournament with three holes left before the midpoint.

Also at 8-under, but farther from the finish, was Wayne Grady, an Australian who plays on the American tour. He started at 4-under and picked up his fourth stroke of the day with a birdie-3 at the 10th.

Wayne Stephens, the unknown Englishman who tied the course record with a first-round 66, opened his second round with par-4s at the first two holes.

The leader in the clubhouse, also at 6-under, was Eduardo Romero, a veteran from Argentina, who birdied the 11th and 12th holes to chop two strokes from his overnight position. He was in at 138, after a second-round 70.

One shot behind was Derrick

Cooper, an Englishman who shot a 2-under 70 for a two-round total of 139, 5-under par.

Fairly calm winds and greens sticky from light morning rain were helping golfers continue their assault on par over the usually difficult Royal Troon course.

Jose-Maria Olazabal of Spain and Tom Watson, the five-time champion from the United States, were both 5-under through early holes, as was Mark James of Britain.

Greg Norman, the 1986 winner, was up and down in a round of birdies and bogeys, staying 3-under with three holes to play.

Running into trouble after a fast start was Paul Azinger. He birdied the third and fourth holes to move atop the leader board, but bogeyed the eighth and 10th to fall back to his overnight position of 4-under.

Stephens was ready to quit golf five years ago and there were few signs he made the right choice in staying at the sport: Less than $4,000 in career earnings to start this season. A top finish of 19th place. Losing his PGA European Tour qualification twice.

"The hard work does pay off," Stephens said after shooting a 6-under-par 66, tying the course record and taking a two-shot lead over a tightly bunched, par-busting field.

Seven players, led by two-time winner Lee Trevino, were tied for second. But a player in his first Open was No. 1.

"It's a dream come true," Stephens said.

His voice and the look in his eyes showed the dream still was not to be believed, even by the dreamer.

"A marvelous feeling," he said.

Stephens' round, started in hazy sunshine and completed in the twilight of a Scottish summer evening, capped a day of fierce competition as the Open began its 118th edition.

Of 156 players who started, 60 finished the first day at par or better. Light winds, mild temperatures and a course forged iron-like by months of hot, dry weather added yards to shots and clipped strokes off par.

The chief beneficiaries were Stephens and a large group of Americans, trying to record a U.S. victory in golf's oldest tournament for the first time since 1983.

Trevino, who will turn 50 in December, crowned as always and putted as he did when he was winning consecutive Opens in 1971-72.

He shooed away jetliners as they took off from a nearby airport, then sank a birdie putt on the 14th hole.

He one-putted the last five holes, finishing with a 20-footer for a birdie-3 at the 18th.

"To win here at almost 50 - that would be just unbelievable," Trevino said. "I don't know what I'd do. I may never go home."

Paul Azinger, runner-up in the 1987 Open, and Fred Couples, also seeking his first major title, joined Trevino at 4-under 68.

So did Wayne Grady, an Australian playing on the U.S. PGA Tour; Eduardo Romero, a veteran from Argentina, and Spaniards Jose-Maria Olazabal and Miguel Martin.

Olazabal is a known quantity, No. 3 on the European money list this year. Martin is unknown, and, if not for Stephens' late charge, would have been the surprise of the day.

Added to the field as an alternate when American Jay Haas withdrew late Wednesday, Martin was the lone leader at 5-under before taking a bogey-6 at the 16th hole.

"I think I am lucky to play," Martin said. Unlike Stephens, the Spaniard had previous Open experience, finishing 62nd at Muirfield two years ago.

Stephens was struggling to regain his tour qualifying exemption at that time.

"I gained by tour card in 1984 but failed dismally to keep it," he said.

It was about that time that golf and Wayne Stephens almost said goodbye.

Before he could quit, however, Stephens ran into Terry Hanson, a club pro who helped change his swing and get him interested in the sport again. He regained his tour card for the second time last year.

"We made changes and we keep making changes, and in the last six weeks I've played the solid golf of my life," Stephens said.

Never mind that those six weeks have included two more tournaments in which Stephens has missed the cut, the sixth and seventh times that has happened this year. When you lead the British Open, hindsight need extend no farther than the most recent 18 holes.

American wins Bronco

The Amarillo American League All-Stars wasted almost as much time in deciding the championship game of the West Texas Sectional Bronco Tournament as they had during the two wins that got them there.

Thursday's game took about an hour-and-a-half, ending with Amarillo National being run ruled just like everyone else in a 13-1 walkover for the champions. Amarillo American advances to the Southwest Regional Tournament beginning Aug. 1 in Ada, Okla.

The Americans started the game in usual fashion, sending the entire batting order to the plate. When the dust settled, they had scored three runs and chased starting National pitcher Kurt Walken from the mound.

Defensively, the American League played its best game of the week as the faced 18 batters in five innings. Starter Kris Hughes gave up a single to Chris Schipper for the only base runner he allowed in three innings. A walk and an error in the fifth provided Amarillo National with its only other base runners.

Amarillo American put the game away with five runs on back-to-back home runs from Gabe Sager and Mike Long. Collin Tenton and Ryan Palmer added double to the effort.

The Americans put the 10-run rule into effect in their next at bat when Vance Dunlap led off with a home run and Bryan King walked and scored on Michael Cleavinger's double.

The fourth inning was a rarity of the tourney as Amarillo American suffered only its second three up, three down inning of the week. Josh McKinney had reached on a hit by pitch, but was doubled off on a fly ball to right.

The Americans added three more runs in the fifth on a two-run homer by Cleavinger and a solo shot by Chad Smith, upping the tally to 13-0.

Amarillo National finally got on the board in the bottom of the fifth against reliever Cleavinger when Lee Autry led off with a walk, stole second and took third on a passed ball. He came home on Schipper's ground out to third.

Peters wins Ryan Award

HOUSTON (AP) - National pitching record holder Jon Peters won the Nolan Ryan Award for the second consecutive year, award sponsors announced Thursday.

Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan and a Whataburger Inc. executive will present Peters of Brenham with the award before the Texas Rangers-New York Yankees game on Sunday.

Peters, who holds the record for most consecutive wins by a high school player at 54-1, had a career earned run average of 1.24, helping him earn All-District honors each of his four years at Brenham High School.

He also was selected to the All-State team and was named an ABC

Wide World of Sports Athlete of the Week.

He has accepted a scholarship to Texas A&M and will attend this fall.

The award, sponsored by Whataburger Inc., is given to the Texas high school baseball player who best exemplifies outstanding achievement on the field, in the classroom and throughout his community.

Whataburger, a fast-food restaurant chain, is based in Corpus Christi.

Stewart, A's solve Baltimore, 5-2

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Dave Stewart usually pitches against the Baltimore Orioles like he did against the National League All-Stars - poorly.

That was the case until Thursday night, when Stewart did what he usually does to the rest of the American League.

Stewart won his 14th game, tied for most in the majors, by ending a five-game losing streak to the Orioles in the Oakland Athletics' 5-2 victory.

"On any given day, I'm capable of beating any team in this league," said Stewart, hit hard last week in his All-Star Game start.

Those given days have rarely come against Baltimore, a team that turned Stewart down for a tryout when he was temporarily out of baseball in early 1986. Stewart, a 20-game winner the past two seasons, had not beaten the Orioles since Aug. 29, 1986.

Even last year, when the Orioles were the worst team in the big leagues at 54-107, Stewart went 0-2 with a 5.82 earned-run average against them. This season, he made one start versus Baltimore and was tagged with a loss.

Stewart, 14-5, joined Mike Scott and Ed Whitson as the top winners in the majors. He is 9-1 at home this season.

"The only streak I know about right now is that I haven't lost two games in a row all season," he said, "and that's one streak I'd like to continue all year."

In other games, Texas beat New York 6-2, Cleveland stopped Kansas City 4-0, California got past Detroit 4-3 and Seattle defeated Toronto 5-2.

Stewart gave up two runs on seven hits in seven-plus innings.

Dennis Eckersley pitched one inning for his 15th save.

Dave Schmidt, 8-9, lost for the first time in six career decisions against the Athletics.

Carney Lansford hit an RBI single in the third inning. Jose Canseco' run-scoring single helped make it 3-0 in the fourth.

The Orioles broke an 18-inning scoreless streak with two runs in the sixth, but Dave Henderson hit a two-run single in the Oakland seventh.

Rangers 6, Yankees 2

Nolan Ryan struck out 11 in 7 1-3 innings and won his 284th career game.

Ryan, 11-6, gave up five hits and did not walk a batter.

Kenny Rogers relieved with one out, the bases loaded and the Rangers ahead 4-1 in the eighth. Steve Balboni hit an RBI single, but Don Mattingly grounded into a double play, although replays appeared to show Mattingly was safe at first base.

Andy Hawkins, 11-9, extended his scoreless-inning streak to 23 before Pete Incaviglia hit a solo home run in the fifth for the game's first run.

Indians 4, Royals 0

Greg Swindell got his 13th victory, pitching two-hit ball for seven innings.

Swindell, 13-2, won for the ninth time in 10 decisions. Jesse Orosco and Doug Jones each pitched one hitless inning.

Bret Saberhagen, 9-5, had his six-game winning streak stopped.

Joe Carter, who had hit five homers in his last six at-bats, singled in four tries.

Carter's leadoff single in the seventh inning started a three-run burst that broke open a scoreless game.

Mariners 5, Blue Jays 2

Scott Bankhead set a team record with his eighth consecutive victory - also an AL high this season.

Bankhead, 10-4, gave up two runs on six hits in 7 2-3 innings and Dennis Powell went one inning for his second save.

Greg Briley hit his fourth home run in four games, a three-run shot in the third against Dave Stieb, 9-6.

Fred McGriff hit his 23rd home run for the Blue Jays.

Angels 4, Tigers 3

Wally Joyner singled home Claudell Washington from second base with two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

The Angels scored the winning run against Mike Henneman, 6-3, on two walks and Joyner's third hit of the game.

Chuck Finley, 11-6, gave up 10 hits, struck out 12 and walked one. Tigers starter Doyle Alexander remained winless in 10 outings.

Washington homered and Joyner doubled in the Angels' two-run third that made it 3-2.

As a hitter, Les Lancaster is a thinking man's pitcher.

"Believe it or not, I was looking for it," Lancaster said after shocking the San Francisco Giants with a two-out, run-scoring double in the 11th inning that gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 victory. It was only his sixth hit in 71 career at-bats.

"The pitch was a hanging slider," Lancaster said. "I didn't over-swing."

Lancaster, whose hitting feat made him the winning pitcher, batted because the Chicago bench was depleted of all reserves but a backup catcher. His first hit of the season scored Curtis Wilkerson from first and capped a most improbable comeback. In the ninth, Wilkerson had a two-run single in a three-run rally that tied the game.

"I was moving," Wilkerson said. "I practically swallowed my chewing tobacco going around third."

Lancaster, batting for just the second time this season, hit a hard grounder off the glove of third baseman Ken Oberkfell that rolled down the left field line. Wilkerson scored easily as the Cubs snapped San Francisco's five-game winning streak.

"I was just trying to keep the ball in play," Lancaster said of the hit off loser Randy McCament. "I wasn't thinking about driving in the winning run. I was just trying not to strike out."

Elsewhere, it was Montreal 4, Cincinnati 1; New York 4, Atlanta 1, and St. Louis 7, San Diego 1.

The Cubs were down to their last out before breaking through against San Francisco relief ace Steve Bedrosian on the mound.

Mark Grace and Damon Berryhill were aboard via one-out singles. One out later, Dwight Smith singled to drive in a run, with Berryhill taking third and Smith second on right fielder Candy Maldonado's overthrow to the plate. Then Wilkerson tied the game with a single to left.

Maldonado, replacing injured major league home run and RBI leader Kevin Mitchell, helped the Giants build a 3-0 lead with two doubles and two runs scored.

Starter Mike LaCoss tied his career high with nine strikeouts, while giving up three hits and walking one. He gave way to Bedrosian after seven innings because of stiffness in his shoulder.

Expos 4, Reds 1

Mark Langston continued in his role as Montreal's stopper with 13 strikeouts.

"This was a big ballgame coming off two tough losses," Langston said after reaching his season high for strikeouts while pitching a four-hitter.

Langston, 7-3 since his acquisition from Seattle on May 25, reached double figures for the fourth time in 11 National League starts.

The only run Langston allowed came in the first inning on Todd Benzing's 10th home run.

The Expos scored all their runs in the fourth against Rick Mahler, 9-9, who allowed six hits in six innings.

Cardinals 7, Padres 1

Tom Brunansky hit a three-run homer and Joe Magrane allowed five hits in eight innings.

Magrane, 11-6, walked four and struck out five. Todd Worrell pitched a hitless ninth inning.

Brunansky hit his sixth home run, a three-run shot which highlighted a four-run third inning off Walt Terrell, 5-13.

Pedro Guerrero hit his eighth homer for the Cardinals, who had 15 hits.

Mets 4, Braves 1

Darryl Strawberry hit his 21st homer and drove in three runs as New York won a game delayed twice by rain for a total of 1:48.

Bob Ojeda, 6-9, gave up two hits in 5 2-3 innings. Both hits off Ojeda - who walked six - were singles by Andres Thomas, the second driving in a run in the sixth.

Rick Aguilera came on with the bases loaded and struck out pinch-hitter Tommy Gregg, then finished with hitless relief for his seventh save.

Derek Lilliquist, 5-5, gave up six hits and four runs in the first three innings, but held the Mets hitless over the next three before he was removed.

The 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars will be participating in the West Texas State Tournament beginning Saturday at Andrews. Shown are (center front) bat girl Salina Hastings, (kneeling, from left) coach Jerry Hastings, Jason Cole, Stacey Sanders, O.J. Rodriguez, coach Richard Rodriguez, David Torres, Elias Reyna, Richard Wilbanks, business manager Adam Olivarez, (standing, from left) Israel Martinez, Michael Cano, Andrew Tijerina, Ray Hastings, Ruben Ramos, Justin Wright, Chris Vallejo and David Ramirez. Tyson ready for 'Truth'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - The divorce is behind him, the weight has not been around the 276-pound mark in a while, the manager and trainer controversies are almost second nature and there hasn't even been a speeding ticket in recent memory.

Mike Tyson appears ready for Carl "The Truth" Williams in tonight's heavyweight title bout, and the world's undisputed champion says he is.

Still, there are some questions the 23-year-old Tyson has to answer in his sixth defense of the undisputed title. He was not his usually impressive self in stopping Frank Bruno in five rounds at Las Vegas, Nev. on Feb. 25.

Jay Bright, one of two co-trainers who replaced Kevin Rooney in that position, says Tyson had other problems then.

Tyson, who weighed 219 at Thursday's weigh-in, refused to make predictions about the fight and added he would be jittery coming in, just like he is before any fight.

"Just come to the fight and I'm sure you'll enjoy it," said Tyson, who is undefeated in 36 fights with 32 knockouts. He has won his last five by knockout.

Kelso team takes Booster Club scramble

The team of Keith Kitchens, N.D. Kelso, Robert Kubacak and Joe Thompson of Dallas carded a 27 to win the Fourth Annual Whiteface Booster Club Golf Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Two teams posted scores of 28 for the nine-hole event, with Lewis McDaniel, Dave Workman, Dennis Newton and Stan Carter being awarded second place on the basis of a scorecard playoff, winning on the fifth hole.

The foursome of Cal Garrett, Cuby Kitchens, Ike Stevens and Brent Self took the third place prize.

Booster Club President John Stagner said the event, which attracted 64 entries, raised about $600 for Whiteface athletics.

Robinson to debut against Los Angeles

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The David Robinson era in the NBA will begin Nov. 4 when the San Antonio Spurs open the 1989-90 season against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The 1989-90 season marks the professional debut of Robinson, a 7-foot-1 center and No. 1 pick in the 1987 NBA draft. Robinson recently completed his two-year Navy tour.

The Spurs have opened their season against the Lakers three times since 1984, winning twice.

The contest follows the Lakers' season opener Nov. 3 at Dallas. San Antonio will play each of the 13 Eastern Conference teams once at HemisFair Arena and once on the road. The Spurs will play two games at home and two away against each of the seven teams in the Pacific Division.

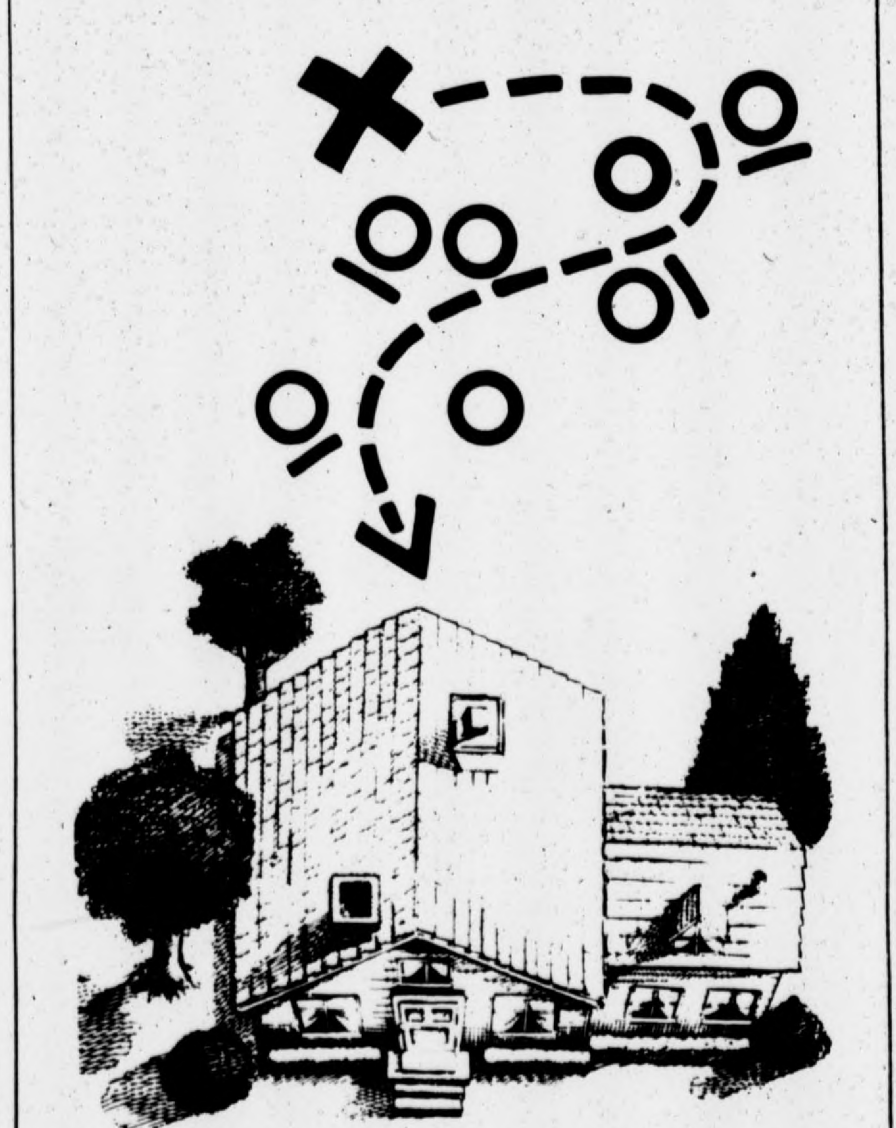

An imbalance comes in the Spurs' own Midwest Division. Among the division's seven teams are the second-year Charlotte Hornets and the expansion Minnesota Timberwolves.

The Spurs will face Dallas, Charlotte, Minnesota and Utah five times each and play Denver and Houston four times.

The NBA's 44th season features 27 teams, the most ever. In addition to Minnesota, the Orlando Magic begin play this season.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Here is a letter from a girl who expresses, with rare candor, her feelings about the Chicago public school system. I believe the young author, Alma Lopez, has described a great many other schools around the country. Here it is:

As a student at an inner city high school, I feel that one of the major problems facing Chicago schools is the lack of discipline.

Proper discipline creates a sense of responsibility and increases the student's self-esteem. Many students secretly crave it.

A majority of these students come from families of low educational and economic status. The parents often do not have the time, resources or the knowledge to provide their children with adequate discipline.

Since the students lack discipline, they mature without having developed a sense of responsibility. Their few accomplishments are not important enough to fulfill larger goals. These students then become discouraged and their self-esteem is shattered.

But teachers often don't understand how crucial it is to teach students discipline. For example, if the student does not bring in an assignment on time, he tries to talk his way out of it by using his personal background as an excuse. The teacher, feeling sorry for the underprivileged student, allows the student to get away with his irresponsibility. Instead of helping the student, the teacher has really done him an injustice by making it easy to escape his responsibility.

After several such experiences, the teacher, thinking that that level of work is much too difficult for the student, begins assigning less challenging material. The student now has a reason for lower expectations of his capacities. He also has reason to believe that his environment will always dominate him.

I do not speak of this matter as an outsider looking in. I, too, crave discipline. I come from a family that is on the verge of falling apart. My mother, the sole support of 14, has become too old to maintain a good household. Our anarchic home is now thirsting for some sort of stability. And, yes, oddly enough, my whole family admits that discipline is needed and would be most welcome.

At school the solution to the problem is simple. Before expecting the student to take school work seriously, the teacher must establish from the very beginning what is expected of the student. He must convey to the student that he won't lower standards because of the student's environmental background. Furthermore, the teacher must be given the freedom to discipline the student on an individual basis, provided he does so in a humane manner.

If seeds are sown today, they will bloom into promising flowers in the 21st century.--Alma Lopez, student at Wells Academy, Chicago

Portable cuisine for potluck entertaining

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine
Food Editor

In the Rocky Mountains, hospitality is generous, relaxed and often cooperative. The cookbook "Jackson Hole a la Carte" calls these everybody-bring-something meals "portable cuisine." The 126-page spiral-bound book is published by Wyoming's Jackson Hole Alliance for Responsible Planning.

Committee members selected more than 100 recipes for portability as well as flavor. Every dish can be prepared in advance. The book offers tips for keeping food hot or cold while in transit or while waiting to be served.

Because Jackson Hole cooks have to adjust the temperatures and cooking times of many recipes for high altitude, they've included these modifications with any recipe requiring them. The book also boasts an exceptionally easy-to-use recipe index.

Our sample from the book is based on an old family recipe that originated in Armenia. It's a tasty side dish for any meat or poultry.

(To order a copy of "Jackson Hole a la Carte," send a check payable to The Jackson Hole Alliance for $9.95 plus $1.60 shipping - Wyoming residents add 40 cents sales tax - to: The Jackson Hole Alliance, Box 2728, Jackson, WY 83001.)

PILAFIAN'S PILAF
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup fine egg noodles
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 large clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed
1 cup long grain rice
2 cups chicken broth
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 cup toasted pine nuts (optional)

In a 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, melt butter. Add noodles; cook and stir until brown. Add mushrooms, onion, garlic and dillweed; cook 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in rice.

In another pan bring broth and salt to boiling. Stir into noodle mixture. Cover and simmer 25 to 30 minutes or until rice is tender. Remove from heat. Toss pilaf lightly. Cover pan and let stand 10 minutes. Serve topped with pine nuts. Makes 6 servings.
