Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 23-year-old daughter is a victim of cocaine. She is in jail tonight on charges of distribution. I'm afraid she is guilty.

A while back you printed a letter from "Philadelphia Mother." Along with the letter was a poem. I have it taped on my refrigerator door and read it at least 40 times a day. I keep praying that my wonderful child, through some miracle, will come home, go into the kitchen, see the poem and make the decision to turn her life around before cocaine kills her.

Will you please run that column again for those who may not have seen it the first time?—A Maryland Mother

DEAR MOTHER: Here's the piece with my heartfelt thanks. I hope it will help others understand what a cruel and hideous master cocaine can be. Whoever put this poem together did not exaggerate.

MY NAME IS COCAINE
My name is cocaine—call me coke for short.

I entered this country without a passport. Ever since then I've made lots of scum rich.

Some have been murdered and found in a ditch.

I'm more valued than diamonds, more treasured than gold.

Use me just once and you too will be sold.

I'll make a schoolboy forget his books.

I'll make a beauty queen forget her looks.

I'll take a renowned speaker and make him a bore.

I'll take your mother and make her a whore.

I'll make a schoolteacher forget how to teach.

I'll make a preacher not want to preach.

I'll take all your rent money and you'll be evicted.

I'll murder your babies or they'll be born addicted.

I'll make you rob, and steal and kill, When you're under my power, you have no will.

Remember, my friend, my name is "Big C."

If you try me one time you may never be free.

I've destroyed actors, politicians and many a hero.

I've decreased bank accounts from millions to zero.

I make shooting and stabbing a common affair.

Once I take charge, you won't have a prayer.

Now that you know me, what will you do?

You'll have to decide, it's all up to you.

The day you agree to sit in my saddle

The decision is one that no one can straddle.

Listen to me, and please listen well, When you ride with cocaine you are headed for hell.

Penguin to help raise money for food bank

The High Plains Food Bank recently invited residents of the Panhandle to an old-fashioned barn raising—only the food bank will build a new 11,000 cubic foot freezer instead of a barn. The food bank will also be asking residents to help name the penguin which is the logo for the campaign.

The food banks current 12,000 cubic foot freezer is too small and the food bank may soon be unable to accept all of the frozen food products which are offered. Frozen food is the fastest growing area in the food industry, the source of most of the food banks food. In addition, the food bank must freeze food products which are not traditionally frozen in order to prolong their useful life.

With the help of the community, the food bank will build a new freezer—one cubic foot at a time. With the "purchase" of one cubic foot (for $15), contributors names will be placed on a wall of honor on the outside of the new freezer. The 18'x20' arctic wall will be designed by the commercial art department at TSTI. The food bank is also asking for the community's help in naming the penguin which is the logo for the freezer campaign. Entry blanks for the Name-the-Penguin Contest are on Host Ice machines throughout Amarillo. The prize for the contest winner is a trip for two to Sea World in San Antonio courtesy of American Airlines and Days Inn (North Loop, San Antonio). Deadline for entries in the contest is July 15.

The High Plains Food Bank serves as a clearinghouse for donated food from all over the United States. As a member of the Second Harvest national food bank network, the food bank has access to food donated by national food companies. The food bank redistributes the food to 170 other private non-profit charitable organizations in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles. The food bank also serves eastern New Mexico through a contract with the Lifesaver Food Bank in Clovis.

During 1988 the food bank distributed more than 2 million pounds of food that it has distributed more than 7 million pounds of food since it opened in October, 1982. "Larger and larger percentages of our food are frozen," said Melody Wattenbarger, food bank executive director. "The new freezer is absolutely essential if we are to continue to accept all of the frozen food that is offered to us."

Although the largest quantities of food are donated during the fall of the year, the food bank distributes higher than average amounts of food during the summer months.

"Although the need probably remains fairly constant, the reason for this is probably the absence during the summer of private, holiday-oriented giving programs," said Wattenbarger. "During the summer the majority of the food which is given to the needy by churches and other pantry programs must come from the food bank since many other sources of donated food are not as active during this time."

Individuals or groups interested in either purchasing cubic feet or in entering the Name-the-Penguin Contest should contact the High Plains Food Bank at 374-8562.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mikhail Baryshnikov is leaving as artistic director of the American Ballet Theatre at the end of the 1990 season.

The company's board of trustees announced the departure Wednesday, a day after Baryshnikov told them of his decision to leave.

Baryshnikov, 41, became ABT's artistic director in September 1980. He joined the company in 1974 after defecting from the Soviet Union, where he danced with the Kirov ballet company.

"I will have given 10 years to the company, and it has been a true challenge," he said. "The dancers in the company are superb. Of all the responsibilities associated with being artistic director, I've enjoyed working with the dancers more than anything else."

Baryshnikov said he would "pursue other professional options" but did not elaborate.

He is starring on Broadway in "Metamorphosis," a play based on Franz Kafka's story, and has appeared in such films as "White Nights" and "The Turning Point." He also recently started a perfume for women called "Misha," his nickname.

Former Gamecock coaches found innocent of giving players steroids

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - Former South Carolina defensive coordinator Tom Gadd closed his eyes and dropped his chin onto his chest. Carol Gadd cried and wiped tears from her eyes.

Moments earlier, a federal jury had returned the innocent verdict the two had anxiously hoped for as they waited outside Courtroom No. 1 in the federal courthouse.

"This was a tough time," Gadd said. "I don't want to do this again."

After deliberating for just under two hours on Wednesday, a U.S. District Court jury of eight women and four men found the 42-year-old Gadd innocent of importing steroids into the state, encouraging football players to use steroids and helping to monitor use of the drugs.

Gadd could have been sentenced to two years in prison and fined $101,000 if he had been convicted.

Joel Collins, my attorney, had told me something that Winston Churchill had once said," Gadd said outside the courtroom. "He said that the most exhilarating feeling in life is to be shot at and missed. That's how I feel right now."

While the jury was deliberating, the Gadds sat in the hallway outside the courtroom, getting up briefly to walk hand-in-hand. Mrs. Gadd, who was in the courtroom with her husband throughout the three-day trial, hugged him after jurors left following their verdict.

"We just felt that if we stuck together under these adverse conditions it would make us stronger," she said. "We knew it was a test. And we came through it. We feel very good about that."

Gadd was one of four ex-Gamecock coaches who, along with a Maryland man, were indicted April 19 by a federal grand jury. The others - including former assistant Jim Washburn, who testified against Gadd - pleaded guilty in plea bargains and are awaiting sentencing.

Gadd, an assistant at South Carolina from 1982 to 1986, is now defensive coordinator at Utah, the same position he held for five seasons before taking the job with the Gamecocks.

Assistant U.S. attorney David Stephens said the verdict was expected.

"We were not surprised by the outcome," Stephens said. "We knew going in we had an extremely tough case to try. We were, and are, convinced Tom Gadd is guilty as charged."

The indictments stemmed from a Sports Illustrated story co-written by former Gamecock player Tommy Chaikin in which he said he and other players, including about half the 1986 team, used steroids. Chaikin, who did not testify at the trial, played for the school from 1983 to 1987.

The NCAA banned the use of steroids by athletes in 1973, but there were no penalties until a few years ago because there was "no method for testing for them," Frank Uryasz, NCAA director of sports sciences, said.

Under present rules, athletes competing in NCAA championships and bowl games are tested before games. If an athlete tests positive, he is banned from competing in the championship.

While not denying there was some steroid use at South Carolina, Gadd said the Sports Illustrated article was a "sensationalized piece of press."

"The whole thing got blown out of proportion," he said.

While the indictments implicated several coaches, Gadd laid the blame on what he called a "network of four or five players" who were using steroids. He said the government found that out after having given immunity to players who testified before the grand jury.

"It was the players that had run the program of steroids," Gadd said. "They made the coaches the scapegoats."

Schramm continues tour

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Tex Schramm is 69, but his dream of a worldwide spring football league has made him feel like a teen-ager again. His energy level is that of a young colt, not an old warhorse.

On his barnstorming tour of the southeast United States to find franchises for the Worldwide League of American Football, the inside joke was that Schramm was the only member of his "flying circus" who didn't need the plane.

Fueled by three or four hours sleep, Commissioner Schramm flew from city to city like a politician on a whistle-stop tour of the nation. He smiled, pumped hands, slapped backs and talked WLAF business.

Schramm is selling an idea that four European teams, six U.S. teams, and one each in Montreal and Mexico City can win over the television viewing public with a spring professional football league.

The idea is backed by the NFL, which knows that Schramm was perhaps its strongest innovator until an ownership change forced him to leave the love of his life, the Dallas Cowboys.

Initially, all the voting stock in the league will be owned by the 28 NFL clubs. The 12 World League teams will be operated by independent owners. All profits will be divided among the clubs.

Ridiculous, you say. Never been tried before.

Don't tell that to Schramm, who lists instant replay of officials' calls among his innovations.

Recall, it was Schramm who put together the first network telecast of the Winter Olympics, the 1960 Games at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Schramm knows television and how to make it work to his advantage. He has plugged into all the shakers and bakers in the medium. The odds are long, but Schramm wouldn't have it any other way.

To shorten the odds, he recently hired Jim Spence, the former No. 2 man under Roone Arledge at ABC-TV. Spence will be Schramm's point man in negotiations with NBC and ABC and the cable networks for rights to beam the games starting in mid-March.

The kickoff game is expected to be in London, although the participants have not been determined.

Schramm also has hired Russ Potts, former athletic director at Maryland and Southern Methodist, as a consultant on how to get fans in the stands.

In Birmingham, Ala., Schramm worked the crowd like he was running for office.

Inspired by a band, balloons, banners, a telephone call from the governor, and an enthusiastic gathering that chanted, "We want a team! We want a team!" Schramm shot his fist in the air like he did the day the Cowboys won the Super Bowl.

"It's been a long time since I've seen a group like you," he told a cheering crowd of some 200 outside a Birmingham bank building. "I haven't seen something like this since the last Super Bowl with the Cowboys. I can tell you have true excitement in your eyes and I'll always remember this gathering."

Later, on his private plane, Schramm, buoyed by the experience and holding a key to the city, said, "That was an incredible reception. What a way to kick off the tour. It will be hard to top."

No media request for an interview was shirked on the tour no matter how bizarre.

When was the last time you saw a sports figure give an interview to a television station in the middle of a thunderstorm under the wing of an airplane?

Schramm did in Orlando. "I learned a long time ago that you don't ever turn down an interview request no matter what the conditions," Schramm said, wiping water off his head.

At 11:30 the same night, Schramm was still going strong with another television interview.

Earlier in the evening, he had promised a Citrus Club audience,

"We'll start in March and we'll be a success. In no way will it be a minor league. We won't be the NFL, but we'll have something special. We'll be bringing professional football to the world."

Schramm was asked what his league would look like a decade down the road.

"We'll be playing in Moscow and Tokyo and South America," he said. "It's going to be something."

The skeptics say Schramm can't put such a league together with the proper owners, facilities and television backing by next March.

"Just watch," Schramm said. With that, he was off on another leg of his tour to prove his dream won't be an international flop, but the start of a new NFL frontier.

"Basketball and hockey are international and American football will be, too," he said. "It's going to happen."

Former SOC coach vows to continue discrimination suit

DALLAS (AP) - The former high school coach who was told by the U.S. Supreme Court that he couldn't collect reverse discrimination damages from the school district says he will pursue another review.

Norman Jett, who was coach at South Oak Cliff High School from 1962 to 1983, claimed he was fired from his job by a black principal because he is white.

In its 5-4 ruling, the high court Thursday left Jett the right to have his case reviewed by the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals.

"As far as I know, we're going to pursue it all the way whatever it takes," Jett said, adding he hadn't talked to his lawyer about a next step.

But an attorney who argued the case for the district says it is unlikely Jett will get any compensation from the review.

"There still may be some minor skirmishes, but in essence it's over," said attorney Leonard J. Schwartz.

The Supreme Court ruled that civil rights laws approved in 1866 and 1871 forbid victims of discrimination from collecting damages unless they can prove that the governmental body followed a "policy or custom" of discrimination, rather than the isolated actions of an individual supervisor.

A Dallas jury concluded Jett was the victim of racial discrimination and ordered the school district and South Oak Cliff principal Frederick Todd to pay Jett, but the 5th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Jett was not entitled to damages from DISD.

"The principal has settled the case," Schwartz said. "He's already been released from the case. The only question was the school district's liability."

Jett said he reached a $75,000 settlement with Todd.

But the Supreme Court ruled despite the fact Jett was the target of racial discrimination, he failed to prove the school district policies fostered the bias.

"It's a good case in that now, the standards by which one sues, will all be the same, regardless of the situation - whether it involves women, blacks, or handicapped," Schwartz said.

The attorney said he did not believe the ruling would have any effect on the hiring standards of the district, since equal opportunities are required under Title 7 practices.

The high court ordered the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals to review the case to determine who in the DISD is responsible for employee transfer policy.

Although Jett is white, the majority of Americans who file bias claims under Section 1981 are black and the NAACP sided with Jett in the case.

Jett had coached the South Oak Cliff football team for 21 years when he was transferred to another city high school after posting a record of 106 wins, 31 losses and 5 ties in 13 seasons as head coach.

Jett was named head coach and athletic director at the school in 1970, the year the racial composition at South Oak Cliff changed from predominantly white to predominantly black.

On Thursday night from his home in Trinidad, Texas, Jett said he missed coaching, but isn't sure he will go back to it.

"It was really my life up to that point," said Jett, who now runs a construction business. "I've been kind of bitter to this situation."

Evans connected to other robbery

DUNCANVILLE, Texas (AP) - Police in this Dallas suburb have issued an arrest warrant for a former Dallas Carter High School football player on a charge of armed robbery in the holdup of a dry cleaning establishment, authorities say.

Derric Evans, the 18-year-old All-America defensive back who was charged along with a teammate Wednesday in connection with two armed robberies of South Oak Cliff video stores, was named Thursday in an arrest warrant in the June 7 robbery of Bell Cleaners.

Duncanville Police Lt. Ernest Hughes said Evans was linked to the robbery by a right-hand palm print left by one two men who brandished a revolver and demanded money at the cleaning establishment.

Royce West, an attorney representing Evans, said Evans would surrender to Duncanville authorities.

Bond has been set at $25,000 on the Duncanville charge.

Evans, a high school All-American defensive back on the Class 5A state championship team, and Gary Bernard Edwards, 17, were free on $10,000 bonds in the video store robberies.

University of Tennessee coach Johnny Majors said Evans, considered the best of the 1989 recruiting class at the school, will not be allowed to play for the Volunteers.

"Because of the serious charges involving Derric Evans, I have decided that he will not be allowed to participate in football at the University of Tennessee," Majors said. "In no way am I making judgment of the facts concerning Derric's case."

Majors said he would release Evans from his national letter of intent if the teen-ager asks. That would allow him to accept a scholarship at another school, but he would have to sit out a year and would lose a year of eligibility.

Evans can keep his scholarship and attend Tennessee as a regular student if he wants to.

Before the Duncanville warrant was issued, police said they were looking into whether the two could be linked to other robberies.

"We have several more (cases) still under investigation," Dallas Police Lt. Jerry Calame said. "They're in different stages. Some are almost completed and others, we still have to go out and make some calls and show some pictures."

Evans and Gary Edwards were starting seniors on the Carter team, which last season became the first Dallas Independent School District team since 1950 to win a state football championship.

Gary Edwards has accepted a football scholarship to Houston. Ted Nance, a spokesman for the University of Houston, said Edwards still has his scholarship.

"I don't think anything will be done until he has a trial," Nance said. Cougars Coach Jack Pardee said he wouldn't speculate on Edwards' scholarship.

"We're not in Beijing," he said. "We do have the due process of law here. So anything I do would be based on what happens after that."

The university has made no statement regarding the case.

Carter's eligibility during the playoffs was threatened by a controversy surrounding Gary Edwards' algebra grades and Texas' no-pass-no-play law.

School district Superintendent Marvin Edwards, after initially declaring the team ineligible for the playoffs because of Gary Edwards' grades, reversed his decision.

Gary Edwards, Hollis Edwards and Marvin Edwards are unconvicted.

If convicted, Edwards and Evans could receive 5 to 99 years in prison and a fine of up to $10,000.

Petralli continues streak as Texas bashes Red Sox, 9-1

BOSTON (AP) - Manager Bobby Valentine says his Texas Rangers are facing a tough stretch and "it's time for us to fasten our seat belts and go hard."

And, from veteran slugger Gene Petralli to rookie Kevin Brown, the Rangers appear ready to do just that after taking two of three games from Boston.

With Petralli going 2-3 for a 10-12 series, Brown went just the second right-hander to go the distance against Boston this season on Thursday night.

Brown, who had lost two previous starts, scattered five hits, struck out three and walked two in the Rangers' 9-1 victory over the Red Sox.

Julio Franco had three singles, Scott Fletcher keyed a five-run fourth inning with a two-run double and Chad Kreuter had a two-run single in the ninth.

Petralli, who also walked, was hit by a pitch and grounded into a double play in the Rangers' last Boston appearance of the year, continued to feast on Red Sox pitching.

"He did it to us again, but so did everybody else," Boston Manager Joe Morgan said.

Petralli, who came off the disabled list recently, improved his average against the Red Sox this year to .576, with 19 hits in 33 games at bat. He is 21-98, or .214, against the rest of the league.

"That Geno Petralli is a pretty good hitter," Valentine said with a smile.

Brown, who threw 128 pitches in his fifth complete game in 14 starts, insisted he had to bear down all the way despite a six-run lead built against Boston starter Mike Smithson, 3-5.

"I didn't feel great," he said after joining California's Kirk McCaskill as the only right-handers to throw a complete game victory against Boston this year.

"I kept battling and trying to throw strikes," Brown said. "We got a big lead early, so I was able to keep coming at them, pitching aggressively."

"I struggled, but I didn't give in. I struggled with myself more than anything. I didn't have the good command. They hit the ball hard, but those balls went right at people."

Rick Cerone and Luis Rivera each had two hits for Boston. Brown frustrated the rest, allowing just one harmless single to the first six in the batting order.

"That's as good a top of the order as there is as far as getting on base, but he just kept coming at them, throwing strikes," Valentine said.

"He looked like he threw a pretty good ballgame to me," Fletcher said. "He's the kind of pitcher, though, that even if he doesn't have his best stuff he's still going to battle and keep you in the game."

Smithson was replaced by Bob Stanley after he hit Rafael Palmeiro on the right arm with a pitch with two out and the score 4-0 in the fourth.

Palmeiro and Smithson exchanged heated words and the Rangers came out of the dugout; Boston catcher Rick Cerone stepped in front of Palmeiro and the umpires sent Smithson back to the mound.

The Red Sox' only answer from the dugout was a handful of pitchers - Joe Price, Mike Boddicker, Wes Gardner and Roger Clemens. However, there was no big threat of a brawl.

"The umpires jumped in and, besides, those guys (Rangers) were the ones who were mad," Morgan said.

Stanley gave up two run-scoring singles before putting down the rally. He left after the eighth and Lee Smith surrendered three runs on four hits in the ninth.

"The only good thing that came out of this was Stanley, who did a pretty good job," Morgan said. "Sure, I'm concerned. We can't afford to play like this much longer."

NO GAME IN FRANCE

ATLANTA (AP) - The football game between Georgia Tech and Western Carolina will be played here this fall, although for a time it appeared Toulouse, France, would be the site.

Homer Rice, the athletic director of Georgia Tech, said the two schools ran out of negotiating time to hold the game in France.

"We may try to schedule a game in Europe in a later year," Rice added.

BAIL 'EM OUT

With a name like that, you could expect some imaginative names, suggesting the courtroom. Some of the sire's offspring have been given the following names: Bail Me Out, I'll Pay My Bail, Hook or Crook, Skip Town, Fugitive Miss, The Bondsman, Skip Trial, Take It On The Lam and Escape Artist.

TAXES

On Monday June 12th, your county commissioners voted unanimously to propose a 7.999% increase in county taxes. If this increase had exceeded 8.00%, taxpayers would have had the option to call for a rollback election.

You, as a registered voter, have an opportunity to voice your concerns in regard to this proposal during a public hearing June 26th, 1989 at 6 p.m. in the Commissioner's Courtroom of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Join us as we voice our mutual concerns about what we feel is a totally unwarranted tax increase.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:
We have answered specific questions on mildew (clothes, tiles, painted walls, etc.) before, but now would like to combine most of them to make it easy for you to tear this out and keep.

Mildew is an organism that is caused by molds. They are in the form of spores and can be found in the air almost anywhere. They multiply quickly in damp areas where air circulation is poor. Where there is mildew there is also a musty odor which left untreated for any period of time can be difficult to remove.

To prevent mildew from forming, adequate air circulation is a must. Damp areas should be dried out using an exhaust fan. Dehumidifiers work well in damp basements, and closets can be helped by simply leaving a light bulb on. Also, packets of silica gel or activated alumina can be hung in closets to help absorb moisture.

For mildew on ceramic tile and grouting in the bathroom, prepare a mixture of half bleach and half water. Place the solution in a spray bottle and label it accordingly. Generously spray where mildew is visible. Let it stand until the mildew is gone and rinse it well. If mildew is concentrated, you may need several applications to completely remove it.

For a mildewed plastic shower curtain, place it in the washing machine with a small amount of regular detergent and one cup of chlorine bleach, along with a couple of old bleachable towels.

To help remove mildew odor that lingers on, sprinkle some baking soda around the area of the odor. Many of the household disinfecting sprays will help some, but they will eventually wear off and more will need to be sprayed to cover the odor.

This should help control mildew around your home. — Heloise

BAKING SODA
Dear Readers: Removing odors is only one of the great uses for baking soda. I'll give you a lot more in my pamphlet, Heloise's Best Baking Soda Hints, which you can order for $1 and a stamped, self-addressed, legal-sized envelope from Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, CA 92713.

Ways to prepare avocados given

NEW YORK (AP) - Although avocados are available year-round, the peak supply is during the spring and summer months.

California avocados make up nearly 90 percent of the nation's avocado production, a spokesman for the California Avocado Commission, a non-profit organization, explained in an interview here.

Over 80 percent of the California avocado crop is made up of the Hass variety, which has a thick, pebbly skin, and a rich, nutty taste. The Hass variety is available from January through October, with peak supply from May through August.

The other 20 percent of the California crop consists of the Greenskin varieties, which have thin, smooth green skin. Greenskin varieties are generally available from November through May.

Avocados have 17 vitamins and minerals, more potassium ounce-for-ounce than 26 fruits and juices and 19 vegetables - and no cholesterol. Half an avocado contains 9.7 grams of monounsaturated fats.

BUY AN AVOCADO EITHER RIPE OR FIRM

When buying ripe or firm avocados, select fruit that is free of bruises or gouges. A ripe avocado yields to pressure when it is gently squeezed in your hand. The Hass avocado also shows its ripeness by changing color from green to purple-black.

Firm avocados will ripen in a fruit bowl at room temperature. You can speed the ripening process by storing them for a few days in a paper bag at room temperature.

Many grocery stores now stock ripe avocados. Look for fruit that is marked with stickers that identify these ripe fruits.

Ripe avocados should be refrigerated until they are eaten, but not for longer than 5 days.

HOW TO PREPARE AN AVOCADO

To prepare an avocado, follow these steps:

- Cut the avocado in half, lengthwise around the seed.
 - Rotate the two halves to separate.
 - To remove the seed, either slide the tip of a spoon gently underneath and lift it out, or place the avocado half on a cutting board; carefully and gently strike the seed with a medium size knife. Rotate the knife and lift the seed out.
 - To peel the avocado half, place the cut side down on a cutting board and remove the skin with your fingers or a knife.
- Be sure to sprinkle all cut surfaces with lemon or lime juice to prevent discoloration.

AVOCADO RECIPES

The most popular ways of eating avocados are as guacamole or a dip, or cubed into a tossed green salad. But avocados can also be used in egg dishes, appetizers and main-dish salads. The following recipes are provided by the California Avocado Commission:

FAJITAS

Marinate: 1 clove garlic, minced; 1 1/2 teaspoons seasoned salt; 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cumin; 1/2 teaspoon chili powder; 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper; 2 tablespoons vegetable oil; 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine all ingredients. Marinate 1 1/2 pounds beef or chicken sliced into strips for 2 hours.

Fajita:

3-4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup sliced onion
1/2 cup chopped green onion
1 cup sliced red bell pepper
8 flour tortillas, warmed
2 avocados, peeled and sliced
Salsa and sour cream

Quickly saute onions and peppers in oil until lightly browned; remove from pan. Sauté marinated meat about 4 minutes, toss with vegetables; spoon into flour tortillas. Serve with avocado slices, salsa and sour cream. Serves 8.

SANTA FE CHICKEN

1/2 cup canned corn, uncooked
One 2.2-ounce can sliced black olives, drained
7/8 cup diced red pepper
2 tablespoons toasted, slivered almonds, chopped
2 tablespoons diced white onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
7/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon oregano
3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
2 ripe avocados, peeled and diced

In a medium bowl combine all ingredients except avocado. Store in sealed container at room temperature 6-8 hours. Before serving, add diced avocado. Served with chicken or your favorite grilled meat. Makes 3 cups.

HOLY GUACAMOLE

2 ripe avocados, peeled and diced
1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, preferably fresh
1 tablespoon minced cilantro (optional)

1-2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil, crumbled

1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)

7/8 cup red pepper, finely diced

2 tablespoons salsa

2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion

1 1/2 tablespoons slivered almonds, coarsely chopped

Dollop of sour cream for garnish

Peel and mash 1 avocado, mix with lemon juice, cilantro, garlic, basil and salt. Dice remaining avocado, fold into mixture with red pepper, salsa, green onion and chopped almonds. Garnish with sour cream. Serve with tortilla chips and fresh vegetables. Makes 2 1/2 cups guacamole.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is sarcoidosis a venereal disease or caused by parasites? I read an interesting article about it, but I don't know what causes it.

DEAR READER: No. Sarcoidosis is definitely not a sexually transmitted disease. It is not even an infectious disease, caused by bacteria, viruses or other organisms. It is not a parasitic disease either. It may be caused by some abnormal function of the immune system, and that may be why you asked if it was a venereal disease.

There are many diseases involving the immune system, and most of them are not related to sexually transmitted diseases at all.

It causes nodules to form in various organs of the body and can involve the lungs and even the heart. These nodules may then disappear spontaneously. Often there are no symptoms and when there is, it is usually because of damage to the organ or organs infiltrated with the nodules. The disease may simply disappear spontaneously.

Toastmasters elect officers

Joe Weaver was selected president of Hereford Toastmasters when the group met June 15 at Ranch House Restaurant.

Other officers chosen were Doc Adams, educational vice president; Rocky Lee, administrative vice president; Bruce Hernandez, secretary-treasurer; and Joe Walters, sergeant-at-arms.

Lynn Cook presided over the meeting and Lee served as table topic master and toastmaster.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - First lady Barbara Bush told a group of underprivileged college-bound high school students she hopes to see one of them at the White House during the next four years as a Presidential Scholar.

"If you work hard and keep up your grades I'm sure you can. That will be a thrill," she said Wednesday as she addressed 100 of the students known as "Taylor's Kids."

The students, once labeled as underachievers, are part of a group that accepted a challenge from millionaire oilman Pat Taylor of New Orleans.

Taylor promised 200 students at a New Orleans school last year that he would pay their way through college if they maintained a "B" average through high school.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Bush received the 1989 Museum Volunteers Award from the American Association of Museum Volunteers.

Other members in attendance were Clark Andrews and Joe Don Cummings.

Plans for officer installation were finalized at the June 22 meeting of the club. It was determined that the event will be held June 29 at 7:30 p.m. at Caison House Restaurant in lieu of the regular Thursday morning meeting.

Invocation by Cummings opened the June 22 meeting and Cook led the pledge and presided over the meeting.

Wordmaster was Larry Leon as he discussed the term, "long-winded." Tom Weemes served as table topic master and Andrews was toastmaster. General evaluator was Adams and timer was Cummings.

Walters spoke on "As I Was Saying" and Hernandez talked on "You Make Me So Mad".

Weaver also attended the meeting. Guests present were Missy Donohoo from the 'Natural Gasers' Club of Amarillo and Linda, Anne, and Betsy Weaver.
