DSGH signs new doctor

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN

The Deaf Smith Hospital District board of directors, in regular session Tuesday night, accepted two bids on medical equipment, discussed physician recruitment, reviewed the monthly operations report, and set a meeting next Tuesday to discuss evaluation of the hospital plant with design engineers.

said the three shots cost the hospital about $100. He also reported the hospital is starting a Health Care Scholarship program, with the primary thrust being to recruit RN's. The funds are repayable to the hospital if the recipient does not go to work at the local hospital. Moore added that the hospital is also upgrading its computer system with additional software.

Administrator Gary Moore reported that total patient day care was up in June to 798, or an average daily census of 26.6. A profit of $53,370 was recorded for the month, but cash flow was negative due to a payment to Medicare.

The board will meet with two design engineering firm representatives next Tuesday to study proposals for an evaluation of the hospital plant. One agent had met with the board last month to present a proposal. The evaluation would look at future needs for facilities and recommend expansion alternatives.

Moore reported that an internist physician has signed a contract with Deaf Smith General Hospital and is scheduled to begin practice in late September. The board will also interview an ear, nose and throat specialist next month.

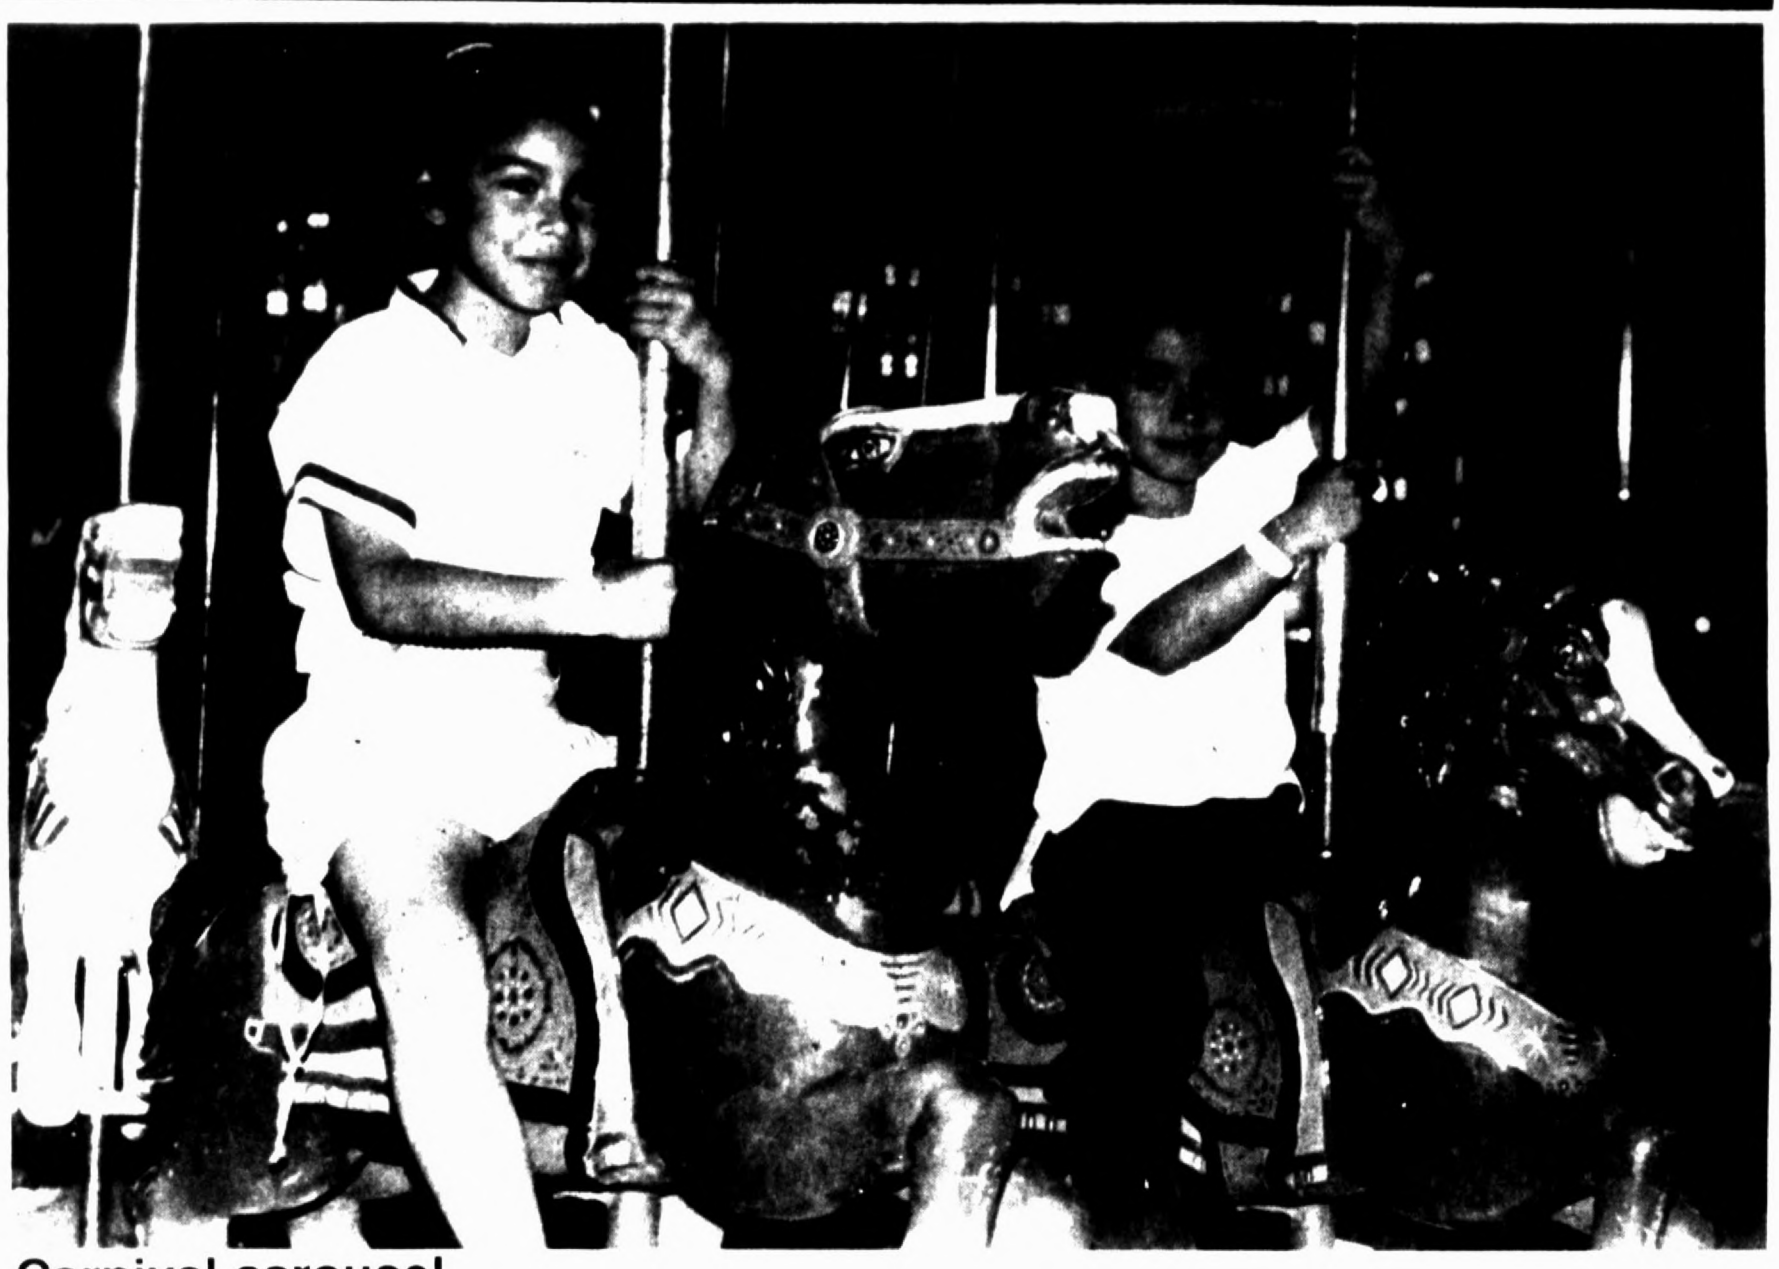

Moore announced that the hearing committee will meet with Dr. Les Benson on Aug. 17. Dr. Benson requested a hearing after the board denied his application for active staff privileges last month.

The board accepted bids on a Cryostat, at a cost of $7,500, and a surgical camera and accessories at a cost of $31,282. The camera and video recorder will be used primarily in connection with orthoscopic surgery. Directors reviewed bids on a used, refurbished CAT scanner but tabled the matter for further study.

Moore told directors that the first draft of the new budget had been prepared. Ralph Detten, board president, appointed Craig Smith and Frank Zinser to the budget committee.

Moore reported that the hospital will give hepatitis vaccines to personnel in high-risk positions. He Directors present for the meeting were Ralph Detten, president; Frank Zinser, Margie Ford, Dr. Nadir Khuri and Craig Smith. Absent was Raymond Schroeder.

9-1-1 could be operating in two years

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Just suppose a retired couple from Kalispell, Mont., is passing through Hereford. Abruptly, painfully, the husband suffers a heart attack.

the calling number. If an emergency call should be received, and the caller -- for whatever reason -- be unable to give a location, the dispatcher can use an address cross-reference. Emergency personnel can then be dispatched to the scene.

What is the wife to do? Who's she going to call? Ghostbusters? If a proposal by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission is enacted, the panicked wife's life would be made much easier. All she would have to do is dial 9-1-1, a three digit phone number which is becoming the national standard as an emergency phone number.

This provision is especially helpful when a small child makes an emergency call. It is also useful if a caller has suffered a stroke or is injured and unable to speak.

Gary Pitner, executive director of PRPC, met with the Hereford City Commission on Monday to request their support of the regional 9-1-1 system. Pitner is slated to make a similar proposal to Deaf Smith County officials during a regular county commission meeting on Monday.

"We all know that under stressful conditions a seven digit number can be difficult to remember," Pitner said.

If approved by local officials, the 9-1-1 emergency number should be in place in Hereford and Deaf Smith County within two years, Pitner said.

In addition to being easy to recall, the 9-1-1 number is becoming a nation-wide standard. It is predicted that, eventually, an individual will be able to use the same emergency telephone number anywhere in the country.

City commissioners delayed their decision concerning the project until they had an opportunity to hear public reaction to the proposal. Before the system can be established, local officials must approve the collection of a 50 cent per access line service charge.

There will be a gap between the period when phone companies begin collection the service charge and when the 9-1-1 service is actually available.

The $6 collected annually from each phone bill would not be sufficient to fund the 9-1-1 service, Pitner said. In addition, a small surcharge would also be collected on intrastate long-distance calls.

"It's a sizeable cost going in," Pitner said.

The PRPC plan includes 22 public safety answering points in the 26 counties of the Panhandle. One answering point would be located in the Hereford Police Department.

He indicated that PRPC will need a few months to collect sufficient funds for the purchase of the system hardware. The initial start up cost for the area-wide service is estimated at $1.5 million.

Since the system is operated by the police dispatcher, no additional personnel would be needed to receive 9-1-1 calls. Each answering point will be equipped with a monitor which lists

"We feel it's a service that will benefit everyone in the region," Pitner said.

More aspirin benefits disclosed

BOSTON (AP) - Regular doses of aspirin cut older men's risk of heart attacks in half, and the effects are especially striking in those who already have low cholesterol levels, researchers reported.

every other day had a 44 percent reduction in their risk of heart attacks. The benefits were limited to those older than age 50, who cut their risk about in half.

Dr. Valentin Fuster and others from Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York wrote that "aspirin appears to be beneficial in the prevention of a first myocardial infarction (heart attack), at least in men over the age of 50."

Although the study found that aspirin is effective in men older than 50, it turned up no evidence that it helps younger men.

The research, called the Physicians' Health Study, was directed by Dr. Charles H. Hennekens of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and is to be published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The study was conducted on 22,071 male doctors. They were given packs of pills and randomly assigned to take aspirin, beta carotene or placebos. Although the aspirin part of the study is over, the project is continuing to see if regular use of beta carotene, a source of vitamin A found in food, reduces the cancer rate.

A preliminary version of the research was widely publicized 1 1/2 years ago when it showed a dramatic reduction in heart attacks among healthy men who took an aspirin every other day. Now doctors have released a more detailed analysis of the voluminous data. The research, called the Physicians' Health Study, was directed by Dr. Charles H. Hennekens of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston and is to be published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

He said people should not start taking regular aspirin without first consulting a doctor. In helping make a decision, doctors should consider their patient's other risk factors, such as blood pressure, cholesterol level and family history of heart disease.

Overall, the study found that men who took a single aspirin

While those at all cholesterol levels seemed to benefit from aspirin, the effects were greatest in those with total cholesterol below 160.

Workers' comp deal unlikely

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers today face a midnight deadline to pass a workers' compensation bill before the 30-day special legislative session expires.

House version of the workers' comp package to the Senate floor.

Legislature will not pass a bill before the session ends.

A House-Senate conference committee, at odds over how to overhaul the insurance system that compensates workers for on-the-job injuries, planned to meet early today in a last-ditch effort to salvage a compromise.

But the bid failed, 10-21, after a bitter debate, and the conference panel continued its work off and on until around 10 p.m. when the members vowed to try one more time today.

Complaining of high workers' comp insurance rates, reform of the system has been a top priority of business. Meanwhile, employees say their injury benefits are too low and job-safety laws are lax.

The issue has pitted powerful special interests against each other since January when the Legislature met in a 140-day regular session. Six months later, the debate continues.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said the conferees should continue discussions, if necessary, until the midnight deadline, and then if the House and Senate are near an agreement, he said he would ask Gov. Bill Clements to immediately call another special session.

The House, backed by business, wants to reduce the amount of litigation in the process of resolving workers' comp disputes between the insurance carrier and the employee.

On Tuesday, in an apparently unprecedented move, some state senators tried to recall their own colleagues from a joint committee negotiating workers' compensation reform.

Clements said if the House and Senate get close to an agreement, he might call another quick overtime session to wrap up business. "If they get that close, I wouldn't be adverse to that," Clements said.

But the Senate, supported by trial lawyers and labor, wants beefed-up job safety provisions. And they say the House proposals on litigation would make it difficult for an injured worker to receive fair judicial review.

The move was an attempt by conservative senators to bring the

Sen. Kent Caperton, co-chairman of the conference panel, said if a settlement isn't reached by noon, the

In the Senate on Tuesday, all eight Republicans, joined by two Democrats, sought to essentially disband the conference committee and have a straight vote on the House proposal.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who has presided over the Senate since 1973, said he could not remember a previous instance when a move was made to recall the Senate conferees.

Sen. Bob Glasgow said he favored the House proposal, but would vote to keep the conference committee assembled.

Glasgow, who was pulled off the point on workers' comp during the regular session, said to Caperton, D-Bryan, "I'm going to vote with you and you need to know why. I got fired too."

But Glasgow, D-Stephenville, called for an end to the acrimonious rhetoric, specifically several senators' disparaging comments about the House's lead negotiator, Richard Smith, R-Bryan.

"I am convinced that fights across the hall are not going to get us anywhere," Glasgow said.

Bush studies moonbase plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - A proposal before President Bush calls for building a manned moon station and sending astronauts to Mars, an administration official says.

proposal might resurface.

Bush was expected to make a final decision today on whether to adopt the proposal in a major space policy speech he is to give Thursday on the 20th anniversary of man's first steps on the moon - those taken by Apollo 11 astronaut Neil Armstrong on July 20, 1969.

Bush on Tuesday was noncommittal about what he will say in the speech, which has been billed as a major space policy address at the National Air and Space Museum.

The president also is expected to push Congress for renewed funding of the ongoing Space Station project whose budget is threatened by congressional cuts. Funding reductions proposed by the House Appropriations subcommittee recently would "seriously undermine" that project, Quayle said Tuesday.

behind this" proposal on Mars and the moon, the source said, adding that the recommendations Bush is studying came from Quayle and the Space Council staff.

The proposal to act boldly on space is intended "to give the space program a mission again, so it gets the funding it deserves," said the source.

A return to the moon to set up a permanent station is the centerpiece of recommendations he is reviewing, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Another idea - the possibility of a joint space venture with the Soviets - was not included in the recommendations sent to him, said the official. But that did not mean it was ruled out, the official added, leaving open the possibility the

If Bush approves it, the project to go back to the moon and on to Mars would likely have a price tag of hundreds of billions of dollars over the coming decades. However, no timetables or figures were included in the draft speech for Thursday.

Without giving any specifics, Quayle on Tuesday hinted at a bold proposal. In a speech in San Diego, he said the administration "is moving forward to put the pieces in place for another great leap forward in space."

He said the nation "must begin to think about the voyage of a new Mayflower - about expanding the human presence into the solar system - as a long-term goal."

Discussion of closed sessions is permitted

AUSTIN (AP)--Government officials in Texas may publicly discuss events that occur in their closed-door "executive sessions," Attorney General Jim Mattox said this week.

Although the state's Open Meeting Law makes it illegal to release copies of the certified agenda or tape recordings of such closed-door sessions, that restriction doesn't apply to comments by participants, Mattox said in a legal opinion.

"It does not prohibit members of a government body or other persons in attendance at an executive session from making public statements about the subject matter of that session," his opinion said.

The question was raised by State Sen. Kent Caperton (D-Bryan), who told the attorney general that some local government officials had interpreted the law to mean that they couldn't make any public statements on such sessions--"even to voice their own opinion about that subject."

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for the attorney general, said the office constantly fields questions from local officials about the law.

"Apparently, there are some people out there who think they can use this as some sort of gag order. They can't," Dusek said.

Questions have been raised largely by members of "city councils, county governments, all kinds of local governmental bodies all over the state," he said.

The Open Meetings Law requires that most government business be conducted in public sessions.

Few clues in star's death

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Police have few clues to why a man shot and killed actress Rebecca Schaeffer after waiting outside her apartment almost four hours. Her agent said she "didn't have an enemy in the world."

Police questioned a former boyfriend of the actress but said he was not a suspect. They haven't ruled out the possibility that Miss Schaeffer knew her attacker, Detective Dan Andrews said.

Authorities also found no indications of harassment against Miss Schaeffer, who starred in the old sitcom "My Sister Sam," but the possibility that the killer was a deranged fan "is a motive that we definitely have not ruled out," Andrews said.

"We have no record of her ever having called for assistance or being a victim of anything, or being harassed," he said.

Miss Schaeffer, 21, was shot once in the chest Tuesday morning by a young man who apparently rang her doorbell, Andrews said.

The attacker had been standing outside the two-story building for at least four hours, witnesses told police.

The apartment is in the city's Fairfax district near West Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

"I was in the kitchen making coffee and I heard what sounded like a car backfiring," said Richard Goldman, a television screenwriter who lives across the street. "After the pop, there were two bloodcurdling screams."

"I looked out the window and I saw a guy in a yellow shirt jogging at a fair clip ... as if it was ball four and he was running to first base."

Another neighbor, Kenneth Newell, rushed to help the fallen woman. "I felt her pulse. I couldn't feel any," Newell said.

The actress died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center about 30 minutes after the shooting, said hospital spokeswoman Peggy Shaff.

The gunman was believed to be between 20 and 30 years old, police said.

"She didn't have an enemy in the world," said her agent, Jonathan Howard. "She was a very successful young actress, on the ascent, getting job after job. I can't believe this has happened."

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

There are different views toward life and we are free, more or less, to choose whatever view we wish to choose with the understanding that the view we choose is going to make a difference.

The living view toward life is a good view, a view that will help us to make the most of the living experience. Maintaining this view is a challenge for all of us. It is an on-going effort and requires the best of the human spirit. It must prevail in spite of difficulties, problems, failures, successes, disappointments and mistakes. It must be a constancy, a permanent approach to life and the general motivation and actuating force of life. This is much preferred to the view that we are just existing and are more or less the victims of circumstances.

There are some things we may not be able to manage as we wish we could and some things over which we may have no control. If, however, we have ourselves under control, with the living view as the dominant expression of our human spirit, we can move on with the important business of living. This makes it possible for us to be doing the very best of which we are capable and find much satisfaction in the doing.

The living view is one of never giving up. Of course, there are some impossibilities to identify and accept, but, even so, all things essential to our well-being are possible. It is a known fact, that with continuing wise effort some seeming impossibilities may become possible. "Perpetual pushing and assurance put a difficulty out of countenance and make a seeming impossibility give way." -Collier.

Our movement through time is relentless and the living view will help us to make each passing day full and complete for that day which is our best preparation for tomorrow and a new day.

Top rural minister being sought

The rural minister might be considered an "unsung hero" by many Texans, and where that's the case, they have an opportunity to bring some special recognition to that individual. The search has begun for Texas' most outstanding rural minister for 1989.

The award is presented each year by the Progressive Farmer magazine at the annual Town and Country Church Conference at Texas A&M University. This year's conference will be Oct. 2-3.

The conference is an educational program for rural and small town ministers and lay leaders and is conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Rural ministers have a high calling and must deal with a wide range of challenges," said Dr. David Ruesink, a sociologist with the extension service and church conference coordinator. "Many of these ministers must deal with a variety of cultures and certain issues and concerns unique to small communities."

"For example, much of rural Texas has been hard hit by the farm recession the past few years," Ruesink said. "Rural ministers have played a key role in helping families in these communities learn to cope and to survive."

County extension service offices have details on how to submit nominations for the Rural Minister of the Year Award, Ruesink said. Nominations must include a record book that tells the story of what the minister has done for his congregation as well as the entire community.

"It's important to focus on the impact that the minister has had within his congregation and the community as a whole," Ruesink said. "How has he made a difference? How have the people benefitted from his efforts? How has he molded the people together to fulfill their religious as well as their community needs?"

To be eligible for the award, a minister must serve a congregation in a rural community or town of less than 10,000 population, and he must have served that congregation at least two years.

Nominations must be submitted by Aug. 15 to the Texas Rural Minister of the Year Committee, Dept. of Rural Sociology, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843-2125.

Hereford stars hold off Bovina, 9-8

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford All-Stars and Amarillo National survived two hard-fighting opponents Tuesday to advance in the West Texas Sectional Bronco Tournament being played at the Kids Inc. baseball complex.

Hereford survived a late comeback by Bovina for a 9-8 win while Amarillo National scored four times in the sixth inning to eliminate Amarillo International.

Hereford 9, Bovina 8

Bovina opened up an early 3-0 lead off starting Hereford pitcher Ronald Torres with the big blow being a two-run homer by Rundell in the third.

Hereford came back in their half of the inning to tie the score when Torres and catcher Tanner Murphey reached on errors and Jacob Lopez singled. Lopez came home on a single by Michael Marquez.

Gregg Kalka relieved Torres to start the fourth and retired seven straight batters while the Hereford offense opened a 9-3 lead.

Torres reached on an error and, after a Murphey single, scored on Kalka's ground out.

That set the stage for Lopez, who cranked a line drive over the left field fence for a two-run homer. Jaime Ramirez and Marquez followed with back-to-back doubles and Sonny Perez singled to plate the fifth run of the inning.

Hereford ended their scoring the next inning when Murphey doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on an error. After that, Bovina put on a charge that almost turned the game around.

Kalka allowed his first base runner when Villa singled. Two pitches later, McClaren parked one over the left field fence to make the score 9-5.

In the seventh, Ramirez took the mound for Hereford and got into immediate trouble.

After a fly out, Ramirez loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. Beto Gomez took advantage of the situation and cleared the bases with a double to center, bringing the score to 9-8. Gomez advanced to third on a ground out but was left there when McClaren just missed a second homer on a fly to deep center. Lopez put the squeeze on the ball for the final out.

Amarillo National 11
Amarillo International 7

Amarillo National and Amarillo International matched each other run for run through five-and-a-half innings before the National All-Stars could pull away.

The International All-Stars opened up with a three-run homer by Nick Brady, but was given credit for only two when Rhett Dawson was called out on an appeal for not touching the plate.

The Nationals tied the score in the bottom of the first when Jason Richardson and Robbie Hill singled and worked their way around. They upped the score to 4-2 in the third when Jeff Baldwin doubled and Kurt Walken singled for an RBI. Walken scored on a single by Mike Potts.

Amarillo International kept pace with four runs in three innings, but never could keep the lead after taking it.

Amarillo National pu the game away in the sixth when the first five batters came around to score. A walk, an error and hit batsman filled the bases for Zac Rose, who singled two runs home. Wes Purser followed with another RBI single and scored when the International first baseman threw the ball away.

Hereford advances to face Amarillo American, a 39-4 winner over Amarillo International on Monday, while Bovina and Amarillo National will meet in an elimination game. Both games start at 6 p.m. today.

The loser of the Hereford-Amarillo American game will take on the winner of the Bovina-Amarillo National contest in a second elimination game at 8 p.m.

It might be, it could be...
... it is! Jacob Lopez launches a home run to give Hereford a 6-3 lead against Bovina in the West Texas Sectional Bronco Tournament.

Yank chances slim at Troon

TROON, Scotland (AP) - At first, there was open-mouthed amazement and disbelief, then growing acceptance of the long odds against an American winning the 118th British Open Golf Championship.

"Get to the bookies before they change their minds," Tom Watson advised when informed that Britain's legal bookmakers have set odds of 5-2 against an American - any American - winning the oldest of the world's golf titles.

"I'm tired of hearing about how they're better than we are. They're good players, yes. Some great players. But I don't think they're any better than we are," Mark Calavecchia said Tuesday after a practice round for the tournament that begins Thursday at Royal Troon.

"They don't make many mistakes, but I wonder if that is realistic," said Tom Kite, the year's leading money-winner on the American tour. "We're not a bunch of dogs. We can play the game a little, too, you know."

But Curtis Strange, the two-time U.S. Open champion and one of the leading contenders for the old claret jug that goes to the winner of this ancient event, took a different view.

"Maybe," Strange suggested after some consideration, "those are the right odds."

"For one thing, the numbers work against us. There's 156 in the field and, what, 40 Americans? So the numbers are not in our favor."

And there are at least two other factors, Strange said, that work against American chances. Actually, there are three, if recent history is included. Americans, who once dominated this event, have not won the British Open since 1983.

There are five players, Strange said, generally considered to be in a group by themselves at the top of the world standings.

They include defending champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Masters champion Nick Faldo of England, Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Australian Greg Norman and Strange.

"There's five and there's only one American among them. So the numbers work against us there, too," Strange said.

And there are the unusually dry, hard conditions, the result of a drought and heat wave on the Ayrshire coast along the Firth of Clyde.

It was at this point that Watson, who scored the fourth of his five British Open titles here in 1982, agreed about the odds.

"These are links courses and links conditions," Watson said. "You have to play a different game, play the low shot and run the ball into the green, play the bounces."

"How often do we play these conditions? Not often. How often do the Europeans play these conditions, play links courses? A lot more than we do."

"So if there is an advantage, it has to go to people more familiar with the conditions."

Norman agreed, calling it "a home court advantage."

He quickly added, however, that the entire situation - Americans vs. non-Americans - is one that interests the public, press and oddsmakers much more than it does the players.

"It doesn't matter," Strange said. "You don't think of it like that. If I come down to the last hole on Sunday, with one man to beat, I don't care if he's British or Australian or Spanish or American. I don't even think of that."

"I don't care who it is or where he comes from. I just see one man standing between me and the trophy and I'm going to try to beat him."

WT scramble, barbecue scheduled for Monday

Local boosters of West Texas State University football will have a chance to meet WT head coach Steve Graf and his staff at the Buffalo Thunder Scramble and Barbecue on Monday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Proceeds from the nine-hole event, which will have a 5:30 p.m. shotgun start, will benefit the WT football scholarship program.

Entry for the scramble is a tax deductible $20 donation per person, which includes green fees, cart rental and the barbecue. Guests of the golfers may attend the barbecue for $5.

Prizes to be awarded include a family coupon book of tickets for WT games. There will also be drawings for a football autographed by the NFL Indianapolis Colts, golf shirts, hats and towels.

Graf said he is hoping for a large turnout.

"We're looking for a good number of folks to come out and enjoy themselves," he said. "We'll answer questions and talk about the program in general. It's going to be full of good food and good fellowship."

He added that current WT players and recruits from Hereford are to be present.

Graf will also be the speaker at Thursday's meeting of the Noon Kiwanis Club.

For more information, call the Pitman Municipal pro shop at 364-2782 or the WT athletic department at (806) 656-2680.

FIRST THE SEED

Without a doubt, the one thing that determines the outcome of any crop is the seed that you put into the ground. Good seed produces a good crop - bad seed fails you.

We believe that insect and disease problems this last year have created a need to look at the crops and varieties you plant and your harvest intentions.

TAM 200 ; a new release from Texas A & M that appeared very promising in limited trials.

TRITICALE ; for known grazing or graze-out acreage - triticale showed less damage from insects & disease than wheat in 1988.

OATS ; Chilocco oats produce excellent grain and abundant forage for grazing.

MESA ; 1988's best variety for milling & baking qualities. A consistent high yielding variety that makes excellent early grazing; also a new release from NAPB that has excellent grain quality, yield and test weights.

TAM 105 ; need to update your seed. We have both certified and good quality select seed available.

Ex-Angel Moore shoots wife, self

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Tormented by the memory of one pitch and despondent over his failing career and marital troubles, former California Angels pitcher Donnie Moore shot his wife numerous times before killing himself.

"All indications are that Donnie Moore and his wife, Tonya, became involved in an argument, and during the argument, Mr. Moore produced a handgun, shot his estranged wife and then turned the gun on himself," Anaheim Police Lt. Marc Hedgpeth said.

Tonya Moore, 35, was in critical condition early today suffering from at least three gunshot wounds in the upper chest and stomach, Hedgpeth said after the shooting Tuesday afternoon at the couple's home in the affluent Peralta Hills area of Anaheim.

Their 17-year-old daughter drove her wounded mother to nearby Kaiser Permanente Hospital. The couple's two sons, ages 7 and 10, also were at the house during the shooting, but none of the children were hurt.

The 35-year-old Moore was released last month by the Kansas City Royals' minor league team in Omaha. He had been plagued by injuries during his last years in the majors and saw yet another comeback attempt dissolve when he was released by the Royals' organization.

He also had separated from his wife of 16 years about a month ago, said

Moore's New York-based agent, Dave Pinter.

Moore was released from the Angels in 1988, two years after he carried California to within one strike of the 1986 World Series, a loss that tortured him through the years.

With the Angels ahead three games to one in the best-of-seven American League playoffs, Moore, pitching with a sore right shoulder, had a 5-4 lead, with two outs and two strikes on Boston's Dave Henderson in the top of the ninth inning of Game 5. But Henderson then hit a Moore forkball for a two-run homer that gave the Red Sox a 6-5 lead.

The Angels sent the game into extra innings, and once again Henderson victimized Moore, with a sacrifice fly in the top of the 11th that lifted the Red Sox to a 7-6 victory.

The Red Sox won the next two games in Boston and moved into the World Series, which they lost to the New York Mets.

"Everything revolved around one ... pitch," California veteran Brian Downing said in a somber Angel clubhouse in Toronto, where the players heard of their former teammate's death after their 1-0 victory over the Blue Jays.

"You (to reporters) destroyed a man's life over one pitch. The guy was just not the same after that," Downing said. "I never ever saw the guy be credited for getting us to the playoffs because all you ever heard about, all you ever read about, was one pitch."

Pinter also said Moore was haunted by the pitch.

"Ever since Henderson's home run, he was extremely depressed," Pinter said.

After the playoffs, it was determined that Moore had been pitching with a painful bone spur on his spine and he underwent surgery to correct the problem.

Pinter, speaking by phone from New York, said his client had not given up on his career. The agent had spoken to Moore on the phone just hours before the shooting, and said there was no indication anything was wrong.

"He seemed fine," Pinter said. "We were just going over everything in general. He was running, lifting weights, just trying to get his comeback in order. He was having domestic problems, having problems with his career."

Pinter said he had been talking with the Houston Astros about finding a place for Moore in their organization.

The native of Lubbock, Texas, also played for the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals, Milwaukee Brewers and Atlanta Braves during a major league career that spanned 13 years.

Bo keeps show rolling for Royals

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Bo knows baseball. Bo knows football. Bo knows the way to the water display. Is there anything Bo doesn't know?

"I knew what he was going to throw me," Bo Jackson said of the pitch from Milwaukee's Don August that he turned into a three-run homer in the first inning Tuesday night. "I knew he was going to throw a breaking ball. I saw how he pitched the first three guys and I just looked for that pitch."

The result was a 435-foot drive that landed in the water display beyond the right-centerfield wall of Kansas City's Royals Stadium. It started the offensive fireworks for the Royals, who beat the Brewers 9-4.

Jackson's manager, John Wathan, didn't know. But he knew the wind was blowing out and wondered what would happen if Jackson "really catches one that way."

Wathan didn't wait long for the answer. With one out and Kevin Seitzer and George Brett aboard on singles, Jackson showed him.

"Just as I thought that, he smoked the next pitch to right," Wathan said of the All-Star MVP who had missed five games with a sore leg. "Welcome back, Bo Jackson."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was California 1, Toronto 0; Oakland 7, Detroit 2; Baltimore 4, Seattle 3; Minnesota 5, Cleveland 4, and Texas 8, Boston 1.

New York's game at Chicago was rained out and rescheduled today as part of a two-night doubleheader.

Jackson, whose 22nd homer tied him for the league lead until Milwaukee's Rob Deer retook it in the next half-inning, finished with five RBIs. Jackson added an RBI single and a run-scoring grounder.

Mike MacFarlane's double in the sixth inning broke a 4-4 tie, and Kansas City scored four more runs in the seventh.

The victory went to Mark Gubicza, 9-7, who pitched eight innings, August, 9-8, lost.

Angels 1, Blue Jays 0

A five-hit shutout by Bert Blyleven and Wally Joyner's fourth homer spoiled the night for the largest crowd in Toronto history.

The shutout, before 48,717 at the SkyDome, was the second of the season and 57th of Blyleven's career, moving him past Bob Gibson and Nolan Ryan into 12th place on the all-time list.

Jimmy Key, 7-10, also went the distance. Blyleven, 10-2, struck out five and walked one.

Athletics 7, Tigers 2

Oakland's Dave Parker became the 55th major leaguer to drive in at least 1,300 runs with a three-run homer in the second inning as Storm Davis and three relievers throttled Detroit on four hits.

Parker's 14th homer of the season gave him 1,302 career RBIs.

Davis, 8-4, struck out three and walked two in six-plus innings.

Dave Beard, 0-1, gave up five runs.

Orioles 4, Mariners 3

Craig Worthington's two-run homer in the fourth inning led to Baltimore's fifth straight victory.

Seattle's Greg Briley was on his way home with the tying run in the eighth inning when a drive by Darnell Coles bounced over the fence for a ground-rule double.

Briley was sent back to third and was stranded there.

Jeff Ballard, 11-4, was the winner. Gregg Olson pitched the last 1 2-3 innings for his 16th save.

Twins 5, Indians 4

Frank Viola tied a career high with 11 strikeouts and pinch-hitter Jim Dwyer hit a game-winning sacrifice fly.

Gene Larkin's fifth single of the game started the decisive rally against Doug Jones, 3-5. Kirby Puckett grounded to third, but second baseman Jerry Browne was unable to handle Paul Zuvella's throw, and the error allowed Larkin to go to third.

After Jones intentionally walked Gary Gaetti to load the bases, Dwyer-batting for Viola in a rare situation created by the insertion of a designated hitter into a fielding position - hit a fly ball to short left field. Larkin beat Joe Carter's throw home.

Viola, 8-10, allowed six hits in his seventh complete game.

Rangers 8, Red Sox 1

Bobby Witt pitched a two-hitter and Julio Franco doubled and tripled to drive in three runs and wrest the league RBI lead from teammate Ruben Sierra, 68-67.

Witt, 8-8, overcame a rocky first inning when he walked the first two batters.

Witt won his third straight decision with his third complete game, outpitching Roger Clemens, 10-7.

Padres plaster Pirates, 17-4

By The Associated Press

Chris James didn't get defensive about his error. He went out seeking to avenge it.

James responded with his second grand slam of the season, leading the Padres to a 17-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night. San Diego tied its record for runs and set a season high with 22 hits.

"I went to the plate trying to knock the stuffing out of something," said James, who had four hits, scored four runs and drove in five.

In the top of the fifth, his error helped Pittsburgh score four runs and take a 4-2 lead. In the bottom of the inning, Jack Clark hit an RBI single and James became the first National League to hit two grand slams this season.

"I was upset that I made an error in the outfield and Jack got on my case about it when I got back to the dugout," James said of Padres manager Jack McKeon.

James, who hit a grand slam April 28 off Cincinnati's Danny Jackson, has three home runs in four games and nine RBIs in his last five.

"I'm starting to get more confidence," he said. "I have a feeling in my heart that when I go to the plate I'm going to have a good at-bat."

Clark hit his 10th home run of the year in the eight-run eighth and had his first three-hit game of the season. Garry Templeton also had three hits and Benito Santiago had four hits and drove in three runs.

In other games, San Francisco beat St. Louis 7-3, New York beat Houston

9-0, Montreal beat Atlanta 7-6, Los Angeles beat Chicago 4-1 and Philadelphia beat Cincinnati 6-5.

Bruce Hurst, 8-7, pitched a five-hitter for his fifth complete game, striking out six and walking three.

Bob Walk, 7-6, allowed nine hits and seven runs in four innings. Reliever Miguel Garcia allowed eight runs and nine hits in two innings.

Giants 7, Cardinals 3

Kirt Manwaring drove in four runs with a two-out, bases-loaded triple in the first and an RBI single in the eighth.

Don Robinson, 8-6, allowed six hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Ken Hill, 5-6, lost his second straight after going seven starts without a loss.

Mets 9, Astros 0

Sid Fernandez, 8-3, combined with two relievers on a four-hitter and struck out six, and Howard Johnson and Kevin McReynolds homered.

New York scored two runs in the first, five in the third, one in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Bob Forsch, 2-3, gave up six runs and six hits in 2 1-3 innings.

Expos 7, Braves 6

Lonnie Smith's two-run single capped a four-run seventh as Atlanta rallied from a 6-0 deficit.

Dennis Martinez, who has won a club-record nine consecutive decisions, was given a six-run lead in the second but allowed three runs in the sixth and was chased in the seventh. Steve Frey, 3-1, was the loser.

Mark Eichhorn, 2-2, pitched a hitless sixth. Jim Acker followed with two innings of one-hit relief and Joe Boveer finished for his 16th save.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 1

Orel Hershiser, 11-7, pitched a four-hitter and struck out five. Kirk Gibson doubled in two runs for Los Angeles.

Greg Maddux, 9-8, gave up eight hits and all four runs in six innings.

Phillies 6, Reds 5

Randy Ready homered off Danny Jackson, 6-10, to snap a 5-5 tie in the eighth.

Todd Frohwrth, 1-0, allowed three hits over three innings for the visiting Phillies and Roger McDowell pitched the ninth for his 10th save.

Rolando Roomes drove in four runs with a bases-loaded triple and a solo home run.

 Hereford's Tanner Murphey raises a cloud of dust with a head-first dive into second base during the fifth inning of Hereford's game with Bovina. Despite the Bovina shortstop's call at right, Murphey was ruled safe when the second baseman dropped the ball. Murphey eventually scored the deciding run in the 9-8 Hereford win.

The only National Leaguers to hit above .400 in the 20th century were Rogers Hornsby, who did it three times, and Bill Terry, once.

In 1962, their first season, the New York Mets won only 40 games while losing 120 for a percentage of .250.

Adams Ranch showcases Braford breed on Tierra Blanca spread

Bud Adams saw the lean years coming long before the meat packers began trimming the fat

HUSTLE HEREFORD

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer
Bud Adams saw the lean years coming before the meat packers began trimming the fat.

Today, at 65, he is producing "lean on the hoof" from the High Plains pastures of Tierra Blanca Creek east of Hereford to the lowlands of the South in Central Florida.

"We've often called our Texas ranch the Southwest showcase of the Braford breed," said Adams, as he spoke of his Deaf Smith county ranch tucked below the caprock of Tierra Blanca.

"That grazing country around Hereford has some of the strongest grass in the nation," Adams said. "Most everyone thinks of vegetable production or the big commercial feedlots when they speak of Hereford, but one of their best kept secrets is the excellent grasslands of the Tierra Blanca."

A native of Florida and a long-time cattle rancher of the Southwest, Adams has maintained his Deaf Smith County spread as something of a showcase for his string of purebred Brafords for more than a decade. Though much of the Southwest has become grazing headquarters for many of the big yearling outfits, the Adams Ranch is still giving ranchers and cattle feeders a ringside seat to the big-framed Braford breed that took the South by storm a generation ago.

Ranch Manager Frank Burns runs the Tierra Blanca spread headquartered 10 miles southeast of Hereford. A 3,000-head preconditioning unit is located right in the middle of the ranch but it is not in use at this time.

"We might put it back in operation this fall," said Burns, who has managed the Adams Ranch for the past six years. Prior to coming to Hereford, Burns worked for the historical Flying Y Ranch near Deming, N.M., for 32 years.

Florida cattleman Alto "Bud" Adams Jr., a young rancher at the age of 24, was already looking for a better calf to wean.

Native Florida cattle were not the answer--too much bone with too little beef. English breeds held a "place in the sun" but not the Florida sun.

So Bud Adams, a young man straight out of the University of Florida, along with his father, Alto Adams Sr., set out to develop a breed of beef cattle that would withstand the harsh elements of the East-Central Florida prairies.

That was in 1948 when the Adams family began a systematic crossing program using Hereford bulls on their existing Brahman cows.

The breed that emerged--20 years and 400 Hereford bulls later--was the Braford cattle breed, large meaty--type animals that would produce 550 to 800-pound weaning calves without supplemental feeding.

"We had done some crossbreeding with the Brahman and Herefords earlier in the 1940s."

"We had done some crossbreeding with the Brahman and Herefords earlier in the 1940s," said Adams, "but we didn't really get serious with it until 1948. We called the American Hereford Association and they picked 10 bulls for our particular program."

Some of those early bulls came from such ranches as the Hammond Ranch and CK Ranch of Kansas. Real Onward was one of the leading Hereford bloodlines of the early breedings with the Brahman cows there in the subtropical climate of Florida, where temperatures and humidity run high and native grassland was made up of marsh prairies. Insects and parasites take their toll on anything that moves.

Born and reared on a family farm in Northern Florida, Alto Adams Sr., was a lawyer by profession, but knowing the good points of the Florida prairies began putting the Crossed Seven Ranch together in the 1930s.

He was elected Chief Justice of the Florida State Supreme Court in 1940, a position he held until his retirement. "I loved the ranch and cattle," said Bud Adams. "So when I got out of the university, all I wanted to do was run the ranch. I really never cared for a professional career."

Starting with just a single unit in the late 1940s, the Adams family expanded this into three ranches within a 40-mile radius of Fort Pierce and later the one near Hereford where their Braford cattle are "doing just as well as they do in Florida."

Today, Adams Ranch, Inc., runs 10,000 Braford cows in a program that produces weaning calves that go directly to feedlots in the Texas Panhandle and breeding heifers and

"Our Florida ranches--which encompass about 60,000 acres--are a combination of native and improved pastures where the cattle are handled under range conditions without creep or supplemental feeding," said Adams. "We also run our cattle with equal success on the slopes of the Black Range in New Mexico at altitudes up to 10,000 feet."

Adams pointed out that emergence of the Braford breed did not come easy--or without much patience, work and expense. They used more than 400 Hereford bulls from ranches throughout the United States in a continuous selection program seeking big-framed, heavy-boned cattle that would have high forage conversion in 100-degree temperatures.

"Using the 10 Hereford bulls from the CK Ranch over our Brahman cows, we produced some excellent calves and this was actually the beginning of the Adams Ranch Braford cattle," said Adams. "Over the next 15 years we used 400 Hereford bulls. Hudgins, Partin and Adams Ranch Brahman bulls were used in a reciprocal cross as a step to the 5/8ths Hereford and 3/8ths Brahman cross."

Adams said weaning weights and yearling weights were used as a guide in bull selection from the very beginning. All cattle on the Adams ranches were born unassisted.

During the 1960s, Adams closed the ranch to outside breeding, and five different families of cattle were identified and segregated for development.

Adams said they now use about four bulls to every 100 cows.

"This insured the breed against running into the blind alley of inbreeding," said Adams. "Work was done in selecting bulls with high libido, and these bulls were mated with 50 to as high as 90 cows." Adams said they now use about four bulls to every 100 cows.

In 1973, the Adams family established a herd of Braford cattle west of the Pecos River at Roswell, N.M., and in 1979, this herd was moved to Winston, N.M. The first public sale of registered Braford cattle was held at the Adams Ranch 14 miles west of Fort Pierce on Dec. 14, 1979, with Brafords from the Adams' spread now reaching across the Southern and Southwestern states.

These cattle have worked well for us for six generations, responding to matings, selections and culling.

"These cattle have worked well for us for six generations, responding to matings, selections and culling in a program based solely on adaptability to the environment and traits that have a dollar impact on the cow business," said Adams. "The program is simple. It is based on natural selection and production and on producing the most pounds of lean Choice grade beef per cow in the pasture, in the shortest time for the least dollar cost."

He said in a country where temperatures are often more than 100 degrees, they've found that selection for loose hides, short hair and pigment around the eyes is important to the animal's overall health, well-being and tolerance. He said the red color of the Brafords developed naturally and was never a selection factor.

"Our number one concern is fertility in both females and bulls," said Adams. "We've selected our replacement heifers for early sexual maturity and femininity and our bulls for active libidos. Bulls generally breed 40 cows per year, but it's not unusual for a bull to handle 60 or more cows in a pasture breeding situation in a single season."

He said their heifers are bred to calve at 2 years of age to normal-size yearling bulls--"and they do it on their own."

"Our cattle have evolved to have a quonset-shaped rump with a gentle slope, that not only positions the pelvic opening properly, but adds higher cutability in the steer cattle."

Adams likes to talk about their Braford weaning weights. "Our first 1,000 steer calves this past year averaged around 600 pounds pay weight at weaning time. These cattle consistently wean at above 550 pounds and have for years without creep feeding or supplement for the cow."

He said one of their goals is to produce a Choice grade 1,100-pound steer in 14 months, with the weaning calves going directly off the cow to the feedlot, skipping the costly stocker stage.

"They have the efficiency and the easy fleshing ability to grade at an early age, which gives them a higher cutability," said Adams. "These young cattle are efficient converters which still have all their baby teeth, so they make a profit for the feeder and a high-yield carcass for the packer."

The five unrelated Braford families of the Adams Ranch include the "Forward," which was the first, followed by the "Muscles" family. These were developed in the period from the 1950s to the 1970s. The Forward cattle were big framed, heavy-boned cattle, while the Muscles family were smooth, easy-fleshing cattle used to add meat to the big frames of the Forwards. They are now using the "Tropical" and "Rock" families. The Tropicals are tall, long, modern cattle with a lot of leg. The Rocks, while larger than the Muscles family, are smooth, easy-keeping and heavily muscled.

The "Massive" family are the largest of the Adams Brafords and will be ready for production in the 1990s.

The "Massive" family, another group now under development, are the largest of the Adams Brafords, and will be ready for production in the 1990s.

"By utilizing these families and changing families every seven years, we have developed a rotation system that was started over 35 years ago," said Adams.

The elder Adams, who for more than 40 years was known as Judge Adams, and his wife retired in Fort Pierce.

Bud Adams, his wife, Dorothy, who also is a native of Florida, and their three sons, Lee, Mike and Robbie, all pitch in together in running the Adams ranches. "We're weaning all of our

Mason project may help local retailers

A small town in West Central Texas may be able to provide a key to how Hereford-area merchants could pick up new customers and keep the customers they have happy.

Customer relations are a prime concern in many areas, and how employees relate with customers and how shoppers feel about the city where they spend money helps determine the success of businesses.

Business leaders in Mason wanted to improve their economy and provide for future expansion. With the help of the Extension Service and the Mason Home Economics Advisory Council, they pinpointed the area of customer relations as critical for keeping shoppers at home.

"Leaders are concerned with keeping business in Mason," said Debbie Christian, Extension home economist serving Mason, Irion, Callahan and Sterling counties. "The town's relative proximity to larger metropolitan areas puts it at a distinct disadvantage. People just don't always stay home to shop."

She said Mason's leaders are actively trying to improve their city and bring in more customers. The town's efforts have included extensive downtown restoration and longer business hours.

The Extension Service and the Chamber of Commerce have sponsored two educational seminars this year that dealt with many facets of customer relations. Each session included general discussions and demonstrated principles of approved practices.

Twenty persons were expected to attend the seminars. Instead, more than 90 participated in the sessions.

"People really want to see their community expand," Christian said. "The successes we've had are strictly due to the merchants' willingness to do something positive."

Surveys have shown that the greatest number of shoppers, 58 percent, quit buying from a store because of an indifferent attitude by sales people.

"The real secret of good customer relations is to sincerely care about people and show it," Christian said.

Texas A&M ranked among elite schools

Texas A&M University is ranked among the top 12 academic elite universities in the U.S., according to a recent article in Business Week.

Last year, industry kicked in $850 million to U.S. universities for research and development. This was up from $298 million in 1981. The following 12 schools have attracted the most industry dollars for research: MIT, Georgia Tech, Penn State, University of Washington, Cornell, Carnegie Mellon, Michigan, UCLA, Texas A&M, Washington University (St. Louis), North Carolina State, and Arizona.

Industry funding at A&M last year was $13.4 million, and $34 million has been spent over the past two years on new equipment and facilities. Last year's research funds nearly doubled the 1982 expenditure. Industry's share of the research funds is listed at 6 percent.

Perry L. Adkisson, A&M chancellor, says "Texas A&M has been the fastest growing research university in the country over the past ten years and is finally receiving the national recognition that it rightly deserves."

James W. Witherspoon of Hereford, a member of the Chancellor's Century Council, notes the university fared well in the past legislative session, receiving a 12.5 percent increase over the 1989 funding level.

A&M also received start-up funding for the new Institute of Biosciences and Technology in Houston, the new Texas Institute of Oceanography at Galveston, and supplements for the College of Veterinary Medicine and Medicine at A&M.

This sign points way to spread on Tierra Blanca Creek, 10 miles southeast of Hereford.

The Deaf Smith spread is something of a showcase for purebred Braford cattle.

Executive survey shows

Too much work, not enough time

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) - If you're feeling things are moving too fast and time doesn't stretch far enough in these modern times, you're not alone.

A recent international business survey found the predictions at the outset of the 1980s that high technology would produce more leisure time have not come true.

Instead, longer hours are common, stress levels higher and the amount of time available for family and social life reduced.

"Our observations are that people have become exhausted," Daniel Stamp, president of Priority Management, said in an interview. "I think the '80s were a time of massive, massive change."

The training company's survey of business people Stamp described as "middle management and above" found 85 percent worked more than 45 hours each week, 89 percent take work home and 65 percent work more than one weekend each month.

Forty-eight percent of those surveyed said they experience stress every day and 81 percent said they suffer stress at least once a week. The stress is seen most commonly by headaches and anger and its causes are listed first as the job, second as interruptions and third as the manager or supervisor.

The survey of 1,000 people around calves at about 625 pounds," said Adams. "Then we send them straight to the feedlots in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado, but most of them go to the feedlots around Hereford." He added that most of his calf crop is handled by local cattle buyers who gather big calf shipments for the Texas feeders.

With the exception of a cull here and there, nearly all of Adams calves produced on the Terra Blanca are earmarked for seedstock for the cow-calf end of the beef business which is the largest single industry around Hereford. When questioned about his goals for the future in the Braford business, Adams replied:

"We've had purebred production sales for the past 10 years and we're very proud of the cattle we offer for sale as breeders. Our purebred sales are averaging around 650 head a year. But with the 10,000-cow commercial herd, we're still basically in the weaning calf business...we're still trying to produce a little better calf for the Texas feeder market."

the world had a response rate of 41.1 percent. Stamp said he believed it was highly accurate.

Among the other findings were that executives are spending more time traveling, but not on holidays. It found 26 percent spend more than five weeks each year on business trips and 62 percent take two weeks or less of vacation. The survey also found signs that family and social life may be suffering as a result of the trend to longer hours. Although 52 percent said they spend at least one hour daily with their children, 27 percent said they spend less than 15 minutes.

"It doesn't make you happy working like this," Stamp said. "It's going to inevitably reflect on the working day."

Stamp, whose office windows offer a panoramic view of Vancouver's magnificent skyline of skyscrapers, sea and snow-capped mountains, came to Canada from Britain in 1979.

His experience had been in academics, and as he moved into the business world he found himself snowed under by the demands of the faster pace.

"I discovered that nobody had these skills," said the trim, bearded, 43-year-old. "I thought it was just me who was going to pieces."

The company was started in Vancouver in 1984, offering a "Time:Text" program that teaches how to set priorities and get organized.

Priority Management, now headquartered in Irving, Texas, has 200 franchised offices. The operation extends to Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Britain and Ireland. Offices in Spain and Portugal are planned.

The company claims more than 175,000 people have gone through its programs.

Stamp said he adheres to his own advice and sets a working day of 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. After that, he's home with his family.

"There is no loss of income as a result of being balanced," he said. "I think it's probably quite the opposite."

The company's program asks clients to outline their goals for three years. They learn to break those targets down to one year and finally to one month.

"Monthly is a great cycle. It's also reachable," Stamp said. "On a monthly basis it will guide you."

He said the techniques learned in setting a monthly goal also can be applied to daily schedules, noting that even something as simple as a phone call can take five minutes less time if it's planned.

"Everybody knows the theory. You don't have to be a rocket scientist," Stamp said. "My question is, do people practice it?"

New legislation affects employers

Dear Commissioner Nabers: Did the legislature make or change any laws that I as a small business owner should know about?

I sure don't want to be surprised after the fact — I usually end up paying more when that happens.

Thanks!

— G.C.L.
Dallas, Texas

Dear G.C.L.: Yes, there are definitely some new laws that will affect employers and also employees. This is a short list because of space constraints. If you want to receive my monthly newsletter on such issues give us a call at 1-800-TEC-MARY. There is no charge.

New legislative changes include the following:

- As part of the comprehensive AIDS/HIV package passed as SB 959, the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act was amended. The amendment allows a disqualification from benefits if a worker leaves a job voluntarily rather than provide services included within the course and scope of his employment to anyone infected with a communicable disease.

- Also to be disqualified from benefits will be a claimant who was discharged from his last work because of his refusal to provide services within the scope of his employment to an individual infected with a communicable disease.

These disqualifications will be imposed only if the employer made available to the employee the facilities, equipment, training, and supplies necessary to avoid infection. As with other disqualifications under the Act, the employer's account will be protected from chargeback if the disqualification is imposed.

- S.B. 436, already effective as of April 20, 1989, exempts from unemployment insurance tax the wages earned by real estate brokers or salesmen, and instructors of persons licensed or seeking licensure as real estate brokers or salesmen.

Because the provisions of this law exempt services by an individual engaged in performing transactions covered by the definition of "real estate broker" in The Real Estate License Act, real estate appraisers will also fall under the exemption.

- HB 2487, already effective as of June 16, 1989, lowers the cap on the tax rate of a "shared work" employer to the same cap which applies to all other employers. A "shared work" employer is one which has a Commission approved unemployment compensation plan to allow current employees whose hours have been reduced to draw partial unemployment benefits while continuing to work for the employer.

Formerly, there was little incentive for employers to sign up for the shared work program because their tax rates were not subject to the same cap as those of regular employers and therefore they ended up with rates higher than the maximum. This legislation will make the shared work program more attractive to companies

Social activist Gregory goes without food

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - Social activist Dick Gregory has gone nearly six weeks without food to draw attention to illegal drug use. He says it is just the beginning.

At a news conference Monday marking 40 days of not eating, he said he may fast for a year depending on two conditions: his health and his hunger.

"If I get hungry enough, I will eat," Gregory said.

During his fast, he consumes water, fruit juice and a special vitamin powder.

Gregory has lost 33 pounds. The Rev. George Clements, a Chicago priest who's fasting with Gregory, lost 39 pounds.

"I went 40 days and I'm hungry. I am eating," Clements said.

Pack muffins for vacation

Summertime means packing up the car and the kids and setting off on a cross-country vacation. This year, rather than battling the "fast food" restaurant lines, why not pack nutritious meals to share and enjoy on the road? A cooler full of healthy snacks can take the place of one big meal and will certainly maximize travel time.

A roadside picnic can also be a great break for road-weary travellers, as well as an opportunity to take in the beauty of the countryside.

You're sure to get lots of mileage out of homemade "Country Garden Muffins." These muffins are an easy-to-pack, compact meal-the perfect substitute for sandwiches! Filled with garden-fresh vegetables and lean ham, these muffins will please the entire family.

Rollled oats provide a hearty texture. High in water-soluble fiber and low in fat, oats can help reduce cholesterol levels. A spicy blend of cinnamon and nutmeg brings out the flavor of the ham. And, if your children's motto is "Just Say NO to Vegetables," this is the perfect way to serve them incognito.

Prepared ahead of time and individually packaged in resealable, pleated sandwich bags, "Country Garden Muffins" stay moist and fresh-tasting hours after baking.

Fresh fruit and vegetables can also be packed in clear, resealable plastic bags. Try packing cubed cheses, strawberries, apple slices and popcorn for the ride.

And the bags make cleanup a cinch! Simply place items you want to discard-muffin papers, used napkins, etc.-in the bags and toss at the next roadside stop. Wet towels kept in a sealed bag are handy for wiping off sticky fingers and faces after eating.

Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove immediately to cooking rack and cook thoroughly.

Refrigerate until ready to serve. Carry for lunch in pleated sandwich bags.

Makes 12 muffins.

NOTE: For six giant muffins, divide batter evenly into 6 muffin cups (about 1/2 cup batter for each) and bake 25 to 30 minutes, or until golden brown.

Names In The News

NEW YORK (AP) - When Tom Smothers reflects on his battles with the CBS censors and the network's cancellation of his comedy show, he can't help but smile.

"It hurt us a lot at the time, but I'd say CBS' firing us and all the publicity we got from that probably added 20 or 30 years to the life of the Smothers Brothers," said the elder Smothers in May's McCall's.

In the same article, brother Dick credited the team's longevity to their continued close association despite ups and downs in their other relationships.

"What I have with Tommy is a prior commitment. This is my brother from the day I was born," he said. "Tommy has been part of my life with every person. He knows everything about me."

Agreed Tom: "We are brothers first. If there's any anxiety about me from the women in Dick's life, they put that on themselves, because I'm No. 1 in his life."

Legend has it that the great, early American artist Benjamin West made his first paint brushes out of hairs plucked from the tail of the family cat.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know from experience how heartbreaking it is to want a baby and not to be able to conceive. The emotional pain and frustration are indescribable.

You cannot look at pregnant women without bursting into tears--and they seem to be everywhere. Your self-esteem plummets to zero. You try every gimmick suggested by well-meaning friends--any drink, food, body position, folk medicine, witchcraft--anything you ever read or heard about, on the outside chance that it just might work.

You go from one gynecologist to another. The medical bills are horrendous. You put yourself and your husband through every test known to modern medicine. The anxiety and tension mount with each disappointment. Making love becomes mechanical and joyless. The pleasure you once knew is gone. All intimacy centers around the calendar and a basal thermometer.

What I want to say I am unable to say comfortably, face-to-face to the couples I know who are going through this agony. Since you are the only forum that provides anonymity for ordinary people such as myself, I'm hoping that you will print my message. I became pregnant when I gave up trying. After years of desperation, I threw in the towel. Five months later I was pregnant. It wasn't until my second pregnancy that I realized why we had such a terrible time. We were trying too hard. When we decided to go back to enjoying ourselves, it happened.--Jane in South Jersey

DEAR JANE: Thank you for a letter that makes a great deal of sense. I have long been convinced that what goes on in the mind can have a powerful effect on the body.

Too much pressure can be a strongly inhibiting factor. You have pointed this out in a most compelling way and I thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a reader who wanted to know what to do about a nonstop telephone pest who took up endless hours with drive. I'll tell you how I handle such bores.

I disconnect in the middle of a sentence (mine, not theirs). Then I leave the phone off the hook, so if they try to call me back the line is busy.--Anonymous

DEAR NONN: Sorry, I don't think much of your idea. Are you related to the woman who wrote the next letter?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I, too, used to be bothered by long-winded friends who telephoned at times when it was convenient for them but not for me.

I had an extra long telephone cord put on my phone so it reached to the front door. Whenever an interminable talker called I gave her five minutes, then I'd walk (phone in hand) to the front door and ring the bell. "Sorry," I would say, "my guests have arrived a little early. I must go now."

It's a perfect out and no feelings are hurt.--Ohio Reader

DEAR OHIO: To each his own, but I still believe the best approach is to be honest and forthright.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter about picking up a penny? My wife's name is Penny. I picked her up 48 years ago and it was the best pick of the century. Sign me--Lucky in Riverside, Calif.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
